County's Health Dept. In Position To Step Forward

(Ed. Note—The following news story about the Pitt County health department is the first in a series of installments to be carried in The Daily Reflector in an effort to point up the work of the several sub-departments and the Board of Health during the past 23 years. In 1928 a survey was made of the health conditions in Pitt by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on the request of the late Dr. Charles O'H. Laughinghouse, then State Commissioner of Health. This series of articles is for the purpose of showing what has been accomplished between that time and now and what can be accomplished in the future.)

By JOHN SPINKS JR.
This year finds the Pitt County health department in a position to make a greater step forward into the public health field than it has ever been able to do in its 33-year history.

Providing the basis for this advance are two factors: (1) the department is at its highest peak in number of employees, and (2) there is a possibility that by the year's end the department will have more than three times the present amount of space for dispensing its services.

The second factor has been in the making for several months. Last fall Dr. T. G. Basnight, health officer, Dr. C. C. Applewhite, director of the State Local Health Administration, and several members of the board of health appeared before the county commissioners to request the use of the entire Tucker Building for the department when the agricultural agencies move to the old Pitt General Hospital building. Although the commissioners have not yet given the green light on the use of the whole building, it is considered likely that they will. The commissioners are waiting on a statement from the Medical Care Commission as to how much money it will donate to the county to renovate the Tucker Building to make it adequate for a complete county health center. Such statement is expected sometime this week from R. Leigh.

The first factor means more, probably, than the second. Today finds the paid personnel in the department numbering 16 compared with a mere seven in 1928, the year in which a thorough and far-reaching survey was made of Pitt's health conditions. In that year the department employed only two public health nurses to administer the services that were only slightly less than what they are now, one health officer, one part time sanitarian, two part time milk inspectors and one clerk-stenographer. In 1951 the department employs one health officer, eight nurses (including for the first time a supervisor of nurses, three sanitarians, one public health investigator, two laboratory technicians and one clerk.

Putting the two together it can be seen that there is every opportunity for advance in the field of public health. When and if the whole building is turned over to the department, the 16 employees can spread out over both floors of the red brick building located on the corner of Third and Greene Streets, getting out of the three or four tiny rooms that are being used now. The use of the whole building will provide more clinic space, better facilities for diagnosing illnesses, more laboratory space and more room for the office and administration staff. If that can be accomplished the county will have for the first time a health center rather than a department.

However, the undertaking is not going to be accomplished simply by the moving out of the farm agents, the home agents, the Production and Marketing Administration staff and the Federal Crop Insurance office and then moving the sub-departments of the health department into the remaining square feet of space.

It is a big job of changing the physical structure of a department of health into a center of health, and it will take a great deal of money, not only for the immediate change of spreading out the present facilities over more room area but also, and more important, more money will be required to increase and spread out the center's services.

At the present time the salaries of the employees and the services of the department are financed by a $58,000 budget for the current fiscal year. That is figured at 91 cents per capita and includes both state and federal funds which total more than 90 percent of the budget. That per capita cost is far below the money expended per capita by counties in the surrounding agricultural area and farther still below the minimum per capita cost recommended by the U.S. Public Health Service. The minimum recommendation is $1.50 per person in any

Women's Role In Nat'l Crisis Described Here

Former Congresswoman From Connecticut Addresses Combined Book Clubs On Individual Responsibilities

By MARTHA FORBES

"One of the best things that women can do today in this period of national emergency is to understand the defense program and to operate fully with the price control boards," declared Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, who spoke before the combined Greenville book clubs in their annual Book Club Day observance, which was held at the Women's Club on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Woodhouse, former Congresswoman from Connecticut and at present assistant to Charles E. Wilson, head of the Price Stabilization Board in Washington, was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Spillman. In her introductory remarks, Mrs. Spillman stated that Mrs. Woodhouse has already made an indelible imprint on the life of the nation and through education, training and responsible positions held in government work, is a qualified expert on economic affairs.

Through the institution of women's clubs all over the country, women have become the great guardians of the things which we consider worthwhile," began the speaker. "Our freedoms and rights are sometimes taken too lightly and too much for granted; and it takes a situation like the recent release of Robert Vogeler to make us appreciate the wonderful heritage we enjoy as a free nation."

As she emphasized this point, Mrs. Woodhouse said that America is now in the position of being a guardian for the personal freedoms throughout all the world and she quoted a statement by Mr. Truman in which he said that future civilizations depend on what this country does now and in the months ahead. She related experiences she had among the Germans when she was on a special mission there in 1948 for General Clay and said that the free living Germans expressed great hope in and expectation of American leadership in keeping them from falling prey to Russian oppression. She told of conversations with the people of Greece when she was on a mission there in 1949 immediately following the successful fight against the Greek guer. las who were supported by Russian arms and ammunition. "We can be proud of the fact that the whole world looks to us for leadership and that we have responded to that trust through our foreign aid programs such as the Marshall Plan, the E.C.A. and the Point Four program," Mrs. Woodhouse declared.

In discussing the present situation in Korea, she said that it proved that economic aid was not sufficient to combat the forces of aggression, and that the country was forced into a period of "grey mobilization." The situation now is very different from that which prevailed during the last war, in her opinion, because now events are vague and difficult. "We are not now in a 'shooting war' as war has not been declared. Therefore people are inclined to be either too pessimistic, advocating an immediate use of the hydrogen or atom bomb, an action which will lead to all-out war; or else they are too complacent and believe the whole thing will blow over in a short while, without an understanding of the terrible portents which are facing us. Both of these attitudes are exceedingly dangerous and threaten the whole defense effort, which is designed primarily and solely to restore and preserve peace," Mrs. Woodhouse forcibly declared.

"The whole purpose of our present program of production, wage and price control is to make us so strong that there will be no war," she said. "The basis of the program rests in American production, and the new approach is to work harder, produce more, and prevent inflation, which is ruinous to the economy of our nation."

In describing the forces that bring about inflation, she stated that when purchasing power exceeds productive power, the prices start an uncontrolled rise. A normal economic situation exists, she explained, when purchasing power and production stay in equal balance. High wages, easy credit and more earning power result in a greater proportion of purchasing power than there are things to buy. This creates shortages, which in turn cause prices to go up. Mrs. Woodhouse said that the present government program is planned to build up the productive capacity of the country, while at the same time to control purchasing power through higher taxes and curbs on credit. "Price control is no solution to the economic problem of keeping these two forces in balance. It is only a temporary expedient to hold the line until the real cure of more production, less buying and credit control is in operation," she summarized.

Says Wedemeyer Advice Followed

Acheson Reports Gov't Took One Policy Exception

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today the Administration carried out the Wedemeyer recommendations on Korea with one exception.

He told a news conference the exception was the creation of the military mission independent of the Korean forces instead of the organization of a Korean scout force with American officers as Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer recommended in a 1947 report.

The Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday released the report Wedemeyer made on a survey of Korea and China which he undertook at the request of President Truman. The report had been kept secret during the intervening period of almost four years.

The report, delivered in September, 1947, warned that "Soviet-inspired" North Koreans might invade South Korea.

Wedemeyer recommended various policy moves, including arms aid to South Korea and creation of a South Korean scout force, under American officers, to guard against this threat.

Farmville, Bethel Fill Town Offices

Farmville Board May Have Runoff; Mayor Jones Re-elected; R. L. Martin Is Voted New Mayor Of Bethel

FARMVILLE—Mayor Walter B. Jones led the town election ticket yesterday when he received 407 votes out of 437 cast to become elected for his second term of office.

Jones led Fred C. Moore, incumbent commissioner, by four votes as Moore paced all other candidates for the office and retained his seat on the commission. R. O. Lang Jr. was the only incumbent commissioner to get beat. He lost out to Horton H. Rountree and H. C. Outland who tied for the fifth seat on the commission with 215 ballots apiece. Lang polled 172.

Jones' and the commissioners' vote was the lowest cast in some years. Two years ago 832 persons went to the polls to elect the present mayor over his opponent, Curtis H. Flanagan. The commissioners' vote yesterday tallied 403 for Moore, 324 for Claude Joyner, 368 for O. G. Spell and 246 for J. M. Stancill.

As yet neither Rountree nor Outland has stated what he will do towards asking for a runoff vote. Either can withdraw, declaring the other winner. The runoff vote, if requested, would be held May 17. Both men were running for the first time. Rountree is an attorney here and Outland is with the Bank of Farmville.

The other two candidates in the commissioners' race were T. R. Mittle with 180 votes and Ellis J. Rabill with 62.

U.S. Air Base In Tripoli Built Up

Expanded Runways To Handle Transports & Bombers

WHEELUS FIELD, Tripoli — (UP)—This Strategic Military Air Transport Service (MATTS) airfield is undergoing a face-lifting today to enable it to handle globe-girdling transports and bombers.

Runways 6,000 feet long were being extended and reinforced to withstand weights in excess of 200,000 pounds.

The Air Force announced this was being done to accommodate giant transport planes soon to join the MATS fleet. However, the new runways could also accommodate inter-continental B-50 and B-36 bombers in the event of war.

The 2,300 mile effective radius of the big U.S. bombers would enable the Air Force to strike such cities as Leningrad, Moscow, Stalingrad and points far behind the Ural mountains in this field.

Wheelus, the only active U.S. air force installation on the African continent, was reactivated in the spring of 1948. It began with an Air Force complement of 600 officers and men.

Today there were 1,600 officers and airmen based here. A daily average of 1,000 natives is rebuilding and expanding the base.

Officers pointed out that Wheelus Field was a major link in the globe-girdling U.S. operated airline ferrying American personnel and supplies to posts around the world.

This strategic system would give the U.S. and her allies a network of vital bases from which the Air Force could launch the atomic punch in the event of war.

BETHEL—Bethel voters went to the polls yesterday and elected R. L. Martin for mayor for the next two years. Martin beat his opponent, J. C. Smith, 170 votes to 133.

The election of Martin, Atlantic Coastline depot agent at Parme, was the first time in over a quarter of a century that Bethel voters had not cast a ballot for Mayor J. W. Rook. Rook's present term expires July 1. He had stated previously he would not be a candidate in this year's election.

The town commissioners' names were not on the ballot since they had no opposition. They will begin their new terms with Martin July 1.

A total of 307 persons cast ballots yesterday compared with 365 in 1949. A spokesman in the town hall expressed the opinion the vote was lower this year since there was no vote for commissioners.

Evidently, the spokesman said, four persons couldn't make up their mind on a candidate for mayor. They voted for both Martin and Smith and the ballots were destroyed.

Blames Acheson For His Removal

MacArthur Holds Secretary Of State Responsible

By JOHN L. STEELE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (UP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur has informed confidants that he holds Secretary of State Dean Acheson primarily responsible for his discharge, it was learned today.

However, persons who have talked with the general recently say that he has neither the wish nor the intention of putting the finger on Acheson when he testifies before Senate investigators tomorrow.

Despite the general's reported reluctance to name Acheson, in all probability he will come under the strongest kind of pressure under questioning by Republican members of the investigating committee.

It was recalled that MacArthur in the statements and interviews leading up to his discharge by President Truman constantly reiterated that his hands were tied in fighting the Korean war pending decisions by higher authority, "diplomats... statesmen... policy makers."

Unconfirmed reports circulated here that regardless of the outcome of the MacArthur and Far East policy investigation, Acheson will be replaced before June 1, by John Foster Dulles, now his Republican foreign affairs adviser.

Another frequently mentioned for the job is Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson.

Acheson will be called to testify next week. So will former Defense Secretary Louis Johnson who was fired by Mr. Truman after a long feud with the secretary of state.

Investigating Committee Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) disclosed that his group was "in a furore" over the administration's account of the meeting on Wake Island between Mr. Truman and MacArthur.

Announces 'The Enemy Has Failed'; Warns New Communist Assault In Making; Red Effort To Lower Water Barriers Is Defeated By Bombing Planes

TOKYO — (AP) — The Red spring offensive has been stopped "a great victory by the United Nations," Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today—but a new Communist assault is in the making.

The allied ground commander jubilantly announced "the enemy has failed."

The Reds lost, too, in their battle to control the rivers which must be crossed in the next phase of their spring offensive.

American naval planes skip-bombed gaping holes in the flood-gates of Hwachon Reservoir and sent water rushing back into the Pukhan and Han rivers. The Reds had closed the gaps tight in an effort to lower these great natural water barriers for an easy crossing.

As the rivers returned toward normal levels, U. N. tank patrols rumbled out Wednesday on Red hunts.

One tank force stabbed 11 miles north of Seoul to the Uijongbu area and ran into a Chinese ambush. Tankers buttoned down their hatches and fought their way back through Red attempts to set up a road block.

Other armored patrols searched the immense "V" formed by the Pukhan and Han Rivers east of Seoul. They found no Reds.

Searching war planes found plenty of targets on the highways. Through the night and day they blasted Red depots and supplies for a renewal of their halted offensive.

The present status of the Red drive was summed up by Van Fleet after a flying visit to the 10th Corps front. He said:

"We have pushed the Communist forces severely. The enemy has fallen in the first phase of his offensive. He has paid a heavy price (more than 75,000 casualties in nine days). The first part of the battle has ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

Van Fleet made it clear he did not consider this the final end of the Red offensive.

Communist forces, he said, have "the capability of hitting again as hard as before or harder. However, I am confident the results will be the same."

Every Red attempt in the drive so far has ended like the battle of the rivers.

The Communists closed the sluice gates Monday night to lower the level of the two rivers. That would make them easier to cross. The water level dropped sharply.

Skyraiders from the carrier Princeton opened the gates Tuesday. The water swept in across the reservoir and skipped 1,000 pound bombs into two flood gates. First reports said they used aerial torpedoes but later AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said they used bombs with special fuses to cause the greatest amount of underwater damage.

Tobacco Crop Is Set Out 2 Weeks Early

Whedbee Says Plant Supply Ample; Less Blue Mold; Earlier Crop Indicated This Year If Weather Holds Up

The tobacco crop in North Carolina's eastern belt is being set out about two weeks earlier this year than last year, according to a statement this morning by W. L. Whedbee, sales supervisor of the Greenville tobacco market.

Whedbee said in the market's first crop report of the 1951 growing season that the percentage of the tobacco crop already set out in this area ranges from 40 per cent complete in some counties south of Pitt to 5 per cent complete in other counties in the extreme northern end of the belt.

In his report Whedbee pointed out five things which he said were significant so far in the production of the 1951 tobacco crop in the eastern belt. The report stated:

1. "Farmers have worked diligently in spraying and dusting their beds this year, and consequently there is less blue mold in the plant beds than has been in evidence for many years.

2. "There is an abundance of strong healthy plants with which to set out the entire crop. Many farmers have enough plants to set out two to three times their acreage.

3. "Present indications are that practically all tobacco farmers will take advantage of this year's increase in acreage allotments.

4. "Additional tobacco curing barns have already been built on many farms in this belt and present indications are that the barn space will be increased from 10 per cent to 15 per cent for the belt as a whole.

5. "With weather conditions for the next two weeks, indications are that this year's crop in the entire eastern belt will be set out somewhat earlier than last year's crop, the transplanting of which was not finally completed last year until the first of June."

Iran's Oil Seizure

Nationalization Of Rich Persian Oil Lands Creates Serious Position Not Only For Britain, But For Western Powers As A Whole; Peiping's Companion Piece

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Iran's seizure of the vast British-controlled petroleum industry in that country creates a serious position not only for Britain but for the western powers as a whole in their defense against communism.

Iran, with its wealth of petroleum, is a key position in the strategic Middle East. To complete the picture, add the fact that military operations, as the industries upon which they depend, must be floated on oil.

The development is doubly serious in that it has been inspired by Moscow, working through fifth columnists in Iran.

Ironically enough the seizure was achieved by parliamentary legislation nationalizing the oil industry. In short the Socialist government of Britain, which is in process of nationalizing home industries, has been handed a dish of its own porridge.

However, British Secretary of State Herbert Morrison told the House of Commons yesterday that Britain couldn't accept such unilateral action by Iran, although he didn't dispute the latter's right to acquire property. He felt a solu-

Scott Says Racketeering Has Gained Hold In State

CHAPEL HILL — (UP) — Gov. Kerr Scott told a Faculty Club meeting at the University of North Carolina today that racketeering interests are "getting a hold on the political life of North Carolina."

Scott did not mention the admission of a Negro student to the university medical school. However, he pointed out that Negroes have been given 300 per cent greater representation on state boards and commissions since he became governor. He said he would continue to appoint a proportionate number of qualified Negroes to state offices.

He said the state is lagging far behind its goal of public services and "we are going to have to have a certain amount of liberal leadership in North Carolina during the next few years if we're going to get what the people really want."

City Candidates To Be Interviewed In Program

The public of Greenville will get its first opportunity to hear the five candidates for mayor discuss their campaigns and their purposes for running when the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsors a half-hour radio program tomorrow night at 9:30 in cooperation with station WGTG.

Under the direction of the Jaycees' committee on Americanism, the program will bring before the WGTG microphone candidates S. B. Underwood, Jr., H. H. Duncan, Lester Page, Marshall Clark and Clarence H. Bryant for the purpose of discussing what they will stand for if elected to the mayor's office.

They will be interviewed by a group of four Greenville citizens who will ask them random questions concerning their candidacy. The four are Mrs. J. B. Spillman, Frank Wooten, Jr., Dr. Paul Murray and D. J. Whitchard, Jr. The moderator of the program will be A. Hartwell Campbell, manager of the station.

Committee chairman William Watson, local attorney, stated today the program is not intended as a Jaycee endorsement of any candidate. "We are sponsoring the program for the purpose of fostering public interest in the coming election and to give the voters an opportunity to hear each candidate express himself," he said.

Registering For City Elections Relatively High

According to the registrars at the court house and city hall, the registering for the city elections to be held on Monday, May 7, has been very heavy compared with past elections.

To date approximately 115 people have registered at the city hall and 110 at the court house, although the number of registrants has been light this morning at both places.

Mrs. M. T. Simpson, registrar at the court house, and Mrs. Rosa Brown, registrar at the city hall, said the registration had been heavy until this morning and people have shown a great deal of interest in the coming election. They both said many people had come in to see if they were registered and many had gotten transfers to other wards.

John Got Off Easy

John Q. Public Only Mentioned In Passing By Kefauver Report; Lawmakers Note Every Illegal Bet By The "Suckers"—Further Corruption In American Life

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The one who gets off easiest in the report of the Kefauver crime committee—although no one is more deeply involved—is John Q. Public.

If people didn't gamble, there wouldn't be any gambling. And it's the gambling of a great many people which makes crime syndicates possible. It's as simple as that and as simple as this: Every bet made in violation of the law—with a lottery peddler, or with a street corner bookmaker—helps break down the law and encourages crime.

And the mobsters, in their fierce desire to rake in Citizen John's two bucks, bribe public officials, corrupt government, bump one another off, and make a smell in American life.

The Kefauver committee must have sighed over the problem—how to get people to quit gambling—for about the harshest thing it had to say about the public was this:

"The 22 hours bettor and the 5-cent numbers player are not only suckers because they are gambling against hopeless odds, but they also provide the moneys which enable underworld characters to undermine our institutions."

Having said that, the committee must have figured it was hopeless to try to reform millions of people. So it went on for 195 pages to explain how widespread and vicious crime is and how it has reached into high places.

The committee made some recommendations for cutting down on crime, but not for cutting it out. The committee hesitated for a moment to cut out every criminal, but it said:

"The committee is convinced that there is no single panacea for the widespread social, economic and political evils that have been uncovered in the many cities in which it has made investigations and held hearings."

"The committee feels, nevertheless, that while organized crime cannot be completely eliminated from our society, this is no reason for desisting, for vigorous law enforcement can control organized crime to the point where it is no longer a threat to the public."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
THE PASSING YEARS
A feeling that afflicts some people as they get older is that of bitter regret for their lost youth. Not infrequently one encounters a man or woman scarcely over half way through life's proverbial three score years and ten who is discouraged and even despairing because the surging vitality and the reckless energy so necessary for some youthful pastime have begun to drain away.

There is no need for this downheartedness. The wise man seeks to compensate for it by spiritual gain. Even the not-so-wise man who is taken by surprise can usually look around and find an outlet in literature, art, or community service, for his accumulating experience, and so make his life fuller than before. Only the person who has irrevocably dedicated himself to physical and sensual pleasures is hopelessly bereft.

Youth has its advantages, and yet its drawbacks, too. In Goethe's great drama "Faust," the devil does not succeed in enticing Faust to the lowest self-indulgence until after he has restored his youth. And as times goes by, we should always remember Robert Browning's poem "Rabbi Ben Ezra," which begins:

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made."

Registration Time Is Growing Short

Election day in the City of Greenville is drawing closer and there remain a large number of people, otherwise eligible to vote, who are not properly registered for the city election.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the registration for the election since the books opened last week, but The Reflector again reminds those citizens who are not sure they are properly registered for the election to check before Saturday and make certain they are registered properly.

It is gratifying that the registrants for the city wards report that more interest has been shown in the registration for this year's election than in past years. But we must keep in mind that there is a great deal of room for improvement in the interest the people of Greenville are showing in local politics.

Well over 100 people have added their names to the registration books of the city during the registration period, and many have checked with the registrars to be sure they are properly registered. But obviously there are still a lot of people who are not registered for the balloting which will take place Monday.

The registration books will be open at the city hall and the courthouse from 9 in the morning 'til 5:30 in the afternoon each day through Saturday. When Monday rolls around and the polls are open, it will be too late to do anything about it if you are not registered for the election.

The citizen who is not registered automatically forfeits his right for a voice in the election of the officials who will help direct the activities of Greenville's government for the next two years.

It's Time To Make Politics Secondary

The revelation of the content of the Wedemeyer report which was made to President Truman in 1947 on the Korean situation is going to add fuel to the fire of controversy which is now raging between the pro-Truman and pro-MacArthur blocs across the nation.

Unfortunately the fuel in all probability will be added along party lines by the politicians who insist upon putting party politics ahead of the welfare of the fighting men in Korea or the national security.

The United States made a grave mistake in Korea. From the Wedemeyer report which has now been made public, it is apparent that the Chief Executive almost four years ago rejected the advice of an authority who studied the situation, and accepted the advice of some other source. The United States is paying a dear price for its international blunders since the close of World War II; but raving about the actions of the past, unless we use them as guides for future actions, is accomplishing nothing.

A great deal of harm already has been done. The two schools of thought on the international policy of the United States, particularly in Korea, have planted themselves solidly upon the Democratic and Republican party lines. Unless the politicians can shed the party scales of blindness which cover their eyes, and view the nation's international position from a purely objective standpoint without reference to the 1952 election, the United States will find itself in an even more perilous international position than we now are.

This is no time for party politics. The United States needs unity today as much as it ever has in its history. It likewise needs the constructive criticism and serious consideration its best minds can give to the problems which confront the nation. But we don't need a cat and dog fight between the leaders of two political parties carried on at the expense of the welfare of the nation.

There are good points and bad points in the international proposals of both the Democrats and the Republicans. A level-headed group of men should sit down and calmly evaluate the proposals and take from them the best points in each to form a positive, firm foreign policy for the United States.

An Eye-Opener

Governor Kerr Scott's comment on the effect the gambling and liquor interest are having on politics in North Carolina should shake a few Tar Heels from their position of "it can't happen here."

The governor declared "gambling and liquor interests are getting a hold on the political life of North Carolina. The situation has been creeping along until now the gambling, whiskey and racket interests are getting a hold on the political life of North Carolina."

Was the governor's statement a big surprise? The fact that the governor made the statement may have been a surprise, but the same thing has been said to the people over and over again particularly during the past several months.

North Carolina is no more immune to the organized schemes of the underworld than any other state or section of the nation. If the people in the state do not set about the task of keeping the underworld schemes from within our borders, we may find the task almost impossible when we realize they have gained control of politics in the state.

WASHINGTON—A local and field survey of the one-mail-a-day and similar economies imposed by Postmaster General Donaldson, who used to be a mail carrier himself, discloses that he is almost the only individual satisfied with this revolutionary reform. Indeed, there have been humorous suggestions that he be impeached for "tampering with the mail."

The two groups most upset over the curtailed program have expressed their dissatisfaction in letters to the writer, which inspired the survey here described.

They are the Post Office employees, from superintendents down to the man who now calls only once a day at your house, and the 100,000,000-odd customers of this once efficient and imitated service. Foreign countries never knew anything like it—that is, until Postmaster Donaldson destroyed it.

INSPIRATION—Now, this column is not meant as a criticism of Mr. Donaldson, whose promotion from the ranks was an inspiration to every member of the department. But, as so often happens, he did not think the problem through when he told Congress that his plan would save $500,000,000 annually.

Again, like his boss in the White House, he hates to admit a mistake. It is probable that he would rescind his mail cuts, if it were not that Harry S. Truman will not let him.

ECONOMIES—Although book-keeping methods, especially the government's, have fallen into disrepute because political magicians rather than certified public accountants keep the books, the fact is that all of Mr. Donaldson's so-called "economies" save the taxpayers about $150,000,000 annually. So the House Appropriations Committee discovered in a behind-the-scenes study of the one-mail-a-day operation.

If House and Senate members have any political sense, they will force an immediate return to the pre-Donaldson system. For several hundred thousand P.O. employees, who exert considerable influence with the people they contact every day, are definitely sore over the present situation. And so are the 100,000,000 customers, who want the postman to ring twice again.

ULCERS—The one-mail-a-day delivery and the earlier closing of post office doors means no easier work or shorter hours for the men who carry the outside bundles, or for the men who labor behind the counter and in the sorting section.

It was the aspect of the Donaldson economy program which sold President Truman on it. He figured it would strengthen him with this big bloc of voters and public servants so generally popular with the public. How wrong he was—again!

Making only one delivery means heavier mailbags and longer routes for the mail carriers, especially with the growth of suburban areas. Instead of getting home for a hot noon meal or dropping into a friendly nearby restaurant, they must carry lunches because they are out on their routes from 9 and 10 a.m. until 2 and 3 p.m.

They must gobble their cold sandwiches on a hard curbstone, or on a rainy or blizzard day, under the shelter of a thickly fogged tree. Scores of letters describe these hardships, and suggest that Mr. Donaldson may be partially responsible for today's bumper crop of stomach ulcers.

ABSURDITY—Closing the doors of main and branch stations at 5:30 instead of 6 p.m., although it penalizes late customers, is no boon to the inside Post Office employees. They must do paper and special work during that extra half-hour.

The absurdity of claiming economies or greater efficiency on the basis of this system becomes manifest from a study of the P.O.'s pay schedule. Although a man may work only three hours a day, inside or outside the office, he draws pay for eight hours. But if, as frequently happens, he works nine or ten hours a day, he is paid for those extra hours.

DEVICE—There is no balancing of pay between the hours he does not work on certain days, and the extra time he spends on other days. He is paid on the flat basis of an eight-hour day and 40-hour week. There is talk of inaugurating such a balanced pay system, although it is doubtful if it will be installed. It would be too unfair and unpopular.

As a result of this so-called time and money-saving device, almost every worth-while sub-station rolls up large weekly overtime bills. The offsetting economies reported by Mr. Donaldson are effected at large receiving and distributing centers, not to mention the fact that P.O. book-keepers are magicians.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP
It's a shame that the time has returned when stories about war heroes are back in the news. But the stories have started coming through, and frankly, it will do you good to read a few of them. It gives you an idea of what chances some Americans are taking to protect our way of life, it gives you an assurance that we will win, and it makes any sacrifice that you might have to make here in this country look small.

Today's story is about a man by the name of Dean Hess from Marietta, Ohio. Dean was an A-1 student all through school, and at the age of 23 was an ordained minister in the Church of the Disciples of Christ. That was back in 1941. The day after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor Dean decided that he had rather fight than preach, so he enlisted as an air cadet. After winning his wings, he taught flying for two years, then was sent to the European Theater of Operations as a fighter pilot. In Europe he flew 62 missions and won the Air Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

When the North Korean invasion came last summer, Dean Hess was still in the Air Force, a Major stationed in Japan and serving as an information and education official. The South Korean air force was in sad shape; in fact, it had no combat planes at all. The South Koreans were given ten F-51 Mustangs by the United States, but they didn't know how to fly them.

Dean Hess rushed to Taegu to become "adviser" to the South Korean flyers. Actually, he became their trainer, beloved leader, and the best fighter of their unit. They called him "Mister United States."

With the help of Major Hess and other American airmen that joined the unit, the South Koreans learned to fly the Mustangs. Hess found them to be too tense, so he relaxed them by pulling stunts in mid-air, such as letting his leg dangle out of the cockpit, or having imaginary pistol duels with his wingman. Along with the training, Hess went on missions to give support to the 25th Infantry Division. The Infantry Division leaders called Hess a one-man Air Force, and he was awarded the Silver Star.

Last week Lieutenant Colonel Hess had completed 220 missions in the Korean war. He and his unit were honored by President Syngman Rhee and General Kim Chong Yul, commander of the South Korean Air Force. Rhee gave them the presidential unit citation, and Hess was personally given an ox, traditional Korean prize for champion archers and fencers.

This gift naturally drew a rib from the Americans. One pilot yelled, "Hey, colonel! All you need now is half an acre of land and you can settle down here for life!" Hess laughed, gave the ox to a Korean farmer, and sent off the second combat mission of that day, which consisted of four Mustangs, two flown by South Koreans and two by Americans. And I thank you

CONSTITUTIONAL—The idea of placing some constitutional guarantees around operations of the state highway and public works commission has been given new impetus. The suggestion is not new. For a long time students of state government have recognized that functions logically falling in this classification were as intimately and vitally related to the everyday life of the people as administration of the public schools, and perhaps more entitled to constitutional recognition than functions of the departments of agriculture, insurance and labor. Heretofore support of giving more substantial prestige to the highway and public works department has been confined to people who did not carry much weight in North Carolina affairs. Now the person of Kerr Craige Ramsay of Rowan, veteran legislator, member of the advisory budget commission 1947-1949, speaker of the house of representatives in 1949, and currently in the limelight as a potential candidate for governor.

COMMITMENT—Ramsay committed himself on this subject last Friday night in a talk to the Young Democratic Club of Watauga county at Boone. He said then that, based on his experience in the legislature, he had come to the conclusion that the state highway commission should be a constitutional body, organized on basis comparable to that of the state board of education as effectuated under a constitutional amendment adopted in 1944, which replaced a similar but confusing provision written into the constitution two years before. There has always been a constitutional board of education, but the 1943 and 1945 provisions consolidated functions previously performed by the State School Commission and several other agencies, and for first time since the public school program really got underway placed administrative control in one state agency. The record of achievement in the area of education leads Ramsay now to conclude similar constitutional protection should be accorded the agency responsible for public roads and the people served by these roads.

ARGUMENTS—Amendment public money spent for highways and auxiliary streets and bridges by the highway commission is comparable to, although slightly less than, the amount spent for public schools. It is many, many times the amount administered by any other state agency or for any other public purpose. Combined receipts and disbursements of all other constitutional departments, except education, represent only a fraction of highway moneys. The only other agencies dealing with such large amounts, and these amounts include both education and highway funds, are the revenue department, the budget bureau, and the division of purchase and contract. By statute the budget and purchase-contract agencies are divisions of the governor's office, and there are strict statutory regulations affecting activities of the revenue department. Administration of the highway and prison systems by the state highway and public works commission is virtually autonomous. After the governor appoints the chairman and the ten division commissioners they are almost on their own.

OVERLAPPING—Although by all odds the most important board of commission, the highway group is the only one with terms of members all expiring at the same time. Membership—the boards of agriculture, conservation and development, education, health and wild life resources is staggered so that there is always experienced membership along with "new blood" every two years. The highway commission has eleven members, including the chairman, all of whose terms expire May 1 after beginning of a new state administration. Sometimes members are reappointed, but of the present membership only the chairman—Dr. Henry Jordan—had previous experience. Whether recognized by the constitution or not, there is growing sentiment for longer terms and overlapping tenure of highway commissioners. This plan has proven good for the lesser agencies, and proponents of it for the highway set-up feel it would more than justify itself in that field.

Business Today

Just what is happening to the furniture business is puzzling the industry. The marriage rate has not declined seriously. The number of houses being built is only slightly less than last year. But both manufacturers' and retailers' sales of furniture are down.

Orders booked in March by manufacturers reporting to Seidman and Seidman, leading accountants in the industry were 40 per cent lower than in February. While March orders usually decline, they rarely fall that much. March orders were 4 per cent under March, 1950. Manufacturers report a rise in "holds" and in cancellations.

The Jamestown, N. Y., furniture market last week was a flop. Attendance was 1,100, compared with 1,500 a year ago, and buying was even slower than the attendance figures indicated, manufacturers said.

Retail sales in February were 7 per cent below January, according to Federal Reserve figures. They were still 1 per cent above February, 1950, however. March and April figures are not yet available, but scattered reports from retailers do not indicate any change in the trend. The lag in manufacturers' sales is not hard to explain. During the rush of buying at retail in the last half of 1950, dealers bought frantically. While they kept telling themselves, "This can't go on forever," they acted as if it would. As a consequence, dealers' stocks swelled and many were forced to hire extra warehouse space. Now they have neither the inclination nor the financing to buy much beyond fill-in items.

Of course, one of the reasons dealers find themselves with heavy inventories is that consumer buying did not continue its rate of increase. The reason for this is not so clear cut, but they exist. Some are:

Many consumers used up their savings and credit in 1950 buying.

Credit controls restricted other buyers.

Others, still with cash and credit buying power, filled their needs last year.

Higher food prices have strapped many family budgets.

Furniture prices are up. A Department of Labor index shows January-furniture prices were 10.6 per cent higher than a year ago and home furnishings 16.1 per cent, compared with department store average of 9.3 per cent.

So far, the sales lag has resulted in only isolated cases of dumping. Most manufacturers and dealers believe the rising national payroll and cutbacks in other manufacture will bring an upturn and they'll hold on as long as their bankers will.

LAZY PEOPLE MAKE JOBS FOR DESIGNERS
One of the things that make industrial designers happy is that people are lazy. "If they weren't, we'd starve," says Jean O. Reinecke, chairman of the Chicago Chapter of Industrial Designers.

He cited foot pedals on drinking fountains, cigaret lighters in autos and orange juice squeezers as examples of new design resulting from people's laziness.

BOOK DELINEATES RUSSIA'S ECONOMY
On the average, the Soviet standard of living is one of the lowest in the western world, writes Harry Schwartz in "Russia's Soviet Economy," one of the most exhaustive studies of Uncle Joe's domain. This new 592-page book is published by Prentice-Hall, 70 Fifth Ave., New York (at $6.66).

DEFENSE BUYING RAISES SHOE OUTPUT
There were some jogs in shoe production during the first quarter of the year, but total production was actually 2.6 per cent higher than the first 1950 quarter. The Tanners Council of America reports that 132,211,000 pairs were turned out, compared with 128,858,000 pairs in the comparable period.

The increase was due almost entirely to military demands, which increased production of men's shoes 16 per cent. All other categories declined except misses' and children's footwear, up 1.7 per cent.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—It is always lonelier on a mountain peak than in a valley.

It's that way with military life, too. The Generals are lonelier than the Lieutenants. Sometimes I think they are among the loneliest of all men, particularly in combat zones.

To the ordinary Private, who has so many bosses he sometimes feels like a hare surrounded by a high picket fence, the life of a general looks like one long dream of luxuriant liberty.

"Nobody can tell the General what to do," the low man on the Army totem pole tells himself enviously. "He can go where he wants to when he wants to. He can bunk down when he wants to and get up when he wants to. He don't have to walk in the mud—he can fly over it in his own plane."

"He can get what he wants to eat and all the liquor he wants to drink. He sleeps between sheets. He don't have to polish his own boots. He's got a high-class batboy to do all his dog-robbing errands, too. Man, how do they ever get jobs like that?"

And, of course, the average Private envies the privilege which legend accords to most generals—the privilege of dying in bed instead of upon the battlefield.

The General, however, sees his own life in no such light. He feels he is hedged about by almost as many rules as the private and often he rather yearns to have the Private's sense of freedom when duties are done.

For there is no such thing as complete freedom for a General. He is held down by orders from those above him, and he is restricted in many ways by the opinions of those under his own command.

"I can't afford to let myself worry too much whether my officers and men like me or hate me," a General told me once. "But I do have to be sure they respect me—and that they will carry out my orders."

Being boss means having less plain ordinary human fun. When they throw a party on an Army post, the Commanding General and his lady arrive early—and they leave early. They can't hang around and let down their hair with the lower-rank lads and their lassies. It wouldn't do. And Generals who try to be "one of the boys" find out it's a mistake. Some of the boys are sure to misunderstand. Or some will try to take advantage of the situation. Authority must remain upright—and keep its distance.

"It isn't caste snobbery," one General's wife explained. "The General can't mix too freely in social life for fear the idea will get around that he's playing favorites. That wrecks morale."

In battle areas the General is really lonely. His companionship is even more limited. He cannot share his responsibility and there is no vacation from it. He rarely feels emotionally the death in battle of individual men under him. If he did, he couldn't stand the tension of being a General.

But a General traditionally does regard his command as part of his own body. And any considerable loss of his men—any loss he could have avoided—is as a spearthrust into his own side. That is part of his military

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Adrienne Koch, noted writer, hopes her infant twins will not object if she returns to her job as associate professor of philosophy at New York University next Fall.

"I've been a professional woman all my life and I have an investment in a career," she told me. "I'll be better able to appreciate them, and they me, if I'm not just hovering about, grousing at them all the time."

Miss Koch, in private life, Mrs. Lawrence Kegan, wife of a National Production Authority economist, had the twins last October, a month after she won a Fulbright Fellowship to study in England and Scotland. She didn't miss having to turn this down, as she has been able to pursue a vast portion of her studies in philosophy through previous grants and fellowships—two Guggenheim fellowships, one spent at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton; Rockefeller Foundation and Carnegie Research grants.

"I'm just a foundation fatter," she says. The foundations have had full return however, since today Miss Koch is recognized as one of the country's outstanding philosophers and her literary contributions in that field are impressive.

Author of "Jefferson and Madison: The Great Collaboration," she is now—in spite of the advent of the twins, which, believe me, get a proper share of attention and adoration—completing another work, "American Philosophers."

"It is short. I pick out figures who've been important in shaping American thought, devoting a chapter to each," she said. The book begins with Jonathan Edwards' Puritanism; discusses Jefferson's political philosophy and Emerson's sensing of America's coming of age as a cultural nation. It deals as well with Charles Saunders Pierce, William James and John Dewey whom Miss Koch believes made the greatest contribution to American philosophical thought.

Miss Koch says she spends several days researching at the Library of Congress, often does her writing between 3 and 5 a.m. When she returns to New York University she will resume her previous custom of spending two days there and five days in Washington.

Grifton Student Is Crowned Queen Of May Festival

A large crowd watches the May Fete Dance, "Ballet in Pastels," in honor of Becky Hughes, Queen of May. The dancers are members from the freshman and sophomore classes.

Mrs. Rebecca Holcomb Hughes of Grifton was crowned Queen at a May Festival presented yesterday afternoon at East Carolina College. A large group of spectators from the campus, Greenville, and nearby towns, which filled the stadium on the college athletic field, was present to see the entrance of the Queen and her Court and a pageant "The Knave of Hearts" presented under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Dole of the faculty.

Preceded by Ann Osborne of Salisbury and Betty Loughlin of Wilmington, heralds, the maids in the Court dressed in bouffant pastels and carrying matching parasols, entered separately and formed a semi-circle at the dais which elevated the Queen's throne. Maids were Ramona Sawyer of Washington, maid of honor; Thelma Russ, Kelly; Anne Oakley, Greenville; Ramona Hobgood, Oxford; Marie Stoddard, Chadbourn; Lois Johnson, South Mills; Norma Hughes, Chadbourn; Gail Hines, Faison; June Pritchard, Montclair, N.J.; Sarah Peedin, Selma; Dorothy Jennings, Elizabeth City; Elizabeth Hedgepeth, Warrenton; and Jeanette Tillet, Kill Devil Hill. Mrs. Hughes wore a court dress of white satin with a long, graceful train. Jimmy Jenkins acted as train bearer; Buddy Murray as crown bearer; and Jane Reynolds as flower girl. Alexander E. Livesay of Rocky Mount, president of the Student Government Association during the 1950-51 term, placed the crown on the head of the Queen. Music for the procession was provided by a Brass Ensemble directed by Herbert L. Carter of the faculty. Albert Harrington of Burlington, with John R. Kennedy of Wilmington as assistant, announced the entrance of the Queen and her Court. Charles Self of Greensboro, president of the Student Government Association, headed a group of eight ushers.

General's Wife Wins By A Nose

NEW YORK —(UP)— The most perfect nose in America belongs to Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, the nation's magazine photographers decided today.

Because "no girl is a perfect model," members of the American Society of Magazine Photographers selected the most attractive feature of 10 American women for a composite of the "most alluring American girl."

Martin Harris, executive secretary of the society, said Mrs. MacArthur was chosen for her nose because it was "completely unobtrusive" and blended perfectly with her other facial features.

The nine other women and that part of their anatomy that went into the composite were:

Most perfect bosom, Jane Russell; most perfect legs, Linda Darnell; most perfect chin, Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller; most perfect hips, Rita Hayworth; most perfect ears, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg; most perfect eyes, Kathi Norris; most perfect thighs, Esther Williams; most perfect mouth, Elizabeth Taylor; most perfect hair, Brenda Frazier Kelly.

He did not furnish particulars but said special training in the use of firearms was given to border people in some areas and arms supplied at government expense.

Moats Used To Stop Terrorists

MALACCA —(AP)— It's going to be a lot tougher for Communist terrorists to get back into areas from which they have been driven by British security forces. One village, Simpang Bekoh, is being resettled with loyal and law-abiding citizens of Malaya, but it has a unique feature it is to be surrounded by a moat. Dredgers now are at work, making a moat 14 feet wide around the village.

British authorities may carry out this scheme to help protect other villages which are being resettled after the areas are cleared of Communist terrorists.

Chapter 3

Ruth Starr rode swiftly down the trail to the ranch yard, off-and-on, and turned her pony into the corral. She was white-faced and her muscles trembled from the reaction. She had never shot at a man before. She had not tried to hit him, but it was close work and a tiny slip meant blood on her hands.

She was not ashamed of what she had done. They would surely have killed Jeff Payne if she had not interfered, and she would have known it and would have reproached herself to the end of her days.

But nobody must ever know; her father or Buddy or anybody on the Star. And, most decidedly, not Jeff Payne.

Jeff found his three cowhands sitting outside the line shack, their horses tied at the hitching rail in front. As he dismounted he eyed the animals closely; they had dried out and it was evident that none of them had been ridden within the last hour or so. It was not one of them who had saved his bacon.

A sad-faced puncher called Tomstone Jones asked, "You find 'em?"

"Followed them across the creek and into a canyon. It was a trap. Shag had men posted on the walls and he and four others charged me when I got inside."

"And you got out?"

"I'm here." He told them about the unknown rifleman who had come to his assistance. They thought it over.

"That'd be Four-mile Canyon you got trapped in," said Tomstone, "but I can't figger out who the figger was that spoiled Shag's party."

"Whoever it was gets three cheers and a slap on the back when I meet up with him."

"Well, if them cows was run through Four-mile Canyon we might as well kiss 'em goodbye for the present."

Jeff nodded. "Well finish what Shory and me started. You boys

Malaya Planters Ask Drive On Rubber Robbers

JOHORE BAHRU, Malaya (AP)—The rubber planters in Johore want stern justice for Communist terrorists who have been stealing latex and rubber scrap in "alarming proportions," the Johore Planters Association declared the rubber robbers were living well off the proceeds of what they theft while the death penalty for thefts "has been a mere threat and the only result has been to bring the law into contempt."

The rubber planters said that their casualties are running high in trying to keep rubber estates producing despite Communist terrorists raids of murder and plunder. Nineteen planters were killed in 1950 in Malaya, five of them in Johore state.

British troops and police battling the Reds are hopeful they can end the war and state of emergency in Malaya by next December.

WITH U.S. MARINES, KOREA — (AP) — Chinese Reds hurled massed attacks at Fifth Regiment marines a few nights ago. As the fighting mounted in intensity, the Chinese stormed a ridge position shouting: "G.I.s up your arms."

Then, from the Chinese side of the ridge, the clear soft notes of a flute drifted down on the Leathernecks in a familiar refrain — "Open the Door, Richard."

But all that night the door stayed closed.

Wonder-Camera Is Displayed In London Exhibit

LONDON — (AP) — A camera which can take 24,000,000 pictures per minute has been displayed by the Ministry of Supply at an exhibition here.

The ministry says the photographs could clearly show an ordinary house fly 100 yards away. The camera is described as the fastest high definition camera in the world. It is used for studying the details of explosions, which sometimes last only a fraction of a second.

The camera throws images on to a stainless steel mirror which revolves 150,000 times a minute. The image is reflected through small lenses on to film.

The camera contains some of the fastest moving apparatus in existence, the ministry says.

Vitamin Stops Mink Disease

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Researchers at the U. S. Department of Agriculture have found a remedy for "Yellow Fat Disease," which kills thousands of mink kits annually. The remedy is to provide some form of vitamin E in the ration.

Yellow fat disease is most prevalent along the Pacific coast where mink are fed largely on fish scrap, which is plentiful in the region. To supplement the fish scrap and provide a source of vitamin E, scientists have used fresh horse meat or liver. Wheat germ meal, however, proved a cheaper source and when it was fed in ample quantities, none of the mink developed the disease.

The title of Certified Gemologist requires additional study in advanced fields of gemology and the passing of a series of stringent tests. There are today 111 active Certified Gemologist titles in the Society.

Rumor And Fear Are Among Greater Dangers Of Germ Warfare Menace

By BEM PRICE
AP Newsfeatures
 ATLANTA—If scare writers have their nerves a little raw over this business of biological warfare, perhaps this will provide some slight consolation.

One of the nation's top experts, Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, has discarded as baseless two of the pet theories of the gloomy guses of the pen.

It is most unlikely that biological warfare, says Langmuir, would employ any new, laboratory bred "super virulent" disease.

It is unlikely, he adds, that an enemy could start a chain reacting epidemic that would incapacitate the population from coast to coast.

In fact, Langmuir declares, biological warfare would employ in concentrated form the same old diseases that have been bothering man from Adam to atom.

Langmuir, chief epidemiologist of the Communicable Disease Center of the U. S. Public Health Service, warned however that the concept of "BW" has been carried so far that defenses are imperative.

Defenses are impossible you say? Langmuir concedes the problem a tough one; that every field, food factory and dairy would become a defense project in need of guarding.

A partial answer would be widespread inoculations against diseases for which remedies have been developed.

Another factor would be early detection of diseases loosed in air borne attacks.

It isn't generally known, but the Communicable Disease Center (CDC) recently developed a portable pollen counting gadget. This device also picks up whatever else happens to be in the air.

Thus, it is conceivable that the U. S. in time could have a network, similar to a radar network, to help guard against a surprise attack.

CDC officials generally are mum on the subject, but one of their big worries is "the false rumor with some foundation in fact which could precipitate an international crisis."

For example, suppose a rumor started that a city's water supply had been poisoned. And say a number of typhoid cases did develop. On CDC official observed, "We would have the devil's own time convincing people that the typhoid may have occurred naturally from some local contamination. The public gets hysterical about these things."

Last Jan. 1 at Birmingham, Ala. there developed one of these potentially dangerous incidents. A rumor spread that the water system was poisoned. Public hysteria mounted. It took the combined and vigorous efforts of newspapers and radio stations to halt the potential panic. The rumor was "the Communists did it."

There is a controversy over the feasibility of bacterial warfare. Some pooch the idea; some carry it to frightening extremes.

The truth, says Langmuir, lies in between—and the truth is bad enough.

There are about 25 diseases which can be used against man and animals, Langmuir explains, and normally these diseases are transmitted by contact. However, it was discovered in laboratory accidents that concentrates of these agents sometimes escaped into the air and poisoned technicians.

It would be feasible to dump such concentrates over selected targets by air or shell, in containers like the bug bomb for insects.

Langmuir declared use of biological agents have a decided advantage to the saboteur in that he can "out the bacteria and be gone before the deadly organisms have gone through an incubation period and become dangerous to man. A few germs in an air-conditioning system could contaminate a building."

Prague Will Have Women Barbers

PRAGUE — (AP) — If everything goes according to plan, the first woman barber in Prague will be a man barber left in Prague. The men who now work in the barbershops will be in offices or mines or factories, and women will be working in their places.

The women already have a toehold. They make up the entire staffs of three of the 1,620 barbershops in this city of a million people. The plan—in line with a broad "power program in Communist-led Czechoslovakia—is to cut the number of shops to 500—all staffed by women. Girls of 15 now are being trained as barbers in a technical school.

Negro Child Victim Of Backing Auto; Seriously Injured

A police report states that Elmer Earl Kittrell, two-year-old colored child, ran into the rear of a car that was backing out of a driveway on Battle street, near Tyson street, yesterday afternoon, and was painfully injured. The child was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Police quoted the driver as saying that he had backed out of the driveway and was just starting the car on the street when the child ran into the rear of the vehicle and was knocked to the ground. Best went to police headquarters to report the accident.

Israel's Supply Of Sulphur Cut

TEL AVIV — (AP) — Israel's sulphur crisis has been worsened recently due to a cutback in U.S. exports. In an attempt to ease the shortage, a Haifa chemical company is considering the production of sulphuric acid from iron pyrites, found in Cyprus, North Africa and Spain.

Israel needs sulphuric acid to produce fertilizer and for the manufacture of many other industrial products. Government authorities find some consolation in the fact that about 2,500 tons of Dead Sea Potash for fertilizer can soon be turned over to Israeli farmers.

ARCADIA, Calif. — (AP) — A small night light bulb looked better than it tasted to 26-month-old Kenneth Gronenthal.

Kenneth was pronounced O. K. at an emergency hospital where they plucked the fragments from his mouth and throat—but he went on a special diet for a few days.

Ancient Inn Is Given Reprieve

LONDON (AP) — The George and Vulture Inn, mentioned several times by Charles Dickens in Pickwick Papers, has won a stay of execution. The Court of Common Council has rejected a proposal to turn the old hostelry into offices.

The inn is in the business and financial center of London, where, the council noted, there already is a shortage of eating and drinking places.

The George and Vulture is on the site of a 14th century inn known as the George. The vulture got in later.

No Unmusical Children, Asserts One Educator

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
 "There is no such thing as an unmusical child," according to Mrs. Edna Buttolph, director of music of Bank Street College of Education. Careful observation of children, she points out shows a joyous response to music and its constant use by the children themselves.

music "incidentally" even two year-olds are ready to join hands in circle games with musical accompaniments. From these simple beginnings there develops in the child a joyful response to music—a listening ear on which real achievement may be built.

In music sessions two-year-olds are encouraged to walk in all sorts of ways from long strides to high balanced tiptoes, from crawling or pushing themselves along to trots and gallops.

All these activities the three-year-olds on through to the five-year-olds carry on with increasing freedom and control. The development of the singing voice and accuracy of pitch go hand in hand with the experience of motion. It has been found. Through hearing and imitating boat and train whistles that are high and low, rattle songs and echoes, bird calls and animal sounds, the child discovers the range of his voice.

As Junior grows older parents and teachers should give him an opportunity to hear the best in music. A wise parent watches the attention span and capacity to listen.

We forget that from calls and shouts, stamps and jumps, walks and runs, bendings and sways our great symphonies and dance forms have developed. Parents can learn how to use this "raw stuff" of music which is found in small children and develop it creatively, according to her. Says she:

"Perhaps a doll is covered or uncovered, or rolled in a carriage, steps are climbed, a small tunnel, is explored, hands washed and so on. All these and many more can be occasions for music—a rhythmic line of sound or song to accompany the child's activity—frequently improvised on the spot."

Mrs. Buttolph suggests that most of the old nursery rhymes can be revived by those who are timid about improvising melodies, and new words to fit almost any introduced. The familiar "Mulberry Bush" song with "This is the Way" can accompany all manner of dressing routines, speed them up and make them fun.

In the Bank Street's Nursery School, she says, it has been found that after several weeks of using music "incidentally" even two year-olds are ready to join hands in circle games with musical accompaniments. From these simple beginnings there develops in the child a joyful response to music—a listening ear on which real achievement may be built.

Use Leaflets In Malayan Fight

KUALA LUMPUR — (AP) — British pilots are doing more than dropping bombs on Communist terrorist hideouts in the Malayan jungle—they're carrying on a propaganda war, too. In a four-day period, the airmen dropped 4,000,000 leaflets in selected areas in Negri Sembilan state.

Some of the leaflets, directed to terrorists themselves, called upon them to surrender. Others publicized rewards offered for information leading to the capture or killing of terrorists by security forces.

MacArthur Spirit May Push America Into New Moral, Inspired Leadership

By JOHN FISHER

Now that America is experiencing the full impact of General MacArthur, a large number of earnest public opinion-molders are cautioning against yielding to emotions. The Administration, for one, is employing its enormous propaganda machine to refute the General's arguments. It implies that anyone who agrees even in part with the old soldier has lost his reason and is instigating World War III.

Nevertheless, a belief is growing among many in Washington and elsewhere that perhaps the anti-MacArthur element is near-sighted in failing to see that national cowardice, in itself, can be an ignominious and perilous form of hysteria.

One explanation of the phenomenal popular response to MacArthur is that a bewildered, frustrated, but essentially practical people recognize him as the symbol of action against compromise, stalemate, appeasement and defeatism.

The American instinct—at Valley Forge, the winning of the West, the solving of atom-splitting—is to permit no obstacle to clock the towering figure of Russia.

True, the emotions actuated by MacArthur could push the United States into a larger engagement than is being fought today. But the aroused spirit may place this country in the position of bold, strong, inspired moral leadership, so lacking in this fear-paralyz world and yet so sorely needed in the life and death struggle with advancing Communism.

We Have Most Answers

The overshadowing question in the opinion of those giving weight to MacArthur's views—is not simply one of negotiation or postponement of further war—important as both subjects certainly are. It is: How can we keep Russia from destroying America—as she is pledged by her leaders to do?

Part of the answers is forthcoming: American rearmament is snowballing. Congress backs with troops General Eisenhower's Western defense plan. Europe is showing a will to stay free. But an Allied weakness is that we have left the initiative to the Soviet Union and Red China.

UN policy assured Peiping that it could commit its major military strength in and around Korea, confident that its Manchurian sanctuary would not be breached, its transportation, ports and industries bombed, its imports of war materials stopped or its defense of Russia's rear broken. Red China knows that the American army, strapped in a straightjacket, can be strangled all over the ring and is barred by self-imposed rules from using its knockout punch.

Those opposing such futility maintain that an unbeaten China can so menace American security in the Pacific that we never can fully support an attacked Europe.

They say that a victorious China also will be a manpower reservoir for Russia to use in Europe as a field army or an occupation force—like the Mongolian occupation troops now terrorizing the captive Baltic republics.

Advocates of change in the uneven balance of power also point out that currently Red China is much weaker than pictured. Its few transportation lines and meagre industrial centers are exposed. Its economy is nearly wrecked. Its people are ripe for relief from Communist oppression.

Agrarian Reform an Empty Dream

A first Mao Tse-tung's regime made a big to-do of agrarian reform. Actually, the break-up of large estates, a feature of European Communist revolutions, has had only a slightly beneficial effect. In prewar Russia about 30,000 landlords owned over 45 acres. Japanese property was redistributed in Manchuria, but the final unit was about five acres. In China proper the shares are between one and three acres per farm family—insufficient to raise living standards.

Agriculture's paramount needs are simple steel tools, machinery, irrigation, reclamation and modern methods of increasing production. Grain output is 90 percent of the low prewar level. Crop failures from floods and droughts last year caused hunger to 40 million people in North and Central China. Funds for farm machinery and expansion of agriculture go to support the huge armies and the swollen bureaucracy.

Brow-beaten Peasants Disillusioned

Mao's failure to mitigate economic misery has left shaky foundations that may collapse under new military pressures. The disillusioned peasantry no longer rallies to Communism. Peiping admits the back-sliding, blaming it on "landlords, secret Kuomintang agents and mercenaries of American imperialism."

An official movie, staged as an anti-Chiang Kai-shek film, showed one flash of the supposedly discredited old Nationalist flag. The crowds applauded so heartily that the scene was ordered cut.

Purges launched in February are increasing in horror. Thousands of "counter-revolutionists" are being executed. Yet guerrilla chiefs, slipping into Formosa, announce that the resistance movement is growing.

Red China is weak now. But if un molested, she may kill off her rebels, crush her farmers and workers into slavery, educate oncoming generations as fanatical

Communists, raise the most powerful army ever mobilized in the Orient and—whenever Moscow gives the command—strike at America or Europe or both.

Will the Kremlin Cross the Rubicon?

Every clear-sighted American realizes that if we hit China in a new spot, Russia may intervene with Soviet-manned planes, submarines and even troops. The Kremlin may do these things anytime without provocation by us. But Russia also has several crucial decisions to weigh.

Would realistic Stalin start World War III over an American move remote from the heartland of Russia? Would he open a second front in Europe while his back door in Asia was being splintered by American blows?

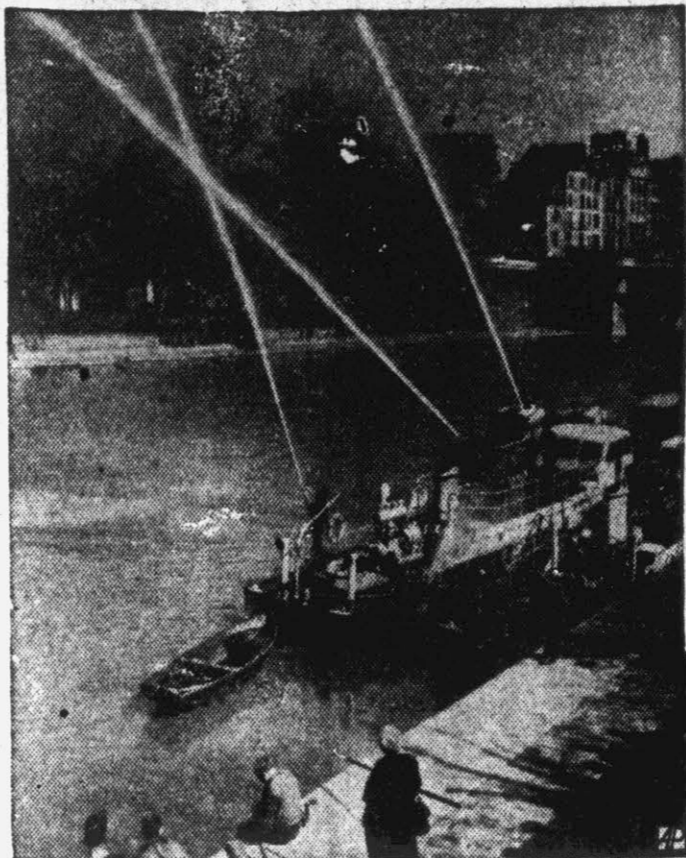

Would he withdraw aid from beleaguered Red China and use his entire resources to win against Europe, realizing that an abandoned and revengeful China in a wave of Titoism might drive the Russians from Manchuria and Siberian maritime provinces and that his old foe Japan might invade Soviet Asia?

Would he for the sake of an opportunist alliance with Mao start a war that would bring the A-bomb down on his own head? Would he hurl Russia into a world war which he knows he can never win?

The free world is not the only world confounded by fateful questions. Consequences leading to the ultimate doom of Russia are in prospect if an utterly mad Russia makes the colossal blunder of turning the Yalu River into a Rubicon.

Govm't Employee Figures Increase

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Federal employment increased by 88,500 persons during March to a total of 2,362,100, the Civil Service Commission announced today.

Of the total, 2,196,600 are in the continental United States.

The commission blamed the increase on seasonal hiring by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Agriculture Department, plus stepped-up activity of the military and price control agencies.

Feller's Big Ambition Spurs Him On To Greater Stardom

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

One last ambition—to get another shot at a World Series victory—is spurring Bob Feller on to what may be one of the greatest seasons of his illustrious career.

Feller, baseball's best righthand pitcher since the days of Walter Johnson and Pete Alexander, is a fixture in the hurlers hall of fame with his strikeout records, two no-hitters and 300 plus victories. The Cleveland righthander has realized all his ambitions—except one. Despite two cracks at it, a World Series triumph thus far has eluded him.

Fitching with head as well as his arm, Feller is showing flashes of his former greatness this season. He has made three starts, has gone the route each time and has won all three.

Feller pitched his best game of the campaign last night, whipping the power-packed Boston Red Sox, 7-1, with a six-hitter. Aiming for his sixth 20-game season, and his first since 1947, Bob has surrendered only four runs and 21 hits in 27 innings.

The victory kept the Indians in a first-place tie with Washington. The Senators overcame an 8-3 deficit to outlast the Browns in a 13-inning night affair at St. Louis, 9-8. Mickey Vernon's homer off Cliff Fanning broke up the game. Mickey Harris was the winner.

The St. Louis Cardinals took undisputed possession of first place in the National League, whipping Johnny Sain and the Braves under the Boston lights, 5-2. The Braves managed to hold on to second place when Pittsburgh upset the Dodgers in Brooklyn, 6-2. The Phillies tied the Dodgers for third, shading the Cincinnati Reds in a Philadelphia night game, 6-5.

New York's awakening Giants made it two in a row with a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a Polo Grounds evening encounter. New York's Yankees stayed close to the heels of the American League leaders, tripping the White Sox in Chicago, 8-3. The cellarite Philadelphia Athletics rallied for eight runs in the 11th inning to rout the Tigers in Detroit, 9-1, and end their 10-game losing streak.

Home runs by Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra helped Vic Raschi gain his third victory for the Yankees. Orestes Minoza, obtained from Cleveland, made his White Sox debut with a two-run homer his first time at bat. The Yanks played without Joe DiMaggio, who rested a stiff neck.

GRIMESLAND—Grimesland High School's baseballers collected six hits on the offering of a Griffon pitcher yesterday afternoon sending six runs over the plate, to take a 6-3 victory over the Griffon nine.

Griffon was held completely until the top of the seventh inning when they exploded for three runs on a late seventh inning rally which fell short. Grimesland scored one run in each of the first six frames to lead all the way.

For Grimesland, Jerry Gaskins pitched 6 2/3 innings before being relieved by James Hunt in the seventh who put out the rally started by the Griffon boys. Barfield went the distance on the mound for the losers.

Grimesland's second baseman, Bob Andrews, collected two for three to pace the winners while Adams and Hooten for Griffon each got two for four.

Grimesland's season record to date now stands at five wins against four losses, with another ball game on tap with Pictolus in Grimesland on Thursday of this week.

Score by innings:
Griffon 000 000 3-3 6 1
Grimesland 111 111 0-6 6 3

Babe Rallies To Cop Tournament

FRESNO, Calif. — (UP) — The bulging bankroll amassed by golfing star Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias stood at a fat $4,300 today as a result of her come-from-behind triumph in the San Joaquin Valley Open tournament.

The fabulous Babe picked up $750 as she went into yesterday's final round two strokes off the pace and finished six strokes ahead of her nearest rival.

Pleasing and profitable as the win was for Babe, it was a heart-breaking defeat for Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex. Miss Jameson, who led through the first two rounds blew up with an 83 yesterday to finish in a three-way tie with Alice Bauer of Midland, Tex., and Louise Suggs of Carroiton, Ga. at 233.

Mrs. Zaharias, now playing out of Tampa, Fla., had a three-under-par 73 on the last round for a 54-hole total of 225. Patty Berg of Minneapolis wound up in second place with a total of 231.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — The kind of a "welcome home" that ex-managers never, never get left Lou Boudreau thrilled and grateful today.

Boudreau, who was ousted as Cleveland Indians manager at the end of last season and now plays shortstop for the Boston Red Sox, returned to Cleveland last night for the first time in his new uniform.

When he stepped to the plate in the second inning, the crowd of 53,462 in Municipal Stadium rose to its feet and turned loose a deafening ovation that lasted over two minutes.

"The biggest thrill of my life," said the moist-eyed Boudreau later. "I sure am grateful to those wonderful people."

Indians' pitcher Bob Feller, once Boudreau's strongest right arm on the mound, got his old boss out on a fly ball that first time up by the next time, in the fourth inning. Boudreau smashed a double to deep center field.

That was Lou's only hit in four trips, and he committed one of the four Sox errors that contributed to the Indians' 7 to 1 victory.

East Carolina's golf team, defending champions in the North State Conference, moved another peg nearer their second Conference Championship in two years, as they turned back a visiting Elon team 25-5 here yesterday.

The summary:

Eleven Chicago 'Bench Jockeys' Chased By Umpire

NEW YORK — (UP) — Fiery Frankie Frisch didn't make any promises but suggested today that all "old" be let alone peaceful with his Chicago Cubs until "Old Rabbit Ears" Frank Dascoli works another game at home plate.

Dascoli chased 11 Cubs off the bench last night, and Frisch said "they're better off in the club house when that guy is umpiring."

"He works behind the plate with one eye or ear on the bench and the other on the ball game," Frisch added. "So maybe if he doesn't have any players to look out for on the bench he can pay a little more attention to what is going on on the field."

The latest row in a series involving players and umpires, came after Dascoli called a balk on Cub pitcher Paul Minner in the third inning, permitting Eddie Stanky to move from second to third. A moment later, he scored on a fly ball, tying the game at 1 to 1.

When the Cubs came to bat in the fourth, they began jockeying him. Dascoli warned them to stop and when the verbal abuse continued he ordered everybody but Frisch and his two coaches to the club house.

Dascoli said "they didn't start to holler until it cost them a run."

"That's the way they are. If it turns out the decision didn't hurt, they don't complain. They were on me on balls and strikes too. Finally, I had enough and told them to clear out."

The big umpire would not reveal what the Cubs had said to him but infielder Bill Serena said they had called him "Old Rabbit Ears" and "Television Ham."

He said after the balk call, he had guts enough to call that in Brooklyn.

"That did it," Serena added. "After that he cleared us all out."

Omaha Pitcher Piloting Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Al Hollingsworth, ex-major league pitcher, is now managing the Houston Club in the Texas League. Last year Hollingsworth piloted Omaha to the Western Association flag.

During his big league career, Al hurried for Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Brooklyn in the National League, and Washington, St. Louis and Chicago in the American League.

Hard-Riding Judge Rides Four Winners

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — Twice during his career as a jockey, George Molesworth, who serves as a patrol judge at Churchill Downs, rode four winners out of five mounts in a single day. He first accomplished this at San Antonio on Aug. 5, 1910. At Juarez on Nov. 30 he again won with four of his five mounts.

TEAMMATES NOW
NEW YORK — (AP) — Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, won the American League batting championship in 1950. Both are now Yankee teammates and are hoping to give the world champions a third consecutive series victory.

Times Have Changed

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — In these days when a ball is thrown out of a game at the slightest nick, it is refreshing to know that on April 11, 1912 Kansas City and Columbus in the American Association played an entire game with only one ball.

Who said You can't Afford a Fine Car?

WHEN you look at everything a ROADMASTER has to offer, it's natural to conclude that it's priced with the rest of the fine-car field.

Sweeping proudly past you, it has a distinction that few cars can equal.

Stepping nimbly away from a stop light, it has the willing surge of power that the very exclusive combination of a 152-horsepower Fireball engine and Dynaflo Drive* delivers.

It rides the road with majestic smoothness, and comes to a smooth and gentle halt, in response to the finest brakes that Buick engineers ever developed.

Inside, it has spacious room, from side to side and front to back and seat to roof—plus a softness of cushions and a richness of fabrics which bespeak the custom standards to which it is built.

All you could want in a fine car is here in abundance. But don't let that mislead you into deciding "it's too rich for me."

Farm Land Price Levels Soaring

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported today that the prices of farm land have vaulted to the highest levels in the nation's history.

The general average of farm real estate increased 14 per cent between March, 1950, and March, 1951. It now is 9 per cent above the previous record set in November, 1948. Values jumped 8 per cent since last November.

Increasing farm product prices and a demand for land as an investment against inflation were said to be two major causes of the biggest boom farm lands have ever enjoyed.

The department said a third of its 7,000 farm real estate reporters expect land prices to go higher this year, and only 5 per cent expect them to decline.

The percentage increase in farm land values by states during the year ending March 31 included:

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a knife assault at a Negro dance at the Growers' Warehouse, on Broadway St., late last night.

Women's Role . . .

(Continued From Page One) the most effective thing that you can do to help the defense effort is to abide by the price control legislation, buy nothing on the Black Market, buy no more of commodities that is needed, and purchase as little as is absolutely possible on credit. Everytime anything is purchased on credit, the amount borrowed or charged adds that much more to the purchasing power, throwing it still more out of balance with the productive capacity.

Whoever engages in practices that weaken the program is engaging in subversive activities," Mrs. Woodhouse declared. In conclusion she said, "A fight against inflation is a fight for the defense effort; a fight for the defense effort is a fight to strengthen the free world; a free world is the only force to combat Communism."

Mrs. Charles White presided at the meeting. The girl's trio of the Greenville High School, composed of Misses Carolyn Clapp, Mary Ann Waldrop and Barbara White, accompanied by Miss Ona Shindler, rendered two selections, "When Day Is Done" and "Robins in the Rain," before the introduction of Mrs. Woodhouse.

Mrs. W. S. Bost, general chairman of Book Club Day, thanked all of the committee chairmen who helped in the planning and work. She presented Mrs. Woodhouse with a gift from the club and also announced that the Clio Book Club had won the Ballie Southall Cotten loving cup presented to the club with the best attendance at Book Club Day.

Following the program, the guests were invited to the tea table for refreshments. The table was centered with a miniature May pole which was tied with pastel satin streamers ending in tiny nosegays of pansies and roses. Mrs. J. T. Little poured spiced tea and Mrs. Joe Moys served iced coffee. Ham biscuits, nuts, mints and petit fours were served as accompaniments.

More than 160 women were present.

The minimum salaries with periodic raises as provided for by the merit system. However, there is nothing to prevent another county from stealing away Pitt's employees through higher salaries above the merit system requirements, which was the case with two of the sanitarians.

In the meantime, however, two men who have become employed on the sanitation staff since last summer are still here, and a third was employed last month. The fourth man hired in the past year was one of those who left for higher salaries elsewhere. The most recent employed sanitarian is now an assistant on the staff, working under the supervision of the other two until he can take courses in public health sanitation. It will be another 12 months before he can become fully qualified with a junior sanitarian's rating.

Although the county has a better chance to move forward in public health this year, a blast of outside opinion was voiced last week concerning the conduct of Pitt's health department. It came from the head of the Craven County department and was partly justified by the fact that he has one of the most modern health centers in eastern North Carolina. Dr. Hardin, who has been in public health for three years after spending many years in the United States Navy, stated:

"The point is this: unless you get an adequate physical set-up over there, you'll never get a working nurse. Three sanitarians have left Pitt during the year, one because they wanted to obtain more public health schooling, and the other two because they were offered more money in health departments in other counties. It is to be remembered that the county has to pay it."

(Continued from page one) longer a menace to our institutions." The work of the committee won sensational headlines and then, about a month ago, was actually more in the public eye than any congressional committee in history.

This was when it climaxed a year's investigations by letting its New York hearings be televised. The committee estimates that 30,000,000 people watched, and it says: "these telecasts... have had a most salutary effect in awakening the public to the menace of organized racketeering that now confronts our national life."

There's probably no doubt the TV spectacle had that effect on many people. But it probably had quite a different effect on many others, those who make bets pretty regularly, violating the law, helping the mobsters. For them, watching the big-time operators take a grilling, there probably were some sharp twinges of conscience, knowing that they themselves, even though only in a small way, had a hand in helping big crime.

The committee seemed to think this was so, for its report on TV adds: "For the first time the public was able to see and hear the notorious hoodlums to whom it was, in one form or another, paying tribute to determine for itself whether they should be permitted to wax even more powerful than they are now."

Iran's Oil . . .

The Iranian oil zone at the head of the Persian Gulf is regarded as the richest single field known anywhere. The huge Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., Ltd., holds a concession over the Persian petroleum, and the British government owns 52 percent of the $500,000,000 company's common stock. This is the only oil enterprise developed in the country.

Naturally this nationalization crisis and the general Red-inspired political unrest, create a position which might inspire a Communist coup.

Russia has been working persistently to force Iran into the Red camp, partly because Moscow wants control of Persian oil but more because she wants access to a warm water port on the Persian Gulf. Such a port long has been a Russian aim.

America, as a particularly interested party, is being kept advised of all developments by Britain.
