Thirty-Two Killed In Blazing Home

Orphans And Aged Persons, With Two Heroic Nuns, Victims Of Swiftly-Spreading Fire In Montreal Hospice; Full Toll Not Yet Known

MONTREAL, Que.—(UP)—A 73-year-old inmate of a Catholic home here for aged and orphans blamed his opening of a chapel door today for fanning into life a fire that killed at least 32 persons including two heroic nuns.

F. Talleteur, one of the more than 300 inmates of the six-story Hospice Sainte Cunegonde, said when he opened the chapel door and smelled smoke, a tarpaulin over an elevator shaft under construction immediately burst into flames.

"I'm almost sure the fire really started when I opened the door, creating the draft that fed the flames," he said "Because on the second floor, the tarpaulin was not airtight."

Firemen early today had recovered 27 bodies from the burned-out building. But police and city fire director Raymond Pare said "at least 32" were dead in the fire.

Workers had been unable to search two upper floors because they feared that part of the building might collapse at any moment. Fire broke out in the sprawling, T-shaped Catholic home shortly before noon while 175 children were eating lunch on the third floor.

Calm, gray - robed nuns quickly lined up the frightened children and they fled hand-in-hand down the fire escape to safety.

Then the nuns went back into the burning building to bring out 40 panic-stricken, aged women living in a dormitory under the eaves.

From the upper windows, the aged people waved handkerchiefs, alternately begging for help and praying. One by one, they collapsed and sank from view.

Mother Superior Rita Gervais helped some of the inmates escape out, she was last seen re-entering the flaming building. Her body was found, kneeling her hands clasped in prayer.

Sister Chauvin tried to battle her way through the inferno to reach some of the helpless women. Hours later firemen took her charred body to the police morgue.

Some of the aged persons were found in the chapel where they had gone to pray. The door was locked and bolted, apparently after Talleteur fled the scene. When firemen finally broke it down they found a group of bodies slumped behind the heavy door crushed and covered with debris from three floors above.

One elderly man stumbled out of the building, carrying a red leather rocking chair in his feeble arms. He took the chair to the corner of the block, sat down, and began rocking to and fro, staring blankly at the scene of confusion.

The morgue was so crowded that bodies were wrapped in black rubber sheets and placed on the floor. Most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition, and sorrowing relatives tried to identify them by bits of old jewelry, crucifixes and scraps of clothing.

Firemen reported two amazing escapes in the fire. An hour and half after the blaze broke out, they found an elderly man huddled in a corner of the charred structure. Except for shock and superficial burns he was in good condition, doctors said.

Pitt's Valuation Is Up $5.5 Million In Year's Time

Increased Values Means Extra Lift In Meeting Next Year's Pitt Budget

By JOHN SPINKS, JR. Aiding the effort to meet next year's county budget, which is at an all-time high, will be an additional five and a half million dollars which the county has gained in valuation over the present year.

In a report released by County Auditor Allan T. Powell Jr., the 1951-52 valuation on real and personal property will be $52,111,439, exclusive of corporation excess valuations. The 1950-51 valuation is $46,602,225, a difference of $5,509,214.

Powell gave three main reasons for the increase. (1) The township lists were more thorough and the public was more cooperative in reporting its holdings; (2) inventories in industrial plants and other business establishments were higher, and (3) automobile values were higher and the number of cars was greater this year.

The corporation excess valuations will swell the county coffers to about $3,000,000 Powell reported. They cannot be obtained at the present time due to the fact that they are reported to the State Board of Assessments prior to filing in the county. The figure will be about the same as that of the present year, he said.

The individual township valuations remain in the same order of value as they were listed last year. Greenville continued high for the county with Farmville, Ayden and Chocowilly second, third and fourth in that order.

Valuations by township for next year as compared with this year are:

Table with 3 columns: Township, 1950-51, 1951-52. Rows include Greenville, Farmville, Ayden, Chocowilly, Bethel, Winterville, Swift Creek, Carolina, Falkland, Factotus, Beaver Dam, Fountain, Belvoir.

Doctors Remove Assorted 'Junk' From Stomach

RALEIGH—(UP)—Leon Burns, 38-year-old Negro was in critical condition at St. Agnes Hospital here today after doctors removed from his stomach an assortment of metal he said he was forced to swallow by a mob near his home at Jefferson, Ga.

Doctors said they removed from Burns' stomach seven automobile spark plugs, eight keys, one wheel weight balance, one .32 calibre bullet, unfired, and a part of the point of a knife.

A physician said Burns claimed he was beaten by a mob near his home and forced to swallow the objects. He told hospital authorities he fled here.

Burns was noticed at the local bus station where he became ill. Sent to the hospital he complained of violent pains in his stomach. When he finally told his story, X-rays revealed the metal.

moving and fighting in winter than the U. S. forces or the Europeans. It is also said that atomic bomb operations can be more effective in winter weather. Russia may start World War III this winter.

The Russians further realize that the United States and the Allies are now arming at a more rapid rate than the Russians can possibly meet. Russia can raise more men than can we and our Allies, but Russia cannot produce air-

Fire Sweeps Home For Old Folks And Orphans

A three-alarm fire roars through a home for old people and orphans at Montreal, Canada, Friday afternoon. Forty persons were reported trapped and at least 32 were killed. Some 200 children were led to safety but a number of aged persons, mostly women, were still on the upper floors more than an hour after the fire broke out. The home is the Roman Catholic Hospice of St. Cunegonde and is located in Montreal's West End.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Ban Suspension Reaction Likely

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman's suspension of a ban on foreign aid to countries trading behind the Iron Curtain may bring the curtain raiser to a bitter new political battle.

The White House yesterday announced an "interim" suspension of the ban—known as the Kenn Amendment after its author Senator Kenn (R-Mo)—for a maximum period of 90 days.

The amendment was attached to an appropriation bill. Mr. Truman signed it into law June 2 but complained he did so only because the funds were urgently needed.

He said the amendment would do this country and its allies far more harm than good. He called it "seriously defective" and said it would weaken our security.

The amendment was strongly by Republican leaders who cautioned against any general suspension of the ban.

There was no immediate comment from Capitol Hill on yesterday's action by the President and his National Security Council. Announcement of the suspension was made late in the day after most of the lawmakers had left their offices for the weekend.

Earlier behind-the-scenes jousting over the issue left little doubt, however, that congressional reaction would be strong.

Ailing Monarch Leaves Palace

LONDON—(UP)—Wrapped in blankets, ailing King George left Buckingham Palace by car today for the royal lodge at Windsor Castle outside London to continue his convalescence from an attack of influenza and lung inflammation.

It was the first time the King had left the palace grounds since he contracted influenza more than three weeks ago.

"The King has been able on the last two days to take a short walk in the gardens of Buckingham Palace and has today left the palace for Royal Lodge, Windsor, where His Majesty will continue his convalescence," a palace statement said.

The county commissioners will meet Monday morning to consider the tentative budget for the coming fiscal year.

It is expected that they will approve it in preparation for advertising the final budget before the fiscal year begins.

Retreating Reds Kill 7 Prisoners

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea—(UP)—Retreating Chinese Communists executed seven American prisoners and critically wounded an eighth west of Hwachon last month, a spokesman for the U.S. 24th Division said today.

The mass murder was believed to be the first Chinese atrocity uncovered since the first of the retreats.

The victims were identified as members of the 19th Regiment of the 24th Division. Their battered, bullet-riddled bodies were discovered deep inside a mountain wilderness eight miles west-southwest of Hwachon on May 30.

The GIs apparently were overpowered and captured while on a contact patrol seeking the fleeing Chinese. The spokesman said they were lined up at the base of a cliff and shot through the heads. Those who did not die instantly were bludgeoned with a pick, he said.

Thirty Hurt In Political Riots

PARIS—(UP)—Thirty persons were injured early today in fierce street clashes between rival political factions on the eve of Sunday's nation-wide parliamentary election.

The biggest clash came when leftists and right-wing supporters of Gen. Charles De Gaulle tried to break up a meeting organized by Jacques Isorni, lawyer for Marshal Henri Philippe Petain who is serving a life prison term as the "traitor" head of the wartime Vichy government.

Will Aid Output Of Fertilizers

HOT SPRINGS, Va.—(UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan today announced government plans to step up annual production of nitrogen fertilizer by 500,000 tons to meet defense needs.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the annual convention of the American Plant Food Council, Brannan said production of enough food and fiber to meet the nation's needs during the next ten years "is dependent on the expended use of commercial fertilizers."

RALEIGH—(AP)—The State Highway Commission has given the green light for constructing a $1,377,672 bridge over Bogue Sound connecting Morehead City and Atlantic Beach.

Man Wounded In 'Moonshine' Raid

Accidentally Shot By ABC Officer Raiding Still

PACTOLUS—David Langley Jr., Negro man of the Pactolus township, was shot accidentally last night by a Beaufort County ABC officer, during a raid on a still which was being operated by Langley and two other men.

Pitt County ABC Officer J. M. Ward gave this account of the incident. Three Pitt county officers along with Beaufort County ABC Officers Clyde Stubbs and William Patrick raided a still about a mile from Pactolus last night and found Langley and two other men in the act of operating the still.

When the men were surprised at the site, they fled, with Officer Patrick chasing Langley. During the chase through the thick woods, Patrick fell and his service pistol discharged by accident with the bullet striking Langley in the left hip.

The man was rushed to Pitt Memorial hospital where he was admitted for treatment. A report from the hospital this morning revealed that Langley was in fair condition. Hospital doctors stated that he suffered a broken bone in his left leg and is now being treated for his injury. His age was given as around 30.

After the man was shot, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson and members of the sheriff's department were summoned to the scene, to make a complete investigation into the accidental shooting.

The unit was a 200 gallon submarine illicit distillery, being operated by the men, with six gallons of fresh spirits having been run off at the time of the raid.

Seized also in the raid was 100 gallons of fermented mash, all of which was destroyed by dynamite. A warrant charging Langley with making of bootleg whiskey which was issued as soon as the man is able to stand trial, Ward said.

Officers taking part in the raid were Pitt County ABC agents J. M. Ward, C. T. Manning and R. W. King, assisted by Beaufort County officers Clyde Stubbs and William Patrick.

Rita Hayworth Entertains Vets

GLENBROOK, NEV.—(AP)—Rita Hayworth today was busy entertaining wounded veterans of the Korean war, in the apparent absence of an elaborate "armed guard" placed over her children.

Reino district attorney Jack Street Thursday announced Rita had hired seven policemen for a round-the-clock guard over the Lake Tahoe home where she is establishing Nevada residence to divorce Prince Aly Khan.

He said he suggested the precautions after hearing of a plot to kidnap Rita's two children, Yasmin and Rebecca, daughter of Orson Welles.

Communists Funnel More Troops Toward War Front

Beef Shortage Threat Is Temporarily Lifted

Cattle Flowing Back To Markets In Steady Stream; DiSalle Appeals For Patriotic Cooperation By Industry

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The threat of a beef famine appeared to have been lifted at least temporarily today, and Price Controller Michael V. DiSalle appealed for "patriotic" cooperation by the meat industry to insure a continuing supply at prices the public can pay.

With cattle flowing back into the major livestock markets after last week's shortages, DiSalle seemed cautiously hopeful that the worst was over.

He said there was no need for rationing, that his enforcers can prevent any outbreak of black marketing such as plagued the OPA during World War II, and that cattlemen, feeders and meat packers can operate under his beef rollback program.

But in testimony before the joint Congressional Committee on Economic Controls last night, DiSalle warned that future beef supplies and prices will depend largely on what kind of a controls law Congress passes to replace the Defense Production Act, which expires on June 30.

DiSalle said bluntly that "a lot of people" in the meat business think there won't be any controls left on meat when Congress gets through, and are operating now on that belief.

He urged against any Congressional action to kill the beef price rollbacks—a 10 per cent rollback in live cattle prices which went into effect June 4, and two more cuts of 4 1/2 per cent each are to take effect Aug. 1 and Oct. 1. The next two reductions will be passed on to consumers and will cut retail beef prices by 9 to 10 cents a pound.

Powerful opposition, in and out of Congress, was lined up against the rollbacks, however, and DiSalle would be able to put the August and October cuts across.

Meantime, Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee called on the House Banking Committee to write into the new controls law an "appropriate" amendment repealing the beef rollbacks. Otherwise, he said, there will be "shortages and black markets" by fall.

In Chicago, the American Meat Institute reported that beef production by leading U.S. packers observing ceiling prices slumped 49 per cent this week over last year's output at the same date.

The Institute noted, however, that the figure was an improvement over last week, when the report showed a 59 per cent drop. The Institute said it got the data in a survey of 98 leading beef producing plants throughout the nation which are complying with the price rollback on live cattle.

LONDON—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government confirmed today that two missing United States Air Force jet fighters landed in Czechoslovakia, dispatches from Prague said.

The government said the pilots—an American and a Norwegian—were "well and happy."

The planes, based in Germany, have been missing since June 8.

The Prague reports said Czech Foreign Minister Viliam Siroky gave the first official news of the missing planes to U.S. Ambassador Ellis Briggs yesterday. Siroky reportedly told Briggs that the Czech government is still investigating the affair.

There was no indication where in Czechoslovakia the planes had landed or why.

Enemy Columns Move Into New Defense Line And Possible Organizing Of Third Spring Offensive; Allied Drive Grinds Almost To Halt

TOKYO, Sunday—(UP)—The Communists started moving men and trucks into a wide no man's land on the Korea front Saturday, seeking to form a new defense line and perhaps to start organizing a third spring offensive.

United Press correspondent William Burson reported that a column of 75 Red vehicles moved into P'yongyang, apex of the shattered communist "iron triangle" on the central front, which Allied patrols had entered and left.

A second dispatch reported a large group of Communists moving southwestward toward the Allied lines on the western front, above the Imjin River.

United Nations Infantry and tank patrols still probed ahead of their main lines seeking contact with the main body of the enemy.

They met stubborn resistance but delaying forces, apparently trying to hold positions while a new enemy line—defensive or potentially offensive—was being formed.

Along the front as a whole, the great Allied offensive had ground to almost a halt.

United Nations planes Friday night and early Saturday raked more than 500 enemy trucks laden with men and equipment moving toward P'yongyang, the North Korean capital and main Communist assembly point in northwest Korea.

Everywhere else, the Reds appeared to be still retreating. They gave up strong defensive positions in the east-central sector and pulled back with pack trains in the west-central area.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the 8th Army, indicated that the Communists reinforcements may be used in a new enemy offensive.

He told newsmen during a battle-front tour yesterday that a "third-round Chinese offensive is expected" in the foreseeable future.

The Allies not only repulsed the first two rounds of the enemy's spring offensive, but followed them up with a United Nations counter-offensive that has carried nearly 30 miles north of the 38th parallel.

The P'yongyang-bound enemy reinforcement convoys were the first offensive since the Reds launched their abortive second-round offensive a month ago.

Allied night bombers and fighters flying through stormy weather bombed, rocketed and machine-gunned the Communist trucks, but poor visibility prevented observation of results.

An 8th Army spokesman said the Chinese Reds were putting up a bitter delaying fight against a two-pronged Allied advance on Kumson.

U.N. carrier planes supported the ground troops with a series of raids that destroyed or damaged five enemy anti-tank guns and killed scores of enemy troops.

Suribachi Hero Serving In Korea

Czechs Confirm Airmen Located

Two Thunderjets Landed Safely Pilots Unhurt

LONDON—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government confirmed today that two missing United States Air Force jet fighters landed in Czechoslovakia, dispatches from Prague said.

The government said the pilots—an American and a Norwegian—were "well and happy."

The planes, based in Germany, have been missing since June 8.

The Prague reports said Czech Foreign Minister Viliam Siroky gave the first official news of the missing planes to U.S. Ambassador Ellis Briggs yesterday. Siroky reportedly told Briggs that the Czech government is still investigating the affair.

There was no indication where in Czechoslovakia the planes had landed or why.

The pilots were listed by U.S. officials in Germany as 1st Lieut. Luther G. Rohland, an American, and 1st Lieut. Boern Johansen of Norway. Norwegian authorities said Johansen was training with the U.S. Airforce in Germany.

No further identification was given.

The planes—F-84 Thunderjets—were attached to the 86th Fighter-Bomber Wing at Giebelstadt, Bavaria. They were armed with the usual complement of guns.

The U.S. Airforce abandoned the search for the planes June 11 and said it feared they had crashed somewhere behind the Iron Curtain.

Reports from Prague said the U.S. ambassador there asked the Czech government to investigate last Wednesday.

Atomic Bomb Is Termed Obsolete

Top AEC Scientist Hints Vast Progress In Field

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—A top scientist of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) was quoted today as saying the atomic bomb is obsolete.

How literally that was meant or what relation it might have to efforts of the U. S. to create a hydrogen bomb was not clear.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La.) mentioned the matter today in the third of a series of articles on the Eniwetok tests written for the New Orleans States. The States made them available to The Associated Press.

The scientist was Dr. Edward Teller, physicist of the AEC's Los Alamos, N. M., bomb laboratory and one of the men who helped develop the first atomic bomb. Hebert was telling of a chat among several officials and himself while he was at Eniwetok for atomic tests in April and May.

Hebert said he had remarked that the New Orleans Airport, when built in 1933, was the most modern in the United States but now is obsolete. Thereupon, Hebert related, Dr. Teller commented:

"That's nothing." In 1934 nobody had ever heard of the atom bomb and today it is obsolete."

Six Playgrounds Open Monday With Varied Recreation Plans

Six playgrounds in Greenville will open on Monday, June 18, with one or two directors at each playground and many types of supervised recreation has been planned.

Playgrounds for white children are: West Greenville, directed by Mrs. Janice Buck; Third Street, directed by Frances Sigmon; and Cotanche Street, directed by Susie Jones and Jackie Sears.

Playgrounds for Negro children: South Greenville, directed by Margaret Newton; River Park, Barbara Barnhill; and Eppes High School, directed by Percy Daniels and Marian Narcott.

The playgrounds will be open on Monday through Friday of every week from 9:30 to 12 o'clock and from 2 o'clock until 6 o'clock. Frances Gilbert will direct the arts and crafts program at every playground. Saturday mornings will be devoted to staff meetings to enable the staff to go over the work during the past week and plan future work. Members of the staff are already meeting and having instruction in playground supervision.

Scott Raises Possibility Gray To Succeed Acheson

RALEIGH—(AP)—Is University President Gordon Gray being groomed to succeed Dean Acheson as Secretary of State?

Governor Scott raised this possibility at his news conference yesterday but quickly added that he had no official or inside knowledge on the subject.

Scott's remarks brought a flurry of speculation, but high officials in Washington quickly discounted it. They interpreted it as an offhand remark without real significance.

Analyst Looks For World War III Menace To Return In Fall

By ROGER BABSON NEW YORK CITY—During the past few days I have talked with some important people here regarding the possibility of World War III—and when it may or may not be expected.

No War This Summer In Europe My financial friends insist we have nothing to fear during this summer or early fall. The chief assets of Russia and her satellite nations of Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Poland, etc., are their crops, especially their wheat. Hence, Russia will not start World War III until these crops are gathered, transported, distributed and safely stored.

My military friends go further and explain that Russia will not start World War III until the rivers of eastern Europe freeze over so her supply lines cannot be cut by our airplanes bombing bridges. You will remember that the Chinese invasion of Korea did not occur until the Yalu River froze over; but that now the invasion has pretty much stopped. Broken supply lines are apparently licking the Chinese.

The Coming Winter Critical The above means that we have nothing to fear from Russia before winter comes. This coming winter, however, will be a very critical time, especially as the Russians are more accustomed to living,

After 6 Years, Japanese Sailor Learns War Over

AGANA, GUAM—(AP)—Convicted after nearly six years that the Pacific war is over. A Japanese petty officer has come out of his hideout on remote Anathahan Island.

But 18 other Japanese sailors and soldiers, with a single machine gun, remain on the island 61 miles north of Saipan.

Navy Headquarters here said today Junji Inoue, 43, an engineer in the Imperial Navy, was taken off Anathahan a week ago. More than 200 letters from his mothers and relatives of the remaining Japanese were left there, urging the men to believe war with the U. S. had end-

Grifton WSCS Has Impressive Service

The W. S. C. S. met on Tuesday night in the church in regular session. Mrs. John Oglesby presided over the meeting and led in prayer.

The devotionals were led by Mrs. Sam McLaughlin, Sr. The song "Rock" was used as the opening song after which the meditation was given, the theme being Faith.

The business session followed with reports being given by various committees, the parsonage committee, and a report on the recent conference held in Greenville.

An account was given also on the officers training day.

Mrs. Oglesby spoke of the progressive vision which will be given out by the society soon. She asked that all interested persons plan to aid in the vacation visits for children of the Methodist Orphanage.

A membership committee, Mrs. Addie McGee, Mrs. Granger Haynes and Mrs. Claude Hart, was appointed as a parsonage committee, made up of Mrs. W. C. Chauncey, Mrs. Paul Dudley and Mrs. Edward Hart.

The program chairman, Mrs. E. L. Westinghouse, had arranged an interesting program in carrying out the pledge meeting. She was assisted by Mrs. McLaughlin, Mrs. Courtney Patrick and Mrs. Claude Hart in putting before the group the business of the society, its programs, and the job obtained from giving. Three candles were lighted to show the Prayer Calendar. Serving More Unselfishly, and Giving More Sacrificially. The program was opened with the singing of "Give of Your Best to the Master," and concluded with "Take My Life and Let It Be."

Mrs. Roger Johnson was presented a baby life membership from the society for her daughter, Patricia Susan Johnson.

Mrs. Edward Hart, Mrs. Oglesby and Mrs. J. C. Hooten were hostesses for the evening.

Delicious punch and individual cakes laid in pink and blue, nuts and mints were served. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and held a centerpiece of daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth was hostess to a most delightful meeting of the George B. Singletary Chapter of the UDC on Thursday afternoon.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, presided over a short business session. Mrs. Ernest Willard read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved. Mrs. Hollingsworth, historian, gave her report as well as the treasurer's report and Mrs. V. C. Fleming, Sr., patriotic chairman, gave her report. The following were appointed as members of the nominating committee: Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. Ed Moore and Mrs. J. H. Randolph.

Mrs. Willard, in charge of the program, presented John Brooks who gave his winning paper on "Stonewall Jackson for the Hall of Fame" which was most informative.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy have made a proposal that Thomas Jonathan Jackson's name be put in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans on the University Heights in New York. Because "Stonewall" Jackson played such a great part in the history of the United States of America, his name should be included with the other great men of America in the Hall of Fame. His earnest determination to do the right as he saw the right, combined with his great military genius, made him a man admired alike by friend and foe. While Jackson is remembered as a great general, it is especially as an earnest and upright man that he is admired. On the march he always carried with him his Bible and Napoleon's "Maxims of War". To the study of the latter he owed his success as a general, and to the study of the former his greatness as a man.

To commemorate the anniversary of the birthday of Jefferson Davis which occurs this month, Mrs. Willard gave some interesting highlights of the life of this great man.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. B. Spilman, served delicious homemade cookies, jelly roll, chicken salad sandwiches, pecan buns and iced tea.

Protestant Kindergartens To Be Opened This Fall

Plans for the opening and operation of a Protestant kindergarten to be conducted next year were announced today by a spokesman of the Board that has been organized to supervise the project.

The kindergarten will be held in the new educational building of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and is to open around the first of October.

The idea of such a school was first proposed about two years ago by the Greenville Council of Church Women, at which time Mrs. Dink James was the president. Some investigating was done at this time but nothing definite was decided.

At a meeting of the Council in the fall, the idea was discussed again, and members and ministers of all the Protestant churches became actively interested in the project.

On May 26 a meeting was held at which time members of the Ministerial Association, Greenville Council of Church Women and interested laymen and lay women of the Greenville churches definitely set the plans into motion. A Board was appointed to handle details of the project, and this Board, at a meeting held on last Monday night, elected officers as follows: Rev. C. D. Patterson, chairman; Rev. Leon Russell, vice chairman and house committee chairman; Rev. Ralph Williams, Cecil Cobb, Miss Marie Chapman, Miss Bert Johnson and Miss Hazel Patrick.

The Edwards home was beautifully arranged with a profusion of garden flowers.

The dining table was laid with a white linen cloth and held a large bouquet of white flowers flanked with white tablecloths.

A delectable buffet supper consisting of ham, fruit salad, hors d'oeuvres, cold drinks and a dessert was served from the central table.

Johnson, house committees; Mrs. L. S. Ficklen, secretary and registrar; assisted by Mrs. James S. Jenkins; Mrs. E. R. Coway, Treasurer; Mrs. Milla Smith and Mrs. Herman Nobles, finance committee; and Mr. J. O. Derrick and Mrs. James S. Jenkins, teacher committee. These nine Board members represent the nine churches which are members of the Ministerial Association.

For the past several months a group of women composed of Mrs. Jack Foley, chairman, Mrs. Wyatt Brown, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Eroll Webb, Mrs. Badger Johnson and Mrs. Bill Cannon have been visiting around in neighboring towns which have operated similar kindergartens. They have made an exhaustive study of the needs and requirements for such and have reported to the Greenville organizations which have been interested in the idea. From their study and survey the plans have been formulated.

The school will provide for the needs of children five and six years of age who are too young to enter the public school during the current year. A fee will be required to bear the operational expenses of the kindergarten, and any child will be accepted for enrollment.

For further information or registration of children, parents are asked to call Mrs. L. S. Ficklen.

same principle. So it doesn't make any difference whether you have a little box camera or a big important one when you are learning—basic rules apply.

You'll learn that by opening the lock on your camera, you can load the film and take it out; that an exposure button or trigger on the outside when pressed, opens the shutter, and lets light through the lens to expose the film, and exactly what your lens does as the heart of the camera. These things are basic.

But the things that make a good photograph, says Miss Marshall, are:

Woolen Mill. Is Latest Addition

Recently Set Up Plant Promises Boon To City

Pitt County folks haven't been known as snooty, but if they poke their noses a little higher in the air these days than previously, you may be sure it's because they know the county now has one of the finest woolen yarn mills in the world.

It will not be long before home makers all over the United States will be looking to Greenville to help them keep their floors covered with bright new carpets. A lot of the yarn which tops a carpet with its springtime color and clover patch softness will be coming from Greenville Mills, Inc.

Greenville's newest major industry is designed to turn out 60,000 pounds of carpet yarn each week for the Artloom Carpet Company, the parent company of Greenville Mills, Inc.

It all started more than a year ago when the Artloom officials decided it was time for the carpet company to start spinning its own yarn and not have to depend on other sources for that important part of their carpets.

The idea was fostered about three years ago by Joseph L. Baker, Artloom's vice president in charge of production, the idea became a plan, the plan was transformed into a project, and the new mill has now become a reality.

For the folks of Greenville and Pitt county Greenville Mills, Inc. is a new industry with the promise of more expansion in years to come. For Artloom, Greenville Mills is a new phase of operations in a new section which promises pleasant and mutually prosperous relationships.

The new mill began producing carpet yarn about May 1 and employing 55 persons. Heading the plant is Alfred O. Therklidsen, who said this week the mill will expand its operations as rapidly as people can be trained to handle the jobs in the mill. After the second shift at the mill is put into operation, there may or may not be added immediately a third shift of workers to give the mill an around-the-clock operation.

When the mill reaches a three shift-production schedule, however, it will employ approximately 125 persons, and have an annual payroll between $250,000 and $275,000, Therklidsen estimated.

Although the company officials have not released the exact cost of the mill machinery, every piece of equipment in the mill is speaking new, and carries a 1950 or 1951 tag on it. Estimates have placed the cost of the mill machinery at close to the million dollar mark. The Greenville Mills and Artloom officials agree that there is no yarn mill in the world which has finer equipment than the Greenville plant.

After the Artloom officials had decided their company was to go into the production of its own carpet yarn, plans were drawn for the construction of a complete integrated unit in the South which could spin 60,000 pounds of carpet yarn a week for Artloom.

Before the new plant could be constructed, however, the Korean war broke last June, and the company called a quick huddle and decided it was no time to go into the construction of a new plant. Everybody expected the worst, and the company had no desire to get caught in an all-out national emergency with a partially constructed plant and an acute steel and materials shortage.

The plans were revised and it was decided to look for a suitable plant either idle or already in operation which could be adapted for Artloom's purpose.

In the latter part of August, S. L. Duffett, a consulting engineer with many years experience in carpet manufacturing was approached by Baker to aid in locating a site.

Duffett was in close contact with H. P. Cotton of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development as was the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Matt R. Long, president of Greenville Spinners, Inc., owner of the building which Greenville Mills finally selected as the site for its new plant.

The Greenville Spinners' plant was formerly occupied by American Lady, Inc. which had ceased operations here, but still held the lease on the building. The Art Loom and Greenville Mills officials liked the plant, the unexpired lease with American Lady was negotiated a termination, and in September a new ten year lease was signed for the building between Long and the Greenville Mills officials.

Therklidsen, Greenville Mills' resident manager, was brought in to the local picture last September. He had been assistant to Duffett when the latter was associated with Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company. Duffett contacted Therklidsen in August and gave him a brief sketch of the project which was being carried out in cloaked secrecy.

Therklidsen was recommended as resident manager of the plant by Duffett, received the nod of approval from the Artloom officials, resigned his position with Bigelow-Sanford, and came to Greenville as a resident last October 2.

Since then he has made his home here with his wife and their four-year-old son. Although Therklidsen admits that Greenville, North Carolina was difficult for him to locate on a map, being in eastern North Carolina was not entirely new to him. "I remember I spent a hot summer in Goldsboro in 1943 and '44," he commented. He was stationed at Seymour Johnson air base.

In October of last year, things began to move at the new Greenville Mills plant. Only one or two Pitt county residents had any idea what the new industry was going to manufacture, or where the money came from for the new equipment which began to arrive piece by piece during the fall and winter months. The few individuals who knew what the plant was going to produce guarded the secret closely while the general public guessed the new industry would turn out products ranging from Hadacol to vital pieces of the atom bomb.

It was not until two months ago that the wraps were thrown off the mill and the manufacture of woolen yarn was announced by the officials. The reason for the secrecy: Artloom had to be sure it continued to get its supply of yarn from the independent yarn manufacturers until the new plant went into production.

"The plant is now about 99 per cent complete," Therklidsen said this week. "The basic productive equipment is in, installed and running, and we have about one complete shift of employees."

Greenville Mills will produce carpet yarn from 100 per cent raw wool for the time being at least.

Surprisingly enough to the wool which the mill will use will be imported from all over the world.

It was not until recent years when the wool market prices skyrocketed (from 30 cents a pound in 1939 to over $2 a pound in 1951) that the carpet manufacturers began to blend other fibers with wool for the carpet yarn. Now they are being forced to do so to give the consumers the quality which they want at a price they can afford to pay. "We are continually trying to find something that will take the place of wool and still give us the characteristics of wool," Therklidsen explained.

Because of the breed of sheep, wool produced in the United States is not coarse enough to be fit for carpet yarns. It takes a rugged wool fiber from a rugged sheep in a rugged climate to supply the yarn for carpets. Before World War II most of the carpet wool which came into the United States came from India, Great Britain and China. The course of events in recent years has resulted in dwindling sources of supply for American carpet manufacturers. In Great Britain many of the sheep were slaughtered for food during the war years, and those now remaining supply only the market in Great Britain. On the Indian wool a high export tax has been clamped since the war, making the price much higher to American buyers. With China controlled by the Communists, the wool mostly is finding its way into Russia and other red countries rather than to the United States.

The imported wool is scoured in Philadelphia, shipped to Greenville, and here it is dyed in stock form. It is then blended with other wool or rayon to give the color desired in the yarn. The blended wool is sent through the carding process during which the fibers are straightened out, then spun into single strands of yarn. The strands of yarn are twisted into two, three or four-ply yarns, reeled into skeans and compressed into 50 pound bundles for shipment to the carpet weaving mills.

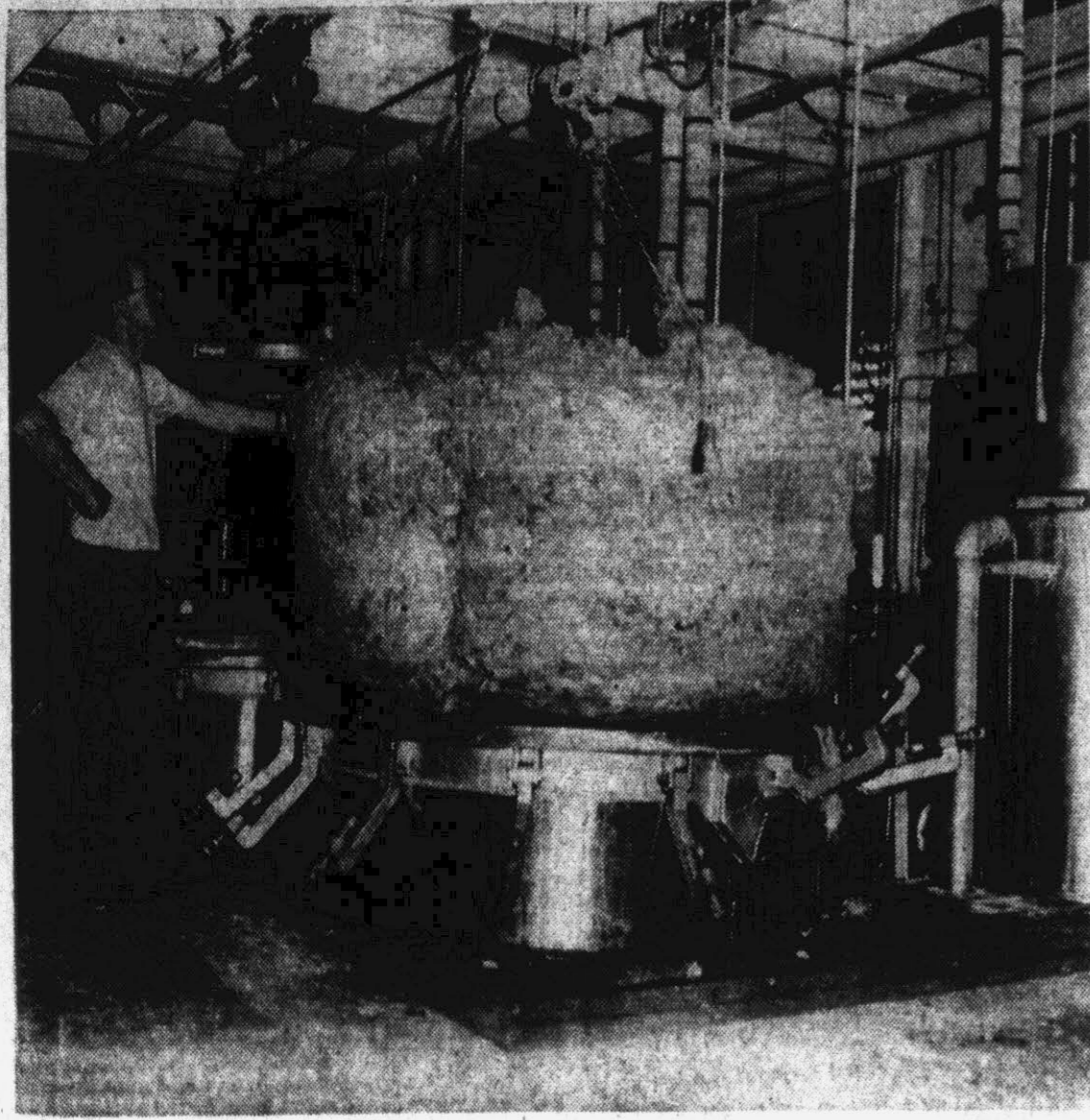

Equipping a new mill and setting it into production is a highly technical operation which requires the skills of experts in several fields. In addition to Resident Manager Therklidsen, there are other key men who have been big factors in putting Greenville Mills into operation.

Stanley Anderson, who is associated with Artloom, came to Greenville last fall to supervise the installation of the machinery which came to the new plant. Anderson's job is now practically complete, but there are still a few "bugs" to be worked out of the new machines as they broken in through actual operation.

George Shelton of Careyville, Mass., formerly an employe of Packard Mills, moved to Greenville last November with his wife and four of their six children to become mill superintendent.

Howard Hogan, head dyer of Greenville Mills, moved to Greenville in January. He was formerly employed by the American Woolen company, and has had wide experience in dyeing fabrics and yarns. Hogan was joined in Greenville last month by his wife and three of their six children.

Speaking for Greenville Mills, Therklidsen said, "We have been very happy down here. We greatly appreciate the cooperation and friendly attitude of the local people, and we are anxious that we be and remain a good citizen of the community."

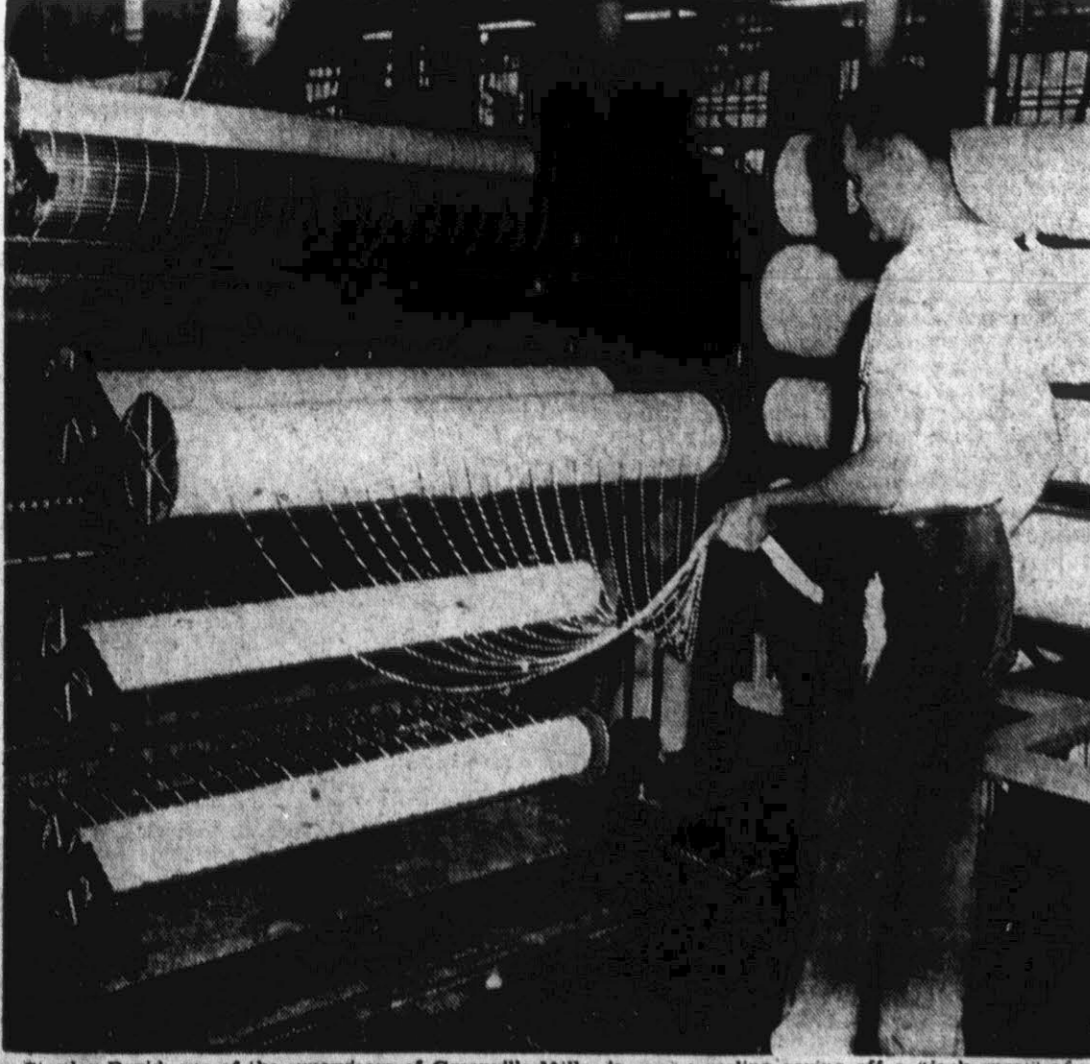

Howard Hogan, head dyer at Greenville Mills, Inc., looks over approximately 800 pounds of dyed stock as it is being taken from one of the four dye kettles of the mill. The wool which goes into the making of carpet yarn is dyed in the first step of the process at the local mill.—(Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee.)

After the wool is spun into single strands of yarn there comes the twisting process during which the single strands of yarn are twisted into two- or three-ply yarn. The women pictured above are shown checking the yarn which is being twisted into two-ply yarn.

Blending the wool to get the desired color in the yarn is an important process at Greenville Mills. Workers at the mill are shown above as they are laying wool on the picker apron for the first and second blending of the wool after it has been dyed and dried.

Stanley David, one of the supervisors of Greenville Mills, is shown reeling roving off a "jack spool" after carding to check the wool for proper grain and weight.

The three women above are setting in operation one of the ten spinning frames at the mill in the first step of spinning the wool into yarn. The roving is taken from the "jack spools" (top), put through the spinning process and becomes yarn.

After the wool is brought from the dye kettles it is dumped onto a conveyor apron and transferred through a rinse and then to a dryer which takes the moisture from the dyed wool. Greenville Mills is now operating one shift and is employing approximately 55 workers.

The final process in the series of operations for the production of the carpet wool is when the twisted yarn is reeled into skeans and compressed into 50-pound bales for shipment to the weaving mill of the parent company.

Group Attended FHA Lake Camp

Eight Greenville girls and a number of girls from Pitt county attended the Future Homemakers of America Camp at White Lake from June 4 to June 9.

The camp is owned by the Future Farmers of America but it is rented for two weeks for Future Homemakers of America clubs in the state. The camp period is a part of the vocational home economics training program.

Campers received instruction classes in leadership training to improve FHA work for next year. They also participated in swimming, water sports, land sports, crafts, music, and had talent programs and group recreation at night.

Those from Greenville who attended the camp were: Frances Cahoon, Judy Allen, Johnnie Simpson, Joanne Hales, Hilda Waters, Nancy Howell, Gloria Cox, and Kathryn Tucker.

Mrs. Betty Hansinger, home economics teacher at Greenville High School, accompanied the club members to camp.

Demonstrates Dairy Food Usage In Meet Of Ballard's HD Club

The June meeting of the Ballard's Home Demonstration club was marked with a demonstration on Dairy Foods given by Anne Parker, assistant home demonstration agent, and Dixie Murphy and Ann Burress, two senior 4-H club members from Farmville.

The demonstration showed how milk products can be used in making salads. Suggestions were also given as to why milk products should be used more often in menus. Reports were given by Garden, Poultry, and Health Leaders.

Mrs. J. F. Tyson, president of the club, presided over the meeting and plans were made during the business session for the annual club picnic to be held in the Community building on Thursday, August 16.

It was also voted that the members of the club could use the Community building for social gatherings without paying a fee which has been the custom in the past.

During the social hour, the hostess, Mrs. G. S. Nichols, served refreshments to 23 members and five visitors.

Fuller To Head Phone Program Of State REA eral government provided $340,000 for old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children. Multiply that by the 3,069 counties in the United States, and you have some idea of how much the program is costing the Federal government. That does not include the portion the individual states and counties pour into the fund. And all the money is being given to individuals who have remained anonymous to the general public.

The cloak of secrecy should be removed by the Federal government and the state governments so the mildew which has gathered in the musty darkness of government concealment may be washed away by the cleansing sunshine of public scrutiny.

A Great Celebration For Flag Day

Greenville celebrated Flag Day Thursday... practically without flags.

The flag flew in front of the Postoffice as it does the other days of the year, and a few of the more patriotic business men around Five Points put out their flags. The Elks presented a flag to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital which has no pole from which to fly it.

Other than that you wouldn't have known there was any particular significance attached to the day.

The tall flag pole on the courthouse lawn was without a flag as usual. It was under the watchful eye of the Confederate soldier on the monument as if he were daring the County Commissioners to hoist the Stars and Stripes to the peak of the pole which was presented by the American Legion as a memorial to Pitt County's dead of World War II.

In Greenville's business district the shop owners opened their stores, did a day's business and never gave the flag or its day a second thought. At 5:30 they checked their cash registers and trudged home... perhaps still engrossed in the thoughts of the "flag" which unfortunately is becoming increasingly popular in this nation—the dollar bill.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering reader's questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"I read constantly," writes S. M. of Richmond, Va., "that the Senate investigation of the MacArthur dismissal is furnishing secret military information to Russia. Although these complaints seem to come from the anti-MacArthur camp, there may be some truth to the charge. Is there?"

Answer: I cannot see where the Kremlin has obtained any information about our diplomatic and military policies and purposes that it did not know already. In their public speeches and statements, President Truman, Secretary Acheson, Defense Secretary Marshall and Pentagon spokesmen have enunciated our general and specific aims in the field of international affairs.

WEEKNESS—It is no secret to the Kremlin, for instance, that, although we plan to oppose Communist aggression throughout the world, we are not yet ready for a trial at arms on a large scale. Our vast rearmament program itself is admission that we cannot afford a war now, and perhaps not until 1953. Our allies' weakness is all too evident to anybody who reads newspaper headlines. The Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Military Alliance prove that.

It is no news to Moscow that there are grave differences of opinion among the western nations. They have squabbled publicly over detailed policies in Europe—the Schuman Plan, German rearmament and Spain's role—in the Far East and in the Middle East. It is both the strength and the weakness of the so-called "democracies" that they resolve their disputes on the front page.

It is possible, as some witnesses have hinted, that these revelations may lead Russia to precipitate a global war before we are fully prepared. But she will challenge her enemies only when she is ready, without regard for external conditions.

The MacArthur hearings will no add an additional airplane squadron to the Red's force, or strengthen such military resources as her oil supply, her industrial system or her transportation facilities.

DIFFERENCE—"Is there a personal Pentagon feud behind the whole MacArthur affair?" asks T. S. of Houston, Texas. "It seems to me that I detect a note of bitterness among some of the military officers' testimony, and an air of hostility."

Answer: As in all the affairs of men, human nature has an important role in the present controversy. But it is not, in my opinion, an exhibition of petty feelings so much as a real difference of attitude toward world problems between the Marshall and MacArthur factions. The leaders of each group live in two different worlds—the European and the Asiatic.

Generals MacArthur, Wedemeyer, Kenney etc., as well as Admirals Halsey and Nimitz did their fighting in the Pacific and Orient. They have served for years in that area. Naturally, and understandably, they feel that American security is jeopardized as seriously there as it is in Europe. MacArthur earnestly believes that we have so far failed to recognize the birth of a "great, new force" within the Asiatic family.

ANTAGONIZE—Their periodical insistences on recognition of this historical fact, which also included specific recommendations for revision of major military and diplomatic strategy, began to weary and to antagonize the present Pentagon leaders. It must be remembered that President Roosevelt and General Marshall left the conduct of the war against Japan almost exclusively in MacArthur's hands, while they concentrated on the prior defeat of Hitler. "Mac" ran his own show!

Thus, under the influence of Secretary Marshall, our top military planners strategize are members of the World War II team—Bradley, Eisenhower, Collins, Gruenther, Clark, Haislip, McNarney etc. That is one of the reasons General Wedemeyer asked for his advice disregarded and rejected by the save-Europe-first advisers. MacArthur found himself even more "out in the cold."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

When I walked in the house last night for supper at 7:45, I fully expected Wife Rachel to be packing her bag for a trip to Reno. Since we have supper at about 6:15, a half hour late means cold supper and hot wife.

But there was just cause for the half-hour delay: In a Little League baseball game, the Jaycees beat the previously undefeated Elks, 1-0. Since I am a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, naturally I was pulling for our team, and couldn't pull myself home for supper. The Elks had their usual supporters, but some of the fans that would have normally been on the fence were pulling for the underdog Jaycees.

The background for the game is important. The Elks' pitcher, Ike Riddick, was leading the Little League in pitching and batting going into yesterday's game. The JC's had lost their first three games of the season, and had won the last four consecutively. Yesterday runs that streak to five, and puts them solidly in third place, behind the league-leading Elks and runner-up Exchanges. The star of the game was Hudson Miller, the JC pitcher, who beat Riddick at his own game by striking the Elks to a single hit, holding up 16 batters and walking only one man. Riddick allowed five hits and struck out 11.

In the bottom half of the seventh and final inning R. L. Puryear, tapped Riddick for a single. With two away Kluts Fisher, one of the smallest players in the league, stepped up to bat and smacked a double over second base, scoring Puryear, and breaking the old ball game wide open.

To watch the Jaycee fans you would have thought they had just won the World's Series. Parents congratulating each other, kissing players, and literally jumping up and down. The enthusiasm of the victory within itself was a tribute to the Elks team. The victory was so sweet over the league leaders.

Early in the game I was sitting behind Earl Fisher, manager of Appliance Sales and Service and father of the boy who drove in the winning run. When Kluts came to bat, Earl hollered, "All right, son, you know what I told you if you hit that ball."

Last night I telephoned Earl to find out what he had told his son, and immediately understood his hitting efficiency. Earl told Kluts that he would give him one dollar for every hit he got. Of the Jaycee's five hits, Kluts collected two. But for driving in the winning run, Earl stretched the reward to $5.

Official scorer for the Little League games is John Adams, who at one time was business manager of the Greenville Coastal Plain League team. John said of all the ball games he's seen, yesterday's was one of the very best.

Frankly, I think the Little League ranks with Farmer's Day as one of the two best projects that have been started since I've been in Greenville. And note this: If you believe in the Little League, you are welcome to contribute any small amount your heart desires. Funds are needed for operating expenses. Just send your contribution to John Barnhill Hendrix Barnhill Company. And he'll thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYNN NISBET

Daily Reflector Bureau

Turnover, a recent three-week shift, in a sort of "fruit basket turnover", among high bracket state employees has started tongues wagging around Capitol square. It began when W. D. (Bill) Snider, former secretary to Governor Gregg Cherry, resigned the position he has held for the past two and a half years as public relations man for the highway and public works commission to join the editorial staff of the Greensboro Daily News. A few days later came official announcement that C. A. Upchurch, Jr., popularly known as "Abie", was being transferred from his position as director of the malt beverage division of the state ABC board to the highway public relations job. Then came word that Capt. L. R. Fisher, head of the safety division in the motor vehicles department, had been assigned to the post in the ABC set-up vacated by Upchurch. Another two or three days brought news that H. D. (Tavie) Jones was being moved from the safety section of the highway commission to the post formerly held by Fisher in the motor vehicles department. At the time this is written Jones' place has not been filled.

PROMOTIONS—The tri-cornered shuffle means promotion for Fisher and Jones, but a distinct let down for Upchurch, if present classifications and salary schedules are maintained. Some of the current gossip has to do with whether the highway job salary will be upped to approximate the malt beverage division director's pay; but most of it deals with possible political implications in the shifting of employees, with an eye on services they might be able—or expected—to render the incumbent administration during the next campaign for governor. That angle necessarily involves review of past activities of the several men involved in the turnover.

PUBLICIST—Upchurch is essentially a newspaper man, and a good one. He made an enviable reputation on the staffs of several newspapers and with the big wire services. He is also well known to the public as a political campaign publicist. His first major venture in that field was as director of publicity for Ralph McDonald in 1936, and he is accorded large share of credit for the excellent showing made by his candidate for governor that year. He went back to newspapering, interspersed with time out for service as publications editor for the state department of agriculture, and other similar jobs, including public relations he was drafted to head the malt beverage division of the ABC board, set up by the 1949 general assembly. His next experience in political campaign publicity came when he "resigned" the ABC job to take over direction of publicity for Senator Frank Graham's campaign in 1950. The vacancy created by his "resignation" was not filled and at end of the sensational campaign he was "re-employed."

QUESTIONS—Transfer now from the malt beverage to the highway publications post raises the question among gossipers as to whether some further campaign publicity may be expected of him. The highway folks insist they simply wanted a good man for Snider's place. Upchurch says he just wanted to get back to publicity rather than administrative duties. The gossipers wonder if there isn't something else behind the scenes—something like Henry Jordan, chairman of the highway commission, being a candidate for governor; or Upchurch being put in position to help promote some other choice of the Scott administration forces for governor next year. There will be no great surprise if Abie gets another leave of absence or resigns again to do publicity for a gubernatorial candidate next spring. The lounge-waggers say it just isn't natural for a fellow to accept a salary of nearly a hundred dollars a month less than he is getting without something else being involved.

APPROVAL—Capitol square gossips can find very little to complain about in any of these transfers. Apparently each job has been assigned to a man capable of handling it. The gossipers do find a good deal to wonder about as to whether everything involved shows up on the surface—and they are keenly interested in what may happen during the next twelve months.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

The Washington-Grimesland Case (Washington Daily News)

It is always regrettable that a lawsuit has to take place between two neighbors, be they individuals or towns.

The power dispute now going through the court involving Washington and Grimesland is regrettable because the two towns and their peoples have been friends a long time. It is to be hoped that regardless of the final outcome of the trial that the two communities will continue to be friends.

Who is right and who is wrong is a matter for the courts to decide now. It is too bad that the matter could not have been settled out of court. Regardless of the right prevailing on either side, the bitterness occasioned by a lawsuit sometimes leaves scars which time alone can heal.

The Daily News and the people of Washington want no ill feeling to prevail in this case. Washington and Grimesland are neighbors, and as such they should enjoy the friendly fellowship usually associated with neighboring towns. The people of Washington have no dispute with the people of Grimesland. A misunderstanding has occurred, and this misunderstanding will be settled. And when the final verdict is known, the duty of both communities is to patch up any differences which may result.

A matter of principle is involved, but that principle is just as strong on one side as on the other. The action may be long and it may be several years more before the final settlement is made.

The Supreme Court will rule on certain stipulations, and after that it may come back to Superior court. No one can say just now what course the case will take in the next few years.

But whatever the course let's make sure that the friendship, the real traditional friendship, shall not grow cold. Rather, let's make it incumbent upon ourselves as individuals to keep alive that torch of neighborliness which in the end will make both communities better places in which to live.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Merchandising economists believe there is a strong possibility of another buying rush between now and the end of the year. Some think it may top the January-February spree.

They think the rush is possible because customers will have the money to finance it and because there will be new stimulants to spending.

They think they will be financed to buy because:
1. Employment is high and will likely increase as defense production rises.

2. Weekly paychecks will fatten from overtime and allowed pay rises.

3. Liquid savings, depleted by the last buying rush, will be built up again. They see these stimulants to buying:

1. Production of consumer durables will soon be reduced, around 30 per cent, arousing new fears of shortages.

2. New excises levied by Congress will cause a rush to beat the taxes. It seems certain that taxes on cigars, hard liquors, beer and wine will be sharply increased and increases on such things as cigar lighters, fountain pens, ball-points, mechanical pencils, razors and blades and other gadgets and devices are being considered seriously.

In fact, setting the effective date for these new taxes may be the signal for the start of a buying rush.

The buying waves last year and early this year and the sharp tapering off in sales later this year constitute an interesting phenomenon in mass psychology. The outbreak of the Korean war and the start of rearmament recalled the World War II shortages and people rushed to buy. The buying frenzy was whipped up by officials' statements, quite true in themselves, that there would be cutbacks and shortages. But the shortages did not occur as fast as large segments of the public had expected, partly because it takes time to get a rearmament program going and partly because manufacturers rushed production to beat the cutbacks. Then the public recoiled, partly because they had spent itself out of ready cash and partly because the piles of goods on shelves removed fears of shortages. But both the cash and the fears can return.

INVENTORIES RISE AT ALL TRADE LEVELS

Meanwhile, manufacturers, retailers are prepared for higher rates of sales. Inventories at all levels continued to rise during April. Department of Commerce figures show manufacturers' inventories rose from 36.4 billion dollars at the beginning of April to 37.7 billion at the first of May; 11.4 to 11.7 billion, and retailers' from 18.6 to 18.9 billion.

PERLITE OUTPUT RISES 400 PERCENT IN TWO YEARS

Production of perlite has increased more than 400 per cent in the last two years.

Perlite is a light-weight substitute for sand in plaster and concrete. Its use can save up to 80 per cent in the deadload of multi-story structures, reducing the needed amount of structural steel.

Output during the second quarter will total 1,100,250 four-cubic-foot bags, according to the Perlite Institute, compared with 244,800 bags in the second quarter of 1949. Perlite is produced by 37 companies in all parts of the country.

NEW AND HOT LIGHT: Luminous panels replace bulbs and tubes in a new lighting system developed by Sylvania Electric Products, Inc.

The panels consist of sheets of conductive glass on which is a "phosphor dielectric" coating and a layer of vaporized aluminum. It's sold only to equipment manufacturers now and will be available for homes about 1953.

SALADS: A line of six fresh salads packed in glass refrigerator jars has been placed on the market after two years of development by S. A. Hiram & Co., 39 N. Moor St., New York.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — "Old Joe" Louis looked like the old Joe Louis, the human chopper of yore.

He came out of his corner last night like a huge tawny cat, and there were moments when his fists had the splendid greatness of his best yesterday.

He took another victory walk up that loneliest of roads—the comeback trail to his crown. No other ex-heavyweight titleholder has ever made it all the way, and many ring-wise say Joe won't either.

But he showed anew that old champions never die in the public heart—if they just keep punching away.

Has "Old Joe" lost his punch? Ask Lee Savold today.

Savold was the unfortunate fellow in the ring with Louis in Madison Square Garden last night in a fight so hailed in advance as "The War between the Ruins." Lee is a retired bartender, and to employ a term used in his former calling, he turned out to be a set-up for "Old Joe." The lights went out for him in the sixth round, long after it is the house's normal turn to buy.

The basic trouble with Lee, a rugged 190-pounder, seemed to be that he didn't know what to do, although he had been in 104 other fights. Louis knew exactly what to do. He had promised to knock out Savold in the sixth. And he delivered as a prophet.

"Old Joe" started stalking from the start. And he had all his old-time feline grace. Old? Well, the bald spot showed plain, and time had put a thin layer of flesh upon his explosive muscles. But Joe didn't creak. He flowed forward in a supple catlike prow.

It wasn't long before he caught Savold in his famous "one-two-three," and threw his thudding gloves faster than the eye could follow.

Lost his speed and timing? Java dropped in the faces of men who had been saying that about him. A vast animal roar went up from the startled crowd. There was a new Joe Louis in the ring. And they sensed at once this new Joe Louis was like the old Joe Louis they had watched make so many kills. They raised the old fight mob lust cry:

"Put him away, Joe!" they yelled. "Put him away!"

And through the din came one thin contrary voice, yielding bravely:

"Go get him, Lee!"

Savold, perhaps overcome with loyalty to this invisible supporter, tried to follow his advice. But he was like a terrier sicked on to a tiger.

At the end of the first round his face and back were reddened. In the second his nose opened and ran crimson. In the third he developed a bad habit in the clinches of bouncing his chin up and down on Joe's flying gloves, and his yellow-haired head went back and forth like a busy yo-yo.

Louis, his own left eye swelling, cornered him in the fourth and almost put him away. Savold had an Indian Summer burst of energy in the fifth, and shook Joe briefly with a long right to the head.

In the sixth Lee's nose became a ruptured tomato. Closing in with less than 30 seconds to go, Louis suddenly smashed him with a right and then his left glove caught Lee on the jaw with rocket power.

The fight had been heralded as the "Battle of the Aged." Joe proved that a good 37-year-old fighter can beat a mediocre 35-year-old fighter. He showed he still had a champion's heart, and much of his dashing speed and skill. But he didn't prove he was getting any younger.

His dream is still to beat heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, who out-pawed him last September. But as the Casandra of the canvas were saying last night:

"It won't be that simple with Charles."

For Savold, a 30-time loser in 105 starts, the future is simpler. Perhaps too elderly, certainly too inept ever to be a world champion, he might try another field—perhaps politics, although he doesn't do well in clinches.

But at 35 he is now old enough at last to run for the presidency.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON — A. H. Stricker stopped off in Washington last night on his way to retirement at Pinhurst, N. C., stuck his neck out and now is busier than ever. The neck-sticking came when he went to the Library of Congress to find out why the average desk is 30 and one-half inches high! He knew all about desks otherwise. He had patented a number of them during the 30 years he had served as management consultant for the General Electric Co. He also had a good over-all knowledge of work environment.

Impressed, the Library's director of administration, John C. L. Andreasen, hired him right off as consultant. He's still around, advising not only the Library of Congress but the Post Office, the Treasury Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) on such things as sound control, illumination, ventilation, color engineering and safety.

"I found environment mostly in bad shape, but we're beginning to see some improvement," Mr. Stricker told me the other day at a progress-report meeting.

Among recent environment improvements reported was a new cafeteria at Library of Congress employes which Merton J. Foley, chief of the library's buildings and grounds division, says "designed" to stimulate the appetite.

"This modern lighting, peach walls, blue baseboard and white ceiling will appeal to everyone's appetite," Mr. Foley said. "The peach will suit feminine diners, the blue the male. The cafeteria should give all a psychological lift."

The Post Office Department, using a 90-year-old Richmond, Va., post office as a "guinea pig" in a $30,000 pilot project, is working on studies to create a "nice, quiet working atmosphere" through improvement of seating conditions, color and conditions, noise level, ceiling and lighting.

Alfred Strom, administrative assistant to the postmaster general, said the potential benefit through good health and good seeing is expected to be in excess of cost, due to increased employe efficiency.

Among other reports was one from Everett Bellows, special assistant to the administrator of ECA. He said a study of functional furniture in relation to space might disclose the government needs less floor space. The suggestion, he said, was a personal one.

Negro 4-H Clubs Pitt County Will Present Program

The Pitt County 4-H Club Council will observe 4-H Club Church Sunday at Sycamore Hill Negro Baptist Church, First and Greene streets tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Leaders and members of the 33 4-H Clubs in the county are expected to attend the first county-wide service of this kind.

Miss Mattie Monk of Bell Arthur, president of Pitt County 4-H Club Council, will preside and make the welcome address.

Clarence Gray, theology student, Shaw University, Raleigh, former 4-H member of Grimesland School, will deliver a special message.

The theme of the meeting is: "Working Together for World Understanding."

W. C. Cooper of Agricultural and Mechanical College, Greensboro, Negro 4-H specialist, will deliver a special address.

The program includes Processional, hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers", prayer by Bruce Taft, Scripture lesson by 4-H Club members, music, "The 4-H Hymn," by a trio of 4-H members, and a poem by Miss Viola Vines, Falkland 4-H Club leader, and benediction.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Pitt County Negro 4-H Clubs Winners At Federation Meet

At the annual district federation meeting of Negro 4-H Club members at Halifax County Training School in Weldon Thursday, 16 Pitt county boys and girls participated in the program.

Seventeen northeastern North Carolina counties were represented. The purpose of the district meeting is to encourage 4-H Club boys and girls to take advantage of their opportunities to make progress.

The main features of the district federation contest and 4-H Club style show was the team demonstration contest for a blue ribbon. Sylvia Jones and Deloris Turnage of Pitt county won a blue ribbon as one of the six best teams in the district federation. Their demonstration was, "Eat Salads for Better Health."

In the style show the following Pitt county boys and girls modeled appropriate attire for work, evening wear, church, play and school. They were James Braxton, Ines Grimley of Ayden, David Henderson of Winterville, Christine Gardner of Grifton, Talmachous Holton and Catherine Rasberry of Ayden, Marjorie Dixon of Ayden, Marjorie Gay of Farmville, Mattie Monk of Bell Arthur, Minnie Pollard of Ayden and Calvin Henderson of Winterville.

The district federation meeting was a success. The young people participating in the various contests gain experience that will be valuable to them in their own homes and on farms.

Lift Wage Curb In Plane Plant

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Republic Aviation Corp. had permission from the Wage Stabilization Board today to increase wages over the 10 per cent ceiling to attract workers to its Farmingdale, Long Island, plant.

The board approved the company's request to pay a 18-cent hourly increase and fringe benefits for its 9,900 aircraft workers.

The load-line of a ship is generally known as Pimmsoll's Mark, named after Samuel Pimmsoll, 19th century British social reformer whose efforts were directed against overloaded, unsafe "coffin-ships."

KEYS OPEN DOORS

And by doors we enter!
But not all doors are worth opening, nor are all keys worth having.
A man's interests and aims are his keys!
A man's pursuits, his habits, his achievements are the doors he has opened. Across their threshold his life moves, bringing good or evil, happiness or sorrow, to himself and those around him.
Wise men, centuries ago, discovered that most of the keys to a richer, fuller, and more beautiful life could be found in the worship and faith of the Church.
Worship and faith are master keys . . . to the human power we call courage . . . and to the Divine Power we call GOD.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Sunday . . . Matthew 6:1-15
Monday . . . I Corinthians 12:1-8
Tuesday . . . Matthew 16:13-20
Wednesday . . . John 10:1-10
Thursday . . . Genesis 4:1-9
Friday . . . Revelation 1:10-19
Saturday . . . Revelation 2:1-8

Corpse on the Town

By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 15
There was suddenly something gross marring the quality of Arenis' face. "I differ from other seducers in one important respect: I don't have to seek women out. Instead, they seek me out with the monotony of the seasons, and like the seasons, they pass into limbo quickly. That was Sally Woods, of whom I can remember remarkably little."
"What was her, ah, season?"
"Just over a year ago."

"That's pretty well remembered, for a man overwhelmed by mistresses. What was so strikingly memorable about Sally Woods?"
"My painting, 'Nude of the Inner Eye.' It was the last one I did in that style. So, I haven't forgotten Sally completely."
"Did you see her, after her time with you?"
"A chance glimpse, now and then. Once in a gallery; another time on the street." Arenis motioned with his hand "Don't look so skeptical. You have no idea how aloof estranged lovers can be." He made a face.
Jigger said, "And how is your memory?"
"Much less Freudian. At least, I remember their names."

"Only their names?"
"Frankly, very little else."
Arenis sighed. "That is the misfortune of the muse; women less identify as individuals."
"What can you remember about Sally Woods?"
"Two things, Swinburne, and her insatiable love for liverwurst spreads at the oddest hours."
"Poetically inclined, was she?"
"Horribly. She read poetry, and wrote poetry. A perfect mate for some grocery clerk-if not, of course, for the lamentable death you report."

"Can you describe her?"
"I have described her."
"I mean, literally."

MacArthur Winds Up Tour Of Texas And Blistering Rebuttals

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today winds up his blistering Texas tour. The weather has been blistering, the pace blistering, and the speech-making aimed at blistering the hide-and-pretense of his Truman administration enemies, both political and military.

The "Old Soldier" is showing signs of becoming an old campaigner. In five speeches within four days, he has taken his case to the public. He has stumped Texas from the Alamo to the Cotton Bowl, from the steps of the State Capitol to the sea wall at Galveston.

The scene of his fifth and final Texas speech was Farrington Field, a Fort Worth high school football stadium. The speech was preceded by a motor trip here from Dallas and a parade through downtown Fort Worth.

The Fort Worth speech was the final in a series of oratorical blasts delivered in the manner of a military maneuver which artillerymen call "time on target" fire. That's done by firing big guns separately and from different locations but in such a way that all the shells fall at once on one target.

MacArthur's Texas blasts have landed with precision, and in effect, as one blast on one target—the Truman administration, which relieved him from his Far Eastern commands last April.

In the round of parades and public addresses since last Wednesday, MacArthur has shown his striking face to upwards of 1,000,000 Texans. In some cities the on-lookers were wildly enthusiastic; in others they seemed interested but not overly demonstrative.

In all, he has visited six cities, and on a round-trip drive from Houston to Galvesto, he said hello to crowds in several smaller cities. He laid wreaths at soldier monuments, added with mayors, accepted numerous gifts (including a Cadillac sedan from the Houston Elks), and declared that Texas would be a nice place in which to take away.

All the while he hammered away at the administration and its "constant flow of propaganda calculated to weaken our faith in ourselves," its "counsels of timidity and fear," its tendency to "under-rate our own strength and overrate that of others."

He said nothing was more inspiring than to find on his return to this country that "the mass of the American people do not support false concepts." He said the people "are aroused." And in two

Friday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court Friday, Judge J. W. H. Roberts dismissed the case against William Barrett, 512-B West 12th street, who was charged with possession of non-tax paid whiskey for purpose of sale.

Louis W. Gaylord, attorney for the defendant stated to the court that the search warrant on which officers searched Barrett's home was not properly drawn. He entered a motion for dismissal and it was granted.

The attorney said Magistrate H. L. Jenkins had signed a search warrant in black form, but the name of the investigating officer and the address of the defendant were not inscribed thereon. "A search warrant must be specific to be legal," Gaylord said.

Cases against two defendants charged with violating the liquor laws were transferred to Superior Court for jury trial. They were Samuel T. German, 514 Roosevelt Avenue, and Edward Lee Small, 115 East First street. They are charged with illegal possession of non-tax paid whiskey for purpose of sale.

Hubert T. Barnes, 406 Cadillac street, non-support of an illegitimate child, was given 60 days on the roads. Sentence was suspended on condition that he pay $15 fine, costs deducted, and pay $5 a week to the welfare department for support of his child.

No Fire Damage At Local Firm

Greenville firemen were called to the Rainbow Cleaners and Laundry around noon today, when smoke was observed coming from the roof and ceiling of the building.

However, the fire was under control when local firemen reached the scene and they returned to the station. A second call came in just as the truck and men were pulling back into the station and they returned to the laundry, but found no fire this time. No damage resulted. It was believed that sparks from the smoke stack had set fire to small scraps of cloth around the roof, causing smoke.

speeches yesterday he urged them to act. At the Alamo in San Antonio he said:

"What, I have been asked, is our greatest internal menace? If I were permitted but one sentence of reply, but one phrase of warning, it would be: End invisible government based upon propaganda and restore truly representative government based upon truth."

Not So Hot

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 85 degrees during the afternoon. Lowest last night, 60, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 71.

The sky was overcast during the forenoon today, with a light breeze from the northeast and some indications of rain.

Trio Shaken Up In Truck Wreck Friday Evening

Three youths were considerably shaken up and slightly injured last night when the truck they were driving got out of control on the Old Creek Road, two miles from Greenville, and turned over.

State Highway Cpl. H. M. Morrow said Andrew Howell Bone, 16, of a rural community near Greenville, was driving the truck. Traveling at a high rate of speed, the vehicle swerved to the left, then to the right of the road, turned over and landed in an upright position. The officer reported the truck to be considerably damaged.

Dan Wynne, 19, and Wilbur Toler, 17, of near Washington, occupants of the car, were slightly injured. Highway Patrolman Morrow cited Bone, the driver, to Police Court in Greenville next Wednesday.

Texan Shames Texas Tradition

RANGOON (AP)—You would not expect a Texan to steer away from a cow but that's what ECA's Lester E. Blaschke did.

Blaschke, a malarologist, was taking his mind off business one quiet afternoon at the Rangoon Zoo. He turned around on hearing a kind of snorting and saw a charging cow. The Texan took one look at the cow and took off—fast.

Nearby Burmese joining the chase caught the cow by the tail while Blaschke made his getaway.

Refuse Country In Present State

DARWIN—Australian aborigines declare emphatically they don't want the country back in its present state.

They were commenting on a statement by Melbourne's Lord Mayor, Sir James Disney, that Australia be given back to the aborigines if the city were not selected as a site for the 1956 Olympic Games. Tribesmen of the Northern Territory said "No good! Might be if that boss make Australia like she was first time before, might be then we take him back."

BARBER POLE SNATCHED OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—High on the list of missing items in the police department is a 200-pound, glass-encased electric barber pole, snatched from in front of a local shop.

Platinum has been used since the middle of the 18th century and was named by the Spanish "platina del Pinta."

U. S. Wild West Is Carried To Scotland

U. S. Wild West '2c 30 Ital rose INVERLOCKY, Scotland (UP)—Far from the rolling prairies of America's west and southwest and the ranges of Argentina, an experiment in cattle ranching is taking place near this little town in the western Highlands of Scotland.

The Great Glen cattle ranch near Inverloch, owned by J. W. Hobbs, Scotland's leading rancher, covers only 5,750 acres but it is proving successful.

At the Lanark auction market last month Hobbs sold 200 of his last year's crop of calves for $18,788 and they went from as far north as Tyndrum, Scotland, to Ipswich, England, in the south. In two years, those calves will provide the present British scale.

Irish Heifers Chosen What has Hobbs done at Inverloch? Four years ago the Great Glen cattle ranch was a tumble-down sheep farm. Hobbs, an Englishman by birth, a Scotsman by adoption, and a Canadian in ranching experience, decided to apply the ranch principle to wild Scottish hills.

From Connemara, western Ireland, he chose Irish heifers as the foundation of his stock. That was because rainfall, climate, and herbage conditions there were iden-

An announcement was made this morning by local recruiting sergeants concerning pre-induction and induction notices.

Those who have had pre-induction physicals or orders will be accepted for enlistments between June 15 and July 15. Recruits may have their choice in either the regular Army, Air Force, or Airborne.

Men who have had induction notices will not be accepted.

tical to those in west Scotland. The cattle were left to roam the hills 800 feet above sea level, with silage as their only supplementary feeding. Even at calving, they were never inside all the year round.

Hobbs had losses but the cattle that survived were of the hardest. That was in the first years. This year, despite the severity and length of the winter, losses were almost nothing.

Grass At Will Roaming at will over the hills, the herds require watching, and Hobbs employs four Gaelic-speaking cattle hands. From dawn to dusk they range this Scottish ranch on horseback and carry 12-foot whips.

Hobbs' 200 cattle at Lanark auction market fetched an average of about $93 a head. Scottish farmers see in his work at Inverloch a practical economic proposition which is going to mean much to the Highlands and to the national larder.

More important is that the Scottish secretary of state, Hector McNell, is impressed. He is convinced of the possibilities of applying stock rearing on the same lines in many parts of the north-improvised west Highlands.

Lord Lovat Tries It A similar experiment is being carried out by Lord Lovat in Strathfarrar, formerly a deer forest.

Extra Time To Meet Terms

TEHRAN (UP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, acting on a personal appeal from U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady, agreed today to extend by 48 hours an ultimatum demanding that the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. give Iran 75 per cent of its revenues since March 20.

The ultimatum originally would have expired tomorrow. Mossadegh extended it until Tuesday.

British government quarters ho-ded for a sign of Iranian conciliation over the weekend, but were getting ready for emergency moves "just in case," as Iran threatened to turn to other powers, apparently including Russia, if Britain refuses to help run the nationalized Anglo-Iranian company.

British officials stressed there would be no outright military intervention in Iran because it would take too large a force to control Iran's huge oil area. All they plan, in event of trouble, is speedy evacuation of all British workers and their families. This would leave the oil installations in the hands of untrained Iranian personnel.

All technical facilities would be withdrawn. This would include the huge British tanker fleet. British officials said such a move would paralyze distribution facilities of the billion-dollar oil company and the world's largest refinery.

(Continued From Page One) be no important price changes until the spring of 1952. If Russia has not started War III by that time, there may then be a letdown in business and be increased further. But, if Russia should strike next winter, taxes are sure to be raised again.

As to general business during the remainder of this year, I look for a lag this summer during the "cooling up" period when industry is switching from peace to war work. This may be accompanied by some unemployment. By fall, however, business should again be good.

This uplift should continue throughout the winter whatever Russia decides to do. All skilled workers will be in greater demand, and colleges.

But, personally, I go further and say "anything can happen during the years ahead, from a devastating War III to World Peace and a 'Golden Age.'" This means that the most important program is to so plan our family's education, business and investments that we will be able to get on "some way whatever happens." This is a goal very important to pray and work for this month of June as our young people are now graduating from schools and colleges.
