Chinese Prepare For New Attack

Reds Massing Thousands Of Troops On Western Front In Korea; United Nations Front Line Officers Predict Offensive Within Two Weeks

TOKYO, Thursday—(UP)—The Chinese Communists massed thousands of troops, supported by artillery, on the western front in Korea today. United Nations front line officers predicted a new Red offensive within two weeks unless there is a cease fire.

It was indicated that the Communist troops pouring into the lines were fresh from the Manchurian sanctuary. A Red build-up was reported all the way from the western front to the east coast, with emphasis on the sector north of the old Chorwon-Kumhwa-Pyongyang triangle. The enemy front lines were just outside Allied artillery range.

"They can hit us anywhere at any time in any strength" one Allied briefing officer on the central front said. Most estimates at the front placed the enemy's kick-off day in the second week in July. The Reds seemed to be planning a new assault down the Uijongbu corridor toward Seoul, former capital of South Korea.

The Chinese mounted a very strong screening force in front of their buildup and even were digging in on the flatland just south of Pyongyang, northern apex of the former "iron triangle" and 29 miles ahead of the 38th parallel.

Defense of level ground is a complete departure from former enemy tactics in Korea, and indicated the Reds' determination to keep Allied probes from disrupting their attack buildup.

However, the Communists showed some signs of preparing to abandon their outer defense line below the big bastion of Kumhwa, 17 miles east of Pyongyang, presumably for a stronger line farther north.

Enemy resistance stiffened considerably on the eastern part of the front. Only one U.N. patrol could probe north any considerable distance. It struck three miles ahead of the line.

Elsewhere, the Communists opened up with machine-guns and mortars on patrols 1,000 yards and less in front of U.N. positions. Allied positions north of Inje were shelled for the first time in a week by both artillery and mortars.

Farther west, U.N. troops battled to hold on to a strategic hill east of Kumhwa that has changed hands 12 times in the last three days. The Allies recaptured it yesterday, but two enemy platoons attacked them again this morning.

United Nations troops drove three miles up the Hwachon-Kumhwa highway yesterday against moderate resistance, but were hit by an estimated battalion—800 to 1,000 men—in the same general area today. The attack was repulsed after an hour and a half.

Rodney Fulcher of Greenville survived the first round eliminations in the National Forensic League speech tournament. The speech tournament is being held at the George Pepperdine College at Los Angeles, California, which is featuring participants from all over the nation. State and district winners are eligible to compete in the national tournament.

Fulcher is participating in original oratory, boys' extemp, and radio announcing.

Before the United Nations can make peace with the Communists they are going to have to make peace among themselves. Unless they present a united front they have small chance of coming out of any negotiations with an honorable settlement of the Korean war.

Iran Sends Army Units To Hot-Bed Of Oil Dispute

Action Taken As Result Of Britain Ordering Cruiser To Port City

TEHRAN—(UP)—Iran is speeding troops to the oil center of Abadan as the result of Britain's dispatch of a cruiser to the area. It was made known today.

ABADAN, Iran—(AP)—The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company today started calling its British staff from the oil fields in readiness to fly them out of Iran. The troops, reinforcements for the already sizeable garrison in the oil fields, were sent 250 miles from northeast of Abadan.

"Iran will resist aggression," a government source said. In Tehran the cabinet was called into emergency session to meet what was called a new emergency after the cruiser Mauritius was ordered to the "vicinity" of Abadan and was due there late today.

All British women and children except nurses already have been moved out to safety. Informed sources said the evacuation could be completed in 72 hours. Reports from Cairo said British troops in the Suez Canal zone had been alerted to fly to Basra, Iraq, 40 miles west of Abadan. A special paratroop unit was standing by in Cyprus. Two frigates were on patrol in the Persian Gulf.

British Ambassador Sir Francis Shephard, in an angry statement, confirmed that British oil technicians had closed the Agas Jari field, largest in southern Iran. The fields are 90 miles east-northeast of Abadan. From there, oil is sent by a pipe line to Bandar Masruh, 55 miles east of Abadan. Shephard said the field was closed on the ground that storage tanks in Bandar Masruh were full and that the supply of Iranian aviation gasoline to Basra had been stopped or possibly prevented by the Iranians. This oil supplies a great British Royal Air Force base in the Basra area.

The ambassador said the Mauritius had been sent to the vicinity of Abadan to protect both lives and property of Britons. "I am quite sure the Iranian government has taken all precautions possible to preserve law and order," Shephard said. "But it is the obvious duty of His Majesty's government to take all precautions."

Pet Duck, Who Thought He Was A Dog, Is Killed

SEATTLE—(UP)—Joe, the duck who thought he was a dog, died yesterday because there was one canine in the neighborhood who wasn't afraid of him.

Joe, the pet of Rosalie Katzenberger, was raised around many dogs. He had never seen another duck. His quack sounded almost cars with the dogs of Seattle's Green Lake district.

Joe also fought dog style and most of the pooches in the area, except for Peter the daschund, most afraid of him. Peter was new in the neighborhood.

When Peter tried to eat Joe's dog-food dinner, the battle began. Peter won.

The children of the neighborhood accorded Joe full canine rites.

Before We Talk Peace Some Members Of United Nations Recognize Allies Must Get Their Own Ducks In A Row Before Dealing With Reds; An Example Of Their Varied Opinions

Where Red Resistance Mounts

REDS SMASH INTO ALLIED LINES—Arrows on this map show where Red forces smashed into Allied lines (A) northeast of Kumhwa and where they mustered enough strength for a major attack north of Inje (B). The Communists maintained their defense line around Kumhwa (sawtooth line), but U.N. warships further north shelled the Wonsan area again in an effort to break down Red supply lines. Secrets Of MIG Released In U. S.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Aviation circles were up in the air today over how a magazine got an article by Russian aircraft designer Igor I. Gurevich describing in detail the Soviet fighters now operating in Korea.

The article, called "I designed the MIG-15," was published under Gurevich's by-line in Aero Digest magazine. Gurevich presented a mass of performance figures on his country's high-speed jet fighter, and modestly ranked it as a rival "in some respects" of American planes.

Editor Fred Hamlin declined to reveal how he got the article. Aviation circles were unable to recall a similar case in which a plane designer described his product in this manner so soon after it entered battle.

Hamlin said, however, that prior to publication he had submitted the article to military and industry officials and "without exception (they) have been unable to doubt its accuracy and have not quarreled with a single sentence or figure."

One of the principal factors in the success of the MIG-15 as a high performance ship, Gurevich said, is its British Rolls-Royce engine. He added that "sacrifice of pilot safety" was another factor. Gurevich said the MIG-15 has a top speed of 646 miles an hour at 16,000 feet. This figure appeared in reports of U. S. pilots in F-86 Sabres who have been unable to catch the Soviet plane.

Malaria Control Spraying Nears Wind-Up In City

Spraying for malaria control in Greenville, which has been underway since the first of May, is nearing completion. John Carrington, health investigator, said this morning that the work here will be completed soon but it will probably be three or four weeks before spraying in rural areas of the county is completed.

The crews have been working both in the town and the county at places where property owners requested their property sprayed. A nominal fee has been charged for spraying since the county is bearing most of the expenses.

Big Feet Mean Rest For Marine Till Shoes Come

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA—(AP)—Pfc. Saadi A. Ferris II has feet big enough to earn him a 30-day vacation from the front lines. The Austin, Texas Marine sports 14 double E's. He brought some of the gunboats with him from the States, but they wore out a few weeks ago, and the supply sergeant had nothing comparable in stock.

"Nobody," he insisted, looking unbelievably at Ferris' huge feet, "has shoes that size." The battalion doctor took a more realistic view of the expansive matter.

"Rear echelon for you, son," said he. "We'll send to Japan for a pair of shoes, but they'll probably get here one at a time. Our cargo planes are only so big, you know."

Weird Weather Heavily Damages Eastern N. C.

Heat Doldrums Shattered, But Storms And Hail Bring Destruction

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Old Man Weather, who relieved many Tar Heels of oppressive heat with scattered thundershowers yesterday caused a lot of damage in eastern North Carolina at the same time.

The heat doldrums were shattered violently in much of the East. Hail destroyed or damaged some crops, lightning killed a truck driver, and temperatures dropped more than 30 degrees in less than three hours in New Bern and Raleigh.

More scattered thundershowers are for today, the Raleigh Weather Bureau reported. The Weather Bureau said that the entire southeastern part of the nation is covered with warm, humid air and no appreciable change in the weather conditions Tar Heels have been experiencing for the past week or so are in sight.

Yesterday's weather saw a storm rip through Sampson County leaving the Clinton Fire Department, putting the alarm system out of commission, and another bolt hit the water department, which caused all water pumping activities to cease while repairs were made to crippled machines.

A number of Clinton merchants reported their stocks were damaged by flood waters as high as three feet. At Wilmington, John Lester Johnson, 42, was killed by lightning while unloading brick from his truck.

Wilson County reports one of the most serious hail storms in 10 years. A storm, which lasted about 20 minutes ripped through a two-mile square area in Gardeners Township. Six farmers reported their tobacco crops were a total loss. Paul Varnell reported a total loss of 10 acres of tobacco, 10 acres of corn and five acres of cotton.

In Wake County near Raleigh the second destructive hail and wind storm in recent days destroyed four acres of tobacco.

Extra $10 Million Allocated For Buying Tobacco

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An additional $10,000,000 (M) for purchase of American tobacco by Germany will be allocated by the Economic Cooperative Administration.

In announcing the allocation yesterday, Senator Clements (D-Ky.) said the action will make $15,000,000 in ECA funds available for German tobacco buying in this country in the year ending June 30.

Clements, chairman of a three-man committee named by congressmen from tobacco-growing states, made the report in an informal meeting yesterday or the result of conferences with ECA officials in efforts to get an increase in American tobacco funds for Germany.

Cities Ask Secret Of How Alexandria Ended Peddling

ALEXANDRIA, La.—(AP)—Nearly 200 cities from coast to coast are asking how this city of 50,000 found a way to keep door-to-door peddlers from bothering busy housewives and slumbering husbands.

Alexandria has received requests from 171 cities in 39 states for details on the city's anti-peddling ordinance. The requests are still coming in. Mayor Carl B. Close said the ordinance was passed to keep out unreliable solicitors and because many persons complained about being disturbed while busy, ill or sleeping.

Three New Applicants For Appointive Offices

Other Than Incumbents, Two Seek Assistant Tax Collector's Post, One For City Clerk; Go Before Board Monday

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR. Three applications other than those from incumbents have been filed with the city clerk for appointive city jobs. Two applications have been received for the job of assistant tax collector and one for city clerk.

The board will meet at noon Monday, according to stipulations in the city code. At that time the swearing-in of the new mayor and aldermen will be done. Afterwards they will appoint a chief of police, police captain, street department head, city clerk, assistant tax collector, fire chief, assistants fire chief and city treasurer.

The board will also meet tomorrow night for the last time of the fiscal year. Mayor W. S. Stafford said today that for the most part the board will meet just to carry out the stipulations in the code. There is no pending business to be presented to the members for their action, he said, unless something comes up in the meantime.

Colonial 'Blue Laws' Revived

BETHLEHEM, N. H.—(UP)—Colonial era "blue laws" will be enforced for two hours in this White Mountains community next Sunday, and Police Chief Howard Sanborn predicts there'll be plenty of customers for the pillory and stocks set up in the center of town.

Between 2 and 4 p.m., no one in Bethlehem will be able to buy cigarettes, go swimming, play golf or sing—unless it's a hymn. The purpose of "Blue Law Day" is to "let people know how much freedom they enjoy these days."

Man With Hoe' Is Making Money

MEMPHIS—(AP)—The man with the hoe—an economic problem most of the year, is making "big money" right now. Cottonbelt farmers are bidding against each other for Negro field hands to chop the grass out of their crop.

Mrs. Clara Kitts, director of the Tennessee farm labor office here, said chopping wages have soared to $10 a day in some areas—more than double last year's top. About 13,000 chop-ers are being hired out of Memphis daily.

Acheson Awaiting Report From U.S. Ambassador After Talk With Soviet Officials; Source Indicates Negotiations Between North Korea And UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—(UP) Details of Russia's ideas for ending the fighting in Korea may be known shortly, according to indications from capitals around the world today.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said he expected to get "some further light" during the day. He presumably referred to a report en route from Moscow, where the United States ambassador spent 20 minutes in the Foreign Office.

A well-informed source here said the Soviet proposal means that a cease-fire should be negotiated between the North Korean and United Nations field commanders. The political strings to the suggestion. In London, Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison recommended indefinite postponement of a U.N. decision on whether to admit Red China, crediting the change of attitude to China's "persistent behavior" in violation of the U.N. charter.

On instructions from Washington, Ambassador Alan G. Kirk went to the Foreign Office in Moscow and began a conference with Andrei Gromyko, first deputy foreign minister. Jacob A. Malik, Russian delegate to the U.N., was still on the sick list and officials here were unable to get elaboration from him of the proposal he made Saturday.

U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie landed after a quick trip from Europe and said that "some of the other delegates or the president of the Assembly will try to see Malik and find out what he means."

The Voice of America said meanwhile that Josef Stalin could halt the Korean war at any time by naming the day and hour.

The 16 U.N. nations with forces fighting in Korea meet this afternoon in Washington to talk over situation. Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday accepted the Russian idea of a cease-fire at the 38th parallel as a "first step" for peace, indicating the West would not demand unification of North and South Korea now.

The Voice commentator appeared optimistic. He recalled that only a few days before the Soviet cease-fire proposal he challenged Malik to cry "peace."

Today, he said: "If Stalin had said: 'Look here, Mao (Red China's leader Mao Tse-tung), look here you North Koreans, I ask you to stop firing, to stand honorably on your arms and await the peace negotiations.'"

"If he had said this and set a date, say 5 o'clock tomorrow night... well, I'm sure that when 5 o'clock tomorrow night rolled around, the bullets would stop flying in Korea."

A significant shift in the wind came at Pusan, temporary capital of South Korea, where the legislature unanimously rejected a motion to register its opposition to the cease-fire proposal with the U.N. and U.S. Heretofore, the South Koreans had vehemently opposed any truce at the 38th parallel as Malik proposed.

Who-Dun-It Writer Dies

The Little Bombshell

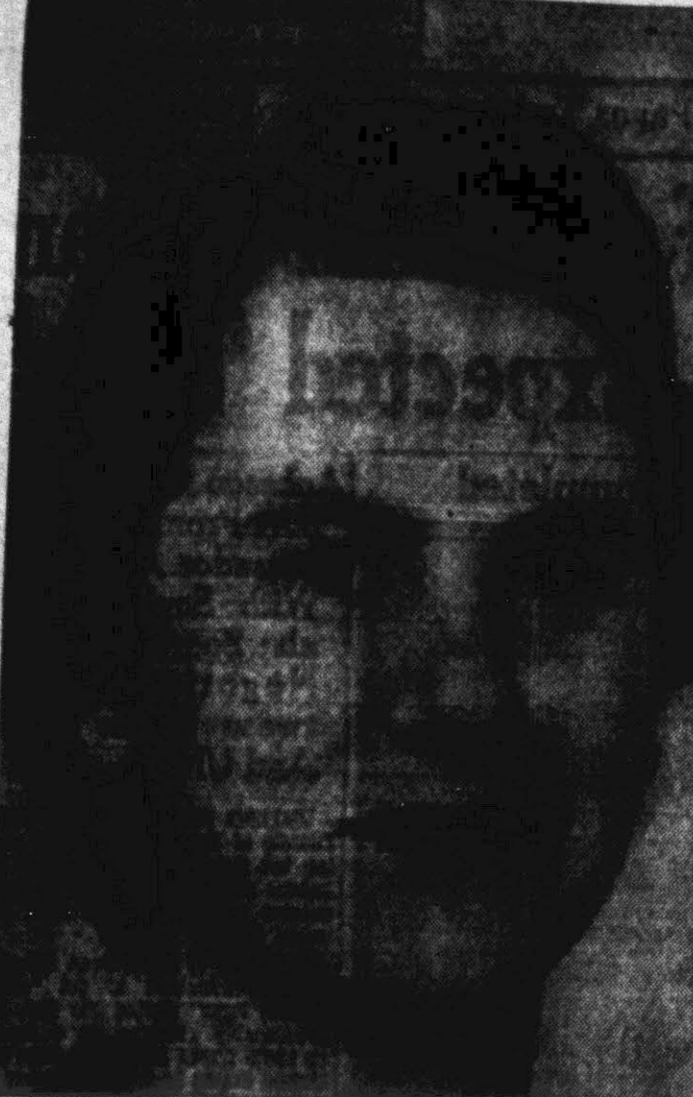

What Malik Had To Say On The Korean Cease-Fire Was Actually Very Little, But World Leaped To Attention; More Impressive Ways To Start Peace Talk

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Every week in New York at the United Nations the chief of a different delegation to U. N. is called upon to make a radio talk. His speech is recorded and then broadcast to the world. Last week, just about one year after the outbreak of the Korean War, it came the turn of the Russian delegation. He made a speech that took 17 minutes.

Since it was a world broadcast, it was a wonderful chance for Malik to get in some more cracks against the United States. For almost the full 17 minutes he tore the U. S. apart, blasting it as a warmonger. Then at the very tail-end—as if it were only a secondary consideration although no one doubts he had instructions from Moscow—he dropped in a couple of paragraphs about a cease-fire in Korea, a vague statement. Vague as it was, the world pricked up its ears although it will have to wait maybe for weeks of talking among the diplomats before it can learn whether Malik's talk was sincere or just more propaganda. It may have been strictly propaganda. In fact, the Russians may have felt themselves forced to pull a stunt like that in order to offset some American peace broadcasts that have been around the world since June 2.

Miss Ayers Weds Mr. James In Christian Chapel Of Cross Roads

ROBERSONVILLE—The Christian Chapel of Cross Roads was the scene of a simple but impressive wedding at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when Miss Joyce Elene Ayers, daughter of Mrs. Neva Bell Ayers, and Mr. Benjamin Thomas James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaston James of Cross Roads, were united in marriage by Rev. Preston Clayton, pastor of the church. Before the double ring ceremony a program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Marshall Wilson, pianist. Miss Doris Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Scott, soloist, sang "Because" by Guy D'Hardelot, accompanied by Miss Frances Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Smith, at the piano.

The bride, wearing a street length dress of ice blue imported voile with white linen accessories and a white orchid, entered the church with the groom. On either side of the altar were tall vases of gladioli and greenery.

For the occasion, the mother of the bride wore a dress of navy blue sheer with blue accessories. Mrs. James, mother of the groom, wore a dress of blue crepe with red accessories.

Both were graduates of Robersonville High School. The bride is employed by the Sherwood L. Roeberson Company and the groom is now farming near Cross Roads.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Asheville and a tour of the western part of the state.

Mrs. Ayers, mother of the bride, entertained the out-of-town guests and those who participated in the wedding with a buffet dinner consisting of fried chicken, potato salad, claw, deviled eggs, boiled ham, cornbread, biscuits, pickles, stuffed olives, iced tea, and cake at her house on Broad Street.

minist candidates.
The United States has poured four billion dollars into France during the past four years. Yet the communist vote in that country has dropped only six percentage points. Into Italy the United States has poured two billion dollars, and the communist vote in the last election was up four percentage points from the previous election.

The Soviet Union is not handing out financial aid to the governments of France and Italy. The Russians are not helping the peoples of France and Italy re-establish their economy and raise their standards of living. If done properly, the idea of democracy should be no more difficult to sell to the masses than ideas of communism.

Wherein, then, is our policy weak? What link in the democracies' plan is failing to reach the average man on the street in Italy and France?

If the democracies fail to stymie the aggressors within the boundaries of France and Italy, the preparations to resist aggression from the other side of the borders will have been wasted.

It would be a good plan to aim more of the efforts of the democracies directly at the man on the street in Europe rather than dropping all our eggs into the baskets of the high government officials.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Dean Acheson's unpopularity within President Truman's official family is fully as great as it is among professional party chieftains and local leaders, who are convinced that his retention will damage the national ticket next year, especially if Mr. Truman heads it. In this instance, however, his difficulty is not due to his policies or his personality.

The growing irritation toward him among Cabinet members and the heads of important independent agencies derives from the fact that, as Secretary of State, he operates an international grievance bureau. He presides over a sort of foreign relations court, before which the entire diplomatic corps at the Capital air their major and petty complaints against the executive and legislative branches of the United States.

It is his task to hand on their grouses and grudges to the American officials involved. And never before did so many friendly nations think up or present so many protests against the government which has carried them economically and militarily, since the end of World War II.

SLEEPING—Indeed, it is understood that Secretary Acheson and Secretary Marshall are not so chummy as they once were. Time and again, in arguments before the President, the National Resources Security Board and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Mr. Acheson has had to raise diplomatic objections to the Pentagon's military proposals.

The Secretary of State, for instance, had to voice Anglo-French criticism of the military's insistence that Spain, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey be included in the North Atlantic alliance, or permitted to organize a Mediterranean coalition of their own. He had to submit United Nations members' protests against more aggressive action in Korea, especially since the Russians began to furnish MIG jets to the Chinese Communists.

It was a tremendous problem for Mr. Truman to decide between the two men, for he regards Secretary Marshall as "our greatest living American," and he has a high regard for the Secretary of State.

It may be significant as to Mr. A's future in the Cabinet that the White House is beginning to give more heed to his military advisers. It may mean that Mr. Acheson is slowly slipping.

RESENT—Another Truman favorite frequently upset by Achesonian intervention is Stuart Symington, Finance Corporation, reform head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The President has great affection for Mr. Symington because of the latter's admitted charm, and because he has done a good job on all the important assignments handed to him.

South American diplomats, as well as the British and French, bounce into Mr. Acheson's high-ceilinged office several times a week with official deprecation of the RFC's hard-bolled methods in the international markets. They are aggrieved because Mr. Symington and the military stockpilers are knocking down prices in some instances and raising them in others by heavy purchases. Among the commodities involved are tin, copper and rubber.

Mr. Acheson must also keep a careful eye on the plans and policies of the Export-Import Bank, the Economic Cooperation Administration and the Point Four Organization for the "development of backward countries." Inasmuch as their overseas operations frequently have a direct impact on our diplomatic purposes, they must clear almost all of their loans, grants and projects through him.

Naturally, they resent it when, sometimes without being able to give the ramifying reasons for his action, he has to step on their toes.

HEADACHES—President Truman could save himself and Mr. Acheson from this epidemic of internal squabbles and controversies, if he would accept the advice of many experts on government organization. They have recommended that he place non-military foreign activities within one agency under a single, strong administrator like Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson.

Then Mr. Acheson and his agents would have to deal with only one top-bracket executive. It would save time and energy for all concerned. And it would enable the Secretary of State to abandon the role of official scold. He has enough headaches and heartaches as conditions are now.

CONSOLIDATION—A plea for this kind of re-organization was recently voiced by a prominent industrialist and international expert with an intimate understanding of the problem. He is George A. Sloan, chairman of the U. S. Council of the International Chamber of Commerce. After investigating the question at Lisbon, he held the Anglo-American Press Association at Paris.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, Jr

FORT JACKSON, S. C. — As the two-weeks tour of the 3015th Reception Center continues the personnel of our unit become more and more amazed at the strides forward the Army has taken in processing inductees. Back during World War II when most of us were inducted, the operation was on such a rushed-up schedule that the job was not properly done. Now this unit here at Fort Jackson can process 1000 men a day with ease, and the men get every possible consideration.

The Army is chasing B.O. these days. During the first day of a man's processing, he is required to take a shower. He does this when he changes from civilian clothes to his first Army uniform. To accomplish this, the Army furnishes two showers for each man! The first shower has a single faucet, giving no opportunity to regulate the temperature of the water. Through research, the Army has determined that the best temperature for showering is 88 degrees. So in this first shower the man gets 88 degree water, and has no choice about it. In the second shower he may rinse himself off with whatever temperature he desires. During this series of columns I have been full of praise for the Army, and justly so, but I must emphasize that the Army still contains, through necessity, some of the things that civilians object to. You must develop discipline in the Army, and you must have regimentation. And if a new inductee isn't a man, you have to make one out of him by conditioning.

In the training companies you can see this being done. The basic training cycle is being extended from 14 to 16 weeks. The man who falls asleep during classroom sessions might find himself doing 10 push-ups in order to help him wake up. This seems rough on the surface, but you have to look at it this way: If that man goes into combat, he has to know how to take care of himself. If he's asleep in the map reading class, when the instructor is telling him how to locate himself, and later in combat he gets lost, he might also get killed because of lack of information. The Army feels that every man must have the information offered to protect himself, and to accomplish his mission. It all boils down to this: kill or be killed.

Last night we observed the operation of the infiltration course, which consists of the firing of machine guns and setting off of TNT charges as wave after wave of trainees crawl under the fire. Machine gun fire is 44 inches from the ground, over the heads of the men, and the TNT charges are protected by wire. Checking with the trainees for their reaction was interesting.

One said, "It's a great experience, sir!" Another said, "Well, I'm glad that much of this mess is over with."

There is no Jim Crow in the Army. White and Negro troops are trained together, eat and sleep together. Here at Fort Jackson everybody seem to take it for granted.

Columbia is a pretty town, overflowing with Fort Jackson's 50,000 soldiers. Over 300 more arrived yesterday for processing and training. With the new UMT bill in the mill, there may be a great many more later. And I thank you.

CO-OPERATION — Effective co-operation among individuals, business interest and government at all levels has brought about almost unbelievable changes in the map of Western North Carolina. The changes are more apparent on social and economic maps than on those portraying the physical contours. The phenomenon has been in recent years where used to flow a small mountain stream is not as remarkable as changes in the cultural life of a people. It is difficult to determine which change is cause and which is effect. It is not at all difficult to see that greater change has come to North Carolina's mountain country than to any other part of the state during the past decade, much of it within the past three or four years. Nor does it require an inspired prophet to see that further radical changes are coming. Whether progress forced cooperation or co-operation made progress is a moot question. Fact is they are moving forward together.

UTILIZATION — The superb natural resources of the area have existed for untold centuries. Nothing approaching reasonable use of these resources was attempted until a quarter century ago, and no real progress in their utilization was made for several years after that. There is a bronze plaque on Fontana Dam, biggest in the whole TVA system, stating it was built in the second world war period of 1942-48 by federal government agencies. A few miles down stream is an aluminum plaque at the Chaoah power house of Aluminum Company of America stating that this was the first hydro-electric plant on the Little Tennessee river and was built by private capital during the first world war period of 1916-19. The Chaoah project followed numerous other private capital power plants, just as Fontana followed numerous government projects. Point is it took both to bring into full utilization the power potentials of the Tennessee River basin as rapidly as there was demand for power. By way of editorial parenthetical comment it might be noted that private capital recognized the need and began development some 25 years before government made any approach to the problem. That would seem to be the accusation that private industry has lacked vision or deliberately refused to meet obligations.

RIVALRY — Right now, for example, there is threat that Buncombe county units are less interested in regional development than they are in getting the proposed super highway connecting Asheville with Tennessee routed through the French Broad valley instead of the currently favored route along the Pigeon river. Advocates of each route appealed to the Hendersonville Folks for support, and the Hendersonville chamber of commerce came up with a resolution favoring development of both roads, but taking no part in an argument between Asheville and Waynesville and other communities about exact location of the first or biggest road building project. Similar attitude is less clearly voiced but just as obvious among people of Cherokee, Clay, Graham and Swain counties—because they go into Tennessee and points north and west by a different route, anyhow. That attitude is typical of the philosophy of the organization—get the good road into western North Carolina and let somebody else fight over just where it runs.

GETTING SOMEWHERE (Greensboro Daily News) That this widespread investigation of the narcotics racket and its shocking operations over the country has already resulted in an aroused public of assuring effective counteraction is attested by the speed with which the House Ways and Means Committee has approved drastic legislation for dealing with dope peddlers. The committee measure would provide mandatory jail sentences of two to five years upon conviction of a first narcotics offense, five to 10 for a second and 10 to 20 for a third. Probation or suspended sentence would also be prohibited. Legislation such as that may truly get somewhere. In the opinion of Narcotics Commissioner Harry Anslinger this bill, if made the law of the land, would "dry up the traffic." And that is precisely what the people of America wish. They may have been indifferent to the menace but they are no longer in the light years which came of the Kefauver investigation and the series of local inquiries which the Senate probe precipitated. Such an enforcement program would serve a two fold purpose: (1) It would assure sufficient long confinement to effect a cure for those who were addicts as well. Instillation of fear of the law, a drastic law, into these racketeers would be an underlying safeguard. The only fault that the Daily News has to find with the proposed law is that it may not be drastic enough. While we recognize that some discretion must and should be left to the courts, we would caution against two widespread imposition of the minimum penalty which the new law would provide. There should be inflexibility, with a maximum punishment always decreed, where these peddlers prey upon minors and work their way into the schools to spread drug addiction, crime and tragedy as it has been established they have done in many of our urban centers. No penalty can be too severe for those who start children, teen-age boys and girls, to taking dope and to wallowing in the physical defilement and moral degradation which inevitably follows.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Many of the gamblers the Kefauver committee chased under cover are now back at their old stands. But others are operating in defense plants.

There is almost nothing like high wages and plenty of overtime to attract gamblers. And from all over the country come reports of gambling rings operating in factories, shipyards and other defense projects.

And there's almost nothing like the infiltration of professional gamblers to strike dismay into plant managements.

Because visitors are generally barred from defense plants, the professional gamblers usually take jobs. That's not hard, since most plants are hiring workers. Gamblers usually prefer jobs that permit them to get around the plants. When they can't get jobs, or the thought of work is too revolting, they often operate from soft drink stands nearby or through regular employees.

Infiltration of gamblers is tough on management. Men take bets or to get results. Quarrels develop. Quality of work declines because men concentrate on form charts instead of tools. Wives harass plant executives. Losers worry and become more susceptible to accidents and agitators.

In a Chicago electronics plant, bookies were doing an estimated $350,000 a year. The company cracked down after wives organized to get action. They blamed the management, not husbands. In a Camden shipyard, the company discovered 120 men involved in gambling. In a New York company, about 10 per cent of production time was lost because of gambling.

It's a difficult problem for management. If it investigates gambling activities, it may be accused of operating a labor spy system. Gamblers shrewdly seek shop stewards and others with union posts as runners. If they are fired there is suspicion of anti-unionism. And there's always the possibility that a gambling ring may take vengeance on an official who cuts it off from a soft, rich take.

Several unions have shown an inclination to cooperate with management. Bet-busted workers fall behind in dues, borrow from others and neglect union affairs. At the Camden shipyard, the union incedered for the 120 accused men but warned that it would make no representation for any one accused in the future. The union backed up the Chicago company when it routed gamblers.

Perhaps the best first step for management with bet troubles is

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK —(AP)— Will a new group of Lady Godivas arise to rescue the American people from high taxes?

This suggestion for cutting the rising price of government was made recently by Frank Tripp, sage of the Elmira (N. Y.) Star-Gazette.

He recalled the legendary ride of the original Lady Godiva nearly 900 years ago. As I told it, this beautiful woman came told her husband, the Lord of Coventry:

"My Lord, why have you lowered such a heavy tax boom on our pleasant peasants?"

"Because it serves them right," punned her master. "Get it, milady; it serves them right."

"Well, I don't like your manner at all," said the lady. "When are you going to give these poor people a break?"

"I'll cut their taxes the day you ride bareback through the town," scoffed old man Coventry. "Haw, haw, haw!"

Well, he knew that Lady Godiva was one of the poorest riders in the land and she would not dare try to ride a horse without a saddle.

But like any wife in any age, Lady Godiva took what her husband said, and literally.

So she put out an order for the peons to stay indoors. Then she saddled up a white horse, took off her robes and rode through Coventry adorned with nothing but her long blonde hair. One tailor, "Peeping Tom," looked out to see what all the hoofbeats were about. He was struck blind, probably by the bright sunshine.

On the way home Lady Godiva met her astounded husband, who demanded:

"Egad, and what the hell are you doing?"

"Cutting taxes," she said innocently. "And if you don't lower the rate, I'm going for another ride tomorrow. I've never had so much fun."

She went to bed with a bad case of sunburn, and the next day the peasants got the biggest tax rebate in history. Ever since then peasants figure it will happen again. And what about the heroine? Whenever she asked for a new dress, old man Coventry would say:

"Sorry, Milady, but our coffers are as bare as—as bare as you know what."

Today the House of Representatives has passed a new $7,200,000,000 tax bill, the biggest ever. Frank Tripp's idea is that 49 modern Godivas might help save the day—one to ride through Washington, D. C., and each of the 48 state capitals.

It would probably be easy enough to find the gal volunteers, but where would you find the 49 snowwhite horses? And people wouldn't expect more. They wouldn't expect to see the parade unless Lady Godiva played a guitar, or carried a rifle and shot down eggs thrown into the air and flying streamers saying, "Bring down the high cost of living."

ope, congressmen don't scare as easy as the old Lord of Coventry. They know what the average husband would say if his wife trotted bare down the stairs bound for a horseback ride to lower taxes.

"Well, for Heaven's sake," he would say, "go back upstairs and put on your hat. I don't want you to go out looking like a bum."

Then he'd go back to reading his newspaper.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Fredrica Fields, one of the few artists working entirely in stained glass, works to the unceasing accompaniment of recorded music.

Wife of Col. Kenneth Fields, former West Point half-back now with the U. S. Military Assistance Administration Group in Iran, and mother of three children, she is widely acclaimed in her field. Her fabulous modern basement studio runs half the size of her big-four-story Washington house and is completely equipped with daylight illumination.

"Stained glass designing is a virile art, as important as painting, but one has to be well-healed to take it up as an individual because of the tremendous lot of equipment and training required," she told me.

Her equipment includes a couple of thousand pounds of glass of all colors and types and sizes, many pieces of which were imported. She has a large stock of assorted sizes of lead "came," the channels in which glass is fitted to make a window. She has a kiln; an especially built table with lighted top which she uses in painting designs on the glass—and, of course, her phonograph.

"I never work without music—just stack the phonograph up with classical and semi-classical records, turn it on and let it go," she said.

Daughter of the late T. Mitchell Hastings, famous Philadelphia painter and architect, who helped rebuild Santa Barbara, Calif., after the earthquake, Mrs. Fields has had close communion with music and other arts all her life.

"I studied dancing, both modern and ballet; voice, piano, etching, pen and ink, water color and oil painting in schools in this country and during six summers spent abroad," she said.

"I work" entirely alone as an artist, free to create my own designs. I stay away from religious subjects—the only way in which "stained glass is thought of in this country. I would like to see it used in private homes, as it is used in Europe, in schools and hospitals and other places as well as in churches."

Stained glass windows may be found in practically every room of the Fields' house. Some carry out flower and bird motifs, some tell a story. Some of her work which ranges from small bullseye pieces to intricately leaded designs, have been sold, although she claims she is not ready, or even quite sure she is willing, to enter the commercial field.

Her equipment includes a couple of thousand pounds of glass of all colors and types and sizes, many pieces of which were imported. She has a large stock of assorted sizes of lead "came," the channels in which glass is fitted to make a window. She has a kiln; an especially built table with lighted top which she uses in painting designs on the glass—and, of course, her phonograph.

"I never work without music—just stack the phonograph up with classical and semi-classical records, turn it on and let it go," she said.

Daughter of the late T. Mitchell Hastings, famous Philadelphia painter and architect, who helped rebuild Santa Barbara, Calif., after the earthquake, Mrs. Fields has had close communion with music and other arts all her life.

"I studied dancing, both modern and ballet; voice, piano, etching, pen and ink, water color and oil painting in schools in this country and during six summers spent abroad," she said.

"I work" entirely alone as an artist, free to create my own designs. I stay away from religious subjects—the only way in which "stained glass is thought of in this country. I would like to see it used in private homes, as it is used in Europe, in schools and hospitals and other places as well as in churches."

Stained glass windows may be found in practically every room of the Fields' house. Some carry out flower and bird motifs, some tell a story. Some of her work which ranges from small bullseye pieces to intricately leaded designs, have been sold, although she claims she is not ready, or even quite sure she is willing, to enter the commercial field.

WASHINGTON — Fredrica Fields, one of the few artists working entirely in stained glass, works to the unceasing accompaniment of recorded music.

Wife of Col. Kenneth Fields, former West Point half-back now with the U. S. Military Assistance Administration Group in Iran, and mother of three children, she is widely acclaimed in her field. Her fabulous modern basement studio runs half the size of her big-four-story Washington house and is completely equipped with daylight illumination.

"Stained glass designing is a virile art, as important as painting, but one has to be well-healed to take it up as an individual because of the tremendous lot of equipment and training required," she told me.

Seven Scouts Awarded Badges At Honor Court

Two Greenville scouts and five Winterville scouts last night were awarded badges of rank at the Boy Scout court of honor for the Pitt district.

Byron VanWagenen of troop 36 was awarded the badge of the rank of star scout. The presentation of the badge was made by Chairman J. B. Kittrell of the Pitt district.

A badge for the rank of second class scout was presented to Van Jackson of troop 200, Winterville, by Wyatt Brown, advancement chairman for the Pitt district.

Scoutmaster Mark McGlohorn of troop 200 presented merit badge awards to four scouts from his troop, and Scoutmaster Dave Whitehead of troop 36 presented merit badge awards to two scouts from his troops.

Receiving merit badges last night were:

Troop 36: Byron VanWagenen, public health and book binding; Preston Jarvis, book binding, public health, safety, farm home and its planning.

Troop 200: Gordon Tripp, swimming; home repairs, music, cooking, woodcarving; Douglas Jackson, home repairs, beef production, horsemanship; Burt Worthington, forestry, conservation, home repairs, scholarship; Ray Jackson, forestry, conservation, home repairs.

Following the presentations of awards, Field Executive Howard Hunter showed a movie of the white and the Negro camporees held in spring, and a movie on scouting made at Camp Charles last summer.

Hunter announced that Camp Charles is now offering pioneer scouting facilities which are open to the troops of the district. He explained that scouts with adult leaders may attend Camp Charles for a week-end or as long as they like and camp in tents and prepare their own meals.

Awards Chairman H. Frank Steinbeck presided at the court of honor.

War Hero Is Too Young; Requires Court's Consent

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(UP)—Joe Hill, a 16-year-old war hero at 16, wants to get back in the service—but he will have to go to court to do it.

Hill, who enlisted in the infantry when he was 15, won the Silver Star for braving heavy fire to save four Canadian soldiers.

The Ashboro, N.C., youth was discharged after five months in Korea when officers discovered he was underage.

Both his parents are dead, so Hill asked that L. D. Huntley, Sacramento, be appointed his legal guardian so he can enlist in the Air Force when he becomes 17 on July 11.

Huntley, a telephone company worker who doubles as a scoutmaster, agreed to help Hill. The request will be heard Friday in superior court.

Sketch Of New Bank Branch Planned In Meadowbrook

A third Greenville branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company will be built in Meadowbrook with construction beginning very shortly.

It will be located on the corner of North Greene and Martin streets across the river and is being built to accommodate residents of North Greenville as well as farmers and businessmen in the surrounding area.

According to an announcement by bank president W. H. Woolard, plans for construction will be given to contractors in a few days. He stated he hopes the branch can be opened sometime in the early fall.

It will be made of brick and concrete block and will be located on a large lot in order to accommodate patrons' automobiles. The one-story building's dimensions will be 26 by 44 feet with a plate glass front shaded by a marquee on the south side.

As yet no bank officers have been named but will be named later as construction progresses. However, there will be two tellers, the president said.

On completion, the Meadowbrook building will provide the city with its third branch of the same parent bank. Besides the home office located downtown, other branches are located at the intersection of Dickerson Avenue and Pitt Street and farther out the avenue in West Ehd.

Woolard stated that construction has been delayed until now but plans are now ready for it to go ahead immediately.

J. W. Griffith, local architect, designed the building and drew up the plans and specifications.

Contracts Let, Work On Laundry Addition Starts

Contracts for the construction of an addition to the laundry at East Carolina College have been let and work on the project has begun, according to an announcement by Business Manager F. D. Duncan. The P. S. West Construction Company of Statesville will be in charge of construction. Plans were drawn by James W. Griffith, Jr., of Greenville, architect.

The addition will be built on the south side of the present laundry, says Mr. Duncan, and will be a two-story brick structure, with a red clay-tile roof matching that on the present building. The first floor will provide office space and storage facilities for finished laundry. Supplies will be kept on the second floor.

Expanding operations at the laundry, necessitated by increase in the number of students attending the college, make it desirable to release part of the present structure so that additional equipment may be installed, Mr. Duncan states. The space provided by the addition will contribute to the efficiency of work at the laundry and will enable those in charge to meet the needs of East Carolina's growing enrollment.

Parents Accustomed To Wandering Son

KANNAPOLIS—(UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Rabb Holcomb waited patiently today to welcome their 15-year-old son home from Korea, but they didn't expect him to stick around long.

They learned long ago that former Pvt. Kenneth L. Holcomb is not the stay-at-home type.

Kenneth's wanderlust began at the age of seven when he ran off to Florida. Two years later he took out for Washington, D.C. Runaway trips to California and to Texas followed at the ages of 11 and 13.

While in Texas, young Holcomb talked a recruiting sergeant into recruiting him. Six days later the army unrecruited him, after learning his real age.

Kenneth came back home, got his parents to sign enlistment papers, and put on a uniform again. He was then 14.

The youth served one month with the 2nd Infantry, Division in some of the heavier fighting in Korea before the army caught up with him again and handed him his second underage discharge.

Kenneth was undismayed. "Do you think I'll be able to come back when I'm old enough, sir?" he asked his company commander.

Kenneth's parents were undismayed, too, although a bit curious. "We don't know what he'll do next," his father said.

ZINC PENNIES BRUSHED OFF
Peter Erabier didn't like those zinc pennies that the U. S. mint turned out in 1943 as a substitute for coppers. He decided to take as many as possible out of circulation. During the past four years he has saved 15,000 and is getting ready to take them to a bank.

In a recent 12-month period the American Red Cross helped 223,400 victims of floods, fires, wrecks and other disasters.

Light Docket In Recorder's Court

Judge Dink James disposed of the lightest docket in many years in Pitt County Recorder's Court yesterday.

Attorney Horton Rountree of Farmville acted as solicitor for Charles H. Whedbee, who is on vacation.

The Pitt County Commissioners, recently appointed Rountree solicitor of the court to succeed Whedbee. Whedbee was elected at the spring primary judge of the Greenville Recorder's Court. He will be sworn in at the City Hall Monday, July 2, at 9 a.m. Superior Court Clerk David T. House will administer the oath.

In the case against John Wilks and Robert Stator, Negroes, charged with the larceny of corn from John Garris Jr., Judge James gave them 90 days each on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of court costs and they are to be of good behavior for two years.

Arthur Oakley, charged with assaulting Mrs. Nina Bell Oakley, was given 30 days in jail, suspended for two years on condition that he not molest Mrs. Oakley or enter her premises. He is to pay court costs and doctor's bill. Oakley gave notice of appeal.

Thelma Worthington, alias Marie Williams, Negro, larceny of several dresses from Mary Eppe, was given 90 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs and $6 to prosecuting witness.

Sara Ann Pierce of Craven county, charged with public drunkenness, pleaded guilty. The court gave her 30 days in jail, sentence to run concurrently with sentence given her in Craven county.

Cross-Subpoenas Issued In Fight

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—New firework subpoenas have been tossed into the battle of words between Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida and the U. S. Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The committee's summons, directing Warren to appear at Washington July 8, was served on the Governor yesterday at an undisclosed seaside vacation spot.

At the same time, it was announced that Sen. Herbert O'Connor (D-Md.), Crime Committee Chairman, had been subpoenaed to appear at Jacksonville July 2.

The writ calls for O'Connor's appearance before the solicitor to "explain certain portions of testimony he has obtained about Florida and Duval County."

Crews said he believes some parts of the testimony taken by the Senate committee during its Florida hearings were perjured.

Import Of Public Opinion Talked By Reservists

A program entitled "Public Opinion" highlighted the regular weekly session of the Greenville unit of the Naval Reserve last night.

The program, presented by Harold Rouse of Farmville, stressed the importance of public opinion in relationship to the functioning of the country, its lawmakers and other important matters.

In closing his program, Rouse stated that public opinion is the American way of life and one of the main ideals governing this nation now.

Following the program by Rouse, an information film, "The Korean Army," was shown to the reservists. At the meeting last night, John Hayes, of Durham, applied for service with the local unit by transferring.

Farmville Team Adds 'Muscle' For Tonight's Greenville Game

FARMVILLE — The team that Farmville will carry to Greenville tonight for their exhibition game is one of the more balanced squads in the Bright Belt League. New additions within the past few days have bolstered the sagging spots and they now have one of the strongest teams in the loop.

The terrific batting parade is led by former Carolina second baseman Mark Herring. Herring is hitting the white sphere at a sensational 480 clip. He is followed by William Sanderson, ECC outfielder of 1951, with 360, and Roger Thrift with 340. Thrift is an ECC gridiron great whose passing wizardry earned him a spot on the 1951 Little All-American squad.

Four high school standouts are giving the team a tremendous push. Ralph Britt, a stocky well-built catcher, came from Mt. Olive where he compiled a sensational record as a high school player. Boyd Webb and Gaither Cline, both from the 1951 state scholastic champions Gastonia High School, are two of the better hitters on the squad. Cline, who played third in school, has been switched to leftfield and has shown promise of developing into one of the best fielders in the league. Harvey Lee (Mo) Webb, local pitching star on Coach Elbert Moyer's Farmville High team, is one of the leading pitchers on the squad. The infield play is led by Pete Piestrak, former Coastal Plain star at Kinston and Greenville and with Ormondville last season. Piestrak took over the third base slot when the pro Greenville Robins folded recently.

Carl Shirley, who started the season with the Wilson Tobaccoists, is one of the better pitchers on the team. He has recorded one win against no losses since joining the club recently. Harvey Webb has chalked up a record of two wins against no defeats while saving several others in relief roles. The arrival of Gilbert Ferrell tonight is expected to bolster the weak spots on the pitching staff. Ferrell, former-ian College Bulldog.

Norman Clark is the playing manager of Farmville. Clark takes his turn on the mound and occasionally fills-in the various outfield and infield spots.

Dependable Dodger . . . . .

Going into June, Preacher Roe, the slender left-handed ace of the Dodger mound staff, boasted the impressive record of seven straight hurling triumphs without a loss. It was a flying start toward his objective—the select circle of 20-game winners. Last season the 32-year-old southpaw won 19 games, the high-water mark of his pitching career.

Roe was the Dodgers only dependable hurler in the early weeks of the campaign when Brooklyn pitchers were able to complete only five of their first 25 starts. Preacher had completed four of those five games. It was Roe's able hurling along with the Dodgers' thundering bats that kept Brook-

Exchange Wallops Lions In Lopsided 15-2 Game

The Exchangeites walloped the Lions by a one-sided margin of 15-2 yesterday. Bobby Nunn went the route for the winners and allowed but three hits while striking out 10. Ten runs in the initial stanza put the game on ice for the Exchange Club's team. Walks to Bullock, Nunn, Johnson, McArthur, and two singles by Whitehurst and a double by Duff were the features of the big explosion. Nunn and Forbes were struck by pitched balls and two errors committed by the Lion defense aided the winners in their run producing errand. Fourteen batters went to the plate in the wild and hectic inning.

Bobby Whitehurst led the winners hitting with two singles. Angus Duff collected a double.

Corneyn hurled the six inning route for the losers and gave up but six hits. His own wildness—he walked eight men—and miscues by his teammates on defense kept him constantly in trouble. The Lions committed 10 errors.

Jays Drop Tobs By Score Of 7-4

The rains came last night or only one game was reeled off in the Coastal Plain League.

Roanoke Rapids dropped Wilson by the score of 7-4 in the single contest played. Bob Gibbons went the route for the Jays and spaced seven hits effectively to chalk up his third win against four defeats.

Jay manager Smut Aderholt was ejected from the game in the seventh inning as he protested too vigorously in a flurry of words at the plate.

Bill Wollet's single was the featured blow in a game winning fifth inning rally. Four runs crossed the plates as Tob pitcher Grant, and his successor, Peterson, put five men on bases with free passes and struck another with a pitched ball. Wollet's two run singleton was the only hit recorded in the wild inning.

The New Bern-Rocky Mount and Coldsboro-Kinston contests were cancelled.

Irish Bob Murphy Fights Jake LaMotta In Stadium

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

New York —(UP)—Increasing cloudiness was forecast for tonight's fight between light heavyweight contenders Bob Murphy and Jake LaMotta at Yankee Stadium, but the weather bureau was hopeful the 12-rounder could be staged as scheduled.

Promoter Jim Norris said only a "heavy rain" would cause postponement until tomorrow night.

Norris' recent Joe Louis-Lee Savold bout, an orphan of two storms, was postponed twice and shifted into Madison Square Garden, where it nevertheless drew a gate of more than $93,000.

An advance of $70,000 for tonight's scrap between southpaw Murphy and ex-middleweight champion LaMotta indicated that the gate would approximate $200,000. Given "a break in the weather," Norris expected more than 30,000 spectators.

The winner has been promised an August title fight with light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim. The August victor must defend within 60 days against Bob Satterfield of Chicago, who already is under contract as challenger.

Boone announced this morning that right handed Jimmy Piner would probably start on the mound for the Greenies. Piner was a member of Boone's East Carolina Pirates during the past season.

Farmville has not released the name of their hurler.

Bull Hamons To Manage Leafs

ROCKY MOUNT — Bull Hamons, former Coastal Plain manager and pitcher, has returned to the league as manager of Rocky Mount's Leafs. Hamons is famous in the Coastal circle for his fire-eating actions on the playing field.

Hamons was scheduled to take over at the helm of the Leafs Sunday, succeeding Jim Mills who started the season as manager, but his arrival from his LaGrange, Ga., home was delayed until Monday.

He guided the Tarboro Tars to a Coastal Plain League pennant in 1949. He has served in managerial positions with Tobacco State and Carolina League teams.

Professional Golf Proves Golden Lure For The Girls

Oakmont, Pa. —(AP)—It's no wonder Uncle Sam's finest young female golfers are flocking to professional ranks. It's beginning to be a very lucrative business.

Beverly Hanson, the willowy United States amateur champion from Indio, Calif., Via Fargo, N. D., is the latest to hit the gold dust trail. She became a pro yesterday, at 24, and made her formal bow as a money-seeking barnstormer on the eve of the opening of the 33rd PGA championship at Oakmont.

Up to date this year, Patty Berg of Minneapolis, the leading money winner among U. S. Women pros, has cashed more checks than any of the male pros except Lloyd Mangrum and Jim Ferrier.

Patty has earned $11,700 from tournament competition compared with $13,873 for Mangrum, tops among the men, and $11,720 for Ferrier, second.

Miss Berg has made more money at golf than such luminaries as Ben Hogan ($7,900), Cary Middlecoff ($7,560) and Sam Snead, out part of the year with a hand injury ($4,262).

Second top money winner among the ladies is Babe Didrikson Zaharias with $9,487. She has won more money than any of the male stars except Mangrum and Ferrier.

RED GROUP OUTLAWED BONN, Germany —(UP)—The blue-shirted communist Free German Youth movement (FDJ) was outlawed last night by the West German government.

Young Swimmer Meets Challenge

NEW YORK —(UP)—Florence Chadwick, a streamlined San Diego sineographer, takes off for Europe today to swim the English Channel a second time and make Gertrude Ederle take back her insult.

"Ever since I was a little girl, Gertrude Ederle has been my idol," said the 32-year-old Miss Chadwick, who set a new women's record last year by swimming the channel in 13 hours and 20 minutes.

"But after I broke the record, she said I had scored a fluke victory. She said I had taken a shorter route than she did and that tide conditions were much more favorable for me than when she swam the channel in 1926. Her time was 14 hours and 31 minutes.

After six weeks of intensive training at the Grossinger Country Club, the determined, dark-haired Miss Chadwick feels she is ready to prove once and for all that Miss Ederle was talking through her water-wings.

Last time, Miss Chadwick swam the channel across the usual route—from Cape Griz Nez, France to Dover, England. This time, she will attempt to swim it the hard way, from England to France. If she is successful, she will become the first woman ever to accomplish the feat.

"I know I'll make it," she declared confidently. "It's such a challenge to me that I simply can't fail. Maybe, after I do swim the channel again even Miss Ederle will admit that my record isn't a fluke."

Five Greenville Entries Await Soap Box Derby

Greenville will be represented at the Kinston Soap Box Derby by five boys. Aubrey Hudson, Jimmy Galloway, Abner Eason, Shelley Ray Heath, and Charles Tate Pender have all registered for the event.

All of the entries except Galloway are 12 years of age. He is 11. Eason is the only member of the quintet to have participated in the races previously. He was among last year's drivers and ran two races before being eliminated.

The derby will be held on Queen Street hill in Kinston on July 1st. Proceedings are slated to get underway at 2 p.m.

ISSUE LONG DEAD RENICK, W. Va. —(UP)—An age-old election platform failed to produce the desired results at a municipal election here. The main plank of the losing platform was based on "no cows in the street."

Where Have You Been all its Life ?

THIS ad is addressed to the fellow known as "the man on the street." From that vantage point, you must have noticed that a lot of folks are driving 1951 Buicks.

You must have noted that you can spot one of these beauties—by its sparkling forefront—its gleaming fender ports—(three for the SPECIAL and SUPER, four for the ROADMASTER)—and by its fluent grace of lines and contours.

You've probably noticed, also, that these Buicks give a good account of themselves in traffic—ease to a gentle stop—get away to a nimble start when the light says, "Go."

You may even have noticed that these cars have a level-gaited stride that traces, as we've said before, to the fact that each wheel rides beneath its own coil spring.

But what we'd like to know is—when are you going to try one?

It's about time you climbed in the driver's seat.

It's about time that you sensed for yourself the thrill that comes from feeling your shoulders sink back in the cushions, when your toe gives the gas treadle a gentle nudge.

It's about time for you to be on the receiving end of those admiring glances which are the due of folks smart enough to pick the smart buy of the year.

What's holding you back? It can't be prices—for as you can see for yourself, you can own a SPECIAL for less than the price of some sixes—and SUPERS or ROADMASTERS are just as smart a buy in their fields.

So why not end the suspense? The welcome mat is out at our showrooms. We hope to greet you soon.

Chapter 24
Sundemann looked a shade perplexed. "All these questions. This cross-examination about Arents!" Jigger said warmly, "I ask you misad price is met by somebody, and twice in a week!

Sundemann looked alarmed by the outburst. A hand flew to his breast and his eyes searched Jigger's face. "So?—Is something wrong?" he asked anxiously.
"Something is," Jigger said grimly.
"What could be?—My God, what!" Sundemann's brow furrowed intensely for a long moment. "What could be wrong! The man paints, and I sell what he paints. Whoever buys, buys with his eyes open."
Jigger said, "I'm sorry to harry you like this. But the fact is: Arents is in trouble, serious trouble involving the police." He waited watchfully until his remark had plainly played hob with the dealer's imagination. "Don't really involve yourself by asking the nature of Arents' fix. Just answer my questions as simply and as truthfully as you can." Jigger shrewdly delayed for another moment until Sundemann seemed sufficiently shaken to submit meekly to examination.
"How well do you know Arents?"
"Except to stand for his craziness, believe me I don't know him."
"But you've been exhibiting him for how long?"
"Six, maybe eight months."
"Did any paintings sell during all that time; I mean, excepting the two you mentioned?"
The dealer shook his head.
"How were Arents' paintings priced during those earlier months?"
There was an instinctive hesitation, as if the point were a nail threatening his flesh. Sundemann said almost inaudibly, "Two hundred and fifty. Sometimes $400."
Jigger drove the nail in. "How then did you justify the sudden $2500 prices to yourself?"
Sundemann didn't attempt to reply. He shook his head dolefully, in an almost naive acceptance of guilt. Jigger asked, "Did you know the model who posed for Arents' 'Nude of the Inner Eye'?"
"You've got it hanging out there."
The dealer's blank look denied knowledge of the model, and Jigger prompted. "She was a brunette named Sally Woods, who lived with Arents, as his mistress, about a year ago."
Sundemann said with some fervor, "Please, you must believe me. Arents' work, I know. His personal life, I don't know, and I positively don't want to know."
Jigger said, "Now tell me, who made those $2500 purchases?"
Sundemann worked his hands

nervously. "That you must know?"
"Yes, I must know."
Sundemann looked into Jigger's face unhappily. A moment of inner warfare was expressed in his face. The dealer was plainly a man of some integrity, and a man who made a creed and superstition both of shunning all things irregular. He said, "M. Merle Leighton—he bought two of Arents' paintings."
There was a brief delay in reaction, and then Jigger's mouth fell open. "Leighton? Not the radio Leighton, the radio advisor of the leveler?"
Sundemann nodded affirmation gloomily.
Jigger fingered memory files, plucking remembered news and magazine publicity, blurs in col-

ty, and a gilded heiress.
Jigger said, "Nevertheless, it happens. Murder mixes with success as easily as with failure. Besides, your portrait of Leighton is as phony as a paid testimonial. The man's a Class A fraud. He runs what practically amounts to a clinic with fewer qualifications for the job than the corner barber."
Jigger quickened his stride purposefully and Red hurried along beside him. "You're not going to pay Leighton a call this late?" Red objected.
It was far past ten o'clock. The lights in shop windows were going out in dwellings, shades were drawn. It was too late for a pedestrian detective to presume vis-a-vis a name celebrity of Merle Leighton's weight.
Jigger came to a stop. "Tomorrow then, bright and early. I'll tackle Leighton alone; while you have a look in at Bellevue. See how fares our friend with the traumatic amnesia. He may yet be useful."
"You mean, when and if he has a memory?"
Jigger nodded distractedly. He was tense all through him, impatient with the hour, impatient for movement. The late hour was a chain he would have to drag until morning.

ums, feature vignettes in the Sunday supplements. Merle Leighton, radio oracle to whose program an army of advise searchers came; Leighton, a golden voice in the Nation's ear every Friday night at 9:30; Leighton, the Great White Father to the sick, the disillusioned, and the maladjusted. The man was a lay priest, a self-styled sociologist and a charlatan on everybody's tongue across the land—The man was more publicized than the President.
Impossible, Jigger told himself cautiously. Impossible that a man of Leighton's size could be involved with Eric Arents or Sally Woods. Impossible. But Jigger's mind kept stirring as thoughts began to mill and clamor. The other man, the final lover described in Sally Woods' quasi-autobiographic writings; the anchorage to whom she had brought her total surrender—Could it be Leighton; could it? Strong Leighton, strong as this last lover had to be. Wise Leighton too, so wise a man; the wisdom and the man, and a girl driven to find a one man who could at once be counselor, father, and lover.
Jigger nodded to himself. It was possible, yes. Leighton, the lover of Susan Hunter alias Sally Woods; Leighton paying ransom for Eric Arents' silence. And now a note recalled itself to Jigger; the note he had filched out of a letter-box: "S.W. Back Later. M. M—Merle; Merle Leighton!"
Was the chronology complete?—Jigger fought down a rise of excitement.
On the street, Red was inclined to pooh-pooh. "If it's hush money for something, why such an elaborate deal—Why not a straight transfer of cash?"
Jigger was silent, then said equivocally, "the form of blackmail doesn't alter the fact of it." He flashed a look of irritation at Red. "Why are you so skeptical all of a sudden?"
Red grinned feebly. "Maybe because what you're thinking about Merle Leighton scares me. The guy's rich, a national figure sort of, and a pillar of society. You're forgetting that Leighton's married, well married too."
Jigger nodded, reminiscently. Newspaper copy like a hall of con-fetti had celebrated the marriage of Merle Leighton to Odette Britton, photogenic and barely twenty, and a gilded heiress.

Jigger said, "Nevertheless, it happens. Murder mixes with success as easily as with failure. Besides, your portrait of Leighton is as phony as a paid testimonial. The man's a Class A fraud. He runs what practically amounts to a clinic with fewer qualifications for the job than the corner barber."

Annual Laymen's Retreat Success

The second annual Laymen's Retreat for men in the Disciple of Christ churches in North Carolina enjoyed a week-end of fun, fellowship, and inspiration during the past week-end on the campus of Atlantic Christian College according to a statement released to day by Sam D. Bundy, state president. Registration was on Saturday from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. and was then followed by an hour of fellowship. From 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. a tour of the campus and buildings was conducted by President D. Ray Lindley.

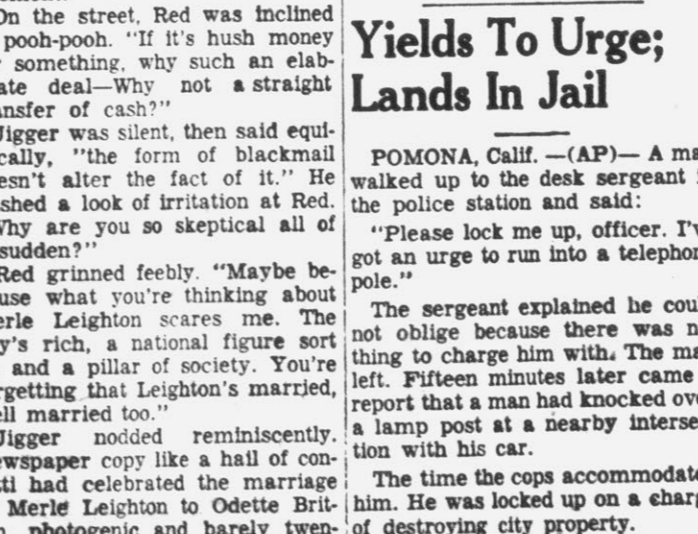

At the Saturday night session the Vesper Service was conducted by the showing of slides portraying a program of men's work to be carried on by the men in the church. Also, a period of group singing led by Clarence Mangum of Durham and accompanied by N.C. Maenhout of Farmville was enjoyed.

At the Sunday session the regular Sunday School Lesson was taught by L. W. Hadden, state vice president of the Laymen's League, and at this session the Men's Bible Class of the Wilson Christian Church met jointly with the men from all parts of the state.

At the regular morning worship period the message was brought by E. L. Leonard, president of the Winston Salem Laymen's League. Friendship circles were led by C.W. Riggs of Lenoir and T. P. Inabnet of Wilson. 103 men registered for the Retreat and 20 churches were represented. This was an increase of 38 men over last year's 65 registration.

Hire Librarians As Muffin Biters For Exhibition

LONDON —(AP)—Two London librarians have become muffin biters to Sherlock Holmes. Their duties take them to a Sherlock Holmes exhibition organized as part of the Festival of Britain on the site of 221B Baker Street, storied residence of the sleuth and Doctor Watson.

Many visitors to the exhibition took exception to pieces of half-eaten buttered toast which lay on the tea plates, presumably by Holmes and Watson when called out on an urgent case. The toast was all wrong. Favorite tea of Holmes and his assistant was toasted muffins.

Muffins were a problem to the organizers—British bakers usually make them only in winter. Finally a supply was found at St. Albans, 20 miles outside London. So the two librarians have been given their instructions—to bite a piece out of the muffins each day, as they come fresh from the baker.

First Blossom?

The season's first blossom on the county cotton crop was reported yesterday by W. B. Crawford of Ballard's Crossroads community.
Crawford's tenant, James Williams, has had blossoms in profuse numbers since the weekend, he said. Williams this year is growing 13 acres, whereas last year, when cotton quotas were in effect, he grew eight and a half.
Crawford reported no boll weevils in the field, either. His tenant planted his crop early in April and has been treating for the weevil during recent weeks.

Workshops And Conferences At College Keep Dr. Messick Busy

PRESIDENT J. D. Messick of East Carolina College was a busy man at the opening sessions of the workshop on "The Home and Family Life," that on "Supervision of Instruction," and the conference on Business Education this week. At nine o'clock Monday he spoke on the "Importance of the Home, the School, the Church, and the Community in Building Children into Citizens of Tomorrow."

Dr. Messick stated that no agency could do the job singly, but with all working together the child could be guided into a citizen that would hold true to the heritage that strong, stalwart pioneers have made possible in our great democratic environment. The child must have a sense of belonging, of knowing that he is wanted and appreciated in his environment, but at the same time have the realization that there are red and green lights which must be recognized and by which he must control himself, Messick declared.

At nine-thirty Dr. Messick told the Business Education group that in order for the American economic way of life to continue capital and labor must both be encouraged. Either without the other is impossible, he reminded, and with the oppression of either Democracy's way of life would fail. He added that if labor continues its demands, and if taxes become too burdensome, capital will lose its incentive for initiative and motivation, which may be the beginning of the fall of the superstructure upon which the economy of this Country is built. He added that no one is as critical of labor as those who have never worked. No one is as critical of management as those who are supercilious toward saving as those who have yet to learn how hard it is to save money and to invest it properly. He urged teamwork and complete cooperation between management and labor in all endeavor, including ownership.

When Dr. Messick addressed the supervisors at ten o'clock he said that the deepening and broadening experiences of the children in a way that would assure consistent growth toward mental, physical, aesthetic, spiritual, and social maturity were the end product of all instruction. Love for children was the first prerequisite. Good supervision, he stated, would include care for one's fellowman, kindness or the common touch, shrewdness, prudence, courage, sense of timing, circumspection, ability to select the proper aids, a splendid but not arbitrary philosophy, and humility.

According to Dr. Messick a supervisor should be known as a helping-teacher who works not as a superior but as an individual who is ever ready to listen and help with whatever problem is necessary. He said that the supervisor would work with, guide, motivate, help to locate new trails, and have an ever ready ear to the needs of the community, the school pupil, teacher, administrator, and all other personnel. He is definitely opposed to the idea of teachers being rated by the supervisor. "To do that," he stated, "would bring distrust, cleavage, and prevent the functional operation of the supervisor in an environment of understanding, encouragement, appreciation, helpfulness, and sincere friendship."

The Quiet Type

HOLLYWOOD — (AP)—The noisy, harum-scarum, slambang Betty Hutton you see on the screen is, in reality, the quiet type at home.

Oh yes she is! She's as quiet as a mouse.

There's a reason. Betty can't talk because she's recuperating from an operation for corns on her vocal cords. She's been yelling so loudly for so many years that the cords acquired some nodes in the process of vibrating.

Betty's two small children, Lindsay and Candice, are in the enviable spot of having a mother who is speechless, temporarily at least. Writing instructions for them on a slate wouldn't help because they're too small to read.

Urge Continued FTA Program

Members of the Robert H. Wright Chapter of the Future Teachers of America at East Carolina College held Monday evening, June 25, their first meeting during a summer session in the history of the college. The large number of members attending the college at present and interest in carrying on chapter activities throughout the school year called for a continuation of the year's program during the summer term.

R. Bertrude Watts of Whiteville, vice president, was in charge of the meeting, and Roberta Hall of Steadman acted as program chairman. Christine and Pauline Blacklock of Timberlake were chairmen of the social committee, and assisted Emma L. Hooper, faculty sponsor, and Carolyn Howerton of Woodsdale as hostesses during a social hour.

Five new members were accepted as members of the organization. They are Martha McKenzie, Greenville; Isabella O'Neal, Whiteville; Betty Margaret Morris, Franklinton; and Jean Beddingfield, Zebulon.

Participants in the program for the evening were Margaret Ann Hawthorne, St. Pauls; Naomi Bobbitt, Creedmoor; Mona Watts, Whiteville; and Carl Willis, Wilmington.

Cancer Victim Breaks Romance With Her Sailor

ATLANTA — (UP)— Brunette Betty Thompson, who is dying with cancer, finished breaking off her romance with sailor Tom Amburn today because their engagement had upset his sailing mother.

The curly-haired bluejacket had already announced after a brief visit with his mother in Sioux Falls, S.D., that the wedding was "indefinitely postponed."

Betty made it definite by breaking the engagement. She did so without bitterness toward young Amburn or his family and with hope "this may help Tom's mother's health."

"I don't want anyone to criticize Tom, for I know that there was a lot to consider in his case," the 18-year-old beauty said. "... I certainly wish him well."

Russian Jeep Is Aid To Marines

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA — (AP)— "Marine Corps Jeep No. 0001" was made in Russia. Three Marines found the jeep in a rice paddy and decided to fix it up.

Principals Of 'Dance Fantasy'

Pittman Corry and Karen Conrad (shown above) will be principals in "Dance Fantasy," to be presented by the Entertainment Committee of East Carolina College Thursday evening of this week, June 28, at 8 o'clock in the College Theatre.

The varied program for Thursday will include the classical ballet, demonstrated in the miniature ballet "Nutcracker Suite" and the famous "Pas de Deux" from "Swan Lake." Dance pantomime will be interpreted in "Shadrach, Meshak, Abednego" and "Three Blind Mice." A ballroom exhibition by Corry and Conrad, as well as tap dancing and other types, will contribute to the diversity of the entertainment.

Artists also appearing on the program will be Marilyn Vance, dance soloist, and Rolland Tomlinson, pianist.

"Dance Fantasy" has been described as the type of entertainment which is appreciated by students of the dance and, at the same time, enjoyed by the "man on the street." There will be no admission charge to the entertainment, and the public is invited to attend by the Entertainment Committee.

Korea Almost Destroyed By Frightful Price Of Conflict

pondent's first-hand impression, after a long tour of duty at the various fronts, of what the war has done to Korea.

By JOE QUINN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ENROUTE FROM KOREA — (UP)— I left battle-wrecked Korea with sorrow for its unhappy people, admiration for the gallant United Nations soldiers, sailors and airmen fighting there, and an uneasy feeling that I had seen a nation being destroyed.

"I'll always remember ancient Korea, "the land of morning freshness," often vandalized by war since it came into being 24 centuries before the birth of Christ.

Once it was blessed with 300 years of uninterrupted peace. Now it has become the first battlefield in the struggle to keep Communism from ruining the world.

There the people are paying a frightful price for human liberty. As I boarded a plane at 8th Army headquarters for the trip to the U. S. A. I thought most about the small undernourished waifs I had passed on my last jeep trip from the battle front.

Not many children laugh in Korea today. Those lucky enough to have been adopted by GIs longing for their own boys and girls are sheltered, clothed and fed. They play on seesaws and swings and fly kites in school yards turned into military command posts. They go fishing and swimming with men who treat them like sons and little brothers.

About 15,000 war orphans have been moved to island sanctuaries where they will have a chance to grow up without the scars of battle. Thousands more have been taken into temporary orphanages established far south in the country, away from the danger of combat.

Tens of thousands more from 3 to 15 years of age are just weary wanderers with no place to eat or sleep, no chance for comfort and safety, no one to mend their bruised and disease-racked bodies. These live in cellars and caves and abandoned homes, prowling half-naked through the streets and down the highways, stealing, begging and coming to stay alive.

The generation of Koreans that the end of the World War II promised freedom and opportunities denied their parents has become the most hopeless in the nation's 4,000 year old history.

If peace came tomorrow and the world united in maximum aid to the ravished country, hardly any of the children growing up could regain in their lifetime what the Communist invasion robbed them of.

The ministry of social affairs officially lists South Korea's civilian casualties as: 170,837 killed, 140,692 invalided, 157,925 missing, 1,094,642 in displaced persons camps and 2,554,829 homeless. These figures represent only those reported to government authorities. Officials believe less than half the actual toll has been recorded.

Seoul, the capital since 100 years before America was discovered, where 1,446,019 persons lived when the Reds roared across the 38th parallel on June 25, 1950, has been looted and burned in five separate bloody battles within nine months. Less than 100,000 civilians, mostly dependent old men and women and tiny orphans, live in Seoul now. These have no source of food and water except what they can beg or steal from the military.

Great Increase In Road Building Costs Apparent

RALEIGH (UP)- The State Highway Commission saw "the greatest indication of a general increase in prices noted in a number of years" today as it announced that low bids on 34 highway projects were nearly $468,000 above expectations.

The 34 projects cover 186 miles of road work in 32 counties. The total cost of the low bids amounted to $3,551,767.

W. H. Rogers Jr. state highway engineer, said rising costs and scarcity of materials and workers were reflected in the bids. He said he would recommend that fewer projects be offered in future lettings unless competitive bidding improves.

Luciano Said 'Kingpin' Of U.S. Drug Traffic

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A federal narcotics agent told the Senate crime committee today that Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported vice overlord, is "the king pin" of the drug traffic in the United States and Italy.

The agent, Charles Siragusa, swore he has evidence that Luciano, operating from Italy, has gunmen in the United States who enforce his orders, and that Luciano's profits are delivered to him by international messengers.

Luciano, former gang leader in New York, was deported to Italy in 1946 after being released from prison.

Siragusa testified as the leadoff witness at the committee's second day session in its televised probe of dope peddling. At a spectacular session yesterday, drug addicts and others gave the senators a bitter account of how dope peddlers ensnare children to the habit.

Siragusa said he would recommend tougher laws and tougher sentences to punish the drug peddler, and cancellation of the citizenship of naturalized citizens who, he charged, are among "big shots" in the traffic.

His testimony drew from Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) an outburst that "the time of being so naive in our foreign relations is past." He said this government, sending huge sums in foreign aid to Italy, should insist that the Italian government act more drastically to shut off the flow of contraband heroin to this country.

Funeral Thursday For Ben. J. Skinner

FARMVILLE — Benjamin Jessie Skinner, Sr., 78, died Tuesday afternoon after several years of declining health. He was the son of the late William Henry and Josephine Jenkins Skinner and spent his entire life in Pitt County. He was a member of Farmville Christian Church, a charter member of the Junior Order here, and from 1918-1924 he was postmaster of Farmville. Later he was a Civil Service clerk in the postoffice.

Funeral rites will be conducted from Farmville Funeral Home Thursday at 10:30 a. m. by the Rev. Z. B. T. Cox, Christian minister. Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery here.

Surviving are one daughter, Ruth J. Skinner, Wilmington, five sons, Lester C. of Norfolk, Hugh C. of Chula Vista, Calif., Henry L. of Wilson, B. J. of Lawrenceville, Va., William of the home; two foster daughters, Mrs. R. C. McClary, of Raleigh, Lela Williams of the home; two sisters, Mrs. C. L. Jones and Letha Skinner of near Farmville; three brothers, J. C. of Norfolk, Ned of Ayden and W. H. Skinner, Greenville.

Presented Cup

Cornelia Grace Randolph was presented a cup as an award in recognition of 12 years perfect attendance at the Belvoir-Falkland School.

Since the beginning of her school days, she has not been absent from classes at any time and has been active in extracurricular activities. She has taken part in the Future Home makers of America, science club, 4-H club, monogram club, played on the basketball team and served on the school annual staff.

Ola Forrest, principal of the Belvoir-Falkland School, commented on Miss Randolph's record by saying: "It is a real pleasure to teach students like Cornelia for their presence in school allows them to stay up with classwork and enables the entire class to make more progress in the school instructional program. Cornelia has set an example that should be considered by the student and his parents from the time he enters the first grade until his 12th year is completed."

Miss Randolph is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Randolph of the Belvoir community.

Point today at 3 p. m. by the Rev. L. B. Manning. Burial was in Queen Anne Cemetery, Fountain.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mollie Moore; three sisters, rs. Joe Thigpin and Mrs. Cora Jones of Fountain, Mrs. Mary Wooten, Wilson County; two brothers, Robert of Fountain and Charlie Owens, of Walstonburg.

Tornado Lashes Town In Kansas

WAKEENEY, Kan. — (UP) — A tornado roared out of the midnight darkness early today, leveled six blocks in a residential district here and three persons were killed and at least 60 injured.

Halfway across the state at Lawrence, emergency crews were rushed in to bolster weakening levees along the Kansas River as rain-swollen streams poured out of their banks in the northeast section of Kansas.

Gov. Edward Farn ordered Red Cross and National Guard units from nearby Hays to report immediately to Wakeeney. All wire communication with the city was ripped out by the twister.

Tornado victims filled the 36-bed Wakeeney Hospital and some had to be cared for in the institution's hallways.

The scene was described as "one of utter destruction." Witnesses said the violent winds struck shortly after midnight and the first warning was the tremendous roar of the twister as it struck the sleeping city.

The tail end of the tornado dipped down at Hays, but relatively light damage was reported there. No one was injured.

However, heavy rains, thunderstorms and winds up to 68 miles an hour hit north-central and north-west Kansas.

May Have Been Buying Back His Stolen Corn

BETHEL — The possibility of an out-the-back-window-in-the-front-door sale of stolen corn was open to conjecture here today.

Larry N. James, owner of a corn mill here, said he couldn't say for sure whether he had been re-buying corn that was stolen from the mill during the past several weeks.

He may have, he said. Monday night, sheriff's deputies and police chief Walter Gray arrested two youths in Martin County who confessed they had taken 25 bags of shelled corn from James' mill ten days ago. However, the officers didn't ask them if they had attempted to sell it back to the owner afterwards.

James reported the boys took the corn out the back window and hauled it off, marking the first time he had had that much corn stolen from him. He said there is no way to sack it for inventory purposes, making a correct check on the "bogus" sale impossible.

It was learned from sheriff Ruel Tyson today that Elton Taylor, one of the boys who allegedly helped haul away the corn, has not been apprehended.

Arrest Suspect In Night Entry

Greenville police last night arrested Harry Lee Jones, 19-year-old youth of the Grifton community, on the charge of breaking, entering and larceny.

Bill Drum, owner of Drum's Hatchery, West End Circle, testified in Police Court today that when he went back to his store last night he suspected some person was in the building. He went next door and phoned police.

When the trespasser had left the building, Police, working on a slender clue, used bloodhounds from the State Prison Camp near here. The dogs last the trail on the Winterville highway.

Policemen J. E. Mills and M. J. Cole, working on a "hunch," they said, went to the open air theater. They picked up Jones, who was nearby, thumbing a ride from passing motorists.

Police charged Jones with breaking and entering and the larceny of a pocketbook containing $5. They said they found a key to Drum's store in Jones' shoe.

In Police Court today, Judge J. W. H. Roberts found probable cause, and bound Jones over to Superior Court under $500 bail.

Will Collect In Husband's Death

ALBANY, N.Y. — (UP) — A Philadelphia woman will collect $23,921 from the state of New York for the death of her diabetic son in Green Haven prison where he was serving a term for manslaughter.

The state court of claims returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Helen M. Dahl after records showed Green Haven had no insulin supply on Oct. 24, 1949, when Walter H. Dahl Jr. was admitted.

The Allies' work will just be starting because then they will have to thrash out their problems. Communism speaks with one voice; the free world with many. And, after all, freedom to speak your mind is one of the issues over which this war is being fought.

Penalties Due July 1 On Privilege Licenses Not Yet Applied For

Beginning July 1, penalties will be due on all state privilege licenses issued by the Department of Internal Revenue.

The penalty must be paid by everyone who has not applied for a privilege license for the revenue year of June 1, 1951, to May 31, 1952.

Ronald E. Mintz, deputy collector for Pitt and Greene Counties, advises that this penalty will be five percent per month for each delinquent month. He urges all taxpayers to file their applications for licenses immediately in order to avoid paying the penalty.

Applications for licenses should be mailed to the local Internal Revenue office, Box 466.

NOT MUCH LEFT SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP) — Earl Murray had to look twice before he was convinced the police had found his stolen car. The thieves had removed the motor, the four wheels, the hood, battery, generator, and had completely cleaned out the interior.

Grant Last Plea Of Dying Youth

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Elmer Billy, 22, had his last wish in life—the chance to see his mother again and then die.

Stricken with leukemia, young Billy pleaded with authorities at White Hill Industrial School near Harrisburg, where he had been sent two years ago for armed robbery, for "just one more look" at his aged mother.

His request was granted and he was brought to Pittsburgh in an oxygen-equipped ambulance. Billy said he knew he didn't have long to live and that it was impossible for his mother, Mrs. Catherine Billy, to make the trip to White Hill because "she's too poor."

Yesterday, the World War II veteran of 32-months service in the Marine Corps died in a Pittsburgh hospital. His mother was at his bedside.

Demonstration On Milk Usage Given HD Club

Peggy Joyner and Shirley Garris, a 4-H dairy foods team, gave a demonstration on milk and its uses at the regular meeting of the Sweet Gum Grove Home Demonstration Club.

Preceding the demonstration, Mrs. D. N. Nobles gave a short devotional, followed by the club's business meeting. Ann Parker, home demonstration agent, gave another demonstration for the club.

Nineteen members and five visitors were present at the meeting. Visitors were Mrs. Claude Barnhill, Mrs. Alton Wise, Nanette Whitehurst, Peggy Joyner, and Shirley Garris.

At the conclusion of the recreation period, the hostess served refreshments.

Last Rites Today For Huddie C. Owens

FARMVILLE—Huddie C. Owens, 57, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital early Tuesday after a stroke. He was born and spent most of his life in Pitt County. He was a member of Ashland Grove Free Will Baptist Church. Funeral rites were conducted from the home in Sharp

Ladies Night Is Held Friday By WOW In Bethel

BETHEL — Approximately 175 people attended ladies night of Camp 1071, Woodmen of the World held here Friday night at the Rotary building.

Staton P. Williams of Asheboro was guest speaker at the meeting, and in his address discussed the principal purposes of the organization.

H. A. Melvin, assistant state manager of the Woodmen of the World also made a short talk at the meeting.

W. A. Dunning, financial secretary of the local camp, welcomed the members and the guests to the meeting, and expressed his appreciation to the members of the camp for making the meeting a success.

Bob Martin of Bethel returned thanks before the meal, and the Rev. D. W. Alexander of Bethel made a short talk, and gave the benediction at the conclusion of the meeting.

A dinner of chicken and barbecue was served those attending the affair.

Objects To Diet Of Raw Meat

CHICAGO — (UP) — Mrs. Josephine DeFranza, 36, accused her husband of feeding their eight-year-old son raw meat in an attempt to make him an intellectual superman.

She won a divorce yesterday after accusing her husband, Dominick, of assigning the boy problems like how much is 435,621,789 times 1,234,567.

As a reward for the right answers, the boy got a dish of raw meat as "brain food," she said, and when he couldn't eat it "my husband 'orced him to crouch in a corner for an hour."

JUST LIKE MONEY IN THE BANK!

A General Electric Home Freezer is a food bank that will pay you a handsome rate of interest! This is how:

Instead of paying a high price for a sliver of steak or a patty of hamburger every day — you buy only when you get a "break" on meat prices — as during a sale!

You buy your fruits and vegetables in season when prices are lowest, and quality highest.

Then you just bank your food in your General Electric Home Freezer and enjoy it day after day, when most other folks have to pay high prices for the same food.

You'll be amazed how your investment pays off for you when you own a General Electric Home Freezer! And imagine the convenience of having one right in your home! Why not stop in to see us?
