New Terms Offered In Paris Talk

Broadened Proposal To Ease Tensions Submitted By Western Powers

Paris, March 10—(AP)—The western powers submitted today a revised and broadened proposal for relieving East-West tension to the Deputy Foreign Ministers' Meeting. Russia said it would reserve any decision on whether it could accept the proposal for the agenda of a Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference.

This was the new proposal for the Big Four agenda which the western delegates submitted.

"Determination of the causes of present international tensions in Europe and of the means to secure a real and lasting improvement in the relations between the U. S. S. R., the United States, the United Kingdom, and France, such as

"Measures to eliminate the fear of aggression, fulfillment of present treaty obligations, and examination of the existing level of armaments and questions concerning Germany in this sphere"

Russia's Andrei Gromyko said he would reserve any decision on whether to accept it.

Official sources who gave the account of the meeting said delegates from the United States, France and Britain spoke in favor of the new item. They stressed that all points which Russia wishes to discuss are covered by this proposal.

Gromyko said that he was reserving right to speak in more detail, especially since he felt the working was vague and not quite clear on several points.

The Russian delegate asserted the Foreign Ministers cannot avoid talking about the remilitarization and demilitarization of Germany, and about world-wide disarmament.

French delegate Alexandre Parodi was quoted as saying that in looking back on an entire week of negotiations in efforts to draw up a work sheet for a Big Four meeting, he could see little excuse for satisfaction.

The ministers will meet again on Monday.

Details of the new proposal for the agenda had been broached yesterday at a meeting of the western representatives to the deputies' conference.

The three principal western delegates, U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, Alexander Parodi of France and Ernest Davies of Britain met at the French Foreign Office at 11:45 a. m., yesterday morning.

Use Of Bayonet Commended By General Ridgway

With the U. S. Seventh Division, Korea, March 10—(AP)—The increasing use of the bayonet by U. S. troops today brought commendation to a Seventh Division unit from Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander.

Ridgway sent a message to a unit led by Capt. Thomas D. Londino of Columbia, S. C., for a bayonet attack two days ago.

The attack forced the Reds from a hill which the enemy had held despite continued air and artillery attacks.

"This is not the first reported instance of the enemy's distaste for the sight of cold steel," Ridgway's commendation read.

"It is desired that the contents of this message be disseminated throughout the command to insure that all troops appreciate and exploit at every opportunity the psychological effect of the bayonet."

Bevin To Carry On

While Attlee's Popular Foreign Minister Has Quit His More Rigorous Duties, He Will Continue To Use His Influence And Experience Within The Cabinet

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

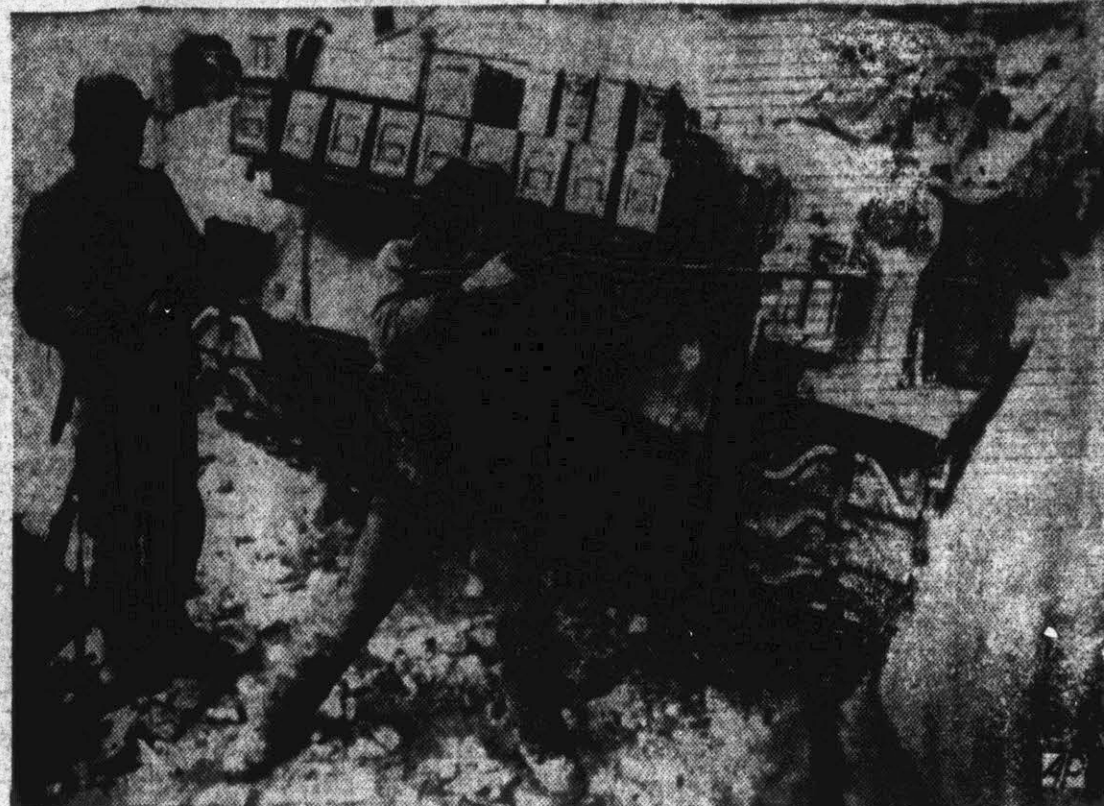

Retirement of Britain's famous Foreign Secretary, Ernest Bevin, because of ill health, naturally raises the query whether this will seriously weaken England's first outright socialist government.

That's an important question because Prime Minister Attlee has been maintaining his regime by a thin margin of votes in the House of Commons. The powerful Conservative party, headed by wartime Premier Winston Churchill, has been gunning for Attlee's scalp persistently because of this weakness.

Certainly during the trying post-war years the bluff, rough and tough Bevin has been not only a pillar of the home cabinet, but has played a vital role in the great international conferences which have dealt with world problems. Were he to disappear altogether from the political picture now, it would be a hard blow to the Socialist government.

However, Bevin is being retained as an "elder statesman" in an advisory capacity. That permits a cabinet reorganization which is calculated to strengthen, rather than

Forty-Four Fail

Raleigh, N. C., March 10—(AP)—Fifty Hertford County men reported for armed forces pre-induction examinations at the recruiting station here yesterday.

When the tests were over, officials announced that 44 of the group had failed to pass written or mental tests. Seven of the group also failed to pass physical examinations.

Veteran Relates Espionage Story

Says His Sister Talked Him Into Giving Atom Secrets

New York, March 10—(AP)—A former Army sergeant told a federal court yesterday that his own sister and her husband talked him into giving them American atomic secrets for transmission to Russia.

The veteran, David Greenglass, confessed spy, was the second government witness in the espionage trial of his sister, Ethel Rosenberg, 34, her husband, Julius, also 34, and Martin Sobell, 33.

Accused of conspiring to give atom secrets to Russia, the three face possible death sentences if convicted by the trial jury.

His sister turned pale and pressed her hands to her eyes when he took the stand.

Greenglass spoke in a low voice, avoiding the stare of his relatives.

Greenglass' story also implicated his own wife, Ruth, as the go-between in his betrayal. They both are named as co-conspirators but Mrs. Greenglass is not a defendant in the case. Greenglass has pleaded guilty and awaits sentencing.

Republicans Win Missouri Vote; Proclaim Shift

St. Louis, March 10—(AP)—Republican leaders today cheered the election of Claude I. Baker, as Congressman from Missouri's 11th District as proof that the political winds have shifted in their favor.

Baker, who served a term in Congress from 1946-48, won an impressive victory in a special election yesterday over Harry Schendel, an auto dealer and former State Representative.

The vacancy was created by the recent death of John B. Sullivan, Democrat.

Top Portions Of House Damaged In Friday Fire

Fire last night swept through a portion of a two-story house on Roosevelt Avenue, doing considerable damage to the top portion of the building before Greenville firemen were able to bring the flames under control.

The house was occupied by Abe Payton and two other occupants. The building was owned by Mrs. Pattie Wooten.

The fire was first discovered in the top of the building on the back section of the house. More than one hour was needed to bring the blaze completely under control. The alarm was turned in at 8:17 and three trucks from the local station responded to the call.

No estimate of the damage was known at the time, nor was there any idea as to how the fire originated.

The downstairs portion of the house was not damaged except from smoke and water, it was reported.

District Music Festival Closes At College Today

The Greenville District Music Contest-Festival will close this afternoon at East Carolina Teachers College with the completion of a series of programs, in which the performances of some 1500 pupils schools of eastern North Carolina were rated by experts in the fields of vocal and instrumental music.

Yesterday's events centered around a number of vocal contests for soloists, small ensembles, glee clubs, and choruses. Today's program has included performances by bands and piano soloists.

Present for the two-day contest-festival were music students and their teachers from high schools in Winterville, Greenville, Williams, New Bern, Elm City, Washington, Farmville, Tarboro, Robertsonville, Ayden, Deep Run, Enfield, Kinston, Elizabeth City, Grimesland, Scotland Neck, Stonewall, Roanoke Rapids, Morehead City, Rocky Mount, Newport, Kenly, Rock Ridge, and Alliance.

As a finale to yesterday's programs, a concert was presented last night by vocal groups and soloists in the auditorium of the Austin Building on the campus. Participating were choruses and glee clubs from New Bern and Elm City, and soloists and small ensembles from Greenville, Deep Run, and Farmville. Barbara White, soprano, and Milton Foley, bass, of Greenville; Jeannine Whaley, soprano, of Deep Run; and Patsy Roberts, soprano, of Farmville were among soloists.

Beginning today at 12:30, a parade and a program of music by bands taking part in contests of the morning was a special feature of the contest-festival. Six bands—from Enfield, Greenville, Tarboro, New Bern, Kinston, and Elizabeth City—staged a parade from the Wright building on the college campus to the Pitt County Court House. Dressed in their school uniforms, the participants presented a colorful spectacle as they marched along city streets and assembled on the Court House square to form a massed band.

The program included several spirited selections and ended with "The Star Spangled Banner in A Flat."

In addition to the band contest held this morning in the Wright building at East Carolina, approximately thirty piano soloists are participating in contests started in the Austin auditorium during the morning and the afternoon. The students came from both junior and senior high schools in this section of the state.

Red Cross Drive In Greenville Now Above $4,100

Contributions to the American Red Cross 1951 campaign for funds totaled $4,102.95 at noon today for the city of Greenville. This is little more than one-half of the city's quota of $8,000.

Pitt county's quota is $14,000, and this includes Greenville's quota of $8,000. Kenneth Hite is chairman of the drive in Greenville.

Charles P. Gaskins, chairman of the county, said workers in the towns outside of Greenville and in the rural communities, will get into full swing next week.

Battered Powell Street Bill Near Final 'Okay'

Raleigh, N. C., March 10—(AP)—The battle-scarred Powell city street bill today stood on the threshold of becoming law.

Climaxing a week of feverish legislative activity, the House yesterday afternoon voted 56-32 to pass the bill on second reading. The measure will come up for its final major consideration next Monday night.

From all appearances, the bill is certain to clear the House. It then must be sent back to the Senate, where it originated, for that body to concur in several House amendments.

Grand Jury Will Review Findings In RFC Inquiry

Seek Possible Law Violation; Fulbright Sees Flagrant Perjury

Washington, March 10—(AP)—Some developments in the sensational Reconstruction Finance Corporation influence inquiry are booked for review before a Federal Grand Jury.

Object: to seek out possible law violations.

The Justice Department announced last night the grand jury will begin its work here Monday. The announcement came just one day after the investigating Senate Banking subcommittee requested such action.

Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark.) had declared that some of the testimony given to the committee was riddled with perjury, and that the probe may have uncovered evidence of tax evasion and other law violations.

Meanwhile, the committee moved on a new tack to induce White House aide Donald Dawson to step forward as a voluntary witness to answer under oath its accusations against him. Dawson has been described in a committee report as one of a group which the committee contends exerted improper pressures on the RFC in the making of big government loans.

Following Dawson's refusal to comment on the accusations, the committee disclosed yesterday it had written him a letter asking that he come in and be heard.

Fulbright said the letter dated Feb. 24 had not been acknowledged.

The Senator quoted the letter as saying the group "does not feel that it should subpoena your presence" but "we stand ready to cooperate with you in the presentation of your views to the subcommittee and in a thorough development of the facts about your relations with the RFC."

The committee concedes there is a question of its authority to subpoena a White House aide. Announcement of the invitation appeared to be a bid for public support of the committee's efforts to get Dawson to testify.

Greenville Man In Plane Crash

The mother of a Greenville navy petty officer was notified last night that her son, 21-year-old Eugene Carter, is one of the survivors of a plane crash in the Mediterranean area.

In a telegram received last night from the chief of naval personnel, Mrs. H. W. Carter Sr. of 1308 Cotanche St. was notified that Electronics Technician Second Class Eugene Tucker Carter, USN, received "multiple abrasions" in the crash but "his prognosis for early recovery is excellent." The telegram said Carter is presently aboard the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Carter said she received a letter from her son this week saying that he was going on a flight from French Morocco to Italy some time this week. The telegram from Vice Admiral John W. Roper said the plane crash occurred on March 7.

Carter graduated from Greenville high school in 1948 and immediately entered the navy and was assigned to the electronics division. He was stationed in the United States until last September when he was assigned to overseas duty and sent to French Morocco.

Sen. Hoey Plans 'Five-Percenter' Probe Opening

Washington, March 10—(AP)—Senator Hoey (D-NC) said today the Senate's "five percenter" inquiry will be reopened next week to find out whether "influence peddlers" are operating in the defense contract field.

The investigation will be conducted by a Senate Expenditure's subcommittee which Hoey heads. The same group put on a sensational inquiry in 1949 covering the activities of men who charge a fee, often five per cent, for help in getting federal contracts for others.

Hoey told a reporter the subcommittee plans to start public hearings Wednesday. The chiefs of various government agencies will be called to testify first, he added.

County Rejects Tax Revaluation

Commissioners Vote Down Countywide Proposal From Stafford And Aldermen; Allocate Space In Old Hospital

By JOHN SPINKS JR.

The County Commissioners yesterday voted down a proposal from the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of Greenville calling for a revaluation of property throughout the county.

Meeting in special session to allocate space in Pitt General Hospital building for county officers, the Commissioners drew up a resolution stating it is unwise to undertake such a proposition. The resolution termed the proposed revaluation as an "intolerable and impractical burden" on the county which would be very expensive.

Instead, the resolution directs the tax supervisor to require of all business firms in the county to submit each year a detailed inventory of the business, plus a statement of assets and liabilities and other information relative to collection of taxes—something that the supervisor is empowered to do under the Machinery Act of the state.

view of the fact that the Pitt County Tax Supervisor Allan T. Powell has been engaged in the work of reviewing abstracts and insuring that all personal property is included in the tax returns given by the taxpayer, and that the county commissioners have also employed a tax appraiser to make a careful search not only of the records but of the real property in the county and that a considerable amount of real property has been discovered in this way and will be added to the tax books for collection taxes thereon, it is decided not at this time to attempt a revaluation of real property.

In describing the City's proposal, which was offered to the Board in February, the resolution states that "... to attempt at this time to revalue certain real property in the county without attempting to have complete and thorough examination of the tax value of all real property is deemed to be unwise and impractical at this time.

Senators Approve Big Defense Plan

Permanent Program Through Draft Of 18-Year-Olds And Universal Military Training Wins Heavy Majority

Washington, March 10—(AP)—The Senate approved yesterday a permanent program for building up the nation's fighting strength through Universal Military Training and the draft of 18-year-olds.

The vote was 79 to five.

A similar measure is pending in the House Armed Services committee.

Members said today they hope to begin voting early next week on proposed amendments. Some House leaders predicted the measure would be ready for final House action before Easter vacation.

The top-heavy Senate approval came after weeks of hearings and arguments. Only five Republican Senators opposed passage: Dirksen of Illinois, Jenner of Indiana, Langer of North Dakota, Schoeppel of Kansas and Welker of Idaho.

Support of the measure actually was stronger than the vote indicated. Four Democrats and five Republicans, unable to remain for the final balloting, were announced as favoring passage.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), who managed the proposal through the Senate, said that after a week of hearings and a week of debate, he had prepared an appeal for unity on the final test. But tired Senators, after eight hours of debate and many rollcalls, shouted "Vote, Vote, Vote."

Earlier Johnson and other supporters of the program had crushed all attempts at major revisions.

Some of the hardest fought provisions of the measure are not expected to apply immediately should they be enacted into law through house approval and signing by the president.

'Teco Echo' And 'Green Lights' Highly Rated

Medalist Rating For College Publication; GHS Paper Gets First Place Standing In Columbia Univ. Contest

The newspapers of Greenville high school and East Carolina Teachers College have received outstanding awards in the schools publications contest sponsored by the University of Journalism of Columbia University.

The Teco Echo of ECTC received a medalist rating, the highest given in the contest, and Green Lights received a first place rating in its division among high school newspapers. Miss Mary Greene, faculty advisor for the Teco Echo, said the newspaper received a first place rating in the Columbia contest last year.

Green Lights was placed in the category with publications from schools having between 501 and 750 students. The only school paper in North Carolina or South Carolina to receive a medalist rating in the category was the publication of the Florence, S. C. high school. First place ratings in the division were awarded to Greenville high, James A. Gray high of Winston-Salem, Goldsboro high, and Leaksville high.

During the past five years, Green Lights has received the rating of medalist by the Columbia School of Journalism, Principal O. E. Dowd of the high school stated this morning. Last year the Greenville high newspaper was the only one in its category in North Carolina to receive the medalist rating.

Nine members of the journalism class of the high school have been in New York this week attending the annual meeting of the national press association for secondary school publications. Representing the local high school at the meeting in New York are Sarah Lee, Evelyn Smith, Sadie Mae Spahn, Marty Haden, Frances Greene, Helen Stokes, Ann Stokes, Lenna Rose.

PLANNING RALLY

Burlington, March 10—(AP)—Young Democrats of North Carolina are considering plans for staging a state-wide rally for all Democratic party members at the home of Governor Kerr Scott prior to the 1952 general elections.

Further west, U. S. First Cavalry Division troops pushed along the Han River, east and south west of Yongdong. They were fighting up the road to the Red supply center of Hongchon.

Their commander, Maj. Gen. Charles D. Palmer, said the cavalrymen have forced the Reds to abandon their best positions.

"We are picking up a considerable amount of equipment and it looks as though we are killing plenty of them," he said.

In the center of the line, Greek troops advanced as much as four miles against moderate to stiff resistance. The British 27th Commonwealth Division rolled ahead more than a mile.

American marines pushed ahead another mile north of Hongchon. The leathernecks called for air strikes and slammed artillery barrages into Red positions honey-combing a row of 3,000 foot high mountains.

Jelled gasoline hit in searing flames. Rockets zoomed into the ridges. Bombs smashed against the peaks. Smoke from a dozen fires shrouded the ridgeline.

"That ought to help soften them up for us," a Marine Major said. Five to eight miles east of Hongchon, U. S. Second Division doughboys scattered communists holding ridges.

On the eastern flank, South Korean Fifth Division troops forced the Reds to retreat after heavy fighting throughout Saturday morning. The ROKS gained more than one mile.

Red Casualties

The toll of communist dead mounted on the fourth day of the new allied offensive.

Trying To Organize

Home Front Defense Program Is Still In Slap-Dash Stage; Complexities Of Mobilization Effort Which Is Rapidly Growing; Office Quarters Crowded

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, March 10—(AP)—The defense program—the home front part of it—still looks like a bunch of people camping out. It's still in the slap-dash stage, trying to get organized.

Charles E. Wilson, head of the whole program, seems fairly well settled, at least for the time being. This is more than can be said for some of the other parts of his program.

He has his staff and offices where the States Department once lived, in a gloomy old building that is a reminder of the gaslight era. It's in the center of town across the street from the White House.

prices and wages—his ESA is boss of both—he could get down to Wilson's office for a conference in a hop and a jump.

It's doubtful that the lean-trimmed executive Johnson, who looks like a movie version of a business executive, has done any hopping or jumping since childhood. He's very dignified.

Later on Johnson and his staff, which is small—since he handles policy, not details—transferred to the RFC (Reconstruction Finance Corporation) building on Vermont Avenue, a truly plush place compared with other government buildings.

But it's the two branches of his ESA—the Office of Price Stabilization and the Wage Stabilization Board—which are slammed together like people in a tent.

Both those agencies, which do the job of controlling wages and prices, are a head-on World War I legacy. It was meant to be temporary in the first world war but somehow no one ever got around to de-

ALLEY BOY

What's wrong with this boy? Why does he loiter in the alley, sneering at the world around him?

Good for nothing . . . juvenile delinquent . . . future criminal . . . those are some of the answers we hear.

But is there really anything wrong with this boy that religious training wouldn't have cured?

Long ago, if given the chance, the Church could have begun to mold his character along noble lines. A Christian home, Christian teachers and Christian pals could have kept him away from the alley—on a high road.

One of the priceless opportunities America offers her children is the advantage of religious training. A child cannot accept this opportunity himself. It is up to his parents to recognize its essential value, and to cooperate with and support the Church in its life-building work.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

U.D.C. Meets; Mrs. Wells Gives Paper On Lanier

One of the most delightful meetings of the George B. Singletary Chapter of the U.D.C., was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. G. Lautares.

The following visitors were welcomed: Mrs. Sallie Irons and Mrs. R. D. Harrington.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey presided over a short business session. Mrs. E. L. Willard read the minutes of the last meeting, and the following gave reports: Mrs. Lautares, treasurer; Mrs. T. Hollingsworth, historian; and Mrs. V. C. Fleming, patriotic chairman. Mrs. Lautares, Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Hollingsworth presented the new program books for the year. It was voted to send letters of appreciation to Mrs. Georgia S. Franklin and her class for the lovely covers and to Mrs. George Lautares for the mimeographing. Mrs. J. G. Lautares announced that two new Confederate flags had been purchased.

Mrs. Irons and Mrs. J. H. Randolph brought to the group interesting facts about Robert E. Lee.

Mrs. P. E. Wells presented the program for the afternoon which was most interesting as well as informative. Her subject was "Sidney Lanier and His Achievements."

A rather belated recognition was accorded Lanier when in 1915 he was elected to his justly won place in the U.D.C. National Hall of Fame. The immediate cause of this was due to the untiring work of the daughters of the Confederacy who conducted a publicity campaign that the American public might know more of this great American who, though a Confederate soldier, was not given this high honor for that alone but because, in addition to his service record there, his personal character was comparable to that of Robert E. Lee and his talents so versatile that he was considered, in the apparently opposite fields of music and mathematics, an outstanding leader of his time.

He made an important contribution with his writings, especially his poetry and ballads. The dominant note in his writing is an unquestioning faith in the goodness and greatness of God.

Following the program the hostesses served delicious home-made cake with strawberries and cream, coffee, and toasted pecans.

The meeting was adjourned with the group singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

Officers For Delta Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, Are Chosen

Agnes Fullilove, principal of the West Greenville School, will serve as president of the Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honorary society for women in education, during 1951-1952. Dr. Mary G. Caughey of the science faculty of East Carolina Teachers College and Deanie Boone Haskett of the Greenville High School faculty will be first and second vice presidents, respectively. The Delta Chapter includes several eastern counties of the state in its membership.

Other officers chosen for the coming year include Mrs. Phebe Emmons of Washington, recording secretary; Mrs. Myrtle Clark of Greenville, corresponding secretary; and Frances Lamb of Greenville, parliamentarian.

The new officers were chosen at a dinner meeting held Thursday evening, March 9, in the cafeteria of the Training School on the East Carolina campus. Mrs. Luther Herrington of Greenville, president, acted as chairman. Dr. E. J. Carter, director of the department of education at the college here, was principal speaker, discussed "Ethics for Teachers." Approximately 45 members and guests were present to enjoy the occasion.

Kitchen Shower Canasta Party For Bride Elect

On Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. Miss Ione Bradsher was surprised when Mrs. J. J. Perkins entertained for her at a canasta party. The home on West Fourth Street was charmingly decorated with profusions of mixed spring flowers and shrubs. The mantel in the living room featured a lovely arrangement of pastel hyacinths, while elsewhere sprays of Judas shrubs, daffodils and Japanese quince were effectively placed to add a touch of beauty and festivity to the rooms where four tables were placed for cards.

After several games of cards, Mrs. C. H. Edwards Sr. was given the prize for high score. When cards were laid aside, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jesse Moye and Mrs. Joe Moye, served a tempting salad course with Russian tea.

At the conclusion of the refreshment hour, Miss Bradsher was surprised with a kitchen shower. The numerous and attractively packaged gifts were placed in a small wagon, which was pulled into the room by Mrs. Perkins' maid, suitably dressed as a cook. The opening of the lovely and useful gifts was the occasion of much delight and pleasure.

The hostess' gift to Miss Bradsher was an electric grill. She was also presented with a dainty white narcissus corsage when she first arrived.

Mrs. C. H. Richardson of Washington, mother of the hostess, was a special guest for the evening.

ECTC Students Present Play at ACC

Wilson Students at E. C. T. C. who are members of the Phi Sigma chapter of Sigma Phi Alpha, national honorary foreign language fraternity, presented a program here on Thursday, March 8, on the invitation of Alpha Gamma Gamma chapter of the organization at Atlantic Christian College. The Rocky Mount students, would speak in Howard Chapel a one-act play at the April meeting, Mrs. Mack Carraway, chairman of a vocational committee in the Social Service League, explained what the vocational guidance program in the schools means.

Mrs. Cox was named chairman of the nominating committee. The school will have a half-holiday Friday, April 13. This is a reward to the children for making the March of Dimes a success.

Miss Edna Robinson's fifth grade won the room roll call.

For the program members of Boy Scout Troop 25 demonstrated some of their skills and explained their work.

Scout Jimmy Joyner led in the singing of the first verse of "America." Chandler Cox read the Scripture and Jan Clayton had prayer.

Scoutmaster Ed Nash Warren presented the program and objectives of scouting. Assistant Scoutmaster Horton Rountree, an Eagle Scout himself, explained the national and the local organizations.

Scouting also gives a boy the chance to learn ways of serving his community.

Mr. Rountree introduced Scout Jess Spencer who told of ranks and announced the demonstration of Scout participation and crafts as follows: Cliff Simpson oath; Johnny Dixon, law; Eddie Bass, badge; Bud Wooten, motto and slogan; Emmett Pickett and Wilbur Rollins, the flag and how it should be displayed; Bert Warren, knots; Emmett Pickett, Carl Blackwood, Albert Monk, Chandler Cox, Ocell Modlin and Jesse Brady, first aid.

Harold Finanagan spoke on Camp Charles and led in singing a group of camp songs.

Mr. Warren appealed for parent cooperation for the training of boys. He led the Scout benediction.

Credit Women Meet At Proctor Hotel

The Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club met Friday morning at 7:30 at the Proctor Hotel with Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, president, presiding.

The St. Patrick motif was carried out in table settings and each place was marked by a St. Patrick hat. There were 17 members present. The door prizes were won by Marie Cox, Mary Dell Seymour and Mary Belle Eldridge.

Mrs. G. C. Frye taught the regular educational class on consumers' credit and each member entered in to the discussion which was most interesting and helpful.

Each member brought gifts to be given to the club's Junior member for Easter.

Scouts Present P.T.A. Program

Farmville.—In the absence of Mrs. Frank Allen, the president, Sam D. Bundy, presided at the Parent-Teacher Association Thursday night.

Mrs. Curtis Flanagan, chairman of the program committee, reported that Miss Kate Parks Kitchen, vocational guidance teacher in the East Carolina students presented in Howard Chapel a one-act play at the April meeting, Mrs. Mack Carraway, chairman of a vocational committee in the Social Service League, explained what the vocational guidance program in the schools means.

Mrs. Cox was named chairman of the nominating committee. The school will have a half-holiday Friday, April 13. This is a reward to the children for making the March of Dimes a success.

Miss Edna Robinson's fifth grade won the room roll call.

For the program members of Boy Scout Troop 25 demonstrated some of their skills and explained their work.

Scout Jimmy Joyner led in the singing of the first verse of "America." Chandler Cox read the Scripture and Jan Clayton had prayer.

Scoutmaster Ed Nash Warren presented the program and objectives of scouting. Assistant Scoutmaster Horton Rountree, an Eagle Scout himself, explained the national and the local organizations.

Scouting also gives a boy the chance to learn ways of serving his community.

Mr. Rountree introduced Scout Jess Spencer who told of ranks and announced the demonstration of Scout participation and crafts as follows: Cliff Simpson oath; Johnny Dixon, law; Eddie Bass, badge; Bud Wooten, motto and slogan; Emmett Pickett and Wilbur Rollins, the flag and how it should be displayed; Bert Warren, knots; Emmett Pickett, Carl Blackwood, Albert Monk, Chandler Cox, Ocell Modlin and Jesse Brady, first aid.

Harold Finanagan spoke on Camp Charles and led in singing a group of camp songs.

Mr. Warren appealed for parent cooperation for the training of boys. He led the Scout benediction.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
 BREAD—HONEST AND DISHONEST
 In the temptation experience, Jesus was urged by Satan to turn stones into bread. He refused to do this, and he refused because, among other things, he would not use his personal powers for the purpose of benefiting himself. Had he used his powers to benefit himself, the bread he produced would not have been honest bread.

There is much teaching in this temptation scene which is not apparent at first glance. Honest and dishonest bread is a continuous issue among men. It scarcely needs to be said that anyone who gains bread for himself at the expense of his fellows is a thief. The royal tyrants in the past have been thieves. And the communists with their rigid class system are perpetrating hypocritical theft upon great masses of people whom they claim to have liberated.

But getting down closer home, the chap who works with his eye on the clock all the time, the workman or the professional man or the scholar who does not do quite his utmost, are all being paid for more than they accomplish, and therefore carry some dishonest bread in their knapsacks. All labor practices which urge men to slough up on the job are fundamentally dishonest. The manufacturer who sells an inferior article under the pretense that it is of quality grade is gathering for himself dishonest bread.

Utilities Decision To Be Of Great Import

A grave decision which may well determine the economic course of the Coastal Plain section of North Carolina for the next half century now faces the utilities commissions of Farmville and Greenville, and the other municipalities in this region which own their own electric generating plants.

These utilities commissions and the people of these municipalities must in the near future choose between public electric power and private electric power generated and distributed by the municipalities or private companies.

The utilities engineers of the cities of this section of the state are fully aware that the time has come when it is no longer most economical for the individual generating plants to remain entirely independent. The demand for power has reached the point where the smaller plants must pool their resources for the most economical operation.

But in working out the pooling of these resources, shall the municipal companies cast their lot with the private power companies, or the federal power companies which are rapidly spreading their long tentacles to envelop vast areas of this nation?

Perhaps the question can be put more fundamentally if we project it into terms of its ultimate meaning. Do the people of this area wish to turn from the road of private enterprise in the electric power business and become a part of the nationalization of the electric power industry, or do our people want to stand firm on principle of private ownership and operation? Since the electric power will control industry, do the people wish to be a part of the plan to give the federal government control of the power which will control the wheels of industry?

The famous Buggs Island federal project is to be completed late in 1952 or early in 1953. But along with the generating plant at Buggs Island, there are some 12 other plants which are to be constructed in the Roanoke River basin. Approximately 30 power generating plants are proposed for the network of states from Virginia southward. The meaning? A counterpart to the TVA, only this one will be east of the mountains.

Public power indeed has some distinct advantages, but are they worth the price which the people pay, openly and hiddenly, for these advantages? The Tennessee Valley Authority through its low electric power rates has brought a great industrial revolution to the area served by the federal power lines. But the low rates are possible because a large portion of the cost of the federal power projects come directly from the taxpayers pockets. The revenue from the power generated and sold is regulated by the cost and maintenance of the electric equipment. It is not based on figures which would compensate for the billions of dollars which are used to purchase land which form the bottom of vast reservoirs, the billions which it takes to construct mammoth dams, the billions which it takes to construct the intricate network of smaller dams.

In the light of lower power rates, it may seem that the people in areas served by federal power are receiving a great deal for nothing. But the full price in dollars, is being paid through taxation and the federal power rates. And one day we may realize we have indeed paid too great a price in giving too great a control to a highly centralized federal government.

If the four municipalities in Pitt county's immediate area tie their electric power generating plants to the federal system through this proposed alliance with the REA cooperatives and the Southeastern Power Administration, it will be only a few years . . . probably fewer years than we realize . . . before the individual municipal systems will be directly controlled by a federal authority.

Even though it may seem a greatly exaggerated statement at first glance, the action of the cities of Greenville, Farmville, Kinston and Washington toward this proposed alliance with the federal power agencies may well determine the course of public power not only in this area, but indeed in other vast areas throughout the nation.

The matter indeed is one which should be given thorough consideration as to its present meaning and its future ramifications before a decision is reached. The decision which is to be made here in our midst may well be a determining factor in the economic history of a great portion of our great nation.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 10—"Do you think that the House will approve the Senate action drafting 18-year-olds for 24 months of service?" asks Mrs. M.A. of Oakland, Cal., "and what are the principal reasons for taking boys so young?"

Answer: Yes, I believe that the eventual draft and service law will be the same as that passed in the Senate. Now that the upper chamber has assumed the responsibility for fixing the age and service limits, there will be less objection on the other side.

House members, who must face the voters every two years, frequently sidestep difficult decisions in the hope that the Senate will assume prior responsibility.

SHAM—Moreover, the controversy over the 18-year-olds was something of a sham battle. It is extremely doubtful, according to informed Selective Service officials, if youngsters of that age will see active service until they are past 19 or almost 20. They may never get into battle, largely because of the preparation and determination we show in resorting to virtual conscription in time of relative peace.

Here is how the procedure will actually work out: Few youngsters will get their draft summons on their 18th birthday. It may be weeks or months after that date before they are summoned before their draft board for examination.

It usually takes from one to three months before they are sent to camp. As the total called for service increases, the period of delay will be longer rather than shorter.

FOLLY—It requires at least six months, possibly more, to make a soldier out of a boy who has had no previous service or training, as will be true of this group. Barring a war, they will be given more than a year of basic soldiering. And, even if there should be a war, it will take more months to shift them to a distant battleground, and harden them up in a quiet area.

Thus, it is not precisely accurate to say that we are throwing boys of 18 into battle. It would be military folly, and also a political blunder in the broadest sense, not in the narrow, partisan meaning of that term, to rush untrained and unindoctrinated boys into battle.

After reading a mass of conflicting testimony, I think there are only two reasons for taking them so young: (1) They make better, harder and more adaptable soldiers. (2) They will be through their training young enough—21 or 22 years old—to begin their education or life work without threat of an interruption afterward, always assuming that there is no war during the period of their reserve status.

GRIEVANCE—"Can you tell me why the British were so sore when an American Admiral was named to command the fleet under the North Atlantic Military Pact?" inquires T.F. of Camden, N. J. "For myself, since Eisenhower and MacArthur are handling the United Nations' defense preparations and war, I would be glad if the other countries assumed more responsibility at the top."

Answer: The British think they have a real and substantial grievance here, as I read the debates of Parliament in the London "Times." For political reasons and to embarrass the Attlee government, Winston Churchill emphasized the fact that the selection of an American was a slight on Britain's naval traditions and accomplishments.

But other speakers pointed out that the disposition of Britain's home fleet and, therefore, the defense of the Isles, would be controlled by a foreigner. He might, conceivably, give more weight to considerations of world strategy, leaving England's shores defenseless.

LEAKED—The debaters in Commons undoubtedly had in mind the Roosevelt-Churchill agreement when it seemed that Britain might be conquered and occupied by the Germans in the early stages of World War II. The "Prime" was then prepared to move the throne to Canada and to withdraw the fleet to western or dominion waters for a last-ditch resistance.

Naturally, the British did not want such a question, if it should ever arise again, to be left to the determination of an American. The opposition was assured by Attlee spokesmen that control of their navy in home waters will be entrusted to a deputy commander, and he will be a Britisher.

Had the announcement for the naval setup been handled more wisely, there would have been no need for the flareup. For some unaccountable reason, it leaked out first in Copenhagen, with no mention of the plan for regional division of authority.

VACATION—"What does Washington think of both President Truman and Secretary Acheson taking a vacation at this critical time?" asks Mrs. F.H. of Charlotte, N.C.

Answer: That is a hard one to answer. I cannot think of two men who have been under greater strain, or who have greater need of relaxation. Moreover, both keep in constant touch with their offices, and could return here in a few hours if necessary. Pending action by Congress at home, and decisions by the Deputy Council of Foreign Ministers abroad, there is a lull in both domestic and overseas problems right now.

To The Cleaners

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Very few of us 150 million Americans need to be sold on our country, but it nevertheless helps our morale to emphasize now and then how great America is.

When I was at Chapel Hill attending Carolina I had class with a girl from England. She was a distant relative of one of the UNC faculty members, and he had told her since childhood that she could come to America and attend the university for a year after she graduated from high school.

At the time I met this girl she was in her last quarter of school before her deadline to return to England. Naturally I assumed that "there's no place like home" and commented, "I'll bet you're anxious to return to England."

The girl was quick to reply, "On the contrary, I wish I could stay here in Chapel Hill the rest of my life." The astounding fact to me was her readiness to admit that. Her reasons for liking America: the prosperity we enjoy, the climate, the carefree philosophy of Americans, and the pleasant informality we enjoy.

Since my acquaintance with this girl there have no doubt been many more English girls who have come to America and discovered the same thing. Since 1946 American school teachers have exchanged with French, British, Belgian and Canadian teachers.

Tezzie Johnson, of Dallas, Texas, is a good example of one of the American teachers who has gone abroad on the exchange plan. When Tezzie arrived in Portsmouth, England, the residents heard she was from Texas and were actually surprised to see that she didn't chew gum continuously, talk like a movie cowhand, and pack a gun. A lady from Portsmouth told Tezzie, "You're anything but wild." American movies give foreigners the idea that all Americans are like the movie characters.

Tezzie had a little trouble with one English pupil. In a Portsmouth grammar school, which compares to an American classical school, Tezzie encountered an English girl who needed special coaching for her Cambridge University entrance examinations. The required subject was American economic geography, and the 19-year-old girl made it clear that she just wanted to learn enough about America to pass the test.

"I hate America," she said.

"Why?" Tezzie asked.

"Because you waited so long to get into the war that Britain was ruined. And please don't bring up Marshall aid." Instead of trying to sell the girl America then, Tezzie went on giving special lessons to the girl until she was ready for the exams on America. By that time, the girl had come around to liking Tezzie and America. Teachers from America that are taking advantage of the exchange plan are doing a great job of improving our understanding and relationships with other countries.

And I thank you.

STREET AID—It is virtually certain that the senate street aid measure, commonly known as the Powell Bill, will be enacted into law Monday or Tuesday. The vote of 56 to 32 in the house Friday, following nearly two hours effort to defeat the bill by use of almost every parliamentary device, seems to justify conclusion the third and final reading of the bill will put it into the law books. The vote actually was 67 to 43, counting pairs. Enactment was avoided Friday by a narrow margin, when a final delaying effort brought objection to third reading. The house voted 56 to 37 to suspend the rules, but that wasn't enough. Suspension of the rules, like removal of a bill from the unfavorable calendar or over-riding a decision of the chair, requires two-thirds vote in every parliamentary body. Effort to get the state liquor referendum bill from the unfavorable calendar failed a few days ago by about the same margin of failure to get final vote on the Powell bill. The difference between two-thirds and a simple majority can sometimes be important. In neither of these cases did it make such difference. The ultimate result will be determined by majority vote and there is as much reasonable certainty of passage of the street-aid bill as there was of defeat for the state referendum.

PREJUDICE—Appeals to prejudice, to sectional advantage and to selfish interests featured debate on the street-aid bill. The proposal for the state to provide additional contribution to public roads inside corporate cities and towns on comparable basis with contributions to public roads outside has been fought all along by efforts to array country people against city people. Friday the added appeal to sectional advantage was brought more into the open by amendments seeking to revise the formula for distributing street aid money.

DISTRIBUTION—Rep. Lamar Gudger of Buncombe pleaded for an amendment which would have divided the street-aid fund into ten equal parts, one for each of the ten highway divisions, before any distribution were made on basis of street mileage and population of municipalities. Effect of that would be to count country roads and rural population, rather than municipalities, as major basis for disbursing what is intended to be municipal funds. He said frankly the reason he wanted that change was because his city of Asheville would get more money that way. He charged that because there were more cities with more miles of streets and more people in the middle part of the state, these cities were taking money away from the coastal and mountain areas. After Rep. K. C. Ramsay of Rowan had urged action on statewide rather than selfish community idea, the Gudger amendment was tabled.

AMENDMENTS—That was the most significant change proposed although the house also turned thumbs down on another Gudger proposal to take all towns of less than 1250 out of street-aid participation unless by formal action before January 1, 1952, they asked to come in; and also on a proposal by Rep. B. I. Satterfield of Person that no city or town could operate parking meters or other traffic control devices for pay on any street upon which state money was spent.

LONG DRAWN—Despite the fact outcome of the voting was pretty well assured before the session started the debate kept members in their seats until two o'clock Friday. The speaker was forced several times to call attention to the rule limiting to ten minutes speeches on amendments, when Gudger had spoken for nearly half an hour on one amendment. When Rep. A. C. Edwards of Greene objected to third reading there was obvious discontent at further delay, but the motion to suspend the rules and get rid of the matter that day failed for lack of two-thirds majority.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LEAKED—The debaters in Commons undoubtedly had in mind the Roosevelt-Churchill agreement when it seemed that Britain might be conquered and occupied by the Germans in the early stages of World War II. The "Prime" was then prepared to move the throne to Canada and to withdraw the fleet to western or dominion waters for a last-ditch resistance.

TOBACCO PRICES—(Washington Daily News)
 The Bureau of Agricultural Economics says that the price of tobacco in 1951 will likely be higher than in 1950.

The support price for tobacco in 1950 amounted to about 45.7 dollars per hundred pounds. The support price is calculated to be higher in 1951. It may even push the $50 mark, if recent estimates mean anything.

Of course, the support price is invaluable to the farmer whose crop would ordinarily sell for less than the government prices for each grade. But in recent years most farmers in our section whose crop is not beset by rains, floods, and hail are averaging well above the support price.

Then, one may ask just why we should have a support price? In answering that question it can be pointed out that without such support the prices could drop considerably. If the companies refused to bid above a certain figure, or if they bought the tobacco they wanted for one year, then the prices could drop well below the government figure. As it is now, the buyers know that the price cannot get below a certain mark, and therefore they are apt throughout the season to be more alert and to spread the purchases out more.

The Pamlico section grows good tobacco. Tobacco men realize the quality of tobacco grown here, and given an average year and crop, prices in this area will hold their own with those of any area.

Last year rains and floods caused an abundance of drowned out tobacco to appear upon the market. Beaufort county was hard hit in places, and many farmers suffered a great deal. But those Beaufort county farmers whose luck was better fared very well on the market.

The plants are in the seed beds now. It won't be very long before the setting out period begins. Tobacco farmers take a lot of chances. There is blue mold to contend with; there is rainfall, there are all sorts of other weather problems; there are tobacco worms and insects; there

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Barring three big "ifs," this will be a big construction year. The "ifs" are these:
 IF financing regulations are tightened.
 IF materials grow much scarcer.
 IF a full-scale war breaks out.

New construction last year, measured in dollars, totaled $27,715,000,000, the top year in our history.

New construction in the first two months of this year was $4,648,000,000, which was $718,000,000 higher than the same two months in 1950.

At that rate, new construction this year could set another record. But even the most optimistic contractors do not expect the rate to continue. The effects of controls of materials are still ahead. John L. Haynes, director of the building materials division of the National Production Authority, told the recent Boston meeting of the Associated General Contractors of America that new construction this year might run between 25 and 26 billion dollars. That would be bigger than any year before 1950.

Thomas S. Holden, president of F. W. Dodge Corp., told New York bankers this week that "There is no visible prospect of anything like the severe dim-out of construction activity that took place in 1948 and 1949." He said that while Regulation X might cut down housing starts from last year's 1,395,000 to 800,000, as government planners hope, he thought the coming squeeze of materials might begin to ease by the end of 1952 or earlier. Even 800,000 starts are higher than any year before 1947.

While Regulation X has taken thousands of families out of the home-building market, and there are possibilities that it may be tightened, it is the shortage of materials that worries most contractors. While many materials are reasonably available, the cut-backs in copper and aluminum appear to be the most restrictive at the moment. However, these and other materials will be made for defense construction, and that's carrying the boom today.

While total new construction in February was 22.4 per cent higher than a year ago, industrial construction was up a whopping 91.4 per cent and commercial construction was up 58.4 per cent. The building of new steel plants in the New England and Delaware River areas, atomic energy expansions, new military installations and expansion of aluminum, electric and other defense potentials will continue to increase industrial work.

DOOR-TO-DOOR SALES TO HIGH COURT AGAIN
 Another test of laws prohibiting house-to-house selling is before the Supreme Court. The case hinges on the constitutionality of an Alexandria, Va., law prohibiting door-to-door solicitation without a request by the occupants.

If the law is upheld, it will give a green light to other cities to enact similar ordinances, and might seriously hamper the door-to-door market, which runs into billions of dollars a year.

However, door-to-door sales organizations so far have been able to render most local restrictions ineffective. When the goods are shipped across state lines, which is usually the case, the courts have generally held their sale was in interstate commerce which, constitutionally, only Congress can regulate.

PROMOTER RALLIES TO RFC DEFENSE

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is sure getting publicity these days," remarked the Old Promoter, breezing in and nestling close to the box of cigars on this department's desk.

"Yes," we said. "Hired a new press agent?"

"Gee!" said the O.P., "If the RFC has hired a press clipping service at so much a clip, it sure is costing us tax-payers a lot. It's really a shame how the RFC is getting kicked around. Especially since it is so honest?"

"You can prove it?"

"Sure can!" said the O.P. "It turned me down when I wanted to borrow a million."

"That doesn't prove it is honest," we said. "But it does prove it's smart."

The O.P. took umbrage at that. He also took a cigar.

UNEXPLAINED PENNY SHORTAGE CONTINUES

The mysterious shortage of pennies is continuing and Federal Reserve banks have been urging member banks to encourage depositors to return them to circulation as soon as possible. Among the explanations rejected as factious are that most of them are stuck in gum machines and that the post-war crop of babies has reached the piggy bank age.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ARTHUR EDSON (For HAL BOYLE)

Washington, March 10—(AP)—Fifteen men stationed at nearby Fort Myer, Va., have what must be the most unusual job in the Army. Every minute, day and night, they guard the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

In sizzling or in freezing weather, one of these men paces back and forth in front of the simple but impressive tomb in Arlington National Cemetery, across the Potomac River from Washington.

Only exception: If it's raining or sleeting, the man may take cover under one of the little canopies at each end of the walk.

How do the boys like this strange job?

Fine, said Sgt. Casper J. Morelli of Oliphant, Pa. Morelli has been on the Honor Guard for eight years. The last six years he's been head man.

The unknown soldier was buried in 1921. Oddly, in view of the constancy of the guard now, in the early days there was no guard at all. It then was put on a part-time basis and, since July 1, 1937, it has been an around-the-clock schedule.

Morelli says the first thing he looks for in choosing a man is neatness. Next he wants a general good appearance. "A good all around soldier does best," he says.

A neat, good appearing, soldierly man himself, Morelli never walks guard, but does have a special chore.

"I'm the wreath bearer," he said, and then explained that when the President or some other dignitary comes out to put a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's tomb, Morelli is the man who hands it to him.

Guards on duty aren't permitted to talk to tourists, except to answer the question asked most often: "May I take pictures?" The answer: "Yes."

A new man, Morelli says, may get nervous in the big, silent cemetery at night.

"Why shouldn't they?" cut in Cpl. Edward Barwick of Brooklyn. "The place is full of animals. They come out at night as soon as the people are shooped out. They sit there and watch the guards."

Barwick said Arlington has lots of rabbits and squirrels. Guards even have spotted foxes.

"Did you ever hear a racoon scream?" Morelli asked. I had not. "Sounds just like a woman," Morelli said. "A couple of coons in a fight gave me a real scare one night."

We went downstairs where some of the boys were waiting in a recreation room equipped with television and a pool table. They backed up the sergeant's tales of night life.

Pfc. Joseph R. Donato of Philadelphia said he'd never forget his first night.

But this is the unusual situation. Morelli said the boys take their job seriously, and are pleased to be a part of one of the most impressive sights in Washington.

Pfc. Donald Robert Wagner of Brooklyn summed it up simply:

"We consider it a real honor." As we left the cemetery we could see one of the soldiers marching erectly in front of the tomb that bears the inscription: "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."

He walked like a man who considered it a real honor.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—With the price of red meats soaring, housewives would do well to make use of the plentiful cheaper products, especially poultry or eggs. This is the advice of food economists, nutrition experts and others in the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

William Dewey Thermohlen, head of the department's Poultry Branch, says the present differences in price between meat and poultry or eggs warrants such a change.

"It isn't a shortage of supplies, but prices, that are taking certain items out of the family's reach," another official told me.

There are plenty of hens on the market which, when steamed or boiled, make big, tasty and wholesome meals for the family. There are plenty of broilers and fryers and now we can have "spring chicken" the year around. Suggestions on how to freeze poultry are supplied by the department in a booklet "Chicken in the Freezer."

Mr. Thermohlen says the turkey crop in 1950 was the greatest in history. Turkeys are no longer a seasonal bird. They are available the year 'round and can be purchased in various cuts—half turkeys, turkey breasts, and turkey legs, to be prepared and dished up as best suits family tastes.

As for eggs, the average production per hen this year, Mr. Thermohlen says, is 170.

Mrs. Rowena Carpenter, home economist for the poultry branch of the Department of Agriculture, says "low prices of current supplies of poultry and eggs."

"Poultry is extremely reasonable and one of the best meat buys on the market," she says. Supplies of other proteins such as frozen fish fillets, fresh and frozen shrimp, as well as cottage cheese and peanut butter, are plentiful.

Some 39,000,000 pounds of frozen fish fillets—cod, haddock, ocean perch, pollock and others—are in cold storage as compared with last year's 30,000,000.

Shrimp are also available in record quantities—30 per cent more than was available in 1949. Stocks of canned tuna, sardines and mackerel are 50 per cent above average.

Teacher From Germany Studies U. S. Training Methods At East Carolina

By MARY H. GREENE
Annaliese Bodensohn of Weilburg, Germany, came to the United States to study American teachers colleges. Her tour in this country, which includes two weeks on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College, is turning out to be an adventure in international understanding and friendship. She wishes that her stay in America could be longer than the three months allowed her.

Asked how she happens to be here, she explained that the American Office of Education in Weisbaden was interested in a German teacher studying in America. "I was interested too," she said; "so I came." At home she is a faculty member of the teachers college in Weilburg, Hesse, in the American Zone of Germany.

Miss Bodensohn will spend a large part of her time in this country in the U. S. Office of Education in Washington. The program of education in which she is participating is described by an official there as "an important part of U. S. Foreign policy." She visited Wilson Teachers College in the Capital before coming to Greenville; and from here she will go to the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin; the State Teachers College in Milwaukee; and the State Teachers College in Jersey City, N. J.

"I was told in Washington," she said, "that, when I came to Greenville to your college, I would see one of the best institutions in this country for training teachers."

With energy and enthusiasm she is gathering facts and impressions about everything at East Carolina from the Nursery School to the program of graduate work for prospective teachers.

When one meets Miss Bodensohn, he notices at once her excellent command of English, her sense of humor, her quickness in grasping ideas and points of view different from her own, and a frank and charming way of being immensely pleased with what goes on around her.

A tall, pink-checked young woman, with long brown hair braided and arranged in coronet fashion, she gives an impression of vigor and enthusiasm, quite attractive to those who have become acquainted with her here.

"Your hair!" she exclaimed to the wife of an East Carolina professor who was her hostess at dinner. "It's arranged like mine, and is a comfort to me." Her friends at home, she said, told her that all American women have short hair and that she had better cut hers before coming to the United States. "But," she smiled, "I like my braids and keep them. Now I see you," she told her hostess, "and I feel better."

"No compliments please," she says when comments about her English are made. "I know I don't speak too well. She believes, she says, that language study is a means of better international understanding and is glad that she studied English for seven years in Annaliese Bodensohn, German teacher now in this country to study the American teachers college, (center), makes friends with students at East Carolina Teachers College during a two weeks' visit on the campus. She is pictured above chatting with Donald Blood and Jean Mills, both of Greenville.

German schools. Many are now studying English in Germany, she said, because of the influence of the American Occupation. "Not," she explained, "that the Americans ask it, but because it is good to do so." Understanding of other people is fostered in the student, she believes, by knowing a foreign language and reading foreign books and newspapers.

Some in Germany, she commented, think that the study of Russian would be valuable. The purpose, she said, would be "not to love Communism" but to "defeat the Russians by their own means." There should be in schools, she said, a "deep occupation" with the study of Marxian ideas so that, through understanding their meanings and implications, ability to defeat them through intelligent discussion and argument would be possible.

Asked about the attitude of the German people toward Russia, she replied, "In Germany for a long time we sit on a volcano, first because of the Nazis, now because of the Russians. We fear them, and fear that another war might mean the destruction of Europe." The German people are friendly toward the Americans in their country, she said. "At first no," she explained. "This could not be at once during an occupation," she said, "and we knew this." It took the Germans some time to understand Americans, she explained, but better understanding has resulted in increased friendship. "We think wrongly at first that they do many things to provoke us, little things. They walk on the lawns and throw boxes and papers down, even in the woods where we take walks for pleasure. Now I am in America, and I see they do these things at home. The American, she said, thinks more of the comfort and pleasure of the person than of the law.

Friendships are readily formed now among Americans and Germans, she said, and relationships are good. The American service center, its library and collection of recordings, is open to students in Weilburg, she said. For a time an American teacher was a member of the faculty at her school, she added, and "was a colleague with us."

She sees many differences between the training of teachers at home and here. In Germany, she explained, the teachers colleges are smaller. That at Weilburg is educational and has 300 students. "Big for us," she commented, "but not for you." The German teachers colleges, she added, have "not so much" buildings and "not so good" cafeterias. There is less equipment also, she stated. A visit to the home economics department at East Carolina impressed her with the fact that the facilities include "things we will not have for perhaps the next twenty years."

There is no shortage of teachers in Germany, she said. The college at Weilburg trains teachers for what corresponds to our elementary schools. It is often difficult for graduates to find positions, she explained. "I am surprised to find that we have in some way more freedom in our teachers colleges than you," she said. There is no check on class attendance there, for instance. Students have great freedom also in choosing the courses they wish to take. "Most lectures are electives," she said.

Student life on the Weilburg campus, she describes it, seems pleasant. She was much interested in the fact that at the Eastern Regional Drama Festival held recently on the campus here, she saw a play which not long ago was given by a student dramatic group at Weilburg. Great emphasis is placed on music and art in the training of teachers in Germany, she said, and there are in Weilburg a number of student music organizations, very much like those at East Carolina. In Germany, she explained, students who have no appreciation of art are not considered good prospects as teachers. Each student in a German teachers college must know how to play a musical instrument.

Miss Bodensohn is enthusiastic about the opportunity to visit the United States, and she says she particularly likes Est Carolina. "My welcome in your country," she said, "has not come from politeness only, but from the heart. I feel this," she said, "very deeply."

Now It's A Scramble To Get Outnumbered Males

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
A Newsfeatures Writer
Well, what we have suspected for a long time now has been confirmed officially: there's no longer a man for every woman—not here in the United States.

With a proper rolling of drums, the Federal census people formally spread the bad news before us recently. The national nose-count of last year showed there are now 98.1 men for every 100 women.

This pair of statistics soon will become just about the most popular and best-known. However, it didn't seem to come as much of a shock to the fair sex.

"Humph," said a serious minded, attractive spinster, they didn't have to spend taxpayers' money to find THAT out. I could have told them for free. Only I'd have estimated there were about 50 men for every 100 women, and that every one of the 50 already was married. Of course, lots of them have wives who don't understand them...

A busy young career girl stopped typing briefly to remark: "If that's true, then I'm not getting my share."

A colleague chimed in: "I would say, then, that I'm meeting the 11 men and not the 98.1. Anyway, that mystery is solved."

Of course, one of the first things that comes to mind is how a woman can beat the statistics. Obviously, unless we adopt polygamy, there are going to be 1.9 females out of every hundred who can never have a man of their own.

Courtship and matrimony from here in is going to be quite simply a game of Musical Chairs, with the girls doing the active playing. With the stakes as high as they are—and the 1.9 losers facing the penalty of a life of solitude—ones faces a future in which all women are enemies. Of course there have been some authorities who have held they were even when there wasn't such a crucial man-power shortage.

But with full realization of the facts, it seems likely that from now on, it's every woman for herself, no holds barred, tooth-and-claw, the law of the jungle. This won't be just the single women competing for the unmarried men. No, indeed; in eight months or so, because who knows if there won't be unscrupulous spinsters who try to beat the statistics by poaching into lawfully wedded territory? Ah, this is cynical thinking.

But it means that we women, if we hope to get that fustiest with the mostest, would better spruce up. Maybe it's always been true that a good man was hard to find, but now we've got proof that that any kind of a man is getting hard to land.

Of course, we're not overlooking the effect these statistics are going to have on the outnumbered male. All 98.1 of him undoubtedly will become extremely vain, hard-to-get and sure of himself.

With 100 women battling it out for a lesser number of men, it wouldn't surprise me to see the entire male population relax. They will probably take to smoking strong, black cigars all the time, shave every three days, wear their favorite, oldest suits, play poker with their cronies every Saturday night, never take anyone out dancing and stop buying perfume, flowers and nylons.

The women are going to be put to it to combat this situation, a result of the law of supply and demand. It's a male market, and the ladies who hope to make a buy are not going to be able to make or find a bargain.

So let's be brave, accept our fate and give no quarter.

Cancer Is Frequent Cause Of Death Among Children

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
Durham, N. C., March 10—(AP)—Cancer is the second ranking cause of death among children.

Accidents cause the most deaths. The startling index of change in child diseases was made public in a Duke University report. The diseases that killed children most often fifty years ago are gone, and an entirely new medical outlook faces the child specialists, the pediatricians.

The change is described in a paper on the pediatric shift, by Dr. Wilbur C. Davidson, Dean of the Duke University School of Medicine, and Mildred M. Sherwood, R. N. (Registered Nurse).

rickets, diphtheria, fatal whooping cough, tetanus, pellagra, pneumonia and meningitis are others in the vanishing procession.

This shift, the report says, is about to largely empty the children's beds in hospitals. Child-birth, heart disease, rheumatic fever, malformations and bone diseases will still hospitalize children. But more and more will be treated either in doctor's offices, or as hospital outpatients. The cost will be about one-tenth of hospitalization.

This, the report says, makes a new job for pediatricians. Less to do with child diseases, but more with child growth, development, behavior, school and social problems. The pediatrician will cooperate with school nurses, social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists, and keep the rest of the medical profession posted on child health progress.

A FIEND IN NEED

Chapter . . .
"Sure they want the tape," Elaine agreed gently. "Now tie the bandage like a good boy, and we'll let them have all the tape they want."

"You don't understand!" I shook her urgently. "The office, our bedrooms, our clothes—they're looking for that hunk of tape!"

"What hunk of tape?" She eyed me uncertainly.

"I swiped a hunk of tape—at least, it looks like tape—from Flecker's dresser the other night," I explained, "and that's what they are looking for."

"Tape? Flecker?"

I started for the door. "I've got to tell Caldwell right away!" And I was out the door and on my way down the walk, the sheet fluttering behind me like the mainsail of a schooner, almost before Elaine could grab her coat and follow.

I burst into Caldwell's study, shouting: "I've got it!"

He was reading and, when he raised his eyes, his stare was quizzical. He raised of his brows a perceptible eighth of an inch, then glanced at Elaine who had trailed me into the room, and nodded to her. "Good evening, Miss Rudel," he murmured genially.

"Good evening," Elaine stammered, surprised by his recognition of her.

Caldwell smiled gently. "Bendy has described you to me with great enthusiasm," he explained, "and I might say, with considerable accuracy." He reached for a pipe and began to fill it with maddening deliberation.

"A little slower, Bendy." "Yes, sir." I swallowed, and started to again. "That's what reminded me of the piece of stuff which looks like adhesive tape that I picked up in Flecker's room the night Straw was murdered. And—I waved my arms triumphantly—"I'll bet forty thousand silver dollars that's what they're looking for!"

"You say you took a piece of tape from Mr. Flecker's room?" "Yes, while Phelan and Jenkins were inspecting the bedroom, I happened to open a drawer of his dresser and see it. I don't know why I took it. It isn't exactly tape—it's more like two pieces of stiff gauze with a layer of adhesive in the center. I've never seen anything like it before."

"What did you do with it?" "I don't know," I confessed. "I was looking at it when Phelan happened to walk toward me. I think I put it in—I closed my eyes—the right-hand coat pocket of my blue worsted suit."

"See if it's still there." I trotted upstairs, but my blue suit was missing. Mary might have sent it to the cleaners. Hurriedly, I slipped out of the sheet and blanket and dressed. Then I raced downstairs in search of Mary.

"What'd you do with my blue suit?" I demanded.

"The blue suit?" Mary shrugged and held up her hands. "It was dirty, wasn't it?"

"You sent it to the cleaners?" "Of course—it needed it."

"Did you look through the pockets?" "And don't I always?" She blinked with stolid surprise at the pointedness of my memory.

"I had a little piece of stuff in my right-hand coat pocket, about this big"—I made a square about two inches by three with my fingers—"it looked like a piece of stiff gauze—"

"Oh, that!" Mary waved her hand generously. "I put it in the medicine cabinet."

I chased back upstairs and, sure enough, there it was. When I possessed it on Caldwell's desk, he laid his pipe down and examined the tape critically beneath the light of his desk lamp. He held it to his nose sniffed gently, then tore back the gauze and exposed the strip of sticky adhesive which it protected.

"I think this is known, technically, as pressure-sensitive tape," Caldwell said, nodding with satisfaction. "This is excellent, Bendy. Excellent!"

"You know what it's for?" "I think so," Caldwell said slowly, his voice becoming crisp and decisive. "It tells me who killed Lawrence Straw, and—his jaw jutted forward—"who killed my friend, John Niles Thomson."

Police Identify Murder Victim

High Point, N. C., March 10—(AP)—A woman found strangled to death with a silk stocking here yesterday has been identified as Mrs. Mary Hopkins, about 30, of Durham, a domestic.

The nude, decomposed body was in a vacant house a block from the business district.

Mrs. Evelyn Roach of High Point made the identification late yesterday, saying the woman had worked for her as a domestic for a few weeks and had left three weeks ago.

Dr. W. W. Earvey, Guilford County Coroner, said there was evidence the woman had been murdered by a "sadtistic sexual pervert" because a piece of plaster moulding had been thrust into the body, piercing vital organs.

Thomas Trogden, 52-year old lumber yard worker, told police he had been drinking and found the body when he wandered into the house. He is held in $500 bond as a material witness.

Raleigh, March 10—(AP)—Maybe the time hasn't arrived, says Governor Scott, but "I think the time will come when we'll need" super highway toll roads.

Scott made this observation during yesterday's news conference. He was asked his feelings on a bill which would set up a state turnpike commission with authority to build toll roads.

"If I were going from here to Charlotte," Scott declared, "I would be willing to pay a little extra" to drive on a well-surfaced, unobstructed toll road.

He added that toll roads some day may be "a great help from a military standpoint."

Belvoir Girls And Bethel Quintet Win County Titles

Dark Horse Team Tops Ayden Girls

County Championships
Girls
Belvoir 48, Ayden 47
Boys
Bethel 50, Ayden 19

The Belvoir girls' team, which came into the Pitt County basketball tournament as a dark horse candidate by picking Winterville Thursday night, gathered in the Girls County Crown team Ayden in a nip-and-tuck battle of the nets which was not decided until the clock had ended the final period of the game before a crowd of more than 1500 screaming fans in Wright gym.

Meanwhile, in the boys' championship game, Coach Walter Latham's Bethel Red Devils, defending champions and winners in four past championship bouts, scored an easy victory over the second-seeded Ayden boys team after a first period scoring spurt had put the Tornadoes of Ayden into a two point first-quarter lead. However, the powers of the champions began to tell in the second and final quarters with the favorites rolling up a 50-19 lopsided score to take another championship.

Belvoir 48, Ayden 47
A packed house of cheering, screaming basketball fans saw the underdog Belvoir sextet topple the second-seeded Ayden girls basketball team last night as they went on to win a one-point victory and the County Championship title. During the first two quarters the lead changed constantly with the score being tied up seven different times.

Ayden took the tip-off and after only 15 seconds of play, Wooten scored for the Ayden girls. A foul on Stokes of Ayden, which was made good by Morris, Belvoir, moved the score to 2-1, Ayden, after a minute and 20 seconds had elapsed. But high scoring forward Claudia Pollard, who struck for 28 points last night, quickly moved Belvoir into the lead to the tune of 3-2 with two minutes gone in the first period. The lead changed back and forth and was tied up three times in the early minutes of the opening session.

Ayden was leading Belvoir in the closing seconds of the first period by a score of 13-9, but with only 10 seconds left in the first stanza, Pollard connected to move the score at the end of the first quarter to 15-11.

Pollard knotted the count after 10 seconds of play in the second quarter at 13-13 followed by a lay-up by Wooten of Ayden, sending the score to 15-15, followed by Morris at the end of one minute of play with a lay-up tying the score 15-15.

A lay-up by Morris moved Belvoir into the lead with only 1:15 left in the first half, by a score of 22-9. Two field goals by Claudia Pollard moved the Belvoir sextet out front by a three point margin as the half ended in favor of Belvoir, 25-23.

In the opening minutes of the third period, Belvoir's passing and shooting was wild and Ayden took advantage to move ahead by two points on a field goal by Cox.

Morris of Belvoir moved the score to 31-30, Ayden; Cox of Ayden followed with a field goal to make it 33-30. Then the scoring punch of Pollard and Morris sent the score to 41-30, Belvoir out front with only 20 seconds remaining. A foul and a lay-up by Wooten with eight seconds left ended the period with a score of 41-30, Belvoir.

Wooten with a lay-up shot moved the Ayden girls within one point of the Belvoir girls in the opening seconds of the final half but Ayden's passing attack was wild and they were not able to overtake the lead. With five minutes gone the score was Belvoir 44, Ayden 43. Cox moved the Ayden lassies to a 47-46 score with 1:30 left followed by a goal for Belvoir by Pollard which clinched the game. A freeze by the Belvoir sextet ended the championship tilt, 48-47, Belvoir.

Defensive stars for Ayden were Jackson and Conway with Tripp and Smith sharing honors for the champions.

Night's scoring honors went to Ayden's Katherine Wooten with 29 points followed by Belvoir's Pollard with 28. Cox, Ayden, gathered in 16

Bethel 50, Ayden 19
Coach Walter Latham's basketball champions for the past three years added another crown to their list of honors last night as they turned in a 50-19 victory over second-seeded Ayden high school boys' basketball team.

Ayden led Bethel at the end of the first period by a score of 9-8 with both teams playing a man-to-man defense.

Bethel scored first when Manning sank a field goal with 30 seconds playing time gone.

A foul on White of Bethel, which Bullock made good, and a goal by Whitehurst moved Ayden ahead by a 3-2 score.

White dropped a foul shot to knot the score at 3-3 with Nelson striking another foul called on Harrington to move Bethel ahead 4-3 with 1:45 gone in the first quarter.

A lay-up by Jackson and a hook by Bullock moved Ayden out front again 8-4 with nearly half the period gone.

Keel moved the count to 8-7 with six minutes gone and a foul on Jackson, made good by Nelson, tied the score at 8-8. A foul shot by Whitehurst enabled the Ayden lads to move out in front at the end of the quarter by the tune of 9-8.

The next period was a different story as the Bethel boys began to find the range and hit for 13 points while Ayden could make only two. Halftime score standing at 21-11, Bethel.

Third quarter play saw the Ayden boys fall further by the wayside under a barrage of goals as Bethel hit for 20 points while holding Ayden to a lonely two points again for the second quarter in a row.

Ayden came back with six tallies in the final half while Bethel, playing a slower game than at first, chalked up nine.

One reason for Ayden's poor showing in last night's tilt was that of 46 attempts made at the baskets they hit for only five, giving them an average of 10.8 per cent of shots completed. On foul attempts they hit for 9 out of 21.

Bethel made good on 22 of their

Dopesters Upset By Layne Victory

Trophies Await Tourney Winners

New York, March 10—(AP)—Rugged Rex Layne set his sights on either heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles or undefeated Rocky Marciano today. No matter who he gets, don't sell him short.

The so-called "smart guys" sold him short last night and they're still paying off as the result of Layne's sensational technical knockout victory over belting Bob Satterfield in 2:56 of the eighth round of a Madison Square Garden ten rounder.

Utah's pride and joy, undefeated in a year and ranked fourth in the NBA rankings, was made the 9 to 5 underdog against the Chicago Negro, rated one of the hardest hitters in the ring today.

He sampled some of Bob's block-busting rights, went down for eight in the first round, and then came back to wreck Satterfield with a barrage of his own right hand wallops.

After a pulsating seventh round, in which both fighters were rocked by terrific blows, Layne laid out his rival with a crackling right to the jaw. Down on his back went Satterfield for nine. When he climbed groggily to his feet, Layne smashed him to the ropes with a left and right to the head and Bob was helpless. Referee Mark Conn immediately stopped the fight.

The slim crowd of 5,981 (gross gate $19,647) gave Layne a roaring ovation, unlike the chilly reception he received after beating Cesar Brion in a lackluster bout here Feb. 9.

"Now we want either Charles or Marciano," said manager Marv Jensen.

"I'll fight anybody," said Layne.

Whitey Lockman Now In Outfield

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 10—(AP)—Whitey Lockman temporarily will go back to playing the outfield instead of first base for the New York Yankees.

"I'm satisfied that Whitey can play first base if an emergency comes up," manager Leo Durocher explained. "But as of now Whitey goes back to first field and Monty Irvin is our left baseman."

Fewer Exhibitions

New York—(AP)—The American League will play 218 exhibition games this spring, a decrease of some 30 from the 1950 spring schedule. Last spring the junior circuit listed 115 games with National League opponents, two more than are scheduled for this spring against senior circuit teams.

Wins For Ensigns

Miami—(AP)—It all happened within six hours the same day here recently. In the afternoon at Hialeah a race horse named Ensign won his first race. That same night at Miami Beach a greyhound of the same name won his first race.

Sollazzo May Ask For Trial Outside New York

New York, March 10—(AP)—Salvatore Sollazzo, indicted fixer in basketball's Big Fix scandal, may attempt to have his case tried outside of New York City.

His attorney, William Kleinman, says he is considering the possibility of seeking a change of venue for the case.

Kleinman told reporters yesterday that in New York City there was too much hysteria about the case and "trial by press." He asserted Assistant District Attorney Vincent A. G. O'Connor had made "inflammatory" remarks about his client.

These remarks, Kleinman said, were contained in O'Connor's statements yesterday at the arraignment of Sollazzo, who was held without bail.

Sollazzo is accused on 13 counts of paying out approximately $45,000 in bribes to players of three colleges to "fix" games so he could win "sure bets."

Meanwhile, City Councilman Edward A. Cunningham, a Democrat, introduced a bill calling for amateur and professional athletes participating in college or organized sports before a paid audience here to sign an oath of integrity.

He's A Tower Of Strength

AP Newsfeatures
Bimini, Bahamas—Bonifish Sammy Ellis stands only five-feet-five and weighs 160 pounds but people here regard him as a tower of strength. Not only that but he is a much sought after guide when it comes to bonifishing. He can spot a bonifish school many miles away. The 37-year-old guide was encouraged by G. A. Lyon of Detroit, one of the nation's top deep sea anglers. He got Sammy to chin himself 30 times a day, not with two hands but with one hand. Thus, the muscles on Bimini's bonifish guide.

Tonight's Games
(Consolation Bracket)
7 o'clock: Camp Lejeune vs. Scotland Neck
8 o'clock: Greenville vs. Raleigh

Greenville and Raleigh will meet tonight in the finals of the championship division of the Second Annual Carolina Midget basketball tournament.

Greenville gained its berth in the finals by downing Kinston 25 to 16 in a slow-moving ball game, and Raleigh will go to the finals by virtue of its 42 to 37 win over Goldsboro in a fast breaking contest.

Greenville, the defending tournament champion, will be the underdog in tonight's bid to repeat its performance of a year ago when it copped the first Carolina Midget tournament championship. Greenville and Raleigh met twice during the regular season play this winter and Greenville took a licking in both encounters. The Raleigh lads eked out a nine point margin in the first meeting of the teams but had 42 points to spare when the teams met for the second time.

The defeats by Raleigh are the only two losses the Greenville mites have suffered this season.

Camp Lejeune and Scotland Neck tangled tonight for the top position in the consolation division of the tournament. Lejeune dropped Winterville 37 to 17 last night, and Scotland Neck trounced inexperienced Grifton 101 to 9.

Kinston grabbed an early lead in the second game of the championship semi-finals in an attempt to knock off a Greenville team which had defeated them in a previous game this season. The Kinston boys hit for four points before Greenville could scratch; but after the visitors got four, Greenville tightening its defense chalked up nine points of its own. Shortly after the half Kinston closed the lead to 13-12, but after that Greenville had things pretty much its own way. Final score was Greenville 25, Kinston 16. Whaley was high scorer for Kinston with nine points. Edwards with seven was high for Greenville followed by Saleed with five.

Raleigh came through as expected last night to gain a berth in the finals of the tournament, but only after a rugged battle with a determined group of Goldsboro midgets. Had Goldsboro given more protection to its six-point lead during the second quarter, the outcome may have been different; but the Raleigh boys took advantage of some wild shots by Goldsboro to get control of the ball and knot the score at 20-20 as the half time buzzer sounded. Early in the second half Raleigh took a three point lead, and doggedly hung on to it. With the score at 42-37 and slightly more than a minute remaining in the game, Raleigh put on the freeze and successfully controlled the ball until the game ended. V. Calton was high scorer for the boys from the state capital with 20 points. His team mate Mintz had ten points. Pate was high for Goldsboro with 14 and Tomlinson had 12 for Goldsboro.

Scotland Neck vs. Grifton
Although attention was focused on the games of the championship bracket last night, it was the Scotland Neck team in a consolation game that sent all previous tournament team records and individual records for scoring in a single game flying out the window. Scotland Neck racked up 101 points and held the inexperienced Grifton team to nine points. Ted Lassiter, hot shot of the Scotland Neck five, hung up a new tournament individual scoring record for a single game by hitting for 48 points. The game also produced one of those seldom-seen scoring mistakes as Grifton's Linwood Branch took a rebound under the Scotland Neck basket and, apparently confused, took a follow-up shot which was good and added two more points to the Scotland Neck lead. Grifton got seven points during the first half, and added only two more points during the second half. Lonnie Jackson was high scorer for Grifton with seven.

Camp Lejeune had little trouble taking the measure of Winterville to move to the finals of the consolation bracket of the tournament. Lejeune held a 14-4 lead at halftime, and boosted its lead to 37-17 by the time the final buzzer sounded. Lejeune took advantage of its height over the Winterville starters, and the advantage increased as the Winterville substitutes became increasingly diminutive as the game progressed. Cunningham was high scorer for Lejeune with 14 points, and two Tripp boys shared the scoring honors for Winterville with seven points and six points respectively.

Raleigh, N. C., March 10—(AP)—A group of Southern Conference senior all-star basketball players meets North Carolina State College's Southern Conference champs tonight.

The all-stars are coached by Tom Scott, University of North Carolina coach.

N. C. State's coach Everett Case is using the game as a tune-up for his team's post season NIT and NCAA invitations.

The all-stars headed by center Jim Slaughter of South Carolina, sixth ranking scorer in the nation, and two conference tournament stars, center Tex Tilson of Virginia Tech and guard Ed (Fuzzy) McMillan of William and Mary.

The game will be reeled off in N. C. State's huge coliseum.

Scott has declined to name his starting lineup because, he says, "they're all good boys, and I expect to play them all. I'll probably use a two-rotation system and it would be an injustice to say who will be the first men on the floor."

Pam-Am Games Certain To Be Regular Event

Buenos Aires, March 10—(AP)—The first Pan American games have gone down as such an outstanding success that their continuance on a regular basis every four years seems assured.

The big hemisphere sports carnival that drew 2,000 athletes from 20 countries and colonies wound up last night in a dazzling flag ceremony, punctuated by fireworks and music by a 500-piece band before 75,000 in the River Plate Stadium.

The games, planned to be sandwiched between the international Olympic competition, are slated to be held again in Mexico City, probably in April 1955.

Big crowds, fair weather and records for scoring in a single game flying out the window. Scotland Neck racked up 101 points and held the inexperienced Grifton team to nine points. Ted Lassiter, hot shot

Coastal Golf Honors Split By Greenville, Smithfield

New Bern, March 10—Greenville and Smithfield golfers tied for top honors of the second pro-amateur match of the season in the Coastal Golf Association.

Both the four-man teams brought home a best ball of 66-four strokes under the par 70 for the New Bern course.

Making up the Greenville team in the match yesterday afternoon, were Pro Harold Thomas and Amateurs Bill Allen, Milton Harrington and Erzell Webb. The Smithfield team was composed of Pro Argie Welsh, and Amateurs Bo Welsh, Ham Ferabee and Bob Pate.

Third place in the match went to the New Bern team, which brought home a two-under-par 68. Kinston placed fourth in the match and Washington fifth.

The next pro-am match of the Coastal circuit is slated for the Smithfield course next Friday afternoon. It will be the last pro-am match before the regular season tournament gets under way in the two divisions of the Coastal Golf Association on Wednesday, March 21. This season the tournament matches will be played on five consecutive Wednesday afternoons, and then the winners of the two divisions tournaments of the association will meet in a championship tournament to determine the CGA champions.

Prominent Elder To Conduct Meet

President Antoine R. Ivins, member of the First Council of the Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will conduct a meeting here Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Rotary building. The First Council of the Seventy is the body which supervises the missionary activities of the church. Ivins will be accompanied by Mrs. Ivins and President and Sister J. R. Price of the Central Atlantic States mission. Elder Ivins, a native of Utah, is a graduate of Juarez Academy of Mexico and also attended the School of Jurisprudence of the City of Mexico. He later studied at the University of Michigan. In 1931 he became a member of the First Council of the Seventy township could figure its own valuation more accurately by employing several residents who know the values in the township rather than hiring outside help. During the allocation of space in the old hospital, the Board met with department heads at Pitt General to discuss how much room is needed for each office. As tentatively allocated the basement will be given to the Negro farm agent. Other space will be used as follows: First floor—Superintendent of city and county schools; Soil Conservation Service, Negro school superintendent, Negro home demonstration agent. Second floor—Production and Marketing Administration, home demonstration agents, farm agents, with space for an auditorium to be used by the home agents. Third floor—Welfare department.

tants, clerks and stenographers of WSB and OPS are all poured in together. The WSB and its fairly small staff—Cyrus Ching is chairman of the wage board—do business on a small part of the second and third floors. The individual offices look like cubicles in a charity hospital. The OPS—Michael V. DiSalle is price boss—and its larger staff—it has 1,149 people here—take up the rest of Tempo E's three floors. It isn't necessary to describe any further the hurly-burly which you can imagine is taking place in Tempo E until WSB and OPS can find larger quarters. Add to all this the fact that all the other defense agencies—including such a big one as the National Production Administration, which is housed in the Commerce Department Building—are scattered in other government buildings and departments all over Washington.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge J.W.H. Roberts found Frank Cobb, colored, guilty of driving while drunk and fined him $100 and costs and ordered him to pay for damage to a car driven by James Bundy. The court also recommended that Cobb's driver's license be revoked for a year.

Dick Baker, colored, paid $15 for assault on a female.

Manda Esau, colored, paid $20 for disorderly conduct and profane language.

Jake Watson, colored, paid $25 for using vulgar and profane language.

Drunk: James D. Keyes, colored, $15; Melvin D. Cutler, 30 days in jail or pay $20.

Connie Alexander Lovett, colored, non-support, appealed to Superior Court under $100 bond. Judge Roberts gave him 10 days in jail for contempt of court. This case went up on appeal to establish whether the lower court had jurisdiction.

Greenville police are investigating a robbery about noon yesterday at the offices of the Pilot Life Insurance Company and the Hospital Savings Association, on the second floor of the building occupied by the Olde Towne Inn.

Mrs. C. W. Warren, a clerk in the insurance office, told police that she locked the office and went to lunch about noon and returned in 25 minutes. A zipper cloth bag such as is used for making bank deposits contained $31, $20 in silver, one $5 bill and six $1 bills, was missing.

When Detective L. M. E. Corbett and Fingerprint Specialist S. Bowen Dorsey arrived they learned that the noontime robber had taken about $3 in small change from the hospital association office.

Some months ago both of these offices were robbed of nominal sums of money. Police here had information from an insurance company official that similar robberies had been committed at the company's offices at Elizabeth City and Washington.

Police said the robber gained entrance to the insurance office by using a flexible strip of metal to pick the night latch lock on the office door.

H. M. Swayne is manager of the local branch of the Pilot Life Insurance Company and G. G. Pittman is manager for the Hospital Savings Association.

Ladies Night Is Held By Jaycees

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and their wives and dates held their annual ladies night banquet Thursday at the Country Club with about 80 persons attending.

Featured speaker for the yearly program was Sam Bundy, principal of the Farmville High School, who admonished the Jaycees to put their roots deep into the ground of the community in which they live and serve. Bundy's talk was spotted with humorous anecdotes concerning members of the club but which served to illustrate points of service with which the club could go forward.

Prior to the talk Bancroft Moseley, Jimmy Warren, Dave Whichard, John Spinks, and Allan Powell participated in two skits designed to publicize the current Red Cross drive and also the Jaycees' dogwood planting program.

President Dan Saleed welcomed the guests and Moseley served as toastmaster.

The Commissioners invited the City of Greenville to cooperate in the program by hiring an appraiser to work with the county appraiser in searching out new properties in the city for taxing purposes.

In connection with the county appraiser, auditor and tax supervisor Powell stated that in the past year Arthur Woolard, county appraiser, has added to the books between one-quarter and one-half million dollars of new property that had not been listed previously.

Commissioner Floyd Hendrix stated the Board thought it unwise to conduct a revaluation now because of what the members considered abnormal prices and values on properties that prevail now. They did not consider any particular time when a revaluation could be conducted. However, it will not be conducted until the nation gets back to normal times, Hendrix said.

Both he and Commissioner Marvin Smith were of the opinion each

Morrison's place as leader of labor in the House of Commons is being taken by James Chuter Ede, who now is Home Secretary—a highly important post. Ede is generally held to be one of labor's best men and well qualified to assume Commons leadership.

So if Bevin's health permits of his acting as minister without portfolio, in an advisory capacity, Prime Minister Attlee would seem to be moving into a rather better position politically. Internationally the picture isn't likely to change.

Ernest Bevin, "Napoleon of the Trades Unions," who started life as a sixpence per week farm hand, celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday. One of his crowning achievements was his mobilization of Britain's manpower as Minister of Labor and National Service in Churchill's wartime coalition government.
