O'Dwyer Accused Aiding Growth Organized Crime

Kefauver Report Charges Former Mayor Of New York Contributed To Spread Of Crime; Legislation Recommended; Corruption Found At All Levels

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate crime investigators today accused Ambassador William O'Dwyer of contributing to the growth of organized crime in New York City, where they said underworld kingpin Frank Costello is a power in Democratic politics.

O'Dwyer was New York's mayor from 1946 until last fall when President Truman appointed him Ambassador to Mexico. From 1946 to 1949 O'Dwyer was District Attorney of Kings County (Brooklyn).

Referring to O'Dwyer's tenure as Mayor and District Attorney, the crime committee had this to say in a lengthy and hard-hitting report on his year-long probe of gangsterism:

"Neither he nor his appointees took any effective action against the top echelons of the gambling, narcotics, water-front, murder, bookmaking rackets. In fact, his actions impeded promising investigations of such rackets."

And after a lengthy detailing of Costello's alleged political manipulations, the Senate committee headed by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), summed up in these words: "It is apparent to the committee that despite Costello's protestations, his sinister influence is still strong in the councils of the Democratic Party organization of New York City."

The Senators devoted about 35 pages of the 196-page report to their New York City investigation, where O'Dwyer and Costello were the major witnesses at hearings viewed on television by upwards of 20,000,000 persons.

The report also asked Congress for a batch of laws aimed at throttling the nation's big crime and gambling syndicates by cutting the profits out from under them.

They recommended legislation to outlaw transmission across state lines of information for illegal gambling, to prohibit illegal gambling losses or expenses from being deducted for income tax purposes, to deny use of the mails or other interstate communications to make or pay off bets, to ban the interstate transmission of punchboards, roulette wheels and other gaming devices, and to require gambling casinos to keep detailed records of money won and lost.

The committee also called for tougher tax laws and penalties to trip up gangsters, including requirements for full records of income and expenses and statements of "net worth."

They said, however, that the primary responsibility for cleaning up the underworld rests with state and local officials.

The senators said they found corruption and connivance at all levels of government—federal, state and local.

One of their major conclusions was this:

Newspaper's Birthday

A Salute To A Member Of The Fourth Estate Which Is Observing Its 100th Anniversary; Importance Of A Well-Informed Public In Days Of Crisis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Our column today turns aside from foreign affairs to record a notable event in America's newspaper world—the 100th anniversary of the Dixon (Ill.) Evening Telegraph.

The fact that this veteran worker for the fourth estate has arrived at its centennial is in itself proof of duty well and truly done. No newspaper could have survived the vicissitudes of the past century if it hadn't rendered outstanding service to its public.

Those five score years encompass the most vital developments of our history subsequent to the Revolution. Daily the Telegraph had to praise and record the details of this mighty and unprecedented surge of national progress. It was a task to test the mettle of any newspaper.

The Telegraph was nine years old when Abraham Lincoln, speaking at the Republican state convention, Springfield, Ill., made his prophetic declaration: "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free."

City Preparing For Street Aid

Preliminary Steps Taken To Supply State Commission With Information Needed For Powell Bill Street Funds

Mayor W. S. Stafford of Greenville said today preliminary steps are being taken in preparation for supplying the State Highway and Public Works Commission with information necessary to secure the city's street allotment under the Powell bill.

The Powell bill which was passed by the General Assembly on March 15, provided that municipalities throughout the state be given an allotment each year from highway funds to help with the maintenance of city streets.

In a letter last week from Henry W. Jordan, chairman of the highway commission, Stafford was informed officially of the information which will be needed by the commission in compiling the city's allotment of funds for maintenance of city streets under the act of the recent General Assembly.

The mayor said yesterday he will bring the matter before the city aldermen when that body meets Thursday night.

The allocation of funds from the state highway commission is to be made to the municipalities of the state upon the basis of population and street mileage. Stafford said Greenville has complied with the eligibility provision of the act which requires that a municipality, in order to receive highway funds, must have held a city election since 1947, and must levy an ad valorem tax or provide other funds for the general operating expenses of the municipality.

According to the letter received by the mayor, the street mileage of the city must be submitted to the commission not later than August 1, and must be certified by an engineer that the mileage is correct to the nearest one-hundredth of a mile. Stafford indicated the aide-man must decide whether a complete new survey of street mileage in Greenville is necessary to furnish the information required by the highway commission.

According to the stipulation of the Powell bill, a street must have a width of at least 16 feet to be counted in the street mileage of the city.

Mayor Stafford estimated the city of Greenville at the present time has approximately 38 miles of paved streets, and a total street mileage of 75 miles.

The first of the annual allotments to the municipalities under the Powell bill are to be made not later than October 1, 1951.

Labor Claims Victory In Mobilization Fight

United Labor Policy Committee Sets Out To Convince Congress Stronger Price Controls Are Necessary

WASHINGTON (UP)—Organized labor, claiming victory in its mobilization fight, set out today to convince Congress that stronger price controls are needed.

The AFL-CIO United Labor Policy Committee directed the "immediate return" of union officials to government posts they quit two months ago in a boycott of defense agencies.

The committee said the entire nation would benefit from its walk-out, which it called a protest against "big business domination" of the mobilization program.

But it said the "cards are still stacked against the consuming public" and demanded that Congress write tough price controls into the Defense Production Act.

The committee also called for tougher tax laws and penalties to trip up gangsters, including requirements for full records of income and expenses and statements of "net worth."

They said, however, that the primary responsibility for cleaning up the underworld rests with state and local officials.

The senators said they found corruption and connivance at all levels of government—federal, state and local.

One of their major conclusions was this:

Despite known arrest records and well-documented criminal reputations, the leading hoodlums in the country remain, for the most part, immune from prosecution and punishment, although underlings of their gangs may on occasion be prosecuted and punished.

This quasi-immunity of top-level mobsters can be ascribed to what is popularly known as the "fix."

The committee said that although it had run across considerable evidence of bribery, the fix is not always to law-enforcement officials.

Probers Laud News Coverage

Senators Say Public Attention Focused On Inquiry Into Underworld

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newspaper and television coverage was credited by the Senate Crime Committee today with focusing public attention on its spectacular inquiry into the underworld.

Magazines, radio and the news-reels came in for praise, too. "It is doubtful indeed if the activities of any similar governmental group has received such widespread coverage as was given to the hearings and reports of this committee," the group said.

It noted that the testimony it heard, particularly in New York and Washington, was carried into millions of homes "via the newest electronic communications device—television."

"The committee recognizes that a major part of the credit for the vital impact on this committee's most recent hearings on the public was due to the televising of the sessions," the group said in its report.

"Never, prior to that time, had a congressional hearing received such a public airing or viewing, nor before such a huge audience. It has been estimated that the hearings in New York were watched by upward of 30,000,000 persons."

These telecasts x x x have had a most salutary effect in awakening the public to the menace of organized racketeering that now confronts our national life.

Newspapers, the committee continued, were helpful not only because of the widespread coverage they gave to the hearings and reports but because of their "archives of information about crime, all of which were freely made available to the committee." The report continued:

"The crime reporters of many great newspapers have been of invaluable assistance to the committee. The willingness and courage of the press in printing full information on the activities of gangsters, criminals and their political protectors have achieved many notable results in improved law enforcement."

At times, the committee was helped by the constructive criticism of some of the local press. x x x

Lawmaker Found Guilty Taking Illegal 'Gifts'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Walter E. Brehm (R-O), found guilty of taking illegal salary kickbacks, pledged a fight today to clear himself.

A federal jury found Brehm guilty last night on five counts of violating the federal Corrupt Practices Act by taking illegal campaign contributions from a former woman employee.

The 58-year-old former dentist, now in his fifth congressional term, faces a maximum penalty of three years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine on each count. The jury deliberated four hours and 18 minutes.

The labor policy committee also announced its "nominations" of President George M. Harrison of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL) as assistant to Charles E. Wilson on a level with Sidney Weinberg, the mobilization chief's right-hand man.

Bradley Called Upon For Explanation Of Big Leak

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators called on Gen. Omar N. Bradley today to explain how a former top secret account of President Truman's Wake Island conference with Gen. Douglas MacArthur came into existence.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of two committees looking into the policy dispute involved in the President's firing of MacArthur, said a Pacific commander, told a reporter he had asked Bradley to state in a letter to him how the report was prepared. Bradley is chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Despite its top secret classification, what was described as a summary of the report was published recently. Some republicans accused the administration of having "leaked" the document in an attempt to discredit MacArthur.

Among other things, the account as published in the New York Times, described MacArthur as not believing at the October, 1950, conference that Red China would intervene in the Korean fighting.

Russell will preside when the senate armed services and foreign relations committees formally open an inquiry Thursday with MacArthur as the first witness into the policy disagreement. Russell is chairman of the armed services committee.

As a preliminary to those hearings, which the groups have voted to hold behind closed doors, senators yesterday questioned Felix Larkin, general counsel of the defense department.

Reds Recoil From Seoul To Attack Center Of UN Line

Early Warning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer advised President Truman nearly four years ago that Korea was threatened by a "Soviet-controlled invasion of North Korean forces."

This was disclosed today with release of the top-secret report on Korea that Wedemeyer submitted to Mr. Truman September 9, 1947.

The report, with certain parts deleted, was made public by the Senate Armed Services Committee in advance of its inquiry into the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Wedemeyer advised against U.S. removal of its forces from Korea pointing out that the Russians dominated North Koreans through Communists.

"There is considerable unrest in South Korea," the report said, "but forces available to General Hodge are adequate to cope with it and to maintain order, though completely inadequate, even with maximum assistance from General MacArthur, to meet Soviet-controlled invasion of North Korean forces."

Planked by Deputy Prime Ministers V. M. Molotov, G. M. Malenkov, L. P. Beria and other members of the Politburo, Stalin stood in the light rain to see the air force section of the parade led by his son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, a commander of air force units in Moscow.

Military planes flew over Red Square, among them four engine bombers and jet fighters.

Marshall A. M. Vasilevsky, Minister of War, delivered the keynote address from atop Lenin's Tomb. He attacked "American imperialists" who he said were preparing a new war, and declared that the Soviet people always could rely upon the Soviet army and fleet as prepared to fulfill their duty.

Vasilevsky said Soviet foreign policy is clear: a policy of peace. But the Americans, he said, have been waging for 10 months "an unjust war of annexation in Korea" which aroused indignation of all peoples.

The speech was delivered in the presence of the foreign diplomatic corps, including military and naval attaches. Among those present were Sir David Kelly, British Ambassador; Yves Chataigneau, French Ambassador; Manlio Brosio, Italian Ambassador; S. Radakrishnan, Indian Ambassador; and others. U. S. Ambassador Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at present is in Tbilisi, capital of the Georgian S. S. R., on a vacation trip, and the Americans were represented at the parade by counsel of the embassy Hugh Cummings.

A group of 18 American trade unionists headed by Esther Goldberg of New York, here as guests of the Soviet Union, was among the spectators. A delegation of British workers also was present.

FARMER'S ARSENAL
ASMARA, Eritrea (AP)—Giuseppe Bettiga, 49, an Italian farmer, is to stand trial before the British General Court here on charges of illegal possession of: more than 400 phials of morphine; more than 200 rounds of ammunition; three hand grenades; and some 600 cartridges.

Early Voting In Farmville Light
FARMVILLE—According to City Clerk C. M. Paylor, the city elections in Farmville for commissioners and mayor are very light and not much interest has been shown.

As compared to voting in previous years, 832 people voted in 1949 and 689 voted four years ago. That is compared with the low number of 137 that had voted up until 12 noon today but the polls will be open until 7 o'clock tonight.

Walter Jones is unopposed for mayor and Fred C. Moore, Claude Joyner, O. G. Spill, John M. Stanclil, and R. O. Lang, Jr. are running for re-election to the Board of Commissioners. New candidates are H. C. Outland, P. R. Mizelle, H. Horton Rountree, and Ellis J. Rabl. The five men elected as city commissioners will go into office on July 1.

Talk Adjusting Freight Rates
Businessmen representing between 12 and 15 Greenville business firms met last night under the auspices of the transportation committee of the local Chamber of Commerce to discuss freight rates on items being shipped into Greenville.

The local businessmen discussed with representatives of a freight rate adjustment agency of Raleigh the possibilities of recovering overcharges on freight bills for freight being shipped into Greenville.

No official action was taken by the group at the meeting.

Britain To Shut Down Consulates
LONDON (UP)—Britain will shut down six consulates in Red China this month because of lack of business and "increasing difficulties" of operations, it was learned today.

The consulates to be closed are at Amoy, Chungking, Hankow, Kunming, Nanking, and Tsingtao. Surviving ones are at Shanghai, Canton, Tientsin and Peiping.

Red China has consistently rebuffed British efforts for full diplomatic relations since Britain recognized the communist regime 11 months ago.

Stalin Reviews Marching Might In Reds' May Day

Moscow Celebration Again Marked By Attacks On United States

MOSCOW (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin reviewed Moscow's giant May Day parade today. The international working class day celebration here was keyed by attacks on the United States and insistence that the Soviet policy is one of peace.

The Soviet leader received the applause of massed thousands in Red Square as he made his appearance atop Lenin's Tomb to watch Moscow's military garrison roll by in a half-hour march. After the soldiers came a parade of workers.

Planked by Deputy Prime Ministers V. M. Molotov, G. M. Malenkov, L. P. Beria and other members of the Politburo, Stalin stood in the light rain to see the air force section of the parade led by his son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, a commander of air force units in Moscow.

Massing Troops In Reckless Daylight Movement For Push On West-Central Front; Allied Guns And Planes Blast Enemy; Air War Again Flares Briefly; MIG Is Downed

TOKYO, Wednesday (UP)—Red Chinese siege forces recoiled from Seoul Tuesday. They began massing their troops 50 miles west, toward Central Korea.

The enemy moved forward recklessly in broad daylight toward the Chunchon-Hongchon corridor under the blasting of allied warplanes and artillery.

Allied staff officers said the command "is closed the Hwachon Reservoir flood gates. They apparently wanted to drop the level of the Han and Pukhan rivers before unleashing a drive to cross them."

Allied lines on the Central Front now are south of these two rivers. The anticipated May Day assault on Seoul failed to materialize. Instead the Chinese withdrew northward to escape a furious pounding by 400 big guns set up in the former South Korean capital.

Only a few Reds were found in areas strongly held as late as Monday.

The enemy presumably had decided to aim the second round of the Spring "end-of-the-war" offensive down the spiny center of the Korean peninsula toward Yaju on the southward bend of the Han, which probably would force the 8th Army to give up Seoul without a fight, to protect its rear and flanks.

"No significant activity was reported along the Central Korean Front as U.N. forces continued to patrol aggressively in search of an elusive foe," a communique said.

"Little or no enemy contact was reported on the eastern Korean Front as U.N. forces patrolled and readjusted positions."

The air war flared briefly over Northwest Korea for the first time in five days. Twenty-five American Sabrejets defeated an even greater number of Soviet-built jet fighters 20 miles below the Manchurian border.

The dogfight swirled from 40,000 down to 2,000 feet and ended with four communist MIG-15s damaged, one probably destroyed and the rest in flight toward Manchuria.

U.N. planes and guns raked the enemy columns with a drumfire bombardment that killed or wounded hundreds of communist troops.

Planes also bombed, strafed and rocketed communist vehicles rushing reinforcements and supplies south to replace the 7,000 or more Chinese troops lost in the first eight days of the enemy offensive.

Allied aircraft spotted more than 3,000 enemy vehicles Monday and destroyed or damaged 700. The raiders ran into intensive ground fire and two F-51 Mustangs were shot down.

Pitt Scout Patrols Bring Home Ribbons

Seven Win Top Awards; Approximately 130 Scouts From District Attended Annual Camporee Event In Wilson

Seven Boy Scout patrols from the Pitt district brought home blue ribbons from the annual East Carolina Council Camporee held last weekend in Wilson.

There were 257 patrols participating in the three-day outing, and camporee officials set the attendance at the event at 2,380. It was the largest camporee held in the history of the council; and in addition to the large number of Scouts, the camporee officials said the quality of the exhibits, camping skills and scoutcraft displayed at the camporee was much higher than in previous years.

In addition to the seven patrols from the Pitt district which won blue ribbons, the highest award given at the camporee, there were seven patrols from the district which won red ribbons and four patrols which were awarded white ribbons. Only two patrols from the district failed to receive ribbons.

Approximately 130 boys from the Pitt district attended the camporee. The patrols of the Pitt district which were awarded blue ribbons, according to the official camporee records, were:

Farley Expects Public Reaction
NEW YORK (UP)—Former Postmaster General James A. Farley said last night that the "scandalous conduct of many public officials" will give rise to a "loud demand for a leadership that understands the meaning of good government."

Farley, who managed the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's first two presidential election campaigns, said failure of a "segment of our leadership" to obey moral and legal restraints has been shown by recent investigations.

Future Soldier
MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — (AP)—Arthur MacArthur has let it be known he wants to follow in his father's footsteps.

When asked by a reporter if he would accept an appointment to West Point, the 13-year-old son of Gen. Douglas MacArthur answered with an enthusiastic "Yes!"

Arthur visited here yesterday with his parents to join in "Mrs. MacArthur Day" ceremonies at the former home of the general's wife.

Semi-Secret Hearing
Only Part Of What Our Military And Diplomatic Experts Have To Say On Foreign Affairs Will Be Made Public; Probable 'Leak' Of Great Value To Russia

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—From now on the Truman-MacArthur dispute will be a little less than wide open. The Senate inquiry into the case, starting Thursday, will be held behind closed doors.

The two big Senate committees conducting this inquiry, Armed Services and Foreign Relations, will call the chief characters in the drama behind those doors to state their case.

They will include General MacArthur, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and their chairman, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, and anyone else the committee wants to hear.

After each hearing, most of what was said in private will be made public in question and answer form. But some of the questions and answers will be scratched out of the copies made public.

The omitted parts will, in the opinion of the senators, involve national security.

In the give-and-take of public hearings information of the most secret nature might be blurted out, perhaps providing the Russians with more knowledge than they could have obtained from a battalion of spies in 10 years.

At least that might happen. Yesterday the senators on the two committees had to decide between public and private hearings. A majority of them voted for the closed-door variety.

Whether this procedure of telling the public less than everything will satisfy the public that it has learned the whole story remains to be seen. But certainly this method also makes possible very damaging "leaks."

Leaks are not new in this city where so many people have notoriously been unable to keep their mouths shut. And since some testimony will be withheld, a "leak" can distort the importance of what has been withheld.

Further, not all leaks come out on the day when an event occurred or a word was spoken. What is said today might be leaked next month or six months from now, preceded by waves of rumors on what was really said.

Greenville NCEA Unit Hears Convention Reports

The Greenville unit of the NCEA must teach the children to live in a world of tomorrow, which is rapidly becoming a global-minded world, rather than the world of yesterday.

Mrs. Sue Rouse reported on Dr. David H. Russell's talk on "How Concepts Are Developed." He based his thesis on four points; i.e., through understandings in subject matter, human relationships, life in a democracy, and moral and spiritual values.

Mrs. Wolff reported on the delegate's assembly stressing particularly the report of the Legislative Committee. She also gave highlights from the new NCEA president's address, where in he particularly stressed that overloaded classrooms often mean overlooked children; the help that is needed for exceptional children, especially the slow-learning child; and an advocacy of a state-enforced compulsory attendance law.

It was the general consensus that the delegates had brought back with them from the convention much that was of value to the teachers of Greenville.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE LATCH ON OUR SIDE

Very often as we pray, our prayers seem barren, little more than the mumbling over of a set form of words. At other times, one minute of earnest prayer will raise us to heights of exaltation. Why this tremendous swing between the mood of despair and the mood of ecstasy?

Sometimes the reason is physical. We are tired or below par in some way because the chemical instrument we call the body is out of adjustment in some particular. Too often we take our doubts and our sense of unworthiness with us when we go into the quiet place of prayer. We ask ourselves why God should do anything for us, and as we examine our own unworthiness we are pretty certain that God will not grant our requests. But we need to remember that God's gifts to us are not on the basis of our worth but on the basis of his love. We do not have to be worthy to receive—all we need is to be sincere, both in repentance for evil done and determination to do better.

But the thing which above all others keeps us from earnest prayer to God is our unwillingness to relinquish some sin or weakness which we cherish. We hold a grudge, we nourish a passion, we indulge a moral weakness. These things are barred doors between ourselves and God. The latch is on the inside of that door, and only we ourselves can unlock it.

The Trail Grows Colder Each Day

Revelations of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee have relinquished their commanding positions on the front pages of newspapers. The findings of the committee, however, remain of great concern in the minds of the people of the nation.

The initial findings which were brought to light in the first series of public hearings held by the committee made the people eager to know the whole story of how far crime has elbowed its way into the politics of the larger cities; and for that matter, how much of a foothold crime has upon the politics in the smaller cities and counties. The people were, and still are anxious for the findings of the hearings to be followed up with court action against those who have violated their positions of public trust while holding office, and against those who have violated their positions of public trust while holding office, and against those who are big cogs in the intricate crime machine in the United States.

In the meantime speculation is running high as to what will be done to those people who are accused by the committee of contributing to the growth of crime in the country without actually being criminals by profession. Will mayor O'Dwyer of New York be called to trial for allegedly cooperating with the criminals of New York? What about the sheriffs and other officers who have accepted gifts from the criminals and have closed their eyes to gambling and other illegal activities in the areas under their jurisdiction?

Light has been shed upon the truth of the criminal activities across the United States. But if the findings are not followed by positive action in the courts, all the muck which has been uncovered will remain where it is and continue to spread its contamination.

It will be September before the committee resumes its hearings on criminal activities throughout the country. But during the four months between now and then, the leads which already have been uncovered should not be allowed to grow cold.

Fundamentals Of The Two Systems

On one side of the Atlantic yesterday President Truman sent to Congress a bill for $60,000,000,000 for defense purposes. On the other side of the Atlantic, Aneurin Bevan, left-wing member of the British Parliament, told his constituents the United States is leading the world toward a "modern catastrophe."

In our opinion the "modern catastrophe" began several years ago and is continuing daily on the east side of the Atlantic. The great "modern catastrophe" is the decadence which the British nation has suffered under the socialistic government. The left-wing termites are striving to gnaw away more and more of the foundation of firm government in Britain with each passing month.

Bevan asserted that the United States has caused a world inflation through its stockpiling of goods for its mobilization program. He attacked the American plans to rearm by increasing production rather than cutting civilian consumption. The result, he said "will be such a shortage of raw materials all over the world as will produce a modern catastrophe."

The statement is typical of the decay of the British system of government under socialism, and likewise the decay of the desire to progress which the British people are suffering under the socialist system of doles.

The American plan is to build greater production capacity now that greater military production is needed, rather than cutting civilian production, and increasing military production thus keeping the same total production capacity. It is an ambitious step which reflects the nation's confidence in its ability to increase the capacity of its economy.

In the opinion of The Reflector, the contrast between the proposal of America which Bevan attacked, and the proposal of more free false teeth and more free spectacles for British subjects which he advocates reflects a great and fundamental truism... the youth and aggressiveness of American capitalism and free enterprise, and the old age and general decay of socialism wherever it is practiced.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Harry S. Truman is one high-placed American who will not greet this May Day in a springtime spirit of hope and happiness, despite his superficial jauntness.

It is doubtful if any Chief Executive has suffered such personal and political reverses as he has during the month when flowers unfold and birds sing their loveliest at the Nation's Capital.

It would not be surprising if he had made two resolves as a result of the impact of a series of unhappy events. It is probable that he decided that he would not be a candidate for reelection next year.

It is also probable that, in view of the role which General Douglas MacArthur played in his discomfiture, he fixed upon General "Ike" Eisenhower as his favorite candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952.

It would undoubtedly give Mr. Truman, in view of the personal way he reacts to external pressures, keen satisfaction if he could accomplish the nomination of the man whose military and foreign policy views are so different from those advocated by the retired general of the Army.

Personally, however, even this prospect must be scant consolation to Mr. Truman for the disappointments heaped upon him within the last few months. No President since Warren G. Harding has had reason for more regrets.

CRIMINAL—It is difficult even for White House observers to say which happening contributed most to their undoing. It was a combination of anti-Truman developments, plus his personal conduct, which together damaged the Democratic Party and many of the President's major foreign and domestic policies. The barrage strafed not only his front-line trenches but also his private dugout.

The Kefauver Committee's televised hearings, for instance, disclosed a criminal alliance of the underworld, the police and politicians which cast discredit on Democratic organizations in the big cities and on some Truman appointees.

The testimony showed that, as sinister rulers of gambling syndicates in the metropolitan centers, men like Costello, Adonis and Gusk obtained favors and immunity from the bosses in return for political help on Election Day.

Neither President Truman nor Attorney General McGrath, who had tried originally to sidetrack the investigation, showed any indignation over these revelations. But they led even prominent Democratic Senators to ask for creation of commissions to act as moral guardians and trustees over the Administration.

CHISELLERS—The Fulbright expose of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation ranked second only to the Kefauver drama in discrediting the Truman regime. It placed the President in the embarrassing position of condoning and defending cheap chisellers who had used their White House connections to make money.

A White House secretary, for instance, collected an $8,900 mink coat from an R.F.C. client of her husband. Mr. Truman's personal director, Donald S. Dawson, forced the R.F.C. to make loans for personal and political reasons. Despite an invitation to testify, he refuses to explain his actions, and Mr. Truman backs him up.

Relatively, this was small, petty, perhaps "honest graft." But its very pettiness cheapened the Administration in the public's eyes.

BOOED—Regardless of the merits of the Truman-MacArthur controversy over foreign policy and military operations, the return of the hero of Bataan, the Pacific and Korea at this particular moment, hammered what many describe as the "last nail in the Democrats' political coffin." His reception in such Democratic centers as San Francisco, Washington and New York is too fresh in the public mind to require description here.

But the hysterical turnout to welcome a military man fired for insubordination was unprecedented in American politics and history. Nor did Mr. Truman help himself by sending Major General Harry S. Vaughan, his "deep freeze" military aide, to greet MacArthur, or by his refusal to participate personally in the welcoming ceremonies. It is the first time a hero of World War II has not been so honored.

As a footnote, it should be recorded that, on the day MacArthur received New York's wildest homecoming greeting, Mr. Truman was booed so badly at the opening game of the Washington baseball team's season that the Army band had to strike up with "Flourishes and Ruffles"—a highly appropriate number—to save the President from greater embarrassment.

Ironically, the Truman personality which once charmed his colleagues on Capitol Hill, contributed to his public and political difficulties.

Had he not described the original Fulbright report as "asinine," the Senate investigators would not have pressed their inquiry until it dug deep into the White House. They were also alienated by his abortive attempt to show that Congressmen were not ethical in their relationship with R.F.C. transactions.

His indifference toward the Kefauver project, reflected in Senator Tom Connally's remark that the committee was "chasing crabs," did not make him any friends among the underworld sleuths.

All Over Again

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Today's column doesn't offer a story about Greenville, but a good one from the World Jungle Compound at Thousand Oaks, California. Wild animals for the movies are trained at Thousand Oaks, and last month a fire in the World Jungle Compound destroyed a chimpanzee named Tamba and five others, which was the entire Hollywood's supply of chimpanzees actors.

This meant big trouble for Sam Katzman, producer of the Jungle Jim Series, which is a group of pictures that can be counted on to make money. Katzman simply had to hold up production on the Jungle Jim series until he could find a replacement for Tamba. After all, Tamba was the co-star of the series, along with Johnny Weissmuller.

So to find this replacement, Katzman started a talent search. Dozens of applicants came, but he sent away all but six. The six left had screen tests. Two were eliminated immediately because they shied away from the strong lights. One refused to take direction. Then the other four went into the big test. They had to retrieve bananas from chandeliers, walk through a mass of ash trays, drinking glasses, tables and boxes, hop into a pool (most chimps dread water), kiss several actors and actresses (Jungle Jim movies call for Tamba to kiss Johnny Weissmuller quite often).

The winner of the test was an ape without any experience on the stage. She is a female chimp named Peggy who has led a quiet life in the San Fernando Valley as the family pet of a rich rancher.

Wouldn't you know that it would happen to a rich man? Peggy's salary will start at $300 a week, she will become a star overnight with her new name, Tamba, she will have a servant hired for the one purpose of giving her rub-downs, as chimps have sluggish blood circulation and the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals requires that chimp actors get a good rubdown after swimming.

But for Peggy life won't be as much fun as it has been. With all of her money, she won't get a square meal. She will be kept hungry so that she can be encouraged to act by the reward of candy or bananas.

Last week Peggy faced the cameras in her first part in the Katzman production, "Jungle Safari." Katzman was very happy. He said, "She has a wonderfully expressive face, and she will be a big star."

The human actors on the set were beefing to beat the band. They said that the cursed ape was stealing all the scenes.

If you won't tell a soul, I'll admit that Peggy's $300 a week is more than I'm making. Frankly, it's discouraging to know that an ape can put you in the shade. And I thank you.

SPLINTER—Governor Scott told newsmen at his latest press conference that, in his opinion, the Republican party will afford the only real opposition to the Democratic ticket next year, and that the Democrats will carry North Carolina with usual majorities. The governor does not think of the so-called splinter parties, like States Rights or Dixiecrats, can gain a foothold in this state. These opinions were voiced soon after the governor had reiterated his belief that Harry Truman will again be the Democratic nominee for president. Scott had declared in Washington a few days before that he would support the Truman candidacy.

CHANCE—Newsmen asked what had brought about the change in attitude since 1947, when they reminded the governor he did not mention President Truman's name or put in a plug for the regular Democratic ticket throughout the general election campaign until the night before election day. Governor Scott explained that he had troubles of his own then. Reporters writing for admittedly pro-Scott papers sought to make it appear that failure to support Truman occurred in the primary rather than the general election campaign. Neither this attempt at side-stepping nor the governor's explanation can change the record.

FACTS—During the primary campaign Truman had not been nominated and there was strong sentiment among party leaders for some other presidential candidate. At that time Candidate Scott did have troubles of his own, and a spouse of the Truman cause would have been foolish. Fact is, after Scott was nominated for governor and Truman was nominated for president, Scott was not in the slightest danger but when there was serious threat of Truman's election and some doubt even that he would carry North Carolina, the candidate for governor did not lend a helping hand. Several other vigorous campaigners, two of whom have since died, did all they could for the entire ticket—from president down.

STALWARTS—Governor Scott said at the press conference that, then Governor Gregg Cherry deserves major credit for holding the state in line for the regular Democratic ticket. Many others have agreed that it was Cherry's courage at Philadelphia and his table attitude thereafter that prevented North Carolina joining neighboring southern states in the States Rights column. Another powerful influence in holding the line for the regular party was Joe Blythe, member and treasurer of the national Democratic committee.

STEADFAST—Cherry and Blythe stood steadfast against all efforts to take this state with the southern group headed by Thurmond and Wright, and to keep a trend in that direction from cutting into the Democratic vote enough to put the Republican vote in the state electoral college. Both were criticized for support of the national platform, including the hated Truman civil rights program. Both insisted that the place to work out differences among Democrats was within the party. Whether or not it was best for the state, historic fact is that Gregg Cherry and Joe Blythe played major part in keeping North Carolina in the Democratic fold in 1948. They had strong help from Senator William B. Umstead and Senator/Representative J. M. Broughton, who had defeated Umstead in the primary.

JOE Blythe died on January 22, 1949, and Senator Broughton died on March 6, after serving about two months of the six-year term to which he had been elected. At instance of Governor Scott, who had not lifted a hand to aid Truman in the election, a one-time Truman secretary, Jonathan Daniels, w-named national comm. eman in place of Blythe. Then Dr. Frank Graham was appointed to the senate in place of Broughton. Thereafter and until now the state administration headed by Governor Scott and the national administration headed by President Truman have maintained a sort of Gold Dust Twins relationship.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

On Picking A Governor (Henderson Daily Dispatch)

Among the things the recent legislature didn't do was to project a candidate for governor in next year's primaries, and that may be just as well. Apparently it was too engrossed in its own affairs, and that is all right too. But there will be no dearth of candidates.

Perhaps the most popular prospect at the moment is former Senator W. B. Umstead of Durham. But that runs into a snag if the old east-west tradition of rotation is to hold. West-erners already determined that it shall, and have already entered Associated Justice Sam Ervin of the Supreme Court in the contest. A boom is in the making also for Brandon Hodges, State treasurer, who is from Asheville, and whose star was rising rapidly several years ago when nipped by his defeat for the legislature.

Lynn Nisbet, of the Dispatch Raleigh bureau, says a lot more might have developed in behalf of Secretary of State Thad Eure and Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, both of whom hail from the east, but for respect for the east-west unwritten law.

Kerr Scott was as far west to be recognized as an eastern candidate in 1948 as Umstead would be east to be rated as a western gubernatorial aspirant in 1952. Both are from sections almost midway of the State. Scott had no scruples about the matter, and his success did much to beat down the tradition. Should Umstead win next year, the idea most likely will descend into the limbo of history. If it shall be said that the central part of the state is entitled to representation, then Scott was justified on that ground. It is a question, however, as to how long the east and west extremes would be willing to tolerate repetition of the process in immediate succession.

Of course, it is ridiculous to assume that a good man from the east would have to be barred in favor of a mediocrity from the west, or vice-versa, and that line of thinking could work to the advantage of Umstead, which is said wholly without reference to or reflection upon either of the very able gentlemen from the west already mentioned.

What effect the ancient theory may have in selection of a governor next year cannot be adequately appraised as far in advance as this. Except for that, however, Umstead would be several lengths ahead at the present time. Actually, his popularity may already have risen to such heights that he cannot be headed off. There again, though, it is quite too early to reach conclusions. The Johnson-Scott campaign proves that.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Department of Commerce is a lot calmer about the size of business inventories than a lot of business men are.

The total of business inventories at the beginning of March was $44,700,000,000, a gain of more than ten billion dollars since June. Part of the gain is due to the increased value higher prices put on inventories and part is due to accumulation of stocks at all levels, manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer.

However, this total, Commerce points out, bears about the same relation to sales as inventories have in previous periods of high business activity.

While the total may be healthy, there is considerable variation from industry to industry. Durable goods stocks, especially in basic metals, are relatively low. High inventories in apparel stand out in contrast to the low inventories in the petroleum, chemicals and rubber industries.

In apparel and related products, as of the first of March, manufacturers' inventories totaled $1,764,000,000, compared with $1,282,000,000 a year earlier—a gain of about 40 per cent. In textile mill products, manufacturers' inventories at the first of March totaled $3,041,000,000, compared with $2,010,000,000 a year earlier, a gain of 50 per cent.

In the retail trade, Commerce finds heavy inventories in apparel, general merchandise, certain home furnishings lines and building material and hardware.

Further expansion of the defense program may result in renewed attempts by business to expand manufacturing stocks, survey says. "Although some retailers in certain lines are now trying to liquidate stocks through post-Easter clearance, this underlying strength of the demand situation and prospective limitations on supplies as military output increases."

Last summer, heavy buying by consumers and the government began to reduce total inventories, but toward the end of the year demand eased a bit and inventories began to climb. Now they are at the highest total in history.

Added to this total is the government stockpile running into billions more. However, most of this will be kept off the market except for emergencies, and will not unsettle business.

COUPON MAKES SALES ON RAINY DAYS

Weather—it's usually too hot or too cold—is universally blamed by retailers for failure to sell as much as they hoped, and staistical surveys indicated that weather does have important effects on sales.

One retailer has figured a way to make rainy weather produce business for him. His advertisements include a coupon good for a $10 discount on purchases over a given amount, and only if it is raining when the coupon is presented.

CORPORATIONS RAID COLLEGES FOR GRADS

Business men planning to seek trained employees among college graduates may find they're too late if they haven't acted already. The large corporations have already signed up a large part of the June crop.

Engineers and physicists are in highest demand; most of the technical colleges have already been raided. Accounting grads are also in high demand.

Some companies have reconciled themselves to getting along with non-PHI Beta Kappa B.S.'s.

MILK MEN WORRY

OVER CANNING, FREEZING The dairy industry is concerned about the effects on its economy by the new whole-milk canning and quick-freeze concentrate processes.

These processes may do much to level off milk prices, since processors will want to buy milk at the lower prices during the flush seasons and hold over excesses to the dry seasons. However, by making it more convenient to have ready for use in kitchens, the processes may increase the total demand for milk.

Many farmers have a real worry, however. Milk for manufacturing processes brings lower prices than milk for bottling, and the canners and freezers may want to pay only the lower price.

WEATHER RESISTANT BANNERS ON WAY

Many inventions and developments during the last war later found profitable civilian applications. The same thing may happen again.

For instance, the Army has found that gun charts made of plastic film resist moisture, greases and chemicals. When plastic supplies become more plentiful, this use may be adaptable to outdoor posters, streamers, banners, signs, etc.

NEW AND HOT

HONEYMETER: For packers, inspectors and others, there's now a small refractometer for quick calculation of the moisture content of honey without use of tables for correction for temperature. (It's by Bausch and Lomb, 635 Paul St., Rochester, N. Y.)

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—An open letter to Joseph Stalin, care of the Kremlin, Moscow:

Dear Mr. Stalin:

As one Joe to another, I am just writing to wish you a happy May Day. This is supposed to be an international holiday for the working man, and us fellows in the third squad kind of wonder how you are celebrating it.

You guys in the Kremlin knocking off early today to watch the big parade? And afterward I'll bet you'll be hip-deep in caviar and vodka. Pretty nice, Joe, you got it made. That's the way for a working man to live. You've become the poor man's rich man in Russia.

Too bad you can't be with us here in Korea. We're having a parade also. But it's a noisy parade, and just means more work for us.

That's enough to make a guy see red, and you're seeing red? Nothing but red, Red Chinese. They organized this May Day parade, and it's one big bloody mess.

It's in your honor, Joe, and in the villages north of us, your propaganda agents are busy again pasting up your picture on every house door. The liberated gun point.

Koreans are cheering for you—at this parade is the third one your boys have organized to throw us out of Korea. It's the bloodiest one so far, but much as we don't think the parade is going to get all the way down to Pusan.

We'll give you one thing, Joe. Your parades are hard to break up. But your poor Chinese marchers don't have much choice. They have our guns in front of them—and your guns behind them to keep them from turning and running for home.

Being Reds is no fun for those poor peasants. Red is the color of life, Joe, but for them red is also the color of death. We kill so many of them that sometimes we have to pull back because our guns are too hot to fire anymore.

At your age, Joe, you should be ashamed of playing with puppets. Live puppets at that. Why don't you call off your little puppet show, and play at a big game called Peace?

The funny thing about our May Day parade is that the working men in Korea don't like it. They don't want it. And most of them aren't staying to watch your festival. They're leaving their homes to fall back with us. Why? Because they don't believe in either your promises. They don't think you remember what it is to be an honest working man.

Korea is a lovely land right now, Joe. The wild flowers are coming out in the hills, the rice plants are greening in the wet paddies. But your big Red parade is ruining the land.

Why don't you call it off, Joe? Why don't you give the real working men of the world a break instead of just another empty promise?

You're getting up in years, old man. You don't have much time left. Soon you're going to have to start a final solitary parade of your own—to the God you do not believe in.

You don't want to start that last march alone with your hands still wet with the red life shed by working men you always said you wanted to help, do you? See you at Parade Rest, Joe. It won't be much longer.

G. I. Joe of the Third Squad

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Robert S. Kerr, wife of the Democratic senator from Oklahoma, is the mother of four children, runs three households and is one of the most active congressional wives. As first vice president of the Senate Ladies' Club she recently assisted Mrs. Alben Barkley, the president, when the club entertained Mrs. Truman at luncheon. Coincidentally, her husband was staunchly defending the President's foreign policy on the floor of the Senate.

As wife of the vice president, Mrs. Barkley automatically became head of the unique club, which meets every Tuesday to sew and knit for the Red Cross. Mrs. Kerr was elected to her post. Senator Kerr described her position this way:

"Mrs. Kerr is vice president to the vice president's wife, who is president because her husband is vice president."

The Kerrs make a striking couple in Washington circles. A handsome blonde, the former Grayce Breen, of Tulsa is a statuesque six feet. The senator met her on an Ada, Okla., tennis court in 1926, proposed to her on their third date and married her shortly thereafter. Her children are all in the six-footer class. Bob, Jr., 34, is a law student at Oklahoma State University. Breen, 22, attends Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Kay, 19, is at Wellesley College, and Bill, 13, attends Sidwell Friends School here.

In Washington the Kerrs live in a rambling, comfortably-furnished two-story white brick house with their cocker spaniel "Candy" and two spits "Magnolia." They like to entertain quietly at home and shun cocktail parties.

"I'm completely in accord with my husband in disapproving the drinking that goes on here," Mr. Kerr told me. The senator had recently blasted capital cocktailing. The slogan around here, he said, seemed to be "Let's have a drink. He didn't see why every business, monkey or otherwise, had to be mixed with a drink." Mrs. Kerr said, "Neither do I."

Contrasting her experience in the governor's mansion in Oklahoma and here, Mrs. Kerr said she lives about the same kind of life here, but a little more formally.

Back in Oklahoma City the Kerrs live in a 13-room Italian Renaissance mansion on a 40-acre estate, formerly the home of

Women In The Church

The four-month visit of Japan's pioneer woman educator will end in May, when Miss Michi Kawai concludes her study of western education methods as an official representative of the Japanese government. Now in her mid-seventies, Miss Kawai has been called one of the greatest living women. She is one of the founders of the YWCA in Japan and is the founder of Keisen Jo Gaku-en, a girls school. She is a member of the board of the International Japan Christian University which will open in 1952 at Mitaka, on the outskirts of Tokyo.

When the women of the Methodist Church—organized 1,500,000 strong in the Woman's Society of Christian Service—began to make an effort to improve America's laws that had to do with race and color, it was discovered that nowhere were the laws compiled or even easily accessible. Each state had its own laws, plus sometimes unwritten practices, traditions, and little-enforced but discriminatory regulations. So the W. S. C. S., under the leadership of Mrs.

July Wedding Planned

Mrs. J. P. Smith of Washington, D. C., formerly of Greenville, North Carolina, announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Frances, to Kenneth A. Gould, son of Reverend and Mrs. Leslie E. Gould of Washington. The wedding will take place in late July.

Civic Clubs To Honor Leaders In Joint Banquet

Frank G. Brooks, president, and Miss Thelma Stevens, social action secretary, initiated a compilation of the essential laws. They chose Miss Pauli Murray, of Baltimore and New York, a young Negro lawyer, former deputy attorney general in California, to prepare the volume. The result is "State Laws on Race and Color," a 746-page book just issued by the Woman's Division of the Methodist Board of Missions. The compilation is intended as a guide for lawyers, laymen, and women, especially those concerned with social development in this field. It gives the actual texts of laws concerning race and color restrictions in each state. It includes studies of segregation laws, antisegregation statutes, digests of alien land laws, statutes regarding Indians, Japanese, and Chinese, anti-discrimination laws in public housing, employment, education, and military; anti-lynching laws in three states, and laws against the Ku Klux Klan. There are also excerpts from such international documents as the Act of Chapultepec, the Charter of UNESCO, and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Four civic clubs in Greenville, Kiwanis, Rotary, Exchange, and Lions, will honor their district leaders at a joint banquet on May 4 at the East Carolina college dining hall. Eli Bloom from the Kiwanis club, Dr. Howard McGinnis from the Rotary club, O. E. Dowd from the Lion's club, and S. O. Worthington, member of the state board of directors for the Exchange club will be honored. The guest speaker at the banquet will be Dr. W. Amos Abrams, editor of the North Carolina Education Association magazine. Serving on the committee handling the plans for the banquet are Charles White, Rotary; John Reynolds, Kiwanis; Henry Swayze, Lions; and Allen Powell, Exchange.

Vanceboro Hostess Gives Bridge Party

VANCEBORO—Mrs. L. W. Purser was hostess at a bridge luncheon Tuesday at her home honoring Mrs. Edgar Fox of Hickory, who is a guest of Mrs. Floyd Lancaster.

The house was decorated with arrangements of spring flowers. Guests places were marked with tiny corsages. A three course luncheon was served at attractively arranged card tables. Church Education Building Construction Moves Fast

By MARTHA S. FORBES
Construction on the new Educational Building at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church is progressing at a rapid rate.

According to a statement made by Leon Russell, pastor of the church, the building is more than 3-4 completed, and will be ready for occupancy before the end of the summer.

The contract for the new addition was let in May 1950, and ground breaking ceremonies were held on June 13, in an impressive service in which the pupils of the Vacation Bible School participated, as well as some of the oldest members of the church, each of whom turned over a spade of earth.

There will be more than 18,000 square feet of floor space in the educational wing, and the building plans emphasize space for the children of the Church School. There are three floor levels, with each floor designed for specific departments. There are also multi-purpose rooms which can be used for a number of different activities.

The building is completely fireproof. Steel, stone, brick, and concrete make up the construction materials, and the newest and most modern lighting, heating, plumbing and furnishings are being used. An all-electric kitchen is planned for the first floor level, with two stoves having double ovens, a garbage disposal unit, an automatic dishwasher and double sinks. There will be long serving tables with electrical outlets for keeping plates warm after they have been served. There is an opening in the wall between the kitchen and the dining quarters so that food may be served and dishes gathered cafeteria style. Already new dining tables have arrived. They are constructed of sturdy, light weight wood with steel reinforced legs. They will seat eight people comfortably, and enough matching folding steel chairs have been purchased to take care of 200 people at one time. New classroom chairs, 650 in number, made by the Haywood Wakefield people, are on order. They are of blond wood with steel legs, and range in height from 10 inches to 18. Each class room will be equipped also with a secretary's table and a teacher's stand.

On the first floor, or basement level, there are two comfortable rest rooms, a large social hall and assembly room, a spacious kitchen, a smaller room for class meetings, a service vestibule and a large foyer. There will be one entrance to this floor from the older part of the church, and four entrances from the outside.

On the next floor, which may be reached through one entrance to the old building, are accommodations for the beginners and the Primary Departments. Each department has its own large assembly room, with auxiliary rooms for smaller group work. There are also accommodations for the nursery department, with an opening on a brick terrace for outdoor play and toilet facilities. There are adequate equipment for the little folks, and equipment scaled to their particular needs. Also to be found on this floor is a lovely adult classroom with bay windows. This floor can be reached by two outside entrances, and wide corridors separate the different departments.

On the top floor a whole side of the building has been set aside for the Junior department, with five individual classrooms and a lovely assembly room which can be divided off for additional smaller classrooms. Three large, light and airy adult classrooms, a rest room and a windowed corridor which ends in a small foyer at the head of the stairs complete the floor plan of this floor.

The new educational building is one of three building units planned in an overall, long range church building program. Future plans call for enlarging the Sanctuary and remodeling the present Sunday School building. The present undertaking will cost $165,000, of which all but about $23,000 has been paid. Members of the Finance Committee are working arduously to complete the raising of funds by the middle of the summer. The total figure represents the cost of construction and equipment for the building.

The McGee home, one of two houses that are on church property that face Green Street, is in the process of being demolished and moved from the site. The James Building, which is presently being occupied by the Nursery and Beginner's Department, will be sold and demolished for moving some time in June. The places occupied by these two structures will be landscaped and made into attractive lawn areas. The space between the back of the present church building and the new building will be graded, planted in grass and beautified.

Leon Russell is pastor of the church. Joe Moye is chairman of the Board of Stewards, M. K. Blount is chairman of the Board of Trustees, and J. E. Rose is superintendent of the Church School.

H. L. Ormond is chairman of the Finance Committee. W. O. Van Nortwick, Jr., is chairman of the Building Committee. J. M. Taft is treasurer of the Building Fund, and S. B. Underwood, Jr., is chairman of the Research Committee.

East-West Tradition Is Again Confronting Test

By NOEL YANCEY
RALEIGH — (AP) — Will North Carolina's East-West tradition be a major factor the next time Tar Heel voters turn out to select a governor?

Maybe so and maybe not. At any rate, there has been a lot of talk about the tradition in political circles here recently.

Under the tradition, east and west take turns electing governors, lieutenant governors and speakers of the state House of Representatives. Normally one U. S. Senator is elected from the east and one from the west.

Governor Scott, who lives close to the boundary between east and west, ran as an easterner. So, if the tradition is followed, the next governor will come from the west.

If the east-west tradition were to become a major issue it could affect the candidacies of at least three persons who have been mentioned as possible contenders for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

These three are W. B. Umstead of Durham, former U. S. Senator and Congressman; Secretary of State Thad Eure who is from the far eastern county of Hertford, and Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine of Wake, also an easterner.

Durham County has been considered both an eastern and western county in the past. Umstead, however, was appointed to the U. S. Senate as an easterner and campaigned unsuccessfully for election to that seat two years ago.

Some of those talking about the east-west tradition might be accused of having a selfish interest since they are supporters of western candidates.

Among those who are mentioned most often as possible candidates from the west are associate Supreme Court Justice Sam J. Ervin, Jr., of Morganton, State Treasurer Brandon Hodges of Asheville, M. J. L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, Capus Waynick of High Point who is serving as ambassador to Nicaragua, and D. H. Den Ramsey, Asheville newspaper executive and member of the State Board of Education.

Along with this talk about the state's next governor there was much speculation in Raleigh about the political plans of the state's present governor.

Governor Scott touched off this talk when he went to Washington Tuesday to ask the Democratic National Committee to stage its 1952 presidential campaign kickoff at Scott's huge Haw River farm.

While in Washington, Scott made it clear that he favors the reelection of President Truman. This set off speculation in Raleigh that Scott was (1) aiming for a post in the President's cabinet, or (2) that he was looking ahead to contesting for the Senate seat now held by Senator Willis Smith.

Programs Set By Local Office For HD Week

Two programs have been planned by the County Home Demonstration office for this week in connection with home demonstration week, which is being observed by home demonstration clubs throughout the nation.

On Thursday, May 3, Mrs. Alton Chapman, county council president, will speak over WGTC at 1:45 on "National State and County Home Demonstration Activities." Friday night, May 4, a music festival will be held at the West Greenville School at 8 o'clock and there will be group singing, conducted by Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, county music chairman, and each club in the county can have a special selection sung.

Last Sunday, many of the churches in the county observed Home Demonstration week. Flowers were put in the churches by club women and many ministers built their sermons around the theme, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World."

The Turfan Depression in western China is 427 feet below sea level.

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 8

As Ruth rode away, fear was mixed with the anger she felt. The death of Shorty McCabe had stirred Jeff Payne deeply and Ruth sensed that he was a man to be feared.

Denton's murder had caused Ruth many sleepless nights, for she knew that her brother Buddy had been on the Double D range about the time Dan must have been killed. She had been fishing near the cabin in the hills above the ranch and had seen Buddy ride along the trail which led to the Double D and she had guessed that he was riding to meet Diana Denton. A quiescent dislike of Diana Denton had immediately turned to passionate hatred. Buddy was only a boy, too nice a boy to be embroiled in an affair with a married woman.

She descended the shoulder of hill and entered the Starr ranch yard. Buddy joined her at the corral. He said, "You sure had nerve ridin' over there alone. Find out what happened?"

"Yes," she swung from the saddle and faced him over the back of her pony. "Shag Dolan and his bunch ran off some steers and killed Shorty McCabe. Buddy, Dad didn't tell Shag to do that, did he?"

"What if he didn't? Shag's workin' for us just the same. And he'll take care of that uppity Jeff Payne, too. He got it all planned."

"A strange plan," said her. "Buddy, don't hold out. What is it?"

He glanced about him, then spoke in a lowered voice. "You keep this to yourself now. Shag run the cows through Four-Mile Canyon. He left a plain trail and Payne'll follow it sure as shootin'. Shag'll have a man posted at each end, up on top of the walls where Payne can't get at him. Mr. Payne'll simply ride in and not come out."

"Buddy, no!"

"Why not? This is war. Knock off Payne and the Double D's without a leader. Good strategy."

Ruth bent and pretended to work with the cinches. Her heart was like a lump of lead. Buddy could talk all he wanted to about this being war, but it wasn't her kind of war.

Ruth did not off-saddle; she leaned against the corral rails and looked through them and across the creek towards the line shack. Three riders were coming up the valley at a high lope and one of them was leading an extra horse.

Jeff Payne was advancing to meet them. She remembered him as he was that day he had stopped at her cabin, tall, neat, with brown curly hair and smiling eyes. She had liked him until she found that he was to be Diana Denton's foreman.

And now they were going to ambush him, murder him. She climbed to the top rail in order to watch what he did.

Jeff stood up and waved an arm when three riders hove in sight and they waved in answer and altered their course so as to meet him as he strode down the slope. They pulled up sharply and one of them asked, "Where's Shorty? We picked up his horse on the way out."

"Shorty's dead," he told them of finding Shorty's body and then of the missing cattle.

The cowboy swore. "Let's start trackin' 'em right now."

"I'll do the tracking. We're the only ones on the spread. Starr might have pulled that raid just to draw us away. You three stick around where you can watch them. I dug a grave for Shorty up on that mound. We'll bury him and then I'll be on my way. I took his gun. I aim to use it on his killer."

For Shorty up on that mound. We'll bury him and then I'll be on my way. I took his gun. I aim to use it on his killer.

"Shag!"

"I don't know, but I'll find out. The cattle trail was plain and led directly to the ford beyond the gap; but instead of turning towards the Star, the tracks followed the creek through the gap and beyond."

He rode warily, with his Winchester across his knees, his eyes stabbing at the outcroppings of rock on both sides. He felt a tiny pricking at the base of his skull; this might well be a trap into which he was riding. As he neared the far end of the canyon he doubled his caution.

A rifle cracked somewhere near the top of the rock wall and Jeff heard the ring of the bullet as it passed over him. He jerked his horse to a halt, whipped up the rifle and fired at the wisp of smoke which rose lastly above a clump of bowlders. He saw dust fly where his bullet struck but did not catch sight of the marksman who had fired at him.

And then through the fissure came five horsemen, spreading out as soon as they gained the wider part of the canyon. All five were shooting. The man on Jeff's left was Shag Dolan and Jeff whipped up the Winchester again and let fly a shot. He saw dirt spurt from the canyon wall and knew he had missed by a foot.

And then another bullet from the top of the canyon snatched at his hair and he knew that this rifleman, firing from a stationary position, would not miss again.

He wheeled his horse and sent it scudding along the creek bank, half expecting to see more riders enter at the end toward which he was racing. Nothing to do but ride fast and gain the protection of the narrow slit.

He heard the sharp crack of the rifle above the pounding of his pony's hoofs and caught the whisper of lead as it passed close to him. He knew that the shot had come from ahead of him but he had seen no tell-tale puff of smoke. He glanced upward as the rifle cracked again. The marksman was firing from the top of the right wall and Jeff could see the cluster of rocks which sheltered him. And there was nothing he could do about it but ride and pray.

Abruptly the lead ceased coming his way. He could hear the steady crack of a rifle but it had a more distant sound. He looked up quickly and saw a man break from the protection of the rocks and scamper along the edge of the cliff. Jeff let out a whoop of triumph and spurred straight for the canyon entrance. He flashed into the crevice, glanced over his shoulder and saw Shag and his men converging towards the narrow fissure. He halted his horse and dropped to the ground.

He fired over the horse's back, using the saddle for a rifle rest, and his first shot struck a horse and sent it plunging headlong, spilling the rider. After that there was confusion, with horses milling about near the entrance and men shouting and cursing. They moved about so rapidly that Jeff had no stationary target. Then somehow they got straightened out and the whole five surged back into the canyon, the one who had been unhorsed running like a frightened rabbit. They rounded the shoulder of the rock and were lost to Jeff's sight.

Jeff said, "When!" and mopped his forehead. Then he reloaded the rifle magazine and got back on his horse. He rode thoughtfully and wonderingly towards the valley. Somebody had befriended him; somebody had routed the marksman who was leisurely lining his sights on him like a man in a shooting gallery. One of his own crew, probably, one who knew the country, who had sensed the trap into which Jeff was riding and had climbed the cliff in time to save him. Disobedience of orders, of course, but what could he do?

One of his own crew, probably, one who knew the country, who had sensed the trap into which Jeff was riding and had climbed the cliff in time to save him. Disobedience of orders, of course, but what could he do?

Girl Scout Council Presents Two Films

Before a very appreciative audience of Girl Scouts and parents, the Greenville Girl Scout Council presented on Saturday, April 28, two sound movies appropriate for scouting. Girl Scouts from Winterville were special guests for the occasion.

Mrs. J. K. Long, Girl Scout commissioner, extended a welcome to those present. As a preface to the showing of the film "America, the Beautiful," the group sang "America." This picture presented a moving pageant, which portrayed the power of America as well as its beauty and majesty. It filled each Girl Scout's heart with joy to know that she is an American and the possessor of such a rich heritage. An appropriate musical selection was given by the following girls from Troop 3: Lou Cheatham, Hannah Proctor, Joanna Hardee, Kitty Collins, Mary Will Long, Sarah Adams, Margaret Moye, Nelson Blount, Ann Howie, and Sue Stocks.

The new Girl Scout movie, "The Growing Years" was the second feature picture of the program. This film tells the story of Janet, a real Girl Scout, and how she grew as a result of her activities and adventures through four years of membership in the Girl Scouts.

A short film presenting scenes and activities at Camp Harder was shown at the conclusion of the program.

I'll match my Dodge with any car on the road for Value and Dependability

You could pay up to $1,000 more and not get all the extra room, comfort and rugged dependability of Dodge Compare what Dodge gives you... with what other cars offer. You'll understand why Dodge owners say they'll match Dodge with any car on the road.

Take riding comfort for example. You could pay far more for a car and still not get the almost unbelievable smoothness of the new Oriflow ride. Even on roughest roads there's no wheel "hop" or bounce... wheels stay on ground providing a smooth, level ride for all passengers. You get the relaxing comfort of extra head room, leg room and shoulder room. You never feel cramped or crowded. And Dodge gives you the priceless safety of "Watchtower" visibility... of big Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes with larger braking surface for smooth, sure stops.

Dodge Gyro-Matic is the lowest priced automatic transmission on the market. It lets you drive without shifting... yet it is simpler, safer—gives you full control of your car under all driving conditions. Come in—see and drive today's big Dodge.

Sam Snead Fined For Shooting Crap At Nocturnal Hour

"A fellow in the crowd near the railroad asked me for change for $10 while I was passing Saturday night. When I stopped, everybody started running and when I looked up the 'law' was there and grabbing at the money in my hand. I was not gambling," Sam Snead, Negro farm worker from an up state point, declared to Judge J.W. H. Roberts, in Police Court Monday. The court gave him 30 days in jail or pay $15 fine. A police officer testified that a crowd of colored men were in a circle shooting dice near the railroad in the southern part of the city. He said he saw Snead pick up the dice and some money when the others ran. The police got the dice and money. Snead declared he had $7 or $8 when arrested. The arresting officers said he had $4.

Democracy's Big Ideal Shown By Vogeler Release

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Foreign News Editor
Democracy believes the individual is supreme and that the function of the state is to serve him. Communism believes the state is supreme and that the function of the individual is to serve it.

democratic nation—he would have been abandoned to his fate months ago. The United States government took the position that the life of one man was all important. It entered into negotiations designed to restore him to freedom and, in the end, it made sizeable concessions to accomplish its purpose. Vogeler, an American citizen and an executive of the International Telephone Telegraph Co., was arrested in Budapest in November, 1949, and charged with espionage. He was subjected to mental and physical torture, confessed to crimes he undoubtedly never committed and was sentenced to prison. His captors sat back to find out what concessions they could extract for him. The negotiations were long and at times appeared to be hopeless. Both sides issued ultimatums. The final terms of the agreement that brought about Vogeler's release revealed exactly how the American tactics in the cold war were hurting Hungary. In return for Vogeler's life the United States: 1. Agreed to permit Hungary to re-open consulates in New York and Cleveland. The communists wanted the consulates for listening posts. 2. Agreed to change the wave length of the Voice of America broadcast from Munich so that it no longer would interfere with the broadcasting of Radio Budapest. There is no room inside any communist state for outside news. 3. Agreed to lift restrictions on Americans travelling in Hungary. The Hungarian Communist Party doubtless expects an immediate flow of American tourist dollars—perhaps overly optimistic. 4. Agreed to speed up the Hungarians return of their property now held in the American Occupation Zone of Germany. That alone would be a sizeable ransom for one man. Democracy cheerfully has paid a high price to sustain a principle. Vogeler is coming home to enjoy the inalienable rights of every American citizen—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

HADACOL Relieves The Cause of Stomach Distress, Aches and Pains, Weak, Run-Down Conditions, Poor Appetite and Nervousness When Due to a Deficiency of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron

E. A. Drumright, 313 Main St., Nashville, Tenn., says this about HADACOL: "I feel I should write you and tell you what HADACOL has done for me. I was run-down and not able to work and had no ambition. All I wanted to do was sleep. I took HADACOL and went to work and am feeling fine and have a good appetite, and sleep good. I can recommend HADACOL to anyone in a run-down condition. I am 68 years old and have taken six bottles." HADACOL is so economical—only $1.25 for trial size.

Mrs. Ardena Longaker, Rt. 5, Meadbrook Rd., North Kansas City, Mo.: "I am a minister's wife and am 39 years old. Two years ago I had an operation and just had a hard time getting back my energy. I was run-down, lost weight, was listless, and had no appetite at all. I'm on my fifth bottle now and am amazed at the results. I want to eat all the time now. Most of all, I'm glad to say, I've gained several pounds. HADACOL is so economical I believe almost anyone can afford it, and I do recommend it to my friends."

Frank W. Woche, 531 Apache, Houston, Texas: "I was so run-down and my son-in-law suggested I take HADACOL. I had lost lots of weight and was tired all the time. After the first small bottle I started feeling better right away. I have now taken four more large bottles and wouldn't be without HADACOL. HADACOL has done so much for me. It's wonderful and all of my friends saw how bad I was looking and now tell me how much better I look. I can't say enough for HADACOL."

Mrs. LaRue Unbee, Sausalito, Illinois: "My son Gary is four years old, and will be five in July. His grandfather, Mr. J. W. Simmons who lives with us, was taking HADACOL and it helped him. We had been having so much trouble getting Gary to eat. It seemed as if it would take the entire family to coax him to eat. After we started giving him HADACOL his appetite picked up right away. He will eat three hearty meals a day, gets up in the morning all set for a big breakfast. HADACOL has certainly helped Gary's appetite."

Mrs. J. E. Roberts, 1516 Lincoln, Little Rock, Ark.: "I am a mother with five children and with my housework I was so run-down and just couldn't seem to eat at all. I heard about HADACOL and decided to try it, to see if it would help me. I could tell from the first bottle that it was helping me. I started eating right away—my appetite picked up a lot. After that I took three more bottles of HADACOL, and really believe that HADACOL is a good product, and it has certainly helped me."

Mrs. Letha Fitzpatrick, 401 E. Elm St., Scottsville, Ky.: "I couldn't sleep. I didn't have any appetite and wasn't able to do anything. Then I heard and read about HADACOL and what it had done for others. I decided to give it a trial. I have taken several bottles and I can truthfully say it has really helped me. I feel so much better. I have a lot more strength. I can eat now and I'm gaining weight. I do my work, work in my flowers, also in the garden. Now I'm putting up my fruit and vegetables. I can't thank HADACOL enough for what it's done for me."

Mrs. Thomas Fanning, Francisco, Noreine: "I just want to say a few words about HADACOL. I can't praise it enough for what it has done for my little seven-year-old girl. She was weak and pale, and did not eat very much. So, I decided to try HADACOL. Now, she eats more and has a better color and has gained weight. My friends and neighbors all are talking about her looking so much better. I can't say enough for it. I recommend it to my friends and neighbors or anybody. I will know from now on what to get when any of my family needs help."

Mrs. Anne Franks, 434 West Seaven St., Newport, Ky.: "As a constant user of HADACOL—and am on my fourth bottle—I would not hesitate to acclaim it the best. I was so run-down I could hardly do my work. And that is important as I do a man's job in a shoe factory. I felt that I did not have enough energy to lift my hands. I felt so let-down everything annoyed me. But since I've taken my first bottle, I've been helped so much that now I'm up and ready and anxious to get my work done and am not tired, but am able to do my housework. I cannot praise HADACOL and its makers enough."

Mrs. Margaret Gordon, 113 Farrest St., Clover, S. Car.: "I didn't have the energy to do anything, and I couldn't sleep at night. I had gas pains all the time. So many friends told me how it had helped them, so I decided to try HADACOL. I have taken three bottles, and am on my fourth bottle. I can't express my gladness for all that it has done for me. Now, I can sleep well at night, and I work. I praise HADACOL very much. I will not do without HADACOL anymore. It has done wonders for me. I can eat anything I wish now, and it doesn't hurt me any more. I am 26 years of age."

Miss Ometha White, 1709 B-4th Ave., Alexandria, La.: "I am 25 years old and have lived in Alexandria all my life. I am employed by a canning company. A year ago I was nervous and run-down. I lost my appetite and couldn't sleep. A friend told me about HADACOL and I decided to try it. I have been taking one bottle a week for a year and I can report wonderful results. I am gaining weight, my nerves are OK... I have a good appetite and I can sleep nights again. One bottle a week did it and I recommend HADACOL to all who have my ailments."

Mrs. Joe Bukowski, 921 Sanborn St., Ottumwa, Iowa: "Before I started taking HADACOL it was nearly impossible for me to do my housework. I was weak, nervous, didn't sleep well, and lacked an appetite. But thanks to regular use of HADACOL, I now do all my housework, sleep well, and have a good appetite. I don't have that tired feeling. I'm really 100 per cent better since taking HADACOL."

Mrs. Walter Shields, Hornsby, Va., says about her young son: "I have a little boy who had stomach distress every time he went riding in a car. Nothing did him any good. I heard about HADACOL and have given him two bottles. He doesn't suffer from his stomach any more." HADACOL is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel great with the first few bottles you take or your money back.

Mrs. Anna M. Dehlendorf, 631 E. Pope St., St. Louis 15, Mo.: "I have been taking HADACOL for six months, and feel fine again. I was run-down, old, and do housework, laundry by the day for different parties, and I also do baby sitting in the evening. Before I started taking HADACOL, I was underweight—I only weighed 97 pounds. Now my weight is 135 pounds. I eat good, sleep good, and feel good."

Marcus Dee Starkey, 1866 Farrow St., Kansas City, Kansas: "Before taking HADACOL, I suffered such stomach distress after each meal I could hardly work. My wife bought me a bottle of HADACOL, and I will bless the day she did this for me. I took this wonderful discovery and after one week I was actually surprised at the results. I have now taken four of the large bottles, and that isn't all, I will continue taking it."

Mrs. Lula Nelson, 1702 E. 63rd Street, Huntington Park, Los Angeles, California: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

East Carolina Racks Up Ten Runs In Eighth For Victory

Coastal Plain League Teams All Set For Season's Opener Thursday Night

Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina Pirates came from behind in the bottom of the eighth frame yesterday afternoon to score 10 runs, and take a 12-8 victory over the Naval Air Station team from Norfolk, splitting the series between the group at one each.

The Pirates were trailing 8-2 going into the eighth, but the power of the Bucs came through as 15 batters paraded before the plate, collecting eight hits and three walks, to send home the 10 runs in the frame.

The win over the Naval Air Station boys, who beat the Pirates in a Saturday afternoon contest, brings the Bucs to a season's record of 12 wins against six losses.

The Pirates played yesterday without the services of two regulars, Sonny Russell who is out with a crushed finger, and Third Baseman Paul Jones who is confined to the infirmary.

However, Russell' stand-in at the first base slot, W. C. Sanderson, had a field day at the plate as he racked up four hits in five appearances, batting in four runs. Likewise, sub Red-Sauls, who replaced Paul Jones at the third base position, gathered

Buc Golfers Top Visiting Elon

A Pirate golf team, paced by All-Conference Bill Stalls, scored a lopsided 35-2 victory over a visiting Elon team here yesterday afternoon on the Country Club course.

It was the third straight Conference win for East Carolina's links team.

At the present time the local linksters are leading the North State Conference standings and are the defending champions of last year.

in two hits in three tries at the plate.

The Flyers from Norfolk reached starting pitcher Bob Standley for eight hits and seven runs in the fourth inning, including three doubles. At this point in the contest, Earl Davenport relieved, coming in as the fireman of the game, but lasted only until the seventh when he was lifted in favor of a pinch hitter, Sidney Rogerson, freshman, who took over the mound chores and held the Flyers to one hit in the three innings which he pitched.

In the fateful eighth, Graybill led off with a walk and was forced at second by Hoskins, then the bats of the Pirates started booming as Sanderson singled, Sauls followed with another, and a walk loaded the bases. A walk issued to Catcher McSwain turned in the first run of the 10-run barrage.

Then Pitcher Roberson, making his first appearance at the plate of the day, banged out a ringing double down the left field line to drive home two additional runs. Billy Smith, next man up, gathered in a single to keep the rally alive, with Soles lining out a single, and the bases were again loaded when Wallace walked.

Graybill, batting for the second time in the inning, walked, bringing in another run. Singles by Hoskins and Sauls sent home the other runs, with McSwain and Rogerson grounding out to end the inning.

The Pirates have won their last four starts in conference play and will play their arch rivals, the Bulldogs of ACC, here on Wednesday afternoon in College Stadium at 2:45 in a North State contest. The teams will be battling for the Bunk trophy, the wooden bucket which the rivals play for at each athletic contest between the schools. The bucket is currently in the possession of the Pirates.

The Pirates hold an earlier 10-4 decision over the ACC team from Wilson in a game played in Wilson.

Freshman star Jim Piner will start on the mound for the locals in the Wednesday afternoon contest.

Coastal Plain League Teams All Set For Season's Opener Thursday Night

By BERT MOYE

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Class D Coastal Plain K League, which will open its 1951 campaign Thursday night, as all eight teams of the loop swing into action in the first league tests on a quartet of diamonds.

A total of 126 games will be played this year, with the season coming to a close on Labor Day, September 3rd. Also included in this year's schedule is a double-header between the two clubs paired for the season, with a game being played in the afternoon and one at night. No All star contest is slated this season, nor will there be any extra contest on Labor day. All games in the league are to be played at night with 7:45 as the designated starting time, with the exception of Sunday games, which will start at 3:00 p.m. There are exceptions to the starting times of double-headers to be played during the week, but a double-header scheduled on a Sunday will start at 1:30 o'clock.

First day openings are as follows: —Greenville at Tarboro, Rocky Mount at Roanoke Rapids, Goldboro at Wilson and New Bern at Kinston. Second openings are Friday with the paired teams reversed.

Last year the Roanoke Rapids Jays were the Coastal Plain League champions with a record of 80 wins and 58 losses for a .580 percentage. The Rocky Mount Leafs finished in second place with 73 wins and 65 losses for a .525 percentage; the New Bern Bears finished third with 71 wins and 67 losses for .514 percentage; and the Kinston Eagles wound up in fourth place with 70 wins and 68 losses for a .507 percentage. In the playoffs, Kinston defeated Roanoke Rapids, four games to none; New Bern defeated Rocky Mount four games to two; New Bern defeated Kinston, four games to none in the finals.

This year there will be a difference in the player classification than the previous year. This year each club may have four veterans, seven limited service men and six rookies. During the 1950 season each club carried two veterans, nine limited service, and five rookies. Each club, except for a period of 30 days after the opening of the championship season and 20 days prior to the close thereof, shall be allowed to carry 17 men, 8 of whom must be rookies.

Only two managers from the 1950 list will be back this year with one of these managing a different club in the loop. Joe Anselick, who during the previous season was manager of the Tarboro Athletics will be at the helm of the Wilson Tobs. While down in New Bern, Harry Land is back at the helm of the Bears for another season, following a very successful season last year.

The complete list of managers for the 1951 season is as follows: John Strees, Greenville; Harry Land, New Bern; Joe Anselick, Wilson; Morris Aderholt, Roanoke Rapids; Joe Rullo, Tarboro; George Ferrell, Goldsboro; Jim Mills, Rocky Mount and Wes Liven-good, Kinston.

THE COMPLETE LIST OF MANAGERS FOR THE 1951 SEASON IS AS FOLLOWS: JOHN STREES, GREENVILLE; HARRY LAND, NEW BERN; JOE ANSELICK, WILSON; MORRIS ADERHOLT, ROANOKE RAPIDS; JOE RULLO, TARBORO; GEORGE FERRELL, GOLDSBORO; JIM MILLS, ROCKY MOUNT AND WES LIVENGOOD, KINSTON.

THE SCHEDULE CALLS FOR A BUSINESS MEETING AT THE HOTEL CHERRY ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON AT 2:00-3:00 O'CLOCK. AT THAT TIME THE PRESIDENTS, BUSINESS MANAGERS, TEAM MANAGERS, AND SCORERS OF THE EIGHT CLUBS IN THE CIRCUIT WILL GET TOGETHER FOR LAST MINUTE DETAILS FOR THE LEAGUE OPENING WHICH TAKES PLACE THURSDAY NIGHT.

Caldwell Warns Enemy Attack Will Be 'All Out'

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Civil Defense Administrator Millard
Caldwell warned Monday that an enemy air attack on the United States "would not be a one or two plane hit-and-run raid but a grand slam mass assault."

"Its purpose," he said, "would be to create the greatest possible panic and terror and the maximum number of casualties within a few hours and break the back of our production capacity."

Caldwell gave that warning at the opening of the Federal Civil Defense Administration's "college" course on how to combat atomic attacks.

Governors of seven states and Alaska and civil defense directors of nearly all other states signed up for the one-week "dry run" to teach modern defense techniques.
Governors scheduled to attend
were Earl Warren of California, Dan Thornton of Colorado, Theodore F. McDaniel of Maryland, Field Wright of Mississippi, Gordon Browning of Tennessee, John
S. Battle of Virginia, Walter Koehler, Jr. of Wisconsin and Ernest Grueining of Alaska.

"The unbelievable fact," Caldwell said, "is that too many people are still playing ostrich. They are unwilling to accept the facts. They would rather think about something more pleasant."

Caldwell quoted Gen. Hoyt S.
Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, "only a maximum of 30 per cent of an attacking bomber force could be expected to be shot down or deflected."

"Grimmer still," Caldwell said,
"is the fact that the best we can hope to stop right now is 10 per cent of the attacking force."

"If we don't have a home front thoroughly protected by an adequate civil defense program, we can lose the next war."

Negro HD Clubs Observe National Week In County

By CHESTER WALSH

This is National Home Demonstration Week. Interesting programs are being presented in Pitt County by the 19 Negro Home Demonstration clubs, with more than 400 members. The theme is, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World."

Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro Home Demonstration agent for Pitt County, said observance of National Home Demonstration Week is being observed here on a larger scale than last year.

Interesting exhibits of Home Demonstration work are in store windows in Greenville. At the Globe Hardware Store, "The Family Garden" and "Conserving the Family Food Supply." At J. C. Penney Company's store, "Finishing Touches for the Home." At Brody's store, "The New Look for Home Sewing." At Belk-Tyler's store, "Dress for the Occasion." All of the work exhibited was done by Negro Home Demonstration club members, Mrs. Capehart said.

"National Home Demonstration Week was started in 1946, with the same theme, but today's emphasis is being placed on the home as tomorrow's world seems more uncertain than in any year since 'Home Demonstration Week' was started," the Negro Home Demonstration Club agent said.

The Home Demonstration club program in Pitt County for the Negro club members included:

Food and Nutrition—According to a dietary survey made some time ago, farm families in Pitt County do not produce, conserve and consume annually enough food, such as fruits and vegetables, milk, meat, poultry, eggs and other proteins. The 1950 food and nutrition, production and conservation programs have been correlated to combat this problem.

Clothing—Rural homemakers are meeting their needs and problems by better care and selection of clothing and by doing more home sewing for their families. Some of the subjects in last year's program, the Negro Home Demonstration agent said, were the professional touch in home sewing, modern aids in home sewing, home management and house furnishing.

Building, remodeling, renovating, buying equipment and furnishings always are a home problem for farm families.

Health—Farm families have been made more aware of available health care through immunization programs, tuberculosis, infantile paralysis, etc. The importance of other projects include improved sanitation in the home and community, such as fly, mosquito and rodent control, and a safe water supply.

Family Life—The family life program carried on were: Family team work, family nights, husbands' night and Christmas parties. Leaders are trained in each phase of the work to assist the Home Demonstration agent in carrying the information to rural Negro families in Pitt County. Mrs. Capehart, the county home demonstration agent, said.

Negro Home Demonstration club workers in Pitt County are invited to attend religious services on Sunday, May 6, in observance of National Home Demonstration Week at the following churches: Jumping Run Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden; Joe's Branch Free Will Baptist Church, on the New Bern Highway, and at Phillips Baptist Church, at Simpson.

Science Program For Lions Club

The members of the Greenville Lions Club were presented a program dealing with some of the modern day science wonders last night at their weekly meeting held at the Woman's Club.

The program was under the direction of Marshall Helms, of the science department of East Carolina College.

By a series of experiments and demonstrations the club members were shown the behavior of light, radio waves and the principals of transmitting electrical current over a distance without the use of any wires or other connections.

The program was the most unique to be presented at the club's weekly session in many weeks.

Guest of the club last night was Carl Worsley, Junior Lion from Greenville High School.

Only business matter to come before the club at its business session was the approval of the slate of officers as turned in by the nominating committee and which will be voted on at a later date.

Survival Lesson Taught By Film

By WYATT BROWN

Facts about atomic, bacteriological, and hydrogen bomb warfare were presented by a movie and added comments by Charles White at the Rotary Club meeting last night. The movie was entitled "Survival Under Atomic Attack."

The movie showed the effect of atomic bomb explosions and afforded suggestions as to how to meet such a situation both in preparation and in the eventuality. It was brought out that many injuries suffered at Nagasaki could have been avoided or prevented if they had had the information the movie gave.

On the hydrogen bomb Mr. White said it was being developed because there was a limit to the size of atomic bombs. The igniting of hydrogen has been partially solved thus opening the way for development.

In bacteriological warfare Mr. White said that all sorts of deadly items had been developed that were known about and many others. This type of warfare permits the killing of the people without harming the buildings of a community eliminating reconstruction following war. It has been developed so that the speed with which its victims expire can be controlled.

Edwin Wilkerson, of Rochester, New York, was a guest of the club last night. Corey Stokes of the Ayden Rotary Club was a visiting Rotarian for the meeting. The movie was projected by Rotarian Carl Adams. Floyd Hendrix, club president, presided. President Hendrix reminded the Rotarians that there will be no Rotary club meeting next Monday night—May 7. T. T. Governors Banquet at East Carolina College will take the place of the regular meeting for the Rotarians.

Wins Award In Essay Contest

John Brooks, Greenville High School student, was the winner of the Stonewall Jackson essay contest, sponsored by the George B. Singley Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Brooks was given a cash award of $5.00 by Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth for the best essay written on Stonewall Jackson at an assembly yesterday in the high school auditorium. The contest was open to all eighth grade students in Greenville High School and nine other students were given a book entitled "Fifty Famous Americans" for participating in the contest. They were: Jimmy Little, Peggy Everette, Sue Tucker, Carol Johnson, Lou Cheatham, Jerry Lassiter, Dolly Best, Louise Knox, and Eleanor Payne.

The assembly in which the awards were given was centered around "Our Southern Heritage" and opened with a string orchestra composed of Harold Humbles, Jimmy Pleasant, Carolyn Spain, Tommy Bodkin, and Frank Bodkin playing "My Kentucky Home," "Old Folks at Home," and "Old Black Joe." The fourth period music class sang "Lullaby" by Sims and "Beautiful Dreamer" and was accompanied by Ona Shindler. Harris Northrop read "Annabel Lee" by Poe as representative of southern literature.

O. E. Dowd introduced Mrs. E. W. Harvey who reviewed the purpose and work of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"The fix may also come about," the senators said, "through the acquisition of political power by contributions to political organizations or otherwise, by creating economic ties with apparently respectable and reputable businessmen and lawyers, and by buying public good will through charitable contributions and press relations."

In short, less than fully open hearings may in the end create more unrest than the inquiry was intended to cure. But the senators had to make a choice, keeping national security in mind, and they made it.

It was only a little more than a month ago that private testimony by another distinguished military man, General Eisenhower, was leaked here in Washington. He talked privately to the same two Senate committees.

That was on Feb. 1, after he had returned from a quick survey of Europe's military needs and made a public report to both houses of Congress, sitting in the Congressional Library. He then talked to the committees.

On March 10 the leak came on some of what he had said behind closed doors to the senators. For instance, he said use of the atomic bomb against the Russians would depend on whether its military value outweighed its moral disadvantages.

Also, the leak said, he thought 12 American divisions, with sufficient air and sea support, could hold the Breton peninsula of France against any Russian attack. The Russians probably appreciated the information.
