Utilities Put Off Decision On Loan

Commission Defers Vote Until Friday; Last Night's Discussion Indicates Split Decision If Vote Taken Then; Chairman Favors Deal

The utilities commission last night voted to defer action for another week on whether or not to approve the newest amendment to their requested REA loan.

After having the resolution handed to them by the board of aldermen, which had passed it earlier in the week, the five-man commission moved to vote on it next Friday night after last night's discussion indicated a split decision would be obtained if a vote were taken.

Indications from the discussion were that Commissioners John G. Clark and W. H. Woodard would vote against it and Commissioners J. B. Kitzrell and Dr. K. B. Pace would vote for it. Chairman Roy Martin, who would vote in case of a tie, indicated he would vote for it, also.

The commission's indecision was brought about by the stipulation that revenues from the city electric system would have to be pledged in case revenues from the rural lines are not enough to pay off the bonds.

Clark stated before he could vote for approval he would have to have the backing of the citizens of Greenville. Woodard stated he could not vote approval because of the lien on the urban system revenues.

In stating his case, Clark said, "Do we have the right to mortgage our city system in order to give the rural folks light? That's what it boils down to and before I vote for it I want to hear the people of Greenville tell me to—in a loud voice."

He added that somewhere along the line of governmental circles someone has to stop borrowing. "Someone somewhere in the towns, the cities, the counties, or the states has got to stop this borrowing of money. I can't vote for this thing," he said.

On the other hand Kitzrell, who was the last of the commissioners to express an opinion, stated he was willing to gamble on the project. Every one of the commissioners, he said, is a business man and has to gamble at times with his business.

"If we are going to grow, obviously we'll have to borrow money," he stated, and added, "Why should we balk at the privilege of going as far as we choose?"

Alderman J. Ed Waldrop, who is a member of the aldermen's utilities committee and who met with the commission, reminded the members that according to a statement from State REA Administrator Gwyn Price the area to be served under the loan is the largest area in the state not electrified at the present time.

He stated he knew of one farmer in the county who now uses his fourth set of electrical appliances, having bought and sold three in hopes the utilities would get power out to his farm.

Alderman R. E. Rogers, also a committee member, stated if the commission did not approve the loan it would look as though they had no faith in their ability to pay.

"Do you believe in your system or don't you?" he said. "If you don't approve this project it looks as though you don't think your system can pay off the bonds."

Chairman Martin, after getting the deferral of action until next week, warned the members that if Greenville's plant doesn't supply the current to the rural areas, "the federal government or somebody else will have to give it to them."

"We've got the spotlight on us and it looks as though we should go forward and give it to them."

They Aren't Surprised

Foreign People Not Excited Over Crime Inquiry Here; Many Think Gangsters, Indians And Millionaires Predominate In U. S.; We Are Also Misinformed

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

It will strike a lot of folk as more than passing strange that very little interest has been shown abroad in the sensations developed by the U. S. Senate Crimes Investigating committee.

One reason undoubtedly is that the average foreign country, the world over, has so many troubles of its own today that it finds small time for the worries of others.

However, I got another slant when I asked an English woman for an explanation. She turned a saucy eye on me and said:

The chief reason for lack of interest in England probably is that we have been led to believe gangster influence is a part of America's life. It's routine. Motion pictures have helped cultivate this idea.

Well, that undoubtedly is at least a partial explanation not only as regards England but many other countries. Untold millions abroad have come to accept the gagster and the two-gun Western as true.

Their education has been completed by the portrayals of multi-millionaire luxury.

The result is that foreigners as a whole divide Americans up into three classes: millionaires, gangsters and cowboys.

I have spent much time abroad during the past generation and have encountered some amazing notions about America and her people. For instance when I first hit England during World War One there was a widespread belief that wild Indians still roved the plains about Chicago. I mentioned this to an English friend yesterday and asked if any such idea still exists.

Air Search Continues Over Ocean

Life Rafts Said Sighted; Report Of Finding Survivors Denied By London

Shannon, Airport, March 24 (AP)—Forty planes criss-crossed the cold waters of the Atlantic today in a hunt for a giant United States Air Force transport with 53 persons aboard. They were spurred by a report that "quite a few" life rafts had been sighted in the search area.

Five ships were also steaming full speed for the area about 450 miles west of Ireland.

An NBC broadcast from London quoted the British Admiralty as source for information that survivors already were being picked up. The Admiralty denied it had issued such a report. It could not be confirmed by the U.S. Navy in London or the U.S. Air Force mission at Shannon, either.

A B-29 pilot, in two dramatic radio messages, reported sighting flares, wreckage or life rafts in four different locations in the general search area. His plane was not equipped to drop lifeboats or provisions, but several others in the area were.

American, British and Irish airplanes joined the search above the wind-tossed sea off the Irish coast in one of history's great sea hunts.

Aboard the missing plane which disappeared in fog and rain early yesterday was Brig. Gen. Paul T. Cullen, Deputy Commander of the U.S. Second Air Force, and four officers of the Strategic Air Command (SAC) headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

One B-29 pilot returned to rescue headquarters at Shannon saying he had sighted nothing in the area where the wreckage and rafts had been reported. He was Lt. Herschel H. Lamb of Twin Falls, Ida. Air Force officials said drift or navigational errors could account for the discrepancy.

The pilot who had made the first report had not yet returned to Shannon.

Hunters had good visibility today but the sea was rough. Air Force officials feared that survivors might perish of exposure before rescue.

Pitt Principals Talk Exercises

The Pitt County school principals met Thursday night in the county commissioner's room at the courthouse and discussed plans for their commencement exercises.

After a routine business meeting, they discussed plans for their dinner meeting in Farmville.

NEW EXPLANATION Greenville, S. C., March 24 (AP)—Four fire trucks, two cars and 20 firemen responded to a call from the box at the county office building on Main Street yesterday afternoon. It was a false alarm. A man said he had pulled the fire box thinking it was a chewing gum machine.

Reunion In Korea Shows Busy Army 'Has A Heart'

New York, March 24 (AP)—Because the Army "has a heart," a father will have a Far East reunion with his son, a young paratrooper Sergeant in Korea.

The father, 52-year-old Robert Strasser of New York, left by plane last night for Tokyo or Korea where he will see his son, Theodore, 23.

Young Strasser, an only son, was drafted out of high school in 1945. About three years ago he re-enlisted as a paratrooper and never got home on furlough.

Anxious to see his boy, Strasser bombarded Army brass, senators and congressmen with letters and phone calls. He even wrote a letter to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Wanted Costello

New York, March 24 (AP)—Police reported three men, one of them armed, failed to gain entry today to the apartment of gambler Frank Costello, a witness this week at the Senate Crime Committee hearing in New York.

Costello was not at home. He told the committee he ordinarily kept $40,000 to $50,000 in cash in the apartment, located on the 18th floor of a building overlooking Central Park.

Police said the three men forced an elevator operator to take them to the apartment, but did not indicate what they wanted.

After failing to gain entry, the three returned to the first floor, rushed outside, and fled in an automobile driven by a fourth man.

The men apparently lost interest after learning that Costello was not home.

Whether this indicated they intended to do him harm was unclear.

Pitt Has Chance To Clear Docket

Four Weeks Of Criminal Court Set For Coming Month

Beginning Monday Pitt County Superior Court will have the best opportunity of clearing away its mounting criminal docket that it has had in recent years.

With the exception of one week in April there will be continuous criminal court through April 27. A regular term is scheduled next week and also a two week regular term beginning April 16.

The week of April 2 will be a special criminal term requested by Solicitor W. J. Bundy especially for the trial of a kidnapping case. Judge Leo Carr will preside over the regular terms and Judge Henry Grady will hold the special term.

Twelve cases brought against nine men will be presented to the grand jury Monday for action. All indictments were made this year. As for the rest of the cases, which have already had true bills returned by the jury, Monday's court will be used for trial of true bills returned in 1949 and the rest of the week's cases are either holdovers from last year's court or will be tried for the first time.

Those bills which will go to the grand jury are indictments against: Woodrow W. Jones, possession of burglar's tools and receiving stolen property (two indictments); Bruce Jones, breaking and entering and larceny; James Madison, forgery; Benjamin Frank Hopkins, fraud and attempted arson (two indictments); R. Leigh Anderson, forgery (three indictments); Rufus Spain, breaking and entering and larceny; Clarence Fields, carnal knowledge, (to pro. nos.); and Roy Teel, murder.

Collecting Scrap Paper On Sunday

Greenville Jaycees will conduct a scrap paper drive on Sunday April 8 for the collection of old papers and magazines from homes throughout the city.

President Dan Saied of the Junior Chamber of Commerce said the officers of the organization will serve as the steering committee for the drive. Saied urged the citizens of Greenville who have old newspapers and magazines in their homes to get them bundled and ready to put out in front of their houses on April 8.

He added that those people who have large quantities of old paper stored in the basement or attic and are unable to get it out could contact any member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Jaycees would come bundle the scrap paper and haul it away.

The Jaycee president pointed out that the scrap paper market has begun to demand more and more used paper in the face of the national mobilization program.

The Jaycees have staged several scrap paper drives in the past, but discontinued the scrap paper project after the market for the product practically disappeared following World War II.

Lanier Warns Tobacco Can Be Taxed To Death

Raps Proposed Tax Increase On Cigarettes; Grower Already Gets Far Less Income Than Government On Leaf

J. Con Lanier, executive secretary of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, last night told the Greenville Kiwanians if taxes on tobacco ever reach the point where cigarettes will have to sell for 30 cents a pack, there will be a sharp decrease in the consumption of tobacco and the economic position of the tobacco grower will be seriously jeopardized.

Lanier last night lashed out at the proposed tax increase of three cents a pack on cigarettes which is being considered by the House Ways and Means committee. Lanier testified before the House committee in the nation's capital two weeks ago at which time he said he told the committee the tobacco farmer is willing to pay his part of "any scheme or scale of taxation," but that the tobacco farmer is not willing that the federal government "should press down upon the brow of the tobacco grower this inequitable crown of taxation."

The speaker asserted that the annual tax collected on the tobacco produced in Pitt county (considering all the tobacco goes into cigarettes) is "more than the assessed valuation of all the property in Pitt county." He pointed out that the federal government now taxes tobacco two and one-half times its value, and that under the proposed tax increase, the federal tax on the product would be 30 per cent the amount the man who grows the tobacco gets for his product.

The farmer gets three cents for the tobacco that goes into a pack of cigarettes," Lanier stated. The average tenant farmer in the tobacco growing section, he said, raises four acres of tobacco for which he received $1,375, while the federal government receives $5,375 in taxes from the same tobacco and if the proposed increase becomes effective, the government will receive $8,350 in taxes from the same amount of tobacco.

"Tobacco is the only farm commodity which bears a tax except the grain which goes into corn liquor," the speaker declared. "The tax is most inequitable. The tax load will some day become unbearable. Because tobacco is grown in a relatively small area of the United States they (the members of the committee, which write the tax laws) seem to pick on it. Forty-one states in this union have picked out tobacco as a means of revenue, and 60 cities have added their own taxes on tobacco."

Lanier said the fight of the tobacco farmer against the federal taxes on his product "has always been with the Ways and Means committee of the House and with the Finance committee of the Senate." Of the 24 members on the Ways and Means committee, he said:

Easter Story Is Retold In Korea

Brief Moments Of Reverence For Fighting Men Of UN

Central Front, Korea, March 24 (AP)—"He is risen—go tell His disciples that He lies before you."

The story of the resurrection will be retold this Easter Sunday on scores of bleak Korean hillsides. There will be no Easter parade when the last prayer is said.

Marines and soldiers with their roots in a dozen different lands will gather baredheaded for a few brief moments before they return to battle.

The props will be improvised. Crude wooden boxes will serve for altars. Some services will be held in the morning, some in the afternoon. Some units may have to wait until dusk for a Chaplain to travel rugged roads and climb the rocky hills to reach them. Chaplains, both Catholic and Protestant, will try to reach every front line battalion. Some Chaplains will lead as many as three services.

There won't be much difference between the services on Easter and those held every Sunday in the combat zone.

Father Francis W. Kelly, Chief Chaplain of the U. S. First Marine Division, said: "I'm just going to try to tell the boys, as I have before, that this is not a battle for Korea. It's a struggle to determine whether the forces of godliness are to prevail over militant atheism."

Power Blunted

Red China's exaggerated and vaunted military power has been blunted in these ways:

1. Continued air and naval bombardment of Red supply lines has caused grave shortages of military necessities among frontline troops.

2. Communist "human wave" assault tactics have served only to pile up losses, as United Nations troops became accustomed to them. The Reds also have shown less battlefield stamina during the winter.

3. Red China has proved it lacks the industrial capacity and the war materials to supply its troops with the heavy equipment necessary for tant Secretary, with the job of working out a manpower program, she had to start dashing up to the Capitol. She's made 13 trips, plus the six on the communist charge. She was called up for informal discussions with members of Congress.

These other very important people have had to make their visit, too: General Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff of the Army; Admiral Forrest Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations; General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of the Air Force; and Assistant Secretaries in the Department of Defense.

But when any of these people face the lawmakers they're not alone. They have to bring staffs with them to fill them in on some detail or to answer a specific question of a member of Congress. Even before the V. J. P.'s go to the Hill, a lot of time is used in getting them ready for their appearance.

Sees No Great Difficulty In Settling Korean Problems; Offers To Meet Commander; Orders U. N. Troops To Cross Parallel When And If Security Requires It

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, March 24 (AP)—General MacArthur today called upon Peiping to settle the Korean War before it exposes all of Red China to the "risk of imminent military collapse."

"There should be no insuperable difficulty" in settling Korean problems, he said, because the Chinese have lost their chance to conquer the peninsula.

The General made his peace bid in a statement before going to Korea where he ordered his troops to cross the 38th parallel "if and when its security makes it tactically advisable."

MacArthur said superior firepower and control of the air and sea have overwhelmed Chinese manpower.

Offers To Confer The Supreme Commander offered to confer in the field with the Communist Commander-in-Chief, generally believed to be a Chinese, to work out military details of a peace.

But a settlement, he emphasized, would be based on realizing the "political objectives of the United Nations in Korea." These remain unchanged from the original directive of unifying the peninsula.

As an implied alternative, MacArthur said: "...A decision by the United Nations to depart from its tolerant effort to contain the war to the area of Korea, through an expansion of our military operations to its coastal areas and interior bases, would doom Red China to the risk of imminent military collapse."

The General's statement was made as—for the second time—powerful United Nations forces are approaching Parallel 38, the border in 1950, Korea.

"We have now substantially cleared South Korea of organized communist forces," MacArthur said.

Six months ago a demand for unconditional surrender, broadcast to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung, went unanswered.

Since then, Red China entered the war and drove United Nations forces deep into South Korea. Now the U. N. Allies are on the way back.

MacArthur told world diplomats that, in his opinion, no special concessions were necessary to settle the Korean affair.

"...There should be no insuperable difficulty," he said, "in arriving at decisions on the Korean problem if the issues are resolved on their own merits, without being burdened by extraneous matters not directly related to Korea, such as Formosa or China's seat in the United Nations."

Fair blue skies that were lately bleak and gray arch over our heads. Under our feet the new grass is growing. The first flowers of spring are bursting into bloom. Tender green leaves now cover the branches that a month ago were bare. All around us is the balmy air of spring.

In each of us dwells the hope of a life that is everlasting, and the resurrection of nature in the spring serves to strengthen this hope.

But there is yet another greater evidence of life hereafter. This greater hope lies in the story of Easter, when the resurrection of Jesus Christ revealed an empty tomb.

From this miraculous event came forth the Christian religion which has brought joy, hope, and courage to men for generations. Through faithful church attendance, you too can find a more meaningful, happier life on earth, and the hope of a greater life yet to follow.

HOLY BIBLE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Aptitude Testing For Pitt Students

By ROY HARDEE

With the coming of spring each year, the time draws nearer when hundreds of Pitt County High School seniors will pull down the curtain on their High School education and step into the "cold cruel world" and enter one of the many walks of life.

Some of these students have definite plans as to what their life's work is to be, and thus enter college or some other training institution of their choice in preparation for further study in their chosen fields.

But what of the many others who have not yet made up their minds as to what profession or job they will pursue? A good majority of these youngsters are just mixed up; and don't know what to attempt to do; others would like to follow a certain course of work, but cannot do so because of various handicaps.

In past years, the students which fell into the class of not exactly knowing what they were slated to do, were left much to themselves.

For Pitt County graduates, there opened a door admitting a new service in the spring of 1947 which since has aided untold number of boys and girls to reach a decision leading to gainful employment.

The Placement Service

The counseling and placement service instituted by the Employment and Security Commission among the Pitt County schools is being used as a means of gathering and tabulating valuable information for the benefit of the graduates, to be used in job selection.

This program, first started in the spring of 1947, was carried into the individual schools with the help and cooperation of the city and county high school officials.

The local office began a testing, counselling and guidance program by working with the Greenville High School Distributive Education class and the Vocation High School classes working under the G. I. bill for training of veterans.

Contacts were made with eleven county schools, with the hopes of each school being visited and tests given to the seniors in the latter part of 1947 but only seven of the schools were completely tested.

The 1949 program has been described as the best to date. A total of 170 students were tested and counselled in the year, from among 248 seniors registered.

One reason for the success of the program has been attributed to the cooperation received by the Employment workers from the community clubs, vocational agriculture organizations and other rural and city civic clubs in sponsoring the testing programs.

Series of Tests

By means of a series of testing, both mental, physical and counselling by workers with the individual students, the Employment Service is able to get a rough measurement on the type of person the student is and the job which he could best handle, provided he has the natural interest to work with the type of job.

On Monday morning of this week, nearly 130 students from Pitt county were given the employment tests in a body at the Greenville Woman's club. They had not indicated college and would probably be looking for employment upon graduating from high school in the summer.

General Purpose

The main purpose of the General Aptitude Test battery is to measure several aptitudes which have been found important for success in many occupations; but by a process of counselling and other information, the best vocation can be determined from the groups. Employment officials point out that while a person may make a score on a test which would indicate according to a cut-and-dry scale that he could handle any one of, say three jobs, one factor to be taken into consideration would be whether or not the person had an interest in that type of work and would be happy. The answer to these, and many other problems, must be worked out by the employment workers in order to place the student correctly.

The battery is composed of fifteen tests selected because they are good general measures of ten aptitudes that have been found to be important to successful job performance in a large number of occupations.

Of the fifteen tests, eleven are paper and pencil tests and four are apparatus tests. The paper and pencil tests are bound in two booklets while the apparatus tests involve the use of pegboards and finger dexterity equipment.

An average of at least two and one half hours is required for the taking of the combined tests.

The tests given, and the jobs simulated by the results of the tests, are the outgrowth of those which the Dept. of Labor in Washington has worked out with workers now holding down similar jobs and making a "good living."

Types of Tests

Among the written tests are name comparison, computation speed, reason with mathematical problems, vocabulary, mark-making, form matching, assembling and disassembling of items. Sections of both tests or any number of tests are scored in an effort to form one or more aptitudes. Thus the reason for the wide variety of tests.

However the tests are based on the average American working person, who is actually conducting a successful job and do not cover some of the more highly skilled occupations, since they are used on a general plane.

Then for other types of work, special tests dealing with just one job will help in determining the skill which a person should have in that field.

While some of the persons tested may never make use of the knowledge gained through the tests, others will call upon it later, and the reports and results of the tests are on file with the Employment Service, offering the applicant a local, regional, state and national hook-up with placement bureaus over the nation; eliminate the taking of the tests again.

Since the start of the testing program, Greenville, County Schools and East Carolina Teachers College have started programs aimed at helping to place students in the type of jobs for which they are found to be best suited. At the college the program is directed at the number of students who do not plan to enter the teaching field.

One factor taken into consideration, was pointed out by Mrs. Mary McCrary of the Employment Office who first started the program in Pitt county. That is that the "human being can not be measured as a piece of cloth" and thus the personal element must be figured in when the selection of the person's future occupation is being worked out.

1951 Program

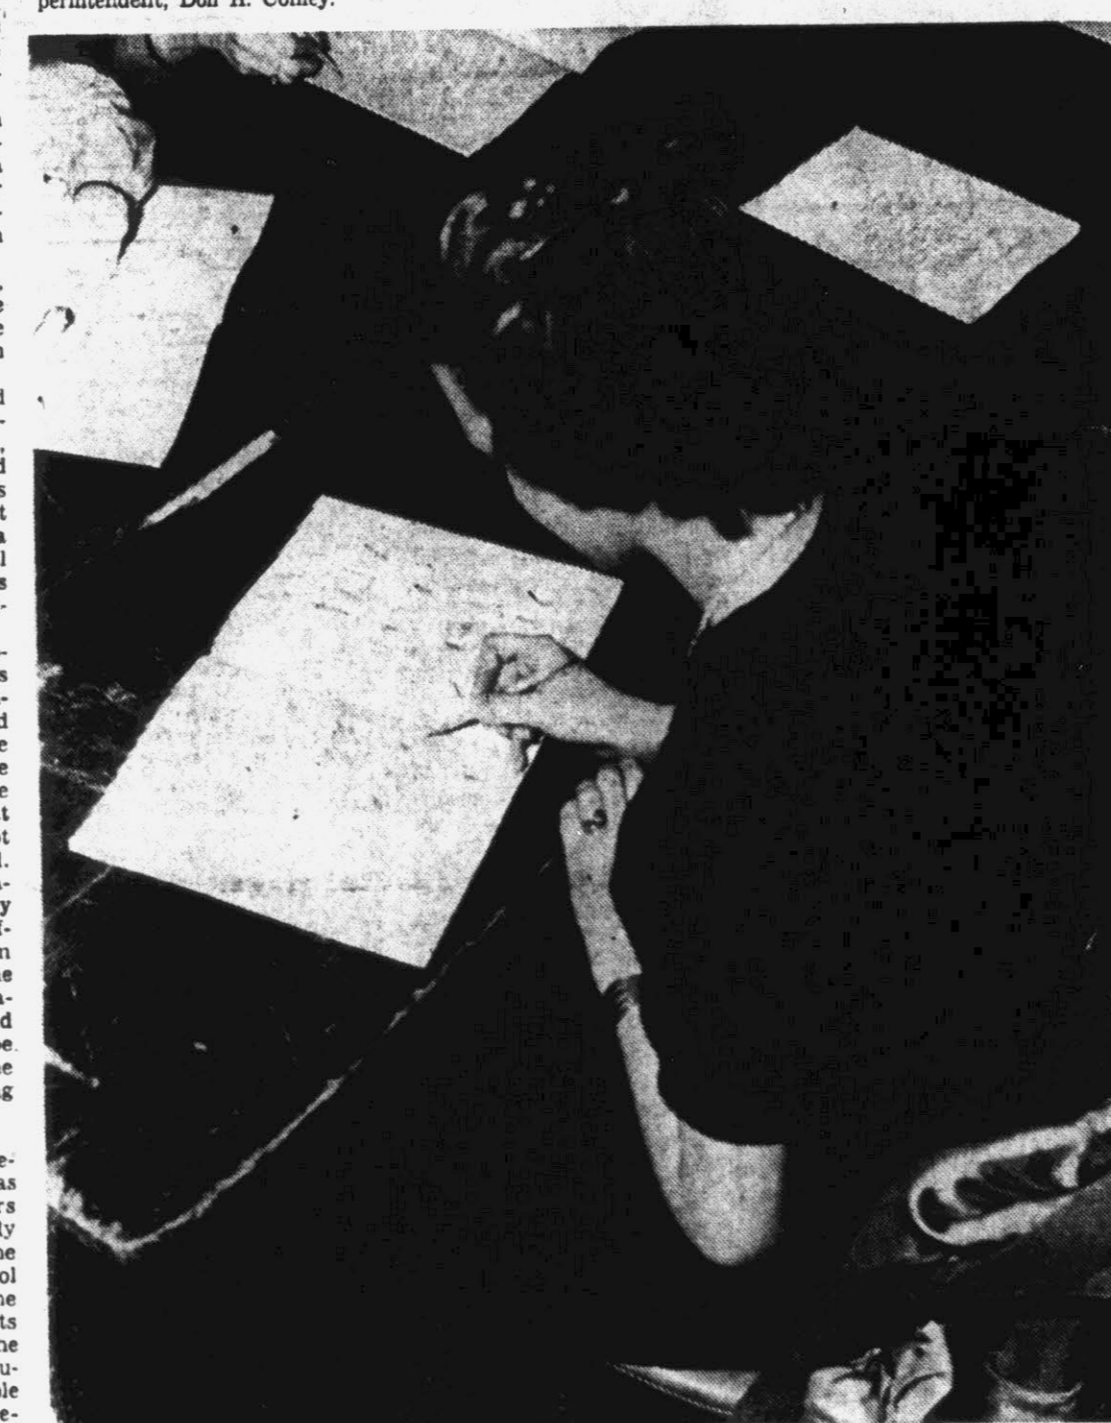

For the first time since the placement and testing program was started, all of the school seniors were brought together in a body for the testing. In prior years the testing had been carried on, school by school, which meant that one school would be tested, then tests graded and interviews held by the employment workers with the students; requiring a considerable amount of time. One day was required for the test this year and two additional days for grading of the tests by high school seniors, directed by the employment office.

Then, in the near future, the employment office workers will visit the schools for personal interviews with the students; thus bringing the results of the test to the student sooner than before.

Schools respresented in the testing this year were Arthur, Ayden, Belvoir, Bethel, Chicod, Farmville, Greenville, Grifton, Grimesland, Pactolus, Stokes and Winterville;

The testing program in the Pitt County Schools first began in the spring of 1947 when the program was introduced to the Pitt School officials by Mrs. Mary McCrary of the local Employment Commission. Here reading left to right, City and County school officials look on as some of the tests are administered: O. E. Dowd, Greenville; Dr. Fuller and Dr. Taylor of East Carolina Teachers College; and County School Superintendent, Don H. Conley.

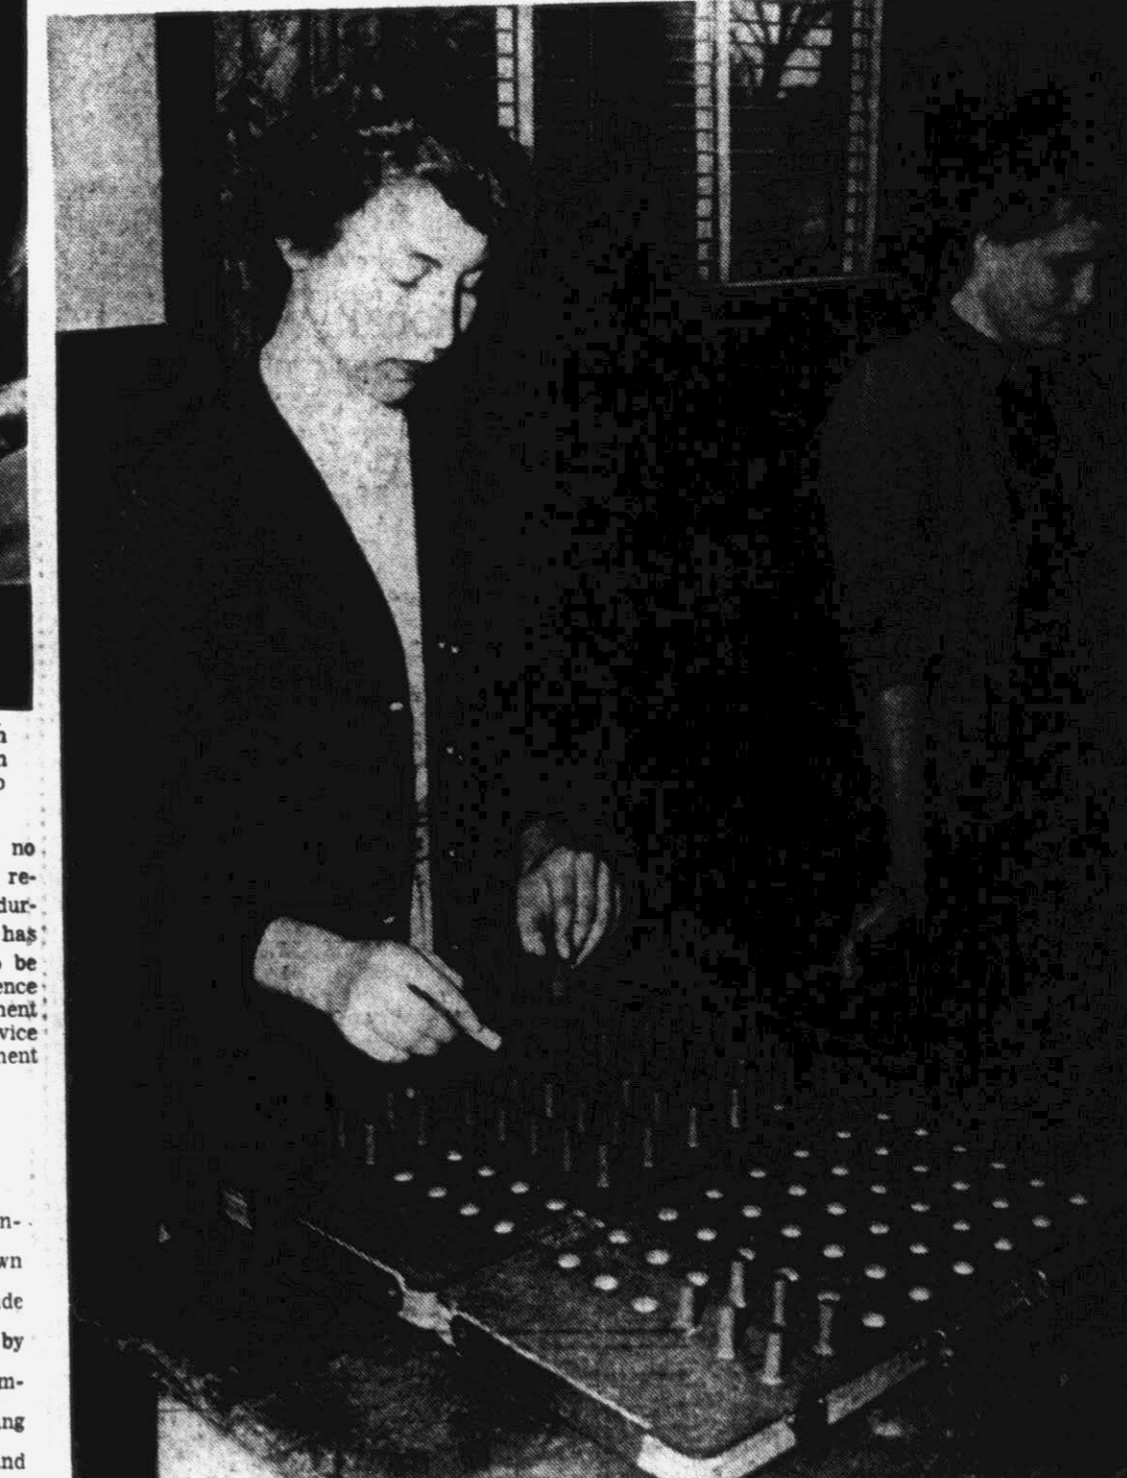

Hard at work on one of the many written tests given to high school seniors of Pitt county this week, in an effort to help them find a job which they are best suited, is Billie Jean Simpson of Greenville High School. The written tests which were graded along with other tests required a period of more than two and one-half hours to finish.

Greenville and Farmville having not plan to, or cannot, go to college now is offered a guidance course which if he follows will help him in obtaining a clue as to the right path which he must take upon leaving school. Of the 140 who signed up to take the test, 135 reported. The high school student who does Nimble fingers are required when using the finger dexterity boards such as the one shown in the above photograph. Here, Jack Cherry, Stokes High School senior goes through the motions of placing a small washer on a rivet. The number of these operations which he is able to perform in a given period of time will determine his classification as to performing jobs which require a lot of movement with the hands for success. (Reflector Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

Still another means of arriving at one of the ten aptitudes for any person is the use of the peg boards shown in operation by Jean Johnston, senior from the Pactolus High School. The object of the testing is to move as many pegs as possible from the bottom of the board to the top in a certain length of time. While the operation is quite simple, one person may be able to perform the operation faster than another, which would make that person better suited for a certain type of job, as graded by the results of the tests.

Just as important as the results obtained on the testing papers is the final step in helping to place a student on the right path to a successful job after completion of his or her high school education. In the above picture, Mrs. McCrary, of the Greenville Office of the Employment and Placement Commission is shown conferring with Doris Ann Whichard, Bethel Senior in regards to her test grades. Counselling, which may require considerable time, uncovers small details about the student's reaction to various types of jobs which the tests fail to find and helps in the final placement of the applicant.

Here some of the 150 Pitt county high school seniors are shown taking placement and aptitude tests given them this week by the Greenville unit of the Employment Service. The testing which required both written and other tests such as use of peg boards, took about two and one half hours. The program has been in operation for Pitt schools since 1947.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
ETERNAL LIFE
THE LAST ENEMY

"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." Fear is a scourge in every age, yet with all our scientific advancement, fear and insecurity seem to characterize this age as they have characterized few other ages.

Examine the fear in your own heart. What is that fear? It may be fear of disease, of trouble, of financial loss, of inadequacy. But look deeper. What is that dark dark fear below all other fears? Is it not the fear of death? You may lose your head and say you have no fear of death. That is because you have accustomed yourself to thinking that there is nothing after death to be feared. But all the same, the uncertainty of what is to come, the realization that in some manner we all contribute to our own deaths through wrong living, is disquieting.

Christ overcame the fear of death: that is the message of Easter. The power of death over men's hearts was that it could fill them through a lifetime with a haunting sense of anxiety.

But the enemy has been overcome. Now in truth you can say, "I have no fear of death." The last enemy to be destroyed was death. Christ won the triumph. That's what the ringing bells, the singing choirs, the crowded churches will mean tomorrow.

For North Carolina's Continued Advancement

The resolution of the executive committee of the Greater University of North Carolina regarding the entrance of Negroes to the graduate school of the University will be criticized severely by individuals throughout the state.

That is to be expected. When a group acting on a racial question elects to take the course it feels is right, rather than follow the line of least resistance, there is likely to be criticism from those who allow racial prejudices to overshadow all other values.

The resolution of the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees says applications of Negroes are to be processed by the University officials "without regard to color or race" if the courses they seek to study are not offered by state-supported Negro colleges, and if the individual students meet the "approved rules and standards for admission for the particular school" to which they apply for admittance.

Why, for example, should not the University give unbiased consideration to applications for medical school from capable young Negroes who have the qualifications to become good physicians? Surely North Carolina needs more physicians to work among the Negroes of the state; and more physicians to work among the Negroes would be a long step toward raising the general health standards of the state.

The people of North Carolina have fully recognized the fact that progress and development among all groups and in all fields in this day and time takes the guidance of individuals who are highly trained and highly skilled. No state or section can grow and progress to its potential if it is retarded by a sizeable group, plagued with low income, poor health conditions, limited guidance, inadequate education and limited skills.

North Carolina spends millions upon millions of dollars through its school systems preparing Negro children to the point where they are capable of going into higher education. Only the most capable few ever advance to the stage where the training they desire is not available in the state colleges for Negroes.

With the tremendous investment the state puts into its public school programs for Negroes, it seems incongruous that the state should deliberately deny itself the future services of the most capable of the young Negroes because of the lack of availability of facilities for further training.

The purpose of the state's spending for Negro education is to insure the advancement of the state in all fields. The purpose is not to give a few a good education for future training, and then lose them to other localities because the facilities for further training can not be had here in North Carolina.

The recommendation of the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees doesn't throw open the gates of the Greater University to every person who wishes to enter. It does, however, provide a means through which the state no longer need deprive itself of much-needed well-trained citizens devoted to bettering the conditions of the whole state, because particular facilities are not available in the state colleges for both the white and for the Negro races.

A New Wrapping Will Not Clean The RFC

The fate of the RFC still hangs in the balance where it may remain for many weeks and months to come. There are a few government officials and many individual citizens who believe the nation would be better off without the government's big-time loan agency dangling financial tidbits in the face of men who yield to temptation.

But the proposals of most of the government officials—the President included—for "restoring public confidence" in the manipulations of the RFC indeed should be an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

There has been talk from some sources of killing completely the RFC to eliminate the discrepancies which have surrounded the handling of government funds. But for the most part, the planning of the government leaders has centered around a scheme to restore the people's faith in the agency by giving it a new name and perhaps dressing it up with a few new officials. Under this new outer layer of skin they would keep the same parasite-ridden vital organs on which the RFC is now based.

The government officials are willing to do away with the RFC as such, but they are not willing to do away with a powerful government lending agency with millions of dollars to pass out through the hands of a favored group.

The conditions will not be eliminated by reclothing the underlying mire with a pretty new outer wrapping.

The President's reorganization plan would merely whitewash the RFC and present to the people a pretty new playhouse, which from the outside may look spanking clean and new. But once the door were opened again, or a person chanced to peek through a window, we would see the same filthy mess we now have glimpsed.

Some houses, when they become infested with termites, can be renovated and saved from the pests. But a house which has become too infested with the parasites must be torn down completely to protect other houses in the neighborhood.

News Behind The News

Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 8308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24—"If General MacArthur is supreme commander of the United Nations forces in Korea," asks J.B.F. of Kimberley, Ida., "why does he have to take orders from President Truman and the Pentagon?"

POLITICAL ANSWER—The principal reason is that the Korean conflict is a political war in the broadest sense. When Mr. Truman ordered MacArthur to oppose the North Korean invaders last June, the White House expected it to be a minor mopping-up action or, to use the Truman description, a "police action."

Both he and Secretary Acheson disregarded Chinese threats that any push into Northern Korea by our troops would bring China into the fight on a large scale, with Russia backing up Mao Tse-tung.

TOKEN—Now, there is still a prospect of all-out war with the two Red allies, for which we are entirely unprepared. Britain and France, as well as India and other U.N. members, have notified Washington that they might not support us in such a possible prelude to World War III. They are giving us only token aid.

While General MacArthur is expected to win victories or at least create a stalemate, domestic and world political factors tie his hands. He cannot bomb enemy bases north of the Yalu River. He cannot chase attacking Russian planes across that stream.

Right now, as he approaches the 38th parallel, he does not know whether he should proceed beyond that boundary, organize what he calls an "undefensible military position," or retreat.

PRONOUNCEMENTS—President Truman's latest of many off-the-cuff military pronouncements, which is a poor way to run a war, shocked both pro-MacArthur and anti-MacArthur factions at the Pentagon, in Korea and in Europe. Like his careless remark about possible use of the A-bomb, it has brought protests from London and Paris.

When asked whether U.N. forces would cross the 38th parallel, the President said that was "merely a tactical question for decision by the commander in the field." General MacArthur replied that, in reality, it was a problem that far transcended his authority and responsibility.

PROBLEM—In other words, invading North Korea might again bring reinforced and re-equipped Chinese into the battle at a point where our troops would be especially vulnerable to heavy losses from geographic factors.

The Truman-MacArthur relationship is not unique. General Eisenhower says that, whenever military operations threatened to impinge on world politics, he had to pass the problem to Roosevelt and Churchill.

Had he dared to act on his own initiative toward the end of the war, throwing his conquering army deep into the Balkans and Eastern Germany, Moscow might not be in a position to precipitate World War III.

ALLOTMENT—Although there are two sides to the labor-management dispute and walkout, I have received so many critical letters from servicemen's wives and mothers that the following communication deserves publication. It comes from a woman living near Glens Falls, N.Y., who does not want her name or initials used:

"I don't believe I can state the question that is on my mind without writing a book, but I'll try. Is the serviceman's family supposed to be different from a defense man's family? Defense work, I know, is necessary, but the country has to have combat men, too."

"My husband reenlisted in this Korean situation. It was December before I received an allotment. I had to borrow from our local bank in November to feed my three children and myself and to pay some bills.

I'll Do All I Can, Kids

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday one of my favorite teachers, Miss Eunice McGee of the Training School, was in the store. In the process of introducing her to one of our ace countermen, Raymond Brock of Winterville, I commented, "Miss McGee taught me in the third grade. That was in 1933. Let's see, at that time, eighteen years ago, I was eight years old."

Miss McGee perked up. "In case you're hinting for me to tell you how old I was 18 years ago you can stop, because I'm not going to tell." To me, Miss McGee doesn't seem a day older. It's always the student who ages, while the teachers appear to stay the same.

Never will I forget the approach Miss McGee used on me to encourage me to snap out of a spell of mischief. "At the beginning of this year," she said, "there was a good student in this room by the name of Jack Edwards. But that student has left us, and now there's one in his place that doesn't even seem to be the same person. Let's run this new student away, and get the old one back." Her clever manner of expressing herself has stuck with me for 18 years, so evidently it was impressive then. And I did get promoted.

With civilization progressing at such a fast rate, I wondered how it is affecting the performance of third-graders, so I asked Miss McGee for a comparison between her students in 1933 and in 1951. "Are they brighter?"

"No, I wouldn't say that," she said, "but they know about more things. The increase in radios in the homes, and the introduction of television has naturally taught them about more things. And of course they travel more than the eight-year-old did in your day and see more movies. That helps, too. But as far as having more inherent intelligence, I wouldn't say that."

The third grade of 1933 seemed a thing of the distant past when I told Miss McGee, "In seven and a half years my daughter, Nancy, will be entering the third grade; that is, if she doesn't skip the first three because of the intelligence she inherited from her mother. Do you have any particular advice for a parent with a prospective third grader?"

"Yes," she said, "Simply be consistent. Don't say yes one day and no the next. And don't say yes when Rachel has said no. Children with parents who are consistent are well trained by the time they get to the third grade."

After 10 years with her 1940 model, Miss McGee recently bought a new car. She says, "My 1940 model was a good car, and I hated to trade it in. But I went to Georgia with Mrs. Luther Herring recently and helped her drive. She has one of the new models and all you have to do is steer and pat your foot." Of course Miss McGee was referring to the automatic transmission. After the trip, she couldn't wait to get a 1951 model, so she could just "steer and pat her foot."

And I thank you.

Daily Reflector Bureau

INSPECTION—The story of automobile inspection bills in the 1951 general assembly will, when it can be finally written, read like the story of St. George and the Dragon—or whoever it was that found everytime he chopped off one head several others appeared on the beast he was attempting to slay. With monotonous regularity bills seeking to reinstate some type of automobile inspection are mowed down by legislative committees, and immediately one or two new proposals hit the hopper. The anti-inspection folks gained a point Friday. The senate roads committee voted down two bills, and only one new bill was offered to take their place. Rep. Joe King of Forsyth sent in a measure which would require annual inspection of all privately owned motor vehicles by authorized garages, which would charge a dollar for the job and remit 25c to the state to pay cost of administering the act. A half hour earlier the senate roads committee had turned thumbs down on two bills, one by Senator Hawley Peole of Moore and another by Senator Carl Hicks of Greene, requiring certificate of inspection from some law enforcement officer as pre-requisite to obtaining a license plate.

POLICY—The new King bill isn't expected to get very far. This general assembly is as much opposed to any type of mechanical inspection of motor vehicles as it is opposed to any change in the tax laws. One senator who has consistently favored some type of inspection facetiously observed that "it looks like a bill to abolish physical examination of draftees for the army would pass this legislature."

STATIC—Another point on which this general assembly seems to be static, is has many of its predecessors, is with respect to appointment of special superior court judges. Reps. William Rodman of Beaufort and Joe Branch of Halifax co-sponsored a bill Friday continuing provisions for the governor to appoint special judges in exact language, except for change of dates, of biennial acts for many years past. The bill is expected to pass with only token discussion. And therein is a story.

JUDGES—For more than twenty-five years there has been recognition of the fact that there were not a sufficient number of regular superior court judges to man the courts. The people of the state have ratified two constitutional amendments designed to afford permanent relief, but they have not been effectuated by legislative act. In the middle twenties a temporary expediency occasioned designation by the governor of attorneys to hold specified terms of court. Appointees functioning under these temporary commissions came to be known as "Bevo judges." (It will be remembered that was the period when alcoholic beverages were outlawed under the 18th amendment to the federal constitution and bootleggers put out non-alcoholic substitutes for beer, one of the most popular being "Bevo.")

SPECIAL—The 1927 general assembly enacted a law providing for two-year commissions to special judges, instead of temporary Bevo commissions. That policy has maintained until now. While much better than the former system, it still did not meet the needs. After much study and several attempts, the people in 1942 ratified a constitutional amendment providing for separation of judicial and solicitor districts.

Arguments used in behalf of the amendment was that since more judges than solicitors were needed, effectuation of the plan would eliminate necessity for appointment of special judges by permitting election of a sufficient number of superior court judges. Four sessions of the general assembly have convened and adjourned since ratification of that amendment without any steps taken to put it into effect. Each assembly has nonchalantly passed a new act authorizing continued appointment of special judges by the governor.

SECOND TRY—The 1949 legislature made another attempt to solve the problem and submitted an amendment, which was ratified last year by the people, providing for the election of more than one judge in a district. Instead of making any attempt to effectuate that constitutional provision, the present assembly seeks to perpetuate the special judge appointment system, which the people have twice said by majority vote in general election they do not like.

SERVICE—The house of representatives suspended regular activities for a few minutes at noon Friday to hold a brief religious program appropriate to the Good Friday date. A prayer and scripture reading by the chaplain, Rev. Alonzo Jordan, and fitting comments by Rep. Roy Leibach, Jr., of Catawba—who besides being one of the most popular members of the house doubles back home as a minister. Oldtimers could not recall another instance in which similar recognition had been given to the Good Friday season by a general assembly—but not a single adverse comment was heard.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LABOR'S BUYING POWER
(New Bern Sun-Journal)

The Bureau of Labor Statistics recently issued a new study comparing United States workers' food purchasing power with that of workers in other countries. In only one country, Australia, is less working time required than in the United States to buy a given amount of food. In most cases the advantage in favor of the American worker is tremendous. To take the most extreme example, an hour's work by an American will buy about seven times as much food as an hour's work by his Russian equivalent.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also pointed out that between 1937-38 and the spring of 1950, United States food prices less than doubled and hourly earnings more than doubled—increasing the power of American workers' earnings in terms of food at the market by 17 per cent.

Facts such as these may not take the sting out of high prices, but they do show how far superior the American standard of living and the American earning power is to the rest of the world. That is not true of food alone—other surveys and analyses, dealing with clothing, home appliances and all manner of consumer goods, have reached similar conclusions. The average American, by comparison, is the most favored of human beings.

This is one of the fruits of our magnificent productive enterprise, in agriculture and manufacturing industry. It is also the result of our magnificent system of retail distribution—a fact which should be remembered now that the storekeeper is so often blamed for price increases which are totally beyond his control. Mass production gives us more and better goods of all kinds. Mass distribution, which both chain systems and independents have adapted to their own use so effectively, brings us those goods at the lowest possible cost.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

It looks as if the fight for controls may start again at the beginning.

Price and wage controls exist by reason of the Defense Production Act of 1950. All regulations stem from that law; in fact, each regulation so states.

But the law, by its own terms, expires on June 30. In a short time, President Truman will ask Congress to extend the law. But in extending it, Congress can take full opportunity to amend it. And this will reopen the entire question of controls. It is entirely possible that an entirely different pattern will emerge.

Congressmen are under tremendous pressures to change basic concepts of controls. From one side, there will be insistent requests by Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson and Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston for more power to deal with inflation. From the other side, there will be bids for special consideration from affected groups.

Labor, which has termed this a "big business mobilization" will undoubtedly seek amendments granting more leeway to pay rises. Farm interests will demand further escapement from price ceilings. Strongest demands will come from cotton interests. The cotton lobby is generally regarded as the most powerful in Washington, since it represents thousands of cotton growers and dealers and many Congressmen grow or deal in cotton themselves.

Also strong are the meat raising and processing interests. These extend widely through the western and southern states and count many Congressmen as their boys. The various retailing groups will protest that present controls tend to impair their margins—as indeed they do—and they will want that fixed.

Mining interests will also ask special consideration; so will industrialists.

There is scarcely a Congressman who is not dependent on one or more of these groups for support. And each group will clothe its request for special consideration with the statement that such requests are essential to rearming.

As was true last year, everybody will be in favor of controls on the other fellow.

There is a wide range of possibilities. The issue could end with no controls; fewer controls than we have now; about the same regiment or with even tighter controls. The way things are going in Korea will probably have a definite effect on the outcome. If we're momentarily winning, control powers will be reduced and vice versa.

If the law ends up with a seeming show of favoritism to any special group or groups, it may generate public reaction against all controls and the entire control program may be engulfed in black markets, just as prohibition was lost in a sea of home-made gin.

FUR LABELING BILL STOPPED, NOT KILLED

An effort to bring the Fur Labeling Bill to the floor of the Senate failed to get unanimous consent when Senator Robert Hendrickson R-NJ objected. However, the bill is not dead and future efforts may be made to bring it to a vote.

The bill would require descriptive labeling of all furs and fur garments. It is widely opposed by both manufacturing and retail groups who, while professing no opposition to honesty in selling furs, object to penalties they say could incur through no fault of their own.

FINDS A SUPERMARKET WITHOUT SIDELINES

"I've just discovered a most unusual supermarket," the Old Promoter reported. "It just sells groceries and meats."

"What's unusual about that?" he asked. "That's all it sells!" he explained. "No drugs, no lingerie, no toys, no furniture, no magazines, no dinnerware, no hardware, no autos."

"No lunch counter?" he asked. "After all, that could be groceries," the O.P. replied. "It's surprising how far a market will go these days to be different, just to attract attention."

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

New York. —(AP)— Somewhere in Korea weeks ago an American soldier picked up an enemy propaganda leaflet.

Ever since then the questions it raised have haunted him and members of his infantry squad.

The faded leaflet—it is on my desk now—is a greeting from "The Chinese People's Army Volunteer Forces" to the American troops. It wished them a Merry Christmas and a Peaceful New Year and asked:

"Why are you here slaughtering the Korean people and burning their homes down—freezing and dying 5,000 miles from home where you belong with your families? Why aren't you enjoying a turkey dinner like the Wall Street financiers who sent you here to fight for their profits?"

"We do not want to fight you, and we bear you no ill-will, knowing that you, like us, are ordinary laboring people and that you have been duped by American warmongers and their Wall Street bosses."

"We only want you to go home, so that we Korean and Chinese people can build the lives we want and live in peace."

Somewhere in Korea Sgt. Donald Caine of the Eighth Cavalry Regiment sat down and wrote a letter in pencil. He put the leaflet in the envelope and mailed it to me.

"We realize that enemy propaganda is one of their greatest weapons," he wrote. "But in our position how can we help but believe parts of this? So we'd like for you to help us get an answer to some of these questions."

I don't feel I'm the one to give the answers. But here in my reply to Sergeant Caine and the boys in the fourth squad of the First platoon of the First Battalion of the Eighth Regiment the First U. S. Cavalry Division, fighting somewhere in Korea since last July: "That leaflet would trouble any honest man if it were true. But it isn't true. And it isn't simply an earnest plea for peace, written by one soldier to a soldier on the other side."

"It is the effort of a skilled propagandist. He wants to confuse you, to make you homesick, to make you doubt your cause and feel your sacrifices are useless and unnecessary."

"If he should succeed in making a majority of American soldiers feel this way, we will have to pull out of Korea entirely. And, in time, I think that means we will have to fight a third world war in our own homeland—and our own families will become the refugees."

"You aren't fighting for the profits of Wall Street financiers—or just to save Seoul or Taegu. You're fighting for a chance to keep your forever away from your own town—Main Street, U. S. A."

"Of course, it is true the average Chinese soldier doesn't in his heart beat you any real ill-will. You probably don't bear him individually any ill-will either. Soldiers in any war rarely hate each other on a personal basis."

"I know the word Freedom may sound ponderous and hollow in ears filled with the noise of crumpling mortars. But it is a basic word—basic as hunger and fear. And freedom is your goal. Eventual freedom in the world from war and fear and hunger."

"You came into Korea under a blue and white flag of the United Nations, pledged to bring unity and freedom to that country. Why is the Chinese so-called 'volunteer' there? He came for the Red slaughter—the slaughter of the long dream of Korean independence.

"And if he wins there it won't be just Korean independence that will disappear. Step by step the Red armies of China and Russia will march across other countries unable to defend themselves alone—and gradually swallow the world piecemeal."

"That would be quite all right, too, if it meant a better life finally for us all. But communism hasn't been able to do that anywhere. Freedom has always brought more happiness than has slavery. And it is better to fight for a free world than a slave one."

"It is a lie that the Korean people want you to go home. They want you to stay and help them win a real peace. They dread the Chinese, and you know it."

"The truth is you are a military pioneer, fighting for the first time on a barricade defending all mankind's yearning for a final world peace. It's always lonely on a barricade, but no soldiers ever fought to hold a higher wall of hope."

"And if you hold it, the race of man will honor you forever."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—U. S. Agriculture Department economists say supplies of many foods will be larger in 1951 than in the past few years and that the average person in the U. S. probably will spend more for food and eat more heartily. Though more food will be going to the armed forces, larger production and smaller exports of food will tend to offset military takings of most foods.

Meanwhile, rationing of food abroad, which never stopped in some countries, especially in England, is tightening. While the rest of the world knows hunger, we not only have enough to eat, but we waste a vast amount.

A survey made in 1946 by Stanford University's Food Research Institute indicated Americans were wasting enough food to add 300 calories a day to the diet of each of the earth's 600,000,000 or more hungry persons.

At the same time the Department of Agriculture estimated Americans were wasting 125,000,000 pounds of food every day. In 1946 this was about 25 per cent of the nation's total food supply. Of this, 100 pounds of edible food per person was wasted right in the home.

No comprehensive survey has been made since but Agriculture Department economists agree that the same percentages of waste probably hold true today. Agricultural economists and garbage analysts say we waste from 20 to 30 per cent of all the food we produce. The losses, they say, occur in harvesting, storing, shipping and processing, in selling and at the table. They figure that the amount wasted is enough to feed 125,000,000 soldiers the year round and meet our foreign commitments.

Rats on farms destroy each year as much food as 240,000 farmers can produce. There's waste in warehouses and in stores because perishable food does not find a market soon enough. Even now, the supply and demand for food are not ever exactly balanced. There are always seasonal and local abundances which must be used up before they spoil. We are urged to use the more plentiful foods to prevent waste.

Timberlake - Wheeler Vows Spoken In Formal Ceremony

MRS. JULIAN B. TIMBERLAKE III

The First Baptist Church, Gainesville, Ga., was the setting Saturday night, March 17, for the marriage of Miss Ann Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Clifford Wheeler, to Julian Burton Timberlake III, son of Comdr. Julian B. Burton Timberlake Jr., USN (Ret.), and Mrs. Timberlake of Virginia and Mrs. and Greenville, N. C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Franklin Owen, and the church was arranged with southern amilax, lighted candles and Easter lilies. Mrs. F. P. Brown, church organist, played the wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a wedding gown of white bridal satin, fashioned with tiny round collar, long pointed sleeves, and self covered buttons down the front of the long line bodice. The full gathered skirt ended in a train. Her veil of silk flouze was caught with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

The bride had as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. F. C. Strother. Bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Alexander, of Forsythe, Ga., niece of the bride; Miss Anne Rogers, of Chapel Hill; Miss Ann Martin, of Easley, S. C.; and Miss Lucille Beaver and Mrs. Philip Newton, of Gainesville. All of the attendants wore gowns of turquoise taffeta, made with stole effect at the off shoulder neckline, and their flowers were crescent bouquets of red tulips.

William Gwaltney, of Baltimore, was best man. Groomsman were Thomas Battle, of Rocky Mount, N. C., brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Eli Perry of Chapel Hill; Philip Newton and F. C. Strother, of Gainesville, and Larry Widman, of Asheville, N. C.

The bride's mother wore a dress of dusty rose chiffon and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Timberlake, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of powder blue and a corsage of pink callias.

After the ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents on North Green Street.

Later, the couple left for a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga. Upon their return they will reside at 133 East 35th Street, New York.

For traveling, the bride wore a suit of navy blue cashmere, navy and white accessories, and a corsage of red callias.

The bridegroom is the great-grandson of the late Col. and Mrs. R. R. Cotten, of Cottondale, N. C. Out-of-town guests were Comdr. and Mrs. Julian B. Timberlake Jr. and Mrs. James Jordan Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Easter Is Milepost For Inmate Of County Home

There is a little old lady at Pitt County's Home for the homeless, located on Greenville, S. F. D. 2, whose 92nd milepost will be reached on Easter Sunday.

As delicate and as fragile as a Dresden doll, she went "over the hill..." in January and through the portals of this institution with tears in her dim old eyes but with resignation to her fate and determination to make adjustment as quickly as possible. To her surprise she was received with cordiality and consideration beyond her dreams and her own inmate sweetness and gentle manner have won the heart of every person on the place... the inmates white and black, and those in charge of affairs who are warmhearted, sympathetic folks constantly demonstrating a genuine interest in their charges far beyond the call of duty. This little old lady knows each and everyone and takes a heartfelt interest in their welfare and laughing with those who are sad and laughing with those who have kept their sense of humor despite their circumstances.

She suffers constantly from the cruel and merciless jabs of arthritis or rheumatic pain, but her Christian fortitude cheers those who would offer her comfort. Though the daily trips to the dining room and down the porches seem like endless journeys, accompanied as they are by pain with every step, she manages to walk around some each day, visit and console those unable to leave their rooms. She is most appreciative of every mite of consideration and thoughtfulness extended her... a friendly handshake, a lovely flower, a kindly smile, a helping hand over the door sill, all are compensated for a hundredfold by her own fleeting smiles and tender glance.

She can tell you of bygone days when she labored on the farm, of her happy home, of loved ones, friends and neighbors and can remember vividly happenings of more than three-quarters of a century ago. One is reminded of Shakespeare's "Tis the mind that makes the body rich" and so knows she is blessed indeed. She doesn't recount her misfortunes or dwell on her privations, but accepts her fate with a grateful heart, which often finds expression in praise of the people of Pitt County who provide such a haven and extend sheltering arms for their aged and infirm.

This little old lady is sought out by visitors who stop by, and she looks forward with all eagerness to Sundays when certain Christian groups carry the message of God's love and care in sermon and song to these people. One writer has said, "I think if I had the power to do what I wish to do for humanity, I would give to every person the ability to put himself into the place of every other person in the world." These Christian folk evidently have this ability for they gladly give of their time and talents in this special service.

Her gentle grace and humility of spirit make her a benediction to the Home, and Ehrmann could have had such a person in mind when he wrote, "And though age and infirmity overtake me, and I come not within sight of the castle of my dreams, teach me still to be thankful for life, and for time's olden memories that are good and sweet; and may the evening's twilight find me gently still."

Could you find some way to share some of your Easter joy and gladness with this little old lady who will be 92 years old on this Easter Day... the Day of Resurrection when despair and desolation die with its dawning and the hope of eternal life springs anew in every heart?

A Tribute-- To Our School Teachers!

Today, as no time before in history, the school teacher is recognized as the builder of tomorrow's America! With juvenile delinquency increasing apace, and foreign ideologies creeping into our school books, it is high time that glowing tribute was paid to these patient men and women who instruct our young. Let's remember that teachers are human beings, not machines. Let's give them the support and confidence they so richly deserve. Let's attend P. T. A. meetings and contribute something more than children. This community is fortunate in having such fine schools and outstanding educators. We applaud their work and their good American achievements!

Lejeune	000 011 001-3
E.C.T.C.	000 320 02x-7

East Carolina's baseball squad in their first outing of the season beat Camp Lejeune yesterday 7-3 on the college diamond.

The Marine team was a surprise starter since Wilson Teachers College of Washington, D.C., was scheduled to meet the Pirates. However, a cancellation was effected when Wilson couldn't meet their schedule and the Lejeune team was booked only four hours before the game.

Nineteen year old Jimmy Byrd, last year's all-state pitching artist from Grainger High School in Kingston, started on the mound for Coach Jack Boone's nine and pitched one-hit ball at the Marines before he was relieved at the sixth by Jim Piner.

Byrd pitched near-flawless ball in his first college assignment and was not for a single by Basal in the fourth would have had a shut-out in his gift. However, Basal was picked off first and what might have been the Marines' first rally was squelched after one run had scored.

Piner's two and a half innings provided the Marines with two more runs, but he kept his five hits scattered so that only two runs scored.

Meanwhile, the Pirates, led by Fred Soles and George McSwain, were getting to Lejeune starter Wall for five hits and five runs before he was lifted in the eighth. However, the Lejeune defense allowed three of those runs in the fourth when a series of errors, a walk, a hit batsman and a passed ball enabled the Pirates to score for the first time.

Both Soles and McSwain collected two hits in four trips to lead their mates at the plate. However, shortstop Basal for the Marines found the Pirate pitching to his liking and collected three for four. He was the only one to get a hit off Byrd.

Today, the Pirate nine journeys to Norfolk for a series of three games with Navy teams in the area. This afternoon they are scheduled to play

Impressive Bid To Hold Position

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Stewart, journeyman outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, is making a terrific bid to land a regular berth with the Pale Hoos.

The 34-year-old Stewart, who has seen service with Pittsburgh, the New York Yankees and Washington, is whacking Grapefruit League pitching at a torrid 667 clip.

Stewart, who came to the White Sox in a deal that sent Mike McCormick to Washington, has pounded out 10 hits in 15 trips to the plate.

The speedy flycatcher reached the high-water mark of his drive yesterday as the White Sox slaughtered the St. Louis Browns, 15-9, at Pasadena, Calif.

Stewart turned in one of the rarest feats in baseball as he drove in six runs in the first inning—a nine-run uprising. Stewart connected for two home runs during the bombardment, the first one came with one on and the second with the bases loaded. He later added a single to Six's 12-hit attack against four St. Louis pitchers.

Stewart's performance is a testament to his ability to deliver the message.

Mr. Henry Freeman has returned to his home, 1501 W. Fourth Street, from Lincoln Hospital where he underwent an operation.

Mrs. Laura Wilson was hostess to the Socialistic Club Tuesday night. Spring flowers were used throughout the living room. Mrs. Mary R. Vines presided over a short business session.

As chairman of the program for the evening, Mrs. Arvis Barnes introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. M. B. Allen, art instructor at Epps High School. She reviewed Christ: Crucifixion. She also told us about art festival to be held in April and urged that the club cooperate in making it a success.

Mrs. Wilson, assisted by her daughter Cheryl, served a salad course. Each plate was decorated with a miniature nest with jelly eggs topped by a yellow chick.

Friends, you are cordially invited to attend an Easter program, given at the Zion Hill Free Will Baptist Church, located between the Renston and Rountree section, off the Greenville-Winterville highway. The program will begin on Sunday night, March 25, at 8 p.m. Special prayers and supplications will be made to God, asking Him for an immediate, victorious end of hostilities in Korea. If you cannot attend, pray where you are for our boys in the fighting areas. God heard Joshua when he fought the battle of Jericho; Joshua won. He heard Gideon when he fought against the Midianites; Gideon won. This same Jesus will hear you and me, if we pray without ceasing. He is the same God now that He was in the past. Trust Him and we WILL win.

A. L. Sumpter, secretary
H. M. Mitchell, pastor

The pastor is calling all members' attention that Sunday is Easter Day. Each member is asked to be present in all services through the day at the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church. There will be early Easter services at 8:30 a.m.

Our revival begins Monday evening 7:30, March 26, each evening during the week through the 30th. Our evangelist is the Rev. W. P. Jones of Norfolk, Va., pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist Church, Virginia Beach, Va. All our friends are invited to worship with us in these revival services.

Painful Summer Is Facing Frisch

Los Angeles, March 24—(AP)—Frankie Frisch still takes defeat as hard as he did in the days of the old "Gas House Gang" at St. Louis, and so it pains one to announce that the popular Fordham Flash faces a bad summer as he tries to yank his Chicago Cubs out of the net regions of the National League.

The Cubs are one of the richer teams, with a picture ball park in the nation's second largest city. Once they were a power to be reckoned with. But of late they have run out of players of championship caliber, and they seem not to be spending the kind of money required to build another winner.

Frisch is inclined to be morose these evenings. He could have gone on being a radio announcer. The best he will say is "Well, we ought to be more experienced." The only thing he can look forward to, for sure, is beating out the Pittsburgh Pirates again. The Pirates, frankly, are a scandal.

Although the Cubs have been winning their exhibitions against inferior pitching, they do not have the batting power to keep it up once they begin looking at top stuff day after day.

The sports scribes who have referred to Wilmer Mizell as another Dizzy Dean are all out line. The Cardinals' rookie left-hander certainly got that ball over the plate but right there any likeness to Dizzy ends. Mizell is a quiet, shy youngster. He has color—natural color, but he makes no effort to impress.

Some 200 pounds of muscle stretches over Mizell's 6-foot-3 frame. He looks a lot like Preacher Roe of the Dodgers. But unlike Roe, who gets by with tricky pitches and corner-cutting control, Mizell likes to fire that ball. He must be pretty good at it, too, because last season with Winston-

Furgol Clings To Slim Greensboro Open Lead

Greensboro, N. C., March 24—(AP)—Marty Furgol, with an assist to Bill Nary, was working on a two-stroke lead as the field headed into today's second round of the $10,000 Greensboro Open Golf tournament.

Furgol, 33-year-old Long Beach, California, pro who has only one big time victory to his credit, beat the field of 158 and a high wind to shoot an opening round 68—three under par—yesterday and take a two-stroke lead over his nearest rivals, Arthur Doering of Richmond, Va., and Jim Milward of Green Bay, Wis.

And Marty gave a major portion of the credit for his success to fellow-professional Bill Nary of

Won, Lost and Drew In One Fight Against Substitute For Champion

New York, March 24—(AP)—John L. Davis won, lost and drew in one fight.

It all happened last night in Madison Square Garden and the befuddled, disgusted California Negro lightweight contender still was moaning about it today.

He was awarded a draw in his ten round bout with substitute Eddie Giosa, who replaced injured lightweight champion Ike Williams as Davis' opponent. He won the fight in the opinion of seven of nine boxing writers polled at ringside.

But what he lost was more important. The fight was drab, compared to the last three sensational fights put on the Garden, and it undoubtedly cost the 24-year-old Richmond, Calif., boxer a title shot at Williams.

Giosa, an 11 to 5 underdog who outweighed his rival 145 to 135, is a cutey. He made John L. Look bad with his clutching and backpedaling tactics.

Hanes Hosiery Is AAU Champion

Dallas, Tex., March 24—(AP)—Hanes Hosiery headed back to Winston-Salem, N. C., with the national AAU Women's Basketball trophy tucked in its traveling bags.

The North Carolina girls last night had an easy time walloping the Hutchinson Flying Queens of Plainview, Tex.; 50-34, for the championship.

Wertz Connects With Hard Hits

Lakeland, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Maybe Vic Wertz has found the secret to consistent long-ball hitting.

After two tremendous clouts by the Detroit Tiger outfielder in yesterday's batting drill, Manager Red Rolfe seemed of that belief.

Rolfe said slugger Vic "is doing what we've been trying to make him do for the last three years. He is stepping into the ball, taking a long follow-through on his swing, and pulling the ball into right field."

Salem he fanned 227 batters in 207 innings. He won 17 games last season after a slow start, losing only once after July rolled around.

Mizell was signed by Buddy Lewis, a Cardinal scout, the minute he was graduated from Vinegar Bend, Ala., high school. When Wilmer reported to the Cards' Albany, Ga., farm he didn't know how to stand on the rubber. But he learned fast, and the Cardinal coaches at St. Petersburg say that it isn't necessary to tell the youngster how to do a thing more than once. In the early camp games Mizell showed good control, a fair curve and a change up pitch that should serve him in good stead.

Surprised

Lakeland, Fla., March 23 — (AP)—Hal Newhouser tells this one on himself.

An elderly feminine fan buttoned his in the hotel lobby for his autograph. She gushed about how Hal was her "favorite pitcher" and she'd come a long way to see him.

So the star Detroit Tiger southpaw obliged immediately and wrote his name in her book.

"My goodness, Mr. Newhouser," she said, "I never knew you were lefthanded."

Ben Hogan's Movie Has Premiere In Fort Worth

Fort Worth, Tex., March 24—(AP)—Ben Hogan looked toward the Masters today—the only major tournament that has eluded him in one of golf's greatest careers.

The little man practiced at Colonial Country Club while Fort Worth talked about the world premiere of the picture of his life—"Follow The Sun."

The premiere went on at three downtown movies last night. Some 6,000 saw the film that told the story of the Fort Worth caddy who climbed to fame, then climbed back after being so severely injured in an auto-bus crash it was feared he never would walk again.

At the end of the picture, Hogan made a little speech. He talked about Ben Hogan day in Fort Worth—an occasion which brought a resplendent from the Texas Senate. He said: "Val (his wife, Valerie) and I want to keep this day sort of sacred for us forever."

Hogan also paid tribute to the man who gave him his start—Marvin Leonard, Fort Worth business leader and builder of Colonial Country Club. It was Leonard who loaned Hogan the money to make his first golf tour and then, when Hogan finally started winning and wanted to pay it back, declined by saying: "I don't want the money; I just wanted you to offer it. You being successful has paid me back."

But Hogan paid it back anyway.

TIME TRAP

By ROG PHILLIPS

Chapter 7

"Back as early as 1948," Arthur Granger began, after he had played the host and provided several cans of beer from a wall dispenser, "there were eye witness accounts of strange craft in the skies. They received the name, flying saucers. No doubt you know all this, since those years are just yesterday to you."

"Of course," Ray replied. "The mysterious sky visitors continued to appear off and on during the succeeding twenty years." Granger continued. "Occasionally some pilot got too near one—and his plane went out of control and blew up mysteriously, as if it had suddenly changed into some high explosive. Other than these minor incidents of destruction there was no indication either of the nature or of the ultimate intent of the so-called flying saucers."

"I suppose it was inevitable that sooner or later we would bring one of the things down with a lucky shot. That was in September, 1976. The huge craft came plummeting down just outside Oklahoma City at dawn on September thirteenth. The crash was heard miles away—and that was natural, because the craft was nearly half a mile in diameter and a hundred yards thick at its center."

"There were corpses strewn all through the wreckage. They were corpses of men and women such as no one had ever suspected to exist! They appeared human in every last respect, except for the third eye in the forehead."

"In forty-eight hours thousands of scientists and technicians had converged on the spot. Metallurgists were sampling the materials of construction of the craft. Doctors were searching desperately for some sign of a spark of life somewhere in that three hundred acres of death and destruction. Five thousand state militia were keeping out the idle curiosity seekers; but even so the huge ship was melting under the stealthy depredations of souvenir hunters."

"Trucks were hauling off the dead—to take them to laboratories all over the world for study and dissection. There were two thousand dead Vargians—though no one knew at the time that they were Vargians, nor where they came from."

"The world's greatest minds concentrated on the problem of resolving the mystery of the flying discs and nothing came of it. There was even uncertainty over the findings of the dissectors in the laboratories. They couldn't find the function of the third eye."

"They weren't even able to determine how the huge ship could fly. There wasn't enough power generation equipment in it to lift a small passenger plane of that era, let alone a few hundred thousand tons of men and metal."

"Thus things stood when, on the morning of May 5th in 1982, the Vargians made their first beachhead in Chicago. There was no warning. One moment the nine million people of the Chicago area whom I have developed a real dislike. Of course it can't be said that acquaintance always brings friendship. But acquaintance certainly does help understanding."

They have staffs to brief them on what they'll say and even anticipate questions which may be asked so they'll have ready answers. And a great deal of work goes into preparing the kind of legislation which the Pentagon asks congress to pass.

There's a staff to draw up the bills, which means, since events change from day to day, that these bills have to be drafted, re-drafted, and re-drafted.

And all this is only one part of the picture, since it deals exclusively with Congress and the Pentagon people.

The same is true, more or less, for the other heads of government departments and agencies, particularly Secretary of State Dean Acheson who has to duck away from foreign affairs many times to answer lawmakers' questions or explain a shift in policy.

Rent Office To Be Re-Opened

Raleigh, N. C., March 24—(AP)—The rent control office at Jacksonville, near the Camp Lejeune Marine base, will be activated on a fulltime basis March 28.

Governor Scott said yesterday he was informed by Federal Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods of the reopening plans. Woods will be present for the opening, Scott said he was advised.

BRIEFEST REPORT

Washington, March 24—(AP)—The Defense Department, in one of its briefest Korean casualty lists, announced today the names of three men missing in action and six men who were wounded.

modern warfare.

4. United Nations forces have unchallenged control of the air sea, and a resultant stranglehold on communications, supply and transportation.

They Can't Win

"When this control exists as in our case, and is coupled with an inferiority of ground fire power as in the enemy's case, the resulting disparity is such that it cannot be overcome by bravery, however fanatical, or the most gross indifference to human loss."

MacArthur told reporters upon his return from his 14th visit of the war to Korea.

"No further comment would seem to be necessary with reference to the 38th parallel, the status of which has been so thoroughly discussed in recent statements from Washington, London and other capitals. As a matter of fact it has never had any military significance."

"Our naval and air forces cross it at will and both ground forces (Reds and U. N. troops) have done so in the past."

"We hope at the present we have this new tax proposal beat," he said, "but we will not know until the vote comes."

Lanier was introduced last night by W. L. Whedbee, secretary-treasurer of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade. Kiwanis President Milo Smith presided at the meeting.

Guests of the Kiwanians last night were Bill Robins and Bill Bendrick, members of the Circle K club of ECTC and J. C. Lanier, Jr. and Dave Whickard.

I don't know off-hand how many countries I've visited during the last forty years, but they run into dozens in both hemispheres. Naturally I've encountered a lot of disagreeable things, but there are mighty few peoples, if any, for whom I have developed a real dislike.

Of course it can't be said that acquaintance always brings friendship. But acquaintance certainly does help understanding.

Girl Scout News

Dear Scouts:

We are sure that many of you had Easter egg hunts during the past week and will probably have some Monday.

Miss Pat Bundy's troop 3 had a very happy time with their Easter egg hunt. They dyed the eggs at their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon and had the hunt at the Cotanche Street park on Thursday afternoon. The girls had the privilege of inviting a boy to join them in the hunt.

I am sure each one of you read account of the lovely Easter basket supper that Mrs. Hoot's troop had on March 16. They really did things up in a big way.

At the invitation of Judy Highsmith, who attended Camp Hardee last summer, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Long, Mary Will Long, and Hannah Proctor visited her Scout troop in Robersonville last week. After refreshments were served, Mrs. Henderson told the girls about Camp Hardee, its history, and camping opportunities for girls. Then Mary Will showed some moving pictures taken at Camp Hardee last summer. We are hoping that more of the Robersonville Scouts will join us next summer at camp.

Those who have attended Camp Hardee within the last few years were pleased to see recently a picture of Martha Jean Allen, who had been voted "Miss Fayetteville High School" over 160 contestants for the coveted honor. Martha Jean is a very popular alumna of Camp Hardee. She also accompanied the Scout to Corolla last summer.

Happy Easter to you.

Scoutingly,
Susie Scout and Katie Kamper

The Pitt County annual drama festival was observed by several Negro schools in the Ayden Negro high school on March 19.

Those schools taking part were:

Ayden high school presenting "Grandma, Pulls the String;" Robinson high school, "Winter Sunset;" Bethel high school, "The Maid of Domremy;" Pitt County training school, "Lonely Lady," and Farmville high school, "Riders to the Sea."

The Usher Board of Phillips Christian Church will meet with Sister Sophie Fleming Sunday at 4 p.m.

The Willing Workers Club will meet with Sister Rebecca Blount at 5 p.m. Members and friends are urged to attend both of these meetings.

The Dollar Club of Phillips Christian Church will meet with Sister Sarah Little Tuesday at 8 p.m. Members and friends are requested to attend.

Thought for the week:

In the quiet of this hour and hours to come, dear Lord, give us the assurance of thy Spirit. Give us adequate faith. Give us adequate intelligence of the significance of thy Holy words. And fill us with thy love that we may serve thee always.

Help us to overcome these petty fears—that absorb our spiritual powers and cripple our mental energy. Make us independent of poor human opinion and masterful to follow truth fearlessly. Then shall our lives be sane and full of hope and great in achievements that carry over into eternity. We ask the same grace for our relatives and friends and for all who are of good will.
