Eppes Graduates Record Class Of 45 Boys, Girls

Speakers Praise Record In Exercises Marking Commencement Program

By CHESTER WALSH C. M. Eppes Negro High School awarded diplomas to 45 students at commencement exercises last night. The 1951 graduating class is the largest in the history of the school.

June H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville city schools, spoke briefly. He praised the work of Prof. W. H. Davenport and members of the faculty and extended a word of appreciation to the parents for their cooperation with school officials and teachers during the session just closed.

A feature of the program was the singing by the audience of Supp. Rose's favorite hymn, "Lord, I Want to Be a Christian," led by Doris Lynch.

Mr. Rose reviewed the year's activities. He reminded that C. M. Eppes Negro High School was accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools during the past year. He said the year just closing was the best in the school's history, and congratulated Principal W. H. Davenport and the members of his staff.

The school auditorium was crowded and there were many persons who could not get into the building. At the conclusion of the exercises hundreds of friends of the school inspected the vocational education building, where bricklaying is taught and the woodworking plant and home demonstration room.

The commencement program was entertaining and inspiring. The graduates entered the auditorium during the playing of the processional, "God of Our Fathers" by the Eppes High School band.

The Eppes High School Mixed Chorus sang Tschakowsky's "Ave Maria." The Eppes High School Band played Mader's "Centennial March" and Sigmund Romberg's "Student Prince."

Jesse Forbes delivered an address on "The Function of the Home in Citizenship Training." Doris Lynch, exceptionally talented young singer, sang Schubert's "Thou Art So Like a Flower."

Defends Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—(UP)—L. (J.G.) William H. Evans, Jr., busted out of the Navy for writing a "very nasty" anti-administration letter, defended his action today by saying his oath required him to defend the nation "against all enemies, at home and abroad."

"I feel that I expressed the opinion of the majority of those (fighting) in the Far East," Evans said. "I feel it was my duty to write that letter. They (Americans in Korea) are not afraid of the enemy in front of them. They are afraid of the enemy behind them."

Evans told a news conference he has decided that, from the way his case was handled, "if you are pro-American you have to go underground or else suffer the consequences."

The 29-year-old Annapolis graduate said he was not aware that he had violated any regulations in writing the letter which branded the Truman administration as "pro-Red," ripped into Roosevelt and Truman foreign policy and assailed Secretary of State Dean Acheson as "the Red Dean."

Bradley To Poll Allies' Opinions

Will Query Opposite Numbers In Defense Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—(AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley, the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, will personally poll opinions and intentions among the top military leaders in western Europe on the trip he starts tomorrow. His poll will cover American and allies alike.

Thorny problems have developed in recent months. Although some of them are essentially diplomatic, they also have such strong military implications as to be of uniform concern to the planning of the respective chiefs like Bradley.

Thus it may be assumed Bradley will want to know how his opposites feel about such questions as: 1. The geographical extension of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) area to embrace Greece and Turkey.

2. The commands of the naval forces in the North Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. 3. The overall and complex problems connected with hustling up the military organization under the NATO treaty.

4. Progress (and delays, if any) in the overseas operation of the United States' part in the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

Britain Mourns Colliery Victims

WASHINGTON, Eng.—(AP)—(AP)—Britain mourned today for 81 victims of Tuesday's blast at the big Eastington colliery, the nation's worst mine disaster in more than three years.

Rescue squads abandoned hope of saving 62 British miners still entombed 900 feet underground. Weary rescue workers continued to claw their way through tons of debris despite the announcement by Lord Hyndley, chairman of the state-run coal industry, that the 62 men trapped in the pit must be presumed dead.

Pitt Crops Not Hurt Too Much By Rain Shortage

Although most farmers in the county would gratefully receive a good soaking rainfall for their crops, the condition of the tobacco, cotton and corn is not too bad even though there has been a shortage of rainfall during the past few weeks.

As reported by county farm agents all crops in the ground now are faring pretty well considering the lack of soil moisture. The tobacco crop, which is completely set out at the present time, is suffering more from the cool nights than from shortage of rainfall.

American Advances Halted By Determined Red Forces

West Calls For Soviet To Decide On Meeting

Bid To End Tedious Bickering By Deputies; In Effect, Stalin Asked Does He Want A Meeting Of Big Four

PARIS (UP)—The three western powers called on Russia today to show up at a Big Four Foreign Ministers conference in Washington on July 23 and quit its tedious bickering over the conference's agenda.

The western demand was an effort to end 13 weeks of fruitless discussion on what the foreign Ministers should talk about if and when they met.

The United States, British and French deputies handed Soviet Deputy Andrei Gromyko three identical notes at today's deputies meeting which in effect went over his head and asked Premier Josef Stalin:

"Do you or don't you want a Big Four meeting?"

The notes pointed out that the only stumbling block to such a conference was the Soviet insistence that the Western Allies' North Atlantic Treaty must be included for discussion. The western powers have refused this.

Today's meeting of the deputies was the 64th session of a conference that began March 5.

The notes asked for an early reply from Russia. They said the American, British and French Foreign Ministers were prepared to start talking in Washington on July 23.

By agreement, Foreign Ministers' conference rotate among the four capitals. No conference has yet been held in Washington. Several have been held in London, Paris and Moscow.

The western powers did not threaten to pull out of the preliminary Paris talks if Stalin rejected today's demand. But they took the opportunity to place on Russia the onus for further delay.

The notes offered Stalin his choice of the three agendas but indicated the western powers would favor the second agenda.

The second agenda includes discussion of the causes and effects of international tension; the level of armaments and means of reduction; the demilitarization of Germany; peace treaties for Germany and Austria; fulfillment of the Italian peace treaty and the part concerning Trieste; and elimination of the threat of war and fear of aggression.

Hwachon Dam Regained By Allied Troops; Two MIGs Downed In Attacking Superforts; U. S. Spearheads Continue Probing Enemy Lines

TOKYO (AP)—Red troops fighting with renewed fury halted American advances today 13 miles from the Communist Korean strongholds of Chorwon and Kumhwa.

Other United Nations forces regained control of the 275 foot high Hwachon dam with comparative ease.

Across the 125 mile Korean front, allied forces slogged through the mud for slow gains or fought off sharp attacks.

Twelve Red jets tried an attack of their own on U. S. B-29 Superforts. Eight F-86 Sabre jets cut in with the usual result—two Russian-type jets downed and one damaged. The B-29's, unharmed, went ahead with their bomb runs of a northwest Korean rail bridge.

The stiffest fighting swirled against American spearheads on the western and west-central fronts pointed at Chorwon, and around Inje on the east-central sector.

Chinese units pitched a fantastic counterattack at dusk Wednesday against Americans in the hills around Yonchon, 13 miles southwest of Chorwon. In a night-long battle the Reds pushed the doughboys off the ridges and shoved them back 1,000 yards.

At dawn Thursday the Americans leaped to the attack. By noon they had regained their positions on the road to Chorwon.

Frontline officers estimated at least two Chinese divisions stood between the Americans and that Red stronghold, 60 miles north of Seoul.

Yonchon itself, said AP correspondent John Randolph, is a no-man's land. Americans patrol it by day, Chinese by night.

The Chinese started their first spring offensive prematurely April 23 to keep the allies away from Chorwon. At that time U. N. forces were four miles away.

One of the announced objectives of the current allied counter-offensive is to force the Reds into another premature attack.

During such offensives the Chinese have been cut down in the greatest numbers.

Thirteen miles east of Yonchon on a highway leading toward Kumhwa, a Red regiment stopped an American advance south of Chipo.

Chinese and North Koreans are sensitive to any approach to Chorwon and Kumhwa. These points have been their main assembly and supply centers for months.

But allies troops found tough going even to the rear of these spearheads.

South Koreans had to fight to enlarge their crossings of the Imjin River, southwest of the Yonchon area. Heretofore they had faced comparatively light opposition in advances south of the 38th parallel.

DAMASCUS, Syria (UP)—An Israeli fighter plane was shot down today by Syrian fighter pilots who said they intercepted the plane over Syrian territory.

First reports said the Israeli pilot was killed.

The reports said the Israeli aircraft was intercepted over the Syrian town on Deraa, 40 miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee.

Sporadic fighting has broken out between Syrians and Israelis along the border during the last few months.

Cardinal Dougherty Dies Suddenly Today

Dean Of Catholic Church In United States Carried Out Duties Of High Office Until Moment Of Sudden Death

Cardinal, 2c 30 tile front Rose PHILADELPHIA (AP)—(AP)—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, 85-year-old prince of the Roman Catholic Church died today at 9:15 a.m. (EST) at his residence.

He was the Dean of the church in the United States and had served as Archbishop of Philadelphia since 1918.

The short rotund Cardinal, despite his advanced age, continued to carry out the duties of his high office to the moment of his death.

He had celebrated mass as usual this morning, the Chancery office reported, and then had returned to his bedroom. Death came suddenly. The cause was not announced immediately.

Says Armistice In Korea Talked

Sherman Testifies MacArthur Favored Step In December

WASHINGTON (UP)—(UP)—Adm. Forest P. Sherman testified today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur believed last December that an armistice should be arranged in Korea "on best terms available as soon as possible."

The Chief of Naval Operations disclosed the deposed Far Eastern commander's December armistice views as he testified for a second day before the Senate committee investigating MacArthur's dismissal.

Sherman previously had added to his testimony, started yesterday, about American hopes of getting the United Nations to impose a naval blockade on Red China.

He said this country has moved quickly to enforce an economic embargo against China. But, he said, "there is still much to be done" by other UN allies to stop the flow of vital goods which he said helps to keep Chinese Red forces in action.

When the economic embargo is in full effect, Sherman said, "the sweep-up process of a complete naval blockade" will then be in order.

The Navy chief testified about MacArthur's armistice views after Sen. H. Alexander Smith, R-N.J., brought up the disputed issue of who first considered the possibility that UN forces might be driven out of Korea.

MacArthur has said it was the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Administration testimony in places left the inference it was MacArthur.

In December MacArthur was operating under the pressure of heavy Chinese communist attacks which had forced the UN armies into retreat. He expressed his armistice views to Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, who was visiting his headquarters. Collins relayed them to the other military chiefs here, Sherman said, in a message on Dec. 4.

Russians Claim TV Invention; Solving Color

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Russians claimed today that they invented television and gave it to the people.

In addition, the Russians say they are now "solving" the problems of color television, Red style.

The latest Russian claims were broadcast over Radio Moscow's home service—the one that goes to the Soviet peoples rather than foreigners.

"That's just bunk," snapped one radio official here. "The father of TV was a German. America has more TV transmitters and receivers than Russia—and, unfortunately, we have not one but two color systems."

U. N. Army Nearer

Permanent Global Armed Force For Maintaining Peace Gets Fresh Impetus Over Russian Veto; Drawbacks Of Plan For Korea; An Impersonal Pledge Needed

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Exponents of peace will get encouragement from the indications that the project of creating a permanent United Nations army for global emergencies is receiving fresh impetus.

This plan, which was put forward by the United States last autumn, was approved by the U. N. General Assembly after Russia had vetoed the proposal in the Security Council. The veto doesn't operate in the assembly.

The idea back of this proposal was that the existence of such an army might deter communism from fresh efforts to expand by force, and that if the Reds did continue aggression, the Democracies would have a better defense ready.

Since approval of the project there has been no further move to implement it until now, when Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the U. N., has announced that Washington, soon will reveal the nature of its contribution to this United Nations global emergency force. With this lead, other countries may be expected to announce their own intentions.

Big Tax Bite Faces Utilities Revenue

Proposed Temporary Tax To Cost Local Plant Over $30,000 Annually; Commission Meets To Voice Opposition

The temporary three and one-third percent tax on all public power which was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee last week would entail a decrease of over $30,000 a year in revenue by the Greenville Utilities.

And today the Utilities Commission was urged by the North Carolina League of Municipalities to go on record opposing the tax.

The League informed the commission here that the Ways and Means Committee had sent to the floor of the House an amendment that would nourish the national treasury by an additional $14,000,000 annually from the nation's public power outlets. The tax would apply only to domestic and commercial consumers and not to industrial consumers. At the present time only privately owned utilities are taxed.

After being informed by the League, the Commission today met to go on record opposing the tax. Martin Swartz, utilities superintendent, stated this morning that the excise tax would mean a cutting the gross revenue of the utilities by more than $30,000 a year. At the present time the gross is around $100,000 per month, he said.

"The municipalities in North Carolina through the League of Municipalities in Raleigh have joined and become a part of the American Public Power Association in Washington opposing this amendment and doing everything possible to help it from being put into effect," he said.

The commission intends to send telegrams to Congressman Bob Doughton, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and to Congressman Herbert Bonner and Senators Hoey and Smith to oppose the amendment when it comes up for a vote.

However, Swartz said, "It is believed in Washington that the amendment won't go back to the committee for consideration."

"In the meantime all the telegrams we can get to Representative Doughton will be helpful," he said.

The annual increase of $14,000,000 through the tax would come from about 40 percent of the nation's power manufacturers,

Swartz pointed out. That is the percentage of the total power manufactured by public or municipal power plants such as the utilities in Greenville, he said.

"When you consider that one of the principal public power projects in the country (TVA) is bigger than Duke Power Company, Carolina Power and Light Company and Virginia Electric and Power Company put together, that's a lot of income," he said.

According to information received by the Greenville commission, the reason the amendment was not made public while it was being considered in the committee was because it didn't originate there. Instead it was sent to Ways and Means from the administration, Swartz said.

Also opposing the tax is the National League of Municipalities of which the North Carolina League is a member, and the New York Port Authority. The National League is a member organization of the American Public Power Association located in Washington, D. C.

If the tax is approved by both houses of Congress, it will mark the first time such a tax has been imposed. During the 1920s there was a move to impose a similar tax on public power outlets, but it was eliminated. Instead the tax remained on private companies.

Judge Acquits Atom Scientist

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff today acquitted atomic scientist David J. Bohm of a charge of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

In making the decision, Holtzoff suggested that Congress enact a law to provide immunity from prosecution for witnesses who otherwise might keep silent for fear of incriminating themselves.

Bohm, who worked at the radiation laboratory at Berkeley, Calif., during World War II, was the 15th person freed of contempt of Congress charges in district court here this year.

Memorial Day Is Relatively Safe

Record Low In Traffic Toll; Accidents Fatal To 116

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The nation's celebration of Memorial Day appears to have been one of the safest since the end of World War II.

The death toll in violent accidents—116—was one of the lowest for a single Memorial Day holiday in several years.

A new record low was set in the traffic death toll. The 71 killed on the highways was far below the National Safety Council's estimate of 110.

The Safety Council, noting that the toll was running below the estimate yesterday, termed the record "a marvelous achievement." Millions were on the highways for the season's first holiday outing.

The lowest traffic toll on a single major holiday since World War II was 93 on New Year's Day, 1946. Yesterday's traffic toll is not comparable to the 1950 figure as that year was counted as part of a four-day holiday. The staggering total in the four-day period was 560, including 340 traffic fatalities.

In addition to the 71 traffic deaths yesterday, 28 persons drowned and 17 others lost their lives in miscellaneous violent accidents.

Wild Plunge In N. Y. Price War Continues Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Department store prices plunged to new lows within minutes after store eager shoppers scrambled for bargains in the city's biggest price war in decades.

Macy's sold "easily 400" $46.50 Mixmasters in the first 45 minutes of business for a "bottle priced" $29.69. Normal business 10 a day. Toastmasters, fought down to $15.00 from the usual $28, sold just as fast.

Stores called out their sales force reserves to handle the bargain hunters as merchants predicted a long war and even lower prices before the big stores give up the fight touched off by the Supreme Court's "fair trade" decision last week.

Premier Seeks Confidence Vote

TEHRAN (UP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh asked a closed session of parliament today for a vote of confidence on his handling of the Anglo-Iranian oil crisis.

He was understood to have told the deputies that he would stand by the decision to proceed at once with the nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company despite British protests.

He said any changes in the nationalization law would be up to the deputies.

Battle Losses

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Defense Department today released a new total of 67,427 American battle casualties in Korea, an increase of 611 over the total reported one week ago.

Urgent Need For Rooms To House New Students

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College made an urgent appeal today to the people of Greenville to rent rooms to college boys and girls.

The president of the college estimated some 400 to 500 students who want to attend ECC next fall will not be able to do so unless housing facilities can be found for them in private homes of Greenville.

In a statement to the people of Greenville, Dr. Messick said: "The dormitories for men and women at East Carolina College are filled. Therefore, we need your help. Please notify the office of Dean Leo W. Jenkins if you will accept roomers beginning September 3. To assure their staying a given time you could enter into a contract. We are handicapped greatly because of the lack of dormitory facilities, and if we accommodate the people who have and are making application to come,

Urgent Need For Rooms To House New Students

your assistance will be essential. "You people in Greenville have responded marvelously heretofore, and your continued assistance is necessary to the continued growth of the college."

Although East Carolina College has sufficient classroom facilities to accommodate approximately 3,000 students, it has dormitory space for only 1,100 students. During the regular winter, fall and spring terms this year, there were approximately 400 ECC students who found living quarters off the campus.

The college admissions office already has accepted for admission next fall of approximately 50 men, students and 75 women students for whom no dormitory space is available on the campus. And, according to Dr. Messick, more and more applications for admission are being received daily by the college.

Award Diplomas Friday Evening

The third part of the Greenville High School commencement program will be held tomorrow night in the Robert Wright auditorium of East Carolina college when 87 seniors will receive diplomas.

The speakers at the graduation exercises will be Rodney Fulcher and Margaret Fleming, graduating seniors. The subject of their speeches will be "Our Crisis".

Music on the program will include the band playing the Processional, "God of Our Fathers" and "Hymn of Freedom"; the girl's glee club singing "Echoes of Our Song"; the mixed chorus and alumni singing "Send Forth Thy Spirit"; and a girls trio composed of Barbara, Carolyn Clapp, and Mary Ann Waldrop singing "Clair de Lune".

After announcements and remarks by J. H. Rose, diplomas will be awarded to the seniors by J. B. James, chairman of the Board of Trustees, and O. E. Dowd, principal of Greenville High School.

First Train Ride Wasn't So Much

HARRISBURG, Ill. —(UP)—Mrs. Nancy Robinson, 100, had "always wanted to take a train ride," but it didn't seem like much when she finally did.

She celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday by riding the 32 miles from Carmi to Harrisburg, Ill., on a train.

Afterwards she shrugged. "It was no worse than walking across the street," she said.

Ernest T. Gray Jr. Funeral Held Today

Ernest T. Gray Jr., 25, died early Wednesday morning as a result of burns sustained when the house in which he was sleeping was consumed by fire. He was living with his brother, Elmer Gray, and his family about two miles from Roper. Several members of the family received severe burns and are in the hospital in Plymouth.

Funeral services were conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Thursday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev. Walter B. Nobles, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, and burial was in the Winterville cemetery. Members of the Charles Gray Morgan Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, presented full military honors at the grave.

E. T. Jr., son of the late Ernest T. and Sarah Stocks Gray, was born, reared and spent most of his life in Pitt County. He attended school at Winterville and Falkland, and was a veteran of World War II, serving in the European Theatre. He had been living with his brother near Roper and had been engaged in farming.

Surviving are five brothers, Willie Gray of near Fountain, Thurman Gray of Winterville, Raymond Gray of Farmville, Burnis Gray of near Belvoir, and Elmer Gray of near Roper; and five sisters, Mrs. Sam L. Flake of near Belvoir, Mrs. Roy Wade of near Tarboro, Miss Ruby Gray of Raleigh, Mrs. Eddie Langley of near Greenville, and Mrs. Ray Crawford of near Winterville.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Conklin of Montclair, New Jersey, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet, to Mr. James Edward Rodgers of Greenville.

Miss Conklin is a graduate of the Orange Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in Orange, New Jersey. She served four years with the Army Nurse Corps during World War II, 2 1/2 years being spent overseas in India. For the past year and a half she has been associated with the Dr. Smith Clinic in Greenville.

Mr. Rodgers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rodgers of Geneva, Alabama. He served in the United States Army for five years during World War II. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and for the last two years has been band director at Greenville high school.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Introduces Time Out For Cleaning

ST. PAUL, Minn. —(AP)—A three minute intermission after the fifth inning to allow for servicing of the infield was introduced by St. Paul of the American Association. None of the players take their positions during this clean up process.

General Manager Mel Jones of St. Paul, who devised this scheme, says it also gives fans time to leave their seats without missing any of the game.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. H. N. Stallings

Mrs. Norma Mills Stallings, 52, wife of Henry N. Stallings of near Greenville, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after six days of critical illness. Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Friday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. Walter B. Nobles, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, and burial will be in the Laughing-house family cemetery near Cox's Mill.

Mrs. Stallings, daughter of the late Mrs. Ada Mills and Ed Mills of near Ayden, was born and reared in the Cox's Mill community, and spent all her life in Pitt County. She was a member of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband; a son, Henry N. Stallings Jr. of the home; her father; four sisters, Mrs. Leila Mills and Mrs. Heber Stocks of Cox's Mill community, Mrs. Bryan Scott of Stokestown, and Mrs. Thomas Sawyer of Ayden; and four brothers, Grover Mills of Cox's Mill community, Oscar Mills of Ayden, Thelbert Mills of Stokestown, and Arthur Mills of the Bell's Fork community.

Fifteen Traffic Violation Cases Heard In Court

Judge J.W.H. Roberts put the pressure on in Police Court on Wednesday in support of the Greenville police in enforcing the various traffic laws. Fifteen of the 18 cases on the docket for trial were for traffic violations. Two of the 15 traffic violators were not guilty.

Solicitor Eli Bloom, back from New York, vigorously prosecuted the violation cases.

Roland Lee Jones Jr., colored, failure to stop at a "stop" sign, was given 60 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $100 for the use of R. D. Sumrell and pay court costs. Matthew T. Morris, colored, hit-and-run driving, involved in the other case, was given 60 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $75 for the use of R. D. Sumrell and pay court costs.

James M. Williams was not guilty of reckless driving.

John A. Vines was not guilty of failing to give signal.

No operator's license: Lemane Miller, colored, $25 and costs; Luther Puryear, $25 and costs. Puryear also paid $15 for failure to stop at a "stop" sign.

Ed Fleming, colored, paid $10 and costs for not having proper license.

Speeding: Charles H. Harrell and Edward A. Venters, each paid $20; Square Barrett and Charlie Wooten, both colored, each paid $20.

Walter Ray Evans paid $15 for passing another vehicle at an intersection. Leroy White also paid $15 for a similar violation.

Jessie Mae Stancill, colored, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, six months in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $300. She gave notice of appeal.

Henry McLawhorn, colored, 30 days in jail or pay $15 for being drunk.

Manuel Moore, colored, non-support of an illegitimate child, three months on the roads, sentence suspended on condition that he pay court costs and pay $7.50 a week to the welfare office for support of his children.

Boat On Display Tomorrow

Students of the Greenville High School vocational classes are shown around the 18-foot cruiser sedan which has been built by the work shop classes conducted by the school at the old NYA center. The boat will be on display on the courthouse lawn Friday morning. Construction on the boat was begun last spring under the direction of E. F. Windley of the high school faculty. It is 18 feet long, six feet, 10 inches wide and has a draught of 18 inches. It is powered with a jeep engine.

N. C. Merchants Hold Meeting

Greenville was well represented at the 49th annual convention of the North Carolina Merchants Association at Battery Park Hotel, Asheville, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Erroll Webb, president of the Greenville Merchants Association, on his return here yesterday afternoon, said the convention was regarded as one of the best in years.

W. S. Wolfe of Mount Airy was elected president of the state association, succeeding Jacob Winstead of Rocky Mount.

Cora S. Powell, executive secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association, was given special recognition for her 13 years' service as executive secretary and received an emblem pin.

The Greenville association won second place in the attendance prize contest—$25.

John G. Clark of Greenville, director of the state office of Price Stabilization at Raleigh, appeared in the program and participated in the panel discussion on OFS.

Executive Secretary Powell said former Senator William B. Umstead's address on "The State of the Union" was the highlight of the convention.

Those attending the convention from Greenville were President Erroll Webb and Mrs. Webb, L. S. Garris, Judson H. Blount and Mrs. Blount, John G. Clark, Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, Mrs. Ruby Lum, Johnny Cassick and Mrs. Cassick and Executive Secretary Cora S. Powell.

Humber Talks To Future Seniors

R. L. Humber spoke to 128 Greenville High School students who graduated this morning from junior high school to senior high school.

Humber was introduced by Sam Winchester, president of the freshman class, and he addressed the students on the challenge that faces them. Preceding the address, the ninth grade students marched into the auditorium to the Processional and the entire audience sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

The invocation was given by Bobby Langston, followed by the junior high quartet singing "Kentucky Babe." O. E. Dowd called the roll of the graduates and J. H. Rose accepted them.

Other music on the program was given by the junior high chorus who sang "May Day Carol" and "In the Time of Roses"; Sylvia Rogers sang a solo, "God Touched the Rose," and the high school band played "The Star Spangled Banner" with the audience singing.

Texas and Florida are large producers of cabbage for fresh use.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
THE DOOR
 Not long ago I sat in the house of a friend and asked him casually, "What's behind that door over there? I've never seen you open it."
 "I don't know," he replied. "I never have opened it. Some people have said that there is a very great treasure behind it. Others have warned me of a harsh, unpleasant experience if I try to pass through it. And a few have insisted that there is really nothing behind it at all but an empty and useless space. I've lived here for more than thirty years without opening it, and I don't suppose that I ever will."
 This man was not, by normal standards, crazy. For the door about which I asked him was not an ordinary door, but the door in his life that leads to religion. The answer he gave was the same answer that many people would have to give, if they were asked about their religion, for they have never really looked into it.
 We would laugh at a man who lived beside a large, very beautiful park but who had never been in it. We ought not to laugh at but to pity those who have never tried life's greatest source of spiritual power, of love and understanding, of happiness, joy, and peace.

What's Under The Swimming Pool?

The Greenville swimming pool should be kept closed until it is absolutely safe for the children of the city.
 State and county sanitarians have ordered the pool kept closed until they are sure the conditions at the pool have been remedied so the city sewerage line can not back up into the pool as it has done during the past winter. But there is another factor to be considered in addition to the sanitary aspect of the swimming pool.
 Is the pool now structurally safe for the children of Greenville?
 The pressure from the clogged sewerage system caused enough force on a portion of the bottom of the pool to lift a large section of the concrete bottom several inches. When the pressure was relieved the concrete slab settled back to an almost normal position. But now, what is under the slab which was forced up by the sewerage pressure?
 When the pool is filled with tons of water, if there is a cavity under the concrete slab, the slab may break, and the water would rush out as if a tremendous stopper were pulled from the oversized bath tub. Any person in the pool at the time would literally be sucked down the drain.
 The pool is acutely needed by the city as an important recreational facility during the coming summer months; but much as it is needed, it should not be put into use until the engineers and the sanitarians are positive it is safe.
 When the extent of the necessary repairs can be determined, the city officials and the recreation commission must decide what action is to be taken.

Shifting Sands In The World's Balance

The strength of the anti-communist sentiment in the Italian municipal elections last week-end has brought new hopes to the Western allies that the Europeans who have tested a portion of communism are ready to shed the cloak before it becomes a straight jacket.
 Before the week-end elections, the communists and left-wing socialists had controlled 641 of the 1,476 Italian municipalities under 3,000 population. When the dust cleared from the week-end balloting the communist and the left wingers held control of only 202 of the municipalities.
 The anti-communist feeling which is surging to the fore is not necessarily accompanied by a pro-allied feeling of the same magnitude. The pro-allied attitude is increasing, but along with the anti-communist sentiment, there is rising a movement for complete independence of the conquerors either from the east or the west, and a deep seated surge of nationalism.
 Just as the attitude of the people of Italy is becoming more anti-communist, although not too much more pro-allied, the feeling of the people of the Middle Eastern countries is following the opposite trend.
 The people in Iran, Egypt and other Middle Eastern countries apparently are building up, with the aid of communist propaganda, an anti-western attitude, although they are not any more favorably impressed with the pro-communist movement than they have been in the past.

 The lines are clearly drawn between the major camps of democracy and freedom, and communism and slavery. Both the communist and the democratic camps are watching intently the trends in the smaller nations which hold the balance of power in world affairs.

Polishing Up The Finer Points

The crackdown the city police have taken on the Greenville motorists for violating minor traffic laws is justly deserved although too long postponed.
 If the city police are successful in eliminating a large number of the minor traffic violations, they will eventually eliminate the causes of a large number of the minor traffic accidents.
 In the city recorder's court yesterday there were fifteen cases in which the defendants were charged with traffic violations. The violations consisted of speeding, failing to stop at a "stop" sign, passing at an intersection and other offenses. They may be small items, but they are the careless actions which cause thousands of dollars worth of property damage in the city every year. In some instances the minor violations have been responsible for traffic deaths.
 Some citizens are viewing with an air of indifference and even contempt the campaign of the Greenville police department against these minor traffic violations. But the campaign is being conducted for the public safety. It is one which the police department should carry on constantly.

News Behind The News
 By RAY TUCKER
 WASHINGTON—Big, booming "Bob" Kerr, the multimillionaire oil magnate from Oklahoma, now admits that he spearheaded the Administration's attack on General Douglas MacArthur solely out of his fear of the dismissed commander's plans for military use of the National Guard Division from the Senator's home state.
 His frank confession of his angry protests to Army Secretary Frank Pace Jr. against permitting a theater commander to employ troops as battle conditions necessitated, is regarded as one of the most amazing demonstrations of political pressure on the Pentagon since World War II, when Henry L. Stimson fought off similar demands almost every day, as he once told this writer.
 INTERFERENCE—The Kerr pressure on Secretary Pace assumes unusual importance in view of the fact that Mr. Pace was the official sent to Tokyo by President Truman to serve the dismissal notice on General MacArthur. It suggests that the political factors raised by the Oklahoma Senator were partially responsible for the ouster.
 It is pointed out here that, if every Senator indulged in the same sort of interference on behalf of National Guard divisions from his state, the U. S. Army would fall under the control of the politicians instead of the military experts. Indeed, the Kerr-Pace incident suggests that it has happened already.
 DETRACTORS—Before giving the Kerr admission in detail from his own lips in an address before the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Oklahoma, it should be noted that Senators Kerr and Brian McMahon of Connecticut have been General MacArthur's chief detractors on Capitol Hill.
 Senator Kerr, significantly, was chosen by Democratic National Chairman Boyle to deliver the principal speech at the party's recent Denver rally. He again gloried in his part in MacArthur's ouster.
 It is also interesting that both Senators Kerr and McMahon are angling shamelessly for a vice-presidential nomination next year. They have deposited all their personal, political and ambitious eggs in the Truman basket.
 BCASTE—"I was the first official I know of," Senator Kerr boasts, "to publicly express a lack of confidence in MacArthur and in his effort to expand the war."
 His concern over MacArthur's strategy, he continued, began when Oklahoma's 45th National Guard Division was ordered to Japan to replace the units which had been dispatched from there to Korea.
 Senator Kerr said that he rushed to the Pentagon to inquire about the 45th division's future assignment. He expressed concern that the 45th might be broken up and used as replacements in Korea.
 When he was assured by Mr. Pace that the Oklahoma men would be retained as a separate unit insofar as Washington could determine, the Senator asked: "Is there anybody who can change this plan?"
 "Nobody but the theater commander," replied the Secretary of the Army.
 AUTHORITY—After this assurance, Senator Kerr said he read of the MacArthur plan for more aggressive action against the Reds in Korea, and through possible use of Chiang Kai-shek's troops on the mainland. He feared that the Pace promise to keep the Oklahoma troops out of combat might be overruled by the "theater commander."
 "Then it was," concluded Senator Kerr, "that I sounded off regarding MacArthur's policies. . . . You know, my fellow-Oklahomans, thank God we've got a democracy in which the civilian authority is in control of the military. And under no circumstances must we permit that to change!"
 Five other National Guard divisions have been federalized, meaning that their disposition is supposed under the control of the military experts at Washington and the "theater commanders"—Eisenhower in Europe and Ridgway in Korea.
 But, so far as is known, Senator Kerr is the only man on Capitol Hill who has insisted on telling the Pentagon how, where or when these units may be used.

MEANINGLESS—House Ways and Means Committee Democrats' last-minute action on boosting individual income tax rates saved them from political outsmarting by their Republican opposition. The incident furnishes further evidence that the 1951 Revenue Bill amounts to a meaningless compromise.
 President Truman asked for a 4 point percentage increase in all surtax brackets. This did not mean a 4 per cent increase, however, as generally understood. Raising the rate from 20 to 24 per cent, as he proposed, meant a 20 per cent boost.
 Democratic members originally cut the presidential 4 to 3 percentage points, which meant a 15 per cent increase for low-income groups. The Republicans' proposal for a straight 10 per cent increase was defeated. Only belatedly did the majority realize that they were playing into their opponents' hands.
 So, at a secret conference after informal adoption of these rates, the Democrats agreed on a 12 1/2 per cent increase. This is still higher than the GOP alternative, but 7 1/2 less than Mr. Truman's request.
 It is extremely doubtful that the latest revision will produce the $2,900,000,000 expected to result from increases on individual incomes. Secretary Snyder warns that major revenue in the future must come from people making $5,000 or less a year. But there are too many voters in those categories for the legislators to hurt before the 1952 election.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
 It seldom happens, but last night wife Rachel and I embarked into a deep discussion on the word "Capitalism." The discussion got underway after I read that Americans are using this term less in referring to our system, and substituting such terms as "free enterprise," "the American way of life," and "democracy."
 The reason that we are using this term less is that Moscow propaganda has lambasted the word at every opportunity, just as we kick Communism.
 The Reds say that capitalism is "a system resulting in the concentration of capital or wealth in the hands of a few and at the expense of the masses." Also, the Reds say that in order to further our greedy aims, we are bent on bringing about another war.
 So the Reds have run down the name of our economic system to the extent that even in Washington it is hardly used.
 Businessmen carefully avoid the word, and substitute the terms mentioned above.
 All of these terms are good, but they are not synonymous for capitalism. You know only too well that we as Americans shouldn't let the Reds pull any such deal on us. The thing to do, naturally, is to meet the issue head on. Let's explain what capitalism is and what it has done.
 Capitalism, the American brand, implies mass production, a high standard of living and social welfare. The Detroit assembly line makes it possible for Americans, representing only seven per cent of the world's population, to own more than 75 per cent of the world's automobiles. That's capitalism. We own half of the world's radios, 35 per cent of the world's railroad mileage, nearly 60 per cent of the world's telephones, more refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and household gadgets than all other people combined. That's capitalism.
 Almost every American is at least a minor capitalist. The man who owns one share of stock is to that extent a capitalist. The snare or such corporations as General Motors, A.T. & T., U.S. Steel and the Pennsylvania Railroad are held, not by a handful of Wall Street millionaires, but by millions of average Americans.
 The average Russian lives in a dingy room, with no gadgets, often with only a single electric light bulb, with a bathroom that he must share with four or five other families, and with always the threat of the secret police hanging over his head. The average American lives in a comfortable home, complete with every convenience, and in many luxuries, free to do as he pleases.
 Not only did capitalism enable us to win WW II, but since the war it has given us the surplus to send to Europe and Asia. And I thank you.

 CONVENTIONS—North Carolinians are famed for the number of conventions they attend. It is becoming increasingly difficult to find communities with hotel and auditorium facilities to care for them all. Some Tarheel organizations have to go to Myrtle Beach or Virginia Beach for meetings, simply because no community in North Carolina can promise adequate quarters. Several conventions this year have been scheduled much later than desired, because accommodations had been booked. The North Carolina Press Association, for instance, will hold its meeting at Wrightsville Beach the middle of August. Last year it met at Asheville in June. Not so many years ago beach resorts closed down around Labor Day. This year the state Young Democratic Clubs convention is set for Carolina Beach September 15.
 SPECULATION—There are about a dozen different organizations of newspaper folks in this state, and several others of national or regional scope to which Tarheel editors and publishers belong. Heading the list is the North Carolina Press Association, with branches for dailies and non-dailies. Affiliated with this state association are three regional groups—the Eastern N. C. Press Association, the Western N. C. Press Association, and the Mid-western N. C. Press Association. Then there are special groups less directly affiliated with NCPA, such as the Associated Press Club, the N. C. Association of women and the press photographers group and others. Then there are American and Southern newspaper publishers and National Editorial associations. Similar breakdown into special groups is found among the merchants. The N. C. Merchants Association is made up of numerous local bodies and some individuals, and has affiliated food dealers hardware dealers, furniture merchants, druggists, credit bureaus, and so on almost indefinitely. Some of these groups meet in connection with the big state convention, but many of them have separate meetings at other times and places. Membership ranges from about twenty to more than a thousand.
 HOTELS—For some of the conventions large auditoriums are required, but the real problem is hotel accommodations. Asheville is probably the only point in the state with both meeting hall and hotel room for a several day convention of more than two thousand attendees. The William Neal Reynolds coliseum at Raleigh with seating capacity in excess of twelve thousand is big enough to house almost any national convention. That building would adequately take care of the national Democratic convention next summer; but there are not enough hotel accommodations in the Raleigh area to sleep and feed the ten thousand extra people expected to attend. In fact, there are probably not more than a dozen hotels in the United States with hotel space to care for such crowds in addition to the normal run of business, and some of them do not have convention hall space equal to the coliseum on the State College campus.
 ABSURD—Governor Scott also this week announced appointment of a judge and a solicitor for the High Point recorder's court, as required by statute.
 The statutes provide for several other local judicial and administrative officials by the governor. For many years the governor has named the mayor and governing boards of several towns. That is obviously absurd. In the first place, it denies to citizens of those communities the right to select their own officials. In the second place, it imposes upon the governor—whose responsibility is to the whole state—an undue burden in canvassing the field for suitable local appointees. Your reporter has first hand knowledge that Governor Kerr Scott, just like Governors Clyde Hoy, Melville Broughton and Greg Cherry, not only does not like to have this extra work thrust upon him, but he resents the implication that the citizens of these communities are incapable of local self government.
 NEEDED—With travel dollars, including the casual tourist, the vacationer and the convention attendant, now counted in the three hundred million class, the state agencies concerned with further promotion of this business recognize the greatest need as additional hotel room. One spokesman for the state advertising division remarked that it might be possible to rent a circus tent for the "big meeting," but it wouldn't be nice to make the visitors sleep on the ground and eat out of tin cans by the roadside.
 It would be a rare thing, indeed if the alrmen spotted a one-hump camel being used by the Reds in Korea. Old one-humpers is common to North Africa, not Asia.
 Allied ground forces have never found a camel or a camel's carcass. But there is nothing significant about that because Allied ground forces are not operating as far north as the alrmen.
 The Air Force first reported spotting camels Dec. 9. Lt. Norman Burner of De Moines, Ia., leading a flight of F-80 jets, strafed a Red convoy northeast of Pyongyang and reported knocking off eight camels.
 Since that time alrmen have reported swooping down on many camels in various Red supply arteries of North Korea. Some of the ungainly beasts were seen hauling artillery pieces—the Air Force insisted.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(Wilson Daily Times)
 In America and particularly in the South where per capita earnings have been low, patent medicines of all sorts have thrived. Is it any wonder, for did they not promise to cure anything from tuberculosis to female disorders? In the backwoods where the diets have been lean and where as a consequence all sorts of diseases have made headway, why not try any nostrum that offered relief? If the medicine contained enough alcohol, and most did, it was even more deadly to some extent. It led many to write flamboyant testimonials, announcing cures of miraculous sorts.
 Now, according to the food and drug administration of the national government, all that must stop. If the patent medicines possessing virtues really have those virtues, they must exploit those and those only. It may help for it tends to protect the innocent, those who're inclined to try anything to get relief from various diseases. But what would help most would be a program of education. Medicine can neither nor ever take the place of surgery. And it's surgery that many of these people need. That means, then, clinics and hospitals in their areas.
 The patent medicine business is far different now from what it was 50 years ago. Part of it can be traced to the improvement of medical standards to bettered sanitation and to higher per capita earnings. As we lift up the bottom still more, we'll reduce the usage of patent medicines still more. For while we may need vitamins of all sorts, we need them only as prescribed, not in general doses. As people come to realize that, we'll get rid of much of the quackery that the nation has known in the past. Indeed, we may even reach the point where we'll dispense with medicines altogether, relying strictly on correct living for good health.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Court hearings will begin next week on an appeal from the Interstate Commerce Commission's order increasing less-than-carload rates on furniture in the northeastern quarter of the United States. If the railroads win and the furniture industry loses, smaller furniture dealers will have to absorb the increases or pass them on to customers, which will put them at a disadvantage to larger dealers who can buy in carload lots.
 The higher rates affect only shipments starting from or ending in the area east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers. This will discourage southern and western dealers from buying small lots in the eastern territory.
 Furniture dealers have been paying the higher rates since May 8, but the added charges will be refunded if they win in court. If they lose, the rates will become permanent.
 The spread between less-than-carload and carload rates is "tremendous," says the National Retail Dry Goods Association, which has joined with the National Furniture Traffic Conference in taking the case to the courts. Some classes of furniture carry small increases but others, including chairs, sofas, buffets and mattresses will carry increases up to 100 per cent.
 The N. R. D. G. A., has sent a bulletin to members, suggesting:
 1. Buying in carload lots whenever possible.
 2. When practical, join other stores in pooling shipments to gain carload rates.
 3. Compare new rates with rates by truck.
 4. Consider using the services of freight forwarding companies, which are not increasing their furniture rates.
 Some stores may not be able to pass along the increases. Only those using the alternative pricing method contained in Supplemental Regulation 2 to C.R.P. can avoid absorption of the increases if the railroads win the suit, the N.R.D.G.A. bulletin says.
 APRIL SALES OFF IN THREE GROUPS
 Only three categories of retail stores did a smaller sales volume in April than a year earlier, the Office of Business Economics reports. They were the home furnishings, apparel, and general merchandise groups.
 Total sales of all retail stores were 4 per cent higher than a year ago but, after adjustment for seasonal factors, were 3 per cent lower than in March.
 BILLS WOULD SHINK PARCEL POST SIZES
 Legislation which would hit some business men harder than coming increases in postal rates has been introduced in Congress by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) and Congressman M. G. Brunsie (D., W. Va.). Their bills would reduce the size of parcel post packages from 100 to 72 1/2 inches, and from 70 to 40 pounds in Zones 1 and 2 and from 70 to 20 pounds in other zones, except for parcels going to or from rural areas.
 This would throw many classes of shipments out of parcel post and into more expensive forms of transport. It would be a rich bonanza for express companies, railroads and truckers. It would severely limit shipments of merchandise to stores or from stores to customers. It would put stores served by first and second class post offices at a great disadvantage to those served by third or fourth class offices.
 Retailers can count on the big mail order houses carrying the brunt of the fight against the bills.
 STORE CAN'T GIVE $30 REFUNDS BACK
 A Rochester, N. Y., store failed in an effort to give money away. It cut the price of a television set $30 and offered to refund that sum to all customers who had bought the same set at the higher price on the previous day. Nobody claimed the refund.
 It may indicate that families that buy TV sets thereupon stop reading TV ads.
 SUGAR PRICES REVERSE TREND
 While other commodities have been showing signs of weakness, sugar prices have been rising. Refined cane has gone up to 8 1/2 cents a pound in the New York market and some dealers are predicting a 9-cent price.

 SIGNS: A line of 20 store signs consisting of printed messages laminated between sheets of Vinylite plastic, with bases shaped so they stand on counters, is being produced in three color combinations (by Malco Plastics, 2314 Bulgrave Ave., Baltimore 9). Messages, such as "Liberal credit terms," and "Please carry small packages" have applications in most stores.
 INK: A non-corrosive, non-etching stamping ink for aluminum, magnesium, stainless steel and other metals is being offered for industrial use by Organic Products Co., P. O. Box 463, Irving Texas.
 FILTER: An air purifying device, originally designed for the Atomic Energy Commission to eliminate radioactive particles from the air, is now being made (by a subsidiary of Carrier Corp., N. Y.) for plants and laboratories requiring dust-free air.
 PLAYHOUSE: A children's playhouse, five and one-half feet high, 8 feet long and 4 feet wide is being made of Vinylite plastic film (by Doughboy Industries, New Richmond, Wis). It can be set up indoors or out and can be folded away into a 4 by 4 by 50 inch carton.
 MODULAR: Modular office equipment, consisting of a desk and a variety of sectional units that interlock, was displayed at the National Office Management Association show in New York (by Globe-Wernicke Co., Cincinnati 12, Ohio) Sections can be arranged to fit available space.
 TRAY: A new plastic tray for closet doors has been designed as a receptacle for the things a man empties out of his pockets at night. These compartments for coins, keys, pens, billfold, watch etc. (It is by Alexander Herit Co., 94-15 69th Ave., Forest Hills, N. Y.)
 NEW AND HOT
 PILLOW: For people who like to carry pillows with them, there is a new one with a handle attached. It is made in a number of decorative fabrics by Edson, Inc., 2760 S. Kedzie St., Chicago.
 INSPECTOR: A new device for low castings consists of a thin hollow tube with an eye-piece on one end and a tiny light and mirror set at an angle on the other end. It's called a Borescope by Testa Mfg. Co., 418 S. Pecan St., Los Angeles 33.
 SUBSTITUTE: A non-woven fabric and latex cloth, said to look, feel and absorb water like chamois, wear longer and cost less, is being tested in the Chicago market by Miracloth Corp., 400 West Madison St., Chicago.

Hal Boyle's Column

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
 (For Hal Boyle)
 SOMEWHERE IN KOREA—(AP)—Some guys are stumped by a camel's humps. They say there isn't any such critter in the Korean war. But the Air Force disagrees.
 Cross our hearts and hope to die, we've seen 'em and even counted the humps (two), the pilots report. Navy fighter pilots recently backed up the Air Force's argument.
 The Navy fliers reported they picked off two camels near Hungnam, on the east coast of North Korea. It was another rebuff for the skeptics who have been arguing since December that the fly boys are merely too eager, that they mistake bundles on other animals for camel humps.
 One Infantry general even cast a sly wink at the sky and commented: "I wish the Air Force would send me a camel—I've always wanted one as a pet."
 But whether you believe in camels or not, the truth remains they are the most fascinating targets of the U. S. Fifth Air Force. They easily outrank oxen, oxcarts and bicycles.
 The pilot who returns to base and says, "I got me a camel today," instantly wins the attention of the briefing officer. "Yeah?" says the briefing officer. "How many humps?"
 "Two," says the pilot. "I counted them."
 It would be a rare thing, indeed if the alrmen spotted a one-hump camel being used by the Reds in Korea. Old one-humpers is common to North Africa, not Asia.
 Allied ground forces have never found a camel or a camel's carcass. But there is nothing significant about that because Allied ground forces are not operating as far north as the alrmen.
 The Air Force first reported spotting camels Dec. 9. Lt. Norman Burner of De Moines, Ia., leading a flight of F-80 jets, strafed a Red convoy northeast of Pyongyang and reported knocking off eight camels.
 Since that time alrmen have reported swooping down on many camels in various Red supply arteries of North Korea. Some of the ungainly beasts were seen hauling artillery pieces—the Air Force insisted.
 But the Infantry still isn't convinced.
 WASHINGTON Letter
 WASHINGTON — Mrs. Lottie Webster, telephone operator who came to the capital from Potomac, Pa., back in 1919, today presides over the biggest non-military government switchboard in the world.
 As chief operator of the defense agencies' new telephone set-up, her number—Sterling 5-300—is the most frequently called civilian telephone in Washington. The business handled by her team of operators is second only to that of the Pentagon.
 Sterling 5-300 is the number you call to get the National Production Authority and the Defense Production Administration, which have to do with the allocation of critical defense materials like rubber, steel, copper, aluminum and such.
 Setting-up of the giant switchboard in the new General Accounting Office (GAO) building in less than four months is described by communications experts as a masterpiece of speed in engineering and production. Mrs. Webster, formerly chief operator of the old GAO switchboard, says the opening day was quite hectic, but things are beginning to smooth out.
 "We had 512 long distance calls the first day and some 12,000 local calls. Information was lit up like a Christmas tree, with some 6,000 calls coming through the 12 information positions."
 Only incoming calls are handled on the switchboard. The dial system is used for outgoing calls. There are about 5,000 extensions, each linked up with three to five telephones. When the system is in full operation there will be at least 20,000 phones on Sterling 5-300.
 The General Services Administration, housekeeping agency for Uncle Sam, had the custom-built switchboard set up in GAO shortly after the emergency caused a critical communications bottleneck. Three freight cars and five trailer trucks were used to transport the 120-ton board and equipment from the factory. 8

Soviet Concentration Camp Horrors Described By Witnesses At 'Trial'

BRUSSELS (UP)—Russians, Polish, German, Czech and Bulgarian witnesses unfolded a grim story of atrocities and slave labor in Soviet concentration camps at a week-long mock trial here sponsored by the International Committee against concentration camps.

Twenty-five former inmates of Soviet concentration camps recounted to seven judges sitting in the mock trial harrowing accounts of tortures, starvation, forced labor and banishment to Siberia.

The mock trial was organized by David Rousset, an anti-Communist. The seven judges, six men and a woman, will hand down their "judgment" Friday on the charges that Russia is operating concentration camps.

The court met in the gilded hall of the Egmont Palace. The Soviet Embassy was invited to take part in the defense, but declined. Communists in Brussels held a rally of former inmates of Nazi concentration camps during the trial and denounced the proceedings as "propaganda lies."

Chief Inspector of Soviet concentration camps from 1934 to 1941 Vladimir Andriev, 48, said that in 1940 some 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 persons were detained in 80 concentration camps in the Soviet Union. There may be more now, he said.

Andriev, a former Russian army officer, was captured by the Germans during the last war and decided not to return.

At one time, he said, the camp administration decided to shoot about 10 per cent of the inmates. Five thousand workers on a canal from the White Sea to the Baltic died because of labor conditions and poor safety precautions, he added.

Camille Dilluva, a Polish woman, told of being ordered to salt 6,000 salmon daily in Kolima camp. The salt ate her arms to the bone, she told the judges.

Russian Emigre Nicolai Antonov, 56, who came to testify from New York, said 700,000 persons died during the construction of the White Sea canal.

Czech witness Jean Sad described a camp in Czechoslovakia where the prisoners work in the mines. He said he saw thousands of dead prisoners piled up.

Dr. Igor Ratinos, who once lived in Kieve, said that in the Siberian camp of Vorkouta doctors were forbidden to list starvation as the cause of death. He said he saw a 108-year-old man sentenced to 10 years imprisonment in Siberia. He said that in a trainload of 2,000 prisoners shipped into camp, only 300 arrived alive.

Former Red Army Colonel Vassill Jerochov, 45, said he ran screening camps in eastern Germany for repatriating war prisoners. Only 25 percent of those returned were free citizens. The rest were sent to concentration camps, he said.

"We officers were turned into slave providers," he said. The officers had only to fill in a form to order execution without trial, he added.

Satellite Ground Forces Might Be Soviet Liability

LONDON (UP)—The communist satellite countries of eastern Europe have armies totalling between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 good fighting men, an authoritative review estimated today.

They are equipped with at least 2,000 tanks and are completely subordinated to Russia, according to the Chatham House Review of the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Despite their ground strength, the satellites have negligible air force and virtually no naval strength, the survey said. It added that their general military power continued to increase and that there has been a great increase in military expenditure.

The survey pointed out that these armies could possibly become a heavy liability to Russia in the event an initial communist attack were halted quickly by the West and the Eastern forces were thrown back behind the Iron Curtain.

"If the satellite armies, together with the Red Army, are able to sweep victoriously across western Europe, they can be expected to prove themselves efficient, armed forces," the Review said.

"If, however, they are defeated on the field of battle, and especially if compelled to withdraw across their own territories their resistance might be expected to collapse quickly.

"The spirit of militarism and absolute subordination to Soviet Russia prevails in all the satellite states.

The report said Poland and Czechoslovakia were expanding their air forces rapidly and were furnished with Russian jet fighters and modern bombers. The Russians were said to have stationed sizeable fighter forces in Eastern Germany and Poland, where they were under sole Russian command.

The satellites were said to have received substantial numbers of tanks from Russia in the past six months, with Bulgaria and Poland getting about 500 each.

Views Polar Hop As Simple Jaunt

NEW YORK (UP)—THARLES F. Blair Jr. first pilot to hop across the North Pole alone in a single-engine plane, viewed his flight today as a simple jaunt that airlines and Russians could follow with ease.

Blair, a handsome, 41-year-old airline chief pilot, completed his transpolar trip from Bardufoss, Norway to Fairbanks, Alaska, in 10 hours and 30 minutes.

He catnaped at Fairbanks yesterday, picked up a beef sandwich and flew non-stop to New York in 9 1/2 hours, explaining he was scheduled to return to work for Pan-American Airlines today.

"Flying over the North Pole is a rather easy feat," the haggard, sleep-eyed pilot said after being greeted by his attractive wife, Janice, and their 14-month-old son, Chris.

He said a commercial airline could operate across the frozen polar wastelands and "that goes for the Russians, too."

Blair's face was sunburned because the plexiglass canopy over his cockpit offered him little protection from rays of the midnight sun during his 3,400-mile flight from Bardufoss to Fairbanks.

"The Arctic is just about like other ocean," Blair said. "Up at 20,000 feet it was quite warm. In fact, I did not even have my cockpit heater on."

Varied Opinions On Longevity

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—Each of the three veterans attending the last Confederate reunion here is 105 years old, but they don't agree on the key to longevity.

W. D. Townsend, Olla, La., recommended "living a good life, learning about the Bible and marrying a good woman."

W. J. Bush, Fitzgerald, Ga., advised "keeping up with what's going on and living in the South."

John Salling, Slant, Va., cited "not worrying about things, hard work and drinking good liquor."

Couple Are Wed Without A Kiss

MOBILE, Ala. (UP)—Air Force Pfc. Raymond Randolph left last night for assignment in the Far East, leaving his 16-year-old bride in the hospital where they were married.

Randolph, of Brilliant, Ala., and Patricia Edwina Webb, Prichard, Ala., decided not to wait until he returned although she recently underwent a major eye operation. They said their vows in the hospital parlor here with off-duty nurses serving as attendants.

Surgeons would not even let the bride raise her head for the traditional kiss.

UN Leaders Can Ignore Laws And Taxes Of U.S.

By STANLEY JOHNSON
AP Newsfeatures

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—There are 503 persons here who are immune to American laws and taxes. They are the diplomats and their wives, representing 59 member countries at the U. N., who enjoy diplomatic immunity. This comes from agreements among governments to grant certain privileges to each other's diplomats.

U. S. representatives abroad have the same rights granted here to foreign diplomats.

Among other things, U. N. delegates and their families pay no New York City sales tax. They can not be arrested. They travel without visas and can bring anything they like into the country without customs peaking.

The latest State Department list shows that 50 of the 503 come from the Soviet Union and its satellites—36 from Russia, eight from Czechoslovakia and six from Poland.

Nationalist China claims immunity for 41 including the chief of its delegation, Dr. T. P. Tsiang, who faces a trial for bigamy if his immunity is ever withdrawn by U. N. recognition of the Communist Chinese regime.

Britain has 34 persons enjoying diplomatic immunity and France 32. Paraguay has the fewest—just two persons.

The United States delegation, which handles the problems of the immune diplomats with American authorities, says it has few difficulties except fixing traffic tickets.

Russia, an American spokesman said, is one of the few countries that has never asked for help in that line. Jacob A. Malik and his subordinates just pay up.

The situation got so complicated that about 18 months ago the New York Police Department issued an order forbidding officers to issue summons for cars tagged "U. N." followed by a number under 900.

Instead the cop, when he sees one of these cars double parked at a hydrant or speeding files a formal report with the department.

If the chief inspector thinks the case warrants it, he forwards the report to the U. S. delegation which takes the matter up with the offender's government on a diplomatic level.

To import liquor from home, the diplomat notifies the U. S. delegation how much, and what kind he wants. The delegation notifies the State Department in Washington which tells the Treasury Department which then orders customs to let it out of the bonded warehouse without-payment of duty.

STORE OF 1678 CLOSES
MARSHFIELD, Mass. (UP)—A general store that was nearly 100 years old when the American Revolution started has gone out of business. Established in 1678, Bartow's store closed when its space was needed to enlarge the local post office.

Harrison Twirls Five-Hit Ball To Chalk Up Victory

Robins Take Opener Against Tarboro By 7-1; Drop Nightcap By 6-5 Margin; Play Tobs In Twin Bill Here Tonight

Bobby Harrison twirled a five-hit ball last night to defeat the Tarboro Athletics, 7-1. He was extremely light in the clutches to effectively hamper the Tarboro batting power. The Robins pushed two runs across in the first inning to take the lead which they held throughout the game.

Fite Piestrak led the Greenville hitting with a perfect four for four. All of his hits were singles. Joe Guidice and Vince Lautato each had two hits in four times at bat.

Johnny Wolfe led the losers with two safeties. He collected a double in the fourth inning.

Harrison struck out seven men and walked four.

Tarboro won the second game of last night's doubleheader, 5-3.

Wilson's Tobacconists will come to Greenville for two games tonight.

Tight Pitching Marks Games In Little League

Charles Rumley threw a two-hit ball game against the Lions to defeat them eight to one. His Elks mates pounded out a barrage of hits that included four doubles and one home run.

The Elks won the game in the third inning when they scored three runs to go out in front by a 3-1 score. The runs were scored on singles by Stoneham and Harrington and a double by Ike Riddick. Two bases on balls aided them.

Rumley struck out five and walked only two in pitching the win. His opponent, Roebuck, struck out 10 and walked four. He was reached for 10 hits.

The winners were led at bat by Ike Riddick, who collected a pair of doubles and a home run in four times at bat.

Heath and Gardner collected a hit apiece to lead the losers.

Statistics Show Racing's Gate Still Growing

NEW YORK—Horse racing continues to show an upward swing in both attendance and pari-mutuel handle during the first four months of 1951, according to comparative statistics compiled by the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

Since the first of the year, attendance at 3,747,831, gave the sport an increase of 4.17 per cent over a similar period in 1950. Business at the pari-mutuel windows was up 12.93 per cent.

This new upward trend in racing's popularity began in mid-summer of last year.

Only two tracks showed decreases in both attendance and handle. Individual tracks were up as much as 23.6 per cent in attendance and 49 per cent in pari-mutuel handle.

George Nichols and Hudson Miller hooked up in an old fashioned pitching duel yesterday when the Exchanges met the Jayces. Nichols pitched a one-hit ball game to take the 1-0 ball game for the Exchanges.

Nichols fanned ten and walked one. Miller was slightly less fortunate as he was tagged for three hits. He struck out 11 men and walked only one.

McArthur walked to lead off the top of the last inning and was advanced to second by an infield out. Then F. Nunn slapped a double into leftfield to send McArthur scampering home with the winning run.

Ike Riddick Nominated As Little League 'All-Star'

Probably one of the better prospects to come out of Greenville's summer recreation system is Ike Riddick. Riddick is no newcomer to the young baseball fans of this area.

Performing with Bill Kittrell's midjet team last season, Ike started on the mound four times, winning each game. He was credited with a 4-win-no-loss record at the end of the season.

The outfield called Ike when he was not hurling. The opposing pitchers feared and respected his batting punch. He finished the season with an average that was hovering around the .300 mark.

On the basis of the fine play which he performed last year with the Elks, he has been nominated for Pop Warner's Little League All-American. If he wins the honor, he will probably be invited to go to Chicago for the All-Star game there.

He has shown on the mound, in two appearances this year, that he still has the "stuff" which made him outstanding. In his first outing of the season, he hurled a no-hit, no-run game at the Jayces in the Little League. He struck out a total of 12 men in this contest. In his second mound chore, he defeated the Kiwanians 12-1, striking out 13, and allowing six hits. He has not issued a free pass in either game.

When off the mound this season, he has moved in to play third base. He is an excellent fielder 3-0

Director Of Recreation Department

WARREN CARROL (above) director of the Greenville Recreation Department is planning a series of summer programs designed to fill the recreational needs of a large portion of Greenville's children as well as adults. He was appointed to his post two months ago by the Recreation Commission. His office is located in the armory. (Reflector Photo by John Spinks).

Ezzard Charles Easily Decisions Joey Maxim

CHICAGO — (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Ezzard Charles, after easily retaining his crown against challenger Joey Maxim, looked as if he had done nothing more than have a lively workout with a punching bag—and admitted he felt the same way.

In his dressing room the little Cincinnati Negro last night said "the fight was good training for me for Walcott."

Charles, who defeated Jersey Joe Walcott in 1949 for the National Boxing Association heavyweight version and successfully defended his title against Walcott last March, is to meet the guy again.

Charles' co-manager Jake Mintz says no contracts have been signed but the International Boxing Club has July 18 in Pittsburgh set as target day.

Joe Louis and Lee Savold are matched in New York, also in July. The winner is supposed to face Charles in September. Thus the merry-go-round continues and old boxers never just fade away.

Charles' opinion of Maxim, whom he now has outpointed four times, is that he is "just a good light-heavyweight."

"I beat him up good although I couldn't connect solidly to knock him out," said Charles.

Joey is plotted to risk his light-heavy bauble against Chicago's Bob Satterfield June 27 in Chicago Stadium.

Lindell Hurling Fast Ones Again

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Johnny Lindell, former Yankee outfielder, is burning his fast one across the plate again. Johnny started his major league career as a pitcher but his hitting prowess forced the Yankee brass to switch him to a regular spot in the lineup. As a pitcher for the Hollywood Stars in the Pacific Coast League this year, Lindell recently chalked up a 1-0 shutout over Oakland. He allowed only three hits.

Super-Charged Chisox Keep Right On Upsetting 'Dope'

By JOE REICHLER (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The super-charged Chicago White Sox, a 30-1 shot in April, figure no worse than even money to win the American League pennant—based on Memorial Day barometers.

The Sox streaked to their 13th and 14th successive victories yesterday, sweeping a holiday doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, 5-2 and 8-1. The Sox cleanup, coupled with Boston's two triumphs over New York, widened Chicago's first place margin over the Yankees to two full games.

The Sox, idle today, begin a 13-game home stand against the eastern clubs tomorrow.

Vern Stephens won the opener for the Red Sox, blasting a home run in the 15th inning for an 11-10 thriller over the Yankees. Stephens also batted in a couple in a five-run seventh inning rally that won the second game, 9-4.

The St. Louis Cardinals cut Brooklyn's National League lead to a game and a half with 4-3 and 7-3 triumphs over Pittsburgh as the Dodgers were held even in two games with Philadelphia. The Phillies came back to win the second game, 9-5, after Don Newcombe had outpitched Robin Roberts, 5-3, in the opener.

Billy Pierce and Randy Gumpert pitched the victories for Chicago. Orestes Minoso and Al Zarilla drilled home two runs apiece in the opener. Minoso and Eddie Robinson made it a banner day for the 34,856 faithful, blasting home runs in the second game.

Stan Musial slugged two doubles, two singles and his tenth homer to lead the Cards to their sweep over the Pirates. His four-ragger in the seventh inning snapped a 3-3 tie in the first game and gave Rookie Joe Presko his fourth win.

Granny Hamner hammered in four runs on three hits and Dick Easton clubbed two.

Sister drilled a bases-loaded double to enable Philadelphia to beat Brooklyn and end a six-game losing streak. In the opener, Newcombe singled with two out in the seventh. Cleveland vaulted past Detroit in fourth place, defeating the Tigers twice, 3-1 and 4-1.

Conrad Marrero's six-hit enabled Washington to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-2, in the second game of a doubleheader ending the Senators' nine-game losing streak. Dave Philley featured a 15-hit attack to give the A's a 9-3 victory in the opener.

The New York Giants and Boston Braves divided a pair before 46,400 fans at the Polo Grounds, the day's largest gathering. Bobby Thomson's bases-loaded single in the 11th won the first game for New York, 6-5. Walker Cooper hit a home run and two singles to help Vern Bickford notch his seventh win in the nightcap, 6-3.

Forrest Burgess hit a three-run homer in the ninth off Ewell Blackwell to give the Chicago Cubs a 5-1 win and a split with Cincinnati. The Reds took the opener, 6-5.

Plans Programs For Recreation

Warren Carrol will head the Greenville Recreation Department this summer.

He has several definite programs which he intends to start to work in the near future. He stated that the summer program was going to be a feature where everyone could have fun but that he would need their help in making the program a success.

He announced yesterday that the playground equipment would be open for public inspection on June 18. Each playground will have an adult supervisor to watch over the children.

It was also learned that a Junior League would be organized next week. Boys between the ages of 13 through 15 are eligible for play. Carrol asked for all boys who are interested in this organization to report to the Third Street School park at 2:30 Monday afternoon.

A Small-Fry League will begin operation on June 7. It will be operated as a minor league to the Little League. Each team now in the Little League will have a representative in the new league.

Carroll is married to the former Marjorie Massengill of Dunn. They have one child, a five-month-old girl.

The Carrolls will come to Greenville on June 11. They will make their home in the Tucker Circle.

Carroll was born in Pitt County and attended Chicod High School. He matriculated at Lenoir College and then at the Smith-Deal Massey Business College in Richmond. After four years in the Air Force, he returned to Raleigh and entered State College.

Future Of Israel Hangs On Solving Acute Water Shortage, Irrigation

By ERIC GOTTGEBREU
AP Newswriters

TEL AVIV—A team of American and local water engineers and irrigation experts is now working on a 10-year plan to increase the water supply of Israel. The economic future of the Jewish State and particularly the absorption of more immigrants depends largely on their success.

Water Schemes
Various schemes are to be coordinated by the Water Department of the Israel Ministry of Agriculture to change Israel into a well-irrigated country. Today, half of Israel is still desert.

Scheme No. 1—the so called "master scheme"—is designed to pump water of the upper Jordan River into the Galilean mountains, to store it in the (planned) Sals-Batauf reservoir, north of Nazareth, and to bring it from there through the future Israel Coastal Canal to the as yet largely unutilized Negev Desert. Five "satellite projects" are planned. They are: The drainage of the Huleh swamps (North of the Sea of Galilee) and the subsequent irrigation of the area; The irrigation of Eastern Galilee with Jordan water; The irrigation of the Central Jordan Valley; The piping of surplus water from western Galilee to the Jezreel Valley south-east of Haifa; and the laying of a double conduit to pipe Yarkon River water (in the Tel Aviv area) to the more arid parts of Southern Israel.

The Huleh swamp project is now a subject of dispute between Syria and Israel and has been the subject of action by the United Nations.

To balance the various water resources, the completed "master scheme", the five satellite schemes and all existing regional schemes (e. g. the Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Haifa water supply) are to be interconnected in the same way as the ancient water systems of Egypt and Mesopotamia were. But large-scale water planning is new to the Holy Land, the water resources of which have never been systematically investigated and used—not even in Roman times.

Joint Projects For Water

In the last 12 years most of the regional schemes in this country have been carried out by Mekoroth Water Co.; a joint undertaking of the Jewish Agency (vitaly interested in the matter because of its responsibility for new settlement foundations), the Jewish National Land Fund, (Keren Kayemeth) and the Israel Trade Union Association (Histadrut). In all these cases Mekoroth has done the boring, the drilling and the pipe laying. Some additional search for water has been carried out by government geologists, both British and later by Israelis.

While in former years water mainly had been bored in the coastal plain, to be piped from there into the more mountainous areas, there is now a tendency to intensify the use of the deep water strata in the rocky and mountainous parts of the county as well. Thus, government geologists are at Araba Canyon between the southern end of the Dead Sea and the northern tip of the Red Sea. Near the Gulf of Akaba enough water to ensure the supply of a mid-sized town has been found, and the town is now being built.

There seems to be more water further north to justify agriculture in an area which has been waste and empty for thousand of years. It is, by the way, the historic wilderness of Zin, through which the children of Israel wandered and where Moses smote the rock to give them water.

While the Israel irrigation program is being worked out in all its details, the existing regional schemes are being extended, particularly in a southerly direction. Modern well-boring equipment, drilling machines suitable for depths down to 1000 metres and machinery for the digging of channels and the laying of pipe is being imported, mostly from U. S. On the other hand, a local factory for the manufacture of concrete pipes is expected to begin production shortly, while a second factory will be built for the shaping and insulation of steel pipes.

Dream Coming True
With the large scale irrigation of Israel, a Utopian dream seems to be coming true. The construction of a Mediterranean-Jordan Canal to win water power by the water downflow into the Jordan Valley below sea level—may be realized later.

Selling TV More Profitable Than Running Theatre

COLVER, Pa. —(AP)— Rows of television antennas jutting from the homes in this small Western Pennsylvania mining community to the tale of its only theater forced to shut down after 21 years.

Two years ago, the theater had a weekly attendance of 1,700. Then one by one the miners began purchasing TV sets until the attendance dropped to 700. So John Smylnycky, the manager, took a cue from the lines, "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em." He entered the television business, himself.

"How's John doing?"
"Ten times better than I was at the theater," he says.

Signs Show Need Of Good Speller

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. — (AP)— What this city needs, Councilman William Suppe told his fellow lawmakers at a recent meeting, is someone in the street department who can spell.

He complained that misspelled street signs in many sections of the city are confusing the citizenry. "For instance," he said, "take Herrin St. It is spelled four different ways in a distance of four blocks. It varies from herrin to heron to herin to herring."

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the RECTOR'S KITCHENS

Your family will call you "Queen" when you serve tasty Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat. It's so tender . . . so lean . . . completely boned . . . and my, what flavor! The mild sugarcure and smoky flavor is a secret Wilson process. Tasty Meat is a sensational hot weather work-saver you will want repeatedly on your menus.

Get a Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat of 4 pounds to suit the size of your family. But remember, it's delicious as a leftover. Tasty Meat cooks just like ham, and by any favorite ham method. You can bake, broil or simmer Tasty Meat—it's "America's Finest."

We suggest simmering Tasty Meat (approximately 45 minutes per pound) while you clear away your early morning household. Let cool in cooking liquor or place on a tray to cool, and then refrigerate. Slice and serve on a well cold plate with potato salad or glass and bake to serve hot with hot potato salad. Your family will say, "Let's have this often."

Tasty Meat 'n' Potato Salad

Simmer the well-scrubbed potatoes until just fork-tender, along with the Tasty Meat (see directions on wrapper). Peel and slice potatoes. Toss lightly together (in order as shown below):

- 1 pint sliced cooked potatoes (new potatoes preferred)
- 1 cup cut-up celery
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon salt and
- 1/2 cup Wilson's Mayonnaise

Either serve hot with hot Tasty Meat or chill thoroughly and surround with luscious, juicy slices of tasty, chilled Tasty Meat. Serves 4.

Corpse on the Town
 By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter I

The Imperial hurried into the rain-lashed gloom that was early evening Manhattan. With the storm, the hubbub of the streets had siphoned into cafes, theaters, cubbyholes.

The man in the back seat, who had dined at Lindy's clutched the leather safety-strap of the taxicab tightly. As the ride grew wilder, his clutch became desperate and he made stuttering sounds of the driver. The Imperial left the avenue suddenly and some yards later braked to a stop.

Jigger Moran read the taximeter—ninety cents. He looked behind him calling out the sum and watched first a bald head, then tufted eyebrows come into his vision.

That passenger made furious motions. "You're a madman, an absolutely crazy madman!" He peered at the rear identification card, then said ominously, "J. Howard Moran." He gave voice to the threat. "I'll report you!"

The driver shrugged. Threats were a commonplace in the workday of a hack. Coins resounded on the meter top. Ninety cents to the penny. No tip.

Jigger noted the fare on his trip card in obedience to police regulations. He entered: FROM Lindy's Restaurant. TO: 96 Charlton Street. AMOUNT: $90. TIME STARTED: 6:45. TIME ENDED: 6:52 p.m.

He had pocketed the pencil when a rat-tat-tat sounded on the cab window. Jigger peered through the rain on the glass. Beyond, a man stood motionless. A battered hat dripping rainwater from the brim was pulled low, masking the eyes. Jigger unwound inches of the window impatiently; obviously he was a derelict, alcohol-deadened to the danger of exposure. He reached into a pocket for a coin.

The man said, "Want a job?"

Jigger shook his head, "I'm checking in."

The man leaned closer. "Just to the Railway Express Office. No riders; only a tenant's trunk." He thrust a hand into the driver's booth. "Big tip." His palm opened, exposing a five dollar bill.

Jigger hesitated. The Railway Express Office opposite the Pennsylvania Station was on the direct route to his garage. The call was fifty cents worth on the taximeter; a five spot was virtually a gift. He asked tentatively, "Where is the trunk?"

The man gestured at a building. "In the hall." His voice coaxed. "No red tape. Just dump it. They can mail the receipt back. The tenant's name and address is painted right on it."

Jigger yielded. "Okay. But you load it on the rear rack." He took the money and pocketed it. "And step on it."

The man went off.

Soon there was the fracturing sound of metal on the sidewalk. Jigger threw his trunk straps into the path of the man dragging the trunk.

Wrestling noises against the rear of the cab erupted into sudden giant thunderclaps and the water fell in thicker sheets. Jigger pressed his temples and shut his eyes to the incessant dance of the rain and wiper on the windshield.

Speeding uptown again, the pounding inside his head began to abate and the external sounds became sharper, clearer. One sound emerged clearest; an insistent, whining note that grew steadily in volume, as if racing with him. It reached a crescendo that seemed oddly close upon him and overtook him at Thirty-first Street as he braked to a standstill before a red traffic light.

A low coupe cut into his path and soon its twin screamed inches past the Imperial's front-end on the opposite side, completing a pinchers.

Police cars.

Jigger reached for his door handle, then fell perilously as the door was yanked away from him. He stared open mouthed at four policemen in hooded raincoats.

A gun bumped his chest and a policeman ordered, "Get into the back, driver." Jigger obeyed, and the policeman came to sit beside him. A second policeman slid in behind the wheel. The remaining two hurried separately into their coupes.

The Imperial moved in the wake of the escorting coupes. Soon the Great White Way floated into focus.

Moving across Times Square, Jigger ventured, "Where's this parade being reviewed?"

Jigger crept into a corner of the wide seat. The thump, thump in his head was again becoming unbearable.

In the shelter of the midtown police garage, the grimness of the drama lightened. The hooded raincoats came off, the mouths opened and the policemen emerged individually.

A policeman wearing a Captain's gold badge appeared, taking command. He called out, "Get that trunk down, Walters."

Walters began to work at the straps.

Jigger moved closer to the Captain. "What's with the trunk?"

The Captain said, "You tell me." Jigger's face creased into perplexed lines. "It's just a job. I was making for the Railway Express Office when your squad jumped me."

The Captain regarded him doubtfully. "Maybe it's a gag. Some weissenheimer who thinks every day is April Fool." He shrugged. "Even so, we had to act on a tip?"

"A telephone tip advised us to grab Imperial taxi 063—heading uptown." The Captain walked behind the cab and pointed to numerals stenciled on the tonneau. "That's your cabbie." He gestured at Walters forcing the locks of the trunk. "And you're carrying a packing trunk like the tipster said."

What's supposed to be in the trunk?" Jigger asked apprehensively. The feeling of portent was growing.

The Captain looked at Jigger gloomily. "A corpse," he said. (To be continued)

NOTICE: OIL AND GASOLINE STORAGE FACILITIES FOR LEASE

The Pitt County-City of Greenville Airport Commission, as a result of action taken at its meeting on May 28, 1951, will receive sealed bids for the lease of oil and gasoline storage facilities located at the Pitt-Greenville Airport, consisting of five storage tanks with a capacity of 10,250 gallons each. These facilities will be leased for a period of one or two years from July 1, 1951, with the rental payable monthly in advance. The facilities will be leased on a as-is, where-is basis, except that valves needed for operation can be purchased from present lessee or must be installed by successful bidder. Lessee is to carry at his own expense during the term of this lease adequate liability, property damage, fire and extended coverage insurance protecting the interest of the lessor.

Proposals to lease to be considered must be received on or before Monday, June 11, 1951, and must be addressed to Pitt County-City of Greenville Airport Commission, Post Office Box 894, Greenville, North Carolina. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Several Congressional Races
Likely Prospect In Next Year

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH—Failure of the 1951 legislature to do anything about re-districting the state for representation in the congress leaves the several district lines just where they have been for the past ten years. That doesn't necessarily mean there will be no further changes in personnel of the congressmen. Several changes have been made since the last re-apportionment by reason of death or retirement of incumbents. Another is certain to be made next year, since Rep. Monroe Redden of the twelfth district has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

There may be a vacancy in the ninth district for similar reason. Congressman Robert L. Doughton, dean of the delegation, who has been in congress for the last 42 of his 87 years, has made no public statement but he has indicated to friends that he will not seek another term.

As of now it seems likely that all the other members of congress will seek re-election. Whether or not they will have serious opposition depends upon future developments. Many of the conditions pertaining in May of 1951 will be changed by mid-March of 1952 when the filing time for candidates expires. The situation at this time looks about like this with respect to each of the twelve districts:

First District—Herbert C. Bonner has represented this district since 1940, when he succeeded Lindsay Warren, who had been appointed to head the general accounting office dealing with all government expenditures in Washington. Bonner had previously served for some years as Warren's secretary. He has successfully resisted several attempts to unseat him, but apparently is pretty well entrenched in his district. His activities with the marine industry and surplus property committees has given him national prestige.

Second District—John H. Kerr is expected to run again. He has represented the district since 1923, after previous service as solicitor and superior court judge. Ranking high on the powerful appropriations committee, with an outstanding record in behalf of tobacco and peanut farmers, and in connection with the Roanoke Valley and Bug's Island flood control projects, he is rated as strong now as at any time in the past when he retained his seat against vigorous opposition.

Third District—Graham A. Barden has had only token opposition since his original election to congress in 1934. Top man in the powerful education and labor committee, he has been outspoken against some of the administration policies. Although blacklisted by certain racial and labor organizations, his philosophy seems to be agreeable to his constituents in the third district. Only an unexpected upset in which issues other than his congressional votes are involved can unseat him now.

Fourth District—Harold D. Cooley, congressman since 1934 when he was elected upon the death of the late Edwin W. Pou, is chairman of the house agriculture committee, presently one of the most important posts in the entire congress. He has had opposition in more than one primary, but has always come out ahead. Right now he is perhaps stronger outside his district than within it, but odds favor his surviving any efforts to displace him. Ronald Hocutt, Johnston county farmer-tobaccoist and former legislator, is a tentative candidate against Cooley.

Fifth District—Thurmond Chatham is completing a second term as representative. There is always a contest in this district, and almost certainly there will be next year. Chatham's chief liability is money. Rated a multi-millionaire he has incurred resentment of some less fortunate folks. However, his voting record is more favorable to organized labor and the common people than that of some less wealthy colleagues. Opinion in his district as your reporter appraises it, is he will have opposition but will be re-elected if he wants to stay in congress.

Sixth District—Carl T. Durham, first elected in 1938 upon retirement of William B. Umstead, has faced serious opposition in nearly every election since. He will have at least one, maybe several opponents next year. One almost certain candidate will be Thomas Sawyer, senator from Durham county in the 1951 general assembly. Sawyer's chief appeal will be to the labor and organized veterans elements of the party. By reason of both family and political connections Congressman Durham is also strong in these quarters. He is regarded as outstanding authority in the congress on stockpiling materials for national defense and is high up in the ranks of military affairs councils.

Seventh District—Ertel Carlyle is in his second term, having been nominated in a heated contest to succeed Bayard Clark when he retired in 1948. In 1950 Carlyle had a hard race for renomination, winning in a second primary by substantial margin. He faces certain opposition next year. Among his likely opponents are Julius K. Powell of Whiteville, several times member of the general assembly and sponsor of the Powell bill for state aid to city streets in the last session; and Terry Sanford of Fayetteville, past YDC state president. Information is that Wilmington will also have one or more candidates for the post.

Eighth District—Charles B. Deane, first nominated in 1946 in a close contest and defeating the same opponent in another close vote in 1950, seems to be pretty well entrenched. Rated as the chief advocate of the New Deal and the Fair Deal among North Carolina congressmen, he also is noted for careful attention to the needs and requests of his constituents. He may have opposition next year, but at this time it does not look like he has very much to worry about.

Ninth District—Robert L. Doughton has represented this district since 1911. He has served longer than any other man in history as chairman of the most powerful committee in congress—ways and means. By common consent he is congressman at large for North Carolina. He can stay in congress as long as he wants to stay. If he decides to retire, the list of aspirants for his post will be the roster of lawyers and public-spirited men in the district. It would be foolish now to attempt appraisal of the probable chances of any of them over the others.

Tenth District—Hamilton C. Jones is in his third term, having been elected in 1946 after several previous attempts. He has had opposition every time, both in primary and general election campaigns, and will have next year. Opposition has not jelled sufficiently to justify use of names. Jones has one of the best voting records in congress. He has regularly attended sessions of the house and answered roll calls. Furthermore, he has a record of helping out the counties in his district which have strong Republican opposition in general elections. Democratic voters in close counties appreciate that help, as well as his diligence in looking after their local matters.

Eleventh District—Woodrow Jones, first elected last year after the death of long-time Congressman Bulwinkle, has made an exceptionally good record for a first term. He may have to defend his seat, but nothing now indicates he is or will be in serious trouble.

Twelfth District—Monroe Redden has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election. After three terms he decided to return to Hendersonville and devote attention to his lucrative law practice. This is the only district in which there is certain to be a new congressman—and the situation has got the politicians in a dither. There are ten counties in the district, but Buncombe casts about one-third the total vote. If Buncombe could get together on one candidate he would be IT. But Buncombe is split by political factions within the Democratic party. Frank Parker, state senator in 1947 and 1949, is a likely candidate.

So is Roy Taylor, Buncombe representative in the legislatures of 1947, 1949 and 1951. Reports reaching Raleigh indicate either one would get about half the vote and certainly lose about half. Solicitor W. K. McLean is receptive to the idea, but again runs into factional politics. Meantime, John Queen of Waynesville, former solicitor, is actively campaigning and hoping to keep Buncombe split so the counties west of Buncombe will nominate him.

Political winds change as rapidly and as much without notice as physical winds. Political predictions are as hazardous as weather forecasts. By next spring conditions in every one of these districts may be vastly different. As of now they look like they have been portrayed here.

Coral can form only in water at least 70 degrees warm.

Seaweed floating in the Sargasso sea may be immortal; it just keeps on growing.

MECHANICSBURG, Pa. —(AP)—the proof of the pudding is in the parking meter, says Burgess Ray E. Hutter of Mechanicsburg.

Whenever a citizen fined for a parking meter violation says the meter doesn't work—and that's a favorite excuse—Burgess Hutter goes into action.

He accompanies the accused to the meter and inserts his own penny or nickel. If the meter works, the fine sticks. If not, the citizen gets his money back.

"The meters hardly ever fail me says Hutter with a grin.

How can you Tell till you Try It?

THE days and weeks are slipping by — and what have you done about it?

What have you done to find out how it feels to handle a high-powered and high-spirited '51 Buick?

We'll tell you this. In all the years that Buick has been building fine automobiles, there's never been the match for this one.

This is a car that likes to be compared—for power, for performance, for ease of control, for ride, and room, and comfort.

We can tell you its valve-in-head Fireball power sinks you back in the cushions at the touch of your toe.

We can tell you it's nimble-footed in traffic, or that it conquers hills with smooth and exultant momentum.

We can tell you it hugs the road and holds the curves as if it were drawn by an invisible magnet.

We can tell you that it has big, soft coil springs on all four wheels—or that its gas mileage will put a smile on your face.

We can tell you that Dynaflo

Drive® will spoil you for any other type of power transmission.

But you'll never know till you try for yourself what all this really means.

How about coming in for a sample? Once you've experienced all this for yourself, the modest price tags on Buick SPECIALS, SUPERS or ROADMASTERS will look like a double bargain.

Standard on ROADMASTER, optional on other Series.

To Check Availability Of OPS Regulations

RALEIGH. — On Monday, June 4, the Eastern North Carolina OPS will send representatives into the field to determine the availability of price stabilization regulations and other informational data to all those coming under price controls.

For some weeks past, supplies of required forms, regulations, amendments, and other information needed by businessmen for compliance with OPS orders have been available in banks, post offices, chambers of commerce, and offices of county clerks, throughout the district, according to Director J. G. Clark. Besides this, many wholesalers, merchants and trade associations, and county agents have distributed regulations or digests of salient points in them.

Also, from time to time, teams of business analysts have held "clinics" with merchants, at which time regulations and other explanatory data were handed out to those lacking them.

In spite of all these efforts to get copies of the regulations into the hands of those requiring them for compliance with the price stabilization program, returns in the District OPS office at 700 Tucker Street here indicate there are still many who have not received them from any source. It is in order to correct this situation that the week-long survey will begin on June 4.

ABC Officers Help Seize And Destroy Still In Beaufort

Pitt County ABC Officers Claude Manning and R. W. King assisted Beaufort County ABC Officers Clyde Stubbs and William Patrick and Alcohol Tax Unit Agents E. A. Bennett and Carl Churchill in seizing and destroying a 100-gallon submersible still in Beaufort County. They poured out 100 gallons of fermented mash.

They arrested Reddin Louis Woolard, 22-year-old white man of Beaufort County.

The officers said the moonshine still was located in the Cherry Run section.

At a preliminary hearing yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Buck Taylor, Woolard posted $300 bond for his appearance at the next term of U. S. District Court in Washington.

President Signs Big Money Bill

WASHINGTON — (UP)— President Truman signed into law today legislation carrying $6,380,000,000 for the military establishment and $59,323,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The money is for use in this fiscal year which ends June 30.

The funds for the military are for the purchase of planes, tanks and guns, as well as for additional pay and training facilities for the expanding Army, Navy, and Air Force.

Last Remnant Of 'Golden Hordes' Remain In Exile

By MENNO DUERKSEN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 FRANKFURT — (UP)— The fortunes of the last descendants of the once mighty "golden hordes" of Genghis Khan sank to a new low here as the last attempt to find a home for 700 refugee Kalmucks failed.

After preliminary approval, the government of Paraguay has rejected plans for establishing a Kalmuck farming settlement in that country.

These intrepid Asiatic cavaliers, who last galloped off to war to fight the Russian Bolsheviks in the 1917 revolution, have been more or less "displaced persons" since the collapse of the great Mongolian Empire in the 14th century.

For the past 300 years they have lived in Russia, where their natu-

Prizes Doll Patented In America In 1858

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — (UP)— Mrs. Floyd Siegfried owns one of the first dolls patented in America. It is a Greiner, patented in 1858, which she acquired while pursuing her hobby of collecting dolls.

In addition to the prized Greiner, she has another early model, a Joumeau doll of a French bisque color.

Mrs. Siegfried, who tailors colorful dresses and outfits for her many dolls, was started in her hobby with a number of dolls presented by her grandmother.

Terms And Phrases Of War Front News Defined

By HARRY FERGUSON
 United Press Foreign News Editor

What some of the words and phrases you read in the war news mean:

Top Secret—Anything that would cause "exceptionally grave damage" to the United States if disclosed. If a top secret document leaks to an enemy or potential enemy one or more of the following things might occur: (1) Somebody would start a war against the U.S. because of the facts disclosed; (2) a war that the United States was planning to start or an operation in a war already under way would result in defeat; (3) the United States would lose a scientific or technical advantage which would affect the outcome of a major military operation.

Sortie—One flight by one military plane.

Mission—A definite task assigned to one or more planes. Thus the frequent report: "Mission accomplished."

Strike—A combat mission which has as its objective the destruction of or damage to enemy personnel or equipment. Usually used in connection with carrier planes.

Strategic Bombing—Going after a target which will not necessarily influence the outcome of a current battle but which will cripple the enemy's long-range ability to wage war. Action against a steel mill far behind the enemy lines would be strategic bombing.

Tactical Bombing—Sending planes out to intervene in a battle that has started or is about to start. Plastering enemy troops. Giving support to our own ground forces as they try to move forward or conduct an orderly retreat.

Logistics—The science of providing things that keep an army moving and fighting — getting food, clothing, weapons and ammunition up to the combat areas. The Korean War is a tough logistical problem because almost everything has to be moved across the Pacific Ocean.

Secret—One grade below top secret. Examples of things that would be classified as secret: (1) Details of a military operation in progress; (2) orders regarding the use of new munitions or weapons; (3) information regarding the amount of reserves on hand.

Task Force—A naval group ranging anywhere from four vessels upward. It can be made up of all types of ships or it can be made up of all cruisers, all destroyers, all battleships depending on what it is setting out to do. Called a task force because it is given a specific task to perform.

LST—Landing ship tank. A specially designed vessel capable of disembarking tanks direct on a beach.

LSV—Landing ship vehicle. The same thing except it disembarks vehicles such as jeeps and command cars.

ral talent for horse breeding and farming won them almost complete independence within the Russian nation.

Sent Into Exile
 When, in 1917, they stubbornly refused to bow to the new Bolshevik rulers of the Kremlin, they were sent into exile in the Balkans. Those who remained in the Soviet Union disappeared into Siberia.

Then the tide of war caught up with the Kalmucks once more. Fearing Soviet reprisals for their defiance of the Bolsheviks in 1917, those in Europe fled before the advancing Red army to join the vast army of refugees of World War II in Germany.

Here, in camps operated by the International Refugee Organization, the Kalmucks tried to keep the tradition of horsemanship alive gathering a few old broken-down nags into their camps and teaching their children the finer points of horsemanship.

Many of the 700-odd Kalmucks bowed to the pressure of 20th century progress and learned trades offered in IRO schools. Some of them gained the equivalent of college or university educations.

Barred by Nations
 No one knew exactly what to do with these proud Mongols, since most nations refused to consider their applications for immigration, because they were Asiatics.

The Kalmucks themselves complicated the problem by stubbornly refusing to be separated, insisting that the last of the Kalmucks wish to remain together.

Late last year the IRO thought the problem was solved when a group of business men in Paraguay offered a tract of land and enough money to set up a Kalmuck farm settlement on a long-term loan basis.

A delegation of Kalmucks went to Paraguay to study the scheme. Now they have returned to report that the Paraguayan government has annulled the plan.

Jesse Forbes, salutarian; Hubert Walters, valetictorian; Annie Jones and Larry Taft were marshals.

Far-Reaching . . .
 But this is what the law means for those who are now under 26 but remain deferred until they are 26 because:
 They are married and have a child, or because they are college students with high marks, or because they are in an essential job, and so on.
 When they reach 26 and their status changes—for instance the married man's one child dies, or the student finishes school, or the man in the essential job switches to a non-essential one—they must report that fact to their draft board. They then can be drafted.

U.N. Army . . .
 raised its head.
 But how about the soldiers who are assigned to the various units of the U.N. force. Will they have the same patriotic urge as they would solely under their own flags in wars declared by their own governments?
 Experience will answer that point, though there seems to be no cause for worry. In the case of the Korean war the United Nations members who are fighting the Reds are in fact acting not only in defense of South Korea but in their own defense. This is so because if aggression is allowed to succeed in Korea it will be encountered to strike elsewhere.
 Then there is another aspect, which is wholly idealistic. Untold millions of people around the globe have subscribed to the ideal of "one world." Undoubtedly many of the U. N. soldiers fighting in Korea feel that they are contributing to that ideal.
