Truman's Six Years

They Would Have Been Tough Years For Any President; A Sketch Of The President's Accomplishments; As He Says, Only Historians Can Pass On Him

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 10—(AP)—President Truman will have been in the White House six years on Thursday, April 12. They have been tremendous years, as tough as any president ever faced. How has he made out?

This can only hit some high spots. When he succeeded President Roosevelt, the war was still on, in Europe and Asia. He led the country to peace in both places and then into the reconversion to peace and the greatest prosperity the country ever had.

Now he is leading the country back into a period of preparedness for war. When he entered the White House six years ago he had great popular support. Now the polls say his popularity has slipped away down.

It is not the first time his popularity slipped. It hit a low back in 1946 elections when the Republicans won control of Congress for the first time since 1932.

He surged back, when almost no one thought he had a chance, to a stunning victory in the presidential elections of 1948. He may come out of his present slump, it would be a sturdy prophet who would predict otherwise. But while Mr. Truman sat in the White House and the country grew fat and rich after the war, communism spread like a flame in other parts of the world. During the war about 190,000,000 were under communism in Russia.

Now the number is about 735,000,000 counting China, the satellites and part of Korea. And at this moment this country and its western allies are girding for what may be World War III with the communist allies.

Whether Mr. Truman, short of war, could have prevented the spread of communism anywhere that it has taken over is, of course, the subject of much debate, particularly when China is involved.

But it may be a century before the historians, with the benefit of records and the perspective of 100 years, can attempt to say with any authority that Mr. Truman could have changed the picture, short of war.

Truman Appeals For Cooperation In Control Work

Calls Dn Business, Labor And Farm Leaders To Team Up Against Inflation

Washington, April 10—(AP)—Business, labor and farm leaders have an appeal from President Truman to quit playing economic leap-frog and team up against inflation. The President's plea to his 17-member mobilization advisory board at the White House yesterday was: "I've got to have the complete cooperation of every segment of our population."

With that Mr. Truman asked his new advisory group to face up to two of his toughest mobilization problems. The board is headed by economic mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson and has four members each from agriculture, labor, business and the public.

One problem is what can be done to change the defense production act, expiring on June 30, to help do a better job in controlling inflation.

The other is the stalemate on the Wage Stabilization Board. It has been inactive for nearly two months since labor members walked out in fury over mobilization policies.

Mr. Truman hopes he can thrust out his domestic mobilization problems within the board and, by achieving agreement there, get the country's support.

Newsmen were given a report on the board's initial meeting by Joseph Short, White House press secretary. Short said the discussion on possible changes of the defense act, which contains the authority for price, wage and other controls, was general.

There was "considerable discussion" about the wage board impasse. The Administration has been reported considering establishment of a new wage board composed entirely of public members, instead of the present board representing industry, labor and the public.

Grifton Host To DuPont Officials

Grifton, April 10—The Merchants Association of Grifton will be host to a group of DuPont Company officials at a supper meeting at the Grifton school cafeteria Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. Dewey A. Wall, president of the association, will preside.

The meeting is being arranged by the Grifton merchants for the purpose of extending a welcome to DuPont officials and becoming better acquainted with them. A. E. Buchanan, Jr., assistant general manager of DuPont's rayon department, will be the principal speaker.

Other DuPont officials expected to attend the supper meeting are W. T. Wood, W. E. Gladding, E. O. Johnson, R. W. Peterson, W. M. Reding, M. N. Roberts, W. C. Weaver, G. S. Anderson, Charles Rutledge and Brent Nunneley and several company engineers.

Julian Lyons, industrial agent for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, will be there. The site of the DuPont plant, on the Greenville-Kinston highway, is about three and a half miles from Grifton.

Over 300 Firemen Meet Here In Annual Session

More than 300 firemen from some 35 eastern North Carolina towns are expected to gather in Greenville tonight for the annual eastern Carolina firemen's supper and meeting, to be held at the VFW Club.

The event, which comes to Greenville about every seven years, will include all towns in the Eastern Carolina Association in addition to special guests and representatives from other districts.

Speakers for the night will include State Fire Marshal Sherwood Brackwell of Raleigh and Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek, also of the capitol city. The meeting is scheduled to get underway following the supper which starts at seven.

Other special guests to attend the meeting tonight will be the members of the Greenville board of aldermen and heads of the various city departments. Fire Chief George Gardner will preside over the supper and meeting as master of ceremonies and will introduce the speakers and guests.

At the business session, matters of importance to the local departments and the state-wide firemen's organization as a whole will be discussed. Also, plans for the forthcoming fire training school to be held sometime in the summer will be discussed.

Jackson, Miss., April 10—(AP)—A U. S. Senate investigating committee was told at a hearing here that pro-Trumanites in Mississippi sought to bolster their Democratic faction with influence in RFC loans.

A Senate Expenditures subcommittee began public hearings yesterday into charges that federal jobs were sold by pro-Truman Democrats.

Forrest Jackson, a Jackson attorney, told the subcommittee that the pro-Truman party in Mississippi wanted to rebuild its organization by influencing the granting of RFC loans.

The pro-Trumanites were organized in 1948 to support President Truman after regular Democrats in Mississippi had switched their allegiance to the States' Rights ticket.

MacArthur To Persist In Seeking New War Policy

Allies Drive On Huge Reservoir

Relentless Bombardment Forcing Reds To Give Ground; Flood Strategy Failed; Jets Shoot Down Another Plane

Tokyo, April 10—(AP)—Allied tanks and infantrymen blasted their way closer to the huge Hwachon Reservoir today on the central Korean front. Chinese Reds fought back with artillery and mortar barrages.

A relentless allied air and artillery bombardment forced communist troops guarding the reservoir's massive dam to give ground.

The Reds' trick of opening 10 of the reservoir's 16 floodgates Monday proved a tactical failure. The swollen Pukhan River subsided to near-normal levels; the thousands of tons of water it spilled down the river had failed to halt allied troops.

In the air, American F-86 Sabre jets shot down one Russian-type MIG-15 jet fighter and damaged another. The air battle was fought at low level over "MIG Alley" near Sinulju in northwest Korea.

Other Fifth Air Force planes Tuesday flew close support missions for the allied infantry and continued their dawn-to-dusk attacks on Red supply lines.

Bitter communist resistance was reported from the western front as allied patrols probed deeper into Red Korea. Intelligence reports said the Reds were sending more troops to this sector.

UMT Dies Hard In House Debates

Sponsors Of Straight Draft Measure Unconvinced

Washington, April 10—(AP)—Efforts by House supporters of Universal Military Training to make their one-package draft-UMT bill acceptable left the Democratic sponsors of a straight draft bill unconvinced today.

Rep. Barden of North Carolina, chairman of the House Labor Committee, said he still intends to fight hard, backed with considerable known support, to knock out of the pending legislation even a skeletonized UMT provision.

"Universal Military Training in peacetime affects the economic and educational life of the American people as no other legislation ever has," Barden said.

"It is much too important to be considered as part of a draft bill aimed at meeting the present emergency."

The House late today or tomorrow will resume consideration of the pending Universal Military Training and Service (UMTS) bill. It would reduce the draft age to 18-12 years and lay the foundation for UMT.

The Senate has already passed a military manpower bill providing for UMT to come into being after the present emergency military call-up, and lowering the draft age to 18 years.

On the east coast allied warships hammered communist supply dumps and traffic routes. There was no report of ground contact on this front.

As the allied offensive punched northward, informed sources in Tokyo said General MacArthur had asked for more troops and greater latitude in fighting the Korean campaign.

Tuesday's heaviest fighting swirled near the Hwachon Reservoir.

American tanks rumbled northward on the Chunchon-Hwachon road through the narrow Pukhan river gorge. They were putting the squeeze on 200-300 Reds who had been driven back into a narrow neck of land between the western end of the dam and the river.

On a 15-mile front to the east, allied infantrymen ran into die-hard communist forces. The Reds opened up with mortar, machine gun and artillery fire.

About 800 Reds dug in south of the reservoir threw a heavy mortar barrage at advancing American troops. Other Red units attacked French troops driving on the reservoir's eastern tip.

Farther east strong and stubborn communist forces bitterly resisted an American advance in the Yanggu area.

American patrols pushing north from Yonggong withdrew under heavy mortar and machine gun fire. Artillery pounded the Red positions.

General Cancer Drive Under Way

Special Gifts Committee Fast Approaching Its Goal

With the Cancer Crusade's special gifts committee well on its way toward reaching its $1,000 goal, the general campaign for funds began in Greenville and the other communities of the county yesterday.

Harvey Anderson, chairman of the special gifts committee, stated his co-workers canvassed most of the private givers in Greenville during last week and have received approximately 80 percent of its quota.

He stated, though, he plans to extend the committee's work through tomorrow in order that persons who have not been contacted so far may have an opportunity to give.

Yesterday members of the Junior Woman's Club, under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Jackson and Mrs. Bill Sermons, co-chairmen, began the annual house-to-house canvass for funds from the individual contributors. According to Eustace Conway, chairman of the Greenville campaign, reports from the canvassers indicate that this year's goal of $800 will be reached. The campaign by the club members will continue through this week.

Working under the Junior Woman's Club chairmen are: Mrs. R. V. Keel, Mrs. George Clapp Jr., Mrs. L. W. Edwards, Mrs. T. C. James, Mrs. Charles Wilkerson, Mrs. S. J. Waters, Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Mrs. Arthur Tripp, Mrs. W. E. Basnight, Miss Lillian Forrest, Mrs. Elliott Johnson, Mrs. Jack Foley, Sr., Mrs. L. E. Hunning, Mrs. Bill Sullivan, Mrs. Jimmy Wells, and Mrs. Hoover Taft.

Orphans' Trial Is Set For May

Rutherfordton, April 10—(AP)—Two teen-age orphans accused of killing the superintendent of Alexander School at nearby Union Mills and a school chum will go on trial here during the May term of Rutherford County Superior Court.

This was decided today when Hugh Justice, 19, and Billy Ray Powell, 16, appeared before Judge B. P. Jones Jr. for a hearing.

Five Years Late

Cleveland, April 10—(AP)—The Cleveland Plain Dealer announced the birth of a son to Mrs. George De Mesa. But the news was five years old, she told the paper last night.

The record of the birth got mixed up with the newly-listed arrivals at City Hospital after Mrs. De Mesa applied for a birth certificate for her son, now five.

"I thought I'd better tell you," said the mother to the Plain Dealer. "My friends have been looking at me sort of funny and asking about the new baby."

Makes It Plain He Intends To Keep On Fighting For Freer Hand In Conduct Of Korean War; Denies Any Reprimand By Secretary Of The Army; Aides Believe General's Views Gaining Support

Tokyo, April 10—(AP)—General MacArthur made it plain to his superiors today that he intends to keep right on fighting for a freer hand in the Korean war.

He authorized a spokesman to sharply deny news reports that the Army Secretary Frank Pace Jr. had reprimanded him for recent public statements deemed to be verging on politics.

The spokesman added that since the reports were carried by a British news agency, Reuters, "probably the wish was father to the thought."

With some British voices already clamoring for MacArthur's scalp, this seemed like fresh defiance from the United Nations Commander-in-Chief.

General's Views Informed sources also said that MacArthur stood pat during a two-hour conference Monday with Pace on views that have provoked a storm of controversy in Washington, London, Paris and elsewhere.

These views include belief that an all-out war must be waged against communism wherever the threat appears; that it would be a mistake to neglect Asia in order to emphasize defense of Europe. He is understood to have asked Pace for more troops.

Critics have accused MacArthur of departing from purely military problems to engage in discussions of a political nature.

From this war-conscious capital, it appears that he is fighting for a sincere belief in a military necessity.

Fears Stalemate The General obviously believes what he says: that U. S. forces can win in Korea only by expanding the

DDT Spraying In Pitt Scheduled

Health Dept. Service To Start Around April 16

The Pitt county health department will begin its DDT spraying program for malaria control in Pitt county about April 16.

There will be two crews with equipment assigned to do work in the county. One crew will spray the rural area and another crew will be assigned to work in the towns. All the work done in towns will be under the supervision of the town officials as well as the health department.

Previously the spraying has been free because the federal government furnished the equipment and the state furnished the DDT, but this year there will be a charge for the spraying since the federal government and state has withdrawn from this work. The cost will run about 25 cents per room to be paid by the owner of the house or the occupant.

The charge for the spraying of outbuildings will be according to the amount of material used.

The rural program will begin in Grifton community where there is, according to a U. S. Public Health survey, the highest rate of malaria in the county.

John Carrington, Pitt county public health official, said he would appreciate the cooperation of the public in the spraying program in being prepared to have the work done when the crew is in the community so only one coverage would be necessary.

The Constant Danger

Nothing Particularly Startling In Rayburn's Warning; Russia Has Been Girding For War Ever Since Stalin Took Over Leadership; Background

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Many will be made anxious but none need be surprised at the statement by Speaker Rayburn of the U. S. House of Representatives that "we are in terrible danger" because the Russians are building up troop concentrations "here, there and everywhere."

The creation of Russian military strength has been proceeding with increasing intensity ever since the Bolsheviks came to power more than a generation ago. It is a natural corollary to their world revolution for the spread of communism.

The late war gave them a chance to strengthen their positions in both Europe and Asia. It's not strange now to find them deploying military forces at strategic points for eventualities, especially in the Asiatic theatre where numerous Red upheavals, including the Korean war, have developed.

"Does this mean Russia is getting ready to launch another major war?"

Well, it means she is getting ready for possible war. So are the Democracies getting set for contingencies. And when two opposing war to Red China; that otherwise the allies face a devastating stalemate.

There are growing indications that the General and his aides are appealing to American public opinion, either over or around the Administration. For one thing, a close check of editorial comment is made here.

Officers say the General's views are becoming increasingly popular. They insist also that he is speaking of military necessity with no intention of embarrassing the Truman Administration.

Fundamental Issue The issue is much older and embraces more than the immediate point of whether Red China should be bombed and Chinese Nationalist troops employed. It involves the fundamental question of whether the western powers should concentrate upon Europe's defense to the relative exclusion of Asia.

It concerns basic differences between the thinking of American military men and diplomats.

For MacArthur, this is an old battle. It goes back to the early bitter days of the Pacific war when MacArthur was by-passed in favor of Europe.

The General has hammered consistently during the past decade on the theme that America's future rests in the Orient. He firmly believes, as he has said, that the Kremlin plans to win through Asia.

Now, in his view, the United Nations is involved in a vital shooting war in the Orient, but fresh troops are going to Europe and not Korea.

Insistent The attempt to get across his ideas of Asia's importance is one point of the controversy. The second is the General's evidently growing impatience with the diplomatic restrictions placed upon Korea to keep the war limited.

MacArthur and his generals see no point to these restrictions. They believe the U. N. failure to bomb Manchuria has given the Chinese an unnatural advantage. They also believe that, by quarantining the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa, the United States has enabled Peking to move more troops toward the Korean theater.

Military men look at Korea as a shooting war that must be won with military weapons. They are not in sympathy with what they regard as diplomatic bait being offered to Peking for peace. They can see no tangible results of this.

forces are so to speak, drawn up in battle array, the situation always is precarious.

However, Russia has given no indication she wants big-time war at this precise juncture. Her cold war operations are too successful to warrant discarding them for an all-out conflict.

Everything now transpiring was written in the books for us to read when Stalin came to power on Lenin's death. As that time Leon Trotsky, who tried to grab Lenin's cloak of leadership himself, wanted to go all-out in launching a bloody world revolution, but Stalin put his foot on the dead.

The astute Stalin decided that first Russia must be made powerful both industrially and militarily, and be forthwith set about achieving this. Trotsky went into exile and in due course had his brains beaten out with a spade in Mexico.

Stalin organized his successive and successful five year plans for industrial development. And he started building a powerful fighting machine. He forewarned that a

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

ALL OF THE SAME FAMILY
For many people religion is a great problem. Can they believe the Bible? How do we know that Christian principles will work if we put them into operation? Young people especially who go to college and come under the influence of teachers who fill their minds with religious doubt, come to look upon religion as a great problem.

But religion is not the problem; you are the problem. I am the problem. There is nothing the matter with religion—the trouble is that you and I want to go our selfish ways, paying scant attention to God and the comfort and welfare of our fellow men. If you think that religion is a problem for you, just ask yourself what problem you must be for God.

Your stupidity and mine would destroy the patience of everybody except the Heavenly Father. What God has to put up with in his dealing with humanity constitutes such a problem that God knew it could only be solved in that great experience which we perceive in the gospel account of the crucifixion of Jesus. God had to come to earth himself and take the burden of man's sin upon his own heart in order to save a world full of problem children from destruction.

Don't talk about religion being a problem. You are the problem, and everyone of us is brother or sister to you.

A Rare Treat For This Community

There are many treats in store for the remainder of this week for the people in Pitt county who are lovers of art. And there are many treats in store for the individuals who don't classify themselves as art lovers, but who like to look at beautiful etchings, good paintings, good plays, good handicraft exhibits and hear good music.

The sixteenth annual Community Arts Festival has again brought to Greenville a rare array of various forms of art to be enjoyed by the people of this community.

The Arts Festival has become an event which is looked forward to not only by the people of Greenville, but by people all over this section of North Carolina. Under the sponsorship of the Greenville Woman's club and the Community Art Center, the Arts Festival has grown during the past 16 years into a classic event which indeed is a great asset to a city the size of Greenville.

One does not have to be a lover of art to enjoy gazing at the rich etchings which Louis Orr, one of the foremost artists of today, has made of buildings in North Carolina. One does not have to be a connoisseur of the fine arts to enjoy the many musical programs which will be presented during the week, the dramatic presentations which will be presented, the art work done by the school children of the city and the discussions of art which will be conducted by outstanding speakers who are coming to Greenville under the auspices of the sponsoring groups of the annual Arts Festival.

The sixteenth annual Arts Festival has assembled for the enjoyment of the youngsters and grown-ups of this community a display of art which makes larger cities green with envy.

Greenville and Pitt county this week have a rare opportunity to enjoy many fine art displays. The people of this area are indeed indebted to the individuals and the organizations which have made possible this greatest of the annual Arts Festival.

The Reflector sincerely hopes the people of Greenville and Pitt county will take advantage of the cultural enjoyment which the Arts Festival is affording this community throughout the week.

The Big Wind Over MacArthur's Words

More fuss has been raised over General MacArthur's words than over what he has done or is doing.

policy (if there is one) can only lead to stalemate with neither the Communists nor the Democracies winning the goals set for themselves. And while we are not blindly "pro-MacArthur," The Reflector is decidedly of the opinion that a positive policy is better than none. MacArthur's is the only one offered to date.

Unhappily, the whole fabric is hopelessly confused as to where the threads of military and diplomatic policy begin and end. In one simple decision the Gordian Knot could be severed by a clean statement of policy . . . some thing unlikely from the Lake Success or Capitol Hill debating societies.

As we see it, MacArthur is following his UN directives to the letter; though in obvious disagreement with the limitations imposed. Is he then, barred from giving his own advice or opinion on what to do and how to cope with his hopeless situation? The General is on the scene, dealing with realities . . . not with the nice protocol and fine-sounding verbiage of the diplomat. The men whom he commands are being killed and mutilated while his superiors are unfit to fish or cut bait.

A few days on the firing line might transform the fence-sitting statesmen into either good infantrymen or provide them with an incentive to get something done. Either way, they'd be better for it . . . and the rest of the world would benefit, too.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10—President Truman feels in the mood to write another of those angry, unprintable midnight letters, but this time his literary victim would not be the Marines, a newspaper music critic or John L. Lewis. The recipient would be Senator Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, Majority Senate Leader.

The White House holds the Arizona, and the Administration Whip Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, responsible for the restrictions which the upper chamber imposed on sending more than four divisions abroad as reinforcements for General Eisenhauer's European army.

UPSET—The adverse vote was 46 to 43. As a former member of the Senate Mr. Truman cannot understand why his legislative agents could not have won over at least three of those adverse ballots. In that event Vice President Barkley would have broken the tie in favor of the Truman-Marshall-Acheson scheme.

Mr. Truman is particularly upset because he does not regard the defeat as one affecting a mere detail of his military arrangements. He looks upon it as a major repudiation of his broad foreign program. He had felt confident that General Marshall's prestige would insure favorable Senate action.

EXPLOSIVE—Whether or not the McFarland-Johnson leadership could have rounded up or won over those three essential votes is debatable, for the issue of stationing large American forces overseas in peace time was both basic and politically explosive. Each man was thinking more of his own defenses back home than of Europe's.

In view of recent patronage deals and political favors he had made with this test in mind, the President believes that his Senate spokesmen could have succeeded if they had exerted themselves.

HANDFUL—It is a fact, however, that the entire Democratic membership exhibited only nominal interest in the so-called "great debate" during the last few weeks.

For many days at a stretch there were not more than a handful of members of Mr. Truman's party on the floor. One afternoon in particular, when Republican speakers were citing precedents on the Chief Executive's authority over troop missions and movements, the only Democrat present was Senator Tom Connally of Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

DEFAULT—Mr. Truman's Senate cronies contend that they lost by default. Due to absenteeism, they argue that several Democrats who wound up by voting against the White House, did not understand the issues involved. Senator Lodge, a pro-Truman Republican on this question, made that charge with respect to members of his own party.

It is, of course, as Mr. Truman knows well, a primary task of the leadership to keep their men on the floor and to make sure that they know what all the talking and shouting is about.

In this respect, so the President believes, the two men elected to strategic Senate assignments by the anti-White House Southern bloc, failed in their first major trial.

MISCALCULATION—Treasury Secretary Snyder's reputation as a financial prophet has fallen so low on Capitol Hill that several veteran members of the two taxation committees now doubt whether there will be any increase at all in taxes at the current session. At the most they look for a boost of from three to five billions, mainly affecting corporations.

CUTS—Naturally, Congressional revenue raisers now distrust all official figures. They insist that both corporate and individual payments during 1951 and next year will be many billions greater than Messrs. Truman and Snyder anticipate. With full production and employment, they believe that the $70 or $75 billion required for normal and military expenditures in 1952 can be obtained on the basis of existing rates, plus economies.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Topic for today: baseball. Minor League and Little League. The manager of Greenville's 1951 Coastal Plain League entry is circulating in Greenville, getting his ducks in a row for the season. At the end of every season during the past few years, there is always talk about finances, how much the owners lost or how little they made. The management this year says (1) they lost money last year with an attendance of 48,000 for the season, and (2) they can break even this season with an attendance of 60,000. The money to be made in minor league ball, they say, is by selling the players, not gate receipts.

In an effort to get underway on the goal of 60,000, tickets are being sold, 10 for $7.00, a saving of 50 cents over the single-ticket price of 75 cents per game.

In addition to the Coastal Plain games, Greenville baseball fans will have a new league to observe and support: the Little League, composed of boys from 8 to 12 years of age. The organization of Little League, Incorporated, is an indication that the new emphasis on city recreation is already paying off. Greenville's Director of Recreation, Warren Carroll, started the ball rolling by showing a film to approximately 100 children and 40 parents at Recreation Headquarters, the City Armory. The film showed the national playoffs of the Little League at Williamsport, Pa.

By the time the film ended the children were so noisy with enthusiasm that organization at that moment wasn't practical. So the children were taken home, and 30 interested parents returned. The Little League was then organized with Marvin Blount as chairman, Tyson Bilbro as vice chairman, and Lester Turnage as secretary-treasurer. Six teams will be formed, each having 18 players.

Greenville's civic clubs or business firms will sponsor the six teams, at an average cost of $80 a year. The first year about $150 will be required for uniforms and equipment. For the next two years probably $50 each year will cover the expense of replacements. By the third year new uniforms will probably be required, so it seems that the average will be about $85.

The sponsoring organizations will supply at least one coach, who will have 36,000 make-believe dollars for buying players. The Little League will operate exactly like the big leagues, reduced to a smaller scale.

The idea originated in Williamsport, Pa., as a community project, and has spread to 2,034 teams in 37 states, plus Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone. This year, Greenville's six teams will each stand a chance of participating in the Little League World Series.

The formation of the Little League will no doubt help the Greenville attendance at Coastal Plain League games. Emphasis on baseball is bound to increase interest, not only for boys, but for grown-ups as well. The existence of the Little League will go a long way toward helping the Greenville club hit that goal of 60,000 annual attendance.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

INFLUENTIAL—The battery of newspaper and radio reporters who have covered this session of the general assembly are now seeking to determine by secret ballot among themselves who they rate as most influential among the membership. The idea may be expanded to include some other superlatives—such as most popular, most handsome, best dressed, most eloquent orator, most valuable, etc. Since most of these ratings would of necessity depend upon personal opinion of the particular reporter, and the matter of influence can be determined without regard to whether the reporter agrees or disagrees with the legislator, first ballot was limited to that single factor. And in order to some leeway and to preclude making too many members feel badly (?) the reporters are trying to pick five senators and ten representatives who can be rated as tops in influence during the session.

PLAQUE—The highway and public works commission is working on the wording for the memorial plaque to Frank Page to be placed in the new highway building. One might think it would be an easy job to write a few appropriate words. Those attempting it, including high state officials, university scholars and others, find it extremely difficult to put in a few words the story of ten years as chairman of the highway commission and the building of a permanent organization which has proved to be one of the most efficient governmental agencies to be found anywhere.

RAMPS—Preparations are underway for the biggest-of-year "Ramp Convention" in history at Black Camp Gap on top of the Great Smoky Mountain in Haywood county. Tentatively scheduled for May 13 the affair may be moved up a week or two because "the ramps will be pretty tough by that time." This unique enterprise was started years ago by a few Haywood county folks who professed to like the succulent herbs which abound on the slopes of the Smokies. Every year the question of what is a ramp comes up. Someone has said the ramp can be defined, but the more important question of "why is a ramp?" can't be answered. The plant belongs to the lily family, has a leaf much like a lily of the valley, a bulbous root much like garlic, a taste somewhat worse

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Vote-getting Schemes (Wilson Daily Times)
Former Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland seems irked because he was beaten in the last election. His downfall he maintains, was brought about by a lot of scurrilous literature that was put out during the campaign. Why, then, should his opponent get his seat? For he had not been in the Senate so long that he looked on himself as an institution?

It's not hard, after an election, to resent the subterfuges that many of the people working for the candidates employ. For, on occasion, they do stoop to low levels. We see that in the Graham-Smith fight in this state. But in the heat of a campaign, those who want to win will resort to all types of tricks to confuse the voters. If they are more successful for one side than for another, should the loser complain?

There's much that's wrong with the American system of elections. We see it every time the people are called on to vote. We see it even more when conroversial subjects are introduced. But since both sides employ the same tactics, why complain too bitterly? Tydings didn't think he could be beaten. So he kept his campaign on a high plane. But in North Carolina, where the Graham forces recognized that they had opposition as much fluff was used on one side as on the other. Neither of the candidates liked it. Perhaps the man who beat Tydings didn't, either. In North Carolina, Graham didn't cry. In Maryland, Tydings has been crying loudly.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
If their bankers will lay off a bit, used car dealers will make out all right.

Right now they're worried. Sales are slow. One dealer is offering 100 gallons of gas with every car; another, a ham; another, five lessons in driving. Prices are slipping, often well below ceiling. And anybody who offers anything below ceiling these days feels like a humanitarian—or a patsy.

Most of the dealers feel like patsies. They are complaining to Congress. Arthur M. Vivien, vice president of the Automobile Dealers Association, told a House Small Business subcommittee that used cars have become a glut on the market and if it continues, dealers will have to stop taking trade-ins. He blamed credit controls and thought time payments should be extended to 24 months.

How do things get this way? As the Korean situation developed, dealers, remembering the shutdown of auto manufacture during the last war, began buying cars faster than they sold them. They paid good prices, too, usually with the financing of a bank, lending company or factor. Meanwhile, auto companies, seeing shortages ahead, continued to manufacture cars as fast as they could. Well-financed consumers, seeking cars that would hold up through an indefinite period of shortages, bought new cars instead of used cars. Many turned in old cars, adding to dealers' inventories. For another, those who had spent savings buying sugar and other things for hoarding found credit payments tough and bought fewer used cars.

And now the backers are worrying about their investments and pressing dealers to get in a more liquid position.

And what's going to happen? If the backers don't press to hard and the dealers can hold out, they'll probably come out all right.

For one thing, cutbacks in metals will soon slow the production of new cars. For another, vacation days are ahead and many who have been postponing purchases will break out their bank rolls. For another, defense production is getting into stride and this means that thousands of additional cars will be needed to get workers to new and distant plants, wives to stores and kids to schools. As has always been the case since the auto was invented, people wanting them badly enough will find ways to buy them.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
Kansas City, April 10—(AP)—For a quarter of a century now Mama has been threatening to sell the home she raised her five children in.

She moved into it 30 years ago when she and Dad, and all the rest of us were young together. It is a big, white, old-fashioned, eight-room house. It has kind that went out of style long ago, and now is coming back in style among people who like space and comfort.

The house has been in the family so long, and the family has been in the house so long that now we don't know whether it owns us or we own it.

But Mama and the house have been having a feud ever since they met.

"It is just too big," Mama said the day we moved in. And she has been saying it ever since. "It takes too much work to keep up an old place like this."

But it was a wonderful house for children to grow up in. It had a big back yard to play in, a grape arbor, fine old shade trees to climb, and plenty of room to raise chickens, dogs, pigeons and rabbits.

It was a house built for living. We children liked everything about it except the old coal furnace. The boys used to match on winter evenings to see who would have to take on the terrible duty of going down alone to bank the furnace for the night.

The basement was a fearsome place at night full of flickering shadows. Who knew what eerie menaces might leap out at you from the dark old bin? The unlucky boy whose turn it was to stoke the fire threw on shovel after shovel of coal as fast as he could and then turned and raced up the stairs, his back prickling with icy fear that some evil monster might grab him from behind. Oh, what a relief it was to come back up into the bright warm kitchen!

But in the hot summer days the basement was a wonderful sanctuary from the heat. Mama still goes down there to read the paper and cool off when the temperature hits the 100-degree mark.

When Dad died in 1937, the family was in real terror that Mama would carry out her threat to sell the place.

"You children are all raised now," she said. "I am going to sell this old barn and move into a small apartment by myself."

But she didn't. She still lives there with my sister, my brother-in-law, and their little child, Kathy. The house has become a kind of symbol of family unity, a place we can always come back to and find each other again—and live again our childhood with Mama.

Mama knows this. But year after year she goes on reading the real estate ads and warning she certainly isn't going "to live in this old barn through another spring."

But we don't take her too seriously any longer. For some years ago she let the last of the mortgage be paid off. There is a new gas furnace in the basement now, and recently the whole house got a new facelift.

"Why, the house keeps getting younger all the time," I said.

"Yes, but I keep getting older here," said Mama. "I've just been a prisoner in this darned old barn for the last 30 years. I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to sell it this summer and move into one of those nice new small ranch houses everybody's buying."

But she never will. Mama knows in her heart she has lost her long feud with the house. It holds her by too many memories. And she will never leave it now. But she likes to go on threatening it. She doesn't want it to think it can dominate her altogether.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
Washington—Stenographers are as scarce as the dodo these days. The numbers needed are unobtainable by industry or government. Uncle Sam's shortage is so acute that grandmas with a knowledge of shorthand and typing—and spry enough to go to work—are being recruited to fill the ever-increasing demand.

The Civil Service Commission has lifted the 62-year maximum age limit for stenographers and in some areas has lowered the 18-year minimum age requirement, taking high school graduates of 17 who are able to continue living at home.

"If we can't get girls throughout the country to fill these stenographic jobs, which are increasing in ratio with the numbers of men going into the service, we'll have to try and get their grandmothers," one official told me.

Most of the Civil Service appointments are going to the defense agencies, where every month the demand for clerical workers increases steadily. Some agencies have sent recruiting teams into all parts of the country to find workers.

In March Civil Service reported its biggest increase in employment for any month since August 1950. As of March the commission reported a total of 2,306,000 working in government, in the United States and overseas.

During World War II the government used more than 3,000,000 clerical workers. The peak number was 3,769,646 in June 1945 in U. S. and overseas jobs. Pay for such jobs starts at $3,450 a year, ranging up to $9,875, but the average starting salary is usually $2,650.

The current situation on rooms in the capital is considerably better than in World War II. Civil Service personnel people tell me. Single rooms in the District of Columbia are $3 a day on a temporary basis. Without private bath they range from $35 to $50 a month. Apartments are available in nearby Virginia and Maryland for around $75 a month.

Scout Leaders Prepare For Camporee Events

By WYATT BROWN

"Our patrols are meeting almost nightly getting ready for the District Pre-Camporee and Council Camporee," reported Loyd Worthington, institutional representative for the Winterville Christian Church, which sponsors Boy Scout Troop No. 200, at the monthly meeting of the Pitt District Boy Scouts of America held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church last night with J. E. Kittrell, district chairman, presiding. The Pre-Camporee is to be held in the track field adjacent to the Greenville baseball stadium on April 13th and 14th.

The Scouts will begin to arrive as soon as they complete the day's schooling and can get to the Pre-Camporee site. It will end Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. The events will be run according to the schedule in the Council Camporee Bulletin which has been put in the hands of each Scoutmaster and each patrol leader.

In making the announcements about the Pre-Camporee, District Activities Chairman Sherman Parks stated that the campfire to start at 7 p.m. Friday will be when each patrol will compete to put on the best skit. The winner will be the representative of this district in a patrol skit competition at the Council Camporee campfire. The winner at the Council Camporee will receive a Green Bar Bill Patrol Flag.

The judge of the Pre-Camporee campfire skit will be Erskine Duff who was appointed by the district committee. District Chairman Kittrell said he hoped that all parents being scheduled. He said he was troubled by the lack of a sponsor for the troop at Belvoir. The Belvoir troop was left in this predicament, he explained, when the Belvoir Ruritan Club combined with the Falkland Ruritan Club.

Activities Chairman Sherman Parks announced the holding of two rendezvous for Senior Scouts—all Scouts over 14 years of age: one at Camp Lejeune May 11, 12 and 13 and the other at Plymouth May 18, 19 and 20.

Commissioner J. F. Dowdy reported all troops progressing nicely. He said that Troop 39, sponsored by the Methodist Church, needed another assistant scoutmaster. His report told of considerable activity among the Scouts in making totem poles in preparation for the Camporees.

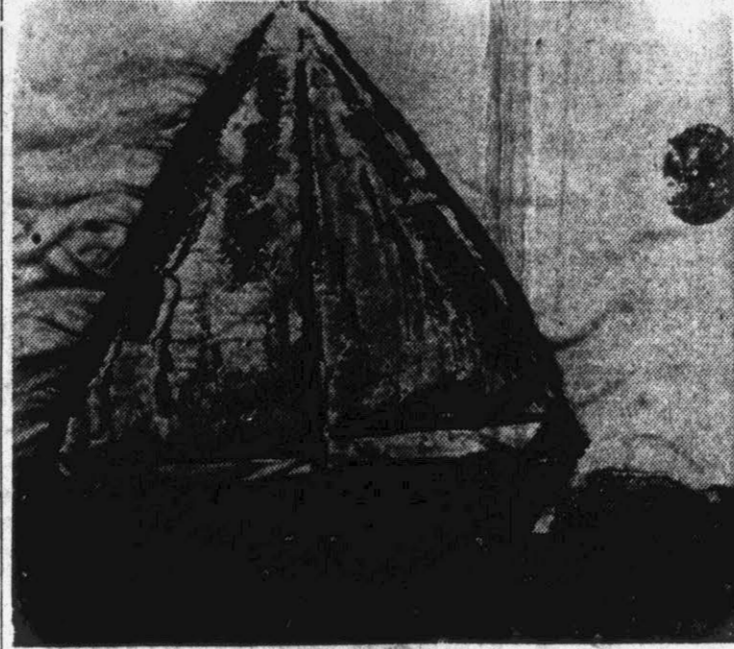

Chairman Kittrell appointed Badger Johnson, J. F. Dowdy and Erskine Duff as a committee to hold a panel discussion for Troop Committee members of the district at a district wide session set for the near future.

Institutional Representative Worthington reported that his troop in Winterville was busy getting up food and clothes for a family whose home was burned this morning. The Scouts were busy at the good neighbor job while he was attending the district committee meeting.

Those attending the district committee meeting were: J. B. Kittrell, Rexell Webb, Sherman Parks, J. F. Dowdy, Erskine Duff, Beverly Rice, J. T. Baldree, Lester Turnage, Loyd Worthington, Frank Steinbeck, Wyatt Brown, and Boy Scout Field Executive Howard Hunter.

Scoutmasters present during the Roundtable were Reid Laney, Troop 205; Joe Jenkins, Troop 185; Jimmy Ward, assistant scoutmaster Troop 185; Bill Drum, Troop 30; and Mark McLawhorn, Troop 200, Winterville.

Action And Color Mark Public School Art Exhibit

Shown in the above picture is a drawing entitled, "We Like To Watch A Sailboat," drawn by Carolyn Mazingo, age 8, Grade 3, of the West Greenville school.

In the above picture is shown a drawing by Bobby Buck, age 8, Grade 3, of Third Street school, entitled, "We Love To Watch A Crane." This drawing illustrates the attraction that "action" things has for youngsters.

As part of the Community Arts Festival which is being held this week, there is an exhibition at the Greenville High School auditorium a display of more than 500 pieces of art work done by the children who have had classes under Mr. James Walker, Art Supervisor of the City Schools.

In discussing this exhibit, Mr. Walker made the following observations about the art work that has been done during the past year: "The evolution of the creative impulse is exemplified in an art exhibit now shown in the Greenville High School auditorium.

"Presenting a broad conception of the growth of art expression among smaller children through various age levels to high school students, the exhibit consists of work by public school children from Third Street School, West Greenville School, and the Training School of East Carolina College. It is the first to be conducted on such a large scale in connection with the Annual Greenville Art Festival.

"The exhibit includes works in watercolors, tempera, crayon, clay and other crafts projects by students from the first through the 12th grades representing all city

(white) public schools. "One general conclusion can be drawn. It is that art expression through 'making pictures' is a natural impulse among all children, and is a language of emotions, feelings, reactions, and interests that is given a normal outlet of expression."

Three prevalent characteristics are disclosed in the paintings.

The first is that children fundamentally are interested in action—things happening. They do not have a particular concern over things dormant or passive.

The second is the fact that they are particularly interested in people and activity about them. They do not paint a scenic view simply because it impresses them as "pretty," but adapt the scenic view to the vitality of living activity that takes place. Proportions may be all out of whack and unintentional distortion results, but the idea and the impression is there and unmistakable—and that is what counts. Take for instance the picture of a "big horse in a snowstorm." The big horse is BIG and the snowstorm is one of giant-sized snow flakes which are spotsches of white.

The third fact is that color is disclosed to be a vigorous force of interest among children. They like full and uninhibited strength of color. They use strong red, orange, and yellow apparently with unconcerned abandon, but that somehow seems to become harmonized into a semblance of unified impression.

The development of technique of expression in art is approached as a process of growth. Efforts by smaller children obviously are crude. Gradually they become refined until a mature sense of skill and composition is more consciously arrived at among the teen-agers.

The art work by local public school children must be viewed essentially as a phase of their broad growth and development. In that sense art work becomes a formative experience nurturing an impulse to be creative and giving an outlet for creative growth.

Mr. Walker, in expressing his views about the purpose of art instruction, said,

"The art work is a far departure from that produced in schools in the days gone by. For, quite properly, the work now shown is not produced through a mechanical formula of technique forced upon children by a teacher who had them paint something remote from their experiences because the teacher thought it was pretty. In the work of today the children are stimulated by their own experiences and interests, and evolve their own techniques in a creative growth of expression."

The public school art exhibit at Greenville High School auditorium will be open every day Monday, April 9 through Friday, April 13 from 9 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. The public is cordially invited.

Urges Unity And Understanding

Dr. E. C. Hollar of the East Carolina faculty last night in a speech before the Greenville Lions Club called for more unity on the part of the American people and a closer understanding of their leaders in times now confronting the nation.

"In unity there is strength, while also there is deadweight and resulting confusion, which points to the fact that unity is not enough by itself," he said.

Each individual needs to know just where he belongs in our complex society in order that he might do the best possible job, the speaker pointed out.

"In times of peace, stand on your own feet and don't let Uncle Sam do it all, especially on our relations with foreign countries," Hollar said.

A report was heard from Henry Swain on the coming intercity club meeting to be held by all of the civic clubs in the city in honor of the district governors.

Tentative date for the club gathering is set for May 4th, with a supper to be served in the college dining room at 6:45.

Final report on the Easter Seal drive made by Chairman H. B. Williams last night revealed that total collections now stand at over $1600 and will possibly reach $1700.

TIME TRAP

By ROG PHILLIPS

AP Wirephotos

Chapter 21
Briefly he told them what had happened. They listened until he stopped talking. Then one of them came to life, smiling slowly, mirthlessly.

"It seems," he said, "that Ray Bradley has known all along that you were lying to him. It seems he has a full and accurate estimation of everything, and has been playing the game with your cards, Val Nelson."

"I don't think so," Val said, peering. "He hasn't the ability to do that without our catching on. And you know how elaborately we have kept him under observation."

"That's true," another of the Vargians admitted. "But it is also true beyond question that Nelva didn't contact him. He made it up."

"Oh well," the Vargian at the head of the table said tiredly, as though a discussion had been going on before Val Nelson arrived. "The fact remains that he might possibly get in contact with Nelva on this projected outing—and if he does it will be over in an instant. If he doesn't, he can't escape. We have guards at the place where his time machine will arrive in another ten days. We had them there before when they arrived."

"I wish I knew more of what's behind all this," Val said in a voice that was half pleading, half fearful.

Six triplets of eyes rested on him frigidly. He swallowed again and backed toward the door.

"You will refrain from being curious, Mr. Nelson," a stern voice spoke. "You will live just so long as you serve us well and without question. That goes for the others of you. I will say only this. Ray Bradley and Joe Ashford must meet Nelva, and under conditions where we can do what we have in mind to do—or neither you nor we live to correct our errors."

"But don't you see?" Val became bolder. "I WANT to understand. I WANT to be able to serve you better—by understanding what it's all about so I can act intelligently instead of blindly. I feel I should understand this threat that hangs around this mysterious Nelva and these two clods from the dark ages of 1866."

"And if you knew," the Vargian at the head of the table said,

"you would try to use your own judgment, and probably make mistakes. I will say just this. Nelva has been able to hide from us in TIME, rather than space. We can only get to her if Ray gets to her. Only she among all twentieth century peoples has solved a little riddle of time that enabled her to do. In solving that riddle she also found the way to, in all practical effects, destroy us. Does that answer your question sufficiently?"

"I hope so," Val said doubtfully. "I don't understand, but maybe I will after thinking about it. Thank you, sirs."

He backed out of the room respectfully. The highway was a four laned ribbon along which blurred shapes streaked at unbelievable speeds. Painted into the lanes every half mile or so were numbers to serve as continual reminders to motorists to maintain their speed or get out of the lane. There was no oncoming traffic. All four lanes went in the same direction.

Joe kept the car in the extreme right hand lane which alone had no painted numbers. The one next to it said one hundred, and next to that, one fifty. The left hand lane had a minimum speed of two hundred. Joe was creeping at eighty-five in the low speed lane.

Ray sat beside him in the front seat, watching him with secret amusement. Most of the cars that whizzed by in the hundred mile lane were doing a hundred and forty. An occasional car came along in the two hundred mile lane, appearing for a second or two behind, staying in sight ahead for another three seconds.

A car crept up behind them and honked impatiently. Joe looked bewilderedly at the ditch, then grinned nervously at Ray and held his ground. With an insulting bias the other car darted around him. Almost immediately after it pulled into the hundred mile lane and dwindled into the distance.

"How far we going?" Joe asked, relaxing a little.

The question sobered Ray. "I don't know yet," he answered, and he didn't. There were things to do yet that he couldn't explain to Joe. The first was to get rid of the car, their clothes, and everything else, right down to the skin, and replace everything with things that could not possibly contain secret devices by which the Vargians and Custodians could keep track of them. If he explained that to Joe now, there would be a strong chance of the Vargians picking them up before they could disappear.

The car must go first, but in a way that wouldn't arouse suspicion. A wreck. Or was a wreck necessary? Engine trouble might work just as well.

"Let's stop at the next roadside joint," he suggested. "I could do with some refreshments."

"Me too," Joe grunted, swerving off the highway onto a driveway leading into the parking lot of a rather large country cocktail bar and restaurant. He drove into a parking place. When they got out of the car Ray saw that Joe had taken the keys and dropped them into his suit coat pocket.

"Another car had driven in just behind them. Three men and three girls were converging with them toward the ornate entrance to the place.

As they reached the doors Ray stumbled against Joe, picking the keys out of his pocket, pouncing Joe against one of the men. There were profuse apologies. Ray, slipping the keys in his pocket, accepted full blame for everything. One of the men insisted it was his fault, as he thought he must have tripped Ray, since he was right behind him.

Inside, Ray and Joe went to the bar. The three men and their girlfriends took a table ten feet away. Ray waited until the bartender had brought their drinks.

"Be back in a minute, Joe," he said casually. "Keep my place for me."

"Not if I can coax a girl away from that party we bumped into coming," Joe said happily.

Ray laughed and sipped his drink before leaving. As he made his way toward the men's room one of the three men in the party detached himself and followed him. He fell into step beside Ray.

"Listen, friend," he said softly. "Let's step outside a minute. I want to make a deal with you."

"What is it?" Ray asked in a voice that wouldn't carry. "Why not here? There's lots of noise."

The stranger looked around warily. "You're right," he mumbled. "Listen. How would you like to rent me your car for the rest of the night? I'll give you a hundred bucks, and have it back in town at any garage you say by nine o'clock tomorrow morning."

Ray concealed a look of exultation. He looked knowingly at the man.

"Too crowded with six of you, huh?" he grinned.

"Exactly," the man said. "Tell you what—I'll make it a hundred and fifty. Then if we scratch a fender it'll be taken care of ahead of time, and if we don't you're that much ahead."

"You're on," Ray agreed, reaching into his pocket and getting the keys. "But there's one condition attached to it."

"What's that?" the stranger asked doubtfully.

"Get your girl friend and scam with it right away," Ray said.

"Fair enough," the man said, exchanging three fifty dollar bills for the keys.

Don't Be Satisfied With Symptomatic Relief
YES, HADACOL MAKES IT POSSIBLE TO RELIEVE THE CAUSE OF
Aches and Pains, Stomach Distress, Weak, Run-down Conditions and Nervousness When Due To Lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in Your System

Mrs. A. Plonka of 3202 S. Ashwood, Chicago, Ill. "My daughter Carmelita, who is 10 years old and in the fifth grade, had always been underweight and I had to positively force her to eat. She had no interest in food whatsoever, but I knew that she had to eat. When we were visiting my mother in Missouri over the Christmas holidays she suggested I give Carmelita HADACOL. I bought a large bottle of it that same day and was amazed at the change in Carmelita. Her appetite picked right up and she now eats three hearty meals a day plus in-between snacks. I have really praised HADACOL, and highly recommend it."

G. E. Moncus, 221 Columbia St., Montgomery, Ala. "Quite some time ago I began to have indigestion and sour stomach. My food just didn't digest right. I'd get a full, gassy feeling after I ate. This affected my appetite and my weight. I was run-down, too. My wife started taking HADACOL and so did my daughter. I saw how much it had helped them, so I started taking it. And HADACOL has certainly helped me, too. My stomach never bothers me any more. I have a terrific appetite and have gained weight. I have lots of energy and just feel good in every way. I think HADACOL is wonderful. I wish I could tell everyone just how wonderful it really is."

Mrs. W. O. Jones, 7244 N. Bell St., Chicago, Ill. "I am a housewife and mother of three children. I had been feeling very run-down, would tire so easily, and just felt listless. My mother-in-law suggested I take HADACOL, as she had heard of it through friends of hers. I just took it for a few days, when I noticed I was feeling stronger and seemed to have more energy. I continued taking HADACOL and it has certainly built up my strength. I am no longer run-down, don't tire nearly so much. I am now on my sixth large bottle of HADACOL, and intend to continue taking it."

William J. Dunlap, 4404 Fraser St., Apt. 2, Detroit, Mich. "Along with the pains I suffered my body had a tired, worn-out feeling. I had to force myself to keep going. I read about HADACOL and decided to give it a try. Am now on my fifth bottle and would not be without an ample supply. My first bottle gave me astonishing relief, and at this time of writing I feel better, without a pain or ache. Am a dairy employee, 54 years old. Veteran of two world wars. Active overseas in both. I have given your HADACOL every praise to friends and relatives and know some are using it with just as astonishing results as I myself have found."

Give HADACOL A Chance To Help YOU

If your system lacks these essential elements, you will be amazed at the wonderful results HADACOL can bring you, as it has to thousands of other fine folks who suffered a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains. HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation—promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), as well as that general run-down condition, and annoying aches and pains, if due to a lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in your system. Don't go through life suffering with conditions caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close at hand as the nearest drugstore for sufferers from these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family economy size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL.

East Carolina Splits Twin Bill With WCTC Baseballers By 1-8, 8-1 Scores

Mountaineers Take Opener And Visiting Pirates Come Back To Take Nightcap By Identical Margin; Two-Hitter For Piner

Cullowhee, April 10—(Special to Reflector)—East and West Carolina Colleges split a doubleheader here yesterday afternoon by identical scores of 8-1 with the Mountaineers winning the first game and East Carolina taking the nightcap. Both were seven-inning affairs.

Pardue went the entire route for the Mountaineers in the first game and set the Pirates down with six hits and one run. Jesse Aldridge, playing centerfield for the visitors, clouted the Pirates' only run when he hit a round-tripper in the seventh inning.

The Pirates came back in the nightcap to administer the same punishment to West Carolina as Jim Piner pitched two-hit ball. The Pirates, meanwhile, were making a jug of it as Russell and Wallace each hit two triples and Wallace added a single to make it three in four trips.

Three Key Yankees Are Hospital-Bound

Dallas, Tex., April 10—(AP)—and expect to arrive at Baltimore tonight (10:30 p.m. CST). Reynolds are hospital bound today. On the results of their physical checkups at Johns Hopkins may hinge the New York Yankees' chance for another American League pennant and world's baseball championship.

Rizzuto has a torn cartilage in his left side; Page, a sore left shoulder, and Reynolds a bad elbow. Page, the Yankees' brilliant relief pitcher in 1949, was a disappointment last year, but before arm trouble popped up this spring, he flashed his old form.

Reynolds, a 16-game winner last season, hasn't been able to do much at all this spring because of his arm. Rizzuto, the American League's most valuable player, said he didn't think his injury was serious.

"I expect to be on hand opening day," he said last night. Rizzuto said he hurt his side playing and yesterday when he tried batting practice "it was a little bad." But he insisted, "It's nothing serious. I'll be ok."

The three players were to leave here today by plane (2 p.m. CST) and expect to arrive at Baltimore tonight (10:30 p.m. CST). Reynolds are hospital bound today. ## Kiner Chosen To Speak For Nat'l League Players Cincinnati, April 10—(AP)—Ralph Kiner's National League teammates have chosen the likeable Pittsburgh batting ace to speak up for them at the major league club owners' table.

Election of the 28-year-old home run prince as the senior loop's player-representative was confirmed by Secretary of Baseball Walter Multry here yesterday. Multry said that President Ford Frick of the National League flashed him the word.

Kiner steps into Marty Marion's shoes, joining the American League's Freddy Hutchinson of Detroit in representing the players before the club owners. Marion had to bow out as player mouthpiece when the St. Louis Cardinals upped him to manager.

The parting of the ways apparently was by mutual consent. Wakefield, who left the University of Michigan campus in 1941 to sign with the Detroit tigers for $52,000, wants to try to land in the major leagues; where his previous career was a stormy one.

GETS HIS CHANCE—Ray Aldridge, French featherweight king, gets his chance at the Cincinnati Gardens tonight to redeem himself for the knockout given him a month ago by Eddie Burgin, local Negro.

GIVING THE RIDER HIS HEAD—When young O. Odgers tried to put his mount over a hurdle in Sydney, Australia, the horse balked and Odgers went on.

Ayden Wins 14-6 Victory Against Vanceboro Nine

Ayden, April 10—Ayden broke in to the win column in Coastal Conference play yesterday afternoon as they took a 14-6 victory from Vanceboro behind the two-hit pitching of two Ayden hurlers.

Starting pitcher Darrell Worthington fanned 13 men while walking six but gave up only one hit, before yielding to L. J. Griffin in the sixth inning.

Griffin was reached for one hit while holding the visitors to four walks, to finish out the game. Ayden combined a 12-run scoring spree in the first two frames to move well out front early in the ball game while Vanceboro scored one in the first and another in the third inning, with four in the 7th.

Butler, who started on the mound for Vanceboro, gave up four hits in the one and two-thirds innings which he pitched and was replaced by Gorman, who struck out five batters while walking five men and allowing seven hits.

Ayden, last year's runner-up in the Coastal conference, previously lost to South Edgecombe in a Conference tilt in its first game of the season. Vanceboro lost an earlier start to Robersonville by a 15-4 score.

An important battle of the diamond will be played this afternoon in Robersonville when Ayden takes on Robersonville in the Martin County city.

'Two Platoons' In Right Field

Nashville, Tenn., April 10—(AP)—Leo Durocher, manager of the New York Giants, has decided to use a two-platoon system in right field when the National League season opens next week.

The Giants skipper says he will alternate Don Mueller and Clint Hartung in the rightfield spot. Mueller will bat against right-handers, with Hartung going against the southpaws.

Sugar Ray Wins One-Round Kayo

Oklahoma City, April 10—(AP)—Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson floored Don Ellis twice in the first round last night to gain a knock-out in their non-title bout.

The champion met Ellis' wild charge with a jarring right to the jaw that sent him to the canvas. With only 96 seconds gone, Sugar Ray hooked a left to the body that proved to be the knockout punch. The champion weighed 157, Ellis 168.

Robins Play Hartford Club In Exhibition Tilt Thursday

Cubs Can Boast Draft Bargain Of Decade In Rookie

Associated Press Sports Writer. The Chicago Cubs don't figure to go far in the National League pennant race, but it appears they have come up with the best "draft" bargain in more than a decade in rookie right-hander Omar (Turk) Lown.

Lown, drafted from Brooklyn's Montreal International League team for $10,000, is the apple of Manager Frank Frisch's eye.

The 26-year-old New Yorker has been impressive throughout the spring training grind and may turn out to be the best draft purchase since the Cubs drafted Hack Wilson in 1925 from Toledo.

Lown is extremely fast, has an average curve that sometimes is real good. His control and change-up pitch have improved.

Lown pitched the Cubs to a 6-1, five-hit victory over Little Rock yesterday in the Southern Association city. He worked the first eight innings and never was headed after the fifth when Hank Sauer poked a three-run homer.

The Dodgers were aware that Lown was draft bait but they allowed him to be exposed as they desired to protect several more promising youngsters.

Wid Matthews, former Brooklyn aide to Branch Rickey and now director of Cub playing personnel, named Lown as the club's No. 1 draft choice. The strong-armed recruit won 13 and lost 9 for an in-and-out Montreal team last year.

Tribe Pitching Shows Poorly In Exhibitions

Nashville, Tenn., April 10—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians' pitching staff rates with the best in the majors, but their exhibition game record doesn't show it.

"We have the same trouble every spring, and it always straightens itself out," says Coach Mel Harder, who refuses to fret. Early Wynn, the Tribe's probable starter in its home opener, gets his next to last practice run today against the homer-almighty New York Giants.

Wynn and Mike Garcia are the only Cleveland hurlers who have started and finished an exhibition game this spring. Each did it last week and won. Bob Lemon, who is to hurl the opener in Detroit, went to a full nine innings of Saturday's 11-inning contest.

Locals Have Complement Of Old And New Faces On Roster; Training Is Under Way

The Greenville Robins open their exhibition schedule here next Thursday when they meet the Hartford Chiefs of the Class A Eastern League.

Robins business manager John Pringle announced today that the club had been able to break a previous engagement on that date with the Elizabeth City club in order to play the Chiefs who are on their way north from spring training.

The Hartford club is piloted this season by Tommy Holmes, for the past several seasons one of the workhorses of the Boston Braves and a ten-year man in the major leagues. Holmes stepped down from his outfield position with the Boston club to take over the management of the Chiefs after Ripper Collins stepped out to take a sports-casting job.

To take on the Chiefs in the spring opener the Robins have a complement of old and new faces on the tentative roster at the present time. As Pringle states it, the club has quality instead of quantity at the present. However, before spring training gets too far underway it is expected that several new players—vets, limited service men and rookies—will join the ranks to bring the number up to the playing limit.

Ten men greeted manager John Strea yesterday as spring training here officially opened at Guy Smith Stadium. Last year's players back this year and who are working out now are Vince Lautato, Bobby Harrison, Pete Braun, Jack Dunlavy, and Joe Guidice. Also working out are Pete Plestrak, now an East Carolina student and assistant coach of the Pirates; Norm Clark, East Carolina student who played for Farmville last season; and Buck Hardee, who played for Farmville last year, also.

Belvoir-Falkland Defeats Winterville Nine By 3-2

Winterville, April 10—Belvoir-Falkland opened its 1951 baseball season by taking a 3-2 victory from Winterville High School here yesterday afternoon in a closely-played contest.

Belvoir pushed across two tallies in the top of the second frame when Cole scored, followed by Hobgood in the same inning.

The winning run of the game was scored by Willie Hodges, in the top of the fourth, who had gained a berth on second by way of a double, and scoring on a later play, enabling Belvoir to gain a one-run victory.

Credit for the win yesterday went to Billy Ross who received the starting nod for the mound duties. He allowed two runs on five hits before he was taken from the game in the sixth inning, and Cobb finished the game, yielding no hits or runs.

For the losers, it was William Powell Watson all the way. He allowed seven hits, for three runs behind errorless play of his teammates.

The loss was the second for Winterville this year, having lost to Chiloche in the opener and taking a victory from Paoletus High.

On Thursday afternoon Grimesland will travel to Belvoir for the first meeting of the two teams this season.

Scores by innings:

Belvoir	020	100	0-3 7 2
Winterville	010	100	0-2 5 0

Sad Exhibition

Greensboro, April 10—(AP)—What's wrong with Rex Barney's pitching? "Everything," seems about the best answer.

The big righthander was sent out to pitch against Brooklyn's farm club in Asheville yesterday, and Barney turned in a sad exhibition as the Dodgers nipped the class B team, 9-8.

The Brooklyn problem child walked 11 men in three innings. Only five of the 16 men Rex faced had an opportunity to hit the ball, so wild were his tosses.

When asked when Barney would pitch again, manager Charlie Dressen only muttered, "Who knows?"

Unrest Spreading In Many Satellite Countries; Party Line Is Undermined

By JOHN FISHER

Reports of a flare-up in Albania with its tinder-box possibilities brighten but one of several little publicized tension points that prompted General Marshall to paint the world situation as more serious than ever before.

More explosions are likely Nationalist fanatics are fomenting turmoil from Persia to Morocco. Pygmy and crack-downs are sweeping the Balkans. High puppet officials are being arrested as traitors, fleeing from their homelands or disappearing into ominous silence.

With army maneuvering weather at hand, a skirmish touching off a revolt, a sudden thrust by Soviet troops in support of a satellite regime, a border incident—sucking mobilized antagonists into the vortex—could burst into a European Korea or the dreaded World War III.

Self interest and cold logic by the great powers may stem a stampede to a global Waterloo. Perhaps the fact of widening internal rifts in stodge states—hence a weakness in military alliances—is the greatest deterrent to Moscow dreams of conquest.

The splits are many and for many different reasons. Farmers in Almost Open Revolt Rumania is in an uproar over oil. So inefficiently has the Red bureaucracy managed the rich Ploesti wells that it must ration the small surplus of oil left over after the big exports to Russia.

Inept bosses of the nationalized petroleum industry have been dismissed. Even Premier Petru Groza, old Ploughmen's Front (Peasant) leader, is said to be in disgrace.

Absenteeism and open sabotage by industrial workers are reported. Agricultural labor, drawn to factories by the lure of higher pay, has left farms under-manned and bread must be rationed. Farm owners violently resist collectivization. The Reds are so feeble in class warfare against property-owning peasants that 20 per cent of Communist membership cards have been cancelled.

In Hungary the DISZ (Communist Youth Organization) is under fire. Members have been caught listening to the Voice of America and girls are too slow in signing up as mine-workers.

The National Committee for a Free Europe, Inc., in New York City, received a communication from Budapest describing a student gathering at the Szege University. A speaker declared, "Hungary is independent only since the Soviet Union has taken us under her wing."

To which a brave heckler shouted, "She is independent of liberty."

called "People's Teachers," who lather-sauce on women who complain while standing long hours in food queues. Its agents enter crowded street cars and harangue passengers on this sin of grumbling. The party purge is one of the biggest among satellites, even striking down former cabinet ministers.

Bulgarian refugees in terror of their lives are streaming across the borders to escape the purges and oppressions of Premier Vulko Chervenkov.

Small farmers slaughter their water-buffaloes, sheep and cows rather than give them to collective farms. Fodder is not gathered and horses are turned loose, often to die of starvation. Peasants, caught by the secret police, are severely punished.

Today, 1951, that sensible opinion on independent nationalism, expressed by Clementis and others, is held to be rank heresy, its spokesmen liable to drastic penalties.

Former Heroes Now Villains

Now the Gottwald government enough to be Czechoslovakia's chief delegate at the United Nations in New York—as "a snake and spineless double-crosser of unfathomable moral depravity. Sling, former Slovak Communist Party Secretary, is accused of dicker with western espionage agents and of plotting to assassinate President Gottwald.

Made a Svermova, widow of the nationally acclaimed Communist resistance hero and former Deputy Secretary of the Communist Party, is charged with covering up Sling's "treachery." She is officially described as an "opportunist unbolshhevik weakling who enjoyed criticizing Russia." An ironic side-light is that the government is calling in a postage stamp because it commemorates her.

Gottwald has his own peculiar explanation of the three "plotters." In an alibi document he writes, "During the occupation, the Gestapo recruited its Czech agents from concentration camps and torture cells. When Hitler was vanquished, the Gestapo sold its index-cards to Americans. Now Americans aim a pistol at these ex-agents' heads and compel them to work for Americans."

He goes on to say that the present deviants are either former Gestapo agents or were influenced by them to turn traitor. Current puppet troubles may spark dangerous civil wars. Or they may restrain Moscow ambitions. None knows the full answer—yet.

Many Witnesses In Madison Case

Marshall, N. C., April 10—(AP)—Between 600 and 1,000 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify in a case which will decide whether a Democrat or a Republican is the sheriff of Madison county. That's about one fourth of the approximately 3,000 votes cast in the disputed November election.

Testimony in the case of E. Y. Ponder, Democrat, and Hubert Davis, Republican, started in Superior Court here yesterday before Judge R. Hunt Parker and a jury of 11 farmers and a businessman.

The county election board certified that Ponder was elected by about two dozen votes. But incumbent Davis claimed election irregularities and refused to turn over the office to Ponder until forced to do so by court order.

Yesterday's testimony was mostly technical. It came from Judson Edwards of Mards Hill, chairman of the election board, and clerk of court F. Ray Frisby, who handles election documents.

Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, was also the inventor of the aileron which replaced wing warping as a method for control of airplane flight.

British Women Outliving Men

statian Dr. W. J. Martin reported in a paper read to the Royal Statistical Society that here is a higher death rate among men than women in England and Wales. He said no satisfactory explanation for this has been found.

Dr. Martin stated that it was previously thought the occupational risks were an explanation of the shorter lives of men, but "the large increase in the proportion of women engaged in industry in recent years has not affected the mortality sex ratio."

Safety Award Goes To Nat'l Carbon Co.

The Distinguished Service to company, Mr. Spangler pointed out that improvement of industrial safety procedures and reduction of accidents are not only in the personal interests of employees but also necessary to maintain production for increasing civilian and military needs. He said, "The nations that are the most efficient industrially are those that have a great respect for the health and happiness of human beings. With our operations including factories in 15 foreign countries as well as those in the United States, I have had a good opportunity to observe that fact. The work of the National Safety Council is much valued by industry in constantly developing improved standards of safety. National Carbon Company feels privileged to have received this recognition."

A. W. Bryan, assistant superintendent of the company's Greenville plant, announced today that this plant operated in 1948, 1949 and 1950 without a single lost-time accident, thus making a significant contribution to the company-wide safety achievement.

The company's accident frequency rate, including employees at twenty-one plant locations in the United States, was only one-fourth the 1947-1948 national average for all industries, and slightly over one-half the rate for the industry. Further improvements in the company's accident rates during 1950 resulted from a continuing safety program in operation at all plants.

War Explosives Are Still Deadly

Rome (AP)—Almost six years after the end of World War II, buried and abandoned shells, hand grenades and land mines are killing approximately 1,400 Italian children annually.

The tragic deaths are recorded almost daily in Italy's press. Recently, a series of unrelated disasters took 24 lives, including 16 children, within a week. In one of the tragedies, four brothers, ranging in age from eight to 15, died in the explosion of a bomb they had unearthed in the countryside near Naples.

The succession of children's deaths has brought a wave of editorial protest in Italian newspapers and demands that the government agency, has launched an educational program through Italian schools to warn children against the danger of buried explosives.

No Glamor Girls In Bomber Plant

Fort Worth (AP)—Rosie the Riveter and Annie the Welder are on their way back. Forty out of every 100 new workers being hired by the giant Convair B-36 plant here are women. There are now about 3,000 women among the 28,000 employees, and several hundred more are added each month. All start at $1.07 an hour for the training period.

The women workers are not glamour girls. All jewelry must come off because of moving machinery. Hair must be covered by nets or bandanas. No tight-fitting sweaters are allowed because they interfere with freedom of movement. Finally, the rule is "medium loose-fitting wash slacks, ankle length."

Romania Adds Up Poor Work Cost

Vienna (AP)—East European Communism recognizes the need for competition in production. It does it by stimulating "Socialist contests" between workers to see who can produce most and win a medal. But the system backfires.

The Romanian newspaper "Scanteia" complained recently: "In the foundry section, Comrade Ion Bene's team was listed among the outstanding ones, but it had the highest percentage of rejects. During the first day of February, Comrade Dumitru Panait's Team had 20 per cent rejects from all parts cast, Carol Marc's team 16 per cent and Constantin Stoencescu's 13.0 per cent."

Compromise Set To Save UMT In House Draft Bill

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee agreed on a compromise amendment to the draft bill today in an effort to save its Universal Military Training provisions.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) announced after a closed session of the committee it had voted unanimously that both Congress and the President should approve before any UMT plans could go into effect.

The amendment means that it will require another law by Congress to get UMT going. If it is accepted, the pending bill would establish a national security training corps in name only. It would provide for the President's appointing, with the advice of the Senate, a civilian commission to study an operating plan for UMT.

Bones Of 'Peking Man' In America, Assert Chinese

Hong Kong (AP)—The bones of the famous "Peking Man," the Chinese Reds seem to think, have been taken to the United States.

These bones, of anthropological interest because of possible evidence of the existence of humans in North China in pre-historic ages, disappeared during World War II. They had been shipped from Peiping shortly before the war and, the Reds claim, were reported found after the war in Tokyo and "turned over to SCAP headquarters."

"All indications are that the bones were taken by the American Government from a museum in Japan to America," the Communist New China News Agency says.

More Planes For Malaya Fighting

Singapore (AP)—More bombing planes are coming from England to aid the R. A. F. in its attacks against Communist terrorists in the dense jungles of Malaya.

The R. A. F. Headquarters here said this means an intensification of the air strikes against terrorist hideouts. More planes of the Brigand light bomber type are earmarked for service in Malaya. Delivery flights also will start of Hornet fighter-bombers—Britain's fastest piston-engined aircraft. These are to replace the Tempest fighter-bombers now operating in Malaya, and will carry a bigger punch in the anti-terrorist war.

The nation's most destructive fire in 1950 was a $4,000,000 loss of 56,000 acres of forest and 2 buildings on the El Capitan Indian Reservation, Conejos, Calif.

Truman's Six . . .

(Continued from page one) Certainly he sparked the Marshall Plan which is credited in large part with not only stopping the spread of communism to western Europe but even with pushing it into retreat there. And under his leadership—by going to the help of Greece and Turkey to stop communism there—this country broadened its ancient Monroe Doctrine (protecting only the western hemisphere) and entered the role of world champion.

Mr. Truman expanded that role by leading the country into the Atlantic Pact, that league of western nations which have banded together and pledged themselves to go to war if communism attacks.

In this he had the backing of the country, since the Senate approved the pact and only last week approved putting six American divisions into the Atlantic Pact's international army.

(But he suffered a rebuff from the Senate last week when it said it wanted him to get Congress okay before he commits any more American troops to Europe.)

He pushed the new American role of world champion into Asia, too, when he rushed American troops into Korea to stop communism there. That has been a sea-saw fight, with the outcome still uncertain, and over much confusion now about our goal there.

At home, after delaying, he got the country started on a great defense program. That hasn't been all smooth sailing by a long shot and he's still trying to find a way to make it click.

Still, as the years pass, Mr. Truman seems more remote from the people. His talks to the nation have become fewer and fewer until the question is raised in many places: "Where is the leadership?"

And any control he had over Congress, even with his own Democratic back in the majority now, has been badly shattered. His programs are being given the go-slow treatment.

Musical Program For Rotary Club

By WYATT BROWN "Umph-um-umph" "twee-tweet-tweet" went the bass horn and flute last night for the Greenville Rotarians at their meeting. Everyone seemed amused at the huge bass horn winding around the anatomy of the large good-natured youth when he stepped with care through the dining room door of the Rotary Club to play a solo on his instrument.

But when Bob Watson showed what his rendition of Frank's "Melodie Romantique" was like on the deep throated instrument everyone granted it a place among the solo instruments. Bob revealed that the bass horn had versatility and much more range than the familiar umph-um-umph of parades.

David Gilbert did two numbers on his flute: Mozart's "Concerto in D Major" and Gaubert's "Evening on the Plains". Both young men were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. K. V. Gilbert. They were presented by Charles White, chairman of the Program Committee who said the boys recently won Superior rating at the Music Contest for High School students in Durham.

The Rotarians voted last night to join the Lions Club, Exchange Club and Kiwanis Club in holding a dinner in the North dining room of East Carolina College on May 4th to celebrate the occasion of Greenville men being the District governors of the four Civic Clubs simultaneously. Dr. J. D. Messick is to be master of ceremonies but the speaker for the occasion has not been settled on yet.

The Rotarians will do away with their regular dinner and make the celebration dinner count for their regular meeting.

Preceding our Rotarians stood in silence for the Rotarians of the deceased last week of Becher Flanagan who had been a faithful and cooperative member for some years of the Rotary Club.

The following visiting Rotarians attended the Greenville Club's meeting last night: James Everett of Ayden and Wesley Veasey and Ray Phillips of Washington. Floyd Hendrix, club president, presided. At the conclusion of the meeting J. B. Kittrell, Chairman of the Rotary District Conference Steering Committee made a check of those expecting to attend the luncheon and dinner of the Conference and found all but four expected to attend.

Annual Play For Children To Have 6 Performances

School children of Pitt County are in for a treat this week and next when the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College will present its annual children's play for their enjoyment. "Alice in Wonderland," Lewis Carroll's beloved classic for young people, has been chosen as this year's production.

The first performances of the delightful "Alice" stories will be given Wednesday and Thursday of this week, April 11 and 12, at 2:00 in the afternoon in the new College Theatre on the East Campus. These performances will have as audiences children in the Greenville City Schools. The play is being presented then as a contribution to the Community Arts Festival, now in progress.

Other performances for children will take place Friday, April 13, and Monday, April 16, at the same hour and place and will be given for boys and girls of Pitt County schools. A performance for Negro school children is scheduled for Tuesday, April 17, at the Eppes High School. Adults will have an opportunity to see "Alice in Wonderland" Monday evening, April 16, at 8:00 o'clock in the College Theatre.

Dr. Lucille H. Charles of the faculty is directing the play for the Teachers Playhouse. In previous years she has been in charge of production of children's plays presented by the college players, including "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Peter Pan," and a series of one-act dramas. Under her direction, the Teachers Playhouse has made the series of plays for young people a popular annual event in the county, and has established a reputation for the artistry and excellence of their productions both staging and performance.

The Constant . . .

(Continued from page one) second world war was brewing, and he wanted to be prepared to take advantage of it. Ultimately he made the conflict possible by signing the non-aggression pact with Hitler.

Russia unexpectedly got drafted into the war. However, Stalin even capitalized on that by virtually annexing the whole of eastern Europe and establishing powerful forces not only in the satellite states but in strategic eastern Germany.

So the concentration of red military strength in strategic points is nothing new but has been going on under our anxious eyes for years. Of course the situation is terribly dangerous. Still, our greatest immediate peril may lie in the potentialities of the Asiatic situation. If we should allow ourselves to be drawn into a major war with Red China, then another world conflict would be almost inevitable. Russia would join China, and undoubtedly she has concentrations of troops in Siberia ready for action if necessary.

Class Project Is Based On N. Carolina Study

Ayden, April 10—Mrs. Maggie Woodard, one of the teachers at the Ayden Negro High School, and her class have as a special objective for 1950-51 the plan to create an interest in reading and develop the abilities needed for work type reading through the project study of the history of North Carolina.

They obtained a lot of material on their project from the school library, selected by Mrs. L. P. Ormond, and from the State Museum, Raleigh; Dare County Chamber of Commerce, State News Bureau, Raleigh; International Nickel Company, New York, North Carolina Historical Commission, state superintendent of public instruction, Raleigh; statistical information from Sharpe's North Carolina Counties and other places.

The teacher and students visited the fire department, the Daily Reflector and Carolina Dairy Products plants on a recent date. They were welcomed by Assistant Fire Chief Jasper L. Jones, Publisher D. J. Whitchard, Jr., and Mr. Lahr. The visitors were served ice cream at the dairy plant.

Mrs. Woodard expressed appreciation to the managements of the plants they visited in Greenville. She said the students had been invited by the Dare County Chamber of Commerce to visit Manteo on Saturday, May 5.

The Ayden Negro High School students made a map of North Carolina, using cement for the background. Each of the 100 counties was modeled from clay, showing the exact physical outlines, and giving the relative positions of the states of Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina and the Atlantic Ocean.
