Joint House-Senate Group Starts On Draft-UMT Bill

Committee Members Privately Say They Expect Little Trouble In Reconciling Differences Between Two Measures

WASHINGTON (AP)—A conference committee today begins trying to write a draft-Universal Military Training bill both the House and Senate will approve.

Members of the Senate-House group—headed by Senator Russell (D-Ga.) and Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.)—said privately they expect little trouble in reconciling differences between draft bills already passed by the House and Senate.

Vinson indicated he expects a compromise bill to be produced within a week or ten days.

The measure will then go back to each branch of Congress for action.

Principal points at issue are the age at which men may be drafted and the mechanics of UMT.

The Senate bill lowers the draft age from 19 to 18 but the House voted for 18-1-2.

The Senate allows a 90-day lag in the time in which a newly-turned 18-year-old can be classified. The House provision calls for his immediate classification so he will be subject to call when he reaches 18-1-2.

The age also applies to a man's liability for UMT. Both bills require local boards to exhaust their supply of men 19 through 25 years old before calling on younger men.

The Senate bill provides for the establishment of a commission to set up a program of military training to go into effect after the need for the draft has abated.

The House version differs sharply. It calls for a commission to make a report on how to create a national security training corps—aside from the regular military establishment. The commission's plan of operation would have to be approved by Congress before it would take effect.

The Senate prescribed UMT for four to six months while the House recommended a six-month program. The Department of Defense had asked for eight months.

TAG DAY APRIL 25

The tag day sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club for a recreational fund, will be held on Saturday, April 28, instead of May 5, as previously announced.

OPSS Discussion

Arnold C. Asiden, price specialist of the Office of Price Stabilization, will speak on OPS regulations Wednesday morning at the municipal building for local merchants. It was announced this morning.

The schedule for the discussion of OPS regulations will be as follows:

Auto dealers, 9-10 o'clock; oil dealers and service station operators, 12-1 o'clock; restaurants, 10-11 o'clock, and grocers from 2-3 o'clock.

Asiden will answer any specific questions which may be raised concerning the new price regulations.

Several weeks ago a similar meeting was held for the other merchants of the city at which time the businessmen were told how the new rulings handed down by OPS would be operated.

FARMVILLE—Candidates for the election of town commissioners for the town of Farmville on May 1 include five incumbents and five men running for office for the first time.

Those running for office for the first time are: Norton Rountree, a lawyer; Ellis Rabl, cafe operator; Chester Outland, banker; and Russell Mizell, electrician. Walter Jones is unopposed for mayor.

Already in office are O. G. Spell, Norfolk Southern depot freight agent, elected in 1949; Fred Moore, farmer and manager of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce, who was first elected in 1947 and moved away and then came back to Farmville and re-elected in 1949; John Stancill, Farmville banker, elected in 1939; R. O. Lang, Jr., mercantile business, elected in 1947; and Claude Joyner, Turmage Company, elected in 1949.

Recent rains have helped speed growth tobacco plants.

A favorable growing season for the plants in the plant beds has brought Pitt County an abundant supply of tobacco plants this year in striking contrast to last year when tobacco plants in the county were at a premium.

Weeks said there may be slight plant shortages on some of the individual farms of the county, but generally there are plenty of tobacco plants. And for the first time in several years, no reports have been made of acute tobacco plant shortages in any sections of the state.

As for the effect of blue mold on the plant beds of Pitt County this spring, Weeks commented, "Those farmers who treated for blue mold have gotten satisfactory control."

He added that there were comparatively few plant beds in the county that were not treated for blue mold this year.

Reds Smash Center Of UN Lines In Third Invasion Of South Korea

Will Offer Case For War Policy

Republicans Move To Present Their Side Of Argument For Broadening Prosecution Of War In Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Amid fresh Democratic attacks on Gen. MacArthur moved today to present independently their side of the row over President Truman's Far Eastern policy.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told a reporter he expects Republican members of the Senate Armed Services Committee to take the lead in prosecution of the Korean war.

Senators Bridges (R-NH) and Knowland (R-Calif.) are likely leaders in this move.

"This would be independent of what General MacArthur has to say when he testifies before the committee," Taft said. "We think there should be some organized answer to the case the administration will lay down."

Taft, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, has given general support to the deposed Pacific commander's proposals for blockading Red China, operating United Nations planes over MacArthur and using Chinese Nationalist troops.

In New York, meanwhile, a spokesman said MacArthur still does not know why he was stripped of his commands by the President. MacArthur's personal adviser, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, told reporters:

"To this day, General MacArthur never has been informed as to the reasons for his summary dismissal and he has taken the faintest idea why the action was taken. xxx General MacArthur had no opportunity even to transfer his command. He was dismissed the moment he received the message from the President. xxx I think there is no precedent in American history."

In firing the five-star General, Mr. Truman said he acted because he had struck MacArthur no longer was able to give his "wholehearted support" to Administration and United Nations policy.

Whitney talked with newsmen at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the MacArthurs are now staying. He said Mrs. MacArthur heard the news of her husband's dismissal on the radio in Tokyo 20 minutes before official word was received from Washington.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), who heads the Senate-House Atomic Committee, launched the newest attack on MacArthur's strategy with a declaration that it would risk the possibility of World War III when the United States is unprepared for it.

In an address prepared for the Senate, McMahon said the capitol may be "blown to smithereens next week" by atomic bombs if American follows the wrong policy in Asia.

Celling Price Regulation 7, covering retailers, originally was issued Feb. 27. It included all of the items commonly sold in apparel and shoe stores, along with furniture, floor coverings and 75 per cent of the volume handled by department stores. The deadline for filing was set at March 29 but this later was extended to April 30.

Early this month OPS brought many additional items under the regulations. It was broadened to cover musical instruments, radio and television sets, housewares, luggage, sporting goods and hundreds of other items.

OPS said retailers who sell goods covered in both orders want to file single pricing charts covering all of the items. Because of the limited time after the second order was issued, retailers have not had opportunity to re-price all their goods.

The extension to May 30 will give them ample time, OPS said, to complete their charts and put margin-type ceilings into effect.

CHICAGO (AP)—Gen. Charles Gates (Ill-N) Maria) Dawes, banker and statesman who won fame in many fields during his cyclonic career, died suddenly last night.

The 85-year-old former vice president, who served under President Coolidge from 1925-29, died of coronary thrombosis in his suburban Evanston home. He was stricken while talking to his wife, Caro.

Dawes, who was in public life for more than 30 years and often was the center of fierce controversies and momentous events, had not been ailing, a family spokesman said. However, he said, Dawes, who was chairman of the board of the City National Bank and Trust Company, did not go to his office yesterday.

Dawes had been named as honorary chairman of the committee to greet Gen. MacArthur on his Chicago visit Thursday and presumably planned to attend the celebration.

Success came to Dawes in banking and utilities. And he was prominent in public life—as vice president, as ambassador to Great Britain, as co-director of the "Dawes Plan," and as the director of the government's $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He also won fame as an author and composer.

In the last decade Dawes kept pretty much out of the public spotlight. He usually went to his office in LaSalle Street daily. He adhered to a policy of no interviews, and declined to give his views on events, past or present.

Pitt NCEA Will Meet In Farmville

The Pitt county unit of the North Carolina Education Association will have its annual Pitt county Teachers' Dinner meeting in Farmville on Wednesday, April 25 at 7 o'clock.

Robert L. Humber will be the guest speaker and members of the county Board of Education, the county Board of Commissioners, and members of the legislature from Pitt county will be special guests.

On the musical program will be members from the Farmville High School and Fodie Hodges will preside. The installation of officers for next year is also scheduled for the dinner meeting.

Retailers Given More Time For Pricing Charts

Price Director Gives Retail Stores Thirty Extra Days For Compliance

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today granted 276,000 retail stores another 30-day extension—until May 30—to put their new, margin-type price control ceilings in effect.

In ordering the delay, Price Director Michael V. Disalle pointed out that until a retailer files his pricing charts, his ceiling prices still will be regulated under the general price freeze. This set price levels at the highest figure for which goods were sold during the base period last Dec. 19-Jan. 26.

After the new deadline of May 30, no retailer may lawfully sell any item covered by the margin-type price control order unless he has filed his pricing chart with an Office of Price Stabilization district office.

It has been making government loans to businesses, particularly small ones, which for one reason or another have had difficulty getting them from the usual sources, such as banks.

Congress has various committees which watch the doings of the many government agencies. And the RFC comes within the province of the Senate's Banking and Currency Committee.

This committee has a subcommittee, headed by Senator Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, which had the special job of keeping an eye on RFC.

In the summer of 1949 Fulbright wanted from RFC the answer to some specific questions in his mind about the agency's operations. He wasn't satisfied with the answers he got.

So in February, 1950 his subcommittee began an investigation of RFC but this didn't become sensational until the early part of 1951.

Then his committee's report alleged that some of President Truman's aides had used their influence on RFC to make loans to people in whom they were interested.

At the same time President Truman got from RFC a great bundle of RFC correspondence reportedly indicating that some members of Congress had used their influence with RFC, too, to get loans for people in whom they were interested.

Fulbright's committee in the midst of all this made a recommendation that the five-man board

Communists Stream Through Gap Where ROKs Gave Way; Other Allied Divisions Exposed To Flanking Movements; Enemy Toll Ranges From Ten-To-One And Twenty-To-One In Fierce Fighting

By OLEN CLEMENTS TOKYO (AP)—Nearly one-half million battle-tested Reds smashed a hole in the center of the United Nations line today in their third invasion of South Korea.

Communist troops streamed through the gap and bent back the right flank of the allied line. They were striking savagely with the aim of breaking up the international Eighth Army into piecemeal units.

South Korean units manning the center of the 100-mile line crumbled before the fury of the Red spring offensive. Their retreat exposed other allied divisions.

Frontline officers considered the situation serious. But headquarters commanders were confident the rejuvenated allied forces could stem the offensive.

Ridgway At Front Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, the grenade-packing paratrooper who shored up the morale of allied forces before he succeeded General MacArthur as Supreme Commander, visited the front.

Ridgway said the great battle "will may prove decisive." He called it the greatest Red offensive yet launched, but warned that the allies probably have not yet met its full strength.

On the eastern flank Red Koreans overran Inje. They struck with surprising strength. Defense of the town, four miles north of the border, collapsed.

ROKs Gave Way South Koreans gave way before a similar Chinese assault in the center. The Korean retreat exposed the flanks of other U. N. units. Reds rammed through, deepening their wedge south of the 38th parallel. Censorship withheld the precise distance. Earlier in the day the Chinese had pushed four miles into South Korea. And they were still pressing forward over the dusty hills on foot and by horseback.

Ridgway declared: "It appears to me at this time that this attack is another major effort by our communist enemy to drive United Nations forces from Korea, or to destroy them, regardless of the further destruction of his own troops."

Big Losses Inflicted An Eighth Army spokesman said Red casualties were 10 times those of U. N. forces. On the eastern front, an officer said Red losses there were 20 times those of the allies.

Field commanders described the situation on the central front as critical. But Ridgway said, "I have complete confidence."

Korean officials were not so confident. Great columns of refugees clogged the highways south of the central and western front.

AP correspondent Jim Becker on the central front said the "fired, dispirited people" didn't even raise their heads to see what was happening along the roads they plodded. Twice before they had fled along the same routes from the

Mrs. Alton Barrett Hostess At Informal Tea Thursday

On Thursday afternoon between the hours of 4:30-5:30 p.m., Mrs. Alton Barrett was at home to friends and invited guests at an informal tea hour at her home on East Ninth Street.

The home was lovely throughout with artistic arrangements of flowers in antique containers. In the living room a large silver bowl on an occasional table was filled with yellow tulips, while in another place Tallman roses were used.

The table in the dining room was covered with an imported linen cloth and centered with a five-branched silver candelabra surrounded at the base with tiny bouquets of cow slips and blue. Nylon tulips were tied in graceful bows on each branch of the candelabra, and white candles furnished illumination. On a sideboard and on a chest in the dining room, an antique mirror and a bowl held harmonious arrangements of tulips, iris, poppies, roses and narcissus.

Mrs. Judson Blount and Mrs.

Charles White served hot spiced tea from a silver service. Dainty party sandwiches of sherry chicken pate, pate de foie gras, lobster pate, puree of foie gras, truffles and imported cheeses were placed on a silver platter on one side of the table, while a matching tray held an assortment of decorated petit fours. English tea pastries, salted nuts and decorated mint boxes.

From the dining room the callers were invited into the coffee room, where the coffee table was covered with an organdy cloth over green satin and held a candelabra similar to that in the dining room. It had a circle of pansies and cow slips on a base of tulle. A lustre pitcher on a side table was filled with dogwood branches.

Mrs. Jack Nobles and Mrs. Wesley Harvey served French frosted coffee with pink and green Java wings, French pastry, cheese straws and Spanish olives.

Assisting elsewhere in the house were Mrs. Fred Langford, Mrs. Charles Blair, Miss Sonora Moore, Mrs. Edmond Durham and Mrs. Jack Gates.

An Important Task For Greenville Citizens

Two weeks from today the people of Greenville will go to the polls and elect the officials they want for the posts in our city government. And even though the election is just two weeks away, all is quiet on the city political scene.

It is true that on the surface there are no great issues involved in the forthcoming city election. But in reality, the issue at stake in the city election is one of the most fundamental issues of a democratic government. Will the people elect the most capable men from the list of candidates, or will they settle for any candidate who happens to strike their fancy on election day? Will the people of Greenville give serious consideration to the men they will elect to the city offices or will they wait until election morning to think about the matter?

Greenville during the next two years is going to be a city which is faced with the numerous problems of growing pains. Indeed, Greenville at the present time is confronted with many acute needs which have not been remedied for one reason or another.

The city government during the next several years is going to need more than ever the most capable men it can possibly have. Greenville needs men at the helm who have sound business knowledge and judgment. Men who are able to do long range planning and then follow up their far-sighted planning with action.

Although, as we said, there apparently are no impressive surface issues at stake in the coming city election, the thing which is at stake is the future of the city of Greenville.

The Reflector urges the people of Greenville during the next two weeks to give careful consideration to each candidate for an office in the city government. Look into the activities of each candidate, view his achievements and evaluate his capabilities. Ask questions of the candidates who are seeking offices in the city government. Find out what each candidate proposes to do if elected to office, and how he intends to improve the city of Greenville to make it a better place in which to live.

The coming election is important to every individual who is living in Greenville. It is not only important today, but it will be of great importance for the next two years. And the effect which the officials elected this May have on the future of the City of Greenville may be felt long beyond their terms of office.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24—Two voting groups, which have supported the Democrats in national elections for almost twenty years, have formed a scratch-my-back alliance that constitutes a serious threat to the Truman Administration and the party's presidential ticket next year. The two elements are labor and farm organizations.

The reasons for their new association are economic, and are born of the rearmament program. The farmers need support in their movement to resist any tampering with the National Defense Act that will hurt their interests. Specifically, they want no amendment of the provision which insures them parity payments on their major crops.

REIN—Labor, on its part, opposes any legislation which will block increases based on upward trends in the cost of living. Most of the big unions' contracts contain such a clause, and the workers' pay envelopes may be fattened considerably through its operation in the next few years.

President Truman has indicated that he favors the elimination of the farm-labor exemptions when Congress enacts a more or less permanent Defense and Stabilization Act a few months from now. It is known that the Wilson-Johnston-DISalle group believe prices and wages cannot be kept in check without a tighter rein on both these economic factors.

THREAT—Mr. Truman, however, does not care to antagonize such influential ballot-box groups. Although he urged House-Senate leaders to work for a modification of the present law several months ago, suggesting that more severe controls be imposed, he seems to have lost interest in his earlier proposal.

Spokesmen for the two organizations have warned him that they will fight any curbs he may propose. He may, however, as he has done on several occasions, let Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson carry this unpopular political ball to Capitol Hill.

Oddly, a permanent alliance of organized labor and agriculture has long been a basic objective of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman, for they figured that it would advantage their party. They did not dream the day might come when the movement would become a threat rather than an asset to their side.

BREAK—General Douglas MacArthur's enforced retirement may mean a better break for the American GIs and their United Nations allies in Korea. It should insure further reinforcement in the way of more men and better weapons. Instead of going to General Eisenhower's European army, the new-type jet planes, tanks and artillery will be routed to the Far East.

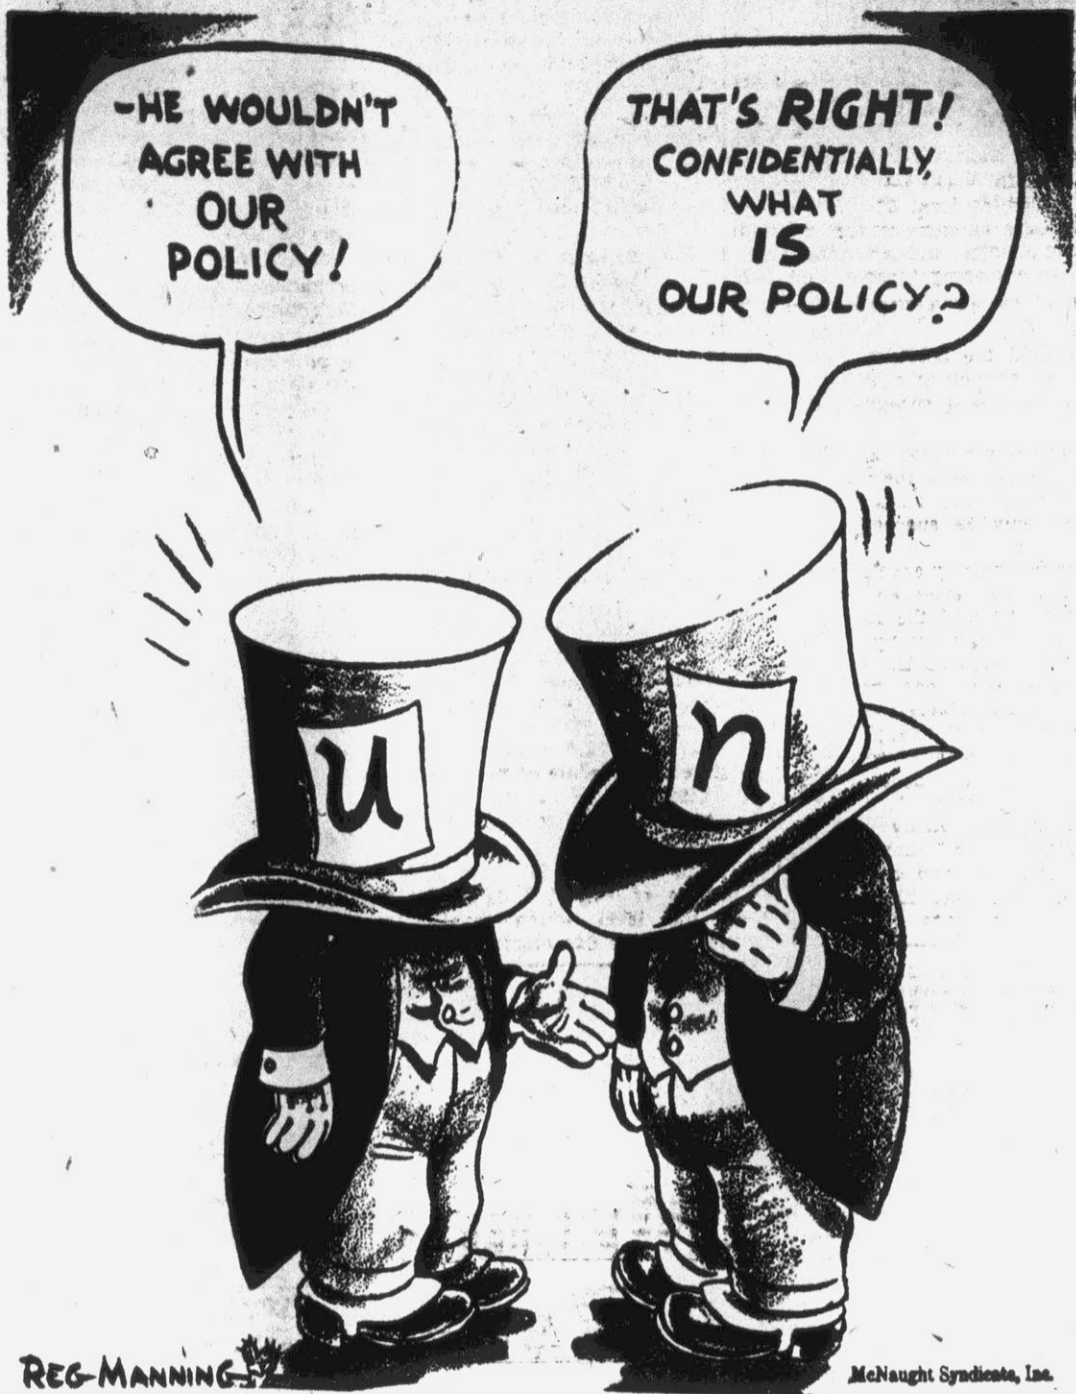

President Truman's military advisers, especially Defense Secretary Marshall and General Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have pointed out that, in final analysis, the Truman-MacArthur debate will not be settled on Congressional or political platforms in the United States.

When all is said and done, it will be decided, in their opinion, by the summer success or failure of our troops on Korean battlefields.

COMMAND—If the Chinese Communists mount an offensive that drives our U.N. forces down the peninsula from their present line, the Wherry-Martin contingent on Capitol Hill will say: "That wouldn't have happened if MacArthur had been in command!" Millions may agree with their conclusion.

On the other hand, if the Van Fleet-Ridgway army holds its ground against an expected May-June counterattack, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy and preventing the "police action" from flaring into a general war, the political reaction and betting may swing in the direction of the White House.

MacArthur Had To Go

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

Everybody ought to find some excuse for visiting Greenville High School at least once a year. It will do you good to see one group of people in this crazy world having a wonderful time. When I see older people working at the "job" of enjoying themselves I always think about high school students, who have a good time without even trying.

Last night the occasion of my visit to GHS was to help judge ninth grade debates. Bob Stirling of the high school faculty wondered if there was any interest in ninth grade debating in other schools, so he wrote a few letters to find out. In a short time he had a tournament on his hands. Kingston, Washington, Farmville, Ayden, Winterville, and Belvoir entered teams.

The query for debate is: Resolved that the voting age should be lowered to 18. Never have I heard such uncompromising remarks about teenagers. The debaters carrying the negative side of the question "laid 'em low." They declared that a mere 18-year-old is immature, only interested in dating, speeding, and spending money. According to the negatives, our country would be endangered if the right to vote is given to such immature citizens who do not have the educational background necessary for voting.

The loudest cry of the affirmative side was "Old enough to fight, old enough to vote!" If an 18-year-old is mature enough to be trained for battle, and die in combat, he's certainly old enough to vote.

At this point the negatives take off on the poor soldier. A moron could fight; in fact, it has been said that it takes more intelligence to keep peace in North Carolina than to take orders from superior officers with almost blind obedience. In voting, there should be no such direction; however, with 18-year-olds voting there probably would be. At that age, the voters would look to their parents for the answer.

After hearing three debates, the main point for an 18-year-old vote is: With more radios in American homes, television a coming thing, and the increase in the amount of traveling, the 18-year-old is better informed than he was when the constitution was written. These advancements have made the 18-year-old entitled to a vote.

The best negative point is: If the 18-year-old vote is such a great project, why has only one state (Georgia) adopted it? The movement in North Carolina floundered because of lack of support from the 18-year-olds. The point is hard for the affirmative side to explain.

The question for debate seems of utmost importance to the debaters now. Later, they will realize that it's not the question at all, but the opportunity to express themselves and learn to think on their feet in front of an audience.

No one can question the value of reading, writing and arithmetic. But no school or parent should forget the importance of the extra curricular training that is available to high school students.

Daily Reflector Bureau

MANUFACTURING — In all types of manufacturing last year North Carolina reported sales value of over five billion dollars, taking second place. The other leading states were Texas with nearly eight billions, Missouri with just under five billions, Virginia and Georgia with three and a third billions each. It is in the breakdown of manufactured goods between the basic classifications of durable and non-durable items and among the items included in each that many Tarheels will find occasion for surprise.

SURPRISING—Textiles retain top rank with more than 40 percent of the state's total manufactured value, and tobacco holds second rank with about 20 percent of total value. Reduced to dollars and cents last year's North Carolina textiles were worth $2,282,000,000 and tobacco products were valued at $1,023,900,000. Then begins some of the surprising elements. Food processing takes third rank with $365,000,000 and in the non-durable class chemicals come next with $284,000,000, displacing furniture in the overall picture. Lumber and furniture are in the so-called durable list, with respective values of 254 and 210 million dollars. Guess what's next? Bet you were wrong. It is paper manufacture to the tune of $182,000,000, followed by apparel at $104,000,000. Printing comes in for 53 millions, and—believe it or not—leather hits the mark at 27 millions and rubber at five millions.

PLANTS—The Blue Book tabulation shows 3,106 plants employing 320,000 people producing non-durable goods in North Carolina, 3,489 plants employing 103,000 people producing durables. That adds up to 423,000 people working in 6,595 manufacturing plants having an appraised value of $648,000,000 and producing goods worth $5,031,000,000 last year. These plants included 2,276 lumber—mostly relatively small sawmills—and 1,140 textile mills. There were 899 food processing plants, 458 print shops and 455 furniture factories. Here may be another surprise: There were 57 paper product plants, 25 leather and 14 rubber.

POWER—One of the most surprising items in the Blue Book data is that North Carolina ranks second only to Texas in production of electric power. Last year Texas generated 17,441,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy, while North Carolina produced 12,334,000,000 KWH. In order came Alabama with 10,969,000,000; Tennessee with 10,080,000,000 and West Virginia with 10,750,000,000.

In 1939 North Carolina ranked fourth in power production. That year Alabama led, followed by Texas, West Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland in that order. The order for the top five states now is Texas, North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and West Virginia. It is fairly occasion for pride in North Carolina that this state increased power production more within the past year than any other southern state except Mississippi—which produces only about one-eighth as much. While South Carolina was actually slipping back, Alabama, Virginia and Tennessee showing relatively small gains, North Carolina increased power production in 1950 more than 22 percent—from ten billion to twelve and a third billion kilowatt hours. Mississippi's increase from less than a billion to more than a billion and a half was much greater in percentage but less in total energy gained. North Carolina's power production has more than doubled within the past five years, while nationwide increase was a little less than 75 percent.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

MAJOR ADVANCE (Greensboro Daily News)
Although the General Assembly immediately behind us has been sharply and properly criticized for its rejection of highway safety measures, it must be given credit for one major advance in this field.

It did provide for an additional 106 members of the State Highway Patrol, and as we see it that is a significant contribution indeed to increased safety for all of us who have to take to the highways of North Carolina. It has been our long and steadfast contention that, despite the aid which might be given by other measures, more intensive, widespread and effective law enforcement is the surest means of saving life, limb and property on our highway system.

If more and more offenders are arrested and dealt with firmly, if more and more highway patrolmen are seen and potential offenders begin to realize that they may encounter a patrolman on any curve or at the crest of any hill, you may rest assured that they will begin watching their driving and that the result will be reflected in lower death, injury and property tolls. Our plea all along has been to get more patrolmen on the roads and to keep them there.

And let us emphasize once again that law enforcement does not end with the patrol. All officers have a responsibility therein. And along officers of the law as such there are the courts. There is little point to arresting a traffic law offender, to bringing him into court as a potential and in too many instances actual killer only to have him get off with a minimum fine or sentence which fails to impress him or anybody else with the seriousness of his offending and what will be the heavy cost of its repetition. The courts should halt this practice of allowing themselves to be used as collection agencies; more of these reckless, speeding, drinking and death-dealing drivers should be taken out of circulation; that means not only depriving them of their licenses but, where they insist on going on driving anyway, putting them where they can't drive.

While the General Assembly failed to tighten up our laws dealing with the highway menace, our abiding feeling is that there are and have been plenty of laws on the books to put a real crimp in it if the sort of law enforcement, ranging from highway patrol through the courts, that the situation calls for were given.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the least satisfactory of the reports recurring government reports is the Federal Reserve Board's annual "intention to spend" survey. Even the F.R.B. in handing it out, warns there is nothing Mosaic about it.

The good thing about this annual survey is that it is pioneering in a technique that can be of inestimable value to the economy. When it comes up to its proper status, as it probably will be some day, it can do much to level out the booms and busts, stabilize production, employment and prices.

For six years the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan has conducted this study for the F.R.B. A limited number of families, constituting a sort of cross-section, are asked what they plan to buy. There is also a counter check to find out how past intentions were fulfilled.

The most recent survey was made in January and February and the results announced late in April. It showed, incidentally, consumers intended to buy as many houses this year as they bought last year, but less furniture, fewer autos and television sets and other durables.

Conditions have changed abruptly since then. Fears of shortages were widespread then. Does the fact that shortages seem less critical mean that people will postpone buying? Or the fact that TV sets have been cut in price boosts the number of people intending to buy? It's hard to schedule a production line on guesses to the answers.

Suppose that the F.R.B.—or the Department of Commerce or the Bureau of Labor Statistics—conducted several such surveys a year and asked a very large number of families, enough to give confidence in the sample. Perhaps two major surveys could be taken a year, with interim sampling to identify changing trends. Suppose the work was done fast enough to get the facts out while they were still hot. Suppose the figures were extensive enough to be broken up into regions. And suppose techniques were developed for determining the validity of the information, by checking intention against ability to buy and by adjusting for variants disclosed by previous surveys.

Costly, yes. But consider the advantages. Each industry, checking the results against dealers' orders, salesmen's reports, income levels, etc., could have a much better idea of its market. If industry is geared to produce 200,000 left-handed lawnmowers in a coming period and the survey indicated a market for from 80,000 to 120,000, it could avoid the waste of over-production, level employment and perhaps design another product to sell. It could do the same for almost every industry and take a lot of the whither out of whither-are-we-going.

MAIL LISTS DUE FOR CAREFUL CHECK

There are several good reasons why business mailing lists are due for a thorough check-up. First, May 1 is still something of a moving day in some areas and many households will be moving from listed addresses. Second, the draft and movement toward defense plants have caused many changes in address. Third, higher postal rates now threatening will make it more expensive than ever to mail undeliverable mail.

UNSEEN SALESMEN BOOST THE PRODUCT

"Invisible salesmen" are becoming common but are not a serious threat to the flesh-and-blood variety. Many television and appliance retailers and auto dealers have attached tape recorders and microphones to devices that start them on a selling spiel when a prospect approaches. Some starting devices work when a prospect steps on a rubber mat; others when the prospect breaks a beam of light. Many of these are assembled by retailers themselves; others purchased from companies specializing in such devices.

However, invisible salesmen still can't write sales slips.

U.S. COMPETE IN "HOW TO" FIELD

The Government Printing Office is giving publishers of home care books a bit of stiff competition. Department of Commerce publications and staffers in G.P.O. mailings are heavily plugging a collection of 12 "brochures, booklets and pamphlets, profusely illustrated" dealing with care of the home, ranging from "How to Judge a House," to "Make Cellars Dry." Sales are being made by the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—Before the species dies out altogether, someone ought to go out and trap a real old-fashioned grandpa.

And they ought to trap a real old-fashioned grandpa, too, and put them on exhibition in the American Museum of Natural History—somewhere between the dinosaur and the brontosaurus.

But I suppose it is too late. Are there any real old-fashioned grandpas left? If there are I don't see them anymore. No place, that is, except in the magazine ads.

You know the type of grandpa I mean. She's the one with the white-haired soul with the kindly look, sitting in a quaint rocking chair and putting the finishing touches on a quilt. And remember the old-fashioned grandpa? He's the gentle character with the time-frayed moustache. He is seated by the fireplace. His cane is by his side, and a golden-haired tot is sleeping on his lap as the fine old fellow gazes with misty eyes into the dying fire.

Well, that's the kind of grandpa and grandpa I was raised to believe in. But today they're about as legendary as Santa Claus. I have met a lot of grandpas recently, but none of them were sewing quilts or sitting by the fireside.

They have become streamlined—just like trains, airplanes and motor cars. The jet age grandpa doesn't want to look like Whistler's Mother, nor does he want to look like the grandpa, too, but gets a little tired of having that fact mentioned so much.

Yep, grandpa has done gone in for glamor and sex appeal. The only needle she knows is the one she gives grandpa for stopping off at a bar on his way home. She no longer has silver threads among the gold. She's a platinum blonde. And by golly, and by peroxide, she's going to stay a blonde!

She and grandpa don't hang out in their children's chimney corner. The youngsters live with them, and grandpa usually pays the rent.

The big argument about the house now isn't whether the grandchildren should be spanked. It's about whose turn it is to stay home and baby sit—mother's or grandmother's?

"They're your kids," says grandpa firmly. "You stay home and raise 'em. Your father and I are already 15 minutes late to our samba lesson."

Nope, grandpa is done with diapers. She'd rather play canasta or talk about the foreign policy. Recently I visited a housewife that has one of those golden-haired little tots that used to fall asleep on grandpa's lap. She was prettily begging her mother to let her stay up until midnight—"Just this once."

"Why?" said the harassed mother.

"I want to see grandpa come home," explained the tot.

And at a party I went to I spent an hour with a couple of these streamlined grandpas. One was teaching the other how to blow smoke rings, and all they discussed was baseball and who would win the Kentucky Derby. Gave me kind of an eerie feeling, too.

"Listen," said a night club operator, "if they passed a law that grandpas couldn't come out after dark I'd have to close up this joint."

When the wolf knocks on the door where Red Riding Hood's grandpa lives, he isn't coming for a free meal. He's got a date.

Well, it's kind of sad to have the old-fashioned grandpa and the old-fashioned grandpa vanish like the dodo. But the new streamlined models seem to have a lot more fun. They may not act their age, but it's rather nice to see the old folks growing young so disgracefully.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—The nation will pay special attention to the welfare of its 47,000,000 citizens under 18 years of age the first week in May, which the President annually sets aside as Child Health Week. There will be speeches and conferences and programs in which youth itself will participate.

Miss Katherine F. Lanroot, chief of the U. S. Children's Bureau, says the biggest child health challenges today are the emotional problems developing in a world of rapid change and anxiety.

"Emotional and social problems developing in a world of rapid change and anxiety. 'Emotional and social problems of children are our greatest challenge,' she told me. 'One measure of these problems is the number of children who come to the attention of juvenile courts. The bureau estimates that some 275,000 youngsters now come before these courts each year.'

Although she pointed out that the number of cases has declined each year since World War II, when delinquency reached a high point, she said there seems now to be leveling off on a new plateau that is much higher than before the war. Juvenile delinquency seems to increase in periods of national emergency, she says.

"Building a good life for children calls for the cooperative effort of many people—families, neighbors and professional workers—working in many ways: through individual initiative, voluntary association and through government," she said. "No one device has a monopoly on wisdom or skills. Each is strengthened by close collaboration with the others."

Periods of special strain and apprehension, such as the present, create special problems for children. Miss Lanroot pointed out, and parents have a special "When parents have the underlying security that enables them to face life with courage," she said, "they can give their children the best possible insulation against fears. Without their knowing it, their children absorb this protection against scary headlines and alarmists' tales and pictures.

"Teachers, too," she said, "can help when they make happy drills and other professional training of youngsters during routine fire drills, or learning about traffic rules."

Inter-Club Kiwanis Session In Farmville

By CHESTER WALSH
FARMVILLE — Eli Bloom of Greenville, lieutenant-governor of the Carolinas Kiwanis District, presented a program of music at an inter-club supper meeting of the Stantonsburg and Farmville Kiwanis Clubs at the high school here last night.

Farmville President Charles Edwards and Stantonsburg President Jack Brogden presided. Frank Allen, a charter member and past president of the Farmville club, welcomed the Stantonsburg Kiwanians.

In the Stantonsburg club president's response he took time out to say that "Frank Allen is on the way to becoming a Seventh Kiwanis Division Lieutenant-governor."

Eli Bloom, flutist; Cecil Ellington, saxophonist; Bill Regan, guitar, and Frank Casey, accordionist, now teaching at Walsenburg, presented a program of instrumental music and they also played for the "congregational" singing of some of the old songs. Bloom's humorous anecdotes featured the program.

Miss Ann Bynum, "sweetheart of the Farmville club," was accompanied by the Farmville club.

Sea Scouts Visit Plymouth Meet

By JIMMIE PHELPS

The Greenville Sea Scouts attended a Sea Scout meeting in Plymouth last Thursday night. They saw how the Plymouth boys hold their meetings and also saw their ship. The boat is approximately 60 feet long and is powered by a Diesel engine.

Dr. Papineau invited the Greenville Sea Scouts to go on a cruise Saturday. Only a few of the Greenville boys were able to go. Those attending were Jimmie Phelps, Cleo Oakley, Terry Bundy, Julius Elmore and Fred Haar. Mr. J. B. Newman, the skipper, accompanied the boys.

The Greenville Sea Scouts arrived in Plymouth at 1 p.m. The ship got underway at 2:15. Hartford was the destination of the cruise. The Greenville boys were assigned to crews and served on watches and performed other duties with the Plymouth boys.

Several of the boys aboard ship got seasick because the water in the Sound was very rough. After arrival at Hartford some of the boys admitted that they were not feeling too good when they were in the Sound. Due to engine trouble, it was 9:15 p.m. when the ship docked at Hartford.

On the return trip all the boys were allowed to steer the ship, and next to eating, this was enjoyed the most. The cruise was 104 miles by water.

list for the singing of Kiwanis songs, led by Rev. Earl Holmes, Baptist minister. Rev. Thad Cox said the invocation.

Lath Morris, "Tarzan" as he was familiarly known in his younger days as a cheerleader at Carolina football games, is still active in the Farmville Kiwanis Club.

Kiwanis President Edwards reminded that Wednesday, May 9, will be "Farmers' Day" in Farmville and that elaborate plans are being made for the annual event.

The Farmville and Stantonsburg clubs are planning to send large delegations to the Seventh Kiwanis Division meeting at Wilmington next Friday. They plan to leave for the Cape Fear City at 2 p.m.

The Greenville Kiwanis Club will meet with the Farmville club in Farmville on Monday, May 14. The Farmville club will meet with Greenville in Greenville on Friday, June 8.

The Farmville Kiwanis Club is planning to take an active part in the annual Pitt County Agricultural Fair, to be held next October. The club has rented a large booth for a concession stand. Any profits from the venture will be used in the club's underprivileged child work.

The Farmville Kiwanis Club was organized during World War II. Its first president was Dr. Rod Williams. Other presidents were Charles Hotchkiss, Alex Allen, John Parker, Louis Williams, Frank Allen and Charles Edwards, incumbent.

Farmville Man Is Named To High Masonic Post

FARMVILLE—Sam D. Bundy, principal of the Farmville High School and a past governor of the Carolina Kiwanis District, has been appointed deputy grand master of the Fifth Masonic District by Grand Master Herbert Foy of Mount Airy. The appointment was made at the recent meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge at Chapel Hill.

Bundy has been a Mason for 23 years. He served as master of the Tarboro Masonic Lodge in 1942 and the Farmville Lodge in 1950. He is a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner. He takes an active part in civic and religious activities. He is president of the Laymen's League of the Disciples of Christ in North Carolina.

At Least 97 Die As Power Line Touches Rail Car

YOKOHAMA —(AP)—Roaring flames killed at least 97 persons today when a dangling power line turned an old-style wooden railway coach into a blazing funeral pyre.

Seven of the dead were American soldiers.

Police said the spectacular fire started as the electric suburban train pulled into Sakuragicho station.

Passengers screamed in terror as they tried to force their way to safety through the car's narrow windows. Only 39 succeeded. All were injured.

The flames quickly enveloped the train's first car after an electric power wire touched the roof. The second car was partially burned before police stopped the fire.

For more than one hour the smoldering ruins were too hot for firemen to enter the cars.

The operator was killed before he could open the door for the horrified passengers.

The American Army Provost Marshal's office in Yokohama said 97 charred bodies had been found. The Americans were identified by their Army dog tags.

Support Prices For Cotton Crop

Jamie Wilson, chairman of the Pitt County Production and Marketing Administration county committee, reminded cotton farmers today that they will receive support prices for their crop this year.

Wilson's announcement came after the State FMA office had found many farmers hesitating to increase their acreage this year. Their hesitation is due, the State committee pointed out, because farmers thought support prices would not be offered since cotton acreage controls have gone out of effect.

The parity price, Wilson said, is expected to increase between now and August 1 which will tend to bring the parity and ceiling price on cotton closer together. The guaranteed minimum loan rate for the 1951 crop of middling seven-eighths cotton will average not less

Postpone Trial

KINSTON — The trial of J. Con Lanier, prominent Greenville attorney, which was set for the current term of Lenoir County Superior Court yesterday was postponed until the May term of court.

Lanier was originally charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident in the death of Willie Tripp of Grifton at Grainers last November 25.

Walter T. Britt of Clinton made the motion that the two indictments against Lanier be postponed until the May term of court. Moved up on the Lenoir court calendar in the place of the Lanier trial was the murder charge lodged against Nathaniel Smith who was indicted for the alleged shooting of John Oliver Miller in Kinston on December 9.

than 29.68 cents — 1.78 cents higher than last year's average, he said.

An appropriate differential between middling seven-eighths and fifteen-sixteenths inch cotton will be in effect again this year. The guaranteed loan rate for the latter type will be announced at the time the schedule of premiums and discounts for other grades and staple lengths is announced, the chairman said.

And in the event 90 percent of parity as of August 1 is higher than the level which was announced by the Secretary of Agri-

Truman's Cousin Backs President

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. —(AP)—Seventy-year-old Ralph Truman knocked off the hat of an insurance salesman who made a remark about President Truman yesterday.

Ralph Truman, a retired Major General, is the President's cousin.

The incident followed a Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting. During the session, Civilian Defense pamphlets telling what to do during an atomic bomb attack were passed around. Witnesses said Larry Eiffer, the salesman, remarked, "They ought to drop one of these on Old Harry."

Truman, who attended the meeting, approached 35-year-old Eiffer afterwards and said: "You can't talk like that about the President."

He followed through with a punch that knocked off Eiffer's hat. A bystander stepped between the men and they both walked away.

On culture 1st February 14, the loan rate will be increased accordingly. In no event, Willson stated, will the loan rate be less than the rate announced by the Secretary at that time, even though 90 percent of parity is less than the level announced.

I NEVER BOUGHT STOCKS BEFORE... HOW DO I GO ABOUT IT?

Here are some questions that people ask:

Can I choose any broker I want? You certainly can. Member firms of the New York Stock Exchange have 1,600 offices in 396 cities.

Suppose I have only $500 to invest? Whether you have $500 or $5,000 to invest, you will get courteous, intelligent attention. Handling orders for a few shares or hundreds is the day-to-day business of member firms of the Exchange.

Will I be high-pressured? Helping people invest their money is a serious business. The broker's job is to help you—not to high-pressure you—and that goes even if you just want to talk things over.

How much will the broker charge me? Nothing for information or advice. If you decide to invest, he will charge you a commission based on the price and number of shares you order. The average commission on the great majority of stock transactions on the Exchange is about one per cent.

Are women customers welcome in a brokerage office? You can count on it. Women are important investors.

Once you've decided why you want to invest—considered the risks as well as the rewards—you'll probably have specific questions of your own. Your questions will be answered simply and directly—and without charge—at any member firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

If you do become a stockholder, you'll have plenty of company. All kinds of people in all walks of life own stocks in American businesses. And millions of these people made their first purchase through Stock Exchange firms.

Black Masquers Offer Three-Act Play Tomorrow

By MURIEL SHOTWELL

"The Willow and I," an emotional drama in three acts, will be presented tomorrow night at eight o'clock in the Greenville High School auditorium under the sponsorship of the Black Masquers with members of the senior class taking part in the play and serving on the committees.

The play is based on the actions of Bessie Sutro and her selfish desires, disregarding the effect she has on her sister, Mara, and all involved. The father of the two sisters, Theodore Sutro, is a heavy drinker interested in younger women and is later confined to a wheelchair. He is a strong character who keeps the play moving with his wit and ideas.

A babbling old maid adds humor to the play and is continually criticizing the father for his actions and the younger sisters. Tenny, the Negro maid, is a perfect example of the old family servant as compared with Mabel, who later joins the family as a servant.

The entrance of young Dr. Oliver adds romance in both of the sisters' lives, but brings tragedy to Mara's life, through the selfish conduct of Bessie.

All of these characters, and many more, bring to Greenville High School one of the most exciting dramas presented by the Masquers.

The casting of the play was very unusual and difficult because two of the characters had to be played by two people and two parts played by one person. The play takes place over a span of approximately 50 years and one person takes the part when the character is young, and another takes the same part as the character grows older.

The part of Bessie Sutro is played by Carolyn Clapp and Charlie Ann Sutton, Lyman Ormond plays two parts—that of Robin Todd and Kirkland Todd, and Linda Ippock and Margaret Fleming take the part of Mara Sutro.

Other notable characters are: Tenny, the maid, played by Betty Jane Bunch; Bailey, Tenny's nephew, played by Joyce Smith; Theodore Sutro, the father of Bessie and Mara, Bruce Strickland; Millie Sutro, an old maid aunt, Peggy Nicholls; Dr. Oliver, Billy Woolfolk; Duke Todd, Jackie Sears; Mabel, another colored maid, Mollie Hester; and the part of Dr. Trubee is played by Joel Bunch.

When the play was first produced in 1942 in New York city, city, such notables as Barbara O'Neill, Martha Scott and Gregory Peck played the leading roles.

"The Willow and I" is directed by Claude B. West, Jr., dramatics instructor at Greenville High School, and he is assisted by Ann McCrary, student director. Suggie Sugg is the technical director and Mac Crawford is stage manager.

Other important committees are: prompter, Ann Sutton; costumes, Coletta Lehr, Peggy Martin, and Shirley Clark; Make-up, Ann Sutton and Bobbie Winberry; Publicity, Mary Ann Waldrop, Virginia Perkins, and Catherine Clark; house, Barbara White and Margie Tripp; sound effects, Janet Waters and Rachel Pollard; Lights, Floyd Hendrix and Frank Brooks; property, Joan Allen, Milton Foley and Eddy Lee; and scenery, Kent Lee and Lewis Howe.

The play is sponsored by the Black Masquers, honorary dramatics club whose officers are: Ann McCrary, president; Janet Waters, secretary; Joel Bunch, treasurer; and Bobby Lee, sergeant-at-arms. Claude West, Jr., is advisor for the Black Masquers.

When the average audience observes a play, it usually fails to think about all the small details the cast and technical staff have to cope with. The audience doesn't realize the work that has been put on the scenery to make it fit the play, the details and problems that arise in making the play a success and many other things.

In the case of the play "The Willow and I," which is to be presented Wednesday night in the Greenville high school, numerous problems arose concerning technicalities which had to be dealt with. For example, the question of the proper type of gun to be used for the suicide weapon. At first the staff decided to use an automatic pistol but found out another type of weapon was called for, thus causing further search for the proper type of gun.

Then came the problem of the sound effects for a gun shot. Three members of the senior class, Mac Crawford, Billy Woolfolk, and Joel Bunch, went to the police station to question the idea of using blanks fired from a rifle. They found this to be considered dangerous so the use of two leather straps was suggested. After much deliberation, the sound effects chairman, Janet Waters, decided on clapping two boards together to make the sound of a gun firing.

The biggest conflict arose for the

Shelve Plan To Move Employees

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Administration's plan to move 45,000 government employees out of downtown Washington because of the threat of atomic attack appeared today to be shelved indefinitely.

A senate coalition of 35 Republicans and 10 Democrats voted yesterday to send the dispersal-decentralization bill back to the Public Works Committee for further study. Thirty-four Democrats and five Republicans opposed the move.

Opponents of the bill raised an economy cry. Many of them urged that the government start firing employees instead of hiring them at a 5,000-a-month clip.

The coalition acted in the face of a warning by Senator McMahon (D-Conn) that the vote could be "the most monstrous piece of economy in the history of this country."

That could be the result, he said, if a Russian atomic attack centered on the capital should destroy "the power of this government to defend itself."

cast when the auditorium was being decorated for the Junior-Senior dance, and play members, who are seniors, weren't allowed in the auditorium; therefore, they found it hard to get an orderly practice since they couldn't use the stage and had to resort elsewhere for practice. Also, the seniors were looking toward the Junior-Senior and they had a hard time keeping their minds on the play.

Perhaps the most complicated problem for one of the committees was that of the prolonged search for the correct costumes. Since the first scene of the play took place in the early 1900s, the clothes for this period were in question. The costume committee got some ideas of the type of apparel from their parents, but when it came to getting old fashioned round collars for the men, they had to go to a still older generation for help.

Because of the shortage of boys in the senior class, two of the senior girls, Jackie Sears and Joyce Smith, had to take little boys' parts in the play. Finding little boys' white suits to fit the girls was really an exasperating experience for the costume committee.

Hanging pictures was a major problem for the scenery committee, because the pictures had to be hung in a way so that no holes would be punched in the scenery. Finally the idea was conceived of lowering the wires over the flats and holding up the pictures from the top. With this settled, the scenery still had to be patched, painted, and made to stand, and the fireplace nailed together.

A great deal of credit should go to the members of the technical staff who have labored long and hard to make "The Willow and I" a great success.

Police Re-Capture Pair After Prison Break; One Is Still Free

DALLAS, N. C.—(AP)—Three prisoners overcame a road gang guard at the state prison camp near here yesterday, stole the prison camp truck, then held the guard and a foreman captive until they could escape in a stolen automobile.

By nightfall, police had re-captured one of the three outside Rock Hill, S. C.; and a second was apprehended around midnight by Charlotte city detectives in a downtown hotel.

The third man—whom the prison camp superintendent calls "the worst one of the three"—is still at large.

Capt. J. Fred Friday, the prison camp superintendent, identified the fugitive-at-large as 31-year-old Ralph Johnson, sentenced to eleven years from Wake County for highway robbery, forgery, breaking and entering, and larceny.

Capt. Friday said that Johnson, together with Robert Neil Travis and John Cotte, rushed a guard about 12:30 p.m. at the road camp which is outside Dallas on temporary highway No. 275.

The three men took a shotgun and pistol from the guard and foreman, then locked the two camp officials in the rear of the prison camp truck with other prisoners. Seating themselves in the cab of the truck, the three drove the truck along the Newton road for several miles.

Then the three stopped the truck and flagged a motorist. Capt. Friday said the fugitives held the motorist at gun-point and robbed him of a reported $300.

Then they locked him in the rear of the truck with the others and sped off in the direction of Rock Hill, S. C.

The motorist gave his name as John Edwards, a Gastonia car dealer.

Just inside York County, S. C., the South Carolina Highway Patrol spotted the stolen car and gave chase.

The patrolmen kept close behind the stolen car. Capt. Friday said, until the fugitives were forced to abandon it and their hostages.

Prison camp personnel brought bloodhounds to the area and tracked down one of the fugitives—John Cotte—who was found hiding in a clump of woods.

Robert Neil Travis and Ralph Johnson made good their escape—at least for the time being.

Charlotte police were alerted and

Impromptu Music In Rotary Meet

By WYATT BROWN
 Music from within the club and unhearsd, were the orders given to Johnnie Overton to put on the Rotary program last night. Out of the order came a quartet, piano selections and group singing. To top it off, the master of ceremonies read two poems, "The Legend of the Admen" and a second in Negro dialect with a philosophical turn.

The quartet chosen by District Governor Howard McGinnis, Club President Floyd Hendrix, Vice-President Charles White and Secretary Wendell Smiley turned out to be J. B. Kittrell, J. H. Rose, J. H. Blount and F. Badger Johnson. They sang with barbershop harmony effects "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl," Mrs. P. A. Toll, club accompanist, did a piano selection, Grieg's "Spring" and on request an encore, Brahms' "Lullaby." The whole club sang three old favorites.

Dr. Paul Jones of the Farmville Rotary Club was a visiting Rotarian last night. Floyd Hendrix presided. It was announced that the District Governors Banquet for May 4th would start soon enough to get out in time for the opening baseball game of the season. The banquet has been moved to 6:30 and the game to 8 p.m.

Stokes Seniors Are Honored By Banquet

STOKES—The senior class of Stokes High School were guests at the annual Junior-Senior Banquet on Friday night, April 20, in the Stokes High School gymnasium.

The juniors, under the direction of Mrs. June Tripp, carried out the theme "Springtime Serenade" in the setting of a spring garden, decorated with pines, white dogwood blossoms and a blue sky.

The guest speaker was Ralph C. Deal, retired head of the foreign language department of East Carolina, who was introduced by the junior class president. In his talk Deal told of a few entertaining instances in his life and gave some predictions concerning the future.

The invocation was given by Dallas G. Whitford, principal, and was followed by the welcoming of guests by the junior class president, Joyce James, who also gave the toast to the seniors. Loyall Corey, senior class president, responded.

Robert Elks toasted the committee and John I. Gray responded and Jennie Rae Bullock gave the toast to the faculty, with Mrs. Hubert Muselwhite responding.

Claim Smuggling By Prison Guards

RALEIGH—(AP)—Two Central Prison guards have been charged with whisky-smuggling operations inside the prison.

Deputy Warden Bruce Poole identified the guards as James E. Caprell of Wake County and H. B. McCullen of Clinton. Poole revealed yesterday that Caprell was accused of three counts of furnishing intoxicants to an inmate of a penal institution. McCullen was charged with abetting.

Poole said an investigation disclosed that the two guards allegedly took four pints of bonded whisky into the prison and sold them to three prisoners. Poole added that Caprell also aided prisoners in smuggling out letters, three of which were found in his pockets.

The Deputy Warden said prison officers had been checking on smuggling reports for some six weeks. The SBI had been called in to assist.

McCullen had been with the prison for about a year. Caprell was hired a few months ago, Poole said.

Rate Experience Most Desirable For Secretaries

LUBBOCK, Tex.—(AP)—Experience is more important than college training to the secretary seeking a job. But most important are dependability, efficiency and courtesy. Those were the results of a poll conducted by the department of economics of Texas Technological College of Lubbock. Pollsters talked to business men in the fields of law, insurance, oil and real estate.

Thirty per cent of those contacted preferred secretaries with business school training; 25 per cent wanted some college training; 23.3 per cent a college degree, and 21.7 per cent a high school education.

A large majority—73.3 per cent—asked for secretaries with previous experience. Eleven per cent said they preferred secretaries with no experience.

Confusing Case In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
J. W. H. Roberts had a puzzling case before him. Milton Robbins, colored, had charged James Harper and Rosa B. Scott, both colored, with the larceny of $30 from him during a "friendly neighborhood party" one night last week.

Testimony convinced His Honor that "there was more of a party than a robbery," and that there was an abundance of the "stuff that cheers" flowing.

The court found James Harper guilty of driving without a driver's license and gave him three months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $25 and costs. The judge placed him on probation for one year and ordered that he not drive a motor vehicle for a year.

The court gave Rosa B. Scott 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $15. The court pointed out that a probation order in a previous case of the Scott woman had been violated and that she must serve 90 days.

James Smith, colored, convicted of the larceny of a hub cap from Louis S. Harrison's automobile, near his drug store on Dickinson Avenue, was given six months on the roads. The defendant gave no notice of appeal to Superior Court.

R. C. Hollingsworth, who lives in Hillside, was convicted of allowing his dog to run at large. The court fined him $5 and ordered him to pay one-half of the court costs.

L. D. Dail, worthless check, was called and he failed to answer to his name. A capias was issued to bring him into court.

Zeb D. Hines, colored, was not guilty of assault with a deadly weapon.

Drunk: Charlie Simpson, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $15.

Alfred E. Hardy, assault on a female, probable cause found. On a charge of breaking, entering and attempted rape, probable cause also was found against him and he was ordered held under $6,000 bond for Superior Court.

Non-support: William Whitehurst, colored, three months, sentence suspended on condition that he pay $5 a week to the welfare office for support of his two minor children. Manuel Moore, colored, sentence suspended on condition that he pay $5 a week for the support of his child and court costs, and the court placed him on probation for five years.

Insecticide Has Initial Success

Clear Lake, Calif.—(AP)—Summer residents of this resort town, two hours drive north of San Francisco, are wondering if the gnats will come back this year. They enjoyed relief from the pests after U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists sprayed the area with TDE last year. The question now is whether a few survivors have multiplied to again become a major annoyance.

Scientists report that TDE is a poison which has proven successful against gnats so far. The California Department of Fish and Game noted no harmful effects to fish in lakes treated. The entomologists say TDE holds great promise as the possible solution to the gnat problem, which can ruin an otherwise popular resort.

Policewomen To Have New Duties

ASHEVILLE—(AP)—Women giving out parking tickets in the downtown area?

Yes, that's what police chief Harold C. Enloe says he's going to recommend to City Council.

Enloe explained that safety and economy were the main grounds for the proposed change. Three policemen riding motorcycles have been seriously injured in the past two years while checking parking meters. The women would be on foot.

Consider Change In Base Plans

LAURINBURG—(AP)—Rep. C. B. Deane says an Air Force survey team has recommended that a troop carrier wing be based at Raleigh-Durham Airport in preference to Laurinburg-Maxton Air-base.

However, in his telegram to civic leaders here yesterday he said the action is not final, and he will go to bat for Laurinburg-Maxton in the appropriations committee.

In Washington, the Air Force said only that Raleigh-Durham is under consideration. Senators Hoey and Smith and Rep. Carlyle said they have heard nothing of a final decision.

HADACOL BRINGS RELIEF TO FOLKS SUFFERING ACHES AND PAINS

When Due To Lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Niacin and Iron In Their Systems!

Mrs. Homer Hanes, Route 1, Newport, Ohio: "I have been having pains for a time. I took three bottles of HADACOL and now my pains don't bother me. I sure feel good now. I could hardly do my housework before, but now I can get my work done good. I got a job at the American Pottery and really don't feel tired at the end of the day. I can sleep good at night now. Thanks a million for HADACOL. I wouldn't be without it!"

Hardy Holmes, 1020 Empire Street, Joplin, Missouri: "Before taking HADACOL I had pains and I would suffer with bloating after eating. My energy was low and I had a run-down feeling. After I started taking HADACOL I got almost immediate relief. I don't have my pains any more and now I can eat anything and even drink coffee without the discomfort of bloating. Thanks to HADACOL I am sleeping and resting better at night and feel better generally. This is worth gold. My wife also took HADACOL and got wonderful results."

Mrs. Lala Nelson, 1702 E. 63rd St., Los Angeles, Calif.: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

Edward Jakubowski, 1622 N. 75th Court, Elmwood Park, Ill.: "For awhile I was bothered with aches and pains and felt run-down after a long cold that just seemed to hang on. One day one of the other drivers suggested I start taking HADACOL. So, I bought a bottle and started taking it. It has relieved my pains; they've almost completely disappeared, and no longer prevent me from sleeping well. This was three years ago when I took my first bottle of HADACOL. I still continue to take it and have recommended it to many of my friends."

Car Damaged And Two Occupants Hurt In Mishap

A Rochester, N. Y., car was considerably damaged and one of its two occupants was painfully injured, when a truck collided with its rear end on the Bethel Highway, near the Farmers' Warehouse, about 10 a.m. Monday.

The investigating state highway patrolman said the car, driven by William A. Hinds of Rochester, N. Y., slowed for a car ahead to make a left turn. A State Highway and Public Works Commission truck, driven by Lenford Bright, 19, of Atlantic Beach, N. C., the officer stated, collided with the rear of Hinds' car. Damage to the car was estimated at $200. Damage to the truck was slight. Both vehicles were drivable after the accident. No arrest was made.

Mrs. Frances B. Hinds, wife of William A. Hinds, and an occupant of the car, was injured. She was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment and was released.

Chapter 2

It could not last indefinitely. Slowly Walt began to give way under the terrific hammering, grudgingly inching back, forced to fight defensively. Suddenly he broke away and seized a pitchfork which leaned against the wall. Ben parried the stab, seized the pitchfork above the times and with a quick wrench tore it from Walt's hands. He swung it lustily and caught Walt above the ear with the hard handle. Walt went down under the blow and Ben reversed the pitchfork and sprang forward to stand over his rival, the tines aimed at Walt's chest. He tided harshly, "I oughta stick this right into your yellow belly! But thank God I ain't as lowdown as you are. Get up and get out! And if you don't stay away from Diana we'll settle the thing for good—with guns!"

He stepped back and Walt got up slowly. His face was white with rage and his eyes glittered. He said in a choked voice, "Guns it is. From here on, look out for me."

Jeff walked slowly back to the steps and into the lobby. Inside the doorway he stopped abruptly. Samuel J. Cooper was standing there talking earnestly to a woman. And the woman was Diana. Cooper saw him and motioned for him to approach. Jeff took off his hat and moved forward, his eyes on the girl. She was smiling at him and there was interest in the cornflower-blue eyes. Cooper said, "We've been waiting for you, Payne. I saw Diana driving towards the ranch and fetched her back. I wanted her to make you an offer herself. Diana, let me present Mr. Jeff Payne. Payne, this is Mrs. Diana Denton, owner of the Double D."

Diana Denton extended a soft hand and Jeff took her fingers in a hard palm, too surprised to speak for a moment. He had pictured the owner of the Double D as middle-

By CHARLES E. Whiting

LONDON—Many American tourists are running into a language barrier they never expected to encounter in England.

And it isn't merely pronunciations like "bawth" and "tomahito" that throw them.

An American newspaperman in London stopped at the corner one evening to collect the newspapers—a chore normally attended to by his wife. But she was bedded with "flu."

"Where's the Missus, Gov?" asked the news vendor. "Not queer, I 'ope."

He wasn't being rude, but merely solicitous about the state of his customer's health.

American "Innocents Abroad" learn to ask for a "serviette" instead of a table napkin in restaurants. That layer-cake on the pastry tray is known only as "ga-teau" to the waitress and it's useless to ask for it by any other name.

The cinema (movies) has taught most Americans that an elevator is a "lift" to their British cousins. But do they know that some very respectable restaurants advertise themselves as "divees?"

If you are looking for hardware store to replace that lost trunk key, you'll want an "ironmonger."

A request for an orchestra seat at a theater will bring a blank stare from the cashier. You want a seat in the "stalls." It's the "circle" if you prefer the balcony.

A "quid" is a pound, or $2.80. A "bob" is a shilling, worth 14 cents. You'll want to tip the porter half a crown. That's about the same size as an American half dollar but worth 35 cents. A sixpence (seven cents) is sometimes called a "tanner."

Of a somewhat special character is the rhyming slang of London's Cockneys. This takes a commonplace word and changes it into something that rhymes with the original word.

Thus, a motor car becomes a "jam jar." A cash till is a "jack-and-jill." And the simple farewell "goodbye" becomes—by some delicious switch—"cherry pie."

Space Ships Not Long In Future

CANBERRA—(AP)—Dr. David F. Martyn, an Australian scientist, says some of us may be here when robot space ships are flying round the moon. He told a reporter, however, it was highly improbable that scientists would ever land on the moon.

Dr. Martyn recently returned from the United States where he consulted with U. S. Air Force officers on atmospheric problems. He is chief scientist of the Radio Research Board of the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization. He also predicted that "in our time" artificial "space stations" would circle the globe, recording by radio valuable information for scientists on earth.

"This is not idle speculation," the scientist said. "It is something to which scientists in America are giving serious consideration. A great deal of the work they are doing is highly secret. I doubt whether it has anything to do with the flying saucers people have reported."

Chapels At Base Filled By Airmen

SAN ANTONIO—(AP)—The men of the U. S. Air Force are turning to religion. An average of 12,000 airmen now attend the 115 services offered by Lackland Air Force Base chaplains in the ten chapels on the base. There are more than 30 chaplains, representing all faiths.

Sunday Services are held from early morning until late evening. Because the chapels won't hold the crowds, two theaters and a large assembly tent are used for religious services.

Criticize Beauty Parlor Practice

PLZEN, Czechoslovakia—(AP)—Some hairdressers' salons in Czechoslovakia are nothing better than "reservations of the bourgeoisie," says the Plzen Communist newspaper Pravda.

Though now city-owned, it said, they "cultivate the old morals and have become the last refuge of the 'mesdames.'"

"It is one's own business, of course, how one has oneself figured," the paper went on. "But the time wasted in such titivations and the thought of the reserves of labor that are still unused are something to think about."

Bride-To-Be Is Wo'ying Kind

NEW YORK—(AP)—When Jean married Joe Aglio, the man of her choice, and then won a $500 wedding ring in a theater contest, she was still worried.

Joe and Jean won "the Mating Season" contest at the Paramount theater which advertised the picture of the same name. But Jean is a clerk in a brokerage house. She had taken the morning off to get married and she was worried. She didn't know how the boss would feel about it.

"I'd shore like to try, stranger. Lived around here all m'life."

Jeff bought the bottle and took it with a couple of glasses to a table in an obscure corner. "It's like to know about Silver Valley; how it's laid out, where the ranches are located, and so on."

The old fellow nodded. "That's plumb easy. Valley's about ten miles long and four wide and runs from northwest to southeast. Heads up in hills at both ends, so she's like a big trough with mountains all around her.

"John Starr and his family was first to settle in Silver Valley. Him and his wife drove some cows in when his son and daughter was kids. Son's name is Buddy and the daughter's name is Ruth. He's eighteen or so and she's twenty. Their ma died 'bout ten years ago and she's sorta looked after him since. Well, they built their ranch house at the upper end of the valley on the west side of the gap where the creek comes in. Dan Denton came in a few years later and built against the far hills just due north of Silverstone, the creek's a nat'ral boundary between the two spreads. Later on Walt Kirk and Ben Dowd settled at this end of the valley, Ben on the far side of the creek and Walt on this side. That's the pitcher, friend."

Pirates Hand Catawba 6-1 Defeat In Conference Play

Piner Easily Controls Indian Uprising Threat

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.

SALISBURY—East Carolina's Pirates yesterday afternoon handed Catawba's Indians their first loss in the North State Conference play as Jim Piner handcuffed them with eight scattered hits.

Except for a home run by Hodge in the second inning, the Indians were pretty well shackled. Piner was in trouble only once and he got out of that brilliantly. Two Catawba men were on base in the seventh with nobody out when the Indians trailing 6-1. Piner then struck the next three men out to retire the side.

Leon Jones, playing leftfield for the Pirates, also hit a homer off Indian starter Lucina in the seventh. Jones also doubled and singled during the game to account for three runs batted in. Smith and Paul Jones followed Jones in the hitting with a double and single apiece. McSwain also doubled.

This afternoon the Pirates travel to High Point to meet the last-place Panthers in the last game of the two-day mid-western sweep. Martin Byrd is slated to handle the pitching chores for the Pirates.

The two shavens athletes from the House of David will appear with the team on Wednesday night when they play the Greenville Robins in Guy Smith stadium at 7:45. On the left is Mike Janesko, veteran pitcher of 23 years service with the baseball team who will appear against the Robins while on the right is Tim Henville, catcher for the visiting House of David outfit.

British Bid For A Boxing Crown

LONDON—(AP)—Britain's campaign to regain the world's light heavyweight title shifts into high gear tonight when Don Cockell of London tangles with Freddie Be shore of Harrisburg, Pa., over 10 rounds.

Cockell picked up the British and European light heavy titles during the past six months but admittedly the hasn't had much to beat. Beshore, an undersized heavyweight with curly blond hair and a pleasant grin, will be his toughest foe so far. The American claims he's never been knocked off his feet in five years of professional boxing.

Cockell isn't apt to mar this record although most English fans think he will end up the winner. The 22-year-old Britisher has a good right hand—he chilled Lloyd Marshall in 35 seconds—but he rarely uses it. Beshore lasted 14 rounds with Ezzard Charles and four with Joe Louis, losing each time because of cuts.

If Cockell can get past Beshore, his handlers are certain to start clamoring for a world title fight. Promoter Jack Solomons has an option on the services of the present champ, Joey Maxim, and he hopes to bring him over here late this summer.

Football Star In Hollywood Role

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Quarterback Bob Waterfield of the Los Angeles Rams pro football team is following in his wife's footsteps. He signed a movie contract yesterday, reportedly for $2,000 a week.

His wife is Jane Russell. Waterfield is scheduled to begin work May 15 with Johnny Weissmuller in the story of a football player who gets lost in the jungle.

Citation Out Of Special Race

SAN MATEO, Calif.—(AP)—Citation, the money-winningest race horse of all time, was declared out of a special three-horse race today and there was a question whether he would run in Saturday's $60,000 Bay Meadows Handicap.

Today's cancelled Special, at one mile, had been arranged to determine if Calumet Farms' great horse was ready.

King, Palica, Branca And Newcombe--Tops In Relief

Brooklyn's Answer To Konstanty; Dressen Has Sensational Group For Mound Chores

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Meet King, Palica, Branca and Newcombe. Not a Brooklyn law firm but the Dodgers' answer to Jim Konstanty.

As brilliant as Konstanty was last year when he helped Philadelphia win the pennant as the his rescue work never matched the sensational relief pitching of this quartet.

The season is only a week old, but the four already have been credited with three relief victories. Better yet, they have pitched 13 innings all told (excluding Newcombe's rout-going effort against the New York Giants), without surrendering a run. They have yielded only three safeties.

No wonder manager Chuck Dressen is chortling with glee as his charges sit comfortably on top of ### times. Rookie Jocko Thompson held the Giants to six hits.

Vic Raschi pitched the New York Yankees to a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia "coustns" for his second success of the season—his 17th lifetime win in 19 decisions with the Athletics. Vic Wertis' ninth inning home run with two mates on base gave the Tigers a 7-4 triumph over the St. Louis Browns in the only other American League game. The other clubs were not scheduled.

In another after-dark clash, the Cardinals shaded the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in St. Louis. Veteran Harry Brecheen scattered eight hits to beat Ken Raffensberger, an old Redbird nemesis. Shortstop Solly Hemus accounted for both St. Louis runs with a single and triple.

The flawless firemen roles of Palica and King for Brooklyn followed on the heels of a hitless and runless three-inning stint by Doc Newcombe and a shorter one of an inning and a third by Palica on Sunday.

Another Trading Rumor Is Heard

DETROIT—(AP)—General manager Billy Evans of the Detroit Tigers had barely disposed of one trade rumor when another tale of pending player deals popped up here today.

The latest report said the Tigers and St. Louis Browns may huddle today with Detroit seeking one of St. Louis' catchers—Less Moss, Sherm Lollar, or Clyde Kluttz.

It was reported the Tigers might part with several second-line pitchers and some cash.

Negro Housekeeper Alarmed By Bullet Fired At Her Home

Mrs. Olive Batts, colored, 1206 Factory Street, in the southwestern part of the city, reported to police during the weekend that "somebody shot at me while I was working in my own house."

Investigating officers said a pistol bullet struck the back door of her house, but did no other damage.

Move To Settle Fate Of Crime Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Separate moves by Democrats and Republicans pointed today toward settling the fate of the Senate's Crime Investigating Committee.

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee called a closed meeting to get the views of Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) on what should be done about widespread demands for a continuing underworld probe.

Kefauver, the Crime Committee chairman, joined yesterday in offering resolutions to turn the job over to a special Senate-House committee and a Federal Crime Commission appointed by the President.

A resolution to continue the present Senate committee until next Jan. 15 and give it an additional $150,000 was introduced last week by Senators Wiley (R-Wis.) and Tolley (R-NH), the two GOP members of the group.

They hoped to get a vote on their resolution before the day's end but under procedure in the objection of a single senator could block action.

The time left for a decision was shrinked fast. The Crime Committee's life now is due to run out April 30. It has spent nearly a year on its sensational, nationwide probe.

Kefauver indicated no desire to delay a showdown on the issue.

On the contrary, he said that "obviously if the work is to be continued in any form there will have to be a reasonably prompt determination of the question in order that the committee's staff may be held together."

Democrats and Republicans on the committee agreed that a crime investigation should be carried on; the split was over the method of doing it.

Rules Death Due Natural Causes

turel causes at his home on his farm about four miles north of Belvoir last night around 7:30.

Rouse said Harrell was talking with James Atkinson and Atkinson's wife when he was stricken last night.

The coroner said Harrell had been suffering from heart trouble for three or four years, and no inquest will be held into the death. Rouse gave Harrell's age as "between 63 and 65."

Baseball Preview For Lions Club

The Lion's club last night were given a preview of the Greenville Robins baseball team for the 1951 season by business manager John Pringle and player-manager John Streza.

The manager told the Lion's that their baseball team needed the support of its members in the coming year and that if the ball club was a success this year it would bring a lot to the townspeople as it would bring into the city more and more people who would buy in Greenville.

Player-manager Streza stated that the weak spot in the Robins set up this year so far deals with pitching. However he rookkie pitchers are showing up better each day and the expected arrival of a veteran pitcher at the locals' camp in the next few days will possibly bring the locals pitching up to par, he pointed out.

The Robins open their home slate of games in the Coastal Plain League here on Thursday night, May 3 at Guy Smith Stadium.

President Larry Averet read a report of officers nominated by the nominating committee, with nominations to be made from the floor at the next meeting.

The club had as their guest, Carl Worsley, Junior Lion from Greenville High School.

Says 'Hiss Gang' Setting Policy

CUDAHY, Wis. (AP)—Harry Truman is president "in name only," says Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.).

"The Hiss crowd," the Wisconsin Republican senator said last night, "still runs the State Department and not only determines foreign policy but military strategy as well."

McCarthy told a Chamber of Commerce dinner he thinks Mr. Truman "is essentially just as loyal as the average American citizen," but "the Acheson group has almost hypnotic powers over him."

Arrest Suspect On Charge Of Secret Assault

Police last night arrested Major Johnson, 34-year-old Negro, on the charge of secret assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill Mrs. Olive Batts, Negro, 1206 Railroad Street.

Detective Lieut. M. E. Corbett and Identification Specialist S. Bowen Dorsey quoted the woman as saying that somebody shot at her while she was working in her home last Saturday night. The bullet lodged in a back door.

Police in their investigation procured a search and seizure warrant from a magistrate and searched Johnson's house. They said they found a .22-calibre rifle.

A warrant was issued charging Major Johnson with the larceny of a gold watch valued at $75 from Roy Payton, Negro.

Johnson will be given a prelimi-

New Building To House Expanded Telephone Needs

FARMVILLE—A new building is to be constructed for the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company on West Wilson Street here in the near future. The telephone exchange has outgrown its present quarters.

Farmville gained 70 new subscribers during 1950 and eight new subscribers have been added during the first few months of this year. This makes a total of 1,014 telephones in operation in the Farmville area.

The present limited exchange quarters makes it difficult to install many new telephones until the exchange is moved to the new building.

Manager R. L. Spivey said the production of telephones was cut 40 per cent by the government's recent war restriction orders.

Plan To Discuss Tobacco Exports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tobacco export problems will be discussed by congressmen from tobacco states and government officials tomorrow.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-NC), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said officials of the foreign aid program and of the Agriculture Department's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations would be asked to discuss claims by tobacco industry spokesmen that they have not pushed export of American tobacco to Western Germany.

NPA Gives Okay To Bank Building

RICHMOND (AP)—The National Production Authority yesterday announced the approval of 17 construction projects in North Carolina for a cost of $324,384.

The applications were approved during the two-week period from April 6.

Among those applications approved was the Guaranty Trust Co. of Greenville, for a new bank building, $12,000.

Court Condemns 'Third Degree'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any policeman who uses third-degree methods on a suspect may be imprisoned and fined under the Federal Civil Rights Act, the Supreme Court has decreed.

The tribunal, in a 5-4 decision yesterday, cleared the way for federal prosecution of federal, state or municipal police who try to get confessions by brutal methods.

The RFC . . .

which runs RFC be replaced by a single man, a chairman or director or boss.

Why? The subcommittee felt that under the five-man set-up—where a majority of the five can decide on the loans to be made—responsibility for everything that's done is too divided and that it's too easy for any one of the five to pass the buck.

President Truman sent a plan to Congress, in line with this recommendation. Although there was a lot of sentiment in Congress to wipe out RFC, and still is, the plan was approved, narrowly, in Congress.

When it was okayed, Mr. Truman nominated William Stuart Symington, to be the new one-man head of RFC.

It was on April 17 that Mr. Truman said he had chosen Symington to head RFC. He is supposed to take the job by May 1. The Senate must approve his nomination, formally submitted yesterday.

But—this doesn't end the business. The Fulbright Committee has not dropped its investigation of what RFC has done. It is still digging into White House connections with RFC, so there will be more on that score.

Further, it's going to check into those letters which congressmen wrote to RFC to help get loans for people in whom they were interested.

Meanwhile, there's still the chance that Congress may in the end abolish RFC altogether. This won't be handled by Fulbright's subcommittee but rather by the Senate's full Banking and Currency Committee.

It is supposed to start hearings shortly on proposals to wipe out RFC. So even though Congress has approved a one-man boss of RFC, and even if the Senate approves Symington for the job, there is still the chance that RFC may be abolished. But that doesn't seem too likely at this moment.

members of the House of Commons with him—not a big following. However, it was foreseen that he might be able to split the party in caucus. In that event Attlee would be expected to resign as Prime Minister, since he would then lack a majority in the House of Commons, where he has a balance of a mere five votes.
