Marshall Says U.N. Hopes To Win By Breaking Reds

Defense Secretary Declares Plan Is To Inflict Such A Bloodletting That Aggressors Will Desist; 'Disturbed' By Accentuation On Allied Losses

WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary Marshall said today the United Nations aim to win the Korean war by inflicting "terrific casualties we could in order to break the morale of the aggressors and destroying their trained armies."

He was at the capital for the second day defending those policies against the bitter attack made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far Eastern commander who contends they offer nothing but a "bloody stalemate."

Marshall told the Senators, too, that he is "disturbed" about the possible effect on United Nations men in Korea of statements from their commander (MacArthur) "which accentuate the casualties that they are suffering and in effect that it is without justified purpose."

"We should find some way," Marshall said, "of proceeding with this investigation that does not destroy us in the field by serious reaction in the way of morale."

Marshall said the Administration's plan for Korea has been to "inflict the greatest number of casualties we could in order to break down not only the morale, but the trained fabric of the Chinese armies."

At this point the censor deleted 50 words from the public version of Marshall's testimony. Then the Secretary of Defense continued: "That is, inflict terrific casualties on the Chinese Communist forces."

Discuss Location For Health Center

County Commissioners Indicate Possible Move To Old Pitt General Hospital Building Would Solve Problem

The future location of the health department is still hanging in the balance after the county commissioners yesterday indicated the best thing to do with it is to move it to the old Pitt General Hospital building.

The tentative move is tangent to what was thought for several months that the department would remain at its present location in the Tucker Building where it would be turned into a health center for the county.

However, yesterday, after a report from health officer Dr. T. G. Basnight in which he stated that the Medical Care Commission might not finance the project of renovating the Tucker Building, the commissioners stated in informal talk that the best proposition might be to leave all agricultural agencies in the Tucker Building, moving other county departments to the hospital building.

Basnight reported that a letter from Medical Care architect Bruce Jones indicated the commission didn't think it advisable to pour money into a renovation job. Rather, the letter said, it would be best to construct an entirely new building at a total cost of $66,700 with the county sharing in the cost to the extent of $26,000.

Jones stated in his letter, "It appears that it might be possible for the county to sell the existing building and the site on which it is located at a cost which would probably be sufficient to provide for the county's share at 39.1 percent of the cost of constructing and equipping a new building. . . . In such a case it would of course be necessary for the county to provide a site of approximately one acre which must have water and sewer available at 100 percent county expense. This new site would not necessarily have to be in the center of the city but might be on the edge of the city, but located on a principal highway."

Allies Push Forward In Offensive

Patrols Roam No-Man's Land; Reds Said Angry Over Lack Of Arms

TOKYO (AP)— Allied troops today pushed cautiously north at both ends of the 100-mile Korean front for the second successive day.

Patrols hunted in the vacuum between these points for vanishing Red troops. Far north of the theoretical battle line, pilots reported new Communist build-ups in Red Korea.

At the extreme west, where no action has been reported for weeks, U.N. forces on the Kimpo peninsula northwest of Seoul engaged in a mortar duel with Reds.

South Koreans making the western advance reached points 17 miles northwest of Seoul on the east bank of the Han River. Armored patrols fanning out from Uijongbu stabbed to points 20 miles north of Seoul.

Across the rest of the western and central sectors, AP Correspondent John Randolph reported, "There is no formal front line. Instead, there is a wide shelf of no-man's land of varying width. In this belt, Chinese and United Nations patrols roam back and forth."

For the second successive day an armored column rumbled unopposed into the hub city of Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul. Patrols jabbed north into Red defenses but elsewhere found no Communists.

South Koreans fighting above the 38th parallel battled a Communist battalion east of Inje. Northwest of this Red-held city airmen reported a "considerable build-up" of Red troops.

Fifth Air Force warplanes flew 500 sorties, sometimes through heavy ground fire.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, visited the western front to award the U.S. Presidential Unit Citation to the heroic British Gloucestershire Regiment.

Reports of Red discontent came from allied officers on the western front. Randolph said some U. N. officers believe there is hard feeling among Chinese and North Korean troops because they didn't get tanks and planes from the Soviet Union to support their recent ill-fated offensive.

The infantry carried the full burden of that attack, launched April 22. More than 80,000 Reds have been killed or wounded, by U.N. estimates. Monday 2,940 were reported killed or wounded.

Randolph quoted allied officers that Red offensive preparations indicated they had expected both armored support and air cover. Roads were widened. Air fields were put into condition. But the support didn't develop and the Red infantry was unable to exploit its gains.

"I think that if they had any air and armor available in North Korea they would have used them in the April attack," one officer said. "As it was they took some terrible losses trying to do it all with infantry."

Former Police Chief Has 282 Vote Margin Over Underwood In Race For Mayor; Whedbee Defeats Roberts For Judgeship; Run-Off Vote Viewed Possible

A record number of Greenville voters—2,961—went to the polls yesterday and gave former chief of police Lester D. Page a plurality margin of 282 votes over Sam B. Underwood, Jr., his nearest competitor in the five-man race for mayor.

The voters also broke a ten-year precedent when they voted Charles Whedbee in as judge of Greenville Recorder's Court over Judge J. W. H. Roberts who has held the position for the past ten years.

In the aldermen races James S. Jenkins won an overwhelming victory over Lloyd Williams, his opponent for the fifth ward post. Incumbents Heber Tripp of the first ward and W. M. Pollard of the fourth hold leads over their competitors, but not enough for a majority vote.

Aldermen Yank Howell of the third and R. E. Rogers of the second ward were unopposed in their races.

In beating the old voting record established in 1948, the Greenville voters gave Page 1,177 votes which enabled him to lead Underwood by the plurality of 282. Underwood polled 895. H. H. Duncan ran third with 672, Marshall Clark was fourth with 149, and Clarence Bryant was fifth with 19.

The three wards represented by the City Hall balloting led the courtship, balloting by 1,517 to 1,444. The total vote cast that of 1949 by 494. In the race two years ago the voters gave present mayor W. S. Stafford the highest number of votes in the history of the city elections.

Court selector Bill Bloom, Bloom who has held the post for several terms, polled 2,163 votes and was unopposed in the election.

In the aldermanic race for representatives from wards one and four, speculation today ran high as to whether James Brewer, second high man in the first, and R. L. Smith, second high in the fourth, would call for a runoff vote. Incumbent Heber Tripp led Brewer by a vote of 1,278 to 1,211. And in the fourth ward incumbent Pollard led Smith 990 to 713.

Neither Brewer nor Smith could be contacted today as to whether they will call a runoff. Each has five days in which to announce his candidacy again. The second primary would be held May 21.

Underwood made no commitment either concerning whether he would challenge Page to a second primary.

In the judge's race, candidate Whedbee, who is at present solicitor of county Recorder's Court, led the individual ward balloting with 434 votes from his own ward number two. He was behind in the voting as first reports came in from the first but picked up as the others were reported. Roberts led in only the first ward—307 to 292 for Whedbee.

Both David B. Harris and W. T. G. Briggs ran well behind Roberts. Harris polled 142 votes and Briggs 36.

The other candidates in the first and fourth wards were far behind the two front runners. L. E. Everett, candidate from the first, polled 174 votes to trail Brewer and Tripp. And in the fourth James H. Little polled 640 votes and Harry Sprettler polled 389.

Underground In Iran Speaks Out

Communists List Demands In Open Letter To Premier

TEHRAN (AP)— The underground Tudeh (Communist) party sent an open letter today to Premier F. Mohammed Mossadegh, demanding that the government ban the Red party that is reported to be the Iranian military mission advising the Iranian army to be expelled.

There have been increasing reports in government circles that the new premier favors legalizing the Tudeh party, so its activities can be brought into the open.

The Tudeh party letter also demanded:

- 1. Recognition of communist China.
2. Rejection of foreign arms aid.
3. Release of political prisoners.
4. An end to the martial law in the southern oil fields.
5. Nationalization of the Bahrain Islands oil fields. The Bahrain Islands, in the Persian Gulf, are claimed by Iran. The islands are a British protectorate, and Britain insists they make up an independent sheikdom with special treaty relations with London.

The Bahrain Petroleum Company is part of an organization owned by the Standard Oil Company of California and the Texas Corporation. The company holds the only concession on the islands, whose oil output in 1947 was 10,000,000 barrels. Although registered as a British company in Canada, the concession is American-owned and represents a large capital investment.

4-H Coronation Of Kings, Queens Held

Lawmaker Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)— Rep. John Kee, 77-year-old chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, died today of a heart attack.

He collapsed during a routine session of the committee and was pronounced dead by Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician.

Kee had been ill for some time and only recently returned from the nearby Bethesda Naval Hospital.

He had been a member of the House since 1933.

Wants Controls Presented Soon

Maybank Hopes To End Senate Hearings By June 1

WASHINGTON (AP)— Chairman Maybank (D-SC) gave notice today that if the administration wants tougher controls over "big money" lending, it had better hustle its proposals up to his Senate Banking Committee.

The Federal Reserve Board has been weighing plans to boost the requirements for bank reserves, to freeze larger sums so they will not be available for commercial loans.

"Unless the recommendations come along now," Maybank told reporters, "there won't be anything done on credit at this session, in my judgment."

The Banking Committee opened hearings yesterday on extension and revision of the Defense Production Act, which expires June 30. The House Banking Committee opens hearings today on the same subject. Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson will be the first witness before the House group, as he was yesterday before the Senators.

Maybank hopes to finish the Senate hearings by June 1.

Annual Event Held At Armory; Fourteen Winners In Dress Revue Selected; Awards Distributed

The Junior and Senior Kings and Queens of Health for 1951 were crowned last night at the Pitt County 4-H Health Coronation and Dress Revue at the Armory and fourteen girls were winners in the dress revue.

Sarah Hudson of Chocod was crowned as the Senior Queen of Health, Jack Warren of Stokes was crowned the Senior King of Health, and Linda Nichols of Bell Arthur and Ben Alton Gardner were crowned as the Junior Queen and King.

Preceding the coronation, the program was opened with the singing of "America" with Mary Lou Vainright of the Belvoir club as the pianist, which was followed with a devotional given by Teddy Allen of the Farmville senior club. Julia Stokes, president of the 4-H Council, welcomed the guests and Ann Murphy of Farmville recognized them.

The dress revue was opened with the narrator, Sybil Jones of Chocod, announcing the contestants. From five divisions the following girls were winners: junior apron, Ann Nelson of Stokes; senior apron, Margaret Rose Powell and Lelia Harris; junior dress, Roselyn Waters and Lois Simmons; senior dress; Shirley Jean Whitehurst, and Nell Dupree; uniform, Frances Bryant, Bethel Junior club and Mattie Oaks, Grimesland Junior.

The winners of the dress revue were selected on the basis of how the costume looked on the girl, the style, material, construction, and the cost in relation to the garment.

Following the dress revue, Gil

Truman Warns Of Costly War If General Followed

WASHINGTON (UP)— An atomic war with Russia is "a real possibility" but it would be more likely under the policies of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, President Truman said last night.

Mr. Truman said atomic warfare might wipe out some of the nation's major cities and "I do not want to be responsible for bringing that about."

His position was put before the nation in a speech broadcast nationally.

The president did not mention his ousted Far Eastern commander by name but he turned down, point by point, the measures MacArthur has advocated for extending the Korean conflict to communist China.

MacArthur urged the bombing of bases in Manchuria, a military and economic blockade of China and use of Nationalist troops from Formosa.

Malaya Continues Ship Rubber To Communists

SINGAPORE (UP)— British Malaya shipped 9,589 tons of rubber to Russia and communist China last month, it was disclosed today.

Hong Kong received 5,846 tons, and some of its share may have found its way into communist China.

Figures showed that British controls imposed April 9 over rubber exports from the Federation of Malaya had little over-all effect on shipments to communist countries.

Russia received 6,324 tons in April but none in March. This brought the total for the first four months of 1951 to 14,425 tons. Russia imported 68,000 tons during 1950.

China received 3,265 tons in April compared with 7,012 tons in March, boosting the four-month total to 22,672 tons. China got only 38,568 tons all last year.

Studio Cancels Parks Contract

HOLLYWOOD (UP)— Columbia Pictures has canceled its contract with movie star Larry Parks, who told the House Un-American Activities committee he was a Communist Party member six years ago.

Columbia announced the contract was canceled by "mutual consent."

Parks told the committee he believed the admission would ruin his movie career.

Debates And Debates

The Country Has Had Its Share Of Arguments In Recent Months And Horizon Has Promise Of More On The Defense Act And Rollback Of Prices For Meat

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)— We bust our stitches debating troops-for-Europe and no sooner finish than we get up to our necks in the Truman-MacArthur fracas.

And while we argue what we should do abroad, we're starting another debate on what we should do here at home. Congress has started hearings on whether to continue the Defense Production Act (DPA).

Congress passed DPA late last summer when the defense program started because it faced a problem: since the program would chew up materials when they got scarce, how could inflation be avoided?

Coming To A Head

Argument Over Selling Strategic Materials To Red China Appears Heading For Settlement; British Spokesman Agrees To Embargo If UN Decreases It

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The increasingly caustic international argument over trading with the enemy, specifically of selling strategic materials to Red China, is coming to a head.

Criticism of Britain for continuing such trade finally has resulted in a conciliatory gesture by Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the British Board of Trade, in the House of Commons. Sir Hartley made a statement yesterday hinting that the country would cease all exports of strategic materials to Communist China if the United Nations so decreed.

Coincidentally the United States delegation to the United Nations presented an embargo resolution to the 12-nation Sanctions Committee. This measure would provide for a world wide embargo against the shipment to Bolshevist China of war materials, or raw products which can be used in manufacturing war materials.

Strawberry Crop Compares Well With Past Years

RALEIGH (AP)— The Rare Heel strawberry crop, now in the midst of movement to market, is described as the best in several years.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service stated yesterday that yields and quality of the strawberries are "very good." Movement of the crop is now at its peak in the Tabor City and Chadbourn areas.

Embargo Action Gaining Support

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— Eventual United Nations approval of an arms embargo against Red China appeared assured today as a result of crumbling opposition in the world organization. Both Britain and France were reported to have dropped their previous objections.

The embargo, if voted by the U.N., presumably would be ignored by the Soviet bloc.

Embargo Action Gaining Support

The United States late yesterday submitted a formal proposal for the embargo at a closed door meeting of the U.N.'s 12-nation sanctions committee. A vote is expected either late this week or on Monday.

At a meeting last Thursday both Britain and France had given the idea a cool reception, leading to the belief that the U.S. might run into difficulties. But yesterday, Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb said it was quite possible his government would feel the U.S. was right in submitting its resolution at this time. Francis LaCoste of France expressed the belief his government would give it sympathetic consideration.

If the committee approves the proposal, it then will go to the 60-nation Political Committee of the General Assembly and finally to a plenary meeting of the assembly, where it no doubt will be bitterly opposed by the Soviet bloc.

Installation Services At Baptist Student Center

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of East Carolina College, in his installation address to the East Carolina Baptist Student Union members at Memorial Baptist Church Sunday night, emphasized the importance of being a Christian. His message had a ring of the practical and spiritual value of living a Christian life.

The popular educator, in his heart-to-heart talk to the large congregation, composed principally of college students, outlined a plan for every-day Christian living. He suggested with emphasis that a Christian life should be lived every day—not only on Sundays.

Rev. Richard E. Hardaway, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, welcomed the Baptist Student Council members. Rev. J. A. Neilson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, felicitated the Baptist students on their good work and offered the prayer of dedication.

Mrs. Burney Hostess To Bridge Dinner

GRIFTON — Mrs. Clay Burney was a gracious hostess on Thursday night when she had as guests members of her contract club and invited players for five tables of bridge.

The home throughout was beautifully decorated with a profusion of roses, iris, sweetpeas and other flowers. Guests were invited for 7 o'clock and found their places at the card tables centered with a dainty bud vase filled with pinks and sweetpeas. A delectable two course supper was served prior to the bridge games.

Highest scorers for club members were Mrs. Ben G. Tucker and Mrs. Walter Patrick, while Mrs. L. L. Mewborn was guest high scorer. The consolation went to Mrs. Roy Jackson.

Other players were Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. Sam Nelson, Mrs. Josh Worthington, Mrs. Cecil Cobb, Mrs. A. D. Wall, Mrs. Woodrow Smith, Mrs. Jack Chapman, Mrs. Edward Hart, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Mrs. Julius Chaucery, Mrs. Glendel Tucker, Mrs. Carey Garris, Mrs. H. P. Quinery, Mrs. Milton Hart, Mrs. W. I. Bissette, and Mrs. Eimo Smith.

"Wild Ginger"
"Wild Ginger" is the intriguing title of a three-act comedy-drama to be given by the Youthful Workers Club at Chocod and Belvoir next week. It is a play that overflows with comedy situations, pathos and unexpected twists. It is a sure cure for the blues as it abounds with humorous situations, laughable characters and witty dialogue. Be sure to see this play on Monday night, May 14, at Chocod school, sponsored by the Hollywood Presbyterian Youth Fellowship or at Belvoir on Tuesday night, May 15, sponsored by the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Women of the Church. Adults 50c and all school children 25c. Come one, come all, enjoy this wonderful entertainment and help a good cause.

Churches of Christ, Scientist "Everlasting Punishment" was the topic of the Lesson-Sermon for all Christian Science churches Sunday. The Golden Text is from Ezekiel (18:30). "Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin." Passages from the Bible include: "When the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive. Because he considereth, and turneth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die." (Ezekiel 18-27, 28) And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life. We acknowledge God's forgiveness of sin in the destruction of sin and the spiritual understanding that casts out evil as unreal. But the belief in sin is punished so long as the belief lasts." (p. 467)

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 8, 1911

By Monday afternoon's Norfolk Southern twelve cans containing a half million young shad were brought to Greenville. The young fish were from the government shad hatchery at Edenton. This is the first planting of young shad ever made in the Tar River and it was through the efforts of Congressman John H. Small that this shipment was sent here. The shad were hatched last Saturday and they will attain their growth in three years when they will return to the river in which they were liberated.

Each family should bring a picnic basket. The supper will be spread on long tables set up on the grounds, and lemonade will be furnished by members of the Carson Memorial Sunday School Class.

In case of rain, announcements will be made over the radio on Wednesday concerning plans for the picnic.

Each member of the church family is cordially invited to attend and enjoy the hours of fun, fellowship and good eating.

Miss Maxwell Is Honored At Bridge

Mrs. George Webb, Mrs. Ethel Blue Riebe and Mrs. Ben Pitt of Pinetops entertained on Friday night at a bridge-shower at the country home of Mrs. Pitt to honor Miss Marylynn Maxwell, bride-elect of July 8.

The honoree was presented a corsage of red roses and valley lilies and china plates from the hostesses.

Upon arrival the guests were served punch by Mrs. Ethel Riebe and at conclusion of play ice cream, cake and nuts were served.

The rooms were ensuite and were attractively decorated with red verbena, narcissus, iris and other colorful flowers.

Ten tables of bridge were in play during the evening and five guests joined the players for refreshments.

Mrs. Martin Webb won high score prize and Mrs. Grover Webb received low score prize.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, Mrs. Charles Davis and Miss Dorothy Whiteley of Greenville, and Mrs. Will Joyner of Farmville.

For the past two years Miss Maxwell has been a member of the faculty of South Edgecombe High School, Pinetops.

Local Men Receive Recognition At Meet

At the recent meeting of the New Bern District Conference of the Methodist Church, held last week in Havelock, Rufus Haywood Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Stark of this city, was granted his local preacher's license.

At the same conference John Herbert Waldrop Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, also of Greenville, was recommended for admission on trial in the annual conference.

Both of the young men are at present students at Duke University.

Group Discusses Conservation Of Soil In County

Committee members in Pitt County of the Soil Conservation district met yesterday afternoon to discuss the soil conservation work being done in the county, and to view the results of soil conservation work done on Kermit Tyson's farm.

Attending the meeting were approximately 35 members of the program and publicity committee, the educational committee and the finance committee of the Pitt County organization of the Soil Conservation district.

Following the tour of the Tyson farm the group went to the Speight Seed Farm where they were served a barbecue supper and had committee organizational meetings.

Women In The Church

Miss Helen Kim, leading woman educator in Korea, is now in the United States on a "goodwill mission," sent by the Korean Citizens League on Friendly Relations to thank U.S.A. and U.N. groups for their aid to Korea since June 1950. She is visiting American cities under the auspices of the Woman's Division, Methodist Church, and of the Young Woman's Christian Association. From the United States she will travel on to Europe on a similar mission of goodwill and thanks. A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, Columbia, and Boston universities, Miss Kim is president of Ewha Woman's University, Seoul, a Methodist-supported university, which before hostilities had 1250 students. Classes are now being carried on in Pusan. "The Korean Christians have tried to be Christian through all our experiences," says Miss Kim.

A fund has been set up by the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Delaware to aid the training of qualified young Negro women as nurses. Called the "St. Barnabas Fund for Scholarship Aid," it is designed to overcome the economic barrier which has prevented many Negro high school graduates from entering the field of nursing, a spokesman for the diocese explained.

The recent death in Ocean Grove, N.J., of Dr. Rosetta Sherwood Hall, pioneer woman medical missionary in Korea, brings to an end a colorful period of Christian mission. Wife of the Rev. William J. Hall, Methodist missionary evangelist, and herself a graduate of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania (1890), Mrs. Hall went to Korea in 1890. Her husband died in 1894. Dr. Hall remained and established four women's hospitals in Korea and was a pioneer in educational programs for the blind and deaf. In 1928 she founded the Woman's Medical College in that country. She became known as the "Mother of Pyongyang" while she was head of the Woman's Hospital of Extended Grace. Other institutions that she opened were in Seoul, Taehun, and Suwen. The Korean government presented an "Act of Merit" and a silver cup to her. Surviving is her son, Sherwood Hall, M.D., pioneer in the treatment of tuberculosis in India.

Medal Awarded To Winner Of Speech Contest

A gold medal was awarded to Carl Worsley who placed first in the Fifth Annual World Peace Oratorical Contest, held this morning in Greenville High School.

The contest was sponsored by the Greenville Woman's Club and each contestant gave a five-minute original speech concerning world peace. The winning speech was entitled "War or Peace."

A prize of $2.50 for second place was won by Johnny Russell and Miss Sue Taylor was selected for "honorable mention." Other contestants were Joseph Hogan and Rita Alcock.

Judges in the contest were: Mrs. Vance Perkins, president of the Woman's Club; Mrs. W. B. Krausnick, contest chairman; and Mrs. Bernard York, student teacher.

Mrs. Spilman Is Given Tribute For Services

At formal exercises at the office of the North Carolina Security Commission, 222 East Fifth Street, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville was honored with a certificate of award for loyal service to the Employment Security Division while manager of the Greenville office, serving Pitt county during World War II.

P. B. Pollock of Raleigh, area supervisor of 19 local Security Division offices in 22 northeastern North Carolina counties, presided. He presented Mrs. Spilman the certificate on behalf of the chairman of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission and state director of the Employment Service Division, Harry E. Kendall in chairman.

CHICAGO (UP)—A $5,000 bequest to feed pigeons three times a week on two downtown street corners was disclosed today in the will of a wealthy widow.

Mrs. Emily S. Hulbert, 90, also set aside $10,000 of her estimated $550,000 estate to care for and eventually bury her mixed-breed terrier, Juicy.

The $5,000 left to feed the pigeons was to be held in trust by the Anti-Cruelty Society, but the feedings may be discontinued if the society decides they are unnecessary.

Army Board Says Ailing Soldier Didn't Complain

CHICAGO (UP)—Pvt. Stanley J. Amborski, 21, whose father whisked him out of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., without permission, failed to fully cooperate with medical personnel at the station, an army board said today.

Amborski is a pneumonia patient at Great Lakes hospital, where he was taken after his father motored him 300 miles from the army camp.

A special investigating board found that he was given "every opportunity to obtain adequate medical attention there, but at no time reported that he was suffering from respiratory difficulties."

Amborski is considered technically AWOL.

Thailand Forbids Animal Exports

BANGKOK (AP)—In an effort to conserve its wild life, Thailand has banned the export of wild animals. Action followed reports that trappers and dealers were stripping the jungles to fill the expanding trade in wild animals.

Thailand has been the main operating ground for international wild animal dealers since the war. Elephants, tigers, leopards, monkeys, gibbons and snakes have been shipped to the United States and Europe to replenish war-depleted zoos.

Wild animal operators are now expected to turn to Borneo for their supplies. Communist terrorism has closed Malaya as a hunting ground.

Eighteen Register For Farmville Beauty Event

FARMVILLE—Eighteen contestants have registered in the beauty contest in connection with the "Farmers' Day" celebration here tomorrow. One hundred dollars will be awarded the winner, who will be crowned "Miss Farmville." Second prize is $50, and third, $25. The queen will be crowned in Monk's Warehouse.

The three additional entrants to the beauty contest are Mary Frances Oakley, Route 2, Farmville; Lucy House, Route 1, Greenville; and Janie Ruth Edmondson of Bethel.

The parade at 1:30 p.m. will be headed by three high school bands—Tarboro, Farmville and Goldsboro, and the East Carolina College band and drum and bugle corps.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the best three floats in the parade. L. Y. (Stag) Ballentine, state commissioner of agriculture, will speak at 3:15.

A band concert and stage and amateur contest will follow. Contestants must be at least 16 years old and from rural towns of less than 2,500 population.

The streets of Farmville and stores and other business places have been decorated with bunting and flags. Entertainment of various kinds will be provided all during the afternoon and night. Prizes will be offered in stunts and contests. Admission to all entertainments at the warehouse will be free.

A round and square dance at Monk's Warehouse at 9:15 p.m. will conclude the day's festivities.

The Kiwanis Club will serve barbecue suppers and sandwiches and cold drinks.

"Farmers' Day" here will be an annual event. The slogan of the community event will be, "Howdy, Neighbor—Welcome," Fred C. Moore, secretary, said.

Film Is Billed "Instructive"

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A new German sex film is drawing capacity crowds and worrying police. "Eva and the Gynaecologist," billed as an "instructive" picture includes several reels on venereal diseases, physiology and birth, framed within a simple plot.

Frankfurt police decreed that only members of the same sex could be admitted at a performance. Theater owners talked them into this compromise: Women were seated on the right, men on the left. The center seats were left vacant.

In Munich, police permitted normal seating.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. DOUGLAS
A SMILE HELPS

These are serious times, and laughter comes hard for many. Let us never forget, however, that our forefathers went through unaided hardships to secure our present liberties, but they could laugh in spite of their troubles. Evidence is ample that they sustained themselves with robust humor. Out of it has grown our distinct American contribution to the world's culture.

With the highest living standard, we should be the most humorous people in the world. That distinction probably belongs, however, to the Eskimos, of all people. There is hardly an easy life, yet they laugh readily and heartily. We Americans are indeed a humor-loving people, but we are too busy making the highest living standard to create or see the fun around us as we go along. Perhaps it is not too easy for us to sit back and let Bob Hope, Jack Benny or Jimmy Durante create synthetic humor for us.

Humorists are born, not made; and they are too few. The rest of us, knowing what a priceless asset a sense of humor is, must cultivate and cherish the asset. The ability to take a joke, as well as make one at another's expense, shows up all too seldom in our hard-workers and home-makers.

Let us above all not take ourselves too seriously. Then only will the psychiatrists and mental hospitals have more time to spend on fewer patients.

Debate Will End When Facts Known

Congress is still debating the question of a free gift of several millions of dollars worth of wheat to India.

In one sense, it's odd that there should be occasion for debate on a matter of charity; this country has always been in the foreground of those who brought aid to victims of disaster. But if the lawmakers have been fed conflicting stories on the subject (as have been the public), no wonder they aren't quite sure as to what to do.

That there is a famine, no one has denied. For most folks that's enough.

But it has been said that India is in a position to either purchase food, or trade for food with its own commodities... and couldn't, or wouldn't. Some "informed" people claim that Pakistan could help ease the pangs of hunger, but India won't ease trade barriers because of a bitter feud and would rather attempt to undermine Pakistan than take such a step to feed their own hungry.

Other personages have hinted that if Nehru can't get a gift of grain from the United States he may get it from Russia... something pretty hard to swallow, because Nehru is said to insist that there be no "strings" attached to the gift... and by now we are pretty well aware of how Kremlin charity operates.

There are other arguments... many of them critical of the Nehru regime and global policies... but one thing stands out: John Q. Public does not yet know the whole story (minus the hearts and flowers routine); and we suspect much of the debate in Congress may be laid to the same reason.

It would be utterly foolish to give away our own hard-earned wealth needlessly... at the same time, we would feed the hungry. Once they get an unvarnished factual report on India, congress will quickly decide the question; if necessary, slightly weighting the scales on the side of human compassion. But we must know what we're getting into.

A Decision Must Be Made On Electric Power

The expenditures for capital outlay which have been necessary to develop and maintain the electric power plant of the Greenville utilities have long been a point of contention in the city.

The utilities commission now has under consideration a contract with the Virginia Electric Power company which, according to local officials, will make it unnecessary for the city to issue further bonds to keep its power supply up with the demand for electric power.

An interconnection with the lines of the power company seems to us the most sensible solution to the electric power problem which the city is facing. Such a move will enable the city to use to full capacity the generating facilities it now has, and it will eliminate the necessity of the investment of more millions of the city's money in enlarged generating facilities as the years go

Under the proposal which is now being considered by the members of the utilities commission, Greenville can exchange electric power with the Virginia Electric Power company as long as we have any surplus power which the power load of the local plant does not demand. When the time comes that the capacity of the local plant is not sufficient to meet the demand on the lines of the Greenville Utilities, the city can purchase firm power from the private company at a rate which compares very favorably with the cost of Greenville's producing its own power.

In a nutshell the problem boils down to this: The rapid growth of the demand for electric power on the Greenville lines makes it necessary for the city to take one of two steps immediately if we are to have sufficient power. (1) The city may make its own capital outlay to purchase more generating equipment or (2) the city must purchase electric power from some outside source to supplement the power which is being generated at the local plant.

At the present time the Greenville plant has a firm power capacity of 10,000 KW, and a standby capacity of 5,000 KW. By this fall the demand on the power lines operated by the city will reach 13,000 KW, which actually the city can supply with its present facilities; but when the load on the lines reaches 13,000 KW the city will be 3,000 KW short on the standby power needed if any one of the generators at the power plant suddenly went off.

The interconnection with Virginia Electric Power company would provide the city with the standby power which it needs, and would eliminate the necessity of installing new equipment at the plant.

When the demands on the Greenville plant rise above the present total capacity of 15,000 KW, which is expected to be within the next year, the city will be able to purchase firm power from the private company at a rate which would be somewhat cheaper than the city is producing its own power now. The city could continue to purchase as much additional firm power as it needed as the years went by, and the more power the city purchased from the Virginia company, the cheaper the rate would be.

The Reflector firmly believes the city should retain the power facilities it now has, and keep them in good working order; but rather than making another large capital outlay in the near future, it seems the wisest move for the city to effect the interconnection with the Virginia Electric Power company.

Under the proposal which is now being considered by the members of the utilities commission, Greenville can exchange electric power with the Virginia Electric Power company as long as we have any surplus power which the power load of the local plant does not demand. When the time comes that the capacity of the local plant is not sufficient to meet the demand on the lines of the Greenville Utilities, the city can purchase firm power from the private company at a rate which compares very favorably with the cost of Greenville's producing its own power.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Despite actual war in Korea and Russian thrusts against us in Central Europe, Washington regards the current disturbances in Iran, Iraq and Palestine as equally dangerous toward world peace. It is an especially menacing situation because our principal ally, Britain, is thoroughly hated in that region, and we are not yet prepared to mount a strong anti-Moscow counteroffensive there.

One of the most frequently thumbed documents in State Department and Pentagon files serves as a constant reminder to Secretaries Acheson and Marshall that Stalin covets the oil-rich territory of the Middle East. According to our military strategists, he will not dare to precipitate a global conflict until he has obtained control of these petroleum resources, which provide one-quarter of the world supply.

CALAMITOUS—At this very moment Stalin is urging the Iranian government, which has nationalized the wells in the face of British protests, to let Russian experts operate them. He has dangled a tempting offer before Mohammed Moseadgh, the new anti-British premier.

The loss of this fuel to Moscow would be calamitous to our side. Besides fuelling allied fleets in the Eastern Mediterranean, Iranian oil supplies the "free" nations of Southern Europe, which we are trying to keep out of the Russian orbit through the Marshall Plan and other forms of aid.

BLESSING—Although it is supposed to be a secret, a prominent American Senator, recently defeated, paid a quiet visit to Iran within the last few weeks. It is understood he represents an American petroleum group which would be willing to take over management of the industry, if Premier Moseadgh and the British will agree. Although a private undertaking, the venture has the unofficial blessing of the State Department.

The Truman Administration cannot show its hand too openly in these negotiations for several reasons. It would further antagonize the British at the very moment when the Labor Party is split because of prominent members' belief that London is the tail of the American diplomatic dog. But the United States is striving desperately to win the struggle for Middle East oil.

DIVERSIONS—The well-read document which reveals Stalin's overshadowing interest in possession of Middle East oil suggests that his Korean and West German offensives are preliminary diversions to overrunning the Asia Minor nations now in turmoil. It consists of a memo from Schulenburg, the German Ambassador at Moscow, to Hitler's Foreign Office in Berlin. It is dated November 26, 1940.

Schulenburg reported that Foreign Minister Molotov had agreed to enter a four-power pact (Germany, Russia, Italy, Japan) on four conditions. The first demanded withdrawal of German troops from Finland, and Hitler's recognition that this area constituted a "Russian sphere of interest." The second insisted on partial Russian control of the Dardanelles Straits through a pact with Bulgaria, a Hitler satellite, and establishment of Russian naval and air bases within striking distance of the Bosphorus.

But it is the third and fourth conditions which have current interest, in view of the Korean war and Stalin's moves in the Middle East.

EFFRONTERY—Schulenburg said Molotov would agree to the four-power alliance only "provided that the area south of Batum and Baku in the general direction of the Persian-Gulf (which would also include Saudi Arabia—Ed. Note) is recognized as the center of the aspirations of the Soviet Union."

The fourth Molotov stipulation, which explains why Stalin seeks conquest of all Korea, and eventually Japan, insists that "Japan renounce her claim to concessions for coal and oil in the North Sakhalin Islands."

It was Stalin's effrontery in making such demands that first made Hitler suspicious of the man in the Kremlin, and led to Germany's attack on Russia in June of 1941. Britain and the United States can no more allow Russia to gain control of these areas than Hitler could.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, Jr

Wife Rachel attended a meeting of the Church Circle last night, leaving Big Jack (that's me) to serve in the capacity of baby sitter. Therefore, I missed the hubbub of the election crowd at the City Hall and Courthouse.

However, I contacted the two top men in the race for mayor by telephone. The leader, Lester Page, was in good spirits when I talked to him at 9:45 last night. I asked, "In the middle of all of this excitement, did you eat a hearty supper?"

"No, sir," he shot back. "In fact, I didn't eat any supper. But I just talked to my wife on the phone and she told me that she'll have oysters for me when I get home."

"Fried?"

"Well, I haven't decided how I want them yet. I'm saving that decision until I get home."

Since Mr. Page was a member of the police force for over 22 years, I asked him if he had any narrow escapes. "I just wondered," I said, "how close you came to missing this opportunity to run for mayor while in the service of the city?"

Mr. Page told me of two close shaves. In 1937 the police car in which he and Policemen Rogerson and Mobley were riding was riddled with bullets by three men who had held up a local store. Mobley was hit in three places, while Page and Rogerson were missed.

A few years before that incident Mr. Page was in a near riot at the Star Warehouse in which 14 crates of pop bottles were thrown, mostly at Mr. Page and Policeman Mobley. After 22 years of service with the force, Mr. Page is lucky to have the opportunity to run for mayor.

When I talked to the runner-up, Sam Underwood, at 10:35 he too was in good spirits. Also, he had missed his supper but had raided the ice box by that hour. Mr. Underwood has five days in which to decide whether or not he will call for a second primary. It's interesting to study the figures. Mr. Page led Mr. Underwood by 262 votes. The other three candidates got a total of 834 votes, which could change the picture. Would you call?

Mr. Underwood wanted to emphasize his appreciation for the support he received. Knowing he is such a staunch Dook fan, I asked, "Do you think any of that support came from Carolina fans?"

He does, and like a true politician, he added that his favoritism for Duke is confined to the field of sports. At this writing Mr. Underwood has a big question to answer: Which way would the 834 votes go in a second primary? By now he might have decided that it's worth a try for him to seek a majority.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN HIBBET Daily Reflector Bureau

FOLKS—someone has said that the people actually rule, whatever the form of government; and that the difference between democracies and monarchies or dictatorships is that in democracies the rule of the people is admitted, while other systems seek to maintain the idea that kings do the governing. Alexander Pope borrowed from Homer, who borrowed from some pre-historic philosopher, the concept mankind is man. That is a high-brow way of saying that the most important people are folks. This little piece is about a few individuals, who, by reason of positions attained through democratic processes, are somewhat better known than the average run of citizens but who are in all vital respects just folks like the rest of us. Because this kind of writing can be done so much more smoothly in the first person, that style will be used.

BRIDGES—The first personality to be discussed is Henry Bridges, state auditor, who invited me the other day to ride with him on an official trip halfway across the state. He had several calls to make about Confederate pensions and a short side trip enabled him to deliver in person a state check for $30,000, issued under authority of a legislative act, to the Brevard Music Foundation, Inc., operators of a music camp in Transylvania county. Bridges is a very meticulous person, as befits an auditor whose job it is to see that others toe the line. He drove by my house to pick me up, but he didn't start to counting mileage until we stopped at a filling station full up with gas. At every stop made up gas he fully wrote down in his little note book the amount in gallons and dollars and checked the mileage. He told me at beginning of the trip that he was on a mission which might prove unpleasant, and somebody might have to be indicted for criminal offenses; but the whole tenor of his conversation was that he would be lenient with anybody whose delinquencies were obviously due to ignorance or inadvertence. Any time he thought some smart aleck was trying to defraud the state or some innocent person—well, he just wasn't disposed to be lenient at all.

BREVARD—Bridges is a good driver. He didn't violate the speed laws not much, that is, but he got us into Brevard in six hours driving time after leaving Raleigh at six o'clock. (Incidentally, he is supposed to go to work at 8:30 and work eight hours on the job, the job, the second day eleven and one-half hours without overtime pay.) We started to look for Representative Ralph Fisher, and when on the way to his office heard him call us from across the street.

Then we went to Galloway's Cafe for lunch and took over the telephone trying to round up F. S. (Buck) Best, chairman of the music camp outfit, and R. G. (Bob) Dayton, treasurer of the foundation. Dayton was tied up with a meeting of big shot financiers interested in the Ecusta Corporation, and we saw him for only a few minutes. However, the check was duly delivered with camera flashlight accompaniments. Dayton was still in conference and Ralph Fisher was in a dither to get off to Kannapolis for an American Legion speech that night, so Henry Bridges and I moved on to Hendersonville.

HENDERSONVILLE—First call here was at the chamber of commerce, where we had to listen to Secretary Camak extol the pre-eminence of Hendersonville among all the mountain resorts and got permission to circulate around town. We found L. B. (Ben) Prince, former state senator and state highway chairman, as usual hanging on the telephone. Then we walked down to the courthouse where we found Congressman Monroe Redden and State Representative Lee Whitmire tangled up on opposing sides of major lawsuit involving right to several hundred thousand dollars worth of property. We chatted a bit with Redden and Whitmire at a lull in court proceedings. Listened enough to their argument to conclude we could not help Judge Frank Armstrong pass on the close legal points involved—and headed off for Shelby for the night. Having failed to make advance reservations we had some difficulty finding a place to sleep, but we slept good and woke up next morning ready for action. We got it, starting early.

SHELBY—First call was at the Shelby Daily Star where we found former State Senator Lee Weathers, publisher of the Star; Holt McPherson, managing editor; Henry Lee Weathers, business manager, and others of the staff and working force on the job before most of the business and professional men had got leaders in the county.

After looking over the Star plant's modernization plans and after nine o'clock we sauntered up to the courthouse square where we saw and chatted with Senator Clyde Nolan, Representative "Bub" Falls, former Representative Ernest Gardner and C. C. (Cobby) Horn, Tom Cornwell, George Wray and other political leaders in the county.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(Kinston Free Press)

The Free Press believes that some of the columnists who have commented upon the testimony before a Senate Committee have been unfair in their conclusions. Some of the radio commentators have likewise drawn their own conclusions and interpreted General MacArthur's statement rather than to reflect an accurate picture.

In the first place this paper, which has never been a great admirer of General MacArthur, has nothing but praise for his demeanor since he was abruptly removed as Commander-in-Chief in the Far East. Nobody can successfully contend that his conduct has not been exemplary in every way. His testimony was dignified. He manifested the courage of his convictions. Whether those convictions are right or wrong they should not be misinterpreted by our good friend Drew Pearson or Martin Agronski or others. We urge our readers to read the news reports, which are supposedly unbiased and reflect the actual testimony that the General gave and draw their own conclusions.

Drew Pearson in his radio broadcast Sunday night made statements which we are very sorry we can't endorse and in his column today he presents an alleged analogy between the conduct of General George B. McClellan in Civil War days and General Douglas MacArthur, which we cannot follow. Mr. Pearson gives a good deal of information about McClellan with which we were not familiar. Our Civil War history study was naturally from a different viewpoint than his.

In its final analysis we regret the perpetuation of the controversy. We shall have very much to see General George Marshall drawn into this controversy and put on the stand either to controvert or confirm MacArthur.

We submit that the thing most important is for those who are charged with the responsibility for formulating a policy and carrying it out so far as the Korean situation goes proceed to do just that and not undertake to perpetuate a difference of viewpoint through indefinite hearings and aired controversies.

Business Today

The surge of price and margin controls is making it doubly important today for every manufacturer and retailer to know exactly what each item costs.

It may come as a surprise to know that few concerns actually know their costs. A manufacturer may know exactly how much a product costs in raw materials and man hours; and a retailer can read from an invoice just what he is paying for any article.

Those are only part of the cost. The rest consists of each article's share of management, rent transportation, shipping and other expenses of doing business.

It has long been popularly supposed that, if retailers didn't know, large manufacturers knew to the thousandth of a penny just how much overhead every nut or lampshade carried. But the National Association of Cost Accountants, after a national survey, reports that: "While most progressive company managements have developed modern methods of ascertaining manufacturing costs of products, comparatively few possess equally good methods of non-manufacturing costs attributable to products and product lines."

It is true that practically every company totes up non-manufacturing costs and divides the total among its products, often on a dollar basis. But in so doing, a company may be deceiving itself. The accountant of one firm which had two products, one selling for $50 and the other for $500 a ton. It allocated freight costs on a dollar basis. Investigation showed that freight charges were the same per ton, which meant that the company was making less than it thought on the cheaper product, more on the other.

While the accountants did not survey retail operations, most business consultants agree that there is even more laxity, or less through-thinking in retailing. A retailer may have two items, each costing 98 cents and selling for 98 cents. If he figures his other costs at 30 percent of sales, it would appear that he is making 5 cents on each sale. But when he calculates his turnover, and knows how much rent he must allocate for the shelf space for each article until sold, how much sales manpower must go into each sale, how much promotion must go into each and how much supervisory effort is necessary to make each sell, he doesn't know his exact cost of each item. If one for the shelf space, for each article until sold, how much sales manpower must go into each sale, how much promotion must go into each and how much supervisory effort is necessary to make each sell, he doesn't know

In ordinary times, if either a manufacturer or retailer is making a total profit, he can console himself with the idea that it all evens up anyway or, at least, it's not worth the trouble to find out exactly how much he is making on each item. But in times like these, when it is increasingly difficult to adjust prices, it may be profitable to scan hidden costs. It will always pay to drop lines which, on closer examination of costs, are found to be unprofitable.

TRAVELING SALESMEN, AUDITORS, NOTE WELL

Believing that most hotel guests don't know who or how much to tip, Irwin Kramer, owner of Hotel Edison in New York, averaged tips of 10,000 guests and offers this table of correct gratuities:

Bellhops: 25 cents for taking a guest to a room; 50 cents if more than three pieces of luggage; 15 cents to 25 cents for errands for newspapers, cigarettes, etc.

Doormen: No tip for opening a cab or car door; 15 cents to 25 cents for more than one piece of luggage. No tip for signaling waiting cab; 25 cents for finding one.

Chambermaid: No tip for a short stay unless special service is required; in that case, 25 cents to 50 cents. Staying a week, 50 cents for one person, up to 1 dollar for two.

Elevator operator: No tip unless special service rendered; then 15 cents to 25 cents.

DISGUISE: A picture can be a heating appliance. A North Hollywood company (Electrofilm Corp.) produces decorative pictures with plug-in cords. The surface is coated with a resistant film that generates heat under 200 degrees.

MAGNETIC: Highball glasses won't slip off trays if new equipment is used. It consists of coarser wire magnets in the base and a matching tray of metal. (By Kelcey Products, 1887 McDonald Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.)

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT (For HAL BOYLE)

NEW YORK —(AP)—I got into the cab and gave the driver the address.

"Yeah, sure," he grunted. We pulled away from the curb.

This, I reasoned, is one of the unhappy ones. This one, I knew, I would be afraid to under-pick or ask to go to Brooklyn or cross with one wrong word.

I looked in my wallet. There was only a ten inside. Desperately, I searched my other pockets. No luck. Finally, as panic mounted, I worked up enough courage to say the worst. I apologized in advance for having to ask the hackie to break a ten for a six-bit ride.

"So what're you worried about, so what?" he asked. "After all, it ain't like it's a hundred or a thousand. So stop worrying already. So relax and enjoy the scenery."

So I relaxed. So the driver told me a story.

"Two or three years ago there was a character," he began, "who carried a thousand dollar bill around with him. A real Big Operator, you know. He'd be picked up at the Waldorf and he'd make all the right spots—the Cops, the Latin Quarter and the best.

"A Big Operator trying to look bigger. No, it wasn't Frank Costello. Everybody thinks all you got to do to mention Big Operator and the Waldorf and it's Costello right away. It wasn't Costello, he sure was a chub."

I told the driver I'd take his word for it.

"This guy," he continued, "always operated with the G-note. He'd go every place by cab and he'd keep the cab waiting. He'd drop into a club for a drink, and he'd give the hackie the thousand as a guarantee, I guess, he'd be out again.

"So he'd come out and go to several other places. Always the thousand as security. But, of course, he made sure to get the driver's name and number every time he left.

"Then, finally, he's ready to turn in, he goes back to the Waldorf, gets his thousand back and pays the bill. Maybe he ran up seven bucks on the meter, maybe ten."

"A good customer, I guess," I guessed.

"Good!" he says. "Nobody liked him. Big Operator! Shmo! Besides, it makes a cab driver very nervous to be holding somebody else's thousand dollar bill. Suppose he loses it, suppose the car's in trouble and trouble is something a cab driver got to steer clear of or he loses his police medallion and never drives again."

"I see what you mean," I said sympathetically. "But why could not the drivers refuse to hold the bill?"

"After a couple weeks," my cabbie said, "it wasn't necessary. The Big Operator hails a cab at the Waldorf. Up in the sixties, somewhere, he stops at a bar, gets the driver's name and number and asks him to wait with the G-note.

"The driver waits until the Big Operator gets through the door. Then he drives like hell away. With the thousand, of course.

"Of course when the guy comes out of the bar he sees what's up and calls the cops. In 20 minutes, the hackie is down at the

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — From the shaggy, bearded character, who looks like a survival from the Klondike, to the town's top citizens the unique auction sales conducted by Eric and Ruth Stanley are usually "mista."

The bearded man wanders in from the streets, gets himself a coffee cup from the refreshment bar set up by the good-looking and personable young auctioneers. He fills it nail full with sugar, moistens it with coffee, sits down and eats the concoction with a spoon. He never buys a thing. The other folks, diplomats, congressmen, military brass and their wives drink the coffee, but they also proceed to furnish their homes from the fabulous offerings put up under the Stanley hammer.

These offerings include everything under the sun from silver porringers to Siamese cats. I saw Eric Stanley sell a letter from First Lady Bess Truman, thanking a Washington hostess for an invitation to tea, for $9...not as much as her husband's letters bring, but a fair price at that.

There are the catalogued sales preceded by two days' previewing by would-be purchasers. These are set to soft waltz music and coffee is served. Right before the sale, the Stanleys put on some march music to "get folks steamed up." After the sale their dinner menu.

Now the Stanleys are planning to put on auctions of fine paintings.

"Washington is a hard town to crack on Art," Mr. Stanley told me. "People with money go to Philadelphia and New York. Others want to buy things that look like quality but are not so expensive as quality."

However, the Minnesota-born young man, says people in Washington, are beginning to develop a pseudo-cultural attitude.

"The Stanleys have had some lean and rugged days, but mostly they've had fun. Eric ran away from home when he was a kid and joined the Navy, staying in the service six years. During the war, he joined the Coast Guard, was sent to California. He and Ruth lived in a beach house along with 10 puppies and a pet seal.

New Train-Ear Auditory Unit Installed

Larry Averette, president of the Greenville Lions Club, looks on with interest as Mrs. Dorothy Perkins, director of speech correction work at East Carolina College, and Frances Elizabeth Keel try-out the Train-Ear auditory unit recently acquired by the college. The unit was purchased with funds collected in the recent Easter Seal Sale conducted by the Lions Club of the city and sponsored by the North Carolina League for Crippled Children. It will be used for training the hearing and speech habits of children. Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Keel of Greenville and a pupil in the fourth grade of the Training School, volunteered her services as the machine was tested.

East Carolina College has acquired the unit, according to college authorities. Men Honored By Local Masonic Lodge

Pictured above are the men honored at a dinner given by Greenville Masonic Lodge 284 to honor those who had reached their seventieth birthday. Seated, left to right: R. L. Humber, Lon H. Roundtree, 50-year member, F. C. Harding, and Reynor Pingel, visitor. Standing, left to right: R. H. McGowan, Henry C. Smith, and R. H. Haddock. (Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Greenville Masonic Lodge 284 had traveled. Those honored were: R. L. Humber, Lon H. Roundtree, who has reached 70 years of age at a dinner last night at the lodge. Charles P. Gaskins recognized the honored brethren with appropriate remarks and then introduced Dick Bundy, Past Grand Master. Bundy centered his talk around the old saying "One is no older than he looks" and he commemorated the journey that the honored brethren had traveled. The dinner was prepared and served to more than a hundred guests by the Eastern Star. Mrs. J. J. Gilbert, Past Master.

College Seniors Are Honored At Banquet

The Westminster Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church held its annual banquet in honor of senior college students at the Presbyterian Church last night beginning at 7:00 p.m.

The students enjoyed a fried chicken supper with ice cream and cake for dessert. The meal was prepared and served by members of Circles 5 and 6.

The welcome was extended by Janet Kirkland, president of the Fellowship. This was followed by toasts to the seniors by various members, who also made humorous "prophecies" concerning the future of each senior.

Gifts were distributed to the seniors by different individuals after which an entertainment hour followed, led by Miss Eleanor Powell.

The closing worship was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Leonard Topping.

Senior members of the Fellowship are Peggy Monroe, Muriel Shotwell, Ethel Clement, Milton Sawyer and Miles Buck.

The Westminster Fellowship is a group of Presbyterians composed of college students. Officers are: president, Janet Kirkland; vice-president, Grace Giles; secretary, Catherine Stephenson; treasurer, Hilton Biggs; and advisor, Mrs. Leonard Topping.

Forgery Charged To 16-Year-Old

Wayne Canady 16-year-old Fayetteville youth, is being held in jail here on the charge of forgery and flashing bad checks. Greenville police arrested him at a pool room here yesterday on complaint of Van C. Fleming Jr. of the Globe Hardware Company.

Police quoted Fleming as saying Canady bought about $7 worth of merchandise at his store and gave a check for $20 on a Fayetteville bank, signed with the name G. G. Canady. After receiving the change, Canady said he would call for the articles later. After he left the store, Fleming phoned the Fayetteville bank and learned that there was no such account there. He complained to local police and in a short time they had rounded up the alleged forger. Canady told police the name on the check was that of his father.

painter, and that he left home because he could not get along with him.

Canady's cases will come up before Judge J.W.H. Roberts in Police Court Wednesday morning.

Pres. Truman Is Not Forgotten On His Birthday

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman got a bouquet of roses as a birthday present today. He is 67.

He also received a scroll containing a Mother's Day prayer for the President, his Cabinet, and Congress.

Both were presented by Miss Mary Hohm of Syracuse, N.Y. She offered the scroll on behalf of "Our Sunday Visitor," a Catholic weekly founded by Bishop John F. Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind.

White House Press Secretary Joseph H. Short told newsmen Mr. Truman planned to work a normal day.

The President had six or eight appointments, including one with David Ben-Gurion, Prime Minister of Israel now on a visit here.

Washington Fans Believe Bucky Harris Using Mirrors

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Even the most ardent Washington fans are convinced Manager Bucky Harris is doing it with mirrors.

Three weeks of the campaign have been disposed of and the Nats are atop of such highly regarded contenders as Boston, Cleveland and Detroit. Only the Yankees stand between them and the top rung, and the distance is not great—a mere game and a half.

The amazing part of the Senators' surge is that they've been doing it without any help from Sid Hudson, their ace pitcher. The tall, lean right-hander, burdened by a hip injury, hasn't pitched an inning yet.

In Hudson's stead Cuban right-handers Conrado Marrero and Sandoval Consuegra have shared the role of staff mainstays. Each has won three against no defeats.

Consuegra, for the first time this season, didn't have it last night. However, his mates made up for this lapse by clubbing six Cleveland pitchers for 17 hits to outscore the Indians, 11-10.

The Nats teed off on starter Johnny Vander Meer and Rookie Gerald Fahr for eight consecutive hits in the fourth inning to tally five times. They added five more runs in the fifth. Consuegra, however, yielded four runs in the fourth and was blasted out in the fifth when the Indians added three more. Mickey Harris finished and received credit for the victory.

Robins Outlast Goldsboro, 10-9

By BERT MOYER

The Greenville Robins outlasted the Goldsboro Cardinals here last night as a total of 153 paid admissions sat shivering to watch the Robins stave off a late rally and come out on top after two hours and fifty-five minutes by a 10-9 score.

The Robins did all their scoring in the first two frames, pushing across a singleton in the first frame and then scoring nine runs in the second inning on three hits, seven walks, one error and a double steal. Sammie McLawhorn, making his first appearance for the Robins this season, gave up 14 base blows in the 8-1-3 frames he worked and had to call on Johnny Kovalchick for help in the ninth to check the Cards' rally. McLawhorn gave up a total of 10 walks, Kovalchick 2. The three Cards pitchers gave up a total of 12 walks, with half that many hits.

Credits Hurlers For Card Power

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stout pitching arms and not sharp batting eyes have carried the St. Louis Cardinals to their high station in the National League, says Manager Marty Marion.

"Pitching, it's wonderful," the thin fledgling skipper said last night before the game with the Brooklyn Dodgers. "Without it where'd we be? We weren't hitting the size of our hats until a couple of days ago."

Marion singled out Tom Poholsky, rookie right-hander up from Rochester, and Gerald Staley, the big thrower from the northwest country, for particular praise.

"He's the best young pitcher I've seen in this league. Not a thrower, but a smart pitcher. He knows where that ball is going. Won't overpower you but outsmarts you with regular equipment—fast ball, curve and change of pace."

Staley, the Vancouver, Wash. product who won 13 and lost 13 in the Cards' ill-fated cause last year, was described as a "real comer with a lot of stuff."

"He looked great in the spring," Marion added. "We expect a lot more from him."

Pirates Play

East Carolina's fighting Pirates move into the home stretch of their 1951 baseball season Wednesday afternoon when they take on the strong High Point baseball team here in College Park.

The game will be the second contest on tap for Coach Jack Boone's boys this week, as they meet Lenoir-Rhyne here on Friday afternoon.

Both games are set to be played at 2:45.

The Pirates are currently holding down the fourth place slot in the North State standings, having lost their chance to move up into the third place berth last week as they took a loss at the hands of the Catawba Indians.

Toss Wrench In Rose Bowl Plans

CHICAGO — (AP) — Big Ten machinery for lining up a new Rose Bowl pact with the Pacific Coast Conference stripped a gear today.

Wisconsin tossed the monkey wrench by announcing its faculty has voted unanimously to reject renewal of the football series in any form.

Wisconsin's decision came while Big Ten members were voting on whether the new pact should limit a team's appearance at Pasadena to once in every two years or once in every three.

The Big Ten joint committee of faculty representatives and athletic directors last February voted to renew the pact for three years. The schools were requested to vote on the limitation alternatives.

But with Wisconsin's official rejection of any Rose Bowl agreement, a conference spokesman said the joint committee again will be forced to vote on continuance of the series. The big test will come May 24-26 when officials hold their annual spring sessions at Northwestern.

Indian's Infielder by Pap

The Yankee bench was of the opinion that George Stirweiss could give the Cleveland Indians considerable help during the current pennant chase. For the most part the Indian infield is comparatively inexperienced. Having an experienced, capable hand like the former Yankee second sacker around is first-rate insurance.

"Stirweiss is a hustler," one Yankee veteran pointed out, "a scrappy guy who is one of the very best on the double play pivot. He'll start many a batting rally for the Indians, too. And just look at the fine job George did in tutoring Jerry Coleman. He did it so well that Coleman took his job away from him. Stirweiss may have lost a bit of his speed but he is still faster than most players in the league."

Stirweiss was traded to the Browns by the Yankees early last season. He wasn't a ball of fire with the St. Louis club but that may have been due to his disappointment at being traded away by the world champions. The Indians went high to get George because Manager Al Lopez wanted him. Right now he figures to use Stirweiss in a utility role although he wouldn't hesitate to use him every day if his regular infielders slump.

Vander Meer Is 'Fading Away' Like Old Soldier

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Johnny Vander Meer, the old soldier of baseball wars, is fading away.

The 36-year-old southpaw, only man in baseball history to pitch two consecutive no-hit, no-run games, succumbed to an early Washington Senators' attack last night in his first American League come-back start. He apparently lost his chance to make the grade with the Cleveland Indians as he allowed six runs and eight hits in the three innings he worked, retiring in a hectic fourth frame with none out.

The Senators' eight consecutive singles in the disastrous third came within one of tying an American League record.

"I guess I just don't have it any more," Vander Meer said after the game. "I've had a cold lately, but figured this would be my only chance to stick. I guess I just don't have it."

The left-hander came to Cleveland this spring with an unconditional release from the Chicago Cubs. But he made his fame with the Reds. He joined that club in 1937, and in June, 1938 powered his way into the hall of fame by beating Boston and then the Brooklyn Dodgers with the no-hit performances.

He never was a 20-game winner — his best year was 1942, when he won 18 and lost 12 with the second division Reds. Then, as with so many speed ballers, something happened to his arm.

Farmville Trims Vanceboro Nine

FARMVILLE — Farmville High School's baseball team moved another step closer to securing the second place berth in the Coastal Conference last night as they trounced a visiting Vanceboro nine 13-8 in a night contest played under the lights in the Farmville park.

Both teams used three pitchers in the contest which was highlighted by a first inning scoring spree on the part of the Farmville boys who made the best use of two hits and nine walks given up by the Vanceboro pitching staff to score 10 runs.

Farmville scored the 13 runs on six hits and three errors.

Webb started on the mound for Farmville and allowed only one hit and struck out six men. He was replaced by Hinston.

Farmville meets Robersonville Thursday night in Farmville for the game which will determine the second place entry which will face Ayden in the Coastal Conference playoffs.

Farmville will play in Tarboro Wednesday night in preparation for the Robersonville ball game.

East Carolina Golfers Participate In Tourney

Four East Carolina golfers left yesterday to take part in the two-day North State Conference golfing tourney being held at Greensboro today and Wednesday.

Representing East Carolina will be Coach Howard Porter's number 1, 2, 3, 4 golfers respectively, Bill Stalls, Walter Wells, Joe Exum and Dave Martin.

Again this year the North State event is being staged on the Star-mount Forest Country Club course at Greensboro.

Captain Bill Stalls will be gunning to maintain the individual crown he captured last year, when he was selected as best golfer in the North State conference. The Pirate team will also be seeking to retain top position in the North State conference which they now hold, and to defend their North State championship which they won last year.

The tourney will signal the end of collegiate golf for Bill Stalls, the sparkplug of the Buc team as well as Walter Wells. Both have performed capably for East Carolina during the years which they have been enrolled at the college.

Russia Admitted To Olympic Body

VIENNA — (UP) — Soviet Russia, which has not competed in the Olympics since 1912, joined the International Olympic Committee yesterday after pledging itself to the Olympic principles.

By a vote of 31 to 0—with three unidentified delegates abstaining—the USSR was admitted to the International Olympic Committee yesterday after pledging itself to the Olympic principles.

The vote followed a three-hour debate during which Konstantin Adrianov, chairman of the Russian Olympic Committee, assured the delegates that his country would abide by the code.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the U. S. Olympic committee said the Soviet had agreed to abandon its practice of giving cash prizes and other financial rewards to athletes.

Nigeria and Gold Coast were admitted without opposition and Israel was admitted "in principle."

Stranahan Gets Low Scores In Early Practice

BIRKDALE, England — (AP) — Frank Stranahan seems to be doing all right with his unorthodox interlocking grip.

The muscle man from Toledo Ohio, now has shot a 68 and a 71 in practice rounds over the tough Birkdale course, where British and U.S. amateur stars will tangle this weekend for the Walker Cup.

If he can maintain this kind of golf, Frankie may be a favorite to retain his British Amateur championship later this month. He changed his grip just before the Masters tournament in April.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C., had the best practice tour yesterday—a sparkling 68.

Old Pet Mallard Found No Longer To Be A "She"

VANCOUVER (AP)—A 15-year-old pet mallard, "Goo-Goo" has become a famous duck in these parts.

It was a good laying duck until two years old when it laid the biggest egg of all by turning into a Drake.

In the first blush of growth Goo-Goo laid some 324 eggs, then output slowed. The tail feathers changed and the colored ring typical of male mallards appeared on the neck. The beak darkened and the eggs stopped entirely. Experts came around and suggested its name be changed to "Sir Francis" or something suitable to its sex.

As a lady duck, Goo-Goo had only one brief fling. "A wild mallard was winging over the yard and saw Goo-Goo and put on his brakes," said Mrs. Lemontane. "Goo-Goo fluttered nobly and got about four feet off the ground. Then she sank. She'd put on too much weight to fly."

Tips On Tipping For Hotel Guests

NEW YORK (AP)—Most hotel guests don't know how to tip properly. They either underdo it, or they overtip and don't know which employees they're supposed to tip, says one hotel owner here.

Irwin Kramer, boss of the Hotel Edison, says he has made a survey of the situation by studying data from hostesses around the nation and by examining reports of tips given to his own hotel staff in the past year.

First, Kramer states, the hotel clerk is not among the "tipping employees" in a hotel. Also, no hotel employee should get a tip unless he renders a service and is courteous.

Bell-hops, he says, should get 25 cents when showing you to your room, 50 cents if he has to carry more than three pieces of luggage; door men should get no tip if he gets a cab for you which is in line, 25 cents if he has to go out of his way to call a cab. Chamber maids and elevator operators, Kramer says, should get no tips except for special service or, in the case of the maid, after a week's stay.

Pair Admitted To Hospital For Wreck Injuries

Two Negro men were admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon after they were involved in a highway accident on Highway 121, the Greenville Patrol office reported.

Injured were: Glaster Parker, 26, of Route 1, Greenville who suffered a back injury and Thomas Dunchan, age 23, who has a head injury.

Patrolman Paul Whitley who interviewed the injured men, stated that no one in the car could give any account of how the accident occurred. Whitley stated that the car was being driven by Parker when the car just turned over.

Investigation of the accident is still under way by the Patrol.

Shot By Mistake At Poker Table

WILLIAMSTON (UP)—Henry Everett was shot by mistake yesterday because he took another man's seat in a poker game. Police Chief John Roebuck reported today.

Roebuck said Dave Melton twice tossed James Evans from his home after Evans lost all his money. Angered, Evans went for a shotgun, Roebuck said, and returned.

In the meantime Everett took Melton's seat at the table and was killed when Evans fired through the window at the spot where Melton had been sitting, the chief said.

Doctor Appeals For Permission To Drink Whisky

RAJAHMUNDY, South India (PA)—Dr. N. S. Reddi of Rajahmundry petitioned the Madras High Court for legal permission to drink whisky—denied him by the state's prohibition act—on the ground that it relieved his attacks of asthma.

His affidavit to the court said "the only medicine that has been giving me relief in asthmatic attacks is Scotch Whisky, and very often it has acted as a preventive to ward off impending attacks."

In response to his petition the Madras High Court issued a writ of mandamus which raised the question of the validity of state prohibition for Madras. Dr. Reddi's appeal will be decided by the Indian Supreme Court.

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 14

They set out within the half-hour, following the creek. Jeff saw that Starr had men posted at intervals and a dozen or so of the crew were—jumping about the ranch yard. Tombstone, who had been studying the ground as they rode, drew in sharply and dismounted. They waited while he crouched over some prints and studied them. He straightened slowly. "Them prints are new and they weren't made when we drove that stock down the valley. Jeff somebody's made off with more of our cows."

Jeff rode over to where he stood and traced out the tracks. There were a wester of them, circling and zigzagging as the riders cut out running stock. Jeff led the way to the trail into the hills and they had another look. The sign there was quite fresh.

"No use lookin' so grim," said Tombstone. "They're gone and we can't do nothin' about it now except to set a guard and see that they don't get no more. It's Shag, I reckon, collectin' that bonus he figgers is due him."

"Yes, it's Shag," agreed Jeff. "But Shag works for the Star. Boys, when we start after those birds we're sure going to drive 'em."

He left his men at the camp that night, returning to the house because he knew Diana wanted him there. They sat on the gallery until late, and if Jeff gave voice to a few dreams Diana did not discourage him.

The week drifted by and as the days passed more men came in, most of them fetching two new men. By Saturday noon all of them had returned and Jeff found he now had a total of thirty-one in his crew. He paid the bonuses that noon, taking the money into the mess shack and distributing it there.

"Your lady boss says you can have the afternoon off," he announced. "Those of you who were not lucky enough to draw a bonus can borrow from me."

There were whoops of joy, and when they had subsided he said, "I'm tying a string to the holiday. I want Tombstone to hitch up the wagon and drive to the store. We'll meet him there. I'm buying wire and I'll need you to help load it. After that you're on your own."

They rode to Silverstone in the body, Jeff keeping beside the wagon and talking to Tombstone. Tombstone said, "Ain't it a bit risky leaving the range open to Star all afternoon?"

"I don't think so. My hunch is that when they see we've gone to town they'll follow. After all it's Saturday and cowboys have to play."

That he had guessed correctly was evident before they reached town. Glancing back up the valley, Jeff saw the Star riders scudding along the creek trail. Starr's men were going to Silverstone, too. Jeff instructed Tombstone to drive to the rear entrance to the store and sent the men along with him. He dismounted in front, went inside and told the storekeeper he wanted all the wire and staples in the stock. He helped the crew with the loading and when they had nearly finished, went back into the store to sign the order for the wire. He had just signed the slip when the clatter of hoofs shook the building and a body of horsemen swept by at a full gallop. A big, bluff man with a huge gray moustache and ruddy cheeks led them.

"That was John Starr," said the storekeeper. "Looks a like he brought his whole crew to town."

The beat of hoofs stopped as the Star crew reached the Bonaza and was followed by a chorus of yips and a new flurry of hooves as Jeff's men set out for the Purple Palace. They swept around the front corner of the store and went flying down the street as though to demonstrate that they were capable of making just as much noise as had the Star.

Then occurred one of those tragic misunderstandings that can change the fate of nations. In this case it caused havoc and bloodshed and plunged both outfits into a bitter war before either side was quite ready for it.

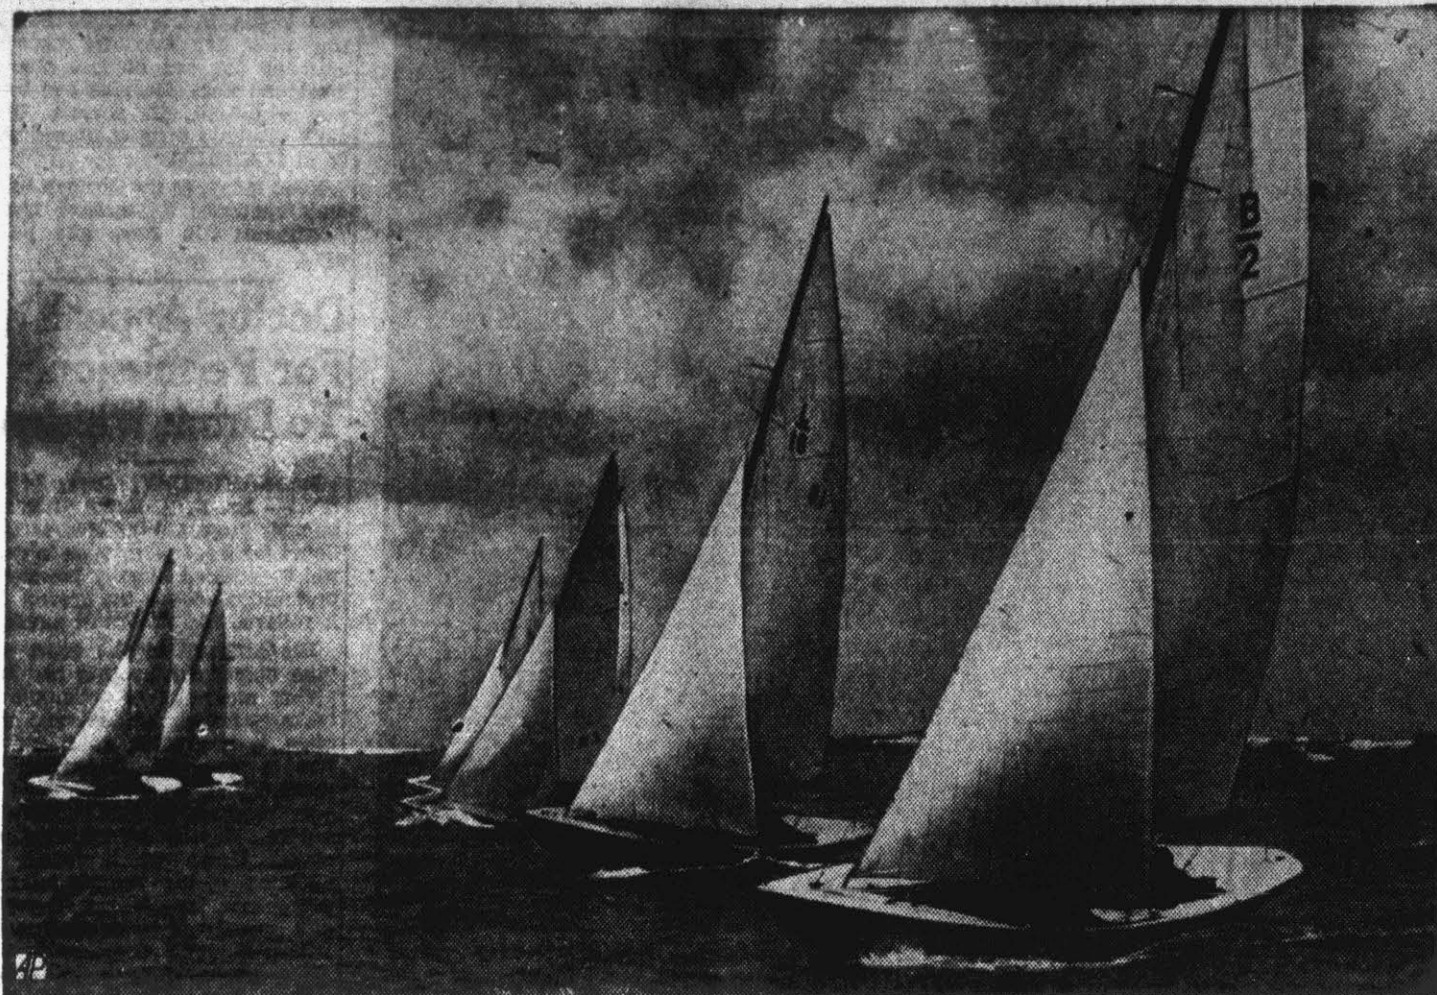

The Star crew had just pulled up outside the Bonaza and were tying their horses when the Double D outfit surged around the corner and came charging down the street. Somebody cried, "Here they come, boys! Let 'em have it!" There was the boom of a six-gun, then a scattered volley as others were caught up in the whirlpool of excitement. Two Double D horses went down, a man was shot out of his saddle, several others were seared by lead.

The reaction was instinctive; the Double D yanked guns and fired into the group of men around the hitching rail. John Starr, realizing that the whole thing was a mistake, ran into the street, hands in the air, yelling to his men to cease firing. A bullet struck him in the arm; he staggered, then another slug broke his leg and he went down. Ed Keever and two of the men ran to him, lifted him and ran into the Bonaza with him.

Jeff heard the shots as he was descending the store steps. He made the hitching rail in two jumps and the third took him into his saddle. He spurred to join the milling horsemen in the street, shouted, "Double D men, into the Purple Palace!" He led the way and they followed, leaping from their saddles and making a break for the doorway.

Inside the saloon, he quickly disposed his men in places of vantage. Across the street, the Star outfit had taken refuge in the Bonaza. The firing died down, then ceased altogether.

Marshal Sanders had evidently prepared for just such an emergency, for within a matter of minutes he came down the street with fully twenty armed men at his heels. He halted the party near the Bonaza, then walked boldly into the middle of the road and halted directly between the two saloons.

"John Starr, Jeff Payne, listen to me!" he shouted. "Are you there?"

"You men are not goin' to fight your private war in my town. I got enough armed men here to make what I say stick. Ed, fetch your men out, catch up your horses and get out of town. Get a wagon from the livery corral for your wounded. Payne, when the Star is clear of town, you'll fetch out your men and do likewise. All right, Ed; get started."

Presently the swinging doors of the Bonaza parted and Ed Keever came out. He stood looking about him, then motioned for more men to follow him. They rounded up their horses, loaded one dead man and three wounded into a wagon and set out. Sanders' posse watched them, determined that the thing should go no further within the town limits.

"When the last Star man had gone, Sanders called to Jeff and had him lead his men from the Purple Palace. They had three wounded men in the street, one of them shot so badly that it was decided to leave him at the hotel. The other two were put into the wagon with the wire and the whole party started back towards the Double D.

Jeff rode in advance keeping his eyes open for an ambush; but when they reached the valley on the other side of the gap they could see the Star crew riding slowly up the creek trail to their headquarters.

It was a grim ending to what had started as a holiday. Men were quiet and grim-faced. The war had really begun; there would be no quarter asked or given from here on.

Fingerling Rock Fish Released Near Falkland

About 50,000 fingerling rock fish have been released in Tar River at Falkland. Another 50,000 fingerling rock were to be placed in the river later. About 100,000 fingerling stream have been released in the stream. The restocking program by the N. C. State Wildlife Resources Commission, which has been carried on for the past five years, now is definitely paying dividends, and fishermen are making good catches of rock, J. O. Teel of Greenville, district game and fish protector, reported.

He reminds that it is unlawful for any person to sell any game fish taken in inland waters and any rock fish taken in inland waters cannot be sold. There have been reports of good catches being made and sold in violation of the state law, the district protector stated.

Chico Creek now is being used for a spawning area and is closed to fishing until next August 31.

Must Pay For Use Of Japanese Tune

NEW YORK—(AP)—From now on, you'll have to pay for the privilege of singing or playing a Japanese song commercially in this country. The same goes for the Japanese who perform American tunes for profit in Japan.

This is the result of the first Oriental agreement signed by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. It concluded a mutual protection pact with the Japanese Society of Rights of Authors and Composers whereby the two societies would collect royalties for each other.

"Actually," says an ASCAP spokesman, "There's more in it for us than for them. The Japanese play about 80 per cent more of our music than we perform of theirs. But Japanese tunes are performed quite a bit in Japanese cabarets along our Pacific coast."

ASCAP, which has had many long-standing royalty agreements with European nations but never before concluded one in the Far East, has 2600 members. The Japanese society has 1100.

Adds Groups To Deferment List

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin today added "farm operators" and three other critical occupations to a list of jobs qualified for draft deferment.

Farm operators were defined as those "who perform without supervision a wide variety of skilled tasks in commercial agricultural production." The other new critical occupations are airplane navigator (commercial), metal spinner and shipfitter.

Tobin said the occupations are to be "considered" for deferment but do not mean automatic deferment.

TEEN TALK

Julian

AP Newsfeatures

Graduation calls for a celebration. Any girl or boy who has managed to get over the first, second or third hurdle in education's steep-climb is ready to fete and be feted.

You can make a graduation party a summa, summa cum laude affair by planning your invitation, favors and games in the traditional spirit.

Make your invitation a small replica of your diploma, putting the school name on top. Fill it in with the date of the party and sign it; underneath the signature write something like "Dean of Shennanigans."

Your table setting should be something special.

Before you start making favors stock up on the following essentials: black mat stock, 5 and 6-inch round lace paper doilies, crepe paper in black, Nile green and in your school colors, narrow satin ribbon.

Then get out scissors, paste, scotch tape and spool wire and go to work.

Mortar Board Place Mats

Cut out 14-inch squares of black mat stock. A little to the right of the center of each square, paste a narrow strip of black crepe paper about 7 inches long with a tassel at the end. Make the tassel by binding together, in sheath-fashion, thin shredded strips of black crepe paper about 2 inches in diameter to represent part of the cap's trim. When you set the mats on the table, place each one so that the corners appear in the center of the place setting and the tassel hangs down between the corner on the right side and the corner nearest the guest.

Diploma Napkin Rolls—Roll white linen or paper napkins to look like diplomas. Tie each with a ribbon rosette in your school colors and place to the left of the Mortar Board place mat.

"Fortune-Forecast" Centerpiece. This is the medal-winner of the table setting, serving the dual functions of a handsome table decoration and a source of party fun. Make it out of a small shallow box about 7 inches wide, 12 inches long and two and one-half inches deep. Cover with colored crepe paper. On each of the long sides, paste gold gummed letters reading "Class of 1931." Trim the box by pasting halves of 6-inch lacepaper box rim. Then fill the box with "fortune forecasts."

Each forecast should be written on a small piece of paper: Examples: "It's plain to see a dancer you'll be"; or "Hollywood will call Mary Small"; or "A bride you'll be before leaves fall from the tree"; or "You'll write to fame, we'll watch for your name"; etc. It is a good idea to choose your rhymes after considering the goal of the guest.

Roll each of the forecasts into a little scroll and add a party frill to it. The frill is made by cutting out the center of a 6-inch round doily inserting the scroll through the opening and gathering the doily in a ruffle around the scroll with spool wire. Tie a satin ribbon with a long streamer to a forecast for each guest at the party, using school colors alternately. The ribbons should extend from the centerpiece to each place setting. If, because of a shortage of guests, you must fill up the box, put blank scrolls in the bottom of it, but do not attach ribbons. The guests should be invited to pull the streamers just before they leave the table, and read forecasts aloud.

Graduation-Bouquet Place Card. First get a batch of ordinary white place cards which can be stood up. On the right hand side of the card, paste tiny strips of ribbon in your school colors. Write the guest's name in the center of the card. If you want to add a yum-yum flavor, take a half-dozen gum drops securing them with spool wire. Cut out green paper fringe and set the gum drops in the center of the fringe. Put through a 5-inch round paper doily by inserting the end of the wire through the doily. Attach to the doily and the left-hand side of place-card.

ROMANCE IN THE AIR ...
For the young lady who is merry, friendly, good fun. Because she can see right. Before she had her vision corrected, she was timid, awkward, retiring; now she has poise, self-confidence, and is a good mixer.
It's surprising what a difference good vision can make. Smart girls know this, and have their vision corrected with lovely, streamlined glasses that add to their appearance by giving full, fresh beauty to their eyes and full freedom to their attractive personality.

Some Republican Take Issue On 'Limited War'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Some Republicans hotly disputed today President Truman's assertion that a limited war in Korea "is achieving the most for peace at the least cost in American lives."

GOP lawmakers attacked Mr. Truman's declaration that "our policy is designed to win" in the Korean war.

Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, top Republican on the Armed Services Committee, said Secretary Marshall's initial testimony "was an inadequate defense of the dismissal and methods of dismissal of General MacArthur."

And Senator Cain (R-Wash.), also a member of the Armed Services Committee, called Marshall's testimony "extraordinarily disturbing because it showed the lack of any administration plan to end the war in Korea."

MacArthur has contended the war is doomed to end in "bloody stalemate," and called for broader prosecution of the war. It was for his public advocacy of these strategy proposals that Mr. Truman said he fired MacArthur.

Marshall told the Senators yesterday that MacArthur's strategy would risk all-out conflict with Russia, expose Europe to attack and perhaps split the free world into two camps. He also said MacArthur's truce appeal to the Red commander in Korea last March 24 killed any chances for a settlement then.

Two senators disclosed to reporters, meanwhile, that Marshall told the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees yesterday that if Chinese Reds make a mass air attack on United Nations troops, retaliatory air strikes will be made against Manchuria.

Another Russian Offer Rejected

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States today rejected Russia's proposal to turn over the drafting of a Japanese peace treaty to four Pacific powers including communist China.

Russia's purpose in advancing the proposal yesterday was to obtain a "double veto" over a Japanese peace settlement, the State Department said.

The United States intends, a Department spokesman made plain, to go ahead with the present preparations for a settlement for Japan, with or without Russian participation.

The U.S. has been consulting 15 other nations in working out treaty terms and it is hoped to have a draft ready for signing within a few weeks.

Russia, in a note handed to American Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at Moscow yesterday, proposed calling a council of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Russia, Britain and Red China to meet in June or July to draft a treaty.

Other states which took part in the Pacific war would be "consulted." The Soviet proposal sharply attacked the American draft now under consideration and charged it represented an attempt to impose an American peace on Japan which would exclude the Soviet Union, China and other countries.

Counting the ballots last night after the polls closed at 4:30 took longer than any other election. They were locked up in the city clerk's office just before 11:30 p.m. to wait for approval by the board of aldermen.

ing their heavy stuff up north (in Manchuria) there are only two solutions—either they couldn't cross the Yalu River, or else the Russians wrenched on their promises."

The officer suggested the Reds could be holding large concentrations of planes and armor in Manchuria to ward off any possible allied blow in that direction.

To reach the front from Manchuria Red tanks have to run a gauntlet of U.N. aerial bombs and rockets. And Communist planes have to sneak past an aerial patrol by F-86 Sabre jets along the Yalu River border.

the department can function all right.

A resolution was approved by the board for the holding of a bond election in Bethel school district in the early part of June. The election would be for the purpose of voting supplemental funds to those provided the district by the supplemental state school standards fund.

As outlined by D. H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, the tax would be 20 cents on each $100 and would be included in the present 35 cent debt service fund paid by residents of the school district. The additional money would be used for hiring new teaching personnel, if the election passes a vote of the people, Conley said.

The commissioners also approved the appointment of John Barnhill as trustee of Pitt Memorial Hospital. Barnhill replaces J. G. Clark of Greenville and will fill his unexpired term.

They also turned over to Pitt Memorial Hospital $15,000 out of the county hospital fund.

The commissioners will meet again Thursday of this week for the purpose of reviewing inequalities in the taxes levied on real property during the present fiscal year.

France has been a major factor in the struggle of the United States to secure the imposition of an embargo. However, the general expectation among observers has been that both these great powers will follow the United States, and this viewpoint would seem to be justified by the statement of Sir Martley Shawcross.

hardly been issued before the meat industry began to swamp Congress with protests, either by telegram or personal representatives who rushed here.

Pretty soon some powerful voices in Congress began to protest the order. For instance, Senator Ellender, Louisiana Democrat and chairman of the Senate's Agriculture Committee, predicted: "Black markets and rationing by Nov. 1 unless the beef order was abolished. Ellender was not alone. Senator Maybank, South Carolina Democrat and chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, joined him.

Maybank said this rollback order would cut down on the production of meat. Which is another way of saying that meat growers will produce less if their profits are cut down.
