

Congress In Uproar; GOP Threatens Impeachment Move

By JACK BELL
Washington, April 11—(AP)—Congress was thrown into an uproar today by President Truman's firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and Republicans talked of possible impeachments.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb) announced that Gen. Douglas MacArthur agreed in a telephone conversation with him today to appear at a joint session of Congress and discuss his dismissal by President Truman.

Wherry said he would introduce a resolution today asking a joint session of the Senate and House to hear MacArthur.

Such a move would require support of at least some of the Democrats who now control the Senate and House.

Senate and House Republican leaders held a conference in the office of Rep. Martin (Mass), the GOP House floor chief.

Afterwards, Martin issued a statement in which he said, among other things, that "the question of possible impeachments was discussed."

Martin let it stand at that. The plain implication, however, was that they felt an impeachment move might be warranted against President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson and possibly others in the Democratic administration.

Impeachment is, in effect, trial for removal from office. The mechanics are this: The House must adopt a resolution of impeachment. The Senate then sits as a court to try the impeachment charges.

Red Base Wiped Out By Allies

Air And Artillery Barrages Wreck Center; U.S., British, Turks Gain

Tokyo, April 11—(AP)—Command of United Nations forces in Korea shifted abruptly today from General MacArthur to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Many of the fighting men in the Korean front lines did not know at a late hour Wednesday that President Truman has fired MacArthur.

The U. N. drive into Red Korea ground ahead. Allied air and artillery barrages wiped out the key Chinese base of Chorwon on the western front. Chorwon is 17 miles north of the border. American, British and Turkish troops scored new gains.

On the central front, American troops drove along the southern shore of Hwachon Reservoir toward the big dam and power grid. Censorship obscured their progress.

Allied ships pounded rail lines and roads.

South Korea was virtually free of communist troops. The last major pocket of Reds was holding out west of the Imjin River on the extreme western front.

Ridgway and Secretary of Army Frank Pace were reported touring the front. They were not available at Eighth Army headquarters when news of MacArthur's dismissal and Ridgway's promotion arrived.

Headquarters sources said Lt. Gen. Frank E. Milburn, First Corps commander, probably would command the Eighth Army until the arrival of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

Van Fleet was named to succeed Ridgway.

Milburn commanded the Army temporarily after the death last December of Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker.

Hwachon, seven miles north of Parallel 38, was the eastern base of the communist buildup area. Intelligence reports placed nearly one-half million communist combat troops in the Chorwon-Hwachon-Kumhwa triangle.

Military censorship obscured details of the fighting in the Hwachon sector. There were reports the Reds were pulling back across the huge reservoir in boats and digging in on the north bank.

Firemen Urge Assembly To Act On Benefit Fund

The East Carolina Firemen's Association, composed of about 31 cities and towns, at its quarterly supper meeting here last night, passed a resolution urging that the General Assembly be requested to act at this session on the bill to increase the assessment on insurance companies for the benefit of the state firemen's relief fund.

The General Assembly passed a bill many years ago taxing the insurance companies one-half of one per cent for the benefit of the state firemen's relief fund. The pending bill before the General Assembly now provides for increasing the tax to one per cent.

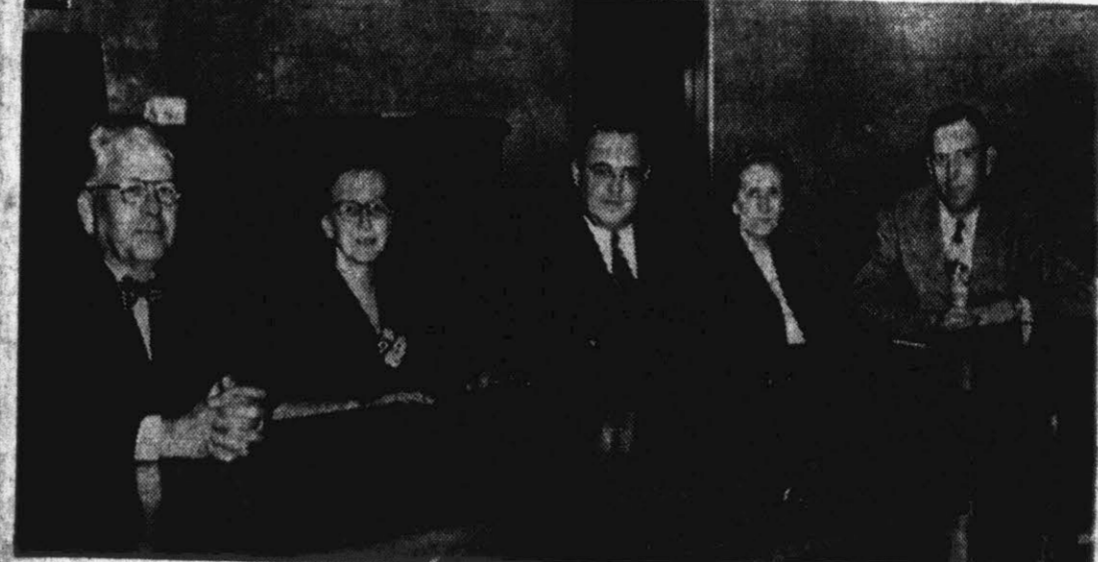

In an open forum discussion of the matter last night, some of the firemen urged that action on the bill be held over until the next session of the Legislature. Others urged immediate action on the bill.

State Fire Marshal Sherwood Brockwell and State Insurance Commissioner Waldo C. Cheek were special guests at the firemen's meeting. Cheek paid tribute to the firemen of the state for their loyal services. Brockwell explained at length the features of the bill in the General Assembly providing for an increase of one-half of one per cent tax on the insurance companies for firemen's relief. The fire marshal did not make any recommendations.

Curtis Flanagan of Farmville, an official of the N.C. State Firemen's Association, urged the association to insist on action on the bill at

Ambitious Program Adopted By C-of-C

A 40-point program of projects for the year was adopted last night by the directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Commenting on the slate of projects adopted by the directors, President F. Badger Johnson stated, "An ambitious program has been adopted for 1951 by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and of the citizens of Greenville to make this program a reality."

The point in the proposed program which caused the most discussion among the directors was the recommendation from the program and public relations committee that included in the program for the year be a point to "make efforts to secure a reevaluation of all property, city and county."

The discussion of the pros and cons of the property reevaluation proposal was participated in by practically all the Chamber of Commerce directors including County Commissioner Floyd Hendrix and Alderman J. Ed Waldrop. The point was included in the program for the year by a majority vote of the directors.

Another new project which was included in the program is a party next fall for the newcomers to the city. The party is slated for the purpose of helping newcomers to Greenville get acquainted and making them feel at home.

Over 250 Attend Briefing Session At City Hall For Price Discussion; Nearly Every Town In Section Represented

Three representatives of the Divisional Office of Price Stabilization last night reviewed the regulations for filing retail pricing charts to more than 250 eastern North Carolina businessmen who jammed the courtroom of the Greenville city hall.

The OPS officials were headed by Divisional Director John G. Clark of Greenville who is the OPS chief for 54 counties in the eastern section of the state. Here with Clark for the meeting were Mrs. Nina Shaw, an OPS official during World War II and following the war, and who is now dry goods expert for this division of the OPS; and Marvin Edmundson of Wilson, food commodity expert for this OPS division.

Practically every town in this section of the state was represented at the meeting by businessmen who were here from towns as far away as Swan Quarter.

The OPS officials explained the regulations which must be followed in filing the pricing charts with the state office not later than April 30 for all retail businesses which handle the categories of merchandise named in the original OPS order and the amendment to the order which was issued last week. The list of categories in the order and the amendment include practically every retail item.

Mrs. Shaw explained that concerns which do less than $20,000 gross business annually do not have to file pricing charts under the OPS regulations, but she strongly advised every merchant to file a pricing

Dr. Messick Cites Funds Allotted For Continued Growth

The North Carolina General Assembly has provided funds for the satisfactory operation of East Carolina College in Greenville during the next biennium, President John D. Messick said today.

$151,000 was provided for completing the east wing of Ragsdale Hall, thus providing 30 additional rooms for 60 girls.

$70,000 was allotted for purchase of 36 acres of the Barber land, between 10 and 14th streets, for extension of the college property.

Provision was made for employing another women's dormitory counselor and for one person to head the department of elementary education. Three workers are provided for janitorial and grounds service $10,000 for each year of the biennium was provided for the college library.

The college administration reported a slight increase in salaries at the institution.

The East Carolina College staff expressed appreciation for the excellent services of Pitt County's representatives in the General Assembly. They are Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, State Senator, and S. O. Worthington of Greenville and Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden, House of Representatives. Senator Jones especially held a strategic position as a member of a Senate appropriations sub-committee in getting through appropriations for the college.

There are 305 Pitt County students enrolled at East Carolina now. An educational leader said, "I believe the people of this county sincerely appreciate the value of the college and what the county's representatives in the General Assembly are doing for the institution. Changing of the name from East Carolina Teachers College to East Carolina College appears to be especially popular with the public."

Drastic Action Taken On Grounds General Unable To Give Wholehearted Support To Allied Objectives In Far East; Ridgway Moves Up To Top Position

By The Associated Press
General MacArthur was fired today from his Tokyo command. President Truman took the drastic action on the ground that the 71-year-old hero of World War II had demonstrated inability to give wholehearted support to United States and United Nations objectives in the Far East.

The move brought angry criticism from supporters of MacArthur—and expressions of relief from British and other officials who said they believed the way was now open for new efforts to make peace with Red China and end the fighting in Korea.

The White House announcement came at 1 a. m. eastern standard time. That was early afternoon in Tokyo, and MacArthur was at luncheon in his home. He received the news "without turning a hair," an aide said.

MacArthur had wanted to expand the war to include direct attacks on Red China. He sought to use the Formosa troops of Chiang Kai-shek to open a second front. Both these stands ran counter to Administration policy. President Truman's action in effect affirmed "this policy to keep the war limited to Korea and the Far East."

Both these stands ran counter to Administration policy. President Truman's action in effect affirmed "this policy to keep the war limited to Korea and the Far East."

Ridgway has been commanding the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea. Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet will succeed to that post.

The White House made public secret messages showing MacArthur had been reminding of directives that statements on policy must be cleared with Washington.

There were indications in Washington that congressional supporters of MacArthur would insist he now be called on to testify on his views. Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said President Truman made a tragic error in firing MacArthur.

There were expressions of relief in Britain, whose officials had voiced concern to Washington over MacArthur's statements. Several British leaders had said MacArthur overstepped himself as a military commander, in issuing statements they regarded as political. First Lord of the Treasury, Sir Stafford Cripp, said that President Truman had shown courage in dismissing a man "who had become a menace to allied unity." That was the viewpoint of the London Star (Liberal).

A former Chief of Staff of the German Army, Heinz Guderian, said the ouster would make the Russians happy. There was no immediate comment from Soviet Russia.

Art Festival Dedicated To Humber At Luncheon

Guests Gather At Messick Home; Tribute Paid To Greenville Natives; Louis Orr Relates Story Of Etchings

The highlight of the Community Arts Festival was the dedication and luncheon held yesterday at the North dining hall on the East Carolina College campus.

The luncheon guests gathered at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Messick to greet Robert Lee Humber, to whom the festival was dedicated, his father, Mr. R. L. Humber, and Mr. Louis Orr, internationally famous artist whose album of 50 original etchings of places of beauty and interest in North Carolina are being featured in the Art Gallery at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Greeting guests at the door were Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. J. L. Fleming, who introduced them to the honor guests.

The home was beautifully decorated with profusions of spring flowers, with the tables centered with assortments of Dutch iris, tulips, daffodils and narcissus. Arrangements of Banksia roses were featured on the mantels.

From the Messick home, the guests went to the dining hall on the college campus, where the luncheon was held. The speaker's table was lovely with streamers of yellow Banksia roses laid down the center and three bowls of varied spring flowers. Other individual tables were centered with bud vases of small blossoms.

Following the invocation by the Rev. Richard E. Hardaway, a two course luncheon was served.

Dr. J. D. Messick welcomed the guests to the college campus and extended a cordial invitation to visit the college.

James L. Fleming introduced out-of-town guests from Farmville, Raleigh and other parts of the state.

Governor Howard McGinnis of Greenville, the presiding officer for the district conference, said this morning indications from the 39 clubs which make up the Rotary district, point to an attendance of approximately 500 people at the conference.

"Everything seems to be set except for a few minor details which are being taken care of," the district governor stated this morning. He said H. V. Churchill, first vice president of Rotary International who will be one of the principals at the conference here, is expected to arrive in Greenville tomorrow morning. We hope it will result in one of the best conferences this Rotary district has ever had." Kittrell expressed his appreciation to the merchants and other people of Greenville for their cooperation in making preparations for the conference.

At the meeting of the committee chairman last night, Kittrell said, it was announced that another function for the Rotary Annus of Greenville and those who come with their husbands to the conference has been added to the conference agenda. He said a tea at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Messick in honor of Mrs. H. V. Churchill and Mrs. Howard J. McGinnis will be held Thursday afternoon at four o'clock.

An ABC On MacArthur

The Clash Of Ideas Over Korean War; Opposite Viewpoints Hampered Attention Now Focused On European Powderkeg; MacArthur Placed Under Wraps In War

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 11—(AP)—This is an ABC on the big fuss over General MacArthur's firing, and those of the Truman Administration which led the President to oust MacArthur early today.

MacArthur has supporters, particularly among Republicans in Congress. Boiled down, this is the MacArthur school of thought:

1. A rough this country and its Atlantic Pact partners are making big plans for defense of Europe, in case Russia attacks there, the big fight against communism has to be made in Asia.

2. MacArthur's hands were tied. He was not permitted to use his full strength in the Korean war against the Chinese communists or to fight it the way he, as General in Command, thought best. If this continues there can only be a stalemate with men and materials chewed up needlessly.

Boiled down, this is the opposite viewpoint:

1. A lot more than just the fighting in Korea is at stake, possibly outbreak of war in Europe. The great danger is Russia, not China. So we can't afford to get too deep-

Engineers Give Report On Recent Ayden Study

Ayden, April 11—At a special meeting of the board of aldermen of the town of Ayden Monday night, the town officials heard the report of the engineers who have been retained by the town to make a survey of the need for expansion of the town's utilities.

The report was made to the board by Engineers Henry L. and Thomas W. Rivers who were called in by the board to make a survey of the town's utilities.

Although the recommendations of the engineers are being studied by the board members and tax experts who have been called in by the board.

Stokes added that the matter will be presented to the people of Ayden in a meeting after the board has considered the matter.

The movement for improving the town's utilities and other facilities grew out of a meeting several weeks ago at which the mayor and aldermen expressed the opinion that a bond issue to make permanent improvements for the town is needed.

At the meeting the citizens, in a vote, recommended to the aldermen that engineers be secured to survey the town's utilities and give a report on needed improvements and extension of the town's utilities.

Repercussions Ahead

MacArthur's Removal As Pacific Commander To Have Great Military And Political Effects Throughout World; View Is That Global Struggle Is On Now

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

President Truman's removal of General Douglas MacArthur from his Pacific command will reverberate in every nook and cranny of the civilized world.

Its repercussions will be great both militarily and politically. When the Associated Press office in New York telephoned me at my home in the early morning hours to tell me the news, my immediate reaction was something like what I had experienced when learning of great upheavals like the opening of world war. It was a feeling of tremendous crisis.

Ture, there had been signs in Washington that something of this sort might happen. Still the actual news was stunning.

One suspects that this will be reaction generally. MacArthur's name is known around the globe as leader of the historic world war drive across the islands of the Pacific, as guiding influence in the remodeling and rehabilitation of a defeated Japan, and finally as Commander in Chief of the United Nations military intervention in Korea.

Of course, since this represents

Music Club Features Works By Mr. Perry

The first public performance of two compositions by George E. Perry of the East Carolina College music faculty was given to a near-capacity audience at the Woman's Club Tuesday evening. The program, a joint recital by Miss Gladys Reichard, mezzo-soprano, Mrs. Margaret Gilbert, pianist and accompanist, and Dr. Karl V. Gilbert, violinist, was presented by the Greenville Music Club as a contribution to the Community Fine Arts Festival celebration.

Mrs. Margaret Gilbert and Dr. Karl V. Gilbert, members of the college music faculty, presented a "Sonata for Violin and Piano, Opus 30" by George E. Perry. Mr. Perry shows good writing technique in his compositions. His modern style reveals itself in the three movements of this sonata. Both the first and second movements held the interest of the audience, the latter effectively carrying the feeling of depression and introspection which the composer intended. The third and final movement was fugue-like in character with both piano and violin assuming equal importance. The melody of each cut across the movement in such fashion with a final contemporary ending given to the whole. The accurate and appropriate phrasing and clarity of attack in the reading of this modern style sonata form by both Mrs. Gilbert and Dr. Gilbert made their performance a pleasurable one to hear.

"Rain Sonata," written and dedicated to Miss Reichard, was sung for the first time publicly by Miss Reichard. Here again an understanding and moving interpretation did much to enhance good music. The sweeping refrain of the counter-melody, the echo of the words in the piano accompaniment set the mood and feeling of the fall of rain and the end of the shower. In both his choice of words and their musical application Mr. Perry is a poet.

Miss Reichard's program also included "Zeligum" by Richard Strauss, a French group, "This Day is Mine" by Ware, and "Make Believe" from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat."

Plans For Camp Hardee Made At Council Meeting

The Greenville Girl Scout Council held its regular bimonthly meeting Monday night at the Rotary Club building. The attendance was very good, and all were very enthusiastic about the work of the council. Mrs. J. K. Long, commissioner, presided. After the usual routine business was disposed of, Camp Hardee and its needs were discussed at length. All present agreed that the new tennis court should be put in order before the opening of camp in June. The court was not used much last year due to the fact it was too soft and muddy most of the time.

During the discussion about the needs of camp, it was brought out that the lodge and infirmary needed a fresh coat of paint to preserve the wood. It seems they have not been painted since they were erected, and are showing the effects of the excessive rainfall.

The waterfront affords the most attractive activities at camp, so the need of two row boats that the children can row and handle easily is obvious. Many of the campers learned to handle a boat very efficiently last summer, and all of them enjoy the sport.

Arts and crafts runs the waterfront a close second in popularity. At present one of the new cabins is being used for the craft shop, but with the enrollment that we are anticipating it will be needed to house campers. Plans were discussed about how to provide a suitable place to house the craft shop. A committee was asked to visit camp to see just what could be done about building a shelter that could be used with possibly a small house to store supplies.

The council planned to visit camp in the near future to start some painting, cleaning, and repair work.

High School Debate Event Set Thursday

High school debate teams from schools in the northeastern section of the state will be present at East Carolina Thursday of this week to engage in a district forensic contest sponsored by the North Carolina High School Debate Union. Sixteen teams will participate.

The event is one of six district contests staged from April 9 through April 17 at colleges in various parts of North Carolina. Dr. Meredith N. Posey of the department of English at East Carolina is director of the Northeastern District contest and has arranged details of the debates to be held here Thursday.

Dr. Posey, who is faculty advisor of the Jarvis Forensic Club at the college, has directed similar high-school debating tournaments in this district for the past several years.

Winning teams in the six district contests, six affirmative and six negative, will enter the final contest at Chapel Hill April 26 and April 27. They will compete for the Aycock Memorial Cup, the trophy provided by the intercollegiate debaters of the University of North Carolina.

The participating schools are discussing the current national high school debate question: "Resolved: That the American People Should Reject the Welfare State."

Affirmative teams which will debate at East Carolina Thursday are from the following schools: Concord; Elizabeth City, Eureka, Morehead City, Scotland Neck, Selma, South Edgecombe of Pinetops, Washington, and Williams-ton.

Negative teams will represent Chicod, Elizabeth City, Morehead City, Perquimans of Hertford, Scotland Neck, South Edgecombe of Pinetops, and Washington.

Faculty members of East Carolina College will act as judges in the district contest to be held here.

College Choir Is Invited To Event

He is a member of the National Committee on Curriculum for Teacher Training Institutions of the music educators organization and is representative for North Carolina on the committee.

In Richmond the College Choir will present three operatic numbers. These are the opening chorus from Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," and the church scene and the final chorus from the American folk opera "Down in the Valley" by Kurt Weill.

Mary Wallace Foy of Pollockville, soprano, and George W. Starling of Roxboro, tenor, will sing the incidental solos in "The Bartered Bride." Alison Hearne of Greenville, soprano, and Leonard B. Starling of Rocky Mount, baritone, will sing the incidental solos in "Down in the Valley."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
 THE MUSTARD SEED

Yesterday a man showed me a little souvenir which was given him by a men's Bible class in a southern church. It was a mustard seed encased in the center of a small plastic ball and the whole thing arranged to hang on one's watch chain.

This mustard seed is symbolic of the interest of this Sunday school class in the unusual work being carried on by Frank Laubach, the missionary who already has taught millions of people in different parts of the world to read and write. He left recently for Afghanistan, upon the invitation of that government, to set up literacy classes among a very illiterate people.

The mustard seed! It recalls two sayings of Jesus: his parable of the mustard seed in which the little grows into much, and his statement that if one has faith as a grain of mustard seed, he can say to the mountain, "Be thou removed and be thou cast into the sea."

This little thimble which men of a certain Sunday school class hang on their watch chains is intended to remind them of the unlimited potentiality of Christian faith. Also it counsels them against despair over the apparent smallness of their efforts and the efforts of other Christian people.

Seeds Must Be Planted If We Grow A Crop

It is not a difficult task to put down on paper an ambitious program for any business or organization. But transforming the ambitious proposals into realities is another matter indeed.

The 40-point program which has been set forth by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce for 1951 is a far-reaching program on paper, and at a glance it is evident that the program can not be carried out by a small group of individuals. The points of the program range from generalities such as promoting projects which will "increase the city's retail and wholesale trade volume" to specific projects as securing a Negro swimming pool for Greenville.

As the Reflector has pointed out several times before, Greenville and Pitt county are in the midst of an area which is experiencing the beginning of an industrial era. The success of the development of the city and the county during the era will depend to a large extent upon the efforts which are put forth by the citizens as a group to make the cities and towns of the county desirable locations for industry.

In the spring a farmer can look across an acre of fertile land and say, "By August that land will be covered by a beautiful crop of fine tobacco." But if he doesn't plant the seed, and doesn't tend his crop, the fall will find the land just as barren as it was in the spring.

The same is true of Pitt county in this new era into which we are entering. We have the fertile soil for industrial growth. We can make our plans on paper. But if we don't plant the seeds which will bring forth a good crop of industry in due time, a decade from now we'll find ourselves without the harvest we had anticipated. Industry, just like a good tobacco crop, can be acquired without a lot of hard work. Progress can not be attained without constant effort.

The plans the people of the county make on paper, and the dreams we have of the future development of this area, both industrially and agriculturally will not come true unless the plans are carried to completion by a lot of diligent workers.

And those workers must be the people of the towns and the rural sections of the county who will cooperate to transform into reality proposed projects which will be beneficial to the area as a whole.

A Serious And Immediate Need

Time was, not too many years ago, when items like automobiles, electric lights and telephones were considered luxuries. But today these items are essential in the daily lives of people and businesses.

A telephone particularly is an essential item to today's business transactions; and in North Greenville the business establishments are seriously handicapped by the lack of telephone facilities.

During the war years the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company, like other telephone companies, was seriously handicapped because it could not obtain the materials with which to expand its facilities to supply service for all the people who wanted it. The war ended almost six years ago, and yet today there are many people in Greenville who still are seeking adequate telephone service. And we might add that there are people who are seeking just telephone service . . . they have ceased to be fussy about the kind they can get.

There are a number of businesses which are moving to the area north of Tar river, and some of these have run up against a blank wall in their attempts to secure telephone service from the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company. Company spokesmen have said plans are in the mill to furnish adequate telephone service to the area of North Greenville and other areas of the city, but they have given no indication how soon such service will be available. It may be months, or on the other hand it may be years if some steps are not taken immediately.

The Reflector is fully aware that some materials are difficult to obtain at the present time. But likewise we are aware that by virtue of the franchise the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company has in this territory, the company is obligated to furnish telephone service to the area.

We are also keenly aware that no city or any particular section of a city is unable to get adequate telephone service is going to attract new business establishments.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greenville has begun to take steps in an effort to aid the people in North Greenville to secure telephone service. But in dealing with telephone companies, as with other public utilities, it often takes a lot of support from a lot of people to get the service which is needed.

Greenville needs better telephone service in some of its areas, and the city can not afford to wait a year or several years to secure the service which is sorely needed today.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
 By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11—It is no accident that Mrs. India Edwards, the flamboyant Joan of Arc of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee, has been a frequent visitor to the White House since the Kefauver television crime show dramatized for the nation's mothers and wives the evil alliance between racketeers and politicians throughout the country.

President Truman has called her into secret conferences in a desperate effort to devise a program which will prevent this vast and influential body of voters from deserting the Democratic ticket next year and thereafter. Whether he runs or not, he plans to select the 1952 nominee, and a defeat would naturally be regarded as a repudiation of his record. He is a sensitive soul.

DISTAFF—The White House has had plenty of warnings that the women, who had deep human sympathy for many Roosevelt-Truman policies, are shocked by the Kefauver revelations.

Seventy per cent of the letters praising members of the crime committee, and urging them to continue their inquiry, have come from the feminine sex. Newspaper and magazine reports show that they neglected all but essential homework during the televising of the hearings at St. Louis and New York.

The Truman-Edwards counteroffensive will assume several forms. First, it is planned to organize a nationwide women's committee which will urge further prosecution of racketeers, and "praise" the Administration for its efforts in that direction. Secondly, there will be more appointments of women to high offices hitherto reserved for men, especially in the diplomatic service.

In short, in view of the threat of revolt by the distaff bloc, Mrs. Edwards has become one of the most important and essential members of the Truman political household.

BIZARRE—The inside story behind the indictment of President Truman's Fair Deal and economic program by the Joint Congressional Economic Committee is one of the most bizarre and unwritten yarns at the Capital.

This group, which consists of seven Senators and seven Representatives, is dominated by supposed supporters of the White House. Nevertheless, it repudiated almost every proposal presented to Congress by the White House in January messages.

What makes the story so provocative is the fact that Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming is the committee chairman. He has voted at least 90 per cent for Roosevelt-Truman schemes since 1933. In fact, he was the Administration's candidate for Senate Majority Leader in an attempt to head off Senator Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, the entry of the southern plantation bloc.

BURIAL—The O'Mahoney report repudiated the President's program, including the financial phases of rearmament, so scathingly that Senator Taft, ranking Republican member, did not submit a minority report for the first time in the committee's history.

To have done so, Mr. Taft feels, would have been like trumping his partner's ace. In his opinion, it marked a burial of radical ideas by a squad of radical diggers.

INDICTMENT—Chairman O'Mahoney's committee condemned the parity formula on the ground that it permits excessive boosts in food prices. It denounced reopening of labor contracts and wage increases based on cost of living trends. It urged a downward revision of past appropriations for power, highways, waterways etc. It condemned Mr. Truman's demand for immediate construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

It advocated reduction or deferment of federal grants for health and education. It criticized severely excessive federal spending on non-military projects. Finally, it blamed the Administration for not bringing forth any anti-inflation program until six to nine months after the Korean outbreak.

In short, if the indictment had been drawn by a political grand jury consisting of Republican National Chairman Gabrielson, Senate Minority Leader Wherry and Republican Policy Maker Taft, it could not have been more devastating. And yet Chairman O'Mahoney contends that it marks no "shift in policy."

Unfortunately, the exasperated Harry S. Truman does not concur.

DISILLUSIONING—The writer recently reported a somewhat disillusioning development with respect to Senate voting on the grave issue of sending troops to Europe, and on the allied question of the President's right to ship large-scale forces overseas without congressional approval. It was disillusioning because it said that many members of the upper chamber did not understand the importance of policies involved in the decision.

Unfortunately, the behavior of two members substantiated the original report. Senator Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey and Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine originally cast their ballots for the Wherry amendment. This provided that President Truman send four more divisions to Europe, but said that he "should" seek Senate acquiescence before shipping more forces overseas.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, Jr

Since my living is made from the automotive industry, far be it from me to bite the hand that feeds me. However, I read with interest a story by R. W. Marks entitled "What's Wrong with American Cars." R. W. says that the American car costs twice as much as it should, simply because the American public is more interested in style and beauty than practicality. A Detroit automotive official explains that "we are in business to sell as many cars as possible. And this means giving the public whatever it will buy on the chrome trim if the public wanted cars with two smokestacks, we'd build 'em."

In his story Marks sets out to disprove several popular beliefs about American cars:

1. That heavy cars provide maximum safety: Safety depends on strength, not weight. A cockroach can fall from a six-story window and not be hurt. The same fall would kill a man. Safety in a car depends on the compressive strength of the parts that take the blow.
2. That modern cars are super-powered. True, the new models have more horsepower than those used in 1930-1940 cars. But you have to consider the amount of weight to be pulled by that horsepower. When you consider that weight, modern cars are not super-powered.
3. That American cars are economical. It costs money to carry around dead weight, but as long as the public demands it, there will be dead weight. Surveys prove that our cars get good gasoline mileage on the open road, but most of the American driving is done in heavy traffic, where we average about 12 miles to the gallon.

In his article Marks is full of kicks for our present cars, but at the same time he says what the car should be: A car should be small enough to get into parking places, and maneuverable enough to get in without twisting the wheel almost off. A car should have maximum visibility, so you can see the curb in front of you and the car behind you. Since there's no way to get around tire trouble, car manufacturers should supply cars with built-in jacks, operating from the dash.

The dashboard and steering wheel should be crash-padded; all door and window handles should be recessed so that no one would be stabbed in case of a quick stop. There should be a safety glass windshield, like in the Tucker car that never was produced, to fall out if hit by a passenger's head. Mark's article gives you food for thought. Frankly, I'm one of those Americans who influenced the manufacturer to make the car like it is today. But we could be wrong. Maybe we should be more practical, and forget beauty and style in automobiles. And I thank you.

JUDGES — As predicted early in the session, the 1951 general assembly declined to take definite action toward revamping the judicial districts or authorizing election more regular judges. This attitude is in keeping that manifested throughout the session with respect to congressional and state senatorial districts. Despite constitutional mandate, the assembly has consistently refused to re-appoint legislative membership in either national or state bodies. It is equally opposed to doing anything now about judicial and senatorial districts. So until another legislature convenes there will still be twenty-one judicial districts in each, and a maximum of eight appointed special judges. This was made certain by action of the house Judiciary I committee Tuesday in postponing indefinitely consideration of seven bills designed to afford additional elective judges.

GROUNDWORK—It was made clear, however, that the tremendous amount of work done on the bills by Rep. Claude Love of Buncombe and others would not be lost. The committee by formed vote expressed appreciation to Mr. Love and officially requested the State Judicial Council to preserve and use the data which he had assembled. Spokesmen for the Council joined in expressing thanks for the groundwork already done and gave assurance that it would not be wasted in further efforts to work out a feasible plan for improving the administration of justice through the courts of the state. In fact, everybody agreed that something sorely needs to be done, that the Love program is basically sound. Only difference in opinion, and that was very wide, is as to timing. Majority of the committee felt, and Mr. Love concurred, that two years experience under new laws effectuating another constitutional provision would be valuable, almost essential, in finding answers to many of the questions posed by present conditions in the superior courts.

GRADUAL — Associate Justice William A. Devin of the supreme court and Judge William H. Bobbitt of the superior bench, speaking for the judicial council, suggested that approach to the problem should be gradual and grounded in thorough study and experience under the new plan. It was their opinion that the constitutional amendment ratified last fall and effectuated by legislation this year transferring the ordering of special terms of court and assignment of judges from the governor to the chief justice might relieve many of the congested conditions complained of. They were backed up by Red Helms, Charlotte attorney, who as president of the N. C. State Bar, Inc., was largely instrumental in establishing the Judicial Council. They argued the free exchange of goods within the United States; such dollar balances as the Latin American states had been able to build up here have virtually melted away. Our economic dislocation thus serves as a barrier to hemispheric collaboration

What Other Papers Are Thinking

At the same time that it makes the achievement of our defense program difficult. Since economic well-being throughout the Americas will be the most effective defense which we can create against communism in this part of the world, no effort should be spared to get our house in order. There is an old saying that to have good neighbors one must first be a good neighbor. This applies not only to the United States but to the other members of the Pan-American Union as well. President Peron makes the building of hemispheric unity more difficult by his actions against freedom, but in spite of that new life must be put into the good neighbor policy—and soon.

NEED GOOD NEIGHBORS Greenville, (S. C.) News When Cordell Hull headed the State Department, he developed and followed the much-publicized Good Neighbor policy toward the Latin American states. In the postwar years it has been permitted to lag, as our interests have turned in other directions. The new threat of aggression, however, revives the need for collaboration with those whom geography has made our neighbors. Military and economic cooperation there fore must be the principal concern of the current conference of the 21 American republics. Perhaps the other Americas will be willing to contribute some force to foreign expeditionary groups as evidence of the in-

 Shortages and high prices of materials have made elimination of waste more important in both defense and civilian plants. The problem of waste has been made more critical by the addition of new employees, many of whom do not understand the importance of preventing waste or the technique of avoiding it. Rapid recruitment has also brought in some workers who just don't give a hang.

In some of the large plants, carefully organized programs are being launched to prevent waste. Some companies are spending large sums on these programs because they can save even more money by minimizing losses.

Here are the basic principles of one such program:

1. Thorough indoctrination of new workers in the use of tools and machines, which are far more costly than raw materials and becoming harder to replace.
2. Explanation to new workers of the cost to the company of faulty products and wasted materials, with emphasis on the facts that (a) high employment depends on making profits and (b) the cost of waste on defense contracts is eventually paid by taxpayers, which include the worker himself.
3. Encouragement to older workers, through foremen, house organs, company bulletins, etc., to prevent waste.
4. Contests among various production lines for the best records in producing acceptable parts.
5. Prizes for best suggestions for reducing waste and other losses.
6. Simultaneously, a salvage campaign to reclaim metals, paper, plastics, packing materials and other reusable materials.

There is the plan in outline. Managements of other plants are free to help themselves and adapt it to meet their own problems.

RULES FOR TV VIEWERS INCLUDE CUPCHER
 A card containing "Rules for Television Viewers" has become an effective promotional piece for an Arkansas retailer. The card is intended to be put up when neighbors drop in on a set owner.

Most of the rules are humorous: "Do not fondle the knobs. (We bought and paid for the set.) We do not serve set-ups. (You may bring your own refreshments.)" and "Feel free to invite your host and his entire family to visit your home some time!"

One rule is deadly serious. It suggests that if the visitor likes the set, he can get one from the dealer who furnishes the card.

STAKES OUT A WEEK
 Processors, packagers and retailers of rice have gotten together to make April 22 to 28 "National Rice Week." Rice will be heavily advertised during that week, housewives encouraged to try new rice dishes, and restaurateurs urged to feature it on their menus.

U. S. TELLS HOW TO GET BUSINESS EDUCATION
 A new government booklet doesn't offer an education in the operation of a small business, but it tells how to get the information. It is "Outline and Source material for Small Business Education," and is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., for 30 cents.

PHONOGRAPH DISCS TESTED PRE-RELEASE
 Testing has become standard procedure in the introduction of new products. Now it has been applied to new phonograph records.

A dozen unreleased records were played over a Hartford, Conn., station and prizes were offered to listeners as to whether the records should be released. More than 600 people wrote in, giving the record manufacturer an idea of which of the disks was worth the most advertising.

GREECE IN MARKET FOR MACHINERY, TOOLS
 Using ECA funds, Greece is seeking offers of a large number of machines for workshops, measuring instruments and such, many in lots small enough to interest small suppliers. Details may be obtained from the ECA Office of Small Business, Washington 25, D. C.

New York.—(AP)—Of all the thousands of homeless children in Korea the one I can't forget is Huey Long.

He looked like a weeping perambulator with a crew haircut the first time I saw him the night the American Army pulled back through burning Seoul in early January.

Dwight Martin, another correspondent, and I were touring the darkened city. It was lit only by a half-dozen acre-wide fires.

On the steps of city hall stood a small form, boy, all alone and weeping bitterly. Loaded troop trucks roared by. Across the way pitiful groups of plodding refugees were outlined against the flames of collapsing storefronts.

We halted our jeep and talked to the crying boy. Tears jetted from his eyes like water from a toy gun. He spoke a few words of English he had picked up from soldiers. He let us know that he name, he said, was eight-year-old and an orphan. When we asked him "big Hong Koo He."

Right away we decided that Huey Long was easier to remember than Hong Koo He, and Huey Long he became. What would we do with him? If we drove off, we felt he would die of starvation.

Dwight, who has children of his own, finally sighed and said: "Jump in, kid." He climbed into the jeep, we swaddled him in a blanket, and the tears stopped, as if by magic.

It was a twelve-hour ride through freezing weather back to our press camp at Taegu. Huey went without a whimper. Every once in a while he would poke his head out of his quilt and sing a few snatches of "My Darling Clementine" and then sink back and fall asleep.

He immediately became the pet and autocrat of the press camp. He also acquired some new nicknames—"The Cinnamon Kid," "Little Pot Belly," and "Charlie Company."

When "On the Beach" went to Tokyo, "On the Beach" was called me—had to take over as foster father. He was a hard child to handle. Through interpreters he told us that his father had died, his mother had been killed in an allied bombing raid, and he had been put into an orphanage but had run away from it twice.

Bedtime was always stormy. Usually two correspondents finally had to pick him up by force and carry him spreadeagle style to his cot.

But in the morning our little man always became a lonesome affectionate little boy again. He got up before the birds. He would try to crawl into our bedrolls to snuggle. Then he would go around and pat each sleeping correspondent on the cheek, grunting "Ugh!" whenever he found one that hadn't shaved.

Then he would begin to sing, over and over: "Jesus Loves me, this I know. For the Bible tells me so." After an hour of this, even the sleepiest newsmen decided it was time to get up and face an Army breakfast.

It was impossible to regulate Huey's diet. Whenever American food made him sick, he'd go into town and buy Korean food. He liked to cook for himself. One morning he boiled seven eggs and two sweet potatoes—and ate them all. After he survived that, we decided he knew more about his stomach than we did.

Huey rarely called me by name. He'd just ask one of the Korean houseboys, "Where's my American?" He regarded me as his personal property. I became so fond of Huey Long I decided to try to adopt him legally. An Army Chaplain talked me out of it.

"If you take him to America, he will be on exhibition all his life. It is better for him that he stay here with his own people."

When I left, Huey wept a little. Before we rode out to the airfield, he complained:

"All my new oncles go away and die. They must die, because they don't come back."

But I had bought him a new pair of leather boots, and he liked them very much.

A few weeks later correspondent friends—other "new oncles"—amused Huey into an orphanage supported by U. S. soldiers. He seemed happy there for a few days. But recently I got a letter saying:

"Huey has run off again. And the orphanage says they do not know what to do with him if they get him back. He was beginning to pay too much attention to the little girl orphans."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADEN
 Washington—The nation's capital, which has been knee-deep in diplomats, cherry blossom princesses and tourists, has worn its red carpet thin. Its hostesses are all tuckered out.

The president of France and Mme. Aurore created the biggest splash, but the Latin Americans—seven foreign ministers and 17 ambassadors—stayed longer, and the entertaining in their honor was no less spectacular.

President and Mrs. Truman wined and dined the Auriols at the Carlton Hotel and were wined and dined in turn by the Auriols at a "veddy, veddy" elegant affair at the French embassy. President Truman later gave a big stag dinner for the Latin diplomats.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Acheson gave a big formal dinner for the French president and his handsome wife at Anderson House, which rivals the Ritz-Elysee Palace in magnificence. Anderson House, the Graustarkian headquarters of the exclusive Society of the Cincinnati, is often used for official state affairs.

It was the scene as well for the Achesons' magnificent reception for the Latin American visitors and their ladies, whom most agree were the most beautiful and elegantly dressed women ever to visit the capital.

The table at the Trumans' dinner for the Auriols was resplendently set with white damask, sparkling crystal, gold-trimmed plates, silver candelabra and 13 silver bowls blooming with red roses and white snapdragons from the White House green house. There was also a pastel-colored fountain.

Four different wines were served—two from California—during the dinner, which included stuffed lobster and tenderloin of beef. Mrs. Truman wore powder blue brocade; daughter Margaret, billowing pink tulle, with black lace redingote. Mme. Auriol wore tobacco brown satin intricately beaded in white; Mrs. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, French blue embroidered tulle. Another notable figure was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who more than 30 years ago visited France as the wife of the President of the United States. She wore fringed black satin under an ermine cape.

Pactolus Ruritan Reports Progress On Club Work

Pactolus, April 11—The entire senior class and bus drivers of Pactolus High School were the special guests of the Pactolus Ruritan Club Monday night at their regular monthly meeting held in the High School lunch room.

Following the serving of a fried chicken supper the club took up various business matters of importance to the club and the community as a whole.

A report was heard from Noel Lee, Chairman of the Recreation Committee who reported that local club members, working with the high school boys, had graded and prepared a baseball diamond which was now ready for use. This is just part of a proposed plan of improvements for the local High School, Lee stated.

A large ditch which is located on the school grounds, long an eyesore, is a step nearer to being filled up, Lee stated also. Plans are now being made for the project to be rushed to completion.

The rural highways committee stated that a speed zone of 35 miles per hour has now been established at the Pactolus city limits and additional safety signs have been installed around the area by the Highway Division of the state.

Bibles which were purchased for presentation to the graduating seniors have arrived and are ready to be given out, the club learned.

The club voted to hold a dinner, possibly once a month, in connection with some church in the area and the Home Demonstration club, in an effort to raise money for the communist groups. A committee composed of Hank Morris as Chairman and Noel Lee and Lester Sermons, was appointed by president, H. C. Simmons, to work out details for the holding of the supper in the near future.

Ethiopia Seeks Tourist Trade

Addis Ababa —(AP)—Ethiopia has great tourist attractions, says Ralph S. Damon, President of TransWorld Airlines. On a visit here recently Damon said he intended to explore the possibilities of having American tourists visit the country.

The main reason for Damon's trip to Ethiopia, he said, is that TWA has a seven-year contract for supplying Ethiopian Airlines with managerial, technical and flying personnel.

Chapter 22

Ray watched the stranger and his girl friend move toward the entrance through the backbar mirror. Joe looked at him, then let his eyes wander over the huge interior of the place, with its tables, dancefloor, bar, and orchestra.

"All we need is a girl friend," Joe grumbled. "All this is wasted without one. No kiddin'."

"Maybe that can be fixed," Ray said stily. He sipped his cocktail while his eyes studied the activity around them. They settled finally on two young ladies sitting in a booth. They were alone, and Ray remembered now that they had been alone over there when he and Joe came in.

The two girls were looking at them.

"Let's go over," Joe said, rising and starting over. Ray followed, regretting the impulse that had prompted him to start this.

As they approached the booth Ray studied the two girls. One of them seemed to appeal to him in some way. She was dark haired, her face extremely white and smooth, but with an expression of strain lurking on it. Her eyes were large and round—which added to the air of tenseness. Her lips smiled anxiously as he passed with Joe in front of the table.

"May we join you?" Joe asked politely.

"Please do," Ray heard the other girl say. He sat down beside the dark haired girl, his eyes still studying her.

"I'm Joe," Ray heard Joe say. "And this is my pal, Ray."

"I'm Nancy," Ray heard the other girl say. "And this is my friend, Nelva."

"Nelva!" Joe exploded. But Ray was looking deep into her large blue eyes and realizing that he had instinctively known it was her.

"We'll leave quickly," he heard Nelva murmur in his ear. Her voice thrilled him. He nodded.

"Let's go right now," he said suddenly, gruffy. "Suddenly this place seems full of danger."

"It is," Nelva said. She laid a hand on his arm. Her fingers bit into his flesh.

"Pins and needles pricked every cell of his body for three terrible seconds. It ended abruptly. His vision cleared. The room seemed no different than it had been. There were people, music, and chatter. But suddenly Ray knew it was not the same.

"Which way did we travel?" he asked. "Into the future?"

"No, Ray," Nelva said. "We've gone back to the day you arrived here in 1939. This is May nineteenth, nineteen thirty-nine."

Ray heard Joe whistle softly in amazement. His head was spinning with bewilderment.

"Let's leave," Nelva urged gently. "We have lots to do, and lots to talk about—but we can't do it here."

It was one of those rambling one story cottages residences of the type designed by an architect who knows how to fit structure to living gracefully. Outside each window was a delightful world of plants and birds and squirrels all so unconcerned about what went on inside that they carried their love making and fighting right up to the sills of the full length windows.

Ray awakened to all this from the most restful sleep he had had in a long time. He showered in a dream of glistening glass and chrome, dressed in clothes that had been laid out for him while he slept, and which were all new and never worn.

In a kitchen designed for modern living he fell in love with Nelva instantly in her red checkered housedress. She looked up from frying ranch style eggs and flashed him a smile. Joe and Nancy were in the breakfast nook in the midst of their breakfast already.

Ray stood just inside the doorway looking at all this. His eyes returned to Nelva. He guessed that it must have been she who laid out his clothes while he slept, she who must have bought them.

"Well, come on in and get comfortable," Joe ordered jovially.

"Don't stand there gawking." "There's plenty to gawk at," Ray said, catching Nelva's eye. He walked across the room purposefully and took Nelva's face between his hands and kissed her on the lips while she protested mildly, smiling with her lips and her blue eyes.

Those blue eyes followed him tenderly as he went over to the nook and sat down opposite Joe and Nancy. He thought: it's a very rare thing for a man to find a girl with the same abilities and interests.

It was clumsy to put it that way, but the clumsy words covered everything. He let Joe and Nancy do the talking while he, also, with Nelva sitting beside him, ate and ate. He finished. Nancy got up and poured more coffee for them. Cigarettes appeared from somewhere—Joe had them and gave him one.

"Now then, dream girl," Ray said, smiling at Nelva. "Tell me. You know what I want to know. Everything. Who are you, when and where do you originally come from, how did you accomplish the impossible in time travel—and without any gadgets that I could see, and why am I necessary in all this, since it's obvious that your knowledge is so far above mine that I can't possibly contribute anything to yours?"

"What would you say if I were a Vargian?" Nelva asked. She watched his face anxiously.

"But you aren't!" Ray said. "You are shorter—barely five feet five, while they're over six, and you don't have the extra-temporal eye."

"Then let's put it this way," Nelva said. "What if the Vargians were just plain human beings? Suppose any married couple could have Vargian children if they wanted them?"

"How would it be done?" Ray asked. "That would mean the Vargians are a mutation on the human race, and a controlled mutation that could be repeated at will. Is it inheritable, or does every Vargian child have to undergo the operation or whatever it is?"

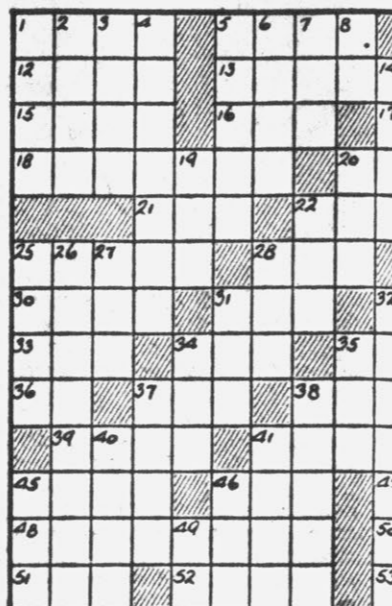

"You're getting close," Nelva said. "A Vargian is just an ordinary human being at birth, though of a strain different than the modern ones."

"Then how do they get that third eye?" Ray asked.

NEW "SAFETY-FLOW RIDE"—stability and safety never possible before! Even when you unexpectedly encounter violent bumps, dips, waves, or holes in the road, you enjoy a smooth and steady motion. You have complete control of the car at all times. "Safety-Flow Ride" comes from new Oriflow shock absorbers working with other engineering features.

NEW ELECTRIC WINDSHIELD WIPERS, unlike vacuum wipers, clean at a fast, constant speed, even when the engine is under a heavy load. They're standard equipment and with them you're not required to buy a vacuum booster. You enjoy better vision all around, with narrower front corner posts and a 15% larger rear window.

NEW BUMPERS, GRILLE, HOOD. The low-sweeping new hood permits a better view of the road close to the car. Individual grille units are replaceable, so you don't need a whole new grille if only one part is damaged. Also, all four fenders are bolted on; they cost less to repair or replace than fenders which are parts of the body.

NEW INSTRUMENT PANEL AND HAND BRAKE. The new vertical-grain dash harmonizes with a variety of rich interior fabrics and trim. The new "T-handle" hand brake pulls easily, sets positively, and releases at a turn of the handle. The ignition key does three things at once: turns on the ignition, starts the engine, and puts the automatic choke in operation!

NEW ENGINE FEATURES. A new radiator pressure cap increases cooling capacity when you need it most and also helps keep the water or anti-freeze from boiling away. A new by-pass cooling system, standard on all models, gives fast warm-up and yet circulates the coolant so that the engine is fully protected under all starting and driving conditions.

Bullock's Triple Clinches Win For Ayden Over Robersonville

Robersonville, April 11.—A mighty triple in the top of the fifth frame yesterday afternoon by Pitcher Teddy Bullock, which cleared the bases, enabled the Ayden high school baseballers to take a 3-2 decision over Coastal Conference defending champions, Robersonville.

The victory likewise moved the Tornados into a two-way tie for first place in the Coastal Conference with Robersonville. Both teams have won two games and lost one in conference play.

Ayden led the entire ball game as they scored one run in the top of the second inning and added another in the top of the fourth, with the fifth inning being the big frame for the visitors as they gathered in three rallies to move out of slanger on Bullock's triple.

Bullock allowed three well-placed hits during the entire seven innings of the ball game, while striking out eight batters and allowing only one free pass.

Three Ayden infield errors allowed the Robersonville leads to put across two runs, both coming in the bottom of the sixth inning. Robersonville scored first when Second Baseman Bailey got a single, with an error on the part of the shortstop moving Bailey to third, and Bailey scored on an infield hit by Fleming which was error by the shortstop, allowing one run to cross the plate. The last run was also scored on errors.

Leading the victors in yesterday's encounter was David Manning with two for three.

Johnson started on the mound for Robersonville, was reached for two runs and four hits before giving way to Clark. He fanned three men and walked one James replaced Cherry behind the plate in the sixth frame.

Ayden will take on Farmville high school in a Coastal Conference battle Friday afternoon in Ayden.

Score by innings:

Ayden	010	130	0-5	5	3
Robersonville	000	002	0-2	3	1

Few Baseballers To Feel Pinch Of Salary Controls

By The Associated Press

With the exception of Stan Musial, who may lose his $35,000 pay hike, baseball players in general won't be affected by the new government ruling which puts a control on their salaries.

The Wage Stabilization Board in Washington decided yesterday to put a ceiling on baseball salaries. This is what it amounts to:

A baseball team can't pay any player more than it paid its highest-salaried star in 1950.

Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' brilliant outfielder, falls into this category.

Last season, Musial, the Cards' highest paid player, received a reported $50,000. This season he reportedly got a $35,000 increase.

But under the rules, which govern generally with club payments, Musial would lose his pay hike.

The board contends that wages paid players in 1951 must, incidentally, aren't official yet, remain at 1950 levels. And, it maintains, it is doubtful if a $35,000 increase is within the general pattern of increases of the St. Louis club.

In Houston, owner Fred Saich of the Cardinals said he will ask the board to let Musial keep his raise because "I feel Stan is getting a fair salary."

The ruling, of course, does not apply to all players who have received big increases. George Kell of Detroit is one of these players. He has received a fat pay boost, but, unlike Musial, he can keep every penny of it.

Kell's salary was reported to have been upped $15,000 to $45,000. He'll be able to keep all of this because Detroit pitcher Hal Newhouser received $50,000 last year as Detroit's highest-paid player.

Duke Gets Shot At Loop Rivals

Richmond, Va., April 11.—(AP)—Duke's Blue Devils had a shot today at regaining the undisputed leadership in the Southern Conference's southern division baseball struggle.

Leaders up until yesterday, the Blue Devils were tied for the top rung by Clemson's Tigers, who emphatically walloped South Carolina, 11-1, after barely outlasting the Gamecocks the day before.

Both Duke and Clemson had 3-0 marks against loop foes as the Blue Devils took on North Carolina State this afternoon. Clemson was not scheduled for action today.

The only game yesterday besides the Clemson-South Carolina contest saw North Carolina's Tar Heels hang a convincing 9-0 setback on the defending champion Demon Deacons of Wake Forest.

Sewell Holds Up Naming Lineup

Lynchburg, Va., April 11.—(AP)—Manager Luke Sewell of Cincinnati says he will not name his starting lineup for the season's opener against Pittsburgh Monday night late this week.

One thing is sure, however, Sewell repeated—Ewell (Bullwhip) Blackwell is going to pitch for the Reds in the inaugural if he proves ready.

Otherwise, the honor will go to Howie Fox, who is shaping up as the Red's No. 3 hurler.

Eddie's Ready..... by Pap'

Eddie Erault is due for a big season. The Cincinnati Reds have a flock of promising young hurlers who could come through and give Ewell Blackwell some help on the mound. One of the best of these is Eddie Erault, a solid right hander who has been threatening to click for several seasons.

Erault is equipped with one of the best curves in the game and his fast ball is very much alive. He has poise and experience, yet he hasn't clicked in the National League. Last season, he appeared in 33 games and posted an impressive record of four victories and two losses.

After spending 32 months in the Infantry in World War II including 24 months in the South Pacific, Erault rejoined the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League in 1946 and won 20 games while being charged with 14 losses. He fanned 234 batters to take the league strike-out record, pitched 26 complete games and so impressed the Reds that they purchased his contract. Eddie spent the 1947 season with the Reds. After appearing in two games at the start of the 1948 season, Erault was optioned to the Syracuse Chiefs. He started slowly with Syracuse but won 11 of his last 13 starts to end up with a 15-7 record for the season. Cincinnati brought him back and Erault has been trying to hit his real stride ever since.

Black Cats Continue Late Drive To Take Lead In Carbon Bowling League

Carbon Bowling League	Wins	Losses
Black Cats	39	36 520
Nine Lives	38	37 507
Evereadys	37	38 493
Penlites	36	39 480

The Black Cats continued their late surge toward the top of the heap in the Carbon League by beating the league-leading Evereadys in three games while the Nine Lives were retaining their second place by taking two games from the Penlites.

Sam Brooks, bowling 478 for the set, paced his Cats to the three wins and also posted single and high three-game scores for the night. Brooks, who presently is averaging 137, rolled games of 157, 136 and 185 for the total. His score was 98 pins better than the next high man for the Cats, Gordon Berry paced the Evereadys with 431.

Leading the way for the Lives in their two-game win over the Penlites was Rommie Mallison with 446. He beat out Bill Bryan, usually the team's high scorer, by 31 pins. Leading the Penlites, whose five scores were all in the 300s, was Joe Tabar with 397.

Heien Craft posted the second-high three-game score for the season when he rolled 411 to go ahead of Nan Crawford and Frances Edwards, both of whom were tied at 409. However, Bruce Hester still leads the women with a three-game score of 467.

Roy Campanella In His Top Form

Baltimore, April 11.—(AP)—Roy Campanella, crack catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is all set for the coming National League season. The round catcher is playing mid-season ball right now.

Campanella hit two singles and two doubles in four trips yesterday as the Dodgers downed Greensboro of the Class B Carolina League, 13-3.

Sloppy Phillies Get Long Drill

Terre Haute, Ind., April 11.—(AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer is doing something about the sloppy showing of his Philadelphia Phillies in four exhibition games with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sawyer ordered his men to go straight to the ball park here for a long practice drill.

The Phillies and the Pirates today play the fifth of a scheduled six-game series.

Tar Heel Peach Crop Reported In Good Shape

Raleigh, N. C., April 11.—(AP)—The Tar Heel peach crop is in good condition, especially in the Sandhills area where blooms have been unusually heavy this spring.

This was reported today by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service. The agency said some orchards were nipped by frost late in March but that apparently little damage resulted.

Meanwhile, the condition of truck crops throughout the state is reported as far to good. The agency said reports from southeastern counties indicate truck crop conditions are generally good.

Women Voters Open Convention

Durham, N. C., April 11.—(AP)—The North Carolina League of Women Voters opened its first annual convention here today.

Legislation currently before the General Assembly will be the main topic of discussion on the two-day program.

The first panel discussion will be held tonight following a banquet. Dr. Roma S. Cheek of Durham will serve as moderator.

Halfstones as big as small grapefruit have been recorded weighing a pound and a half.

On April 19

The exhibition game between the Greenville Robins and the Hartford Chiefs will be played Thursday, April 19. Yesterday's announcement stated the game would be played "next Thursday," intimating tomorrow instead of a week later.

Farmville Edges South Edgecombe

South Edgecombe, April 11.—A home run in the top of the eighth inning yesterday afternoon gave Farmville High School a 3-2 victory over the South Edgecombe High School baseball team, moving South Edgecombe into a second place berth in Coastal Conference standings.

The game marked the first extra-inning game to be played so far this season in the Coastal Conference.

First Baseman Roy Vick of Farmville was the hero of yesterday's game as he belted a long home run in the top of the eighth inning to break the 2-2 deadlock which had stalled the two teams since the fourth inning.

South Edgecombe scored first in the bottom of the second inning while adding another in the bottom of the third. Farmville came back with one each in the third and fourth innings.

Starting pitcher for South Edgecombe Earl Deas held the visitors to only three hits while winning pitcher Harvey Webb allowed six hits which Edgecombe High was unable to take advantage of. Both moundsmen went all the way.

South Edgecombe will play host to a visiting Vanceboro team on Friday afternoon in an important conference contest while Ayden will meet Farmville in the opening game between the two teams in conference play.

Score by innings:

South Edgecombe	011	000	0-2
Farmville	001	100	1-3

Answers Query In Fielding Try

Houston, Tex., April 11.—(AP)—Little Tommy Glaviano moved into the St. Louis Cardinal outfield as part of manager Marty Marion's experiment on shifting players—but he didn't stay there long.

In the second inning of a game with the St. Louis Browns last night he crashed into the wall catching a fly. In a hospital he was reported suffering from a badly bruised right shoulder.

Ironically, a reporter had asked him in the club house prior to the game: "How are you on charging the walls?"

Byrne May Lighten Gloom In Yank Camp

By RALPH BODEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy Byrne, the in and out-hander of the New York Yankees, may prove to be the "silver lining" of the Bronx Bombers this year. Byrne, at times brilliant and at other intervals erratic, looms at the moment as the shining light in an otherwise dismal picture for the two-time world champions.

Right now the chances of the Yanks repeating as baseball's world standard bearers are bleak.

Shortstop Phil Rizuto, the American League's most valuable player in 1950; righthander Allie Reynolds, world series star, and Joe Page, relief ace, are in Baltimore for medical checkups that may render each hors-de-combat for a few days to a greater part of the season.

Rizuto is bothered by pains in his side. Reynolds is feared to be suffering from bone chips in his arm, and Page has a sore left shoulder.

Byrne somewhat lightened the gloomy picture in the Yankee camp yesterday by pitching the champs to a 3-2 victory over the Boston Braves at Kansas City.

Tommy, who folded in mid-season last year, restricted the Braves to six hits, walked five and fanned three in his best outing of the spring.

The Yanks won out in the last scorecard was the seventh.

Famechon Again Contender For Saddler's Title

Famechon of France is right back among the leaders in the parade toward a possible featherweight championship boxing bout with Sandy Saddler.

Famechon was up there once before. A month ago, however, he took a second round technical knockout defeat from unknown Eddie Burgin of Cincinnati.

Last night a sharper, a harder-hitting and a smarter Famechon gave the same Burgin a ten-round beating.

Famechon's victory was by a unanimous decision. There were no knockdowns and only Burgin was bleeding at the finish. Burgin's only round on the Associated Press scorecard was the seventh.

Which kind of glasses should you wear? There is no quick answer, because it depends upon you.

It depends upon your prescription, the kind of work you do, and the style best suited to your features.

Here's where You come into your own

Once in a while, any man is entitled to let himself go. He's entitled to that glow of pride that comes from feeling like the very important person that he really is. He's entitled to take practical steps to make his dreams come true.

In short, he's entitled to own a ROADMASTER, and particularly a ROADMASTER as it is custom built for '51.

For this great automobile is more than big and roomy and distinguished in its styling. It's more than sweetly willing in performance, and superbly poised in stride.

It does things to you, when you let yourself sink deep down in the subtle softness of its cushions, and run a caressing hand over the fine texture of its fabrics.

This is everything a fine car should be! Of course, this brilliant performer is Fireball powered. It is cushioned by coil springs on every wheel. It provides, at no extra cost, the complete relaxation of Dynaflo Drive. It has durable and dependable sturdiness engineered into every mechanical part.

But the best is yet to be told. When you check the ROADMASTER price list, you'll find that the car of your choice can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than you'll pay for others with comparable reputation.

Come in soon and see this buy of buys in the fine-car field.

New Building To Be Open In June

Saleed's new department store building, 113-117 East Fifth street, near Five Points, now being remodelled, is expected to be ready for occupancy sometime in June, a member of the firm said today.

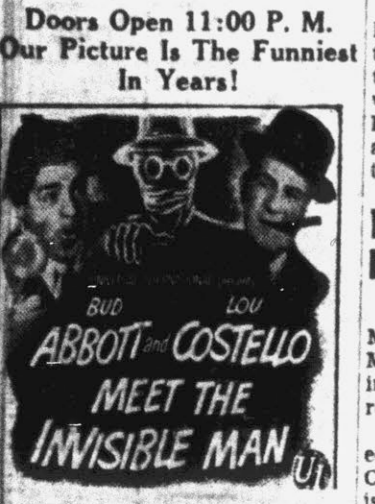

The new store has 7,200 square feet of floor space and all departments will be on the ground floor, Daniel R. Saleed, a member of the firm, said. Modern daylight illumination and air-conditioning will feature the new store. Rest rooms for white and colored persons will be provided.

Saleed's store was established in Greenville in 1914. The firm has been in the present location, 505-507 Dickinson Avenue, since 1938. John Saleed, Sr., and Daniel R. Saleed are the owners.

"We have practically outgrown our present quarters and need more space," Daniel R. Saleed said. "Our business has steadily expanded during the past years and it is still increasing. Our new store will provide the much needed space and we hope to move into it sometime during June. Greenville's prestige as the shopping center of Eastern Carolina justifies our expansion program, we believe," the department store executive said.

Traffic Mishap Involves Trucks

A truck driven by William Dudley ran into the back of another truck, driven by Nathan Coggin, at the corner of Elm and Fifth Streets yesterday afternoon about 4:45.

The accident occurred when Coggin slowed down to make a left turn and Dudley said he did not see Coggin give a signal.

No arrest was made.

Dudley was driving a truck belonging to the Carolina Dairy and the truck driven by Coggin belonged to the street department. No one was injured and the damage to Dudley's truck was estimated to be about $200. There was no damage to the truck driven by Coggin.

this session of the Legislature. Mark Lassiter of Snow Hill recommended withholding action until the next session.

Some firemen reminded that an attorney for the insurance companies had threatened the Senate committee considering the firemen's relief bill that the insurance companies will test the validity of the law in court if the bill is passed. Some pointed out that if the law's validity is tested in the courts and the insurance companies win the firemen would stand a chance of losing what relief is now provided in the state.

The firemen's convention was held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Club near the airport. Barbecue supper was served to about 350 guests. Greenville Fire Chief George Gardner was toastmaster. Mayor protom Dick Rogers welcomed President W. J. Yates of Edenton and the visiting firemen. He also thanked Mayor W. S. Stafford and the Board of Aldermen for providing the supper. Curtis Flana-

She pointed out that it is up to the merchant doing less than $20,000 business annually to decide whether to file a pricing chart or remain under the permanent freeze which pegged prices at their highest levels between December 19 and January 25.

She explained that merchants who do not file pricing charts before the deadline will not have an opportunity to do so later, and will not be allowed to hike their retail prices above the December 19-January 25 level no matter how much the cost of the items increase, or how much operating costs increase.

The pricing charts are required under regulation seven of the OPS orders.

The pricing charts, Mrs. Shaw said, are to be prepared for the items included in the regulations which were actually on the merchants' shelves on February 24 or the first day of business thereafter. The pricing chart on the items which were included in the amendment to the regulation issued last week is to be based on the retail price of goods on the merchants' shelves on March 31.

What the regulation seven actually does for the merchants, Mrs. Shaw asserted, is that it "freezes the mark-up you actually had on February 24." She explained that the historical mark-up of the individual stores which are established from the information in the pricing charts will be allowed the individual store's prices continue to rise. The regulation, she said, is not put a freeze on prices, but rather a freeze on the percentage of mark-up the retail merchant can take on an item.

After the pricing chart has been completed by an individual retail store, Mrs. Shaw said, the store must price its new merchandise by the pricing chart percentage mark-up. "The chart is your Bible," Mrs. Shaw told the merchants, "and unless you price by it, you may get into trouble."

She cautioned the merchants to be sure that the pricing charts are complete in information when they are sent to the divisional office. The first page of the pricing chart must have the name and address of the store, the date, the type of store, and the bracket in which the store sales fall. The last sheet of the chart must be signed by an official of the store or the department head. "All those things must be on your chart for it to stick," she said.

After April 30 each merchant must use his pricing chart for pricing each item in his store. The pricing chart of the individual merchant established his ceiling prices for each item of merchandise.

In interpreting the price regulations for the merchants, Mrs. Shaw said that items which had been purchased and a retail price for them set before the regulation came into effect, no matter how long the retail price had been on the merchandise, must remain the same. A higher price, she said, may be placed on similar items which have since been purchased at a higher price, but the retail price on the original article can not be changed. It will mean, she said, two identical items on the same shelf may have different prices.

"On the new items of merchandise bought at a higher cost you still get your percentage of mark-up," Mrs. Shaw explained.

Ercell Webb, president of the Greenville Merchants Association, presided at the meeting and introduced Clark who introduced the members of his staff.

said, but western diplomats in Moscow expressed belief the chances for a Korean peace settlement were increased.

And in Formosa, Chiang Kai-Shek's stronghold, officials saw the action as a stunning blow. MacArthur was their leading advocate of U. S. aid for striking back against Red China.

At the United Nations headquarters, South Korean spokesmen made no public comment, but left no doubt in private conversations that they were unhappy. Most of the official reaction at the U. N. was that this was a United States matter, since the leadership of the unified command in Korea had been left to Washington. Nonetheless, some of the U. N. delegations could not disguise their satisfaction at the action taken.

leigh, Rocky Mount, Winterville, Goldsboro, Wilson, Edenton, New Bern, Washington, Wake Forest, and New York. Two of Humber's uncles, Charlie Davis and Leslie Davis of Beaufort, were present.

Mrs. J. Vance Perkins introduced the Arts Festival committee which was composed of James L. Fleming, James A. Walker, George Perry, Dave House, J. H. Rose, Annie Leila Askew, Beatrice Chauncey, Lela Higgs, Dora Cliriot, and Mesdames H. S. Ragsdale, J. Vance Perkins, J. K. Long, W. J. Stell, Georgia P. Hearne, C. D. Ward, W. C. Krausnick, J. H. B. Moore, and R. L. Humber.

Introduction of the artists was made by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore and those artists present were: W. Frith Duffy, Plymouth; Mrs. Mary Leslie Davis, Beaufort; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fere, Raleigh; Miss Dora Cliriot, Francis L. Neel, of East Carolina college; James A. Walker, Greenville; Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne, Greenville; Mrs. W. E. Davis, Seven Springs; Dean Kampfoefner, State College school of design, Raleigh; Miss Kate Lewis, and Mrs. R. L. Sermons, Raleigh.

In dedicating the Arts Festival to Robert Lee Humber, Mrs. Moore briefly reviewed past and present achievements in the state and in the world. She said that he has labored tirelessly to bring to North Carolina a collection of the great art masterpieces of the world. "For his immeasurable contribution to art in his native state, and for his continuous efforts to bring about a world in which art may increasingly fulfill its great functions in all human society, we are proud to honor both him and ourselves in dedicating this, our Community Arts Festival of 1951, to our friend and neighbor, fellowtownsman and world citizen, Robert Lee Humber."

Tributes to Humber were made by Dr. Sylvester Green, director of UNC Medical Foundation; Mrs. R. N. Simms, Art chairman of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Club; Dr. A. C. Reid of Wake Forest; Dean D. F. Brown of State College, and Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the Historical Commission. Tributes were read by Mrs. Moore from a number of dignitaries who were unable to be present. They were: former Governor Cherry, Attorney General Harry McMullen, Mrs. Mary Latham, Brandon P. Hodges, Nell Battle Lewis, Mayne Albright, Mrs. Katherine P. Arrington of Warrenton, Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp of Raleigh, and William T. Polk of Greensboro.

Mr. Humber, in acknowledging the honor that was bestowed upon him, said in his modest way, "I feel that this is really a tribute to the ideals that motivate us all. This occasion will always remain in my life as a mountain peak experience. I have only held up a candle to your luminous light and I share with you the deep conviction that our state is moving into the arena of a great cultural and art center."

In introducing the guest speaker, Louis Orr, Humber said that Orr is a man of great achievement and one of the world's greatest artists, and dean by popular approval in the field of etching in Paris. He is the first living artist anywhere whose works were placed in the Louvre and the French government honored Orr further by making him a knight and officer in the French Legion of Honor. He was also chosen by the French government to do a portrait of Louis Pasteur in the Centennial celebration in honor of Pasteur. Humber said that he asked Orr to do 50 etchings of North Carolina and he secured a commission for such with Orr beginning in June, 1939, taking 12 years to complete the etchings.

Mr. Orr, in his brief remarks, stated that the commission to make the etchings, though undertaken reluctantly at first and because of the insistence of Mr. Humber, had proven to be one of the most enjoyable tasks he has ever worked on. "I'm in love with North Carolina and the people that I have met," he stated that he had made over 500 sketches at first, and through the process of elimination, had finally selected 75, from which the fifty etchings were finally made. He worked over a period of 12 years to complete the album, which is the most exhaustive work of his kind ever attempted.

In closing, he facetiously remarked, "Instead of making an exhibition of myself, I am making an exhibition of my etchings. Everybody come to the Art Gallery to see them."

At the conclusion of the luncheon, the people were invited to the Art Gallery for a reception and for a chance to view the etchings. More than 200 people availed themselves of the opportunity to meet Mr. Orr, see his work of art, and to offer congratulations to Mr. Humber on the honor bestowed upon him.

owing the MacArthur removal was along party lines. For the most part, the Democrats were quick to line up in support of Mr. Truman's action.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee got out a statement saying the President has his "full support." He said of MacArthur's removal: "It is if anything long overdue."

The emotions stirred by the incident ran so deep it was obvious a "great debate" over Far Eastern policy was in the making—a debate that could have far-reaching political repercussions.

Those sitting in on the conference in Martin's office included senators Taft (Ohio), Bridges (N.J.). The House GOP members included the party's policy committee, headed by Martin.

Manchuria.

Also, the Chinese reserves and supplies are based in Manchuria. And any planes which the Chinese have, given them by Russia, have to be based in Manchuria. Russia is Manchuria's other neighbor.

MacArthur wanted freedom to bomb China's Manchurian supplies and bases. If they were smashed, the Chinese in Korea would have tougher going than they've undergone so far.

But MacArthur was not permitted to do this. He had to do all his fighting against the Chinese inside Korea, with his planes forbidden to cross the border.

Further, MacArthur has contended Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist troops on the island of Formosa should be used against the Chinese communists.

Formosa is separated from the Chinese mainland by a narrow strip of water. Chiang holed up there with the remnants of his Nationalist troops when the communists drove them off the mainland.

Turning them loose against the Chinese mainland now would be opening up a second front in the Korea war. This country would have to supply those troops. That would be quite a drain and it would end hope of peace with the communists.

(How many troops in Chiang's army on Formosa? That's an open question. Every time you hear the number, it's different from the last time. It ranges from 800,000 down to around 400,000.)

MacArthur fumed and fussed about the restrictions placed on him and the fact that his supplies of men were not greater. He argued the problem in Asia needed more attention.

opposed. It was easy to interpret this proposal as being in effect advocacy of launching a "preventive" U. N. war.

That is to say, the U. N. command would beat Red China to the punch by landing Chiang's half million soldiers on the continent for a grand offensive. MacArthur also was pressing for greater freedom of action in prosecuting the Korea war, and presumably he would coordinate the two actions, this grand strategy would succeed and the United Nations would crush their opponents in the great Asiatic theater. He holds this to be the paramount theatre of war—more important than Europe.

That's the way the position has looked to many U. N. members at
