Smoke Screen Lifting Over Red Korea; Attack Awaited

Tokyo, April 17—(AP)—Allied troops ripped into communist forces on Korea's east central front today in the swelling battle for the huge Hwachon dam. The Reds' man-made smoke screen began to lift late Tuesday afternoon. United Nations warplanes roared into action with jelled gasoline bombs, rockets and machine-guns. On the ground allied infantrymen battered the Reds with artillery and rifle fire. Thousands of combat-ready communist soldiers were massed in the hills north of the dam. The allied attack was aimed to keep them off-balance and block their long-expected spring offensive. Rigid new censorship regulations issued by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new allied supreme commander, banned all references to the exact size and location of Chinese and Red Korean forces. On the western front United Nations troops maintained their positions. The allies held 17 miles north of the boeder, was destroyed by artillery and air attacks earlier this month. It is still an important Chinese base and road junction. Yonchon, on the road leading northwest to Chonwon, was abandoned by the Reds, the allies hold high ground on all sides of Yonchon, but had not entered the town itself. Activity on the east and west coasts was limited to patrol actions. Dive-bombing U. S. F-90 Shooting Star jets struck communist rail facilities Tuesday for the third straight day. Pilots reported five locomotives and 37 cars destroyed. The Reds lighted forest fires and snudge pots in an effort to hide their ground movements from the prying eyes of allied pilots. They used the same trick last November, just before they opened their drive down the heart of the peninsula. The new field commander of the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea, Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, visited his troops Tuesday on the western front. He told AP correspondent Jim Becker earlier that his United Nations forces were ready and able to contain any communist thrust. Spring was breaking fast in Red Korea as Van Fleet made his first frontline tour. Roads again were dry and dusty. In the ground fighting east of the Hwachon Reservoir, allied forces held fast to Yangu and Yachon, towns they seized from the Reds two days ago. The capture of Yangu Sunday eliminated a Red bulwark that had been in progress. One big supply dump fell to U. N. forces.

Hero's Welcome Given MacArthur By Hawaii

Honolulu, April 17—(AP)—General MacArthur leaves the flower-scented hospitality of Hawaii today on his stern mission to challenge in Congress the views of the President who fired him over war policy. His sleek, shiny plane, the Bataan, was scheduled to take off from Honolulu International airport at 9:30 a. m. (2:30 p. m. EST) enroute to San Francisco and Washington. The Bataan should arrive at San Francisco International airport about 8 p. m. (11 p. m. EST). After an overnight rest in San Francisco and brief ceremonies there Wednesday morning, MacArthur will depart for Washington and his appearance Thursday before a joint session of Congress. The five-star general and hero of three wars got a foretaste here yesterday of the applause but none of the acrimony that awaits him in Washington. For two hours Hawaii's polyglot population lining a 25-mile motor cheered MacArthur, his wife, Jean, and their son, Arthur, 13. The spontaneous outburst of acclaim—at this starting point of the Pacific war which MacArthur fought from beginning to end—presaged pageantry and public demonstrations planned for him in San Francisco, Washington and New York. But there was no note of the antagonism that has split America over his views. MacArthur's Hawaiian welcome was the acclaim given a conquering hero. MacArthur smiled and waved in response. He shook a child's hand. He chatted with an ex-soldier who had fought with him on Bataan.

Propose Broad Inquiry Of Policy

Washington, April 17—(AP)—Senate Republicans today proposed creation of a 24-member Senate-House committee to make a broad investigation of Far Eastern policy. The resolution calls for "a complete evaluation of the United States policies in the Far East and their relation to the foreign and military policies as a whole."

Warns Prestige Of U. S. Falling Among Friends

New York, April 17—(AP)—Spruille Braden says "the decline in official (U. S.) morals and manners is losing friends and influencing people against us." The former ambassador to Argentina adds that several foreign diplomats have told him that their peoples were losing respect for American-style government. He said "it was only to be expected that the loss of integrity and sense of propriety by so many of our officialdom should cause foreigners to reverse their previously held esteem for this nation and admiration of its moral fiber." Braden mentioned the "five-percent" influence cases, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation probe, and the Senate crime committee's expose of graft and links between officialdom and crime.

General Gets Foretaste Of Applause But None Of The Acrimony That Awaits Him In U.S.; Homeward Bound Today

State Employees To Get Pay Hike

Raleigh, N. C., April 17—(AP)—State employees will get the $15 a month pay raise voted by the 1951 General Assembly starting July 1. With it they also will get the salary increments voted by the 1949 General Assembly and put into effect last July 1. An employee is eligible for increments after a year's service. Budget Bureau Chief D. S. Coltrane said the extra $15 a month will be paid automatically to all workers on regular state payrolls.

U.S. And Korean War

An Explanation Of How President Truman Had Authority To Fire United Nations Commander-In-Chief In Korea; Responsibility Of Campaign Placed On America

By DeWITT MacKENZIE There seems to be considerable public confusion over where the responsibility rests for the conduct of the war which is being fought by "United Nations" forces in Korea. What about President Truman hiring and firing the United Nations Commander-in-Chief in Korea? asks a reader of this column. "Doesn't the U. N. have anything to say about it? Or are we the U. N.?" How come if our "European friends" have so much at stake in Asia they seem to have very little to say—publicly—about who is to command the U. N. forces in Asia? Well, that's a fair question about a complicated and rather odd situation. The commander of the United Nations forces in Korea—formerly General Douglas MacArthur and now General Matthew B. Ridgway—was not appointed by the peace organization but by President Truman at the request of the U. N. The U. N. Commander-in-Chief in Korea is responsible to the President of the United States. The commander does send reports on

Lull In Politics Presages Storm

Washington, April 17—(AP)—The quietude in Washington today presages a storm of political activity in the coming city election, it's probably because of the new city law that all candidates must file 30 days in advance of the election. At least that was the opinion of a candidate today when he expressed himself on the heretofore quiet political scene. He stated he didn't see the percentage in waging an all-out campaign 30 days in advance of the voting. He thought, rather, that for his purposes it would be best to begin at the usual time of former years—a week or 10 days before—and then build up steam. Other candidates expressed about the same opinion. They thought the 30-day law was a good thing for the public—gives it a chance to consider each candidate—but it is hard on the candidate himself. One man stated he had his own business to conduct and didn't have the time or the money to go all-out this early in the game. He, like several others, are waging a button-hole-the-voter campaign in an effort to obtain his ballot May 7. Another candidate, now an incumbent alderman, stated he wasn't telling the voter what he would or would not do if he is re-elected. He said he was leaving it up to the voter to consider his past record on the board and would rely on the voter's opinion as to how he would vote. For the benefit of those residents of the city who have never voted in a city election before, they are reminded they must register in order to cast a ballot. H. H. Duncan, assistant tax collector and a candidate for mayor himself, stated today several persons have called the city hall asking if their registration in the township precincts was enough to let them vote. It is, he said, provided those persons have been registered for previous city elections. Otherwise, no. If a person has moved since the last election into the city from the county precincts, he must register at either the courthouse or the city hall between April 25 and May 5 in order to vote, Duncan said. Those persons living in wards one and two must register and vote at the courthouse. Those living in wards three, four and five must register and vote at the city hall. Prerequisites for voting are six months' residence in the state and two months' residence in the city.

City Candidates Hold Off Campaigns For Final Week

If the voting public of Greenville has noticed the lack of political activity among the candidates in the coming city election, it's probably because of the new city law that all candidates must file 30 days in advance of the election. British Submarine With 75 Men Aboard Is Overdue

Portsmouth, England, April 17—(AP)—The Royal Navy submarine Affray with at least 75 men aboard vanished without a trace today after a dive in the English channel. Helicopters, airplanes and ships—including two American destroyers—began searching a stretch of sea 75 miles long and 25 miles wide along the south channel east of England for the 1,600-ton submarine which has schnorkel breath apparatus and escape devices. The radio code signal "Sub-smash" which alerts the Royal Navy's submarine rescue machinery, was flashed to all stations soon after the Affray failed to surface as scheduled this morning. The Affray went into her dive about 25 miles south of the Isle of Wight around 8 p. m. (3:15 p. m. EST) Monday. She was due to reappear about 20 miles southeast of the starting point. This is a small cove jutting into the channel near Devonport, which is nearly 100 miles west of here. An Admiralty statement said it was possible the sub's commander had misinterpreted his surfacing instructions. But a spokesman added that the Navy suspected serious trouble. The U. S. destroyers Ellsford and Perry put out from Weymouth to join the hunt. The Admiralty quickly accepted their offer of help. Navy divers were flown to the scene from bases in Scotland. Seventeen vessels, including six submarines, destroyers and the American warships were called out to hunt.

Russians Boast Five Year Plan Schedule Topped

London, April 17—(AP)—Russia told the world last night she has finished her second five year plan nine months ahead of schedule. She boasted topping her prewar production by 73 per cent, instead of the 48 per cent she aimed for. In the major fields, however, her production still fell far short of the United States. The announcement, by Moscow radio, trumpeted great gains in "the most important tasks of the plan"—but admitted shortcomings in other fields of production. As usual, the Soviet announcement gave no figures on production, but dealt only in percentages. It compared 1950 with 1940.

See Scant Support For North Korean Demand

United Nations N. Y., April 17—(AP)—A North Korean demand for a Big Five peace conference—with communist China represented—was expected here today to get little support in the United Nations. The demand for such a conference was voiced in identical cables sent by North Korean Foreign Minister Pak Hen En to General Assembly President Nasrallah Entesam of Iraq and Security Council President Daniel Von Ballestock of the Netherlands. The cables, made public last night, said the Korean war could be settled only in accord with the decisions of the first World Peace

Available Labor In Pitt Includes Some 300 People

Employment Security Commission Offices Says Conditions Better

Some 800 people in Pitt county are available for employment, it was revealed today in a report released by W. B. Dillingham, manager of the local office of the Employment Security commission. A survey for the two-month period which ended March 15, showed there were registered with the Pitt county employment office 867 skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers who were unemployed. Dillingham said this morning, however, "Employment conditions here are better than they were a month ago", and the number of unemployed registered with the local office has decreased somewhat. Dillingham attributed the better employment conditions in Pitt county at the present time to the fact that agricultural activity in the county is beginning to increase, and the break in the spring weather has permitted a speed-up in the construction work in this area. He added that some of the skilled labor in the county which was not employed at the first of the year has begun to move to other areas where work was available. A breakdown of the report made by the local office to the state headquarters of the Employment Security Commission showed the county had registered for unemployment benefits 58 skilled workers, 157 semi-skilled workers and 652 unskilled workers. Of the unskilled group 32 were white men, 45 were white women, 175 were Negro men and 400 were Negro women. A further breakdown of the labor available locally in the skilled and semi-skilled classifications showed workers available in the following groups: mechanical: three skilled, eight semi-skilled; textiles: one skilled, 10 semi-skilled; furniture: one skilled, none semi-skilled; needle trades: eight skilled, 35 semi-skilled; construction: 12 skilled, 20 semi-skilled; lumbering: eight skilled, 20 semi-skilled; tobacco processing: 10 skilled, 40 semi-skilled. Dillingham said similar reports of available labor in the various classifications are made every two months by each of the Employment Security Commission offices in the state. The information is used by the central office in determining where there is a surplus of labor and where there is a labor shortage. Dillingham said the statistics are also used by the department of conservation and development to show prospective industries what sort of labor is available in the various localities of the state.

Fire Attributed To Gas Fumes

Greenville firemen reported this morning that they were called to 1504 Myrtle Avenue last night shortly after 8:30 to the home of Pete Freeland when a flash fire broke out there. Origin of the fire was attributed to the cleaning of articles in the house with gasoline, which was set on fire by a spark from an electric outlet. The entire house suffered smoke damage. Mrs. Freeland suffered minor burns. Firemen stated that the blaze was out when they arrived, all of the fumes and gas being burned out.

Views Inflation As Equal Danger

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 17—(AP)—The president of the National Association of Manufacturers today placed inflation on a level with communism as a peril threatening America's future. Textileman William H. Ruffin of Durham told a reporter that the failure of the United States to deal squarely with the inflation issue was an indication of "moral weakening."

Coming Home

Taeju, Korea, April 17—(AP)—A plane load of battle-weary but beaming GIs took off today for the end of every doughboy's dream—home. They were among the first men transferred from Korea back to the United States to become instructors of America's new army. The flight took them to Japan, where they will draw shiny new uniforms, baths and a few steaks under their belts before beginning their long journey home to the States. All had been in Korea more than eight months and had seen their share of the fighting.

Graham Predicts Growing Tide Of Women In Plants

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17—(AP)—The powder-puff brigade will be manning the factories in increasing numbers again by the end of 1952 if current manpower defense goals are reached. That was the forecast voiced yesterday by manpower mobilizer Frank P. Graham to a group of northeastern area employment officials. He said nearly 2,000,000 women, older folks and the handicapped must be recruited to build up our minimum defense program working-fighting force to 67,000,000. Graham and U. S. Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, who also spoke, both stressed the necessity for tapping every possible reservoir of labor including foreign sources. The first question, of course, is this: MacArthur expressed views on our foreign policy. They conflicted with the Truman foreign policy. The President ordered him to keep quiet. MacArthur didn't. He was fired by the President who is commander-in-chief of the armed forces. Do you think the President was right in firing a General he felt was not carrying out his orders? (MacArthur's top aide said in Tokyo last week the General considered that he had complied meticulously with all orders he had received throughout his military career.) Here's where the other questions come in, based on the Truman view and the MacArthur view on our foreign policy. This is the President's position: Communism is a menace. The threat is greater from Russia in Europe than it is from China in Asia. Our strongest allies are in Europe. Unless we help them build their defenses, they may be over-run by Russia. If that happens, we'll be practically alone in a communist world. Therefore, we must concentrate on building up western Europe. But communism is also a threat in Asia. More than that: It's on the march in Asia. The proof: The Chinese communists got into the United Nations today declared Asian military policies advocated by the deposed commander would "jeopardize world peace." Bradley was the first of the homecoming General's five-star brothers in rank to speak out publicly against the theory of carrying the war to China since President Truman dismissed MacArthur last week. Bradley did not mention MacArthur's name. Last year's quick United Nations action in Korea, Bradley declared, may have stayed the Kremlin's hand as it was about to precipitate World War Three. Bradley roundly backed the President's stand against MacArthur's ideas and defended the Administration's policy of limiting the war in Korea. As chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Bradley has a large part in policy making. In a speech prepared for delivery to the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Bradley also declared: 1. The Korean War, under present conditions, may be headed toward a stalemate, but it can be brought to an honorable conclusion. 2. The United States will not wage a preventive war. 3. The one price the U. S. will not pay for peace is appeasement. 4. The use the Reds have made of air bases in Manchuria to date has not warranted U. N. bombing of them. 5. Action against aggression in Korea upset communist plans in Asia, at least temporarily preventing Red moves in Indochina and perhaps saving Thailand and Formosa. 6. Any attempt to settle the world crisis by an ultimatum—perhaps accompanied by a threat to bomb Russia—is militarily impracticable and might backfire. In places, Bradley's viewpoint on the situation was the same as MacArthur's. He disagreed on what do about it. Bradley made it plain that "I have no intention of entering the foreign policy field or even urging a particular policy in the conduct of foreign affairs. Conduct of foreign affairs is a civilian responsibility." But he added, "a soldier can often see strategic perils the layman might overlook. It is fundamental that our foreign policy must be based upon our military capabilities to back it up." Bradley agreed with MacArthur's recently expressed view that the war in Korea may be headed for a stalemate. The Joint Chiefs chairman declared: "There is no early end in sight to the Korean war under present conditions. As far as we can see now there is nothing transitory, nothing temporary about the communists' determination to drive us out of Korea, and, if possible, (Continued on page ten)

Woman Injured In Auto Accident

Car Passenger Taken To Hospital In Wreck Monday

A Greenville woman was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night as the result of an auto accident occurring on the Washington highway around six o'clock yesterday. Highway Patrolman R. C. Holt stated that a car driven by Mrs. Luellen Wilson left the highway about one and one-half miles from Greenville, going into a ditch. Holt stated that Mrs. Martha C. Smith of Raleigh. Damage to the two vehicles were placed at about $250. Investigation of the accident is not complete. CONVENTION OPENS Winston-Salem, N. Chairman Of Joint Chiefs Of Staff Backs Administration; Agrees With MacArthur That Stalemate Likely; Sees Kremlin Timetable Upset

Chicago, April 17—(AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, five-star peer of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, today declared Asian military policies advocated by the deposed commander would "jeopardize world peace." He said nearly 2,000,000 women, older folks and the handicapped must be recruited to build up our minimum defense program working-fighting force to 67,000,000. Graham and U. S. Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, who also spoke, both stressed the necessity for tapping every possible reservoir of labor including foreign sources. The first question, of course, is this: MacArthur expressed views on our foreign policy. They conflicted with the Truman foreign policy. The President ordered him to keep quiet. MacArthur didn't. He was fired by the President who is commander-in-chief of the armed forces. Do you think the President was right in firing a General he felt was not carrying out his orders? (MacArthur's top aide said in Tokyo last week the General considered that he had complied meticulously with all orders he had received throughout his military career.) Here's where the other questions come in, based on the Truman view and the MacArthur view on our foreign policy. This is the President's position: Communism is a menace. The threat is greater from Russia in Europe than it is from China in Asia. Our strongest allies are in Europe. Unless we help them build their defenses, they may be over-run by Russia. If that happens, we'll be practically alone in a communist world. Therefore, we must concentrate on building up western Europe. But communism is also a threat in Asia. More than that: It's on the march in Asia. The proof: The Chinese communists got into the United Nations today declared Asian military policies advocated by the deposed commander would "jeopardize world peace." Bradley was the first of the homecoming General's five-star brothers in rank to speak out publicly against the theory of carrying the war to China since President Truman dismissed MacArthur last week. Bradley did not mention MacArthur's name. Last year's quick United Nations action in Korea, Bradley declared, may have stayed the Kremlin's hand as it was about to precipitate World War Three. Bradley roundly backed the President's stand against MacArthur's ideas and defended the Administration's policy of limiting the war in Korea. As chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Bradley has a large part in policy making. In a speech prepared for delivery to the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Bradley also declared: 1. The Korean War, under present conditions, may be headed toward a stalemate, but it can be brought to an honorable conclusion. 2. The United States will not wage a preventive war. 3. The one price the U. S. will not pay for peace is appeasement. 4. The use the Reds have made of air bases in Manchuria to date has not warranted U. N. bombing of them. 5. Action against aggression in Korea upset communist plans in Asia, at least temporarily preventing Red moves in Indochina and perhaps saving Thailand and Formosa. 6. Any attempt to settle the world crisis by an ultimatum—perhaps accompanied by a threat to bomb Russia—is militarily impracticable and might backfire. In places, Bradley's viewpoint on the situation was the same as MacArthur's. He disagreed on what do about it. Bradley made it plain that "I have no intention of entering the foreign policy field or even urging a particular policy in the conduct of foreign affairs. Conduct of foreign affairs is a civilian responsibility." But he added, "a soldier can often see strategic perils the layman might overlook. It is fundamental that our foreign policy must be based upon our military capabilities to back it up." Bradley agreed with MacArthur's recently expressed view that the war in Korea may be headed for a stalemate. The Joint Chiefs chairman declared: "There is no early end in sight to the Korean war under present conditions. As far as we can see now there is nothing transitory, nothing temporary about the communists' determination to drive us out of Korea, and, if possible, (Continued on page ten)

Car Passenger Taken To Hospital In Wreck Monday

A Greenville woman was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night as the result of an auto accident occurring on the Washington highway around six o'clock yesterday. Highway Patrolman R. C. Holt stated that a car driven by Mrs. Luellen Wilson left the highway about one and one-half miles from Greenville, going into a ditch. Holt stated that Mrs. Martha C. Mills, of 1302 Charles Street, Greenville, passenger, was taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition, but the full extent of her injuries were not known by the officer. According to information furnished by the officer, Mrs. Mills was thrown from the car when the door came open. Mrs. Wilson was not injured and damage to the car was reported as being only slight. This morning two vehicles were involved in an accident on the Falkland highway around 8:15. Investigation of the accident was made by Cpl. H. M. Morron who gave this account of the accident: a truck driven by Verdo Sellen, a construction worker living at Brierley's Trailer Court, City, was backing onto the highway when it was struck by a car driven by William L. Smith of Raleigh. Damage to the two vehicles were placed at about $250. Investigation of the accident is not complete. CONVENTION OPENS Winston-Salem, N. Views Inflation As Equal Danger

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 17—(AP)—The president of the National Association of Manufacturers today placed inflation on a level with communism as a peril threatening America's future. Textileman William H. Ruffin of Durham told a reporter that the failure of the United States to deal squarely with the inflation issue was an indication of "moral weakening."

Coming Home

Taeju, Korea, April 17—(AP)—A plane load of battle-weary but beaming GIs took off today for the end of every doughboy's dream—home. They were among the first men transferred from Korea back to the United States to become instructors of America's new army. The flight took them to Japan, where they will draw shiny new uniforms, baths and a few steaks under their belts before beginning their long journey home to the States. All had been in Korea more than eight months and had seen their share of the fighting.

Graham Predicts Growing Tide Of Women In Plants

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17—(AP)—

Robert Holt Guest Speaker At WCTU Meet

The ladies of the local chapter of the W.C.T.U. were delighted to have Dr. Robert Holt, director of religious education of East Carolina, as their guest speaker. Dr. Holt chose as an introduction to his talk these words: Power limited and directed is of more use than that which is not bound to some use.

God's power is made more wonderful in that it is directed and controlled to the benefit of man. This is evident in his creative activities. Too much rain or not enough would have been destructive to man. There is just the correct proportion of seasons for soil fertility and the growing of specific crops.

Temperance, which makes God more wonderful, is necessary for man's welfare. It functions to enlarge or bound the measure of every operation and considers mixtures and proportions in complex actions. Temperance is especially important in man's activities and desires. In meats, drinks, recreation, the most wholesome food or activities by excess may be destructive. Temperance must be exercised in every realm of life, and one must be careful to include every area of his life and not merely his attitude toward alcoholic liquors. Even if a person drinks none and yet has excess in other areas of life, he is still intemperate.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. W. R. Smith on Ninth street last Wednesday.

Mrs. Wiley Brown led the group in prayer, after which the president, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, held a brief business meeting.

An announcement was made of the district meeting which is to be held in Bethel on April 17.

Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley asked for clothing for a family, who recently lost their home by fire.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick urged all members to attend the Temperance Clinic, which is to take place in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Thursday, April 19, at 7:30. The speaker, Mr. Raymond J. Jeffreys, is one of the best in the country. Mr. Jeffreys will show movies and review his book, "God is My Landlord."

The hostess assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Julian Franklin, and little granddaughter, Susan, served delightful refreshments.

Meadowbrook Women Meet

The Circle of the Meadowbrook Women of the Church met on Monday night, April 9, at 8:00 o'clock with Mrs. A. T. Moore. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. E. Speight, who opened it with a very thoughtful poem. This was followed with the group repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Nineteen members and three visitors were present.

The minutes of the March meeting and the executive board meeting were read and approved. The motion was made and carried that the circle send $95.00 to Mr. Lovelace for benevolence. The time of the circle meeting was discussed and changed to the second Tuesday in each month at eight o'clock.

Mrs. E. A. Fuller and Mrs. Jack Russell were appointed to meet with the church officers to discuss plans for earning some money to help pay for the steeples for the church bell.

In the absence of the committee chairman on education, the president gave a very interesting talk on higher education. It was decided that next year books would be ordered for the young people to help them choose a Christian college.

Mrs. A. J. Cox was selected to be the pastor's aid for the coming year. Her name will be sent to the Presbyterial office.

Mrs. Jack Russell, a delegate to the Presbyterial, gave a very interesting report on the meeting.

Mrs. H. M. Holbert began the Bible study with Abraham and carried it through Moses and the Ten Commandments. The study was very interesting and enjoyable.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Perry Provides Rotary Program

By WYATT BROWN
The Rotarians were entertained by George Perry of the East Carolina College music faculty last night when he did a series of Night Club style numbers. He explained in advance that the renditions would be far from highbrow.

The first number on the program was his variations on an old familiar theme along the line of first German band, second as Mozart might have done it, third in the manner of a Chopin nocturne, as Strauss might have turned it in a waltz, and finally as a Phillip Sousa arrangement might have sounded.

Then came his impression of how "The Beautiful Ohio" sounds on a player piano with torn roll and dirt-packed mechanism. Prior to that he did a number as it would sound on a piano with a bad note all embellished with a poor performer.

Following the above variety he did three "patter" numbers involving the playing, talking and some singing all in the night club manner. One was about "A Good Man Is Hard to Find", the middle one dedicated to lovers of cats, the finale dedicated to all the club and entitled something about a "Colonel" and "Prodigal."

Governor Howard McGinnis of the 27th District of Rotary International thanked his host club for their assistance and cooperation in putting on the District Conference held in Greenville last week. The Greenville Club was the host club and Howard said "I am bursting with pride, the way you fellows put on the Conference." He commended them for the fine way they carried everything through. The hard working committees that worked all day before the Conference and through the two day Conference came in for special thanks.

Floyd Hendrix, president of the local club added his word of thanks and commended the ones who had helped so much. He said that from all the reports that had reached him so far the conference in Greenville was the best the 27th District had ever had.

James Taylor was a guest of the Club last night. Visiting Rotarians last night were: Frank Kilpatrick of the Ayden Club and three from the Washington Club—Dorsey Welch, Leon Roebuck, Sr., and William Windley. The program was presented by Charles White, Program Chairman. Floyd Hendrix, Club president, presided.

Joint Recital Is Staged Sunday

Mary Wallace Foy of Pollockville, soprano, and Ethel Clement of Oxford, clarinetist, students at East Carolina College, appeared in a recital Sunday afternoon in the Austin auditorium on the campus. The program was sponsored by the department of music at the college and presented the two musicians in their senior recital. An audience of approximately 100 people was present to enjoy the occasion.

Selections for the afternoon's program were: "Pavane" by Debussy, "Nocturne" by Chopin, "The Swan" by Saint-Saens, "The Carnival of Venice" by Vivaldi, and "The Four Seasons" by Vivaldi. Madeline Hodges of Washington was accompanist. Beatrice Chauncey, flutist, of the East Carolina faculty also assisted in the program.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
OPEN THAT DOOR

An honored professor told me recently that forty years ago the deafness which was to be a lifelong handicap began to cast its shadow across his path. His fear was that he would never be able to secure an adequate teaching position.

But he had just published a book. Like many of the young men of that day, he worshipped at the shrine of Theodore Roosevelt, and he sent Roosevelt a copy of his book. A few days later when he got back to his apartment, he was told that Oyster Bay had been calling him all morning and that Mr. Theodore Roosevelt wanted him to come to lunch.

The young fellow grabbed a taxi for the last available train had left—and drove to Oyster Bay. At the luncheon were several very distinguished historians. This poor discouraged chap, faced with loss of hearing, sat down with the great T. R. and the big names in the teaching profession and spent with them a pleasant hour or two. A few weeks later he was placed on the faculty of a great university. He is within a few months now of retirement, and he has a number of times been chosen by the students as the most popular teacher in that institution. And all this largely because T. R. gave a little lift at the right time to a poor chap who was trying to struggle above a handicap.

Maybe you can open the door for somebody, if you will.

The Reflector Reaches A New Circulation Mark

The members of The Reflector "family" have been constantly striving to give the people of Pitt county a better home newspaper, and at the same time trying to secure more and more subscribers in Pitt county.

The net individually paid circulation of The Reflector as of April 7 reached the highest point in the history of the newspaper. On that day there were 5,607 subscribers who paid for their copies of The Reflector, and all but 191 of those copies of The Reflector were delivered in Pitt county. Since April 7 the net paid circulation of The Reflector has continued to increase.

During the three months from January 1 through April 7, the net paid circulation of The Reflector increased by 422 subscribers... an average of 140 new subscribers per month.

The Reflector is proud of the growth it is showing, and we hope the circulation of the newspaper will continue to grow as the members of the news, advertising, circulation and mechanical departments of The Reflector continue the efforts to give the people of Pitt county the best home newspaper possible.

As of April 7, Reflector delivery boys had a total of 3,426 paid subscribers in Greenville alone, and other Reflector delivery boys had a total of 980 paid subscribers in Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland, Stokes, Winterville and Vanceboro. In addition to the carriers' routes, there were more than 1,000 paid subscribers who received their copies of The Reflector through the rural delivery routes and the post offices of Pitt county.

The Reflector is anxious for its circulation lists to grow. The members of the news staff are striving to give the people of the county a more complete coverage of the happenings of the county with each passing day. The members of the advertising and circulation departments are striving to give the advertisers a better advertising medium through which to advertise their products.

We are making progress toward the goals we have set for ourselves, and we appreciate the cooperation which the people of Pitt county are giving The Reflector.

A Foundation For Domestic Chaos

The administration and the selective service officials appear determined to carry out the executive order to defer from military service all young men who can pass a mental test and maintain satisfactory college grades—provided of course they have money enough to go to college.

Those young men who do not have enough money to go to college, no matter how bright they are, will have to go into the armed forces to sacrifice their lives if necessary while the members of this new "intellectual aristocracy" lounge on the pretty college campuses and say "we'll make our contribution to our nation's freedom later... in the form of intellectual progress."

dom later... in the form of intellectual progress."

It is quite true that young men with technical knowledge are just as vital to the nation's security in this modern age as the men on the battle front. But under the present executive order, there is no provision for assuring the nation of a backlog of technically trained college men. A young man whose parents can send him to college is automatically deferred whether he majors in tap dancing or physics... Greek mythology or chemistry.

The executive order is bad first and foremost because it sets the citizens of this nation apart into two economic groups... the group which is able to send its sons to college, and the group which is not able to send its sons to college. And the order places upon the lower economic group the burden of bearing the arms for the nation's security. Surely such a system is foreign to anything the American nation has ever stood for, fought for or lived for.

The executive order is short sighted too because it fails to recognize the need for skills, so vital to the nation's future, which are not acquired in college. The United States is just as dependent upon its farmers as it is its draftsmen; it is as dependent upon its carpenters as it is its chemists.

If the executive order for the draft is followed through, it will lay the foundation for one of the greatest splits between the American people that this nation has experienced. It throws out the window the precepts of equal opportunity and equal service for national security which have made this nation great.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 17—An unpublicized factor behind Truman-Marshall-Rayburn expressions of alarm over our perilous world state is the official realization that the recent conference of Latin American Foreign Ministers at Washington was one of the greatest diplomatic flops in modern history.

Paralleling the deterioration of our relations with Britain, Canada, France and Belgium, there was never less of a spirit of understanding, sympathy and friendship between the two Americas than there is in the wake of that abortive affair.

Whether rightly or wrongly, the twenty-one official guests departed with the feeling that the Truman Administration has abandoned the "good neighbor" policy established by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

LOSS—In view of the vast aid which they can furnish us in both the current "cold war" and a possible all-out conflict in China or Europe, with many thousands of troops, air and naval bases and raw materials, their resentment and bitterness represent a serious loss in our potential military power.

Like the recall of General MacArthur and allied differences over the conduct of hostilities in the Far East, South America's insistence on maintaining a policy of absolute neutrality, if not unfriendliness, marks one of Stalin's luckiest breaks since the end of World War II.

PROPHETIC—Barring an invasion of the southern continent, which Moscow would not be so foolish as to try, it is probable that all save two or three of the twenty-one republics would sit out a World War III, or give us only token aid. It is significant and prophetic that only two—Cuba and Colombia—have so far come to our assistance in Korea.

Together with the Western Europeans, the Latins shudder lest Washington's foreign policies—or the lack of them—may precipitate a war with Russia for which they are nakedly unprepared. Besides criticizing MacArthur in this regard, they also questioned the wisdom of the whole Truman-Acheson foreign program.

PAYMENT—The Latin Americans believe that the United States has treated them shabbily ever since the outbreak of World War II, and that our more recent economic and military moves reflect a Washington belief that they are only "poor relatives."

During the recent conflict they sold us many millions of dollars' worth of food and raw materials. In view of our shortages of goods for reciprocal export and payment, they had to build up a large volume of credits with this government and New York banks.

But when they tried to obtain payment in the form of manufactured articles from this country, domestic inflation had increased their prices to such an extent that they lost actual cash. Now, they cannot obtain needed commodities because of our rearmament program.

NEGLECT—Hardly any of these republics got lend-lease aid, in contrast to our European allies. They have had to buy both civilian articles and weapons from us, including planes and warships.

Meanwhile, we have advanced Europe $11,000,000,000 under the Marshall Plan, and plan to spend many more billions for rearming those same beneficiaries.

Naturally, the Latins think that, together with our neglect of them, this tremendous concern for continental countries shows our real attitude. Under such circumstances, they discount the professions of friendship voiced by President Truman and Secretary Acheson at the recent conference.

SNUBBED—They also have another economic complaint. At the very moment when they cannot obtain manufactured goods here save at inflated costs, Washington has entered protests against the high prices of Brazilian and Venezuelan coffee, Chilean copper and nitrates and various other essential war-time materials.

Nor does it make them feel any happier that Britain refuses to buy Argentine beef because of the difference of a few cents in the asking and offered price.

It aggravates their impression that these two great powers—Washington and London—simply seek to "use" them whenever a crisis arises. They feel snubbed, neglected and demeaned, and these Latins are an extremely sensitive people.

PERIL—Fortunately, there are few active Communists in South America, and the twenty-one governments entertain fear and hatred of Stalin. They do not think Moscow can ever be trusted while the present regime holds power, and they regard war as inevitable in a fatalistic way.

For that reason they cannot understand our policies toward Russia. At the public and private meetings here American spokesmen tried to impress them with the grave need for cooperative rearming to face the Reds on the battlefield. But American, French and British diplomats were conducting "peace" negotiations simultaneously with the Reds at Paris.

"How can I explain this inconsistency to my people?" queried one Latin American emissary with a shrug of his shoulders. "At this conference you try to inspire us with a sense of emergency, urgency and peril. Your President, General Marshall and your Speaker of the House say that would conditions are worse than they have been since the end of the war."

"But your government still talks about peace and friendship and cooperation with Russia! I don't—how is it you say?—get it! And my people won't!"

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

There are thousands of versions of the "Good Old Days." Mine for today is that it must have been great back in the good old days when you could live a normal life without the tremendous affects of advertising. If advertising doesn't bother you, you're lucky. Frankly, it's responsible for many of my everyday habits.

For example, I wouldn't consider taking a bath without smelling deodorant all over myself afterwards. The guy that started me doing this years ago was the radio announcer who climbed down in a well and bellowed, "BEEEEEE OHHHHHH. Even your best friends won't tell you." After that chilling reminder, I rushed to the store and bought a jar and have been using it ever since.

For years I struggled along using about a jar of deodorant a month. Then another radio announcer, this time a mild-voiced gentleman, asked the question, "Are you safe from body odors on all 13 danger areas of the skin?"

First I had to refer to the anatomy book to find the 13 areas; then I had to start buying deodorant two jars at the time. But all things must come to a saturation point, and no matter what the man says next, I'm not using any more.

The advertising experts strike at the American when he's young. Even before I was in high school I was aware of the horror of bad breath. If you read the funny paper, you continually read strips about the girl or boy who never had a date until she or he found out about bad breath. It's almost enough to give you a complex; such worry about bad breath.

The underhanded methods sometimes used by the advertisers is downright inconsiderate. Nowadays they are saying that if you don't buy a television set you are depriving your children of the opportunity to get an education. To hear the commercial, you would think that any parents not owning a TV set are practically criminals.

When it comes to cigarettes, the hucksters overdo themselves so much that it becomes almost a joke. The boys are actually copy cats. One brand comes out with a test to prove superiority, and the rest follow with a different test. One brand defies them all by saying their cigarette offers "a treat instead of a treatment," and still another puts a profit-sharing coupon on the back and says, "The only real difference between major brands is the coupon on the back of the pack." It's amusing to see what method the boys will use next on cigarettes. They try so hard that it gets ridiculous.

Frankly, I don't understand how there are 10 brands of soap, and all better than the others. The advertising on soap is so intense that I wouldn't know which brand to buy.

No matter what method is used, advertising affects our everyday life. You have no way of knowing what the hucksters will have you doing next.

And I thank you.

LAWS—The late general assembly put 1240 new laws upon the statute books. Many of them repealed previous laws or consolidated several statutes into one, or changed just a few words in the old laws, so that the net increase will be considerably less than 1240—probably not much more than half that. It is also true that many of the laws are of no concern except to one small community or a very small group of people. Whatever the effect or import and however long or short, each of the 1240 acts ratified must be printed in the Session Laws of 1951.

SOON—Secretary of State Thad Eure, who is responsible for handling the publication, hopes to have the books ready for distribution within thirty days. Such quick work was made possible by changes in the act, sponsored by Mr. Eure, permitting indexing to be by chapter number instead of by page number and eliminating marginal interpretations of each paragraph. Because of these changes most of the acts ratified prior to the last two weeks of the session have already been put in type and indexed. Secretary Eure said that not later than Wednesday of this week copy of every law would be in hands of the printer. The printer has advised he has sufficient material and facilities to speed up the job. So by the middle of May, certainly not later than June 1, barring unexpected hold-ups, the Session Laws of 1951 will be ready for distribution.

TIME-SAVING—That will save a lot of time and worry for people affected by new laws as well as for the working staff in the secretary of state's office. Pending publication of the official volumes special requests for certified copies of ratified acts are pouring into the secretary of state's office. Many of the acts are already in force, having become effective upon ratification, but they cannot be enforced on basis of newspaper reports. Until the Session Laws are published carrying blanket certification of all laws contained therein, individual certified copies must be in hand before the act can be applied.

SIMPLIFICATION—Indexing by chapter numbers and elimination of marginal explanations marks the third major simplification in official handling of legislative acts in recent times. Twenty years ago the system of numbering bills was changed to eliminate duplication of senate and house numbers. Prior to that time each bill carried an identifying number of the branch in which it was introduced and another number indicating its place among bills coming to the other branch. For example, Senate Bill 23 might also carry designation as House Bill 462. That was confusing. So Leroy Martin, principal clerk in the senate, and Thad Eure, principal clerk in the house, procured adoption of a resolution eliminating one number. Since then the bills have been known throughout legislative action only by the original introductory number. Senate Bill 23 remained SB23 until finally disposed of; so did every bill introduced in either branch carry only one number throughout. Next step came ten years ago when another resolution provided for printing all acts ratified in one volume known as Session Laws, instead of the previous cumbersome method of having one volume for "Public Local and another for "Public Local and Local Laws." Old Customs die hard, but after twenty years of effort the current volume of Session Laws will be easier to read and more quickly provided than ever before.

LOBBYISTS—The lobbyist register shows that during the 1951 session a total of 98 persons signed the book, representing some 138 firms, corporations and causes. This list does not include the most active lobbyists seeking enactment of laws under the guise of public good; nor does it include many persons who appeared before committees in behalf of, or opposing, extension of corporate limits of municipalities, legislation affecting domestic relations, labor-management issues, alcoholic beverage control and numerous other matters.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

CHINESE TROOPS (Washington Daily News)
The Daily News is inclined to agree that use should be made of the more than 500,000 Chinese Nationalist troops now in Formosa.

Chiang Kai-Shek, the Nationalist leader, has had a formidable force ready for sometime. Yet, these troops remain in Formosa and do nothing while American troops are dying on the battlefields of Korea.

If we are fighting the Chinese, then more than for any other people, we are fighting the war for the Chinese Nationalists. But the Chiang soldiers are in safety behind the ocean barrier in Formosa.

To say that use of such troops would offend the Chinese communists is sheer nonsense. They are already in the field fighting us, and we should do all in our power to fight them and if there can be any offense more damaging than the one we are using on the battlefield, then we should turn a longing eye in its direction.

American troops could be stationed in Formosa to do a little protecting, and the Nationalist troops could go on the battlefield and lose a little blood. After all American blood is far more valuable to us than Chinese blood. And the cause for which the war in Korea is being waged should be far more cherished by the Chiang troops than by the American troops.

American soldiers kept right on fighting and right on dying. How many Nationalist soldiers have died on Korea? The answer is very few if any. If we are worrying about offending Russia, then Russia certainly is not thinking about offending us by troop concentrations in Manchuria, by supplies going to Red Chinese troops, and by the many other ways she is giving help and support to Mao and his Red Chinese.

Considering all the angles, it seems to us that we are just being plain foolish in letting American boys die when we could send Chinese into battle and at least take a little of the pressure off our own boys.

Business Today

EL ELMER ROESSNER
Although the government is urging subcontracting of defense orders to help the survival of small plants, there are other advantages to large plants whether engaged in defense work or not, and benefits to the general economy as well.

Among the advantages to large manufacturers are these:
Subcontracting reduces capital requirements of the larger plant since it utilizes the plan and other capital investments of the subcontractor.

Subcontracting reduces the need for plant expansions, costs of which are now at an all-time high. However, rapid amortization war benefits can offset costs of expansion for defense work.

Subcontracting enables the main plant to concentrate managerial talent on fewer problems. Main plants can draw on the ideas, suggestions and talents of the subcontractors.

Subcontracting spreads the work of finding scarce materials. Some small plants have unusual success in getting subcontracts because they have supplies of scarce materials.

Conversion and retooling can be speeded by subcontracting, since it spreads the work.

Manpower problems can be solved by subcontracting. Example: certain skills are now very scarce in Detroit but subcontracting is putting work where those skills are available.

Dispersal through subcontracts is a defense against attack or disaster at the main plant.

Subcontracting builds a strong system of suppliers and encourages intensified specialization. Subcontractors can also constitute a market for stocks and securities of the main company.

A survey by Purchasing magazine showed that 57 per cent of the corporations responding said they had a permanent subcontracting policy and 33 per cent of the respondents said more than a quarter of the requirements were produced by subcontractors.

That subcontracting is a check on monopoly is a benefit to the entire economy. A large number of small plants trained and equipped in subcontracting also makes it easier to start new enterprises.

Subcontracting also serves to spread the effects of booms and depressions. When the auto industry is booming, it spreads its prosperity through the 48 states in which some 7,000 subcontracting suppliers are located. When there is a layoff in a large industry, it spreads the burden of unemployment through states in which subcontractors are established.

Private brands were usually sold to the grocer at prices that enabled him to make a little fatter profit. But now that mark-ups have been set by law, the fat has been melted off.

With mark-ups the same, manufacturers of private brands fear that grocers will have no reason for preferring their wares over nationally advertised brands and are planning to ask the Office of Price Stabilization for relief.

FINANCING PREFABS
URGED BY SAVINGS LEAGUE
Approximately 100,000 prefabricated homes will be produced this year, the United States Savings and Loan League estimates.

The league is advising savings associations officials to consider "good" prefabs as sound security for mortgages. If this advice is acted upon, it will stimulate both manufacture and sale of these houses. Housing shortages in defense areas will also stimulate demand for prefabs.

NEW AND HOT
CEDAR: Any closet, chest or drawer can be given a mothproof and fireproof finish with a new compound consisting of pulverized heart of red cedar and chemicals, say the makers. It may be mixed with water and painted or sprayed on, and dries to hard finish. It is distributed by Thrifty Products Co., P.O. Box 371, Brooklyn 1, N.Y.

CLEANSER: An improved cleaning cream for rugs, carpets and upholstery is claimed to remove all dirt and grease, even fresh ink spots. The cream is to be rubbed on until it lathers and wiped off with a fresh cloth. It is by Skour-Nu, Inc., 42 W. 15th St., New York 11.

GREETINGS: A line of cards that open into three-dimensional greetings and that will twirl if hung by an attached string has been introduced by P. E. Voland Co., Joliet, Ill.

Hal Boyle's Column

New York—(AP)—Every life has its peak point, its hour when it rounds into perfect flower.

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur comes home tonight after 14 years abroad, and a hero's welcome will await him wherever he goes.

But, stripped of his commands, he is coming home to a fight, too... a battle he must wage with words instead of weapons... a battle he has fought all his life... over the American policy in Asia.

The cheers of his countrymen will sound a rather dry echo in the heart of the old warrior. For at 71 he must know he cannot answer many more bugs. And when the parades are over and the cheers die down, what then?

MacArthur has come home to put at stake a lifetime of military belief. There is a kind of war among the Generals involved, a war as to where the United States must right now concentrate its power. MacArthur says "in Asia." Marshall and his boys "in Eisenhower and Bradley—say "in Europe."

What will the American people say? Right now they are doubtful and confused, torn in loyalty by this division of views among its highest heroes. One thing they are sure of: it is better to have a war among the Generals than it is to have a general war.

No matter what the final outcome is of MacArthur's homecoming—slow oblivion or final vindication—it must have a otter-sweet flavor to him.

For amid all the acclaim that will greet him he must know the doubt in many minds: "Yes, he was right in the past—but is he right about the future?"

When the General looks back upon his own crowded career, I think he will always feel it reached its greatest climax on Sept. 2, 1945, when he accepted the Japanese surrender aboard the battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay.

For 18 minutes on that sunny day MacArthur stood on the summit of the world, tasting victory at its sweetest.

To those who saw it the sight will always remain unforgettable. The top allied brass stood in ranks about a small table on the captain's walk. That table was a kind of bar of judgment for the seven Japanese envoys, standing before it like carved ivory figures in postures of Oriental patience.

MacArthur sat down and signed the first document. Then he turned with a warm smile and handed the pen to a gaunt tall figure beside him. It was Gen. "Skinny" Wainwright. MacArthur then turned and looked steadily at the Jap envoys and they all knew what he meant—Bataan and Corregidor had been avenged. It was a simple eloquent gesture, that handing of the first pen of victory to the man who had stayed behind. It brought tears to the eyes of watching officers and seamen.

When all had signed, MacArthur recalled the sacrifices of the men who had won the war in the Pacific and said:

"We have known the bitterness of defeat and the exultation of triumph, and from both we have learned there is no turning back. Let us pray that peace be now restored to the world and that God will preserve it always."

He arose and marched quickly from the deck. And as he left wave after wave of bombers and fighter planes roared overhead until the battleship throbbled with the sound of their passing.

The ceremony was over. That was almost six years ago. But I doubt if time has brought a greater moment, or a finer memory, to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

Washington—If Margaret Truman had been a boy her name probably would have been John.

"Daughters" became the subject of a luncheon table discussion when Mrs. James Davis, president of the Congressional Club, which was honoring the First Lady, began talking about her own Mary Martin Davis, 15. Mrs. Davis told me about it as we left the luncheon the other day. The two ladies had been admiring the little paper umbrella favors before their plates.

"Isn't it natural to still want to take favors and place cards and such things none to the children?" Mrs. Davis, wife of the Democratic congressman from Georgia, said.

Mrs. Truman agreed but said she now takes everything home to her mother. Mrs. D.W. Wallace, who is visiting here and with whom she will return home to Independence, Mo., soon.

"I told Mrs. Truman I knew how happy she would be to be in Independence, away from all the official life here," Mrs. Davis told me. "She said she found it relaxing at home where she was completely unchaperoned and could go and come as she wished. She said 'No one cares—I can drive my car and do as I please.'"

The two got back on the daughters topic again when Mrs. Davis proudly told the First Lady that Mary Martin had won a $5 prize in a civics essay contest at school. Margaret had won a similar prize, Mrs. Truman said.

"She told me she and Margaret's father would have been disappointed if Margaret had failed to win, since she had heard civics around home all the time," Mrs. Davis said.

"I always wondered where Margaret got her name," she added.

Mrs. Truman's name is Elizabeth Virginia, and of course everybody knows her as "Bess." She told me they had figured on a boy's name "John" at first, but when a daughter was born they named her after Mrs. Truman's mother, who is called Madge.

The First Lady enjoyed the party the wives of the members of Congress gave for her. She wore a new navy straw hat with flowers dipping down one side, and she seemed unusually relaxed.

"I know now where Margaret gets her singing talent," said Mrs. Davis. "Her mother has a really lovely voice, I heard her when she was singing the 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

"Not just a label..."

Tubercular Convicts Stage Prison Break

Raleigh, N. C., April 17—(AP)—A state-wide search was intensified today for two tubercular prisoners who pounded a hole through a wall at Central Prison with a window sash weight and escaped.

The spectacular break yesterday was the first in five years from the 83-year-old prison.

Prison Warden Joseph Crawford identified the fugitives as Cecil King, 41, of High Point, serving 17-25 years for armed robbery, and Earl Jackson, 63, of Sanford, serving 10-20 years for burglary, possession of burglary tools, breaking, entering and larceny.

The two prisoners, patients in the prison hospital, used a sash weight to pound through 31 inches of brick mortar and cement to make their escape.

It was not until noon yesterday, several hours after they had fled, that the prisoners were missed and the escape plot revealed. Crawford said the two escapees left dummies in their hospital beds. The getaway was made, he added, sometime before 6:00 a.m. yesterday.

Crawford said the two men obtained the sash weight by removing the framing around a window. The escape was staged from inside a combination medicine-linen closet adjoining the east wall. They picked the lock on the closet door, Crawford said, and then gradually beat a hole some two feet wide in the wall. With the aid of an electric drop cord the prisoners lowered themselves 31 feet to the ground. The hospital wall is flush with the prison's outer boundary.

Must Act Soon On GI Insurance

Washington, April 17—(AP)—Any veteran who wants, but doesn't have, government life insurance must act fast, the American Legion advised today.

Issuance of new policies will be discontinued under the new bill which would provide $10,000 free death benefits for members of the armed forces, Legion Commander Eric Cocks Jr. noted in a statement.

The change becomes effective as soon as President Truman signs the new bill into law, as he is expected to do. It was passed by Congress Friday.

Existing policies held by veterans not in service are not affected. But new policies of U.S. Government (World War I) Life Insurance and National Service (World War II) Life Insurance will no longer be issued. Both types of policies may be obtained by qualified veterans now, but Cocks said the former service men "will be deprived of the right" unless applications have been filed before the President signs the new measure.

He said that "there are many thousands of persons in these categories."

Drop Invitation To Fla. Governor

New Orleans, April 17—(AP)—Southern Baptists have withdrawn an invitation to Fuller Warren, Florida's Democratic governor, to address their convention June 20-24 at San Francisco.

The churchmen withdrew their invitation yesterday "in the light of recent developments in your state."

The First Baptist Church of Key West, Fla., led the way by passing a resolution Sunday that the invitation be recalled. In urging this, the church at Key West criticized Warren for reinstating Sheriff Jimmy Sullivan of Dade County (Miami). The reinstatement was "contrary to Christian principles," the church declared.

Warren suspended Sullivan after a Dade County grand jury indicted him on charges that he failed to enforce gambling laws and permitted gamblers to bribe his deputies. Sullivan was reinstated last week.

Dr. J. D. Grey of New Orleans, chairman of the convention's program committee, said a telegram withdrawing the invitation for the San Francisco speech was sent Warren yesterday.

Warren at Tallahassee, the Florida capital, had no comment.

N. C. Railroads Ask Rate Hike

Raleigh, N. C., April 17—(AP)—Railroads operating in the state have asked the State Utilities Commission to allow them to boost freight rates by two per cent.

A request for a bigger increase totaling 15 per cent likely will be filed later. Hearings on a 15 per cent interstate rate boost are now being conducted before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The railroads asked yesterday that the two per cent increase be made effective immediately.

The original Edison phonograph was described as a "speaking machine."

Gurney Hood Still Doesn't Know Why He Lost Post

Raleigh, N. C., April 17—(AP)—Gurney P. Hood, longtime State Commissioner of Banks, says he cannot understand why Governor Scott failed to reappoint him without warning.

Hood, 66, officially bowed out yesterday from the Bank Commissioner's job held by him since it was created 20 years ago.

He was succeeded by William Wright Jones, 48, of Raleigh, who was appointed Saturday by Governor Scott. Jones was confirmed by the Senate and sworn in all in a matter of a few hours. He was treasurer of the State Employees Credit Union.

Hood said he heard nothing from the Governor before the appointment of Jones was made and that no word had come from Scott since then. He was at a loss as to why the Governor had replaced him.

Hood asserted he would assist Jones "as long as he needs me" and then he plans a vacation at Cape Hatteras. After that his plans are indefinite.

In a statement released yesterday, Hood said he had "attempted in every way to supervise the banks without political consideration."

Assembly Record Lags Behind '49

This compares with 1,295 bills and 46 resolutions placed on the stalled radio stations that enables tune.

During the 1951 session, 1,361 bills were introduced in both houses compared with 1,843 by the 1949 session.

Rain Washes Out Robins' First Title

But If Weatherman Is Kind, Greenville Ball Club Has Good Number Of Exhibition Games Still On Tap

Baseball fans were unable to get a glimpse of Manager John Sireza and his 1951 edition of the Robins last night as a heavy rain just before game time caused the cancellation of the scheduled game between the Robins and the Elizabeth City Club of the Class D Virginia League.

However, provided the weatherman is kind to this section, the local fans will have an opportunity to see the Robins in action on Thursday night of this week when they meet the Hartford Chiefs of the Class A Eastern League. This contest should give the Robins a real test of their strength. Game time for this contest is scheduled for 7:45 o'clock.

Following Thursday night's game with the Hartford Chiefs the Robins have scheduled a total of seven more exhibition games, four of which are to be played at the local diamond with the remaining three being played on foreign soil. The remaining games on the exhibition schedule is as follows:

Thursday, April 19—Hartford Chiefs, here; Friday, April 20—Kinston Eagles, here; Saturday, April 21—Edenton, Va. League, at Edenton; Sunday, April 22—Edenton, here; Tuesday, April 24—Kinston Eagles at Kinston; Friday, April 27—Goldsboro Bugs at Greenville; Saturday, April 28—East Carolina Pirates at Guy Smith Stadium; April 30—Elizabeth City of Va. League at Elizabeth City.

All exhibition games scheduled here are to be played at night with game time being 7:45 o'clock.

Chicod Topples Winterville Nine

Winterville. — Chicod and Winterville slugged it out here Friday afternoon in a ball game which saw Chicod come out on top by a score of 13-12 over the Winterville boys.

For Chicod's winning team it was William Mills on the mound all the way, paced by Centerfielder Ross at the plate with four hits in four trips to the plate. Ross gathered in three singles and one double in four times at bat.

Chicod ran up the score on 12 hits against one miscue in the field while Winterville followed with 11 hits and committed eight errors which accounted in part for the loss suffered by the locals.

Charles Robinson started on the mound for Winterville and was relieved by Leroy Faulkner. Leading the losers' attack was Jack Paramore, shortstop, with two singles in three trips.

The loss for Winterville was the third for the locals against one victory.

Phants Shut Out

Tarboro, April 17 — Tarboro High School shut out the Greenville High School Phants here yesterday afternoon, 8-0, in a game which was called in the sixth inning because of rain.

Doug Morgan started on the mound for the Phants and was relieved by Dixon, who pitched one inning before the game was called.

Errors on the part of the Phants enabled Tarboro to score four unearned runs off Morgan. A total of 10 errors which were the Phants' downfall were committed in the game.

At the start of the sixth inning the Tarboro boys held only a 4-0 lead but with the coming of the rain and subsequent errors on the part of the Phants they pushed across four additional runs.

Work On Park Site Of Little League Planned

Clearing Of Land To Begin Wednesday Afternoon; Will Provide Natural Bowl For Games

Clearing of land on the site of the newly organized Little League baseball diamond will begin Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 when the first work is started towards building the diamond for use by the young baseballers.

At the regular monthly meeting of the City Recreation Commission, held last night in the armory, attended by some 35 interested citizens of the city, the Grounds Committee for the Little League reported that the city's motor grader will be on hand Wednesday afternoon to aid in the clearing of the small trees and brush which now covers the site of the proposed ball field.

The field, located off Elm Street, between 10th and 14th Streets, is described as being a natural bowl which will offer everything necessary for the holding of baseball and football games.

All six of the teams to play in the city's league this year have sponsors, and uniforms for equipping the teams have been ordered. It was reported at the meeting last night.

Team sponsors are: Lions, Elks, Exchange, Moose and Kiwanis Clubs and Junior Chamber of Commerce. First estimates as to the cost of building and equipping the ball field for play have been placed at around $1,000. In addition to the grading and clearing of the land, a wooden fence will be erected around the area as soon as possible and will account in large part for the expense.

This morning an appeal was issued for all persons interested in helping get the field started to come to the site at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon or any other time during the afternoon, as work will be carried on all afternoon. The main task will be the clearing of small trees and brush.

No definite date has been set for completion of the field, except that it will be rushed to completion as soon as possible.

Warren Carroll, newly appointed director of recreation for Greenville, has announced that he is drawing up a constitution and by-laws for the Little League and will bring them to Greenville this week.

Solicitation of funds for the building and equipping of the field will get under way in the near future, with everyone asked to contribute. It was pointed out that anyone who is interested in the success of the Little League teams are invited to contribute, regardless of amount.

Expenses of the operation of each city team will be carried by the local sponsors with an outlay of $150 for the first year and $25 for the next two years.

The original outlay covers the purchasing of uniforms and equipment for the boys while the City Recreation Commission will furnish the field equipment and other items.

Another project to be adopted will be the formation of a "Little Fry" league to be supervised by the older boys in the Little League. The small fry league will be made up of the younger boys not eligible for playing with the Little League now, but training them for the day when they can play.

Each of the Little League teams will have an authorized strength of 18 players with 12 in uniforms and the remainder on reserve.

The team sponsors will be responsible for the training and managing of the club.

For those persons interested in helping to clear the land Wednesday, it was suggested that any garden tools which could be used for the afternoon will be much in demand, and as many should be brought as possible to help speed up the work.

Site For Future Baseball Diamond

The mass of brush and small trees shown in the above picture covers the site of the newly organized Little League baseball field, which will be attacked Wednesday afternoon by a host of volunteer workers as the first clearing of the area is staged. The field, termed "ideal" for football and baseball play, will be cleared and graded Wednesday as the first step in getting the field in shape for play. All volunteer help on the project has been asked to report to the field site by 1:30 if possible. The field is located on the West side of Elm Street, near the 10th Street intersection. Winterville Nine Wins 9-5 Decision Against Belvoir

Belvoir, April 17. — Winterville High School handed the Belvoir baseball team its first setback of the season yesterday afternoon as they scored six runs in the third inning to take a 9-5 decision over Belvoir.

The game was called at the end of five innings because of rain and high winds. It was scheduled to go nine innings.

Winterville opened the first inning by sending home two runs, coming back in the third inning to send across six runs. Pitcher Robert Bright got himself in hot water when he allowed two men to gain freedom by the walk route with the bases becoming loaded on an error. Then LeRoy Faulkner banged out a long triple to clear the bases, scoring three runs before him.

The inning closed with a double by Hobgood, which drove in two additional runs.

Belvoir's best scoring attempt came in the bottom of the fifth when J. C. Hamill scored on a base hit and error with Morris hitting a two-bagger to score Bullock and end the scoring, which looked like the start of a Belvoir rally.

Morris' single in the bottom of the third for Belvoir, driving in Chase, and two walks and an error, followed by a two-base hit by Huges in the second frame accounted for the remainder of the Belvoir boys' scoring.

Winterville scored nine runs on four hits and two errors while Belvoir gathered in five runs on four hits and two errors.

Harold Pollard relieved Bright in the fifth inning with Bright being credited with the loss.

Previously Belvoir had won two games and will play Grimesland in Grimesland on Friday as they seek their third victory of the season.

East Carolina Golfers Top Host Catawba Club

East Carolina golfers defeated Catawba's linksters in two matches played at Catawba on last Thursday and Friday at the Salisbury Country Club course.

The matches with Catawba signaled the official opening of the North State Conference golf matches, in which East Carolina took the championship last year.

Paced by Captain Bill Stalls as medalist, with identical scores of two over par 73 in both matches, the East Carolina golfers scored victories of 22-5 and 21-6.

The victories now give the Pirates a record for the season of two victories against no defeats in conference competition, which will aid the Bucs greatly in attempting to retain their North State Conference championship.

Rain and high winds which prevailed over the course prior to the opening of play made the course very difficult.

The individual and team scores were as follows:

TIME TRAP

Chapter 27
 "At first," Neiva began, "there was established what was believed to be a basic law—the unalterability of the future. And of the past, too."
 "But the firmly established laws of the inviolability of time lately received a setback. One of the major research projects of the Vargians is exploration of the future. Just a few years ago there were discovered what were thought to be errors of previous explorers. For example, an explorer reported in 1970 that on January first 2025 a certain event will take place or is taking place. An explorer from 1999 in going forwards finds that there was an error—it took place earlier or later—or not at all. "With one or two such cases it could be called error; but the cases are mounting up. In fact, they're increasing. There's enough data now to form a probability equation that has almost been accepted in place of the old law of unchangeability."

"But how can that be?" Ray asked. "If you go forward and see something actually happen, it—it just happens that way, doesn't it? It's not a dream. It's real. If it isn't, then all time travel is just a vivid dream, and Joe and I are sleeping it off back in 1950!"

"That's what they can't understand," Neiva said. "And they can't decide whether it's something new, or a principle that's just newly discovered."

"Is there a difference?" Joe asked.

"Here's the difference," Neiva said. "If it's just a newly discovered law that has always existed, then it held true back in Varmour—but records of similar studies back in that period don't show it. That would be according to the probability law too, because study of even the records of that time would now be in the certainty category."

"But if it's something new, it means that there is an entirely new force coming into the picture that was not present before. Then the constants of the probability equation alter in significance. They become secondary variables expressing the intrusion of this new force into the time stream. Then, instead of the equation saying that the closer you get to the present the more unpredictable events are, it says that at some time soon events will be entirely different than they are as we observe them from the present."

"I think I see what you mean," Ray said slowly. "You mean that they can go forward in time from right now and see Vargians still quietly running things, but with this new element in the picture it may turn out they aren't there at all when the time stream reaches that point."

"Exactly," Neiva said. "And that's why they fear me. They rightly conclude that I have brought this new factor into the picture. It takes away the certainty of future events, and they can't see what's coming and be prepared to counter it."

"Got it!" Joe exclaimed. "Then the only way real events can be altered is by getting outside the line into another dimension and pushing. That means the fifth dimension."

"Right," Neiva said. "And up until I discovered how to move into the fifth dimension by the time travel principle, the line remained straight. Now the picture is this: one moving point passes a given point on the line while it's straight. Then I curve the line a little and the next follows the curve. So I was actually bending the space-time line when I gave the warning from outside it and enabled you two to escape the explosion. But the day is passing—I want to introduce you to our fellow researchers and—well, I might as well warn you; we plan on re-vamping you two into something like supermen. Can you take it?"

"As long as it doesn't make me too good to associate with Nancy I don't mind," Joe said.

"You sure believe in scattering things over the landscape," Joe complained. "Why couldn't you have clustered your building all in one spot, since you don't have any crowding?"

"We didn't build the houses and buildings we have," Neiva said. "What! They were already here?" Ray exclaimed.

"They were 'where' they are," Neiva answered. "Mine and Nan-cy's house, for example, is one we 'picked up' back in 1953. We merely built in the right design of solids to 'move' it forward in time and just far enough out of phase with the time front—or into the fifth dimension — to be where and when we wanted it. It created quite a stir." She chuckled at the memory, Nancy joining in. "There was quite a writeup in the papers about the mysterious theft of an entire house including the full concrete basement, leaving just a hole in the ground. And the owners—that's us—disappeared along with it. I believe in your day before the full extent of reality was known they called such occurrences 'Fortean data,' didn't they?"

"The house remained 'where' it was," Nancy cut in. "We are still in the same place with it."

"And all our other buildings are the same," Neiva went on. "We bought them and moved them out of their time-line, but they had to stay put in space relative to their surroundings. That's why they're scattered out. Another thing, we had to pick them far apart and in different years so it wouldn't seem to all be done at once, though we actually accomplished it all in just one week, in terms of our own conscious time lapse."

She guided the car up a driveway and stopped in front of a neat, one-story brick building.

"This is the big project," she said. "You'll meet Dr. Osburn and Dr. Scott. I think they're here."

Red Plans Bore No Fruit, Failed

Berlin—(AP)—M-31 was a plan for distributing scarce raw materials to the "peoples-owned" industries for the five-year industrial plan.

It came into being in the Planning Offices of the "German Democratic Republic" and got the approval of the ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) Party. With great fanfare, party boss Walter Ulbricht ordered M-31 into action.

The bureaucratic gears ground and the red tape machines ticked. And nothing happened. Orders were placed and the stuff didn't show up. It got to be a scandal and finally Fritz Lange, chairman of the central commission for state control, was hauled on the carpet.

Lange looked into it and came out with an indictment against M-31. He said it was a good plan for big projects but the regulation-minded government employees had destroyed its effectiveness by surrounding it with red tape. Therefore, M-31 had to be banished and a new, more simplified method is being worked out now.

Slow Reading Is Clue To Absence

Kiel, Germany—(AP)—A nine-year-old Kiel boy has set something of a record by playing hooky from school for five months before being caught.

He got away with it because his elder brother, who attended the same school, kept his secret. Little Fritz just went for daily long walks when he should have been in school. But he got caught when his grandmother came to school one day and demanded from the teacher "why our little Fritz hasn't learned to read yet."

Only Five Left Of Original Unit

Somewhere in Korea, April 14 (Delayed)—(AP)—There are only five originals left of a 44-man First Cavalry platoon. And among the "old originals" are Sgt. I-C Thomas D. Walston, Rocky Mount, N. C., and Corp. Joseph W. Buckner, Rhodhiss, N. C.

They've both been wounded, but are all right now.

A reporter talked to them in a battalion compound of the First Cavalry Division and their story brings home to you what it's like in Korea.

It was during the current offensive northward that the platoon suffered its heaviest casualties on a tough hill southwest of Seoul. They finally took it, but of the 44 men who went up the hill, only 18 came down under their own power. Sgt. Walston was wounded in that action. Not a single man of the original 44-man platoon has escaped getting hit by enemy fire in Korea.

"I'll bet that's some kind of a record," says Corp. Buckner.

The platoon came to Korea last July. Now there are only five originals left. The other 39 had been replaced, and many of the 39 were in turn replaced by others.

Lost His Voice, Found A New One

Weirton, W. Va.—(AP)—Stanley Flak, a young steelworker, lost his voice Feb. 28, 1950, after a brass bar struck him across the throat. His vocal cords were permanently injured.

A Pittsburgh specialist suggested sending him to the Department of Psychology at the University of Pittsburgh. There, Dr. John Matthews, director of speech, said a course in voice training might help.

He enrolled in a special speech clinic class for eight weeks.

There Stanley developed an entirely new voice. At first it had husky overtones but as time went on, the huskiness disappeared. He returned to work last month on a new job.

Manganese Ore Meets Demand

New Delhi—(AP)—The production of manganese ore in India during the past three years has kept pace with its increasing demand, especially in hard currency countries, the Indian minister of natural resources said here.

Manganese ore is found in several states in India and it is mined by the state governments. The Indian Government aids producers by supplying explosives, steel, cement, gasoline and railroad equipment. The Government plans to set up plants for the manufacture of ferromanganese in electric furnaces.

ECHO SPRING

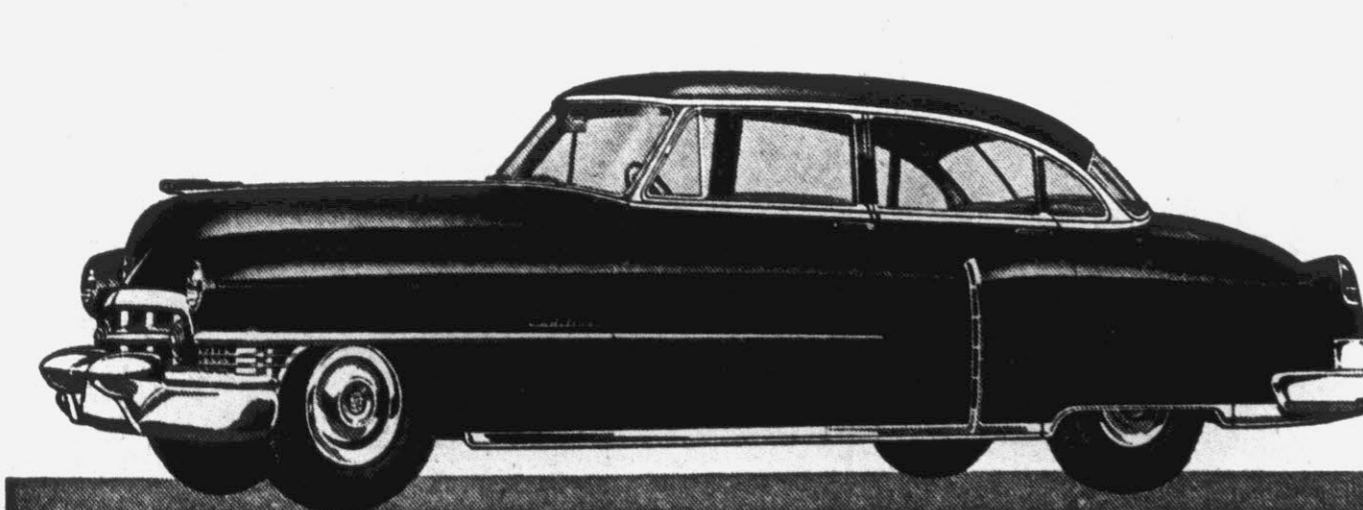

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

4 YEARS OLD

2.10 3.40

ON HAND - ECHO SPRING DISTILLING CO. LOUISVILLE, KY.

You Can Even Choose It for Economy!

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

It is true, of course, that when men and women move up to Cadillac, their motivating thought is not economy. Their hearts are set on owning the "Standard of the World."

But if they needed another impulse to move them to Cadillac, it could certainly be found in the car's remarkable record for practicality.

Even on the basis of its initial cost, a Cadillac represents a surprisingly sound automotive investment. Indeed, some half million American motorists are driving other makes of cars which actually cost them more than they would have had to invest if they had purchased new Cadillacs!

And the surprise is no less when you look to the everyday aspects of Cadillac's economy. Few could ask for greater mileage from a gallon of gasoline. And the car's freedom from the needs of service—beyond the routine—has long been traditional.

And finally, of course, is Cadillac's tremendous capacity to serve—the years and years and years of wonderful utility designed and built into it.

Yes—when you want a Cadillac, you want it for what it is, and does, and represents. But what an added satisfaction it is to reflect that it is also so eminently practical!

We deeply regret that we are unable to deliver new Cadillac cars without some delay. But the demand for the car is unprecedented—and much of the company's energies and materials are now being devoted to the needs of national security. Once the car is delivered into your hands, however, we know you'll agree that—patience never brought a richer reward.

Ten Ways To Remain A Spinster

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It seems to be the fashion to get together lists of ten rules on how to accomplish almost any of life's desires. Why ten is such a handy number for rule purposes I don't know, but it is the classic number. I'm an old ten-rule reader from way back and in my time have run the gamut from "Ten Rules for Superb Souffles" to "Ten Rules for a Lovely, Shining Head of Hair."

There are sets of ten rules covering just about every subject, but for the life of me I can't seem to remember ever reading "Ten Ways to Remain a Spinster"—although I seem to have run through a number of series on how to remain a bachelor. And, come to think of it, I've never seen a set entitled "Ten Ways to Win a Wife."

Of course, I don't think I've ever known a girl who was determined to remain a spinster all her life. However, there must be females somewhere in the world who sincerely wish to maintain their single blessedness. We all know there are males—we have evidence—who fight shy of the wedding band as if it were a branding iron.

For the benefit of that portion of womanhood which wishes to continue being carefree, untrammeled and self-supporting the rest of their lives, herewith a set of rules which are guaranteed to keep the obeyer from dangerous proximity to the altar:

1. Every time you meet an attractive man who is a little taller than you are and obviously unattached, ask him immediately (a) if he is married and (b) what he does for a living. Winkle your nose pityingly when he answers and murmur, "How dull for you."

2. Don't spend a lot of time worrying about clothes and manicures and shiny noses. Take to heart all that stuff men say about not liking lipstick and nail polish—don't ever wear any.

3. Talk about yourself a lot, and let every man you meet know what a smart girl and clever business woman you are, and give him an impression you make just about twice what he does.

4. Light your own cigarettes. Insist on Dutch treats and argue him out of such ideas as taxi-ing you all the way home, helping you across the street and removing his hat in elevators. Tell him all about equal rights for women.

5. Top all his anecdotes if you can; tell rough, smoker stories in mixed company; break into his favorite stories with the punch-line. Indicate you first heard his jokes when you were in kindergarten.

6. Drink too many cocktails at parties and always order the most expensive entree on the menu.

7. Don't let him think he's the only fish in the pond—make references to other fellows, and dream up tall, rich and handsome ones while you're about it.

8. Yawn when he starts talking about baseball, boxing or love, and launch into a discussion of the international situation, capital vs. labor or something you've boned up on. Avantgarde poetry is good if you're hard up. And you can always make nasty remarks about other women of his acquaintance or talk about dieting.

9. Confide in him. Tell him about your ill health. Tell him of your fanatic devotion to canaries and other house pets, and explain you like them much better than children.

10. Develop a high, nasal voice which can be heard for long distances—and make it a practice to hail waiters in it. Break up all over when you laugh, and get all red and puffy-faced when you cry in theatres.

It is practically guaranteed that if these rules are followed to the letter, the ambitious spinster who wants to stay that way can fix it so that in ten days her telephone will never ring and strong men will cross the street when they see her approaching.

West Germans Get More Autos

Bonn, Germany (AP)—More motor vehicles are running in West Germany today than ever before. The latest traffic ministry figures show 2,155,355 motor vehicles licensed in West Germany, compared with only 1,798,745 in the same area in 1938, the most active prewar year.

But there is one serious drawback today: a horrible traffic jam. Germany has many narrow winding roads and crooked city streets which were designed before the motor era. The chief exceptions are the autobahns which Hitler built with military utility in mind.

Arabic Helps To End Illiteracy

Karachi (AP)—East Pakistan's drive against illiteracy has made great strides through the use of Arabic script in the regional Bengali language, Education Minister Fazlur Rehman stated in Parliament.

The government of Pakistan plans to introduce Arabic script in adult education throughout the country. Rehman said Moslems were familiar with the script from reading the Koran. Bengali is a Hindu-derived language.

Violence, With Gunshots And Tear Gas, In Mill Strike

Danville, Va., April 17 (AP)—Pent-up ill feeling underlying more than two weeks of outward calm exploded today in a burst of shots and tear gas at strike-gripped Dan River Mills.

A pistol bullet wounded a striker as state police lobbed bombs to disperse a thick congregation of pickets at the gate of the mills suburban woodland plant.

Then a general fracas followed when the pickets, who had blocked U. S. Highway 29, broke their solid front and allowed non-strikers to enter the plant for the midnight shift.

The disturbance came as the strike, part of southwide work stoppage of textile workers called by the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, entered its 17th day.

First indications that trouble might be brewing at the mills came yesterday when police arrested 20 strikers, including the president of the Virginia CIO council, the Rev. Charles Webber. They were charged with denying non-strikers entrance to the mills by lying down in a "human carpet" in front of the Schoolfield gate.

Later, the union angrily charged that in order to prevent the recurrence of such a tactic, Dan River last night had booked up heavy water hoses at its numerous gates "to threaten pickets."

The union, in a wire to James Murray, chairman of the Senate Labor committee, asked for an investigation of both the arrests and the company "threat."

Company spokesmen agreed that the hoses were plugged into fire hydrants near the gates but insisted this was "only a routine inspection of fire equipment." The hoses were not used against the pickets.

Dan River, one of the nation's largest textile mills, has maintained operations throughout the strike which began April 1. Neutral observers say some 40 per cent of the mills' employes have remained on the job.

But until Sunday midnight, when the "human carpet" was formed there had been no serious trouble though the union maintained a large picket line at all times.

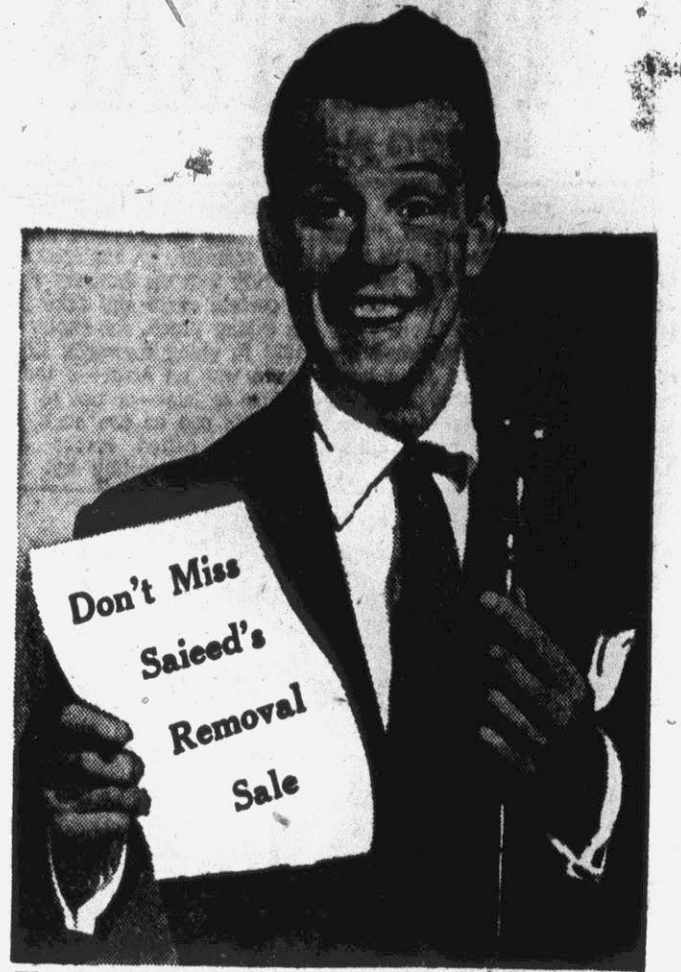

Today's shooting victim was listed by police as James Widener, of Danville. Police said several other shots also were fired during the brawl, which lasted about an hour. Widener was shot in the cheek but his wound was not regarded as serious.

Joy Is Gone

Pasadena, Calif., April 17 (AP)—Joy is gone from the home of the Robert L. Youngs.

Joy—Linda Joy, 16 months old—died Saturday of leukemia four months after she was adopted. She will be buried today.

The story of the adoption appeared last year in a national magazine (Life) and Linda Joy became a "cover girl."

U.S. And . . .

(Continued From Page One) Thus the United Nations delegated responsibility for the conduct of the Korean war to the U. S. However, a good many of the delegates came to feel that MacArthur was treating the war as exclusively an American affair without regard to the UN. The British and French in particular were put out over some developments in which they felt they had been ignored.

As a matter of fact there are regular consultations in Washington among the 14 U. N., members which have troops in Korea. At these conferences the members are filled in by America with details of the war, and participants present such recommendations as they wish.

Some members of the United Nations wouldn't be adverse to seeing the war wound up on that much debated 38th parallel, which forms the boundary between North and South Korea. However, the U. N. General Assembly last October 7 adopted a resolution calling for a free and unified North and South Korea. That still is on the books as the aim.

About Your . . .

(Continued From Page One) that blocking to Korea. If we spread the fighting—by bombing China's bases in Manchuria, which means attacking China itself instead of just the Chinese armies in Korea, or by using Chiang Kai-Shek's troops to invade Asia—we may end up in World War III.

Why? We'll have to pour far more men and supplies into Asia. And Russia may come in. If Russia moves in Asia to help its Chinese ally, it may move in Europe, too, long before this country and its allies are ready in Europe.

So we'll stick to fighting in Korea and hope to work out some kind of truce with the Chinese there, without letting the war spread. Why? The longer the general war can be avoided, the better the hopes for avoiding general war. Why? Because the more time we have in Europe, the stronger our allies there will be.

So much for the Truman policy. But here's another side to that: At the rate the Truman policy is going in Korea, the end to the fighting there is not in sight. No one can predict the end. Meanwhile, Americans are being killed there. And, worse, a huge Chinese offensive is expected soon and the outcome of that can't be predicted either.

Even if that offensive is blocked, the fighting may go on for months or years.

This is where MacArthur's views come in: Why let the Chinese pour men and supplies into Korea from their "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria untouched? We should use all the strength we have to smash the Chinese: bomb Manchuria, blockade the coast, turn Chiang Kai-Shek's men loose in Asia. MacArthur says the real war against communism is in Asia, not Europe.

Now come the questions: Would you go along with MacArthur on this action? Note he does not advocate sending U. S. troops into China. But the Trumanites fear bombing and blockading might mean general war, with Russia moving in Asia and Europe.

(No one, not even the Trumanites, can say for sure Russia would get into the fighting, since they might hide their time and move only when they felt completely ready. On the other hand, the MacArthur supporters can't be sure the Russians wouldn't move.)

Do you agree with MacArthur that the real war against communism must be fought in Asia, not Europe? Do you think it's better to risk general war in preference to the present Truman policy in Korea where the end to the fighting is not in sight?

If opening up against the Chinese meant the Russians got in, and overran Europe, swallowing up all our allies, would you still say open up on the Chinese? Or would you rather dawdle along in Korea so the bulk of our help can go to Europe?

Do you go along with Mr. Truman in wanting to go slow in Asia, meanwhile building up Europe, in the hope that eventually a strong defense there may prevent a third world war?
