American Armor Crosses Parallel

Tank Column Thrusts North Of Uijongbu Along Natural Road Of Awaited Chinese Attack; No Allied General Offensive Expected At Present

Tokyo, March 31—(AP)—An American tank column rolled across parallel 38 today on a venturesome challenge to the Red Chinese offensive buildup in North Korea.

The initial thrust carried a half mile inside the communist north on the main road out of captured Uijongbu, north of Seoul.

It is an extension of the leap-frog gain allied forces made a week ago with a drop of parachute forces who quickly enveloped Uijongbu and pushed on toward 38 against stiffening resistance.

Under the terms laid down by Defense Secretary Marshall earlier this week, the tank thrust into Red Korea must be a tactical effort and not the opening wedge of a full-fledged offensive.

The first American tank whiplashed across the old border between North and South Korea at 10:12 a.m. (8:21 p.m., EST, Friday), heading toward the Hantan River.

The Hantan is a tributary of the Imjin River, where just three months ago—on New Year's Eve—the Chinese communist forces started driving allied troops back into the southern Republic.

AP correspondent John Randolph, with the border-crossing tank column, said the scene is only eight miles east of where the Chinese broke through allied lines Dec. 31.

The American crossing came just a week after Republic of Korea (ROK) troops crossed parallel 38 unopposed on the east coast.

For their part, the Reds slashed back Friday on a front about 40 miles east of where the U. S. tanks crossed 38 and today were holding positions a mile short of Chunchon. That town, in American hands now, is regarded as a logical jump-off point for an offensive by either side.

The Reds showed more muscle in the air and on the ground as reports of a spring drive they are reported mounting in unprecedented force.

In the air Friday, 80 American jets and Russian-made MIG-15 jets tangled in what was described as history's biggest jet battle. It was just south of the Yalu River border of Manchuria.

One MIG was reported shot down and four were damaged as 40 of them attacked B-29 Superfortresses during a bombing of Korean-Manchurian bridges and were jumped in turn by the Sabres. No damage was reported to the American bombers reported knocking planes.

Out spans of four bridges used for transport of material from Manchuria to the Red battlements.

Night attack and observation planes reported the Red buildup just north of 38 continued. Fighter bombers claimed they destroyed nearly 100 to 1,800 Red vehicles seen moving with supplies Friday night.

Republicans Of Spain

'Government In Exile' Of Republican Spain More Vocal Since Diplomatic Ban On Franco Lifted; Cabinet Members, And Where Located; Their Functions

Lifting of the United Nations diplomatic ban on Franco Spain has had the effect of making the Generalissimo's Spanish Republican opponents more vocal.

The Republican 'Government In Exile' had been working so quietly that it had been largely lost sight of through the years since Franco waged his successful revolution. The exiled regime, however, appears to be decidedly alive, as I have had impressed on me through meeting a very active member—General Jose Azenisio, Minister Without Portfolio, who is stationed in New York.

The General tells me the members of the Republican cabinet aren't all concentrated in one place, but are strategically scattered—four in Paris and the rest in widely separated stations. He himself is not only a Minister but also is permanent observer with the United Nations. Of this latter task he remarked to me rather plaintively but with diplomatic reserve: "Unfortunately some disappointments have been experienced in connection with the case of Spain."

Eight Narrowly Escape Death In Flaming House

Four Hospitalized, Suffering From Shock And Smoke In Night Of Terror

Eight persons narrowly escaped possible death early this morning when fire of unknown origin razed the five room frame structure housing two families located on the old River Road off the Belvoir highway.

Four of the eight persons are in Pitt Memorial Hospital today suffering from shock and smoke which they inhaled as they slept, before the fire awoke them.

The condition of the four persons, two adults and two small children, was reported by Pitt Memorial Hospital officials this morning as being good, with the possibility that they might be released sometime Sunday, provided their conditions remained the same.

Injured were: Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sutton, Route 4, City, and their two children aged two years, and nine months respectively.

Mr. Sutton stated this morning in an interview from his hospital bed that he first awoke when he heard the tin on the roof of the house popping and he smelled the smoke. Sutton was sleeping in a back bedroom, while his wife and two children were asleep in a front room. The Suttons occupied two rooms of the five room house while the other three were shared by "Shirley" Stancil and his family of three.

Estimated time of the discovery of the fire was placed at 1:30 a.m. "When I heard the tin popping and smelled the smoke I ran into the room where my wife was sleeping to wake her," Sutton said today. After that time he does not remember what happened until he came to, about 30 yards from the house and the house was a flaming shell.

Reports stated that Mrs. Sutton, a frail 100-pound woman, carried or dragged her husband and two children to safety. Her husband weighs nearly 200 pounds.

While origin of the fire is not known, it was believed to have started in the kitchen of the Stancil apartment as heavy flames were noted from that section.

All of the household possessions of the two families were lost in the fire including clothes and furniture.

A fifth member of the Sutton family escaped the ordeal as he was away spending the night with a friend. He usually slept with his father in the back room.

By the time all of the occupants of the house were clear of the frame building the roof caved in, it was stated.

The four were admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital around 2:30 this morning for treatment.

Condition Of Injured Girl Said Improving

The condition of Clara Lee Johnson, eight-year-old Negro girl who was shot by her six-year-old sister yesterday, is termed as satisfactory and improving.

Clara Lee was hit over the eye, near the temple, when she and her sister, Annie Lee, were playing with a loaded 12-gauge shotgun.

Plea For Unity

Washington, March 31—(AP)—President Vincent Auriol of France pleaded today for unity between the old and new worlds to beat down the "dangers that threaten civilization."

He told the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference that close ties of religion, language, history and love of liberty already unite the hemispheres and that now geographical limitations must be forgotten.

"In these days of trouble and anxiety, only the solidarity of our democracies can save the common heritage placed in their trust," Auriol said.

The world is growing smaller, he continued—"a tremor in one part of the globe shakes the whole universe,"—and "if our ideals were not pushing us toward solidarity of action, necessity would impose it on us."

March Failed To Meet Tradition

Came In Like A Lamb And Went Out Even More So

There is an old saying to the effect that "March comes in like a lion but goes out like a lamb," but that's not always true.

March didn't hold true to its reputation. Instead it came in like a lamb and it's going out like a lamb but there was plenty of lion in between. The first day of March was warm and sunny and it was a relief to the people of Greenville after experiencing one of the worst winters in years.

The last day of March shows real signs of spring with bright sunshine. Although still a little chilly, it is calm and there's none of that howling wind which represents the lion.

The unwelcome lion was present a few days ago when he rushed in howling, roaring, and bringing rain to a city where the population was anxiously awaiting some evidence of spring. This was especially true of the first day of spring, much to the disappointment of those who hoped to see the lamb instead of the lion.

The only ones who welcomed the "lion" were the children who were anxious to get their new kites into the air. There were also a few "grown-ups" who borrowed their children's kites and tried their hand at getting them in the air.

Last March it was almost summer here in Greenville. People were already packing up every weekend to go to the beach and enjoy the premature summer.

GHS Entries In Tourney Finals

Johnson City, Tenn., March 31—(Special to The Reflector)—Greenville's delegation to the district speech tourney being held here last week to the lead yesterday with Greenville speakers qualified for every final event which began this morning.

The affirmative debaters tackled Bluefield in the finals, after defeating Asheville, Maryville and Elizabethton teams in the opening rounds.

Greenville negative debaters defeated Athens, West Virginia, and Johnson City but lost to Bluefield in the last opening round.

At the end of the first day of speaking, Douglas Mitchell led the dramatic declaration while Rodney Fulcher tied for lead in original oratory.

Greenville last year won second place trophy at the district Appalachian speaking event.

Kickoff Banquet For Pitt Cancer Drive Tonight

Tonight's kickoff banquet for the April cancer campaign throughout the county will bring together the county's community drive chairman with the Pitt chapter officers and executive committee.

The banquet will be held at the Woman's Club at seven o'clock. No formal program has been planned, county commander Mrs. Charles Reynolds stated, but reports from different sections of the county will be made concerning last year's funds drive and also reports from the executive committee as to how the funds were dispensed.

Meanwhile, Harvey Anderson, chairman of the special gifts committee, announced his co-workers. They are Joseph S. Moye, Louis Gaylord, Jr., Phil Goodson, Harold Staton, A. B. Stallworth, James Brewer, Hoover Taft and Knott Proctor.

The committee will begin its campaign Monday morning and will continue throughout the rest of the week.

Kefauver Opposing Long Probe

Will Offer Own Proposal Later; Contempt Charges Backed By Senate

Washington, March 31—(AP)—Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said today he expects to propose "a method of continuing inquiry and study" of crime conditions exposed by his Senate investigating subcommittee.

He did not elaborate. But he told a reporter flatly that he is opposed to a drive by two Republican members of the committee to extend the investigation until next Jan. 15.

While that issue remains to be fought out on the Senate floor, the committee won unanimous Senate backing for its contempt charges against such big-name gambling figures as Frank Costello, Frank Erickson and Joe Adams.

The trio were among an even dozen balking witnesses cited by the Senate yesterday for contempt of Congress because of their refusal to answer some of the committee's questions.

Others on the list included Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Gusk, reputed treasurer of Chicago's Capone mob, and Morris Kleinman and Louis Rothkopf, former Cleveland bootleggers linked by the committee with interstate gambling operations.

Three others, William G. O'Brien and Ralph J. O'Hara, both of Chicago, and Stanley Cohen of San Francisco, were involved in the committee's investigation of race wire services.

Also cited for contempt were John Croft, linked by the committee with push gambling places in northern Kentucky; George S. Bowers, a gambling house figure, and John Coyle of Gary, Ind., who was questioned about slot machines and other gambling operations there.

The contempt charges will be turned over to U. S. attorneys for presentation to grand juries in the cities where the witnesses were heard.

White Addresses Exchange Club

Charles White, newly elected president of the Rotary Club and director of civil defense in Greenville, spoke to the members of the Exchange Club at their regular dinner meeting last night at the Woman's Club.

White spoke on atomic warfare and gave a brief history of the splitting of atoms. He also gave statistics on the number of people killed and injured when the bomb was used in bombing Japan. He said that 70,000 people were killed and wounded on August 6, 1945, and 10,000 killed and wounded on August 9, 1945.

President Sweeney Moye presided over the meeting.

Evangelistic Program Opens Sunday

Eight Greenville churches tomorrow night will begin a week-long series of simultaneous evangelistic services with a guest preacher in each of the eight churches participating in the week of religious emphasis.

Services will be held in each of the churches at 8 o'clock Sunday through the following Sunday evenings, and union services for the members of all the churches will be held at one church each morning of the week at 10:30.

Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina Teachers College, will be the guest preacher at the Memorial Baptist church for the week-long meeting. Dr. Holt is a graduate of Wake Forest College and of Western Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas. He recently received his Ph. D. degree from Duke University. Dr. Holt likewise was pastor of several churches before coming to Greenville last fall as director of religious activities at ECTC.

The Rev. Walter H. Goodman of Beulaville, N. C. will be the guest preacher at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian church. The Rev. Mr. Goodman is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary and formerly was the pastor of the Meadowbrook Presbyterian church where he will be guest preacher next week.

Pitt Scouts Preparing For Camporee In April

Annual District Event Is 'Warm-Up' For Council Camporee; Approximately 200 Scouts Plan To Participate

Approximately 200 boy scouts of Pitt county are busy themselves with preparations for annual district camporee which will be held in Greenville April 13 and 14.

The annual district event is a "warm-up" outing designed to give the scouts a chance to practice their camping skills before the annual council camporee which last year was attended by approximately 2,000 boy scouts from all parts of eastern North Carolina. The council camporee this year will be held in Wilson.

Practically all the troops in the Pitt district are expected to be represented at the district camporee which will be held on the city property near the West Greenville school.

The scouts will begin registering at the camp site between 2:30 and 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the 12th, and the afternoon will be devoted to checking equipment, setting up camp sites, and preparing supper.

After supper there will be a district camp fire program at which time a contest will be held to determine which troop will be allowed to represent the Pitt district at the camp fire programs at the council camporee. Camping and Activities Chairman Sherman Parks of the Pitt district, said each troop will have an opportunity to present a stunt at the district campfire, and a group of judges will select the best stunt to be presented at the council camporee.

The district camporee will break up about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

District Scout Commissioner Jack Dowdy will be camporee chief for the district camporee, and arrangements for the outing are being made by Sherman Parks.

Pre-School Clinic Arranged In May

Miss Julia Fisher of the Pitt county health department, said they would work together with the schools in registering and examining new pupils in the pre-school clinic to be held during the month of May.

She also said that the physical examination will be more of an inspection with the doctors recognizing defects and making recommendations for corrections. Parents may take their children to any doctor of their choice for the corrections, but the health department will assist those parents who are financially unable to get medical assistance for their children.

North Carolina state law requires that children who are six years old on or before October 1 be immunized for diphtheria, small pox, and whooping cough. Those who have already been vaccinated must show certificate of vaccination but they may get "booster" doses if desired.

The health department said the only change from the clinic last year is that there will be no vision test given. It is no longer considered of value because the children become nervous and thus causing the examination to be inaccurate. They receive better cooperation after the children have been in school for some time.

Police Of East Berlin Sidelined On Tour Routes

Berlin, March 31—(AP)—American sightseeing buses shot at by Communist police Wednesday went over the same route today without incident.

The Russians made sure this time there would be no repetition of Wednesday's gunfire which shocked the allied West into angered demands for a safety guarantee.

All East police were pulled off duty at trouble spots, including the Potsdamer Platz, where the midweek shooting occurred.

From the time the four buses, loaded with 72 Americans, entered the Soviet sector until they left the Eastern Peoples' Police stayed out of the way. At major intersections they quickly flashed on the green lights for the convoy to proceed.

Governor Thinks Even Less Of '51 Assembly Session

This Is A 'Negative Legislature' Says Scott In His Assessment

Raleigh, March 31—(AP)—Governor Scott, who had some uncompensated things to say about the 1949 General Assembly, thinks even less of the 1951 session.

"This is a negative legislature," he declared in answer to questions at his news conference yesterday. "In 1949 they did something. They did things reluctantly, but they did something."

Speaking seriously, the Governor observed, "The one I had in 1949 by far accomplished more." During the 1949 session, Scott had jokingly stated, "I've got an 80th Congress upstairs." President Truman had made the uncompensated phrase well known during his fights with Congress.

Scott made it clear, however, he wasn't leveling a blanket indictment at all members of the current legislature.

"I think the bulk of the legislature would like to do things," said Scott, "but the chairmen . . ." and his voice faded. The Governor said there are many newcomers "who don't know the ropes" and who are not able to cope with experienced parliamentarians. Chairmen are named in the House by the Speaker and in the Senate by the Lieutenant Governor.

"A very minor group," declared the Chief Executive, "is calling the figures. . . these people already are selecting the next Speaker, the chairmen of the various committees, for the 1953 legislature."

Continuing, Scott asserted "They're definitely already holding meetings. Some men have been picked and sponsored by groups for '53. The public never will know who is underwriting their expenses."

Judge Commutes Road Sentence

Judge Leo Carr yesterday afternoon struck out his original sentence to Edward Harrington, one of the convicted persons who broke into the VFW club last summer, and gave him a suspended road sentence instead of having him serve six months on the roads.

Carr's decision came after Harrington's family and attorney Henry Harrell had appealed to him to commute the sentence. Carr agreed but with the stipulation that Harrington enter some institution for the treatment of alcoholism for a period of three months. He also placed him on probation for four years after suspending the three year sentence and fined him $100.

Harrington yesterday morning was sentenced to six months on the roads and given a two-year suspended sentence on a three-year probationary period.

Other cases disposed of as this week's term of criminal court adjourned:

Herman Ellis, drunk driving; continued.

Johnnie Weldon, assault with deadly weapon; called and failed, capias issued.

American Educators Who Observed Student Conference In Czechoslovakia Say U. S. Students Ill-Equipped To Meet Reds In Rough And Tumble Debate

Washington, March 31—(AP)—Two American educators who attended a communist-dominated student conference in Czechoslovakia as observers say it showed American students ill-equipped to meet trained communists in rough and tumble debate.

A method frequently used by communists to capture a labor union or other organization is to over-ride opposition at meetings through sheer persistence and deft use of parliamentary procedure.

The observers say the conference last August brought to light "some shortcomings in the preparation of American students for their international responsibilities."

Eugene G. Schwartz, now a graduate student at New York University, and Robert L. West, now a college program adviser for CARE in New York City, represented the U. S. National Student Association at the second World Student Congress at Prague.

The congress was sponsored by the International Union of Students, from which the U. S. Association withdrew in 1948—because of the union's refusal to intervene on behalf of Prague students jailed or suspended in the communist coup. Most other non-communist groups later dropped out as the international union continued to hew more closely to the foreign policy line of the Soviet Union.

Schwartz and West, writing in the semi-monthly publication of the U. S. Office of Education, say that the leadership at the Prague Congress—even disregarding the Soviet and Eastern European delegations—was frankly Marxist.

Utilities Commission Adds A Proviso That Not More Than Approximately $334,500 Will Be Borrowed; Approval Marks Approaching End Of Long Wait

Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission last night unanimously approved the much-cussed and discussed REA loan with a rider that not more than approximately $334,500 will be borrowed.

The approval brings to a close proceedings that have lasted more than 15 months. It paves the way for the utilities to extend electric current to more than 1,800 families in Pitt, Beaufort and Craven Counties in the near future.

The resolution adopted by the members was submitted by Commissioner W. H. Woodard. The $334,500 figure stated in the resolution was the estimate of the cost of constructing the lines made by REA Engineer L. E. Wooten a year ago. Since then the estimate has risen to $380,000 but the commissioners voted to hold the construction costs down to the approximate figure originally stated in the estimate.

Commissioner K. B. Pace submitted a similar resolution after Woodard's but the board voted on the first one.

Now that final approval has been made, it is expected that construction can begin within the next three months. Superintendent Martin Swartz stated the entire project which is for 242 miles of lines should be completed within six months. Only the machinery of getting the bond proof approved by REA in Washington, the Local Government Commission and the utilities commission stands in the way of advertising for bids on the project. Opening of bids can begin in 60 days, Swartz said.

Woodard's resolution outlines briefly the history of the loan request, stating the original loan offered by REA to the commission was not to exceed $910,000 with a possible increase to not more than $2,000,000, that about a year ago the engineer's survey was made showing construction would cost an estimated $300,000 to $300,000 and that a more complete survey indicated the cost would be $334,500.

"Therefore, he is resolved (to) state that while the Rural Electrification Administration has offered a loan not exceeding $910,000 with a possible increase not to exceed $2,000,000, we will not request the Board of Aldermen to borrow more than approximately $334,500. If the commission decides to make further extensions in lines and equipment, it will do so from monies in the hand of the commission and from earnings."

Before the final vote was taken, Commissioner J. B. Kittrell stated he wanted the public to know that last night's continuation of the adjourned meeting of a week earlier was for the purpose of letting all the commissioners satisfy themselves as to whether to approve the loan with its stipulations concerning the mortgage on the electric system revenues.

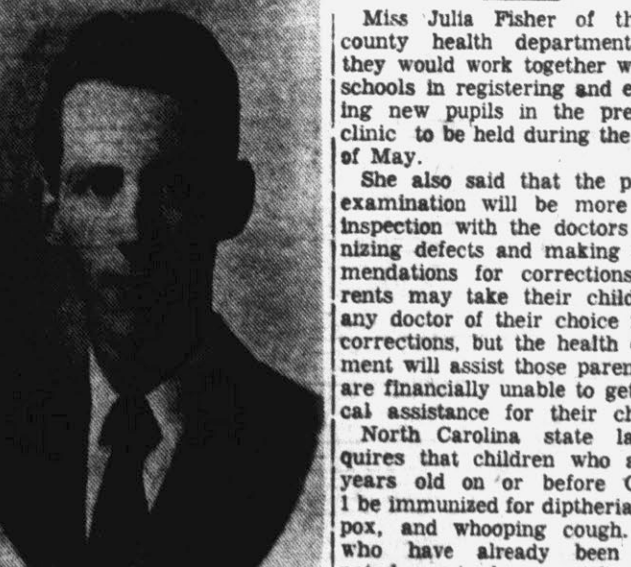

Woodard, before submitting his resolution, stated he was not willing last Friday night to approve the loan at that time but would be willing last night if his resolution was adopted.

Commissioner John Clark stated he was standing pat on his original statement—that he wouldn't approve the loan as so outlined to the commission by REA. He said that REA officials from Washington and Raleigh had informed him the electrification project would take all of the $910,000 in the long run and

LABORATORY TESTED

Almost everything you buy today has been tested in the laboratory. Its worth has been proven. But what about the pattern by which you live? Is it a concoction of your own mind, or a new formula for success, or is it a Religion?

If you are a Christian, your creed has been tested in the laboratory of life. For almost two thousand years men have believed, served, worshipped, lived and died—many of them heroically—in the Faith that is yours.

The Christian churches of this community do not offer any new remedy for all life's problems. But they preach and teach for our own time the Way of Life that Jesus taught.

And now, as then, men find peace and happiness in that Way. Through twenty centuries that has been proven by faithful Christians.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

As a compliment to Miss Marguerite Austin and Mr. George Perry, whose engagement has been announced, Mr. James L. Fleming and his mother, Mrs. James L. Fleming, Sr. entertained at a bridge party on Wednesday night for club members and a few invited guests at their home on Greene Street.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Fleming and welcomed into the living room by Mr. Fleming. They were presented to the honorees and Miss Austin's mother, who is here on a visit. Both Miss Austin and Mrs. Austin were presented with corsages.

The rooms where tables were arranged for play were lovely with floral decorations of pastel camelias. Cards were enjoyed at six tables, and at the conclusion of several progressions, high score prizes were awarded to Mrs. W. W. Smiley for the women and to Mr. Smiley for the men. Miss Austin at this time was also given a gift of china as a remembrance from the host and hostess.

In the dining room, where the players were invited for refreshments, the table was laid with a handmade lace cloth and centered with a beautiful arrangement of white snapdragons, Easter lilies and fern filled in with other small, dainty white flowers. Pairs of white candles in single holders were used on either side of this, and they were tied with white satin ribbon and fern.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming and Mrs. Austin served molded iced, petits fours, mints and assorted nuts which emphasized the bridal color note of green and white. Assisting them in serving was Miss Lou White Winstead. Demi tasses with cheese straws was passed in the living room by Mrs. J. L. Winstead. A delightful informal social hour was enjoyed by all.

The home was decorated with lovely arrangements of spring flowers. The dining room table was attractive with its arrangement of narcissi, jonquils and hyacinths flanking a miniature bride and groom.

Hot spiced tea was poured by Mrs. E. J. Garrett. Mrs. David A. Evans helped serve ham biscuits, chicken salad scones, cookies, bridal cakes, mints and nuts.

The guests were seated in the living rooms and enjoyed an informal hour of visiting.

Bridge was played at three tables after the supper. The highest scores were compiled by Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mr. Brown Hodges, and Mr. Clifton Jackson was holder of the visitor's award. Other players were Mr. Williams, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb and Mrs. Robert Mewborn.

Ada Cherry Class Met On Thursday

The Ada Cherry Sunday School Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Smith. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Ed Parkinson, Mrs. Bob Thompson and Miss Mary Belle Edridge.

The devotional was given by Mrs. A. M. Lum, and the president, Mrs. George Smith, presided over the business session. The various committees of the class made their monthly reports, and the officers' reports were presented and approved. A full account was given of the spring wardrobe purchased by the class for Edna Earle Strother, the "adopted" daughter of the class. Definite plans were made for ways to raise money for the purchase of classroom equipment for the new room in the Educational Building, which is expected to be ready for occupancy before fall. Several members present donated the money outright for the purchase of one chair each.

Mrs. H. G. Haney was introduced and gave a delightful talk on "The Joys of Being a Minister's Wife." In her witty and charming manner she related some of the many satisfying associations and experiences which every minister's family enjoys. In her enthusiastic manner, she ended by stating, "I'd rather be a minister's wife than anyone else I know."

During the social hour which followed, the hostesses served iced drinks, sandwiches and accompaniments. Special guests welcomed by the class were Mrs. Carl Langley of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Jack Spain of Washington, D.C., both former members of the class and regular attendants at the Sunday morning sessions when they are in town.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
HORSES AND CHARIOTS OF FIRE
On one occasion Jesus assured his disciples, "All things are possible to them that believe."
This is a most arresting statement in many ways. The important word here is the word "all." We know that many things are possible to them that believe. The person who believes in himself, in his work, in the product he sells is much more liable to succeed than the person who does not believe in these things.
But "all things!" That lifts the whole situation out of an earthly frame and puts it into a heavenly. Nothing that man can do will make him successful in everything; only God can give success of that variety. When Jesus said that faith would enable one to lift up mountains and cast them into the sea, he meant precisely that. This sounds like a fairy tale. But it is not, it is the Christian Gospel.

So if you are down in mind and spirit, look up. "All things are possible to them that believe." We read in the Old Testament about a young man who was greatly discouraged when the prophet Elisha asked God to draw aside the curtain and let the young man see things as they really were. "And behold, the mountains were full of horses and chariots of fire round about."
The sides and valleys of your mountains are likewise clothed with celestial glory and power.

A New Jewel In Our Midst

All Eastern Carolina has been so over-awed with the dazzling prospects of the multi-million dollar DuPont plant in Lenoir county, that Greenville folks had about relegated our own surprise package — Greenville Mills, Inc.—to a secondary position.

The wrappings were thrown off the Greenville Mills' new woolen plant here yesterday, and all Greenville can witness the industrial jewel we have right here in our own living room.

Although the plant officials of Greenville Mills, Inc., and the parent company of the plant, Artloom Carpet Company, Inc., have not mentioned the cost of the Greenville plant, a look at the quantity of spanking brand new machinery and other fixtures in the plant certainly leads one's thoughts to the bracket of six figures and higher.

This new industrial plant in Greenville will indeed be a great asset to the community. The nature of the plant in itself points to a prosperous future, and the reputation of the parent company insures continued successful operation for the local plant.

The plant of Greenville Mills, Inc., is expected to furnish employment for 100 to 125 local people if its operation is set up on a three shift schedule five days a week. The employment will mean another large year around payroll to boost the economy of Greenville.

The successful operation of the plant may well be a drawing card for other industrial plants to locate here.

The identity of the textile company which was setting up this plant of Greenville Industries, Inc., was kept a closely guarded secret by the parent company for many months. Now that the secret has been opened to the people of Greenville, we can fully appreciate the significance of the new industry to our economy.

The Reflector is confident Greenville's newest industry will receive the full cooperation of the people of this community.

The Power Of Expressed Public Opinion

The power of expressed public opinion is reflected in the unanimous vote of the Senate this week to extend for 30 days the crime investigation by the Kefauver committee.

Public sentiment against the organized underworld in this country has been running high since the Senate investigating committee has been uncovering the astounding facts about the role organized crime syndicates and crime bosses are playing in politics across the nation. The people of the United States are demanding to know more of the details of the ties between crime rings and the political circles throughout the country.

In the opinion of The Reflector, there are a number of Senators who would just as soon have the activities of the Senate Investigation Committee stop right where they are without probing further. We feel quite sure that pressure from various sources has been brought upon some Senators to have the investigation ended as rapidly as possible.

But likewise there has been a great deal of pressure brought by the people at large to have the investigation continued. The power of the public sentiment which has been expressed indeed was reflected in the unanimous vote of the Senate for the extension of the investigation.

Public opinion, by and large, can and should control the actions of the lawmakers of the nation. The only unfortunate thing about public opinion is that it is too seldom expressed by the people when issues of importance are at stake in the government. The people at large are too often prone to let the government officials follow the path they choose without letting the officials know how the people back home feel about the matter.

Public opinion is indeed a great factor in maintaining the individual freedoms and fundamental concepts upon which this nation has been built.

The widespread expression of public opinion in connection with the crime investigation is a refreshing and encouraging sign. We hope the people will not relax their efforts before Congress has taken positive steps to cope with the conditions which have been revealed by the crime investigation.

The Reflector hopes the expression of public opinion will extend to other phases of governmental action on every level.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31—"Do you believe," asks C.G.P. of Grand Rapids, Mich., "that there is a group in Washington who will use the current rearmament program or a possible war to impose a managed economy on the country? If there is such a group, what is their purpose?"

EXTROVERTS—Answer: The answer to that question, fortunately, is an everlasting one. Although not generally remarked upon the breed of beings in the present mobilization effort, and I assume they would be retained if war came, is entirely different from the fuzzy-wuzzy band of experimentalists, reformers, crusaders, extroverts and witch doctors who directed the World War II effort.

There is, for instance, no leftist cell in Agriculture consisting of the admittedly former Communists and Hotentots who deluded poor Henry A. Wallace with delusions of grandeur. There are no Pressmans, Abis and Witts. Nor is there an Alger Hiss holding down a key post in the State Department.

REALISTS—In place of the Knudsens, Hillmans, Hendersons, Porters and Bowlesses, we have two such hard-headed realists as Industrialists Charles E. Wilson and Eric A. Johnston. I don't mean that "Bill" Knudsen was one of the "wild" group, but he was so naive, in fact merely a great production man, that he was easily influenced without knowing the ulterior purpose of the plans submitted to him.

Sidney Hillman, of course, had long been an apostle of government controls and intervention especially in the labor field. Curmudgeon Ickes favored a government monopoly of public power as well as other essential services. His successor Oscar Chapman is a nice, amiable but ineffectual individual.

THREAT—The temper of the people as reflected in the prevailing philosophy on Capitol Hill is also entirely different. Having had a bitter taste of inefficient management and exercise of controls during World War II, they are in no mood for another helping, save for those essential to building national defense. They want no controls simply for control's sake, which was too frequently the aim of the Roosevelt regime.

Labor, as an example, seems to have learned that, if government becomes too big and powerful, it grows into a threat rather than a helpmate. Its present dispute with the Administration is far more deep-seated than a mere difference over wage-price policies.

RABBIT—The same is true of agriculture. The farmers begin to realize that, when they accept benefit payments and acreage allotments from a central agency at Washington, they are likely to lose more than they gain.

Last, there is a vast difference between the men at the top. I don't subscribe to the theory that Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted a "socialistic" form of government, or a so-called totalitarian state. But he revealed in experiment for experiment's sake. Frequently he grabbed at ideas simply because they were novel, and men like Ickes, Wallace, Bowless etc. could always be depended on to produce a rabbit every other day.

POWER—F.D.R. also liked to surprise and shock people, especially business men, manufacturers and financiers. He frequently boasted that he had transferred the seat of power from Wall Street to Washington. This was, perhaps, a natural reaction to the fact that he had never been a success in their field.

All evidence to the contrary, Harry S. Truman has no hankering to be even a benevolent dictator. He is bewildered even now by the authority which Congress has given him. As a result, he has done a Pontius Pilate act by delegating power to impose controls to men who will use them only sparingly and temporarily.

LEVIES—"Is the House Ways and Means Committee likely to report out a bill for a federal sales tax?" inquires D.L.O. of Columbia, S.C., and then he adds:

"This is an important question to white-collar workers like myself, who are hard put to make ends meet now. Please excuse use of this postal card. Even the three-cent stamp is an item of much consideration in my budget."

Answer: It is a 100-to-1 bet that Congress will not enact a federal sales tax. Indeed, I doubt if the legislators will agree to the huge increases in excise levies existing by Treasury Secretary Snyder. In view of existing federal, state and city consumption charges, we virtually have a national sales tax now.

Moreover, Mr. Truman's proposed $165 billion boost is out of the window. Instead of his predicted $2.7 billion deficit on June 30, we will have a small surplus. Tax collections are running higher than he estimated, which inclines Congress to distrust all his figures on revenue.

I would not be surprised if the overall increase boiled down to about $8 billion, with $4 billion on corporations, $3 billion on individuals, and another billion from increased excise taxes, loophole closings and a demand for more efficient management of the Internal Revenue Bureau, including less leniency toward gamblers, racketeers and criminals generally.

It's Discouraging

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

About two weeks ago I wrote a column about the housewife Rachel and I built on the corner of Maple Street and Shady Lane. After one column I considered the topic spent until today, when I tangled with the plumbers.

Any normal man who builds a house is almost a nervous wreck by the time it's completed. In addition, he's usually up to his neck in debt because of the small items that he didn't anticipate, $10 here and $15 there, until the amount is astounding.

When the plumbers finished yesterday I had almost come to the point of despair, mostly because of the $10 extra here and the $15 there on items other than plumbing. Kenneth Baker, Delbert Moore and Lyman Eason were packing up their tools when Kenneth commented, "As soon as you pick out your seat let us know and we'll come back and put it on."

"Come again with that," I said, "did you say pick out your seat?"
"That's what I said."
"At that moment I noticed that the seat was missing from the water closet. Any if you don't know what a water closet is, I'm certainly not going to be the one to give you an education."
"Wait a minute, boys," I said, "I don't have to pick out any seat. That's in the contract!"
"Oh no it isn't!" Ken shot back. "Didn't you know that it's up to the builder to pick out his own seat? That's never figured in the plumbing contract. Everybody has to pay extra for that!"

Lyman and Delbert were very helpful: "Yep, you can get a Mother-of-Pearl design in any one of eight colors, made of durable, one-and-one-quarter inch stock. They are guaranteed against warping or splitting, and are equipped with a chrome plated brass hinge, brass nuts, washers, and bumpers."

"How much are these things?" I asked.
"$7.50 for that Mother-of-Pearl job. Others are $4.49 and $3.95."
"Well," I conceded, "I'm broke, but if you'll equip that $7.50 one with an electrical heating unit for cold winter mornings, I'll take it!"

The plumbers said they'd never heard of such a thing, and balked, so I told them to forget the water closet seat. I said, "I'll probably be the only man in Greenville without a water closet seat, but there's a stopping point for everything, and I can't spend another cent."

The plumbers left, and I was fully convinced that I was going to be without a seat. However, they returned with it, minus the heating unit for wintertime use. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

NOBLESSE'S OBLIGE—Senator Joe Carrubbers of Guilford was chairman of the subcommittee which sought to substitute the advisory budget commission for the council of state with respect to handling contingency and emergency funds. Some criticism of the proposal was because it apparently said that Treasurer Brandon Hodges and Auditor Henry Bridges, elected by the people to handle state money, weren't competent to do so. Just to show that there was no feeling on his part that the council of state is incompetent or that he is unfriendly to them, Senator Carrubbers introduced Friday a bill raising their salaries until beginning of the next term, because compensation of constitutional officers cannot be changed during the term for which they were last elected. Members of the council of state now draw $7,500 a year, and under a 1949 act they will get $9,000 for the next term. The Carrubbers bill would increase the $9,000 to $12,000 and mean actual increase from $7,500. Constitutional officers were victimized four and two years ago when appointive officials and employees got substantial raises, and there is doubt whether the much larger percentage increase now proposed would more than even up the score over a period of years. It admittedly is a sort of funny situation when appointive officials with less responsibility than elective members of the council of state get much higher pay.

REFERENDUM—Some politically conscious senators, recalling the fate of others who had sought to raise pay of a few officials far above the average percentage raises, commented they would go along with the pending bill only if amended so as to provide for a vote of the people. One senator said the people had to vote on the pay of legislators and he thought they might just as well vote on other salaries.

GRATIFIED—Rep. Ed O'Herron of Mecklenburg county is experiencing his first venture into politics or statesmanship. Like many other busy business men he has in the past left such matters as making laws to other folks—and he admits that sometimes he didn't think too highly of the lawmakers. After nearly three months personal contact and close observation, added to his own experience as a lawmaker, O'Herron says he has been surprised and highly gratified at the caliber of men making up the general assembly. He feels he ought to publicly apologize for some of the things he thought about members of previous sessions. Instead of a group of men sporting around most of the time, taking instructions on how to vote from somebody else and being subservient to influence of lobbyists, O'Herron discovers that the legislators are hard working, giving careful study to bills, and voting only when convinced of merit.

LOBBYISTS—Speaking of lobbyists, there are many and most of them are just as honest and hard working as the legislators. The lobby register in the secretary of state's office contains 94

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FRANK COSTELLO (Wilson Daily Times)
Either Frank Costello isn't the big boss of gambling in America or his income was far greater than the $168,357 he reported. For that small fry in the racket make more than that. Joe Ackens member, who wasn't in the rackets, was a business that bordered on them. He printed not only the racing forms, but supplied the results for bucket shops. His profits, consequently, were enormous. But to keep them, no doubt, he had to hand out much for protection to the police. If he had declared what he had handed out, he would have involved them in tax violations. So he charged it off as an expense.

Uncle Sam, however, refused to let him get away with it. Why, then, should he let Costello? For the $168,000 or so that he declared probably represented only what he put in investments. It's those investments that Uncle Sam can trace. Apparently, he can't trace the cash. But suppose all of American business put itself on a cash basis, paying taxes on what it re-invested? How would the national government ever get what it needs to run that government? Yet it lets the racketeers do precisely that. It does not check on the reports of those elected officials who, for money, wink at gambling violations because they're supplying them with protection. Rackets couldn't possibly thrive in America if it weren't for two things; the tendency on the part of people to gamble, and the willingness of some elected officials to provide protection. Whether we can stop the former is open to debate. But we can stop the latter whenever the inclination asserts itself. That we don't, we suspect, is evidence of the lack of that inclination. If the local officials won't, the federal government could if it would only go after the racketeers, compelling them to pay what others have to pay. We can see that in the Costello case.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
More than usual interest—some of it sparked by desperation—will be centered on the National Packaging, Conference and Exposition sponsored by the American Management Association in Atlantic City April 17 through 19.

Almost all packaging materials are becoming harder to get and demands are rising, partly because of the high volume of civilian trade but more because of military requirements. The latter are tremendous, not only because so much material must be packaged but it must be packaged to withstand weather conditions in every part of the world. In addition, goods must be packed to withstand the roughest kind of handling, from bouncing in Army trucks to dropping by parachute.

This kind of packaging must extend to food and clothing, as well as weapons. The services are even having water canned for emergencies. The D. E. Fotte & Co. cannery at Baltimore is now canning thousands of gallons of water a day for use in life rafts and life boats and for places where drinking water is not available. It is also canning a small supply for civilian disaster units.

Government controls threaten to reduce the use of aluminum foil, lead foil, some plastics, steel and other materials for packaging, except for essential uses. Corrugated board and boxes are becoming harder to get. The grocery industry is asking grocers to save all paper and paperboard so it can be re-milled and thus minimize shortages. The paper industry has suggested government salvage campaigns to get more waste back into trade channels.

The use of substitutes for scarce materials will probably be the most important single subject at the packaging conference and the A.M.A. has recruited top authorities to discuss their use and availability. The second most important topic will be packaging for the services, and top brass from the Army, Navy and Air Force has agreed to answer questions at a special panel. There will also be considerable attention to the problem of reducing losses by better packaging of merchandise.

DEPARTMENT STORE RATIOS IMPROVE
Department and specialty stores improved merchandising and operating ratios in the three months ending January 31, according to reports gathered by the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Reports show that sales in the typical department store advanced 6 per cent during 1930, the gross margin was 36.7 per cent compared with 35.3 per cent a year ago, and operating expenses were slightly less. The average sales check was $4.35, 24 cents higher than a year ago.

The increase in total sales was attributed almost entirely to higher prices.

ADROITLY PLACED TAG CONCEALS BONE, FAT
The Old Promoter bubbled over with indignation when he marched in today.

"Looks like a nice steak," he said. "It was a pre-cut piece of meat, neatly ticketed with weight and price, all wrapped in cellophane."

"Doesn't it though?" said the O.P. "No watch!" He took off the cellophane and lifted the ticket. The ticket, of about 16 square inches, had neatly covered a large bone and a chunk of fat.

"Looks as if you were gypped," he said.

"Practices like this will set back the pre-cut and frozen meat business twenty years," he said. "If the meat operators don't know they're selling themselves out of business, the cellophane people ought to tell them because it will hurt their business too."

"Look," he said (calmly, because it wasn't our money). "Have you stopped buying strawberries because the little ones are always on the bottom?"

"I see your point," said the O.P. "I guess the only break a man gets these days is in buying bottled sunshine. The last drink is always as good as the first."

FARMERS CHANGING MINDS ABOUT HATCHES
On February 1, farmers planned to raise an aggregate of 4 per cent less chickens this year than last, according to the Department of Agriculture.

But since then, the department suspects, their intentions may have been revised sharply upward. Egg prices remain favorable—they have gone up more than egg-making feeds—and the high price of meat makes the price prospects of broilers good.

That Smug Assurance

Babson Park, Fla., March 30—Despite the heart-breaking casualties of the ill-fated Korean campaign, I have not been worried about the temporary successes achieved by the Russians. I am confident that the Chinese tide will turn permanently in our favor if President Truman favors war with China.

I have been in the forefront of those who for some years have recognized that our country would one day face a Communist danger. I do not, however, believe that this Chinese threat is by any means the greatest danger facing the nation. Korea has aroused us, rudely to be sure. It has exposed in all its ugly nakedness Russian duplicity, and its threat to our future and to the peace of the world. At last, even the most stupid of our politicians can now see that Russian victory could mean world slavery.

We may never succeed entirely in making the world "safe for democracy," but our American system is far superior to Russia's in every respect. The Reds may make us dance to their tune for a time; but knowing them for what they are, I don't believe the American people will fall for either the intrigue or violence by which the Kremlin strives to reach its goals. We are too smart to be taken in by their harsh and false doctrines. So I do not fear America going Communist or being conquered by Moscow's hordes, if we will invest in the soil and forget paper profits.

What very seriously disturbs me is our extremely smug assurance that the Government of the U.S. is so strong that it can resist every type of inward corrosion. I was a little heartened by the results of the November congressional elections. They indicate that Americans are not so completely sold on the bureaucratic trend in government.

I like to think that, in addition to laying bare the evils of the Soviet system, the Korean campaign has also focused attention on the "enemy within," our own government structure. But, I am not so sure even now that we recognize fully this enemy which is eating our substance through loose fiscal policies, make-believe money, unfair tax structures, excessive government spending for non-essential purposes and various inflationary subsidies.

As I see it, the final answer to the Russian challenge is a better faith and a fuller way of life. Despite its organization and the huge sums of money spent by its supporters, the Communist Party has been unable to gain any substantial foothold in our nation. Why? Because here we have a better faith than Communism, and a fuller way of life than prevails in Moscow or any of her satellite countries.

So long as we can preserve the religious faith which has helped so mightily to make us the great nation that we are, we need not fear either the ideology or the arms of Russia. So long as we keep government controls at a minimum and maintain intact freedom to work, to save, to invest, even to risk, in worthy ventures, we shall be safe from Russian imperialism. I believe we will do this and, hence, I am an optimist.

Our country has achieved the status of a great power more quickly than any other nation in the whole history of the world. I believe that we have progressed so quickly because, for the most part, we have been true to the ideals of our forefathers. We surely should pay more attention to those ideals now and develop good old-fashioned character and common-sense in our children. Then we will be better able to discern and root out the evils which have been creeping into our government and national life and undermining character and values.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
Washington—Miss Lita Hughey gave up teaching art in a Spokane, Wash., high school during World War I and came to Washington because she thought her country needed her. She's still working for the government.

You arrive at her office on the seventh floor, or rather the "attic," of the Department of Agriculture building, in a round-about way. She calls her work room the "crow's nest," but she likes it. Its away from the hubbub and is one of the few air-conditioned areas of the big building.

Miss Hughey is known as a scientific illustrator. She's the only one in the U. S. Forest Service. She makes exact, life-like drawings of range plants and trees—grasses, leaved plants, shrubs, seeds and such. She has the unique privilege — for a government employe — of signing her work.

"Though it's easier to work found throughout the world I have to work from dried herbarium specimens I try always bring them to life," she told me. Many of her drawings are filed away in the Forest Service's herbarium to serve as permanent records of plants and trees found throughout the world.

There are some 100,000 specimens in the herbarium, the world's biggest collection. Many of these are drawings.

Miss Hughey did not do any art work at all from 1918 until 1930. She was doing stenographic work for the Veteran's Administration handling dictation all that time. "I was called a 'dictator'—but maybe you'd better not say so," she laughed.

A friend who knew about her talent as an artist and her studies in botany told her about the opening in the Forest Service. The woman who had been doing the job for years was retiring—reluctantly—at the age of 80.

A native of Decatur, Ill., and a graduate of the University of Chicago, Miss Hughey studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the Corcoran Art Gallery here. She made some 400 illustrations for the Department of Agriculture's 1949 year book, "Trees," and also made drawings for the government's "Wood Plant Seed Manual" and its "Manual of the Grasses of the United States."

She has traveled over the United States and Canada. Now she hankers to go to California when the desert flowers are in bloom, and to Mexico to make drawings and do some painting. With her brother, H. B. Hughey, former city commissioner of Mount Vernon, Ill., she is developing a jointly-owned farm, though she says it'll be a long time before she wants to settle down.

She Keeps The Record For Justice

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

When superior court convenes here Monday morning for the trial of criminal cases, one of the most familiar faces to the officials of the court will be back on the job bright and early as she has been for the past 27 years.

She is Miss Kate Wade of Goldsboro, regularly assigned court reporter for Pitt County, and known to court officials throughout the eastern part of North Carolina as Miss Kate, before and even after they learn her last name is Wade.

Probably no other court official works harder during court terms than does the reporter. And probably no other official goes more unrecognized to the spectator during the sessions than is the reporter. Because he or she is not an elected official of the county, is not invested with the authority of prosecution or defense or meting out justice, or has any voice in any of the procedure between the rail and the bar.

He or she sits halfway between the defendant and the judge, taking down the voluntary testimony of the former and the orders of the latter for the single purpose of maintaining a permanent record of what both said.

To Miss Kate, who began maintaining that record in 1924 and has worked at it regularly ever since, the job is particularly uninteresting. In her own words she describes it as monotonous, boring, hard work and tiring. But, and also in her own words, she wouldn't give it up for a seat behind the bar or a stance before the jury. Halfway between is her position—it is just that in court terminology and not a job—and that is what she likes about it. She doesn't elaborate upon why she likes her position, which one might expect from her since it is "uninteresting." She leaves it up to the person to imagine why, attributing any reason he likes.

The peculiar thing about Miss Kate's daily assignment is that the majority of the time it all goes for naught. She sits there, cases in and cases out, behind her desk writing in shorthand everything that is directed to her by the court. There is the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, then the usually conflicting testimony of the witnesses for the defendant—charges and accusations and countercharges and counteraccusations. In the pursuit of justice on the floor of the court the scene can become pretty well jumbled. However, Miss Kate has it all down in her book and when the jumbling up process gets completely out of hand, it is her job to read it back to the court to straighten out who said what and when. And in the book it says, still in the hieroglyphics of shorthand, unless and until an appeal is taken to a higher court, and then it all comes out in typewritten English for the understanding of everyone.

During the more than quarter-century she has worked behind her familiar desk in the courtrooms of the First and Fifth judicial districts, Miss Kate has seen many accused persons come and go, guilty and not-guilty. Some of the trials have taken many days, sometimes weeks, and others were over in a short while. Although she has written the court transactions of all those cases and has them all filed away, she couldn't tell you what witness John Smith stated from the box to her right any more than she could if he had been talking to someone outside the courtroom. It's all done by rote, she explains, with the witness' testimony working her fountain pen by remote control. After 27 years of doing the same thing every day, including some Sundays, it has become a cut and dried procedure.

Although the foregoing may mislead someone into thinking Miss Kate has in her mind hundreds of miles beyond the courtroom scene while she is working, such was not the case one day in 1928 in the courtroom in Goldsboro. The scene was a rape trial in which the public was greatly aroused. And the fire bordered on lynching during the trial when someone yelled, "There he is, git 'im!" Miss Kate was at her desk calmly taking down the testimony when that "git 'im" rang throughout the packed room. It was said later that presiding Judge Henry Grady of New Bern fired a pistol from his bench to restore order and that the sheriff began firing away over the spectators' heads to do the same. (It was later remembered that Grady never fired.) However, you couldn't prove it by Miss Kate.

MISS KATE WADE

She recalls with a sheepish expression that when the persons made a lunge for the defendant, prompted by that "git 'im," she was out of the courtroom and most of the way down the back stairs. But she lost a close race to the nearest exit to the defendant's attorney who had been prompted to remove himself hurriedly from the scene by the same attack on the king's English.

Old Newspaper Clipping Tells Of Letter Said Written By Christ

A while back The Reflector received a letter from Mrs. Imogene Ricks Veazey who told about a newspaper clipping that she had found pasted in the back of her mother's Bible. She sent a copy of the clipping to the editor, and it reads as follows:

LETTER SAID TO HAVE BEEN WRITTEN BY JESUS
Belongs to Greenville Family, Handed Down from Generation to Generation

To the Editor: The enclosed is a copy of a very old letter which has for years been kept in the old family Bible. I know nothing more of the history of the letter than that it, like the Bible, has been handed down for generations; the copy is made in Old English and is yellowed and falling to pieces with age, and that my great-grandfather, Colonel Lyddall Bacon, said remembered to have seen it in his grandmother's Bible from earliest recollection (referring to the chart of the family tree, I find this grandmother was Mary Allen Bacon, born 1717) a copy of which he had published in the McKlenberg Herald (McKlenberg county, Virginia) in the month of July, 1872. I have made as true a copy for you as is possible from the Old English original.

(signed) LUCY BACON HARDEE
Stem, N. C.
"Glory to God: peace on earth, good will towards men; this being a true copy of a letter written by our blessed Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and found eighteen miles from Iconium, sixty-five years after the blessed Lord and Savior's crucifixion" transcribed from the holy copy by a Jew converted faithfully; transcribed from the original Hebrew copy in possession of the Lady Cubass, a this letter written by Jesus Christ, and found under a stone both round and large, at the foot of the cross eighteen miles from Iconium near a village called Mesopotamia, upon the stone written "Blessed is he that turneth me over"; all the people that saw it prayed earnestly to God, and desired that he might make known to them the meaning of the writing that they might not attempt in vain to turn it over. Meanwhile there came a little child, about seven years old, that turned it over to the astonishment of all the people who saw it; and under the stone was found a letter written by Jesus Christ and carried to the City of Iconium and there published to all the people belonging to the city according to the commandments of Jesus Christ, signed by the angel Gabriel, ninety-six years after our Lord and Savior's birth, and this is the letter:

"Whoever worketh on the Sabbath day shall be cursed, I command you to church and keep the Lord's day holy, without doing any work, you shall not idle or mispend your time in bedecking yourselves, with superfluities of costly apparel and vain dressing, for I have ordained it a resting day to myself. I will have that day kept holy, that your sins may be forgiven, you shall not break my commandments but observe and keep them written with thine own hand; write them in your hearts and steadfastly observe them: You shall keep the Lord's day holy; you shall not only go to church yourselves, also your men servants and your maid servants, and observe my words and learn my commandments. You shall finish your labors by six o'clock every Saturday afternoon. I advise you to fast five Fridays in every year, beginning at Good Friday, and the five Fridays following: in remembrance of the five bloody wounds I received for you and all mankind. You shall diligently and peacefully labor in your respective vocation, wherever it hath pleased God to call you. You shall love one another with brotherly love and cause them that are not baptized to come to church and receive the holy Sacraments, vogo baptism and the Lord's Supper and here made members thereof. In so doing I will give you long life and many blessings, and your land shall replenish and bring forth abundance; and will comfort you in the greatest temptation, and surely he that doeth the contrary shall be cursed and unprofitable. I will also send hardness of heart upon them until I have destroyed them, especially on impenitent and hardened unbelievers; he that giveth to the poor, it shall not be unprofitable. Remember and keep holy the Sabbath day; they that have a copy of this letter and keep it without publishing it to others shall never prosper; but he that publisheth it to others shall be blessed of Me. They shall be pardoned, and if they believe not I will send My plague upon them and their children's goods, and all other worldly enjoyments that I have given to you; do but think what I have suffered for you, and if you do, it will be well with you in the world, and that which is to come. Whosoever shall have a copy of this letter and keepeth it in their house nothing shall hurt them, neither pestilence, lightning nor thunder shall do them hurt, and if a woman be with child and in labor and a copy of this letter be found about her, and she firmly puts her trust in Me, she shall safely be delivered of her birth. You shall have no more of Me until the day Judgment but by the spirit; all goodness and prosperity shall be in a house where a copy of this letter is." Evidently Lucy Bacon Hardee who owns the original copy of this letter that is supposed to have been written by Christ, once lived in Greenville, since the heading of the newspaper noted that the letter belongs to a Greenville family that had handed it down from generation to generation.

She found the letter in her family Bible, just as Mrs. Veazey found an old newspaper clipping in her family Bible, known other than what is printed here.

Girl Scout News

Dear Scouts,
We were glad to see so many of the Scouts and Brownies in meetings Thursday and Friday after such a long vacation. We noticed that all the ones who were in these meetings left with a Camp Hardee folder. Hope you took them home to let your mothers see, for they'll tell you all about camp. It seems that camp will be filled to capacity this year, so get your application in early.

We thought you might be interested in what we found Troop 4 doing. They are working on "My Country Badge." Each Scout had selected a state for special study, and had written a letter to a troop in that state in this way. One Scout who had chosen South Carolina to study had heard from a Scout. Her letter was very interesting, and she asked for three pennies to let this little Scout will acquire much information and make some nice friends, too. All the Scouts were very excited about the activity and were gathering all the newspaper articles available about the states they had chosen. They are going to gain much valuable information as well as making friends with Scouts in other states.

All the troops that did not meet this week will get their camp folders next week at their meeting time.

Scoutingly,
Susie Scout and Katie Kamper

Russell's Homer With Bases Loaded Spurs Pirates To Win Over Guilford

380-Foot Clout In Seventh Frame Provides Scoring Lead To Give East Carolina 8-6 Win Against Quakers; Boone Nine Winds Up Tour Against Elon Today

Guilford College, March 31.—Rusty Russell, a lean and lanky homerun, smashed a 380-foot homerun with the bases loaded in the seventh inning yesterday afternoon to give the East Carolina Pirates a big lead over the Guilford Quakers and enable them to go on from there to an 8-6 win.

It was Russell's first homerun of the season and came at the opportune time to give the Pirates their first conference win of the year. Prior to the first baseman's smash the game was all tied up at 3-3. However, Quaker Pitcher Craven weakened and Russell drove the ball to deep centerfield. Shortstop Billy Smith led off the inning with a single and went to second when Soles singled. Smith came home on an error by the rightfielder after Graybill was safe on a fielder's choice. All three men scored later on Russell's fourbagger.

A Tribute... To Our Ministers!

Each Sunday and oftentimes throughout the week, the minister of your church lifts his head in prayer and envisions the heaven of your faith. He is a patient man. He is an understanding man. He's there, your loyal friend, in sickness, sorrow. He officiates at weddings and visits the homes of his parishioners. Yet with all his biblical knowledge and his interest in his sermons, he is a man. A fine man. And he should be treated as a friend and companion, not merely as a cleric. Your minister and his church deserve all the support you can give them. Attend services regularly and be generous with your contributions.

TIME TRAP

By ROG PHILLIPS

Chapter 13 - Val Nelson paused outside the door to Ray's and Joe's room as he closed it, his eyes speculatively on the blank door panel. The he left the hotel, his footsteps purposive and hurried.

He caught a bus at the corner.
Several blocks later he transferred to another bus. When he got off he walked unhurriedly until he came to an alley. Just before he reached it he casually surveyed the street to make sure the few pedestrians in sight were not noticing him.

As he came even with the alley
he darted in. It was dark here.
Not dark enough yet to be black,
but enough so that he could be sure no one glancing down the alley from the street would be able to see him.

He paused in a doorway, getting his bearings then carefully counted his measured steps along the building walls, his hands lightly trailing along the wall surface to guide him. When he stopped he felt around carefully until his fingers told him he had found the right brick.

From his pocket he took a small bit of permanently magnetized metal and touched it to the brick.
Inside there was a faint click. The magnet in Val's fingers had attracted a small bit of iron inside the brick; causing it to swing forward and close a contact that connected a hidden phone to a private wire. Concealed under the false brick front was a microphone pickup and a small loudspeaker, so that after connection was made he could speak to the blank wall in a low voice and also hear the soft spoken replies. When he finished and removed the magnet metal the connection would be broken.

"Yes?" a voice vibrated from the wall with bare audibility. It was a deep, cavernous voice—but the quality of that voice might have been altered by the effects of the brick sounding board.

"Nelson, Val said briefly.
"No further instructions," the cavernous voice said. "There is an eavesdropper installed in their room in the usual place. Please check to make sure it is not discovered. You're excused."

Val put the magnet back in his pocket and returned to the street.
Two blocks further on he casually entered a public lavatory, deposited a nickel in a coin slot, and entered a stall. Seconds later the "occupied" notice slipped around to "unoccupied" without the door having been opened. This was one of the many entrances into the underground network of passages and rooms of the Custodians.

He had squeezed through a narrow opening in the back wall of the stall onto an elevator that dropped slowly as soon as he had shut the panel. When the elevator stopped a door opened. He stepped out into Arthur Granger's private office.

Besides the gray haired president of the Custodians Neal Smith and Craig Blanning were there.
From the expressions on their faces at Val's coming, they had been waiting for some time.

He grinned at them and made an O with thumb and finger. "Everything's set," he said.

"Then the Vargians acted on your suggestion to give them a free hand for the present?" Neal asked.

"Right," Val said, sitting on the edge of the desk. "I just reported to them through the alley phone contact and was told there'd be no further instructions tonight, but to check and make sure Ray and Joe hadn't discovered the eaves-dropper they put in their room."

He looked at Arthur Granger with admiration tinged with something else.

"That was a very good act you put on about Nelva being your daughter," he said. "I should keep them in line unless Nelva manages to contact Ray Bradley again by telepathy."

"It was easy," Arthur Granger said, trying to squelch a smile that rose against his will. "Hiding my face with my hands made it simple."

"I almost convinced me," Val said, giving Arthur a keen glance.
"Are you sure it isn't true?"

Arthur shrugged in disdain. "Are you relying on facts now?" he asked.
"If you are you're no use to us."

"That's right," Val Nelson said woefully. "You must consider both just as you must consider always the possibility of my being a traitor."

"What do you think of Ray and Joe?" Neal Smith asked. "You've been with them all day."

"They're all they claim," Val said. "That's obvious. They come from the age of direct thinkers. In 1950 they had codes. Codes of honesty. Codes of integrity. They did most of their reacting on trust and faith. Pragmatism was just a crude abstraction. Dialectical materialism was being practiced by a few fools in Russia with their brains clouded by a sense of success. The third leg of the triangle of modern Tactics, going under the grandiose title of non-Aristotelian logic, was fumbling along on the premise that man merely imitates the animals, and trying to create a cult. I doubt if the actual processes of reasoning of today would occur to Ray and Joe, let alone occur to them as a matter of course."

"It's refreshing to know them," Craig Blanning said lazily. "They are like children. They stumble onto something and play around at telephones with it. Then they come into the future to rescue the damsel in distress like in some dated story book." His eyes held a mixture of liking and respect.
"I'll bet they'd die under torture before they'd reveal this hiding place—if it came right down to it."

"They're knights in shining armor, all right," Val said, smiling. "In fact, they'd probably come to the conclusion we weren't for them if they learned the Vargians know all about us and that we know the Vargians know all about us. They would be unable to understand the complexities of the present situation. They'd cease to trust us. They'd become confused."

"Or," Neal Smith said softly,
"they'd make us look like amateurs. They'd catch us unawares.
They'd be licked until the last instant—and come out on top."

"They're going to come out on top anyway," Arthur Granger said.

"You know the way I mean,"
Neal said.

"Yes," Arthur said, his face becoming strained. "I know. We all do. So the Vargians. Strange how events can focus until everything, past and future, hangs on one insignificant event—like Ray finding Nelva."
(To be continued)

Locust Swarms Menacing Africa

Tripoli, Tripolitania—(A P)— Swarms of locusts resembling thunder clouds are reported to have brought desert caravans of camels to a standstill. The reports came from Derg in the interior.

Large swarms of locusts are reportedly on the move toward the north African coastline from the Nigerian and Gold Coast area.

Two Minor Auto Mishaps In City

Two motor vehicle accidents of a minor nature were reported yesterday by the Greenville police department.

A car driven by William P. Smith of Route 2, Greenville, going south on Dickinson Avenue was struck in the rear by a car following behind it near the intersection of Boyd and Dickinson avenue, around six o'clock.

Investigating officers stated that the second car was operated by Cleveland Roy Teel, age 23, Negro, of Route 4 Greenville. The Smith car was stopped for the traffic light.

Damage to the two cars was placed at $225 by the officers. No arrests were made.

Shortly before six o'clock yesterday afternoon cars driven by Ernest W. Wyatt, of Trailer Park City and Miss Alice Foley Jones, of 12 North Contentnea Street were involved in a collision at the intersection of Eighth and Cotanche streets.

Investigation by Greenville police officers indicated that the Jones car failed to halt for the "Stop" sign at Eighth street.

Damage to both cars was estimated to run around $125. No charges were lodged.

Joseph O. Cobb Dies At Hospital Today

Joseph O. Cobb, 73, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at six o'clock Saturday morning. He suffered a heart attack four days ago and had been critically ill since that time. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mr. Cobb, son of the late James O. and Martha Brann Cobb, was born and reared in Green County in the Lizzie community. He was a farmer and had lived in the Falkland community for many years. He was first married to Mary Davis of Pitt County. Later, he was married to Mrs. Flossie Peaden Powell of the Falkland community.

He is survived by his wife; two sons by his first marriage, Cleon and Harry Cobb of Baltimore, Maryland; four sons by his second marriage, J. T. Hardy, Seber Cobb of the home and Pvt. Joseph H. Cobb of the U. S. Army, now stationed at Fort Lawton, Washington; a stepson, John D. Powell of Maclefield; six grandchildren; and two sisters, Mrs. Ida Tyson of Goldsboro and Mrs. Carrie Tyson of Parmelee.

On Sunday at 12 noon and throughout the afternoon the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville will sponsor a bread sale.

It will be conducted in the same manner as last year, with club members calling at each house with a loaf of Waldensian Sunbeam bread in exchange for donations. A loaf of bread and a stamped, addressed envelope will be left at the doors of those who are not at home at the time of the call.

Proceeds of the sale will go to the Watson Memorial Fund and the Watson Memorial Wing of Pitt Memorial Hospital. In the past these funds have been used to purchase equipment for hospitalization, drugs, tonics, examinations, and treatments, and food, milk and toys for the underprivileged children of Pitt County regardless of race.

All funds have been raised by club-sponsored activities and club members wish to express their appreciation for cooperation in past drives and solicit the support of all Greenville citizens in making Bread Day a success.

Farmville, March 31—Farmville was honored Tuesday night for an intercity meeting of the Farmville, Ayden, Kinston Snow Hill and Lorange clubs.

President Walter Jones of the host club made it clear at the beginning that the program would not be of a serious nature, but would further the cause of Rotary through association and fellowship.

Charlie McCullers of Kinston, who served as master of ceremonies placed the group in a receptive mood by awarding the door prizes and conducting a community sing. After dinner more prizes were awarded and the introduction of special guest was in order. Howard McGinnis district governor, was unable to be present, but according to Russell Foster of Kinston, the meeting was not without its "brass", and Irvin Morgan of Farmville and Gene Booth of Kinston were both introduced as past district governors.

Highlight of the evening was when Joe King of Raleigh and Winston Salem began his performance. King, a member of the 1951 House of Representatives and a man of many talents through the art of ventriloquism, proved to their own amazement that some of the Farmville citizens are gifted as vocalists, to the delight of those present.

Next week there will be no regular meeting of the Rotarians on Tuesday night as there will be a consolidated meeting on Monday night, the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner, a joint meeting of the Jaycees, Rotarians and Kiwanians.

210 Rotarians and Rotary Annes were present for this meeting.

Kittrell made the motion to approve the loan as outlined in the board, Woolard then presented his resolution during the discussion and the members approved it. Following that the board voted to approve the loan only insofar as it concerned Woolard's resolution. A suggestion to hike Woolard's figure to $350,000 to cover any contingencies was thrown out, maintaining the resolution's "approximate" figure.

Finally in January of '39 he was appointed military attache at the Spanish Embassy in Washington, a post he held until Madrid surrendered two months later. Since then he has been a political refugee, representing the Republic in America.

It seems passing strange that a "government in exile" should hang on so long and so doggedly, until you remember that ideologies die hard.

General Asensio tells me that President of the Republic Diego Martinez Barrio has headquarters in Paris. With him are Fernando Valera, Vice-President of the Government and Minister of Finance;

Jose Maldonado, Minister of Justice, and Eugenio Aranz, Minister without Portfolio and Secretary of the Government.

Alvaro De Albornoz, President of the Government, Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs, is in Mexico City. Jose Maria Sarrun, Minister Without Portfolio, had headquarters in Rome, Vincent Sol, Minister Without Portfolio, is in Santiago, Chile.

Not Well . . .

"Greater numbers of American students must become familiar with the foreign languages in wide use today, with the important contemporary political issues and with the character of the several non-western geographical areas of great political importance to Americans."

The writers say U. S. participation in the Prague conference also was limited because its delegation was much smaller than the Soviet delegation and was not equipped to compete with the cultural and sports teams and exhibitions brought from the East.

"This condition has been true of almost all U. S. participation in international gatherings among youth and students," they say. "The lesson here calls for much greater and more effective support of this phase of United States student extracurricular activity."
