

Sweeping Price Order Is Invoked

Nearly One-Fourth Of American Economy Involved In Dis-Salle Directive Aimed At Rolling Back General Level Of Manufacturers' Prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nearly one-fourth of the American economy today went under a single sweeping price order which the government said was designed to roll back "the general level of manufacturers' prices."

Price Director Michael V. Dilling, covering 75,000 plants, to be out part of the runaway price boom that followed the Korean invasion.

The country will find, Disalle predicted, that his Office of Price Stabilization has "not been playing pat-a-cake with prices—that in the months ahead prices will realize 'the whole program is tougher than they have been led to believe.'"

OPS will follow up with three more major ceilings within a week. These will cover machinery, cotton textiles, and wearing apparel including shoes.

The new order will bring some price increases—mainly for those who headed the government's appeal for "voluntary" restraint and then were caught in the Jan. 26 price freeze. But these will be outweighed by the rollbacks, Disalle said.

Stripped to essentials, each factory's new price ceiling will be: the pre-Korea price, plus wage increases and increased cost of materials. On most materials, increases only up to last Dec. 31 can be counted.

Even if a firm finds itself entitled to a price boost on this basis, it must give OPS 15 days notice before marking up the price tag. OPS thus gets a chance to double-check.

Under these rules, manufacturers sharpened their pencils to reprice goods having an annual gross profit estimated by OPS at 23 percent. This is about 23 percent of the nation's entire output of goods and services.

The new ceilings must be in force by May 28. Retail buyers will feel the effect later, depending on how long it takes for the new goods to reach retailers' shelves and showrooms.

This array of products is covered by consumer "hard goods" including radios, television sets, refrigerators, washing machines, ranges, furniture, hardware, household appliances.

Many processed food and grocery items including breakfast cereals, crackers, cookies, macaroni, spaghetti, canned fish, potato chips, mustard, baked beans, pickles, peanut butter, sauces, seasonings, baking powder, candy, soup mixes, meat extracts, gelatin desserts, olives, yeast, and dog food.

A wide group of miscellaneous items including auto tires and tubes, many building materials that go lumber or plywood, which are otherwise controlled, paper and paper products, rayon and some other textiles.

The Big Red Attack

A Major Effort By Communist Forces To Drive UN Army From Korea; Peace Propaganda Blown Up; Is China Deliberately Seeking War With America?

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

It is too early to assay the potentialities of the massive Red offensive launched Sunday night in Korea, but apparently it's a major effort aimed at driving the U. N. forces from the peninsula—or dying in the attempt.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who succeeded General MacArthur in command, declares that this great battle might well prove decisive. That is, it may be the big show-down.

Most of the terrific weight of 400,000 foot soldiers flung against the allied lines came from Chinese communists. An estimated 300,000 more Chinese and North Koreans were held in reserve for reinforcements.

Thus to all intents Red China and the United Nations forces were at war. Technically, however, the well trained masses of Chinese soldiers were "volunteers" who were rushing to the aid of their stricken Red brothers in Korea.

So this is just another phase of the war of aggression against South Korea. U. N. circles are hoping that the allied high command is right in believing that this

Pledges Britain Will Put Defense At Top Priority

Herbert Morrison Says Nation Will Cut Living Standards If Necessary

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison pledged today that Britain would cut its standard of living before slashing its proposed rearmament program.

Morrison's statement, made in a speech here, came as the high command of the British Labor Government crushed a leftwing rebellion over the rearmament program and the party pledged firm support to Prime Minister Attlee's policies.

The statement by Morrison, at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce, was looked upon as Attlee's answer to the rebels, who had complained that the United States was dragging Britain into a ruinous expenditure for arms.

Departing from his prepared speech, Morrison told his audience, mostly American citizens, that the problem of raw materials for British home production, export and rearmament is causing "most serious anxiety."

Morrison, who recently succeeded the late Ernest Bevin in the Foreign Ministry, pleaded with the U. S. to help Britain get raw materials. He said that if a shortage of these materials slowed down Britain's production machine, however, "it would not be our policy to let the armament program take the first cut or its full effect."

Britain, he said, would try to "take the burden on its current standard of life."

"That would not mean an easier budget, but a harder one."

This touched a sore spot in the current British debate. It was the objection of Aneurin Bevan, who has just resigned as Labor Minister, to the size, speed and method of financing British rearmament which touched off the rebellion. Harold Wilson supported Bevan by resigning as president of the Board of Trade.

Dawson Asked To Give Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP)—Donald S. Dawson, presidential assistant, today was "requested" to testify May 10 in the Senate investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) announced he has written Dawson giving him until April 30 to acknowledge the "request." Fulbright heads a Senate Banking subcommittee which has been looking for over a year into charges that influence and favoritism have figured in RFC loans.

Harrison Leaves Defense Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—W. H. Harrison has resigned as Defense Production Administrator, effective May 1, because of "compelling personal reasons."

The White House, announcing the resignation today, made public a letter in which Harrison told President Truman it was necessary for him to return to his former post as president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation.

Formosa Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today the American military aid to Chinese Nationalists on Formosa is being sent under an agreement that will be used for "internal security" or "legitimate self defense."

Acheson made public at a news conference an exchange of notes with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government which lays down that basic policy as to the arms sent to his forces on the big island off the China coast.

Congressional critics of the administration's Far Eastern policy—chiefly Republicans—have been demanding that these troops and arms be employed against the Chinese communists. Gen. Douglas MacArthur also has urged use of these troops. It was one of the points of difference which led President Truman to fire MacArthur from the Far Eastern command.

Special Defense Budget Approved

House Appropriations Group Prepares To Consider New Sum

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee approved today a $648,206,000 emergency defense budget and readied itself to consider another military request which may exceed $700,000,000.

The amount recommended today for House consideration starting tomorrow is for emergency purposes growing out of the stepped-up tempo of war in Korea. Most of it will be spent during May and June.

It is in addition to $48,000,000 already voted the military by Congress for the fiscal year ending June 30.

In the immediate offing is the regular military budget for the year starting July 1. Military spokesmen themselves have predicted it may reach almost $900,000,000, but the Appropriations Committee looks for it to be closer to $700,000,000.

Even the lower figure would be $10,000,000 more than the President had estimated in his January budget.

Included in the emergency measure which the committee sent to the House floor today are funds for a new Atomic Energy Commission "Project X," for a quick build-up in the manpower of the Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps and the Air Force; and for a speed-up in procurement of the "hardware" for war—tanks, guns, guided missiles, and airplanes.

The band will stay in Front Royal, Virginia on the night of May 2nd, and will give a concert on the courthouse square that night at 8:15. The band will return to Farmville after the mammoth parade on May 4th.

Allows Increase In Railroad Pay

WASHINGTON—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston was reported today to have approved a six-cent-an-hour, cost-of-living wage increase for 1,000,000 railroad workers. This would give them a total rise this year exceeding the 10 percent ceiling on wage increases.

An announcement from Johnston of his action in the case was expected in the early afternoon.

Telephone Expansion Hampered

Local Office Says Service Improving; Restrictions Limit Projects

The local manager of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company acknowledged in a statement this morning that telephone service is not available in certain sections of the city, but asserted local telephone facilities have been expanded and are being expanded.

Frank Harrington, local office manager, said in the statement telephone service "is not now available in certain sections of Greenville—especially across the Tar river in north Greenville," but pointed out, "There has been a large-scale expansion of telephone facilities in Greenville since the end of the war and further expansion is still being made."

The manager said the Greenville exchange since the first of 1951 has installed 452 telephones and removed 366 telephones for a net gain of 86 telephones, which he said compares favorably with other cities of comparable size in this section.

Projects are now under construction and should be completed within the next two weeks, Harrington said, which will provide additional telephone facilities for the Hillside and Village Grove sections of Greenville and the Winterville area served by the exchange.

As for the alleviation of the congested telephone facilities in north Greenville and a few other areas in the city, the statement by the company official said, "Facilities will be provided to these sections as soon as possible, but in the face of present restrictions the company does not know when this will be."

Harrington asserted, "We are restricted tighter now than we were during the last war on everything which has copper content." And he added that most of the materials which are used by the telephone company have copper in them.

In part the statement from the telephone company official said, "In Greenville the company's investment at the end of 1945 was $420,666 and 2,463 telephones were then served. At the end of 1950 the investment in Greenville had increased to $954,702—not including the cost of the considerable work which is now under construction. This new investment figure is more than 125 per cent of the 1945 figure. At the end of 1950 Greenville had 4,223 telephones—an increase over the 1945 number of more than 70 per cent."

Interrupt Social Affair For Work

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass.—(AP)—The local fire company invited members of the county Fire Warden's Association for a social affair last night—and for an hour the guests had to entertain themselves.

More Dynamite Blasts In Virginia Textile Walkout

DANVILLE, Va.—(AP)—Two dynamite blasts brought a renewal of violence to the Danville textile mills strike today.

Separate blasts damaged a rural store, operated by the husband of a mill worker, and a filling station on the outskirts of town. The latter serves a community many of whose residents are working in the strike-bound Dan River Mills plant.

State police took into custody for questioning two Negro men seen driving away from the service station after the blast. The men later were released.

Major W. H. Read, Jr. of the state police said no definite connection could be established between the dynamiting and the presence of persons at the scene.

In other violent incidents, a mill worker on April 19 found a bundle of material burning against the side of his house. Tossed away, the bundle exploded, damaging the worker's house as well as that of a striker.

The worker, King Glaize, also found a stick of dynamite under his brother's automobile. Later that day, the homes of two workers were peppered with buckshot.

Meanwhile, observers said the worker attendance today at Dan River, one of the nation's largest textile mills, reached the highest figure to date in the 24-day-old strike.

It was estimated that more than 60 percent of the production force, something over 7,000 workers, was at work today.

Asia Policies As Major Issue Proposed If Truman Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bitter political fighting between Democrats and Republicans has prompted a proposal that President Truman run again, with his Asia policies as a major issue.

At the same time, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, adviser to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, suggested that a New York group boomer the GOP presidential nomination "go home." The general has said he does not intend to seek political office.

Gov. W. Kerr Scott of North Carolina was the author of the proposal for a new term for President Truman. Scott told reporters yesterday that "when this MacArthur thing settles down, Truman is going to be stronger than ever."

Admit Negro To Medical School

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The University of North Carolina, exclusively for white students since it was opened in 1795, has admitted a Negro to its medical school.

By a six to one vote, the Medical School Admission Committee yesterday approved the application of Edward O. Diggs, a student at A. and T. College (Negro) in Greensboro.

The action followed by three weeks a decision of the university's 100-member board of trustees to consider applications of Negroes for its graduate schools where separate facilities are not provided by the state.

The trustees pointed out then that recent Supreme Court decisions ordering admission of Negroes to certain other southern schools prompted their new policy. The trustees said, in effect, that it was best not to fight "the supreme law of the land."

The tradition-shattering move also came at a time when two suits are pending in federal courts asking the admission of Negroes to the university's medical and law schools.

Daniels Hearing Postponed Until Middle Of May

TARBORO—The hearing asking for a new trial of Bennie Daniels and Lloyd Ray Daniels has been postponed until about May 18.

The Daniels cousins were convicted of first degree murder in Pitt Superior Court in May, 1949, for the slaying of William Benjamin O'Neal, Greenville taxi driver, on February 5, 1949. The two Negro youths were originally sentenced to die in the gas chamber on July 15, 1949, but since that time, a number of appeals have been filed by their attorneys.

The hearing, which was supposed to take place in Tarboro yesterday, was postponed by Judge Don Gilliam due to the absence of the attorneys for the State Highway Department in the final arguments.

Counterattacking Allies Stop Enemy Cold On Eastern Front; Fall Back In Center And West; Trapped Units Escape; Leaders Confident

TOKYO (AP)—Communist troop masses crushed forward along the entire western half of a 100-mile battle front today in their third invasion of South Korea.

But to the east, counterattacking allied tank columns stopped the Reds in their tracks and even hurled them back at some points.

On the west central front, United Nations forces pulled back abruptly and broke contact with the Reds. The withdrawal was so rapid some rear elements were trapped.

One was ambushed by Communists wearing white civilian garb or the blue denim uniforms of South Korean supply bearers.

In the extreme west, allies fell back in orderly fashion before swarms of Chinese, exploiting their Imjin River crossing. They were less than 25 miles north of Seoul, South Korean capital out of which refugees poured in dust clouded columns.

A tank-led relief column fought its way to a trapped U. N. battalion south of Imjin.

Some U. N. forces counterattacked as Lt. Gen. James Van Fleet, his troops, "in three days of battle (you) have proven your superiority" over the 400,000 attacking Reds.

He expressed superiority in fire power and all types of weapons, in fact a tremendous superiority in everything except numbers.

The bulk of the Chinese in the west were pouring down the Yonchon-Uimongu invasion route. This highway also leads to Seoul. Allied fighter planes and bombers attacked them all day long.

The most abrupt U. N. pullback was to the east of this road, in the west-central sector. There, allies broke contact with the Chinese south of the 38th parallel. Then they withdrew to new lines north of the threatened Seoul-Chuncheon highway which approaches the capital from the east.

The ambush by the disguised Reds was sprung during this withdrawal, just east of the Kumhwa-Uijongbu road. Allied artillery and warplanes cut up the Reds. But field dispatches said at least three Chinese divisions were streaming southward.

AP correspondent John Randolph reported the Reds made no frontal attack on the west central front. The only sound of battle came from allied artillery and the roar of airplanes.

Allied reinforcements and counterattacks plugged the hole on the central front. An estimated 100,000 Chinese, including big sapping fellows from the Manchurian plains, were halted seven miles south of 38.

A heavy allied counterattack smashed into Reds pouring down the main road toward Chuncheon. A fierce battle began early in the morning and still raged in mid-afternoon.

Southwest of abandoned Ewha-chon, U. N. artillery blasted a path for a counterattacking column. Allies who pulled back from the reservoir city wheeled and hit the Reds on the flank.

Communists attacking Yangsu at the eastern end of 11-mile-long Hwachon Reservoir were stopped in their tracks.

The Draft Of Doctors

Up To Now, No Doctors Have Been Drafted For Military Service; The Growing Need; Priority One; An Explanation Of How Priority System Was Set Up

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Up to this time no doctors have been drafted for military service. It hasn't been necessary. Enough have volunteered to fill the need for medical men.

Now more are needed. And Selective Service says that if enough doctors don't volunteer, it will have to draft some in July, August, and September. It's ready to draft up to 1,302.

Doctors who volunteer will be commissioned as officers. But, Selective Service says, those who wait till they're drafted will go in as buck privates.

But Selective Service says it is not shooting at doctors in general. It is aiming only at a special group, called Priority One. In fact, no doctors may be drafted until those available in Priority one are called.

Doctors in that group are those who received medical education at government expense or were deferred from service during World War II to attend medical school and who have served less than 90 days in the armed forces.

Under the law all doctors up to 50 have had to register and, under the law, anyone of them under 50 could be drafted. But Congress asked the President to see to it that none would be drafted before those in Priority One.

It can be seen that most of those in Priority one are young or comparatively young doctors.

This is a brief explanation. During the war the government set up an Army Specialized Training program (AST) and a similar program for the Navy, called V-12. Under that program the government would pay the expenses of youths studying to be doctors, dentists, scientists, and so on.

Under that program, also, besides receiving government pay, they were to be exempt from the draft until they were graduated. But once they were graduated, it was understood, they'd start paying back their debt to the government by joining the Army or Navy.

Those who did just that although some didn't see much service before the shooting stopped.

Fountain Sixth Grade Gives P.T.A. Program

FOUNTAIN—The Parents-Teachers Association of Fountain School held its meeting in the school auditorium Wednesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Jasper Morgan, the president, presiding.

The program was given by the sixth grade, a play, "A Day in Birthday Land." Each month in the year was represented by one or more child. All the children in the grade sang "Happy Birthday." The songs were directed by Mrs. Philip M. Cory and accompanied at piano by Mrs. Ernest W. Hunt, in the absence of the music teacher, Mrs. Emily Walston.

The program was opened by Mildred Windham reading 20th chapter of Exodus and "The Lord's Prayer" was said in unison. Carolyn Harris, representing the fairy, joined hands with the wisher, Donald Roberson, who blew out the twelve pink candles on the three tiered white birthday cake. The closing scene was for the month of December, represented by Jan Gardner, who was dressed in a Santa Claus suit.

Following the program Mrs. Jasper Morgan called the roll by the grades. Mrs. Ben Gardner, secretary, read the minutes of last month's meeting and the treasurer, Mr. Ruel M. Dilda gave an up-to-date report.

Mrs. Philip M. Cory, the sixth grade teacher's room won the attending prize.

Mrs. Morgan turned the meeting over to the Fountain School principal, Mrs. Herman Baker, who made several announcements, and then had the audience join in singing several songs, and closed by singing, "Good Night, Ladies."

Luncheon Given For Mrs. Garrett

On Saturday at 1:00 p.m., Miss Muriel Shotwell entertained at a luncheon at the Greenville Country Club as a compliment to Mrs. R. M. Garrett Jr., a recent bride. Guests were greeted at the door by the hostess and Miss Dorothy Raine Shotwell of South Boston, Va., a weekend guest of the hostess. The honoree was presented a white bridal shoulderette of daisies and valley lilies. Luncheon places were marked at a long table with white place cards with names written in silver ink. At the place of Mrs. Larry James Jr., another recent bride, there was a red camellia. The table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a crystal bowl of assorted spring flowers which were harmoniously arranged in pastel shades. A three course fried chicken luncheon was served to the 10 people present. Miss Shotwell presented Mrs. Garrett with a framed hand painted wedding announcement as a remembrance.

Mamie E. Jenkins To Speak At Norfolk Meeting of Alumni

Mamie E. Jenkins of Raleigh, retired member of the faculty at East Carolina College, will speak at a dinner meeting of the Norfolk Tidewater Chapter of the Alumni Association of the College this evening in Norfolk. A charter member of the East Carolina faculty, Miss Jenkins was a member of the department of English from the opening of the college in 1907 until her retirement in 1946. Mrs. Ruth Garner, alumni secretary at East Carolina College, will be present in Norfolk for the meeting. A group of approximately forty members of the chapter is expected to attend. Mrs. Louis Petty Mathony of Norfolk, chapter president, will act as chairman.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. W. H. Bland announces the engagement of her daughter, Peggy Lavonne, of Greenville, N. C., to Mathew Hall, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Hall of Fredericksburg, Va. The wedding will take place May 5, in Biloxi, Mississippi.

Dramatic Play Presented At Guild Meeting

At the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Greenville Little Theatre Guild at Sheppard Memorial Library last night, members of the Teachers Playhouse at East Carolina College presented a short drama as the program for the evening. Preceding the program a short business session was conducted by the president, Miss Ann Askew. Ralph Rives then introduced the play and the readers taking part in the production. It was informally given by the actors who sat in a group and read the parts. Stage directions and settings were described by Mr. Rives as an introduction to the action. The play, entitled "Queen's Hall," was set on a southern plantation.

The cast were members of a family who had gathered to review the past and talk of the future. The dramatic situation in the play lay in the son's knowledge that he was shortly to die of leukemia, and his efforts to keep the secret from his wife and mother.

Those taking part in the production, in addition to Mr. Rives who was in charge of directing it, were Miss Catherine Stevenson, Miss Jeanine Ennis, Miss Delores Eisele, Miss Mary French Hawes and Billy Tucker.

According to the Book of Knowledge, the term "Esquimo" was first used by some of the north-eastern Indians as a term to reproach people still farther north.

Guns were fired every half hour until sunset on every American Army post, naval station and ship when Lafayette died.

homes, more people and in turn more business enterprises.

That, however, is looking far into the future. For the present, the eyes of the people of Pitt county are fixed upon the progress of the Du Pont plant.

The people are witnessing the beginning of a period of progress about which they have talked since last summer when the announcement was made that the plant would be located in this vicinity. As the months go by, we will witness the realization of a great dream this section has had for many years.

Not only will this section of North Carolina be one of the most outstanding agricultural sections of the nation; but to agriculture, will be added a new industrial economy which will give the section the stability of which localities dream.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—President Truman's demand that government agencies reduce non-military construction and activities to a minimum has been regarded utterly by Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman. His power program's heavy drain on such scarce materials as copper and aluminum has raised protests before secret sessions of Congressional committees and within the Administration's national defense group.

Careful scrutiny of pending appropriation requests for expansion of the government's public power system discloses that they total more than $900,000,000, that the completed cost will amount to almost $1,500,000,000.

However, by using carry-over funds available under past years' appropriations, it is estimated that proposed construction will entail the expenditure of more than $2,000,000,000.

COMPETITION—Spokesmen for heavy industry have informed House-Senate Appropriation committees that they cannot fill national defense orders, unless Interior and other departments defer building plans during the current emergency.

Another consequence of government competition in a tight market, according to representatives of almost every group—oil, railroad, steel, private power, shipping, communications—will be a terrific increase in the overall cost of rearmament.

Secretary Chapman maintains that new public power projects are essential for national defense. He recalls that private utility interests voiced the same protests early in World War I, insisting that their system could carry the extra load of production, but that even so severe shortages developed, especially in the Northwest.

VIEWPOINT—However, only a few weeks before he assumed his present post, Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson declared that existing hydroelectric facilities can meet present requirements "with a safe reserve margin." It is understood that he has not changed his viewpoint.

So far, he has not intervened in this squabble. As a loyal member of the Truman family, he apparently does not want to cause any embarrassment to the White House in this politically explosive field.

AGAINST—The latest Chapman decision to give concern to the makers of tanks, planes, electronic equipment and their sub-contractors, involves what they regard as "favoritism" toward the Rural Electrification Administration, which is headed by Claude R. Wickard in the Department of Agriculture.

The individual in charge of allocating scarce materials is C. B. McManus, former head of the Southern Company, a $500,000,000 private utility system. Some time ago he welcomed the government's participating in the power business, which aligned him against most of the other bigwigs of the industry.

RIVALS—It apparently disgraced Secretary Chapman, for he soon named Mr. McManus as head of the Defense Emergency Power Administration. However, the Secretary of Interior gave his "solemn word" that there would be no discrimination in his treatment of private and public power rivals.

"I shall not use the defense powers entrusted to me," he said, "as a means of advancing public power development at the expense of private power development. Nor shall I permit private power interests to dominate public power."

BLOCKED—Mr. Chapman, a veteran New Dealer from early Roosevelt days, has not kept this pledge, according to the industrialists now bombarding the White House, Capitol Hill and Mr. Wilson.

In accord with the Cabinet member's original promise, Mr. McManus recently held that the Rural Electrification Administration must submit its requests for scarce materials to him, along with those of the private companies. It was his plan to process all of them in accord with emergency needs.

But Mr. Chapman blocked this program. Reversing the McManus decision without giving any explanation, the Interior held insisted that a lump allocation of copper, aluminum and other materials be made to R.E.A., which would then distribute it among several hundred rural cooperatives which are financed by the Wickard agency.

EXPANDING—A minor item in the Administration's public power budget suggests that Mr. Chapman will not permit the rearmament emergency to prevent him from expanding generating and transmission systems in competition with private industry's.

It consists of a request for $35,000,000 to finance a survey of New England's electric resources and needs. This represents Washington's first formal move to enter the utility field in this area, which is one of the few sections of the country where Uncle Sam has not set up a light-and-power shop.

It is understood that Leland S. Olds, former head of the Federal Power Commission and a veteran crusader for the Chapman theory, will head the study, if Congress authorizes it.

Which Influence Is Worst For Juveniles?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

If you read this thing regularly, you know full well that about every two months there will be a story about our daughter Nancy. My theory is that almost everybody is or plans to be a parent, so in a sense we are comparing notes on the project of parenthood.

At seven and a half months, Nancy is learning fast. However, the real education in this family is coming to Wife Rachel and I, who learn something new every day.

For example, I probably never would have known that I have a talent for tap dancing if Nancy hadn't come along. No matter how difficult an act will seem, any parent will give it a try if it will make the baby laugh. Nancy likes my tap dancing routine, so at least once a day I take her into the kitchen and go into my act. Much to my dismay, W.R. doesn't share Nancy's appreciation for my "talent."

Frankly, I never could carry a tune until Nancy came along. Now I can sing like a mocking bird. W.R. can't notice the change in my voice, but Nancy thinks it's great, so there must be some change. To me, it sounds 100 per cent better.

They say that a baby's personality begins to develop the day he's born, depending on how much conversation you make with him. We talk to Nancy almost constantly, so she's quite aware of the presence or absence of company. And she usually demands company. In this paragraph I have come all around saying that we have spoiled her. Certainly you don't expect me to say that!

Nancy's personality is bubbling over by six in the morning, or sometimes even earlier than six. Now that I look back on the columns I've written about how hard it was to get up in the morning, it's something to laugh about. We have one alarm clock on the market, for sale cheap. Nancy is much more effective than any clock.

Everybody says, "Be sure to boil anything that's going into the baby's mouth. That includes toys, dishes the baby eats out of, spoons, or anything that will come in contact with his mouth."

For a while you can boil everything with enthusiasm, because you feel like that boiling is what keeps the baby well. But when the baby reaches Nancy's age, it gets ridiculous, because you can't boil everything in the house. Before you know it, she'll have one of her feet half way in her mouth. If the shoe is in her mouth, or maybe she'll try to eat a newspaper, a sheet, or even a pencil. At this point it's time to stop boiling.

Just one note of advice: Be sure to help your baby develop his personality at an early age. But if possible, develop it so it turns on later than six in the morning.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

ANNOUNCEMENT—Some students of political affairs interpret the visit of Governor Kerr Scott to Washington this week as a tentative announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate in 1954. Their reasoning is somewhat devious, but not too difficult to follow. Governor Scott went to Washington with a delegation of Young Democrats to arrange for the Democratic presidential nominee next year to come to the Scott farm at Haw River just before the 1952 November election for a speech. Arrangements were sought to be made with William Boyle, national Democratic chairman.

UNUSUAL—The unusual features in this situation which to some extent justify conclusion that Mr. Scott is laying foundations for keeping a hand on state Democratic affairs and promoting his own interest are these: Nobody knows now who will be the nominee for president next year, and so any commitment made in behalf of an unknown could not bind him. Furthermore, nobody knows who will be chairman of the national Democratic committee next year. It may be or may not be William Boyle again. The new chairman will be named soon after adjournment of the national convention which will nominate candidates for president and vice president.

PRESUMPTUOUS—Any commitment made now by incumbent Chairman Boyle could not be binding upon his successor, who would have his own plans for conducting the election campaign. Before the date of the proposed barbecue another governor will have been nominated in North Carolina, a state chairman will have been selected by that gubernatorial nominee and named by a state executive committee yet to be chosen. Also before that time the Young Democrats will have held two state conventions at which new state presidents will have been elected. In view of these facts, it seems unusual and presumptuous for those now in control of party machinery to seek to project that domination into the next regime so far as state and national chairmen and candidates are concerned, and two administrations ahead of Y.D.C.

BOSSISM—Critics of Governor Scott have charged since he first came into office that he would attempt to build a powerful political machine in the state. There has been to date no evidence of such purpose on his part. There is, on the other hand, conclusive proof that no such machine exists. The governor did have an opportunity to weld the diverse groups which contributed to his election into a working machine, but he failed to seize it. He did not seek cooperation or support from factions originally antagonistic, but apparently deliberately widened the breach. He has made some excellent appointments, some not so good; but he has not used his appointive power to build a political machine. Such "organization" as he did have proved ineffectual in the last primary, in relations with two general assemblies, and in connection with his appointments to the supreme court. How successful will be the apparent attempt to project his personal leadership into subsequent administrations remains to be seen.

HISTORY—Only one governor has exerted much influence upon state politics after leaving the office. Max Gardner did it by taking over leadership of the dominant faction and working with and through it, rather than by ignoring or fighting it. Gardner's influence was potent for fifteen years, following a period of twenty years dominance of the group headed by Senator Furnifold M. Simmons. Political leadership of both Simmons and Gardner was due to the ability and loyalty of their lieutenants. They sought and knew how to utilize advice.

RASPBERRIES—There is a distressing element, but also occasion for gratification, in the boozing of President Truman at a baseball game in Washington the other day. So was there in the boozing of Governor Scott at a football game at Chapel Hill last year. These incidents were close to the applause accorded General MacArthur at several insignificant points in his address to the joint session of congress.

AMERICAN—The incidents were distinctively American. It has often been noted that persons boozing governmental executives in dictator countries would be summarily dealt with, and that applause for a deposed general would not be tolerated. The raspberries were at best discourteous and at worst a demonstration of vulgar hoodlumism. Essentially they constituted notice to the officials that in America the people are the rulers, the elected officials their servants, and that the rulers reserve the right to express their opinion any way they choose as to conduct of their hired help. It is nothing to be alarmed about. A hundred and seventy-five years ago many people in America booed the head men of the government, even burned in effigy the king and his appointed representatives. Descendants of those "hoodlums" (?) now proudly display the Emblems of the Daughters and Sons of the American Revolution. It is offensive to persons of good taste that boorish display of temper should mar public meetings, but it is gratifying that individual rights are maintained to the extent any person can with impunity boo a public official, so long as he does not resort to physical violence.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOLDING THE LINE (Wilson Daily Times) Holding the line appears to be a sin in the minds of some people in the state. The men who serve us in Raleigh, if we're governed by the Scott interpretation, aren't supposed to carry on your business like they would carry on their own. Instead, they're supposed to spend more and more of your money. If you accept that dictum, you're a liberal. "Hold-the-line!" But why is it that the liberals are always "liberal" with your money?

Many a business house and many a business man are working four months for the government. That is, it takes what they earn in four months to pay taxes. Let that tax bill go still higher and we'll approach the breaking point. The people who have some thing will start living off principal to escape taxes. That, however, as we all know, isn't productive. And what isn't productive isn't good for the state or the nation. Some of us are all too prone to berate those we're inclined to call capitalists. But let those capitalists withdraw their capital, as they did in the early Nineteen Thirties, and you have a natural concomitant, unemployment. For we can't have employment without the wherewithal to put men to work. Some in the assembly in Raleigh are cognizant of that. Instead of being castigated, they should be praised. For they were trying to treat your money as if it were their own.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
No other industry, not even the gambling industry, has got such a kicking around in the last few years as the television receiver industry. In fact, the Kefauver committee brought out the fact that a couple of gamblers had withdrawn investments in TV set manufacturing.

Consider the woes and burdens inflicted on TV men:
1. The FCC from the construction of new telecasting stations pending a long study of the allocation of wave bands. This prevented the normal expansion of the market for sets. This, probably more than anything else, is to blame for the high inventories burdening both manufacturers and retailers today.

2. The color controversy heard thousands of prospects out of the market. This might have largely passed. Most people now believe what manufacturers told them at the start: that color TV will be a long time in coming.

3. In melting the new-station freeze, the FCC announced it would license telecasting in ultra high frequencies as well as in very high frequencies. This is frightening prospects again.

4. A 10 per cent manufacturers' tax has been slapped on sets.

5. Consumer credit controls have been imposed, requiring 25 per cent down payments. TV dealers have asked the Federal Reserve Board to modify Regulation W so that trade-ins can be counted as part of down payments, as they may be on autos. The FRB has refused to act on this plea. It's all right on autos, it says, because it's a "traditional trade practice." TV, it seems, is too young to have traditions. The industry is still pressing the point, however.

Meanwhile, several thousand television factory workers have been laid off and sets have piled up in many retail outlets. Several manufacturers and a lot of retailers have trimmed prices.

The long-range prospects of the industry are good. As materials are available, telecasting stations will rise in all well-populated areas. Programs are improving, though not as fast as professional critics think they should. In many instances, the quality of the product is better than that of the retailers can hold out—and if their bankers can't they will probably find that the best days are yet to come.

$2.98 HOUSEDRESS
FAILS TO VANISH
The end of the $2.98 housedress was freely predicted in the industry a few months ago. The high cost of labor piled on the rising price of cotton would put this item in limbo with the 5-cent cup of coffee, all the experts said.

Despite all this, dresses in this bracket are still available. A lot of them show effects of short cuts and economies, but buyers say some of them are satisfactorily made.

Because men forget the size of their necks, a shirt company has gained a lot of publicity and good will among dealers.

It put out a "Neck-o-Meter," consisting of a plastic tape marked off in neckband sizes. It can be slipped around a neck and, when pulled, the comfortable dimension indicates the proper size. The company, Marlboro Shirt Co., Paca and Lombard Sts., Baltimore, has received requests for 20,000 meters from dealers.

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT (For HAL BOYLE)

NEW YORK—If you want to get along with night club chorus girls, don't call them chorus girls.

Call them dancers. Don't think that mink will make up for what you lack in good intentions.

Don't assume they're all nit-wits. Many have been to college. Don't whistle or make passes at them from your table. They'll cut you dead.

Don't assume they're dancing just to entertain the tired business man. Most have been trained in ballet and modern dance are deadly serious about their careers.

Don't invite them to your table if you're drunk. They won't come. And remember, in just about every decent night club it's understood the girls don't leave the place with the customers.

Don't tell them about your Texas oil wells. These girls have been exposed to every line known to man or wolf.

And if you actually do own an oil well and she smiles at you, don't draw any conclusions on your progress. Chances are she's engaged to marry a $75 a week trumpet player.

Do try to talk to them about books and art and the more serious things of life. Many are well traveled, well read and well informed.

Don't assume the girls go out on dates every night. "Most of us," says one, "are home four or five nights a week doing our laundry or housework."

All this information comes from Fletcher and Arden, a producing agency which "packages" musical revues for night clubs in New York, Boston, Miami, New Orleans, Cincinnati and Paris, France.

"Today's chorus girl is far different from the girls in the line in the old days," says Don Fletcher, who employs 150 of them. "She's more intelligent, by far more serious, more moral, more mature, chic but not flashy or brassy."

"We just don't stand around any more on a stage and look pretty," says blue-eyed Joy Skyler, a Fletcher and Arden dancer. "In the old days, they just lined us up in a straight line, we posed, kicked three times and were off."

"Today we try to do work with some meaning and taste. We frequently work in abstract patterns, doing a combination of ballet, modern dance and musical comedy. We don't stand around and giggle and roll our eyes. We play for an audience, not to them."

Fletcher says half of his girls have been to college and about a third are married. "We want beautiful girls," he says, "but we also want girls who are smart looking, wholesome, mature and levelheaded."

"The average age among our girls is between 22 and 24. If you get them younger, they're likely to be silly and gullible. You know, the kind who'll sit at a bar with a man, get drunk with him on three martinis and fall for his propaganda about having two million dollars."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Wind tunnels, supersonic flight and automatic transmissions for automobiles are subjects usually discussed at meetings of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME). At a recent session of the Washington section, however, the engineers brought along their womenfolk and talked about something closer to home—"planned kitchens."

What they heard made them want to go back and tear the house apart.

Mr. D. E. Walters (of the AVCO Manufacturing Corp.) of Pittsburgh showed members of the section and their wives how a "Kitchen Institute" had figured housewives could save 1,000 steps a day if their kitchens were properly planned.

"They found out how much time is wasted by considerable research," Mr. Walters told me. "They set up different kitchens—one wall, two wall kitchens, kitchens with islands and such—designed by architects, home-builders and others. Then they put pedometers on home economists to measure the effort they spent on every project from dish washing to cake-baking."

Mr. Walters said the researchers found that the 1,000 steps wasted daily in poorly-planned kitchens was equivalent to two hours spent in the kitchen daily. They also figured a woman spends about 600 hours a year in the kitchen.

"This is almost equal to a two-week vacation," Mr. Walters said. "We've figured out how much a woman's time is worth—about $1.50 an hour."

"A properly-planned kitchen," he said, "is usually triangular, U or L-shaped."

"The kitchen is the focal point in every home. The family's health and happiness depends on it. It should be planned first and the house built around it," Mr. Walters said.

"The ASME Washington section boasts some 650 members, many of them working on important projects for Uncle Sam." G. A. Vacca, chairman, is with the Guided Missiles Branch of the Navy's Bureau of Ships. Vice-Chairman C. C. Vogt is with the Naval Ordnance Laboratory. John W. Sawyer, assistant secretary, also with the Bureau of Ships, is in propulsion research. W. G. Allen, member of the executive committee, is with the Maritime Commission.

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 3

When Denton's body was found, the Double D crew were hellbent on riding right over to the Star and tearing it apart, but were dissuaded by Silverstone's marshal, Al Sanders, who pleaded for a chance to track the murderer down. But the time he was forced to be admission that the task was beyond him, the Star was prepared for attack, and the two outfits marked time, snapping and growling at each other like strange dogs and hiring all the hands they could possibly round up.

They talked for a while longer, and when he had pumped the old fellow dry Jeff got up, told him to finish the bottle, and went out to stroll about town and piece out the information he had acquired.

From where he stood it appeared to Jeff as though he were engaged in a just cause. The Double D had lost cattle, and the Star was suspected of stealing them. Dan Denton was shot in the back and the only ones who had cause to murder him were the members of the Starr family or their crew. Mrs. Denton's desire to drive them out of the valley was quite understandable, even commendable. It was public range and belonged to the one who could hold it.

He was approaching the Bonanza on his way to the hotel when an outburst of shots reached him and he saw Star men surging from the saloon to mass on the sidewalk. At the same time he saw the Double D men come pushing out of the Purple Palace across the street. He hurried his steps and presently could make out the cause of the disturbance. Two indistinct figures were fighting in the street, their quickly shifting feet stirring the dust.

Jeff halted, quick-eyed and alert. This might be the beginning of a fierce and bloody war. If six-guns began to flame—

A man came up, panting, and stopped to peer through the gloom at Jeff. He was a big man and Jeff caught the dull shine of a badge on his vest. He said, "You are a stranger, ain't you? Help me separate them or all hell is gonna bust loose."

Jeff said, "Let's go!" and they ran out into the street.

A man left the Starr crew and went loping towards the two fighters, and when he shouted Jeff recognized the voice of Ed Keever. He was calling, "Stop it, Blandon! You danced fool, I said stop it!" He seized one of the fighters by an arm and tried to pull him away. His opponent promptly socked Blandon on the chin, and Blandon, cursing in rage, tore away from Keever and sprang to retaliate.

Jeff and the marshal arrived, and while the lawman and Keever pulled Blandon away, Jeff interposed his bulk between the two fighters. The Double D puncher said thickly, "Get out the way, feller, or I'll let you have it!"

Jeff said, "Let her fly!" and when the fellow did so, ducked, caught the swinging arm and turned and bent swiftly, hurling the man over his back. He hit the street with a thud. Jeff straightened and faced the Double D crew.

"That ends it," he said sharply. "There'll be no war started tonight."

The man he had thrown got slowly to his feet and Jeff hazed him over to his own side of the street.

Jeff joined the marshal on the sidewalk, and the lawman said, "Thanks for the help. But look out for that feller you throwed. He's Shag Dolan and he's bad medicine."

"I've swallowed a heap of bad medicine in my time," Jeff told him. "Not this kind. Shag's prussic acid. Prussic acid—and lead."

Jeff went to bed that night committed to the fight on Diana Denton's side. From what he had heard it was a just fight, one into which he could fling himself heart and soul. Right or wrong he would have sided with her, the victim of her charm and beauty.

It was nearing noon when he reached the upper end of the valley and started crossing the heads of the hills which jutted into the basin. At noon the Star buildings were below him and he was close to the gap through which the creek entered. He started following the stream seeking a place to cross and came at last to a path. The path led him to a small clearing in the midst of a grove of trees, and in the clearing he saw a log cabin. Here, he decided, he could inquire about a ford. He rode towards the cabin.

A girl came out of the doorway and stood watching him. She wore levis and a flannel shirt with a gay scarf about her neck and she made a charming picture to anyone whose thoughts were not on Diana Denton. Jeff did notice that her hair was the color of polished bronze and that the eyes which regarded him through their fringe of long dark lashes were hazel in color. Her skin was smooth and richly tanned and there were freckles on the pert nose.

He halted his horse, touched the brim of his hat and said, "Howdy, Miss. Could you tell me where I can cross the creek and keep my feet dry?"

The answer came in a clear, soft contralto. "Of course. Just follow the path on the other side of the clearing."

He smiled. "Thanks a lot." He glanced about him admiringly. "This sure is a lovely spot. And by the smell which comes from your kitchen there must be trout in this creek."

She smiled back at him and he saw white even teeth and a dimple in one cheek. "Yes, it's lovely and there are trout in the creek. Why don't you get down and sample my cooking?"

Jeff thanked her again and dismounted. The table with the checkered cloth was set for two and the girl smilingly waved him to a place and sat down opposite him.

There were grilled trout, potatoes, stewed tomatoes and fresh baked bread, and they ate with the avid appetite of youth and good health, wasting little time in conversation.

They topped off the meal with dried apple pie of which Jeff was persuaded to have a second helping, and when at last they rose Jeff grinned at her and said, "That sure was a swell meal, Miss."

"My name is Ruth."

"I'm Jeff. Mighty good at wiping dishes, if I do say so myself."

"Don't bother; there are so few of them I can do them in a jiffy."

She got up and he rose with her. She said, "That trail across the creek doesn't lead to any place in particular. Just to the Double D ranch."

FIREFBALL POWERED

It started the day the 1951 ROADMASTER made its first appearance—and has been building up ever since.

East Carolina Trounces High Point Panthers By 14-7

Pirates Start Fast In Taming Panthers

HIGH POINT — East Carolina's Pirates wound up their western road trip yesterday afternoon by trouncing the cellar-dwellers of the North State Conference, High Point, by the score of 14-7.

The power punch of Paul Jones and co-captain Jack Wallace enabled the visiting Bucs to make the best use of 14 hits to send across the 14 tallies. Each contributed a triple to the attack as well as one single.

McSwain also added two singles to aid the East Carolina cause. The Pirates opened up in the top of the first frame to score four runs, flashing back in the top of the third to send across five additional runs to give them a margin of victory.

Both starting pitchers, Swiggett of High Point and Martin Byrd of East Carolina, went the distance on the mound. Byrd fanned nine men in the contest while Swiggett struck out only three.

The Pirates in their westward tour this week also added a 6-1 victory over the Catawba Indians in conference play.

Eagles Hit Pay Dirt In Sixth

The Kinston Eagles nosed out the Greenville Robins 6-5 last night behind the seven-hit twirling of Wilson and Parrish.

Kinston drew first blood when they scored one run in the bottom of the first. The Robins went ahead in the top of the second when they pushed across three runs. The Robins held the lead until the Eagles found the range in the sixth and exploded with three more runs. That outburst proved to be enough margin for victory.

Bennett started on the hill for the Robins and was followed by Jim Yieder and Leo Day.

Joe Guidice and Manager John Strea led the Robins attack with a double and single apiece. Sandy DeMartino also had a double to round out the extra base blows.

Scouting Awards Distributed By Court Of Honor

By CHESTER WALSH
Dr. H. Glenn Haney, chaplain of the American Legion Post, centered his brief address at the District Boy Scout Court of Honor last night around the saying, "The only thing you can make a man out of is a boy."

He reviewed the good work of scouting, praised the leaders and encouraged the boys to continue to win merit badges and other honors.

He quoted from a poem the legend, "I can wreck in a day or two what men have taken years to build," and then reminded the Boy Scouts that there are two kinds of people in the world—builders and wreckers.

"Scouting is the process of building and scouting will contribute much to making you better citizens," Dr. Haney said in concluding.

Lester Turnage, district committeeman, presented the speaker.

Frank Steinbeck, awards chairman, presided. The opening ceremony, lighting of candles and recitation of lines about what scouting means was impressive.

Clinton Joyner, scoutmaster of Troop 33, directed the opening ceremony of presentation of the Bible and Flag and the Pledge of Allegiance.

J. B. Kittrell, district chairman for Pitt County Boy Scouts, welcomed those present. He paid tribute to Boy Scout leaders and said parents owe much to Frank Steinbeck, awards chairman, for the work he is doing. Kittrell, in urging more parents to attend the courts of honor, pointed out in the audience a mother, Mrs. Reid H. Laney and her baby, Patricia Laney, and complimented her and other parents for being present.

Following is a list of awards:

First Class—Troop 33, Robert J. Howell and Robert T. Harrison, Troop 30, Lloyd Bray and Jimmie Pleasants.

Second Class — Troop 9, Leroy Carraway, Mack Dupree, Douglas Parker, Burley Clark, Major Tyson, John Ashley Carraway, Pete Manning, Howard Bullock, Melvin Hawthaw, Robert Bullock, Clyde Brewer, Bobby Thomas, Gene Bell, Dempsey Parker and Wayne Clark.

Troop 185, Larry Jorgensen, Troop 36, David Zieour and Tommie Salsed, Troop 30, Ormon Whichard, Eddie Lee, Billy K. Willis and Billy Sermons, Troop 33, William T. Nichols, Abner Eason, Harold Edwards and Raymond L. Smith.

Merit Badges—Troop 30, Charles E. Godley, firemanship; John Newell, Jr., first aid. Troop 33, Kelly

Barnhill, firemanship; Wilbur Forrest, dog care, home repairs and firemanship; J. Ficklen, Arthur horsemanship; Billie Nichols, home repairs; Lloyd Bray, ship No. 1, home repairs. Troop 205, Morris Morrow, airplane structure, home repairs, airplane design, art and angling (five badges); Nelson M. Broughton, home repairs; Jack Stokes, first aid; Hulton Hunsucker, reading, and George T. Eaton, music.

Eaton was out of the city and his mother received his merit badge.

J. B. Kittrell presented special awards to Troop No. 30, the Ayden Dispatch, Daily Reflector, Robert (Bob) Wolff and Jack Dowdy.

Jack Dowdy, district commissioner, spoke briefly in review of present and planned activities. He reminded that there will be some prominent personages at the Boy Scout Campore at Wilson next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

H. L. Hodges . . .

Jack Horton was presented a silver tray as a token of the club's appreciation for the work which he has done in connection with the improvements which have been made at the club during the past year.

The stockholders gave a rising vote of thanks to President Polger, Pro Harold Thomas and Secretary-treasurer Howard Waldrop and Mrs. Waldrop for the work they have done for the club during the past year.

The financial report of the club was made by Secretary-treasurer Waldrop, and explained by John Proctor, auditor for the club, who said the club was in good financial condition.

Reynolds May made the presentations of the awards which were won by member golfers in the President's Cup tournament and the club golf tournament last spring.

Cases Heard In Superior Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Superior Court today, Judge Leo Carr of Burlington sentenced Major Johnson, 34-year-old Negro barber, to four years on the roads on charges of secret assault and larceny. Johnson, under probation, violated the order and will have to serve an additional 90-day sentence.

The court recommended that no parole be allowed Johnson.

Johnson, who was charged with secret assault on Mrs. Olive Batts, Negro, 1206 Factory Street, with a rifle last Saturday night, pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon. The court gave him two years on the roads.

Johnson also pleaded guilty of larceny of a watch from Roy Payton, Negro, 519 Ford Street. The court gave him two years on the roads on this charge.

Cases disposed of in Superior Court Tuesday included the following:

In the case of Willie J. Knight, illegal sale of ABC whiskey, the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Judge Leo Carr will pronounce sentence later.

James H. Carter, colored, driving drunk and property damage, pleaded guilty. The court gave him six months on the roads, suspended on condition that he pay a fine of $100 and costs and $30 to the Greenville Utilities Commission for property damage.

Thomas Hardy Jr., colored, was not guilty of buying stolen property (a watch).

At Monday afternoon's session the following cases were not pressed with leave: Esther Meelod, assault; Ben F. Singleton, assault on a female; Etta Harris, assault; Jack Harris, assault on a female; Ruth Harris, assault.

The following cases were continued: Connie Alexander Lovett, non-support and contempt; Walter Lee Dail, liquor case; Walter Lee Dail, trespass.

In the case of James Jake Capper, assault with a deadly weapon, the
