New Name For ECTC Is Adopted

No Debate On Measure, But Underscores Trend In General Education

Unlike that classic of political name-changing—Change the name of Arkansas?—Gad said—the General Assembly yesterday wiped out the initials E. C. T. C., and substituted the name East Carolina College.

The change, according to students, teachers and alumni, is for the best since the initials have been run together to come out "esi test" since the college opened its doors in 1907. And, too, the change was in order since the college has offered its students a degree in bachelor of arts since 1941, making it not primarily a teachers college.

Upon the recommendation of the board of trustees of the college during its February meeting, the request to make the change was presented to the legislature by Senator Paul Jones of Farmville.

A statement from Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, has it that the request was put to the students, teachers and alumni. All three groups voted overwhelmingly in favor of the change and thus the request went to the trustees.

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, April 7.—Under terms of a bill introduced by Senator Paul Jones of Pitt county and swiftly passed under suspension of the rules in both Senate and House Friday morning, East Carolina Teachers College at Greenville was legislated out of existence. In its place is a newly named institution—East Carolina College. Few members in either legislative body at time of passage of the bill realized what was happening, or the implications of the action being taken without debate on merits or discussion of trends.

The trend is definitely away from specialized teacher training and toward the field of a general education in liberal arts, at a time when public school forces, including teachers, insist that specialized training is more essential than ever before and should be rewarded with higher salaries for specially trained teachers.

Preamble to the act passed by both houses Friday and which will probably be ratified Monday, sets out that since the college offers courses of instruction and grants degrees in fields other than teacher training, recipients of these degrees object to the word "Teacher" in the name of the college issuing the diplomas and citations.

Senator Jones prefaced introduction of his bill with reading a resolution recently adopted by the board of trustees urging the change in name for the reason set out in preamble to the bill and for several others; among them being objection to the similarity with the initials letters of Elizabeth City State Teachers College, an institution for Negroes, and with East Carol Training School for delinquent white boys at Rocky Mount. It is further noted that a national trend is away from teacher designation, many states having eliminated the term from institutions comparable to E.C.T.C.

Both the resolution and the preamble to the bill set out that for the present and immediate future there is no purpose to displace teacher training as the primary objective of the college.

At the same time, major reason given for the change in name is that the institution has branched out far beyond the scope contemplated in its original charter in providing courses and degrees in other fields not too closely related to school teaching.

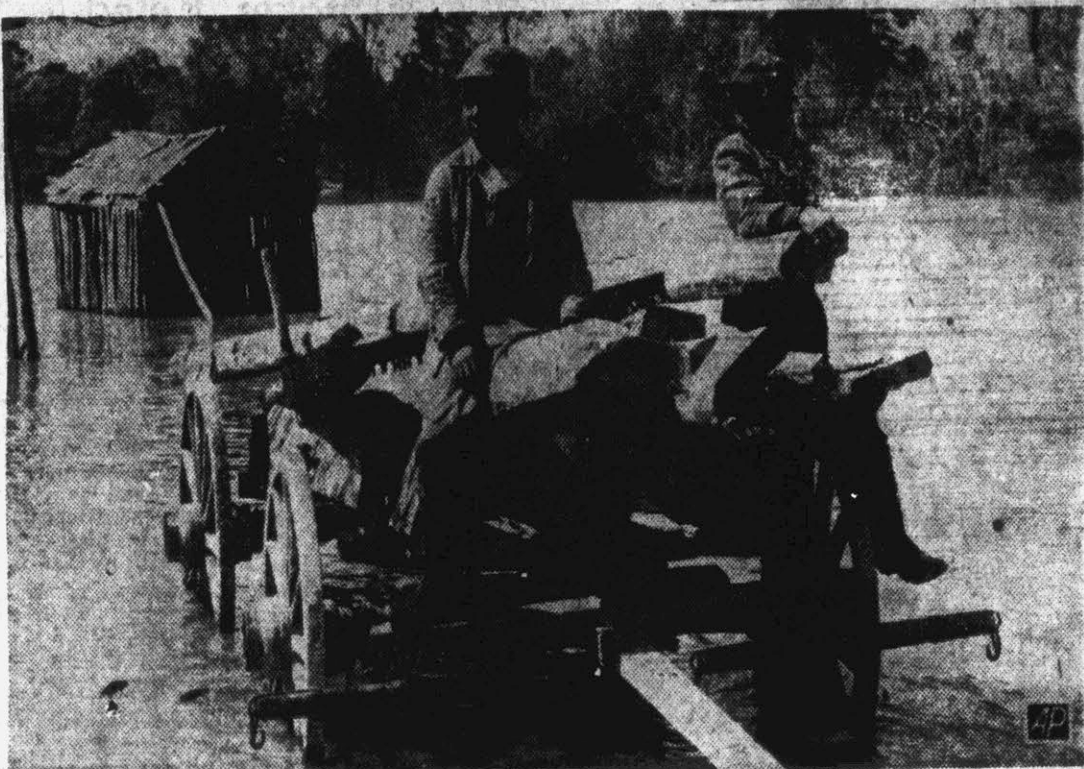

This trend has been noted in budget requests made during the past several years and repeatedly the

An Explosive Letter
General MacArthur Reopened An Old Issue And Reiterated A Previous Opinion In Urging Use Of Chiang's Troops; Arguments Used Against Such A Procedure
By DEWITT MACKENZIE

General MacArthur's letter to move might mean an all-out war with China, and this might easily result in another world conflict. Most experts figured that at the best a war with China would mean beating the Chinese on their own home grounds, with Russia giving them every possible aid and short of declaring war herself.

Duncan In Race For Mayor; Three Aldermanic Entries

Stafford Declines To Run Again; Lloyd Williams, James Brewer, R. L. Smith File

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.
Next to the last minute filings for the May 7 city elections took place late yesterday afternoon and this morning when three candidates for alderman and one candidate for mayor filed in the city clerk's office.

H. H. Duncan, assistant tax collector for the city, filed for the position of mayor this morning after mayor W. S. Stafford stated he would not be a candidate for a second term. Duncan, who for all intents and purposes goes by the title of assistant city clerk, filed just before noon today.

Previous to that he had informed Stafford he would file for the office. Thereupon, Stafford told him definitely he would not run again. Duncan stated to a Reflector reporter that he had asked Stafford this morning if he would run and if he did, (Duncan) would not be a candidate. Stafford vetoed the idea of his running and Duncan then filed.

Meanwhile, three aldermanic wards have new candidates as two filed this morning in the clerk's office and the other filed yesterday afternoon.

Lloyd Williams, 1225 Evans Street, filed for the position of alderman from the fifth ward and will run against incumbent James S. Jenkins. The other candidates who threw their political hats into the ring today are James Brewer, filing from the first ward against incumbent Heber Tripp, and Robert Lee Smith, filing from the fourth ward against a field which includes incumbent W. M. Pollard, and new candidates Harry Spreitzer and James Little.

Williams is a native of Pitt County and for many years has been a garage mechanic. Last year he opened his own garage on Grande Avenue after leaving Copeland Motor Company where he had held the job of service manager for five years. He was a volunteer member of the Greenville Fire Department for 17 years, is married and has four children.

Brewer, who is a native of Bethel but who has lived in Greenville for 37 years, is now affiliated with Hooker and Buchanan Insurance Company. He is a graduate of East Carolina and in later years was assistant chief engineer for the college. Prior to that he was employed by the Greenville utilities in the service department.

Commenting on his candidacy as alderman from the first ward,

Indians Bring Up Manchuria Issue

Ask If MacArthur Given Authority To Bomb Red Bases

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—India asked the U. S. today whether Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been given authority to bomb bases in Manchuria "under certain conditions."

An Indian Embassy official also sought information at the State Department about Speaker Sam Rayburn's statement to the House that communist forces are massing in Manchuria and they are all Chinese.

The American reaction was not immediately made known. Also today, President Truman discussed the "world situation" with Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall and General Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

India's questions on bombing apparently were related to MacArthur's statement in Tokyo March 24 when he proposed military talks to end the Korean war and said: "A decision by the United Nations to depart from its tolerant effort to contain the war to the area of Korea, through an expansion of our military operations to his coastal and internal bases, would doom Red China to the risk of imminent military collapse."

Long-Time College Faculty Member Dies Early Today

Dr. Beecher Flanagan, faculty member of the department of social studies at East Carolina College for the past 26 years, died this morning at 12:30 at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville. He had suffered a heart attack ten days ago while conducting a class at the college.

In 1925 Dr. Flanagan joined the teaching staff at East Carolina and since that time has lived in Greenville, where he participated in a number of community projects. At the college he was a popular staff member among both students and faculty members and participated in numerous student activities as faculty advisor and in various phases of the work of the college.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home in Greenville by the Rev. Leonard W. Topping of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Burial will be in the White Oak Cemetery in Chattanooga, Tenn. Monday afternoon.

Dr. Flanagan was born May 24, 1896, in Casey County, Ky. He was the son of Mrs. I. S. Flanagan of Chattanooga and the late Mr. Flanagan. He spent his boyhood in Chickamauga, Ga., and attended

Secretary Sawyer Held In Contempt Of Court
Washington, April 7.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has drawn a contempt of court citation for his part in the long, bitter fight over control of the $68,000,000 American President Shipbuilding Line.

The citation was made yesterday by the U. S. Court of Appeals. It said Sawyer had failed to carry out the court's order to return the shipping line to its former owner, the Dollar Company.

Reappraisal Set For Deferments In Draft Set-Up

Comes At Critical Point In House Consideration Of UMTS Measure

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—New liberalized plans for draft deferment of high school graduates and college students, announced this week, will be reviewed at a special meeting Monday of the House Armed Services committee.

This reappraisal, with Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, Selective Service Director, doing the explaining, comes at a critical point during House consideration of the highly controversial Universal Military Training and Service (UMTS) bill.

Reportedly, the House Armed Services committee in approving the Draft-UMTS bill okayed the student deferment plans in outline. Several members have since found they didn't realize how liberal they would be until spelled out.

Supporters of the UMTS bill did a double-gulp when, amid arguing in the House the necessity of reducing the present draft age from 19 years to 18 years and six months they read front page stories of the new student deferment regulations. These would permit students now in college to continue either on the basis of past high scholastic standing or a record of 70 on special aptitude tests to be offered this summer.

Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.), a member of the Armed Services committee, announced he would offer an amendment to kill this plan.

U. S. Education Commissioner Earl James McGrath said today only about 220,000 of the nation's 1,059,000 college men currently are "eligible" for the draft.

Even if the draft age is reduced to 18—as in the UMTS bill passed by the Senate—only about 370,000 college students will be eligible, McGrath said in a prepared statement.

McGrath defended the deferment plan against charges it is undemocratic.

"Through the use of tests and the students' previous academic record, those who possess special abilities are given the privilege of serving in the nation's need. They will be selected on an objective, and therefore democratic basis."

The live program will be transmitted to classrooms and the assembly hall of the nearby parish school, which is expected to take care of the expected overflow crowd.

Legislators Hold Full Session In Drive To Close
Raleigh, N. C. April 7.—(AP)—The House and Senate held their first full Saturday sessions of the 1951 General Assembly today. Saturdays customarily are given to local bills and usually only about a half dozen senators and representatives are present.

In its all-out drive for final adjournment by the end of next week, both houses met yesterday and last night. At the night session many bills were given second readings. They are expected to come up for third, and final, readings today.

Solons Ask If Arms For Korea Going To Europe

Query Raised When MacArthur Says South Korean Soldiers Released Because Arms And Equipment Lacking

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—Two Republican senators demanded to know today whether arms shipments are being diverted from Korea to Europe.

Senators Bridges (R-NH) and Knowland (R-Calif.) said military officials will be asked to explain to the Senate Appropriations and Armed Services committees why sufficient equipment isn't available to arm more than 100,000 South Koreans who could be pressed into the fighting.

Their demands came on disclosure that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had said that the release of 120,000 South Korean reserves last month "involves basic political decisions beyond my control."

South Koreans were released because the Korean government lacked clothing and equipment for them.

MacArthur said in a cable yesterday to Suzanne LaFollette, one of the editors of the magazine "Freedom" that he had nothing to add to information given March 31 in news reports of the move.

The issue is one debated by the Republic of Korea and the United States government and involves basic political decisions beyond my authority," MacArthur said.

State Department officials here said the release of the men came as a result of "a domestic decision made by the government of the Republic of Korea." They added that it was their understanding that the men were not combat troops "but a kind of a home guard."

Bridges told a reporter he thinks there is "something radically wrong" when South Koreans are permitted to go home while Americans are being drafted to fight in Korea.

Knowland said he understands the South Koreans were told by their government to go home and plant crops when it became apparent that they couldn't be given fighting equipment.

"I'm interested in knowing what percentage of the military supplies we are shipping abroad goes to Europe and what percentage is going to Korea and other areas in the Far East," he said.

Matter Of Insurance

Columnist Again Reminds Public That A Small Farm Provides The Best Refuge In Event Of Third World War; Smugness May Well Lead To New Troubles

By ROGER BABSON

Washington, D. C. April 7.—For some time, I have been advising my readers who live in large cities to have—as insurance—a small house with enough land to feed one's family, and far enough away from the large city to be safe in case of World War III. I am not recommending farming as a small business, as it is fast becoming a "big business" operation. It is very difficult for an inexperienced person, without much capital, to compete with big farmers. As insurance, however, I believe such a small piece in the country is the cheapest, safest and most sensible insurance a family can buy, after being insured against fire.

BEING SMUG WILL NOT PAY
I am now getting letters from readers saying:—"We already have a house to which we can flee in an emergency. Hence, we are okay whatever happens. This week I wish to remind such readers that they have forgotten the 'refugee problem'. It is very possible that when you reach your 'hide-away', you will find it already occupied by others who have fled from a large city and—

UN Troops Stab Deeper Northward Over Roads Strawn With Mines, Tank Traps And Booby-Trapped Mortar Shells; Jets Again In Big Dogfight

Tokyo, April 7.—(AP)—United Nations forces stabbed deeper into Red Korea today against little opposition.

On most sections of the western and central battlefronts, the communists had withdrawn suddenly and strangely.

But they left behind roadways of death. The routes leading north were sowed thickly with mines, booby-trapped mortar shells and pits dug to trap tanks. The forward pace was slow.

Censorship cloaked the distance gained.

AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said lack for firm contact with the Reds for miles north of the border surprised most allied observers.

On the western front, patrols crossed the Han River at several points four to six miles north of the border. They drew fire from the north bank and pulled back.

British Commonwealth troops on the central front consolidated their positions in the Red north-land.

American and Thai (Siamese) units north of the border met only small arms and automatic weapons fire.

An Eighth Army communique said Red casualties Friday totaled about 835.

The Reds sent 40 Russian-made MIG jets flying over northwest Korea near the Manchurian border. They were jumped by 50 U. S. F-84 Thunderjets in a wild dogfight above Samui.

American pilots claimed two Red jets were damaged—one of them probably destroyed. All the Thunderjets returned safely to their bases.

N. Korean ground forces were all over of parades in Seoul, one point in the center. Their main gains won with no opposition other than the traps.

Almost all across the front the hills had been cleared of Red Chinese and North Koreans.

The only hard fighting was in the area immediately north of Yonchon and up the Hanggye-Inje road east of Chunchon. Suburban Reds were dug in both places.

Before suddenly pulling back to the high ground north of the Han River the communists sowed trails and roads with mines. Their fade back was in the face of heavy allied artillery that helped American troops clear five hills on the Hanggye-Inje road for slight advances.

A British brigade swept over 38 into North Korea against light opposition but bumped into mines.

Thai (Siamese), Greek and American troops encountered Chinese mortar shells mines south of the hydroelectric power reservoir town of Hwachon, a few miles inside North Korea.

The Thai troops took a booby-trapped hill from the withdrawing Chinese just south of Hwachon.

The Chinese seemed determined to defend Yonchon, a road junction six miles inside North Korea. They threw up rugged tank defenses which included deep craters and roadblocks and blew the highway bridge just south of Yonchon.

ALL-TIME HIGH

Raleigh, April 7.—(AP)—North Carolina's highway traffic last month set an all-time high for March and ran eight per cent over the total for March, 1950.

Colorful Bold Woodcuts By Frasconi On Display

New materials and designs for woodcuts may be seen in the 16 woodcuts by Antonio Frasconi which will be exhibited from April 8 to April 13 at E.C.T.C. in the Gallery in Austin Building through special arrangements with the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

Frasconi's investigations in using new materials, such as cloth to achieve a fresh textural background, are partly from his creative curiosity, and also from the fact that as a young student he lacked money to buy customary materials, and so experimented with what was around him.

Born of Italian parents in Uruguay in 1913, he was educated in Montevideo. When 20 years old, he held a one-man show, and in 1948 he arrived in America to study at the Art Students League.

Rich reds, purples, and blues predominate in his unusually large woodcuts. His highly decorative style is also intensely emotional. Frasconi's cutting is rugged and vigorous, and heavy printing and ink shagreening his striking designs.

The exhibition of 16 woodcuts, prepared for exhibition in Virginia by his New York dealer, shows his unusual approach to everyday subject matter. One of the large woodcuts is of a modern mother and child done in red-brown with scarlet outlines.

Another woodcut is of a small boy carrying a gigantic squawking rooster, the red-feathered bird with its swirling tail and great yellow claws is quite an armload.

Frasconi's sympathy for the Spanish culture which has vanished is shown by two woodcuts of Don Quixote, whom the artist has taken as a symbol of Old Spain, remote both in time and character.

In one of these, a back view, the worthy Don proudly salutes the sun while his pony cranes his neck around to look dispiritedly behind him. The other woodcut catches something of the fantastic mad face of a knight who tilted with windmills, and charged a flock of sheep. Both give a sense of his violent, erratic actions.

Another exhibit is on display in the art department of "Houses U.S.A. 1907-1948" by the Museum of Modern Art and the Architectural Forum.

Another exhibit is of weaving, ceramics, sculpture, painting, and school arts by the E.C.T.C. students. About 6,000 students from East Carolina high schools, colleges, and townpeople have visited these exhibits. The College is very grateful for the privilege of borrowing the very finest exhibits in America to bring to an appreciative audience in Greenville. Many North Carolina soon have a museum that will do the same for its citizens in East Carolina.

Art Exhibit At Eppes School Opens Community Art Week

By MARTHA S. FORBES

The Community Art Festival got underway yesterday with the opening of the art exhibit at the C. M. Eppes High School.

The work of the students in the elementary and high schools is displayed in the auditorium of the Eppes School, and the exhibit is arranged according to grades, with special emphasis on some original creative drawings done by the students in addition to their regularly assigned projects.

Mr. M. S. Allen, art supervisor for the Negro schools, said, "The theme of the exhibit is 'Art Integrated and Correlated With the School Program.' The students did nothing special for this display; it represents selected works that were done throughout the year by the art students in their regular classes. The students themselves chose the works they liked best to use at this time."

The exhibit is colorful and attractively arranged. The auditorium is a veritable showplace of hundreds of creative drawings in water colors, chalk, oils and crayons. There are some excellent maps which were done in connection with the geography classes. There are exceptional reproductions of Roman ruins and other famous historical places which were produced by history and foreign language students. There are many attractive abstract designs which exemplify the pleasing use of color combinations, as well as design patterns on cloth and linoleum block printing.

Many murals done by children in the primary grades illustrate some of the stories that they have read. Finger painting and pictures arranged to show the progress the children have made in their work during the year are also interesting. The poster work done in connection with the students' mathematics, health and science classes shows yet another facet of the type of art work which is being taught by Mrs. Allen.

There are several portraits done by advanced students of people who sat for the painting. There are several outstanding nature scenes, as well as some abstract designs. One particularly noticeable drawing is a copy of the famous "Christ in Gethsemane."

The exhibit is an indication of much talent among the students and is worthy proof of the fine work that is being done by Mrs. Allen.

On Monday night there will be a musical program at the Eppes School, with Professor W. H. Davenport presiding. There will be a band concert, selections by the South Greenville Glee Club under the direction of Miss Catherine Gibson, selections by the Fleming Street Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Davenport. The art exhibit will be on display all of next week, and the public is cordially invited to attend the concert and to drop in some time during the week to see the art work.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Peggy Edwards, J. C. Paige, Jr.

MRS. JAMES CLIFTON PAIGE, JR.

Miss Peggy Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edwards of Simpson, and James Clifton Paige Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clifton Paige of Greenville, were married in a candlelight ceremony

March 25 at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the Salem Methodist Church. The Rev. C. G. Nickens officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Virginia Belle Cooper of Ayden and Mrs. Moyle Dail of Greenville, vocalists, rendered a program of wedding music prior to the ceremony.

The vows were spoken before an altar of green pines, of white gladioli, of snapdragons and trailing ivy. Seven and nine branched candelabras holding cathedral candles were used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight duchess satin fashioned with a portrait neckline made of sheer nylon and self shirred insertion at the yoke and skirt and having long light sleeves which ended in calla lily points over the hand. Miniature satin covered buttons extended down the back of the fitted bodice and the full skirt extended into a long flowing train. The long flowing veil of imported silk illusion fell from a bonnet of embroidered pearls and a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried an orchid showered with valley lilies with streamers on a white prayer book.

Mrs. Hugh Sumrell Jr. of Simpson attended her sister as matron-of-honor. Her gown was of chartruse net over taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, low pointed neckline and a full ruffled skirt. She wore matching mitts of net, a picture hat and carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink carnations with pink streamers.

The bridesmaids were Pansy Sue Edwards of Simpson, Rebecca Andrews and Jennie Downer of Richmond, Va., and Carrie Frances Elks of Grimsland. They wore gowns of pink net over taffeta fashioned identical to that of the matron of honor. They wore matching mitts, picture hats and carried bouquets of chartruse carnations with chartruse streamers.

Little Miss Carolyn Sumrell of Simpson, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was of white organdy fashioned with a ruffled skirt and she wore a picture bonnet. She carried a white basket and scattered rose petals as she went down the aisle.

Master Tommy Fleming of Grimsland was ringbearer and carried the rings on a miniature white satin pillow.

Mr. James C. Paige attended his son as best man. Groomsman were Hugh Sumrell Jr. of Simpson, brother-in-law of the bride, Hubert and Fred Edwards of Simpson, brothers of the bride, and Tommy Smith of Greenville.

Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Jane Edwards, Joyce Moxing, Jane Tucker, Billy Briley, Annie Hardee, Thelma Jane Hardee, Mary Lou Clark, Mary Jane Ange, Peggy Daniels and Magalene Hodges. They wore pastel gowns and corsages to match.

Mrs. Edwards, mother of the bride, wore a gown of aqua crepe trimmed with lace and pink accessories. Her corsage was an orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding reception was held at the Simpson Community Building. The reception room was decorated with arrangements of white snapdragons, carnations, greenery and candelabras holding burning tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tucker introduced the guests in. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cozart introduced the guests to the wedding party. Mrs. Vance Harrington presided at the punch bowl and the honorary bridesmaids assisted in serving. Miss Tull Edwards presided over the bride's register. Mrs. Roy Edwards acted as hostess during the reception.

Following the reception, the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling the bride wore a lavender suit with lavender accessories and the white orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Mrs. Paige graduated from Fork Union Military School, Smithfield-Massey Business College and Shuford Institute of Barbering.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mrs. Hazel C. O'Brien of Washington, D.C., Hazel Harris of Farmville, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Views Japan As Key To Far East

Dr. A. D. Frank, head of the department of social studies at East Carolina, told members of the Exchange Club last night in his opinion Japan is the key to the entire Far East situation as to how that state of flux will be settled.

Making an informal talk to the club in its regular meeting, Frank stated he thought if Russia makes any large scale attack in the Far East theater it will be in the direction of Japan. Already the Soviet has a stepping stone on its path to U. S.-occupied Japan through its ownership of the island north of the country, he said.

On that island, which came under Russian possession after the close of hostilities in the last war, Frank was of the opinion that Russia has a strong armed force, including two or three airborne divisions, which could be used effectively in any armed move in that area.

Concerning China's present status in the Korean war, Frank thought because of that fact Russia would not attack any part of the country. Rather, he said, the attack would be against Japan, if any attack is made.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

UNDER THE GREAT BATON

The concert is about to begin. A hundred musicians are gathered on the stage. Some are tuning their instruments but most of them are quietly playing over certain difficult parts of the program about which they never feel entirely sure.

The result of all this, of course, is indescribable discord and confusion. Each man is quietly playing his part of the program without any reference to anyone else.

But here comes the conductor. Now each musician begins to play his part under the direction of the conductor's baton and with the most scrupulous regard for the performance of every other member of the orchestra. What was discord a few minutes ago when each man was playing his own part, now becomes harmony of ravishing beauty, as each man's part is blended into the playing of his neighbor's part, and all under the direction of the conductor.

There is discord all along our streets, in our offices, in the government, in the clubs, within the political parties, because each man insists on playing his own part without any regard for others. It is only when we play that part of the great symphony assigned to us and are scrupulous to see that we harmonize with the playing of others, and do it all under the direction of the Great Conductor, that discord turns into harmony.

A Step To Cement Better Relations

The decision of the police committee of the Board of Aldermen to hire a Negro policeman for the city police force is a wise move. We have no doubt that the action will pay off big dividends.

For a number of years there has been talk in the city government circles about hiring one or more Negro policemen on the city police force; but in past years, the proposition has not advanced beyond the talking stage. If the action had been taken earlier, we are of the opinion the law enforcement in the Negro sections of Greenville would have improved greatly.

But even so, it is gratifying now to see that the aldermen have seen fit to authorize the step. At least it will not be delayed longer.

Although the police committee did not specify the step as an experiment proposition, we have an idea that it is such; and if it proves a help toward better law enforcement in the city, other Negro policemen may be added to the police force as time goes on.

Greenville, fortunately, has enjoyed good law enforcement in the past years, and we have no idea that the situation will change in the future. The police force has enjoyed the general cooperation of both the white and Negro citizens of Greenville.

The step by the police committee in authorizing the hiring of a Negro policeman is an action which should cement even better relations between the police department and the general public of Greenville.

A Pill To Prevent Future OPS Headaches

Regulations which have been issued by the Office of Price Stabilization, like most government control regulations, are confusing and complicated to the ordinary businessman.

But regardless of the complexity of the regulations, each merchant or businessman who is affected by the regulations is charged with the responsibility of abiding by the standards set forth by the OPS.

It is probably a gross understatement to comment that the new regulations of the OPS are causing headaches in almost every business in Pitt county. But fortunately for the business people of the county, the Greenville Merchants Association has succeeded in getting the director to send to Greenville representatives who are to explain the regulations at a general meeting in the city hall Tuesday night.

The meeting will provide the businessmen of Pitt county a rare opportunity to get first hand, from people who are supposed to know the answers, an explanation of what is required under the regulations.

The Reflector urges the business people of the county to take advantage of the meeting, and to secure what information they can from the explanation of the OPS representatives. By attending the meeting, local business people should receive the answer to many of their questions about the regulations, and by attending the meeting, the business people may avoid many future headaches from the OPS regulations.

The Sentence Of Death To Traitors

A shudder ran through the American public this week when Judge Irving R. Kaufman pronounced the death sentence to two American citizens who were found guilty of spying for Russia.

It was not a shudder of fear, nor was it a shudder of delight. It was with a note of determined grimness that the American people greeted the sentence pronounced by the judge.

The American people, by nature, are too often inclined to be lenient with those people who are found guilty of trying to undermine the freedom which exists here in this nation. Too often the general public would passively choose the lesser sentence if they sat in the judge's seat and looked down on convicted criminals.

The Reflector is of the opinion it was with a degree of reluctance, but in full realization of the issues at stake in the trial that Judge Kaufman ordered Julius and Ethel Rosenberg executed for giving American atomic secrets to the Russians.

The American people may have been inclined to be lenient, but Judge Kaufman realized that America can no longer be lenient with those who would destroy our nation from within and from without. We are locked in a struggle for the survival of our very way of life. If we do not protect ourselves to the fullest, we shall soon see the barbarian hordes over-running our nation.

The death sentences to the Rosenbergs stand as a testimony of the determination of this nation to protect its own life. There is no reason to believe these death sentences will touch off a ruthless purge of subversive groups in America; but it is a symbol to those within the United States and without that this nation will not handle tenderly those individuals who are seeking to divulge our scientific secrets to our enemies.

Just as the death sentences demanded a second thought from the loyal American citizens, they likewise demanded a second thought from those people within this country and outside this country would seek to do the United States harm.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 7.—"As an ordinary American," writes Mrs. F.S. of Charlotte, N.C., "my blood boils when I read newspaper stories of how the foreign diplomats at Washington, New York and throughout the country sometimes kill and maim our people with their reckless driving, also cause us property damage, and get away scot-free because of what they call 'diplomatic immunity'."

"What is the matter with our State Department? Isn't there some way to punish these Ambassadors, Ministers, Military and Naval Attaches, and the members of their households? Why should they be permitted to violate our most elementary laws for protection of life and property? Why do we have to know to them?"

IMMUNITY.—Answer: This is a sensitive question with me, for many years ago—1926—the former Minister from Sweden, one Boström, ran me down and wrecked my car. It is a miracle that I escaped serious injury.

Although he was clearly at fault, as the police said, he was not insured. I took the matter to Secretary of State Hughes, who, although sympathetic, could do nothing and I was stuck with no recourse.

This is not an isolated incident. I cite it simply to show how bad conditions once were. I know an automobile dealer who sold an expensive car to a diplomat on an installment plan.

After he had made only a few months' payments, the foreign representative was recalled. He drove the car to New York, loaded it aboard a vessel, and never paid another nickel. His diplomatic immunity prevented the dealer from bringing a civil suit against him or his government.

OUTWORN.—The theory of "diplomatic immunity" is as outworn as the idea of the divine right of kings and medieval knights in armor. It is based on the premise that a diplomatic agent represents his sovereign, and that, therefore, he must be above the law while carrying on that sovereign's affairs. We, of course, are accorded reciprocal privileges abroad.

It was a silly custom even in the days of old-fashioned, old-powerful monarchs. But when diplomats represent democratic, socialist, fascist and other forms of governments, many of whose officials can not even afford an automobile save for financial subsidies from the public purse, it is an even more absurd arrangement.

ACCIDENTS.—There is also a practical phase of the problem. Years ago only wealthy diplomats could afford a car at Washington and elsewhere. Even the best makes could go only thirty or forty miles an hour. But in view of our congested streets and high-powered engines, it becomes a traffic rather than a diplomatic question.

I might add, too, that most of the accidents occur when the diplomats are returning from dinners, cocktail parties, the races or other exciting events, and not on their sovereign's business.

INSURANCE.—Conditions have improved, but they could be better if, say, Secretary Acheson would give the problem his attention.

Most diplomats now find it advisable to carry accident and collision insurance. Even when they don't, they usually make a settlement with the victim or his family. If they don't, we can ask their recall.

In discussing the question with State officials, I asked why the nations could not agree to take out blanket insurance on all their overseas automobiles, with the United States doing the same. That would give full protection to everybody.

State did not think this plan feasible, although I cannot understand this reaction. After all, it would be Marshall Plan or other forms of American money they would use to pay the insurance premium.

Poker Power Politics

AIN'T THERE SOME BETTER WAY OF "WINNING THE PEACE"?

OH, THIS ISN'T GAMBLING, THE WAY I PLAY—I ALWAYS SHOW MY HAND—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

This true statement is a tongue-twister: A woman is more "man" than a man is. In the language of the man on the street, you refer to the strength and stability of a man in terms of how much "man" he is. The awful truth is that a woman has more strength and stability than a man. This business you hear about the weaker sex is a lot of hokey. Women live longer, fewer girls die in infancy, and women are generally healthier.

Frankly, I've been knowing about this for a long time. But just to keep it fresh in my mind, something happens every now and then to emphasize the fact that W.R. can put me in the shade. The best example I can think of is shopping. If there's a man in Greenville who can follow a woman through a day of shopping I'll take my hat off to him. It simply takes more strength than the average man has. Of course you have to consider that shopping trips work against a man psychologically, too. When he knows the bank account is in a nose dive, there's more reason to become exhausted.

You've probably heard the story about the man who thought keeping house and children was a cinch, so his wife changed places with him to let him give it a try. He was ready to change back in a few days. Even if I do admit that keeping house is a big job, there's one thing the housewife does that a businessman can't do and make a living. When one of the girls calls up another to check a desert recipe the conversation usually lasts for an even hour after the recipe is ancient history. Granted, housekeeping is a 15-hour-a-day job if you have a small child, but usually three of the 15 are spent on the telephone. It's only fair to point out that when a salesman makes a call he usually chats for a while about personal things before getting down to the business of selling his product. But this usually lasts about five minutes, which is noting compared to the hours housewives spend on the phone.

While I'm giving the housewife a twist, I can't resist saying this: In a column a few weeks ago I mentioned that I was planning to have some book shelves built around the front door to hold the books I can read between the time W.R. says "I'm ready" and we leave. Of all the things I've written about, I think this has provoked more comment. No husband who has mentioned it to me has a solution. Most of them get ready, go sit in the car and relax. They've learned a long time ago that it doesn't help to pace the floor or yell. They just accept the fact that they're going to be late. By now there must have been ten million words written about this old story of the man vs. the woman. It hurts to admit that they've got us beat on endurance, but at the same time we can rib them for a few other shortcomings. It takes all kinds to make the world go around. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

BEDLAM.—Members of the house of representatives might resent application of the primary definition of the word "bedlam" to their chamber, but nobody who was there Friday morning will question correctness of the derivative definition. The dictionary says that "bedlam" is a madhouse, a place filled with lunatics; and, hence, has become used to describe any scene of uproar and confusion. There was uproar and confusion aplenty in the house chamber when three committees were holding public hearings at the same time. Among the chief needs of the state during legislative sessions is space for committee meetings.

TRIPLE.—On the main floor of the house, Judiciary and Salaries & Fees committees were holding joint hearings on Sampson county bills, involving charges and counter charges of Democrats trying to legislate Republicans out of jobs to which they had been elected. In the balcony the committee on public health was hearing arguments for and against proposal for a licensing board for physical therapists. Both floors were filled with interested participants and spectators. Stentorian voices of Senator Kivers Johnson downstairs and Blucher Ehringhaus upstairs competed for the full attention of everybody all over the place. It was confusing and would have been amusing but for the consciousness that the occasion was supposed to be deliberative sessions of important legislative committees passing upon the rights and privileges and obligations of all the people.

PARTISAN.—In addition to the Sampson bills, the salaries and fees committee also had a bill from Stanley county purporting to put the clerk of court on salary basis rather than fees. In both instances the bills were sponsored by Democratic senators and opposed by Republican representatives. There were loud protestations that no partisan politics were involved, but that the bills sought simply to put local offices in these Republican counties on comparable level with the rest of the state and improve efficiency by fixing compensation.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.—Advocates of ABC stores got considerable support for their positions in statements made with reference to the Sampson county law enforcement problem. Sampson is perhaps one of the strongest voting dry counties in the state, but from what both Democrats and Republicans said about it, it is just about as wet in fact as the Gulf of Mexico. The debate soon resolved itself into the question of whether the sheriff can do a better job of running out bootleggers under the present system or under the plan proposed by Senator Johnson's bills. Sheriff Robert Pleasant of Wake, who is of course a staunch Democrat, spoke against the bills designed to transfer some authority from the Sampson sheriff to a rural police force. A former Democratic sheriff of Sampson, Carlyle Jackson, wrote a letter opposing the transfer. The sheriffs were sticking together. Meeting time of the general assembly prevented a committee vote on the bills, but to sideline observers it appeared that the Democrats also were sticking together. When the committee votes next Tuesday it may give unfavorable reports to the bills which will almost assure their defeat; but chances are strong the committee will approve the measures which have already passed the senate and thus assure dominance of the Democratic majority—which in this assembly is at ratio of 110 to 10 in the house, 42 to 2 in the senate.

CORRECTION.—By unanimous consent the senate voted to "correct" the journal. It wasn't a correction. It was an addition. Senator L. H. Fountain of Edgecombe, who had worked long and hard on the appropriations subcommittee, was absent by reason of illness and could not vote for the appropriations bill Thursday. He asked to be recorded as voting for the bill, and his colleagues obliged. In making his request Senator Fountain indicated he had sought in committee to get more money for some purposes, but was gratified at the totals reported out. "If Chairman John Larkin and Larry Moore had intent to stack the subcommittee with conservatives, as was charged in newspapers," he said, "they stacked it with the most liberal group of conservatives I ever associated with."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LET'S BUILD ROADS-AND PRESERVE THEM TOO..... (Hertford County Herald)

Several times in the immediate past we have acknowledged with pleasure to ourselves and profit to our rural areas the construction of highways from the $200 million bond issue of two years ago. Again this week, we repeat those observations and repledge our allegiance to the present state administration's road program. This newspaper carried the news Tuesday about another 20 miles of hard roads Hertford County will get from the bond proceeds.

Building roads, next to building young men and women in the state's schools, is the biggest and most important business in which North Carolina is engaged. The rural road program is, to our way of thinking, the greatest road-building achievement since we inaugurated the state eye-tem in the early 1920's. A recital of reasons why is unnecessary here where we live and do business. The benefits are too obvious. They are here for all to see and personally experience.

But, there is one thing we beneficiaries of rural roads must learn to do and do quickly, if the maximum long-range benefits are to remain with us. These country roads must be preserved, else a lot of money is going to be wasted. There are signs of abuse of the new rural roads. Overloading of vehicles, including trailer trucks, heavy duty trucks, tractors, logging and lumber carriers, or other kind, can quickly pound the country roads to pieces. It looks like that is being done in some places and on particular stretches of roads. Roads that were not built for heavy duty are in danger of becoming open thoroughfares for the sturdy construction of main and through highways. The first thing for us to do, of course, is to abide strictly by the rules of traffic. Our own future security and well being should be sufficient reason for so doing. We ought also to see that others don't fudge. That can be done by cooperating with state enforcement agencies.

We might also help by lending encouragement and aid to programs and plans for tightening the rules against overloading and other practices that may destroy the State's $200 million investment. In that connection, we note with some satisfaction that the highway people and the highway safety agency of the State are conferring in Raleigh this week about this very problem. Both groups are alerted to the dangers to rural roads, and we hope they redouble their efforts to see that violations of existing rules are enforced and that new ones are made and applied if they are needed.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Furniture manufacturers and retailers are talking about asking the Federal Reserve Board to ease installment regulations of their wares.

It's no secret that furniture sales are down, both at manufacturers' and retailers' levels.

Some of the manufacturers are finding new orders lighter than they expected and have received "hold up" instructions on old orders and some cancellations. Dealers in many sections of the country report serious slumps in sales. In some markets, merchants are said to spend most of their time worrying which one of their competitors — and when — will start dumping furniture at distress prices.

The panic buying last year is to blame for most of the trouble. Families, fearing shortages, bought heavily. Many anticipated this year's wants. Now they are out of the market. Many of those who didn't stock up on furniture depleted their savings and extended their credit for other things and now can't buy the furniture they need.

During the heavy buying, dealers increased their orders. With the optimism that permeates all American business, they thought it would go on forever. Their situation is worsened by the facts that furniture, being bulky, is costly to warehouse and, being costly, is expensive to finance. Credit controls, in the opinion of many dealers, are equally to blame. They point out that most furniture is "big ticket" merchandise. A $1,000 suite calls for a $150 down payment and monthly instalments of $66.66, not counting financing. That's tough going for many families.

The industry has some good arguments for lifting controls. Furniture is not scarce. Unemployment is threatening at many factories; some retailers have already laid off salesmen. Furniture requires very little of the scarce metals necessary to defense. In fact, encouraging consumers to buy furniture might divert spending from other durables using critical metals.

The Federal Reserve Board's answer will probably be that any action increasing credit is inflationary and it's against inflation.

TRINKETS IN CANDY

RULED ILLEGAL

Does mixing jewelry in candy adulterate it? A Norfolk, Va., federal judge thinks it does.

The Food and Drug Administration seized the contents of a coin machine in which trinkets were mixed with candy and gum. Adulterated food, the FDA said.

Judge Albert V. Bryan agreed. With this precedent, the FDA may crack down on a variety of slot and claw machines that dispense edibles.

OLD PROMOTOR HAS

CONSERVATION PLAN

"I see the NPA has forbidden new designs in glass containers," remarked the Old Promoter, settling down in the visitor's chair.

"Yes," we said. "That's to increase the supply of glass containers for packaging, now that there is a shortage of tin."

"Look," said the O.P., "if the government really wants to save glass, I can tell it how to save tons and tons. Just forbid those deceitful, thick bottoms in whisky glasses."

All right, Manley, Fleischmann, take it from there.

INSTRUMENT MAKING

SALES UP 25 PCT.

A 25 per cent increase in scientific instrument manufacture and sale through the remainder of the year is predicted by Bertram M. Stone, industry spokesman (and treasurer of Emli Greiner Co., New York). Sales so far this year have been that far above the corresponding period last year.

The Scientific Apparatus Makers Association reports sales last year topped $138,000,000.

NEW AND HOT

PLASTIC: A new plastic honey-combed with millions of air cells, making it extremely light, has been announced by U.S. Rubber Co., Rockefeller Center, New York 30. It is not affected by sun or salt water and hence can be used for life rafts, life rings and other flotation equipment.

CAPPER: The head of a new metal gadget removes metal caps from bottles and the base has a plunger which crimps caps back on. It's about 3 inches long and can also be used to crack ice. It's by Mayfair Mfg. Co., 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

Kansas City, Mo.—(AP)—Riding across the rain-swept prairies, a Midwest conservative told me about his fears for the future of the Great American Female. "The way I figure it," he said, "is that step by step time has torn down all the values I was born to hold dear, and only my love of womankind is left. That must be safeguarded."

He expertly steered his car around a slippery curve and it roared on down the darkened road. I asked him what he meant.

"The way I figure it," he said again, "is that most of what we believed in is doomed. Particularly the female sex is doomed."

"Why?" I murmured, feeling pretty male-like and therefore pretty pretty important.

"Well," he said, "when I was young I was taught to believe in the permanence of property, the value of money and the sanctity of women."

"What has happened? Property is now a transient thing, money has become as fickle and unpredictable as the weather. And all I have left to put my childhood faith in is my firm idealism in the frail female mind. But that is as the dusty beautiful scales on a butterfly's wing. The harsh wind of our times may disturb even it, too."

I felt a bit like an out-of-place butterfly myself—a moth even maybe—as the car soared around another curve.

"Do you think the atom bomb will perhaps annoy the ideas of women?" I ventured tentatively.

"No," he said seriously. "I think women are beyond such temporary man-made interruptions as germ warfare or the atom bomb. The average woman can housekeep the world in a way to rise above these childish demonstrations of male petulance over the failure to achieve real civilization."

"Well, you certainly confuse me," I said. "What are you talking about?"

He herded the car around another curve.

"We have destroyed the importance of money and the importance of property in our civilization and now we are destroying the importance of women," he said despairingly.

"Though Man loses all, else... his sense of real estate... his perspective for the dollar," I asked, "how can that lower the estate of woman, his chief investment through the ages?"

Grimly my friend pushed his car faster through the night as he murmured:

"By mechanization. By making machines that think."

I couldn't see what he was driving at. I inquired what he meant.

"You are a crass Neo-Neanderthal realist and are devoid of all gallantry or else my point couldn't escape you," he said.

"I'm a mental Houdini," I said. "Anything can escape my mind. Why are we causing the girls trouble?"

"Because we are making them unnecessary," he said. "Science now has machines that can think. The scientists have invented—or can invent—machines able to sew on a man's buttons, cook him a meal, pick him a television program and tell him his mistakes in life."

unnecessary for a husband to have a wife to tell him when he is wrong. The machine brain has created a situation where human beings no longer have to take care of each other. It has reduced them to the task of taking care of the machine that takes care of them."

I asked him if that were too much to be regretted.

"It is for an old-fashioned man like me," he said. "I don't care so much about the slavery of man, but I do hate to see women reduced to doing a machine that can always outthink them and prove them wrong. It is bad enough for them to be questioned by a man. But to be given lip by a machine—I don't know whether even the America... Woman has the humility to endure that."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington.—A stitch in time, well done, is one answer to the housemaker's problem of clothes conservation. Any housemaker can master the art of mending, say clothing specialists with the U. S. Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

First, however, the experts tell us to try to keep from having to mend at all. It's a pamphlet, "The ABCs of Mending" (available for 10 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.) they suggest.

Check all ready-mades before they are worn. Strengthen the weak spots with a few stitches or a reinforcement before using.

Look over your clothing regularly with an eye to needed mending. Catch breaks before they grow. Here's what to keep in the mending basket: Different sizes of needles, different sizes and colors of thread, darning cotton, pins, buttons, snaps, hooks and eyes, tape, patches of the kind that press on.

In checking your ready-mades look closely at seams and hems. One way to keep unfinished seams from fraying and stretching is for you to stitch them twice—one row of stitching one-eighth to one-fourth inch inside the other. In ready-made hems are usually loosely sewed. Re-hem with secure stitches and stronger thread.

Fasten off dangling threads. Rip out and restitch any broken, knotty, drawn or crooked threads. Strengthen pockets at the corners to keep them from tearing. Rework raveled or weak button-holes, resew loose buttons, snaps or hooks and eyes. In the "ABC's of mending" are simple and invaluable pointers on patching and darning, on repairing straight tears and three-cornered tears or small holes or snags in woven and knit materials.

How many times have you had to sew up a hole in your man's money pocket? The experts say to get good strong cotton twill, made especially for the purpose, and make new pockets. It comes in 30-inch lengths. Two side pockets can be cut from one length. Wear-guards for trouser cuffs can be made out of heavy cotton tape about five-eighths inch wide or sturdy masking cotton turned under on each side.

Buttons, button, who's got the button? Sew them on tight. Use beeswax on heavy thread to sew them on and rework worn button-holes. Keep buttons from worn-out suits to replace those lost or broken.

The ADVENTURER

Human life is an endless chain of adventures, from the first timid steps of early infancy to the feeble shuffle of tottering old age. Human progress has followed the trail of the adventurer as man has explored new frontiers and pushed on in his conquest of the world.

Adventures in the realm of mind and spirit are as fascinating and fully as important as those on land and sea. They open up new fields of thought and new realms of spiritual experience. Thus man's inner life expands and is developed along with his body.

In all his adventures, man should have God as his guide and counsellor. Innumerable dangers lurk along the paths of life and pitfalls are on every hand. God is a light and shield to those who trust Him. He gives strength to the weary and faith to the discouraged.

Like the little boy in the picture, we walk in dangerous places. Let us go forth in the strength and courage of God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Quakers Cut Pirate Rally Short, Win 5-2

Bucs Load Bases But Put Away

Some cool and collected pitching in the last half of the ninth inning enabled the Guilford Quakers to cut off a last ditch rally by the East Carolina Pirates and go on to win 5-2 yesterday afternoon, thus evening the conference series between the rivals at one win each.

Rudy Craven, a husky right-hander from the Quaker country of Guilford, more than made up for his demise last Friday afternoon when Sonny Russell knocked a bases-loaded homerun off his deliveries and came through yesterday in the clutch to set the Pirates down in their half of the ninth with only one run.

Pitching before an estimated crowd of 3,000 or more college students and high school seniors visiting the campus for the day, Craven struck out Fred Soles and got Jack Wallace out at first with the bases loaded to retire the side in the ninth. Had either man got an extra-base hit the game would have been tied at 5-5 after previous ninth inning hits by Jesse Aldridge and pinch-hitter Paul Jones had accounted for the Pirates' second run of the game.

But Craven rallied remarkably amid the home crowd's ransacking, took heart, and came through in the clutch.

The game was one of the best played so far this season on the college diamond. Each team committed three errors between them but made up for these with some double-plays that set down potential runners when they might have bled.

Three East Carolina pitchers worked the game and spaced the hits well, except in the eighth inning when the Quakers collected two runs and four hits off Jim Byrd who relieved starter Jim Hobbs in the first. Hobbs was worked for a run, a double and three bases on balls before he could get started and Coach Jack Boone jerked him in favor of Byrd who had scarcely five minutes to warm up.

Byrd pitched masterful ball during the eighth innings he worked except for his last frame. He set the visitors down without a run in his two-thirds of the last and also in the second, third, fifth and sixth. They got to him for single runs in the fourth and seventh in addition to the two in the eighth. Four Texas leaguers in the first five innings accounted for only one of the Guilford runs, that coming in the fourth when Enoch scored on Craven's pop single to center.

Bill Yates, centerfielder for the Quakers, was the only man who found the Kingston freshman's deliveries to his liking. Yates collected four singles in four trips to chalk up a perfect day at the plate. Callicut, Enoch and Craven got two hits apiece to lead the rest of the Guilford line-up in batting.

Jesse Aldridge, leftfielder for Boone's line, got the only extra-base hit off Craven, that coming in the ninth when he led off with a double. The rest of the lineup hit only singles. Craven aided his own cause by striking out five Pirates, although he walked the same number, and his mates behind him helped with three double-plays.

Jim Finner worked the last inning and was nicked for one hit.

Pat Putts.....

Patricia Barber (Pat) O'Sullivan served notice that she is ready to defend the North and South Women's championship which she won last spring. Pat recently topped a great field of pro and amateur stars in the Titleholders tournament at Augusta, Georgia. The 26-year-old daughter of a Connecticut Supreme Court justice who gave her his name rather than pass it on to one of his two sons, equalled men's par of 72 strokes on the first round. She then went on to post a winning total of 301 for 72 holes.

Rated one of the longest hitters in women's golf, Pat has made a habit of winning the Connecticut State title. She holds a job as a hotel clerk in Mid-Pines during the winter months so she can keep her game sharp. She credits Johnny Bove, assistant pro at the Mid-Pines Club with helping her game reach championship form.

"Bove worked many long hours with me," says Pat. "He got me to swing the club better than I ever did before."

Miss O'Sullivan is a solid putter and when her chipping was off in the Titleholders, she kept out of real trouble with a red-hot putter. One of these days Pat is going to put her complete game together and that time, she hopes, will be when the national amateur title tournament rolls around.

Sewell Hopes To Keep Cincinnati On Road Upward

Columbia, S. C., April 7 (AP) Keeping up the good work is manager Luke Sewell's job at Cincinnati after the improvement shown last season.

First division fever may be a bit out of place in a sixth-place club that was 16.5 games out of fourth last season. But the Reds have a solid foundation in big Ted Kluszewski and a healthy Ewell Blackwell.

For two months of the 1950 season the Reds were the most horrible misfits in either league. They won the Grapefruit League title and then proceeded to lose 38 of their first 53 games in the National. Then they started to come. Ducky the cellar on July 3 they nipped Chicago and took sixth place right after Labor Day. From June 20, they played better than .500 ball.

"What are you to expect in 1951? I can't enthuse," said Sewell. "We've got to show more improvement. If we can keep up the good work of last fall we're going to be a pretty rough ball club."

Kluszewski came along fast. Much better in his glove work. Bobby Adams and Johnny Pramesa showed great improvement. But they've got to keep it up and improve even more.

"I think Brooklyn is the deepest club in our league but I wouldn't say they're the team to beat. Their pitching was awful and that can be so important. I think most of the rest of the league is so evenly balanced that failure of one man could move a club up or down in the race."

"We're a first division possibility. That's all I'd want to say." Time was when Cincinnati was strictly a one man ball club — Blackwell. Now it's Blackwell and Kluszewski. The muscular first baseman has developed into one of the league's top hitters. His .307 of last year with 25 homers and 11 RBIs was just a sample of his potential.

This is only the sixth year of pro ball for 26-year-old Ted who admits he once was "the world's worst" first baseman. Built on the Lou Gehrig style, Kluszewski is a potential batting champ.

Vistors Rack Up 9-4 Victory Score

Greenville made a desperate seventh inning stand in an attempt to get back into the ball game when Coach Boley Farley's Green Phantoms here yesterday as the visitors took a 9-4 count over the local diamond squad.

Tarboro batters reached the offerings of starting pitcher Joe Clark for nine hits before he was relieved in the bottom of the seventh by Gene Hudson, who gave up three runs, with Clark being tagged for the loss.

Greenville scored early in the bottom of the first stanza when Phillips walked, and Glenn Scott singled with Phillips being thrown out going into second. First Baseman Sidney Briley then followed with a base on balls as did Jody Taylor. A double by Hilton Quinn sent Briley home for the opening run of the game.

Robersonville put the game on ice as they reached the offerings of Moe Webb, Farmville hurler, for three straight conference victory runs.

The big blow of the inning came when Bobby Bullock hit a sizzling triple, scoring Sonny James for one of the inning's three runs.

Both pitchers went the route for Farmville, and Robersonville with Bobby Fleming giving life life hits, but were held scoreless by Bobby Fleming of Robersonville for the remainder of the game, after the wild opening.

In the remaining six innings the Farmville side were able to collect only two hits and were held hitless for the last five innings.

Robersonville bounced back in the bottom of the third, scoring two tallies on two hits, a walk and a passed ball. Bobby Bullock opened with a single, the next man walked and the bases were loaded when a Farmville player errored. Two runs rounded the plate when George Dally singled, ending the period with Farmville out front by 3-2 at the close of the third.

Robert Smith (above) is the only one who has played in all of the Masters' Golf tournaments at Augusta, Ga. He was the first winner in the 1934 inaugural, and he competed in the 15th annual tournament which opened Thursday. He was also the first two-time winner, taking the crown again in 1936. Just for the fun of it, Horton poses with the word Masters spelled out with golf balls. (AP Wirephoto).

Course Is Beating Masters' Entries

Augusta, Ga., April 7 (AP) — When the Augusta National Golf Course can't beat a golfer one way, it will try another — and it usually wins in the end.

The National gave a dose of trouble yesterday to every golfer in the 15th Masters tournament except Robert (Skeet) Riegel and Dave Douglas.

They were the only golfers to shoot sub-70 rounds on the 6,900-yard, par 72 course. Riegel's 68 won him the lead going into the third round today with a 141 total.

Douglas, a lean pro from Newark, Del., shot a 69 for a 143 total and a fifth place tie with three others.

Ranked just behind Riegel are George Fazio, who lead the first round, Ben Hogan, the National Open champion, and Lew Worsham, now making a fine comeback from mediocrity. Their totals are 142.

Tied with Douglas with 143's were Johnny Bulla, Lloyd Mangrum and Sam Snead.

Riegel's 68 would have been a magnificent 66 if he had stayed out of a newly constructed lake on the 12th hole. He took a two-over-par five to add his name to a long list of golfers who got into trouble in the same lake and in a creek just before the 12th green.

Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans took a five, but even that was fair enough compared to Dow Finsterwald's 11. Finsterwald hit four shots into the lake. Dow, of Athens, Ohio, kept firing away at an 81 — not bad when 11 strokes were spent on one hole.

Byron Nelson, twice a Masters winner, slumped to a 73 for a ninth-place tie with Joe Kirkwood, Jr., and Jim Ferrier.

Cambridge, Mass., April 7 (AP) — Bob Margarita, whose head coaching job disappeared when Georgetown recently abandoned football, has been named assistant to Harvard coach Lloyd Jordan.

Appointment of the former Brown University and Chicago Bears star to the Crimson grid staff was made last night by Harvard athletic director William J. Bingham.

TIME TRAP

AP Newsfeature

Chapter 19
It was ten minutes after twelve when he stopped outside the door of the office in the same space as his old one had been. He wasn't enjoying his task any more. The insult to his lineage still rankled.
Though he tried to blot it out of his thoughts, it remained, conjuring up elaborate ways of getting revenge equal to the enormity of the insult.

There was no sound of tittering or anything else from the other side of the door. He tried it. It was locked. He grinned without mirth, realizing that the stage was set. This was his goal, and the Vargians and the Custodians knew it.

He used the master key and opened the door. The office was about the same size as his old one—and no one was there. He closed the door and locked it on the inside, then went over and sat down in a chair at a desk near where his telephone had been.

She wasn't here, of course. He had known she wouldn't be. It wouldn't make sense if the Var-gians had her. The only thing that made sense was that they wanted her—for some reason—and were using him as bait, or perhaps as a bloodhound to track her down.

She had said in the dream that they could trace her through him while she was in telephatic contact with him. They might be just beyond the walls in the next room waiting with some device so that if she so much as whispered a

French Teachers In Two-Day Meet Here

Representatives of fifteen North Carolina universities, college, and high schools are present on the East Carolina campus today for a meeting of the state chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French. A dinner meeting held last night and a program this morning in the Flanagan building were chief events of the two-day conference.

James L. Fleming, chapter president and director of the department of Foreign Languages at East Carolina, presided at meetings yesterday and today. Other officers of the state organization are Maxamoune of Catawba College and Dr. Brady R. Jordan of Duke University.

Those attending the chapter meeting here represent the University of North Carolina, Duke, the Woman's College in Greensboro, Atlantic Christian, Catawba, Davidson, Elon, Louisville, Pfeiffer, and Wake Forest, and high schools in Statesville, Winston-Salem, Elon, Rocky Mount, Smithfield, and Greenville.

A dinner meeting last night in the Parish House of St. Paul's Episcopal Church had as chief entertainment feature the presentation of a one-act play in French by students at East Carolina. "Les Femmes Parient Trop" by Helen Aduddell was given by a cast including Priscilla Hynson, Washington; Ida Mae Garrison, Jarvisburg; Dorothy Bradshaw, Elizabeth City; Donald Blood, Greenville; Norma Hughes, Chadbourn; Jane Laughinghouse, Greenville; Harry G. May, Norfolk, Va.; Joyce Proctor, Walstonburg; Dorothy Pugh, New Bern; Willie Mae Spivey, Charlotte; Clyde White, Windsor, and Genevieve Longevialle, U.S. France.

At the dinner meeting President John D. Messick of East Carolina welcomed guests attending the meeting. Hugo Giduz of the faculty of the University of North Carolina responded for the visitors. Special

Duke Glee Club Here On April 12

The 46-voice Duke University glee club will appear here in concert next Thursday night under the auspices of the Pitt County Duke Alumni Association.

The concert will be free to the public and will be given in East Carolina's Flanagan auditorium at 8 o'clock. Although the glee club is primarily a male chorus, two girls will appear with the group.

According to D. T. House Jr., president of the Alumni Association, the chorus will come to Greenville fresh from performances in New York City last weekend when they appeared on programs of both the National and Columbia broadcasting networks. The one and a half hour concert will be under the direction of J. Foster Barnes who has directed the club for several years.

Immediately after the performance Mrs. Ed Batchelor will entertain the club during a social hour in the Training School cafeteria. Mrs. R. W. Stark and Mrs. Sam Northrup are in charge of the entertainment of the group while they are in Greenville.

Duncan Stated After Talk With Mayor Stafford

Duncan stated after his talk with Mayor Stafford, "The only reason I'm running is because Mayor Stafford isn't running. He told me earlier this morning he would not run."

Stafford asserted this morning before he was approached by Duncan that he had more or less made up his mind not to run again.

"I don't desire to run for office again," he said, "because primarily for the reason of the need of my services in connection with my business."

On the other hand, though, I shall give the people of Greenville a chance to have a voting choice between me and the other candidate (Clarence H. Bryant) unless a more capable man files for the office in the meantime."

He stated he definitely did not want the job because his business requires that he spend more time with it. However, prior to Duncan's filing he stated if no other person filed against Bryant, he would give the voters a chance to consider him again.

lege, Nashville, Tenn., and received there both the master's and the doctor's degrees. He had done additional graduate study at the University of Texas.

His career as a teacher began in high schools in Georgia and Kentucky. For a time he was head of the mathematics department at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Ky. For the past 26 years he has taught in the department of social studies at East Carolina.

As a teacher, Dr. Flanagan devoted much of his time to his students both in their academic work and in extra-curricular activities. On the campus here he founded the Tap Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi, national honorary education fraternity, and had been advisor to the group since its organization 15 years ago. In the national organization he served as national historian and national president, and was at the time of his death national vice president. He was a member also of three other national honorary fraternities.

Dr. Flanagan was twice honored by students at East Carolina who dedicated to him their year book "The Tecocan."

During his long residence in Greenville Dr. Flanagan was an interested and active member of various community organizations. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of the city and of the Greenville Rotary Club.

In 1937 he was married to Miss Ruth Picklesimer of Greenville, who survives him.

In addition to his mother, Mrs. I. S. Flanagan of Chattanooga, the following brothers and sisters also survive him: Mrs. Howard O'Neal, Chattanooga; Mrs. J. E. Bankston, Macon, Ga.; J. W. Flanagan, Summerville, Ga.; and Roscoe Flanagan, Chattanooga.

Matter Of . . .

In 75 miles is bombed, only those who are truly unselfishly interested in helping the refugees will save their own homes, whether in a city suburb or in a little farm or village. This means we should now become an active Red-Cross or refugee worker. We should now study first-aid nursing and emergency diet. We should now definitely plan to take strange people into our homes either in entirety or in part, in case of need. If we have a barn or garage or empty building, we should now fix it up for refugees. Our personal safety will then depend not upon how much money we have, but how much we are doing for other people who have lost everything. Only our generosity will save us. Smugness and the feeling that we will get preferential treatment because of our houses, our money, our social standing or our political pull could land us in a concentration camp. CEASE BEING AN "ANTI!"

It is very important that we at once quit being an "anti" and now train ourselves and our children to care and share with others. It seems as if everyone with whom I talk is "anti-something". Some families are anti-Jewish, others anti-Negroes, others anti-Catholics, and others anti-Protestants, or anti-Labor or anti-Capital! Then, I find one family is anti-Truman and the family next door is anti-Taft, or anti-something else. Some are for World Federation, in which I believe, and others laugh at me. To save our own necks we must forget this "anti-stuff" and remember Jesus' profound statement: "If we are to save our lives we must be willing to lose our lives."

All of us are more or less "anti" on our foreign policy, whether to follow Hoover or Dewey, or Acheson. I especially wish the United Nations could quit its childish debating about "who cast the first stone". It should unite on some constructive policy of providing all countries with their just peace needs of oil, food and other necessary raw materials. This is the only way War III can be prevented.

Our hope and safety lies not with more bombers, more ships and more ground troops but in assuring the world of the FOUR FREEDOMS which we offered them nearly ten years ago. But, in the meantime, let all of us plan something for the refugees in case some city near us is bombed.

is where the Communist conspirators have elected to make their play for global conquest, and that we have joined the issue thus raised on the battlefield; that here we fight Europe's war with arms while the diplomats there still fight it with words; that if we lose the war to communism in Asia the fall of Europe is inevitable, in it and Europe most probably would avoid war and yet preserve freedom. As you point out, we must win. There is no substitute for victory.

Few there are who would be inclined to argue with one of the world's greatest military men over the importance of the Asiatic theatre. This column more than once has ventured the belief that Asia might be the Armageddon of the conflict with communism.

However, in adopting that viewpoint we must not underestimate the obvious importance of the European theatre. Europe is the present fountainhead of Bolshevik power. It is the seat of the Red empire, and within it lie the immediate defenses of the Western democracies.

This stage setting may one day be transferred to Asia, but for the present it is in Europe. It must be advisory budget commission has resisted plans apparently designed to make the Greenville institution another "university". Similar requests have been made, but less effectively, by white teacher colleges at Boone and Cullowhee, and companion institutions for Negroes at Elizabeth City, Fayetteville and Winston-Salem. In each instance it has been argued that many students, desiring liberal arts education, can attend these regional colleges, which are not able to attend the university level institutions at Chapel Hill, Durham, Greensboro, and Raleigh.

These arguments are effective and sometimes cannot be overcome by protests against duplication and unnecessary expense. As for that matter, the budget commission has also given consideration to the element of duplication involved in revival of the school of pedagogy at Chapel Hill, which is in a way duplicative of the functions of teacher colleges.

Some observers see in all of these changes and extensions of scope a definite trend toward general colleges for all purposes, admitting students of all races and sexes to the same institutions, and leaving specialized training in every field—law, medicine, teaching, farming or what have you, to graduate schools, which might in turn get to be duplicative and general.
