

Jets Score Five Kills In Battle

U. S. Planes Come Safely Out Of Two Big Scrambles In North Korea

Tokyo, April 12—(AP)—American warplanes shot down five enemy jets, probably destroyed two more and damaged 15 today in two roaring air fights over north-west Korea.

All American planes came safely out of the battles.

One of the thunderous clashes was the biggest jet fight in history. It involved 152 jet planes—80 Russian-made MIG-15s and 72 American F-86s and F-84s—and about 40 B-29 medium bombers.

On the ground, two Chinese divisions pulled back suddenly and mysteriously on the central front. American troops pushed cautiously ahead in their wake against no opposition. Staff officers said they were puzzled by the enemy withdrawal.

The two Red divisions Wednesday bitterly opposed allied crossings of the Han River south of Chorwon. They fought from the craggy hills north of the river.

But they broke contact Wednesday night.

South Korean troops on the east coast stabbed 26 miles into North Korea in the deepest Redland penetration of the current United Nations drive.

In history's biggest jet battle, the 80 MIGs swooshed out of Red Manchuria against 72 U. S. jets flying cover for 30 to 40 U. S. B-29 Superforts. The B-29s dropped 300 tons of bombs on the vital railroad bridge across the Yalu River between Anfung, Manchuria, and Sinuiju, Korea.

The American jets shot down two MIGs, probably destroyed two others and damaged 13.

A B-29 gunner brought down a third Red jet. B-29 also damaged another Red jet.

The B-29s were damaged but landed safely in Korea. The others returned to their Japanese or Okinawa bases.

The second air battle flared later Thursday in the center of "MIG Alley" between Sinuiju and Sinanju. In this action 15 communist jets attacked 12 American Sabre jets.

The Sabres shot down two Red jets and probably destroyed another. The fight raged for 15 minutes from 34,000 down to 4,000 feet altitude.

Other allied planes in 672 flights reported more than 800 Reds killed or wounded Thursday, the greatest claim against troops in the past three weeks. The fighters strafed troop columns of 5,000 soldiers near Anak and 1,000 Reds near Chaeryong.

Charges Nat'l Demo Body Mixed In Job-Selling

Jackson, Miss., April 12—(AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) says the National Democratic Committee cooperated with Mississippi pro-Truman Democrats accused of selling federal jobs.

McClellan's charges came during a hearing on the job-selling charges here yesterday, after two state pro-Truman leaders admitted seeking party contributions but denied selling jobs.

The Mississippi pro-Truman leaders were Curtis Rogers, secretary of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, and Clarence E. Hood, deposited acting national committee man.

Their organization was formed in 1948 after the state's regular Democratic group bolted to the States' Righters, who now control the state.

Our Global Strategy

MacArthur's Policy, If Followed, Would Have Risked Early War With Russia; U. S. And Allies Not Prepared, Would Avoid Any World War If It's Possible

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, April 12—(AP)—Here are a few main points to keep in mind before the uproar and confusion over the firing of General MacArthur get worse, which they will.

A lot of hot stuff already has been thrown into the steaming pot and, when heatedly stirred, won't make for clarity of thought.

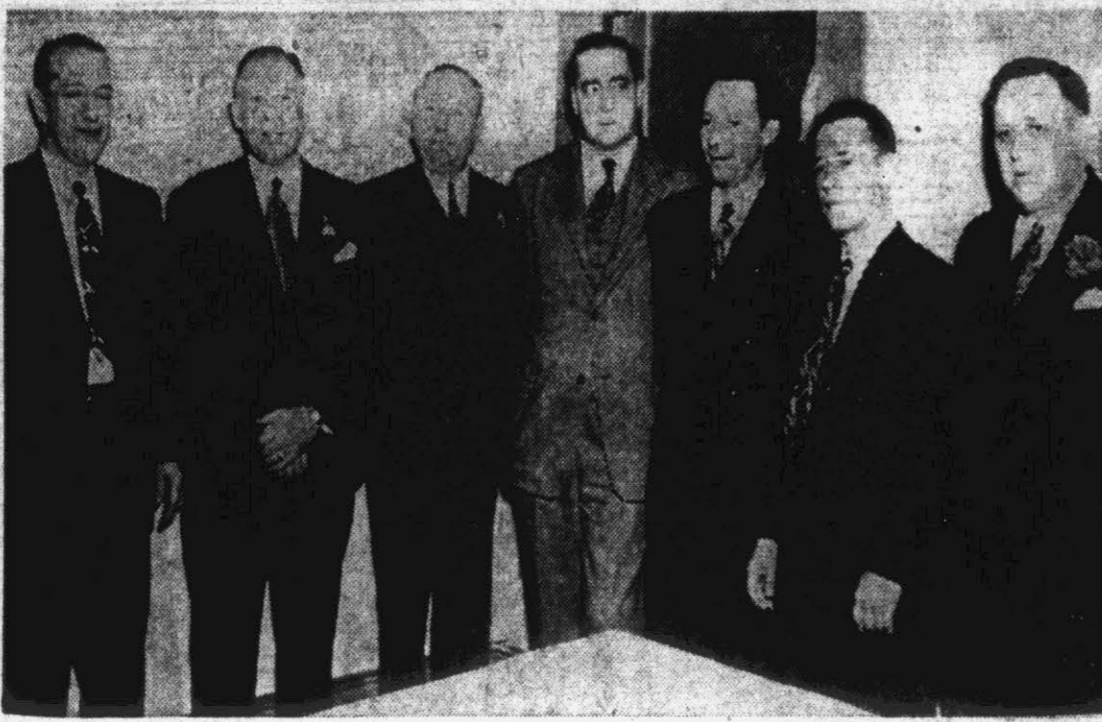

First, there's the talk in Congress of impeaching President Truman for firing the General. At this point it comes only from Republicans and is apparently strictly sound effect stuff.

One of the most powerful Republican Senators told a reporter it was said more to "scare" Mr. Truman than anything else. He pointed out it probably would be impossible to do.

On a question like that, he said, the Democrats and Republicans would be likely to split along party lines and, since the Democrats are in a majority, the Republicans couldn't win.

Strategy—Several months ago Mr. Truman said that, with Asia mostly communist now, we'd be alone in the

DuPont Officials Reveal Extent Of Enterprise

Representatives of the Du Pont company met last night with a group of Griffin and revealed for the first time in this area specific information about the $33,000,000 Dacron plant which is to be constructed about three miles from the Griffon town limits. Pictured above are a group of the Du Pont officials and Griffin businessmen present at the meeting. Left to right are: W. E. Gladding who will be manager of the Dacron plant; W. T. Wood, assistant manager of the nylon division of Du Pont; Ivan Bissette of Griffon; A. E. Buchanan, Jr., assistant general manager of the rayon division of Du Pont; Richard Nelson of Griffon; C. S. Anderson, field project manager who is in charge of the construction of the $33,000,000 plant; and D. A. Wall of Griffon. (Reflector Staff photo).

DuPont Speaker Describes Vast Import Of New Plant

Effect On Coastal Plains Area 'Beyond Your Wildest Dreams,' Says Official At Meeting In Griffon

Griffon, April 12—"I believe truly that aside from the Du Pont people there is nobody in this room who knows and understands the tremendous effect this plant will have on this community," declared A. E. Buchanan, Jr., assistant general manager of the rayon division of the Du Pont company, in talking to a group of businessmen in Griffon last night.

"It will be beyond your wildest dreams," Buchanan asserted, and then went on to reveal publicly for the first time some of the vital statistics of the new Dacron plant which Du Pont will construct about three miles from Griffon in Lenoir county.

The cost of the new Dacron plant, Buchanan said, is estimated at $33,000,000 rather than the $26,000,000 which was estimated for the nylon plant the company first announced it would build on the Lenoir county site.

The plant will produce 40 million pounds of Dacron annually, "and the 40 million pounds will not be the end," Buchanan commented.

The Dacron plant will employ approximately 1,400 when it gets into full operation, and the monthly payroll of the plant, Buchanan stated, is expected to be $335,000. "This payroll," the official said, "if our experience elsewhere is repeated here will bring about 400 new enterprises to this community. This project is going to be so big and so important to this whole state you don't have to worry about getting business in any of your towns. It's going to be bigger than you realize. Just relax and enjoy it."

Other Du Pont officials at the meeting last night were W. T. Wood, assistant manager of the Du Pont nylon division; W. E.

Denounce Recording Of President's Phone Calls

Washington, April 12—(AP)—A recorded telephone call in which President Truman said he had "good information" that several Congress members collected improper fees drew angry demands today for a Senate investigation.

And a second recorded call in which Mr. Truman reportedly said he had no evidence to back the accusation only increased the lawmaker's wrath.

A powerful Senate group intent on beating down his proposal to reorganize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) planned to use the story as ammunition. A snowdown vote is likely early next week.

Senator Tobey (R-NH) told the Senate in a speech yesterday he made—and has kept—recordings of the phone calls and that in one of them Truman charged that "a good many" Senate and House members got fees for helping to arrange RFC loans.

The White House denounced recording of the calls as "outrageous" and said "every word" of the conversations could be made public.

Tobey's office said the recording device he used did not give the President notice that his words were being recorded, but Tobey said there was nothing improper about it.

The Federal Communications Commission termed it "illegal" to record a phone call unless the device emits a warning "beep" sound at 15 second intervals. But it gave no indication it intends to investigate the case.

Dismiss Appeal In Lewis' Case

Washington, April 12—(AP)—The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today dismissed the government's appeal from a decision which had cleared John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers of contempt of court in their 1950 contract strike.

The appeal court split, 2-1, in holding the case moot, that is, no longer an issue.

Vets War Bonus Bill Again Killed

Unanimous Verdict In Committee Against Legislation

Raleigh, N. C., April 12—(AP)—Veteran bonus legislation was killed unanimously today by the Senate committee on Propositions and Grievances.

Sen. Alton A. Lennon of New H-over, in announcing the committee action, said its reasons for killing the bill were: (1) a feeling among members that a bonus is not a matter for state government; (2) the "prohibitive" cost of a bonus; (3) it was too late in the session to give it proper study; and (4) the bill made no provision for raising for money needed to pay the bonus.

The bonus bill, introduced by Sen. Thomas B. Sawyer of Durham, brought some 1,200 veterans to Raleigh Tuesday to press for passage of the measure. It was the second march on Raleigh by veterans seeking a bonus.

The bill would have submitted to the people the question of paying the bonus. If they had approved, bonuses ranging up to $750, depending on length of service and whether it was served in this country or overseas, would have been paid.

Kill Limitation On Senators For N. C. Counties

Raleigh, N. C., April 12—(AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to keep any county from having more than one senator was killed by a Senate committee today.

The Committee on Constitutional Amendments took the action after hearing arguments against the measure at a public hearing.

Most of those opposing came from the state's two largest counties, Guilford and Mecklenburg.

Lloyd Amos, chairman of the Guilford County board of commissioners, asserted that the proposal would not be "dealing fair" with the large counties.

Sen. Joe Carruthers of Guilford said the effect of the limitation would be "to divide the small from the large (counties) and thus create disunity."

U. S. Casualties Top 59,000 In Latest Listing

Washington, April 12—(AP)—Announced U. S. casualties in Korea reached 59,396 today, an increase of 846 since last week.

The total includes 8,941 killed in action, 39,500 wounded and 10,855 missing. It represents casualties whose next of kin were notified through April 6.

Of the wounded, 1,040 subsequently died and 29 of the missing are known dead, raising the total combat death figure to 10,080.

The figure on missing also includes 1,109 who have since returned to U. S. control and 11 known to be prisoners of war, leaving 9,544 currently missing.

The Army reported 49,463 total casualties, an increase of 790 over the previous week. The Navy total reached 634, only one more than previously reported. The Marine Corps listed 32 additional casualties, making a current total of 8,826. Air Force casualties increased 23 during the week, reaching a total of 473.

President Pins Peace Hope On Crushing Red Offensive

MacArthur Plans On Early Return

General Silent, But Close Adviser Indicates Belief No Directive Of President Truman Had Been Violated

Tokyo, April 12—(AP)—General MacArthur made plans today for a return soon to the United States—ready, if invited, to air before Congress the views that got him fired by President Truman.

The five-star general kept his public silence but his right hand man gave the first thinking of how staunch MacArthur's defense would be.

Maj. Gen. Courtney B. Whitney, MacArthur's closest adviser, issued a statement saying his deposed boss felt he had violated no Truman directives.

Whitney himself asked release from the Army so he could leave Japan with MacArthur.

The general feels that he has complied meticulously with all directives he has received, not only recently, but throughout his entire military service," Whitney said.

Whitney earlier had announced he has asked the Army for retirement from his post as contact man with the Japanese government in handling the occupation.

General MacArthur stayed away from his office today while Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway flew in from the Korean battlefronts to take over MacArthur's command.

Ridgway arrived after turning over his U. S. Eighth Army command temporarily to Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn. Milburn will serve until the arrival in Korea of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, veteran of two World Wars and head of the American mission that advised the Greek government forces in their triumph over communist insurrection.

The Whitney statement did not deal with MacArthur's policy views but emphasized the general's views that nothing he had said had overstepped his limitations.

It defended specifically MacArthur's considered right to make his statement of March 24 and to write a letter March 20 to Rep. Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.). Both were pointed out by President Truman in elaborating on reasons for MacArthur's dismissal.

Registrations for the conference began at 11 o'clock this morning and continued heavy through early afternoon. Rotary officials of the district are expecting approximately 500 Rotarians and their wives here for the meeting.

The first official session of the conference began this afternoon at 1:30. President Floyd Hendrix of the Greenville Rotary club welcomed the visiting Rotarians to the district conference. Following the presentation of District Governor Howard J. McGinnis of Greenville, the district governor recognized H. V. Churchill, Rotary International vice president, and other guests at the district meeting. McGinnis presented his report on the activities of the district.

On the agenda for the afternoon session were addresses "The Challenge to Our Vocation" by Clarence Clark of Clarkton; "The Challenge to World-Minded Rotarians" by Robert Lee Humber of Greenville; and "Our Communities—What are Our Responsibilities?" by S. Charles

Draft Processes Delayed For Twin

Gastonia, April 12—(AP)—Draft boards as a rule are coldly objective when it comes to granting special favors. But the Gaston County board believes it did a double good turn this week.

It seems that Orville and James David Sherrill, twins, volunteered for service February 2 when they reached the age of 19.

They told the draft board upon registering that they wanted to go together and serve in the same unit if possible. They boys were sent to Charlotte for their examinations. James David passed but Orville was turned down.

Orville says he failed because he had a deep chest cold.

"I know I can pass that exam if James David can," he said. Orville's parents say he began to brood a little. He didn't have an appetite at meal time. He had never been separated from James David.

So they asked the draft office to send Orville for another physical exam and delay his brother's induction scheduled for April 18. The draft office obliged. Orville is resting up for tests he will take in Charlotte April 25. If he passes the twins will be inducted together on May 29. And Orville will bet you 2 to 1 that he passes.

President Signs New Peanut Bill

Washington, April 12—(AP)—President Truman today signed legislation enabling edible peanut producers to increase their 1951 crop.

The law gives the Agriculture Department authority to allot 1,868,860 acres to peanuts this year.

This figure represents a cut of $1,334 acres below the 1950 allotment. But also it is $7,743 acres above the 1951 allotment the department announced last fall.

Truman Believes Disastrous Defeat In Korea Will Curb Red Ambitions For Conquest And Bring Peace; Emphasizes Strategy Of Limited Conflict As Opposed To MacArthur Concept Of All-Out War

Washington, April 12—(AP)—President Truman has pinned high hopes for peace—and vindication for firing Gen. Douglas MacArthur—on the crushing of a threatened Communist spring offensive in Korea.

Mr. Truman told the nation in a radio and television talk last night that he relieved MacArthur of his Pacific command because the five-star general disagrees with his policy aimed at preventing the Korean fighting from spreading into a world war.

Less than 22 hours had elapsed since the announcement of the picturesque general's dismissal stirred this nation and the rest of the free world.

"We do not want to see the conflict in Korea extended," the President said solemnly and firmly. "We are trying to prevent a world war—not to start one."

Mr. Truman said that the bombing of Red bases in Manchuria and the use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa—both advocated by MacArthur—would involve "a grave risk of starting a general war."

Then he made it clear he believes that if a threatened new mass offensive by the communists in Korea is crushed, the Reds may decide that further aggression there or elsewhere is "folly." Then, he said, the door would be open to a peaceful settlement "which will not compromise the principle and purposes of the United Nations."

Truman's statement was a move that split Congress and the country into two camps.

Mr. Truman's outline of his policy of containment brought sharp counter attacks from Republicans in Congress. Democrats, who had been somewhat reluctant to join in the controversy earlier, rallied to the President's support.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, said bitterly that "apparently the President is willing to gamble with the lives of our boys in Korea in the hope that the Russian-directed communists will see the folly of their ways."

"We have heard President Truman's weak defense of his shabby treatment of MacArthur," the Nebraska senator said. "Now let us hear directly from General MacArthur."

Wherry and Martin have resolutions pending to invite MacArthur to address Congress. The House Rules Committee will take up Martin's proposal tomorrow but Wherry's resolution appears likely to be blocked in the Senate for some time.

MacArthur expressed his willingness to appear before Congress in a transpacific phone conversation yesterday with Wherry and Martin. But Democrats moved to block any joint session. Senator Kerr (D-Ore.) said MacArthur's appearance should be confined to testimony before a committee, where he would be subject to questioning.

President Truman departed from his prepared text of last night's speech to praise Ridgway. He said Ridgway, as commander of the Eighth Army in Korea, demonstrated he has "the qualities of leadership needed" for his multiple tasks.

The President said there are signs that the communists are building up for a new mass attack in Korea. He expressed confidence that it will be turned back.

"The United Nations forces are tough and able and well equipped," he said. "They are fighting for a just cause. x x x we pray that their efforts may succeed. For upon their success may hinge the peace of the world."

Mr. Truman said that "real peace" could be achieved on three basic conditions:

"One: The fighting must stop.
"Two: Concrete steps must be taken to make sure that the fighting will not break out again.
"Three: There must be an end to aggression."

fact that there were a number of questions asked by members of the audience, which he took great delight in answering.

Mr. Orr's group of fifty etchings, first edition, of scenes and places in North Carolina will be on exhibit at the local Art Gallery during the month of April.

Mr. Orr, who was introduced by James L. Fleming of the Foreign Languages Department of East Carolina College, charmed his audience with his engaging personality and his wit. In simple layman's language, he traced the steps which he followed in producing one of his masterpieces.

"First," stated the speaker, "comes the period of intensive study of the subject. This necessitates a full drawing to enable the artist to get the first constructive step taken in what he is doing. Then comes the intricate process of tracing the drawing on copper plates which have already been prepared for etching by a composition made of beeswax, Belgian pitch and asphalt. The drawing is done with a heated needle, and then follows the inking process and the preparation for tolling the print."

He graphically related some of his experiences with different etchings that he had worked on, and explained how the proofs were "pulled" from the plate and the disposition that was made of the copper molds after the artist had finished with them.

In reply to some questions from the floor, he told of the years of his early training and of his work in Paris. That there was great interest in his work was proven by the

MacArthur's Failure To Accept Leadership Of Responsible Officials In Washington Cost Him His Job; A Brief Analysis Of The Problems He Raised

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

No, he could express his views to the President and if that didn't work he could resign his command and return to America for a showdown.

Failure to accept Administration policies, however, would be dangerous and might be disastrous. Under our form of government the President and his Secretary of State are responsible for foreign policies, and some highly important ones were involved in the Asiatic operations.

For example, two of our European allies, Britain and France, who have vital interests in the Far East, have been greatly worried over some of MacArthur's unauthorized pronouncements. One of these was the commander's advocacy of using Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's large army of Nationalist troops on Formosa for an invasion of continental Red China.

London and Paris protested in Washington against pursuing any program on the ground that it would be likely to precipitate an all-out war with China, backed

Elementary School Program Enthusiastically Received

By MARTHA S. FORBES
Last night in the Wright Auditorium, an exceptionally fine program, "The History of North Carolina in Song and Dance," was presented by the children of the elementary grades of the Greenville City Schools as their contribution to the Community Arts Festival.

The program was under the direction of Miss Beatrice Chauncey, music supervisor for the elementary grades. Miss Frances Adams was narrator and Miss Elizabeth Fountain acted as accompanist.

A near capacity audience witnessed an unusually well planned program of choral singing and group dancing. The history of the state was traced through narration, song and dance from the time of the original inhabitants up to the present.

The first part of the program consisted of Indian dances and songs presented by the Third Street 4th grade. Part two depicted the ancestry of the early settlers of the state through the singing by the combined glee clubs of the three elementary schools of old English, Irish and Scotch folk songs. The 5th grade of the Training School performed the Highland Fling as an interpretive dance.

Early plantation days, one of the most colorful periods traced in the historical growth of North Carolina, was dramatized by the singing of five Negro spirituals by the glee clubs individually and also by the combined choruses. The 4th grade of the Training School performed the stately minuet in a dignified and graceful manner, while the Glee Clubs softly provided the musical background.

One of the most exciting and adventurous periods of early days was shown in a dramatic song and dance of pirates and sailors, done by a group of boys from the Training School 5th grade. The slaying of the famous "Blackbeard" aroused a great deal of enthusiasm from the audience.

Mountain folk songs, ballads, games and dances were well executed by the combined glee clubs and groups of dances from the West Greenville 4th and the Training School 5th grades. The "Paw Paw Patch," a party dance game, and a Mountain Square dance were colorful and vigorous.

As a grand finale, all the dancers joined in an original dance created by Miss Chauncey, while the glee clubs combined to render a fine and patriotic performance of the Southern classic, "Dixie."

The excellent training of the children bespeaks of the fine work that Miss Chauncey is accomplishing with the students. The careful timing, the expressive phrasing and the clear enunciation of the singers were a delight to the audience.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
NEVER TOO LATE

A disheartening aspect of the present world crisis is that while our country is now taking necessary steps for defense, we are taking them too late—too late, at least, to prevent the political tragedies which have already occurred in Asia. We hope that they will not be too late to forestall calamities which might otherwise occur elsewhere.

Unpleasant as the fact is, individuals, like nations, must often admit that they are too late. The man who wastes his youth and finds himself middle-aged cannot relive his younger days. The kind words we delayed saying to someone who is now dead must remain unspoken. The mistakes we made, the things left undone, the unwise decisions—all are behind us; it is too late now. If we are wise, we may learn by past errors; if we are foolish, we may brood over them and spoil our present; but no matter how wise we are, it is now too late for us not to commit them.

If this were all, our lives would be a desolate expanse of too-lateness. But for some things it is never too late. If the door of the past is closed, God holds the door of the future open always.

It is never too late to do better than you did yesterday.

Did The People Win, Or Lose?

For as long as there were differences in thinking on policy in the Far East, it was generally accepted that some day President Truman might find himself in a position wherein he would have no recourse but to clear out the elements of opposition. Even so, it was a shock when the news wires carried the story of MacArthur's removal.

Only time will determine the service or disservice to the country in Mr. Truman's action. Where there was a difference of opinion before, there is now heated controversy. This will subside, but not before friends and foes are treated to a disturbing exhibition of domestic politics in the handling of America's foreign affairs.

General MacArthur is a great military figure; considered by many to rank among America's greatest soldiers. By virtue of his long experience he is probably the best qualified American to speak with authority on Asiatic affairs. His words carry weight among the people as well as with many of their leaders.

We cannot disregard the General's advice and recommendations. In them we saw a clarity of purpose refreshing in this period of uncertainty and hesitation.

Much of the policy propounded by MacArthur in dealing with the Korean war, made sense. However, his views clashed with the intentions of the Administration, and in accordance with our democratic system the military man was overruled and set aside by his civilian superior.

The Commander in Chief is guiding this country through times of crisis; his difficulties are great and it is obvious that the highly publicized opinions of Douglas MacArthur were making the task even more difficult. In fairness to the President and to his General in far-off Japan, the ouster move was probably the best solution for both. The administration's stand made it appear more stable to allied governments, and the General was relieved from the harassment of a campaign in which he saw no hope for victory.

No need to quibble over whether Mr. Truman or Gen. MacArthur won or lost anything in their respective positions. The big question is whether the American people won or lost.

"Mirror, Mirror On The Wall..."

Defense Mobilizer Wilson in an address this week dressed down the American people for their attitude of complacency, and their failure to cooperate wholeheartedly with the war effort.

But while the official was reprimanding the American public for its haphazard evaluation of the national and international situation, the American people were watching the halls of Congress and thinking, "If the men who make the laws are following the proper course, why are we doing so wrong by our attitude toward mobilization?"

Wilson sought to emphasize the importance of the mobilization program and the seriousness of the international crisis, and yet he expressed the hope that economic controls would be necessary for only a short time.

The members of the House of Representatives have taken the attitude that the draft is now supplying sufficient manpower for the next few years, and there is no need to give consideration to the universal military training bill which is a permanent matter and will not be needed for some years to come.

The chief executive has issued an order that the armed forces will exempt from service those youngsters who can financially afford to go to college and have the mental ability to maintain a little-better-than-passing marks. The federal agencies continue to add thousands of workers to their payrolls and squander millions of dollars of the tax payers money without so much as making an earnest effort to stop up the rat holes.

The Reflector does not defend the attitude which John Q. Public is taking toward the war effort. Perhaps he is lax in his efforts to bolster the nation's mobilization. But he is no more guilty of the offense than the run of the mill government official.

There is no doubt that the mobilization program is making progress, but the domestic policy of this nation, like the foreign policy (if there is one) is so confused at the present time that the average man on the street can not determine where the nation is heading . . . or why it is heading that way.

The Reflector is of the opinion that the public attitude toward mobilization is not an independent condition. It is merely a reflection of the complacency and inefficiency which the general public sees in the federal government.

Greenville Welcomes The Visiting Rotarians

Greenville has been honored in its selection as the site for the second annual conference of the 279th Rotary district.

Today and tomorrow the city will have as its guests some 500 Rotarians and their wives here for the conference, and The Reflector on behalf of the citizens of Greenville extends to the visiting Rotarians a hearty welcome to our city.

The plans which have been made for the convention indeed reflect credit upon District Governor Howard J. McGinniss of Greenville, Conference Chairman J. B. Kittrell, Sr., and the other members of the Greenville Rotary club who have aided in making preparations for the conference.

We hope the visiting Rotarians enjoy their visit in Greenville, and see fit to visit the city from time to time.

National Whirligig News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12—Josef Stalin's agents at Washington, including members of his diplomatic family at the Sixteenth Street Embassy here, as well as well-informed Americans still sympathetic toward the Soviet regime, have advised him not to provoke World War III for at least five years.

It is understood that their curious reasoning, which is based on the belief that contemplated military and foreign aid expenditures totalling about $250,000,000 in the next four years, will bankrupt the United States by that time.

They forecast that possibility or, as an even more pleasant prospect for Stalin, they think our people will rebel against high taxation and high prices, and call a halt to rearmament.

HARASS—In the opinion of Red emissaries here, who keep close tabs on all our domestic activities, especially the rearmament program, we will go "bust" on the annual outlay of $75,000,000,000 required to build up both a domestic and a European defense force, as well as financing the "police action" in Korea.

His Washington observers have told "good old Uncle Joe" that all he needs to do to win the "cold war" is to continue to harass us with threats of war, as in Korea, Indo-China and other remote places, and to keep us on a "spending spree" for an indefinite period.

In prizefight parlance, he will keep us off balance, militarily and economically, if he acts on this advice.

WORRY—It is the Administration's awareness of these advances to Moscow which led such responsible spokesmen as Defense Secretary Marshall and Speaker Sam Rayburn, at the instigation of the White House, to warn of the peril of another global conflict.

If Stalin does not justify our terrific expenditure of men and money by making war soon, they worry over the very let-down which the Red agents anticipate.

ACCESS—Red diplomats and their friends at Washington, who observe the national scene from the erstwhile Pullman mansion only a few blocks from the White House, are smart and active. And it is surprising how many American economists, newspaper correspondents, professors and business men keep them informed on domestic sentiment and problems. These volunteer aides actually constitute a dangerous fifth column.

In addition, the Reds have access to all official reports, documents, magazines and newspapers, which keep them wise to our military preparations and economic stresses.

They also are tipped off to off-the-record remarks by our highest officials, including President Truman, Defense Secretary Marshall and Secretary of State Dean Acheson. A copy of the Congressional Record, which reflects Capitol Hill attitudes, is flown to Moscow every day.

IMPERILED—There are, of course, no reciprocal privileges with respect to activities and discussions behind the Iron Curtain. The advantage which formal diplomatic recognition of Russia gives to Stalin lies behind the growing demand on Capitol Hill that we break off relations entirely.

Whereas we know nothing about Stalin's military plans or economic conditions within the Soviet, he never before in history has an imperiled nation, to quote General Marshall and Speaker Rayburn, let its guard down so low.

SOMERSAULTS—On the basis of these advances from Washington, Stalin knows of the strong sentiment on and off Capitol Hill against the dispatch of a large American force to build up General Eisenhower's Western European army. He knows, too, of the growing nationwide objection to the higher taxes required to support an anti-Stalin offensive around the world.

Ail, Ail, The Gang's All Here

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

The other day I was talking to a banker who told me that deposits are going down and the number of loans is steadily increasing. No doubt many citizens of Greenville think that if Uncle Sam can immerse himself in debt, they can too.

Some economist ought to make an analysis of the cost of being poor. The truest statement I ever heard is that it takes money to make money and it costs like the devil to be poor.

There are thousands of examples to bear out that statement. A good way to find out the expense of being poor is to build a house. The tile company will tell you that installation of tile in a bathroom when the house is built will save you $100 in repair bills, plus the fact that installing the tile later when you have the money will cost another additional $100. Thus by having the job done now, when you don't have the money, you can save later, when you might have it.

The plumber might tell you that by adding a sewer tap for a mere $15 you can save $200 in plumbing bills. But if you don't have the $15 to spare, it'll cost you plenty later.

The insulation man will tell you that you will save 20 per cent on your annual fuel bill by spending $100 now. "You just can't afford not to add this," he might say. Maybe the truth is that you can't afford to do it.

The price of fuel oil goes down in the summer, so that's the time to fill your tank; that is, if you have the cash then.

Many retail stores, particularly furniture stores, will give up to 20 per cent discount for cash. Yes sir, you can really save the dough if you have it. And if you have money, it's easy to borrow more.

In view of what I have said above, there's a smart way for a poor man to operate. He can start out by pinching himself financially, until he has cash money to deal with. In other words, he can conserve until he gets a little ahead. Then he can save on every deal he makes.

There are two reasons why the average man doesn't get ahead before he buys: (1) He's too impatient to buy, and (2) he lives beyond his means. The low-income man who has enough judgment to save before he buys usually isn't a kind of foresight he usually saves enough to go into business for himself. The tragedy then is that by the time he makes his fortune he has pinched himself for so long that he has no idea how to enjoy it.

The sign in the store window says "Buy now and save 25 per cent," just under a hat the wife would like to have. The husband says, "Let's not buy at all and save 100 per cent." Plenty of us would be better off with that philosophy. After reading this column by Edwards, financial wizard, you should have concluded that when you need advice on the money matters you should be sure to call someone else.

Business Today

By ELMER BOESSNER

The government has taken some steps to help the survival of small business through rearmament, but most small business owners believe these steps are too little if not too late.

On the retail side, the Office of Price Stabilization has allowed larger fixed margins for low-volume grocery stores. In freezing margins in other types of stores, the OPS has also protected small outlets that have worked under higher mark-ups in the past.

On the manufacturing side, the National Production Authority has issued orders providing for special treatment of small plants. The orders provide:

- "1. Assistance in procuring fabrication equipment.
- "2. Priority in attention on applications for loans or certificates of necessity.
- "3. Special leniency in the extension of loans or in the graduation of percentage allowances for accelerated depreciation.
- "4. Protection against large firms receiving favorable consideration for loans or certificates of necessity until it shall have been developed that no open facilities are available for subcontracting operations."

The fourth point has a bit of ginger in it. NPA executives can refuse to approve accelerated depreciation for a large company's plant expansion as long as the company can obtain the needed parts from small firms. This would encourage additional subcontracting.

Under the Controlled Materials Plan, now in the works, small plants may get some more help. This will be the master plan for allocation of scarce materials and it is likely that specific proportions will be set aside for smaller manufacturers. A Senate Small Business subcommittee has asked the NPA to allocate no less than 10,000 tons of rubber a month to other than the "big four" companies—Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone, and U.S. Rubber. Small plants are also asking for better shares of steel and other materials.

SMALL PLANTS WANT MORE SHARED ORDERS

Small plants want more defense orders most of all. Owners realize small plants can't handle big contracts, but they would like a system set up whereby big plants would be required to let out certain percentages of prime contracts, or whereby contracts would be awarded to companies agreeing to subcontract the greatest part.

It will be hard to devise a satisfactory plan. Neither big plants nor the military negotiators want deliveries of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of material to depend upon the ability of a small manufacturer of components.

Some efforts undoubtedly will be made to encourage more subcontracting, but no one can guess how they will work out. And even if they are effective, there will be hundreds of small plants not

Hal Boyle's Column

Washington, —(AP)— You've heard a lot about Truman the President, Truman the Letter-Writer, Truman the Plain Man from the Missouri farm.

Now meet Harry Truman the Historian.

More and more, the man in the White House is looking into the past for a key to understanding the present—and perhaps as a guide to the future.

"Read more history," he often tells people who worry out loud at the state of the nation—or of the universe.

Mr. Truman has been demonstrating the result of his own delving into the history books. "There isn't any difference," he told a group of magazine editors, "between Hitler and Mussolini, Tarquin in ancient Rome, the tyrants in Sparta, Charles the First of England, Louis the 14th—and Stalin."

Out in Kansas City during the winter Mr. Truman made a similar excursion into the past.

"Our growth and our laws," he told a luncheon meeting of newspapermen, "are founded on those originating with Hammurabi in the Mesopotamian Valley, propounded by Moses and elaborated on by Jesus Christ."

"Now the people we are in controversy with do not believe in any of those things. They are the inheritors of the program of Genghis Khan and Amerigo Vesputi, who were the greatest murderers in the history of the world."

Then sobriety, he told the post-scribing reporters:

"I wish you would read more history."

The reporters did. They ran for reference books as soon as the luncheon broke up in order to explain in their stories that Genghis Khan (1162-1227) was a Mongol emperor who overran Asia and eastern Europe and that Tamerlane (1336-1409) was another Oriental conqueror.

An interest in history is nothing new for Mr. Truman he has been an avid reader since boyhood. He likes American history in particular, is fascinated by anything concerning Andrew Jackson, loves to talk about the pioneer days in Missouri.

But his interest seems to have broadened and deepened with the developing world crisis and to have given him renewed confidence that the United States, in the long run, will survive the world crisis.

In a speech to an assemblage of fellow Masons he said:

"I hope you will spend some time reading of certain crises which we have faced.

"Washington had a terrific one in 1798. He met it.

"Old (Andrew) Jackson had one of the best, and he met it.

"In the 1860's we had another crisis, and Abraham Lincoln met

DOG HOUSE — The Kennel Club of the House of Representatives held its 1951 meeting Tuesday night. Rules of the club prohibit publicity, everything being "off the record," as good fellows get together and let down their hair and air their grievances. It is not a violation of restrictions to report that the 1951 meeting lacked something. The food was good, the fellowship was cordial, the witticism and sarcasm approached average. But the master's touch was missing. John McLaughlin of Iredell, permanent president of the club, could not be present. Besides there was some question about current eligibility of certain charter members and a few later accepted to membership—as well as some doubt about qualifications of proposed initiates. In order to make clear what all that means, it is necessary to review history of the unique organization.

History—The Kennel Club was organized in 1941 by a group of legislators who made the mistake of not voting for O. M. Mull of Cleveland for speaker, and were subsequently relegated to insignificant committee assignments by Speaker Mull. Places of honor in the club were in inverse ratio to insignificance on committees. That system accorded original high club offices to John McLaughlin of Iredell, Dr. Asa Thurston of Alexander, John W. Umstead of Orange, Ed Tomlinson of Mecklenburg, Kerr Craig Ramsay of Rowan, Wayland Sprull of Bertie, Sam Worthington of Pitt, F. E. (Lew) Wallace of Lenoir, O. L. Richardson of Union and others. Exigencies of politics changed the status of these fellows from session to session. Some dropped out of the legislature, several charter members have died, but the problem arises over those who have moved into places of power in the assembly. For instance, Oscar Richardson moved on to become speaker in 1945 and Kerr Craig Ramsay to be speaker in 1949. Frank Taylor of Wayne, a charter member of the club, is speaker of the 1951 house. It is apparent that the top places reached by these original dog-house denizens and the good committees handed out by them to their colleagues, raises serious question about current eligibility for membership in the Kennel Club.

GENEROUS—Cardinal tenets of the Kennel Club being generosity and tolerance eligibility rules have not been rigidly enforced. Members who had lost their rights were not expelled, although they were mildly chastised, and from session to session the club has extended its comforting arms to embrace all who felt aggrieved at treatment accorded them in the assembly. Membership is therefore elastic and expansive and very highly regarded by those fortunate enough to be included. One rule is strictly applied. Only charter members of the 1941 club are permitted to display the em-

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Greenville Takes Step (Kinston Free Press)

The Free Press believes that our neighbor city of Greenville has taken a forward step in naming a negro to its police force.

Under the capable leadership of Police Chief Guy Langston, formerly of Kinston and the State Highway Patrol, a negro has been put on the force, whose duty it will be to patrol the colored sections.

Kinston could very well follow suit. Greenville is not a pioneer or a forerunner. A great many southern cities have recognized the necessity and wisdom of putting negroes on the law enforcement staff and few, if any, complaints have arisen.

The Free Press is confident that a great deal of the more or less petty outlaws that goes on in the negro slum sections here would be eliminated if a capable negro officer or officers were added to the force.

Payroll "Four Percenters" (Henderson Dispatch)

That's the caption over an Associated Press story out of Washington which said that as of last October one out of every twenty-four persons in the nation was employed by local, State or Federal governments. The information was drawn from census reports.

It also said that as of the same date total government payrolls were $1,277,000,000 per month. That's better than eighteen billion dollars a year, with taxpayers who grub for a living footing the bill. Reports were quoted as saying that 6,402,000 civilians—exclusive of the armed services, that is—were working for government at various levels in October. The Federal govern-

it. Woodrow Wilson faced the same situationxxx

"And we will meet this situation just as those were met. And when we get through we will have a peaceful world and a world that is safe for you and myself and everybody else to live in. I know that is coming."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—In 1942 a group of English people founded what is known as the Kinsmen Trust that they might later return the hospitality American families extended to British children during the war.

A sum of money was collected, and scholarships and vocational apprenticeships were made available for children of the American benefactors to attend some of Great Britain's most famous schools. Each year places are made available at Tonbridge School, St. George's, the Sedburgh School, Magdalen College School at Oxford, the Old Vic (dramatic school) and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London.

At the Royal Acady of Arts, Lady Louis Mountbatten, one of the trustees, and the late British actor George Arliss each gave scholarships. The Trust is administered in the United States by Dr. Paul Elicker, executive secretary of the National Association of Principals, in Washington, and a specially appointed committee of educators.

Some 40 American boys and girls have benefited from the Kinsmen Trust, and the 1951 group has already been selected by the committee. The youngsters chosen range in age from 15 to 17 years, except for the two dramatic schools, where they must be 20 years or older. Most of the scholarships are for one year, but some are for two.

Dr. Elicker says that at first American parents hesitated to avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the Kinsmen were "reluctant to add a job to British food problems, or because they had heard exaggerated reports of the difficulty of finding adequate nourishment."

"But in the past two years," he says, "a small but steady stream has started, and it is hoped that Anglo-American relations may benefit from this educational experience."

Other trustees of the fund include Sir Frederick Whyte, the chairman; Lord Sholto Douglas, Sir Norman Angell, Dr. Darvall, Director General of the English Speaking Union in London, and Mr. Hamish Hamilton, one of the founders of the Trust and a governor of the English Speaking Union.

Ward - Larkins Vows Exchanged

On last Thursday afternoon at five o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic Church, Miss Barbara Ann Larkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Dorsett Larkins of Greenville, and James Harvey Ward Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey Ward of this city, were united in marriage in a formal candlelight ceremony.

Father Gable performed the rites and heard the vows. The church was decorated with six standards of white gladioli and white snapdragons. Seven branched wrought iron candelabra bearing cathedral candles were used on the altar rail. Pews for the members of the families were marked with white satin bows interspersed with tiny sprays of bridal flowers.

George Perry played a program of nuptial hymns prior to the entrance of the bridal party, and the traditional wedding marches from "Lohengrin" and "Midsummer Night's Dream" were used as the processional and the recessional.

Miss Alison Hearn, soloist, sang "Ave Maria" by Schubert and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte just before the bridal party entered the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Belgian lace, fashioned with a scalloped neckline with yoke of nylon illusion. The neckline was edged with lace and the long sleeves ended in calla lily points over the hands. The graceful skirt formed a full train in the back. On her head she wore a matching lace cap which was edged with pearl beading. She carried her brother's missal which was covered in white satin and showered with satin streamers tied with valley lilies.

Miss Mary Ellen Larkins attended her sister as maid of honor. Her dress was of yellow lace of ballerina length fashioned with a tight fitting bodice and full gathered skirt. She wore a bolera jacket with tiny upstanding collar and long pointed sleeves. She wore a Dutch bonnet of Milan straw with long velvet streamers in the back. Her corsage was an arm bouquet of Better Times roses tied with Better Times satin ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Elizabeth Larkins, Emily Rice, Janice Robertson of Bethel, Emma Sue Larkins, Lytle Batchelor and Dorothy Stauffer. They wore gowns similar to that of the maid of honor fashioned in blue lace and pink lace. They carried formal cascade bouquets of nylon tulle with blue Dutch iris, pastel shades of tulips and pink carnations tied with pink and blue satin ribbon.

The groom was attended by his father as best man. Groomsmen were Charles Watson, Billy Goodson, David Jones, John Farley, William Robbins and John Aman.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Larkins wore a gown of honey beige tulle taffeta of ballerina length with a halter neckline and an abbreviated jacket. Her accessories were aqua and she wore a crown-ess toque of pressed flowers. Her corsage was a lilac orchid.

Mrs. Ward, mother of the groom, wore a floor length gown of orchid chiffon fashioned with a shirred bodice and a full skirt. She wore violet accessories and her corsage was a dark hybrid orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the Greenville Country Club.

The clubhouse was decorated with standards of palms and magnolia leaves which were used to bank the fireplace and mantels. All white flowers were used in profuse arrangements against the background of palms and ferns.

Greeting guests at the door were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Batchelor, who introduced them to the receiving line composed of the parents of the bride and groom, the bride and groom and members of the wedding party.

Mrs. Boley Farley invited them to the punch table for refreshments, where Miss Frances Bendall and Miss Betty Ann Young of Durham poured punch. The table was covered with a linen damask cloth and centered with an all white arrangement of bridal flowers in a crystal bowl. White tapers were placed on either side of the centerpiece in single crystal holders that were tied with tulle and tiny flowers at the base. All the other table appointments were of crystal, and guests served themselves to caviar, party sandwiches, chicken salad pastries, hors d'oeuvres and petits fours.

Miss Carolyn Rowlette presided at the bride's book, where guests were asked to register before departing.

Mrs. Ward was graduated from Greenville High School and attended Salem College. She was a student at East Carolina College during the fall and winter terms.

Mr. Ward is a graduate of Greenville High School and was also a student at East Carolina College before volunteering in the United States Navy in January of this year. He has recently completed his boot training at the San Diego Naval Base in California, where he is to report for assignment in a few days. Out-of-town guests who were here for the wedding were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Larkins, Mrs. G. I. Ford and daughters Peggy and Kitty, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Paschelle, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Baker, Mrs. Marvin Spence and Miss Ann Flowers of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Larkins of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Smith of Wilmington; Mrs. R. M. First To Wear A Dacron Dress

Art Exhibit At High School By School Students

The art work that is on exhibit at the high school all during the week is a very fine showing of excellent training and skill on the part of the art supervisor, James A. Walker, and on the part of the students.

The exhibit is arranged in an "evolutionary" manner to show the growth and progress among the students from the first grade on through high school. There are hundreds of drawings on display, and they are suspended from cords that go from one side of the gymnasium to the other, while the wall spaces are lined with murals, larger pictures, and grouped works arranged on beaver board.

The art mediums used run the gamut from crayon sketches on through the use of oil paints. One of the most interesting mediums, an experiment with Mr. Walker, is buttermilk, which was smeared on the construction paper as a base and over which chalk, crayon and water colors were effectively used. There are many fine charcoal drawings, as well as some interesting finger painting prints.

There are block prints, designs on cloth, articles made from clay and wood, and many very good poster drawings. One particularly interesting thing about the exhibit is the indication of creative expression on the part of the children. There is no set pattern that was copied, no evidence of a stereotyped assignment executed by the children at the insistence of the teacher. The pictures all show the initiative and self expression of the individual child.

Strong color accents most of the drawings, but they blend pleasingly and harmoniously into a perfect whole. There is evidence that the work among the children is getting away from conventional drawing of animals and people, and that greater emphasis is being placed on designs, proper use of colors, and experimentation.

The work among the advanced students of art show great talent and possibilities of real accomplishment along the line of commercial art. Given free reign with their imagination some of the students have shown interesting ideas that have resulted in pleasing and attractive murals and pictures.

The exhibit will be shown all during the week, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Garden Club To Feature Program By Mrs. Hastings

A special feature of the Community Arts Festival will be the program held at the Woman's Club on Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. As their contribution to the Festival, the Greenville Garden Club has secured Mrs. Donald Hastings of Atlanta, Ga. who will lecture and give demonstrations of table settings and flower arrangements. This program will be of wide interest to all the women, young and old.

Mrs. Hastings is a charming person and an interesting speaker and is an authority in her field. Her services are much in demand throughout the South and although this is her first visit to Greenville, she is no stranger in this section. She is co-author with her husband of a book on gardening entitled "Southern Gardens," which has been very helpful to both new and experienced gardeners. She started her career in table settings and flower arrangements in her own beautiful suburban home at Lovejoy, Ga. and they were so much admired by her friends and the visitors to her home that she was invited to share her talent with clubs. Over the years her popularity has grown and she is known throughout the South.

At the conclusion of the program a tea will be held at the Clubhouse honoring Mrs. Hastings. A special invitation to this program is extended to the local Rotary-Anns and their visitors.

TEEN TALK

Dear Judge

AP Newsfeatures
Here's a tip to the boys.... Don't kiss a gal goodnight after a first date. Instead, ask her for another date, and she'll manage to let you know when she wants to be kissed.

That bit of advice is passed out for free to the pipe smokers' set by a panel of University of Wisconsin coeds. The coeds were put on the spot by male students in a forum on "dating." The girls didn't mind words. They told the boys that and something more...

In respect to that old dating problem—the boy who always calls at the last minute, the girls say this: We want Monday night to be "phone call night" for weekend dates... "give us plenty of time."

The girls believe the deadline to a Saturday or Sunday date should be Wednesday.

A formal affair is a different kettle of fish. Two weeks notice the least they should expect to get their wardrobe in shape, they say.

The girls don't expect to be taken to dinner before a formal dance. But if the date insists on feeding his dancing partner he can keep the expenditure within bounds by suggesting "what good" on the menu, or he can adopt the policy of ordering the meal and letting the lady eat it or leave it. Fair enough say the girls who understand the shrinking dollar is a problem.

Blind dates get a bit of advice, too. If a boy doesn't want to date a strange girl because he doesn't want to throw his money away on a date who might not appeal to him, he can take a cue from the girls. Why not, they ask, make the first date an ice-cream soda affair. It gives you a chance to find out if you like the girl before you spend a month's allowance on her. After you get a chance to know one another then you can decide whether you want to break the piggy bank for a big date.

All of this is very timely advice judging by the numbers of letters written by girls complaining about their dates thoughtless and rudeness. Sometimes a boy is just plain rude when he meets a blind date and decides she doesn't measure up to his usual standards. The first date "on a shoe-string" would eliminate that crushing feeling the boy has when he sees his wallet emptied for theatre tickets, dinner and dancing for a strange girl whom he never wants to see again.

As for giving the girls notice of a date, that is the least a fellow can do, although most of them are pretty darn inconsiderate. The majority of girls get an inferiority complex when called the last minute for a date. They'd love to accept, particularly if it is a nice boy. But it puts them on the spot. Has he tried everyone else before calling and should she encourage him in spite of the fact that he is thoughtless in calling her so late? Then again, if she turns him down, will he call again?

It is unfair to put girls on the spot this way. But if girls would make a pact to stand together on this and other issues involving dating, boys might get the pitch. The trouble is there always are a couple of girls who spoil it for the rest of a group.

The sooner girls get back to the old-fashioned school of letting the boys pursue them, the better. The way matters stand today young romances think nothing of calling a girl the last minute, making a date with her, and then breaking it when something better comes along.

Let's rebel, girls and make the boys work a little harder at this game.

Uses Discretion At Right Time

There were no questions asked when butcher Jack Watson was cutting up some roasts in his shop and a great dane "of about shetland pony size" came in, selected the biggest one, and stalked out with the choice cut in its mouth. Watson watched the dog disappear down the street. He said he didn't do anything because of it's "unusual size."

Revival Series Termed Success By Ministers

The series of revival services held simultaneously in eight of the local churches last week were termed a very successful experience, said ministers who were contacted for comment on the response shown in their individual churches.

All expressed deep gratification to the public who helped to make the community. The spirit of cooperation among the churches and the fine response on the part of those who attended made the week one of the high water marks in the year's work among the people of the town.

Each of the ministers who were contacted said that the services attracted large congregations each night, with increasing attendance as the week progressed. Union services were held each morning at a different church, and these also drew good crowds. A different visiting minister conducted the services each morning.

As a result of the recent evangelistic programs and the revival services, there have been a number of decisions made to unite with one of the local churches. Some have already taken in groups of new members; others plan to hold special services for those desiring to unite with a church in the near future.

Plans are already underway for a similar series of services next year.

Each of the eight churches welcomed visiting ministers to the pulpit during the week. They were as follows: Rev. Robert L. Holt of Greenville at the Memorial Baptist; Rev. Walter H. Goodman of Beulaville at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian; Rev. Robert Gurganus of Norfolk at the Pentecostal Holiness; Rev. Marvin Bridges of Rocky Mount at the Church of God; Rev. John H. Booth of Indianapolis at the Eighth Street Christian; Rev. C. N. Royal of Durham at the Immanuel Baptist; Rev. J. Blanton Belk at the First Presbyterian; and Rev. Harry C. Smith at Jarvis Memorial Methodist.

Clarinetist And Vocalist To Be In Joint Recital

Mary Wallace Foy of Pollocksville, soprano, and Ethel Clement of Oxford, clarinetists, will be presented next Sunday afternoon, April 15, by the music department of East Carolina College in a joint recital of vocal and instrumental music. The two student musicians, both seniors at the college, will appear in the Austin building at 4:00 o'clock, the occasion marking their graduating recital at the college. Madeline Hodges of Washington will be their accompanist.

Miss Foy will sing three groups of songs, including selections from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and Gerashwin's "Porgy and Bess." Miss Clement will play Brahms' "Sonata in F Minor, Opus 120, No. 1" and selections by Bach and Piorno. As part of the afternoon's program Miss Foy will sing "Sheep May Safely Graze" from Bach's "Birthday Cantata", with accompaniment by Miss Clement, Miss Hodges, and Beatrice Chanancy, flutist, of the East Carolina faculty.

A census taken by William the Conqueror in 1086 was recorded in the "Doomsday Book" and was so unpopular that censuses were not again taken until comparatively recent times.

Morning, noon or night... for breakfast, lunch or dinner, there are a host of interesting ways to serve Wilson's Certified short-shank Pork Shoulder Picnic, a perfectly delicious meat to perk up your menus. Choose the Certified (orange-labeled) ready-to-cook, or the Wilson's Tenderready (yellow-labeled) fully-cooked and ready-to-eat Picnic.

To Prepare a Wilson's Certified Pork Shoulder Picnic:

To Serve Hot: To cook Certified Smoked Picnic see directions on label; the Tenderready you merely heat and serve—see label. It is already fully cooked.

To Serve Cold: Bake or simmer Certified Smoked Pork Shoulder Picnic as directed on label. If simmered, let cool in the cooking liquor. The Tenderready is fully-cooked; so just slice and serve.

To Skin: Cut through skin where narrow. Insert a fork in skin and roll the fork over and over. The skin rolls off on the fork. It's that easy!

To Score and Glaze: cutting only 1/4-inch deep, score the fat. If desired, dot with cloves. Then sprinkle with sifted brown sugar.

FOR VARIETY OF GLAZES

Instead of the brown sugar coating, you may use your own favorite ham glaze on a Wilson's Certified Pork Shoulder Picnic, just as you would a ham!

1. Maybe you'd prefer to spread with honey or corn sirup.
2. Or spread with sirup of 1/4 cup pineapple juice and 1/4 cup white corn sirup.
3. Or pour juice and grated rind of orange over brown sugar.
4. Or spread with 1/4 cup applesauce preferably tinted pink.
5. Or mix 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard with brown sugar and pour over it 1/4 cup vinegar, pickle juice or sirup from spiced fruit.
6. Or scatter 1/4 cup crushed pineapple on brown sugar, followed by 1/4 cup ginger ale.
7. Or spread with pineapple preserves or orange marmalade thinned a bit for easy spreading.
8. Or spread with a mixture of 1/4 cup brown sugar, 1/4 cup crushed pineapple, and then sprinkle with 1/4 cup fine, dry bread crumbs.

To bake on glaze—Place in 400° F. oven about 15 minutes. Baste as needed.

Minutes of the March meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was made, then followed various committee reports.

Thirty-four members answered to the roll call.

The president called attention to the 61st annual convention of the N.C. branch of the International Order of The King's Daughters and Sons which convenes in Raleigh May 16, 17, 18. Eleven delegates were elected to attend this meeting.

After the business session was over, Mrs. E. W. Harvey read a paper on "The National and International Work of the Order." She was given a standing vote of thanks for this message.

An ice course was then served by the assisting hostesses, Mrs. Clara M. Shacklell, Mrs. Hicks Corey, Mrs. Evelyn Glenn, Mrs. Katharine Adams and Mrs. Walter Taylor.

Dacron Products Are Exhibited

Grifton businessmen look over some of the Dacron products which were exhibited last night by Du Pont officials who were guests of the Grifton Merchants Association at a dinner meeting. The shirts, socks, suit, sweater and samples of fabric which the men are looking over are made wholly or principally from Dacron which will be made at the new Du Pont plant to be constructed near Grifton. Miss Rebecca Wall of Grifton (left) is wearing a green afternoon dress made entirely of Dacron. It is the first Dacron dress made by Du Pont and last night was its first public showing. Legion Supper Meeting Tuesday

An overflow crowd of legionnaires is expected to attend the American Legion's supper meeting at the Legion Home, 557 Evans street, next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock. J. Howard Moye, commander of Pitt County Post No. 39, will preside.

An attendance contest between veterans of World War I and World War II will decide who pays for the supper to be served at the meeting. Whichever group of members, of either war, that has the largest number present, will be the winner, and the veterans of the other war will pay for the supper. This is an annual event and it usually draws out an unusually large attendance.

Public Frequently Not Aware Where N. C. Appropriations Go

By LYNN NISBET
 Raleigh, April —Despite detailed explanation of where the money appropriated by the general assembly goes, there remains lack of understanding about it. Many people honestly believe the cause of public education and the needs of unfortunate persons in state institutions have been ruthlessly sacrificed.

While it may be true that the general assembly was unable to do for some of these causes all it would have liked, it is impossible to justify the charge they have been "sacrificed". It is extremely difficult to justify accusations that the assembly has failed to treat these objects with relative fairness when approximately 92 cents out of every tax dollar spent is spent for public education and social services.

Recapitulation of some figures may prove interesting at this point. The biennial appropriations bills enacted last week distribute, in round figures, $346,500,000 of general fund money. Highway and agricultural funds are not included in this amount. Counting them the total is about $502,000,000. Nearly three and a half million of the general fund allocations go to permanent improvements, nearly all of which is for institutions devoted to education and treatment of mental or physical disease. That leaves $343,084,982 for maintenance and operation of state departments, agencies and institutions during the next two years.

Here is the official breakdown on distribution of that sum. First item is $7,500,000 to meet contingent teacher pay for the current school year, including some teachers and state employees retirement system, of which approximately eighteen million is for the direct benefit of public school, education and charitable agency personnel. Then there is an item of $4,930,650 for debt service, about three fourths of which is for public school building bonds, and the rest for ports authority.

These items add up to $32,438,602, of which $29,200,000 or almost exactly 90 percent goes to educational, charitable and social service purposes. These items were more or less fixed and mandatory and neither the appropriations committee nor the general assembly had much discretion with respect to them. That leaves for distribution by the assembly $310,646,380. Percentage figures used from here apply to the three hundred ten millions.

Support of public schools, including vocational education, gets $211,702,093 or 68.2 percent; schools for the blind and deaf get $1,982,329 or six-tenths of one percent; higher education gets $26,758,399 or 8.3 percent. These items add up to $239,422,821 or 77.1 percent, specifically for education.

Next comes the social service allocations. Mental hospitals get $17,761,408 or 5.7 percent; tubercular sanatoria get $5,705,623 or 1.8 percent; public welfare gets $11,437,064 or 3.7 percent; public health gets $4,052,208 or 1.3 percent; commission for the blind gets $1,301,846 or four-tenths of one percent; orphanages, hospitals, training schools and other charitable institutions not included in above classes, get $2,958,981 or one percent; pensions require $523,180 or two-thirds of one percent. These items add up to $43,740,310 or 14.1 percent for social services.

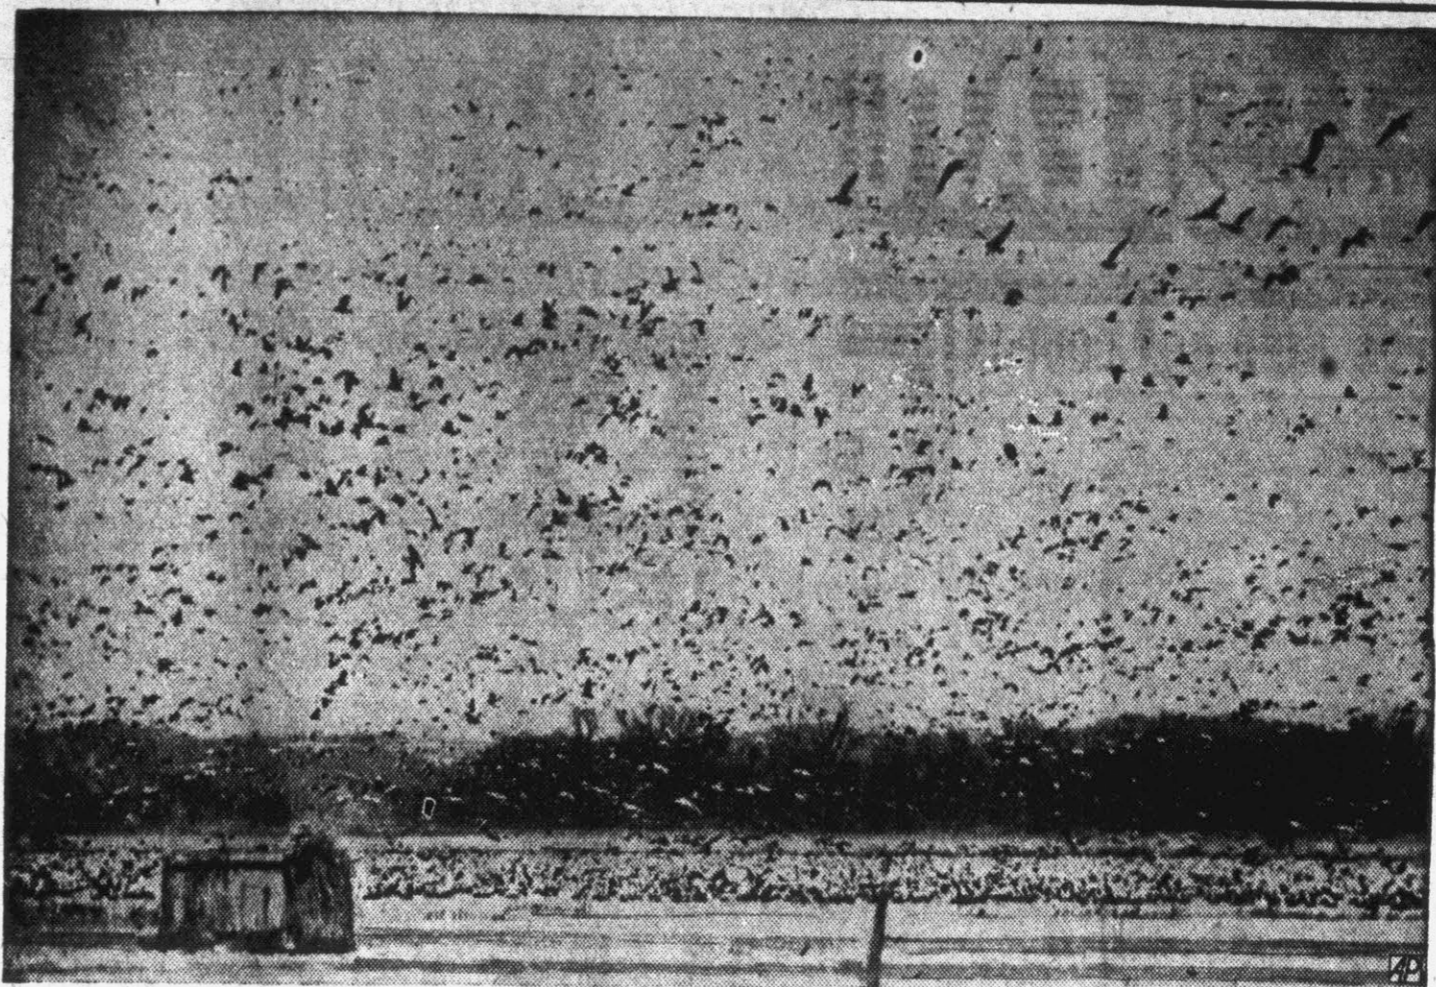

Executive and administrative branches of state government, all departments headed by elective state officials such as the governor's office with its auxiliary budget, purchase and paroles divisions; the secretary of state, the auditor, the attorney general, the commissioners of insurance and labor, utilities commission and so forth, claim $9,284,216 or 3 percent. The department of revenue which collects the money and the department of conservation and devoted primarily to producing more state revenue, jointly get $6,107,222 or 2 percent. Maintenance of all the courts and the general assembly, comprising the judicial and legislative functions of state government, get $1,916,332 or six-tenths of one percent. That adds up for executive, legislative and judicial branches to $17,307,770 or 5.6 percent of the total.

Then provision has been made for salary increments and increases based on merit and tenure of state employees, to which has been allotted $6,618,225 or 2.1 percent. That leaves for "miscellaneous purposes" the sum of $3,537,254 or 1.1 percent.

The miscellaneous purpose list is interesting. Biggest item is the $2,000,000 contingency and emergency fund. Also included are orthopedic clinics; state aid to public libraries, art and symphony societies; industrial rehabilitation, soil conservation, and numerous other projects of social, cultural and development value.

Recapitulation shows that almost 92 cents out of every tax dollar appropriated by the general assembly will eventually find itself contributing to public education or to the relief of the unfortunate and distressed among the state's citizenship.

There is reason for divergent opinion about relative importance of these services. Maybe public schools should have gotten more, mental and tubercular hospitals less. Maybe more should have gone to current health and welfare projects, less to permanent buildings at colleges and hospitals. Public libraries may be more vital than orthopedic clinics. Maybe the money contributed to the symphony society ought to have been added to that allotted the art society, or vice versa. Maybe there ought to have been more or less vocational education provided. Arguments on these points can be carried on to infinity without unanimous conclusion. It requires no expert accountant to see that transfers or increases for any of these items would have to be at expense of some others in the general group.

MAKING THEIR ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE — Geese settle on the surface of Forney Lake, near Thurman, Ia., during flight from the south as Spring appears. Conservation officers estimated 300,000 geese stopped at the lake over a weekend.

Westington farm just east of Winterville, was credited as being cause of a fire which destroyed the two-story building Monday.

The house, furnishing and clothing were a complete loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Fleming were living in the house with their six small children. No one was injured.

Fire Chief Lloyd Worthington announced that those wishing to donate food, clothing or furniture for the Fleming family could do so at the Winterville grocery store, or call him at the store and he would deliver it to them.

Army Reports 18 New Divisions Sighted In Korea

Washington, April —(AP)—Eighteen new Chinese communist divisions have been identified in Korea, bringing the total enemy strength there to 659,000, the Army reported today.

A spokesman said 97,000 additional Chinese troops have been identified since last Friday.

The 18 divisions, if at full strength, would total 180,000 men, the Army said.

It said some of them started coming into Korea from Manchuria April 3.

House Approves Pay Boost For N. C. Teachers

Raleigh, N. C., April —(AP)—The House today approved giving Tar Heel teachers an $8,100,000 pay boost at the end of the school year—instead of leaving it on a contingent basis.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill repealing the contingent pay provision under which teachers received a boost last year.

In its place, the measure appropriates $8,100,000 to adjust the salaries of the teachers for this year to make them substantially in the $2,200-$3,100 range approved for the next two fiscal years. The boost will be paid in one check to each teacher at the end of the present school year.

The bill provides increases also for certain school superintendents, principals and teachers who did not receive the contingent pay boost last year.

SBI Report And Poll Books Are To Be Evidence

Marshall, N. C., April —(AP)—Republicans chalked up two victories in their struggle to get H. Madison County today.

In rapid fire order, Superior Court Judge R. Hunt Parker ruled that a State Bureau of Investigation report on the contested sheriff's race could be admitted as evidence at a hearing here, and also ruled that contested poll books could also be admitted.

The judge, however, did say that certain confidential sections of the SBI report concerning what has been termed election irregularities could not be admitted.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

One way to locate a leak in a roof is to darken the attic on a bright and sunny day and look for pinholes of light shining through. This works, but it's likely to inspire a lot of family kibitzing. For instance, if you're an average man—never a hero in his own home—your wife is likely to chirp: "Pinholes? For heaven's sake! I've heard of a man looking for needles in a haystack. But never pinholes in a roof!"

Pay no attention to this. A good policy in inspecting a house for roof leaks is never become excited. Rudolph Matern, famous small house architect, tells about being a guest at dinner in the new house of a friend. The hostess was criticizing the builder. "There's even a leak in the roof," she said, pointing to a shadowy corner of the ceiling. "I showed that to the construction superintendent and he doesn't know how we'll locate the leak."

The architect stood on a stool, scratched the corner with his finger. The shadow disappeared. "Spider web!" he announced, to hosts.

Usually there's little doubt when you have a roof leak. Undeniable stains in the plaster of ceiling or walls will reveal it. If you can try the pinhole trick, push wires or straws through the holes so you can find them on the outside.

Another method is to turn the garden hose on the roof and watch for the leak in the attic.

The only trouble with that method is that because of the slope of a roof, leaking water may run down the inside of the slope for some distance before dripping into the attic. In this event you have to trace the water along rafter or sheathing to its source.

Evidence of dripping near chimney, roof valley or other structural intersections invariably indicates a fault in the flashing.

On a slate or tile roof look for broken, missing or loose units. Examine wood shingles for splits or curling. Asphalt shingles may be blistered or otherwise disintegrated from the sun. This will be more likely on the south pitch of a roof.

Frequently water backs up under shingles when it is prevented from free flow into roof gutters, or eaves troughs. This happens in northern regions when snow melts, forms icicles on the eaves and the ice and snow along the edge of the roof dams up further drainage. Such water, freezing under shingles, does further damage.

The problem is so common that General Electric developed a heating cable laid zig-zag along the edge of a roof. This melts the snow and ice and creates drainage channels along the zig-zags.

Birds' nests and leaves in roof gutters also can cause drainage backups. Even if you have strainers over your downspouts, it's a good idea to clean all rubbish out of roof gutters after the leaves have fallen in autumn.

Trees with foliage in contact with a roof should be trimmed to allow for free evaporation in order to prevent rot.

Proper laying is very important in shingled roofs. Wood shingles 16 inches long should be laid with no more than 5 inches to the weather, 18 inches long, 5.5 inches exposed, and 24 inches long with 7.5 inches to the weather.

Asphalt shingles, now widely used, should be laid according to manufacturers' directions. The square butt, three tab type calls for six nails per shingle, each nail an inch from each side of a tab cutout and on a line 5/8 inches from the butt edge. In addition, a spot of quick setting asphalt cement, about the size of a half-dollar should be placed under each tab for added wind-tightness.

Nails used for any shingles should be rustproof, hot-dipped, galvanized, copper or bronze—not plain steel or iron nails.

Almost any roof should be good for about 20 years—slate or tile roofs forever. Slates or tiles may break off and fall, but they are easily replaced with hooked copper strips.

A RARE BIRD—This baby cahow, hitherto believed to have been extinct since 1619, was hatched from an egg found by scientists in Bermuda. It resembles a blue-gray powder puff.

Birth Rate Continues To Keep High Post-War Peak

New York, N. Y.—Birth rates throughout the world rose sharply after the close of World War II and have continued at high levels during the postwar years, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians report. In many countries the postwar birth rates have been the highest since the baby boom that followed World War I.

Particularly striking gains were recorded in the United States, where the 1947 peak was one and a half times the average of 1937-1939. Almost as marked was the upswing in such widely separated countries as New Zealand, France and Canada.

French Tourists Form Majority

New Delhi (AP)—Frenchmen formed the largest single group among the 3,395 Europeans who visited India during 1950.

Home Minister C. Rajagopalachari told Parliament that of the 539 Frenchmen who visited India 38 were tourists. Others were businessmen, missionaries, dentists, artists and officials. Eightyfive Russians visited India in 1950. The home minister said that 3,692 visas were granted to Americans during the same year.

Covers Ground In Routine Walks

Kansas City, Mo.—(AP)—If he can hold out for a few more years, George R. Ross will have walked around the world—25,000 miles—just getting to and from work.

"It's two and one-half miles from my house to my job," says Ross, 75, a fireman in a boiler room for 55 years. "Using five miles a day as an average for the round trip, I figure I have walked 17,160 miles since 1939."

Chapter 23
"At birth they're placed under a standardized machine that rests on their forehead," Nelva said. "It's a variation of the time solenoid. It draws some of the cells of the skin and some of their foreheads as far as thirty seconds into the future. Actually it makes a time bridge of matter."

"You see, all matter is time broad. The instantaneous present that we picture as moving forward into the future from the past is an abstraction. In actuality it is a crest whose peak is the now that we conceive as having no actual extent in time. From that peak it drops off into the past a split second ago, and into the future, a split second from now.

"I'll show you the mathematics of it later on when we have the time, but you can guess at it now when I tell you that two particles near enough to each other to act on one another act like two waves. Your scientists before 1960 got a glimpse of that, vaguely. What they couldn't have guessed of course, is that one particle can be permanently pulled out of phase with another, either into the past or the future, just enough so that it still acts on the other, but also still farther into the future.

"You can picture it three dimensionally by an alternating current in a wire. The pressure wave of one cycle goes forward along the wire at the speed of light. It's analogous to the reality of the present, traveling forward into the future at a constant speed—and that analogy is more basic than you would think at first, because the speed of light and the rate of time are basically connected in the four dimensional continuum.

"So in the extra-temporal eye of the Vargian we have living matter pulled out of phase with the rest of reality and susceptible to reality as it will be from the present to about thirty seconds in the future. It's a permanent complex, and gets its nourishment from the bloodstream just as easily as it would otherwise, pulling new matter forward in time with it, shoving it back into the general wave crest again."

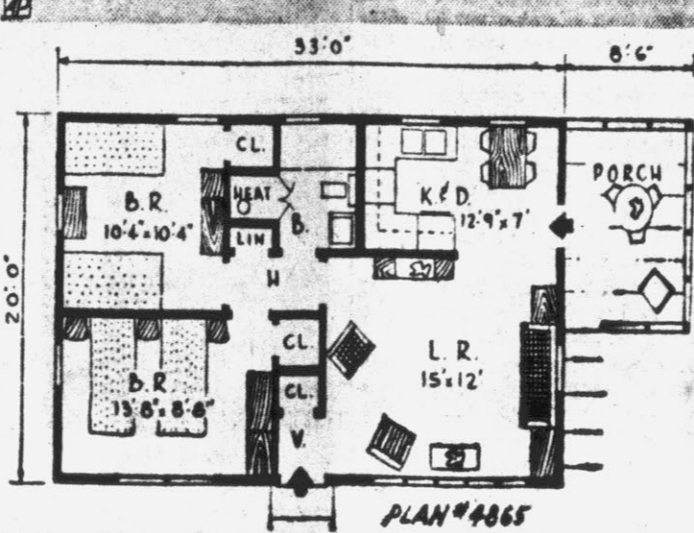

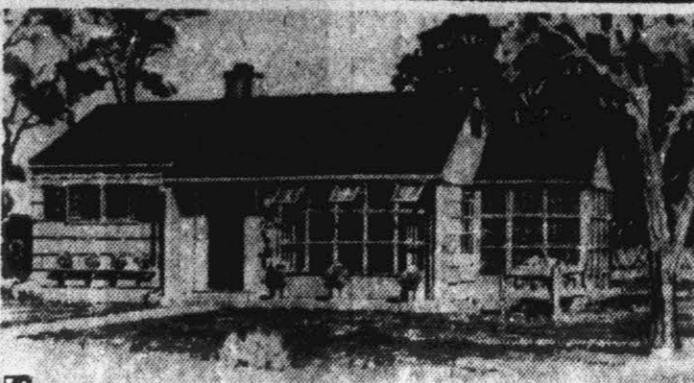

"I think I can see that, a little," Ray said slowly. "It answers one question by bringing up another, though. I always thought matter was particulate, and moved in space. You make it sound like there's some four dimensionally stationary basic substance we do not know of, and matter and our reality are actually some kind of an energy flow in it."

"That's exactly so," Nelva said eagerly. "All reality is merely an energy flow along a four dimensional stationary reality, like a pulse of current along a wire. The actions of units of matter on one another, the complexes of structure of matter, are merely mutually inductive wave fronts that affect one another. Einstein guessed that. He expressed the hope that eventually the particulate structure of matter could be dispensed with, and the field theory account for everything. He could have accomplished that by considering the basic particles of matter as being what they really are—wave packets travelling at the speed of light at right angles to all space directions."

"At the speed of light?" Ray echoed.

"In a way that's inaccurate," Nelva said. "What I meant was, at DEFENSE HOUSING needs in many parts of the country are bringing about a new demand for the small compact house. Here is a design that covers only 960 square feet, exclusive of screened porch, which means it should now be buildable generally for less than $6,000. This is plan 4865 by L. A. Raushner, 144 Himrod St., Brooklyn 31, N. Y. It requires no basement, having a heater room opening from the bath. Back-to-back kitchen and bath and simple rectangular outline are among features that make for economy in construction. The use of a prefabricated chimney is anticipated. However, rooms are of generous size and a front vestibule and picture window are provided.

a constant speed—like the speed of light is constant. Actually it isn't a speed at all, in the sense that it's a distance covered."

"That's what I thought," Ray said. "I considered it more like a stationary change, like the increase in pressure in a tire or in an actual case, the aging of an individual over the years."

"That's probably the only way we can approach an understanding of it," Nelva went on. "Anyway, to get back to the Vargian eye, it's not a normal body organ at all, but an artificial one. It makes a lens of sorts, that focuses on the cortex of the brain and builds up a visual center. Events in the near future are enough out of phase with current reality wave so they don't have much effect on the present; but in the extra-temporal lens they work down by induction so that the energy patterns that strike the brain cells are enough in phase to produce an effect."

"Then if the Vargian child were not submitted to this change it would be just an ordinary human?" Joe put in.

"That's right," Nelva admitted. "So in that sense I'm a Vargian. I belong to the same race."

"But you're so much shorter!" Joe said. "Vargian women are ever six feet tall."

"That height is a side effect of the third eye," Nelva explained. "It changes around some of the departments of the brain and produces the extra growth."

"Where did the Vargians come from?" Ray asked.

"I've been building up to that," Nelva said. "I've been trying to build up a picture of reality as a sort of pressure wave in an underlying reality, traveling along at a constant speed called time. A sharp wave like a sound wave traveling through water. In addition there are broader waves, like the large waves of the ocean that beat against a shore. It's complicated, but it's there. The Vargians come from another of these broad waves. They aren't from your past or future, as you might think. They are a different wave traveling the same path. Their reality is out of phase with this one."

"They discovered time travel, and accidentally stumbled onto your parallel reality. Realizing you would soon discover time travel yourselves, they decided to forestall that—prevent it."

"Wait a minute," Joe said. "Let's get back to the subject of you being a Vargian. Why aren't you like the others then?"

"In Varga the third eye is not given to everyone," Nelva explained. "Only to certain classes. Varga is a matriarchy, and, well, Nancy and I were not the eldest daughters, so we were not given the third eye so we could never assume the throne."

"Then you're from the royal family?" Joe asked, looking from Nancy to Nelva in awe.

"We're younger sisters of the queen," Nancy answered. "You've met her, I think. Her picture is everywhere."

No Candidates Filed For 2 Posts In Ayden Govm't

Ayden, April 11—Although candidates already have filed for three of the five offices which must be filled by Ayden voters in the town election on May 8, there remain two posts to be filled for which no candidates have filed.

A spokesman at the town clerk's office this morning said a two-way race has developed in ward one where Incumbent Staten Ross announced several weeks ago he would not seek another term on the town board. R. H. Worthington and Norman Dall both have thrown their hats in the race for the post on the town board.

Mayor Corey Stokes has filed for reelection to the post as head of the city government, and so far is unopposed for the office. He is seeking his second term in the office of mayor.

Harry Mumford, alderman from the fifth ward, has filed for reelection and is likewise unopposed.

So far no candidates have filed for the aldermanic post of the third ward or the office of judge of Ayden recorder's court. Neither Incumbent Aldermen Lyman Bal-dree nor Incumbent Judge C. V. Cannon have filed for reelection to the posts which they now hold in the town government.

The filing period for the offices in the town government closes five days before the election on May 8. All the officials are elected for two year terms.

Robins Play Elizabeth City Club In Exhibition April 16

Date For First Pre-Season Game Is Moved Up; Hartford Is Still Carded For April 19

Local sport fans will get a chance to look over the 1951 version of the Greenville Robins, when they open their pre-season exhibition series with Elizabeth City, here Monday night, April 16, in Guy Smith Stadium.

Originally it was announced that the Robins would tee-off against Hartford here on Thursday night in the opener, but the scheduling of the Elizabeth City Club has moved the opening date up.

Announcement was made this morning from the Robins camp, by Business Manager John Pringle, that Willie Mauney, who played with Greenville here in 1949, serving both as an outfielder and receiver, will report to the local training camp for practice on Sunday of this week.

Mauney skipped the 1950 season with the Greenville entry in the Coastal Plain League, to become manager of the Farmville semi-pro ball team, and it was only today that it was learned that he was to play with Greenville. Earlier there were rumors that he might return to his hometown, Concord, to play this season.

With the arrival of Mauney, one of Manager John Streza's worries will be eased somewhat, as Mauney will be used to fill in the very weak link of the Robins club that, of a suitable receiver behind the plate.

At the present time there are some 19 players working out with the Robins under the watchful eye of Manager Streza, with several more hopefuls expected to arrive the next few days.

New arrivals at the spring training camp yesterday included, veteran infielder Dick Bland, and rookie infielders Lester Beland and Santos DeMarito; rookie outfielder Red Anderson, and two pitchers, one a southpaw, and the other right hander, showed up. Leo Day is the southpaw and Frenchie Magotte, also a rookie, is the right handed hurler.

Streza is sending the locals through both heavy morning and afternoon sessions as he seeks to round his club into shape for the opening game, now only four days away.

After only two days rest, the Robins then enter their second exhibition tilt, taking on the Hartford ball club here on Thursday night, April 19th. The visiting team will be piloted by Tommy Holmes, who for the past several years played with Boston Braves.

Holmes' club is currently back on its way North after finishing spring training.

Braves To Play On Home Field

Boston, April 12—(AP)—Boston's much-travelled Braves will work out in their own wigwag for the first time this year today after returning from the longest road trip in the club's history.

Manager Billy Southworth scheduled the Braves field drill in preparation for tomorrow's third game of the annual five-game city series with the Red Sox. The rivals are even up so far.

It has been estimated that China has about 180 people per square mile compared with about 50 in the United States.

Greenville Links Team Gains Win Against Tarboro

Greenville linksters won over Tarboro 71-32 here yesterday in a Coastal Golf Association contest, which saw the locals even-up their record for the season at two-all.

Medalist for the day went to Ben Carlisle with one over par 73. Next were Bruce Baker and Reynolds May, each with a 76.

In Association standings now, New Bern has actually taken the Tournament trophy unless they should be upset by the Washington outfit in their next two encounters. As the standings are now, the two entries in the play-off will be New Bern against Kinston.

New Bern won the tourney last year with Greenville copping the crown year before last.

Greenville has swept both ends of the two matches played between the local Country Club team and the Tarboro golfers.

Scores: W. L. Allen, 79, Erzell Webb 77, Reynolds May 76, Tyson Elbro 91, M. B. Massey 79, W. M. B. Brown 84, Milton Harrington 82, Bruce Baker 76, John Proctor 82, Bill Goodwin 81, Bill Taft 86, H. G. Haney 83, Billy Morton 85, Ben Harrison 81, Hunter Keck 86, Erskin Duff 82, Aubrey Tilley 87, Jimmy Phelps 79, D. Rock Vincent 88, Cecil Lilly 98, Herman Duncan 87, Larry James, Jr., 87, R. E. Corbett 85, and L. J. Edwards 89.

Greenville will travel to Washington for match there on next Wednesday afternoon.

Play Catawba

East Carolina's golf team left today, traveling to Catawba where they will play the Catawba golfers in the second match of the season for the local linksters.

The team is expected to be paced by All-Conference Bill Stalls, who won the North State Conference championship last year and was one of the outstanding golfers in collegiate circles in the state.

East Carolina golfers last year won the team championship in the North State Conference and three returning lettermen are on this year's squad.

Following today's match they will play Elon in two contests here on April 20 and May 1. North State Conference tournament play will begin on May 4 and 5.

They got back in the win bracket by taking a 3-2 count from the high-flying South Edgecombe baseballers at South Edgecombe High School on Tuesday afternoon.

The first home game of the season will be played in Farmville on April 19th when the locals play a return game with the Snow Hill boys of Green County.

Browns Display Talent To Win In Final Frames

Houston, Tex., April 12—(AP)—Don't count the St. Louis Browns out until after the ninth inning. That could be said about most any team in any game, but it applies particularly to the Browns this spring.

Almost all of their few victories have come in the final frame. I st night they slipped up and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in the last of the eight.

But the record shows a 7-6 victory Tuesday night over the Cardinals with six of the Browns runs in the ninth; a 14-9 victory over Brooke General Hospital with nine runs in the ninth; 9-8 over the Cleveland Indians with five runs in the ninth.

On at least three other occasions they tied the score in the last inning, only to lose when the other team came to bat.

Five Greenville Women Golfers Capture Prizes

Wilson, April 12—Five members of a Greenville woman's golf team which played here Tuesday won prizes in a field of 78, representing six teams in the Coastal Golf Association.

Winners from the Greenville team which was 13 strong, included: Mrs. Howard Waldrop, Mrs. Luther Herring, Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. Fred Sauve, Mrs. Elmer Lanche, Mrs.

C. H. Edwards Jr., and Mrs. Norman Garrison. They were presented with three golf balls as prizes. Other members of the team were Mrs. Earl Fisher, Mrs. Billy Morton Jr., Mrs. Walter French, Mrs. Larry James Sr., Mrs. Charles Braswell and Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Low score for the day was made by Mrs. Frances Stephens of Rocky Mount with 94, with second honors going to another Rocky Mount golfer, Miss Ann Bishop with 101.

Low net score (original score less handicap) was won by Mrs. Larry James of Greenville with 82.

Mrs. Carolyn Thomas won a prize of three golf balls, also with a gross score of 114.

The blind bogie prize was won by Mrs. Susanne Braswell of Greenville which entitled her to free golf lessons from the Greenville pro.

Greenville golfers will travel to Kinston next Tuesday and will play in Greenville on the following Tuesday.

Belvoir Host To Grimesland Nine

Grimesland, April 12—Grimesland's baseballers, who have been victorious in two out of their three opening starts face a strong Belvoir diamond squad this afternoon at Belvoir.

So far this season, Grimesland has turned back Grifton and Chicod, while losing a 6-0 game to Chicod in a return match on Tuesday of this week.

Pitching chores for the Grimesland nine are divided among James Hunt, Tom Hodges, Roger Mills and R. H. Heath with Bill McRoy and Bert Hodges handling the plate duties.

The starting line up now stands with Billy Boyd playing first base, Earl Wright at second, Jimmy Burgess at shortstop with Bobby Reid rounding out the infield at third base.

In the outfield it will probably be Elmer Willoughby in left field, with Jerry Gaskins in center and Bobby Andrews in right field.

The starting pitcher has not been named as yet by Grimesland's Coach.

Grimesland schedule for the remainder of the season: April 12, Belvoir, there; April 17, Chocowinity, there; April 18, Pactolus, there; April 24, Winterville, there; May 1, Grifton, here; May 3, Pactolus, here; May 8, Chocowinity, here; May 10, Winterville, here.

Chicod Tops Grimesland, Bow To West Edgecombe

Chicod, April 12—West Edgecombe High shut out Chicod 7-0 in a first district conference baseball game played on the locals' home diamond Tuesday afternoon.

Johnson went all the way on the mound for the visitors, holding the Chicod boys to only four hits, while West Edgecombe combined five hits and errorless ball handling to score the shut-out.

Lossing Pitcher, W. Mills, was relieved by R. Mills in the sixth frame, who finished the game.

Lancaster, Johnson, Gardner, Burgess and E. Proctor each collected one hit apiece of the offerings of Mills.

Fornes, Warren W. Mills and R. Mills each made one hit for the losers.

On Monday afternoon, Joe Rouse pitched the Chicod Boys to a 6-0 victory over Grimesland in a contest also played at Chicod. Don Warren led the winners at the plate as he rapped out three hits in four trips at the bat.

Rouse allowed only three hits in the seven and one-third innings which he pitched. William Mills came into the game at this point and finished the game, with Rouse receiving credit for the victory.

Chicod scored the six runs on nine hits, committing three errors while Grimesland accounted for only three hits and made three errors also.

Good Showing In Spring Laid To Chisox Training

Memphis, Tenn., April 12—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox' success on the grapefruit circuit can be attributed to the team's conditioning program, says coach Doc Cramer.

"Every one of our boys is in condition, and that's the big reason we have done so well in spring training," he said. "Look at some of the other clubs—they're hog fat. We get a little work every day, pitchers especially. Even have afternoon workouts before night games. Then if we miss a day later we're still in condition."

The Sox have scheduled a doubleheader with their Memphis farm-hands today. For the first game of seven innings they plan to loan Billy Pierce to Luke Appling's Chicks to twirl against Lou Kretlow.

Last Tuneup For Ed Lopat Today

Pittsburgh, April 12—(AP)—Ed Lopat, veteran lefthander, is scheduled to start for the New York Yankees today against the Pittsburgh Pirates in what probably will be his final tuneup for the start of the regular season.

Lopat is expected to pitch the Yanks opening game at Washington Monday.

Background To Trouble In Balkans

By SHERRY BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures
 Trouble in the Balkans! That cry has been heard for thousands of years. Both geography and peoples have had a part in making the area a source of trouble. Both Europe and a large part of Asia have been involved.

In the Balkans are passes through which invaders easily can strike north or south. But there are also rugged mountains to which the people can flee and from which they can war on anyone who tries to dominate the area.

The result has been a confusion of peoples. There are now in the Balkans, among others, Albanians, Greeks, Serbs, Bulgars, Turks, Croats, Vlachs, Romanians and Magyars.

In Romania until recently were important colonies of Germans. Some of these, it is believed, were descendants of crusaders who stopped off there to guard Europe against barbarian invasion. Through the centuries, they maintained their language, customs and links with Germany.

The Balkans are also a center of clashing religions. There is an important Moslem element besides two major and several minor varieties of Christianity. The Serbs and Croats, for example, are related peoples. But the Croats are Roman Catholics and the Serbs Orthodox Catholics. That difference still troubles the rulers of Yugoslavia.

But trouble in the Balkans really started long before the dawn of history and continues to the present. Strong Mediterranean peoples moving up into Europe and Asia meet strong peoples moving down toward the inland sea. They clash. They have always clashed.

One of the first such clashes that archeologists see back through the mists of time was that between the Hellenes moving down and the Minoans moving up. The Minoans lost. Some of them fled and are supposed to have been the Philistines of Biblical fame.

The Hellenes set up the great civilization of ancient Greece. They turned back the Persians who were trying to move up. But the Greeks never were able to get along with each other. After bitter wars among themselves they were conquered by Macedonia, another Balkan power. But the empire of Alexander the Great fell to pieces and the Balkans were taken over by the Romans, another Mediterranean power moving up.

And Rome had trouble with northern peoples moving down. There was a strong Kingdom in Dacia (modern Romania). The Dacians were always raiding into the empire. For a time, mighty Rome actually paid tribute to Dacia to prevent the raids. Then between 101 and 103 A. D., the Emperor Trajan moved in and made Dacia a Roman province.

But in 256 the Goths drove the Romans out of Dacia and in 275 the last Roman troops left and arrangements were made for Roman colonies to move to other areas. Modern students dispute whether or not they all really left. Some insist that the barbarian invaders merely submerged the Romans and Dacians for a time and that modern Romanians are mostly descendants of the Romans and Dacians.

That is typical of disputes about the origins of most peoples in the Balkans. For the Goths were only one of many peoples to sweep down out of Asia into the Balkans. There were Huns, Gepidae, Avars, Slavs, Vandals, Bulgars, Magyars, Mongols and others, century after century of them. There were conquests, reconquests, revolts, raids, burned towns, refugees, oppression and heroism.

Meanwhile the western Roman empire fell to pieces and the eastern or Byzantine empire tried to control troubles in the Balkans. There were hundreds of years of that trouble. Sometimes it exploded into Europe. For instance in 797 Charlemagne crushed the Avars in a great battle which changed the Balkan balance of power.

And in 1204 the powers represented by the Fourth Crusade intervened. They captured Constantinople and set up a European kingdom there for a while. They also set up a number of other kingdoms, duchies and other states in the Balkans. Among others was the Duchy of Athens where medieval knights held tournaments until the Turks moved in.

The Turks started to move up through the Balkans in the 14th Century. The next century they really got moving. Constantinople fell in 1453, the Duchy of Athens in 1456. High point of the Turkish drive came with the siege of Vienna in 1683.

It was during these centuries of the Turkish drive that the powers of Europe began to eye the "cockpit of the Balkans." It was the period of the formation of the European nations as they are known today. They feared the Turk. But that they did not prevent some of them sometimes working with him.

Even after the 1638 peak the Turks were driven back slowly. Greece did not gain independence until 1829. Serbia emerged in 1830. But the Balkans continued to be the cockpit and the powers continued to watch uneasily. Sometimes they even did things about it. On occasion their edicts found Balkan nations to give up areas they had won by hard fighting.

In modern times, the Balkan wars of 1912 and 1913 was the most spectacular Balkan trouble. In the first of these wars, Bulgaria, Serbia, Greece and Montenegro combined to drive the Turks out of all but a tiny section of Europe around Constantinople. In the second, the Bulgarians fought with their former allies and the Romanians and Turks intervened.

But in 1914, the impact of the Balkan wars was dwarfed by the dispute with the Austro-Hungarian empire that triggered World War I after an assassination at Sarajevo. After the war some populations were exchanged between the Turks and the Balkan nations. Yugoslavia was set up as a nation. The pattern of trouble continued through World War II and after. The Nazis drove down through the Balkans, as northerners had for thousands of years. Again the people took to the hills. Tito and Mihailovich fought the Germans, but it was charged they preferred to fight each other. That, too, followed the pattern: Balkan peoples always have fought each other.

After World War II most of the area was taken over—in effect—by the Russians, another northern people moving down. The American aid to Greece stopped a nasty little war and checked the movement. Yugoslavia broke away from Russian influence, creating a new tension.

The Balkans remain one of the most important tension areas. A new clash may be decisive in the conflict between Communism and the West.

Colony Lags In Medical Service

Singapore — (AP) — The chief surgeon at Singapore General Hospital says medical services in this British crown colony have "lagged behind the times."

The surgeon, Mr. B. M. Johns, asserted it was "fantastic" that in a colony like Singapore with more than 1,000,000 people there was only one ear, nose and throat specialist to serve the entire island, the Federation of Malaya and surrounding territory.

Johns said there was a tremendous demand for medical services but his department could hardly cope with the situation because of lack of staff and facilities.

The bulk of human food comes from corn, barley, the sorghums, millets, etc.

Assumes Post In Pitt VA Office Here Tomorrow

Thomas A. Fowler will succeed James D. Walters as officer-in-charge of the Greenville office of the Veterans Administration effective tomorrow. Walters is resigning to accept a position with the Refrigeration Discount Corporation here.

Fowler, a native of Dunn, held a similar VA position in the Elizabeth City office until it was closed March 30. He previously served as contact representative in the Charlotte and Winston-Salem offices. Prior to entering the chemical warfare branch of the Army he was affiliated with the State Department of Revenue.

During the war he served with the Pacific campaign including the invasion of Okinawa. He was discharged with the rank of staff sergeant. He and his wife make their home at 300 Lewis Street.

The local VA office, according to Fowler, will continue its duties in assisting veterans and their dependents and beneficiaries in filing claims for benefits administered by the VA, such as hospitalization, disability compensation, insurance, GI training and death benefits.

HUNGARIAN INNOVATIONS made of steel substitutes. Budapest—(AP)—Hungarian industries have announced that they plan to use "ersatz" materials to an increased extent in manufacturing. For example, automobile bodies will henceforth be built out of "refined cane, coconut, oil palms, banana wood," and engine parts will be fruit and nuts.

Trappers Irked By Wily Ravens

Prince Albert, Sask. —(AP)—Flocks of ravens ranging over Northern Saskatchewan are keeping fishermen and trappers on the jump. The airborne predators are robbing fish nets, eating fish left on the ice overnight by fishermen, and ruining pelts of trapped furbearing animals.

"They're as wily as a wolf," said one trapper. "If you are carrying a gun they keep their distance, but if not they start around as tame as pigeons."

Report Progress In Malay Fighting

Kuala Lumpur—(AP)—M. V. del Tufo, chief secretary of the Federal Government of Malaya, thinks the "tactical situation" in the British war against Communist terrorists is improving. He told a news conference there were two reasons for "encouraging progress":

1. Many British security forces which had been tied up with resettling families after areas were cleared of terrorists have been tied up with resettling families after areas were cleared of terrorists have been released for the job of fighting Communists because more resettlement officers have become available.

2. The fight of the security forces has been facilitated by a noticeable stiffening of public morale. This has led to an increased flow of information to the authorities which has resulted in an increased number of contacts between security forces and the terrorists.

Cow Town Turns To Derbies For Jubilee

Dalhart, Tex.—(AP)—This west Texas town is going to abandon the traditional ten-gallon hat and other cow-country styles temporarily. As a stunt to publicize Dalhart's golden jubilee party May 25-26, a thousand men will wear headgear of 50 years ago—derbies.

Candidates In Winterville Still Have Plenty Of Time

Winterville, April 12—Candidates for mayor and the one aldermanic position open this year have until Saturday of next week in which to file their intentions of running.

Already political murmurs have been heard as three candidates have thrown their hats into the ring, one for the mayor's office and two for the alderman job to be vacated by W. A. Worthington at the end of his present term.

Mayor Burny Tucker is the only man in the mayor's field so far who has filed. Running for the alderman job are William May and Cecil Worthington. Alderman Worthington has already stated he will not seek re-election this year.

Tucker is now completing his first elected term of office. He was appointed about three years ago to fill the unexpired term of mayor C. D. Langston who resigned when he moved out of town. Tucker subsequently ran for office in 1940 and was elected.

Both May and Worthington are in a political race for the first time. Worthington is now a justice of the peace and owns a grocery store and market. May is assistant cashier of the Bank of Winterville. Both are natives of Winterville.

Convict Who Saved Life Of Child In Burning House May Win His Freedom

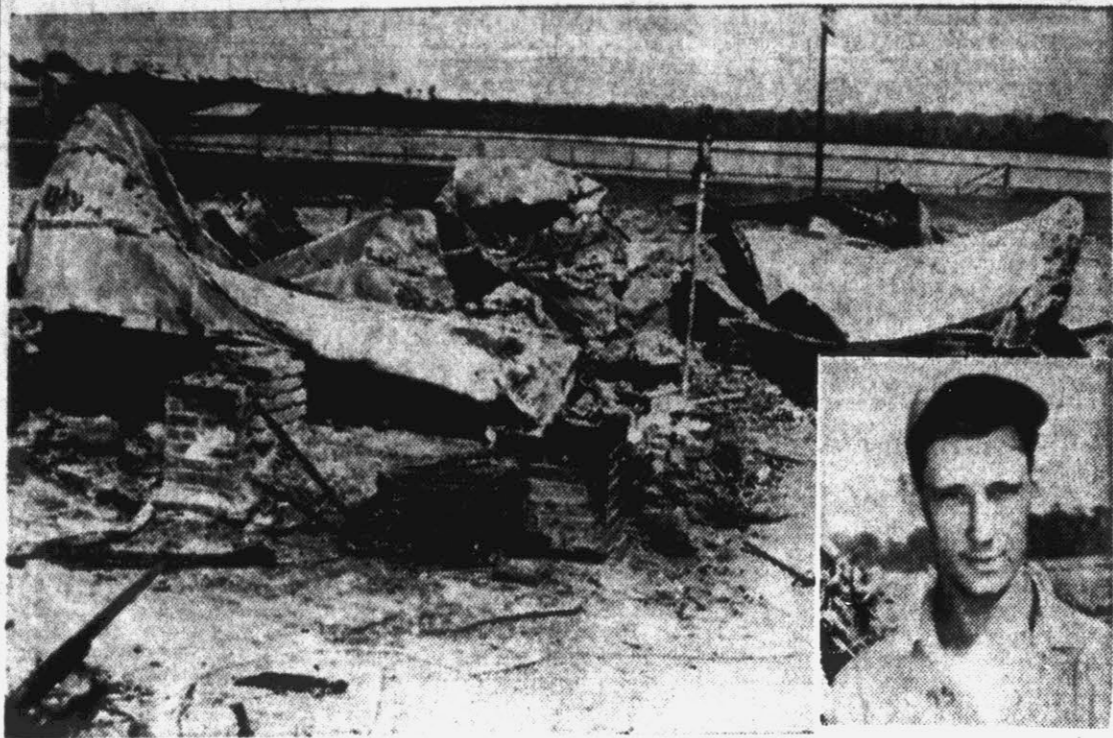

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR.

A fire that completely destroyed a man's home and most of his furnishings in Winterville Monday may provide a Granville county convict his freedom from prison before his term is up.

A heroic act by Joseph D. Williams saved the life of six-year-old Joe Wayne Fleming when the Fleming home burned to the ground about nine o'clock Monday morning just outside Winterville. Williams, a trusty on one of the Pitt prison camp's road gangs that was working in the vicinity of the Fleming home, heard the shouts of Mrs. Curtis Fleming as her home was burning and he and the gang foreman came running from the ditch in which they were working.

Both men grasped the situation, despite the woman's panic-stricken cries, and realized that one of the six children was still in the house. Williams dashed into the flames and quickly came out with the boy who had been asleep in his bed when the fire broke out. Both Williams and the child were unharmed although flames had singed the convict's hair.

After the fire had gutted everything in the house, except the washing machine and a sofa, and the road gang had gone back to work, townspeople in Winterville, led by magistrate Cecil Worthington and school principal Paul Clark, began talking up the possibility of getting

The charred shambles shown above are all that remain of a seven-room house in the Winterville community after a fire Monday morning completely gutted it and destroyed most of the tenant's belongings. Joe Williams, inset, is the convict who dashed into the burning house and brought out little Joe Wayne Fleming, six-year old son of Curtis E. Fleming, who lived in the home with his wife and six children. As a consequence of Williams' heroic act of bravery, a move is underway now to get him released from the Pitt prison camp. (Staff photo by John Spinks, Jr.)

Williams out of prison. Right now he has 90 more days to serve on a two-to-five year term for robbery in Durham County.

Sheriff Ruel Tyson heard of the incident and immediately called parole supervisor Dr. T. C. Johnson in Raleigh to recommend that Williams be released from prison. Johnson stated he would inquire into the man's record immediately. He implied to Tyson that if there was no reason why he should not be released, Williams could get out shortly.

Meanwhile, teachers and students of the Winterville school cooperated with the burned-out Flemings and brought in food and clothing Tuesday to be given to them. Fleming, meanwhile, moved his family into a vacated house elsewhere in the community.

Worthington, Clark and agriculture teacher J. H. Mobley, who rounded up the food and clothing from the students, learned from Williams that his father died last fall, leaving no one at home to work a 13-acre tobacco allotment. Too, his brother, who is a ministerial student, will have to drop out of college. Mobley said, if the crop cannot be harvested and funds for his education are not provided,

Boy Scout officials expect about 150 Boy Scouts to attend the district pre-camporee in Greenville Friday and Saturday of this week. The camp site is on the track field adjoining Guy Smith Stadium.

Boy Scout District Commissioner Jack F. Dowdy said they are expected to arrive at the camporee site about 3:30 Friday afternoon. The program in Council Camporee Bulletin will be followed throughout. Parents are invited to visit the camporee.

Sherman Parks is activities chairman. Erskine Duff will judge the pre-camporee camp-fire skit.

Greensboro, April 12 — (AP) — Workers returned to their jobs at the Gold-Tex Fabrics Corporation at Rock Hill, S.C., today under a new contract fattened by a package 13-cent an hour increase.

of a legislative act this week, and that plans are being made to extend water, sewerage and electric service to the outlying sections of the town.

T. G. Williams, another Grifton businessman pointed out that plans have been made to spend $50,000 on permanent improvements to the physical plants of the Grifton schools during the summer months.

Buchanan said the construction work on the plant is expected to begin within the next two weeks. Already, he said, the Du Pont company has over one million dollars worth of materials and construction equipment on the building site. When the construction reaches its peak, the company will employ 2,000 construction workers on the Dacron plant.

Buchanan told the group the demand for Dacron already is high. "This new product is being pushed into commercialization at a rapid rate. The material, new as it is, has been quickly recognized by the armed forces as something they will need." He said the navy was the first to request the material, and within the past few weeks, the Marine Corps has specified 15 per cent Dacron in all woolen material it purchase. Buchanan said the company has been led to believe it will receive the necessary priorities for materials which will be necessary to complete the plant.

Depending upon the construction schedule, he said, the plant is expected to be put into production either late in 1952 or early in 1953.

Buchanan exhibited a blouse, man's shirt, suit, socks, and sweater, which were made from Dacron and a number of samples of material which was made wholly from Dacron or from a blend of Dacron and other fabrics.

Miss Rebecca Wall of Grifton modeled for the 60 businessmen present at the meeting a green afternoon dress which is the first dress which Miss Wall modeled cost nan said the company estimates the dress which Miss Wal modeled cost the company approximately $265,000.

He asserted that textile mills which make materials from Dacron fabrics will be able to make the materials at a lower cost than they could if conventional fabrics were used. He said many Dacron items in wearing apparel are expected to be on the market next spring.

Following the supper meeting in Grifton, a number of the Du Pont officials and Grifton businessmen were guests at an informal party at the Greenville Golf and Country club.

This was only one of numerous incidents which had plagued the its allies. MacArthur's view that Asia, rather than Europe, is the paramount theatre in the struggle against Bolshevism has caused grievous heart-burnings among the western Democracies. And this naturally has presented a threat to the solidarity of the elaborate defense system which the Democracies have established in western Europe.

So, even if MacArthur has been right in his military judgment, he has been wrong in not deferring to Washington. The sum and total of this imbroglio is that some distrust and discontent was created among the western allies, much to the gratification of Russia.

Also it would require great forces of men and supplies which otherwise could be used in Europe.

More than that: Russia might not only come to China's assistance in Asia but might also attack in Europe before our allies there were ready.

In short, the Truman Administration viewpoint and policy go like this:

So long as we don't get into a general war anywhere, a general war may be avoided.

General MacArthur's view was this: At the rate we're going in Korea, the fighting there may go on endlessly, without any peace anyway; better to try to smash China once for all.
