UN Assembly Votes Ban War Shipments To China

India Leads Bloc Calling On Organization To List Objectives; Motion Passed Unanimously, Though Number Abstain From Voting

FLUSHING, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations General Assembly today ordered a world-wide strategic embargo on Communist China and North Korea by a 47 to 0 vote.

India, leading a bloc of eight countries which abstained from voting, called on the U.N. to specify its Korean War aims in line with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's statement that the world organization would have scored a major victory if it cleared South Korea of invading forces.

Russia and her four Cominform partners refused to vote after arguing that the Assembly was not empowered to recommend such an embargo.

Only the Security Council, where Russia's veto could block it, could legally consider the measure, the Soviet delegates contended.

In Washington, Senate and House conferees agreed to outlaw U.S. economic aid to any countries which knowingly permit export of arms or strategic materials to Russia, Red China or any other communist nation.

India, Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, Indonesia, Pakistan, Sweden and Syria abstained on the embargo resolution, which asks the Assembly's Additional Measures Committee to consider further sanctions against the communists in the Far East War.

The United States, which sponsored the embargo resolution originally, has contended that diplomatic sanctions also should be voted against Red China and North Korea. It has recommended that no more governments recognize the two regimes at war with the U.N.

India's Sir Benegal Rau, who has led the Asian bloc in peace moves for the last six months, raised Ridgway's statement with his declaration that the New Delhi government was not shipping and would not ship war materials to any country.

Ridgway's statement was made before the red armies launched their spring offensive and before Gen. Douglas MacArthur was ousted as the U.N. supreme field commander. At that time, Ridgway commanded the U.S. Eighth Army.

"An awful responsibility rests upon us here and we must do all we can to see that the Korean conflict does not spread and that it is brought to an end at the earliest possible moment," Rau said.

"It was reported in the press that the unified command would consider it a tremendous victory if U.N. forces succeeded in keeping South Korea free of the invader, or words to that effect.

"Would it not be possible for the U.N. to consider this subject and make an early pronouncement on it in appropriate terms? It might serve to dispel any unwarranted doubts or misunderstandings about the military objectives and it might be a useful step."

To Face It Squarely

Despite MacArthur's Emphatic Statements The Administration Does Have A Plan For Conducting War In Korea; That Plan Now Being Explained In Hearings

Comply, Or Else

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals today served notice on Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and nine others that they will be sent to jail for contempt unless they comply with its orders in litigation over control of American President Lines, Ltd.

The court said it would enter an order giving Sawyer and the others five days in which to comply with its decree.

The court said: "If they have not complied as directed in the order (they) must submit themselves to the court for commitment as in civil contempt until they do comply."

Sawyer and eight other government officials and attorneys earlier had been cited by the court on contempt charges for failure to deliver "effective possession" of 92 per cent of the voting stock of American President Lines to R. Stanley Delar and his associates.

Service Units To Parade Saturday

Plans for the Armed Forces Day recognition tomorrow are fast coming to a close as arrangements for the strictly military demonstration have been okayed.

Beginning at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon the parade of infantrymen and Marines will begin from the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Ninth Street. From there the men will march to Five Points and on Evans Street to the courthouse where the parade will disband.

Accompanying the soldiers and Marines will be the Greenville and Spc. High School bands.

In addition to the parade, a series of scheduled flights of military airplanes, both Marine and Army, will fly over the city. The first flight is scheduled for 10:25 in the morning and the others will arrive during the parade.

Two companies of military personnel, 175 men in each, will form the parade. The Marines will arrive here from Camp Lejeune late in the morning. The airborne infantrymen will arrive from Rocky Mount where they will parade before the Greenville parade.

Parade Chairman Bob Ross, head of the Jaycee committee in charge of Armed Forces Day observance, stated it has not definitely been decided whether the Civil Air Patrol cadets will parade. At first it was thought that members of the Greenville and Washington units would form the third unit in the parade.

WASHINGTON (UP)—A B-47 stratojet bomber landed at Edwards Air Base, Muroc, Cal., today after a five hour and 50 minute non-stop flight from Hickam Air Base, Honolulu.

The six-jet medium bomber made the flight of about 2,600 miles at an average speed of around 480 miles per hour.

This speed was not close to the 607 miles per hour that an experimental model of the plane averaged in February, 1949, on a 2,289 mile flight from Moses Lake, Wash., to here.

Pier And Ship Swept By Fire; Sabotage Hunted

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A five-alarm fire swept a waterfront pier and a merchant ship today, forcing nearly 30 crewmen to leap into the Delaware River to save their lives.

Three persons were missing and more than a score others were injured. The Navy investigated the possibility of sabotage.

Fire Marshal George Kingston set the damage to the pier and the 5,000-ton freighter Pineland at $500,000.

The missing included William Madden, a pier timekeeper, and two members of the ship's crew. A police surgeon said a search of ship failed to reveal any bodies.

Final Arguments Presented Today In Daniels' Case

TARBORO — Final arguments were presented in U. S. District Court today on the habeas corpus hearing in behalf of the Daniels cousins. Pitt County natives who were indicted and convicted in Pitt superior court for the brutal murder of William Benjamin O'Neal in 1949.

Defense attorneys presented to Judge Don Gilliam the same arguments that were heard in December at the first hearing in the case. Today O. John Rogge, chief counsel for the Negro youths, continued to bring home the fact that Negroes were "systematically excluded" from Pitt county grand and petty juries.

Rogge's law partner Murray Gordon stated that the confessions obtained from the Daniels cousins immediately after their arrest were "distorted and coerced."

Judge Gilliam stated toward the close of this morning's proceedings that it appeared to him that the confessions were "perfectly voluntary because all evidence except that given by the defendants indicated such." Gilliam could not be contacted at noon today concerning when he will pass judgment on the appeal.

The Daniels were absent from the hearing this morning. It is expected that defense will wind up its arguments late this afternoon.

Today's hearing was a surprise one, it having been postponed from April 24 due to conflicts in regular terms of the court.

Six People Die In Rail Collision

CRACK PRR Passenger Trains Crash Near Bryn Mawr

BRYAN MAWR, Pa. (AP)—Six persons were killed and at least 51 injured today aboard two crack Pennsylvania railroad passenger trains in a rear end collision near this Philadelphia main line suburb.

Five bodies were removed from the wreckage of the Philadelphia night express and the Red Arrow. Another was reported located in the debris but not yet recovered.

The Philadelphia express was coming from Pittsburgh, the Red Arrow from Detroit to New York.

None of the dead were identified immediately.

Bryan Mawr hospital reported it had received at least 50 injured. A spokesman for the PRR said the crash occurred at 6:38 a.m. eastern standard time, at a peak period of travel on one of the most heavily traveled rail lines in the east.

The spokesman said train No. 68, the Red Arrow, eastbound from Detroit to New York, smashed into delphia night express bound from Pittsburgh.

The Philadelphia Express had stopped, possibly for a checkup on equipment.

Three persons were missing and more than a score others were injured. The Navy investigated the possibility of sabotage.

Fire Marshal George Kingston set the damage to the pier and the 5,000-ton freighter Pineland at $500,000.

The missing included William Madden, a pier timekeeper, and two members of the ship's crew.

Truman's Statement Questioned

MacArthur Incredible At Assertion His Release Considered Year Ago

WASHINGTON (AP)—Critics jumped today at the chance to widen the political fuss President Truman says was stirred up by his firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Mr. Truman's assertion he had considered dismissing the Pacific commander on and off for a year brought from MacArthur an expression of astonishment.

MacArthur said his astonishment at Mr. Truman's remarks bordered on incredulity. He added: "It is difficult to reconcile this with my appointment by him as Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations command" in Korea. That was last June.

Mr. Truman also told his news conference yesterday the Republic is trying to overthrow the foreign policy of the United States. This brought a retort from Senator Brewster (R-Me.), a Foreign Relations Committee member. He told a reporter "we can't overthrow it when we don't know what it is."

The President said he decided he needed a new General in the Far East when MacArthur called on the Chinese Communists in Korea on March 24 to negotiate a truce, in advance of a proposed presidential peace proposal.

MacArthur replied he had twice previously tried to obtain a cease-fire agreement, both times "with-out conferring with the highest authority and without the slightest exception being taken thereto."

As for the March 24 offer to the Chinese Red commander, MacArthur said: "Such action on my part could only be regarded as supplementary to and in full support of any political move toward peace unless an agreement was in contemplation on the enemy's own terms."

In an expansive mood at his news conference, the President also said that: 1. Secretary of State Acheson cautioned at an April 6 White House conference against MacArthur's removal on grounds it would stir up a political fuss. And he was right, the President added with a grin.

2. He is happy the Senate Armed Forces and Foreign Relations committees upheld yesterday a ruling that Gen. Omar Bradley did not have to divulge what was said by whom at the April 6 White House meeting.

That decision was taken by the committees by an 18 to 8 vote. They then postponed until Monday the reopening of hearings into MacArthur's ouster, calling off a session planned for today.

Communists Still Advance Despite Bloody Casualties

Reds Attack On 45-Mile Front

Open arrows on this map show where Red troops poured out of the hills Wednesday and attacked Allied lines on a 45-mile front eastward from Chunchon to the Korean east coast. Black arrows denote approximate places where U. N. forces are meeting for the attacks. There was a sharp skirmish north of Seoul (A). The Chinese drove Allies from their positions east of Chunchon (B), and hit hard at U. N. positions southwest of Inje (C). The Communists used heavy artillery in an attack east of Inje (D). Power Exchange To Be Settled Tonight

Aldermen And Utilities Commission In Joint Session For Hearing Opinions On Proposed Hook-Up

The possibility of a mutual exchange of power between the Greenville Utilities and Virginia Electric and Power Company will be decided tonight during a joint meeting of the Utilities Commission and the Board of Aldermen.

Meeting in the city hall tonight at eight, both boards will come together for the purpose of hearing officials from the power company discuss the proposed hookup.

The meeting is an adjourned one from last Friday at which time the commission decided to postpone action until they could hear directly from the power company.

L. A. Blackburn, electrical engineer from Richmond, Va., will be present to discuss the proposition with both bodies. In the past he has been advisor to the commission in problems of electrical rates and engineering facilities at the local plant. Both engineering and administrative personnel from VEPCO will represent the company.

The proposition to be discussed tonight has been in the making since 1942. At that time the proposal called for a tie-in with the company at Grinnell Creek with 33,000 volts being "wheeled" into the plant here. It was put off until later pending the utilities' plans to increase their own equipment for the generation of more local power.

The proposition today calls for a tie-in closer to the Greenville plant, probably in a cross the river with the power lines following the course of Tar River from Washington. And instead of only 33,000 volts being wheeled in, the company plans to hike it to 110,000, necessitating a sub-station in the vicinity to convert the high voltage to the plant's capacity.

Under the contract, VEPCO would construct the sub-station and charge the utilities here 15 percent per year of the cost. According to superintendent Martin Swartz, the 15 percent charge is cheaper than maintaining personnel at the local plant that is trained to work with higher voltage. And too, maintenance of equipment used in the conversion would cost the plant more, he said.

In preparation for tonight's joint meeting the necessary resolutions have been drawn up for both board's signing, if approval is granted. Such procedure, it was learned, is for the purpose of saving time in effecting the contract, rather than having a special meeting of the alderman to sign their part of the resolutions.

Hordes Charge Across Bodies Of Their Own Dead; Ram Twenty Miles Into Allied Lines; Encircled American Unit Battles Free; Fury Of Attack Gaining Momentum

By EARNEST HOBERECHT Allied officers were confident it ultimately would be stopped despite the breakthrough.

"The communist armies are now making another futile attempt to destroy the United Nations forces in Korea," Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet said in a message of encouragement to his hard-pressed forces.

The American division was fighting south in a rearguard action against overwhelming Chinese forces closing in from three sides. Allied armored relief columns were racing north to aid the endangered division.

Heavily censored dispatches said the South Korean division was endangered southeast of Inje in the region where the reds made the first breakthrough through their 1,000-mile front.

Allied troops abandoned their last foothold in North Korea and pulled back the entire eastern half of their line to seal off the communist breakthrough.

The reds established a roadblock on the Hyeon-Hongchon road far behind the lines, apparently on the escape route for some of the endangered Allied units.

The fury of the attack gained momentum during the day but Allied artillery and air attacks slaughtered the communists by the thousands. But still they rolled on in human sea attacks and bent back the entire eastern half of the United Nations line.

The 8th Army, in retreat on the eastern and central fronts, gave up attempts to estimate communist casualties left on the abandoned battlefields east of the central Chunchon area.

But front reports said 10,000 reds were killed or wounded in the U.S. 10th Corps area alone and another 10,000 elsewhere along the flaming front.

New thousands were added to the toll as the reds renewed their assault with maniacal fury before dawn Friday. Allied planes and artillery mowed down 1,300 reds in a few hours along the Inje-Hongchon highway. Another 8,000 were taken under a gigantic artillery attack in a single buildup area east of Chunchon.

"They are wading through anything until they are down or dead, and they are entirely oblivious to their own losses," an officer said.

The communists also struck on the western end of the line around Seoul. Hundreds were killed by artillery while pouring across the Pukhan River dam south of Chang-gon.

Southwest of there the reds hit the main Allied defense line and breached it in two places in fierce hand-to-hand fighting. American troops struck back and sealed the breakthrough in a blazing two-hour battle.

A U. S. spokesman admitted that the breakthrough on the eastern front was "our most dangerous immediate problem."

A New Kind Of War

The Fundamental Difference Between MacArthur's Responsibility And That Of President Truman And His Military Advisors; Issues Are Global, Not Small

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The official Moscow newspaper Pravda, in reviewing the latest quotes him as saying in the early 1930s that Russia desired there should never be armed conflict between the U. S. A. and the U.S.S.R.

And the review says this statement (made to the late Ralph Barnes of the New York Herald Tribune) has significance today.

Well, that's mighty interesting, but one may be forgiven for putting the revelation under microscope. There never has been any indication that Russia wanted "armed conflict" with the United States. However, lack of "armed conflict" doesn't necessarily mean a desire for "peace."

The "cold war" which Russia long has been waging isn't "armed conflict," but it's a far reach from "peace" and has been made undisputedly to serve the purpose of armed conflict. While Moscow has kept itself clear of gunfire, it has deliberately precipitated armed conflicts to weaken America in particular and the democracies in general.

Back in the 1930s when "Good

Old Joe" made his crack about peace with America, he was terribly anxious to get into the good graces of Washington. Russia's "cold war," then represented largely by fifth-column efforts in foreign countries to stir up industrial and political unrest, wasn't going too well. Soviet Russia needed to build up her industrial and military strength, and she had to have the good will of the western powers, especially the United States.

Actually Stalin had been working from the time he came to power after Lenin's death in 1924 to gain recognition by Washington, but without avail. Even before, in 1918, Maxim Litvinoff (later Foreign Minister and current whereabouts unknown) began a 15 year crusade to gain American recognition. He was appointed ambassador to Washington, but the American State Department refused him a visa.

With that Moscow inaugurated a general campaign of good fellowship with foreign nations. Litvinoff signed non-aggression pacts all over the world.

Any public school teacher or principal in the state was eligible but only forty were selected. These were chosen on a basis of interests and community leadership qualities.

The Workshop is offered as an aid to the schools in performing the important educational function of enlightening the people of their communities and stimulating them to think about the issues involved in the conflict between Democracy and Communism. This is part of a larger program already known in certain parts of the state as "Thought Defense."

The Workshop is under the direction of Professor E. M. Adams of the Department of Philosophy of U.N.C. Other instructors will be Prof. L. O. Kaitsoff and William H. Poate of the Department of Philosophy, U.N.C.; Prof. John H. Halliwell of the Department of Political Science of Duke University; Prof. Carson Ryan of the School of Education of U.N.C.; and Mr. Toby Brunner, historian, and formerly with the U.S. Intelligence Service attached to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The program consists of a study of:

1. Foundations of Democracy and Freedom
2. Foundations of Communism
3. Social, Economic, and Political Structures of Democratic, Capitalistic, Socialistic, and Communist Societies.
4. Recent and Contemporary Life and Developments in Russia
5. Methods and Techniques of Informing School Communities of These Issues.

The forty teachers chosen will be given their room, board, tuition, two banquets, swimming tickets and all traveling expenses.

Splendid Reports Given At West Greenville PTA Meet

The P.T.A. of the West Greenville School met for its final meeting of the year on Wednesday night at the school.

The meeting was conducted by the new president for the year 1951-1952, Mr. Sherman Parks. Other new officers who assumed their duties for the first time were Sam Winchester, vice president; Mrs. W. A. Wright, secretary; and Mrs. Julius Whichard, treasurer.

The devotional was given by Miss Gloria Banton, Baptist Student Worker at East Carolina College. She used as the basis for her comments the Beatitudes, which she applied to present day living, and closed the devotional with prayer.

Mrs. C. B. West, outgoing secretary, gave a splendid report which summed up the year's activities.

Among the many things which were done by and through the organization were the following: (1) gave a tea at the first of the year honoring the teachers; (2) sent two delegates to the summer institute conducted at the college in June, 1950; (3) helped at a reception given at the home of the Messicks following the summer institute; (4) sent five delegates to the District Meet in Swan Quarter in the fall; (5) reported a membership of 235; (6) sold 12 subscriptions to the P.T.A. magazine; (7) appointed a committee to meet with the health nurse to study the health needs of the children and voted a donation of $100 to supplement the school milk fund; (8) purchased a film strip and slide projector for use in the school at a cost of $148.68, which was later traded in on a better one for an additional cost of $46.49; (9) decorated a float for the Americanism parade; (10) cooperated with the city P.T.A. Council in sponsoring a study course in childhood education; (11) made $343.22 at the Halloween party which was given in October; (12) sponsored a Stanley party from which the sum of $19.11 was realized; (13) reported a balance of $235.53 in the treasury, $100 of which is earmarked for use in the new building.

After this fine resume of the year's accomplishments, the outgoing president, Mrs. W. E. Bassnight, was given a rising vote of thanks for her endeavors on behalf of the organization.

Mr. James Rogers, band director for the city schools, presented a string ensemble which charmed the audience with the playing of five selections. Miss Beatrice Chauncey, director of music for the city schools, directed the West Greenville glee club in the singing of a number of folk songs.

Miss Agnes Fullilove, school principal, thanked all members of the P.T.A. for their fine work and wonderful cooperation during the year. Following this, the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Ford Worthy Speaks To End Of The Century Club

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. A. M. Moseley were gracious hostesses to the End of the Century Club at the lovely suburban home of Mrs. Garrett. The rooms were beautiful with roses and other spring flowers. Upon arrival, the guests were greeted by the hostesses and presented to Mrs. Ford Worthy and Mrs. E. T. Knott of Washington, N.C.

Following a brief business meeting which was presided over by the president, Mrs. Joseph Moye, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen called upon Mrs. J. B. Spilman to introduce the guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Ford Worthy.

Mrs. Worthy delighted her hearers with a witty and animated discussion of "Best Sellers of Yesterday." She said that a "Best Seller" is a book which sells itself. "Some are great books, some are good, and some are no good at all." She gave a survey of the characteristics which make a book a best seller, and spoke intimately and feelingly of a great number of the best sellers of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Her talk displayed a wide knowledge of and a deep feeling for books.

At the conclusion of the program, the year books for the coming year were distributed by the program committee. The hostesses served a delicious salad course with many dainty accompaniments.

The club members were then wished a happy summer by the president and adjourned until October.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Worthy, Mrs. Knott, Mrs. E. J. Garrett, and Mrs. Clara Moye Shackel.

go to the polls for the second primary.

The election held in Greenville on May 7 was of great importance, and a large number of the citizens of the city went to the polls and cast their ballots. The election which will be held Monday is of equal importance to the city, and the voters should make sure they get to the polls to cast their ballots.

The election of public officials is a responsibility which rests upon the shoulders of each eligible voter of a community. Each person who neglects his obligation to vote for the candidate he feels will make the best official, is neglecting his obligation to himself and his fellow citizens.

More Facts And Less Politics Needed

East Carolina College officials made an excellent choice in the selection of James W. Butler of Goldsboro as the new alumni secretary of the college.

Butler for a number of years has been outstanding in Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association work in North Carolina, and he knows the business of making contacts and building organizations. His addition to the alumni office of East Carolina should add to the college's prestige throughout the state.

Even though a new alumni secretary has been named for the college, the fact that the alumni association under the guidance of Secretary Mrs. Ruth Garner since 1944 has more than doubled in size should not pass unnoticed. Mrs. Garner will move to another department of the college next fall, but her work with the alumni during the past seven years has brought great benefits to East Carolina College.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The overseas overstaffing of the Economic Cooperation Administration's units has drawn severe criticism at executive sessions of the House Appropriations Committee and the sub-committee key members, this relief organization provides a faraway haven for politicians, friends of influential friends and pro-Truman labor and farm appointees.

The belated discovery of this hitherto hidden situation lies behind prospective demands from both sides of the Congressional aisle for drastic cuts in ECA's appropriation for the 1952 fiscal year. It is also feared that, when and if Marshall aid is terminated, most of these so-called "specialists" will be transferred to the civilian agencies supposed to cooperate in the foreign rearmament program.

LOADED—ECA's European headquarters, for instance, has a force of 260 men and women, with salaries ranging from $5,000 to $15,000. The office is loaded down with employees listed as controllers, auditors, examiners, information specialists and technical advisers for every problem from feeding babies to building railroads.

Although the branch office staffs are smaller than the 250 at OEO, they also are swollen with men and women whose duties seem to be to teach the numerous beneficiary peoples the most elementary facts of life. The vast range of their interests and specialties explains why many elements friendly to the United States resent what they term "interference" with their own way of life.

CLOSE-UP—When headed by Paul G. Hoffman, an Indiana Republican and an outstanding industrialist, ECA was almost a sacrosanct institution on Capitol Hill. Mr. Hoffman got whatever he asked in most instances. But now that President Truman wants ECA's activities eventually shifted to the State Department, Congress is looking at the organization with a cold and fishy eye.

The current study is actually the first close-up examination of ECA's personnel and machinery. Preliminary findings convince many members that ECA should be transformed into a separate and independent agency rather than placed under Dean Acheson's or any other executive department.

ELABORATE—Ironically, the two countries where the most overstaffing was discovered are Korea and Greece. Although admittedly key centers in the worldwide war against Communist aggression, their small areas and populations led Appropriations Committee members to ask searching questions on the need for such elaborate units there.

Although Korea has been a fighting ground since last June, ECA has 106 various kinds of representatives on this barren peninsula. Even if Korea were still the "land of the morning calm," the men on Capitol Hill cannot understand why so many officials, with salaries ranging from $13,500 down to $4,200, were needed there. In view of the 250 assigned to European headquarters, the Korean total seems out of balance.

SPECIALISTS—The official definition of the 106 experts' work and assignments also aroused Congressional curiosity. Here, for instance, are the kinds of specialists the United States still has in this war-torn and primitive land:

An animal pathologist, a bank examiner, a telephone engineer, a fishing boat construction specialist, three "end use Auditors," an industrial health and safety consultant, a tax adviser, a statistician and editor, a vessel operations specialist. There are other American agents, commissioned to teach the Koreans how to raise everything from babies to rice.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

Read this, but don't heed it. Since I'm interested in the progress of Greenville, my last desire would be to encourage anybody to move away. However, it's interesting to note a report by the Foreign Service Journal on the places in this world where the American dollar goes almost twice as far as it does here. An expert on the subject, Norman D. Ford, makes a few suggestions for couples that have incomes from $100 to $200 a month:

Peru: In Peru the American dollar is worth three times what it is in the states. You can get a maid for $6 a month; a cook for $8.50. Staple foods are 30 per cent cheaper than in the United States. Gasoline is 14 cents a gallon. The average small home rents for $40 to $60 a month. Mr. Ford says that Arequipa in Peru is the choice place to retire.

Madeira: This island in the Atlantic is beautiful and picturesque, with temperature staying around 67 degrees. Rural rents are about $15 a month; city rents, $25. A rural house costs $3,000; a city house, $6,000. Groceries for two come to about $10 a week.

Australia: A good deal for someone who doesn't want to live in a country that's too "foreign." There is a variety of climate to suit all tastes. Food is as expensive as in the U.S. and houses are short. Rents are controlled and therefore are reasonable, providing you can find a house.

New Zealand: The standard of living is high, but there is a housing shortage here. Costs of living compare with those in Australia.

Austria: This is the best opportunity for those wanting to live in Europe for its old world atmosphere. For example, it's possible for a couple to get along on as little as $60 a year. Rents are as low as $8 a month for small apartments, many of which are beautiful old homes or castles.

West Indies: There are some nice spots for retirement in the tropical isles of the Caribbean. The British particularly like Tobago, which resembles the more publicized South Sea Islands. Rents are about $45 a month and a cook costs from $15 to $25 a month.

Italy: A couple with $1,500 a year could live quietly but well in Italy's warm shores or in Sicily.

Mexico: This country is one of the most popular retirement bargains in the world, particularly such scenic towns as Cuernavaca, Tasco, Acapulco. Staple foods are 30 per cent cheaper than in the U.S. Rents are about the same.

France: A couple can live in France on $150 a month in style with the middle class French. Apartments are hard to find in Paris, but more plentiful and 20 per cent cheaper in smaller coastal towns. You can even live in the famous French Riviera on a small income, but not for as little as $150 a month.

Greenville, N.C.: "The Garden Spot of the World." Far superior to any of these other places for retirement. But if you must leave Greenville, perhaps you would pick one of these "inferior" places.

And I thank you.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
NO MAN IS AN ISLAND

The other day the ambulance ripped through the traffic in the center of town with its siren wailing. Pedestrians stopped hastily back on the sidewalks, while motorists shrank to the curb. Everyone made way for it.

The respect for the ambulance is a good reflection of our Christian democracy and the way it should work. The life of the individual is important. We have our laws, our traffic lights, our stop-signals; but we are willing to set them all aside for one person when necessary. And we, as citizens, no matter how busy or important or wealthy we are, are prepared to step aside and momentarily yield our right of way to anyone in need of help.

At least, we should be prepared. With the siren on the ambulance to dramatize the situation, it is easy for us to make our small sacrifice of stepping out of the way. Without the dramatic stress of the siren, it is sometimes harder to remember that in a Christian democracy, anyone's welfare is everyone's responsibility.

As John Donne, the British poet, said more than three centuries ago, "No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main. . . Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind."

A New Secretary For ECC Alumni

A new angle has been injected into the Truman-MacArthur controversy with the announcement by the President that he had planned to fire MacArthur a year before he did.

Whatever else the announcement accomplished, it surely poured political fat into the already raging fire. It caused some of the Republicans to take the wraps from their MacArthur for President movement and bring it into the open. It caused some solons to call for an even more complete investigation of the nation's foreign policy including the appearance of the President before the Congressional committee.

The whole truth of the matter is that the MacArthur-Truman issue is becoming so involved with political controversy, the average citizen is unable to distinguish the findings of the inquiring committee from the politically tinted evaluations the members of Congress are giving to the answers the committee is receiving from its witnesses.

The new announcement which the President has made is quite significant in the whole situation. If the president intended to fire MacArthur more than a year ago, what prompted him to name the five star general as United Nations commander in Korea? Apparently that would have been an opportune time to relieve MacArthur of his Pacific command. What, more than a year ago, prompted the President to plan to relieve MacArthur of his duties? Wasn't he doing a good job in Japan, or was he doing too good a job? Did the President delay his action for a year trying to pick the best time for the controversy he was sure would follow when MacArthur was removed from the Pacific command?

These questions and others are running through the minds of the American people, and they should be answered frankly by the administration.

But as The Reflector pointed out several weeks ago, the political aspects of this controversy are overshadowing everything else connected with it. The MacArthur incident is growing into the greatest political football the nation has every seen, and the fundamental issues in the matter are becoming more obscure each day.

Don't Forget Monday's Election

On Monday the voters of Greenville will elect a mayor and one member of the board of aldermen in the second primary of the city's election. Every eligible voter of the city should make an earnest effort to get to the polls to cast his ballot.

In the second primary where there are only two posts to be filled, the people are inclined to let the other fellow do the voting, and not worry too much about getting to the polls. But if Greenville is to have representative government, the officials must be elected by a vote which is representative of the feelings of the majority of the people of Greenville. That can not be reflected accurately if only a few people

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
While total holdings of all kinds of insurance are rising, most insurance authorities believe many businesses and individuals are dangerously under-insured.

Prevailing inflationary conditions and a tendency of juries to award larger damage claims make many policies inadequate today. A Federal Reserve survey shows that many families, moving to better income levels, fail to increase their insurance proportionately. It found that all families paid $3,133,000,000 in insurance premiums in 1941. To maintain protection at the same standard of living, they should have paid $7,853,900,000 in premiums in 1950. But they actually invested only $5,408,000,000.

The figures indicate that some families have increased their protection. Many a father has reasoned that a $10,000 policy, adequate a few years ago, wouldn't last a widow long at today's prices.

Insurance on children has increased. Last year a total of $3,300,000,000 in policies was written on children, bringing the outstanding total to $17,000,000,000, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. Many policies were taken out to provide funds for education later, which has also become more expensive.

Fire and disaster insurance totals have also risen to protect higher values of buildings and inventories. While many business firms have increased insurance to cover higher values—their bankers see to that—many home owners have merely renewed old policies that give them only a small fraction on today's values.

The rise in damages awards has been little short of a national scandal. Most jurors assume that a person sued is insured. They are usually right because most businesses carry liability insurance and most states require auto liability insurance. So jurors often award enormous amounts, figuring it just comes out of some insurance company and not realizing high awards make their own liability insurance cost more. One case was recently reversed because a relative of a juror phoned the defendant to ask how much insurance he carried.

The situation is bad, but the only defense an individual or a business has is to take out sufficient insurance to protect himself from king-size verdicts.

Perhaps what the country needs is a "national insurance day" on which every person would re-examine all his insurance policies in light of current values, prices and liabilities. Today's a good day.

SOME BUYERS TRY TO BEAT TAX RISE
The House Ways and Means Committee's vote to increase taxes has boomed the sale of liquors and cigarettes in some places. Some people are trying to stock up to escape the tax.

There's one ameliorating fact about the proposed increase in liquor, wine and beer taxes. The Office of Price Stabilization, if it follows the policy adopted for other products, will not allow mark-ups on the tax, limiting consumer price increases to the actual increase in the tax.

TRIMMER: A new electric hedge trimmer has three knives making 9,000 revolutions a minute. It is by Bylock Electric Ltd., Enfield, Middlesex, England.

BABIES AROUND CITY
A Columbia, S.C., store won friends and publicity by buying 1,000 baby strollers and painting its name in large letters on each. The strollers are loaned free on the promise to return them the same day. As a consequence, the store's name has been seen constantly all over town, frequently in competitors' stores, to the chagrin of the rivals.

DRAWING BOARD: Because it is made of transparent polystyrene plastic, a new drawing board is useful in tracing. It is 9 3/4 by 12 1/4 inches and weighs 8 ounces. It has recessed grips for holding paper and retractable straight edges of metal. It is by A. Patrick Co., 9 Grove St., Westwood, N. J.

PERFUME: Perfume has been added to a new version of an old household cleanser. The new scented, foaming product is being introduced in nationally market by B. T. Babbitt, Inc., 385 Fourth Ave., New York.

RABBIT: Ready-to-serve Welsh rarebit (or rabbit) in a sausage-like roll is being produced (by Purity Cheese Co., Mayville, Wis). It need only be microwaved and heated; one roll serves four. Shakers: Salt and pepper may be sprinkled on food from shakers looking like miniature garden sprinklers. They are made of transparent polystyrene (by Dart Craftsman Corp., 240 Madison Ave., New York 17).

Hal Boyle's Column

(For Hal Boyle)
AT THE HAN RIVER, Korea—AP)—It was the Han River in Korea but it reminded the GI's of home.

The front was close. It was quiet—and forgotten for the moment. The day was warm, spring-like.

American troops, who a few days ago had fought out of a Chinese communist ambush, swam and played in the water.

Sgt. James Kishbaugh of Nescopec, Pa., said the Han to him looked like the Susquehanna, which meanders through Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland.

Kishbaugh, member of a Fifth Regimental combat team tank company, was helping wash a Sherman tank in the river. Tankers, in their shorts, splash 1 water on themselves and their tanks.

"We've got boating, swimming and everything. And the water's as cold as the Susquehanna, too," Kishbaugh said.

"It reminds me of Myrtle Beach in South Carolina, except there are no women," said another tanker, Cpl. John T. Clard of Union, South Carolina.

"It's almost like Whitehouse swimming pool," said Cpl. Stanley Miscenski, East Brook, Pa.

"It's not as cold as Stinson Beach," said Pvt. Jerome Sylvia, San Francisco. Tex Naquin of New Orleans and Cpl. William A. Floyd of London, Ky., swimming in the nude and splashing water on each other, agreed the Han was not as good as the beaches at home but said it was like a holiday after the heavy fighting during the communist offensive.

"It feels good to be in some water again. It's been two weeks since I had a shower," said Pvt. Floyd Robar of Shannock, R.I.

Pfc. James B. Reley, Chicago, said the Han was as cold as Lake Michigan.

"I know. I only live a mile and a half from the lake."

"This is good for the men. It gives them a chance to relax," said Sgt. William O. Elletson of Erie, Pa.

Pfc. Russell Thomas of Sterling, Colo., and Cpl. Thymas W. Hardy of Augusta, Ga., paddled on inflated rubber air mattresses. Two infantrymen, Cpl. Albert Robbat, Medford, Mass., and Pfc. Robert Brandon of Benton, Ky., basked nude in the sun on the sandy bank of the Han.

"It's cold when you come out of the water," Robbat said.

"The sun feels good," said Brandon.

Pfc. Raymond Akiona, Honolulu and Sgt. Isami Sumida, Honolulu, sat on the beach.

"It's too cold for Hawaii boys to swim," said Akiona.

"The water looks pretty good. There are no waves though," said Sumida.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.
By LYNN NISBET
Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET
PLANNING—The "County Rural Progress Campaign" scheduled to begin in North Carolina June 1 is based on long range planning, although specific prizes offered cover progress for the one year period ending May 31, 1952. The statewide plan was promulgated last fall after several counties in this and neighboring states had shown what can be accomplished by concerted and co-operative effort. Outstanding records have been noted in Haywood and Cleveland counties in this state and York county, South Carolina. Other Carolina and Virginia counties have shown considerable progress, and this year Forsyth is at the problem in a big way, business men of the county having underwritten about $75,000 for the campaign.

PROGRAM—Sponsored by a dozen organizations, agencies and institutions the campaign is designed to promote better farms and farm homes, rural schools and churches, develop recreational facilities and, most important of all, to sponsor community organizations—that is, organizations which will coordinate for the good of all the people the individual objectives and efforts of each. To this end Dr. Clarence Poe of the Progressive Farmer has promised that his magazine will award a prize of $1,000 to the county showing the greatest degree of progress during the year. It is expected that other prizes will be offered for leading communities, but the present plan does not contemplate awards to individual farmers or residents. The whole idea is to stimulate community consciousness.

SPONSORSHIP—The twelve agencies presently sponsoring the campaign are: State College Extension Service; Central Experiment Station; Vocational Agriculture and Home Economics; Production and Marketing Administration; the N. C. Farm Bureau; the State Grange; N. C. Department of Agriculture; Soil Conservation Service; Farmers Home Administration; Department of Conservation and Development; Rural Electrification Administration; and the Farm Press. The plan has also been endorsed in formal resolution by the N. C. Press Association and its several auxiliary organizations.

LONG RANGE—While the presently offered prizes are for one year only, the program involves long range planning. It is proposed that chairmanship of the sponsoring groups rotate among the several organizations, so that no one can get into position to claim major credit or make it an individual project to exclusion of others. Another implied purpose is to prevent what seems now with respect to abandoning to be happening in some sections long-time livestock and diversification farm programs in order to recoup income missed last year by reason of poor cash crops. And example of this attitude was afforded by a Cleveland county farmer the other day. Asked about his cattle and hog program, which had been noteworthy for some time, this man said he was giving less attention this year to hogs, cattle full energy and available money to cotton in order to gain back losses last year by reason of boll weevil infestation. An eastern tobacco farmer said he had expected to reduce tobacco acreage this year and give some thought to beef cattle; but since it looked like this might be a good year for tobacco and the next few years not so good, he had decided to postpone his cattle project for awhile and get all the cash possible out of tobacco. Since criteria for judging progress under the proposed plan includes such items as sound systems of farming and producing of home food supply, practices like those mentioned would be discouraged.

REPORTS—It is important that municipal officials send in appropriate reports. No intangible taxes are remitted to municipalities which fail to report to the state board of assessments. Also street aid under the Powell bill will be allotted by the highway commission only to cities and towns which comply with the requirement that they report actual mileage of eligible streets, both on and off state highways running through the corporate limits.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FREE FLOW OF NEWS
(Wilson Daily Times)

At the annual meeting of the Associated Press in New York the other day, two salients were observed. Lewis W. Douglas, the former ambassador to Great Britain, characterized that nation the last bastion between the United States and the iron curtain. And the men who run the AP emphasized the difficulties of getting news in a world torn by strife and dissension. We let the iron curtain nations know what's going on here, but they're unwilling to reciprocate. Thus, any news that we get from behind that iron curtain is what those nations want us to have. In many cases it's not even objective; it's straight out-and-out propaganda.

Forty years ago, Britain was supposedly at the peak of her power. Only the Kaiser of Germany felt himself big enough to challenge Britain's leadership. America for the most part was looked on as an upstart and Russia as an enigma. In the course of that 40 years, however, Germany has lost two wars, Britain, while winning, has lost an empire, and the United States and Russia have emerged as the two great powers of the world. But they are miles apart in the matter of thought. Can it be, as Douglas pointed out, that Britain can resolve the differences between the other two, ruling out the necessity for a war on a world scale?

It's our belief that an informed electorate can, without prodding from outside sources, arrive at intelligent decisions. But to be informed, it must have objective news, something that's not available now with so many avenues closed. The American press associations have been clamoring for it since the war's end. It has done them little or no good, however, for the Russians resent objective news. They want their people to read only what they think should be read; they want the outside world to believe untruths. Thus, we are in the midst of trying times. How we will come out, few know at this time. But, if we're governed by what was said at the Associated Press meeting, if we continue to do a good job in America, the world will come to see things our way.

Television Court Is Made School For Safe Drivers

AP Newsfeatures
BALTIMORE—When a drunk driver comes up before Magistrate Joseph Kolodny on Tuesday nights, thousands of spectators are sitting in on the case.

What's more, the judge often-times asks those spectators to determine whether the defendant is guilty, and if so, how much he should be fined. But if the driver is found guilty, he isn't actually fined nor put behind bars.

That's because the Judge is conducting an educational program to teach drivers the rights and wrongs of their traffic manners.

"The Court of Common Sense" is broadcast over a local television network each week.

The setting is realistic as Judge Kolodny raps his gavel, and the bailiff describes the case to be tried—taken from actual court records.

The bailiff uses a diagram and miniature cars to give the TV audience an idea of what happened at the scene of a traffic violation. Actors from Baltimore theater clubs parade before the judge as witnesses, defendants and attorneys. Sometimes the judge will tell a witness to stop chewing gum or to stand up straight. And he'll sometimes clear up a case by asking more details.

When defendants, witness and lawyer have had their say, Judge Kolodny may render a decision and then lecture on the follies of careless driving.

Or, he may turn to the video audience and ask them to write in their opinion of whether a man is guilty and if so what the punishment should be.

"Sometimes," says the Judge, "sympathy gets the better of the audience and the defendant in turn gets a break. But quite often the audience is tougher on a traffic violator than I'd be."

The program often crusades against driving while tired and against the more serious offense of driving while drunk. Judge Kolodny doesn't have any patience with the tipsy cases.

The "Court of Common Sense" has been honored for its educational efforts. It has received the Alfred P. Sloan Award and a plaque from the National Safety Council, both presented for promoting safe driving.

In Some Aspects Iran Dispute Is Most Dangerous

By HARRY FERGUSON

United Press Foreign News Editor

The coalition of anti-communist nations is like a fire brigade which must be on call day and night to put out a blaze any place in the world.

The five-alarm fire, of course, is in Korea, but bonfires can and do break out elsewhere. There is a good-sized blaze going right now in Iran. In some ways it is more dangerous than Korea.

Most of the big nations would get along all right if there were no Korea; there isn't anything in the Korean soil that anybody needs desperately. But the accidents of the geological formation of the earth have placed oil in Iran, and that makes it a big prize in the cold war.

There is enough oil there to make Iran worth fighting for, and the British are walking carefully on eggs. The Iranian Government voted to expropriate the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., thereby cutting off a big source of Britain's petroleum.

The simple answer would seem to be for the British to send in some troops and force the Iranians to give back the oil company.

But no issue is simple in Iran. It is an Oriental nation where people live intensely and become highly volatile over such issues as religion, nationalism and imperialism. One premier has been assassinated recently; the present one has taken refuge in the Parliament building and has a pistol in his pocket in case he must defend himself.

To the north, Russia watches Iran with the greatest interest. There is a Soviet-Iranian treaty which would permit Russia to send in troops in event any other major power tries to use armed force against Iran. Inside Iran a tightly-organized political party known as Tudeh is controlled by the communists and gets its signals from Moscow.

The average Iranian cares little or nothing about the political principles of either Thomas Jefferson or Karl Marx. He wants more food, more money and a better house. Whoever promises him that and delivers the goods win his allegiance.

Britain's dilemma is that she can't afford to lose the Iranian oil and she doesn't want to risk a world war by using force. She is trying to turn the trick by exerting diplomatic pressure; engaging in

Bandits Disrupt Life In Indonesia

AP Newsfeatures
BANDUNG, Indonesia—Gangs of marauders—many of them one-time guerrilla fighters who could not be included in the regular and sharply reduced armed forces of Indonesia—are being blamed for Indonesia's current wave of crime and terror.

Marauding gangs roam the countryside, attack estates, and terrorize their own people. Holland recently protested to the Indonesian government against what was termed the continuous murders and attacks on Dutch lives. U. S. Ambassador H. Merle Cochran notified Indonesia's Foreign Minister of the assassination of an oil company employee Michael Jones, who was knifed to death at Jakarta's docks.

Jones was the fourth American to be killed in Indonesia since December 1949, when independence came to this rich but uneasy archipelago.

The Indonesian people themselves have suffered heavily too. Hundreds of village heads (Duhurs), estate workers and "Dutch collaborators" were killed for political or material reasons.

Indonesian officials in Jakarta are seriously worried about their young republic and have little hope that things will change for the better at short notice. Then what's behind all the murders? Most, they think, must be regarded as individual killings.

Here an Indonesian worker feels he has been insulted and is on the prowl for personal and extremely drastic revenge. Next time and most of times it's plain robbery.

Wilson Stages Uprising In Ninth To Edge Robins By 5-4

Tobs Rally For Four In Ninth To Wipe Out Prospects Of Greenville Victory; Lautato Leads At Bat With Triple And Double

By BERT MOYF

The Wilson Tobs staged a four-run rally in the ninth frame in Wilson last night to edge out a 5-4 win over the Robins to continue their slim lead of 1/2 game in the Coastal Plain race.

The Robins scored singletons in the second and third frames to take a 2-0 lead after three innings. The Tobs cut the lead to one run in the fifth when they pushed over a singleton.

In the ninth frame the Robins pushed across two more runs to take a 4-1 lead, but the Tobs came back in the ninth and rallied for their four winning markers on a double two singles and three walks.

Cohen Tart started things off in the ninth with a single. Carlton was issued a free pass to first and then Manager Joe Antolick singled to bring home Tart. Ernesto Mayorga, hitting for Pitcher Cliff Barnes in the ninth, was walked and a walk to Tom Benton loaded the bases. Bobby Dingler followed with a double to score Fred Pittman, who was running for Antolick, and Mayorga.

Bobby Harrison pitched the first eight frames for the Robins until he got into hot water in the ninth and was relieved by John Hlavoc, who was recently with the Roanoke Rapids Jays. After retiring one runner he walked the next two and then Dingler came through with his two-run double to win the game. Hlavoc was credited with the loss.

Marshall Long started on the mound for the Tobs but was released in the ninth inning when the Robins staged a two run rally. Barnes went in to relieve Long at this stage of the game and received credit for the win.

Vince Lautato with a triple and a double was the only Robins able to garner more than one hit off the offerings of the two Tob hurlers.

The two teams meet again tonight in Guy Smith Stadium at 7:45 o'clock.

Bob Feller Went Out And Pitched Despite His Pain

NEW YORK —(AP)— This is a Bob Feller believe-it-or-not story. It's hard to believe that a fellow in such an obvious agonizing condition could pitch a major league ball game—let alone win it. But that's just what Feller did.

You may have read about it: How Feller had scalded himself in a whirlpool bath. How he was cruelly burned almost from his chest down to his knees. That was May 7. Bob was expected to be out of action for several weeks. But he was out at the park working out the very next day.

He insisted on pitching the first game of a double header the following Sunday, overriding the objection of Manager Al Lopez. Wrapped in yards of cotton, Bob not only won but pitched one of his best games in going the route.

"I still don't know how he did it," said Lopez. "Most any other guy would be out for two or three weeks. I told him I'd rather lose the game than have him suffer the pain. But he insisted on pitching. I asked him several times during the game whether he wanted to call it a day, but he shook his head."

Birdie Tebbets, who was standing by, shook his head. "Listen, I've been in baseball a long time," he said. "But I've never seen anything to match this display of raw courage."

"You should have seen Feller after that game. He was a mass of raw flesh. We in the clubhouse were sickened by the sight."

Why and how did Feller pitch then?

"The club needed me," Bob answered. "The club needed me." Bob answered in a matter of fact tone. "It hadn't been going too well and I've been pitching pretty good. I just thought I could help."

All that is expected of Rusty Callow is that he give Navy a strong crew. It is fitting and proper that the Naval Academy should be represented by outstanding sweep-swingers. Anything less is downright embarrassing.

Callow, the dean of American rowing coaches, took up his coaching chores at Annapolis last summer after having tutored the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen for 23 years. # No Matter How You Figure It, Baseball Is Fascinating

It Doesn't Make Sense: Yanks Can Win On Four Hits While Detroit Loses With 16

By CARL LUNDQUIST
 United Press Sports Writer

Just try and figure baseball and all you'll find out is why it is so fascinating.

For concrete evidence ask the Yankees today why they could beat the Indians, 1 to 0, on four dinky hits, or the Tigers how they could manage to lose to Washington, 11 to 6, even though they made 16 hits including six doubles.

Nothing made sense yesterday as New York won its 10th straight game at home when pitcher Allie Reynolds edged Cleveland's Early Wynn in a duel in which Wynn did the better work. Wynn yielded only three of the four New York hits, and gave up only one after the first inning.

Yet a walk and a pair of singles by Bobby Brown and Joe DiMaggio gave Reynolds the margin to win, even though he gave up nine hits and four walks. The Indians lost because of muffed opportunities—they stranded 13 men on base.

Things were just as baffling in Washington where the Tigers with 16 hits put on their best offensive show of the year, yet lost the ball game. They had just won seven out of eight games and in that stretch had put on nothing like the offensive display they cut loose with in defeat.

Connie Marrero yielded all of the 16 hits, but stuck it out to win his fifth straight game without a defeat. Nice reading for Wynn, who gave up three and still lost. Sam Mele led Washington with two triples and two singles, driving in three runs.

There were strange goings-on elsewhere in this topsy-turvy season. In the National League at Cincinnati, the Reds won their fifth straight, 6 to 5, from the Braves, who lost their fifth in a row. The Braves at this time a week ago were in first place, now they are in fourth.

The Cubs topped the Dodgers, 7 to 0, and moved to within a game of the leading Brooks, while the Pirates also stayed one game out of first place by topping the Giants, 12 to 7, and the Cards beat the Phils, 2 to 1. In the only other American League game, the A's downed the Browns, 7 to 6.

Frank Hiller held Brooklyn to just seven hits and Ransom Jackson and Hank Sauer backed him up with home runs in Chicago's victory over the Dodgers. Sauer drove in four runs and Jackson batted in two.

Willie Farnsdel won a decision for the Reds with only two days of rest, although he needed relief help and the reliable slugging of Connie Ryan and Johnny Wyrostek to put him across. Ryan's three run homer and Wyrostek's three run double gave Cincy all of its runs.

Ralph Kiner drove in five runs with his sixth homer and a double and Wally Westlake contributed his ninth homer as the Pirates had it easy in defeating the Giants. Murry Dickson won his fifth against only two defeats in relief.

Gus Zernial tied Tony Lazzeri's 15-year old record of seven homers in four games as he sparked the Athletics to victory over the Browns last night. Zernial hit his homer off Don Johnson in the first inning. The major league record for homers in consecutive games is eight and is held by Kiner.

In the only other night game, the defending N.L. champion Phillies took it on the chin again—this time from Joe Presko and the Cardinals, 2 to 1. The Cardinals scored both their runs in the first inning and Presko homered on until Andy Seminick homered with two out in the ninth. Robin Roberts lost his third game.

Chicago at Boston in the American League was postponed.

Babe And Patty To Break Tie In Today's Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS —(UP)— The nation's top women golfers teed off today in the third round of the Weathermen Trans - Continental Tournament, and to the surprise of no one the spotlight was on Babe Didrikson Zaharias and freckle-faced Patty Berg.

Those two were tied at the halfway mark with identical scores of 305 after rounds at Dallas and Pebble Beach, Cal. They were so far ahead of the field that none of the other girls apparently had a chance.

Louise Suggs was an even dozen strokes back at 317 as today's 18-hole round got underway. Another 18 holes will be played tomorrow over the rolling 6,072-yard, par 75 Meridian Hills course.

Ted Williams Not 'Great': Ty Cobb

ATHERTON, Calif. — (AP)— Ty Cobb, one of the most feared batters in baseball history, says Ted Williams cannot be classed as "a great hitter."

The old Georgia Peach, whose flashing performances as a Detroit Tiger wrote vivid chapters in the record books, pulled no punches while discussing the Boston Red Sox slugger.

"Williams has fine ability but he cannot be classed as a great hitter," Cobb said. "No player can be called a truly great hitter unless he can hit to all fields."

Conceding the Red Sox star has the power to lose a ball if he connects solidly, he contended that a ball alone does not make a top batsman. He reminded that big Ted places balls so consistently to right field that opposing teams shift their outfielders and second basemen far over with impunity.

And Still They Ended In Cellar

PITTSBURGH—Like the majority of people who go to a baseball game, Mrs. Ruth Jorgensen wanted to know how many baseballs get knocked over the fence or into the stands each year. But unlike the masses she kept records and found:

The Pittsburgh Pirates clubbed 1,581 balls away during 60 home games in the 1950 season. The Pirates lost 140 balls hitting home runs and another 1,41 on foul tips.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Kings 18-20; II Chronicles 29-30; Isaiah 37.

When Hezekiah came to Judah's throne, he did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord. He tore down the idols, and broke the serpent Moses had made, because the people had burned incense to it and worshiped it.

Then Hezekiah had the temple cleansed and called upon priests and Levites to sanctify themselves; he sent messengers to Israel, and invited all who would come to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. Thousands came.

Assyrian king, Sennacherib, sent an army to besiege Jerusalem. Rabshakeh, his leader, sent word to Hezekiah that Jehovah would not help them, but the king prayed earnestly, a plague fell on the enemy, and Jerusalem was saved.

King Hezekiah fell seriously ill even Isaiah, the prophet, prophesied that he would die. Hezekiah prayed to Jehovah, reminding Him of his faithfulness, and the king's health was restored. MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 46:10.

The Southern Kingdom

RECORDING THE REIGN OF GOOD KING HEZEKIAH

Scripture—II Kings 18-20; II Chronicles 29-30; Isaiah 37.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
"NOW IT came to pass in the third year of Hoshea, son of Elah, king of Israel, that Hezekiah the son of Ahas king of Judah began to reign.
"Twenty and five years old was he when he began to reign in Jerusalem." He reigned 29 years.
Apparently following his own earnest convictions, this young man went to work to bring his people back to the worship of Jehovah. He "removed the high places, and brake the pillars;" he cut down the idols and broke the brazen serpent which Moses had made because the people had burnt incense before it and worshipped it.
Then the king prepared for a great revival. He told the Levites and priests to cleanse the temple and to sanctify themselves. Then he sent messengers into all the cities and into Israel, asking the people to come to Jerusalem for the Passover.
Thousands came from the two kingdoms, and great sacrifices were offered on the altars. The Levites were set "in the house of the Lord with cymbals, with alteries, (ancient stringed instruments of the sither type), and with harps." When the king commanded that the burnt offerings be offered on the altar, "all the congregation worshipped, and the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded, and all this continued

The Golden Text

Hezekiah destroys the idols.

"Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth."—Psalm 46:10.

MEMORY VERSE

"Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth."—Psalm 46:10.

until the burnt offering was finished."
It must have been a most impressive and stirring ceremony, somewhat similar to the evangelistic meetings held by Dwight L. Moody and Ira Sankey long ago; like Billy Sunday's revivals of not so long ago; or those now being held by Dr. Billy Graham.
No such inspirational gatherings had been recorded in the Bible for hundreds of years.
His people must have loved and trusted Hezekiah, for it is recorded that "after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any that were before him."
Sennacherib, king of Assyria, came up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took them. Hezekiah did an odd thing. He gave Sennacherib "300 talents of silver and 30 talents of gold, and all the silver that was found in the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the king's household."
prayed to the Lord, and "it came to pass that night, that the angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred and fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses."
Thus did the Lord rebuke the Assyrians who had blasphemed Him. Sennacherib was killed in his home by his own sons.
We next read that King Hezekiah was "sick unto death." Isaiah told him to prepare to die.
Hezekiah, however, prayed to the Lord. He reminded Him that he (Hezekiah) had turned Judah's people to Him after years of faithlessness; that he had done good in the Lord's sight. His prayer was answered, and he recovered and reigned for another 15 years.
So the Lord rewarded His faithful servant. As Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "Good is the word of the Lord which thou hast spoken. And he said, Is it not good, if peace and truth be in my days?"

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 23
He awoke to find himself lying on the bunk of boughs minus his boots and hat and gumbell. He had no headache but his mouth felt like a sand patch with skunk cabbage growing on it. The smell of coffee and bacon was in the air and he sat up, moving slowly, still groggy.

Abner said, "I been out and they are a whole passel of Double D men in town lookin' for you like forty-niners lookin' for gold. They said you insulted their lady boas and socked Sam Cooper on the nose and Sam offered five hundred pesos for your hide. I fetched your hoss and tied him outside.

Jeff pushed back his chair. "I think I'll go out and see just how bad Cooper's forty-miners want that gold."

Abner shook his head in disapproval. "You're supposed to be a smart man, Mr. Payne, and that wouldn't be smart at all. You'd be playin' right into the hands of Cooper and his gal friend."

"Girl friend? You mean Mrs. Denton?"

"Sure. I got plenty time on my hands and I get to see plenty that ad to call on her lawyer so often. I ever knowed a client that went drivin' with her lawyer so much. 'an't talk in the office; gotta go out into the hills somewhere." Abner spit into the wood box.

The sick feeling returned to the bit of Jeff's stomach and he got up to pace the floor. "Why don't you urn me over to them and collect five hundred?"

The old man said mildly, "Mebbe because I'm down myself. Or nebber—' he raised his old eyes and looked directly into Jeff's—'it's because I got you figgered as a feller who won't let things stand as they are."

Their glances locked. Jeff said lightly, "You're suggesting that I fight the wrong I've done. How?"

"You'll find a way if you set your mind to it. Start with the beginnin'. Start with Dan Denton's murder and figger things out from there."

Jeff abruptly seated himself. "Pour me another cup of coffee, Abner."

He sipped the hot liquid, thinking. "The only ones with motive for murdering Denton were John Starr, because of the feud, and crush on Mrs. Denton."

Abner snorted. "Forget them angles. I've lived around here all my life. John Starr didn't kill Dan Denton and neither did his boy, Figger deeper. Figger from when Dan Denton and Sam Cooper went to Kansas City."

Jeff's eyes narrowed. "I'm begerin'."

"You're doin' all right. Keep figgerin' to get it. Denton is introduced to a showgirl by a friend of Cooper's. Dan marries her and brings her to Silver Valley. A Jeff spoke tightly. "A month later Denton is murdered and Diana inherits a big cattle ranch and

"That's right. But her range is limited. If she drives out the stars and Walt Kirk and Ben Dowd—"

"She can expand," finished Jeff. "So th Starrs are blamed for Denton's death and the sorrowing widow vows to drive them out. When that is done, she'll turn on poor Ben and Walt and drive them out, too."

"Yeah. And Sam Cooper—" prompted Abner.

Jeff hesitated a long while before finishing, but he did it at last. "Sam Cooper marries Mrs. Denton and rises suddenly from a poor cowtown lawyer to a cattleking. The low-down—filthy—"

"Ain't no word suits him, is there? Well, you got it in, e, i, all you got to do now is prove it."

Jeff got up, buckled his gunbelt about him and reached for his hat. His voice was quiet but grim. "Thanks for everything, Abner; especially for making me realize that I'm still a man. You say my horse is outside?"

"Yeah. Where you goin'?"

"To look up Shag Doan. He may be the key to the whole thing."

"How do you figger that?"

"If you were Cooper and wanted Denton out of the way, who would you hire to do the job?"

Abner thought a moment. "If I was Cooper I wouldn't hire anybody. Too dangerous."

"He hired Shag for something. The six who quit with Shag were all members of the old Double D crew; I bet Cooper hired all of them to steal Denton's cattle and make trouble between him and John Starr."

Jeff gave the old man a tight smile and went out.

Jeff angled up a shoulder of hill and found the trail on the crest which circled the valley. He had made it easily and without detection from the town where some of the Double D men were doubtless searching for him.

The whole scheme was appallingly plain. Sam Cooper, a poor cowtown lawyer, intelligent and crafty and envious of the wealth of an unlettered cattleman like Dan Denton, had paired up with a cheap showgirl named Diana somebody-or-other with whom he had probably played around.

The last vestige of love was drowned in a sea of loathing. She was not a murderess in fact for she lacked the ability to ride horses back that would have been necessary to follow Dan and kill him on the range, but she was most certainly an accessory before and after the fact in a ruthless, premeditated crime.

To prove this was the thing. Prove it and the whole country would rise against this siren of Silver Valley and her partner in crime, would tear them from their throne and restore to the Starrs that which

Life Is Shorter For Bachelors

LONDON—(UP)—British bachelors may think they are living in blessed singleness, but they are really killing themselves.

The government issued a report showing that in 1946 and 1947, single men died younger than married ones.

"The similarity between the death rates of single and widowed men after 50, and their common excess over those of married men, suggest that the married state was favorable to a substantially lower mortality among men," the report said.

Jail Mother For Refusal To Serve On Trial Jury

WATERLOO, La. (AP)—A 37-year-old mother was in jail today because she would not leave her two small sons to serve on a murder trial jury.

Mrs. Jeanette Watson's attorney said he would ask the Iowa Supreme Court to set bond so she can be free while appealing her six-month sentence for contempt of court.

District Judge Shannon B. Carlton sentenced Mrs. Watson yesterday after she refused to take the juror's oath in the trial of a man charged with killing a tavern-keeper's wife.

"I have to have someone to take care of my children before I can take the oath," she said. "I'm sorry, Judge, but I don't know what to do with my children."

Her 44-year-old husband, William, stayed home from his job as industrial designer for a tool and die manufacturer today to take care of his sons, aged 5 and 8.

"I guess I'll be a nursemaid for a while," he said.

"She told the judge she had no one to take care of our children and it seemed to me they could have let her off. Gosh, I can't take care of them."

Mrs. Watson spent the night in Black Hawk County jail. Her lawyer, Ray Reed, asked county officials to delay transferring her to the women's reformatory until after he has asked the supreme court to set bond.

Auto Accidents In Pitt Reported

Two highway accidents were reported by the highway patrol for Pitt county over the past 24 hours, in which one person was injured and property damage to the vehicles involved, was reported as very high.

A car driven by Sophia Chesson, Polek 21 of Plymouth, turned over on Highway N. C. 33 around 11:30 yesterday when the driver lost control of the car. The occupants of the car were shaken up but were not seriously injured, investigating officer Dick Chadwick reported.

Chadwick estimated the damage to the car, which turned over two times, at being around $750.

No charges were made.

One man was injured and heavy property damage caused to two vehicles late yesterday afternoon when a car and a motor grader, being used to work on the New Bern highway, were in collision around five o'clock some five miles south of Greenville.

The car, operated by Sidney L. Barr, 36 of Hauerer Hill, N. C., collided with a motor grader going South on the highway. Reason for the accident was given as dust being thrown up by the work crew caused the driver to collide with the grader.

The motor grader was being driven by Charles E. Tate of Monroe. Barr was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of a lacerated hip and shoulder injury.

Patrolman Dick Chadwick was the investigating officer.

The 20 men being commissioned are among the 8,100 in the country who will be commissioned and called up during the year. Major Lomax May, commanding officer of the AROTC unit at the college stated most of that number will be called up for active duty within 90 days after graduation from the nation's colleges.

The present number of men receiving commissions is the last small-number graduating class '47 unit will have for some time, the major said. It is expected that next May's class will number between 60 and 70, he said, with about five being commissioned next fall and three next winter.

Baby Hurricane Blasts Island In Bahama Group

MIAMI (AP)—A pre-season baby hurricane today blasted Little Abaco Island, in the Bahamas 170 miles northeast of Miami, with winds of 80 miles an hour.

Earlier the freakish disturbance drove a rocket range construction crew inland on Great Bahama Island with 75-mile winds. The crew was building an observation base for the long range guided missile proving ground at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

A Navy hurricane hunter plane flew into the storm today and found its eye a short distance offshore at the north end of Little Abaco Island.

So small was the storm, said the hurricane hunters, that Hope-town, 50 miles away on Great Abaco, had only 0 mile winds.

A New Kind . . .

(Continued from page one) over the place. At the World Economic Conference in London in 1933 he supported the American program presented by Secretary of State Hull for removal of trade barriers.

This support of the American program paid off well. On Oct. 20, 1933, President Roosevelt invited the Moscow government to confer for recognition. Litvinoff naturally was delegated to carry on negotiations in Washington.

They do say that F. D. R. planned Litvinoff's ears back over Soviet fifth column activities. As an outcome the ambassador guaranteed that the Soviet Embassy would not conduct propaganda against the political or social order in America, and also would keep any Soviet agency from interfering in American internal affairs.

Litvinoff also promised that American residents in Russia should enjoy all legal rights held by the nationals of other countries, and would have full freedom of conscience and the right to worship as they pleased.

There were some other promises, and on November 17, 1933, recognition of Soviet Russia was granted.

That's the background of Stalin's peace gesture. It was to induce recognition by Washington.

The reasons why Moscow still desires to avoid armed conflict with the United States are (1) because the Bolshevik cold war has been highly successful and (2) because Russia isn't prepared for another major "armed conflict" at this juncture.

So the Kremlin trumpets are sounding peace.

To Face It . . .

2. Those steps of MacArthur's might bring Russia in on the side of the Chinese, while this country's Arthur lead to World War III? If plan is to try to avoid such a war by building, eventually, defenses so strong that Russia will never want to start it.

Would the steps urged by MacArthur limit the war to Korea, can we avoid that much bigger war?

MacArthur says he doesn't think the Russians will come in, no matter what we do in Asia, unless they're ready to start World War III anyway. He said in his speech to Congress when he first returned here:

"The issues are global and so interlocked that to consider the problems of one sector oblivious to those of another is to court disaster for the whole."

MacArthur was asked by Senators whether he thinks we are ready for a global war. He replied: "Such studies as that are made by higher authority than my own."
