Premier Of Iran 'Confident' U. S. Will Support His Gov't Program

No Hint Of Compromise As British Exodus Endangers Flow Of Oil

TEHRAN (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadeq in a personal letter today to President Truman expressed confidence the United States would support Iran's Nationalization program.

The letter contained no hint of a compromise, nor did it make any reference to rumors that Mr. Truman might be asked to assume the role of mediator.

Mossadeq blamed the British for threatening to shut down the flow of Iranian oil to the west.

The letter was made public shortly after Iran sent a formal protest to neighboring Iraq for permitting the British cruiser Martius to enter Iraq River waters near the Iranian oil center of Abadan.

Iran said the presence of the cruiser and British troops in Iraq was a breach of the Iranian-Iraq Friendship Pact. British troops are in Iraq under treaty arrangements.

The letter to Mr. Truman said the Anglo-Iranian Company must be responsible if the Abadan refinery closes down.

The Premier charged that AIOC has resorted to "certain actions which will necessarily cause a stoppage in the exportation of oil they are encouraging the employees to leave their services and are threatening the government with their resignation en masse. They force oil tankers to refuse to deliver receipts to the present board of directors of the National Oil Company.

There had been hopes in western quarters that Mossadeq might have shown some willingness to negotiate the dispute. These hopes were expressed by the U. S. Secretary of State, Dean Acheson called for interim talks in order to keep the oil flowing to the west.

But Mossadeq's letter seemed to make it clear that Iran will insist on the bitter end on carrying out her nationalization law to the letter.

Mossadeq recalled his offer to pay British technicians the same wages as they get from AIOC. He added:

"Although the Iranian people have prepared themselves for every kind of privations in resolve to achieve their aim, there is no doubt that the stoppage in the exploitation of the oil machinery is not only damaging to us but it is also damaging to Britain and to all other countries which use Iranian oil—a grave and serious matter which should be borne in mind by the authorities of the former oil company."

Five others received jail sentences ranging from eight to 14 years.

The archbishop, Hungary's highest ranking Catholic church dignitary since Cardinal Mindszenty was sent to prison for life in a similar trial in 1949, had confessed publicly in court to illegal activities.

Backed up by the U. S. Air Force and with United Nations ships firmly in control of the Korean coasts, it is prepared to deal out punishment indefinitely.

The stalemate that would follow repulse of the big Red offensive might last for several months. Then the Truman-MacArthur controversy would break out all over again. The MacArthur supporters would argue that the last reason for refraining from all-out war now had vanished. Their program probably would be to issue a new call for troops from all U. N. nations involved in Korea and attempt to build up an army big enough to deal a knockout blow to the Red Chinese.

The position of the Truman adherents probably would be determined by what was going on in other parts of the world. If Russia was making threatening gestures in Europe, for instance, the argument probably would be that we should leave a holding force in Korea and concentrate on the new area of crisis. If all these

There isn't much doubt that the Red army would take a licking no matter how strong a punch they threw. In the last six months the United Nations army has become a highly professional outfit. Man for man it probably is the best fighting force in the world today and much the best equipped.

Principals In Dedication Ceremonies

Legion Hut Dedicated By Robersonville Post

Robersonville — Old rifles are never discarded, they just come back. That's what Thomas Ward thought when he joined the local American Legion post.

In April of 1943, Ward was wounded in North Africa at Kasserine Pass. He was sent to a hospital and later discharged. When he returned home to Robersonville, he joined the local American Legion Post.

In a group of rifles that were sent to the post from the Ordnance Department, a 1903 30-caliber Springfield rifle was assigned to Ward. On close examination, Ward noted the serial number, 1323505, and discovered the rifle was the same one he was carrying when he was wounded in Africa.

The main event of the program was the presentation of a flag to the mother of the man who died in battle during the second World War and for whom the hut is named. The presentation was made by J. H. Rose of Greenville, past department commander.

In his dedication address, Rose pointed out, "The mention of God runs through the sacred documents of our political history, therefore when we today think about a re-education of ourselves to God and Country we are merely carrying on the great tradition of our country."

Keel recognized some local and out-of-town guests and introduced D. M. Hardison, post commander, Rev. Grover Everett, post chaplain, gave the invocation.

The color bearers and color guards of the post officiated at the flag-raising ceremonies. Rose was introduced to the spectators by H. L. Swain of Williamston, past district commander, who presented him as a man who was devoting his life to the training and advancement of youth. Acceptance of the presentation of the flag to Mrs. Gargile was made by J. R. Winslow of Williamston, first commander.

Following the ceremonies a parade formed at the hut grounds and marched through town. A part of the parade was made up of band members from Edwards Military Institute, who also furnished music.

Although the date for the August event has not been established yet, pending announcement of the opening of the tobacco market, a tentative schedule of activities for the day will be mapped out. The date will be named early next week, Powell said.

Eleven bound volumes of Coolidge's comments, turned over to Forbes Library, show he held news conferences twice a week to give reporters background information and to permit them to submit written questions.

The 1821 typewritten pages provide for the first time a word-by-word record of Coolidge's opinions on important issues during his administration.

The board of aldermen will hold its last meeting of the fiscal year tonight at the city hall. Meeting time is eight o'clock.

According to a statement by Mayor W. S. Stafford, no particular business is scheduled for the board's approval.

Russia Proposes Cease-Fire Parley Be Conducted By Field Commanders

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(AP)—Moscow announced today it has given the United States a clarification of the Soviet proposal for a Korean cease-fire.

Just what the clarification was, the Moscow Foreign Office did not say, but Washington reports said the Russians told the U. S. that moves toward a cease-fire should take the form of military negotiations between the North Korean and U. N. field commanders.

The indications are that the Soviet Union wants to deal directly with the United States in this matter, by-passing the United Nations, and apparently the representatives of the nations fighting with the U. S. in Korea are willing, at least in the preliminary stages.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, acting for the ailing Foreign Minister A. Y. Vishinsky, gave U. S. Ambassador Kirk yesterday "explanations of the questions he asked," the Soviet ministry announced. Kirk sent the word on to Washington and informally told the British and French about the clarification, a Moscow dispatch said.

Negotiations between the North Koreans and the U. N. command in the field would leave out the Chinese Communists in cease-fire dickering. The possibility is being discussed here that Russia is seeking a way of saving face for the Chinese. Moscow and Peking have insisted that the Chinese fighting in Korea are volunteers. Thus if the North Koreans accepted a cease-fire, the volunteers could go home, and "face," important in the Orient, would be saved for the Chinese and the Russians, too.

The belief was growing in U. N. circles that Moscow was deliberately withholding instructions to its delegation here so that talks would be carried on in Moscow—meaning the U. N. would be by-passed and the U. S. and the U. S. would make the arrangements, if any.

The 16 nations fighting with the U. N. in Korea expressed their willingness in a statement yesterday to "take part in a genuine and enduring peace in Korea." But they also want guarantees that the Red Chinese would get out and stay out of Korea. It is understood that yesterday's talks between Kirk and Gromyko in Moscow produced the suggestion that military commanders in the field negotiate cease-fire terms.

One U. N. column drove a mile closer to Kumsong, the enemy's main supply and offensive base 29 miles north of the 38th parallel in central Korea, the communique said. The thrust met only light to moderate resistance, it said.

Farther west, U. N. troops forced two enemy platoons to withdraw after a six-hour fight. Southeast of Kumsong, the Allies likewise overcame stubborn enemy resistance in a six-hour clash and forced the Reds to retreat.

The war also flared with new fury at sea and in the air despite Russia's cease-fire proposal. Communist shore batteries at the battered east coast port of Wonsan straddled the 45,000-ton U. S. Battleship New Jersey with near misses while Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, was aboard.

Neither Sherman nor anyone else aboard the New Jersey was injured. The battleship's 16-inch and five-inch batteries replied with a barrage that smothered the enemy guns.

Sherman and Vice Admiral K. Turner Joy, commander of the Far Eastern naval forces, had gone aboard the New Jersey for a close look at the non-stop United Nations bombardment of Wonsan, now in its 133rd day.

The Allied Air Forces added to the destruction in Korea, knocking out 112 trucks, 11 gun positions and 260 supply buildings in 24 hours. They also killed or wounded an estimated 450 enemy troops.

The Reds lashed out on the ground in four probing attacks along a 40-mile front from west of Pyongyang to north of Yanggu on the central front night and early today.

The attacks came from the buildup area into which the Communists have been pouring supplies for the past six days. The reinforcements were being fresh from Manchuria.

An 8th Army briefing officer said the Communist activity was not as bad as had preceded previous Chinese offensives. He said the Reds might be trying to recapture strategic ground to protect their new supply base of Kumsong, 17 miles east of Pyongyang.

Vote Extension

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The House Banking Committee voted 21 to 3 today for a 31-day extension of the present price control act.

The idea is to give Congress more time to consider a new, revised law. Without congressional action to keep it alive, the present law will expire Saturday midnight.

Influential senators are fighting any such "stop-gap" move and there appears to be danger the Saturday deadline may arrive without a new law or any action to retain the old one.

In that case, the whole government control program would collapse.

Downpour Makes Up For Drought

Pitt tobacco farmers generally are wishing today the elements would make up their mind.

Heavy downpours in most sections of the county last night and Tuesday more than made up for the drought that plagued them during May and the early part of June.

However, little damage was reported throughout the county, with the exception of spotty hailstorms that injured the fields somewhat.

There were no reports this morning of anyone losing a crop due to hail, although many plants were blown down by high winds and heavy downpours.

Falkland suffered worst from hail as it beat down many of the plants, leaving the leaves spotted with holes. One farmer in the Falkland community reported that five of his acres were damaged about one-third, allowing him to save the rest.

Other reports from that vicinity stated only rain and wind damage during the storm that began about nine o'clock. The plants will either have to be plowed up or have dirt packed around the bottom of the stalks to hold them up, it was reported.

Farmville Man Is Elected Head Of Executives Club

Sam D. Bundy of Farmville yesterday was elected president of the Pitt County Executive club for the coming year.

Bundy was elected at the meeting of the board of directors of the organization to succeed Dr. John D. Messick who has served as president of the Executives club since its organization three years ago.

Dr. Karl B. Pace of Greenville was elected first vice president, Dr. Leo Jenkins of Greenville was elected second vice president, and N. C. Brooks of Greenville was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Thousands Of Reds Attack, Beaten Back By U. N. Army

TOKYO—(UP)—United Nations forces beat off thousands of attacking Reds today and drove a mile closer to the enemy's central Korean stronghold of Kumsong.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of U. N. ground forces, said his 8th Army would keep on pushing north despite Russia's proposal for a battlefield cease-fire conference.

"We're not letting up on the enemy even though in our hearts we all want peace," he told newsmen during a tour of the front. He said the Chinese appeared to be "building up for a future effort," but were not yet in a position to launch a heavy attack.

"They are continuing stubborn ground activity all across the front," he said. "It seems they don't want us to push farther north."

The Reds launched their strongest probing attacks in recent weeks along a 40-mile front in central Korea last night and early today.

One enemy attack threw two U. N. battalions back 700 yards, but the Allies recovered the ground in a counter-attack and sent tanks chasing after the retreating Reds.

The Communists failed even to dent the U. N. line elsewhere and fell back with heavy losses.

An 8th Army communique reported the Allies seized the initiative again soon after dawn.

One U. N. column drove a mile closer to Kumsong, the enemy's main supply and offensive base 29 miles north of the 38th parallel in central Korea, the communique said. The thrust met only light to moderate resistance, it said.

Farther west, U. N. troops forced two enemy platoons to withdraw after a six-hour fight. Southeast of Kumsong, the Allies likewise overcame stubborn enemy resistance in a six-hour clash and forced the Reds to retreat.

Power Disrupted By Local Storm

The storm last night temporarily disrupted service on some of Greenville Utilities Commission's transmission and service lines. It traveled over a wide area, ranging from the Martin County line to Vanceboro, and from Falkland to the Simpson community.

A circuit in Greenville burned a fuse and current was off in one section a few minutes when the storm first struck Larry E. Brown, Greenville utilities secretary, said.

One electric line pole fell on the highway between the Greenville-Bethel highway and Stokes. Service was quickly restored.

The storm caused numerous minor interruptions on service lines. Current was restored. Greenville Utilities Commission emergency crews worked all night checking for interruptions to service on the 700 miles of electric transmission and service lines.

Committee heads and civic club representatives will meet late this afternoon to set a tentative program for Farmers Day.

General Chairman Allan Powell has called the meeting for five o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Although the date for the August event has not been established yet, pending announcement of the opening of the tobacco market, a tentative schedule of activities for the day will be mapped out. The date will be named early next week, Powell said.

Pitt Surpasses Its Cancer Quota

This year's cancer campaign has come to an official end with both Greenville and the county going over their combined $4,500 quota.

Through last week funds received by county campaign manager James S. Jenkins total $4,577.80. Of that amount, Greenville contributed $21 over its quota of $2,500, and the county towns and rural sections contributed the rest.

Along with Greenville, six towns also reached or surpassed their individual quotas. Six others reached three-quarters of their goal and one town has not turned in a report.

The breakdown of the county-wide contributions to the campaign is:

Fountain, $155.81 ($150 quota); Winterville, $155.50 ($145); Falkland, $80 ($70); Grifton, $170, ($125); Bell Arthur, $50 ($50); and Grimesland, $100 ($100).

Those towns reaching three-quarters of their goals are Farmville, Bethel, Ayden, Stokes, Bevoir, and Chicod. No report has been returned by Pactolus.

In turning in the Pitt cancer chapter's final campaign report, Jenkins yesterday appealed to persons who have not contributed to the 1951 campaign. Although the current campaign is over, so far as open solicitation is concerned, he said, there is a need for further funds to be given to the state's home for indigent cancer incurables.

The home is located in Robeson County near Lumberton and was bought this year by the State Cancer Society. Further funds are needed now to staff and equip it.

Plan Emergency Oil Shipments If Fields Close

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American oil companies are drafting emergency plans to rush oil to western Europe if Iran's refineries and fields are shut down in the bitter controversy over nationalization.

An informed American official said today the plan now being worked out by 16 companies—with U. S. government approval—"is nearly ready to go."

This official, who asked not to be identified by name, told a reporter he doubted the American overseas firms could completely fill the gap which would result if the Iranian flow stopped. He added, however, they could meet "a good share of this demand."

Stalin Prize For Canterbury Dean

LONDON—(UP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "Red dean" of Canterbury, has received the Stalin peace prize for 1950, Radio Moscow announced today.

The announcement said Johnson was presented the prize yesterday by committee chairman D. V. Skobelin at a ceremony in Sverdlov Hall in the Kremlin.

What Happens Then? Hardest Punch Would Come If Peace Negotiations Should Fail; Signs Of New Offensives Being Built Up In Korea If Attempts Are Not Successful

By HARRY FERGUSON

If all attempts to settle the Korean War by negotiation should fail, what happens then?

The best guess now is that the Chinese Communists would throw their hardest punch yet. They would come down across the 38th parallel with everything they could muster—artillery, tanks and planes followed by swarms of infantry. It would be their do-or-die throw of the dice for victory.

And if it failed?

Then Korea likely would become a sort of no-man's land of the cold war. The Communists would not be able to claim it and the United Nations would not be able to pull out their troops. The fighting might die down to the point where there would be little more than scattered skirmishes for weeks on end.

Miss Sarah Ann Slawter Bride Of William C. Sugg

Miss Sarah Ann Slawter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John David Slawter of Roslyn road, Winston-Salem, became the bride of William Cunningham Sugg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bruce Sugg of Greenville, N. C., in a ceremony at the Home Moravian church in Winston-Salem Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Rev. Gordon Spough officiated, and a program of wedding music was presented by Dr. Charles G. Vardell, Winston-Salem, organist; Mrs. Ben Lee Slawter, Winston-Salem, harpist; Mrs. William Albertson, Anderson, S. C., soloist; and the church choir.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a Chantilly lace gown of bride's pink designed with off-the-shoulder neckline and bertha, fitted waist, and voluminous skirt. The train was of nylon tulle, ruffles and the veil of illusion was fastened to a Juliet cap, caught with pink lilies. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis and fleur d'amour.

Miss Mary Lou Wright of Winston-Salem was maid of honor, and Mrs. William Blythe Ward of Winston-Salem was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Merril Spough, Miss Sally Shore, Miss Pauline Gray, Miss Erdmuth McCulston, Mrs. Smith Hagaman, Miss Evelyn Beard, and Miss DeWitt Cromer, all of Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Robert E. Stroupe of High Point.

The flower girls were Lee Slawter and Jean Slawter of Winston-Salem, nieces of the bride. The attendants wore orchid ballerina-length gowns fashioned with fitted, fullie basques with full tulle skirts. They wore matching picture hats trimmed with velvet ribbon and carried orchid majestic daisies and yellow roses. The flower girls' dresses were identical to those of the bridesmaids, and their bouquets were smaller and with similar flowers.

The bridegroom had his father as best man, and ushers were Harold G. Sugg of Norfolk, Va., brother of the bridegroom, John D. Slawter Jr., of Winston-Salem, brother of the bride, Philip L. Edwards of Conway, S. C., K. Martin Waters and Charles A. Jarrett of Charlotte, Murdock R. McKeithen of Cameron, R. Jack Blackley of Hamlet, and Edward C. Thorne of Rocky Mount.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Forsyth Country Club at Winston-Salem. Assisting in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. Linville Slawter, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Slawter Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lee Slawter and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Blair.

The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of white roses, baby's breath and white delphinium, and was flanked on either side by silver candelabras, holding white tapers. The mantels were banked with greenery and white flowers were used throughout the club.

The heart-shaped, three-tiered cake was placed on a mirror decorated with love birds and a cascade of flowers down one side. An arrangement of small white flowers was used around the mirror. Chamber music was presented throughout the evening.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip, and after July 15 they will be at home in Philadelphia, Pa. For traveling the bride wore a blue shantung suit, beige shantung hat, and harmonizing accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Salem College where she was a voice major, and she later did graduate work at Salem.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Davidson College and of the medical school of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He will enter Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia this fall. He is a member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity and Alpha Epsilon Delta, national premedical honor society.

The wedding breakfast was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Blythe Ward, Arden farm. The breakfast was served buffet style. Arrangements of magnolias were used throughout the house. Guests included members of the wedding party, the immediate families, and out-of-town guests.

Catholic church are the most vicious enemies of the working man and his freedoms. They are the confessions which were exacted by the proven communist theory that the human body and the human mind can stand just so much coercion before succumbing to the dictates of the tyrant. It was from the same courtroom in which the present confessions are being made that a knowing world heard American businessman Robert Vogeler and Cardinal Mindszenty confess to parts in alleged efforts to overthrow the Hungarian government. But all of the confessions come from the same pen in the same handwriting—that of the communist dictator.

To the free world which has heard Vogeler's true story from his own lips now that he is out of reach of the communists, the confessions and the trials are exemplary of the true goals of communism: to remove all the individual rights, liberties and self respect; to make the state the only god to be bowed to on every hand; to make the state the judge of life, the judge of destiny.

In the communist court, the confessions will carry the innocent men to prison. But the real evidence in the case stands as a conviction of communism in action.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Secretary Oscar Chapman's persistent but indirect attempt to seize all authority for development of all the natural resources of the nation has finally precipitated a violent battle in open court between his Department of Interior and the Federal Power Commission.

It is an unprecedented legal and jurisdictional clash between two federal agencies that will effect every large and small industry and retail business having even a remote connection with operations covered by the interstate commerce or general welfare clauses of the Constitution.

Although water power happens to be the immediate cause of the Interior-FPC dispute, the broad legal question involved affects industrial and small business activity, from steel mills to chain stores operating across state lines.

POSSIBILITIES—If Interior wins this jurisdictional battle on the basis of the several legal arguments it has advanced at government hearings and in the courts, there may be no end to the extension of federal jurisdiction and authority over both private and public enterprise, industrial, wholesale and retail.

Judicial support of the Chapman philosophy and its implications would enable Washington to direct and supervise the construction of factories, as Mr. Truman tried to do with steel and aluminum, the kinds and amounts of goods to be produced, the prices to be charged and the markets to be given preferential service.

All these possibilities are inherent in the Chapman contention if it is upheld by the courts in the current controversy with the Federal Power Commission.

SHOWDOWN—This is not the conclusion of reactionary opponents of the Administration. It is the legal opinion voiced by FPC lawyers who have battled Interior's legal staff on the three projects that form the basis of their controversy—the Idaho Power Company's transmission lines across public lands in that western state, a single-purpose dam on the Kings River in Central California, and the Roanoke River hydroelectric plant in North Carolina.

Never before during New Deal or Fair Deal eras, according to almost all participants in this struggle, has there been such a showdown between advocates of private enterprise and government domination, not even in socialist Britain.

FIGHTING—In opposing Secretary Chapman in these three key cases, the Federal Power Commission is fighting for existence. If the Secretary of Interior wins, he will have stripped the FPC so thoroughly that it might as well close up shop, even though it was specifically created by Congress as an agency to develop water resources in an orderly and business-like manner, without any prejudice toward private or public interests.

FPC's briefs in hearings and in court have blasted Interior in language never before used—publicly, that is—between two executive agencies. FPC lawyers have accused Mr. Chapman of a "dog-in-the-manger" attitude. They base this charge on the fact that, although he has no plans for building the three projects involved, he wants to prevent FPC and private interests from giving immediate service to needy customers.

It is significant that Secretary Chapman did not attack FPC's authority and jurisdiction until after President Truman's 1948 reelection. The three applications had been tentatively approved by FPC in early fall of 1948 without provoking any protest from Interior.

Several reasons account for Mr. Chapman's interim disinterest. He was Mr. Truman's political advance agent in the eleven public land states beyond the Rockies, where water and power are a bread-and-butter issue with the voters. He was too busy in corraling Democratic votes, which he did with great success, to bother with departmental problems. Secondly, it was useless to voice his radical views on public power and related questions until a Truman victory was assured.

Mr. Truman's attitude in the matter is still in doubt. He has kept out of the Idaho and Roanoke squabbles. He first opposed Mr. Chapman on Kings River, but subsequently endorsed Interior's viewpoint against FPC. If Oscar's public power scheme seems likely to win general approval from the voters, the President will be for it.

MONOPOLY—Interior and FPC will meet next in judicial combat on September 4 before the U. S. Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va. Ironically, the contestants will be the Interior Department against the FPC, which will be associated with the applicant for the Roanoke River power license, the Virginia Electric & Power Company.

If Mr. Chapman wins—so far he has been defeated in other courts—the federal government will supplant private industry, states and cities in construction, operation and management of all future power projects built on American rivers and tributaries. Washington will enjoy a complete monopoly of power except where it is generated by steam plants.

If the Richmond jurists hold for Interior (and this is one of the most respected courts in the country), the government will gain by judicial sanction an authority never given to it by Congress in the basic Federal Power Act of 1920 or the Flood Control Act of 1944, including all the amendments thereto.

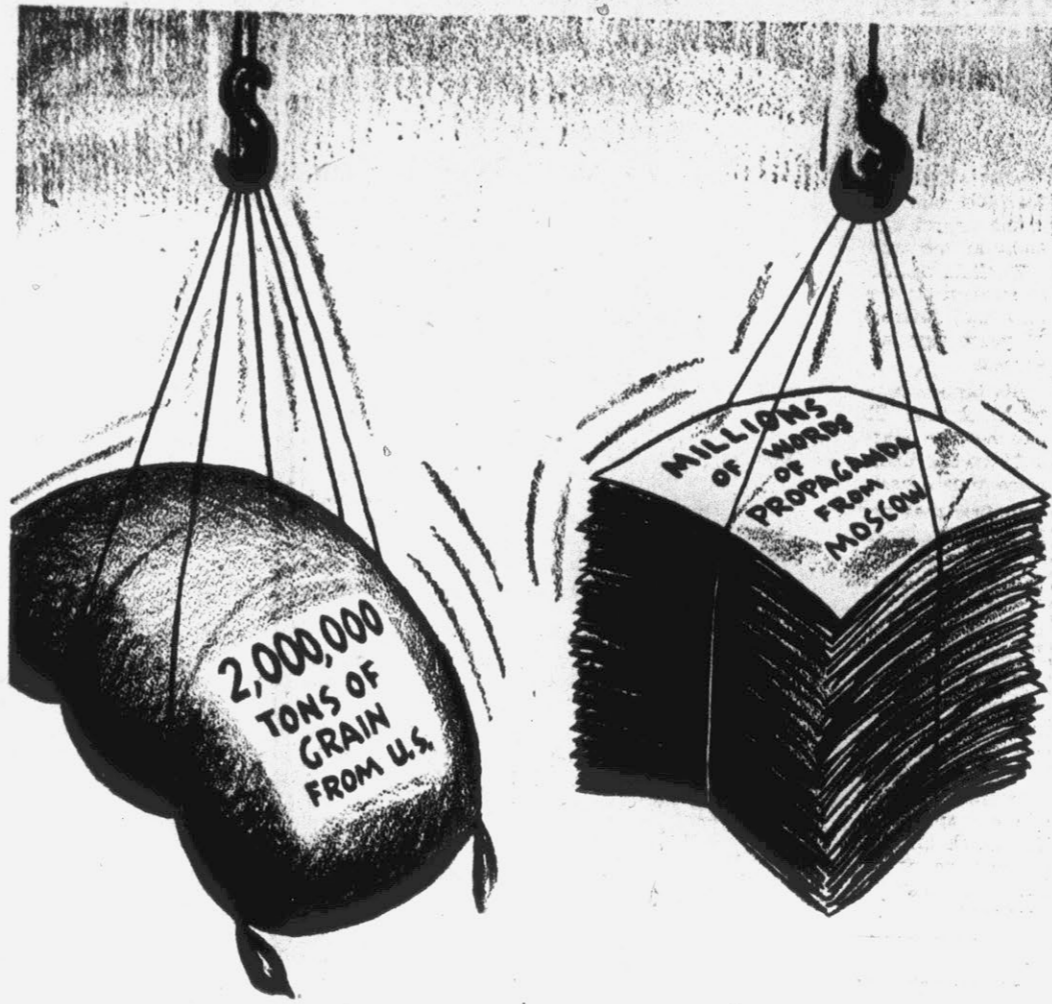

In its present bitter mood, the FPC would appeal an adverse decision to the Supreme Court. It would appeal if—and this is a big "if"—President Truman will permit the moot question of private versus public development to go before the high tribunal for a final showdown. He might not permit FPC to appeal.

(This question has so many angles of broad-and-butter interest to readers that it will be discussed in more detail tomorrow, and possibly the next day.)

SANTA PAULA, CALIF., NEWS—The public may relish price wars, as the people in New York have shown, but unless we miss our guess the reciprocal throat slashing among dealers isn't likely to go on very long. The free enterprise system is based on profit and you can't make a profit on large scale selling at, or below, the cost price. The price war, however, has proved that the dollar isn't dead, but it isn't likely to live so high again for a long time to come.

Rival Cargoes

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Fort Jackson, S. C. (On two weeks active duty with the Army Reserve)—When 36 men are put in the same building to sleep, eat, and work together, everybody decides that the only way to live is to have a good time. So everybody starts working hard at the job of having a good time.

The first technique is to start ribbing each other. This started on the bus on the way down here from Greenville. The Carolina Trailways bus was equipped with air conditioning. First Lieutenant Bobby Keys of Washington, N. C., was sitting directly in front of the flow of air. During one of our stops along the way, Bobby was talking about the air conditioning. "It's cold in front of that thing. Do you suppose it will give me a cold?"

Captain Francis Worsley of Carolina Sales Corporation just happened to be nearby when Bobby asked that question. Francis sells air conditioning, so he was ready with the answer: "No, proper air conditioning can't possibly give you a cold. The difference between outside temperature and inside temperature shouldn't be over 12 degrees. The only way a cold is when there is had nothing to do with it. The matter hasn't been settled as yet, but on the way back Bobby is planning to sit in the rear of the bus.

The 36 men that live in our quarters all have remarkable memories. The feel of this uniform on our backs, even if it is for two weeks only, brings back war stories. No one will ever know how many lies have been told already, and we have another week to go.

In this atmosphere the practical jokers arise, for the entertainment of some and the dismay of others. Last night a Captain from Goldsboro came home to find his bunk wired to the ceiling. Fortunately, it was funny to all, including him.

If you head for the mess hall a few minutes late and meet one of the other men coming away they'll tell you with the straightest face, "The mess hall just closed. You know, inspection today." If you believe it, it shows how stupid you are.

Ten minutes later somebody will tell you that the Colonel is looking for you. It's a big game, the practical joke. It just goes to show you what an effort men will make to entertain themselves. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYNN NISBET

Daily Reflector Bureau

C. & D.—The semi-annual convention and development meeting scheduled for the middle of next month at Morehead City and points east, promises to be one of the most interesting—perhaps most important—in recent years. Several changes in membership of the board are expected before that time, and these changes may bring about others in personnel and policies. As presently constituted the board has a director and ten of fifteen members originally appointed by Governor Scott. Capitol square gossip is that when the board convenes at Morehead City it will have at least twelve, possibly all fifteen. Scott appointed members. It will be the first time in many years a board meeting has been so completely controlled by appointees of the incumbent governor.

RE-ORGANIZATION—The summer session agenda calls for general re-organization of the board with respect to committee assignments. Recent death of Roy Hampton and expected retirement of Oscar Berger takes two members from the board, and necessitates shuffling most of the committees. There is anticipated further re-organization within the department at Raleigh, begun last week with transfer of Walter Fuller, who had been administrative assistant to Director George Ross, to REA.

POLICY—Board and department policy is closely related and largely dependent upon administrative personnel. Several matters of basic policy will receive attention by the board. Consideration must be given to commercial fisheries. Revision of the whole code affecting this industry by the last general assembly resulted in omitting some vital revenue features and the board must devise means of recouping that revenue or transferring funds from other sources. There remains the question of distinction between departmental public relations and the advertising division, the primary function of which is to publicize beyond state borders the attractions North Carolina has for industrial, agricultural and recreational development.

PURPOSE—Which raises the point that the primary purpose of state park and roadside facilities is to serve citizens of this state. That gets back to the question of appropriate location and development of state park areas. Mount Mitchell state park, for example, is situated on top of the highest peak in eastern America and adjacent to the Blue Ridge Parkway. The state parks division at one time planned to build an overnight lodge on Mount Mitchell. That plan has been revised and there will be built a community house, suitable for one-day use as shelter and picnic facilities, instead of the "tourist inn." Back of the change in plans is the idea that an overnight inn would mainly serve out-of-state or long distance travelers, while the community house will serve those who drive to the mountain park for one day—a great many of whom will be North Carolinians.

HIWASSEE—The same line of reasoning may well result in abandonment of plans for the state to take over and operate on permanent basis as a state Hiwassee Lake in one extreme southwestern corner of North Carolina. These facilities are now being operated by the state parks division under temporary lease from TVA and negotiations are in progress for permanent arrangements. Experience of the temporary operation shows that the park is used much more freely by citizens of Georgia and Tennessee than by North Carolinians. There is question of the propriety of North Carolina maintaining a park primarily for use of non-residents of the state. Kentucky and some other states advertise state park accommodations in direct competition with privately owned recreational facilities as a straight-out commercial proposition. That has not been North Carolina policy.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

INCONSISTENT POLICY (Henderson Daily Dispatch)
 Somewhere in the discussions of the MacArthur dismissal reference has been made to administration policy of refraining from support for Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalist army on Formosa, in the fear that to pursue such a course would antagonize Soviet Russia to the point that she would antagonize Soviet Russia to the point that she would enter the Far East war. By contrast, however, consider the program of this same administration in going to the assistance of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia in an open admitted effort to strengthen Tito in resisting the Kremlin.

There was no fear there of a post into a Moscow hornet's nest. One wonders why Russia would be provoked in the one instance and not in the other, if such reasoning were sound.

The only conclusion that can be reached as between the two positions on the part of Washington is that there are other considerations besides the fear of Russia. Is American foreign policy involved in another direction not as yet clarified? It does not appear to be consistent, strategy sides of the world.

General Wedemeyer told Senate investigators that he favored bombing Chinese Communist bases where the enemy gathers his forces to continue the assault on United Nations armies in Korea. The general, to be sure, is not among the top brass in the Pentagon, and his disagreement with reasoning there does not indicate a split in the shaping of strategy. But it does point to a lack of uniformity in high circles. Moreover, it was Wedemeyer who once was sent to China to brief Chiang Kai-shek on American policy, and who made a report which has never been made public in full, and the continuing secrecy of which provides grounds for suspicion as to purposes motivating this country's over-all attitude toward Far East developments.

There has been a feeling in some quarters that unity so emphatically proclaimed on the surface may not actually be as genuine as would appear. All the testimony at the Senate committee hearings, except for MacArthur himself, has been from the same source, until Wedemeyer appeared this week. He has taken the MacArthur view.

Not all the support MacArthur has received has backed his over-all strategy. Much of it has represented resentment of the manner in which he was dismissed. And there is opinion, too, that the general was not recalled on military grounds alone, but out of other considerations as well.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 In recent years many plants have been shutting down for summer vacations. The number is likely to increase this year, but for new reasons.

Previously, it has been found that all-at-once vacations often added to efficiency. Staggered absences of key workers frequently disrupted full production from June to September. All-at-once vacations eliminated disputes as to who should have preferred weeks off. In smaller plants, the weeks the top boss took off often cut output way down.

This year, the threat of over-production is causing many firms to use the all-at-once system to cut back output without publicizing the fact that their goods are moving slowly. Length of vacation shut-downs may be extended from two weeks to several more in many instances.

In the television and radio field, civilian purchases are down. Several plants have been closed, admittedly because they are overbooked. Still others have announced plans for vacation shutdowns that only slightly mask the fact that their sales are slow.

More vacation closures are likely in the textile and apparel fields. Many weavers have already shut down. For almost a year they have been producing close to capacity; this has resulted in more textiles than either the armed forces or the civilian markets can consume. Third shifts have been dropped in many mills; some are eliminating second shifts; others are changing from a six-day to five-day week. And those that aren't planning a complete vacation shutdown are increasing the length of vacations.

In the manufacture of men's suits there is a similar situation. Many makers have cut wholesale prices to a point at which they say further cuts are impossible; their next step, long vacations.

The carpet industry, after a long series of rises reflecting the higher cost of carpet wool, has initiated some price cuts but this again has failed to restore the market and there may be considerable vacationing here.

In other fields, especially those with rush government orders, some of the plants that have had all-at-once vacations in the past may have to return to the staggered system and some may ask workers to postpone vacations or accept cash payments instead.

7 OUT OF 10 MAUFACTURERS OPERATING AT CAPACITY

On the whole, the volume of domestic business is keeping most industries busy, judging by a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board. The Board polled 142 manufacturers; 7 out of 10 said they were operating at or near capacity.

"Slowdowns reported in some industries are not expected to last," the Board adds. Government orders and material shortages have forced 40 per cent of the companies to cut back civilian production.

COFFEE REPUBLICS MAY EASE CONTROLS

Brazil, Columbia and other coffee-producing countries may abandon efforts to keep prices up by limiting exports, according to reports in the New York coffee market. The high price attained here cut European purchases sharply and even in this country housewives are buying less coffee because of the price. The coffee republics are now wondering if lower prices may not stimulate sales so that total receipts would be higher.

SMALL PLANTS GET A SMALL BREAK

Small plants may again find leads to subcontracts in examining lists of prime contractors. Many plant owners abandoned this source when the Munitions Board clamped secrecy on all contracts over $25,000. Prime contracts of less than that figure seldom offer opportunities for subcontracting. This secrecy was hard to understand because the information is published later, too late to do small plants much good, by the Department of Labor under the provisions of the Walsh-Healey Act.

Now the Munitions Board has raised the secrecy limit to $250,000. There are some chances for subcontracting in contracts under that figure. Lists of contracts awarded are available at 78 Department of Commerce offices across the country, chambers of commerce and some banks and libraries.

4 1/2 BILLION EXPANSION PLANNED FOR GAS

A total of $4,500,000,000 will be spent for expansion from 1951 through 1955 by gas utility and pipeline companies, the American Gas Association reports. Since defense needs are likely to stimulate, rather than restrict, this expansion, this program should provide opportunities for many contractors and constructors.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Bald-headed men of America, arise! The enemy is attacking us again. They are at our very heels.

What our foe this time? Nobody but our old cutthroat buddies—the nation's barbers. Who'd have thought those gay blades would ever razor voices against us? But listen!

"Men with hair are more virile and romantic than those who are bald."

That bare-headed slander came today from Nick Caluthis, president of the United Master Barbers of America.

"Although there may be no biological relationship between baldness and 'irility,'" he added, "the confidence that goes with having a full head of hair gives men more verve in their amours."

"Barbers know very well that a woman regards a man's hair in the same light as a man regards a woman's figure."

Well, now does a wise man prefer a woman's figure? Covered with a buffalo pelt?

Caluthis teed off on us baldies in releasing his organization's annual selection of the "Ten Best Male Heads of Hair in America."

His lucky ten: Educator Alfred C. Kinsey, statesman Bernard Baruch, bandleader Elliot Lawrence, New York Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy, artist Salvador Dali, film actor Errol Flynn, scientist Albert Einstein, government and business executive Nelson A. Rockefeller, sportsman Ben Hogan, and radio-and-television star Arthur Godfrey.

There is no quarrel to be found with the list—for sentimental, old-fashioned folk who still like hairy-topped men best. More people in the world live in thatched huts than in houses with slate roofs, but they aren't as comfortable.

"Hair is like a muscle," said Caluthis, advocating daily brushing. "Keep it exercised and it won't let you down—or fall down."

Operating on this theory, the average barber must go home at night too tired to lift an arm to his own head. Most barbers I meet look less like Simonsen than they do Mexican hairless dogs.

As a matter of fact, barbers actually seem to have a marked distaste for customers with bath-thick cranial shrubbery. It is easier to clip a lawn than back a path through a jungle.

What forward-looking man of taste today wants to keep his hair anyway? It falls in his eyes, gets caught in electric fans, grows over his ears and makes it hard for him to hear over the telephone. It isn't of help to him in any way, except as a cushion if he is hit with a blackjack.

And a man who keeps getting hit with blackjacks doesn't really need more hair. He needs more judgment.

All the evidence of modern science tends to prove that bald-headed men are actually more virile than hairy-headed men. Smart women have already found that out, too, and nobody has to feel sorry for "Old Baldy" today. He's doing all right. The reason he doesn't brag more is that he doesn't want the guys with hair to shove it off and increase his competition.

The most successful Casanova I ever knew was a barber—bald as a basketball.

"Guys with hair give me a laugh," he said once. "When I go out with a girl, I bend over and let the light hit my dome. It reflects back into her eyes and dazzles her. It gradually hypnotizes her. I guess, but whatever it is—it works."

Fur or fuzz? Why, fuzz, of course. And if the master barbers make a campaign against us, they'd better watch out.

If they won't give us baldies no quarter, well—us baldies won't give them no quarter either.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
 WASHINGTON—Mrs. G.G.S. Corea, exotic wife of the ambassador of Ceylon, took 30 costumes and changes of gem studs for her nose when she accompanied her husband on a recent seven-week cross-country trip.

The costumes, saris worn by the women of Ceylon, were merely six-yard lengths of exquisite hand-woven fabrics, bordered in silver, gold and embroidery. They were carried in one medium-sized suitcase.

Mrs. Corea, known as the "lady with the diamonds in her nose," favors these gems because she thinks they are more becoming and look best with most of her saris. Her pretty nose, especially pierced for the purpose, sparkles with three diamonds of the time. She says she also has emerald and ruby studs and some shaped like little birds. Her costume jewelry is carried in a handbag.

"I favor the semi-precious stones," she told me. "I can't be bothered carrying on my travels the expensive kind, only to lose them or have them stolen. The three diamonds are one part of my costume. No one can get them unless they pull off my nose."

The ambassador made the long trip from Washington to the west coast and back to fill speaking engagements at universities and before other groups. He told people about his country and the improvements made there since Ceylon received its independence three years ago.

"Few people seemed to know about Ceylon except that tea came from there," Mrs. Corea said. "You just can't imagine how interested audiences everywhere were. They asked all kinds of questions—about '53, the people, education, government, health, and the customs."

Mrs. Corea has seen most of the world. She has visited nearly every country—except Russia.

"We did the American trip—my first since we came to this country—by car," she said. A chauffeur drove, and they were accompanied by an embassy secretary and a driver.

(They had two other sons, 13 and 17, in English schools.)

"Chandra was a great help. He makes friends quickly, was happy wherever we went, and the children he met everywhere, hearing he had come from a foreign country, soon found that children are all alike, enjoying the same fun and mischief."

Their trip took them to places like Columbus, O., Urbana, Ill., St. Louis, Yuma, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Salt Lake City.

Dr. R. L. Holt Addresses Colored Civic League Here

Dr. R. L. Holt, director of Christian education at East Carolina College, used "What Our Flag Means to Us" as his subject when he spoke to the Colored Civic League of Greenville Tuesday night.

"There are many evil forces trying to creep in and undermine our strength and destroy our flag, but we must be ever conscious of God's promise to us," the speaker said. "He has promised that if we keep our hand in his we will overcome much of the evils besetting our paths."

Dr. Holt warned against people feeling too secure. "When we feel that we have become so secure in ourselves we are cut off from the blessings of God and fall in some of our undertakings," he declared. "We should avoid false gods and worship the one true God. We should put out of our lives all jealousy, malice and hatred and instill within ourselves more of the good neighbor spirit."

The speaker concluded his message with a description of July 4, Independence Day. He told what the stars and stripes and colors of

Old-Time Idol Of Theatre Dies

NEW YORK —(AP)— David Warfield, one of the great names in the American theater, died last night at the age of 84.

Warfield zoomed from burlesque to stardom at the turn of the Century and retired from the stage 27 years ago at the peak of his success.

His fame has never died in theatrical circles. Old-timers still recall how he started his career as a 44-a-week usher in a San Francisco music hall.

In 1900 that produced David Belasco "discovered" Warfield doing a comedy routine with the Weber and Fields Burlesque Company. For the next 24 years, Warfield's name glittered in marquee along Broadway.

Some of his hits were "A Grand Army Man," "The Flying Dutchman," and "The Merchant of Venice."

Then, in 1924, he retired to his apartment overlooking Central Park, spurning a million dollar movie offer to make any single picture he chose. Warfield termed the movies "animated photographs."

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senate crime investigators turned aside from their narcotics probe today to try to show how interstate racketeers fasten their tentacles on the nation's smaller cities.

Reading, Pa., with a population of about 110,000, was the city to be brought under the committee's scrutiny at a public hearing (9 a.m., EST).

Committee investigators spent about six weeks in Reading gathering information. Subpoenas were served on more than 30 persons, including the mayor and city councilmen, the chief of police and other officials who submitted records for examination.

A number of local religious, civic and similar groups had urged the senate committee to conduct an investigation in the city.

Pheasant Farmer Is Undismayed

VANCOUVER —(AP)— Bill Greenslade's house is surrounded by a flock of beautiful birds that give him hay fever. They also peck his bald head occasionally and they are highly critical of his taste in clothes.

This might discourage some men from pheasant farming, but not Greenslade. He likes pheasants, despite the fact they haven't sense enough to come in out of the rain and are noted for neglecting their young.

Jaycees Defeat Elks; Lions Edge Kiwanians, 7-6

The Jaycees scored three runs in the first inning yesterday and went on from there to take their second victory of the year over the league leading Elks nine, 5-1.

Hudson Miller and W. L. Allen combined to pitch the win, allowing the losers only one safety, a double by James Hudson in the first inning. Miller was credited with the win, his fourth of the year. He struck out eight and walked one in three innings. Allen fanned three and issued one walk in the three innings which he pitched.

Joe Hudson walked to lead off the first and was moved to second when Randolph Taylor walked. After Allen had struck out, Miller doubled to send both runners in. He advanced to third on the throw-in, and scored on R. L. Puryear's infield out.

The Elks scored their single run in the first. Mike Riddick walked with one out. James Hudson came through with a double after Oscar Stoneham had struck out and Riddick crossed the plate.

The final runs came in for the Jaycees in the third. Hudson reached base safely on an error. In rapid succession, Taylor and Allen singled. Miller followed with his second double. Puryear singled to load the bases but the fire was put out as the next two men made infield outs.

The Lions came from behind and staved off last inning rally by the Kiwanians to win, 7-6. Charles Staton pitched the win, although he had to have help from Mack Roebuck in the sixth when he loaded the bases and allowed three runs to score. Roebuck came in to put out the fire to insure the victory.

Three runs in the bottom of the fifth gave the game to the Lions. Tommy Cannon started the winning rally by doubling. Charles Staton walked and Billy Fields was safe on an unplayed fielder's choice, loading the bases with none out. Steve Nobles struck out and then the first run of the inning was forced in as Louis Arthur walked. Roebuck singled to send the winning runs across.

Three walks, one single, one error, and one infield out accounted for the Kiwanians' three runs in the last inning.

SAN JOSE, Calif. —(AP)—The Boston Red Sox $75,000 bonus baby, boomed in his first pro game, sparkling in his second last night.

Dick Pedrotti, former Pasadena (Calif.) City College third base star, was shifted to second base because the San Jose Red Sox of the California State League had too many hot corner candidates.

Tuesday night, in his unfamiliar position, he made one error and went hitless. He drew mild boos when he failed to hold a throw for an intended force play.

Greenies Decision Farmville By 4-2 In Exhibition Game

Sixth Inning Downpour Closed Out Tilt After Visitors Had Moved Out In Front

By MELVIN LANG
A pair of two-run innings and the sixth inning downpour brought the Greenies a 4-2 victory over Farmville in an exhibition match last night. The rain came in the top of the sixth just after Farmville had scored four runs to go ahead, 6-4. Pete Piestrak drove one 350 feet over the rightfield fence with two on for the ill-fated Farmville club in the stadium. As the Greenies, the home team, could not get to bat for their inning, the score was reverted back to the previous inning, with Greenville leading 4-2.

Farmville took an early lead by scoring a single run in each of the first and third innings. Singles by Boyd Webb, Roger Thrift, and Ralph Britt produced the first run. The losers loaded the bases in the third after Boyd Webb had singled. Millard Webb had walked, and Roger Thrift was safe on a fielder's choice, with the shortstop erroring the throw at second and everyone reaching base safely. Boyd Webb scored when Gaither Cline's grounder was thrown to second for a force-out.

Greenville came back with a pair of runs in the fourth. Jim Corbin began the inning by fanning on the third strike. Larry Rhodes and Leon Jones reached Gilbert Ferrell, the losing pitcher, for walks. After Tom Boyd had moved the runners to third and second, respectively, George Sauls singled into rightfield to plate both men. Two runs in the fifth won the game for the Greenies as the rains fell in the next period. Lou Collier singled and quickly stole second to start off the inning. Charlie Chatin was safe on the shortstop's bobble of his hard grounder, with Collier going to third. Jim Corbin singled to send Collier home and moved Chatin to third. Manager Norman Clark pulled Ferrell off the mound then and inserted Pitcher Bob Hines in the line-up. Hines promptly unworked a wild pitch to allow Chatin to cross the plate. James Piner went the route of the abbreviated five inning contest although he was in trouble in every inning except the fourth. He allowed six hits and struck out two while issuing one free pass.

The game was well played and moved very fast. Each team executed a double play. The Greenies pulled their twin-killing in the second inning while Farmville erased a threat from the Greenies in the bottom of the second, when with the bases loaded and one out, Piner's grounder to the pitcher was quickly turned into a double play, pitcher to catcher to first base.

Kinston Boosts Lead Over Tobs

Alex Zych tossed a two-hitter at Wilson last night to increase the Eagles league lead to one and one-half games over their nearest challenger, New Bern. The Bears lost in their contest, to Roanoke Rapids, 2-1.

In the abbreviated seven inning contest at Wilson, Zych bested Bobby Harrison, 1-0. Successive singles by Rosdel and Duffy, followed by Horton's long fly-out, pushed the winning run across in the sixth.

Roanoke Rapids garnered four hits but scored two runs while New Bern could score one run on seven hits, to win, 2-1. A three-base error on Bob Thomas's long fly scored Smut Aderholt with the winning run in the fourth. Aderholt had singled previously.

Mel Dostator pitched the win, his fifth against five defeats. Bunty Stewart was charged with the loss.

Dick Napier won his second consecutive game at the expense of Goldsboro as he twirled four hit balls to win, 4-1. The game was called in the top of the eighth when the field was flooded by rain and high winds.

Rocky Mount scored one run in the first and another in the third to take the win.

Now Called 'No Job' Vander Meer

July Slaughter Quotas Increased
WASHINGTON—(AP)—With the aim of getting more beef on American tables, the government today raised July cattle slaughter quotas 10 percent above those for June. It cut hog quotas about 10 percent. The quotas are the number of animals meat packers are allowed to kill. They are based on estimated marketings and are designed to insure fair distribution of meat.

The '80 is the F-80 Shooting Star jet fighter that did so much to keep us in Korea last summer. Capt. Duncan C. Myers, Bradenton, Fla., gave me a demonstration over Long Island in the '80's new and menacing all-weather version, the two-seat F-94B.

He said many other pilots with World War II and Korean experience now are instructors in all-weather combat operations at Tyndall Air Force Base, Panama City, Fla. They train pilots to defend the United States against bombing attacks. They have an airplane tailored to the mission.

When they fly, with a radar observer in the rear cockpit, they don't care what kind of weather they encounter.

The F-94B is a high-speed plane. It can reach 30,000 feet in six minutes. Besides a jet engine like the F-80's, it has an afterburner, a long pipe behind the engine where exhaust gases are re-ignited by a spray of fuel. When this is turned on, the effect is that of a catapult.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp. added about six feet to the basic F-80 airframe in making the F-94B. In a big snout was packed so much fine electronics equipment that it alone costs $15,000 more than a whole P-38 fighter did in World War II. The radar observer's scopes in the aft cockpit display all the information picked up by the nose radar.

For added range, 230-gallon wing tip tanks, instead of 165-gallon containers used on earlier models, are mounted on the '94B. They have horizontal fins for increased stability at high speed.

R. Flake Shaw Assails OPS Tobacco Ceiling

GREENSBORO — R. Flake Shaw, executive vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, this week gave a verbal lashing to the OPS plan for stand-by tobacco ceiling price, describing it as being "totally without justification."

He pointed out that "down through the years, when the price of tobacco has been reduced on the farmer, the consumer has never been affected in the least." Summing it up, he said that the OPS plan was "all wet."

He issued the statement to clarify the Farm Bureau's position on the current tobacco situation with reference to price controls.

"If the farmer gave away the tobacco required to manufacture an 18-cent pack of cigarettes, the consumer 15 and three-fifths cents cigarettes would still cost the per pack," he said.

He accused the OPS of attempting to use the tobacco issue "to take advantage of the consuming public in playing up the importance of price controls."

He added that the proposed regulation on tobacco demonstrates that OPS is not in sympathy with the tobacco program from the farmer's viewpoint.

Previously, the state Bureau had praised Congressman Harold Cooley for his stand against the highly controversial Title 4 of the Defense Production Act. That portion of the act gives the administration authority to levy price controls on raw agricultural commodities and has been vigorously opposed by the Bureau.

Tried Rob Bank With Water Gun And Got Caught

NEW YORK (UP)—Daniel D'Alessandro, 26-year-old grocery clerk, told police today he tried to rob a bank with a water pistol because he needed money to buy gas for his new car.

D'Alessandro, of Camden, N. J., walked into the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. yesterday and handed teller Carlton Vorhees, 43, a $5 check. Attached to the check was a note saying, "This is a stickup. Give me the money."

Ignoring the bulge of the pistol in D'Alessandro's pocket, the teller said, "I can't cash this. It isn't made out properly," and he stepped on the burglar alarm.

D'Alessandro fled, but was captured a few minutes later as he covered beneath a counter in a five-and-ten cent store.

The report will be laid before the meeting of the Federal Legislative Council on July 11. Also expected to be presented that day will be a report on Chinese education prepared by another committee.

Class Observes Soil Practices In County

Soil conservation on Pitt county farms was the topic studied by Mrs. Myrtle Clark's fifth and sixth grade classes of the Training School Tuesday morning.

The students made a field trip under guidance of W. C. Eagles, county soil conservationist. The first subjects of study were a drainage canal and farm drain tile installation on Davis T. House's farm near Bethel.

Stops were made on Van Taylor's farm, where hillsides are being terraced. Then the group went to Green Mill Run, where Ralph Garrett is having a canal excavated to drain marshy land.

Students making the trip were: Johnny Barnhill, Sally Jo Kennedy, Byron Van Wageningen, Anne Rice, Roy Wainwright, Sybil Waters, Sandra Mayo, Pat Pittman, Milton Haddock, James Whitehurst, Bobby Whitehurst, Jimmy Bridgers, Pat McLawhorn, John Packer, Tommy Mallison, Gilbert Smith and Ev Stancil.

Russell Lane and Scott Lane, room visitors from Eureka, also attended.

Others in the group were Mrs. Myrtle Clark, teacher, and Mrs. Julia H. Manning, practice teacher, and Miss Lila Mae Taylor, Miss Eula Mitchell and Mrs. Margaret Veech, observing teachers.

The soil conservationist explained the purpose of the drainage canal and tile on the House farm.

He described the value of terracing sloping land on the Van Taylor farm and pointed out the importance of contour plowing to save top soil. Eagles explained the value of winter cover crops plowed under. The teachers and students manifested special interest in the sleek and fat registered Hereford cattle grazing "knee deep" in clover.

The visitors showed much interest in Taylor's newly constructed fish pond. He displayed some broam from the pond that are nearly ready to bite at a baited hook. The fish had been in the pond less than a year. Eagles, in describing the value of fish ponds on farms, said it is important for the farmer to utilize every acre of his land for the purpose for which it is best suited.

The students and teachers spent some time at Green Mill Run, where Ralph Garrett is having a drainage canal dug with adzag line in order to recover marshy waste land for pasture for "white-faced" cattle. The owner plans to seed the reclaimed land to ladino clover. The young people watched with interest the operation of the drag line in the canal. Eagles told them about the survey that has to be made and about the actual work of excavation. "Good pastures lead to better and more profitable farming," the soil conservationist said.

First Flax Crop Grown In Israel

JERUSALEM (AP)—There was another "first" in Israel—this time the first harvest of flax, the Hebrew University's School of Agriculture has announced. With Israel government support, the school has for a number of years been experimenting with the growing of flax specimens sent to Israel from various parts of the world.

The first flax crop has been harvested on 250 acres of non-irrigated land near Hederah in the southern Israel coastal plain—not far from the Negev half-desert, where 25,000 acres of flax are planned to be planted within the next four years.

The fibres grew well, a farmer said.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Summer is the best time to find last winter. It's a good time to check up on your chimney and to repair leaks and cracks that might develop into fire hazards under the strain of future cold spells.

There's a famous old method for testing a chimney. I pass it on at the risk of having the womanfolk throw a few loose chimney bricks my way. It's a sure-fire test, but a bit smoky.

Just build a brisk little fire out of paper, straw or kindling at the base of the flue. When it is going well, add about a square yard of tar paper to create dense smoke. Then get up on the roof and clap a wet carpet or blanket over the chimney cap. Every place smoke oozes out will be a leak to be fixed.

Test the mortar joints, especially at those joints, with a screwdriver. Any mortar that crumble calls for replacement. You'll have to take the chimney down as far as necessary to reach hard mortar and then rebuild it. This is a vital precaution for fire and wind safety.

A good chimney is equipped with a fire-clay flue lining. This is very important when chimney walls are less than 6 inches thick. In heavier chimneys a lining is sometimes omitted.

However, a lining protects chimney masonry from both heat and destructive gases. Without a lining mortar will disintegrate faster and fall out. Air will then leak into the flue, spoiling the draft, and hot gases and glowing sparks will leak out.

The usual standards for flue-lined chimneys, not more than 30 feet tall, call for walls 4 inches thick when built of brick or reinforced concrete; 8 inches thick for hollow building blocks, and 12 inches thick for stone.

A chimney in or near the center of a house is usually considered the most efficient, since it is protected against chilling. Outside chimneys are not supposed to have walls less than 8 inches thick.

No woodwork of any kind should be closer than 2 inches from any chimney. This is a fire standard. The chimney stands alone on its own foundation.

The strength of your draft is determined by a long, straight, unobstructed flue. Each flue should measure at least 8 by 12 inches, or 100 square inches. Most building codes call for separation of flues in a chimney by what are called wites, not less than 3/4 inch wide.

No flue should have more than one intake. Two fires connected to one flue will cause one to kill the draft of the other. That's why English houses, with a fireplace in every room, have so many chimneys with so many flues or chimney pots protruding. But to cap a chimney with a pipe extension that is smaller than the flue will choke its draft.

One of the commonest causes of smoking fireplaces is a flue that is too small for the opening of the fireplace by the height of that opening and divide by 10 and you get the size flue you should have. Some builders allow a flue area to be one-twelfth of the area of the opening, but some other factors enter in. One is the height of the chimney.

When a flue is shorter than 22 feet, or is unlined, its opening should be larger than a tenth of the fireplace opening.

The depth of a fireplace also must be kept in relation to its opening. There are regular tables for these measurements.

Sometimes a smoking fireplace can be corrected by a metal hood across the top of its opening. This adjusts the size of the opening in relation to the flue. Sometimes a course or two of firebricks can be added over the hearth to accomplish the same adjustment.

When a fireplace smokes while there is no fire in it, a leak between flues in the chimney may be indicated. The furnace fire may be creating a downdraft that sucks the smoke along with it.

Downdrafts from the chimney top often can be prevented by having one flue extend higher than the other above the chimney cap. Another method is to provide wites, or walls, between the flue tops and cap the chimney with a slab.

Critical Situations Causing Turkey And Greece To Enter Defense System

By JOHN FISHER

The critical situation in Iran, reports of an increase in the Bulgarian army, and possible Russian moves to counteract American pressure on Red China have stimulated the West to hasten entry of Turkey and Greece in the mutual defense system.

During the past few days preparatory consultations were held between General Eisenhower's staff and Turkish and Greek military chiefs on the best means of integrating the two nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The final decision is not expected until August. The pair may become full-fledged members or keystones in a new Mediterranean pact.

Previously the Scandinavian countries, together with Britain and France, have been reluctant to include the Balkan states in the Atlantic bastion. Exposed Norway, for example, hesitated to promise troops to help repel Bulgarians from distant Turkey. London and Paris, bound by treaty to support Ankara if attacked, thought this pledge was sufficient guarantee.

Washington, however, has lately favored NATO membership for Turkey and Greece. Last month a delegation of Ankara statesmen at Strasbourg demanded full partnership in the collective security system.

Turkish borders touch Russia, Iran, Bulgaria and Iraq—each a war danger spot. The delegates warned the Allies that the fall of their country could mean the immediate loss of the Middle East with its oil, the blockade of Europe's lifeline to Asia, the outflanking of Greece and Yugoslavia and Russian armed forces on the Italian frontier.

Turkey Deserves Recognition As Power

Security is not the only reason why Ankara wants to be an equal partner in the protection of Europe. Pride is a factor. Because Turkey has one of the best armies on the Continent, her statesmen argue that this strength entitles her to be considered a world power. The Turks are super-sensitive over outside control. London at one period hinted that Turkish land forces be placed under the British Middle East Command. But Ankara rejected the suggestion, pointing out that the only foreign command it would accept would be the U. S. A.—as in Korea.

Even Americans are not entirely trusted by our suspicious friends. American officials distributing aid have discovered that their residences had been ransacked by the police.

Some wariness is understandable in a nation encircled by deadly enemies and slowly emerging from the social revolution initiated in 1923 by Mustafa Kemal Ataturk. Modernization was continued by the current President, Celal Beyer, Kemal's former economic adviser, who, as the result of a free election last year, ousted from power the Peoples' Party that had arbitrarily ruled for a quarter of a century.

Military and Other Budget Needs High

Seven of every ten Turks are peasants. Until recently agriculture was very primitive. The government with the aid of American ECA funds has distributed tractors, provided better seed and taught improved fruit packaging methods. But the rapid shift to mechanized farming in some areas has created temporary unemployment among the share-croppers.

The expense of modernizing agriculture is a load on the comparatively poor country. Almost half of the national budget is required to maintain the highly efficient army. A new financial burden is the support of 120,000 Bulgarian refugees of Turkish descent, who have been expelled by the Communist government of Bulgaria. The fugitives, mostly farmers, were forced to leave their livestock and tools. Marshall Plan funds will be used to rehabilitate the outcasts on free lands donated by the state.

The brutal expulsion has aroused bad blood between Turkey and Bulgaria. Crews of Turkish ships have been refused landing permits in Bulgarian ports. Turkey also watches with mistrust the calling up of Bulgarian military reserves and the extension of service of Bulgarian troops that were to be demobilized on May 1. Border incidents by frontier guards have been reported.

The alert Turks understand that were it not for the possibility of kindling World War III, the Russians would seize the Bosphorus, one of the two Soviet outlets to European waters. The Turks stood firmly against their giant neighbor in 1945 when Moscow tried to compel them to give up the border regions of Kars and Ardahan.

Ankara vigorously opposes Communism. But Ankara has tried not to offer Stalin an excuse for intervention. It has squelched minor intrigues by hotheads who demanded the liberation of Turks in the Russian Caucasus, Turkestan and Azerbaijan.

The Communist party is outlawed. The police keep tabs on known Russophiles.

Unlike many deluded nations, Turkey has never been fooled by the phony peace movements run by Reds. Last year a set of duped liberals, fellow travelers and secret Communists organized the Peace Society and campaigned against sending troops to Korea. The police charged the leaders with "incitement to mutiny" and clapped them in jail.

The Soviet press fulminated, "If the American warmongers' Turkish underlings think that their savage police terror can insulate the Turkish people from the worldwide struggle for peace, they are mistaken." Turkish Communist exiles flooded the United Nations with petitions against home "tyranny." But the Reds are still in prison.

Turkey, at the exposed eastern outpost of free Europe, needs reassurance that she will not be forsaken should Russia move into Persia, the neighbor of both.

But the bargain is not one-sided. Western Europe, whose armies are mere fledgelings, needs the tough-fibered 40 Turkish and Greek divisions. The United States needs bomber bases in Anatolia as links with air bases in North Africa and the Mediterranean littoral.

A bomber base for U. S. planes is projected for the British island of Cyprus. Others are ready or in process of completion on the islands from which the Soviet army Greek mainland and Aegean Sea could be blitzed if it ever overran Greece and Turkey.

Military highways, airports and landing strips have been built in Turkey—many in secret locations. Planes from this chain and from aircraft carriers of the U. S. Mediterranean Fleet could threaten the soft under-belly of the Soviet Union.

Chapter 25

Marie Leighton was clad in a royal blue bathrobe with embroidered designs. He came up to Jigger with a puff of importance. "This matter of desperate urgency you had to see me about? Speak up. I can't give you much time. What's it about?"

"Art," Jigger said at once, surrendering every prepared subtlety. "Art?" Leighton looked perplexed. "But you said—"

"I lied a pack of lies. I wanted to be sure to get in to see you. Leighton's expression hardened. "And your reason?"

"Art, as I said. Those two paintings you bought recently?"

Leighton said, "Which two paintings, and what about them?"

"Two paintings done by one Eric Arenis. You no doubt remember purchasing them from the Baroque Art Gallery?"

"I remember them, yes?"

"They cost you $2500 apiece—quite a price for the work of a man you can't paint."

Leighton's eyes knifed. "Did you crash in here to tell me that?"

Jigger said levelly, "I also came to tell you about murder and a murderer. The victim: A Susan Hunter, alias Sally Woods, alias Ann Brown. The victim was one of the mistress of the man who painted those pictures you bought for five or six times their worth. And the murderer: An unknown whom I believe the artist is shielding, for a price."

Leighton was a consummate actor, or wholly innocent of any involvement. There was no reaction, nothing; just the look of a busy man being bothered.

Leighton said coldly, "And just why should I be concerned about all that?"

"The inference is as big as life, Leighton. How can a man with your gift for language miss it?"

Jigger advanced, closed some of the gap between them. Unaccountably, he was seething with anger, bloodhot. It was the pomp about Leighton; the scorn, and the sureness.

Jigger said, "I repeat it; I said Eric Arenis knows the murderer, and is getting paid to suppress what he knows. In a word, blackmail."

Leighton said unexpectedly, "You gave a name when you phoned up here—I've forgotten it?"

"Jigger Moran. Now, let's get back to the point."

"Just who and what are you?"

"I said back to the point. Talk about what brought you to a third-rate art gallery in Greenwich Village; tell me what prompted you to buy junk at ransom figures."

Leighton moistened his lips. "If this is some badger game, abandon it. I've turned a dozen confidence men over to my lawyers and my lawyers have turned them over to the police. I don't bluff. I don't frighten, and I've never paid out a nickel to escape embarrassment or notoriety."

His eyes made deliberate and careful note of Jigger's face and dress. "Now, answering your question: I collect art, all kinds, as it pleases me. It's a hobby and a relaxation, not a business. I buy what I like, and never haggle over price. I can afford not to; I pay what is asked."

Jigger asked, "You like Eric Arenis' work?"

"I bought it."

"But what did you like about it?"

"We'll not enter into a discussion of art!"

Jigger said stubbornly, "I still find it odd for a man to buy trash and pay so handsomely for it." He pointed to a wall. "A man who hangs originals by Picasso and Chagall." He crossed the room and

Sales End June 30 Unless Price Charts Sent OPS

RALEIGH — "No sale of merchandise covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 can be made after June 30 unless the Office of Price Stabilization has received a retailer's price chart and acknowledged its receipt." Director J. G. Clark cautioned merchants today.

"Ceiling prices for merchandise must be prominently displayed, and a placard attesting to OPS compliance must be posted by July 1," Clark said. He added that any merchant who had filed, but who had not received an acknowledgment should contact the Raleigh OPS immediately.

Charts were required to file by May 30. After that date, the OPS has seen all acknowledgment receipts, and is now ready to continue its selling program. The sale of goods without acknowledgment places the retailer in violation of the National Defense Production Act and subject to its penalties. An estimated 3,500 charts have been acknowledged by the OPS Raleigh office.

A recent amendment to CPR 7 relieved certain small merchants from the responsibility of filing a price chart. These merchants are not exempt from price control, and must continue pricing under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

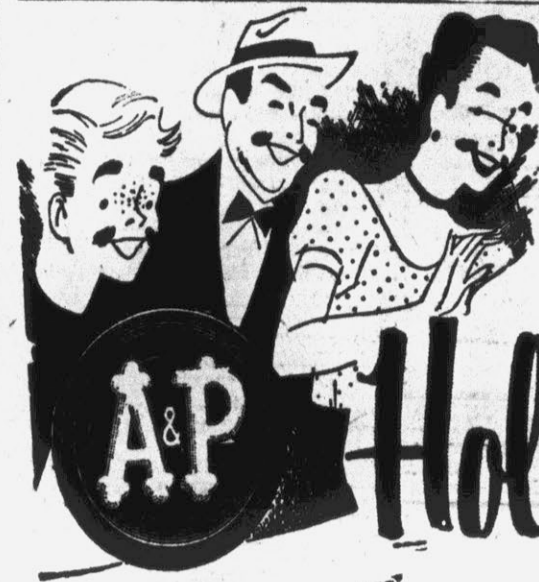

CPR 7 covers virtually all merchandise carried by department stores, furniture stores, specialty shops, jewelers, hardware dealers, and many other sellers of dry goods, soft goods and hard goods. It is compulsory for any of these three groups to file: (1) Department stores, furniture stores, specialty shops and merchants selling luggage, radio and television sets whose annual dollar volume is $20,000 or more; (2) hardware stores and jewelers whose volume exceeds $50,000 per year; or (3) any merchant in both 1 and 2 whose total volume exceeds $100,000.

Good service also requires that the store itself be clean, well stocked and well operated.

Margaret Visits Pope In Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Margaret Truman visited Pope Pius XXII today.

The President's daughter was solemnly gowned and veiled in black as she walked through the ancient and splendid walls of Vatican Palace. Accompanying her was Msgr. Martin John O'Connor, titular Bishop of Tespia and Rector of the North American College in Rome.

Swiss guards in brilliant costumes designed by Michelangelo, stood at attention and presented their ancient halberds as Margaret stepped into Clementine Hall, the first of the lofty chambers she traversed en route to the Pope's private library where she was received.

She talked with the Pope for twenty minutes.

At the conclusion of the audience, Vatican sources said the Pontiff spoke "affably with the distinguished visitor" and asked Miss Truman to give his "particular greetings and wishes" to her father and mother.

Soldiers Given Flying Practice

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The Army and the Air Force conduct "air-transportability schools." This high-sounding name is the cover for a simple project. In order to teach soldiers to overcome air sickness, they are taken for practice flights. It's working, too.

Men who climb aboard planes gingerly soon blossom into soldiers who realize that airplanes move much faster than size 12 shoes.

Much of the sickness encountered in moving troops by air had come from apprehension of the unknown, it was learned. Once soldiers got accustomed to the idea of flying, the flight was half won.

print, and hurriedly closed the file cabinet.

In the elevator going down, the glassy point inside his jacket throbbed against him like another heart.

Student Publication Reports UNC Football Cost $300,000

CHAPEL HILL.—(AP)—Football at the University of North Carolina was almost a $1,000,000 business in 1949, says the University student newspaper.

The Tar Heel publication of the University summer session, said that in 1949 when Charlie Justice led the Tar Heels to the Cotton Bowl the gross football take was $958,978.73 and that $300,000 of this was spent on the grid team that year.

Printing what it said was a balance sheet of the University Athletic Association, the student paper said in an editorial that after taxes and $220,892.60 was spent to help other sports programs, there was a profit of $90,904.19.

In a full-page editorial written by summer editor Bob Hennessee, the Tar Heel said that tutors are provided for athletes, that $12,721.59 was spent in 1949 for "scouting prospective students" and that regular student participation in athletics "is reduced to a shadow." It contended that only in intra-mural sports is there room for general student participation and "it is in this field that money should be spent."

University officials did not deny the accuracy of the figures but asserted they did not give the whole picture of University athletics. They contended that the University is taking the lead in the South in trying to curb professionalism in athletics.

They added that (1) 60 per cent of the student body participate in intra-mural sports, (2) that 1,100 students filled out eligibility cards for participation in inter-collegiate sports last year, and (3) that income from football supports the intra-mural program.

They said that tutors are provided athletes where necessary by the Athletic Association but that a recent survey showed the scholastic average of University athletes is slightly higher than the norm.

Not One Of Them Knew About Whiskey In Auto

There were six persons in the car, but not one knew anything about the gallon and one pint of "moonshine whiskey" which it was hauling, according to Patrolman D. E. Perry yesterday.

Driver of the car, Frank Johnson Green, 44, of Route 2, Greenville, was charged with transporting and possession.

The story came about this way: Perry was making a routine patrol through a rural road between the Grimesland highway and the Pictolus road, when he chanced upon a old model car.

The six defendants, four women and two men, will be tried before Judge Dink James in county court on Tuesday of next week. They were lodged in jail in default of $200 each last night.

As soon as the patrol car drove into sight, a mad scramble took place in the car and out sailed a pint bottle of illegal spirits; it failed to break, landing in the soft sandy roadbed.

Arrested were: John Barnhill, 39, Grimesland; Leven Green, 36, also of Grimesland; Alice May Langley, 23; Lizzie Hardy, 32, Greenville; Lettie Little, 40, of Washington, N.C.; and Frank J. Green, 44, of Route 2 Greenville.

Pulling up beside the car, the officer sounded his siren moving the car over and the six Negro occupants came tumbling out. It took only a quick glance to reveal one half-gallon jar of "white lightning" in the foot of the front seat and a second in the back on the floor board.

When questioned as to the owner of the whiskey, all were mute and simply declared that they didn't know anything about the spirits.

All six were transferred into the patrol car and given a free ride to the Pitt county jail, and booked on charges of possession of illegal whiskey.

Mr. John Robert May, 72, died at his home near Winterville Thursday morning at 12:20 o'clock. He had been in failing health for the past two years and critically ill for four days. Funeral services will be conducted at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Friday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev. Harold Tyer, Christian minister of Bath, and burial will be in the Winterville cemetery.

LYONS, France.—(UP)—Movie comedian Red Skelton gave "the performance of his life" last night, calm in trouble high over the Alps.

Mr. May, son of the late John J. and Georgia Ann Kittrell May, was born and spent his entire life in the Winterville community and was a farmer. He was married to Miss Mary Hardee of Pitt County on November 7, 1909. He was a member of Red Oak Christian Church.

One of the British Overseas Airways plane's four engines went out on a flight from Rome to London. About 30 minutes later another quit. A third engine was acting up and the plane's captain dumped most of his gasoline before gliding into a landing here.

Surviving are his wife, a son, David W. May of near the home; three daughters, Mrs. Jack R. Roper of Greenville, Mrs. J. Frank Harris of near Ayden, and Mrs. Dalton E. Haddock of Chapman's Crossroads; a brother Hazard May of near Winterville; two sisters, Miss Ella V. May and Mrs. Pannie Gardner, both of near Winterville; and four granddaughters.

Skelton, according to his manager B. Roos, for 35 tense minutes danced in the aisles of the airliner in some of his funniest routines to amuse the passengers who included 11 British children being evacuated from Iran.

ALBANY, N. Y.—(UP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will leave by plane early Sunday for LaGuardia field, New York, on the first leg of a 25,000-mile Far Eastern tour which may take him to the Korean battlefield.

Surviving are his wife, a son, David W. May of near the home; three daughters, Mrs. Jack R. Roper of Greenville, Mrs. J. Frank Harris of near Ayden, and Mrs. Dalton E. Haddock of Chapman's Crossroads; a brother Hazard May of near Winterville; two sisters, Miss Ella V. May and Mrs. Pannie Gardner, both of near Winterville; and four granddaughters.

The twice defeated Republican presidential candidate has said there is "absolutely no politics" involved in his trip, that he is not representing the government or anyone else, and that he is paying his own expenses.

The clerk of the Greenville Police Court has authority to write warrants for law violators in a radius of five miles from the City Hall, Judge J. W. H. Roberts stated. County officers are required to serve the warrants outside the city limits, he added.

Rams Pit Strong Team Against Locals Tonight

ROBERSONVILLE.—Robersonville's Rams will present one of the strongest and better balanced squads in eastern North Carolina when they tackle Greenville tonight on the Greenlee home field.

Testimony was that she was caught with merchandise stolen from a counter in McLellan's Store on Evans Street. An officer said the young woman lived with an aged grandmother in a rural community and that she did not spend much time at home. Judge J. W. H. Roberts said six months at the prison would "do her some good."

The Rams are led by Manager Ashley Wynne, who has been active in making the rounds of semi-pro loops for several seasons and is a wise hand at coaching.

Clarence J. Griffin, Route 2, Greenville, was not guilty of reckless driving and driving to the left of center of a highway.

Bobby Bullock, Robersonville High star and one of the smoother infielders in the scholastic Coastal Conference for the last two years, leads the team at the plate and on the field. Bullock plays second base for the Rams and has fielded many "sure hits" this season and turned them into outs. He has rapped out six homers.

Charles L. Landen, Route 5, Greenville, was given 30 days in jail for being drunk. The court suspended sentence on condition that Landen not go near the residence of B. P. Skittethorpe for 90 days.

Manager Wynne is expected to send right-hander Red Williford to the mound against the Greensies. Williford has led the Rams pitching staff through-out the season and has recorded six victories and only one defeat.

Harry Lee Jones, Route 2, Grifton, breaking, entering and larceny at Drum's Hatchery, probable cause was found. He was bound over to Superior Court under $500 bond.

More American families now own their own homes than ever before in history—53 per cent of all occupied dwellings.

Thurman Perkins, Negro, Robersonville, was fined $25 and costs for not having a driver's license.

Regular Job . . . (Continued From Page One) time and involved 26 senators and over 2,000,000 words of testimony. This one is finally finished, too, so far as hearings go.

The speeders paid court costs. They were: Johnnie L. Speight, 1107 Colanache street; Jerry B. Taylor, Jr., Route 4, Greenville. And William J. French, 100 Summit street.

The proof of congress' tardiness shows up this week, since June 30—it's Saturday this year—is always an extremely important date.

The twice defeated Republican presidential candidate has said there is "absolutely no politics" involved in his trip, that he is not representing the government or anyone else, and that he is paying his own expenses.

That's because the government does its business on a fiscal year basis, with the year beginning each July 1 and ending the following June 30.

This year congress has not passed a single one of the dozen big appropriations bills. So it will have to vote stop-gap money to keep the government running from July 1 until Congress votes the regular appropriations.

In spite of the months it had to make up its mind, congress now finds itself unable to agree just what kind of law it wants to continue after June 30, and for how long. House leaders say it can't do the job by Saturday.

They are pushing for a quickie decision to keep the law on the books as is until a new law can be agreed upon. But in the senate, there is strong opposition to such a course.

Then there's the question of taxes. Some days ago the house voted to up everyone's income tax. The Senate is starting hearings on that problem today. It probably can't get around to voting on a tax boost before September.

Nor has Congress approved yet the money for the big Foreign Aid Program, about $1.5 billion dollars, although in this case the Truman administration didn't tell congress how much it really wanted until a few weeks ago.

What Happens . . . (Continued From Page One) things were taking place at the time the Republicans and Democrats were holding their conventions to nominate presidential candidates, domestic politics would play a vital part in any decision the administration made.

There already are signs in Korea that the Chinese Reds are building up for a new offensive just in case. Some U. N. field commanders think they might strike in the next two weeks if the peace negotiations break down.

Nor is it impossible that the Communists might attack while both sides still were trying to arrange a cease-fire. Whoever has the upper hand in a military sense has the upper hand when the comes to negotiate. Right the U. N. enjoys that position; next week things may be different.
