View Of Sewer Pipe Which Caused All The Trouble

Hole Cut In Floor Of Swimming Pool

Air Force Radar Unit Planned Here

Airport Commission Executes Agreement For Installation Effective July 10; Disclosure Made At C-of-C Meet

The Pitt-Greenville Airport commission has executed a lease and trespass agreement with the United States Air Force for a radar installation at the Pitt-Greenville airport.

The announcement was made last night at the meeting of the board of directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. W. T. Kyzer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and secretary of the airport commission, said the lease is effective July 10. "We don't know how long the thing will last or anything about it," Kyzer stated. He said the lease provides that the Air Force will have the use of one gunnet hut at the airport and sufficient area for quartering approximately 200 men in tents and for parking the necessary motor equipment. He said the agreement with the Air Force will in no way affect the operations of Greenville Aviation, Inc. at the local airport or the farming operations of Lawrence Tyson who has the area between the runways and taxi strips planted in cover crops.

Farmers Day and tentative plans for the annual celebration some time in August received a good deal of attention from the Chamber of Commerce directors at the meeting last night. President F. Badger Johnson said representatives of the local civic clubs have been appointed to a committee to work out the plans for the 1951 Farmers Day and to appoint committees for the event. A meeting of the representatives of the civic clubs was slated for 5 o'clock this afternoon. Although a definite date has not been set for Farmers Day, Johnson said last night it is expected to be early in August. The directors discussed at the meeting the finances of the Chamber of Commerce and formulated plans for better financial support of the organization. The group voted to discontinue the regular July meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, but specified that a special meeting of the directors could be called any time during the month if there is urgent business to be transacted.

General Repeats He Never Thought Coalition In China Possible; Says He Sought Seven Divisions To Use As 'Barrier' Against Russians In Manchuria

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer granted today that anyone who read a secret 1945 message "would be justified" in believing he, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Raymond A. Spruance favored using American aid to force a coalition of Chinese Nationalists and Communists.

Despite this, Wedemeyer told the Senate MacArthur investigating committee, he was able to "prove" that "in my heart and mind I never believed that coalition government per se could be established" in China.

Wedemeyer accused Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday of giving the "absolutely incorrect" impression that the message indicated MacArthur, Spruance, and Wedemeyer favored a China coalition and recommended using the pressure of American power to aid to bring one about.

Today Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.) once again read into the report the disputed passage of the Dec. 7, 1945, report. It stated that: "It is suggested that U. S. assistance to China as outlined above be made available as basis for negotiation by the American ambassador to bring together and effect a compromise between the major opposing groups in order to promote a united, democratic China."

Sparkman contended that "any person would be justified" in thinking it meant that the military chiefs favored bringing the Nationalists and Communists into a coalition government. Wedemeyer replied:

"Senator Sparkman, I am in complete accord with you. I have read that paragraph over several times, and believe me, I agree with just exactly what you said. "I did want peace in China because in an atmosphere of war it would be impossible to rehabilitate and to restore a stable economy. But I am in complete accord with your interpretation."

MacArthur had declared that anyone contending the military leaders had favored a coalition government was guilty of a "prevarication."

The committee recessed after the morning session, and will meet again to hear Wedemeyer tonight. Members wanted to be in the Senate this afternoon to vote on an appropriation bill.

Wedemeyer also said: He tried at the war's end to get seven American divisions for use as a "barrier" against the Russians in Manchuria. But MacArthur denied his request for them on grounds that they might be needed in occupied Japan.

Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-Shek was "deeply hurt" by the Far Eastern concessions given to Russia at Yalta.

In 1947 he thought U. S. military advice outside of combat areas was all that Chiang needed. But he concluded later these advisers would have no "right into the area of combat" as they were to the Nationalists beat the Reds.

His request was sent to MacArthur who turned it down because the Far Eastern commander was uncertain about the "attitude" of the defeated Japanese in their home islands, he said.

Actually, Wedemeyer said, MacArthur found a "docile and cooperative" spirit in Japan, although he had no way of knowing this when he rejected the request.

Eighth Army Drives Ahead Against Retreating Enemy

Vast Quantities Of Munitions And Supplies Captured; Pyongyang Now Within Range Of Allied Artillery

TOKYO, Wednesday —(UP)—United Press Staff Correspondent reports that the Eighth Army drove against light to moderate Communist resistance along a front of nearly 70 miles in Korea Tuesday.

From Chorwon, southwest anchoring the shattered "iron triangle," to the east coast the Allies continued their relentless advance north of the 38th parallel.

On the Chorwon front they captured enormous stores of munitions and other supplies abandoned by retreating Chinese.

Southwest of Chorwon resistance stiffened, a front dispatch said, but even there one allied unit found about 4,000 rounds of abandoned mortar, grenade and other ammunition.

North of Inje, on the east central front, an Allied tank-infantry patrol moved several miles north from Yangju before it met dug-in Red rear guards.

The Allies brought both Pyongyang, apex of the former "iron triangle," and Kumsong within range of their guns. Pyongyang and Kumsong lie 25 miles apart, the parallel and are 17 miles apart.

An 8th Army communique said U. N. forces advanced 5,000 to 6,000 yards south and southeast of Chorwon with little or no enemy contact.

Patrols who entered Kumsong found no enemy contact and met only small arms and automatic weapons fire from dug-in Reds along the road.

Elsewhere on the central front the Allied troops met stubborn resistance.

Garment Firms Hit By Walkout

NEW YORK —(UP)—Thousands of garment workers went on strike today and stalled large sections of the usually bustling garment district. It was the first major strike in 25 years against the city's biggest industry.

Sixty-five thousand members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union were on strike against 2,000 shops making women's and children's coats and suits in New York, New Jersey, and elsewhere.

There was no picketing.

By HARRY FERGUSON

United Press Foreign News Editor

Anybody who thinks he has it tough these days should consider the plight of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the United Nations army in Korea. Anything he is bound to disclose is bound to be a disaster.

He is a man of offensive designed to carry all the way to the Manchurian border, he will alarm nations such as Britain which are trying to bring about a negotiated peace on the basis of the present military situation.

If he doesn't drive for the border, he will alarm the South Koreans who want the Communists cleared out of their entire country. They became so concerned about it yesterday that they called a closed session of their National Assembly to discuss rumors that a settlement based on the 38th parallel was imminent.

He is tried to dig in and hold a defensive position somewhere in central Korea, he will be accused of leaving the war in a stalemate. There must be times when Van Fleet yearns for the good old days when he was fighting the Germans in France an activity in which he was eminently successful—and had nothing to worry about except to keep his troops slugging ahead. In Korea he has to be sensitive to political winds blowing from all directions.

Under the circumstances he can do only one thing—fight today's battle and see what tomorrow brings. Every time reporters ask Van Fleet about his intention he delivers a rather vague reply. Part of the reason for that is that like any good general he has no intention of publishing his plans. Another part of it is that he can't plan too far ahead until he finds out how things are going on the diplomatic level. At the moment nothing concrete seems to be happening, and that makes Van Fleet's position all the more difficult.

The nearest you can come to a definition of the U. N.'s military objective in Korea at the moment is to say that it's a campaign to discourage the enemy. The idea is to defeat him often enough and badly

DiSalle Indicates Ceiling On Paper

Raises Possibility As Hitting Canadian Price Hike

WASHINGTON —(UP)—Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said today he may place a ceiling on the price American newspaper publishers may pay for newsprint, as a result of a 10 per cent increase in Canadian newsprint prices.

DiSalle raised the possibility as Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson announced that he will take up the price increase personally with the Canadian government.

DiSalle said there is "some question" about the legality of an order such as he suggested because newspapers are specifically exempt from price controls.

The Canadian price increase may cost American publishers almost $50,000,000 a year since Canada supplies 55 per cent of U. S. newsprint.

DiSalle said there is no way for this government to establish price controls on Canadian newsprint. But, he said, to put ceilings on the amount American buyers can pay "might alleviate" the problem.

Under a manufacturers regulation which takes effect July 2, DiSalle estimated that domestic newsprint prices may be increased by $3 to $4.50 per ton.

But some larger American manufacturers indicated they might not take advantage of increases permitted under the new regulation, he said, because "they are satisfied with their present operation."

Pledges Iran Not To Imperil Supply

TEHRAN —(AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh has assured President Truman Iran's plans to nationalize her oil industry will not jeopardize the world's oil supply nor imperil international harmony.

The wrinkled little statesman who has been sequestered in two rooms of the country's parliament building sent these assurances in the lengthy letter transmitted to Washington yesterday through the U. S. embassy.

The contents of Mossadegh's letter were disclosed as top officials of Britain's Anglo-Iranian Oil Company planned courtesy calls on government heads here prior to the opening of talks on the nationalization of Iran's oil industry operated by the company.

Mossadegh's letter was in reply to President Truman's recent appeal to Iran and Britain for moderation and reasonable negotiations on the explosive oil issue.

Bosses Blamed For Inefficiency

TORONTO —(UP)—The bosses took the blame today for the inefficiency of some of their workers.

W. F. McMullen, technical division personnel manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers that if a man makes the same mistakes over and over again, it's his boss' fault.

"Many people make the same mistakes continuously," he said, "because no one ever takes the time to correct them."

If no one straightens them out, McMullen said, "the final failure is ours, not theirs."

Drop Damage Suit In Utilities Court Test

WASHINGTON, N. C.—The Town of Grimesland dropped its damage suit against the Washington utilities today in superior court and the jury trial of the power mixup between the two municipalities will get underway tomorrow morning.

No explanation was given by plaintiff's attorneys for dropping the damage suit amounting to $24,800. It was done voluntarily and none of the attorneys representing Grimesland would make an explanation.

Dropping that part of the action climaxed two court sessions in which Grimesland took a beating on four motions presented to Judge Burgwyn yesterday afternoon and this morning.

The judge overruled a motion that Washington present a certificate of convenience and necessity concerning its proposal to extend its power lines south of Pamlico River.

The motion to move the trial to a neutral county was overruled also. However, Burgyn did make some allowance for Grimesland's alleged thinking that it cannot get a fair trial in Beaufort County. He ordered the sheriff to summon a venire of 50 persons from Martin County to hear the evidence beginning at ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

Previously Grimesland's attorneys had stated the entire issue should be reverted to Judge Frizzelle in Snow Hill, who ruled on it previously, rather than submit it to a jury trial in Beaufort County. That motion was overruled by Burgwyn also.

Another motion was overruled that concerned a move by Grimesland to make Virginia Electric and Power Company a party to the suit since it now has a contract with the Washington utilities to swap power from one system to another. Grimesland took an exception to the judge's ruling.

As a side issue to the proceedings, Grimesland attorneys Albion Dunn and Sam Worthington of Greenville and Grimes and Grimes of Washington sought to have the case sent to the Supreme Court because the certificate of convenience and necessity did not have to be produced. However, the attorneys could not decide on which issues would be presented to the high court and the proposal was dropped.

Vacation Spots Combed For 2 Missing Diplomats

LONDON —(UP)—The search for two missing British diplomats spread today to vacation resorts in Southern Italy and Andorra, the tiny country between France and Spain.

The Foreign Office began to minimize the confidential nature of the job held by Donald MacLean, head of the office's American department, who disappeared May 25 with Guy Burgess, 40, a Far Eastern expert.

An official spokesman said there was nothing new in the search for the pair. He emphasized that MacLean's department dealt with matters of "purely Anglo-American concern," and not, as earlier indicated, with secrets which would be of value to the Russians.

He said an example of what MacLean would handle was the arrangement made for the U. S. lease Caribbean bases from Britain.

An official source said it was possible that the pair had come back to Britain. A top that they had gone to Andorra, in the Pyrenees Mountains, was checked without results.

Police checked vacation spots in the Naples, Italy, area, on Capri and at Taormina, Sicily, in their search for the men.

Possible To Lose Draft Deferment By New Law

WASHINGTON —(UP)—Congressional experts said today that up to 385,000 draft registrants will lose their deferments under a new draft law which President Truman is expected to sign soon.

They are men 19 through 25 deferred for support of wives alone or found unfit for service. The new draft law bars deferment for dependency of wives only, and forces the Army to cut its induction standards.

The new law also lowers the bottom induction age from 19 to 18½, but the experts said it may be years before men younger than 19 are called. This is because draft boards first must call all available men 19-through-25.

Selective Service declined today to estimate the number of men who will lose their deferments under the new law. However, men on Capitol Hill who spent months writing the new law painted the new deferment picture this way:

About 1,136,699 men now are deferred for dependency—class 3-A. Of this number about 235,000 childless husbands without collateral dependent can expect to lose their deferments and to be re-classified 1-A.

There will be more than this who lose their 3-A status, but many will win deferment on the grounds, such as having essential war jobs.

In addition, the new law requires the Army to lower the passing grade on its induction test from 70 to 65. It also sets physical standards at levels not higher than those of January, 1945—the World War II period in which the bottom of the barrel was being scraped.

Doughton Will Oppose Tax On Public Utilities

Hopes Of Greenville Utilities Commission Raised When Doughton Says He Opposes Proposed Tax On Utilities

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR.

Some hope was given to the Greenville Utilities Commission today that the proposed tax on public utilities will be killed in Congress when it was learned that Congressman Robert L. Doughton will vote against the proposal.

Doughton said in a letter to the city clerk of Statesville, which town furnishes its own power, that he will vote against the three and one-third per cent excise tax on gross revenues of public power plants when the proposal comes up for a final vote in the House Ways and Means Committee.

His statement was forwarded to the local commission through the North Carolina League of Municipalities which several days ago urged all public utilities in the State to take steps to have the proposal killed in committee.

The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is still considering the proposal before sending the revenue bill to the House floor, stated:

"While this tax has been tentatively approved by our committee, the matter will be reconsidered, and taking everything into consideration, I have decided badly as we need this revenue—perhaps this tax is not justified. It is my purpose to vote to eliminate this provision from the bill."

Doughton's statement was the first forthcoming from any member of Congress from North Carolina. However, Senator Willis Smith and Congressman Bonner notified the Utilities Commission that they will give the proposal their consideration when it comes up for a vote in their respective houses.

Both had been urged to vote against the proposal by the league shortly after the league had notified all municipally owned utilities that the proposal had been passed by the House committee.

In a letter to Martin Swartz, superintendent, Smith stated that although the tax proposal had not been voted upon in the House, he would give it "my careful consideration when it is taken up in the Senate."

He reminded that Senator Clyde Hoey is a member of the Senate Finance Committee and that his views should be obtained concerning the proposal.

Bonner's letter to Swartz stated substantially the same thing. The Utilities Commission ten days ago wired Doughton its views on the proposal, stating that if passed it would provide the grounds for one governmental unit to tax another.

Doughton's statement to the Statesville clerk was presumably construed by the league to be his answer to all the utilities that sent him telegrams to vote against the proposal.

When the furore began over the proposal by the municipally-owned utilities in the State—Greenville included—it was believed that it had already been reported out of committee. However, shortly afterward it was learned that the House committee is still considering it before moving the entire package bill onto the House floor.

Under House rules, once a bill is reported out of committee, no amendments can be made to it from the floor. Also, it cannot go back to the committee for reconsideration unless such a request is made by a committee member.

Discloses South Korean Losses To 'Corruption'

PUSAN, Korea — (UP)—Suh Min Ho, chairman of the Korean National Assembly's Interior Affairs and Security Committee, said today that more than 50,000 South Korean draftees had died of disease, starvation and "inhuman treatment" in military training camps since last December.

He said that thousands of others deserted rather than face such a death. Less than 350,000 survived, he added, but 50 per cent of them are "physical wrecks incapable of labor."

Suh Min Ho blamed "corrupt officers" of the Korean National Guard, who he said conducted "death camps." He said that his committee was now investigating the alleged scandal and that the Guard commander, Brig. Gen. Kim Keun, and a number of his staff officers had been imprisoned.

There will be more than this who lose their 3-A status, but many will win deferment on the grounds, such as having essential war jobs.

In addition, the new law requires the Army to lower the passing grade on its induction test from 70 to 65. It also sets physical standards at levels not higher than those of January, 1945—the World War II period in which the bottom of the barrel was being scraped.

Truman Will Talk Back

President Truman Rumored Ready To Talk Back To His Administration Critics; First Major Speech After MacArthur Firing Scheduled For June 30

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's talk around here now that President Truman is going to start fighting back at the critics of his administration. If he does, it will be a sort of change of pace.

This talk seems to have sprung up over the weekend after a White House announcement he would make a radio-TV speech to the nation Thursday night, urging that price and wage and other controls be continued by Congress beyond June 30.

It will be the President's first major speech to the nation since April 11 when he took to the air to explain why he had just fired General MacArthur. Fighting talks by the President in the past year or so have been infrequent.

In fact, talks by the President even explaining policies have been fairly infrequent leaving a big vacuum that has provided plenty of room for his critics.

In the past year or so criticism has piled up on his administration. It reached a climax with the public acclaim given MacArthur when he returned home.

And since then Mr. Truman's

Republican critics in particular have continued to sharpen their attacks on him and members of his administration. The tone of that criticism gets less polite as time goes on, with words like "dishonest" being thrown around.

When the history of these times is written it may show the Truman administration went on the defensive when Senator McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, began making broad charges of communism in the State Department, with Secretary of State Acheson the particular target of his attack.

What a sustained counterattack by the Trumanites might have accomplished will have to remain one of the unanswered questions of history. But there certainly has been no attempt at such a counterattack.

There's been some comment here that Acheson, in his testimony at the senate inquiry into MacArthur's firing, was aggressive, for a change. He answered questions firmly but it is debatable whether that could be called aggressive.

President Truman seemed

Smith-Cox Clan Reunion Held Sunday In Winterville

WINTERVILLE—In the spirit of fellowship that is one of the inherent characteristics of the Mary Nelson Smith Family, the descendants of this noted pioneer educator of Pitt County gathered in Winterville Sunday, June 10, to hold their bi-annual family reunion—the third since World War II.

There were present 45 members of the Smith-Cox Clan and of other related families. The reunion began at 11 a. m. with Morning Service at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, conducted by Mr. Ashley T. St. Amant, of Wilmington, and Mr. W. E. Cox, Jr., of Southern Pines, lay readers. The Hon. John Bragaw, of Washington, N. C., addressed the congregation on the topic of social relationship. "We should rather be worthy of the name Ancestors than that of Descendants," was the theme of his message. He included a fitting tribute to the educational and missionary accomplishments so capably performed by the descendants of Mrs. Mary Nelson Smith. Mr. Bragaw is the author of "Random Shots" and other publications on North Carolina, and is an East Carolina native.

Service at St. Luke's was followed by a picnic dinner in the grove beside the residences of Mrs. A. T. St. Amant and Mrs. Grace Gay-

Jord, after which a meeting was called by Mrs. St. Amant, in absence of the chairman, Mr. Claudius Dawson, of Oramerton, N. C.

Plans were laid for increasing the size of the Mary Nelson Smith Aleeve in the Sheppard Memorial Library at Greenville, and it was also voted to undertake necessary repairs to the church. Mr. W. E. Cox, Jr., reported on the status of the Scholarship Fund which was established in memory of Mrs. Smith and completed in 1938. This is a perpetual fund which is used to aid in the education of ministerial students from the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina. Mr. Samuel Worthington of Greenville, reported on the vital statistics of the clan.

New officers elected for the next two years are Mr. G. Herbert Cox of Washington, N. C., chairman; Mrs. Grace Gaylord, of Winterville, vice chairman, and Mr. Francis D. Ussell, of Durham, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Worthington was reappointed vital statistician.

In attendance from Greenville were Mrs. T. W. Rouse and Miss Marie Rouse, Miss Venetia Cox, Samuel Worthington and Sam Worthington, Jr.

The next reunion will be held in June of 1953.

Joint Hostesses Honor Mrs. Cochran

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. R. L. Cochran and Miss Minnie Cochran gave a reception in honor of Mrs. Layton Cochran at the home of Mrs. W. T. Hurl on North Broad street, Thursday night.

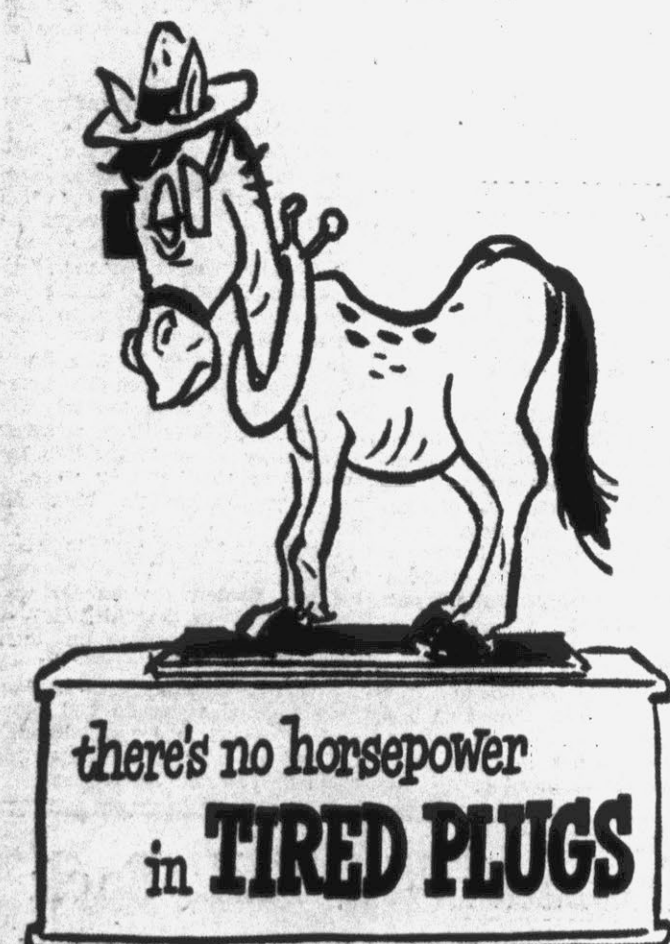

All through the house were many arrangements of mixed summer flowers, the color scheme being green and white. The dining room was decorated with white lilies and feverfew and the centerpiece was of silver.

Greeting the guests was Mrs. M. L. Weaver and those in the receiving line were Miss Minnie Cochran, Mrs. R. L. Cochran, Miss Fannie Hodges Grafton and Mrs. C. D. Caraway. Mrs. A. E. James, Mrs. D. D. Roberson, Mrs. R. J. Langley, Mrs. John Gray Taylor and Miss Jeanne Taylor served in the dining room. The goodbyes were said to Mrs. Selma Meadows.

There were approximately ninety guests present with many from out of town.

Miss Margaret Lou Hemby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Hemby, of Greenville, became the bride of Thomas Edward McCaskill, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCaskill of Erwin, in a home ceremony Saturday afternoon, June 9. The Rev. Perry Case of Atlantic Christian College, performed the ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented prior to the wedding by Mrs. Bruce Strickland, pianist, and Mrs. Ned Kinsaul, vocalist.

The couple entered together before an altar decorated with palms, ferns and tall baskets filled with white gladioli and fern over which soft light gleamed from candles in branched candelabra.

The bride wore a floor length wedding gown of white lace over tulle with a fitted bodice outlined with seed pearls.

The dress featured a fitted bodice with miniature buttons down the back and a buxant skirt. Her lace mitts formed calla points over the hands. She wore a nylon net.

Half hat and carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid and ribbons.

Only Five Called To Army In July

Five Pitt County men will be inducted in the Army, July 26, marking the lowest induction call the local draft board has received since it became reactivated last summer.

Board clerk Selma Evans stated the request for the five men came from state headquarters this morning. Previously, the induction calls had hit a low of 25 men per month during April and May. Before that the induction contingents numbered over 100 at times and between 50 and 100 during other months.

The clerk stated the quota for July is smaller than it has been in previous months, thus giving some reason for the county's low request figure.

There will be no induction nor pre-induction during June, she said.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

IF WE HAVE EVER

The Hudson River valley in every season is something that once we see, we never forget. The boats which go up the majestic river are filled every day from spring to late fall with people who sit on the docks and for hours drink in the glorious beauty of this divine landscape.

Many years ago a great scholar took the trip up the Hudson and spent the whole time seated in the lounge reading a book. He never went out to see the glorious God had painted on the landscape. He was a minister, but he was more interested in reading what someone had written about God than in seeing what God had written about Himself.

Everyone of us is guilty of shutting himself or herself away from the benign influences which God would continually shed upon our lives. His glory is written in the landscape, and we worry and wonder if our little plans will fail. His majesty is in the stars, and yet we are loath to commit our destiny into the hands of the Great King. His goodness is shown forth in a million different ways, yet we are fearful.

God is all around us if we only have eyes to see. There is no season of the year when we may not observe His glory.

"God is a Spirit, infinite, eternal, and unchangeable, in his being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness, and truth."

Before The City Spends Any More Money...

Greenville faces the problem of either repairing its present swimming pool at a considerable expense or abandoning the pool entirely and working on plans and financial arrangements to construct pools greatly needed by both white and Negro children of the city.

If it is at all feasible, and on the surface it surely seems so, The Reflector would favor the latter alternative.

As the situation stands now, the city swimming pool is unfit for use.

The utilities department is in the process of replacing a broken section in the sewerage line which lies only a few inches below the bottom of the pool. After the line is repaired, the bottom of the pool must be repaired; and if it is done properly to prevent seepage of sewerage water and surface water, it will cost the city several thousand dollars.

It is true that a temporary job on the bottom of the pool can be done for much less money, but that would be impractical from the long range standpoint and unwise from a public health standpoint.

Before further work is done toward repairing the bottom of the pool, it should be decided whether the pool will be used for several more years, or whether it will be abandoned within the next five or six years even if the necessary repairs are made.

Two new swimming pools for Greenville will be a sizeable undertaking. They would cost the city between $100,000 and $150,000. That the facilities are needed can hardly be contested.

The Reflector believes Greenville will be able to finance the project with very little additional financial strain if the city fathers put their minds to the task.

For the past two years there has been the cry that Greenville is bonded to the hilt... no more bonds could be issued for any purpose. But during the past two years the city has been steadily decreasing its bonded indebtedness.

There is a provision in the general statutes of the State by which the board of aldermen can issue, without a vote of the people, up to 75 per cent of the total amount of bonds retired by the city in the fiscal year immediately preceding the year in which the action is taken.

This provision may provide the solution to Greenville's financial problem and do away with the necessity of having a special bond election.

During the fiscal year which closes June 30, the city will have retired a total of $108,000 in bonds for the city, the schools and the utilities. Although the total figures on the amount of bonds retired during the 1949-fiscal year were not immediately available at the city hall, the amount was close to that which was retired during the current year.

With the proper resolution between now and June 30, the aldermen can pave the way for a new $50,000 to $75,000 bond issue on the basis of the principal retired during 1949-50. Likewise with another resolution before July 1, 1952, the board could make another $50,000 to $75,000 issue on the basis of the bonds retired this year.

Bond anticipation notes could be issued at a low interest rate to finance the construction of the pools, and the notes could be taken up with money from the bond issues as they are made.

If the property on which the present swimming pool is located were offered for sale by the city, it should bring between $15,000 and $30,000. In addition, there would be some salvage for the equipment at the present pool.

This swimming pool situation needs far-sighted consideration by the recreation commission and the board of aldermen. The consideration should be given the matter before the city spends any more money on the present pool.

Recognition For The Women's Achievements

The Greenville Business and Professional Club are to be congratulated for their achievements during the past year and for the recognition received by the club at the State BPW convention.

The local club received a loving cup for stabilization and for a 91 per cent increase in membership during the past year, and likewise received awards for public affairs and for newspaper coverage of its activities.

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club is one of the more outstanding BPW Clubs in the State. The club has taken active interest in practically every civic project which has been undertaken in Greenville during the past several years, and it has brought many civic needs of the city to the attention of the women of the city and the men also.

The interest which the members of the Business and Professional Women's Club have taken in local affairs is an indication of the increasingly important part the women are taking in the public life of the community. The Reflector looks forward to the worthwhile achievements which will come as more and more women take more interest in the civic affairs of Pitt County.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Democratic "liberals" are making muttered charges that President Truman has betrayed them on the question of federal regulation of natural gas prices in a deal with the Texas-Oklahoma-Arizona Bloc on Capitol Hill, which includes such influential figures as Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senate Leader McFarland, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally and Senator "Bob" Kerr.

Their suspicion has been aroused by Mr. Truman's apparent indifference toward the attitude of the Federal Power Commission on this problem, and his delay in reorganizing the FPC with members sympathetic to a stronger exercise of federal authority in this field.

CANDIDATE—A recent edition of the political newspaper published by the Americans for Democratic Action, which represents the so-called "Roosevelt Wing," demanded that the President "shake up the FPC." It also intimated that Mr. Truman was showing no concern in the matter out of a desire to reward Mr. Kerr, the oil millionaire from Oklahoma.

It linked the so-called "deal with the Senator's unquestioning support of the Administration's foreign policies, and especially his promptness in siding with the White House in the MacArthur controversy.

There is also the fact that Democratic National Chairman Boyle, who once earned a fat fee from the independent oil interests involved, selected Senator Kerr to deliver the principal address at the recent Denver rally.

Finally, the Oklahoma is frequently mentioned as a vice-presidential candidate for 1952, with or without Mr. Truman at the head of the ticket.

Suspect—Senator Kerr's role of presidential spokesman is currently suspect because he inspired unusually vicious attacks on Mr. Truman after the Chief Executive vetoed the famous Kerr Bill, which would have exempted independent producers of natural gas from federal regulation of prices.

It was understood at the time that Mr. Truman had promised to approve the measure because of his many debts to the Democratic leadership on both sides of the Capitol. But numerous consumers' organizations, the ADA-ers and a score of Mayors from the great cities brought terrific pressure on him. They insisted that the price exemption would mean sharp increases in costs for the growing number of consumers in urban areas.

When Mr. Truman finally disapproved the Kerr legislation, the Oklahoma Senator inserted numerous editorials in the Congressional Record that openly rebuked the President as guilty of deliberate deceit and double-crossing. The offended Senator made no secret of the fact that the clippings expressed the sentiment felt by himself and many of the southwestern individualists.

EMBARRASSING—Meanwhile, the Federal Power Commission's attitude has amounted to a virtual veto of the President's action. For many years it has refused to intervene on behalf of consumers in Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan, whose gas prices have been raised by a company headed by a firm with important connections in Oklahoma and adjacent states. The FPC says that it is "investigating."

Oddly enough, Mr. Truman's crony, former Senator Mon Wallgren, has shown no more interest in the question than the President. Mr. Wallgren was denied confirmation as head of the National Security Resources Board on the ground that he was "unqualified," but the Senate okayed his selection as FPC chairman. However, his absentee record probably excels that of any member of a federal agency.

His recent resignation has brought the situation to an embarrassing climax. The liberals insist that Vice-Chairman Thomas Buchanan be promoted to the top job, for he has dissented violently from the commission's several decisions not to consider gas rate boosts in the middle west. They also demand that another likeminded man be named, thus creating a majority on their side.

MUTTERING—The fact is that the "cowboy bloc," as some colleagues affectionately dub the Rayburn-McFarland-Hyden-Kerr group, is doing some anti-hill House muttering of its own. They have been responsible for the legislative feet-dragging that is almost without precedent.

Despite his gratitude for present favors, Mr. Kerr wants no "liberalization" of the FPC. Speaker Rayburn recently shocked the White House with his open advocacy of state ownership of oil fields.

Senate Leader McFarland and Senate Rules Chairman Carl Hayden, both of Arizona, want more administration help in their clash with Republican California over water rights.

He's Never Been Quite The Same—

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

In keeping with the constant struggle to prove that grass is always greener in the other man's pasture, Wife Rachel and I were presenting our cases against each other last night. Her intention was to prove that the husband has an easy, care-free life, while the poor housewife works 15 hours a day. Naturally my intention was to prove that she has a pleasant, leisurely time at home while I struggle to sell automotive parts day after day.

We had to designate a period of time in the argument: B.D.P. stands for Before and After the Dauper Plant Burned Down. Since the plant burned, there is no question that I have the better deal. Our nine-months-old daughter, Nancy, presents a big diaper problem. They say it takes a man to admit when he's defeated, and since that plant burned, I must admit that she has the worst end of the bargain.

However, there is that period of time when we had diaper service that I contend that W.R.

had the best deal.

"And why do you say that?" W.R.

"Well," I said, "you have the pleasure of staying at home all day with the baby, and I have to leave. Why I know a man by the name of Shorty Broad that works at the Wagner-Waldrop Motors who gets up at 5:30 in the morning to play with his baby. That shows how much the Daddy likes to play with his offspring. And I have to miss all of that."

"But," W.R. shot back, "Shorty is the one who does that. I have not noticed your getting up at any 5:30 in the morning. You play with Nancy during your wake hours, but I haven't noticed any effort to stretch your wake hours."

"Well," I explained, "I have more wake hours than Shorty does. He lives over in Winterville and has to spend a lot of time commuting."

Rachel's attack wasn't over. She continued, "Remember that Saturday afternoon that I went shopping and left you to take care of Nancy? When I got back you were completely worn out. Nancy had been in a fussy mood and she had kept you jumping all afternoon."

How well I remembered. Mark one up for W.R. But then I went on to mention the times that I try to call Rachel on the phone, only to find the phone busy hour after hour. In such cases I come home and ask W.R., in a very casual manner, what she's been doing all morning. The answer I get is also casual: "Washing, cooking, and taking care of Nancy." Then comes an incidental comment, "Oh, yes, so-and-so called to tell me about the meeting of the book club. And so-and-so called to tell me that the bridge club isn't going to meet Wednesday. And so-and-so called to tell me about the circle meeting." By that I wonder how Rachel managed to cook dinner in the midst of all the calls. When I see that the biscuit are burned to a crisp, the wonder vanishes.

Nobody won the argument. Both of us still think the grass is greener in the other one's pasture. And I thank you.

HEALTH—Decision of the supreme court holding that ordinances adopted by the joint Forsyth-Winston-Salem health board were unconstitutional.

Winston-Salem health board was constitutionally established, occasioned considerable furor throughout the state. Almost certain result will be reorganization of joint boards of health in many of the large cities and counties. There is provision in general state law for co-operative activity. The Forsyth-Winston-Salem board had been established under a special local act, which the court held contravened the constitutional amendment of 1916 prohibiting special local and private legislation.

UNWARRANTED—The challenged ordinance dealt with milk regulations, and first impression among numerous health officers was that the court opinion meant boards of health did not have authority to enact local ordinances affecting milk. That fear was unwarranted. The decision meant that the board in question didn't have authority to enact any ordinances, because of its unconstitutional basis. Boards of health which are legally set up have broad authority in regulating local conditions pertaining to milk, sanitation and other public health matters. Opinion of state health and legal officials is that perhaps a dozen local boards will have to be revamped and present regulations re-enacted in order to make them effectively enforceable.

SALUTARY—After the first flurry was over and state officials were convinced that the court decision did not affect validity of regulations promulgated by legally constituted boards of health, the second impression was the effect of the opinion may be very salutary and helpful, not only in the field of public health but in many other phases of law enforcement and co-operative activities of state and local governments. The confusing mass of local legislation, purporting to set up different methods of procedure in different counties and municipalities, has been a source of bother for many years.

UNCHALLENGED—This situation became so acute half a century ago that steps were taken to limit legislative authority over purely local matters. The people ratified a constitutional amendment in 1916, effective with the convening of the 1917 legislature, rigidly limiting power of the general assembly to enact private or special legislation. Specifically prohibited in Sec. 20, Article II, of the state constitution is local special legislation "relating to the pay of jurors; relating to health, sanitation and the abatement of nuisances; relating to ferries or bridges; establishing or changing the lines of school districts," and numerous other specific limitations. Marvel is that so many acts of this kind have been passed and gone unchallenged in the courts. Numerous counties have special local acts affecting pay of jurors. Several administrative school districts have been set up by legislative act, contrary to opinion of the state board of education. The 1951 legislature specifically ordered establishment of a ferry, over disapproval of the highway and public works commission. Result of court action in the Winston-Salem case may bring about restudy of many of these other local acts, which are of questionable constitutionality, because one sentence in the constitution reads: "Any local, private, or special act or resolution passed in violation of the provisions of this section shall be void."

EFFECTIVE—Provisions of the section do not affect any local acts passed prior to 1916, but opinion of numerous legal authorities is that a great deal of legislation put upon the statute books within the past thirty years, if challenged in the courts, would suffer similar Forsyth-Winston-Salem kind of health act. There is further opinion that interest created by the Forsyth case may cause some of the other special acts to be carried up for final judicial determination as to validity.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

DRIVER TRAINING

(New Bern Sun Journal)

Laments about the nation's motor traffic fatalities usually wind up with a spirited call for more driver education. It's hopeful, therefore, to be able to report that genuine progress is being made toward that end. The Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, which has played a big role in spurring driver education programs, recently summed up the cheerful evidence.

The findings deal with high school students, since most programs are in that field. In the current school year nearly 750,000 students were enrolled in driver-training courses. That's more than double the 330,000 who were enrolled four years ago. A total of 8,845 schools are giving courses, a marked advance from the 7,108 which offered such instruction last year. Since 1948 nearly 6,000 schools have added driver-training to their curriculum.

This is good news for those who have despaired of seeing any solid hope of improvement in the traffic situation. The Association estimates that students trained in driving will have a three-to-one better chance of avoiding motor accidents than those who get no formal training.

But there are still some 11,500 schools with perhaps another 750,000 students that lack any kind of driver-training courses. So the room for expansion of these programs is ample.

What facts are there to support the view that driver-training really pays off? Naturally, since most of the programs are relatively new, comparative figures aren't numerous. But a few studies have been made. In Delaware, the Motor Vehicle Department analyzed the driving records of 1,600 licensed motorists, half with training and half without. The survey showed that of the 800 trained drivers only 100 had either been arrested for traffic violations, involved in an accident or warned by police officers. Of the 800 untrained drivers, 769, or 96 per cent, had some kind of black mark against them.

Business Today

There are some staggering inventories in the hands of wholesalers, judging from a Department of Commerce report on the wholesale trade. At the beginning of May, wholesalers' inventories were 38 per cent higher than a year earlier and 3 per cent higher than at the beginning of April. The Commerce report is based on information from 4,096 establishments. Some of the increase, of course, represents a higher dollar value of stocks. But since there has been far from 36 per cent inflation in the last year the total suggests a very high physical volume, perhaps the highest ever. The increase in April was the ninth successive monthly rise since July, 1960.

Wholesalers of plumbing and heating supplies showed the largest increase in inventories—70 per cent above a year ago. They were closely followed by appliance and specialty wholesalers, up 63 per cent, and the electric group, up 60 per cent.

If there is a cutback in production during the last half of the year and if there is a large rise in employment and hence buying power—as is expected—wholesalers will be sitting pretty. If, however, there is ample civilian production and buying power does not rise as expected, or if it is drastically reduced by taxation, many wholesalers will have their bankers' breathing down their necks.

INDEPENDENTS HOLD OWN DURING APRIL. It was noted here yesterday that chain and mail stores rose 3 per cent above a year earlier in April while department store sales were down 2 per cent. Well, independent retailers held exactly even in those months, the Department of Commerce now reports.

Largest advances were by accessory, fire and battery dealers, up 40 per cent; stationery stores, up 37 per cent; floor covering stores, up 35 per cent, and store and office machine and equipment dealers, up 32 per cent. Worst declines were by florists, down 27 per cent (because of earlier Easter); shoe stores, down 17 per cent; family clothing stores, down 16 per cent; radio stores, down 16 per cent, and women's accessory stores, down 15 per cent.

DENIES MORTGAGE MONEY HAS VANISHED. Statements that mortgage money has "virtually disappeared" are being challenged by Walter J. L. Ray, president of the U. S. Savings and Loan League. He says private mortgage money is adequate to meet the needs of home buyers. He admits credit for the construction of new homes has slowed down but says, "It has far from vanished."

FREE ADS OFFERED IN DEFENSE EFFORT. Any company, association or individual wishing to help promote the national defense and mobilization campaigns in their advertising can get help from any newspaper.

The Advertising Council has mailed kits of advertisements suitable for local sponsorship to every newspaper in the country. The Council will supply the newspaper or its advertisers with mats for the advertisements free of charge.

RANGE SHIPPMENTS DROP IN MONTH. Gas ranges shipped during April were 4.4 per cent higher than a year ago, but 17.6 per cent fewer than in March, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association says. April shipments totaled 349,000 units.

NEW AND HOT. BRUSHES: After 12 years of research, brushes with synthetic bristles said to equal hog bristles in durability, elasticity and paint capacity, have been developed by Pittsburgh-based Glass Co., 632 Duquesne Way, Pittsburgh, Pa. China and Russia previously supplied the bulk of hog bristles for brushes.

CANDLE: A candle that does almost everything has been introduced by Ajello Candles, Ajello Bldg., Manassas, N. Y. It repels insects, dispels unpleasant odors and can be used to light fires, as a safety flare, to warm food or provide emergency light. TEES: A pair of "four up" plastic golf tees, held in a clasp attached to a pin serves as a bit of decorative, if unusual, costume jewelry. The tees can be detached and used to tee balls. They are by Four-Up-Tee Co., 100 Stevens Ave., Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

LITMUS: A new shampoo is being promoted with litmus paper. A book of the paper, which turns blue when alkali touches it, is attached to each bottle and users are invited to test the new shampoo against any other to satisfy themselves there's no alkali in new shampoo. Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — Will "American women ever be stocked in coin-vending machines—just like candy bars and cigarettes?"

A well-known artist fears they are becoming so standardized that this is a possibility.

"They reflect the factory age so much," sighed Paul Meltner, "that I look forward to the time when you can go up to a machine marked 'woman' put in a coin, and select the standard model you want."

This form of mechanical courtship might attract the average woman, charmed by its convenience. But it is gruesome for Meltner to contemplate, because he believes American women are losing the individuality the artistic soul prizes.

He says they camouflage themselves so much now that it is almost impossible to do an honest portrait of them.

"The artist is in a peculiar position," he said. "If he paints what he sees, a lot of people simply won't believe it. They will regard it as an anatomical absurdity. Because women no longer are what they seem."

"They are walking examples of all that the average person finds objectionable in so-called modernistic art. Their faces have a quality of abstract art—a dead look out of this world."

Meltner, whose studies hang in a dozen museums here and abroad, said American women "need more individual analysis and less false propaganda."

"If our country were in the same shape its women are, it would be hard to find out what shape it really was."

Basically, he said the trouble is that women have become slavish robots of the fashion world. A woman of natural beauty ruins it by wrong-making, wrong hair coloring, wrong changing of her dress, figure, and so on.

"Many married men just look at their wives, changing from year to year with the dictates of fashion," he said, "and wonder what happened to the original girl he married."

Meltner himself doesn't have to wonder. He's a bachelor. One of his pet peeves is the gazelle type females displayed in high style fashion magazines.

"They have been an insidious influence on other women, who ruin their health by over-dieting to achieve the same shape," he observed. "But these fashion model types aren't even women. They are freakish rather than beautiful. They are merely dresses on hangers, and there's nothing inside the dresses. Why should women want to imitate these shadows?"

And then Meltner hauled off and delivered himself of a bon mot:

"Women today reflect the industrial age so much that the slang phrase for one with a good shape is, 'boy, she's well stacked.'"

What is the basic reason why women refuse to look like themselves?

"The whole trouble is they don't know what they want—it's a basic insecurity," said the artist. "They think foreign styles must be right because they come from another world."

Meltner is going to Paris soon.

GI's Fight With Chinese Over Boxes Of Chicken

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA — (UP)—Seventy five Chinese paid with their lives in a battle for a chicken dinner.

The prize — six boxes of crisp fried chicken, cigarettes, a case of beer and a fifth of bourbon — went to the GI's of Fox Company.

Actually, neither the Reds nor the GI's were entitled to the delicacy.

It had been left at Fox Company's command post for delivery to George Company that day. Before the food could be delivered the Chinese overran the post in a pre-dawn banzai charge.

From new hill positions overlooking the command post, the men of Fox Company angrily watched the Reds rip open the boxes. It was more than the drooling Americans could stand.

They fixed bayonets and stampeded down the hill, screaming as they went. The terrorized Chinese fled or were killed.

As the GI's dug into the chicken, the field phone rang. It was the George Company commander.

"Where's my chicken?" he demanded.

Your chicken, hell," replied Fox Company commander 1st Lt. Edward C. Abbott. "You didn't help us fight for it and you ain't going to help us eat it."

Solon Set Free Under Heavy Bond

KANSAS CITY — (UP)— Rep. Leonard Irving (D-Mo) was free on $2,000 bond today after pleading innocent to charges that he improperly used union funds during his first campaign for Congress in 1948.

Irving, who only Sunday was re-elected to his sixth term as president of a construction union, was charged with accepting union funds for campaign expenditures and also with spending union funds.

Two Major Fires Cause Big Losses

The month of May saw Greenville's total fire loss of the first five months of the year jump to $355,996.95, as the city suffered its second major fire loss in three months.

Of the figure, $190,000 was caused by a fire in a building owned by the Carolina Sales Company in February and $150,000 of the amount was made up of losses suffered by the Perkins Lumber Company last month.

Thus, with the exceptions of the two major fires which reaped such a heavy toll on the business section of the city, the losses for the five month-period since the first of the year would have run around $45,000 which would have been about an average figure for that time.

The resulting damage represented the biggest loss suffered by the city in more than five years. At that time an uptown business firm and a lumber mill fire were the big losses suffered for the year.

During May the local fire department answered eight box alarms, nine telephone calls.

Five Champions In Water Follies

Five of the nation's outstanding diving stars will be seen in Raleigh with the Water Follies from June 13th through June 18th. From left to right they are Emile Motte, Canadian National diving champion, Eddie Mullane, former U. S. National diving champion; Norma Deans, Woman's Professional diving champion; Roger Madeau, New England fancy diving champion, and Barney Cipriani, world's greatest acrobatic diver.

The Water Follies, on its first visit to the South is an exciting two and one-half hour musical revue, both in the water and on the stage. Presented in the two largest portable pools in the world, the Water Follies is a veritable thrilling circus. For beauty of graceful movement there are the diving champions in an exhibition of the skill which won them national acclaim.

Swimming lovelies, performing an intricate water ballet, make a stunning picture when the stadium lights are extinguished and their fluorescent costumes glow under the magic of black light. Eddie Rose, the world's finest water comedian, justifies his title by his hilarious antics on the high diving board.

Of special interest to the ladies is the fashion show, featuring the evolution of the bathing suit from 1850 to the suit of the future, all modeled by the curvaceous figures of today. U. S. tandem swimming champions, the Vinson Twins, impress the audience with two numbers, beautifully costumed and carefully timed.

Appearing with a splendid group of precision dancers is Ballerina Martha Ann Bentley, lovely-voiced Doris Abbott and musical impersonator Bob McFadden, who together form a well-rounded stage show.

French Guiana became a prison colony in 1852. Sentences to the notorious colony were abolished by French law in 1938. The site of the former prison colony today is profitably occupied by DP's recruited by the International Refugee Organization.

Robersonville Veteran Describes War Situation

By FRANCES J. SMITH
ROBERSONVILLE—Cpl. Dixie Warren, a veteran of the Korean conflict, who recently returned to spend his thirty-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warren, has declared the war very encouraging. However, the 19-year-old soldier admitted that the going was rugged and the prospects were dark, very dark at one time.

Warren, volunteering at the age of 17, entered the services in December of 1948. A month later he was in Japan. On July 2, 1950, he was moved into Korea and was among the very first on July 5 to go into action against the North Koreans.

Starting at a point approximately 30 miles south of Seoul, the young man said his outfit was pushed back to the Pusan perimeter. "In September, we broke out and started North," he said. His first visit to the capital city was brief, but there was little property damaged there at that time. The advance carried to the North Korean border and later on within four miles of the Yalu River.

The young soldier said the going was tough even before the fateful trip in November and December, explaining that he stopped shrapnel with a leg, but three weeks later he was back in action. Before the costly return south, he had lost everyone of his "buddies." Although his outfit made its way back south without being trapped, Cpl. Warren said it was terrible. "We slept in fox holes wrapped in a blanket with the mercury below zero," he stated, declaring that the hottest time he experienced was last July 24 near Taegjon.

Explaining that things had been looking up since General Mat Ridgway took over, Cpl. Warren now says that he is very optimistic over the prospects in Korea. He made no comment about MacArthur as a general or of his dismissal, but he was all for Ridgway. "General Ridgway is a good man. We saw him at the front and the boys are all for him," the corporal stated.

The young man, leaving at the end of this for Fort Jackson where he'll train recruits is among the few Martin County men who entered the Korean conflict right at the beginning and returned home ten months later to tell about it.

Wedemeyer Says Reds Are Praised

WASHINGTON — (UP)—The State Department's wartime representatives in China "invariably" praised the Communists while criticizing the Nationalists, according to Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer.

However, Wedemeyer told the Senate MacArthur investigating committee that he would not say they "were pinko or Communists just because they criticized the Nationalist government or said good things about the Communists in China."

Wedemeyer identified his four political advisers whom he inherited from the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell as John Davies, John Emerson, Raymond Ludden, and John Service.

"Invariably," Wedemeyer said, "those statements which they submitted to me were very critical of the Nationalist government and they were rather praising of the Communist regime."

Wedemeyer also said he refused a State Department official's request to alter his 1947 report on China and Korea because, the official told him, it "embarrassed the government."

Wedemeyer could not recall the changes he said were suggested by Wallon Butterworth, then head of the Department's Far Eastern division.

Priority For Customers Of Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

Tehran — (UP)—Premier Mohammad Mossadegh has reassured President Truman that Iran will give priority to present customers of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., it was disclosed today.

The text of Mossadegh's reply yesterday to Mr. Truman's recent letter urging a negotiated settlement of the dispute was released here. Western nations now get nearly all of Iran's oil.

Mossadegh renewed charges that the oil company's secret agents had exerted economic pressure on Iran to prevent efforts to improve economic conditions, and said Iran had no alternative but to take over the company.

Kasem Hassibi, the "brains" behind the oil nationalization move, said that although the British-controlled oil resources are being taken over, Iran still needs the services of British technicians.

"We need the help of the civilized world to run the industry," Hassibi said in an interview. "We will continue to have the services of British technicians. There is nothing to prevent us from having the advice of foreign technicians. We need their advice to improve the industry, but we will in no way allow them to interfere with our affairs."

"The Iranian people and their government have always considered the United States their sincere and well-wishing friend, and relying upon that friendship, the government and Parliament of Iran, like yourself, desire that the interests of the countries which hitherto used Iranian oil should not suffer the slightest degree."

Hassibi said Iran will not agree to a 50-50 split in oil profits proposed by the British.

"One hundred per cent of the oil revenues belong to Iran," he said. "What we have said was that 25 per cent should be set aside to pay claims of the former oil company."

Preacher To Sue Three Companies

ST. LOUIS — (UP)—The Rev. Guy Howard, "The Walking Preacher of the Ozarks," charged three record companies today with "burlesquing" his career to make money "from beer hall tunes."

Howard opened his $1,000,000 suit yesterday in Federal court by playing a record of "The Missouri Walkin' Preacher with the Little Book in His Hand."

He said the lyrics ridiculed him and made light of Christianity. The record companies all denied any ridicule.

Chicago Expects Rocky Ride As Loop Leaders Go On Tour

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

The league-leading Dodgers and White Sox hit the road today — but Brooklyn expected a leisurely excursion while Chicago got set for a rocky ride.

A slight case of mathematics made the difference. Brooklyn, coasting along with a formidable five-and-a-half game lead, was ready to throw well-rested Preacher Roe against the Cardinals at St. Louis tonight.

The White Sox, holding only a two-and-a-half game lead after dropping three out of four games to the surging Yankees, weren't sure who to start against the Senators at Washington tonight. Manager Paul Richards said he might use either Ken Holcombe or lanky first baseman Lou Kretlow.

Shipper Chuck Dressen of Brooklyn had still another reason to be optimistic in rookie Dick Williams recently discharged from the army.

Installed in left field against the Pirates Sunday, Williams poled four hits in five trips to the plate. Originally destined for St. Paul, Williams will be retained by the Dodgers as a service returnee.

"He may be more of a help to us than I thought," Dressen said, after Williams' performance against Pittsburgh. "He didn't shape up as a regular at first but we can always make room."

In the American League's first-place precinct, Richards was considerably worried about his White Sox as they began an Eastern invasion which will pit them against the second-place Yankees beginning June 19. In seven games between the two clubs thus far, the White Sox have been able to defeat the Yankees only twice while losing five times.

To add to Richards' immediate woes, Washington will start its ace right-hander, chunky Conrado Marrero against the White Sox tonight.

Most major league clubs spent an off-day traveling yesterday but several played exhibition games.

Veteran catcher Buddy Rosar drove in two runs with a pinch single in the eighth inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 5 to 3 victory over the New York Giants in a charity exhibition game, and in another charity contest Pittsburgh, with the aid of homers by Erv Dusak and Westy Westlake, topped Cleveland, 9 to 5.

The St. Louis Cardinals fell before their Rochester farm hands of the International League, 6 to 5, when the Red Wings clouted Howie Pollet for two runs in the third inning and three more in the fourth. Rochester added its sixth run against Cloyd Boyer in the sixth.

Hogan Brands Oakland Hills Course 'Toughest Of All'

DETROIT (AP)—Ben Hogan has seen a lot of golf courses in his time. And you can take it from him: The Oakland Hills course, site of the National Open that starts here Thursday, is "the toughest I've ever seen."

The slight Texan, defending champion, explains it this way: "First, off the tee there is so little room to land shots out in the real driving range."

"Second, if you did manage to land on the fairway, real work is cut out for you to hit the green."

"Finally, those greens are so large that you're more apt to three putt than two putt."

The ideal golfer for the course, he said on the basis of his experience in five practice rounds, is "the man who is an unusually short driver and unusually long iron player."

But Hogan added, "I don't know of a golfer who fits that description." The Oakland Hills layout, Bantam Ben said, "handicaps long hitters by taking away the premium that they've been working for all their lives."

Maxim To Visit Boxing Officials

CHICAGO (UP)—Joey Maxim is scheduled to tell the Illinois Athletic Commission June 25 whether he felt drugged when he fought Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight championship May 30.

The commission ordered the light heavyweight camp and his trainer, Al Del Monte, to testify after Maxim's manager, Jack Kearns, told it yesterday that he didn't know whether the fighter was drugged or not.

Kearns said he had no evidence whether Maxim was under the influence of drugs, but that his fighter didn't look like himself against Charles.

"Joe walked into the ring in a half daze," he said. "He looked to me like a fighter full of dope."

"He could have been doped from a left hook," Kearns added. "It's just an expression."

Marty Decides To Protect Knee

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—Marty Marion, St. Louis Cardinal manager, scintillated at shortstop during infield practice last night but decided against testing his ailing left knee in an exhibition game because the field was wet and slippery.

Marion originally announced he would try to play against Rochester, but changed his mind after fielding impressively during practice.

"The knee is coming along nicely and I'd rather not risk any further injury," he said.

Ferris Fain is determined to get his name in the select group of hitters who bat .300 or better for one season. He hasn't managed to accomplish this in his four previous years with the Athletics but he has made a flying start toward his objective.

Fain has been a sensation at the plate this season, batting close to the .400 mark in the first 30 games of the schedule. He can't continue that pace but he's piling up a nice cushion for some lean days. The reasons for Fain's sudden spurt at the plate two-fold.

First of all, the Athletics came up with a promising rookie first-sacker in Lou Lumber. Lou, a long ball hitter threatened to give Fain a battle for his job. Another reason for Fain's fine showing is that he has been moved up into the second spot in the line-up since the Athletics acquired Slugger Gus Zernial. Fain had been used in the fourth spot and too often he was pressing for the long hits that are expected of clean-up hitters. Fain isn't a long hitter, and he throws himself off when pressing for distance.

Another important reason for Fain's rise into the company of select sluggers is the fact that Ferris is doing a better job of controlling his temper this season. He still flares up now and then but settles down before things reach the violent stage as they did in the past.

Robersonville and Plymouth Pick Up Wins Over Jamesville, Williamston

WILLIAMSTON—Plymouth scored two runs in the top of the tenth inning to defeat Williamston 11-9, Sunday afternoon. They had previously tied the contest with one run in the ninth stanza.

Billy Peele, who relieved Ed Rowland in the second inning, was charged with the loss. He was released.

Savold And Joe Look For Kayos In Brief 'Waltz'

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'll knock out Lee Savold inside six rounds," Joe Louis said.

"I'll knock out Joe Louis in five rounds," Lee Savold said.

Somebody had better knock out somebody—quick—tomorrow night. The possibility of 37-year-old Joe and 35-year-old Lee pawing through 15 rounds uncorks sad visions.

The pick here is Louis in five. There has been little hullabaloo about this "Battle of the Aged" at the Polo Grounds.

International Boxing Club officials will be happy to settle for 15,000 fans and $100,000.

There will be television, but none in your home. The fight will be piped on a special closed circuit to theaters in Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland, Albany and Washington. It's the first sports test of a new idea—pay-as-you-go TV.

Louis is a strong 3 to 1 favorite. But this fight is almost as much a mystery to boxing people as to the fans.

Nobody knows how Savold, once a barker but now a physical fitness "bug," will stand up. He hasn't fought in a year since he knocked out Bruce Woodcock to earn British recognition as world champion.

Boxing some 104 rounds at Paterson, N. J., and South Fallsburg, N. Y., Lee claims he's as sharp as ever. His best punch is his left hook or jab.

Louis felt so frisky when he finished yesterday at Pompton Lakes, N. J., that he said he wished he was fighting Ezzard Charles for the title instead of Savold.

The winner of this bout is due to fight Charles in September.

Savold weighed 190 pounds when he finished, Louis 211.

Exchange Nine Defeats Moose By 5-4 Margin

McArthur pitched the Exchange-ites to a 5-4 win over the Moose with a two hit hurling effort yesterday. He struck out nine and walked eight.

A single run in the fourth inning sewed the game up for the winners. George Nickols led off by being hit by the pitcher. After Bullock had walked, Nunn singled to score Nickols.

Blount went the distance for the losers. He yielded three hits and struck out seven men and walked four.

The only extra base blow in the ball game was struck by Sermons in the last inning for the losers.

'Race Of Year' Seen At Belmont

NEW YORK (UP)—The rich and gruelling Belmont Stakes, likely to be the "horse race of the year," was shaping up today as a six-horse race with Count Turf the favorite at post time Saturday.

Traditionally, the Belmont draws small fields and this year will follow the rule, although there may be an additional starter out of a group of three "possibles."

Count Turf definitely will start, according to the word from trainer Sol Rutnick There had been reports that the Kentucky Derby champion was lame, but Rutnick insisted that he was "100 percent fit."

Obscurity Of Past Headliners Demonstrates Fame Is Fleeting

CHICAGO — (UP)—A look today at some of the "big names" that captured public notice in recent decades is proof enough that fame—and notoriety—are transient.

The names still sound familiar, but you don't hear them often any more.

Even many who made banner headlines a few years ago have slid back into relative obscurity.

Few persons, for example, have created more U. S. public controversy than did a Tennessee school teacher John T. Scopes when he was tried and found guilty on July 21, 1925, of teaching evolution. Scopes' counsel was the famed criminal lawyer Clarence Darrow. The prosecuting attorney was William Jennings Bryan.

Geologist Now

Scopes, who was fined $100 and freed, later studied geology at the University of Chicago and lives quietly today with his family in Shreveport, La., working as a geologist for the United Gas Co. He doesn't like to talk about the trial.

Clarence D. Chamberlin, who received a hero's ticker tape welcome on his return in 1927 from setting a long-distance non-stop flying record between New York and Germany, in 1932, lives on a farm in Shelton, Conn., where he is an automobile distributor.

Whittaker Chambers, former headlines when he admitted acting as a pre-war Communist spy courier and later was key government witness against Alger Hiss, also lives on a farm now, near Westminster, Md. He is reluctant to discuss his affairs.

Old Manuscript Letter-Book By Pepys Auctioned

LONDON — (AP)—Unpublished letters by the English diarist Samuel Pepys, throwing light on why he disinherited his nephew, brought $546 in a London sale room recently.

London bookseller E. U. Maggs, who bid that top price, carried off the old manuscript letter-book, containing 86 letters, all written between 1690 and 1702.

Samuel Jackson, the nephew, was due to inherit the bulk of Pepys' estate under an original will, but in 1703 a few months before his own death—Pepys made a new will reducing the bequest to 40 pounds a year. His complaint: "Samuel Jackson has thought fit to dispose himself in marriage against my positive advice and injunctions and to his own irreparable prejudice and dishonor."

Educator Says Childrens' Eyes Need 'Vacation'

DALLAS — (AP)—School children's eyes as well as their minds need a vacation from the daily classroom routine, says a prominent Texas educator and school lighting authority.

"Vacation time offers a respite from the indoor shackles of near-vision and the poor daylighting found in many outmoded classrooms," explains Prof. R. L. Bieseke, Jr., head of Southern Methodist University's department of electrical engineering. "Nature equipped man with eyes that are accustomed to the daylighting of open spaces."

Professor Bieseke, now engaged in research for the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., has just set up at SMU an elaborate laboratory-classroom for the study of the effects of daylighting. The room has movable walls which make it possible to admit varying degrees of natural light from different directions.

Red-Style Romance Just Doesn't Click

BERLIN — (UP)— People still are getting married for love or for money in Communist-run East Germany.

Soviet zone propagandists, in their magazine serials, radio soap operas and films would have you believe that only industrial "activists" and those who score high in Marxist dialectics attain romance.

Nevertheless, widowers with furnished homes, women with dowries and "pretty young girls" are more sought after than holders of a Communist Party card.

Love Still Love

Marriage advertisements in East German newspapers run side by side with Communist attacks on capitalism and American-style pin-up girls, but gain and beauty seem to motivate the men and women seeking mates.

"Farmer's daughter with furniture and good linen supply seeks acquaintance with the purpose of marriage of a man with his own house" is a typical advertisement which appeared in the Communist-edited German Week.

"Teacher, five feet nine, good appearance, seeks love match with pretty young girl" is another.

As bait, the applicants offer everything from automobiles, boats and dairy farms to a "blameless past."

Big Business

Love has become a big business in Germany, in the East as well as the West. It isn't exactly for sale but a small investment can put you well on the road to finding a "suitable comrade for life" or just someone interested in "mutual recreation."

Countless marriage bureaus and newspaper departments have sprung up to capitalize on marital dislocations caused by the war and the excess of women over men.

Six years of Communist rule appears to have had no effect on the emotions that prompt a boy to meet a girl.

Take the "22-year-old brunette" for example, who advertised for "a man up to 30 who is interested in movies, theater, opera, dancing and above all is a water rat who likes to swim in the summer and take long walks in the woods."

State Employees Given Warning

RALEIGH — (UP)— Atty.-Gen. Harry McMillan warned state employees today they faced fines of from $100 to $1,000 and loss of their jobs if they were caught using state-owned cars on their own time.

McMillan wrote Gov. Kerr Scott reporting that state law specifically classified use of public vehicles for private ends as a misdemeanor. The car assigned to the Governor and the Executive Mansion was exempted, he said.

Scott recently asked McMillan to investigate laws covering state-owned cars after reports reached his office that state workers were using government vehicles in off hours.

Hot Dogs Given Higher Ceiling In Price Order

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Hot dogs may go up one to two cents a pound under a price order issued today by the government.

A new Office of Price Stabilization Regulation permits makers of sausage containing beef—frankfurters, bologna, salami and the like—to adjust their prices upward to allow for increases in the cost of beef since January. The order is effective at once.

Sausage prices have been frozen at the highest level in the base period covered by a general price freeze—last December 19 through January 25.

In other developments on the economic controls front:

1. The Senate and House Banking Committees arranged to sit down behind closed doors to start hammering out a bill to extend the basic controls law beyond June 30, when it is now due to expire.

In the House, Rep. Spence (D-Ky.) wouldn't suggest a date on which the Banking Committee he heads might have a bill ready.

2. Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson called a morning news conference (10 a. m. est) amid indications he was prepared to announce his decision on the proposed merger of the two emergency production agencies, the National Production Authority (NPA) and the Defense Production Administration (DPA). Disagreements between the two reportedly have resulted in delay of some important decisions.

3. Price Director Michael V. DiSalle scheduled separate talks with groups of American newspaper publishers and manufacturers and newspaper publishers to discuss a scheduled $10 a ton rise in the price of Canadian newsprint.

John Robert Green, Negro, was not guilty of assault on a female and not guilty of temporary larceny of an automobile.

Got His Number

FAIRMONT, W. Va.—(AP)—A police desk sergeant asked a woman who came in to report an accident the routine question, "Did you get the other car's license number?"

"You're doggoned right I did," snapped the woman, who said her car was hit by another vehicle in a parking lot.

"Here it is," she added, tossing a battered license plate on the sergeant's desk. The woman said she tore it loose after the man knocked her to the pavement.

Fourth Wedding For Sultry Hedy

WEST LOS ANGELES —(AP)—Hedy Lamarr and night club operator Ernest (Ted) Stauffer, pulling a surprise on Hollywood, were married late last night at the home of superior judge Stanley Mosk, who performed the ceremony.

It was the fourth marriage for the Austrian-born actress and the bandleader. Both were divorced in 1947. She from actor John Loder and he from actress Faith Domergue.

The couple had obtained a marriage license earlier in the evening at the Santa Monica branch of the county clerk's office. Stauffer, a Swiss who now operates the La Perla Club in Acapulco, Mexico, gave his age as 42. Miss Lamarr gave her age as 35.

She indicated she is thinking about retiring from the films.

"I may make a picture," she said. "If I do, and it isn't decided yet, it will be my last one."

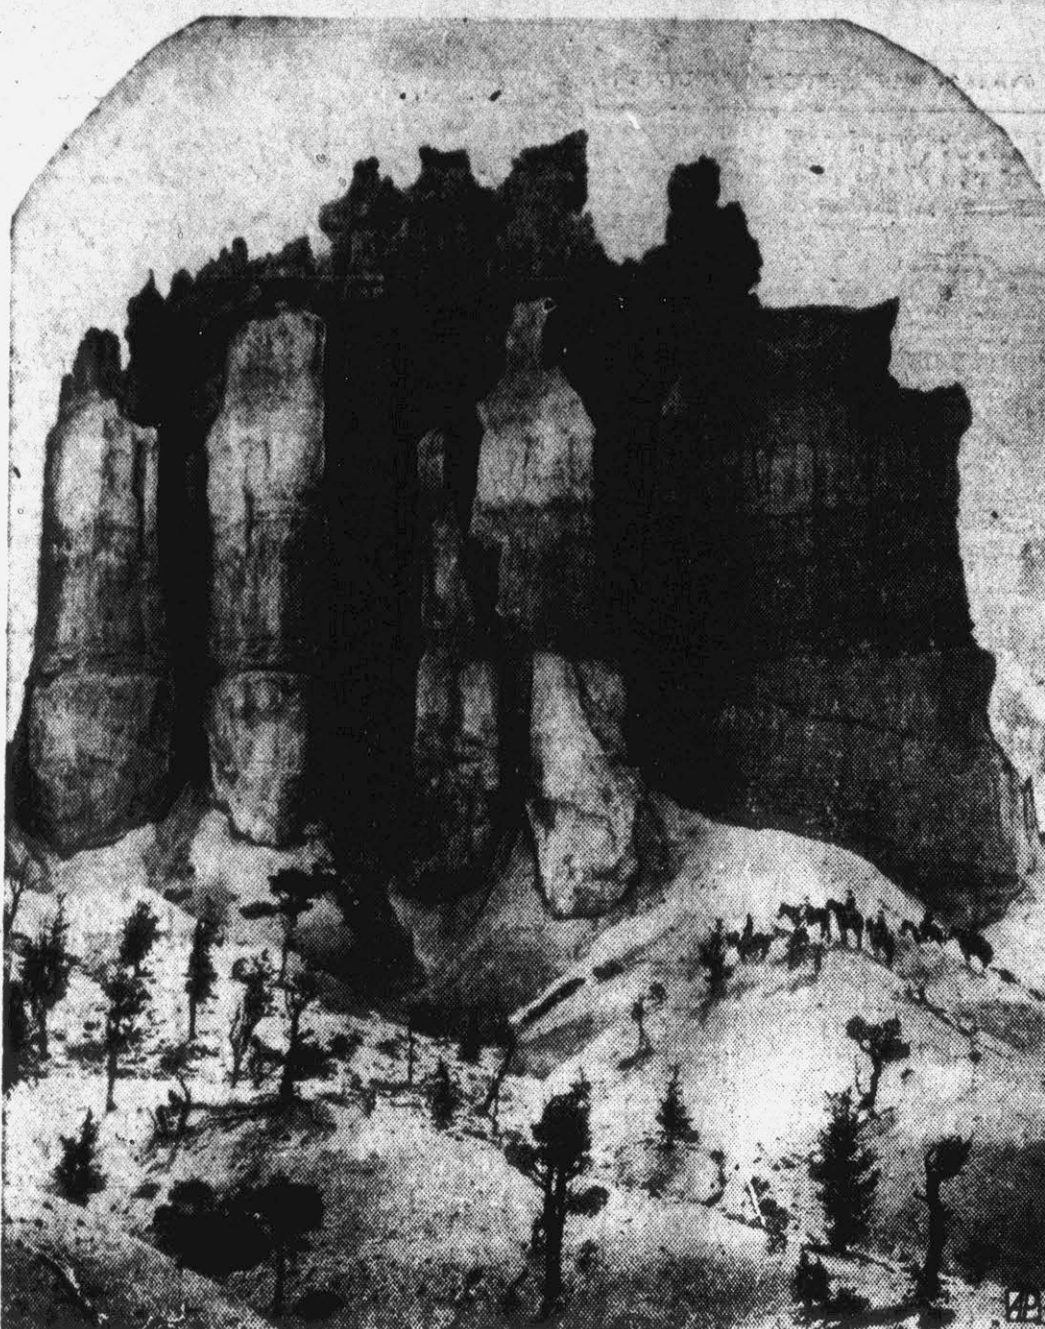

Miss Lamarr met Stauffer in Mexico City seven years ago when he was a bandleader.

Fire Takes Heavy Toll In Lives Of Americans

BOSTON — (UP)— Fire claimed some 800,000 lives in the United States and Canada during the first half of this century.

Improved construction techniques and new fire-fighting equipment apparently have failed to cut fatalities. The annual toll in the United States alone has averaged 10,000 deaths for a considerable period, according to the National Fire Protection Association.

Strangely enough, some of the biggest fires resulted in little or no loss of life. Blazes confined to one building often have taken more lives than sweeping fires that leveled entire cities.

A total of 63 persons, mostly women and children, perished in Chicago's Iroquois Theater holocaust in 1903, and 492 died in the Coconut Grove night club fire at Boston in 1942.

Confined to Building

In neither of those fires did the flames spread beyond the buildings where they started.

On the other hand, not a person was killed in fires that within three days of each other virtually destroyed the cities of Rimouski and Cabano, Que., in May, 1950.

However, not all communities ravaged by what the Fire Protection Association classified as "conflagrations" have been as lucky as the two Quebec cities.

An estimated 500 lives were lost in the fire that followed the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 and which burned unchecked for two days. More than 28,000 buildings were destroyed. Damage was placed at $350,000,000. It was the worst conflagration in North American history.

High Toll in Texas.

Two cargo ships, both carrying highly explosive ammonium nitrate, blew up on successive days at Texas City, Tex., in 1947 to touch off the worst conflagration of recent years. The toll was 468 dead, 100 missing and about 3,000 injured. Property loss ran to more than $67,000,000.

Forest fires have been responsible for some of the most devastating conflagrations since the turn of the century. October seems to be the fatal month for such blazes.

Fed by tinder-dry trees, a main-moist wall of flame swept 15 townships in Minnesota in October, 1918, leaving 559 dead. Damage was estimated at $25,000,000.

Ontario Hard Hit

During the same month in 1922, forest fires burned through 19 northern Ontario townships, killing 44 persons and causing more than $6,000,000 damage. Another series of forest fires swept Maine in October, 1947. More than 1,200 buildings were razed as 16 died in the $30,000,000 conflagration.

On Easter Sunday, 1908, Chelsea, Mass., was reduced to a charred ruin in a $12,000,000 blaze that destroyed 3,500 buildings. Five months later another fire burned through Chelsea, destroying 33 structures valued at $1,300,000.

Salem, Mass., scene of the colonial witchcraft trials must have seemed like a devil's own inferno on June 25, 1914. Six persons died that day in a $14,000,000 fire that wrecked 1,600 buildings.

Heavy Fine For Overloaded Truck

CROWN POINT, Ind. — (UP)— Truck driver John W. Lewis, 37, today faced 2 1/2 years' imprisonment unless his employers pay a $911 fine for an overloaded truck.

Lewis was fined Friday after state police arrested him while driving a truckload of steel that was 9,000 pounds overweight.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A full basement plus a utility room for main floor laundry makes this house especially suitable for real country environment. Service entrance through the utility room provides the advantages of a mud-room where outdoor workers can clean up before entering the house. This is Jan C-204 by the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. The house covers 1,362 square feet and contains 26,695 cubic feet. Ten closets are provided. A breezeway and garage may be attached to the utility room side of the house.

The strict Indiana law demands a day in jail for each dollar of such an unpaid fine. Lewis, the father of six children, couldn't pay it.

New Lounge For Students Opened

Men day students at East Carolina College are enjoying a newly decorated and furnished lounge located on the first floor of the Austin building on the campus.

Funds for the project were provided by the Student Legislature of the college and by individual students.

Junius Rose of Greenville and James D. Mellon of Winterville, officers of the men's day student organization on the campus, were in charge of the work. Approximately 400 men students who live off the campus will use the lounge for study and recreation.

The room has been decorated and furnished in a color scheme of gray, soft green, and red. Pale green walls and polished hardwood

Only Five Live Chinese In City

CHORWON, Korea — (UP)— Allied troops found only five Chinese soldiers in this "iron triangle" bastion—massing area for thousands of Communists only weeks ago.

Except for a few hundred white-clad Koreans, the civilians had fled from the rubble city as the first United Nations troops moved in during a downpour yesterday.

Four shots rang out at their entry. Sgt. Laverne Klockentager of Ames, Ia., investigated. He reported a few minutes later that a die-hard Chinese had been "eliminated."

Thus ended the sole resistance from a city occupied by Red forces since their drive from the Yalu River last November.

The reconnaissance patrol moved warily up the narrow road on the alert for mines and any shots in the back from enemy troops masquerading as civilians.

A terrified Chinese soldier, escorted by two civilians, walked down the road towards the advancing column, his hands in the air. He clenched his lower lip with his teeth to halt his wild trembling.

Upon realizing he would not be shot, the soldier collapsed and was taken prisoner. Two other unarmed Chinese were flushed out and captured.

A fifth Chinese was found lying in a littered home. He died a few minutes later from what appeared to be starvation. The ones taken prisoner looked well fed.

Chorwon, southwest peg of the "iron triangle" where Communists massed their two spring offensives in April and May, lay mostly in ruins.

The city suffered almost fatal damage from the terrific air and artillery bombardment of the past seven days.

Swallows darted about the rubble and skeletons of buildings. One perched upon a sign pointing to Seoul 56 miles to the south.

The civilians along the road showed mixed feelings. Some cheered, others smiled tiredly. A few wept. It was difficult to tell whether they cried from grief, happiness, or relief at being freed from the deadly bombardment.

Three men shook my hand as I passed. A woman bowed deeply and murmured "arrigato," Japanese for "thank you."

Jigger said thoughtfully, "Photostats of a death certificate can be arranged, for a price. Quack doctors blossom like weeds on the West Coast."

"How about the mortician's affidavit?"

"Another dollar, another deal. Any persevering curbstoner would do business with Hunter."

"With cremation part of the deal?"

"Uh-huh. Cremation certainly: no loose ends that way. Just ashes: no cadaver to exhume, if ever an unforeseen hitch developed."

"And the motive for all that?"

"Generally in character with Hunter's ruling obsession," Jigger gestured at the imposing dwelling. "Money."

Red said, "It's a theory, but it sounds as phony as a frame-up to me." He looked at Jigger curiously. "You kept staring at Hunter like a kid gaping at a butterfly. What was the fascination?"

"Just trying to place him," Jigger frowned. "I could swear I've run afoul of that volcanic temper somewhere before."

"You've seen him everywhere, back. He's the boss who canned you on Christmas Eve; the guy who steps on your white-and-tan shoes on a summer Sunday. He's every guy you want to slug on sight."

Jigger said thoughtfully, "Maybe. Let's go."

The towering wrought-iron gates at the foot of the drive were a step away, when Jigger stopped suddenly, listening.

Red saw her first. "It's the pixie with the crocheting needles."

She was behind a row of bushes, making sounds and motions to them covertly.

"I heard you with Matthew," she whispered. "I didn't go to my room. I stood in the hall, and listened."

Jigger asked, "Just what are you to the Hunters?"

"I'm Aunt Penny, Matthew's sister," she fumbled in the bosom of her dress. "I heard you ask for a picture of Susan." She held a card out to Jigger. "I had this portrait in my trunk. Matthew once saw it, but didn't know it was a picture of Susan."

Jigger took the card and examined it. He turned it in his hand, then over again. It was a postcard reproduction of an oil painting, signed "Arens," and captioned "Nude of the Inner Eye." The painting was a patent representation of the non-definitive school of Surrealism.

Jigger pursed his lips. "This is a portrait?"

Aunt Penny giggled. "Susan posed for it, she said."

"Your niece was an artist's model?"

Aunt Penny nodded.

"Where?"

"In New York City."

"When?"

"It was the first Christmas after she ran off," Aunt Penny widened her eyes, remembering. "Matthew thought I was going to see a heart specialist." She giggled.

"But I met Susan instead."

"Wouldn't he have allowed you to visit your niece?"

"Oh, no. Matthew hates everybody." She said it like a child reciting a line in a ghost story.

Jigger persisted, "But exactly why did he hate Susan?"

Aunt Penny thought about it. "Because she was wicked."

"Wicked, how?"

Her face screwed up thoughtfully. "Immoral wicked."

"Just what did Susan do?"

Now Aunt Penny looked scandalized. "She used to meet Tom Connor in the old Saugatuck Mill. That's why Matthew made Susan marry Willie. And that's why she ran off and can't come home!"

Jigger stared at Aunt Penny thoughtfully, assessing their conversation. These revelations fraught with meaning; how much did he dare accept?

Jigger asked, "Do you believe your niece died in San Francisco?"

Aunt Penny's head went up and down.

"Why do you believe it?"

"Matthew says so."

"But do you really believe Susan died?" There was no reply, and Jigger prompted. "Think now, Aunt Penny! You said Matthew made her marry Willie, and that is why Susan ran off and can't come back—is that correct?"

Aunt Penny's head went up and down.

"Now, how can Susan come home if she's dead?"

"She wouldn't dare." The forehead creased grotesquely; Aunt Penny was determined to justify her statement. "I heard Susan say she didn't dare."

"You heard her say?"

"Yes. On the telephone. She was talking to Matthew. First she said she was coming home, then she cried and said she wouldn't." Aunt Penny giggled. "I listened on the upstairs telephone with Willie."

Jigger fought to keep his tones even. "And this telephone call you overheard was when, exactly?"

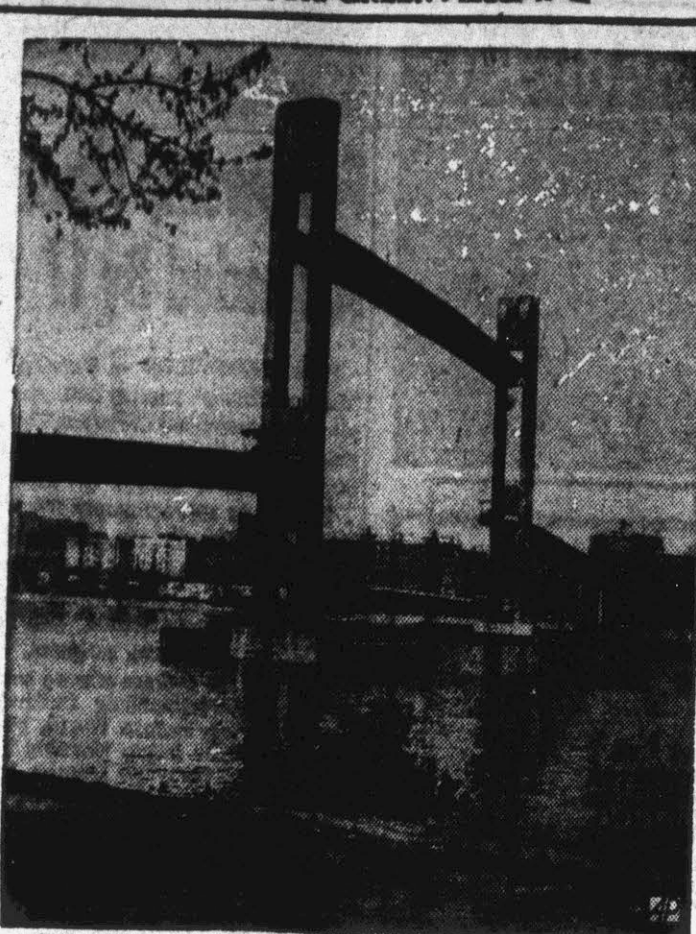

"Last week, just before Matthew—" Her hand flew to her mouth, and her eyes widened into saucers. As Jigger moved toward her eagerly, she backed away, crouching, then darted under him and scurried up the flagstone walk with her hand still cupping her mouth.

They watched the massive oak door open, watched Aunt Penny disappear into the dim interior. Red's fingers pinched into Jigger's arm in warning.

The door hadn't closed. A man stood framed in the opening. It was Matthew Hunter.

Red said hoarsely, "Let's get out of here!" He made no attempt to conceal his panic.

(Dear Judge)

AP Newsfeatures

Everything about summer points up a girl's femininity. Trees seem to have been grown especially for romantic picnics. Sunshine, sea-shore and blue skies transform even city girls into mermaids for a day. The magic of organdy, net, crinoline, ruffles and peek-a-boo petticoats can convert even the jeans fan into a lady for an evening.

But summer isn't all hearts and flowers. Weary girls must work to keep pretty in the summertime, even though it is worth it. Sun and salt water combine to cause painful sunburn, if we aren't careful. Hungry mosquitoes and flies will take a few little bites here and there unless we are properly covered. And what girl hasn't been felled by poison ivy while on a super-deluxe outing?

Most of us do not enjoy wearing that extra-long shirt that covers t's arms or long slacks, especially if we look better in a T-shirt and shorts. But it is better than paying the piper later because we stumbled onto poison sumac or into a nest of mosquitoes.

Every time we get out into the sun, we should wear a head covering that will keep direct sunlight from drying our hair. The shampoo is almost a daily job during the summer, and skin should be slathered with lots of creamy lotion to keep it from getting overly dry.

Let a complete grooming job be part of your weekly beauty routine. Legs should be defuzzed with razor or cream depilatory and toenails pedicured. You can't skip around barelegged and wearing sandals unless you are willing to keep your legs and feet well-groomed.

If you haven't been out in the sun and want to go barelegged, use cake makeup or tinted lotion to give your legs a suntanned hue until you develop a tan. Apply the cosmetic with little cotton squares as sometimes sponges or rubber disks, normally used for this purpose, get sour in warm weather and clog the pores. If fresh cotton is used each time, makeup should go on smoothly. Dampen the cotton first in water, pressing out extra moisture. Then pour a small amount of lotion on a square and apply. When applying lotion or cake tint to the legs, start from the toes and use long, even strokes for a smooth effect. Put newspapers on the floor to soak up the lotion drip so it does not stain tiles or towels.

Most young girls like youthful easy-to-care-for hairdos. It is so nice to be able to run your comb through your hair after a swim and have your tresses fall into graceful waves. Even if hair hangs straight, it can be becoming, providing it is not too long. Then, too, if hair is cut properly, even normally straight ends will take the trouble to pin-curl her locks each night before going to bed.

An end-curl permanent wave whether the salon or home type is wonderful for teen-agers. This gives a nice-top-of-the-head smoothness with ends which can be brushed into curls even when wet.

Makeup is made to order for young moderns this year. You can achieve a nice petal pink complexion with lovely pink lipsticks ranging from the pale, pale pinks to the deep geranium shades. These are bright and gay with just enough blue in them to blend with summer clothes. Red-headed beauties will find yummy tangerine makeup which looks as if it had been made to order for youth—skins.

No matter what older sister does, try to keep to the natural looking pink or peach bloom look this summer. When selecting playclothes, leave the sophisticated styles to older girls. Strapless bathing suits are feminine and flattering—providing they fit. The no-strap suit is prettier on most girls than the two piece suit which usually does not give as pretty a line to a young figure.

Poet Takes Up Sign Painting

CINCINNATI (AP)—Robert P. Tristram Coffin, the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, has turned his talents to sign designing to help the University of Cincinnati pay tribute to the memory of Stephen Foster.

Dr. Coffin has designed and made a sign to designate the Stephen Collins Foster room in the university library. The room contains the second largest collection of memorabilia to Foster, the poet and song-writer who lived in Cincinnati a century ago.

Beavers Take To Sunnier Clime

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP)—Southern California is beavers, too, and less than 50 miles from Los Angeles. A thriving colony of the aquatic animals, generally found in the northern states, was discovered recently high in Soledad Canyon east of here.

Several dams and pools and a large beaver population were found there by a party from the Los Angeles County Fire Department making an annual inspection of the remote area.

Where the beavers came from and how they got there has the fire department puzzled.

Record Harvest Hopes Again Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Official hopes for a record harvest of food, livestock and fibre crops this year have been given a boost by a favorable turn in the weather.

A spring season which started off with dry weather in the Southwest and cool, wet weather in many other important farming areas had turned to normal by early June, the Agricultural Department reported late yesterday.

A record production of crops is being counted upon by the government to prevent shortages, to help curb further advances in farm prices and to put this country in a good position to help shortage areas abroad.

Wheat prospects improved considerably since early May. It now appears, the Department said, that the harvest will be the eighth successive one of more than a billion bushels. It was indicated at about 1,054,000,000 bushels compared with about 982,000,000 a month ago. Last year's harvest was 1,026,000,000.

No estimate was given for the vital corn crop, but the Department said farmers were optimistic about it.

Reds Suspicious Of Charity, Too

HONG KONG (AP)—You can find "imperialist plots" anywhere in Communist China these days.

A Communist news agency says the New York Society for Aid to China's Blind offered $24,000 to the school for blind in Shanghai. The offer was turned down, the agency adds, because members of the Chinese society had "seen through" this imperialistic plot.

Views Result Of Meat Strike With Forboding

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson said today the beef price rollbacks will stand, but that the country will be in a "terrible mess" if the beef strike does not end soon.

Wilson told a news conference that the rollbacks of 4 1/2 percent each on live cattle prices scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1 and Oct. 1, "are firm."

The rollbacks, aimed at reducing beef prices to consumers by 8 to 10 cents a pound by Oct. 1, are opposed by meat interests and cattlemen. Marketing and slaughtering of beef cattle have dropped drastically.

Chicago reported that farmers stepped up their cattle shipments to the nation's big livestock markets today.

Shipments to 12 major marketing centers totaled 36,800 head, compared with 26,500 a week ago and $7,500 a year ago.

A spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture said the increase may mean that farmers and cattle feeders are resigned to the price rollback.

Asked whether meat rationing might become necessary if cattle supplies continue to dwindle, Wilson shook his head.

"Rationing should not be necessary," he said. "We have a tremendous cattle population and prices are good. We ought to be able to keep 150,000,000 Americans supplied with meat without rationing."

Wilson said he sees no reason for farmers to hold cattle off the market at present prices or even at the prices that will prevail after the next two rollbacks.

"I don't feel good about it," he said, referring to the shortage of cattle in the nation's major stockyards.

Meet To Plan Baseball Revival

Plans to revive the Greenville Greens as a semi-pro baseball team are slated to be carried out tomorrow night at a meeting at 7:30 at the city hall.

Bill Phillips, spokesman for the group which has made plans for the organization of the semi-pro team, requested all baseball players interested in becoming members of the team and all townspeople interested in the team to attend the meeting.

Uniforms and some equipment for the Greens already have been purchased, and final organization plans are expected to be worked out at tomorrow's meeting.

Phillips said the Greens already have begun negotiations in an attempt to gain admittance to one of the nearby semi-pro leagues.

Elks To Present Flag To Hospital On Thursday

The presentation will be made on the campus. In case of bad weather the ceremony will be held in the hospital.

Thurmond Williams of Grifton, chairman of the Board of Trustees, will receive the national emblem on behalf of the hospital.

Walter Lewis, past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post, will recite the history of the flag. J. Con Lanier of Greenville will deliver a brief patriotic address. The public is invited to attend.

Welfare Dept. Notes

Pursuant to an act of the General Assembly for 1951, girls 17 years of age may work in picture show theaters under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of Labor.

Under the ruling by the Labor Commissioner, 17 year old girls may work in movie picture theaters until 10:30 o'clock p. m., 9 hours for day. In addition to the regular work certificate, such girls must procure a signed statement by her parents, giving permission for such work and that satisfactory means have been provided for the girl to return home after working hours. A copy of the parents' permission must accompany the certificate to the Commissioner of Labor.

Sixteen paroles making reports to the Superintendent of Public Welfare for the month of May shows $1,484.20 earned during the month. One case was revoked and parolee returned to prison. Eighty-eight persons convicted in the courts for non-support of minor children paid into the Welfare Office for May the sum of $2,115.50.

In this connection no telephone calls, except from officials, are to be received and money is to be paid out on Saturday and Monday mornings only.

The body is at Phillips Bros. Funeral Home, 614 McKinley Avenue. Funeral arrangements had not been made.

Not Unusual

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 80 degrees. Lowest last night, 57, and at 8 a.m. today it was 65 degrees.

The highest temperature yesterday a year ago was 86 degrees. Lowest that night, 59, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 66 degrees, the local Weather Bureau reported.

Chinese Communists, but in order to carry out that mission Van Fleet must keep chasing them. How far should he chase them?

The hard facts of military strategy will provide the answer to that question. The farther Van Fleet's army gets away from the port of Pusan, the tougher the going will be. Every additional mile that is added to the Eighth Army's supply line reduces its striking power a bit. The time may come soon when Van Fleet will decide he has gone as far as is prudent, particularly with the rainy season about to mire the Korean roads.

If and when that time comes, he has only one alternative. To halt his main advance and start jabbing at the Chinese with good-sized patrols in an attempt to keep them from organizing another offensive. And keep one ear cocked to hear if there is any news from Washington, London, United Nations, N. Y., or wherever the diplomats are consulting in an attempt to get a cease-fire.

Truman Will ...

(Continued from page one) pleased with Acheson's performance. He publicly pronounced a blessing of well done and said Acheson would remain as his Secretary of State.

Compared with the attacks made on him, Acheson's answers were mild, indeed. It's possible he does not feel he should reply to his critics with the same terse toughness they turned loose on him, for at one place he said:

"Criticism is something which I have to bear as an occupational hazard and I am quite ready to bear it."

Mr. Truman himself certainly is capable of vigorous answers as he demonstrated when he successfully came, signed for the presidency in 1948. Since then he has been quieter.

It may have been his deliberate policy to stand back and say comparatively little, believing the criticism would blow itself out of its own accord in time. Certainly the public uproar over McCarthy's charges has died down.

And there's less interest evident now in the MacArthur inquiry than in the first week or so of it. The public has been drenched in the 2,500,000 words of testimony, spread over five weeks of hearings.

In a country like this, where sensation seems to follow sensation—each in turn submerged in the language of argument—it may be that the public loses interest in one sensation as it turns to another.

Maybe Mr. Truman is going to go on the offensive for a change. But it will take more than a speech urging retention of controls to show that. He's been talking of making a cross-country trip when congress quits. That would be one way of talking directly to a lot of people and making the headlines day after day for, with congress gone home, he wouldn't have to share them with his congressional critics as much as he does now, when they're here.
