General Says His Command Inadequate To Lay Waste China And Russia; Reports Soviet Jet Engine Superior To Anything U. S. Producing

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, testified today that the United States is operating a "shoestring air force" which could "lay waste" to industry in Russia or China, but not in both.

He told the Senate investigating committee this was why he opposed Gen. Douglas MacArthur's proposal to bomb communist bases in Manchuria.

He also asserted that while the Air Force would "destroy or lay waste to all of Manchuria and the principal cities of China"—if it used all its power—"there is a possibility" the action "might not and probably would not be conclusive" to bring the Korean war to an end.

However, he said later, "there would be a good chance" of forcing the Chinese Reds to negotiate for peace if we were able to use the "full power" of the Air Force against them.

He also said he believes it possible in this air age for the nation that dominates the air to dominate the world, just as Great Britain dominated it before the 20th century by control of the seas.

"While we can lay the industrial potential of Russia today waste, in my opinion, or we can lay the Manchurian countryside waste, as well as the principal cities of China, we cannot do both, because we have got a shoestring air force," Vandenberg said.

Appearing in the investigation of MacArthur's dismissal, he bluntly told the senators that the Air Force now is like "trying to operate a $20,000,000 business with about $20,000."

Vandenberg made these points:

1. The Russians have developed a jet engine—used in the MIG-15 fighter—superior to any in the U. S. Air Force but the American fighters have superior training and gunnery control. He said the Soviet also can now mass produce "very excellent" aircraft.

2. While today he opposes crossing the Yalu River boundary to bomb bases in Manchuria, this does not mean that he "might not" for it tomorrow, a month from now or six months from now.

3. Strategic air power must be applied to the heart of the industrial centers to be efficient and the source of Chinese Communist military equipment is in Russia.

4. The U. S. Air Force "is the one thing that has up to date kept the Russians from deciding to go to war."

5. The United States today "is relatively safe from air attack" but "tomorrow, in my opinion, we will not be."

Committee Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) brought out Vandenberg's appraisal by asking if he approved the Joint Chiefs of Staff orders which forbade attacking north of the Yalu, a restriction which MacArthur attacked.

Because U. S. air strength "has kept the balance of power in our favor," he said.

"In my opinion, we cannot afford to wait. I would like to call, peck at the Periphery as long as we have a shoestring air force."

Vandenberg said the Air Force today would have only one job in a major war with Russia—"to lay waste the industrial potential of that country."

"Tomorrow when they have developed their long range air force and they have more atomic bombs," he said, "we have two jobs."

"We would have to put into first place the job of destroying the Rus-

Tibet Becomes New Province Of Peiping

Red China Prepares To Move Troops Into Mountain State Next Door To India Under Terms Of Accord

By GENE SYMONDS
United Press Staff Correspondent

Red China prepared today to move troops next door to India under a new treaty with Tibet making that mountain state a Chinese province.

Radio Peiping disclosed last night that Tibet had signed a treaty giving the Peiping government over-all sovereignty and the right to garrison Chinese troops there.

Tibet has a common border with both India and the landlocked "buffer state" of Nepal.

The preamble to the treaty noted that with Tibet under the Communist banner, only Formosa of China's former territories remains outside Peiping's jurisdiction.

The Tibetan treaty was signed by Lee Wei-Han, chairman of Peiping's nationalities committee in charge of minorities, and Sawang Ngabou, former commander of Tibetan forces at Chamdo.

Representatives of the Dalai Lama at Lhasa, the rival Chinese-sponsored Panchen Lama, and the Communist-sponsored "Peiotse Tibetan Area" took part in the negotiations.

The treaty obliged Tibet to:

1. Accept China's over-all sovereignty.

2. Cooperate in the garrisoning of Chinese troops in Tibet.

3. Merge its armed forces into the Chinese Red armies.

4. Give control of its diplomatic affairs to Peiping.

5. Permit the 14-year-old Panchen Lama to return to Tibet from China where he has been living in exile.

The Chinese acted under the treaty to:

1. Give the Tibetans self autonomy.

Alternative Of Continuing Heavy Pressure On Reds Also Considered

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Diplomatic officials said today a 14 nation Korean truce statement prepared in March could still serve as an approach to negotiations if the Chinese and Korean Reds are interested.

Whether the terms for peace now would be the same as those last March, however, is another question.

Meanwhile the military high command is completing a new directive to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, the U.N. commander, with the aim of continuing maximum pressure on Red forces if they do not agree to some reasonable settlement promptly.

Preparation of this directive, plus the fact U.N. troops have smashed the latest Communist spring offensive and are once more fighting near the 38th parallel, is regarded here as meaning that the Korean war has entered a new stage.

Weekend speculation in Paris and London about possible peace developments or some new appeal to the Communists found no support at the State Department.

Officials told a reporter they knew of no consideration either of a new joint truce proposal or of a review of the old—but possibly still good—proposal.

It was Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, who told senators investigating Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal approximately what President Truman would have said in a projected peace statement two months ago.

Collins said the presidential document—worked out by the United States with 13 other allied governments—pointed out that the aggressors in Korea had been driven back to the area from which their attack was launched and therefore the U.N. objective of repelling aggression against South Koreans had been achieved.

"It asserted," Collins continued, "that further United Nations objectives, such as unification and the establishment of a free government in all of Korea could and should be accomplished without further fighting or bloodshed."

Whether the city swimming pool will open on schedule is a matter which waits on the decision of a sanitation officer from Raleigh who will come to Greenville and give the Recreation Commission the "go" or "stop" signal.

Reason for the delay in definite plans comes from the blocking of a sanitary sewer manhole which was caused by considerable pressure in the terra cotta sewer line and sewage was forced out of the line through existing or new openings up and under the swimming pool floor. Also, according to a letter from Tom W. Rivers, engineer, to Mayor Stafford, Rivers said there was the possibility of a leakage into the pool from the pipe and that the pool should not be open until the full extent of damage is discovered and repaired.

The pressure in the line was sufficient enough to force the caulking out of the joints of the pool floor and raise the forward portion of the pool floor slab several inches. After the blocked manhole was cleared, the pressure was immediately relieved and the sewage flow ceased. But Rivers also said the back pressure has developed and it may develop again through blocked manholes, overloading of the sewer mains, high water in the river, or ground water seepage, and a flow of sewage into the pool could occur when the pool was filled and without being observed.

If the sanitation officer from Raleigh declares the pool unsafe, the remedying of situation would call for the correction of the sewer main. If the main is in a position that it cannot be reached, the line would have to be re-routed and the existing line abandoned.

Heber Tripp of the Recreation Commission said the safety of the children who use the swimming pool is first and the pool would not open until it was absolutely safe for them. He also said the opening of the pool would wait on the decision of sanitation authorities.

The white-bearded former general of the Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army can be expected to follow two aims after he takes the oath of office, probably on June 20.

Firstly, he has said in campaign statements that he will devote the six years of his presidential term to the fervent hope of all Austrians—attainment of liberation from the occupation troops of Russia and the West.

Secondly, he will undoubtedly reject all attempts by Austria's Communist party to capitalize upon the help they gave him in his election. The pro-Western Koerner said previously he did not want the Red vote.

His Socialist party also refused all suggestions of cooperation with the Communists.

Koerner succeeds another Socialist, the late Dr. Karl Renner, who died last New Year's Eve.

Winds Fan Lumber Fire

A fire that broke out shortly after noon today swept through the Perkins Lumber Company, located at 14th and Evans Streets, and threatened to engulf tobacco storage warehouses, the National Carbon Plant and the Full Fashioned Hosiery Mill located close by.

A few minutes before two o'clock, fire also broke out in the Westbrook Stables, approximately one and a half blocks directly downwind from the lumber-yard blaze.

Whether or not the fire there was started by flames from the lumber yard could not be immediately determined.

Fanned by a high wind, the flames at the yard spread quickly. Intense heat and billowing clouds of smoke hampered hastily summoned firefighters.

Greenville firemen fought desperately to keep the raging flames and intense heat from jumping the 75-foot space between the burning stacks of lumber and the tobacco warehouses and the Carbon plant.

Fire Chief George Gardner directed the efforts of his crew to bring the blaze under control. He said the fire was of undetermined origin and had gained considerable headway by the time firemen arrived on the scene.

Regular firemen and the volunteer crew erected wooden and metal barricades along the railroad tracks between the fire and the threatened buildings in the area to protect themselves from the intense heat.

Employees of the Carbon Company and the tobacco factories joined in the battle against the flames.

It was learned shortly after two o'clock that the flames had also spread to two small houses adjacent to the lumber yard.

Bridge Shower Is Given To Honor Lucille McGowan

AYDEN — Miss Cora Pauline Moore was hostess at her home on Wednesday evening when she entertained with a bridge shower complimenting Miss Lucille McGowan, bride-elect of Greenville.

Floral arrangements of pink roses, orange blossoms and fern were used throughout the entire home, emphasizing the traditional bridal colors of white and green. A mantel arrangement of the miniature bride and groom surrounded with orange blossoms and wedding bells had burning white tapers in crystal candelabra at either end was very effective.

Bridge was played at three tables with the bride-elect's place being marked with a corsage of white carnations, and she was also remembered with a piece of silver in her chosen pattern. Miss Eleanor Norris, another bride-elect of the summer, was presented with a piece of her crystal. Miss Zelma Boyd was given a choker necklace for high score, and Miss Teresa Saled received bath foam for the consolation prize. Miss Peggy Barrow captured the floating prize, which was a pair of earbobs.

During the game the hostess served Coca-Colas and salted nuts, and at the conclusion of the party bridegrooms, individual decorated cakes and mints were served.

The guests were invited into the dining room where the table was covered with a Maderia cloth and centered with an arrangement of larkspur. The shower gifts were opened by the honoree and placed on the table.

Besides the honoree, the guests included Misses Norris, Boyd, Saled, Barrow, Emilie Dupree, Jean Mills, Irene McGowan, Elizabeth Jolly, Ruth Paige, Mary Frances Owens and Sarah Stancill.

Miss Owens Entertains For Miss McGowan

On Tuesday evening, May 22, Miss Mary Frances Owens entertained at a bridge party and kitchen shower honoring Miss Lucille McGowan, who was married Saturday afternoon, May 26.

The home was decorated with early summer flowers and the honor guest's place was marked by a bridal tally and corsage of white carnations.

During the game Coca-Colas and cheese straws were passed and at the conclusion an ice course, carrying out a green and white color note, was served.

The honor guest was winner of high score and received ear bobs. Low score, a necklace, was won by Miss Marian Brown. Miss McGowan received a number of attractive and useful gifts in the kitchen shower. The hostess presented her silver in her chosen pattern.

There was not quite as good attendance at the meeting of the Men's Prayer League in the Baptist church Sunday afternoon as formerly, but enough were out to make it a good meeting. The subject for discussion was "The Call to the Boy," and the two leaders, Ben Taylor and Adrian Brown, made exceptionally good talks. It was emphasized that more calls come to the boy—in business and religious life—and that he looks to the men for example and guidance.

ARE YOU DIGGING?

In some areas of the world where justice is administered in a more primitive manner than it is in our country, a condemned prisoner is compelled to dig his own grave. The prisoner is given a shovel, and he works until the pit is deep enough. Then the shovel is taken away, he is given a final cigarette, and he is shot as he stands in the very grave he has dug for himself.

Efficient as such a system may perhaps be, there is a cold brutality about it which bothers most of us. We would strongly resist the adoption of such a custom here. Yet how many Americans today are digging their own graves, figuratively speaking, just as surely as if they were condemned prisoners!

Few people are ignorant of the effects upon the body of over-indulgence in food and drink. Yet we all know men who are not only shortening their lives but also making the shortened remnants less pleasant and useful by tearing down their health through overindulgence. Each year thousands of Americans dig graves for themselves and others by reckless driving. Other thousands suffer and perish from avoidable diseases and preventable accidents caused by their own excesses or willful carelessness.

Are you wielding the shovel that is digging your grave? Let temperance and self-control help you drop it.

Asia is to be contained, all goods must be stopped from flowing into the mainland fortress from the seas. The free nations must shed their sheer cloaks of appeasement and put on the armor of active diplomatic resistance, and if necessary further military resistance.

If the present hodgepodge attitude against communism in portions of Asia other than Korea is followed by the western nations, one by one, the weaker nations of the Far East will meet their death just like Tibet.

Saddling Again The Old War Horse

The election of a veteran socialist and a former general of the old Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army as president of Austria is another indication in the rising nationalism in the European sectors of former strong Nazi organizations.

Dr. Theodor Koerner's election to the highest post in Austria upset the pre-election predictions in which a conservative candidate was favored.

Koerner is a bitter anti-communist, but in the election received the support of the Austrian group of the old Nazi-party line, and those who are pressing for a unification of Germany and Austria. Koerner is the standard bearer for the old style nationalism which has brought Austria to the peaks of military glory and the depths of defeat.

Koerner should make a good leader of the Austrian people, if he does not lead them back into the Nazi line of thought. At his age of 78, however, chances of his completing the six-year term of office to which he has been elected are slim.

The free world will have to watch the rising tide of Austrian nationalism under Koerner's presidency, and likewise the man who is chosen to succeed the old war-horse if he dies in office.

News Behind The News

By KAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The true extent of the losses suffered under the Truman Administration's six-year operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can be measured by the fact that they surpass the government's total out-of-pocket money in the famous Teapot Dome transaction of the Harding regime, which was one of the most outrageous scandals in American history at the time.

The crooked transaction by which Albert B. Fall, Harding's Secretary of the Interior, turned these valuable oil lands over to Harry Sinclair shook the nation in the relatively clean and complacent twenties.

Both of the principals eventually landed in jail. Had Harding not died, and been succeeded in 1923 by the blameless Calvin Coolidge, the G.O.P. might have been driven from Washington for unnumbered years.

Teapot Dome has since been a magic slogan for the Democrats, together with the "Hoover depression." It is revived in every presidential campaign to the detriment of Republican candidates still in their teens when the bribery and sale of public trust occurred.

LOSS—Petroleum experts inside and outside the government, however, doubt whether Sinclair's profits amounted to more than a few million dollars.

He held and worked the fields for only a few years because the leases became inoperative as soon as "Old Bob" La Follette and Tom Walsh opened fire on them from the Senate floor. Fines, taxes and recovery of assets by the government further reduced the overall losses.

But when Stuart Symington, the new RFC Administrator, completes his audit of the books, he will find that five loans alone have meant a loss of almost $60,000,000. It is expected that other smaller transactions, in the aggregate, will bring the total of missed funds to at least $75,000,000.

Despite denials by White House aides, including Donald S. Dawson, almost every nickel of this amount was handed out because of the personal or political influence of members of the Missouri faction which now rules the roost at Washington.

DIFFERENCE—The difference between the Teapot Dome and RFC scandals is that Uncle Sam will not recover even a 50-cent dollar from the Truman transactions. Nor will any of the men responsible, including government officials and their pals, pay a penalty through fines or imprisonment.

The explanation is that, whereas Teapot Dome was an outright steal manipulated through bribery of a Cabinet officer, the RFC deals come under the heading of what Pendergast and Tammany politicians describe as "honest graft."

There is another difference. Mr. Harding is believed to have died of a broken heart because of his belated knowledge that his closest friends—Fall and Daugherty—had "sold him down the political river."

Calvin Coolidge named two of the nation's most distinguished lawyers to prosecute—Owen J. Roberts and the late ex-Senator Atlee Pomeroy of Ohio. It should also be noted that Mr. Coolidge never referred to the Walsh investigation of Teapot Dome as "asinine," as Mr. Truman characterized Senator Fulbright's examination of the RFC's record.

SENDOFF—Senator Blair Moody's newspaper friends around Washington are "doing him wrong," albeit with the best of intentions. They are killing with kindness the former correspondent of the Detroit News, who was appointed to the upper chamber as successor to the late Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Although many newspapermen here do not regard leaving their game for the Senate as a "promotion," they gave Blair a fine sendoff. He got far more newspaper space, with every story eulogistic, than do ordinary Senate freshmen, especially appointees.

Vice President Barkley gave the press gallery the unique privilege of applauding when he was sworn in. In short his welcome was MacArthurian in a small way. His photograph appeared on the cover of several weekly magazines of vast circulation.

IMPROVEMENT—Numerous veteran members of the Senate, and more especially their wives, have been pined by this salvo of salutes to Blair. Despite their age and service, they have never been so honored and publicized. They begin to think that "the boys of the press," as they frequently refer to men older and possibly wiser than themselves, are overdoing it. It may be that our effusiveness cost our colleague a committee assignment which he coveted—Mr. Vandenberg's seat on Senate Foreign Relations. He was assigned to Senate Banking and Currency and Executive Expenditures, where a man must plug and study if he is to do a good job. Luckily, Blair is a plunger and a digger—two great assets in newspaper or senatorial work.

Incidentally, newspapermen—owners, publishers, reporters—now rank second to lawyers as a numerical group in the Senate. There are thirteen of us. Seems to me (ahem) there should be a vast improvement in that body's accomplishments.

PLANNING—Governor Kerr Scott, Highway Chairman Henry Jordan, and members of the highway engineering staff have been conferring with Tennessee officials about location of interstate connecting roads. This carries on both sides of the line for most efficient location of roads designed to serve both states, but which for various reasons may be considerably more important to one than to the other. Time was when North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina and Tennessee folks got ready to build a road they built it to suit themselves only. Result sometimes was heavily used by Tarheels working in an industrial plant across the Tennessee line. If the road had been built on the other side of a stream it would have been worth just as much for general traffic to the whole area—and would have saved these workers eight or ten miles a day travel to and from the job.

IMPROVEMENTS—Advance conferences and planning have proven highly advantageous in connection with major improvements on established routes. There has been frequent comment about the unfavorable impression gotten by southbound travelers on US 1 at the Virginia line. That was one of the first, through routes widened by Virginia, but work on the North Carolina side is just beginning to show. And it hasn't yet completed connection between Wise and the steel bridge. Important work on all the main north-south routes is now planned in conjunction with Virginia and South Carolina. Similar joint planning is underway for several Tennessee roads—at Roan Mountain, west of Marshall, northwest of Waynesville and others. At many points where advance agreement has been reached the traveler is not conscious of crossing a state line, unless he happens to see a sign indicating it. That is in striking contrast to old days when difference in road bumps made printed signs unnecessary.

FREEDOM—Orators and editors, as well as commercial ballyhoos for war bond sales and armed services recruiting officers, have a lot to say about freedom not being free. Impact of all this has just about "sold" the average citizen on the fact that in the battle or freedom he must pay the bill. The average citizen is paying a lot bigger bill for freedom, a bill of which he is not generally conscious, because it is hidden in the overall cost of living bill—of which he is acutely conscious but without thinking in terms of freedom. Here are a few examples:

Bread and Laundry—While waiting to get the gas tank filled near Goldsboro the other day your reporter saw an ice cream truck from Raleigh and one from Wilmington pass in opposite directions. A few days before he had seen a Shelby bakery truck in Asheville and an Asheville baker delivering bread in Morganton. It is a common thing for two or three milk trucks to be sent on one city block, while laundry and dry cleaning folks get in each other's way as they pass and re-pass on one street. In fact, your reporter has his laundry done by a firm which also does dry cleaning, and his cleaning by another firm which does laundry.

CHURCHES—Numerous instances can be cited of two or more struggling rural churches of different denominations in the same community—which could support one strong church but cannot support three or four. At Claremont in Catawba county two nice brick church buildings stand on adjoining lots, representing variant tenets of the basic Lutheran faith. The State of North Carolina maintains at Pembroke in Robeson county a full fledged university for less than 200 Indian students, who could easily be absorbed in the other universities except for racial prejudice. Nearly every public school district in North Carolina has expensive duplicating facilities because of this same racial feeling. Democratic and Republican party organizations spend huge sums every election campaign publicizing candidates and platforms, which in basic essentials are similar if not identical. WASTE—There is no way to compute the amount of mental, physical and financial energy spent in duplication activities in the fields of commerce, politics, education and religious denominations. The amount is stupendous, and from one viewpoint it can be called waste. From another it is not. It is the price that must be paid for freedom of choice among the religious faiths and political creeds. It pays for our right of selection among labels on milk bottles and among labels on canned soup. It is an integral and the largest part of the cost of individual liberty under democratic government.

HIDDEN—One of the privileges of citizenship in a free country is the right to gripe about taxes. What the official tax collectors take for national defense and military support of our free ideas is a relatively small part of the total cost of freedom, albeit the most important part. The average North Carolinian complains about high taxes but he would complain much more violently if he were denied the privilege to pay for his choice of a church, a political party or a trademark name on a shirt. The hidden bill for this right of choice is much larger than the amount shown on his tax receipts. It is not only willingly paid, but the most cheerfully paid part of the tax bill is for that portion which is used to guarantee continuing right to pay for the other things we want.

CHEAPER—It would cost less if there were just one moving picture film a week, just one radio program a day, just one style and color of dress, just one church and one political party. It would be a lot cheaper living on a far lower scale. Dictator countries have that kind of economy—but they do not have our kind of people. We are paying a tremendous bill for freedom—and we like it.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TIME IS RUNNING OUT ON UMT

(Hertford County Herald)

It is important to the welfare of the country that its elder statesmen and "old generals" spend time in debating foreign policies. Out of the debates and endless hearings, facts seep out and the people who make the government get a little insight into what has happened, what is taking place now, and what to expect hereafter. If that were all the people got from the debate, there would be no occasion for this piece of editorial writing, this taking place now, and what to expect hereafter. If that were all the people got from the debate, there would be no occasion for this piece of editorial writing, this taking place now, and what to expect hereafter. If that were all the people got from the debate, there would be no occasion for this piece of editorial writing, this taking place now, and what to expect hereafter.

But, because political and personal bitterness has been injected into the so-called "Great Debate," time taken up and yet to be consumed in presenting the case for the two sides is running against the very people who are called upon to make the greatest of all sacrifices, young men who must cut short their careers for military training and the battlefield fighting. Disposition by Congress of long pending measures affecting selective service and companion legislation dealing with a system of universal military training has been held up, delayed, and almost wholly forgotten while the big show at Washington bogs down with too many sideshow barkers. Meanwhile, high school graduates, undergraduates in colleges and universities, and others of their age group are kept in a perpetual dither because they don't know from one day to the next what plans are going to be made for them by their government. The uncertainty and the resulting confusion put a terrible strain on the young mind at a time when it already is weighed down with the normal decisions young men have to make at that period in life. Let it be said in their favor that the young appear to be outdoing their elders in that matter of keeping their feet on the ground. Temporary rules and makeshift plans about military training and battlefield fighting have been in vogue too long now. With high schools graduating another class of young men, colleges and universities winding up another year's work, and private business needing recruits to replace the ageing and to enlarge operations, the Congress, the President, and the people ought to cut out the sideshow barking and hickering and get down to the business of permanent draft and military training laws. For our part, we will accept any set of rules they make as better than the compounded mixture now offered young men of military age. If we had our fathers, we would of course prefer a long range system of military training for all youths at a given age or period in their lives. That, to us, seems the fair, suitable, and sure way to settle the whole business.

To the Baseball Fans of Greenville.

This is written to those who may not know that when your baseball team folds you cannot have another team here for five years because you will lose your franchise. Sure the team is losing; all teams do that at times. What you don't seem to realize is the effect that playing night after night before empty stands has on any team. I was in Winston the night that team came from behind to win, and I am convinced that when that crowd of 1500 stood on its feet and shouted encouragement to the team now and say, "You're getting tawdrier every day." And they never suspect it isn't really me. It's just the desperately casual way I have of smoking my new pipe. I keep it lit all the time. "But you've got to take that pipe out of your face when you go to bed," Frances insists. "Nobody cares whether you look tawdrier when you're asleep." There are some penalties to pay for looking so tawdrier. At night my mouth tastes like I had been chewing razor blades. And in the morning it tastes like the razor blades had rusted. There was also the time I bumped into a door. A pipe-

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

A week after the Supreme Court's kick in the pants for "fair trade" laws finds manufacturers still confused and uncertain as to what steps to take. Many of their attorneys are burning midnight electricity trying to figure how minimum prices can be maintained.

The "fair trade" laws in 45 states permit manufacturers to fix retail prices for trademarked products the laws generally provide that when a manufacturer and one retailer sign an agreement setting a retail price, all other retailers are bound by that contract. It was that phase of the law, known as the "non-signer clause," that the court knocked out. Only retailers who actually sign such agreements can be bound, the court held.

A company with 50,000 or 100,000 outlets would have a difficult time in getting them all signed up. It's such a task that some say that "fair trade" laws are dead—unless something can be done about it.

Among the "somethings" being discussed are these:

1. An amendment to the Miller-Tydings Act, the Federal law exempting manufacturer-retailer agreements from anti-trust action when states permit, embodying the non-signer idea. The Supreme Court decision seems to hint this could be done, and a number of Congressmen are known to be willing to sponsor such legislation.

2. Printing price-fixing agreements on all order forms, so that a retailer would automatically become a signer whenever he ordered goods. This would be cumbersome. It would eliminate oral orders and store-buyers who order goods may not have legal status for valid price-fixing agreements.

3. Revision of manufacturers' franchise systems, reducing outlets to numbers that could be controlled. This, however, might tend to reduce sales.

And the lawyers are trying to figure out better and more effective ways of getting around the decision. The immediate victims of the ruling are not likely to be manufacturers or retailers who have been maintaining prices, but the "discount houses" which exist in practically all of the 45 "fair trade" states. These stores violate the laws to sell below established prices. Now they are fearful that department stores and other large retailers will meet their prices—at least until the discount houses are out of business.

HOW CLEVER.

AD MEN CAN BE!

The distributor of a local brand of canned foods in the New York area is leaning heavily on puns in its advertising. Attention getting headlines include: "What food these morsels be," "Goes on Peas," "Peas without Peers," "A Tale on Tuna," and Beauty and the Beets."

BIRTHDAY NEAR

The cheese industry is going to celebrate its 100th birthday Saturday.

It was on June 2, 1851, that the first mass-production factory was opened at Rome, N. Y. Previously all cheese-making had been at home or on the farm. The National Cheese Institute and the Rome Civic Committee will stage an all-day celebration at Rome, with state and national celebrities making speeches and eating cheese.

BOOKLET TELLS HOW

TO GET DEFENSE WORK

How to go about getting a defense contract is told in the simplest language possible in a new 31-page booklet, "Mobilization Guide for Small Business," just issued by the Defense Production Administration. It tells steps to take to get defense contracts and subcontracts, non-military contracts, a fair share of scarce materials, financing and other assistance. The booklet is free too. It can be obtained from any of the 91 regional and field offices of the Department of Commerce, or the Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D. C. CEREAL AND SHARES

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—All my life I have yearned to look tweedy.

You think that's easy? Try it. It isn't as simple as buying a tweed suit. I tried that. It didn't work at all. I didn't look tweedy. I just got to looking baggy. My pants were knee sprung—as if I spent the whole day doing standing broadjumps.

No, wearing a tweed suit is no way to look tweedy. That just makes you look like a man who wants to look tweedy—and that means you just look fake-tweedy. To look real-tweedy you simply can't have on a tweed suit at all.

Just what is a tweedy look? Well, you can't define it exactly. On the other hand you can't mistake it when you see it. Some fellows look tweedy in bathing trunks. It is just a kind of air of desperate casualness, I felt.

"Well, Heaven knows you look about as casual as a laundry bag," Frances said. "But you don't look tweedy, dear. Let's face it. You look more like somebody who ran for city alderman—and lost."

Then I got the idea that maybe looking shaggy would help me look tweedy. So I let my hair grow. On the sides, that is—the only place left where it grows.

"Tweedy?" "No, dear," said Frances. "You just look like a middle-aged sheep dog going slightly bald."

Then she whistled and snapped her fingers and said, "Come here, and I'll pet you." Pet me? No, sir. Girls don't want to pet real tweedy looking men. They may have a wild desire to rumple them. But pet them? Never.

I was about to give up my dream as hopeless. And then I made an astonishing discovery. I found that the ten tweediest, looking fellows I knew all smoke pipes.

Could it be as simple as that? I raced across the street and bought a pipe and some tobacco. I lit up the pipe and strolled out of the store with as desperate an air of casualness as I could muster.

Two girls walked by, and believe it or not, one said, "Isn't he tweedy?" and the other answered, "How tweedy can you get?"

Well, there I was—tweedy at last. Isn't it odd sometimes how life gives you an easy springboard to happiness just when the world seems to be closing in on you?

Dozens of people come up to me now and say, "You're getting tawdrier every day." And they never suspect it isn't really me. It's just the desperately casual way I have of smoking my new pipe. I keep it lit all the time.

"But you've got to take that pipe out of your face when you go to bed," Frances insists. "Nobody cares whether you look tweedy when you're asleep."

There are some penalties to pay for looking so tweedy. At night my mouth tastes like I had been chewing razor blades. And in the morning it tastes like the razor blades had rusted.

There was also the time I bumped into a door. A pipe-smoking friend of mine—tweedy looking fellow—too—saw me standing there with a strangled look and only the bowl of the pipe sticking out of my mouth. "Take a tip from me," he said. "You're smoking that pipe too deep."

Oh, well. It's fun to be tweedy. Who cares about a few broken tonsils? But I do wish my wife would drop that new nickname she thought up for me.

It's hard to feel real tweedy when somebody calls you "Tweedy-pie."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Men like sweets, says Mrs. Victoria Geaney, as Uncle Sam's official housekeeper, Mrs. Geaney runs the nation's guest house for visiting dignitaries—"Prospect House," which the State Department took over a year ago last October. Desert is a must on every menu.

Most of the government's real entertaining is done at the splendid old Georgetown mansion, leased from Mrs. James V. Parrest, widow of the late Secretary of Defense. Blair House had been used for that purpose from 1942 until President Truman and his family moved in during White House repairs.

"There's always something going on—buffets, dinners, teas, receptions; I've been so busy you know, I haven't been fishing for three years," Mrs. Geaney confided when I talked to her. An ardent salt-water fisherman, she used to spend weekends on Chesapeake Bay hauling them in. Now she barely has time to get to her little half-acre country place at Oxon Hill, in nearby Maryland, where she cuts the grass and raises flowers. She calls the place "My Retreat."

When officials are planning some sort of function at Prospect House, Mrs. Geaney and Jane, the Irish cook, plan the eats.

"I do all the buying and Jane makes everything and presents the food in a very lovely way," Mrs. Geaney says. "All the desserts are made in the kitchen of Prospect House—all the Brown Betty, mousses and—oh, the strawberry shortcake! Jane makes it with a sweet dough! It's out of this world."

"I don't know how I keep my weight down. I guess it's from running my legs off. Jane does all the kitchen work and has the help of one maid only when we have parties."

On a recent Monday Mrs. Geaney and Jane got up a buffet luncheon for 50. Mrs. Geaney went to the market on Saturday and among other items bought a large ham. Jane cooked it on Sunday, trimmed it with pineapple and cherries, let it cool overnight and early Monday carved it and put it together again so it looked untouched.

Jane also shelled fresh peas, made patty shells for the seafood Newburg, prepared a tossed salad, cut up fresh fruit and baked chocolate and mocha cakes. Mrs. Geaney says she uses American "Syracuse" china, purchased 10 years ago by the State Department and bearing its seal, for ordinary function.

History Of Education In Pitt County Covered In Paper Read At Book Club

BETHEL—Mrs. John L. Watson entertained the Book Exchange Club Thursday afternoon at her home in Bethel with Mrs. Cary Hammond as co-hostess.

Mrs. W. T. Whitehurst presided. Officers nominated for next year are: president, Mrs. W. C. House; vice president, Mrs. Linwood Briley; and reporter, Mrs. Dennis Hardy. Mrs. L. L. Whitehurst, Mrs. S. D. Dewar and Mrs. Cary Hammond were appointed to serve on the book committee.

Miss Annette Watson gave a very interesting sketch of the Education of Pitt County, taken in part from H. T. King's "Sketches of Pitt County," published in 1910.

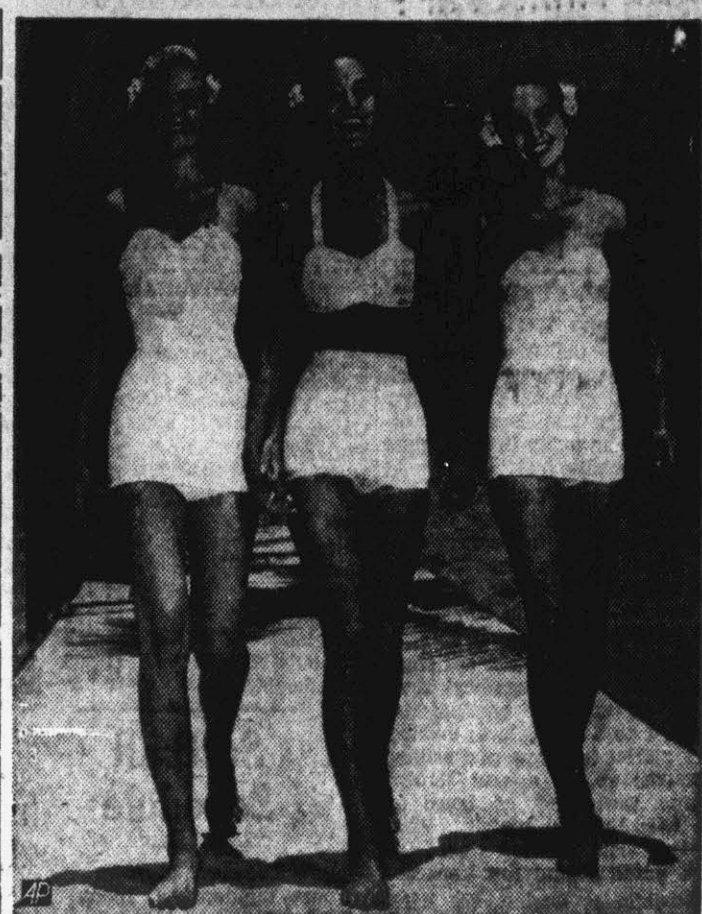

Miss Watson said, when the settlers first came to Pitt County they had little time for activities other than establishing homes and making a living. Educational advantages were very poor. At first the rich people sent their children to England, Williamsburg, Va., and Charleston, S. C. to school or hired private tutors for them. There were no public schools at all. Servants were sometimes tutored by their mistresses, if it was convenient.

The first evidence of an interest in higher education was the activities of William Blount of Pitt on the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina in 1795. In 1800 there were still no public schools in this state, and only a few private schools. In these private schools, the teacher was generally a woman, practically imported from New England. She was held in little esteem; indeed, she was almost a servant and children's nurse, and her pay was a pittance. She generally ended her career by marrying the son of the house and causing a row in the family.

In 1814 the Greenville Male Academy was founded, and it was followed in 1830 by the Greenville Female Academy. The Midway Male and Female Academy was founded in Fictolus in 1849. There were other academies, but still education for the public was not yet held in good favor. It is said that John Joyner, a prominent Pitt County member of the legislature, was turned out of his church for sending one of his sons to college. The academies, of course, have now passed out of existence.

In 1825 the legislature established a "Literary Fund" which began to put new life in school matters. This fund was divided among the counties. In 1856 Pitt's share of this fund was $1,289.40. 1858 marks the first meeting of the county superintendents, whose duties were the same as those of a present Board of Education. These superintendents represented 38 districts, each of which had a school committee.

During the Civil War, Pitt County education was not neglected. Many young ladies who had a high school or college education took over the jobs of the men who had left the schools to go to war. Some of the school books of this war-time period included "The Dixie Elementary Speller," "The Geographical Reader for the Dixie children," "Treats of America only," giving the Confederate states as the principal country. It berated the North's attitude on slavery and called Abe Lincoln a weak man.

By 1880 education was looked upon with more favor, and schools were growing in number. They were mostly frame houses instead of log houses. The Male Academy in Greenville was now under Professor W. H. Ragsdale. The Female Academy became a separate school. In addition to the "three Rs" many of the arts and sciences were taught.

Professor Ragsdale became county superintendent in 1899 and two years later he was in charge of the first four-week institute for teachers to be held in the state. This was held in Winterville. Z. D. McWhorter of Bethel was one of the four instructors.

Bethel was the first town in the county to vote a special school tax and establish a graded school. They increased their teaching staff from two to five teachers and extended the school term from three to eight months and also established a library. Other towns soon followed Bethel's example.

In 1906 a "Teachers Betterment Association" was organized to encourage better conditions for school grounds and buildings. Now the schools became nice modern houses with patented desks, pictures and maps on the walls, good lighting and heating, facilities and valuable libraries. Another stimulus to industrious students was a series of medals awarded by various people for Pitt County boys and girls.

In 1907, East Carolina Teacher Training School was established after much effort on the part of Mr. James L. Fleming and Professor Ragsdale to get it settled in Greenville. Forty years ago, in 1911 the first class graduated from there with seven young ladies out of 157 students. In 1921, the college became East Carolina Teachers College, and now in 1951 it is East Carolina College. It is the fourth largest college in the state, having this year 294 graduates, the largest number in its history. Pitt County has about 65 public schools for colored and white, all good schools, with the best teachers available.

At this time Miss Mary Mills was surprised with a kitchen shower. Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Hammond served a delicious salad course.

Red Schools Get A Cold Shoulder

BERLIN —(AP)—Recruiting of workers and peasants for special pre-university courses is lagging in the Soviet Zone, so its rulers are importing young Communist students from West Germany.

East Germans have shown a marked reluctance to enroll at the "workers and farmers faculties" despite official cajolings, well-informed Soviet Zone sources said. They explained that the top-heavy diet of Stalinism and "voluntary" political schooling even in the students' spare time apparently have much to do with the lack of enthusiasm.

The schools are designed for young men and women between 17 and 35, fresh off the farms and factories. Job of the faculties, which are attached to all larger East German universities, is to help train a Communist "elite" to replace the "old reactionary" professional and administrative groups.

Whiskey Aged In Attic Also Good

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — (AP) — Whiskey to be good should be aged in wood. Or so the experts claim.

But so far, Albert Michalides can not find a thing wrong with whiskey aged in the attic. Especially when it's over a half-century old.

Al found a quart bottle in his attic recently labeled "Old Times Whiskey, First Prize World's Fair, 1893." The brand is no longer on the market. Except for Al and his friends, that is.

They've been having the time of their lives. As far as they're concerned the whiskey is just as much a prize now as it was in the Gay Nineties.

Robins Snap Long String Of Losses By Blasting Kinston Eagles By 8-4

Locals Given 10-6 Set-back By Roanoke Rapids Saturday, But Dormant Power Explodes In Sunday Encounter

Greenville divided two games over the weekend, losing to Roanoke Rapids Saturday night and defeating the second-place Kinston Eagles Sunday afternoon. Roanoke Rapids won by a score of 10 to 6, while the Robins blasted the Eagles 8 to 4.

In Saturday's encounter the Robins used four hurlers in their losing cause. Braun started but was relieved in the third inning by Kovalchick. Harrison came in the ball game and pitched three and two-thirds innings before having to be relieved by Jones in the seventh, who finished the ball game for Greenville. Braun was the loser.

The explosive power of the Robins, which had been subdued for quite a while, burst Sunday afternoon in Kinston when they defeated the Eagles 8-4. They combined five singles, two doubles and one triple to score their eight runs. They were aided by twelve free passes to first given up by four Kinston hurlers.

A six-run outburst in the fourth inning put the Robins in front to stay. Shortstop Dunlavy doubled to send home two runs and then Fabian Burger walked two batters to again load the bases. Burger was relieved at this point by Ernie Novack, who promptly issued two more passes to force in a couple of runs for Greenville. A two-run single by Pete Piestrak pushed across the final runs of the big uprising.

Amby Foote, a righthander, went the distance for Greenville, allowing only nine scattered safeties, all singles. He walked nine men also, but spaced them effectively. Three Eagles went down by the strikeout route.

'Luxury' Shots For Middlecoff

FORTH WORTH —(UP)—Cary Middlecoff won the $3,000 first prize in the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament yesterday in a luxurious finish, the likes of which most pros can only dream about.

Middlecoff came up to the 18th green of tough Colonial Country Club with his ball 15 feet short of the cup. The fat prize was his, and he knew it. All the challengers were in, so he took an infrequent luxury for a successful man in his trade—three putts.

That put him three over par with 73 for the round and a 282 total for the 72 holes, and it made him the first over-par winner of the Colonial in its six-year history.

Young Jack Burke Jr. of Houston came blazing out of the pack to take second place with a 283, good for $2,000. Burke had two bogeys on the front nine, but steamed in to finish with a three-under-par 67 thanks to five birdies. He got three of them the hard way—on putts of 30, 30 and 40 feet.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago fatted his purse with $1,400 third prize money, the dividend paid by a 284 final tally.

The real luxury of extra putts was demonstrated in a perverse sort of fashion by the case of Byron Nelson, the old master. He looked back on a couple of half-hearted putts—mere taps that went astray—and reckoned they cost him as much as $800.

Nelson finished at 285 in a three-way tie for fourth place with Ben Hogan, the hometown favorite, and Ed Oliver of Seattle. Each picked up $300.

Amazing White Sox Given Ovation By Chicago Fans

CHICAGO —(UP)—TOUTSIDERS let loose the frustrations of 32 years without a pennant winner today in a hearty "welcome home" celebration for Paul Richards' astonishing White Sox.

A crowd of 5,000 was scheduled to meet the Sox at the railroad station on their return from a triumphant road trip. The Sox then will be taken to City Hall where Mayor Martin Kennelly will give Richards the key to the city.

The trip, most successful in White Sox history, saw the amazing castoffs of many clubs roll to 11 straight victories and cut the Yankees' American League lead to one game. The Sox completed their 12-day trip yesterday with climatic 5 to 2 and 6 to 4 victories over the Indians.

Excited fans took one look at the week's schedule and their hopes soared anew. The Sox's next five games are against the Browns and Athletics dormats of the league.

It would not be too surprising to see the Sox win all five games, run their streak to 16 straight and threaten the American League mark of 19.

Time Trials For Speedway Race

Indianapolis —(UP)—Extended qualifications for the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race were scheduled today to try to complete a full 35-car starting field, but unfavorable weather might again interfere.

Rain held qualifications to only one car and kept 18 speedsters standing on the apron under tarpaulins yesterday.

Chief Stewart Tommy Milton, twice a winner of this 34-year-old gasoline sweepstakes, ordered a special four-hour period to give late-comers a chance to get into the $200,000 jackpot event.

There were six starting positions open for Wednesday's blistering grind, with 27 cars already qualified at an average pace some two and one-half miles per hour higher than last year's record-breaking speedy field.

Britons Again Watch Prized Trophy Depart

PORTHCAWL, Wales —(AP)—British golf fans are beginning to despair of any hopes of regaining domination of their own amateur tournament.

Today they saw the prized championship heading across the Atlantic, again—this time in the hands of 40-year-old Dick Chapman, Pinehurst, N.C., socialite, who began quest of the big silver mug 16 years ago.

It was Chapman, the 1940 U.C. champion, against stringbean Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, 1949 American winner, with Chapman prevailing in Saturday's 36-hole final, 5 and 4.

Britain's outstanding hope, long-hitting Vic Carr, had fallen an earlier victim to the smooth-swinging North Carolinian.

Twice previously Chapman had gained the finals without going farther.

White Sox And Red Sox Rise Up To Haunt Yanks

Ty CARL LUNDQUIST, United Press Sports Writer

Just when the Yankees were making a shambles of the American League pennant race they found Chicago and Boston sneaking up on them today in their white and red stocking feet.

The white hot White Sox and the red hot Red Sox swept double-headers yesterday to prolong winning streaks while the Yankees were tripped up by the Athletics and had to settle for a split in their doubleheader.

At Cleveland, the White Sox completed their most triumphant road tour of all time by toppling the Indians, 5 to 2 and 6 to 4, making it 11 victories in a row and setting themselves up for a real heroes' welcome when they go home to play the Browns tonight. With their two victories they wound up only a game behind the Yankees.

Meanwhile at Boston, the third place Red Sox bowled over the Senators, 9 to 3 and 7 to 1, to make it seven in a row and nine wins out of 10.

The Yankees topped the Athletics, 9 to 0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Frank Shea, then saw their seven-game streak snapped by little Bobby Sahz, who won the nightcap, 7 to 4. The Browns defeated Detroit, 8 to 2, after the Tigers won the opener, 3 to 2.

In the rain-abbreviated National League slate, the Giants bludgeoned the Phillies, 2 to 0 and the Cardinals defeated the Reds, 6 to 1.

Boston at Brooklyn, and the Pittsburgh at Chicago double header were washed out.

The White Sox, whose all-road winning streak was completed with two victories at Boston, one at New York, three at Washington, one at Philadelphia and four at Cleveland, cashed in on seven-hit pitching by Joe Dobson and air-tight relief by Marv Rotblatt in their two wins yesterday. Al Zarilla hit a homer, double, and single to drive in four runs in the second game. Rotblatt pitched one-hit scoreless relief ball for three innings to save the second game for Howie Judson.

Boston, which now has had its pitchers go the route in six straight games, got an eight-hitter out of Mickey McDermott and a six hitter out of Harry Taylor as both won their third straight games. In the opener, the Red Sox blew things wide open with six runs in the seventh as Bobby Doerr tripled and Vern Stephens hit a two-run homer for the big blow. A grand slam homer by Ted Williams and a three run blast by Bobby Doerr gave the Red Sox all of their runs in the third innings of the second game.

The Yankees, who wound up their home stand with a remarkable Stadium record of 17 wins and two losses for the season, got the kind of pitching out of Shea in the opener that made him a rookie star in 1947. It was his second shutout over the A's this season. He also smacked a three-run homer and Phil Rizuto got a two-run route clout.

Jim Delsing hit a two-run homer behind Ned Garver who won his fifth game for the hapless Browns at Detroit, after Virgil Trucks, with relief help from Hal White, won his first victory since May 13 of last season in the opener. Steve Souchock hit a homer as the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak. Matt Batts homered for St. Louis in the first game and Fred Marsh also got one in the second.

Sal Maglie, with a one-hitter to his credit already this season, narrowly missed no-hit acclaim again when he held the skidding Phillies to two hits for his seventh straight giant triumph at Philadelphia. The Giants broke an 0-0 tie against Russ Meyer in the eighth when he doubled, moved to third on Maglie's sacrifice, and scored on Eddie Stanky's single. A walk to Wes Westrum and Alvin Dark's double made it 2-0 in the ninth.

Chief Guy C. Langston announced today that the Greenville Police Pistol Team will be host to the Kinston Police Pistol Team and the State Highway Patrol, Troop A, Pistol Team, at the Greenville police pistol range, near the airport, across Tar River, Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m.

A series of matches is scheduled for the law enforcement officers under varying conditions.

Blew The Works In First Showing

SATTLE —(AP)—Academic-looking Paul Celvert, who spent most of the spring rusting on the bench with the Detroit Tigers, blew the works in his first start for the Seattle Rainiers. He pitched a no-hit, no-run game.

That 4-0 no-hitter yesterday over the Sacramento Solons meant a lot to somebody else making his first start in the Pacific Coast League. For Manager Rogers Hornsby it meant first place—at least temporarily—for the Rainiers in his first season at the helm.

Before he was sold to Seattle two weeks ago, Celvert had hurled only five innings all spring for Detroit. Four of those innings were in an intra-squad game among the Tigers. The other was a regular one-inning relief stand against the Yankees after the season opened.

The thin-faced Canadian (he graduated from the University of Montreal in 1940 with a Master's degree) used a sinker ball almost exclusively to win last night's game.

Dail Cops Honors At Pamlico Track

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Oliver Dail won the stock car races held in Washington Sunday afternoon. Dail, driving a 1950 Chevrolet, headed the field at the Pamlico Race track with an exhibition of excellent driving.

A car driven by Jimmy Cox ran over the embankment surrounding the track, bringing the fans to their feet in excitement. In a preliminary contest, Bill Gasaway, of Atlanta, turned his Henry, Jr., over in a challenge race with Dail. The race was run off according to schedule, with Dail winning.

In the modified car race Junte Hudgins came in first, followed by Al Johnson. This was the main event of the afternoon, a 25-lap race.

The Pamlico track is a member of the National Association for Stock Car Racing, Inc. Accordingly, all rules and specifications must be met by the racers. This provides a better and more interesting race for the fans as well as the contestants.

Says George Kell Most Feared Of Loop's Batters

BOSTON —(AP)—Ted Williams, who knows more about rivals in his favorite business—hitting—than most pitchers, picks Detroit's George Kell as the American League's most feared batter.

"Who's the most dangerous batter, both as a rival for the hitting title and as a threat to pitchers?" was a question fired at the Red Sox slugger.

Without pausing Williams shot back: "Kell, of course. He just goes along, hitting steadily all the time. Take a look at his averages."

"There may be players getting more publicity on their hitting, like Gus Zernial (Philadelphia Athletics)," explained Williams, "but Kell always will be up there, right near the top. And he'll stay there. He's a real good hitter for he moves around in the box, pulling and punching the ball."

Forests in the United States yielded 37,000,000,000 feet of lumber in 1950, a 20 year record.

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 21

He moved along its perimeter, hugging the rails, waited and looked about him carefully. The kitchen was dark; Jose and Maria had gone to their room in the far wing. He stole forward to the back door, praying that it was unbarred. He had reached the steps when a dark shape erected itself before him and a voice barked, "Hold up! Who are you?"

Despair gripped Jeff. He said, "Tombstone?"

"Yes. By gosh, Jeff! You blamed fool, what're you doin' here?" Jeff put into his voice all the desperate appeal he could summon.

"Tombstone, you've got to help me. Sam Cooper is on his way here to have it out with Diana."

They murdered Dan Denton, Tombstone, I'm ready to swear to it. But there's no evidence and now that they're going to have it out I want to get inside where I can overhear them. I promise you, Tombstone, that I'm not going to harm anybody unless he turns out to be a murderer and gets me in a corner. I give you my word."

There was a long silence, then Tombstone said, "You're askin me to be false to my boss."

"Only if you r boss is mixed up in murder. Even you wouldn't stand for that, no matter how much you think of Mrs. Denton."

"You say you're just goin' to listen."

"Listen and hope that they'll talk freely, thinking they're alone."

Again there was a silence, and in it they could hear the rapid drum of distant hoofs. They were coming up the valley and fast.

"That's Cooper," said Jeff tightly.

Tombstone mounted the steps and pushed open the door. "Go on in. And if you've tricked me, so help me I'll kill you myself and collect that five hundred reward from Sam!"

Jeff said, "Thanks, Tombstone. Thanks a million!" He leaped up the steps and stole into the dark kitchen. He found the table and got to his hands and knees, feeling around in the darkness. His fingers touched the edge of the trapdoor; it was slightly raised. He whispered, "You in there?" and got a whispered "Yes!" for an answer.

He got up and tiptoed into the diningroom. Light from the livingroom filtered through the doorway, permitting him to see the furnishings. He slipped up to the doorway and peered around it. Diana was standing in front of the fireplace looking down into the flames. Then came the pound of boots and a quick knock on the door. She said, "Who is it?"

"Tom, Miz Denton."

She unbarred the door and opened it and stepped outside. Jeff heard the man report, "Somebody comin' foggin' up the valley, ma'am."

"Stop him. See who it is."

It was Jeff's chance. A sofa was set catcornered across the corner of the living room; he slipped through the doorway, climbed swiftly and silently over it and crouched behind it. He couldn't have found a better place for listening.

The beat of hoofs grew louder, then the tempo slowed and ceased altogether. Presently Jeff heard them again, advancing slowly. They halted once more outside the

Reds Install A Justice System

HONG KONG —(AP) Chinese Communists are making it easier for people to denounce their enemies as "counter-revolutionaries."

Authorities of Chungshan Province, just north of Macao, have ordered all villages to construct "accusation platforms," an independent newspaper reported here.

Each platform is to be constantly attended by one Communist soldier and one junior Red official who acts as a judge.

People can drag "counter-revolutionaries" to the platform at any time and hurl charges against them. Then it's up to the accused to prove his innocence.

Copyright To Be Sold To High Bid

TORONTO — (AP) — The copyright for Queen Mary's carpet has been assigned to the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire and will be sold to the highest bidder.

Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., of Oakville, Ont., who has been in charge of the handsome piece of needlepoint since the order took charge of it 10 months ago, said in an interview that money from the sale of the copyright will go to swell the Dollars-for-Britain fund established by the I. O. D. E. to buy the carpet for Canada.

the cathartic habit

TOO MANY PEOPLE are influenced by stories concerning "intestinal cleanliness" or "stimulating the flow of bile." Many cases of simple constipation do not require a laxative at all, but only a minor change in diet and habit.

The habitual use of cathartics is dangerous. Such misuse is often followed by chronic ill health. Strong laxatives are particularly dangerous when taken to relieve abdominal distress. The source of the pain should always be accurately determined by your physician. The safe procedure is to consult him. If a laxative is needed, he will prescribe a safe preparation with proper instructions for dosage. Then bring your prescription to us for expert compounding.

Marriage Causes Family To Be A Confusing Setup

SYDNEY —(AP)— Allan Charles Wightman was married the other day, and today he is his own father's brother-in-law, and his stepmother has become his sister-in-law.

Wightman's bride, Vivian Munro, was the youngest sister of his stepmother. The complicated relationship started when Wightman's father married a widow with two children. Now Allan Wightman, the son, is both step-brother and uncle to those two children.

That isn't all. At Allan's wedding there were two bridesmaids. One was Doreen Connors, the daughter of Mrs. Wightman, senior, by her first marriage. The other was Margaret Wightman, Allan's sister. When the marriage ceremony started Doreen was Allan's stepsister, and Vivian was Doreen's aunt. When it ended Doreen also was Vivian's sister-in-law, Margaret and Vivian also were sisters-in-law, whereas before Vivian was some sort of an aunt to Margaret.

Boy Scout Camp Cooking School For Modern Kids

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—"You learn a lot more than how to three-finger salute the flag when you go to a Scout camp."

I went out with 4,000 Boy Scouts at the Soldier's Home here the past week-end and learned a thing or two about how to dish up a good meal.

Sometimes all you need is a beat-up coffee can. The Scout Master said we ought to do it coffee-can cooking over charcoal, so we went ahead.

Scout mommies may get out a pencil and record what happened: One dish was chicken and dumplings.

Harry Markins, aged 11, and Billy Martin, also 11, were the chefs. After we all yum-yummed over it the kids gave us the recipe over it the kids gave us the recipe.

Ingredients: (Serves two Scouts or two other people.) 3-4 pound of chicken, 1 medium carrot, 2 medium Irish potatoes, 2 stalks celery, salt and pepper, 1-2 cup of biscuit mix, 1 tablespoon butter or oil.

First you cut the chicken into small bits to fit in the bottom of the coffee can. Then, peel the potatoes and dice 'em on top of the chicken. Add salt and pepper, scrape and slice the carrot over the potatoes. Cut the celery in the same kind of small pieces. Shake on a little more salt for the vegetables. Dump in half a cup of water. Then you fix up the biscuit mix for the dumplings, dumping the mixture in and put the lid on.

Take the coffee can and place it in the coals. Cook for an hour and you have a tasty dish.

The second recipe the youngsters taught me was a fancy number called "Dixie Casserole."

This one also serves only two, but you can multiply.

On this deal you take three-quarters of a pound of ham, a No. 2 can of whole corn, 1-2 can of black-eyed peas, 1 medium sweet potato, a tablespoon of butter and potato, a tablespoon of butter and salt and pepper, and 4 tablespoons of water.

Dump the corn into the coffee can. Slice the ham. Pour those Southern peas atop the ham. Salt and pepper. Peel the sweet potato and slice in half-inch slices over the peas. Add the tablespoon of butter. Put the lid on and put the can on the coals. Bake the coals around the edge of the can up to about one-fourth the height.

Cook about 45 minutes to one hour.

We let our meal fuss and bubble for about an hour and it tasted fine.

In my day, we didn't learn how to cook anything except hotdogs on a stick.

Proof That Life Begins At Forty

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Grady Clark, vice-president of Investors Diversified Services, Inc., here, says he has figured to prove that a useful productive life can really begin at 40 for men and women.

with sales capabilities. Clark states that representatives of the company who are more than 40 produced about 64 per cent of the total 1950 sales.

"This is proof," says Clark, "that the seasoned competence of mature men and women is a definite asset for business."

HONG KONG —(AP)— The Chinese Reds, outspoken foes of capitalism, are asking overseas Chinese capitalists to invest in rubber plantations on Hainan Island.

The Communist newspaper "Wen graphic Society."

Farmers Take To Dial Telephones

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers whose hand-crank telephones have been replaced with modern dial equipment use the new models five times as much as they used the old system, according to reports to the Rural Electrification Administration here.

The first REA-financed telephone system to be put into operation was in Virginia, where some 200 farmers now have new dial phones.
Each old phone averaged less than two calls a day; the same people now use the new phones for an average of 10 calls a day,

New Idea On How To Win Friends

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Chinese Reds have come up with a new idea on how to win friends and influence people—changing place names that are "derogatory to national minorities."

A Peiping broadcast heard in San Francisco said the first fruits of this general policy were in the southeast China territory inhabited by the little-known Yi people.
A bridge, historically known as "the Bridge of Yi Suppression" has been renamed "Liberation Bridge." An old fortress called "Conquer the Yi Castle" has been renamed "Security Castle."
The broadcast said a great ceremony was made of digging out the old name plates.

Emperor Chao Hsing undertook construction of the Great Wall of China.

Mental Ailments Need New Terms

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr.
Karl Bowman, a psychiatrist at the University of California Medical Center here, has suggested the elimination of three psychiatric terms—"psychosis," "neurosis" and "psychoneurosis."
Dr. Bowman said these words have become almost meaningless because psychiatrists cannot agree on their definitions. Moreover, he stated, the terms have little or no scientific basis. The psychiatrist recommends that all mental ailments be classified under three general classes of mental disorders: "mild," "moderate" or "severe."

Frostbite Care Ideas Changed By Winter In Korea

NEW YORK —(UP)— Experiments by Army physicians indicate that changes may be made in the treatment of frostbite, which American soldiers suffered from in Korea last winter. The current accepted treatment includes immersing the frostbitten part of the body in cold water or placing it in snow packs, and then gradually raising the temperature. However, scientists at the Air Force School of Medicine, Randolph Field, Texas, have found that it may be better to produce rapid thawing rather than the slow and prolonged treatment.

Experiments were conducted on about 300 laboratory rats. One hind leg of each rat was shaved and placed in a rubber foot. Then the leg was immersed in an alcohol bath in which temperatures ranged below freezing. After 30 minutes, the exposed legs were warmed, some at room temperature and some in a warm water bath.

It was found that warm water saves more tissue and thus reduces the hazard of gangrene, a condition which sometimes makes amputation necessary.

The scientists found that rapid thawing almost entirely prevented death of skin cells, but that slower warming at room temperature dme superficial gangrene in 20 to 90 per cent of the cases. In another set of experiments, tidly warmed legs lost a total of two square centimeters of skin tissue, while an equal-sized group warmed in air lost 479 square centimeters.

The rats were exposed to temperatures as low as 12 degrees below zero, but the quick-warming technique left the animals with better use of the injured legs.

The possible new treatment has one disadvantage. The rapid thawing is more painful than the slower technique. The Air Force doctors believe, however, that the use of drugs could cut down the pain in human patients.

Police Vigilance Thwarts Robbery

Greenville police investigating a reported attempt to rob Ricks' Service Station, 9th and Evans streets, during the weekend, said they had no clue as to the identity of the would-be robber. A pane of glass in a window had been broken, but entrance to the place was interrupted by appearance of police officers.

sian air potential that could utilize atomic bombs against the United States and lay waste to the industrial potential. Today the air defenses of this country are about adequate. Tomorrow they will not be nearly adequate enough."

In reply to a question about efficiency of the Air Force in Korea, Vandenberg said a single bomber plane once killed 800 enemy troops, another got 600, and a third killed "nearly 4,000—verified by actual count."

But he added that in his opinion "the proper way to use airpower is initially to stop the flow of supplies and ammunition, guns, equipment of all types, at its source," and that the next most efficient way is to knock it out along the way to the front.

Russell asked what was being done to improve American planes to make them as fast or faster than the Russian jets.

Vandenberg said American manufacturers had been given all the information obtainable about Russian improvements, that the United States is collaborating with the British, who have made good jet engines, and that our research and development program is doing everything possible.

Russell cited news accounts that the Communists lose four or five planes in every encounter with no losses for American fliers. He asked if those reports were accurate.

"Yes, sir," Vandenberg said, "they are. Our pilots are at the present time much superior in tactics and technique of air fighting, in my opinion. They are better trained and their armament is superior."

However, since those days there has been a great change in England, and one evidence is in the reform of the divorce laws to give both sexes the same fundamental rights. British women these days have pretty much the same rights as men in most walks of life, even to holding public office. Perhaps they don't take as much advantage of these new-found privileges as, say the women in America.

but the rights are there. Home life in Britain got a tremendous shaking up during the last world war. There was very little domestic help available. The result was that the housewife not only had to do all her own work but had to spend long hours standing in line to buy necessities. The men—to give the lady due credit—recognized that this was tough on the women folk and jumped in to help with household duties. These days the mighty male even takes a hand at washing, dishes—that is, a lot of men do. Still, while there have been these striking changes, it's true that man continues to rule the roost, so to speak—or thinks he does.

Long-Delayed . . .

Then the Senate committee's bill will go up to the full Senate for debate and vote. The Senate does not act fast, and since there's a limit on Senate debate, more weeks may go by.

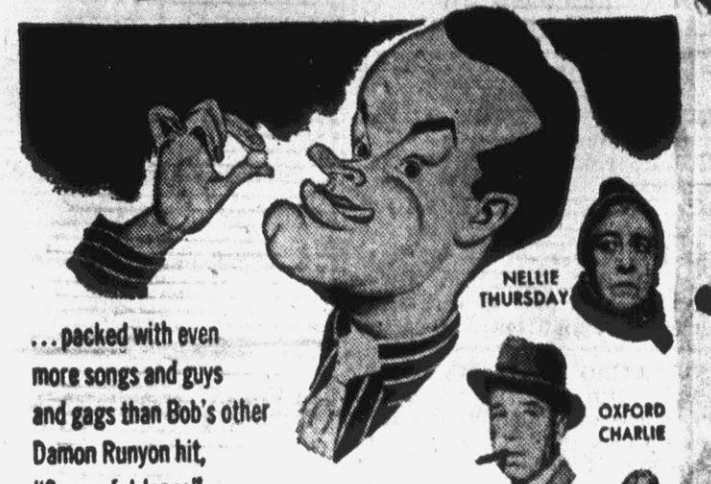

Once the House and Senate have both voted, more time will be used up ironing out their differences until both can agree on a single bill.

So, all in all, that tax increase isn't likely before some time in the fall.
