Korean Battles Slowly Subside

War Dwindles To Little More Than Patrol Action As Military Headquarters Awaits First Truce Move From Communist Army Leaders

TOKYO—(UP)—The Korean war subsided into little more than patrol action today and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway let it be known that he is willing to entertain any request for an armistice from the enemy.

At the same time, U.S. Ambassador William J. Sebald, top State Department representative in the Far East, made an unannounced trip to Pusan, Korea, presumably in connection with possible peace talks.

Ridgway's readiness to enter into cease-fire talks with the Communist commanders was disclosed by Col. George Patrick Welch, public information officer at Supreme United Nations Headquarters.

Ridgway was reported to have conferred by transpacific telephone with Washington earlier today on the latest developments in the cease-fire situation.

It was apparent that the western powers wanted the first bid for a truce to come from the Communist side because it was the Reds who started the war by invading South Korea a year ago.

In Korea, United Nations forces engaged an enemy battalion after driving within easy artillery range of the enemy's central front supply base of Kumsong 29 miles north of the 38th parallel.

But one of the shortest 8th Army communiqués of the war reported only patrol action along the remainder of the 100-mile front.

Field dispatches said optimism over the chances of peace was replacing skepticism among allied troops. They were talking about "when" a cease-fire would come rather than "if."

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, stopped off in Tokyo on his way back from the Korean front and conferred with Ridgway. He will leave for Washington this weekend.

Sherman shrugged off questions about a cease-fire at a press conference. He said they were political and outside his field, but added that if there were no armistice, "then the war goes on."

Asked if the war would go on as before, Sherman replied: "That's a little difficult to predict."

An official spokesman said Ridgway has received no instructions on arrangements for a possible cease-fire, and had no comment to make.

A Seoul dispatch suggested UN and Communist field commanders might decide to meet in the western front no-man's-land city of Kaesong, just south of the 38th parallel and 35 miles northwest of Seoul.

Fighting on the Korean front centered on the central sector below the enemy stronghold of Kumsong, 29 miles north of the 38th parallel.

An 8th Army spokesman said UN forces driving through rugged mountains advanced nearly a mile yesterday and were within easy artillery range of Kumsong.

New Patrolmen Take Oath Today

RALEIGH—(UP)—Secretary of State Thad Eure gave the oath of office to 39 new state highway patrolmen today.

The recent graduates of the patrol school in Chapel Hill were given their commissions in the hall of the House. Gov. Kerr Scott attended the ceremony.

Good And Bad News

While Soviet Appears Sincere In Peace Move, Iran Prospects Brighten And More Arms For Tito Promised, There Are Darker Sides To Whole Picture

By HARRY FERGUSON

United Press Foreign News Editor Balance sheet for the week between good and bad news in the hot and cold wars.

Good News: 1. The Russian desire for a cease-fire in Korea seems to be a sincere one and not propaganda. Whether Moscow will insist on conditions which will make a negotiated peace impossible remains to be seen but Stalin apparently wants to take to the first step. The attitude in Washington, Tokyo and Korea has shifted abruptly in the last 48 hours. At first they were skeptical; now they favor exploring the matter further.

2. There still is a slight chance that a solution can be found to the Iranian oil crisis. Premier Mossadegh of Iran sent a letter to President Truman which could be interpreted as meaning the Iranians would welcome America using its good offices to try to settle the controversy with Britain over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. But the odds remain heavily against a satisfactory agreement.

Marshall Looking For Long Period Of High Budgets

Says U.S. Must Expect At Least Three More Years Of Costly Arms Aid

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall said today the United States must expect to maintain for "at least" three more years a multi-billion dollar level of spending for foreign military aid.

Continued American assistance in organizing the defenses of the free world "is a project of self interest for this country of the highest and most pressing urgency," Marshall said.

He testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on the administration program for $8,500,000,000 of U.S. economic and military aid abroad during the fiscal year starting Sunday.

This program earmarks $6,300,000,000 in foreign military aid alone, the bulk of it for western Europe.

While acknowledging the extent of future military aid spending would be shaped by world events, Marshall said in prepared testimony he saw no prospect now of any reduction in foreign needs before 1955.

"All things being equal, and I realize that things will not remain static," he said, "I feel that the same requirements for funds for our military assistance program will be at least the same level in fiscal year 1953 and fiscal year 1954 as is being requested for this year."

"Therefore, most of the European countries should be in full production, their initial armament well under way, with general financial capabilities to maintain such a level of defense, so that their requirements for military aid items from the U. S. can be substantially reduced."

Secretary of State Acheson had told the committee yesterday that he foresaw "two or three years" more of economic assistance—as part from arms spending—despite the prospective end of the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) in another year.

Acheson urged continuation of the machinery of ECA, whether under that name or some other, to continue the job.

Estimate Million Enemy Casualties

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Army today estimated enemy casualties in Korea at 1,185,464 through June 20, an increase of 22,964 since the previous week.

Combined Chinese and Korean Red battle casualties were estimated at 860,300 and non-battle losses at 162,103.

Enemy prisoners by actual count added 163,061 to those figures. The prisoners included 16,970 Chinese and the remainder North Koreans.

MANY JOBS, FEW TAKERS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(UP)—The University of Illinois reports that jobs outnumber teachers five to one in the mentally handicapped teaching field. The university said it will graduate 10 teachers certified under state law to teach the mentally handicapped but that it had 50 job requests.

Pace Cautions Country Against 'Going To Sleep'

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Army Secretary Frank C. Pace Jr. warned today that no matter what happens in Korea "the nation must not go back to sleep and pretend that the alarm never sounded."

Pace said that even if there should be a cease-fire in Korea it would be "ridiculous" to cut back the preparedness program.

He told the 47th graduation class of the FBI National Academy for training state and local police that "it would be as ridiculous to cut back our preparedness program in the present state of world tension as for you officers to close up shop when an outbreak of crime has momentarily abated."

"Our armed forces now being put in readiness, backed by the nation's industrial might, stand as the No. 1 officer of peace in the world today. We must keep this officer alert and ever ready to do his job."

ARRIVE IN JAPAN

TOKYO—(UP)—Comedian Jack Benny and actor Errol Flynn, heading a troop of American entertainers, arrived today on the first leg of an entertainment tour of troops in Korea.

Early Start In Pitt Tobacco-Curing

PITT'S FIRST CURING was reported this morning on farms in Falkland and Winterville sections of the county. In the above picture, workers are at work handling the first tobacco of the 1951 season to be housed in Falkland. The crop belongs to Arthur Buck, a tenant on the R. R. Stokes farm. Setting out of the crop, which was being harvested this morning, was around the first of May. Buck reported, and was believed to be one of the earliest curing dates in that section in recent years. The second report of tobacco curing came at noon today from the L. A. Ellis farm, one mile from Winterville, where a barn of tobacco belonging to Lyman Grubbs was completed today. Grubbs' crop was set out on the 25th of April. In all sections of the county the tobacco crop was reported as doing well in spite of the recent hot weather and in some areas where wind had caused considerable damage to the young crop. Police Planning Checks On Gambling Violations

Chief Langston Says Periodic Inspections Of Public Places, Clubs And Lodges Will Be Made In City

A crackdown in Greenville on possible violations of the state gambling laws was announced today by Police Chief Guy C. Langston.

Langston said police authorities will make periodic inspections of public places, clubs and lodges of the city to find out if the gambling laws are being violated.

The chief expressed the belief that infractions of the gambling laws are not prevalent in Greenville, but added that his department has received recently some complaints of slot machines and other gambling devices being harbored in the city.

Fulcher Reaches Tourney Finals

LOS ANGELES—Rodney Fulcher of Greenville survived the semifinal round last night at the National Speech Tournament at the George Pepperdine College.

He will compete in the final championship round which will be held today for the title of national champion.

More than 450 students, instructors, and parents are assembled at the tourney site and each participant is a state or district champion. Twenty-six states are represented at the tournament.

Awards to winners will include trophies in each division and 24 scholarships are being offered from 11 western universities.

Wednesday the group toured Los Angeles and vicinity. They visited movie studios, radio and TV centers, and lunched at Farmer's Market.

The National Speech Tournament is being sponsored by the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Suspected Bootleg Car In Wild Chase; Eludes Chief

GRIMESLAND—An elusive automobile believed to be carrying bootleg whiskey headed for either Ayden or Kinston. At Black Jack, Wright out-manuevered the fleeing car. At the supposed bootleggers veered off to the Black Jack-Greenville road. Wright again blocked the car's anticipated move toward Kinston at the intersection of the Greenville-Winterville road, and the black Mercury headed back toward Black Jack and then on into Grimesland.

"I sounded my siren at least 12 times during the chase back to Grimesland," Wright told The Reflector, "but every time I did, the car pulled over to the left hand side of the road to keep me from getting up beside him."

When the car reached Grimesland, it headed for the river road and went back in the direction of the chase, the chief said. He was reasonably sure the automobile carried a load of bootleg whiskey.

The U. S. ambassador made clear that the premier would not budge an inch on the nationalization program.

Senate Approves Limited Controls

Lawmakers In 16-Hour Session; Value Of Bill Doubted

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A quarrelsome Senate today approved a controls bill which permits rent increases and bans rollbacks on some manufactured items.

Despite passage of an eight-month extension of the Defense Production Act, the Senate faced the likelihood of having to approve a House-backed 31-day extension of the present law. It expires at midnight tomorrow.

The Senate vote was 71 to 10 near the end of a 16-hour session, longest of the year. The Senate quit at 4:02 a.m.

The administration claimed the Senate bill would be disastrous to the economy, lead to black marketing in meat, and injure the mobilization drive.

The House stop-gap measure would continue present controls through July 31 and also federal rent control, but would ban any further price rollbacks during the period. Some manufactured items are due to be rolled back in July.

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D-SC) of the Senate Banking Committee said today by a firing squad.

Crack Passenger Train Plunges In Creek; 2 Killed

MODE, Ill.—(UP)—The "Meadowhawk" streamliner plunged 100 feet into a creek early today, killing two crewmen and injuring at least 20 persons.

The train, operated by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad, was carrying 75 passengers on a southbound run from Chicago to Cypress, Ill.

A 30-foot-high earthen fill gave way beneath the train as it approached the trestle over Brush Creek a mile northwest of here. The fill was weakened by a four-inch rainfall during the preceding 24 hours.

As the right-of-way collapsed beneath it, the engine plummeted into the creek and turned over, dragging the baggage car and the train's three coaches down the embankment.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Here are some of the main points to keep in mind as the talk about peace in Korea gets more complicated.

In November, 1943, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in Cairo with Chiang Kai-shek when the Generalissimo agreed, when Japan was whipped, Formosa should be given back to China. The Japanese had taken it from her in the war with China in 1895. Later the Chinese Communists won control of China.

Chiang and the remnants of his troops fled to Formosa. The Chinese Reds wanted the island. They claimed to be the only rightful government of China and therefore said they were entitled to it.

This country hasn't recognized their government. And when they got into the Korean fighting, they threw a fleet around Formosa to keep the Communists from getting it.

And, although the Chinese Reds demanded a seat in the United Nations, on the same grounds that they were the rightful government of China, we opposed them there

Gen. Ridgway 'Instructed' On Negotiation Of Truce

Last Session For Mayor Stafford

Reminds Aldermen They Have Room For Pride In Condition Of City's Finances; Bids Farewell In Brief Meeting

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR. Last night's year-end aldermen meeting consisted for the most part in the transfer of verbal bouquets from the mayor to the board and back again.

Holding his last meeting with the nine members of the board, eight of whom will retain their seats next Monday, Mayor W. S. Stafford made a short and informal farewell speech. He thanked the members for their services under him since he took office in 1949, but reminded them they have a responsibility that is not to be taken lightly.

"I do appreciate the honor of being your mayor for the past two years," he said. "We've had our ups and downs, but I think we've united 100 percent now. And if I can help you in any way in the future, I'll still be in Greenville—I'll be available."

He reminded them that "you're still in the black" concerning the city's finances and "that's a job you can be proud of. And you'll be in the black beginning the next fiscal year."

Concerning future expenditures, he touched on the funds to be got from the Powell street bill. "You have some money coming in next fall, about $50,000 or $60,000, and you can make good use of it."

Alderman James S. Jenkins responded for the board, moving that the members go on record thanking Mayor Stafford for his services during the past two years.

Alderman Heber Tripp asked that the board also go on record thanking alderman W. M. Pollard for his services. Pollard will leave the board Monday after his opponent in the recent election, Robert L. Smith, is sworn in.

The mayor also paid tribute to city attorney R. B. Lee. "Gentlemen, you don't know what a prize you have in that man over there," he said, pointing to Lee.

The only business transacted during the half-hour meeting concerned the installation of parking meters on the west side of Washington street between Fourth and Fifth Streets. A petition was presented to the board, signed by merchants and home owners in that block. The police department will install them shortly.

A proposal to air-condition the city offices in the municipal building was referred to the building and grounds committee for further study.

Stafford stated he was against it because although they "do get pretty hot, I think you can spend the city's money for better things."

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government today sent Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway general instructions on negotiation of a cease-fire in Korea.

Just what they are was not disclosed in the official word given out here. But informed sources in London said they had the support of all the 16 United Nations with fighting forces in Korea.

The move pointed to some early action—perhaps within hours—to determine whether a truce can in fact be arranged.

In Korea itself, fighting had largely died down under a wave of cease-fire talk. There was some patrol and air activity but the front on the whole was quiet.

Ridgway was at his Tokyo headquarters but there were rumors he might leave for Korea at any time.

William J. Sebald, U. S. diplomatic chief in Japan, flew to Pusan, Korea, and conferred for more than an hour with John J. Muccio, the U. S. ambassador to Korea.

A spokesman for the South Korean government, Clarence Rye, said he felt the shooting war would stop within "the next few days."

The South Koreans were unhappy, however, over the prospect of a cease fire along the 38th parallel—the old border between north and South Korea. Their legislature adopted unanimously a resolution opposing it.

In Congress here, there was also some opposition expressed to a cease-fire on the old border.

The official announcement that instructions had been sent to Ridgway, the United Nations commander in Korea, was made by Robert A. Lovett, Deputy Secretary of Defense.

Lovett gave no information about those instructions, but did say Ridgway would have to report back to Washington on any proposed terms for ending the fighting.

President Truman held a meeting with his cabinet—a usual thing on Friday. Presumably, the Korean situation had a high place in their discussions but the White House declined to discuss the peace outlook in any way.

Despite the general hope, some American officials were still taking a finger-crossed attitude.

Some state department officials have been skeptical of the cease-fire suggestion from the moment it was advanced last week end by Jacob Malik, the Russian delegate to the United Nations.

Lovett, in telling a news conference instructions had been sent to Ridgway, took occasion to say also that he feared any relaxation by the United States would confront the nation with an appalling situation.

He said it may be that relief from pressure in Korea, if the fighting is stopped there, may make it possible for the communists to exert pressure elsewhere in the world.

Regardless of a cease-fire in Korea, the tensions in the world add up to a dark picture, Lovett said.

And, calling for continued preparedness, he said the U. S. would most certainly be courting disaster if the United States let the Soviet poliburo write the American defense program.

Lovett was uncertain whether Ridgway had actually received his instructions.

Classes 5 & 6 of Reedy Branch Church

Churches of Christ, Scientist
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches next Sunday will be "Christian Science."

The Golden Text is from Habakkuk (2:14). "The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Selections from the Bible include: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you." (John 15:16)

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "The time for the reappearance of the divine healing is throughout all time, and whosoever layeth his earthly all on the altar of divine Science, drinketh of Christ's cup now, and is anointed with the spirit and power of Christian healing." (p. 55)

Youthful Workers Club
The regular meeting of the Youthful Workers Club was held on the Red Oak clubhouse lawn Monday night, June 25, at 8 o'clock.

The meeting was called to order by our vice-president, Douglas Allen, by singing "Why Should He Love Me So?" and "Whispering Hope." Devotion was directed by Mrs. Lawrence Tyson reading from the 2nd chapter of Ruth, 1-10 verses, after which she read a beautiful poem, "My Favorite Book." Mrs. Leota Tyson read us the letter received from U.S. Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune, thanking our club for our entertainment and refreshments provided the patients on Sunday, June 3rd.

Minutes of our last meeting were read and approved. Roll was called with 18 members present. Treasurer's report was given with $108.02 in treasury. Collection taken was $23.33.

Mrs. William Tripp made a motion that Francis Cassick would be our historian, starting a scrap book of the history of our club. Francis Cassick made a suggestion that we send a boy or girl to a week of summer conference. Mrs. Leota Tyson suggested that since it was too late to send one this year that we give $5.00 to Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Edwards to help finance their conference at Montreat, which they will attend June 29-July 3rd. A committee of Mr. Lawrence Tyson, James Tyson, Mrs. Leota Tyson and Naomi Edwards was chosen to get three speakers to talk for us at a three-night study to help the people in the community to be better leaders. Lawrence Tyson made a motion that our club sponsor the International Youth for Christ Rally at the earliest possible date provided it does not interfere with Red Oak and Piney Grove Church revivals. The club adjourned by joining a friendship circle and singing together "In to My Heart."

Joyce Corbett Feted at Bridge

As a prenuptial courtesy extended to Miss Joyce Corbett, Mrs. Raymond L. Smith and Mrs. Don Melton entertained at bridge on Tuesday evening at the Melton home on East Third Street.

The home was attractive with varied arrangements of summer flowers. The mantel in the living room was decorated with verbena and ivy and centered with a large heart of net scattered with sprays of verbena. A miniature bride and groom centered the heart.

During the games Coca-Colas and mints were served and later in the evening the hostesses served ice cream, bridal cakes and nuts. During the refreshment hour the tables were centered with white candles and from each candle, streamers of green satin ribbon extended to miniature brides and grooms at the four corners of the tables.

Miss Mary Eakes was winner of the high score prize, also the floating prize for little slam bid and made. The second high went to Mrs. Henry Andrews Jr.

Two Students at ECC With Youth Caravan

Two students at East Carolina College are serving with the Methodist Youth Caravan this summer. Waylon Upchurch of Sanford will spend seven weeks in South Carolina and Charles Cherry of Stokes will be in Tennessee and Georgia. Both students are active members of the Wesley Foundation.

Mr. Upchurch is president and Mr. Cherry vice president for the coming year. Both received intensive training for a period of ten days at the Methodist Youth Caravan Training Center at Lake Junaluska and are giving their service through the church for seven weeks, working with pastors of local churches in the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

These two students are serving with teams of four students and a counselor. Ninety similar teams are giving their services this summer in every section of the United States under the Methodist Youth Caravan.

Books For Gardeners

Gardening books are now available through the Sheppard Memorial Library.

All kinds of gardening—indoor and outdoor, flower and vegetable, landscape and orchard—are told about in these books, and can be procured by contacting the library or by giving a request to the bookmobile librarian. A list of these books is on file at the Sheppard Memorial Library for use in selecting titles. This list contains over two hundred titles beginning with Abbott's The Indoor Gardener and ending with Zim's Guide to Familiar American Wild Flowers.

These books are the first in a plan whereby the public libraries of the State will cooperate in an inter-library loan plan to have a wide variety of books in fields of particular interest to the people of N. C. made available on a state-wide basis. The Rowan Public Library, Salisbury, is building the collection on gardening and landscape gardening and will lend these books to other libraries in the State.

Other lists of books thus available will be ready soon and include such fields as textiles, citizenship and government, art, family life and the home, architecture, and books by and about the Negro. News of these lists will be announced when they are ready.

The Sheppard Memorial Library urges the people of Pitt County to make full use of this new service. The Library will make arrangements for the borrowing of the books on Gardening and Landscape Gardening from the large collection now owned by the Rowan Public Library.

Ninety boys and girls have already registered for the Tom Sawyer Reading club and registration for membership will go to the end of the week. One member of the club has read eight of the ten books which is required to receive a reading certificate.

Susan C. Smith, librarian, conducted the first of the Thursday afternoon story hours at the library. She read selection from "Tom Sawyer", which included the incident on painting the fence, to 39 boys and girls. Children do not have to be members of the Tom Sawyer Reading Club to attend the story hours.

Arrangement can be made at the library to secure books which are not on the library shelves. Books can be secured through an interlibrary loan by contacting the librarian for a request.

Sound Of Blanks Caused Alarm

The sound of shooting of firearms on the 1200 block of West Fourth Street last night was from blank cartridges fired by Negro volunteer firemen in timing races.

Barkley Warns Of 'Booby Trap'

ATLANTA—(AP)—Story-telling Vice-President Alben Barkley issued a solemn warning against "booby trap" peace proposals here last night. Jovial and serious by turns, the Kentuckian told more than 750 Methodists attending the North Georgia Methodist Conference: "We're anxious for peace. We're willing to explore any and all genuine, bona fide peace efforts—but we must not be caught in a booby trap which will destroy the very ideals we cherish."

Cox - Norris Vows Spoken In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Eleanor Lewis Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Key Norris, became the bride of James Karl Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dal Cox of Greenville, in a formal candlelight ceremony June 20 at 5 o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, fern and smyrnagosa. Seven branch candelabra illuminated the chancel.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Paul A. Toll, church organist. She accompanied Miss Barbara White of Greenville, who sang "I Love Thee" and "If I Could Tell You." As the benediction she sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight satin with a yoke of Rosepoint lace and sleeves ending in calla lily points. Her full skirt ended in a circular train. She wore a three tiered veil of nylon illusion which fell from a bandeau of seed pearls and Rosepoint lace. She carried a nosegay of white starlight roses, showered with lilies of the valley and centered with white purple throated orchids.

Miss Joyce Day of this city and Spartanburg, S.C. was maid of honor. She wore a mint green dress with a strapless lace bodice and nylon net skirt over taffeta. The yoke was a detachable bertha outlined with lace. She wore a matching net bandeau and mitts. Her nosegay of shasta daisies and baby's breath was tinted in pastel colors and edged in lace with streamers in colors to match the daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Cox, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Ruth Page of Greenville. They wore dresses of mint green of the same design as that of the maid of honor with Juliet caps of nylon net. Their nosegays were of pastel daisies and baby's breath.

Walter G. Roberson of Enterprise, Alabama, attended the groom as best man. Groomsman were Tommy Cox, brother of the groom, Bobby Fleming, William McLawhorn and Francis Jordan, all of Greenville. Mrs. Norris chose for her daughter's wedding a Nile green silk dress with matching elbow length gloves of nylon net. She wore a half hat of Nile green silk and net and a lavender orchid corsage.

Mrs. Cox, the groom's mother, wore a dress of pink lace with matching elbow length gloves and a dutch cap of pink horsehair braid and net. She wore a lavender orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home in Hillsdale for the bridal party and out-of-town guests. Mrs. Francis A. Jordan greeted the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line which was composed of parents of the bride, parents of the groom, the bride couple, the bride attendants, and Rev. Leon Russell. Receiving at the dining room entrance was Miss Evelyn Latham. The bride's table was covered with a green organdy cloth over satin and was centered with an arrangement of mixed white flowers in a silver bowl, on each side of which were three-branched silver candelabra holding white candles tied with white satin ribbon, baby breath, and fern. Pouring punch was Mrs. R. E. Hood, aunt of the bride. Serving bridal cakes was Miss Eloise Sanders of Sanford. Assisting in serving outers, mints, and cheese straws were Miss Frances Bendall, Mrs. Frank Pratt, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Don Melton and Mrs.

Mamie Harris. Showing the guests into the gift room was Miss Ruth Williamson. Miss Jayne Alexander presided by the bride's book.

After the reception, the bridal couple departed for a wedding trip to the western part of the state. For traveling, the bride wore an original suit of champagne silk shantung with matching hat of candy straw and dashia linen shoes and bag. Pinned on her shoulder were the orchids from her bouquet.

Mrs. Cox was graduated from Greenville High School and attended East Carolina College.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Greenville High School and was a student at East Carolina College until his entrance in the Navy in January 1951. He has recently completed Dental Technician School at Great Lakes Naval Training Center in Illinois. He is now stationed in San Diego, California, where the couple will make their home.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hood, Goldsboro; Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hardy, Maury; Dr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Cox, Mrs. Estella Cox and Jetta Cox, Durham; Mrs. Jesse Cayton, Mr. William Cayton, Blounts Creek; Mrs. John Collins, Hamlet; Mr. W. E. Norris, Greensboro; Mrs. H. G. Davis, Rocky Mount; Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Moyer, Miss Charlotte Williams, Farmville; Mr. Boyd Elliot, Thomasville; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Roberson, Enterprise, Ala.; Miss Joyce Day, Spartanburg, S.C.; Mrs. R. E. Butner, Mrs. Lloyd Mills, Miss Scarlotte and Charlotte Mills, Kinston.

Sees No Crossing Formosa Straits

TOKYO —(AP)— Adm. Forrest P. Sherman said today neither the Chinese Reds nor the Nationalists could launch a successful invasion across the Straits of Formosa at this time.

At a news conference, the U. S. Chief of Naval Operations said, "as of now, I don't think either side has the ability to cross the Formosa Straits and make it stick."

He pointed out that the U. S. Seventh Fleet is protecting Formosa from any Communist invasion. Sherman refused to be drawn into a discussion of the Russian proposal for a cease-fire in the Korean war.

"I don't intend to discuss political events in this cease-fire talk," he said. "I don't think the Navy has been greatly strengthened in the last year. xxxv are a much stronger military power than we were when the war started."

More Arrests Of Young Girls

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)— Senior Policewoman Norma Carson reported today that arrests of girls under 21 increased more than 35 per cent in this city in the first five months of 1951 as compared to the same period last year.

"Undoubtedly the unsettled conditions of a world torn by conflicts and harassed by war threats account for the apparent upsurge in girl delinquency," Mrs. Carson said.

Reuther, Lewis In Word Battle

DETROIT —(AP)— Question: If Walter Reuther is a "pseudo-intellectual nit-wit," then what is John L. Lewis?

Answer (from Reuther): An "embittered, petulant and argumentative minor public figure." That's how the battle of the invectives between the two rival labor leaders stood today as the smoke cleared from Reuther's counter-blast.

Independence 'Pays Off' For Handicapped Veteran

MANCHESTER, N. H. — "No matter what a fellow already has done for his country, the world does not owe him a living. He has to go out and get it, himself." The speaker is James H. Day, former First Sgt. Day—who gave these things to his country: His right arm below the elbow. Two of his left-hand fingers and most of his ability to use that hand.

His right eye. Much of his ability to hear (he must wear a hearing aid). In addition, he suffered multiple wounds to chest wall, abdomen, nine operations and 14 months in seven hospitals.

Before the war, Day had worked his way through the mechanical engineering course of the University of New Hampshire. But he had never had a chance to get an engineer's job. So when he sought vocational rehabilitation, he had no experience. Prospective employers questioned the capacity of this man with war-broken body, but unquenchable spirit, to handle delicate drawing instruments. They doubted his ability generally to perform some of the duties required of an engineer.

After Veteran's Administration training, he was placed with the Textron, Inc., plant in Manchester, in the spring of 1950. In less than a year, he moved up from draftsman to plant engineer. He has a home, a wife, a baby.

His boss at Textron describes Jimmy Day as almost unbelievable: "He tells us that he can do certain things and we almost do not believe him; but he goes ahead and does them just the same." Jimmy Day once was a gymnast. He is proud that despite his injuries he still can do a forearm stand.

Mrs. Sloan Simpson O'Dwyer enrolled in courses at the National University of Mexico. The ambassador will practice advance Spanish and Mrs. O'Dwyer will study Mexican culture.

Home From War

Sgt. James Richard Carr, son of Policeman William M. Carr, and Mrs. Carr, 413 East Second Street, who had been in Korea nearly a year, is spending his furlough here. He is a member of the Eighth Company, First Shore Party Battalion, U. S. Marines. He left with his outfit for Korea last July 14. He was a heavy equipment operator and had some exciting experiences.

The Greenville Marine returned to the States May 26. His transport landed at Treasure Island, California. He has a 42-day furlough. When his furlough expires he will be stationed at the Marine base at Camp Lejeune. Carr had his boot training at Parris Island, S.C. Later he was stationed at Camp Thornton, near Ocean Side, California.

lookout for scare rumors which are designed to cause unrest, but likewise they must guard against hate rumors designed to pit one racial group against another, and eventually lead to open violence.

American people as a whole are extremely gullible, and are sure suckers for a good story . . . true or untrue. This weakness is the one at which the anti-American forces are making their most vigorously thrusts.

Another Blow To Tar Heel Racketeers

North Carolinians may be in for another eye-opener on the rackets business of the state as the internal revenue authorities push their investigation of tax returns of North Carolina racketeers.

Edwin Gill, collector of internal revenue for North Carolina, has announced "substantially more than 150 cases of reputed racketeers" already are under investigation in the state. More are to come in the future.

Here in the Tar Heel state, the majority of the citizens have felt that rackets and racketeers were practically non-existent. Revelations during the past year, however, have brought to light more and more incidents in which illegal businesses are being operated at the expense of North Carolina citizens.

It is going to take the concerted efforts of all the law enforcement agencies of the state to prevent the spread of the rackets into new localities, and to put out of business the ones which already are in operation. If the federal revenue authorities vigorously pursue their investigations of the tax returns of racketeers, it will be a big factor in bringing the law-breakers into the courts.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
 YES, PONDER IT
 Generous people are always making paradoxical statements. They often say that the only things they really have are the things they have given away.
 This does sound paradoxical, doesn't it? Some years ago a man gave a dormitory to a missionary college in Asia, and then seven times came upon him and he was almost in want. But he never regretted what he had done. "The only thing I have today," he said, "is that building I gave to the missionary enterprise. That is a real possession in the inmost regions of my heart. I carry it on the asset side of the ledger."
 Many devout Christian believers are tithers, that is, they give one-tenth of their incomes to the Lord's work. And among such people there is a radiant spirit of happiness, an absence of fear concerning the future, and a deep sense of gratitude for the blessings that fill their lives. These people never think about the sacrifice involved in giving; they think only about the satisfactions which derive from giving. Gain for them is not what they save or what they personally enjoy—gain for them is what they give away.
 We can see from this that the Christian gospel turns the standards of the world upside down. It is not what we get that makes life significant, but what we give. Ponder that.

More Health Protection For Your Family

Pitt County citizens should take advantage of the immunization clinics offered during the next five weeks by the county health department.
 The larger the number of county people who attend the clinics and take the immunization shots for typhoid, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, the better protected Pitt County will be from the possibility of an epidemic.
 Even though the clinics are designed primarily to fill the needs of the small children and youngsters of the county, the adults likewise could profit by taking the immunization shots particularly for typhoid and tetanus.
 The services are being offered free to the people of the county by the health department. The money to pay the bill is coming from the taxes paid by all the people of the county. The clinics are being conducted in the various localities to make it convenient for all the people of the county to attend.
 Don't neglect the opportunity to protect your family against these diseases, and at the same time help insure better health for the county as a whole.

Think About That Rumor You Heard

That rumor you heard a few minutes ago may have been planted by some un-American group in the hopes that you would pick it up and spread it to one of your neighbors. Think about that choice morsel of gossip before you pass it on to someone else.
 The communist organization in the United States has as one of its principal objectives that of creating unrest among the people as a whole, and mistrust and hatred between the various groups and races of people in the nation. For the most part, the American people are playing right into the hands of the communists by not stopping to think.
 The people in Greenville and Pitt county are just as vulnerable to rumors as people anywhere in the nation. A few weeks ago when a large firecracker was thrown from an automobile in Greenville, the rumor quickly spread that the explosion was caused by a bomb dropped from a plane.
 The rumor not only spread through Greenville and Pitt county, but had spread over practically the whole eastern half of the state in a matter of hours.
 Last new year's day in Birmingham, Ala. someone began the rumor that city's water supply had been poisoned. The lie spread like wildfire. Telephone switchboards were jammed, calls flooded the fire, police, city officials and water-works department of the city. And all the callers received the same answer: Birmingham's water supply is perfectly pure. But it is just another example of how rapidly rumors spread.
 The people must not only be on the

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR

FORT JACKSON, S. C.—(On two weeks active duty with the Army Reserve)—Last night at the Officer's Mess I happened to eat at the same table with Addison Hosea, a Captain in the Army Reserve who is here on a two-week tour of summer training. In civilian life Addison is the Episcopal minister in Clinton, N. C.
 Since I have realized for many years that many people fall asleep in church, I decided on the spur of the moment to ask Addison the minister's opinion of the sleeping member of the congregation.
 "Well," he said, "I've been lucky. As yet I haven't seen anyone asleep in my congregation. Of course I've only been preaching two years and I have a very small congregation. But I can tell you the story about the preacher and the sleeper. As the story goes, the minister complained in a roundabout way to a member of his congregation who had been sleeping regularly. The sleeper had a good reply to the complaint: 'I heard the first part of what you said and it sounded good. From there on I trusted you implicitly to say the right thing.'
 Then I asked Addison about his stock of sermons, and discovered that a preacher refers to their stock of sermons as being "in the barrel." From two years of preaching, Addison has only ten in the barrel. He explains that the others might have been good at one time they were delivered, but they applied to that time only. Others weren't exactly up to what he wanted, and they went to file 13. Therefore, he has only 10 that he will use again.
 It takes Addison about eight hours to prepare a sermon. He preaches from an outline, and never has his sermon written down word for word. The Episcopal Church has a series of lessons assigned for every Sunday, which Addison uses as a guide. After using this as a guide, Addison picks a subject of his own if the assigned lesson leaves him cold.
 After picking his subject, he writes down everything that applies to that particular subject: scripture, quotations, human interest stories, and lets all of these topics settle down in his mind to perk.
 It takes about three days to get the topic down in outline form. Addison says, "If you've done your part on the sermon, brought all your thoughts to bear, the spirit will give you an additional push. As you glance at the outline during a sermon, you get the help that you need to put the point across. Quite often the result you get is something different from what you started with."
 Addison firmly believes that a sermon that strikes the congregation as being very simple is a good sermon. When a member of the congregation says, "That was a difficult sermon, and you certainly explained it well," that is no compliment to Addison. If the congregation says the sermon was simple, that means they understood it and got something out of it.
 And I thank Addison.

News Behind The News
 By RAY TUCKER
 WASHINGTON—Secretary Oscar Chapman has shown remarkable resourcefulness and persistence in his several attempts to strip the Federal Power Commission of its thirty-year-old authority to issue licenses for construction and operation of water-power projects on American rivers and their tributaries. The Denver lawyer has resorted to three different interpretations of Congressional legislation in this field.
 In opposing his claims at federal hearings and in the courts, FPC attorneys argue that a Chapman victory will vest all authority over the hydroelectric industry, insofar as it relies on water for energy, in the federal government. Neither private nor public interests, such as cities, states and cooperatives, can build one of these projects except with his approval and on his terms.
 For this reason the contest between Interior and FPC for jurisdiction gives concern to many cities and states and public groups as well as to the private utilities. In fact, several municipalities have delayed or halted construction pending future court decisions, even though the rearmament emergency requires immediate expansion of facilities.
 Both federal and private lawyers also maintain that, if Interior wins this battle for jurisdiction, the government can and may assert the same authority to control many other industries clothed with an interstate or general welfare interest.
 CONDITIONS—Interior opened the battle on a modest scale, and FPC agreed to let it enter the licensing field in a minor way. FPC did not then realize the implications of the rival federal agency's aggression, or anticipate that it would seek to supplant FPC's general authority over the nation's streams.
 Interior made its first move when the Idaho Power Company asked FPC for a license to build a power plant and transmission lines to serve communities in the Snake River section in south-central Idaho. On the ground that the power lines would cross 125 miles of public lands, former Secretary J. A. Krug demanded that the license be granted only on condition that the government be permitted to use the transmission system to carry federal power at certain times.
 When FPC agreed to include these conditions in the license, the company took the matter to court. It won in the District Court at Boise and also on appeal to the Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia. Neither FPC nor the D of J have yet decided whether they dare to carry the case to the Supreme Court.
 SIGNIFICANT—It is significant that the Krug-Chapman attempt to attach conditions simply because the private lines cross public lands has never been made before. The Idaho firm, for instance, already has lines extending over more than 600 miles of government property. Other power companies, railroads, telephone and telegraph firms, ranchers and cities have been building facilities on and across public lands for years without any similar protest from Washington.
 In view of the fact that Uncle Sam owns about 50 per cent of the territory in each of the eleven public lands states, it is obvious that judicial support of Interior's contention would transform these states into mere federal vassals.
 AUTHORITY—Interior's attempted interference with an FPC license to the Virginia Electric Light & Power Company for a plant on the Roanoke River in North Carolina represents an even more serious threat to non-federal development of public power. For here Secretary Chapman asserts that he has authority to control all power projects on 97 per cent of the nation's rivers and tributaries.
 Vepe's application is for a single-purpose power project, which falls under FPC's jurisdiction, to serve a rapidly growing community. Interior has authority over a hydroelectric development only to market power that is produced as a by-product from construction of facilities for flood control, navigation, irrigation etc.
 FPC's briefs quote the late George W. Norris, father of public power, Vice President Barkley and many other eminent authorities, including the Supreme Court, to support this point.
 Mr. Chapman, however, makes the ingenious argument that, since Congress has approved a plan for "comprehensive" development of the Roanoke Basin, all projects in that area become subject to Interior's control, even though they are intended only for production of power. FPC replies that Congressional "approval" of a general program does not constitute "authorization."
 STRATEGY—If Interior is correct, say FPC lawyers, their agency might as well go out of business. Since Congress has "approved" plans for 97 per cent of the nation's rivers and basins, and Interior now seeks to make it 100 per cent by taking in New England's river valleys, Secretary Chapman and his successors would become power czars. And they would, so FPC contends, exact public power expansion at the expense of private industry, cities, states and smaller public units. This question will be argued in court at Richmond on September 4.

Around Capitol Square

Political — New impetus was given to political gossip around Capitol square this week by Dr. T. C. Johnson's statement that he might be subject to "draft" as a candidate for congress in the tenth district. Publication of this statement not only spurred talk about other possible candidates for congress, as well as all state offices, next year, it also occasioned a good deal of comment about the political activity of the commissioner of paroles. He was quoted sometime ago as saying he might resign his post to assume management of Capus Wayne's campaign for governor—in event Ambassador Wayne elected the race. All government jobs are "political" in essence, and most officials are expected to take active part in campaigns within reasonable limits. Some positions are of such delicate nature that political activity is generally considered out of place. Majority opinion hereabouts classifies the paroles commissioner in that category, along with the commissioner of public welfare and others dealing with situations bound to be highly emotional at times.
 CONGRESS—There is certain to be a contest for congress in the twelfth district, Monroe Redden having declared he will not stand for re-election. Rumors are current every two years that Robert L. Doughton, 89-year-old representative of the ninth district will not run again. If he does using bulletin: not run next year, the field will be wide open in that district as it is now in the twelfth. There is talk about probable opposition to all the other ten congressmen from this state, much of it regarded as nothing but talk, some of it considered as serious threats to continued tenure of the incumbents. All of the North Carolina congressmen are pretty well entrenched in their districts and by reason of long tenure have acquired positions of influence in the congress. They are not unbeatable or indispensable, but it has been a long time since an incumbent congressman seeking re-election was defeated in this state.
 CANDIDATE—A new name was added to the prospective list of twelfth district candidates last week, that of Mrs. Edith Alley of Waynesville. Mrs. Alley has long been active in Young Democratic circles, local and state. Presently she is executive secretary of the Western North Carolina Tourist Association and serves also as secretary to the National Park, Parkway and Forest Development Commission. Previously mentioned as probable candidates are John Queen of Waynesville, Frank Parker and Roy Taylor of Buncome. Claude Love of Buncome, also mentioned, has been named assistant attorney general and is out of the race.
 WOMEN—If Mrs. Alley should get into the running she will be the first woman to enter the Democratic primary for congress in North Carolina. If elected she will not be the first congresswoman from the state. Miss Jane Pratt of Hoke county served for a few months in 1946 as result of a special election for which she was nominated by the Democratic executive committee upon death of Rep. W. O. Burgin. She was not a candidate for the full term, to which C. B. Deane was elected. Miss Pratt holds the honor of being the first woman member of congress from this state, although she had little opportunity to do anything since congress was in recess for practically the whole period of her incumbency.
 HEAT—The heat was really on some state offices Tuesday afternoon. It wasn't because of anything political or even because of the high temperature outside. It was because the education building, slated for completion this week, picked one of the hottest days in the year to try out the heating system. The system may not work next winter, but state employees using offices in that end of the building can testify it worked all right in June. Excessive heat in some of the offices brought dreams of air-conditioning and makes appropriate an excerpt from a recent advertisement:
 "The informers go further to say that Charles Jenkins of Aulander was named as a new member of the board because he legislature a few years ago favored the construction of Buggs Island Dam.
 Now resolutions are fine. They usually are a collection of beautiful words, well put together. But the cold facts, as far as we have been able to learn, are that Eric Rodgers has done more ACTUAL WORK in the development of the big dam than any other man in the valley. What kind of reward has the governor handed Eric?
 Eric was in favor of Buggs Island Dam. He fought hard for adequate appropriations to build it. He felt it was needed for flood control. But for power purposes alone, he has favored construction of the Roanoke Rapids Dam by a private company.
 This clearly denotes the stand of the governor. He has listened to the beautiful music of government ownership and development of the power industry sung by a well known Raleigh editor until he has joined in the chorus with a resounding tenor voice.
 Eric, we are told, has worked mightily hard on the Board of Conservation and Development. He has neglected his newspaper on many occasions to perform his duties on the board. This is his reward.
 Apparently, the dairy farmer from Haw River wants all his people to croon the public power tune. If they get out of key, the music is stopped, until a new crooner steps in.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE GOVERNOR'S STAND (Roanoke Rapids Herald)
 During the past two years, there have been times when it was hard to tell how Governor Kerr Scott stood on matters of public power versus private power. In the case of the projected Roanoke Rapids Dam, contradictory statement after another.
 Now it seems his design is about to come clear. He has given the axe to a Halifax County citizen who has been a member of the Board of Conservation and Development because he has had the conviction that VEPCO should build the Roanoke Rapids Dam and has said so.
 The only reason given in Raleigh by those supposedly in the know for the replacement of Eric Rodgers of Scotland Neck on the board is that Eric has support-

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
 Few business men these days know their actual labor costs. If a wage scale calls for $2 an hour, the average employer is inclined to believe his labor costs per hour are $2 an hour, the average employer is inclined to believe his labor costs per hour are $2 plus a few cents for social security and other extras. But they may be very much higher in reality—and this has nothing to do with occasional loafing on the job.
 Ralph B. Knott, finance expert and vice president of Fibreboard Products, San Francisco, widened a few eyes when he told the National Association of Cost Accountants in Chicago this week that hidden costs may add as much as 25 per cent to the cost of labor. He quoted one survey to show that hidden costs may be four times as great as the more obvious extras such as compensation and medical expenses.
 In addition to "straight time pay for hours worked," Mr. Knott listed 13 other direct payments to workers normally paid, including overtime premiums, shift differentials pay of trainees, rest periods and other unproductive time.
 On top of this, he cited seven benefits which add to the cost of an hour of labor, such as retirement and pension costs, unemployment compensation, vacations and holidays, medical aid workmen's compensation and company payments to group life insurance.
 That's not all. In addition he listed 19 benefits, usually considered part of overhead, but which are really additions to payroll costs. These include net losses on meals in plants, in-plant medical care, payments for time off while voting, discounts on goods purchased from the company, donations to prevent plant solicitation of employees, training courses, social activities, uniforms, and a variety of gifts to employees and families. There are other items on Mr. Knott's list; there are more he didn't list, such as the cost of maintaining personnel offices, payment for time spent airing grievances, time lost on defense drills and many others.
 It's easy to see that when an employer is carried on the books at a $2-an-hour wage, the employer may be paying $2.50 or more for every hour of proactivity he gets. The danger of ignoring the total costs of these extras is that employers may have a false picture of their costs and this can lead to disaster in bidding on contracts, planning new products or engaging in expansion.
 TRUCK CARGO THEFTS NEAR ALL-TIME HIGH
 Truck cargo thefts and hijackings are showing a sharp increase, the Cargo Protection Bureau of New York reports. Losses in 1944 totaled $55,000,000 and at current rates the loss this year will reach $65,000,000, the highest on record, the bureau says. Recent hijacking of loads of beef are tending to keep losses high.
 The bureau estimates that truck cargo thefts since the end of World War II have exceeded $250,000,000.
 COLORED APPLIANCES RISE IN POPULARITY
 Color in major kitchen appliances is gaining in popularity, manufacturers of stoves, refrigerators, washers and other utensils report. Housewives are getting away from traditional white and adding color to their interior decorations in kitchens.
 While not all manufacturers are turning out colored appliances, many are and more have plans ready for the time when pigments and other materials are less scarce.
 A recent poll of 3,000 persons showed that a pastel grey is the most popular color. Chambers Corp., Shelbyville, Ind., reports. But blues, yellows, reds and blacks are also available.
 There's still one thing holding back greater demand for color. Housewives, eyeing a range in blue aren't sure they can get a refrigerator to match when they need a replacement in a year or two.
 NEW SMALL BUSINESS: RENTING STROLLERS
 Two Decatur, Ill., housewives have gone into a new kind of business and report they are doing very well. They obtained space in a busy store and set up a stroller rental service.
 "Rent a stroller and shop the town," say their ads. Rates are three hours for 50 cents.
 PLANT EXPANSION

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK —(AP)— Would you like your little boy to grow up and be a famous comedian and earn $50,000 to $500,000 a year?
 Many a fond mother today does. And after watching television for a while, she thinks she knows how.
 "Here, Junior," she might say. "Learn how to hold these two billiard balls in your mouth and every time one of the neighbor kids says hello to you, I want you to kick his feet out from under him. Then when you are a big boy you can be a comic and earn a lot of pin money for your dear old mother."
 But Herb Shriner, the youngest and latest of Indiana's notable Hoosier Humorists, says it isn't that easy. It takes more than funny faces and prat falls.
 "The most important thing to a comic is a good memory," he said, and added wryly, "whether for your own jokes—or somebody else's."
 He didn't mean just the average parrot memory, however. If that were all a comedian required, lots of henpecked husbands would be laughing—and trying to get them into show business.
 "I could sit down and reel off 500 to 1,000 jokes probably," said Shriner. "But anyone can memorize joke books. I don't like to clutter up my mind with formula gags about fat girls or long underwear."
 Some professional comics keep thousands of the wacky wry cracks at tongue tip, ready for any situation. Shriner's stock-in-trade is some 250 carefully written monologues, centering largely around odd characters or incidents he has observed. This is where he feels a "seeing eye" memory is important.
 "Almost everything that has ever happened to me in my life has turned out to be useful for me in my work," he said. "I like the kind of humor that makes people laugh at themselves—or people they recognize—because it rings a bell of nostalgia."
 To do this he has gone back to the small town, because he feels most Americans, whether they live in city or town or on the farm, really dwell in a small community made up of the people they know.
 Some dreamers "live in a world all their own." Shriner has become successful by creating a world of his own in which anyone can share a laugh.
 "It is a mythical small town," he said, "where people looking for excitement on Saturday go over to the barber shop to watch a few haircuts.
 "There isn't any banker there, because of lack of business anybody who saves up money uses it to leave town.
 "It's the kind of town in which one fellow who found a nickel in a potato became a local celebrity. Everybody knew one politician who was elected sheriff was an honest man, because the first thing he did was to arrest the previous sheriff. Later he became postmaster, but the pay was small. He would have starved except for what he got by shaking the parcel post packages."
 This native, fun-poking brand of humor had led critics to call Shriner "the Indian Will Rogers went from rope tricks to monologues. Herb started with a harmonica, and still uses it."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
 WASHINGTON—You couldn't see the trees for the people at a cosy picnic given by a select group of government "and gals."
 Few things ever get over the heads of these G-locks, members of the Six-Six Club of Washington. The men are six feet or more tall, the women, at least five-feet-ten in their stocking feet.
 Originally formed in 1942 by two towering California lassies handering for companions with whom they could at least "see eye to eye," the group now numbers more than 30, with Al Grisard, six-foot-two, assistant to the vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, as president.
 The membership chairman, Helen Colie, a White House secretary, says that besides the height requirements six-sixers must be between the ages of 21 and 45. If married they must also be wed to a spouse of Six-Six height.
 Mrs. Colie is one of the last. She met her husband Bert Colie, who works for the National Production Authority, at a club meeting. "I was love at first sight," Mrs. Colie told me. "In fact, at least eight other marriages have resulted from friendships formed within the club. Mind you, we're not a marriage bureau. We want single members, flocks of them."
 The corresponding secretary, Miss Tina Stasunas, Wage Stabilization Board secretary from Athol, Mass., and one of the shorter members (a mere five-foot-ten), says tall people clubs are thriving all over the country. In fact, there's an American Affiliation of Tall Clubs.
 New York has two clubs, according to Miss Stasunas. They are called the Spiral and the Stratosphere Clubs. Denver has its Timber Liners. Los Angeles its Higher-Ups, Philadelphia its Tower Club, Cleveland its Sky-scrapers, Chicago its Paramount Club.
 Though the capital's Six-Six Club is not affiliated, it expects to attend the AATC's annual convention this mid-July at St. Louis, Mo., having received an invitation from Mayor Joseph M. Darst. In addition to such attractions as a tall girl bathing beauty contest, there'll be serious business meetings.
 "We've been trying for years to get manufacturers to help make longer clothes, longer beds, and other things for tall people," Miss Stasunas said. "We're making headway, especially in the clothing field. It used to be that many of us had to have our garments specially made for us."

Medical Report Halts Trial Of 'Five Percenter'

WASHINGTON —(UP)— An in- dictment against James V. Hunt, key figure in the 1949 Senate "five per center" investigation, has been dropped for fear that a trial might endanger his life.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keach dismissed the indictment after studying medical reports on Hunt. The government offered no objection.

Hunt, 52, was indicted in Janu- ary on charges that he represented private interests before the As- sets Administration in 1948 while serving as a $50-a-day consultant for the agency.

Greenies Wallop Robersonville, 11-4, With Help Of 2 Big-Scoring Farmes

Vainwright and Cobb Perform Mound Chores; Locals Start Fast And Wrap Up Victory With Five-Run Eighth Inning

Greenville walloped the Robersonville Rams last night, 11-4. The Greenies crammed the majority of their scoring into two innings, the first and the seventh, to win easily.

Four runs in the first with the aid of one hit put Greenville on the winning track. Blaine Moyer led off the inning by grounding out second to first. When the catcher missed a third strike, Brownie Tripp streaked to first, safe. Charlie Chattin walked and Larry Rhodes was struck on the head by a pitched ball, loading the sacks. Tripp scored as one of Garner Stall's deliveries got away from the catcher. Bill Phillips then hit a hard grounder through the shortstop's legs into rightfield, with Chattin and Rhodes scoring. Phillips going to second on the throwin. Phillips moved to third on a wild pitch and later scored on a long fly by Polly Williams.

The Rams tied the game up with one run in the fifth, 4-4. Earl Forbes singled and moved to second when Tom Brown singled behind him. After that he pulled a double steal, Forbes scored when the Greenies centerfielder dropped William Cherry's fly.

Greenville went ahead to stay in the fifth as they scored a single run. Brownie Tripp, who seemed to be the "cousin" of the Robersonville pitchers, reached base via being struck by a pitched ball for the second consecutive time. Bill Phillips came through with a hit of the night, a single, to score Tripp with the winning run.

The Greenies used three singles, one double, a walk, and another hit-by-the-pitcher to score five runs in the seventh. They finished up the scoring with a single run in the eighth when Hoover Avery doubled with Lou Collier on base. Julian Vainwright started on the mound for Greenville but had to have help from Seber Cobb in the fourth. Cobb was credited with the win, his first.

Sawyer 'Cracks Whip' Over His Lagging Players

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer cracked the whip over the Philadelphia Phillies today, warning them "to perk up" or suffer the consequences.

Sawyer gave an example of what the "consequences" might be by optioning Mike Gollat, the National League champions' regular second baseman in 1950, to the Baltimore Orioles in the International League.

The action disclosed the internal problems that have been hampering the Phillies in the defense of their N.L. crown.

Sawyer said the move was made to "improve the morale of the team" and accused Gollat of "resting on last year's laurels."

"I wouldn't sell that kind of player," Sawyer said. "I'll send him back to the minors and let him stay there until he realizes that we're in this game to win."

Exchange Nine Swamps Moose By 18-6 Margin

Exchange swamped the Moose, collected the pair of hits allowed to the losers.

Donald McArthur pitched the first two innings for the winners and received credit for the win. Ralph Johnson took over the hill in the third and finished the game. Roger Bullock and Francis Nunn walked to start the first inning mery-go-round. Bobby Whitehurst singled to score Bullock with the first run of the game. After Dick Evans had made an infield out, Johnson singled to plate Nunn and Whitehurst. Charles Smith walked and moved to second after George Nickols' fly was caught. Alf Forbes walked to load the bases and when McArthur's grounder was errorred by the pitcher, Johnson scored the fourth run. Bullock singled then to send Smith and Forbes home with the last scores.

Play Three Games In Softball League

Post Office edged Hill's, 3-2, yesterday to take their first win in the second half. Otto Alford went the distance to chalk up the win.

Hill's got off to a fast start, scoring two runs in the first. Post Office came back in the third with two of their own to tie the score. Farley and Roebuck walked to lead off the period. Farley scored on Dudley's outfield out. Alford was struck by the pitcher and Roebuck scored on Heath's infield out.

Louis Has Good Chance: Savold

PHOENIX (AP)—Lee Savold, in Phoenix on a short visit, says he thinks Joe Louis has a good chance to beat Ezzard Charles and regain the heavyweight championship.

St. Louis (UP)—Frank Hiller stretched out on the training table and trainer Andy Lotshaw gave him the works.

"This is the life," he stated. "This is what you get when you show 'em something."

Hiller had just stopped the St. Louis Cardinals on one hit, a slashing single from the bat of veteran Enos Slaughter which shot through the gap between third baseman Ransom Jackson and shortstop Jack Cusick. The right-hander's bid to the hall of fame was rejected.

Hiller really "showed 'em something" last night. Aside from Slaughter's hit, his 1,700th National League hit incidentally, Hiller walked the first hitter he faced—Tommy Glaviano in the first inning.

But Peanut Lowrey rifled a liner to Jack Cusick and Glaviano was doubled off first base. Slaughter, likewise, was erased in a double play in the fifth inning, as Hiller went on to face only 27 men, the very minimum. Those were the only Card base-runners.

Hiller remarked that only one other ball seemed to be hit very well, that by Wally Westlake in the eighth inning, but center fielder Hal Jeffcoat was camped under the ball, waiting for the put out.

Otherwise there was nothing that came close to resembling a safety. Hiller, who hadn't won a game since May 17 when he shut out the Brooklyn Dodgers 7-0, said that it was his fast ball and his "fork" ball that was causing the Cardinals so much trouble.

"Yeah, but you had great control out there," Spud Davis, Cubs' coach interjected. "And your change of pace had Musial entirely off his stride."

Hiller was reminded that he barely missed a no-hitter last September against the Philadelphia Phillies.

"That's right, two scratch hits, one between third and short and the other between first and second, and neither of them were hit as hard as that ball of Slaughter's," he recalled.

Sport Slants By Pap

Down in North Carolina, where the American Legion Junior brand of baseball often outdraws the professional variety, there has never been any doubt about Billy Joe Davidson being real major league timber. It was only a question of how large a bonus some big league club would pay for his signature.

And that question was answered when the Cleveland Indians signed him, the reported bonus being over the "100,000" figure.

While major league scouts trailed him from his school days, Billy Joe had indicated a decided preference for the Indians. When he was only 15, Cleveland scouts picked him up for a 10-day once-over and indicated that they were very interested. At that tender age, Davidson weighed 210 pounds and stood two inches over the six-foot mark. For all his bulk, Billy

Joe moved with the easy grace of a natural athlete. His fast one hopped and he had splendid control.

Being ineligible for further competition in junior college circles, Davidson turned to the semi-pro ranks for stiffer competition. He spent some time in the Blackstone Valley semi-pro league in Massachusetts in 1949, and last year pitched for McCall, S. C., Plymouth Manufacturing Company in the Twin State League, posting a 13-2 record and averaging 17.5 strikeouts per game. In the north Carolina Invitational semi-pro tournament, under sanction of the National Baseball Congress, Billy Joe set a record by fanning 23 batters in a single game. He is eighteen and the Army may get him but the chances are he will have at least one year in organized baseball before that happens.

They Win Despite Strategy Failure

Durocher Admits Giants May Now Go On Win Pennant On Basis Of Maneuvers That Backfired Against Bums

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
Master strategist Leo Durocher's head is full of "insid baseball", but he admitted today the Giants may go on to win a pennant on one of his grand maneuvers that backfired because Don Mueller was such a slow base-runner.

"That was the ill game we had to win," Leo said, almost strutting while sitting down as he beamed through the details of the 5 to 4 rubber victory over the Dodgers in a vital series of three. The triumph cut Brooklyn's first-place margin to five games and put the Giants at least within shooting distance and Durocher is a pretty good shooter.

But if Durocher's strategy had worked, the Giants would have lost the ball game. It was a pretty big admission, but he was happy to make it being as how things turned out the way they did.

Mueller had led off the eighth with a single and Whitey Lockman bunted safely to put runners on first and second. The Durocher strategy called for Wes Westrum to sacrifice the runners to second and third and the big catcher dropped a beauty c bunt which he might even have beat out.

But Ralph Branca, the Dodger pitcher, realizing that Mueller was slow afoot, took the ball near third and threw out Mueller on a force play. Durocher whooped loudly over the decision, which was close enough to have been called either way.

The next batter was Monte Irvin, who already had hit on homer, and he promptly blasted one up stairs into the left field seats for a three-run homer that won the ball game. But if the runners had advanced as per plan, Irvin undoubtedly would have been purposely passed.

As it turned out the next two batters, Hank Thompson and Pitcher Sheldon Jones, were easy outs. Jones, who pitched tight relief ball for three innings was the victor but the Giants had to end some faulty fielding by Thompson to win the uphill struggle. Thompson made three errors, two of which let in Brooklyn runs.

The Yank s, with their 12th shutout of the year, a collaboration catch were 70 King Mackerel, three Bonita, and ten Dolphin.

AMF JET TOBACCO CURER

Sold exclusively with the New AMF System of heat distribution

The AMF Jet Curer not only uses less oil than other curers, but burns cheaper (No. 2) fuel oil, as well. It uses a new way of getting heat from the oil it burns. Because no exhaust stack is needed, all of this heat goes into the barn. All of this heat is put to work. Leading tobacco growers have proved that the Jet Curer can cut your fuel costs from 30 to 50 percent! It is fully automatic, safe and easy to operate.

This new kind of tobacco curer is now available with a new method of heat distribution. The AMF System, built of sturdy galvanized iron and sheet steel, is flexible — to give you constant, uniform heat throughout the barn, or extra heat, instantly, to any part of the barn.

Just add up all these features — low fuel costs, automatic operation, automatic safety devices, plus clean, clear, smokeless heat — instant heat when you want it and instant heat where you want it. These are features you've always wanted. Now they are all combined into one compact unit, the AMF Jet Tobacco Curer. # King Farouk's Costlier Whims Described By Jaycees' Speaker

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR.
King Farouk has Egypt by the hair and is running the country to suit his own expensive whims. That is the gist of a few informal remarks told the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night by Herbert W. Lee, former diplomatic courier in Cairo who is home here on a two-month furlough.

Lee described the 31-year-old King's deference for gambling and non-Egyptian women, particularly the latter which fact has tabbed him as the most youthful rascal in that part of the world. His latest escapade in that direction resulted in his much publicized marriage to the 17-year-old daughter of a Turkish government official.

Concerning his gambling, Lee stated last night that gambling houses in Egypt were closed by the King because he didn't win all the time. Now he has to go to the Riviera to pursue that part of his early upbringing.

How Farouk arrived at his present state is partly the fault of the British, Lee said, although the majority of his weaknesses are his own fault. When he ascended to the throne at 16, the British ambassador had almost complete control over the conduct of the government, including the young boy's aspirations to power. And although the British still control a great many of the government's policies, Farouk, his Senate and the appointive Chamber of Deputies run the country for the most part.

The country's population is probably the poorest in the world, he said, since they work only for the benefit and profit of the landed aristocracy. Practically all of the cultivated land is in a 20-square mile part of the Nile valley.

An attempt was made a few years ago to irrigate part of the desert but the exodus of peasants into the newly-fertile land raised the cost of labor in the Nile area to such an extent that the government put a stop to it.

Concerning Farouk's tenure on the throne of Egypt, Lee stated he will remain there unless one of the many bombs thrown at him by disgruntled persons makes a direct hit. To date he has come out of three bombings unscathed.

However, he said, Farouk has given notice of his own fallibility when he proclaimed once that there are only five kings left in the world: "the king of spades, hearts, clubs, diamonds—and me."

Malik Is Host At Big UN Banquet

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (AP)—Delegates to the United Nations Security Council drank champagne and ate caviar as the guests of Jacob A. Malik last night but got no chance to question the enigmatic Russian on his Korean trip.

Malik had been in retirement since he made the suggestions in a radio broadcast last Friday. He emerged to entertain his fellow members at a dinner marking the end of his June presidency of the council.

He looked pallid and peaked, but persons attending the dinner said he was a jovial and affable host. The dinner at New York's swank Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was strictly a social occasion, guests said, with no discussion of Korean peace moves.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb attended, but so far as could be learned, did not have a chance to follow his government's instructions to ask Malik to clarify those suggestions. Acting chief delegate Ernest Gross represented the United States.

Youthful Gunman Changes His Mind

REVERE, Mass.—(UP)—Variety store proprietor Virginia Saccone, 70, and his wife were terrified late last night when a youth entered their store and drew a pistol.

"Don't be alarmed," the gunman said. "I was going to hold you up, but I guess I won't. I feel sorry for you."

The youth, who was later identified as a 19-year-old boy, was released after a brief detention. He is now being held in a juvenile detention center.

Man With No Country Again To Be Deported

NEW YORK—(UP)—Bald Frank Russo, a "man without a country" who has been riding on a transatlantic merry-go-round for 12 years, waited today for deportation to Italy for the fifth time.

The 44-year-old Russo's troubles began in 1938 when he tried to avoid a sentence to a Florida chain-gang by protesting that he was a native Italian and should be deported.

After a year in Italy, Russo became homesick. He stowed away in 1941 to New Orleans where he was seized and taken to Ellis Island.

He was released after arrested a year later as an enemy alien. Shortly thereafter he was freed and signed up as a merchant seaman. But in 1945 Russo again was taken into custody and deported.

Russo came back as a stowaway three years later and was detained on Ellis Island for 10 months before being kicked out of the country for the third time in February, 1949.

Ellis Island officials got another look at Russo's swarth features in late December 1950 when he again smuggled himself into America. After detaining him six months, they shipped him back to Italy last May 28. But Italian authorities would not permit him to get off the SS Italia, and back he came yesterday.

U. S. immigration authorities made him stay aboard the ship. They believed the Italian government would accept him when he goes back again. Russo hoped so, too.

House Probers Trailing Mysterious 'Chemist'

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The House un-American Activities Committee today went sniffing down the 15-year-old trail of shadowy chemist David Zimmerman—or was it Carpenter—and the mysterious black box he allegedly kept in a friend's apartment.

Somewhere along the trail was confessed Communist spy courier Whittaker Chambers, who produced microfilms of State Department documents from a pumpkin in the sensational case that sent State Department aide Alger Hiss to prison for perjury.

The committee which will meet again July 9, wants to find Zimmerman and ask him if his black box held Chambers' photographic equipment.

This unexplored backwater of the Chambers story was mapped out yesterday by surprise witness William Spiegel, 42, a Baltimore novelty manufacturer.

Spiegel, startling even the committee members, said a friend, David Zimmerman, paid him $20 a month in 1936 to use his downtown Baltimore apartment in the daytime, while Spiegel and his wife Anna were away at their jobs.

Spiegel said he thought Zimmerman was a paint chemist who wanted a quiet place to work on a novel.

Zimmerman left a black box, about the size of a "two-sutter" suitcase, in Spiegel's spare closet for one to three months. Spiegel said he never hefted the case or saw the inside of it. He never saw any signs that Zimmerman worked in the apartment with either typewriter or camera, and never saw his friend again after he removed the black box.

A committee spokesman said the name of David Carpenter was mentioned throughout the Chambers case, but Carpenter has never been identified. He suspected that David Zimmerman might be—in translation from German—David Carpenter.

Zimmerman brought a friend to the apartment a few times on social calls, Spiegel said. The friend, a fat, round fellow with bad teeth, was known to him as Carl Schroeder—but before the committee Spiegel identified Schroeder from pictures as "to my best recollection" Whittaker Chambers.

Farm Leaders In Support Of Levy

RALEIGH—(AP)—A plan to put a small tax on fertilizer and feed sales to promote agricultural research has the backing of the state's farm leaders.

Research funds under the plan would be obtained by an extra five-cent per ton feed and fertilizer fee.

Tar Heel farmers will vote on the plan in a statewide referendum Nov. 3 the agricultural leaders were told in an N. C. State College meeting yesterday the election will be conducted on a plan similar to that used the electing county PMS committeemen.

The N. C. Farm Bureau Federation, the State Grange, and the Agriculture Foundation at State College will conduct the referendum.

Speakers who backed the fund raising idea here included President Gordon Gray of the consolidated University of North Carolina, Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, Dean J. H. Hinton of State College's School of Agriculture, and Tom Pearsall of Nashville, president of the Agricultural Foundation.

Not Open Season For Helicopters

COVENTRY, R. I.—(UP)—It's not open season on helicopters, police warned today.

They said they confiscated a 12-gauge shotgun from Mrs. Anna Zommer, 62, who allegedly fired it twice at a helicopter that disturbed her as she tried to rest. The shots missed.

More than five and a half million non-farm homes in the United States have no flush toilets.

U. S. Industrial Leader Succumbs

NEW YORK—(UP)—Leroy A. Wilson, 80, who worked his way from a $27.50-a-week traffic clerk to a $126,000-a-year post as president of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., died yesterday following a long illness.

He was admitted to Presbyterian Hospital two weeks ago and Cleo F. Craig Wednesday was named acting president.

Wilson succeeded Walter Gifford in 1948 as president of the world's largest corporation, which included the vast Bell telephone systems, and at the age of 47, became one of the nation's youngest top executives.

AT&T rewarded him with its highest office for his energetic work as a vice president in expanding and extending telephone service following World War II.

Wilson saved money he had earned on a newspaper route in his native Terre Haute, Ind., and on mine, bridge and highway jobs in the summers to pay his way through Rose Polytechnic Institute.

He turned down more flattering salary offers from engineering concerns in 1922 to take a job with Indiana Bell Telephone Co. at $27.50 a week because he wanted to become part of a gigantic operation.

He became district traffic superintendent, then moved to New York in 1929 and remained here until his death.

State's School Bus Fleet Added 200 New Vehicles

RALEIGH—(AP)—The state's school bus fleet has received a transfusion of 200 new vehicles since March.

Director of school bus transportation, C. C. Brown, revealed yesterday that about one-third of the 600 buses ordered in March have been delivered.

The buses were ordered under a special resolution adopted by the state legislature January 31. The legislature authorized the Board of Education to contract for the buses—to be paid for out of funds budgeted for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition to the 600 buses ordered as replacements for the state's fleet of buses, contracts also were placed for 400 buses to be added as the result of school consolidations.

Brown said if the bus orders had been delayed until the appropriations bill was passed in April bus body manufacturers would have had difficulty obtaining steel for the orders.

The total bill for the orders was about $3,000,000, of which $1,800,000 was for replacements, according to Brown. The counties paid the remainder for the new units. Delivery of the rest of the buses

Population Mark At 155 Million

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The population of the United States has crossed the 154,000,000 mark and will surpass 155,000,000 by the end of the year.

Census Director Ray V. Peel reported today that the total, including the armed forces overseas, has climbed by an average of 200,000 a month during the past year. He said it reached 153,900,000 on May 1 and crossed the 154,000,000 mark during June.

Firm Challenges Order By FTC

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A Federal Trade Commission (FTC) order branding Lucky Strike cigarette advertising as "misleading and deceptive" has been challenged by the American Tobacco Co.

The FTC last night ordered the company to stop saying that Luckies contain less nicotine than any other leading brand of cigarettes; are less irritating to the throat; contain less acid; are easy on the throat; provide protection against irritation or coughing, and are preferred 2 to 1 by men who know tobacco best.

In New York, the company insisted that Luckies contain less nicotine. It added in a statement: "The effect of the present order would be that no longer, though a fact is established, could the public be allowed to judge its significance."

The company said it "is considering an appeal" from the order. It has 60 days in which to comply or appeal.

Scripture—Genesis 1:26-27; Matthew 8:1-4; 12:9-13; 18:1-6, 12-14; I Peter 1:17-19.

God created man in His own image—male and female created He them, and gave them dominion over all living creatures on the earth.

Jesus healed a man of leprosy, commanding him to tell no one, but to show himself to the priest and offer his gift as Moses commanded.

Jesus, asked if it was lawful to heal on the Sabbath, answered that it was lawful to do good, and he restored a man's withered arm.

Disciples asked who will be greatest in the kingdom of heaven; He answered, he who humbly himself as a little child. MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 8:5.

IN GENESIS we read of man's creation. "God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over everything that creepeth upon the earth."

Small Team Of Military Advisers Aiding ROKs

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea —(AP)—A small team of U. S. military advisers is welding the South Korean army into a fighting force that some day may be capable of defending this battlescarred republic.

The team is attached to KMAC—the U. S. Military Advisory Group to Korea. Since war began last June 25 these advisers have managed to hold the Korean army together despite staggering losses.

Today, through an intensive training program, KMAC is forming a nucleus of professional Korean soldiers. Republic of Korea forces have lacked this solid core.

What would be the role of KMAC if and when a cease-fire developed? "Would the South Korean army be able to protect this country?"

Both questions were posed to Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army. The answer to the first question, he said, must come from Washington.

As for the second, Van Fleet said the KMAC training program "will create an effective army for the Republic of Korea which will be sufficient to maintain peace within the country and defend it against any aggression from a neighbor."

KMAC was set up in August 1948 as a provisionary military advisory group in expectation of the withdrawal of American occupation forces then stationed in Korea. The group's mission was to advise and train the South Korean army. Each high Korean officer had an American officer as an adviser.

This army, however, was prepared only to maintain internal security when a year ago the North Koreans swarmed across the border.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)—If you long to "get away from it all," lend an ear to Hank Lucchesi, 32, a city-bred mechanic who thinks he has found the ideal place. He says it's Wake Island, the historic dot in the mid-Pacific where marines made a gallant stand in World War II and more recently the site of a conference between President Truman and Gen. MacArthur.

Lucchesi recently returned from nine months on the island—he calls it "the rock"—where he worked for an airline.

"There's plenty to do," he says. "The sport fishing from motor launches is great. It's one of the healthiest spots in the Pacific. If they ever lick the common cold it'll be the healthiest place on the globe."

Boom In Rubber Area Is Making More Fortunes

RANGOON —(AP)—A rubber boom in the sleepy southern fishing center, Tavoyan has bounced citizens right into the money. Money there comes so easily Rangoon folk skyride down for a weekend's fast profit-making, a government agent said.

He said it is difficult to meet a Tavoyan who is not rich. A world demand for rubber has brought about this happy state on the south coast. It sent prices to five times their normal but buyers easily recover their outlay.

Most south coast plantations are located in Communist-occupied territory. This, helps towards making illegal trading safe. Nonetheless he said buying in the badlands is a chancey business because the rebels are known to murder customers to retrieve stocks for another sale. The Communists who are not averse to earning a fast buck also make customers pay for the privilege of trading in their territory which houses the richest plantations.

COLUMBUS, O. —(UP)—David W. Carroll, a polio victim attending Ohio State University, has shown his friends they were wrong in advising him against going to college.

The 19-year-old freshman attends college in a wheel chair but has maintained a perfect "A" record while carrying a heavier than average schedule.

"Everyone told me that college would be a physical impossibility but I'm convinced I'll get through," he said.

Ask For Arms

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The United States has received a formal request from Communist Yugoslavia for a powerful array of armaments to counter what it calls continuing pressure from the Moscow bloc of Red nations.

The request was submitted yesterday to Secretary of State Acheson by the Yugoslav ambassador, Vladimir Popovich.

American officials already had made plain they are willing to provide Yugoslavia with "very substantial" quantities of arms—probably somewhere near a billion dollars worth in the next 12 months—if Congress approves.

Much of the money, it is indicated, would come out of the pending $8,500,000,000 foreign aid bill.

Chapter 26

Red's look watching Jigger's approach through the arch was one with the scowl on Garibaldi's face. He was squatting at the base of the statue in Washington Square Park.

Jigger grinned an amiable hello, and Red out-scowled Garibaldi.

Red answered Jigger before the question. "I had Prescott for an eye opener this morning. I had him again right after breakfast. Later on, I had to scale a couple of back fences to be free to make that stop at Bellevue you ordered."

"And what did Prescott want?"

"An account of your movements. He wanted to know where you are, where you go, and why you're suddenly not hacking."

Jigger smiled. The Imperial was the bell on the tail of the cat.

Red said, "Prescott also accused me of running a so-called news agency as a front for your rackets. He swore he'd close me up."

"All scare talk, Red—Prescott figures you're my Achilles heel. Relax, Prescott's got nothing on us."

"Nothing!—What about concealing evidence, meddling with murder—Mister, how much does he need!"

Jigger shrugged. "To late to worry about that now." He took the glossy print from his pocket. Red's face leaped. "The girl?"

"If Scott says so."

"Leighton?"

Jigger nodded and started to tell the morning's events, but thought better of it.

Jigger asked, "What's with the Bellevue patient?"

"He's the Harbor House patient now."

"Recovered?"

"Only physically. His memory's still in the stratosphere."

"Then why the transfer?"

"Main reason was that Bellevue needed the bed. A second reason is that the fellow needs painstaking neurological work. Harbor House is where they can get it, or so my paid informant assured me." Red stuck a hand out. "The burke cost me ten bucks."

Jigger handed Red some money with the look of a man being crucified. Twenty-four more hours of close budgeting, and cabdriving would become a sheer matter of jungle necessity.

"Come, let's go see Scott," Jig-ger drew a deep breath. "And pray, Red. Pray that Scott nods yes to the photograph, and that I wasn't just being a trifle over-zealous with Leighton."

Scott's door was ajar just so much that a plaster bust of Shakespeare on the marble mantel looked centered in a deep shadow-box. Jigger knocked lightly. There was no answer. He pushed the door, widening the opening, peered in at the empty room, and entered.

Jigger dropped wearily into a chair to await Scott was a respite, and his body entered it eagerly.

A noise roused Jigger. It was Red, chuckling irreverently. He was standing over Scott's desk, reading a page rolled into a portable typewriter. Red saw Jigger and beckoned to him. "There's a gushing soul inside the sedate old gent. Come see."

Jigger read the typewritten page. It was the opening page of a fiction story. The title and by-line read, "Mortal Coils" by E. T. Musac. The opening paragraph was a dramatic lead into a life problem, told from woman's viewpoint.

Scott's appearance was noiseless except for the rustle of a paper bag he was carrying. Jigger wheeled with a start. He said awkwardly, "The landlady downstairs said you'd be right back from somewhere. So we made ourselves comfortable." He gestured and laughed a little foolish laugh.

"Typewriters draw Red like magnets."

Scott didn't reply to the apology for trespass. He went to his desk silently, and set the paper bag down. A pause later, his eyes sought out Red. "Do you write?" he asked.

Red nodded. "Feature stuff, chiefly; but every now and then, a legitimate play." He pointed to the sheet in the typewriter. "I've never been able to get going in popular fiction."

Scott pulled the sheet off the roller and turned it face down on the desk. A wistful look settled on his face. "It sells so readily—The popular fiction market absorbs so much material."

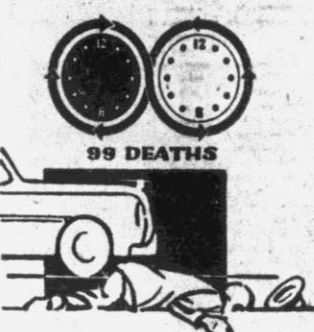

Red said heartily, "All apologies aside, it's a dollar. If I could grind the stuff out, I'd get behind a pseudonym and go it."

A U.S. YEAR OF WAR AND TRAFFIC

IN A YEAR OF KOREAN WAR, U.S. DEATHS WERE 33 FOR EACH 24 HOURS

IN THE SAME YEAR, U.S. TRAFFIC DEATHS WERE 99 FOR EACH 24 HOURS

Scott nodded gratefully. "It is a welcome supplement to otherwise quite meager earnings."

Guest Bedroom One Institution That Fades Fast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Newsfeatures Writer

Young couples, hunting their first house in the country, invariably lay great stress on the extra, or guest, bedroom. It ranks easily as high as the outdoor fireplace in their living plans.

I have noted with interest, however, that after a year or two of residence, that "riched" guest room almost invariably is converted without fanfare into a study without daybed, a combination sewing room and catchall or a place in which to isolate the children on rainy days. (After the same time, the outdoor fireplace is most frequently used to burn old newspapers which the Boy Scouts neglected to pick up in the paper drive.)

The institution of having a weekend guests is highly over-rated, and it doesn't take the entertainers long to find that out. The Friday-night-to-Monday-morning house is a domestic modification of the British Thursday-to-Tuesday week-end houseparty. As a long-time student of the detective story, I know that the house party is the English mystery writer's favorite setting for homicide.

The shorter American version is also a natural breeding ground for murder, particularly toward the end when everyone's nerves are frayed, the host's special stock of spirits is almost depleted and the hostess' feet inform her she has been spending about 34 hours a day for two days over a hot stove.

Inviting people for the week-end in a maid-less household, which also includes children, is for the average family a rugged experience. To be a successful week-end guest is an exacting art, requiring the diplomacy and understanding poured into arranging a Four-Power Foreign Ministers' Conference.

For the host and hostess it means that the house must be spotlessly clean, the grounds manicured and the larder bursting. Extra stores of such items as cigarettes must be put in, arrangements made for some sort of a special and expensive blow-out on Saturday night Sunday morning breakfast becomes a rather formidable affair, with freshly shaven gentlemen and ladies in complete make-up making light-hearted conversation.

Normal week-end preoccupations, like painting the screens, clipping the hedge or washing the car must be abandoned in favor of lounging on the terrace and indulging in banter to the tune of clinking ice—or wrestling nervously in the kitchen with a stubborn tomato aspic. Or, if the menial tasks go off to play golf, the hostess has to cope with both the kitchen chores and the female guest or guests.

Most week-end guests are city-dwellers who entrain to the country with suitcases and a gift-wrapped package containing some item which is almost bound to be alcoholic, edible, perfume or a gadget relegated to the attic the next Monday. Week-end guests usually are dreamers who hope to return to town with a healthy tan. In point of fact, they usually return beet-red with a certain amount of poison ivy picked up on their own when they decided to really get the feel of country living by doing a little weeding.

Their lot is difficult. It is always a problem whether to offer to assist with the chore or whether to discreetly get cut from underfoot. The too-helpful house guest can be a worse strain than the one who remains in bed until dinner time or who rests with the Sunday papers in a shady nook while the host and hostess are struggling with the hamburger patties and getting the charcoal to the proper degree of glow.

Regardless of whether one is a week-end guest or host, everyone gets to bed early Monday night—and sighs that the ordeal is over.

Most earthquakes occur under the sea and cause damage by the "tidal" waves created.

Jigger got down to the business of the visit. "One big question, Professor, and I'll leave you to your work. Did you ever hear of a Merle Leighton in connection with Sally Woods?"

"No."

The answer was in Scott's face. The sedate elder was out of character for the first time in their many meetings. There was distress in his face, and his eyes were watering.

Scott finally whispered, "This is a photograph of Sally Woods." There was a note of horror in his voice.

Jigger came out of the phone booth and stood at the door nervously.

Red left his stool at the soda fountain and came over to the phone booth. "Well, were you able to reach Leighton?"

Jigger nodded, then spoke as though he were struggling to grasp what he was saying. "No recriminations for the drubbing I gave him—I'm politely asked to call on him again, but at the convenience of the radio public, thirteen million listeners, Hooper certified, comes first."

Red said, "He doesn't sound like a man with murder on his conscience."

Jigger frowned darkly. "Leighton was Susan Hunter's boy friend—Bet on that."

"Even so; that doesn't mean he murdered her."

"He was coughing up hush money."

"Now does that mean he murdered Susan Hunter?"

"That actress hired to substitute for the corpse was a gimmick that suggests a man like Leighton—A man with a sense of theater, who knows the Revere Hotel crowd."

Red gave it up. Jigger read his wrist-watch. It was 6:30 p.m.—Three hours before Leighton taxied from the radio station back to his hotel suite. He had three hours to kill—Just time enough to read a best seller, or finish one game of chess. Three short hours, so why fret.

Jigger turned to Red. "How about taking in the news-reel theater?"

Red said, "It's the first sensible thing I've heard you say in a week."

(To be continued)

Korean Veteran To Receive Medal

WASHINGTON — (UP)—Capt. Lewis L. Millet, 30, South Dartmouth, Mass., will receive the 25th Medal of Honor in the Korean war for his bravery in leading his company in a bayonet attack on a strongly-held enemy position.

Millet charged into enemy positions at the head of his company, bayoneted two enemy soldiers, and shouted encouragement to his men as he threw grenades and clubbed enemy troops with his rifle.

After the hill was secured, 47 enemy dead were counted on the forward slope, 30 of whom had been bayoneted, according to an eye witness' report. There were dead on the other side of the hill, all of whom had died either of bayonet or gunshot wounds.

During the 1940s the number of non-farm homes without private bathing facilities was decreased from 7,100,000 to 6,800,000 in the United States.

American Trade Union In Moscow

MOSCOW — (UP)—An American trade union delegation, headed by Leon Strauss, vice president of the fur workers union, has arrived in Moscow, it was announced today.

The American delegation was said to represent the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the American Federation of Labor and independent unions. The unionists came to Moscow as guests of the Soviet trade union organization.

Tax Collections Have Increased

WASHINGTON — (UP)—The Bureau of Internal Revenue reported today that tax collections during the first 11 months of fiscal 1951 increased more than 25 per cent over the previous year.

Most of the increase resulted from record collections of corporate and individual income taxes. Total collections through May 31 were $44,253,707,649, compared with $35,212,986,307 for the same 11 months last year.

Bus Spins Into Ditch; Overturns

YPSILANTI, Mich. — (UP)—A crowded Greyhound bus skidded on slippery pavement during a rainstorm last night and rolled over in a ditch, injuring 11 persons, three of them seriously.

The bus driver, Donald S. Clowe, 33, Ann Arbor, Mich., told state police he had slammed on his brakes to avoid hitting a car while trying to pass another auto. He said the bus spun out of control and overturned in the ditch.

NO MORE GIs, They're Soldiers

WASHINGTON — (AP)—The slang expression "GI" has been ruled out for Army Public Relations officers. They'll have to refer to a soldier as a soldier.

In ordering this in liaison bulletin 242 of the Army Public Information Division, issued June 15, the Army said:

"The term soldier is ancient and honorable. Webster's dictionary defines a soldier as 'a skilled warrior.' And never before in history has a soldier so richly deserved this definition."

Revolution Staged Two Years Ago Having Profound Effects

By GEORGE H. PIPAL
United Press Staff Correspondent
BELGRADE — (UP)—The revolution which began here two years ago when Tito said "no" to Stalin is having profound effects on the press and journalism in this "independent Communist" country. Recent events bringing Yugoslavia closer to the West have accelerated the change from the stereotyped style of Cominform days. Front pages are showing new individualism. More news is being printed as information, rather than as a peg for a lecture in socialist dialectics.

Whereas a few years ago any mention of "America" usually was preceded by the adjective "imperialist," dispatches from foreign news agencies on controversial issues now appear without undue "political editing."

The Belgrade press has begun showing unusual enterprise in covering the day's domestic events, instead of invariably printing the semi-official version of TANJUG (Telegrafiska Agencija Nova Jugoslavija) news agency. TANJUG itself is being reorganized as an independent co-operative sponsored by the newspaper with no direct government subsidy.

SHORT OF NEWSPRINT
As in the rest of Europe, the newsprint shortage has cramped the new style of the Belgrade press. Belgrade's four dailies have been reduced to three, and circulations, with one exception, have been trimmed by 35 to 40 per cent.

The significant exception is the non-party paper Politika, which took over the newsprint allocation of the suspended Glas. Its editor, Bogdan Pestic, with government approval, is attempting to rebuild Politika's pre-war standing as an independent daily with Europe-wide influence. Pestic's staff includes some non-Communist editors who worked on the paper before the war.

Yugoslavia's newsprint consumption never exceeded 25,000 tons per year after the war, and by 1950, imports were down to 15,000 tons. This year, only 7,800 tons of imports have been guaranteed to supplement the local production of 3,000 tons, which is unchanged from pre-war years. The government hopes for further allocations of at least 4,000 tons from Canada and the United States before the end of the year.

Yugoslavia's 17 dailies have a combined circulation of 1,200,000, while 115 weeklies print an estimated 2,000,000 copies. Under the new austerity print order, Borba, the Communist Party central organ, was reduced from 700,000 to 470,000 copies. 20 Oktobar, a National Front organ, was cut from 60,000 to 45,000. Politika, boosted from 150,000 to 250,000 with the newsprint from Glas, was moved back to 200,000.

MOSTLY TABLOIDS
All dailies except Borba use the tabloid format common to Central Europe, printing four pages on weekdays and from six to eight on Sundays and holidays. One editor proposed publicly that more newsprint would be available for daily papers if government bureaus cut down the number of forms to be filled out. Although such a suggestion would be regarded as dangerous heresy in France or Budapest, it is become patriotic duty in Belgrade.

Language differences in the six federal republics and two semi-autonomous provinces of Yugoslavia have tended to decentralize the publishing business, and limit the development of national circulations.

Radio broadcasting is more centralized, since spoken Serbian can be understood without difficulty in Croatia and Slovenia. Radio Belgrade carries seven news broadcasts per day. Recently it has added programs of popular western music, including American jazz, which the Cominform countries have sought to suppress as "un-Marxist."

Marshal Tito himself set the keynote for Yugoslavia's expanding press freedom last month when he received a delegation of journalists. Tito told them: "The duty of our press is to give correct information and to fight for the truth. We refuse to work as they do in Cominform countries where no single word can be written unless directed from above."

'Wonder' Drugs In Animal Feed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (UP)—Now the "wonder" drugs have entered animal feeds.

The Industrial Bulletin reports that several companies are offering new animal-feed supplements incorporating the so-called wonder drugs or antibiotics which promise faster growth in chickens, turkeys and pigs.

Antibiotics used in feeds, except for penicillin, are the crude unrefined forms, much cheaper than the pure pharmaceutical.

PREFERS CLAM BROTH

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. — (UP)—Guy Keith, 67, town clam warden, dredged up a case of 25 pints of whisky which had been tossed into a creek during prohibition. A teetotaler, he gave his find to friends.

Petaín Sent To Military Hospital

ILE D'YEU, France — (UP)—Aged and ailing former Marshal Henri Philippe Petaín, was transferred here today from prison to an old stone house converted to a military hospital.

The transfer from the prison, where the 85-year-old Petaín has been held since being sentenced to life imprisonment in 1945, was under the terms of a decree by President Vincent Auriol commuting the ex-vichy government head's life imprisonment to confinement in a military hospital.

TWINS BORN APART

BASSETT, Neb. — (UP)—Carol and Carl Lee Wilcox, twin brother and sister, were born the same night but Carol was born in the family auto in Keya Paha County. Carl Lee arrived 30 minutes later in Rock County.

China Theater Said Faring Very Badly

United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO — (UP)—Averil Tong, the "Martha Graham of China," thinks the Chinese theater is "faring badly" in the Communist-dominated areas.

"The result is that talent is stifled, because talent can't flourish when actors are forced to distort their lines," she said.

Miss Tong, ex-wife of Ernest Tong, one of the leaders during the Chiang Kai-shek regime, said she never accepts bookings in Communist China.

She said she also had turned down an offer by the British government to tour English possessions because it had recognized the Red Chinese government.

Miss Tong left Shanghai, her home town, more than a year ago when the Communists took over. She said the change in government already had affected the cultural life there.

Talent Stifled

"I understand the Russian ballet is being played more and more in Shanghai now," she said.

Miss Tong, whose Oriental name is Oy Foo or "tender orchid," has started a new school designed to streamline the traditional Chinese dance.

Time Shortened

The first thing she did was cut the time of most performances in half.

"Chinese used to have lots of time to sit around in theaters," she said, "but they don't now, so you've got to make your presentations shorter and snappier."

The black-haired, fast-talking first lady of the Chinese dance said it was time art circles in the Orient started adopting new ideas.

"Rigid classic dances were all right 10 or 15 years ago," she said, "but we should start bringing ourselves up with the times."

"You Americans are too busy and too intellectual to sit through long scenes and chew on watermelon seeds," she said.

Miss Tong's American tour calls for appearances in San Francisco's Chinatown, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, New York, Washington and Havana.

She is accompanied by her second husband, the Filipino composer Luis Peralta, and her 10-year-old daughter, Medy.

Airport Commission Starts Canvass Of Air-Minded Citizens In County

The Airport Commission is today beginning a county-wide canvass of how many Pitt citizens want to travel by air.

In connection with the pending Civil Air Board hearing concerning Greenville's getting air service, the Commission is sending out coupons asking the recipient:

- (1) How many trips by air did he make last year?
- (2) How many trips will he make next year and to where?

Purpose of the questionnaire is to obtain as many return answers in order that the Commission may validate its request for air service into the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Chamber of Commerce Manager W. T. Kyzer stated today that in order to work toward the best advantage of getting air transportation here, he has to prove three things. They are that air service is needed here, that the area can support it, and that the airport has the facilities to handle an airline's traffic.

A sample of the questionnaire is being carried in The Reflector today and tomorrow. Kyzer stated anyone can use that blank to answer the two questions. The person must sign his name in order to make his answers valid.

Kyzer intends to present the Airport Commission's exhibits for air service to the CAB by July 16. Final hearing in the matter will be discussed by CAB and airline executives August 13. Between those dates, July 30, both the local Commission and the airlines may submit rebuttal answers to the preliminary exhibits.

This section of North Carolina has been described as an "airline desert." Greenville and vicinity are bordered by three towns that already have air service—Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and New Bern. Kyzer stated that Piedmont Airlines of Winston-Salem is at present working toward a renewal of its air franchise into Greenville. It will be taken up at the CAB hearing in August.

However, he said, it doesn't make any difference which line serves the area, Piedmont or any other that the GAB may designate.

Wallace Elected To Post Of Greenville Board Of Realtors

Jack Wallace was elected to serve as secretary-treasurer for the remainder of the calendar year at last night's meeting of the Greenville Board of Realtors.

The board also laid plans for a July meeting and for substantially increasing the activities and membership of the body.

It was emphasized that real estate brokers desiring to adhere to the Code of Ethics established by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and were interested in maintaining and raising the standards of the profession, are welcome to become members.

A report on activities of the Realtors' Institute, held at Chapel Hill, June 10-16, was made by Jack Wallace.

League To Hold Clinic At E. C.

CHAPEL HILL — (UP) — The North Carolina League for Crippled Children will sponsor six clinics for handicapped children this summer.

The program will be preceded by a conference on education of exceptional children at the East Carolina College in Greenville July 23.

The clinics will be held at State College in Raleigh, East Carolina in Greenville, Western Carolina Teachers in Cullowhee, and in Wilson, Southern Pines and Chapel Hill.

State Dept. Will Get Its Money

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Looks like the State Department and all other government agencies are going to be able to stay in business beyond midnight Saturday, after all.

Republicans in the House put up a stiff fight yesterday to put strict limitations on what various departments can spend during the month of July. Some Republicans wanted to take a slap at Secretary of State Dean Acheson by prohibiting the State Department from spending anything at all.

Senate Approves . . .

(Continued From Page One) mittee said that it is necessary to keep wage-price-rent controls from expiring, he will take the simpler House extension.

Sens. William Benton (D-Conn.) and Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.) tried to vote "present" on the weakened controls bill but were forced to take a stand when the Senate refused to roll call votes to accept their explanations. Both reluctantly voted "aye."

Prelude . . .

(Continued From Page One) They refused to start peace talks with a cease-fire first. They demanded negotiations start on various problems before the shooting stopped at all. And they further demanded to remove our protection from Korea and that Red China be admitted to the U. N.

The United States rejected this. The fighting continued. The tide turned. Chinese spring offensives were smashed. They were driven north of the 38th parallel which separated North and South Korea. The war had started when the North Korean Communists had driven down over that parallel to attack the South Koreans.

On June 2, when we were making progress, Secretary of State Acheson said the U. S. might agree to a "cease-fire" on the 38th parallel but would not agree—as part of the peace terms—to discuss the fate of Formosa or admit the Chinese Red to the U. N. when the shooting is over, he said, those questions could be discussed. He proposed these four steps:

1. A cease-fire. (The two sides

Mid-West Hit By Big Floods

By UNITED PRESS Major floods swept down the Missouri River through Kansas and Missouri today.

Phenomenally heavy rains increased the danger. Sedalia, Mo., reported a rainfall of 7.17 inches.

The town of Brewster, Wash., was endangered as a weakened irrigation dam threatened to give way at any moment. Mayor H. A. Lindquist warned the 1,300 residents that the entire town might be flooded.

The floods in the Midwest were the latest blow from a weeklong siege of bad weather that left 13 persons dead and more than 100 injured in tornadoes, hailstorms, heavy rains and big winds.

At Waterloo, Ia., 100 families were cleaning out the mud left when the Cedar River flooded their homes this week and forced them to flee to a Salvation Army community center. The Boone and Des Moines rivers were spilling over armlands in main sections of Iowa.

The worst situation, however, was in Kansas and Missouri. All streams in the "Big Muddy" basin were reported choked with muddy rainwater.

simply agree to stop shooting at a certain time and that's all. Nobody makes any promises about anything.)

2. Then an armistice. (This means the no-shooting agreement continues while arrangements are made for discussing the Korean problems.)

3. Settlement of the Korean questions. This, of course, would involve discussions between the U. N. on one side and the Chinese Communists and North Koreans on the other.

4. A bit-by-bit or phased withdrawal of all non-Koreans. On June 24 in New York, Jacob A. Malik, Soviet representative in the U. N., suggested there could be peace in Korea. As a first step, he said, there should be a cease-fire and then an armistice. (Note that he didn't suggest that the Chinese Communists had demanded as a first step last January: negotiations before there was a cease-fire.)

Later in Moscow the Russians explained they thought the cease-fire could be arranged by the military commanders on both sides in the field in Korea and that other details could be worked out later. That's where the situation stands now. If the Chinese Communists accept the plan suggested by Acheson on June 2 they've retreated a long way from the stand they took last January.

Good and Bad . . .

3. The terror behind the Iron Curtain continues. This week a Hungarian communist court sentenced Roman Catholic Archbishop Josef Groes to 15 years imprisonment on a charge that he plotted the overthrow of the government. It came at a time when there have been persistent reports that mass purges and deportations have been started against part of the civilian population of Hungary.

Raid Large Still In Craven County

Pitt and Craven county ABC officers raided a large distillery yesterday morning in the Jump and Run section of Craven county.

No one was found at the still which was not in operation but was ready to be used, the officers stated.

A total of 5,400 gallons of fermented mash was on hand at the site of the 85 gallon still. Taken by officers in the raid was a 1941 Chevrolet dump truck and ninety six cases of one half gallon fruit jars.

The still and all equipment was destroyed by the raiding party.

Officers on the raid were, Pitt county ABC officers J. M. Ward, C. T. Manning, R. W. King; Craven county officers J. K. Clay, Carl Churchill and Carlye Chambers.

Police Present Watch To Judge

JUDGE J.W.H. ROBERTS Retiring

Members of the Greenville police force presented Judge J. W. H. Roberts with a wrist watch at today's session of Police Court.

Solicitor Eli Bloom, S. O. Worthington, Louis W. Gaylord, Jr., and Chester Walsh police reporter, paid tribute to the judge, who retires from the bench after nine years' service.

Bloom, in presenting the watch, said "It is a token of appreciation of your good service as judge of this court. Each member of the force extends with it best wishes." Judge Roberts, in accepting the watch, said "It has been a wonderful experience for me to serve as judge of this court for nine years. I have done my best. I appreciate this token of esteem."

Worthington said Roberts had served with distinction and presided with fairness and justice to all. "You have always been willing to lend a helping hand to defendants in your court, and members of the bar appreciate your services," Worthington added.

Flowers ornamented the judge's desk, presented by police officers. Judge Roberts will devote his full time hereafter to the practice of civil and criminal law, he stated.

Vote To Sponsor Song Convention

Members of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce last night voted to sponsor a singing convention in Greenville early this fall.

Bob Russ was appointed chairman of the committee to work out the details of the one-day affair and to make arrangements for the singing. President Dan Saieed of the Jaycees said the singing convention is expected to attract several thousand people.

The Jaycees likewise voted to sponsor the beauty pageant which will be held in connection with Farmers Day in August.

Former Soviet Atom Expert Thinks 50 Bombs In Russia

WASHINGTON — (UP) — An atomic expert who fled Russia to Britain was understood today to have estimated that Russia now has about 50 atomic bombs.

Some members of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee have been given to understand by Intelligence officials that the Russian expert fled to Britain about a year ago.

The Russian expert also was understood to have given the free world's atomic progress.

The estimate of 50 bombs in Russia's stockpile contrasts with a report by Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo) in the House yesterday that the Soviet now has 100 bombs and can get through to American targets with about 70 of them.

Members of the atomic committee were inclined to discount Cannon's statement. They said his estimate was too high.

Cannon himself somewhat discounted his statement after he made it. He is chairman of the appropriations committee, and as such has access to secret military information. However, he later told reporters he based his remark solely on what he had read in newspapers.

Contrasted with Russia's reported 50 bombs—all of them described as conventional plutonium bombs similar to those in our own stockpile—committee members have been advised that the U. S. stockpile is far bigger.

They have not been told how many bombs the U. S. has, and this information is a closely-guarded secret. What they have been told is that the U. S. has "enough" enough, that is, to knock out all likely targets.

It was reported that committee members got this version of what the Russian expert told British officials:

Russia at that time—about 4 years ago—had 29 bombs. Her production timetable called for a stockpile of about 50 now, and 75 in another year.

After that, the production rate was to be stepped up, with the stockpile to be about tripled in the following year or two.

The Russians were pictured as being bent on production of as many standard plutonium bombs as possible. They were said to be dividing their efforts among other experimental types of bombs.

The fact the U. S. is now branching out, working toward the more powerful hydrogen bomb and smaller tactical versions of the plutonium bomb, was seen as a reflection of the fact our stockpile of conventional bombs now is big enough for reasonable safety.

Firemen Called Out On 'Dry Run'

A faulty sprinkler system at the Ficklen Tobacco Company around four a. m. set off a fire alarm at the company, which summoned local firemen on the double.

Fire Chief George Gardner stated after a complete check of the building was made for any fire, that it was believed a drop in the air pressure in the lines had caused the alarm to be turned in.

When the pressure falls below a set point in the dry systems, the alarm will be turned in a box alarm and also set off outside warning bells, the chief stated.

Wright said he waited about 40 minutes at his road block, and then the car came down the road just as he had expected. Wright's automobile blocked practically all of the narrow dirt road, but the fugitive automobile took to the ditch at 65 miles an hour, the chief said, and got around the road block. It hit the highway, headed toward Chowchilly at a high rate of speed and doused its lights.

"If the highway patrol had gotten there, I think we could have stopped him," Wright commented today, but the patrol never showed up.

After the car broke through the road block, Wright notified the police at New Bern, Kinston and Ayden to be on the lookout for the automobile.

Suspected . . .

The chief then called the highway patrol in Greenville for assistance, and went back to the river road and set up a road block expecting the automobile to make another attempt to break out of the bottleneck and get back to the highway.
