Allied Troops Continue To Gain Ground In Big Drive

Move Up On 70-Mile Wide Front; Resistance Spotty As Reds Apparently Withdrawing Main Body Of Men; Heavy Toll Taken From Enemy

Tokyo, March 8 (AP)— Allied troops stabbed ahead one to two miles today against spotty resistance in the second day of their 70-mile wide drive in Korea.

Field dispatches said the Red resistance was "more of a rear-guard nature, indicating the communists were withdrawing their main body of troops in front of the advancing allies."

A U. S. Eighth Army briefing officer said 11,039 Chinese and North Korean Reds were killed or wounded Wednesday on the opening day of the assault—one of the biggest allied attacks of the war.

The weather was springlike, sunny but nippy enough to require an overcoat.

Red Jets Flew While ground troops crunched ahead, 14 U. S. F-46 Sabre jets intercepted 17 MIG-type fighters over northwest Korea.

"We didn't have time to get in any good shots at them," said Lt. Col. Glenn T. Eagleston, flight leader. "As soon as they saw us coming, they turned tail and ran."

The U. S. 25th Division fanned out an additional mile Thursday from the three-mile-deep bridgehead it carved Wednesday on the north bank of the Han River east of Seoul.

The 25th made three assault crossings over bridges built under Red mortar fire. Its advance Thursday was against little or no resistance.

Ground Advances On the right of the 25th, the U. S. 24th Division drove ahead almost two miles against scattered resistance.

And farther along the battleline, from west to east: U. S. First Cavalry Division troops advanced almost two miles unopposed northeast of Chipyong toward Hongchong.

British forces east of Yongdu reported seeing 200 Reds moving north. Air reports from the center of the front, north of Hoengsong, said 500 Reds were dug in eight miles ahead of U. S. Marine lines and 300 were entrenched 10 miles ahead of the leathernecks.

U. S. Second Division elements advanced more than a mile Thursday morning but later ran into heavy fire six and nine miles east of Hoengsong.

Take Three Peaks U. S. Seventh Division troops captured three peaks on the east-central front. The newly-won high points command territory over which Reds would have to cross to attack.

Seventh Division patrols reported an estimated 300 Reds dug in on high positions north of Taemi, a town in the Korean no-man's-land.

Air reports indicated South Korean troops on the extreme right of the assault line, thrown back two to three miles north by North Korean Reds Wednesday, had regained some of the lost ground or were holding firm.

Blow To 'One World'

Recognition That Human Nature Has Not Changed To Accept Peaceful Means Of Settling Dispute Is Apparent In Proposals Of Forming A United Nations Army

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The American sponsored project for the creation of a United Nations army to combat aggression is a tacit admission that the time hasn't yet arrived when peace can be maintained by moral suasion.

That will come as a bitter blow to the exponents of peace who have dreamed that the U. N. would be the immediate forerunner of "One World" in which mankind could live in harmony. Still, in the six years since the nations of the globe met in San Francisco to sign what was in effect a pledge to practice peace, events have made it clear that this ideal of "One World" was indeed just a dream of the distant future. It lacked the substance to make it come true quickly.

Wars have been exploding about the world like a string of firecrackers. Every time you turn a corner you run into fresh threats of conflict. Thus one is driven to the conclusion that there will be no abandonment of wars until human nature has been changed.

I'm one of those who believe that human nature can be changed but it's going to take some do-

Assassin To Die

Washington, March 8 (AP)—The little Puerto Rican Oscar Collazo has been doomed to death in the electric chair following conviction for murder during an attempt to assassinate President Truman.

It took a federal court jury only an hour and 43 minutes yesterday to convict the 37-year-old Collazo on two first-degree murder counts. Each carries a mandatory sentence of death, although the formal sentencing was delayed.

Collazo's companion in an attempt to storm Blair House last Nov. 1 paid with his life on the spot.

In his bid to escape a death sentence, Collazo calmly recited many details of the shooting. He steadfastly insisted that he did not intend to break into Blair House or to kill anyone.

Johnston Meets With Top Labor Leaders Today

Reshaping Of WSB Considered; Industrial Leaders To Be Consulted

Washington, March 8 (AP)—Labor leaders went back for another conference today with Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston on their terms for patching up the dispute over mobilization planning.

High on the list of their proposals was the re-shaping of Wage Stabilization Board as an 18-man agency with authority to settle disputes as well as to fix wage policy.

Johnston presumably talked that over with four top industrial leaders on his management-labor advisory committee yesterday.

He will take up the same question Friday with representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the Council for Economic Development. These groups are reported considering setting up a United Business Policy Committee to match the United Labor Policy Committee (ULPC) which speaks for nearly all of organized labor.

A notable exception from the ranks of the ULPC, however, is John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers Union whose District 50 "News" today spoke up in defense of mobilization director Charles E. Wilson in his fight with the other labor leaders over manpower controls.

The "News" said editorially it was ready to give Wilson "the benefit of the doubt." It called the manpower problem a red herring intended to divert attention from the ULPC's participation in a wage stabilization program.

The ULPC has requested that manpower controls be allowed to remain with Secretary of Labor Tobin rather than shifted to Wilson. The "News" said labor would get no better deal from Tobin.

It suggested the reason that Wilson had not agreed to appoint a labor man to a top post on his staff might be "because the AFL and CIO can't agree on the man."

City Recreation Head Appointed

The Recreation Commission yesterday appointed Warren Carroll, athletic director of the Raleigh Recreation Commission, to head up its recreation program in Greenville.

Carroll, 30-year-old Air Force veteran, will assume part time duties here in the near future. June 1 he will go on a full time basis at a salary of $3,600 annually with a raise at the beginning of 1952 if a progressive athletic and recreation program is effected.

Carroll made application for the job recently. His experience has been as part time director of the Raleigh recreation program while a student at State College. He is a native of Pitt County and a graduate of Lenoir College.

Carroll will be the first full-time recreation director Greenville has ever had. His appointment came about after the recent re-organization of the commission to conform to standards of the North Carolina Recreation Commission.

Carroll is married and has one child. He was reared in Chocoma Township.

Roy Teel Is Ordered Held For Grand Jury In Slaying

At a coroner's inquest last night Roy Teel, 45-year-old Greenville Negro, was ordered held for Grand Jury action as a result of the slaying of Randolph Parker Saturday night near Grimesland.

Teel has been in county jail since early Sunday morning after confessing to sheriff's deputies he stabbed Parker in the neck after an argument earlier in the evening. The deputies found him in a Negro farmhouse in the Simpson community.

Teel told Deputy Loyd Manning after his arrest that the fatal stabbing was the result of a dispute concerning when the two men were coming back to Greenville from Grimesland where they were repairing an automobile belonging to another Negro.

He said Parker struck him and then he stabbed Parker once in the neck. He said he didn't know he had killed him. Parker's regular vein was severed and he died a death before other Negroes at the river camp could do anything about it or call for help.

The case will be turned over to the Grand Jury at its March 19 meeting during the March term of criminal court.

Army Calls Number Of Reserves Back To Duty

Solons Vote Congress Troop-Move Authority

Washington, March 8 (AP)—With a coalition in control, two Senate committees voted 14-10 today for requiring both Senate and House approval of any assignment of American troops to the North Atlantic Defense Force.

By the same vote, the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees approved a proposal by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) to put the Senate on record as favoring the administration plan to send troops to join Eisenhower's western European army.

The proposals were written into a resolution which Connally and Senator Russell (D-Ia) have sponsored to put the Senate on record as favoring the administration plan to send troops to join Eisenhower's western European army.

The committees, which held lengthy hearings on the issue, approved the plan in principle yesterday.

Connally said members of the coalition served notice that while they will support the Connally-Russell resolution, they want it supplemented by an identical resolution which would require action by both houses and have the force of law.

Although Connally refused to make public the rollcall, the three Democrats were reported to have been Senators George (D-Ga.), Byrd (D-Va.) and Gillette (D-Iowa).

Eleven Republican votes were registered, but Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), ill and absent, was not recorded.

Power Pool Discussed At Meeting Here Last Night

Representatives From Greenville, Farmville, Washington, Kinston, Southeastern Power Administration And The REA Confer On Co-operative Action

Reports Advice To Become RFC Goat

Director Dunham Says Board Member Urged Him To Resign And Become 'Fall Guy' In Senate 'Influence' Probing

Washington, March 8 (AP)—The memos to the subcommittee and RFC Director Walter L. Dunham was quoted today as saying a fellow board member urged him to resign and "become the fall guy" in a Senate investigation of political influence in the RFC.

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) told reports Dunham named Director C. Edward Rowe as the man who made the proposal.

BULLETIN Washington, March 8 (AP)—Senators investigating charges of influence on RFC lending and the Justice Department today search their committee's record of hearings for evidence of perjury, tax evasion or other violations of law.

Fulbright heads a Senate banking subcommittee which has been receiving testimony behind closed doors.

Another subcommittee member, Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), said Dunham used the words "become the fall guy" in describing the incident. He said Dunham filed documents with the subcommittee to back his story. Fulbright said Dunham made a trip to Florida recently and, before leaving, dictated a letter of resignation but did not file it.

Fulbright continued: "Dunham said Rowe called him in Florida and told him this whole thing could be solved if he would file some memoranda along with his resignation. The memoranda were dictated by Rowe."

Dunham, Fulbright said, handed the memos to the subcommittee and the gist of it was that Dunham was to take all the blame.

Capehart called it "a case of one director trying to force another director out and suggesting that he become the fall guy." He said Rowe will be asked about it later.

Rowe is scheduled to be one of the windup witnesses in the subcommittee's investigation of alleged favoritism and influence in the making of huge government loans. No date has been set definitely for his appearance.

It was the second successive closed door session the senators have had with Dunham, a 68-year-old former Michigan banker. He told them yesterday he believes a group of men close to the White House had tried to "use" him, but declared he had never permitted anyone to influence him in RFC matters.

Representatives of utilities commissions of four eastern Carolina municipalities, the Southeastern Power Administration, and the Rural Electrification Administration met here last night to discuss the possibilities of the formation of an electric power pool between the generating plants of the four cities and the REA cooperatives in this area.

The four municipalities represented at the meeting were Greenville, Farmville, Washington and Kinston, all of which operate their own electric power generating plants. The Southeastern Power Administration was represented by Administrator Ben W. Creim and four members of his staff, and the REA was represented by Engineers T. F. Treadway and D. A. Springs and representatives of the REA cooperatives of this area.

The formation of the pool would be accomplished by the construction of connecting lines between the generating plants of the four cities and the REA cooperatives, and the surplus power from the municipal power pool would be sold to the cooperatives at a specified rate which would be stated in the pool contract.

The cooperatives in the immediate pool with the four municipal power plants should the project go through, probably would be the Pitt-Greene cooperative, the Woodstock cooperative at Belhaven, and the Pamlico cooperative at Grantsboro. Eventually, however, the pool would be expanded to tie in some five or six other cooperatives between here and the South Carolina line when the network was developed to a point where other sources of power supply would come into the pool.

In addition to the municipal generating plants, the pool would supply the generators of the REA. The project when it is completed, probably late 1952 or early in 1953.

Creim told the utilities and cooperative representatives at the meeting last night studies made by the Southeastern Power Administration and the Federal Power Commission indicate the four municipalities could save between $250,000 and $300,000 annually in fuel costs alone by taking advantage of more efficient operation which would be made possible by the operation of the power pool.

He said the studies made "indicate there is a tangible dollar benefit which can come to the cities" through the formation of the power pool. "The pool will save the government considerable sums of money," Creim, however, warned the municipalities representatives. "No pool agreement is better than the cooperativeness of the members in the pool."

The formation of the pool and the regulation of the power flow from the four generating plants by a central authority would make possible the operation of the units of the four plants at the rate of greatest efficiency, and thereby cut down the fuel cost per unit of power generated over the pool.

The representatives last night likewise went into the technical discussion of the means of financing the interconnecting lines by obtaining funds through an over-all REA cooperative which already is in existence. A formula for the amortization of the loan would be worked out on a fixed basis for the municipalities and the individual REA cooperatives. In partial answer to a question about the ownership of the lines after the loan had been repaid, Creim said:

"I wonder how long he'll last"—when a new man comes in to take over a big government job.

There's nothing cynical about that. It's just a natural reaction after seeing a lot of men flash across the Washington sky like roman candles, only to end in a puff, or a puff.

Some come here with political ambition to use the big job as a stepping stone to even bigger things. Others, at real sacrifice to themselves, come here out and out when their job is done.

Some will survive long enough to finish their assignment; others, for one reason or another, get out or are forced out. The reasons for getting out are many:

Personality, performance, stepped-on-toes, pressure from special groups, and the inevitable conflicts that spring up when many men, in many big jobs, have different notions on how things should be done.

One of the most memorable recent casualties was Louis Johnson.

Award Contract For Pitt Roads

Project Involves 3.25 Miles; Two Other Jobs In Making

One highway project amounting to 3.25 miles of roadwork has been awarded for construction of roads in Pitt this month.

The construction will be on the Farmville-Saratoga road (US 264) from just inside the town limits to the Pitt-Greene county line. It will consist of widening to 24 feet and laying of bituminous concrete surface.

The contract was awarded earlier this month and work will begin shortly.

Two other projects in the making at the present time call for opening of bids in the latter part of this month. Project number one is for four-and-a-half miles of roads from Whitehurst's Service Station on north N.C. 11 to a point 2.2 miles this side of the Greenville-Belvoir road. The road will have asphalt paving.

Project number two is for 2.6 miles in the vicinity of Ballards Crossroads. The new road will head northwest from a point 2.6 miles beyond Ballards to the Greene County line. Another spur off that road will begin in the vicinity of Marlboro and heading northeast to the Norfolk-Southern railroad.

The two projects to be bid on this month call for structures, grading and drainage. No hard surfacing is included. The funds will come out of the road bond money. Funds for the project to get underway this month comes from the road betterment fund.

Lincolnton, N. C., March 8 (AP)—Two white convicts who escaped from a road gang yesterday were recaptured several hours later by use of dogs, camp authorities said today.

The prisoners are James Rice, sentenced from Durham for larceny from the person, and Arthur Otto D. den, sentenced from New Hanover for theft.

Senator Dies As Result Of Auto And Truck Crash

Washington, March 8 (AP)—Senator Virgil Chapman (D-Ky.) died today a few hours after he was injured in a collision of his automobile and a big truck.

He was 55 years old.

Admiral M. D. Willcutts, commanding officer of the Bethesda Naval Medical Center, said Chapman had suffered serious lung and other internal injuries.

Chapman was serving his first term in the Senate, but previously had been a member of the House for many years.

His home was at Paris in Bourbon County.

Tourist Movie Gets TV Debut

Raleigh, N. C., March 8 (AP)—North Carolina's tourist attraction film "Variety Vacationland" will make its debut on television tomorrow night.

State Advertising Director Chas. Parker said the film will be shown over station WBTV, Charlotte, at 10:30 p. m. He said additional television showings have been arranged in New York, Indianapolis and Salt Lake City, and more are expected later.

Those reporting will serve 21 consecutive months unless the law is changed to extend service periods. The number of officers recalled involuntarily, the Army said, will depend on how much of the quota is made up through volunteers.

Officers with four or more dependents may request exemption, the announcement said, and WACs with dependents under 1 year of age will not be accepted. The order excludes veterans who have completed ROTC advance courses and are now finishing a college course.

A Matter Of Survival

They Come And Go, These Men Called In To Take Up Special Jobs In Washington; Recent Casualties; Current Crop Is Already Under Fire; Wilson Is Tough

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, March 8 (AP)—It's an old Washington cry—"I wonder how long he'll last"—when a new man comes in to take over a big government job.

There's nothing cynical about that. It's just a natural reaction after seeing a lot of men flash across the Washington sky like roman candles, only to end in a puff, or a puff.

Mrs. A. W. Bryan Talks About Java At Lector Club

Mrs. Hugh Winslow was hostess to the Lector Club on Tuesday afternoon, February 27th.

The home was attractively decorated with spring flowers. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Holly VanDyke, president. A new slate of officers was elected for the coming year as follows: Mrs. Ray MacKenzie, president; Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., vice-president; Mrs. Tom Wilson, secretary; Mrs. Harold Forbes, treasurer; and Mrs. Hugh Winslow, librarian.

At the conclusion of the business the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Harold Forbes, who was in charge of the program for the afternoon. Mrs. Forbes introduced Mrs. A. W. Bryan, who gave a most delightful and informative talk on Java, where she was a resident for a year and a half, and where she was living when the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Bryan gave a before-and-after-the-war picture of Java. For example: When she first arrived and during her stay, Java was a land of plenty. Even though the majority of the food was imported, servants were plentiful; in fact, she had four—a cook, a gardener, a houseboy and a housekeeper—and each servant did his specific job. The cook, who only cooked, didn't even wash the dishes. The houseboy did the bargaining and buying and ran the errands.

The Javanese people were gay, carefree people with little money, but their wants were simple, she said. Their patience was shown in the beautiful native costumes, which they wove and dyed themselves and which took days to complete.

After the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the women and children were evacuated, at which time Mrs. Bryan sailed for home. Mr. Bryan had to stay behind and the day before the Japs took Java he and the other men left their homes, drove their cars to the docks and went aboard ship, leaving everything as if they would be back in an hour.

Since the war Mrs. Bryan has heard from her friends there that Java is not the same and probably never will be again. The people themselves have had a taste of independence and do not wish to work for others; therefore servants are few and far between. The food is terrible now due to the ravaging. Their homes were looted and have really depreciated.

Mrs. Bryan is glad she knew the Java of old and is very glad she and her husband are back in the States.

After the program a delicious salad course with coffee was enjoyed by all.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Victor Wells of Richmond, Va., Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr., Mrs. Withers Harvey, and Mrs. Alex Dall.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
March 8, 1911

Winter came back all right. Chickens did not follow eggs in the downward price.

Greenville just will lead. Even our mud is up with them.

March may keep monkeying with these snow skiffs until it gives us a sure enough snow.

Wonder if there will be something to recall what happened to the Maine and subsequent events in this mobilizing of troops on the Mexican border.

The legislature had about the usual ending with merriment, songs and speech making.

With congress and the legislature both quiet now folks might get down to work and make things count.

Red Oak News

One of the most enjoyable meetings ever held by the Youthful Workers Club was held recently at the home of Jarvis Tripp Jr. with Jarvis Jr. and Hazel Garris as hosts.

Lawrence Tyson presided in the absence of the president and vice-president. Waddell Manning called the roll and 35 members and guests were present. Mrs. Johnnie Cassick gave the treasurer's report. A short period of devotion was held with two young ladies rendering a special number.

Hazel conducted three George Washington games which brought gales of laughter.

Cherry pie a la mode, nuts, sandwiches and Russian tea were served from a beautifully appointed table. Early spring flowers and an attractive fruit arrangement on a lacy Susan table topped with flags made an outstanding centerpiece.

The meeting adjourned to meet in March with Mrs. Johnnie Cassick in Greenville.

Practice has begun on a three act play "Wild Ginger" which will be presented in the early spring by members of the Youthful Workers Club. Those taking a part in the play will be Lawrence and Louise Tyson, Willie Pate, Charles and Douglas Allen, Naomi Edwards, Althea Roach, Francis Cassick, Louis Holloway, Jarvis Tripp Jr. and Hazel Garris.

"I Now Get Amazing Relief from Monthly Female Pains and nervous feelings several days before... by taking Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound"

"Believe me, it's no picnic to suffer distress from female functional monthly ailments such as headaches, backache and 'bearing-down' pains—at such times. What really got my goat was I'd feel so nervous, irritable and restless several days just before my period.

"A nurse who is a friend of mine suggested I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. And what an amazing medicine Lydia Pinkham's Compound is! It not only relieves this painful distress for me but also accompanying nervous tension and tired, weak feelings—of this nature. I take Pinkham's Compound every day now, because I find that this helps build up resistance against such female distress. It tastes swell in a little fruit juice. I do hope any girl or woman who suffers this way will give Pinkham's Compound a trial.

P. S. Or you may prefer Lydia E. Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron. Easy to carry in your purse.

R. O. Stevens Speaker For Pitt Wildlife Club

By CHESTER WALSH

Bethel, March 8—Ross O. Stevens of Raleigh, executive secretary of the North Carolina Wildlife Conservation Commission, addressing the meeting of the Pitt County Wildlife Club here last night, said the N. C. Wildlife Federation is growing. More people are now interested in the program and the farmers of the state are cooperating with us in the game and fish conservation program. President Rufus V. Keel presided.

Stevens said about 75 of the 100 counties in the state now have one or more wildlife clubs. This is apparent to the casual observer in the halls of the General Assembly in Raleigh, where effective influence is being exerted for the passage of the fishing bill. Opposition to the proposed fishing law appears to be coming principally from counties where there are no wildlife clubs.

North Carolina ranks fourth among the 48 states for available waters for fishing, but ranks 38th in the number of fishing licenses sold. The wildlife federation executive pointed out.

He reminded the hunters and sportsmen present that sale of hunting and fishing licenses finances the Wildlife Commission. None of the tax money is provided for its support, he added.

A colored motion picture, showing scenes of the North Carolina Wildlife Commission's program in the state was one of the best yet shown here. The picture is booked for showings up until next October, and a request for it has been received from Wisconsin.

Plans for providing feeding ranges for birds in the country were discussed at length. It was stated that the U. S. Soil Conservation Service will provide lespedeza shoots free to farmers who will agree to plant small areas bordering woods on their farms. The Wildlife Conservation Commission, on application, will provide farmers with small quantities of seed for planting bird feed in old tobacco beds and along the edges of fields. Farmers who are interested should contact the Soil Conservation office in Greenville or the county farm agent.

Members of the Wildlife Club are cooperating with a group in Greenville in obtaining suitable grounds for a target practice range for a rifle club recently organized in Greenville, Vice President Eric Whitehead announced.

S. D. Dewar, agriculture instructor at the Bethel High School, and Principal W. C. Latham were present. Secretary - Treasurer C. J. Goodman turned in applications of five farmers of the upper part of Pitt County for membership. Hereafter two boys from the 4-H clubs and two from the Future Farmers of America will be invited to the club meetings.

Tribute was paid to Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden, Pitt county representative in the lower house of the General Assembly, for his good work in behalf of the wildlife conservation program.

The meeting was held in the Rotary building. Supper was served "dutch treat." The time and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

Chicago—(AP)—An extra hour of sleep may mean the difference between a traffic accident and a safe trip, says Dr. W. A. Eggert, chief psychologist for the Kemper Insurance Group.

Dr. Eggert has shown in a survey that a driver who sleeps seven hours or less a night is inviting trouble. On the other hand, his research indicates that the accident free driver averages eight hours or more sleep per night. His findings were based on a year-long study of industrial drivers.

Presbyterian Circle No. 2

Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald and Mrs. Luther Deal were hostesses to the March meeting of Circle 2 at the home of Mrs. Fitzgerald. The chairman presided and opened the meeting with a prayer.

Mrs. Easley reported Circle 2 had won the $5 for the best attendance at the auxiliary meetings for the church year.

A check on Pollyanna showed all circle members had been remembered and many shut-ins had been visited.

Mrs. Charles Baucom gave the program, "The Home Beautiful," taken from the book "Beside the Heartstone" by R. A. Lapsley Jr. The question was asked, "What makes the home beautiful?" The answer is, "inner and not outer things, spiritual not material things. These are things that money cannot buy! Everyone who really desires it can have a home beautiful."

Mrs. Cherry Easley had the Bible study which was on "Prayers of Paul." She closed the meeting with a prayer.

Fifteen members were present. During the social hour the hostesses served individual lemon pies, toasted nuts and coffee.

Later she has been singing in theaters and not long ago she came to Pittsburg to make her night club debut. Talking about her father, she declared: "In 'South Pacific' he made so many more friends than he had in opera, though I'd like to sing for them, too. I want to sing for everybody."

No 'Freeze' For Naval Recruiting

Chief A. E. Cahoon, local Naval recruiter for the Greenville and Pitt County area announced today that the current restrictions on recruiting is not a "freeze" but a quota system necessitated by limitations of facilities at available recruit training centers.

He also stated that under the new quota approximately four hundred volunteers will be accepted from the Raleigh recruiting district of which Greenville is a part, for the month of March. However, the recruiter did not disclose the number of recruits who can be enlisted from Greenville and Pitt county.

Chief Cahoon said that the Naval Training Center at Bainbridge, Maryland, is now being reactivated and the training center at San Diego is being augmented to amplify recruit training capacity.

In addition, Cahoon stated there is no quota now placed on the enlisting of persons with enough previous Navy or other military service to make recruit training unnecessary.

For further information about the Naval service, persons should get in touch with the naval recruiter at the Post Office building in Greenville, on the second floor.

The chamber hastily sent printed matter, informed Joy that he is now official envoy to Korea and told him to invite anyone he sees to visit Whitefish—anyone south of the 38th parallel.

Resigned To Die In Chair Tonight

Ossining, N. Y., March 8 (AP)—Two grasping lovers were reported calmly resigned to die in the electric chair tonight as the final payoff in their murder-for-profit partnership.

But lawyers continued last-minute efforts to save the condemned "Lonely Hearts" slayers—200-pound Mrs. Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez, the balding Romeo.

Mrs. Beck, 31, and Fernandez, 36, have been in the death house at Sing Sing Prison since 1949. They never have met while in prison.

After another unsuccessful appeal in New York State courts, their lawyers planned to make a final plea to a federal court today—either in New York City or the Supreme Court in Washington.

Another appeal to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to commute the death sentences also was likely.

death struggle. But there too, the activities virtually have reached the stalemate which has been forming for several years. There are grave decisions to be made in the near future which will determine the course of the Democracies and the Communist nations for perhaps decades. These decisions have been sought, but as yet have not crystallized. The time for decision is at hand. The stalemate eventually must end in a peaceful settlement or erupt into another global conflagration.

Leadfoot May Not Get By In 1951

There is many a North Carolina driver who had better lighten up on his accelerator foot if he expects to be around in the spring of 1952.

The State Department of Motor Vehicles has estimated 1,200 people will lose their lives on the highway of the state during 1951 if the trend of fatal accidents continues at the present rate. The largest single factor in the fatal accidents will be speed, the report said.

Most folks who get ready to go places these days get ready quickly, and then try to traverse the distance to their destination in the shortest amount of time. Time has for years played an important part in the life and activity of the United States, and with each passing year time seems to become a commodity which is to be saved at every turn. But what is the use of saving all this time if a life is going to be snuffed out on the next curve and the individual will never live to make use of the time he has saved?

Everything is moving at a rapid pace. But on the highways, at least, we must either reduce the pace or sacrifice more lives.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 8.—A highly improper senatorial attempt to influence an Interstate Commerce Commission's decision in an extremely important rate case has recently been recorded with that agency by counsel for the Union Pacific Railroad, which was largely the creation of the father of President Truman's foreign relations adviser—W. Averell Harriman.

The U.P.'s lawyers liken the incident to the "unfortunate" atmosphere which now envelops the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, especially as a former director of that organization is involved. In trying to refute Pubright allegations of White House domination of the R.F.C., Mr. Truman apparently missed a bet by not cataloguing this case.

CUT—The matter under I.C.C. consideration concerns a demand by the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Company that the U.P. give it through routes and joint rates at Ogden, Utah, for rich traffic originating in the vast Northwest, and now hauled by U.P. through this territory to points as far east as the Missouri River.

The dispute involves millions of dollars of annual business in this heartland of agriculture, cattle-raising, mining and industry. So, the Rio Grande wants its cut.

CONFIRMATION—The offending Senator is Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado. U.P.'s spokesmen note that, as powerful chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, he wields tremendous influence on confirmation of nominees of the agency he had allegedly tried to frighten into favorable decision for the Rio Grande.

The term of every present I.C.C. member, it is also pointed out, will expire before the end of Mr. Johnson's current term. Indeed, he will continue as chairman if the Democrats retain Senate control next year. That is a likely prospect, in view of the Democratic character of the states where most of the incumbents will seek reelection.

TYRANNY—Senator Johnson's timing of his intervention is regarded as important. The hearings in the controversy closed in April of 1950, and the Chief Examiner reported in favor of the Rio Grande last November. The U.P. filed its exceptions March 1 of this year, which will lead to more hearings during the spring or summer. In this document the Harriman road made its charge that the Senator had sought to cow the commission into action he wants.

Although Mr. Johnson showed no particular interest in the case during the earlier hearings, he took to a Denver radio station in January and February of this year, and delivered the speech now submitted as evidence. Demanding that U.P. open its Ogden gateway to its smaller rival on favorable terms for the eastward haul, he said:

"It is high time that action be taken to remove the economic shackles imposed upon the people of my state of Colorado by the selfish interests of the Union Pacific, and I am and will continue to do all that I can to rid my people of such economic tyranny."

INFLUENCE—The Chief Examiner, according to U.P. lawyers, refused to include in evidence earlier arguments that the Rio Grande had tried to arouse popular support, and give the matter a "public interest" character. It now wants the Johnson remarks to appear in the record because the I.C.C.'s decision may eventually be carried to the Supreme Court by the losing side.

Thus, it may be that the nation's highest judicial body will be given a chance. If it cares to indulge in a "obiter dicta" on the question, to say what does or does not constitute the exercise of improper Congressional influence.

CRITICIZED—Senators O'Mahoney and Hunt of Wyoming, where U.P.'s tracks run in the area between Ogden and Denver, have indirectly criticized their colleague's intervention.

"It would be surprising," they said in a joint statement that might also be interpreted as crowding the I.C.C.—"if the examiner's recommendation were to be upheld by a commission, which knows how important it is to keep the costs of business operation . . . to farmers, ranchers and shippers of the Northwest."

The Rio Grande, in opposing the attempt to bring the Johnson speech into the record, told the I.C.C. that its introduction is "completely irresponsible and outrageous," in "bad taste" and containing "insulting language." It also wants the U.P. attorneys chastised.

LOAN—The controversy gains heightened political-economic importance because the president of the Rio Grande is Wilson McCarthy, a prominent lawyer and Democrat, formerly of Salt Lake City, but now living in Denver. Like former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, he figures in an R.F.C. deal which caused considerable criticism some years ago.

Mr. McCarthy was the western director of the R.F.C. in the early '30s, with railroads as his particular specialty because of his past experience in that field. Soon after his resignation in 1939, he became trustee of the Rio Grande. In that capacity he obtained an R.F.C. loan of more than $80,000,000 to rehabilitate this picturesque and scenic route through the mountains.

Having restored the line, he now wants this additional traffic, as he admits frankly, "to strengthen the financial condition of my railroad."

Capitol Hill is intrigued by the idea that the Supreme Court's opinion on Congressional influence and lobbying may be sought in this litigation, especially as several members of that body were noted for their resort to such tactics before they took the judicial veil.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

In the process of finding an area for the location of a hydrogen bomb plant, Uncle Sam found it necessary to eliminate the town of Ellenton, S. C. Back in December two photographers from Redbook magazine went to Ellenton to take pictures of the town that was doomed to die. They were well received by Ellenton residents. They talked to the Rev. R. D. Parkinson, pastor of the Baptist Church, about taking pictures following a Sunday church service. In later newspaper reports, the pastor said, "I didn't invite them to take pictures, but I didn't tell them not to." The Rev. Parkinson did, however, cooperate to the extent of discussing the quality of light he could expect for the pictures.

On this particular Sunday the two photographers were stationed outside the church. One had his photographic equipment, while the other had releases to be signed by persons photographed for the magazine. They had no idea what was about to happen.

As the congregation left the church, a group of men, somewhere between 15 and 25, jumped on the two photographers and beat their socks off. The Redbook boys escaped and went back to New York.

In the newspaper report, the citizens of Ellenton said that they thought the pictures would make them "look like a bunch of rubes," so they "discouraged" the photographers.

The plant to be built in Ellenton will be called the Savannah River Plant, and materials will be made for the H-bomb. Here in Greenville we think the planned DuPont plant in Grifton costing $24 million is a big deal, but this H-bomb project will cost $260 million. And DuPont will run this one, too. It will take in an area of 250,000 acres, 15 air miles south of Aiken and 20 air miles south of Augusta, Ga. For reasons of safety and security all of the people in the area, estimated to be 7,000, will have to move out within the next year and a half. People in Critical Area One, where work will begin almost immediately, will have to move out in about eight weeks.

The people of Ellenton were heartbroken to hear the news that they had to move out. But they weren't bitter. One man said, "Our country has asked us to move, so we're going to move."

Ellenton was picked for the plant because of three reasons: water supply, availability of labor, and military security. The Army Corps of Engineers will appraise the land, and recommend the amounts to be paid to the owners for their land.

People of Ellenton must give up their homes, allow their city to be demolished, so that a bomb can be made to destroy other cities. If the bomb is dangerous enough, it might save cities by making war too bad to bear.

And I thank you.

As the other side of the coin, there are many pressures for higher prices. Labor seems well on the way to more pay. This plus more overtime, will both increase the prices of many products and add to consumer buying power, which has an upward pressure on prices. Public utilities of all kinds, exempted from the price freeze, are not only federal and state contracts of rates, are surging upward.

Manufacturers' backlog of orders rose $3,700,000,000 in January, indicating high demand. The auto industry is raising prices, with governmental blessings. Defense spending is scheduled to increase greatly in the next few months, and controls of materials are beginning to take effect, reducing the supply of many civilian goods. This will tend to transfer demand to goods that are available and, except to the extent that price controls repeal that law of supply and demand, this will tend to make higher prices.

On the whole, there seem to be more reasons for expecting higher prices than a leveling off, at least until higher taxes mop up a lot of purchasing power.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYNN NISBET

Daily Reflector Bureau

CLEARED—Atmosphere around the general assembly, was cleared and sine die adjournment hastened by action of the house appropriations committee in approving the senate street aid bill Wednesday. That means the bill is virtually assured of final enactment with only slight changes. Most of the arguments used for and against the measure in the fourth public hearing held in its behalf were repetitive. The new features consisted of specific open accusations instead of indirect whispers about pressure from administrative officials and unfair tactics of highway commission personnel.

OPEN—Chairman Henry Jordan of the highway commission took a stronger position against the bill, and indirectly against any proposal for street aid, than he had at previous appearances. He said he came before the committee because he felt that as a state agency the highway commission had a duty to make recommendations to the general assembly, and he recommended the Powell bill be voted down as bad legislation. Later, when asked if he had any suggestion to make how another bill could be drawn up how additional revenue could be obtained, he said he had no recommendations to make because the highway commission is not a legislative group. During progress of the debate Reps. Kerr, Craig Ramsay and Eugene T. Bost charged that they and others had tried diligently to obtain suggestions, advice and even factual figures from the highway commission without success. Ramsay said one highway official told him that any suggestion for improving the Powell bill would imply at least partial support for it, and he could not afford to become involved. It was also pointed out that tabulated statistics had been supplied by the highway commission purporting to show how "diversion" of highway funds to streets would cost some counties a good deal of road work, and that these figures assumed that the entire street aid fund would be taken from one bracket (road betterment), whereas the bill does not contemplate such a course.

CLOSE—The real argument in the committee was on the question of voting on the bill or referring it to a subcommittee. Advocates of the subcommittee charged the other side was attempting railroad tactics, and advocates of an immediate vote asked the others of conspiring to delay action while administrative forces continued unfair pressure against it. The subcommittee lost by the narrow margin of 25 to 24, and the bill then was given its favorable report by a standing vote of 24 to 22. (Counting pairs, the vote was 26 to 24, but informal question was raised by some members whether pairs could be recognized in a vote without a roll call.) These two votes were the closest given the bill since it was first approved by the senate roads committee six weeks ago. However, there is little concern left about final passage, since a majority of the house membership as represented by the committees on finance and appropriations have already voted for the bill in committee and little if any deflection is expected on the floor. CONCLUSIVE—There will be some amendments offered in the house and chances for minor changes in the bill are good. Apparently the convincing argument won the narrow margin of approval Wednesday was that the bill can be amended in the house, and that the only way to get full co-operation from the highway commission in working out the bugs was to report the measure out of committee.

CONSOLIDATED—The house committee action is generally interpreted as another defeat for the administration, and as consolidating the anti-Scott forces throughout the legislature. Final enactment of the Powell street-aid bill will also demonstrate the general assembly has acted independently throughout. The League of Municipalities can claim only partial credit for aiding the bill, for its introduction the League had endorsed a different type measure calling for additional gasoline and license plate taxes. Later the League threw its support behind the Powell idea, while state administration leaders continued refusal to endorse any specific plan and to oppose the pending bill.

CIMMICKS—Rep. Charles Bryant, Sr., of Gaston finding he had a few left-overs from a Christmas item distributed among some of his friends this week a nifty combination of a coat hanger and cigar lighter. The gift consisted of an 8-penny nail and a country match enclosed in a neat map-leather case bearing gold-embossed name and business address of the

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Let's Hear More About It (Greensboro Daily News)

About that bill to create a North Carolina Turnpike Authority in North Carolina there should be more than the minimum discussion in which the Senate Roads Committee reportedly engaged before voting its approval.

It is not an inconsequential matter to transfer any of the powers of the State to a private agency. Yet the turnpike authority, if established under this pending bill, would have the right of eminent domain and presumably other rights and responsibilities which are invested in the state.

Only one question, dispatches say, was raised at the Senate Roads Committee hearing. An inquiring committee member was told that the highway patrol would not have authority to regulate traffic on such a privately owned road as was proposed. The road will be open to the public, for a toll of course; but the public will receive no protection (can that which the private operators see fit to give it. The speed limit, if any, and all other safety measures will be in private hands although the turnpike at least would be quasi-public. That is but one of the many twilight zones of responsibility or irresponsibility which come of the State's delegation or abandonment of its prerogatives.

Another committee member, in advocacy of the bill, asserted that the proposed turnpike would provide a fast, through route for trucks and eliminate wear and tear on other roads. And just how can he be so sure of that?

Who is going to make the trucks use this turnpike? How does an owner know that they will not continue to use, in increasing numbers, the toll-free public highways and that it will not be the already harassed, overhauled private motor vehicles operator who takes to the turnpike and its tolls, even to get away from the trucks? If trucks and private cars are as mixed up thereon as on the state system and a patrol is around to straighten them out and try to keep them that way, just what is likely to happen?

Maybe these disturbing details will be threshed out later. Certainly they ought to be in the name of a North Carolina bill for both highway safety and financing. If Tar Heel motorists is willing to assume highway tolls, it patently isn't currently carrying all that it can bear.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Hope that prices have begun to level off has been expressed by a member of business observers. However, the hope may be a bit premature — a bit of wishful thinking.

The hope is based on a number of developments. The advance of wholesale prices slowed in February; in fact, the Labor Department's index declined during the last week of the month for the first time in four months.

Some retail prices weakened. Prices of a line of shoes have been shaved. Housewives' cuts in buying prices recently. New models in a line of refrigerators were brought out at lower prices; ditto a line of television receivers. Several large companies have cut back production of higher-priced TV sets because of lowered demand. A few retailers have deeply cut prices of some models, but this appears to be a consequence of individual difficulties, rather than a trend. The freezing of cotton prices and margins also tends to slow down price rises at retail.

The most encouraging fact is that the government accumulated a one-billion-dollar surplus. That is purely deflationary, since it chills, if not freezes, that much buying power. But that is purely a temporary phenomenon; the Treasury expects to end the year with a $2,700,000,000 deficit, which is inflationary.

On the other side of the coin, there are many pressures for higher prices. Labor seems well on the way to more pay. This plus more overtime, will both increase the prices of many products and add to consumer buying power, which has an upward pressure on prices. Public utilities of all kinds, exempted from the price freeze, are not only federal and state contracts of rates, are surging upward.

Manufacturers' backlog of orders rose $3,700,000,000 in January, indicating high demand. The auto industry is raising prices, with governmental blessings. Defense spending is scheduled to increase greatly in the next few months, and controls of materials are beginning to take effect, reducing the supply of many civilian goods. This will tend to transfer demand to goods that are available and, except to the extent that price controls repeal that law of supply and demand, this will tend to make higher prices.

On the whole, there seem to be more reasons for expecting higher prices than a leveling off, at least until higher taxes mop up a lot of purchasing power.

DROP IN CREDIT
 NOT DUE TO CONTROLS
 Total outstanding consumer credit declined $119,000,000 in January to $19,903,000,000. Outstanding installment credit dropped $212,000,000.

By no means does this mean that credit controls are "taking hold." The decline is caused largely by people paying Christmas bills.

In January, 1950, the total declined $435,000,000 and in January, 1949, $571,000,000.

INFERIOR LIQUORS TIED TO SCOTCH
 Laws to the contrary, forced tie-ins again are hitting liquor retailers in states that don't have state stores.

Retailers buying Scotch — and many have stepped up orders in fear of shortages — are being forced to inferior rums and off-brand whiskeys. Dealers have been forced to take five, ten and even 25 cases of rum to get one case of Scotch.

It's got so bad that an importer of a famous brand of rum is using large newspaper ad space to denounce tie-ins and to explain that Scotland is overloaded with Scotch. While importers have used up March allocations, the ad state beginning April 1 shipments will be as usual.

The company is dealing with the possibility that stores and taverns, overloaded with inferior rums, will switch them for its brand.

ONLY A MINIMUM DEFENSE ORDER "MUST"
 When a supplier tells a small manufacturer that he can't fill an order because "DO" orders are taking all of his production, he's juggling the facts.

As Harold Leventhal, chief of OPS counsel, told a New York trade group, there is a minimum of DO-rated orders a company must accept, but there is no maximum. So when a supplier "explains" that he's working to capacity on DO orders and can't fill any others, he's either doing so by choice or not sticking to the truth.

FASTER WAVES TO OPS IN HIS FAREWELL
 NEW YORK: "Sorry, folks, three cases and we are out. 1. The rising cost of ingredients. 2. Increasing, unreasonable labor demands. 3. The price frozen."

GAUZE: A new self-adhering gauze makes the application of tight wrap-around bandages possible without taping, pinning or using adhesive tape. The gauze sticks to itself but not to skin. It is being introduced by Johnson and Johnson, 1450 Broadway, New York.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ARTHUR EDSON

(For HAL BOYLE)

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—It seems a strange problem to put before Supreme Court justices, cloistered as they are in their incomparable marble building with its magnificent law library.

But it's there. The justices are worried about bootleggers and the standing they have in their communities.

Specifically, the court must find an answer to this question: Is a man who peddles booze illegally guilty of a crime involving moral turpitude?

In their scholarly researches the justices have considered the esteem, or lack of same, in which bootleggers are held in Kentucky, home state of Chief Justice Vinson. And they've even heard a reference to that amateur chemist of the prohibition era who mastered the art of making bathtub gin.

Although the justices treated some of the arguments lightly, there's no doubt that the question is a serious one for Sam De George, half owner and chief of a restaurant in Harvey, Ill. If bootlegging is a crime involving moral turpitude, he will be deported to his native Palermo, Italy, whence he came 30 years ago.

If bootlegging doesn't involve moral turpitude, he will be allowed to continue to serve spaghetti to the good citizens of Harvey.

De George's case got to the Supreme Court as an aftermath of two convictions of conspiracy to violate the Internal Revenue code. Which is a fancy way of saying that he and some pals were making liquor and neglecting to pay the tax.

He served a year and a day in the penitentiary the first time, two years the second.

The immigration laws say any alien who, more than once, is sentenced to terms of a year or more in prison is subject to deportation. Provided—and this is what the argument is all about—the sentence is for "any crime involving moral turpitude."

Okay. What's moral turpitude? That's the rub. Congress passed the law, but it never did define what moral turpitude meant.

John P. Davis of the Solicitor General's Office maintained in his argument before the court that not paying taxes on whiskey is fraud and that fraud involves moral turpitude.

Thomas F. Dolan, arguing for De George, said merely making whiskey is no crime. Distillers do it every day. And failing to pay taxes, Dolan said, is not an "act of baseness, vileness or depravity," as some dictionaries define moral turpitude.

Davis admitted that in some areas moonshining isn't regarded as the worst of all possible crimes. "I believe that is true of Kentucky," he said.

"Just Kentucky?" asked Vinson.

"Gambling and alcohol have always stood apart in the law—and one other profession."

Dolan said one reason bootlegging isn't more frowned upon is that during prohibition days many a respectable citizen made his own brew.

Justice Jackson asked (hopefully, it seemed): "Hasn't the Statute of Limitations run out on that?"

Well, the talk went on as to what Congress meant, and what the dictionaries said, and what society thought until Frankfurter burst out with:

"I'm inclined to think that Congress has put upon us an impossible task."

The justices will have to solve it, though.

That's what Supreme Courts are for.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—Frances Perkins leaned across the luncheon table. "I cheated all the time," I heard her say to another woman, "almost every night. When heard them coming I'd turn the gas out. They never knew."

Mystified at this confession by such a respectable lady, I pressed her later for details.

"Oh, we were talking about belching light ows," she laughed. "I used to have to go to bed at 8 o'clock. My folks wanted lights out. I wanted to read. I'd turn the gas on. When I heard them coming, I'd turn it off. They never found out."

Nowadays, Miss Perkins can do as she pleases—keep the lights on and read all night. Yet Miss Perkins, the only member of President Roosevelt's first cabinet still in government service, is on her job as one of the three U. S. civil service commissioners every morning at 9 o'clock, alert and as keen-minded as ever.

Though her role as commissioner, which she's held since September, 1946, is an inconspicuous one, far removed from the dynamic part she played in the New Deal era, she's unchanged. She still wears the tricorne hats she preferred in those days and still wishes people would remember that she can make a square darn as well as the best sock-darners in the country.

One thing that worries her in her job with the civil service is this:

"She feels that too many of the young people who take the oath of office when they get government jobs do not know what they are swearing to support."

"They are pledging allegiance to the principles of the Constitution of the United States when they do not know what these principles are," she said.

The former secretary of labor told members of the American Legion Auxiliary at a luncheon that while young people are taught history and political science and other subjects dealing U. S. Government, not enough attention has been paid to teaching them the preamble of the Constitution.

Roger Babson Takes Up 'Barn-Yard' Economics

Babson Park, Fla., March 7. We must start with the dictionary explanation of INFLATION. It is the name for a rise in prices due to demand exceeding production. Please keep this definition in mind as we follow through why a war causes prices to rise.

WHAT ABOUT TAXES?

We complain about federal taxes; but even these have a cheerful side, as 90 percent of all such taxes are dependent upon profits—either on business profits or personal income from dividends, etc. In other words, unless the government allows us profits, the government would go broke. Hence, we can absolutely depend upon good PROFITS during war times.

Next you ask: "But what will prevent the Government from raising these taxes to a much higher percentage of profits?" The answer is that when taxes increase above a certain point, the Law of Diminishing Returns begins to work. If management is not allowed to increase wages and prices to offset any further tax increase, then production falls off and costs increase under our present "mass-production" system. Then more money must be raised by more taxes and the Government starts to "kill the geese which lay the golden eggs". When this occurs, taxes are raised no more. The Government then begins to print money and sell bonds. This always increases the people's purchasing power faster than increasing the supply of goods, and results in still higher prices.

RAISING AN ARMY

The next financial curse of war comes from pulling five million men and women of the best producers away from normal industry,—putting half in training camps and half in factories making war supplies. This not only reduces the production of civilian supplies, but these people must be housed, clothed, and fed, by being paid real money. If you will refer now to our definition of inflation, you will see that this shift of employment will further reduce the supply of consumer goods without reducing purchasing power. This makes for still further price increases.

Then you ask: "Why not put a lid on wages and prices?" The answer is that a lid on wages results in decreased production per dollar of wages. Thus, little is gained thereby. A lid on prices, on the other hand, develops "black markets", with resultant graft, inefficiency, and dishonesty. From these "black market" operators, the Government gets no taxes. Although such "ceilings" are popular politically, they are no real solution to the problem. Higher prices are inevitable.

DEFICIT FINANCING COMING

All these schemes lead finally to deficit or phony financing which means a further decline in production per hour and a further increase in purchasing power. This is just the reverse of what honest financing requires. Those in the war plants, although making only war goods, must be paid market wages. At this point, after all the "quack cures" have been tried and failed, the value of the dollar begins to decline. If we are forced into World War III, our dollar could easily fall to twenty-five cents or less during the post-war years.

People then get scared. Not content to spend only their wages, they draw out their savings and buy homes and productive land. This is why the prices of houses and land have doubled since 1940 and could easily double again during the next ten years. One final thought—although putting a ceiling on wages and prices tends to keep them down during a war—yet when the war is over this dammed-up demand makes the post-war price increase in real estate, automobiles, and all household appliances go sky-high—much more than prices would have gone to artificially held down during the war.

No human plans can ever long succeed in breaking either the Ten Commandments or the Law of Supply and Demand.

There is no surer way of creating "wooden feet", wrinkles and other signs of age, than the constant squinting of the person who needs glasses but doesn't wear them.

So foolish to pay this penalty, when today's colorful glasses can actually add to your appearance. Let us show you how!

Florida Sheriff Indicted By Jury

Tampa, Fla., March 8—(AP)—Sheriff Hugh Culbreath was indicted by a Hillsborough County grand jury last night on charges of taking protection money from a Bolita gambler.

Circuit Judge Henry C. Tillman, before whom the jury returned indictments, said papers would be served on the sheriff today and he would be required to post bond.

The Grand Jury also indicted the 54-year-old sheriff on charges of neglect of duty in failing to stop two deputies—one his brother—from operating lotteries in the sheriff's office; neglect of duty in instructing other deputies not to arrest persons violating lottery laws; neglect of duty in refusing to help investigate the killing of gambler-politician Jimmy Velasco in 1948; and interference with a poll watcher in the 1950 primary election.

The sheriff was accused of taking $1,000 from Paul Giglia in 1948 to allow Giglia and Velasco to operate bolita.

Check-Cashing Escapee Nabbed

Asheville, N. C., March 8—(AP) Julian P. Webster, 30, who went on a check-cashing spree in 42 of the 48 states after his escape from State Prison last September, has been arrested, the FBI reported today.

Webster, a native of Wilmington, was taken by surprise on a downtown street corner yesterday afternoon as he waited for his wife and 19-month-old baby to make a trip to the post office.

The arrest was announced by Charles W. Brown, special agent in charge of the Charlotte Office of the FBI, who said Webster is also wanted on a bench warrant from the U. S. District Court in Charlotte on a charge of violating the National Stolen Property Act.

In addition to the bench warrant from Federal Judge Wilson Warlick, Webster also has three years remaining on a federal prison sentence given him for passing bad checks and about 18 months of a State Prison sentence hanging over him, Brown reported.

He escaped from state custody last September 7 after serving part of a two to three-year term.

After his escape, he and his wife went on a tour of the country and left bad checks in 42 states, Brown said.

Crash Followed Governor's Ride

Camp Lejeune, N. C., March 8 (AP)—A big helicopter crashed here yesterday only two hours after it had deposited Governor Scott safely on the ground.

No one was injured in the crash which was the only incident to mar the visit by several hundred Tar Heel legislators and state officials to this huge Marine training center.

The big, two-rotor helicopter, had participated in an ultra-realistic demonstration of a Marine landing assault on a heavily-fortified position. After the impressive show it took Governor Scott and four newsmen for an aerial survey of the camp.

Some two hours after this flight it was cruising over a residential section of the base when its engine failed. Striking power and telephone wires it crashed into a street. All five occupants walked away from the scene.

Named To Court In Azalea Festival

Carolyn Eisele of Statesville, sophomore at East Carolina Teachers College, will represent the college here in the court of the Queen of the Azalea Festival in Wilmington this spring. Miss Eisele was chosen for the honor by the Legislature of the Student Government Association of the college.

Along with students representing other North Carolina colleges and universities, she will be a maid in the Queen's court and will participate in major events of the annual festival.

This year Miss Eisele has taken a leading part in the activities of the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatic club. In the recent production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town", which marked dedication ceremonies of East Carolina's new College Theatre, she played the romantic lead. She is scheduled to take part in the annual play given by the organization for school children in Pitt County in April. A music major at the college, she is a member of the College Choir and the College Singers.

Miss Eisele is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Eisele of Statesville.

High School Speaking Contest Set April 6th; 'Green Pastures' Topic

By CHESTER WALSH

The annual speaking contest for high school students of the ninth through 12th grades, sponsored by the North Carolina Bankers' Association and cooperating agricultural agencies, will be held in Raleigh Friday, April 6. The subject this year is "Green Pastures. Their Place in the Economy of North Carolina."

The first prize in the state contest is $400 in savings bonds; second, $100 in savings bonds, and third, $50 in savings bonds.

Garland Johnson, president of the North Carolina Bankers' Association and president of the Bank of Elkin, and W. D. Hallacre, chairman of the bankers' association's Agricultural Committee, and vice-president of the Bank of North Wilkesboro, will each give $100 to the first prize winner.

The winner of the contest will be the guest of the North Carolina Bankers' Association at its three-day state convention at Pinehurst, C. J. Goodman, assistant Pitt County farm agent and 4-H Club worker, stated.

County and regional elimination contests are to be held. The first prize in the county contests is $25; second prize, $10. Regional contest, first prize, $50; second prize, $25. The state bankers' association will provide these prizes.

The contest is open to white boys and girls. A separate contest for Negro high school students will be sponsored.

A kit of subject matter will be available to all schools through county agents' offices. Bulletins containing rules and regulations also may be obtained from county agents. There will be three judges for each contest.

The Pitt County elimination contest will be held at Winterville Friday, March 16, at 1:30 p.m. J. H. Mobley, agricultural instructor at the Winterville High School, is chairman. High school students of the county and members of the Future Farmers of America of Winterville will participate. Both will use the subject, "Green Pastures. Their Place in the Economy of North Carolina." The combining of the FFA members and others in the elimination contest at Winterville could result in an FFA member winning first place and representing Pitt County in the regional contest, Goodman said.

The Pitt county winner will go to Washington, N. C., Wednesday, March 28, to participate in the area contest against speakers from Bertie, Martin, Beaufort, Greene, Hyde and Washington counties. The regional contest will be held in Edenton Friday, March 30.

J. Herbert Waldrop, vice-president and cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, Greenville is Pitt County chairman. H. R. Paschal of the Bank of Washington, is chairman of Group 1, composed of 15 northeastern counties.

Policeman Back In The Pink Again — Says He's The "Kilroy of Old"

HADACOL Relieves Lack of Energy When Due to a Lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Niacin and Iron

It takes a good man, a man that's really up and at 'em, to help keep an eye on one of the world's largest office buildings. So when Jimmy Kilroy, 1133 Belden Ave., Chicago, Ill., found himself below par... in a sluggish rundown condition... he turned to today's great HADACOL. He'd heard how this wonderful formula corrected the real cause of such troubles when due to a lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Niacin and Iron. As a result, he's back in shape again, loaded with energy and enthusiasm.

Here's what Mr. Kilroy has to say. "A few lines to tell you the great things your HADACOL has done for me. As a prize fighter and now as policeman assigned to one of the world's largest office buildings, I have always had to be in the best of shape. A month ago I found I was in a rundown condition, lacking energy, always tired and sluggish. And a young man one day said at one time he was the same. Advised me to buy a bottle of HADACOL, which I did. After two bottles, started feeling like myself and from there on I got new energy. Have been working in the gym 1 hour daily and everyone tells me how great I look and act. It really is a great product and I will always keep taking it. I feel like the Kilroy of old."

There's just no doubting an honest, sincere statement like that. Surely there is no need to be a burden to yourself, to your friends, or to your family, if you are suffering from such troubles due to a lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Niacin and Iron. HADACOL supplies more than the minimum daily requirements of these elements plus helpful quantities of Phosphorus and Calcium. It really goes to work to build good red blood, better hemoglobin, (when Iron is needed) to make sure that the precious Vitamins and Minerals are sped to every part of the body, to every body organ. HADACOL is quickly absorbed in your system because its important elements are already dissolved in a special liquid form that's easy to take.

 Winterville vs. Belvoir (Girls) 8:30
 Bethel vs. Winterville (Boys) 9:45

Last night's elimination round of the Pitt County Conference basketball tourney saw the favorites win, but not before two near upsets were recorded much to the delight of the near-packed auditorium which was on hand to see the entries into the semifinal round of play selected.

The Grimesland boys' team, coached by W. T. Bright, opposing second-seeded Ayden, pulled to a seven point lead in the opening minutes of the first quarter before the Ayden lads were able to sink a single basket; with the first quarter ending, Ayden trailed to the tune of 7-3. It was only in the final quarter that the Tornadoes of Ayden managed to secure a safe lead which assured them of victory.

In the girls' near upset, Bethel, who entered the tourney sporting a season's record of only six wins against 22 losses, swept to a 15-8 point edge over the second-seeded Ayden lassies with the ending of the first quarter, and battled them to a 21-21 deadlock at the half.

From then until the final gun was sounded the game was a seesaw affair with one team dropping a basket followed by the other. A last quarter freeze with more than six minutes left in the quarter and Ayden leading by only two points stalled the spirits of the inspired Bethel sextet. At this point Ayden held a score of only 34-32. Two foul shots by Alice Jean Cox, one of the Ayden mainstays, led the game moving the score to 36-32, with the Ayden girls still in possession of the ball.

Winterville Girls 41, Arthur 22
 A taller Winterville sextet chalked up a 41-22 victory over the Bell Arthur lassies to gain a berth in the semifinal playoffs which will be their tangle with a strong Belvoir team tonight.

The scoring punch for the Winterville girls was shared by Jean Ann Liverman and tall Anne Spier, who combined to push in 25 points.

In the second quarter, after a first period lead of 11-6, Winterville tallied for 14 points holding the Arthur lassies to only three. Last night's game marked the third meeting of the two teams, and in regular season play Winterville had topped the team by fairly large margins. Scoring of the Arthur team was wrapped up in the persons of Betty Jones with 15 and Malvia Crawford who tallied for seven. Arthur made a bid to get back in the ball game as they matched points with Winterville in the third quarter.

Senior leaders for Arthur were Mazingo and Daniels.

Score by quarters:
 Winterville ..... 11 14 7 9-41
 B. Arthur ..... 6 3 7 6-22

Ayden Boys 28, Grimesland 19
 A surprise power in the boys' division of the Pitt County Conference tourney in the form of the Grimesland boys last night gave highly-rated Ayden the closest race they have encountered on a basketball floor this year, as they held the Ayden boys to a 7-3 first period score.

Grimesland opened the game with a first minute basket and at the end of four minutes of play maintained a 5-0 lead.

The inability of the Ayden team to stop the scoring of the Grimesland lads forced them to shift from a zone defense to a man-to-man defense which slowed down the accuracy of Grimesland somewhat. However, it was only with two minutes remaining in the first quarter that James Hemy, Ayden forward, put the Ayden team back in the ball game with a field goal and later a free toss.

With two minutes of the opening quarter, Ayden pulled into a 7-7 tie as Max Whitehurst tallied. The score seasawed back and forth and as the quarter ended a field goal by Cox sent the Ayden team ahead 12-9.

In the fourth stanza the Ayden defense kept the Grimesland boys 'way out from the basket; holding them to only seven points while the second-seeded lads 'pushed in 10 points to clinch the game.

Reid and Boyd for Grimesland led the losers' scoring with 8 and 5 points respectively. Whitehurst and Bullock tied for the 'inners' scoring honors with 7 points each. Ayden made 25 per cent of their free tosses and 25 per cent of foul shots while Grimesland hit for 20 per cent on both.

Ayden ..... 3 9 6 10-28
 Grimesland ..... 7 2 3 7-19

Ayden Girls 36, Bethel 31
 A scrappy little Bethel sextet nearly rocked a highly-rated Ayden team out of the Pitt County tourney last night behind the sharp shooting of their star forward, Jean Beverley, as she hit the nets for 17 points.

Cox of Ayden, scored first, followed by Taylor of Bethel with the count moving to 3-2 in favor of Ayden with one minute of playing elapsed. Successive field goals by Beverley moved the score to 14-6 with two minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Ayden moved ahead in the ball game for the first time with 2 1-2 minutes of playing time left in the first half by virtue of a field goal by Wooten sending the score to 17-16. At the half the score was tied, 21-21.

In the second half, the Bethel lassies completely outplayed Ayden. At the end of 5 1-2 minutes of the play the score was again knotted at 29-29, broken by a field goal by Bethel's Taylor, followed by Ayden's Wooten to move the score to 31-31, with only 15 seconds left in the third quarter. A free throw by Carlene Smith, with only five seconds left, pushed the Ayden squad out front by a one point margin at the end of the quarter.

Bethel's Smith tied the score after a minute and 40 seconds of play in the opening of the fourth at 32-32, with Wooten sinking a field goal moving the score to 34-32 for Ayden. At this point, the Ayden team went into a freeze which was broken up only by two fouls committed by the Bethel guards, once with 2 minutes left and the last with only 20 seconds remaining. Cox made good to move the final score to 36-32 for Ayden. Beverley with 17 and Taylor with 8 led the losers' scoring parade with Wooten tops for Ayden with 18 points.

Score by quarters:
 Ayden ..... 8 13 11 5-36
 Bethel ..... 15 6 10 1-32

Bethel Boys 82, Chicod 15
 Bethel's defending County Champions walked to a 82-15 victory over the Chicod five last night in the nightcap of the third round of the county tourney.

Bethel, top-seeded team, racked up a 27-1 lead by end of the first quarter with the second stringers playing the majority of the second quarter.

The fancy play and power-hitting from all spots on the court kept the Chicod boys completely baffled and by the third quarter the score stood at 68-6, Bethel. Warren for Chicod led the scoring for the losers followed by Mills.

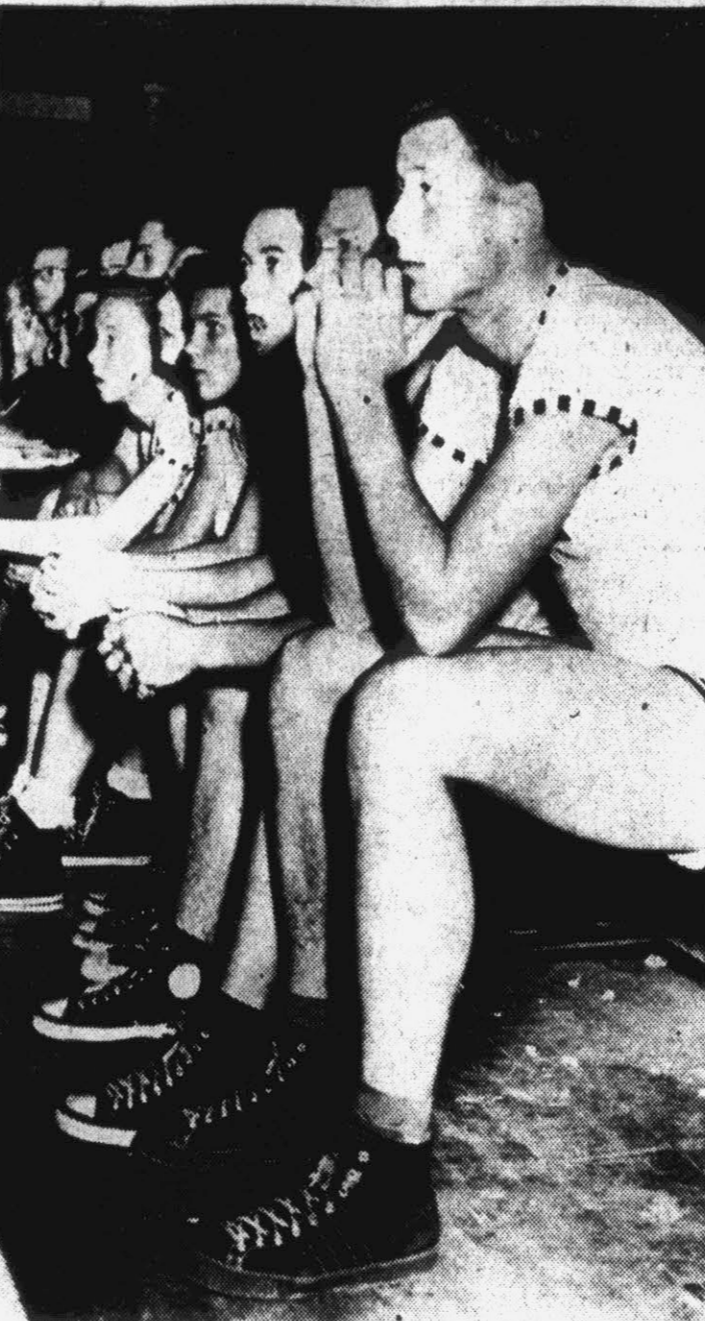

Manning with 22 points and Keel with 17 were the high scorers for Bethel's Indians.

Bethel will meet the strong Winterville team in the semifinal round of play tonight at 9:45. Winterville moved into the semifinals by winning over Stokes 59-31 on Tuesday night.

Score by quarters:
 Bethel ..... 27 11 30 14-82
 Chicod ..... 1 3 4 7-15

Charles Keeps His Title By Decision

Detroit, March 8—(AP)—An injured left ear today sidelined Edward Charles for two months, dashing Joe Louis' hopes for a crack at the heavyweight champion this April.

The 29-year-old titleholder's ear was puffed up in his successful 15-round defense against 37-year-old Jersey Joe Walcott last night. His personal physician ordered Edward to stay out of action for at least two months.

Charles, who was almost toppled from his throne in the fourth round by a crashing right to the jaw, had the swelling drained down from the ear at a hospital early this morning.

It came as a great shock to the Brown Bomber. Louis has had four fights, has trimmed down to 207 pounds, and he feels he is ready

Dave Bannerman To Assist GHS Football Coach

Football Coach Bill Kittrell of the Greenville High Panthers announced today that Dave Bannerman, star fullback for the Naval Academy during the 1950 season, will assist in the coaching of the high school football squad during spring training.

Bannerman began yesterday helping direct the workouts of the high school football team. In addition to being Navy's top running fullback last fall, Bannerman was rated as one of the best linebackers in intercollegiate circles during the 1950 football season. He is now a student at East Carolina Teachers College.

Yesterday's workouts for the high school football squad consisted of blocking and a brief scrimmage session. Kittrell said the emphasis during the four weeks of spring practice will be on fundamentals and getting the players used to the split T system which the high school team will use next fall. A T formation was used last fall by the team under the direction of Coach Bo Farley, but the T formation used this year will differ somewhat from the system Farley used last season.

Approximately 30 boys are reporting daily for the spring drills. Kittrell said all of the boys who are participating in practice will be back for the 1951 football season and will form the nucleus of the squad. However, the 30-man squad will be bolstered by reserve strength which will be afforded by some 40 more javee players who are expected to report for fall practice, Kittrell stated.

The intrasquad game which will end the spring practice is slated for March 30. The time of the game has not been announced.

Sammy Snead Is Again In Action

Miami Beach Fla., March 8—(AP)—Slammin' Sammy Snead, golf's leading money winner last year, returns to the tournament trail today in the $10,000 Miami Beach Open.

Snead was one of 136 pros and 14 amateurs teeing off at the Normandy Isle golf course, a 6,700-yard layout where par is 35-35-70.

The long driving professional from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., won the tournament last year and showed he is ready to repeat, by tying a course record at the Las Gorce County Club Tuesday with an eight under par 63 to win the pro-member tournament.

Snead broke a carpal bone in his left hand during the Miami Open last December and has been inactive since early January.

Tim Holland, University of Miami amateur, led qualifiers for today's tournament when he scored a 34-33-67, five under par, over the 6,222-yard Baysshore Golf Club course yesterday.

Raleigh Established As Probable Cage Titlists

Tonight's opening round of the Midget Basketball Tournament will pair the cream of the crop of eastern North Carolina's midget athletic teams against each other, all vying for the championship of the eastern area in Saturday night's closing games.

First game tonight goes on the floor of the high school gym at six o'clock with Goldsboro vs. Winterville. Playing at hour intervals after that are Raleigh vs. Camp Lejeune, 7:00; Scotland Neck vs. Greenville, 8:00; and Kinston vs. New Bern, 9:00.

On the strength of pre-tournament games, Raleigh has definitely been established as probably winner Saturday night. The Capital City Red Wings have beat Greenville in two games during regular season play. They will be gunning for three wins during this tournament rather than having to drop out in the semifinals, as they did last year after a defeat by Winterville.

Tonight New Bern is favored over Kinston on the basis of a win during the regular season. And the Goldsboro-Winterville engagement is a tossup, both clubs having about equal strength.

Greenville is favored over Scotland Neck on the basis of the mites' season play. They won seven games and lost only two, both of them to Raleigh. The locals are at the same strength as they were last year and have been established as the best team to compete with Raleigh for the championship.

Four games are scheduled tomorrow night in the double consolation bracket semifinals. Winner of the Raleigh-Lejeune game will play the winner of the Goldsboro-Winterville game in the championship bracket, with the losers of those two games playing each other.

The same is true for the winners and losers of the games between Kinston and New Bern, Scotland Neck and Greenville. Games tomorrow night begin at 6 o'clock.

Tournament Director Boley Farley stated today the crowd for the games is expected to be large each night. A great deal of interest in Midget athletics has been shown in the towns in this vicinity, particularly in Greenville, and Farley believes the fans will be attracted by the stronger teams in this year's tourney.

Casey Predicts Third Pennant

Phoenix, March 8—(AP)—Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, predicts his team will win the American pennant for the third straight year.

"Sure I expect to win it again," he says. "That's for sure. It's the way I feel, so why shouldn't I say so."

Pan-Am Games In Mexico For 1955

Buenos Aires, March 7—(AP)—The 1955 Pan American Games will be staged in Mexico.

The 18 members of the Pan American sports committee decided on this late last night. Mexico was favored in a vote, 15 to 2, with El Salvador abstaining.

Riceland Rice, Condensed Mushroom Soup Make Casserole

Lenten Casserole: Canned Soup and Riceland Rice

Like to cook the quick and easy way? Here's an easy-to-fix combination which will produce an endless variety of delicious casserole main-dishes in a jiffy: Riceland Rice and canned condensed cream soups.

With these two basic ingredients you can make casserole main dishes unlimited! For example: Riceland Rice and a can of condensed cream of mushroom soup makes a delicious Riceland Rice Mushroom Casserole. For added variety and flavor, you can add any one or a combination of the following: Cheese, tomatoes, green peppers, pimentos, onions, peas, ground or diced meat, chicken, shrimp, salmon, tuna, squares of bacon or ham—to mention just a few variety adders.

Then by using Riceland Rice and a can of condensed cream of chicken soup you will have a Riceland Rice Chicken Casserole. Or use condensed cream of asparagus soup or cream of pea soup or cream of tomato soup.

Change the soup for variety—but don't change the rice. Be sure to use genuine Riceland Rice because it's the world's most delicious rice. Only the choice perfect-cooking rice grains are packed in "Riceland" packages. Quick and easy to cook deliciously tender with white, fluffy, individual grains.

Here's the simple basic recipe:

Riceland Rice Mushroom Casserole

3 cups cooked Riceland Rice
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 can of milk or water
1/2 cup grated cheese
1/2 cup buttered dry bread crumbs

Slices of tomato
Salt and pepper to taste

To Cook Riceland Rice: Put 1 cup of Riceland Rice, 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of cold water in a large saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more, during which time the water will be absorbed, making the rice deliciously tender. Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Always use Riceland Rice for best results.

To Assemble: Blend milk or water with condensed cream of mushroom soup until it is smooth. Mix with hot fluffy cooked Riceland Rice. Season to taste. Place in a shallow greased baking dish. Sprinkle the top with grated cheese and buttered crumbs mixed together. Place sliced tomatoes on top. Season slices with salt and pepper and brush lightly with melted butter or margarine. Set in a moderately hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees and bake until the whole dish is bubbly hot, the cheese has melted and the top is lightly browned and the tomatoes are slightly cooked.

Keep this recipe and use it often with the many delicious variations suggested above. Your family will love it—and think of all the time and money you'll save!

Limited Objectives Of Re-Armament Program Is Straining U. S. Industry

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Special Correspondent

For all its size and strength, American industry is groaning and straining today like an over-loaded elephant under the massive weight of the new re-armament program.

Actually, that program has limited objectives. It is not an all-out effort.

The master plan is to create facilities for tremendous production of war-weapons, but not to produce all the weapons themselves unless a war should make them necessary. At this point, the schedule for turning out tanks, guns, transport and so on is relatively low.

Even so, production engineers generally agree that the task of rearming is tougher this time than it was in 1941.

Better Equipped

However, in some important respects, the United States is much better able to meet the challenge of defense today than it was in 1941.

Industry is bigger, meaning that more factories have expanded or come into existence, with millions of additional square feet of production facilities. The National Association of Manufacturers estimates that industry, over-all, has grown about 60 per cent in these ten-years.

There is more "know how" than in 1941. Many of the same engineers are in the same top positions.

At the same time, thousands of skilled and semi-skilled workers—notably women—are returning to the assembly lines.

But against these assets, here are the main liabilities:

The defense plants are crying for engineers. The very growth of industry, since 1941, has out-stripped the flow of engineers. The Republic Aviation plant on Long Island, for instance, is looking for 300 of these men. That figure, they say, is fairly typical of aircraft plants everywhere.

The new weapons and equipment are different and more destructive—and harder to make with existing facilities. The assembly line that turned out Shermans and Pershings needs extensive re-tooling to produce the more agile but heavier modern tank. (Chrysler is building a totally new plant to handle its orders for tanks). The only similarity between these land battleships and the older models is that they still have bulls and bogey wheels.

Soldier, did you ever drive a truck in the last war? You would hardly recognize the new ones.

At the Dodge plant in Detroit, they are turning out a weapons carrier equipped with a "breather" and so water-proofed that the motor keeps right on purring when the windshield is three feet under water. It has a heater for quick starting at sub-zero temperatures, a gadget that will keep a flat tire clinging neatly to the rim, and a bolting assembly—all painted yellow—that permits you to tear out the whole motor and install another in 20 minutes. The seats and back-cushions are foam rubber; they won't flatten into sheer cast iron on a rocky road, as the kapek filling did.

In the effort to fill defense orders and at the same time go on producing for civilian consumption, some serious shortages have already appeared.

Aluminum is one. High heat-resisting steel is another. Electrical equipment and precision instruments are still others. Rolling stock for transportation of material and short. Freight cars are going out of service at the rate of 5,000 a month—which is faster than they are being made.

As a result, thousands of factories—even those with defense orders—are competing with each other for these facilities. As a rubber executive put it: "A defense order is nothing but a hunting license. You still have to go out and find the material."

Some factories are resisting defense orders. Even though materials shortages may have cut them down to low production or none at all, they are retaining their manpower and postponing conversion. They argue that in the last war, the conscientious owner who converted early, at his own expense and at the loss of his customers, sent those customers to competitors who waited 18 months or two years—and then got defense contracts at higher rates as well. So hundreds of plants are waiting, watchfully.

With shortages in engineers, equipment, machine tools, critical materials—and the will to cooperate—the whole vast industrial machine is affected. The job is harder for the very reason that, in many minds, no emergency exists.

'Guinea Pig' Gardner Shares His Experience

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When the U. S. Department of Agriculture got behind a Victory Garden program in World War II it decided it needed a "guinea pig" city gardener.

It was proposed an "average" city dweller be chosen, that he plant the garden the government recommended and that the agricultural experts observe the trouble he encountered.

Then the experts proposed to help him smooth out his difficulties, and in so doing help solve the common problems of many Victory Gardeners.

That "guinea pig" was Ernest G. Moore, of the department's Agricultural Research Division in Washington. He lives in Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb.

Some of Moore's experiences with the Victory Garden he planted for several successive years in World War II are of interest to the present crop of amateur gardeners.

What Moore Discovered
Here are some of Moore's tips:
The model garden plan published by the department was labeled "Scheme for a Very Small Garden 30 by 50 feet."

Mrs. Moore canned almost 200 quarts of vegetables from a garden of this size, after the family of four had fresh produce from it all season, but Moore says this is more space than most city gardeners have available.

"That plan can be compressed, however, merely by shortening the rows and crowding the rows closer together to suit space," Moore says.

"For instance, the plan shows 18 inches between the rows of carrots and beets. These can be reduced to one foot, and there still will be plenty of room to work the crops. I believe all the row-spaces on this plan can be reduced for city gardeners, if space is at a premium."

Prefers 25 by 30 Feet
Moore says he believes the average family of four can raise most of its summer vegetables in a plot 25 X 30 feet, especially if most of the work is done by hand tools or small wheel tools.

Here are other things Moore recommends:

1. Be careful not to plant too much of one crop at one time. He planted too many lima beans. After the family ate quantities of them, Mrs. Moore canned dozens of quarts.
2. Take good care of the garden and use plenty of fertilizer. This will make the crops grow faster. A small garden thus produces as much or more than a larger one that is less efficiently managed.
3. Be sure you get the best seed varieties for your locality. For instance the government "model" garden shows Marglobe and Earliana tomatoes as two good varieties to plant. This recommendation is made because these varieties can be grown in most parts of the U. S. But there are hybrid tomatoes on the market, tailor-made for some localities. Seeds are scarce for some of these hybrids. But your county agent or agricultural college knows whether one of these hybrids is suitable for your garden and if it is obtainable.
4. A gardener is at least 50 per cent better off if he can plant his garden within range of irrigation water. Moore lives in one of the wettest areas of the country and yet he says he irrigated his garden during "dry spells" and found this of great benefit.

Use a mulch on top of the soil. This keeps the ground cooler and damper and speeds growth. Use straw if you can get it. Leaves, especially if they have been in a compost pile, also are good. In the south pine needles may be available and they make good mulch, but acid. Sawdust also is good, but it robs the soil of nitrogen that must be replaced by use of fertilizer. Moore rates grass clippings as "not so good" for mulch. He would not use peat moss under any circumstances as it blows away easily and is too expensive.

6. Don't grow pole beans unless poles are readily available, either from a woods or other source. Moore says he had to pay up to 15 cents each for poles, at a lumber yard and this made bean growing too expensive. He now plants bush beans of a new variety, called "Topcrop." They require no poles.

"Last but not least the home gardener has to have an eagle eye for bugs," Moore says.

Visitation Evangelistic Program Comes To End

By MARTHA FORBES

The Visitation Evangelistic program which has been conducted under the auspices of the Greenville Ministerial Association for the past four days was concluded last night with a meeting at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

The service of inspiration and instruction which was scheduled for tonight was cancelled and will not be held. Dr. John Pemberton, Jr., who has been conducting the program and holding sustaining prayer meetings each night at the churches from which the visiting teams departed, returned today to his home in Cape May, New Jersey.

During the four evenings there was a total of 179 teams of two people each who participated in making church calls on people who were not affiliated with any local church. There was an average of 45 teams who visited each night. The records are incomplete as to the exact number of calls made during the four day period, but it is known that at least 338 were reported. The records show that there were 266 decisions made to join a church either by confession of faith or by transfer of church membership by letter from another church with which a person had formerly been identified.

The Visitation program met with marked success, and the Ministerial Association is very gratified with the results. They express their thanks and appreciation to all who helped to make the week's program so effective and beneficial.

The local churches which cooperated in the enterprise were the following: Eighth Street Christian, Immanuel Baptist, Jarvis Memorial Methodist, Meadowbrook Presbyterian, Memorial Baptist, Pentecostal Holiness, Free Will Baptist, Church of God, St. Paul's Episcopal and First Presbyterian.

Unit Forming

Organization is now underway for an Air Force Reserve unit to be composed of members from Greenville and Pitt County.

The unit will be composed of former Air Force officers and enlisted personnel. Enlisted men of any other branch of the service are also eligible to become members.

All persons interested in forming such a unit, which would complement the reserve units in Washington and New Bern, are asked to contact Major Gammon M. Friend, 411 Summit Street, or phone 2852.

Order Padlocking Establishments

Two padlocking procedures have been ordered by Solicitor W. J. Bundy for two establishments in the vicinity of Greenville and Winterville and the owners ordered to appear in Superior Court March 19.

Sheriff's deputies padlocked "The Joint," located just outside Winterville on N. C. 11, and also the service station operated by John Seamster and Ruffin Carr, located just outside Greenville on N. C. 11 below the Drive-In Theater. The Winterville establishment was operated by Jasper Darden and John Offie Smith, Negroes.

In the injunction proceedings Solicitor Bundy stated the places were selling beer, wine and liquor illegally and that there was "carousing, drinking, gambling and fighting, prostitution and assignation and other nuisances maintained" on the premises. They were closed last Saturday for a period of one year or for a shorter time if the owners can show cause. All furniture and other furnishings were directed to be sold with the profit reverting to the owners.

The injunction was ordered without bond.

Annual Jaycee Banquet Tonight

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual Ladies Night banquet at the Country Club tonight at 7:30.

Sam Bundy, principal of the Farmville High School, will be the featured speaker on the program following the banquet. President Dan Saieed will preside and Bancroft Moseley, last year's president, will serve as toastmaster.

Assault On Wife Is Charged In Arrest

Police arrested Leland T. Stancill, 29, service station operator, last night on the charge of assaulting his wife with a deadly weapon—a beer bottle. He will be tried in Police Court Friday morning.

Later, Mrs. Stancill swore out a peace warrant against her husband, returnable before Magistrate H. L. Jenkins. Stancill, who spent last night in the city jail, was transferred to the county jail after the peace warrant was served.

Unsettled Weather

Mild temperatures continued to prevail in the Greenville area today. An overcast sky and some fog indicated rainy weather. Slightly more than one-third of an inch of rain fell here during a 48-hour period.

The highest temperature recorded at the local Weather Bureau station yesterday was 68 degrees. Lowest last night, 51, and at 8 a.m. today it was 52.

Concern Grows In Soviet Boycott Of Treaty Talk

Washington, March 8—(AP)—Russia's boycott of Japanese treaty talks has increased American concern that the U. S. S. R. may be planning to infiltrate thousands of Red-trained war prisoners into Japan.

Such disciples of communism presumably could stir up considerable confusion among the Japanese civilian population and might even be supplied through underground channels to wage large-scale guerrilla activities against American occupation forces.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters estimates that up to 350,000 Japanese soldiers, rounded up at the close of World War II by the Russians on the Asian mainland, remain to be accounted for. Several thousand who were returned from Siberia up to last year were carefully screened in an effort to prevent the spread of communist teaching.

Officials express concern that Moscow now may seize on the treaty negotiations and the Korean crisis as covers for a wholesale movement of communist-indoctrinated Japanese back to their homeland. Diplomatic authorities said today the State Department has received unconfirmed reports that military units up to division size have been formed from the prisoners.

One report is that such a division has been sent to Russian-occupied Sakhalin Island north of Japan. Japanese communist units also have been reported, without confirmation, in North Korea.

Two Will Die On March 23 Unless Scott Intervenes

Raleigh, N. C., March 8—(AP)—Unless Governor Scott intervenes, two convicted slayers—Curtis Shedd and James Richard Hall—will die in the state's gas chamber on March 23.

The State Supreme Court yesterday upheld lower court judgments in the two cases.

Shedd, 31, of Waltham, S. C., was convicted last December in Macon County of slaying Johnnie Mae Boyter, 14, and her eight-year-old sister, Joe Ann Boyter. Shedd was accused of killing John Boyter, but he was not tried on that charge.

Hall, 26, was found guilty in Jackson County last October of murdering his sister-in-law, Laura Ellen Taylor of Dillsboro.

Less Talk And More Work Now Rule For Senate

Washington, March 8—(AP)—Working under an agreement to talk less and vote more frequently, senators today drove toward final action on the broad Universal Military Training and Service (UMTS) bill.

Already the Senate had written into the bill a ceiling of 4,000,000 on the armed forces over the objections of the Pentagon, which wanted none.

The major battle remaining was the question of starting eventually a long-term compulsory military training program that would include all young men as they become 18 years old.

Gets Interest On Stolen Property

Grand Junction, Colo.—(AP)—More than three years ago some one stole a pair of skis from Le Roy Wiler's front porch. The next day Wiler ran a classified ad in The Daily Sentinel:

"If party who took the skis off the front porch of my home will return and check the back porch, they'll find the boots that go with the skis."

But Wiler's offer never was accepted. Recently he came across the longmissing skis tossed just inside the backyard fence. Tucked in one of the bindings was a $5 bill.

Family Signs As Part Of Crew

Singapore—(AP)—The 5,300-ton Hoegh Silvercloud arrived in this British crown colony port with a four-year-old Norwegian listed as a "cabin boy."

But he doesn't have to work, for Arild Thomassen is the son of the master of the ship, Captain Dan Thomassen. The boy's mother, Theres Thomassen, is listed as "steerwardess," but she, too, is free of work duties. Captain Thomassen reported he is taking his wife and son back to Oslo to put Arild into a Norwegian school.

Traffic Survey

A survey of traffic in Greenville was being made today by three police officers and 75 high school students. The checkup is under the direction of Paul Brooks, formerly of Greenville, in connection with his work with the department of city and regional planning of the University of North Carolina.

Police Chief Guy Langston said the City Planning Board is sponsoring the traffic survey. It will provide valuable data for future planning. Policemen were checking the flow of passenger and commercial vehicles at three intersections all day. High school students were checking at 42 intersections.

The matter of the formation of a power pool between the four municipalities is not a new thing for the utilities commissions of the cities involved. The matter has been under consideration for several years. The tie-in with the REA cooperative, however, is a relatively recent development in the matter.

The meeting last night was arranged by the superintendents of the four municipal generating plants to acquaint the utilities officials of the four cities with the government agencies' proposal for working out a system of interconnecting lines.

The proposal which was discussed last night is one of three individual proposals for the formation of a power pool between the four cities.

The superintendents of the municipal power plants are expected to meet within the next few days to formulate their report to their respective utility boards.

Representing the city of Greenville at the meeting last night were Mayor W. S. Stafford, Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz, Utilities Commissioners Roy Martin, W. H. Woolard, and J. B. Kittrell, Sr., and Aldermen J. E. Waldrop and R. E. Rogers.

Representing Farmville at the meeting were Utilities Superintendent W. A. McAdams, Aldermen Claude Joyner and Fred C. Moore, and City Clerk C. M. Paylor.

E. Gray, Duke University; and Herbert Carter, East Carolina Teachers College.

Twenty-four piano soloists will play during the morning and afternoon. These include students from both junior and senior high schools, Robert Carter of East Carolina Teachers College will be the judge for the piano contests.

The events of the contest-festival here are preliminary to the state contest-festival in Greensboro for participation in the state event. A limited number of performers from each high school vocal group will go to the state contest-festival, where a massed chorus made up of these students will be formed and will appear in a program.

paid off, Engineer Treadway representing the REA expressed the opinion that "REA will always have some interest in these lines."

Although no action was taken at the meeting, the next move in the formation of the power pool remains with the utilities commissions of the individual cities. The utilities must decide whether they individually want to enter such a pool, and then the governing boards of the generating plants collectively must submit a stated figure at which they will make power from the municipal generating plants available to the REA cooperatives in the pool.

The negotiating agents for the cooperatives will then determine whether or not the rates are acceptable.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . .

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Don't suffer longer with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Scout News

The Scout troops are very busy this week getting their stunts ready for the birthday party on Friday, March 9, at 3:30 in the armory. Let us not forget the pennies that we are to bring for the Juliette Low Fund. The troop that has the most attractive and original container for its pennies will get honors.

Troop 10 with Mrs. C. B. West III as leader is getting ready for a radio program on Monday night, March 12, from 9:15-9:30. The interesting item about their program is that one of the members of the troop, Sylvia McLin, wrote the script. It is based on the life of Juliette Low, the founder of Girl Scouting in the United States. We want every Scout to listen to the broadcast, for it is not every day that a troop broadcasts a program that one of its members wrote. Our hats are off to this troop for this splendid piece of work.

The Negro Scouts from Fleming Street, South Greenville, and Epes schools will have their party at Epes school at the same time, Friday at 3:30. This invitation includes all Brownies and Scouts who have paid their registration fee. These Scouts and Brownies will attend church together Sunday at the Methodist Church.

Colored News

Blow To . . .

threaten World War III.

Now of course there is no idea, so far as has been disclosed, to create any U. N. force powerful enough to employ against one of the militarily great powers. That would be an absurdity. Rather it will be intended for use to prevent, or to halt, war between lesser nations.

As a specific example we have the fierce and at times bloody dispute between the sister nations of India and Pakistan over possession of the princely state of Kashmir. This quarrel could lead to a war which might easily spread and involve other countries.

Britain and the United States have proposed that the United Nations send a military force to occupy Kashmir. They figure that with such an occupation the dispute could be settled outside a battleground.

So I believe that exponents of peace should take encouragement, rather than discouragement, from this idea of creating an international army. The mere fact that the nations of the world are considering such a project shows that we are on the right road.
