Johnson Appears In Policy Hearing

Former Cabinet Member Testifies Acheson First To Suggest U.S. Intervention In Korea; Believes Action Right, Though Troops Not Equipped For Venture

WASHINGTON—Former Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said today that Secretary of State Dean Acheson first suggested U.S. intervention in Korea and that the military "neither recommended it nor opposed it."

The former secretary, fired from the Cabinet last September after a long policy row with Acheson, hastened to add that he believed the decision was "right then and I think so now."

"But, he said, American troops in Japan were 'not equipped' for the combat venture at the time they were given orders to start fighting. Johnson also said that he received no intelligence warnings that trouble was imminent in Korea and that Acheson had opposed his proposal made before hostilities broke out, to send a military mission to Formosa."

Testifying before the Senate MacArthur Investigating Committee, Johnson said Acheson suggested at a June 26 meeting with President Truman, the military Chiefs of Staff, and other high government officials that American naval and air forces be committed to the Korean conflict. Johnson said the decision was made promptly to do so on Acheson's "motion." Johnson said he put Gen. Douglas MacArthur "in charge."

A few days later, Johnson said, MacArthur reported to Washington that "nothing would be accomplished toward stemming the North Korean invasion without use of ground troops. The decision to use ground troops, the former secretary added, was made within 24 hours of MacArthur's warning that without infantry the operation would be abortive."

Johnson said the troops in Japan were equipped for occupation duty only. Johnson was relieved as defense secretary last September following a policy row in which Acheson also figured. The former defense secretary reported on an inspection of American forces in the Far East which he completed the day war broke out in Korea. "They were not equipped with the things that you would need if you were going to fight a hostile enemy," Johnson said. "They were staffed and equipped for occupation, not for war or an offensive."

MacArthur Set For New Attack On 'Fear' Policy

Accuses Battlefield Appeasement By Administration In Texas Speech

HOUSTON—(UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur readied new attacks today on the men he charges "plunged us into a war which they now seem afraid to win."

"The eyes of Texas were on MacArthur as he prepared to make the second of his five Texas speeches here tonight. He was expected to continue his personal war on the Truman administration's policy of fighting a limited war in Korea. MacArthur came here here yesterday after a fiery address before a special joint session of the Texas legislature in Austin. He blasted the administration as one motivated by fear in its diplomatic conduct and dictated to from abroad on its political and military policies."

The five-star general told the legislators and a crowd of 25,000 gathered in the state capitol grounds: "In Korea today, we have reached that degree of moral trepidation that we pay tribute in the blood of our sons to the doubtful belief that the hand of a blustering potential enemy may in some way be thus stayed."

Accusing the administration of "appeasement on the battlefield," MacArthur said that "never before have we geared national policy to timidity and fear." Asserting that "our country has the inherent strength to face and defeat any who may attack," MacArthur said that if Soviet Russia "does strike" it will be because of the weakness America is now displaying. An estimated 500,000 persons lined the route of his motorcade from the Houston airport to the downtown district and then to the swank Shamrock Hotel, where he spent the night as the guest of the owner, Oilman Glenn McCarthy.

He left no doubt in his speech that he had decided to get tough with critics who have said that the measures he advocated and which led to his being fired from the Far Eastern command — bombing of Red bases in Manchuria, blockading of the China coast, and using Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa involved the risk of drawing Russia into a third world war. "The defenders of the existing policy vacuum are the same who suddenly and without slightest preparation or seeming consideration of the military and political (Korean) conflict," MacArthur said.

"These are the very men who, in the face of mounting peril, deliberately demobilized us at the peak of our military strength and then at the lowest point of our disarrayment with no slightest preparation or word of warning, plunged us into a war which they now seem afraid to win." MacArthur said that "the surest way to assure World War III is to allow the Korean conflict to continue indecisively and indefinitely." The only way to prevent one, he said, is to end the Korean conflict "rapidly and decisively."

"Fire Ball" Rises In Atom Blast At Eniwetok

The "fire ball" of an atomic explosion rises through the clouds as the force of the blast spreads upward during the 1951 tests at Eniwetok this spring. The first official public report on the tests was made in Washington Wednesday at a joint news conference of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department. The commission released this picture in Washington Wednesday.—(Atomic Energy Commission Photo via AP Wirephoto.)

Eniwetok Tests To Provide New And Deadlier Weapons

weapons proved at the recent Eniwetok tests are the deadliest ever devised. But even as their mushroom clouds surged toward the stratosphere, atomic weaponers already were planning future tests of new and deadlier weapons.

That in essence, officials said today, is the story of Eniwetok, 1951. This story, detailed at a special Pentagon news conference, also disclosed that: 1. The hydrogen super-bomb is progressing toward "eventual development." 2. This country has a variety of atomic weapons, for use against armies in the field as well as cities, on which progress has been made "all across the board."

3. A vast amount of new information has been accumulated which "not only multiplies this country's power to inflict atomic blows but also strengthens its ability to take and recover from atomic blows. Data on what the new bomb does to shelters, industrial plants, and homes will be ready for the Civil Defense people in about two months. 4. The "new and improved" weapons tested at Eniwetok were "several times" more powerful than the World War II A-bombs which were equivalent to more than 20,000 tons of TNT. It is possible the new weapons' precise "energy yield" may be revealed some day if necessary for civil defense purposes.

5. The new weapons are a "most important" contribution to atomic "economy." That is, they get more destructive power out of a given amount of atomic explosives than older bombs. 6. The "mysterious ghost" of lingering radioactivity from atomic air bursts has been "dispelled forever." The general picture of what was accomplished at the Pacific island proving ground in April and May was given to reporters by Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission, Lt. Gen. Edward R. Quesada, commander of the task force which conducted the tests, and others.

One discordant note was sounded by former AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal who said in New York he was "proud" of the "helpful tip-offs given to Russia" by the disclosures. Brig. Gen. James Conroy, radiation safety adviser to the Eniwetok task force, said the new tests proved all over again that "the immediate radiation hazard from the air burst disappears after the first two minutes." Low bursts might contaminate an area 600 to 800 yards across, Conroy said, but "no rescue work would be required in this area because it would be devastated."

Carries Inflation Fight Into Homes President Truman In Radio Address To Nation Tonight

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman carries his fight for stricter inflation control powers to the nation tonight amid growing demands from business that curbs be scrapped or lightened. Administration officials said Mr. Truman's address from the White House (9:30 p. m. EST) will call for a consumers crusade on Congress. The Defense Production Act containing most control powers expires June 30 and the administration is asking for a two-year extension with broader control authority. But business led by the beef packers stuck to their guns for fewer Federal limitations. Major industry organizations, like the National Association of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce, contend that removal of price-wage control curbs would increase production.

Protests Kill Taxing Of Utilities

House Ways And Means Committee Drops Proposal For New Excise Tax

The recent barrage of telegrams to members of the House Ways and Means Committee protesting the Federal excise tax on public power has resulted in the proposal being dropped from the revenue bill. Word from the North Carolina League of Municipalities, which has been carrying the fight for the 60-odd municipal power outlets in the State, stated this morning the proposal was dropped from the bill. The league was informed of the committee's action by the American Public Power Association in Washington. The deletion of the original proposal came about during Tuesday's session.

In a bulletin to the Greenville Utilities Commission the league described the committee's action as a "victory" for municipal power plants in the country. It commended the work of the league and the municipal power plants the State that began about three weeks ago when it was first learned that the committee was considering taxing public power projects, with the exception of cooperatives. Sharing in the league's "victory" is the Greenville Utilities Commission which went on record opposing the proposed tax. At a meeting held June 1 it wired Congressman Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the committee, that the tax was unjustified and that it would evolve into one governmental unit taxing another.

Trail Fugitives Into Swamplands Three Of Craven County Camp Escapees Are Caught

NEW BERN—(UP)—Bloodhounds led a posse into the Neuse River swamps today seeking two of five prisoners who escaped from the Craven County prison camp yesterday. Camp Superintendent F. W. Jacobs said three of the fugitives were recaptured yesterday. The remaining two, J. C. LeViner, 37, of Lumberton and Charles Chavis, 19, of Wadesboro, were believed to be hiding nearby. The five sawed out of a cellblock early yesterday and scaled the prison fence. Some 18 hours later Jogs led officers into the swamp to capture Horace York, 29, of Hamlet, James Boone, 21, of Rich Square and Billy Graham, 19, of Asheboro. Both York and Boone were serving life sentences. Sheriff C. B. Perry said one of the group apparently smuggled the saw into his cell after stealing it from a road gang tool box. After cutting through a cell bar, Perry said, the prisoners walked down the main corridor of the prison camp, crossed the prison yard and climbed the fence. Prisons Director John Gold sent investigators from Raleigh yesterday to discover why guards were not on duty in the cellblock and central corridor.

Narcotics Easy To Get In D. C.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senate crime investigators today made public testimony describing drug addicts' parties in the Nation's Capital and relating that "dope" could be bought here "as easy as a soft drink." The testimony was taken from inmates of the House of Correction for Men and the Reformatory for Women. Most of the witnesses said narcotics were cheaper in Washington than in Baltimore, but readily available to adults and teen-agers in both cities. Names of the witnesses questioned at the institutions May 29 and June 7 were withheld. A 23-year-old Washington woman told of earning money through prostitution to buy dope. The report quoted her as saying she "went as girls do" on the street to get needed funds.

Two Additional Highway Paving Projects In Pitt

Two more sections of Pitt County roads will be paved under the $200,000,000 bond project after the bids are opened by the Highway Commission, July 26. One project involves the hard surfacing of 8.6 miles beginning at the junction of N. C. 11, 1.7 miles north of House Station, then northeast via Staton crossing N. C. 33 near Whitehurst, then to the junction with the paved road southeast of Bethel. The second call for grading on 7.6 miles of county roads in the vicinity of Greenville as follows: From a point on the Farmville highway approximately 2.9 miles west of the city, northeast, crossing N. C. 11 approximately 1.5 miles south of the city limits to a point on the New Bern Highway approximately 7 miles south of the Norfolk-Southern underpass; from a point on the first part to a point on Dickinson Avenue near the Norfolk-Southern underpass; and from a point on the first part to Evans Street. Low bids received at the letting will be reviewed by the commission at the July 6 meeting when contracts will be awarded.

Most Of County Shares Good Shower Yesterday

Rain in nearly all sections of Pitt county yesterday afternoon and last night gave a new lease on life to garden and field crops. Sam C. Winchester, county farm agent, said today. A steady shower precipitated one-eighth of an inch of rain in the Greenville area last night. A farmer who lives near here, said the roots of tobacco plants, about knee high, are overlapping across the rows in search of moisture. He expects his tobacco and other crops to make considerable growth from now on. Farmville reported a heavy rain in that area last night. Total rain fell here last night. Total rain for the month, 1.05 inches. Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported.

Eight Army Hits New Defense Line

Struck Mine

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Navy reported today an underwater explosion damaged the destroyer Walke, killed 26 men and injured seven others off the east coast of Korea Tuesday. The Navy said the blast was "presumably caused by a floating mine." The destroyer suffered damage to her hull but was able to proceed under her own power to a Japanese port. Other American warships stood by as the Walke limped into port. No further details were given. Losses aboard the Walke raised total casualties on warships mined or shelled in the Korean war to 49 dead, 115 wounded and 36 missing. Five other vessels have been sunk or damaged and two hit by enemy gunfire from the shore.

Blockade Fears Arise In Berlin

Berlin—(UP)—Fears of a new blockade arose in Berlin today as communist police were reported to have halted several shipments of goods in and out of the city. West German police said communist officials confiscated $23,000 worth of goods early today moving from the west over the super-highway to Berlin. Truckloads of butter, soap, canned meat and other products were confiscated on grounds of "insufficient documentation." West police said. They reported that 10 1/2 tons of scrap metal being shipped by truck from Berlin to the west also had been confiscated. On Monday, Western occupation authorities had demanded that the Russians lift restrictions on the westward movement of Berlin-made goods. A formal note accused the Soviets of violating the 1949 agreements ending the historic starvation-blockade of Berlin. Muddy roads and the constant

Should the Executive Branch of the Government Tell Congress Its Deepest Secrets? Congress Represents the Public; Other Officials 'Hired Hands'

WASHINGTON, June 14—(AP)—It's your congress, so how would you answer this one? Should the executive branch of the government—such as the State and Defense Departments—tell congress the deepest secrets in foreign affairs and in military planning? The question was raised by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer before the Senate committees investigating General MacArthur's firing. Wedemeyer said no secrets should be kept from congress. Anyone answering the question has to divide it in two: 1. Members of Congress are elected by the people to represent them in guarding their welfare. The biggest brass in the Pentagon and State Department are simply hired servants of the people. Therefore, it would seem that the people, through congress, should be judge of what their welfare is and must know what's going on at all times, since whatever the State and Defense Departments do involves the public welfare. It's assumed that these hired

Grapevine from China Carries News That Top Military Commanders Look for Long Korean Campaign. Worried by U. S. Psychological Warfare Work

There doesn't seem to be much doubt that the Chinese Communists are preparing to fight indefinitely in Korea. A disastrous defeat might change their minds, but at the moment they show no signs of accepting truce offers or pulling quietly out and leaving the North Korean Reds to their fate. The grapevine from the China mainland carried the news yesterday that top Chinese Red military leaders had a meeting about 10 days ago in Manchuria. Among those present, according to the Chinese Nationalist intelligence service, were Gen. Nie Hyung-Chen, acting chief of staff of the Chinese Red army; Gen. Lin Piao, field commander in Korea; and Kao Kang, top Chinese political leader in Manchuria. Their meeting was held against the background of two severe defeats in the spring offensive. After the decision to stay in the war despite their heavy losses the question of how to improve their fortunes in the Korean adventure came up. The biggest headache seemed to be an increasing tendency on the part of the Red troops to surrender at the first opportunity. The intelligence report said it was decided to send anti-surrender supervisors to the front with orders to shoot troops who tried to surrender. If these reports are only half true, a rather obscure organization in the American Defense Department can take a bow—the psychological warfare section. It is headed by Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure and spends much of its time these days trying to think up ways to undermine the will of the Chinese Communists to fight. About 400,000,000 leaflets and safe conduct passes have been tossed out of planes and shot out of guns in Korea. Printed in Chinese, these leaflets urge the Communists to surrender, promise food, medical treatment and safety. A single psychological warfare "bomb," dropped from a plane, contains 40,000 leaflets. Artillery shells, containing about 500 leaflets or safe conduct passes, are used when the situation calls for delivery with pin-point accuracy.

Since the Army was organized its troops have fought in 136 engagements, including the Korean War. N. offensive for the next two months, and the fighting since Chinese Communist intervention.

Poker Playing Cost Actor $15

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—Actor Charles Coburn's after-hours poker game with four friends cost him $15, but the money went to someone who didn't play. Coburn, two movie producers and two screen writers were fined $50 each in Justice Court for violating gambling ordinances by playing poker after midnight. Judge Henry H. Draeger, however, suspended $35 of each fine provided the film figures do their card playing within the legal hours for 90 days.

Food Price Index Drops Slightly

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The government reported today that retail food prices dropped slightly from record-high levels during the last two weeks of May. The Bureau of Labor Statistics said an eight-stage survey of 56 foods showed a price drop of three-tenths of one per cent over the previous two-week period, bringing the estimated retail food price index to 226.5 per cent of the 1935-39 average. The survey showed decreases in prices of fresh fruits, vegetables, lamb, fish and canned vegetables were higher.

Medal Of Honor To Be Presented Soldier's Mother

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A 22-year-old Negro, who died to help his comrades, will be awarded the Medal of Honor next week—first of his race to win the nation's highest military decoration since the Spanish-American War. Sgt. William Thompson of Brooklyn and nine other Korean War heroes will be awarded the medals at ceremonies in the Pentagon on June 21. The Army said that Thompson, although wounded many times during an enemy attack last August, "resisted all efforts of his comrades to induce him to withdraw, steadfastly remained at his machine gun and continued to deliver deadly, accurate fire until mortally wounded by an enemy grenade." Thompson's mother will receive the medal.

British Locate Lost Submarine

LONDON—(UP)—The British submarine Affray, lost in the English Channel April 16 with 75 men aboard, has been found. It was announced in the House of Commons today. The Affray was found in 200 feet of water about 50 miles southwest of the Isle of Wight. The Affray has been the object of a continuous search, since it went into a dive south of the Isle of Wight and failed to report its position the next morning. It's assumed that these hired

Six members-at-large, who have seats on the Student Legislature, were also chosen in this week's elections. They are Albert L. Harrington, Burlington; Arthur E. Johnson, Greensboro; Millard L. Berman, Portsmouth, Va.; Jack P. Benzie, Rocky Mount; Pittsburgh Fennell, Wilmington; and William B. McDonald, Portsmouth, Va.

Perry - Austin Nuptials Are Said In Rock Hill

MRS. GEORGE E. PERRY

Rock Hill, S. C.—Miss Marguerite Austin and George Eliakim Perry of Greenville, N. C., and Reedsburg, Wis., were married at 5 p. m. Saturday, June 9, in an impressive ceremony at the Saint John's Methodist church.

The Rev. Pierce E. Cook, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ritual in the presence of many friends and relatives.

The church was simply but effectively decorated with greenery, a central floral decoration of white gladioli and lighted candles in seven branched candelabra.

Carroll Baggot of Inman, organist, and Miss Gladys Reichardt of West Catawqua, Penn., soloist, gave the wedding music. Miss Reichardt sang "L'heure Exquise" (Reynaldo Hahn) with words by Paul Verdane and "Du Bist Die Ruh" (Schubert) with words by Goethe. The traditional marches by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn were used for the processional and the recessional.

Ushers were E. Less Williams, Jr. and W. C. Beatty, both of Rock Hill; James L. Fleming of Greenville, N. C. and Charles O. Pratt, of Arlington, Va.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Capt. B. L. Austin of the U. S. Navy of Annapolis. The best man was Donald Blood of Madison, Wisconsin.

The matron of honor was Mrs. James L. Fleming of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Miss Cherry Bynum of Rock Hill and Miss Alexandra Austin of Annapolis. Mrs. Fleming wore marquisette in aquamarine shade with stole necklace, fitted bodice, shirred at the waist, and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of mixed summer flowers.

The bridesmaid wore pink marquisette styled identically and they carried similar bouquets.

The bride was radiant in white lace and white marquisette fashioned with lace bolero, strapless bodice, full skirt extending to the floor and a finger up veil of imported illusion attached to the lace bonnet. She carried a bouquet of Fleure d'Amour and tube roses shown.

New Bern Baptist Church Scene Of Corey-Kennedy Wedding-Reception Follows

Miss Elizabeth Theodora Kennedy, daughter of J. T. Kennedy of New Bern, and Mrs. W. W. Douglas of Albany, Ga., became the bride of Dr. Giles Patterson Corey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hicks Corey of Greenville, in a ceremony solemnized Wednesday afternoon, June 13, at 4:30 o'clock in the First Baptist Church in New Bern, with Rev. Robert Bradshaw, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Wilson, officiating.

The church was arranged with baskets of white gladioli, feverfew and gypsophila interspersed with burning cathedral candles in seven-branched candelabra before a background of palms and ferns. The pews were spoken beneath a white bridal arch and family pews were marked with large satin bows.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Percy Ware of St. Petersburg, Fla., organist, and Mrs. Wade Holland, Jr., soloist, who sang "All for You" and "How Do I Love Thee" prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory bridal satin made with sweetheart neckline with draped effect, elongated bodice embroidered in seed pearls and long fitted sleeves ending in calla lily points over the hands. The full skirt ended in an aisle-wide cathedral train. Her finger-tip veil of imported French illusion from an illusion cap and her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. actual practice. The equal educational opportunities have been promised. In some instances the promises have been fulfilled; in other instances earnest efforts have been made to fulfill the promises although some improvements are still needed and are being made. In still other school districts efforts to fulfill the promises have not been taken seriously.

If the problem reaches the courts, and such action has been started in some districts, the court cannot judge on the basis of good intentions or earnest efforts. It must judge from the concrete evidence laid before it.

Sound, adequate education for citizens in all categories is the basis for the advancement of a community, a section or a state. North Carolina as a whole cannot reach its potential greatness if any group is left in the doldrums of ignorance or semi-ignorance.

All the citizens of North Carolina must work for the advancement of the State as a whole. But all the citizens must work together toward the common goal of advancement. The goal cannot be achieved by the races or individual groups working against each other.

The solution to North Carolina's educational problem lies not in strife or chaos, but in complete and sincere cooperation.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Despite the usual and untrustworthy denials from high official sources, the Korean war may soon be terminated by a more or less permanent cease-fire agreement between the Truman Administration and Mao Tse-tung's Communist regime in China.

There may also result a live-and-let-live arrangement between Washington and Peking that may weaken Russia's influence in the Far East.

Mao is reported to be disgusted with the tragic outcome of his intervention in Korea, where his finest legions have been mauled by United States-United Nations forces. His defeat, especially the current bloody repulse, have cost him prestige through China and the Orient.

GAME—He is described by neutral diplomats still in contact with him as disgusted with Stalin's failure to keep his promise of vast military aid. He suspects that the Kremlin aims to see him so weakened in the current war that he will be an easy pushover for Red invaders.

It is the same play Stalin pulled on Hitler—first, the 1939 alliance that provoked war, and then Germany's destruction. In short, Mao begins to realize that Moscow is using him as a pawn in its game to make China a puppet.

He is supposed to be in the mood to strike a bargain with the western powers, provided they do not make it too difficult for him to shift horses in the middle of the Chinese revolution.

INCIDENT—In a similar predicament in 1937, diplomats recall Mao showed himself to be a practical statesman rather than a dreamy visionary. His actions then explain why he is now the ruler of mainland China.

Mao at that time was fighting Chiang Kai-Shek for control, but he was simultaneously conducting peace negotiations for a united government of his country with the haughty Generalissimo. The details of this incident are told in State Department files.

When it became evident that Japan planned to profit from this internal rivalry and struggle in an attempt to conquer China, Mao offered to abandon his revolutionary, Communist program, if Chiang would agree to compromise. Then, as now, the astute Chou-en-lai was his negotiator.

PROPOSALS—Mao offered to (1) abandon his plans for an "agrarian revolution" (2) to give up his attempt to overthrow Chiang (3) to install a democratic government in the regions he controlled, and (4) to merge his army with the Kuomintang forces.

The Generalissimo rebuffed these proposals, figuring they were a sign of weakness. Japan invaded only a few weeks later, seeking deliberately to block a Mao-Chiang alliance that would force her to fight a united China. All during World War II, her diplomatic and military experts now know the two Chinese leaders spent more time and money, including American supplies to Chiang, in fighting each other than they did fighting the Japs.

"Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, Ambassador. Pat Hurley, Special Embassy George C. Marshall and other American diplomats tried to compose these difficulties. Had they succeeded, there might today be a united China allied with us against the Kremlin.

PROBLEM—The parallel today is almost perfect. Mao's bitter Korean experience has given him greater respect for the western world's growing strength especially American land, sea and air power. He fears us now as he worried over a Japanese invasion in 1937.

He has had scant help from Russia, in repelling foreign pressures, both military and economic, as he failed to obtain support from Chiang in 1937. He is looking around for new alliances, new alignments and new balances of power. Whether he does so in an attempt to save himself, or in a sincere desire to reorganize and rebuild China, is immaterial to the immediate problem.

Therefore, according to neutral diplomats like Nehru and others, Washington bears he may be willing to make the best of a bad bargain and situation. They believe that he may make a similar, Tito-like shift, if given the chance by the United Nations, meaning the United States and Britain.

PROSPECT—Washington and London are keenly aware of the world importance of this prospect. It might recap all our postwar disasters in the Far East, which would be the Truman Administration's major success in the field of foreign policy.

It would be a mortal blow to Stalin's plot for world mastery. However, if it can be pulled off, it might lead Russia to start a war elsewhere—in Europe or the Middle East—to stave off similar disasters along his international front.

It should be emphasized that these are not yet diplomatic realities. But they do lie within the realm of hopeful possibilities. They also mean that the fatal months of June and July, when so many major wars have started or had their origin, may decide whether there shall be war or peace "in our time."

Selected Shorts

ELDORADO, KAN., TIMES: "Many Americans do not doubt this country's financial ability to maintain the nation in a 'garrison state' for a number years, or even to fight a full-scale war, if necessary. What they are wondering about—with reason—is whether they can maintain the nation's tremendous army of bureaucrats."

ODEBOLT, IOWA, Chronicle: "The two party system is a great thing in a democracy, but there are times when the two party principle can be carried too far. That is the sorry circumstance today. The country is in desperate danger, yet there are many representatives of the people in Congress who prefer to jeopardize the welfare of the country by playing politics as usual."

REG-MANNING

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR

Everybody from the South knows that radio and the movies give a completely false picture of the Southern accent. It's downright discouraging for a Southerner to hear all the "you-alls" that are incorrectly used, which we would not consider doing, in an effort to imitate us.

On top of all the misrepresentation in the movies and on the air, a writer by the name of Bern Keating has written a story entitled "Old Southern Customers" which designate several American customs as being exclusively Southern. Actually, it's a compliment to the South, since most of the people all over the country have intelligence enough to enjoy life the way we do here in the South.

Keating says that Southerners have a habit of staying with kinfolk on trips. He says that the traveling southerner avoids hotels and seldom fails to find at least a distant cousin to put him up. It's not because the Souther-ner is chincy or cheap, since the cousins in turn are fully expecting a return engagement.

One of the customs that Keating has written about that I've missed is eating black-eyed peas with hog jowl on New Year's day, to insure good luck for the rest of the year. Many hotels like the Roosevelt in New Orleans and the Peabody in Memphis, serve a side dish of black-eyed peas and hog jowl on New Year's without waiting for an order.

One Southern custom that has always puzzled me is that of shooting fireworks at Christmas time, which has been outlawed in many Southern cities, like Greenville. However, most of us can remember when fireworks were a part of Christmas, just as much as hanging a stocking. Some say it's because Vicksburg fell on July 4th, causing the South to shoot the works at a time other than July 4th.

One Southern custom that most of us follow through our childhood is stamping white horses. When you see a white horse or mule, you lick the first two fingers of your right hand, and smack them into your open left palm; then you stamp the wet palm with your right fist. In order for your wish to come true you have to see and stamp a hundred white horses.

In his story Keating says that front-to-back all day long, once they have been put on in Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. In some areas the custom has been modified to require the wearing of the garment only until noon. In others, it can be changed but only if you hid behind a door or in a closet for the operation.

Keating failed to convince me that we are so different down here, except that we are more human and friendly. And I thank you.

NUMBER TWO—There is presently less interest being manifested by Governor Kerr Scott and his close political associates in the governorship next year than in the No. 2 place on the state ticket. Apparently they are coasting along waiting for the scheduled visit of Ambassador Capus Waynick to the state during July and August before taking definite stand on prospective candidates for governor. Meantime, they are diligently seeking an acceptable candidate for lieutenant governor. None of the avowed or frequently projected candidates suit the administration group. Governor Scott said weeks ago he thought Roy Rowe of Burgaw would find unexpected opposition, and it is common knowledge that the governor has no political love for J. C. Pittman, Trenton, Frank Taylor of Goldsboro or Junius Powell of Whiteville, each of whom has been suggested for the number two post in state government.

SUPPORTER—He probably feels a bit kinder toward Vivian Whitfield of Burgaw, rated a potential, but Governor Scott has a long memory. He hasn't forgotten how vigorously Whitfield supported Charlie Johnson in 1948. The Pender county legislator was a loyal champion of administration policies in the general assemblies of 1949 and 1951. Former Bank Commissioner Gurney P. Hood was also a champion of administration policies after the 1948 primary. The governor cannot replace Legislator Whitfield like he did Commissioner Hood, but he can decline to support him for similar reasons. No person at all familiar with political history of the past three years would expect Governor Scott to lend a helping hand to any of the other tentative candidates for lieutenant governor, all of whom have served in the general assembly since his inauguration. So the governor and his intimates are seeking a more acceptable candidate.

ROYSTER—The diving rod curcastic about the proposition for several reasons. Most importantly seems to have settled upon Fred Royster of Vance county, and administration forces are pressuring him to get into the race. There have been several "conferences" about him and there have been, or will be, conferences with him on this matter. Second-hand, but reliable, reports are that Royster is not enthusiastic for several reasons. Most important of these reasons is the lieutenant governorship is a sort of stopping place. Since the turn of the century Max Gardner is the only man to serve as lieutenant governor and then move on to real prestige in state politics—and he achieved prestige by virtue of exceptional ability and will-power after suffering defeat in a hotly contested race for governor. Fred Royster is not ready to quit, and there are numerous of his acquaintances who sincerely believe he is too valuable to the future business and political life of North Carolina to be put on the shelf now—and despite the importance of the lieutenant governorship, history proves it is a "political" shelf. Many of those who do not entirely agree with Royster's political philosophy recognize that it would be wasteful to shelve a man of his admitted ability at the age of forty-three—which he will reach on the last day of this year.

POLITICS—There is another angle, wholly political, to this business. The same things said about "shelving" a man at that age would apply to several other prospective candidates for lieutenant governor. In these observations it is assumed that the candidate would naturally be in much worse situation. Recent history indicates that candidates hand-picked by incumbent administrations and offered the voters as component parts of a "ticket" have not fared very well. Governors Gardner, Cherry and Scott found that the voters did not go along with their appointed U. S. Senators Morrison, Umstead and Graham. Administration interference in other sections, including speakers of the house, has not proved very successful.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Non-Segregation Cuts Both Ways

(Hertford County Herald) If the policy of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is going to hurry along abolition of race segregation in the schools and colleges of North Carolina, by court fiat or compulsion, it may accomplish its purpose sooner than many believe. Events in the last few months tend to indicate already it looks like decadence is about to set in at North Carolina College for Negroes at Durham. Its law school is in danger of closing up, and it will close if Negro candidates for law degrees are going to leave there and go over to Chapel Hill for their training. Colleges, or departments and schools within higher institutions, cannot operate without students move into the institution who want to enroll in order to enroll in the University Law School at Chapel Hill it quite naturally follows that the Durham school will have to quit. When and if this process is carried to its ultimate conclusion, from public schools right on through graduate schools of colleges and universities, present faculty members of Negro schools and colleges are going to lose their jobs as instructors and administrators. The white schools and colleges will retain their teachers, of course. Not all colored teachers will be re-employed in the consolidated and non-segregated educational institutions. There will not be any need for all of them if the State is to have only one set of schools and colleges. If this non-segregation in the State's educational system is to be hurried along as N.A.A.C.P. seems to want it done, the colored people of North Carolina may well stand to lose more than they will gain. Certainly that would be true in the case of re-employment of colored instructors who will be jobless when their own schools, colleges, and universities are closed and Negro students move into the institutions now operated for whites.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESENER
Construction totals in the past few years have been breaking record after record. Even with controls on home building, a total of $11,149,000,000 was spent for new construction during the first five months of this year, almost two billion dollars more than in the same 1950 period.

But the country is getting a whole lot less construction than the figures indicate. The rise in prices for construction work magnifies the increase.

The index of the cost of construction compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America stood at 376 in March. The base for this index is 1913. Therefore, for every collar's worth of construction in 1913, $1.76 would have to be spent today. In other words, during the first five months of this year, the nation got only about three billion dollars worth of construction at 1913 prices.

The peak year in construction was in 1949, when $18,775,000,000 was spent for new work. The A. G. C. index for 1948 was 332. But in 1949, when the index was 209, a total of $13,412,000,000 was spent for new construction. A little calculation will show that the country got more physical construction in 1942 than in 1948.

Other construction and building cost indexes show the same general rise as the A. G. C. index. The Engineering News-Record index (1913 equals 100) stood at 398.8 in March. An American Appraisal Co. index for 30 cities (1913 equals 100) stood at 525. The Department of Commerce composite index (1913 equals 100) was 354 in March.

As a matter of fact, no index is necessary to prove that construction prices have been widely inflated. Ask anybody buying a home or building a plant. Inflation also distorts measurements in other fields. Since the end of the war, there has been a constant flow of figures from Washington indicating expansion of the economy. It is true that the economy has expanded nearly as much as the dollar figures indicate.

About the only figures not subject to this distortion are the population figures. These have risen steadily and they are hard figures, not confused by inflation. Some day some economist might take a few weeks off to figure whether the economy has expanded any more than the pressure of the rising population dictated.

WARNS OF DRIFT TO DEFENSE JOBS

Indiana savings associations were warned by Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States Savings Loan League, to start building a "trained personnel reserve" because of the danger that many white collar workers would shift to defense plants.

If it's good advice for Indiana associations, it's good advice for financial institutions elsewhere. And if it's good advice for financial institutions, it's also good for all firms depending on white collar employees. Mr. Strunk said it may even pay for many institutions to hire more people than they need immediately.

MAKERS HOPE IT IS A STRAW-HAT YEAR

Hat manufacturers are nourishing the hope that this will be a straw-hat year. Reports in the New York trade indicate that orders for straws are 20 per cent higher than a year ago, and that retail sales are even further ahead than that. These gains have been made despite the fact that temperatures so far have been cooler than a year ago.

BOOKLETS TO GUIDE TRADE IN NEW YORK

A series of booklets dealing with New York State's 11 economic areas are being readied for publication by the N. Y. State Department of Commerce, 112 State St., Albany N. Y. The booklets, which are intended to help those doing business or planning to do business in the state, give facts on population, employment, manufacturing, trade and agriculture in each area.

CUT IN SLAUGHTERING HITS TANNERS' SUPPLIES

The slowdown of shipments of cattle to slaughterhouses is worrying more than Michael V. DiSalvo and the housewives. Great apprehension is being felt in the shoe and leather industries. When shipments of beef fall off, so do supplies of leather. And with the armed forces having first call on leather for military needs, civilian supplies may lag.

Leather men say that if the meat situation becomes critical enough to require rationing, rationing of shoes would follow quickly.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—The problem for today seems to be to see what the high school boys in the back of the classroom are having—heroin or algebra?

The question is being explored in a state inquiry into student dope peddling in the schools here.

The inquiry has put back on trial my favorite hero of our times—the teenager. Well, is he a little saint or a well-meaning monster? People across America will take the inquiry as evidence in support of their belief he is a brash brat, afflicted with vices unknown to his elders when they were young.

The situation admittedly is shocking. The city school superintendent has said he would accept police estimates that 1,500 high school students here are possible users of narcotics. But there are 300,000 students here. That means only one out of 200 has puffed the marijuana cigarette or sniffed heroin. The other 199 appear to be able to suffer algebra without the aid of a hypodermic needle.

None of the reported 1,500 young victims is accused of inventing heroin or importing it. They got it from grownup peddlers—former teen agers themselves presumably—and they were inducted into addiction by these grownups. If the police had rounded up these grownups earlier, there wouldn't be the present problem among the young.

Recently I wrote a defense of the teen ager. It brought a lot of mail, pro and con. Today I'd like to present a defense of my defense of the teen ager, still the best kid in history.

Typical of these objections to my contention that the teen ager now is an improvement over the flapper and cakewalker of a generation ago is a letter from a man who wrote: "The high school kid, when classes are dismissed for the day, immediately dashes to a tavern with his girl friend, an unbest of thing in my day."

"This present generation of teen agers are the product of pleasure-loving parents of mediocre education who spend the greater part of their time outside of their home, people who have shirked their responsibilities. They have shown no interest in their children, but have permitted them to grow up like wild animals, ill-mannered, uncouth and lacking judgment commensurate with their age."

That may be true of some parents and some teen agers. But it isn't true of most parents and most teen agers. Most kids today are more honest, straightforward, and better-balanced than their parents were at the same age. They are less confused by life.

wouldn't be any warfare unless the adults did the fighting. It isn't fair for adults to start a war and expect youth to fight and win it. "So to the adults of today I say: Don't criticize us—criticize yourselves. We're watching you closely and honestly trying to do our best. Can we help it if your examples for us are no better than they are?"

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Inheriting the adventurous spirit of her grandfather, Captain Mountain, who sailed in 1841 from Ireland to the west coast of America, Mrs. Austin Fiegl is looking forward to going to Bangkok, Thailand.

With two Willamette river-front residences, a Portland city home and a country place 30 miles out, this Oregon wife welcomes the challenge of her husband, the new Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) mission chief to the far-away land.

Active in social and civic affairs as the wife of the former Oregon state senator and Democratic nominee for governor in 1940, and a member of the Girl Scout council, garden club and other Portland community organizations, she is well-equipped to do her share in helping her husband in his new post.

In Thailand Mr. Fiegl will direct the activities of the ECA technical and economic mission in endeavoring to help the Thai government strengthen its economy.

Though the Fiegels in their 28 years of married life have traveled to many parts of the world, they've never visited Southeast Asia, but Mrs. Fiegl has studied up on the geography, history, customs and climate of that area.

"Everything I've learned and heard about the place is good, too," she told me. "The people are warm, friendly and charming from what I can find out, and it is a beautiful country."

Outside of clothes and an assortment of other personal items, Mrs. Fiegl is not carting a large stock of household items with her. "I'll see what's in the house we get after we arrive in Bangkok," she said. "I just want to see if the country is green and what the gardens and flowers are like."

"I'll see what's in the house we get after we arrive—I understand one can buy almost anything one needs right in Bangkok," she said. "I just want to see if the country is green and what the gardens and flowers are like."

Mrs. Fiegl says she expects to have many canned things—tomatoes, beans, peas, apples and other produce—grown on their country place, "River's Edge," sent on later.

Mr. Fiegl, a wealthy manufacturer, is owner of the Portland Dahlia Gardens and his Durac swine have consistently won the Oregon grand championships. Mrs. Fiegl's wardrobe consists mostly of linens, washable silks and lots of evening clothes in her favorite shades of blue, lavender and peach.

Science Teachers In Meeting At College

Various aspects of the teaching of science in the elementary grades were discussed yesterday (Wednesday) at East Carolina College at a conference which brought to campus approximately 65 people, including teachers, county supervisors, and others. Dr. Austin D. Bond of the East Carolina department of science was in charge of the program and acted as chairman at morning and afternoon programs held in the Flanagan building. Talks by Dr. Bond and by Julia Wetherington, associate educational supervisor in the Division of Instructional Service, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, were principal events of the morning meeting. Dr. Bond discussed the aims of teaching science in the elementary school. Miss Wetherington told of new materials for teaching elementary science which are now in preparation by the State Department of Public Instruction. Three students of science at the college demonstrated a series of simple experiments suited to elementary schools and performed with inexpensive and easily obtainable equipment. Those participating were Gilbert G. Woolard of Williamston, Clet C. Fleetwood of Rocky Mount, and Gene H. Greene of Mocksville.

An afternoon meeting was devoted to discussion of problems of science teachers and science programs for the elementary schools. Dr. Bond and Miss Wetherington acted as consultants, and many of those present for the conference participated. Special apparatus useful in science classes and the showing of film strips suited to young students of science. Exhibitions of books for leisure-time reading by children interested in science and of free reading materials helpful to the science teacher were on display.

Seven At Farm Bureau School

Seven Pitt COUNTY Farm Bureau members have returned from the leadership training school of the state federation held in Raleigh Tuesday and yesterday.

The delegation was composed of W. E. Little, Grimesland; S. C. Winchester, county farm agent, Rt. 2 Farmville; Mrs. Levi Wooten, Rt. 1 Fountain; Mrs. James L. Allen, Rt. 2 Greenville; Mrs. Thelma Hardee, Rt. 3 Greenville; and Mrs. J. W. Cobb, Greenville. They were a part of the 150 representatives from 66 North Carolina counties.

The highlight of the two-day session was a talk by Roger Fleming, secretary-treasurer of the American Farm Bureau Tuesday night. His remarks concerned the current agricultural legislation in Congress and in the state legislatures that affects the progress of the state federations.

GOP Is Missing Candidate Issue

By LYNN NISBET
RALEIGH — Tarheel Republicans are having a good time watching the Democrats squirm in the trail of finding acceptable candidates for state offices. They are concerned with national tickets, because they feel they have a chance in the nation and they know the situation is hopeless with respect to state offices.

Raymond Barker, several times representative from Stanly county, was a Capitol visitor this week and manifested keen interest in what the Republicans will do nationally and the Democrats on state level as to next year's candidates. He thinks there are many Republicans who would make better governors than any Democrat, but admits difficulty in getting that caliber of man to enter a hopeless race. He agreed that perhaps the most important post in the Republican party next year will be that of national committeeman. If Republicans win in the nation, the committeeman will have considerable prestige in the distribution of federal patronage in the state. So far he has heard of no movement to replace National Committeeman J. E. Brophy of Lenoir or State Chairman J. M. Baley, Jr., of Marshall.

However, if the national outlook for the party brightens before date of the Republican state convention next spring, there may be contests for these top positions. The Republican party plan of organization calls for election of these officials in full convention. In the Democratic party the state chairman is chosen by the executive committee and the national committeeman is named by the delegation to the national convention.

Entertainment Body Invites Patrons To Summer Programs

The Entertainment Committee of East Carolina College has issued an invitation to patrons of the Entertainment Series for the 1950-1951 term at the college and to others who are interested to attend a group of three programs to be presented during the summer session, now in progress.

No admission charge will be made for the series, which is offered primarily for the enjoyment of students at the college. Those who wish to attend the programs as guests of the college will be welcome. Entertainments will be given at 8:00 p.m. in the College Theatre on the East Campus.

The summer series, opening

Thursday evening of this week with a program of "Musical Portraits" by three talented young musicians, includes also "Dance Fantasy," Thursday, June 28, and "Comedy Through the Ages," Tuesday, July 31. The first is a series of dance numbers "from ballet to boogie, from tap to toe" and the second will include a series of dramatic scenes, skits, and character sketches.

Red Terrorist Losses Mount In Jungle War

SINGAPORE (AP)—The British war against Communist terrorism in the Malayan jungle had its best month in April when 107 terrorists were killed, highest of any month since start of the emergency here in June, 1948.

A government review of operations also said that 19 Communists surrendered, also a high mark for the past 12 months; 65 were wounded and five suspects captured. Sixty-two food dumps were found. During the month the army lost 23 men killed and the police 42 killed. Civilians' totals were not given for April but it was announced that the number of civilians slain since the start of the emergency has reached 1,493 with 387 wounded and 385 missing. Of that total 68 dead and 42 wounded were European.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the RECTOR KITCHENS

Dad's Day calls for a great celebration with "America's Finest" foods. What a Dad! What a family! And what w-o-n-d-e-r-f-u-l ham, when you choose Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham.

For downright eating pleasure there's nothing finer than a Wilson's Ham and nothing quite so EASY to cook and carve. Your Dad will really enjoy slicing off those rosy, fork-tender juicy slices of top-quality Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham. He will beam with pride over the "D-A-D" spelled out in cloves. And when he eats this flavorful ham his satisfaction will really be complete. He'll feel that he is truly "King for the Day!" He's a grand guy. Too bad his day and Wilson's fine-flavored hams don't come oftener.

Luscious Baked Ham for Dad's Day

Select one Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham, 10-16 lbs. and up, according to size of your family. Take off the orange and white Wilson's wrapper and follow the directions for baking enclosed. (Insert your meat thermometer, if you have one, so that the bulb rests in the center of the thick meaty part of the ham but not touching the bone.) Then place the ham on roasting rack, fat side up.

Cut of Ham	Weight	Temperature	Time
Whole	10-16 lbs.	300° F.	17-20 minutes per lb.
Whole	16 lbs. up	300° F.	15 minutes per lb.
Half	5-8 lbs.	300° F.	25 minutes per lb.

Cook Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham to a minimum of 155° F. on meat thermometer. When ham is done, if to be served glazed, score the fat 1/4 inch deep, spell out DAD with cloves, and pour on glaze—strained honey is easy and perfect. Return to oven (350° F.) to set the glaze and brown the outside delicately. This will take about 20 minutes.

RESULT—A Ham dinkie worthy of any Dad on HIS day or any day.

The Wilson label protects your table.

Auto Dealers Offer Sponsor New League

Propose Sponsoring Of Junior Baseball League

By MELVIN LANG

A committee representing the Greenville Automotive Dealers Association offered yesterday to sponsor a junior baseball league in Greenville if the Recreation Department would handle the administrative details.

The committee, composed of Ty Wagner, W. L. Harrington, E. T. Stafford, and Lee Folger, told Recreation Director Warren Carroll that the Association would sponsor the entire league and would guarantee uniforms for at least six teams. They gave as their reason for sponsorship of the league, the following statement: "We are interested in trying to encourage the formation of a league for boys where over the Little League age limit, and possibly, to provide a means of continuation for the Little Leaguers when they pass the League's age qualifications." The Little League age limit is 7-12, inclusive.

Carroll told the group that the Recreation Department would purchase catcher's equipment and would provide the necessary articles for play such as balls, bats, and bases. He stated that the department would take care of the playing field.

Guy Smith Stadium was suggested as a possible site for the games. Heber Trij, chairman of the Greenville Recreation Commission, told the spokesmen, "If it is at all possible to use the Stadium for night games, the Recreation Department will pay for the cost of the lights."

The proposed league would be open to all boys in the county who are over 12 years of age. Boys who are interested in playing in the league are urged by Carroll to contact him or his assistants. They may be located at the National Guard Armory or by phone. The phone number is 4615. Registration dates are set for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 14-16.

The need for volunteer managers was also expressed by Carroll. Prospective leaders should contact him as soon as possible.

The league will operate under regulations comparable to the Little League. Each club in the proposed six team league will be allowed to carry 15 men at all times.

Players must be signed to a contract and their names recorded. The teams are to be selected from the entire group of registrants. Each player will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The Automotive Association is composed of 11 members. They have all expressed their willingness to aid the Recreation Department in any manner to aid the children of Greenville and Pitt County.

Tennis Rackets To Match Ideals

BUDAPEST (AP)—Tennis rackets manufactured in Hungary will not bear "cosmopolitan" names in the future, the paper "Nepsport" reported with satisfaction.

It criticized the quality of rackets on the one hand, and "aristocratic" names like "Lady," "Lord," "Admiral," "Oxford," on the other, which mean a certain "cosmopolitan tendency in tennis," the paper declared. The state owned sporting equipment promised to use more up to date names in the future, it added.

Tar Heels Win Baseball All-Star

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina can look forward today to another year of teen-age baseball supremacy over South Carolina.

The Tar Heels outscored South Carolina here last night, 9-3, in the eighth annual Carolina All-star boys baseball game.

The wild, nip-and-tuck affair saw the North Carolina score seven runs in the third inning and then stave off a four-run ninth inning rally by the Palmetto squad.

Pittman Pitches No-Hit, No-Run For Wilson Tobs

Fred Pittman hurled the first nine inning no-hit game of the year last night as he defeated Rocky Mount 2-0. Pittman, who has been at Wilson for three years, struck out one and walked two in pitching the first no-hit game of his career.

Two unearned runs in the seventh gave the game to Wilson. Al Rhem led the stanza by walking. When Tart sacrificed, the Leaf third baseman, Spain, threw wild to first and both runners came across the plate.

The Tobs could obtain but five singles off the losing pitcher, Yieder. He walked three and struck out six in his efforts to match Pittman's mastery.

Six runs in the top of the sixth inning gave Goldsboro's Cardinals an 8-6 victory over Roanoke Rapids. The win boosted the Cards in second place in the Coastal Loop, 2½ games behind Kinston, who walloped New Bern, 16-0, last night.

Goldsboro and Roanoke each paraded a total of four pitchers to the mound in the seven inning opener of their scheduled twin-bill. The starters on both sides were given credit for the decisions. Vanderwiler the victory and Gieschel the loss. The second game was cancelled because of rain.

Alex Zych tossed a five hitter at the New Bern Bears while his team-mates were pounding out 13 hits including four doubles and a grand slam home run. Bob Horan powered the ball 380 feet away from home in the seventh to push four runs across with his second bases-loaded homer in four days. The Eagles scored eight runs in the inning.

Zych now has won 10 games while losing only two.

Shut-outs chalked up by Elks and Exchangers

Elks and Exchangers recorded shut-outs yesterday as they defeated the Kiwanis and Lions, respectively. The Elks score was 8-0 and Exchange-Kiwanis, 7-0.

Charles Rumley pitched his second consecutive one-hit performance for the Elks. He fanned eight, Lyons and walked two. Rumley was never in serious trouble, as only one runner reached third base.

The winners scored six runs in the first. Five errors, one walk, and four hits figured in the scoring. Bynum collected a double in the scoring spree.

Bynum and Stoneham led the Elks batting with 2-4.

Corpeny singled in the second inning to get the only hit for the Lions.

In the other game of the double-header, George Nickols threw a three hitter at the Kiwanians. He struck out three and passed a like number.

Four walks and two singles were good for four runs in the third inning. Nine men went to bat in the hectic stanza.

Dick Evans led the winners' batting with a single and a double in two times at bat. Bobby Whitehurst collected a pair of singles in four attempts.

The losing pitcher was Kelly Barnhill. He allowed but five hits although nine free passes kept him in constant trouble.

Box score, first game:

Semi-Pro Greenies Get Off To Fast Start With 22 Players

Greenville's newly-formed Greenies got off to a fast start last night as 22 men agreed to try out for the team. The list included 11 infielders, six pitchers and five outfielders.

Bill Phillips and Polly Williams who have been active in the formation of the team, told the group last night that they had purchased 17 uniforms that they had purchased from the folded Greenville Robins. It was also announced that options had been taken on concession equipment and that practice and grounds equipment could be obtained from the groundskeeper at Guy Smith Stadium.

The team is interested in acquiring a franchise in the semi-pro Bright Belt League. It is believed that one of the present teams in the six-club loop will fold in the near future and make an opening for the Greenies.

Warren Carroll gave them permission to use the stadium on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. He will meet with a team committee today to take an inventory of the stadium equipment.

The first practice for the club is scheduled for Friday afternoon at 5:30.

It was decided at the meeting to elect officers for the team next week. A manager will be selected in the near future.

Wildness Spoils Davidson Debut

DAVENPORT, Ia.—(AP)—Wildness spoiled things for Billy Joe Davidson, the Cleveland Indians' highly rated "bona beauty," as he pitched in his first professional baseball game last night.

The 18-year-old from Marion, N. C., signed by the Indians for a reported bonus of $100,000, went into the game for Cedar Rapids against the Quad-Cities Tigers in a three-league contest. Quad Cities won 7-2.

Pinetops Edges Farmville 12-10

FARMVILLE—Pinetops outscored Farmville in a Bright Belt League game to take a 12-10 victory. Emmet Williams went the distance for the Pinetoppers although he was tagged for 12 hits.

Stokes led the winners at bat with five safeties in six times at bat.

Clint Provost, former Kinston high school star, pitched for Farmville. He was reached for 14 hits.

William Sanderson, former EOC player, led Farmville with three hits for four, including a double and a triple. Norman Clark collected three bingles in five trips to the plate.

Farmville will play host to Macclesfield Friday night at the local park at 8 p.m. The league leading Ormondsville team comes here for an important contest Saturday night.

Score by innings:

In the other game of the double-header, George Nickols threw a three hitter at the Kiwanians. He struck out three and passed a like number.

Four walks and two singles were good for four runs in the third inning. Nine men went to bat in the hectic stanza.

Dick Evans led the winners' batting with a single and a double in two times at bat. Bobby Whitehurst collected a pair of singles in four attempts.

The losing pitcher was Kelly Barnhill. He allowed but five hits although nine free passes kept him in constant trouble.

Weather Again May Delay Fight

NEW YORK (UP)—Today's dubious weather forecast suggested the possibility of another postponement for the washed-out fight between somewhat washed-up Joe Louis and Lee Savold at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Rain, which began just before the weigh-in yesterday noon, should end late today, and there should be a "gradual clearing" tonight, the forecast said.

The 15-round heavyweight contenders' bout between Louis, 37, and Savold, 35, was scheduled originally for last night.

Should the weather force a second delay, the "battle of ancients" may be shifted into Madison Square Garden for tomorrow night.

Ex-champion Louis returned to his camp after yesterday's weigh-in, at which he scaled 211 1-4 pounds. That was three more than

Rep. Kerr To Be Honored By His Fellow Solons

WASHINGTON (UP)—North Carolina Congressman John H. Kerr is being honored while he is still alive by his fellow House members.

The House yesterday voted unanimously to label with Kerr's name a dam and reservoir at Bugs Island, Va. They will be known as the John H. Kerr dam and reservoir under the legislation.

Kerr was the principal sponsor of legislation creating the project, and is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee which handles civil functions of the army engineers.

The dam, although in Virginia, is on the Roanoke River just across the state line from Kerr's district.

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts praised Kerr and told the House it is "most unusual" to name a dam for someone still living.

Duke Snider Now Leads Voting In All-Star Lineup

CHICAGO (UP)—Duke Snider today became the fourth Brooklyn Dodgers candidate to move into a lead in voting for the starting National League lineup in next month's annual All Star game.

Snider edged out Philadelphia's Richie Ashbur, 11,886 votes to 11,321 to start in center field. The other Dodger leaders are second baseman Jackie Robinson, catcher Roy Campanella and shortstop Pee-wee Reese.

Nelson Fox, the Chicago White Sox' hard-hitting second baseman, continued as the leading vote-getter with 20,796. Robinson was next with 18,515.

Other returns moved Ted Williams, who suffered an early season slump, into the lead in the American League left field contest.

Flash Storm At Topsail Beach

WILMINGTON (UP)—A flash storm driven by high winds struck Topsail Beach yesterday, injuring Mrs. Catherine Lackey of Hickory and damaging two homes.

Mrs. Lackey was treated in a hospital here for deep cuts on her back caused by flying glass. Porches, roofs and windows were blown away from two houses and damage was estimated at about $3,500 to each.

Sale Of Browns To Veck Not Yet Completed

NEW YORK (AP)—No deal has been completed for the Dewitt's stock in the Browns declared Bill Dewitt, president of the St. Louis American League club.

The Browns president, however, declined yesterday specific comment on reports Bill Veck, former owner of the Cleveland Indians, is negotiating for the purchase of the club.

"We are not being forced to sell or negotiate or being forced to talk to anybody because of any debts and we did not borrow $600,000 recently from a bank," he said in commenting on a story by Joe L. Reischer of the Associated Press. Reischer said negotiations for sale of the Browns to Veck have been completed.

J. R. Carrington of Greenville, an investigator for the Pitt County Health Department, a special guest, was one of the speakers. He suggested that the Pactolus club be well represented at the district convention December 4, the District Convention Committee will select the place for holding the meeting. It may be held in Greenville.

The Ruritan National Convention will be held at Asheville next January 20-22.

Carrington, health department investigator, spoke on "Community Health Problems and Services of the County Health Department." He explained the numerous functions of the County Health Department, including nursing, sanitation. He described the spraying program against insects and said a cut in federal appropriations will require that a small fee be charged the public for spraying service this year. He conducted a "question and answer" period concerning public health work, and gave interesting answers to questions fired at him by the Ruritans.

Lloyd Johnson, Route 1, Greenville, was a guest of D. R. House. The club will sponsor with the Club a Cub troop for the Boy Scouts.

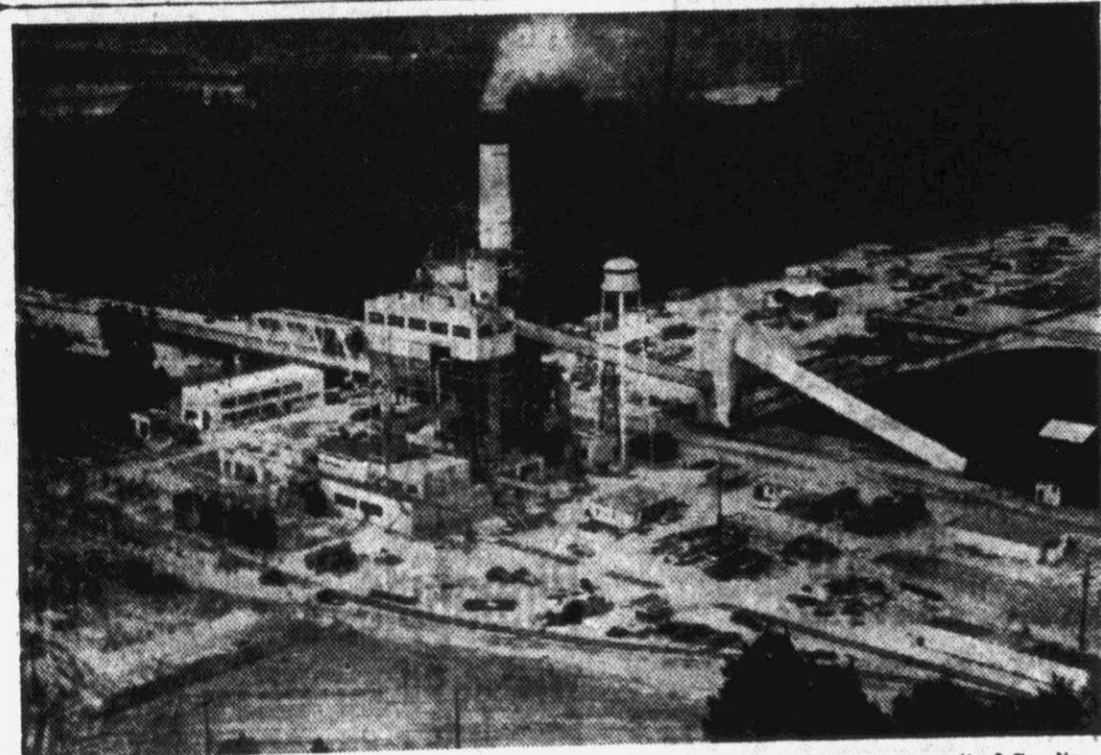

Roy Dale, Route 1, Washington, was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Fresh Milk Now Being Canned In Secret Process

EAST STANWOOD, Wash. (UP)—The first successful canning of whole fresh milk in history is in progress here under direction of the inventor of a revolutionary process.

Dr. Roy R. Graves, 64-year-old agricultural research scientist from Valparaiso, Ind., revealed the secret of his process that already is producing 2,000 gallons of canned fresh milk per day at a local dairy.

The successful method of milk preservation was developed after 22 years of experiments for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Industry leaders hailed the development as the answer to a problem of marketing the U. S. milk surplus to areas throughout the world where fresh milk is critically needed.

The process replaces conventional pasteurization with sterilization. The milk never is exposed to air from the time it is taken from the cow until it's sealed in the can.

Canning is done in an "aseptic" atmosphere of superheated steam under electronic temperature control.

Dr. Graves' process defeats the three major obstacles to fresh milk preservation. It destroys residual bacteria by sterilization, stops enzymes and prevents oxidation.

Sterilization preplaces pasteurization, the standard method of milk treatment since Louis Pasteur. Pasteurization raises milk temperature to between 161 and 162 degrees Fahrenheit for 17 or 18 seconds.

The Graves sterilizing process exposes milk to a minimum temperature of 278 degrees for eight seconds. That destroys disease and spoilage organisms and enzymes which causes milk to sour.

Dr. Graves said his process will preserve milk in cans without condensation, evaporation or heating refrigeration for six months to a year. Plans call for expansion of production here to 1,000 gallons an hour, although there has been no domestic marketing so far.

"There's a tremendous void to fill abroad where people don't have a good safe milk supply," Dr. Graves said. "We don't expect to make a dent in the domestic market, however."

Current production is for Alaska, Japan and the armed forces.

Americans Head Ethiopian Roads

ADDIS ABABA (AP)—Ethiopia has turned to Americans to put her deteriorating highways in order.

Emperor Haile Selassie has appointed John L. Humbard of Knoxville, Tenn., director of the country's newly established Highway Authority. Other Americans holding top position in the highway program are Paul C. Thompson, Bloomington, Neb., chief engineer; W. Park Wilson, Knoxville, Tenn., administrative officer; and William T. Brown, Washington, D. C., construction engineer.

Local labor, including many Italians who participated in the construction of Mussolini's original ambitious network in Ethiopia will be used on the roads. The office of the highway authority is besieged daily by Ethiopians and Italians seeking work. All of the road-building machinery will come from the United States.

Farmers Caught In Vicious Cycle Of Pest Plague

RED DEER, Ala. (AP)—Farmers east of here are wondering which is worse, coyotes or mice.

Last year the farmers declared war on the wily coyote, they vowed they'd wipe him out. They fairly well succeeded. Too much so, perhaps, because now they're becoming increasingly aware of a new threat—mice, millions of them.

As experienced hunters, trappers and farmers know, the coyote is the mouse's greatest enemy. The coyote as a mouser makes any cat look like an amateur.

Said one farmer: "We should pen up our hens and small stock safely. Then let the coyotes run loose. It's by far the lesser of two evils."

About two-thirds of the world's supply of sugar comes from cane. The remainder comes from beets which can thrive in cooler climates.

Said one farmer: "We should pen up our hens and small stock safely. Then let the coyotes run loose. It's by far the lesser of two evils."

About two-thirds of the world's supply of sugar comes from cane. The remainder comes from beets which can thrive in cooler climates.

As experienced hunters, trappers and farmers know, the coyote is the mouse's greatest enemy. The coyote as a mouser makes any cat look like an amateur.

I Shop at Colonial and I Ought to Know!

Your TOTAL food bill is less When You Shop at CS!

Me, I'm from Missouri—you've got to SHOW ME! I'd read a lot about prices, values, "specials" . . . but I wanted to get the whole picture, the complete story on food prices! So, what happened? I shopped around the different stores including Colonial, buying a full week's supply of foods each time, and I saved all of my register receipts. Then, I compared. Regardless of individual items, isolated "specials" . . . my TOTAL FOOD BILL (and that's what really counts with me!) was lowest at Colonial. That's why I'm now convinced . . . "Your total bill IS less when you shop at CS!"

Corpse on the Town

By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 13
Red shook his head violently. "No good refusing, Red. That stop-over is a must. Hunter's cash motive. If there is one, will sew up one phase of the case."
"Will sew up the case, period. Anne Brown was Susan Hunter, and Professor Scott's pet penpusher, Sally Woods, was both of them. Susan ran away and Hunter worked up the box about her death, cashed in, then began to take steps against the surprise reappearance of his wandering and unwanted daughter. He finally caught up with her as alias Anne Brown, and killed her. Stop looking skeptical; how wrong can I be?"
"You're probably right in every detail, up to your conclusion that Hunter murdered his daughter. The conclusion is too convenient for me, too arbitrary. You've traced Susan Hunter's story up to two years ago. But what about her life since, as Anne Brown, and as Sally Woods? Two big years, Red, and a lot can happen. And what I want to know is: What did happen?"
Red inquired wearily, "How do we go about exposing those two years?"
Jigger puffed thoughtfully. "Aren't the artist Susan Hunter posed for; there's a start."
"If wacky Aunt Penny can be believed."
"We take that risk. Then there's Professor Scott. Now that his Sally Woods is our corpse, we ought to get some help there." Jigger looked at Red. "Getting a perspective now?"

"Sure am," Red said ironically. "The one guy who had to do murder in order to keep a lie going and keep his skin intact, didn't do it. Hunter didn't do it, even though the turn of a screw makes the case against him airtight. And do you know why he didn't do it?"
Jigger played fiddle; Red was obviously blowing off steam. "Why, Red?"
"Because you hate to see a case end. Because the fun's suddenly over and boom, you're no longer a hell-for-leather ersatz detective. You're back to being crummy 20 and 5 cabdriver dragging your chassis up and down Broadway." Red warmed to his tirade. "Sure you'll expose those two years; find out what Susan Hunter did as Sally Woods and Anne Brown. You'll read her class essays no doubt, get an earful of studio scandal no doubt, maybe even dig up an ex-lover somewhere and sound him with your brilliant penetration. And if everything goes according to the bad fortune I generally enjoy in your company, we'll maybe even get the living bejassus whaled out of us. But you'll be right in your element, crazy happy, and in the wind-up." Red drew a deep breath. "You'll pin the murder on Matthew Hunter anyhow!"
Jigger said seriously, "Really sold on Matthew Hunter, are you?"
"Absolutely; until you give me one really solid reason why not, Matthew Hunter. When you placed him at 96 Charlton Street the same night the corpse came rolling out, that cinched it for me."

"And it did the reverse for me," Red stared. "Explain, please."
"Hunter left Lindy's and rode openly in a public back to Charlton Street. He'd just about quit the cab when the trunk came out. He even got into an altercation with me over reckless driving. Do these things suggest a guilty man intent on disposing of a corpse; a guilty man whose safety depended on stealth and anonymity?"
Red said, "Hunter slipped up, that's all."
Jigger was shaking his head, when the swelling hoot of the train filled the waiting room.
The tinkling doorbell announced Jigger's entrance into Christie's. Christie was humped over his worktable, setting a lithograph into a maple frame. He looked up, nodded affably to Jigger, then carefully glued a tattered paper backing to the frame.
Jigger asked, "Now what's the larceny?"
Christie showed his tobaccoed teeth. "Something for the 'Americana' collectors." He turned the frame face up. It showed a yellowed and waterstained lithograph of a steamboat on the Hudson River. Christie winked wisely and ran a suggestive finger up a pile of framed lithographs.
"Authentic old Currier and Ives," Jigger sniffed disgustedly. He reached into a pocket, and held a postcard out to Christie. "Aren't it is," he said. "Eric Aren't."
"You know him!"
Christie smiled and held a hand out, rubbing his thumb on two index fingers. Jigger flushed; the urge to cuff this chiseler was something to resist.
Christie laughed out loud. "Can't blame me for trying. Okay, what do you want to know?"

"As much as there is. Do you know Aren't well?"
Enough. He wears a beard which he dyes red, trying to look like a Washington Square Van Gogh. Looks fifty, but behind the beard I'd say the fellow was under forty. Changes his clothes only when he's got to throw them away."
"Van Gogh all the way to his socks, huh?"
Christie nodded. "Only he can't paint."
"I concluded that from the reproduction. How does he live?"
"Off women. In between, he panhandles."
"Popular with women; is he?"
"You might say so. Aren't gets them fresh from the country, with allowances in the mail. The girls hang on for maybe a year, then get fed up and move in with a writer."
"Know any of them? Know a Susan Hunter?"
Christie shook his head. "Know a Sally Woods?"
"No."
"An Anne Brown." Jigger bit his lip. Candor with Christie's kind was an invitation to blackmail. He studied Christie carefully. It had been a mistake, definitely; Christie read the newspapers.
Christie said, "Broads are just faces to me."
"Where does Aren't live?"
"Rainbow Alley. That's a yard-house behind La Petite Bake Shop."
"Thanks. I owe you a favor."
Jigger retreated a few steps, then said with a slight sharpening of tone, "Don't get any ideas, Christie, no matter how much you're tempted."
Christie looked pleased, as if the rebuke were a compliment.
The bell tinkled behind Jigger.

Prison Figures Below 1940 Peak

By LYNN NISBET
RALEIGH — The state of North Carolina had in its penal system during the month of May an average of 8,926 prisoners. This is more than three thousand above the low ebb which came near the end of World War II, but some fourteen hundred less than the peak population reached around 1940.
Report of the distribution of these prisoners shows 4,899 colored men and 3,027 colored women; 3,667 white men and 128 white women. The prisoners are housed as follows:
In 87 camps maintained throughout the state there are 7,417 men, camp population ranging from 28 at the Polk county camp to 169 at Cary Farm near Raleigh, with an average camp population of 85.
Central prison at Raleigh houses 808 men and Woman's Prison also at Raleigh has 260. Caledonia Prison Farm in Halifax county has 194 and the Butner Youth Center an average of 76. A total of 178 prisoners are in permanent hospitals, including 53 at Dix Hill, 89 at Goldsboro and 34 at Sanatorium. The highway and public works commission makes flat contributions to the mental and tubercular hospitals for care of patients at those institutions.
Comparison of prison figures over a period of years indicates a definite relation ship between crime and economic conditions. The depression years swelled prison population to highest peak in state history, and the war years—when jobs and money were plentiful—saw the population decline almost fifty percent. Since 1946 it has been steadily increasing. Several camps which had been temporarily abandoned have been re-activated and prison division plans call for two or three additional camps to be constructed on the near future.

DRUNK BUT NOT DRIVING
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — A criminal court judge ruled that a bridge path isn't a public highway and no matter how drunk you get on it, you can't be arrested for drunk driving. Thomas Lenihan got off with a fine of $100 on a charge of being drunk in a public place, instead of being charged with drunken driving.

Foundation For Fountain School Nears Completion

The foundation is nearing completion on the construction of an eight-room elementary school for Negroes at Fountain which was begun about three weeks ago.

W. G. Dunn, building contractor, is serving as general contractor. Plumbing will be done by G. E. Williams Plumbing and Heating company; Hub Electric Company was awarded the electrical contract, and W. M. Higgins Company of Tarboro will install heating equipment.

The site on which the school is being constructed is a three and one-half acres and is located on the Tarboro highway, one mile north of Fountain.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county schools, said the school will probably be completed by October. If there is no shortage of equipment.

MIT Fellowship Awarded Eustace Conway Recently

Eustace R. Conway, III, Greenville student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was awarded a graduate fellowship in chemical engineering at the M.I.T. graduation exercises on June 8.

Conway is working on his doctorate degree at M.I.T., where he received his master's degree two years ago. He graduated with a bachelor's degree from State in 1947.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Conway, Jr., of Greenville. Conway is expected to complete his work this fall on his doctorate and on completion he will be associated with the Calco Chemical Company in Bound Brook, N. J. The Calco Company is a subsidiary of the American Cyanamid Company.

The present area of Germany split into four zones of occupation, is 143,200 square miles.

DuPont Plant To Use Pitt Hospital

The DuPont fabric plant near Grifton will help the progress of Pitt Memorial Hospital in addition to that of other businesses in the county.

That was the opinion of C. D. Ward today, administrator of the four-month-old medical plant. Ward stated that the DuPont officials had notified him that they were moving into the county and "to be on the lookout for us."

He stated that the officials had informed him they would use the hospital facilities, particularly those persons who will make their homes in and around Greenville. He was of the opinion that when the plant begins operation, the monthly patient load at the hospital would increase considerably.

He reported that the May patient load was the lowest since the building was opened. It averaged 54 patients per day, not including newborn babies, he said.

However, he said the lower figure is not startling, due to the fact that rural persons usually don't require hospital treatment until the crops are harvested. After that time the patient load usually increases, he said.

Traffic Courts Resort To Jails

WASHINGTON —(UP)—Jail sentences are replacing the cash register in the traffic courts. The judges who pass out fines for traffic violations don't like the idea that they are selling license for reckless driving.

A group of judges talked over the problem of traffic fines in a panel discussion at the president's highway safety conference here. District Attorney J. Frank Coakley of Oakland, Cal., discussion leader, concluded that the time has come to let the public know that the courts are not "licensing bad driving for a fee."

"We ought to let the public know that reckless and hazardous driving is not for sale," he said. "In aggravated cases the driver should be sent to jail and not merely fined. 'Fines are not enough.'"

"We used to impose a fine of $5 for running a stop light. We raised it to $7.50. There was no appreciable cut in the offense and we still have the same number of accidents."

Judge Roy DeGaff of Seattle told how he instituted a system of progressive penalties which started at $5 for the first offense, $10 for the second, $15 for the third and $20 for the fourth, and added a four-day jail term which was suspended for the first offense but imposed on the repeaters.

"It worked out well," he reported. "They know that the second time they are caught they go to jail. One young man brought some extra clothes and a lunch when he showed up as a repeater because he knew he was going to jail."

Two Of 'Trenton Six' Convicted

TRENTON, N. J.—(UP)—An all-white jury which deliberated almost 20 hours found two Negroes guilty of first degree murder today but acquitted four others. It was the climax of their third trial for the 1948 robbery-slaying of an elderly shopkeeper.

The six men and six women who received the case at 12:35 p.m. yesterday and had considered it without let-up until they returned to the courtroom this morning, returned guilty verdicts against Ralph Cooper and Collis English, both 26.

They recommended mercy, which made mandatory a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. The verdicts meant freedom after three years for four men involved in the case, which had evoked bitter controversy from New York to Moscow and had been termed by some liberal groups a "Northern Scottsboro Case."

CLAMS LAST 56 YEARS — WEST HANOVER, Mass.—(UP)—Burt Phillips was married, her husband brought home a can of clams for breakfast. Mrs. Phillips kept the unopened can as a souvenir. She returned it 56 years later to the Boston firm that had canned the clams. Laboratory tests proved that they were still edible.

Eighth Army ... (Continued From Page One) fear of mines slowed our journey. We passed by the wreckage of trucks and armored vehicles scattered along the road.

On a railroad line near the road, I saw 30 twisted bullet-riddled freight cars lying crasily across the tracks.

The tanks lumbered cautiously towards the city, expecting a hail of fire at any moment from the surrounding hills. They joined with artillery and air power in a final bombardment of the once-powerful Red stronghold.

A cloud of smoke and dust almost obscured the burning city as infantrymen clambered off armored personnel carriers to hunt out snipers.

There were none. It was a dead city. Nothing stirred. Even the civilians who normally enter a town on the heels of troops were absent.

Infantrymen scoured the hills ringing the city and came up with one prisoner—a Korean who said he was forced into the Red army.

"Our mission is completed," our commander said. He ordered us to return to the main line 15 miles to the South, but not before he gazed northward at the muddy highway.

"If only that were dry," he said, "we could go all the way."

Liquor Supply Is 'Big Surprise' To Arrested Duo

Two Greenville Negroes told ABC officers they didn't have any idea how that half-gallon of white liquor came to be in their car but they were arrested just the same for possession of non-taxpaid whiskey.

The trial of Edward Lee Small and Samuel German is scheduled for tomorrow morning in Greenville Recorder's Court. They were arrested yesterday afternoon at the intersection of First and Cotanch Streets with the jug sitting between them on the front seat.

Both were released from custody under $200 bond. Arresting officers are deputy sheriff Lloyd Manning and ABC officers J. M. Ward, J. L. Taylor, Claude Manning and R. W. King.

The Lincoln Memorial was built at a cost of $2,940,000.

Economy Moves In Budget Work

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The 82nd Congress, in a rash of economy, set out today to slash billions of dollars from the budget President Truman said cannot be cut.

Members of both houses dug out any weapon they could to chop out funds and reduce the nation's non-military expenses.

The Senate agreed to vote at 2:30 p.m. on a $2,500,000,000 appropriations bill with an amendment that cuts 10 per cent from the payrolls of six important government agencies. The bill also forbids the agencies to use any of the money to hire chauffeurs to drive government officials around town.

First, however, the Senate was set to vote on a motion to send the bill back to the Appropriations Committee to eliminate payroll cuts from health agencies covered in the measure.

The House was in a penny-pinching mood, too. Yesterday it whacked 20 per cent off the funds requested by Mr. Truman for rivers and harbors and flood control work in fiscal 1952, beginning July 1.

It approved only $514,427,000 for the projects, $126,210,000 less than the president asked. It was one of the largest cuts in such funds in recent history.

The bill before the Senate covers next year's funds for the Labor Department, the Federal Security Agency, the National Labor Relations Board, the Federal Mediation Board and the Railroad Retirement Board.

Most of the money in the bill, however, would go in federal grants to states for welfare work. The 10-per cent payroll cut would save about $11,700,000.

Big Three Plan Funds For Tito

LONDON—(UP)—Official sources confirmed today that the Big Three Western powers have agreed to offer Yugoslavians an outright grant of $150,000,000 to bolster Marshal Tito in his fight against the Kremlin-run Cominform.

No strings will be attached to the money. It will cover Yugoslavia's trade deficit and enable her to buy much-needed raw materials and commodities.

Richmond Debris Being Removed

WE AJZIN TORNADO — RICHMOND —(UP)— Clean-up and repair crews pitched in today to clear away debris scattered over a three-mile area by a tornado which swooped down on a residential section here and heavily damaged 20 blocks of house.

Cranes and bulldozers were used to reopen the streets and more than 150 persons sought emergency shelter yesterday from the Salvation Army. No fatalities or serious injuries were reported but at least one dozen persons were treated for minor injuries. Damage was estimated at between two and four million dollars.

Some 20 to 30 homes collapsed and numerous other buildings were unroofed and left exposed to a four-hour driving rain.

Electricity was restored last night to most of the neighborhood where power lines were snapped and transformers burned out. Windows at Grace Hospital were shattered by the blow which tore the roof from the nurses home.

Potato Crop To Reach Peak Soon

RALEIGH —(UP)— The State Crop Reporting Service said it expected the movement of early commercial Irish potatoes to reach a peak in most North Carolina areas today.

The report estimated that the state's total 1951 crop would drop about 45 per cent from last year, amounting to some 3,564,000 bushels. Agriculture officials said absence of government support prices led Tar Heel potato growers to plant only 16,200 acres this year compared with 25,700 acres last year.

that the money was needed for highly secret work.

Right now the one group in congress, above all, with the best record for keeping secrets is the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. It has 18 members. It's their job to ride herd on our atomic program.

But there are some things which even these members don't want to know. They have refused from time to time to be told certain facts although later, when the situation changed, they may have asked for those facts.

One member of his committee—Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Colorado Democrat—caused a bit of a sensation in November, 1949, when he had a few things to say over television about the bomb, such as how much more powerful our bombs were then—and will be—than the ones dropped on Japan in 1945.

Johnson denied he had spilled any secrets. He said it was all "old stuff."

Leaks in congress have become notorious. There are no secrets at the wide open public hearings. It's in the executive sessions behind closed doors that the highly confidential information is given out by officials of the executive branch.

The most recent example of a ...committee big leak was in March when a member of a Senate committee showed a reporter a copy of a statement which General Eisenhower had made to the committee a month before.

Eisenhower, trying to build up Europe's defenses, said he'd drop an atom bomb on the Russians if he thought it worthwhile; and he said 12 American divisions could hold the Breton Peninsula in France against the Russians.

They Plan . . .
Interrogation of enemy prisoners has shown that the reason more of them don't surrender is that they are afraid of their officers. The Chinese Red leaders would seem to be on the right track when they decided to tighten up the discipline at the front.

What drives many Communists to surrender, despite the fear of their own officers, is that they have been fighting in one place or another for many years and are sick of war. Many prisoners say they formerly belonged to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist army and were drafted by the Communists. Fighting on alien soil and not in defense of their own homes, they don't have the morale to withstand the temptation to take the easy way out.
