Pact Provides U. S. Allies Will Arm 5 Million By 1954

Marshall Reveals Atlantic Pact Clause In Urging House To Speed New Money For Overseas Arms Aid

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The allies of the United States in the North Atlantic Treaty will have $500,000,000 in new overseas aid, Marshall said today.

Urging the House Foreign Affairs Committee to speed a bill authorizing $450,000,000 in new overseas aid, Marshall said the United States still plans to limit its Atlantic Pact army contribution to six divisions—120,000 men.

The figures would not hold if war comes, he said. But he said this country is trying to get European nations to make the largest possible manpower commitment to General Dwight D. Eisenhower's forces.

The proposed program would cover both economic and military aid for the fiscal year which started yesterday.

Other congressional developments: China—Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) said in a Senate speech that this country should withdraw from the United Nations if by some strategem the Chinese Communists manage to get in over U. S. objections. Stennis said that while he supports the UN as the "best hope for peace," the U. S. should make plain that admission of Red China "would mean our expulsion."

Crime—The Senate Crime Committee began an investigation of gambling in the home state of its chairman, Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md.). The inquiry will cover on Baltimore. O'Connor designated other senators to preside while the investigation is being made but said he will take part as a member.

Share the wealth—In an article inserted in the Congressional Record, Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn (D-Mo.) quoted Gen. Douglas MacArthur as declaring there is a movement in this country for all the United Nations to share U. S. wealth. He said MacArthur told him that in Tokyo last April.

CONGRESSMAN RESIGNS

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn said today Rep. Edward Breen (D-O.) has resigned from the House effective Oct. 1 because of illness. Breen previously had announced his intention of resigning.

They Sound Fierce

Red Radio Propaganda Has Yet To Say Kind Word About U. S. Or The United Nations On Cease-Fire Offer; Talking Tough; They'll Claim 'Victory'

By HARRY FERGUSON

The Communists have announced they want to make peace in Korea, but they are going about it in strange ways. There hasn't been a kind word for America or the United Nations over the Red radio since a week ago Saturday when Jacob Malik, Soviet U. N. delegate, made his historic broadcast.

There are three chief Communist propaganda centers so far as the Korean War is concerned—Moscow, which is headquarters; Peking, capital of Red China; and Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. So far Pyongyang is far ahead in what seems to be a contest among the three cities to denounce the U. N. and the United States.

Just at the time when it looked like some progress was being made on a cease-fire, the Red radio at Pyongyang came up with a proposition. It was that all efforts be made to capture, try and execute American and South Korean leaders on charges of being imperialists and aggressors.

This last presumably would start with President Truman and President Byungnam Rhee of South Korea and move down the line to include Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Prime Minister Clement Attlee of Great Britain probably is in for it, too, although he might be let off with life imprisonment because the North Koreans' anger seemed to be directed chiefly at the United States.

So is the Chinese. On Saturday the Peking radio teed off on President Truman, saying he knew he was licks in the Korean war but that he was continuing to make speeches in an attempt to convince the American people and their allies that everything was going to be all right.

What happened was that the Communist propagandists have large back-log of material on hand, and all of it is designed to blast the western democracies. It is ground out day and night from Moscow, Peking and Pyongyang. When the broadcasters run short of material they frequently quote

June's Air Mail Usage Declines

Post Office Says Mail For Month Unusually Light

June was a slow month air mail-wise.

In a report from the post office to the Chamber of Commerce, incoming and outgoing air mail was about 2,000 pieces lighter during June than any average month during the past years.

Assistant postmaster F. L. Whitehurst and superintendent of mails Joe Dudley reported that both incoming and outgoing letter mail was about the same—8,455 leaving town and 8,138 coming in.

They made the report for Chamber manager Willard T. Kyzer in order that the Chamber can show further need for air service into Pitt-Greenville airport.

In describing the month's mail activity, Dudley said that June was unusually light. Most months will average around 10,000 pieces (letters and parcel post) and it will be much higher around Christmas time," he said.

Parcel post during June numbered 82 packages outgoing and 34 incoming. Both letter mail and parcel

Huge Refinery May Be Closed

Iran Premier Threatens 'Holiday' In Oil Production

TEHRAN—(AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh told U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady today that Iran would give the giant Abadan refinery a "holiday" unless the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company agreed to pay for any oil loaded on the company's tankers.

Grady told newsmen Mossadegh expressed a great desire to end the British-Iranian deadlock over nationalization of the oil industry but that he was "equally adamant against agreeing to anything that would prevent carrying out the nationalization program."

reduction at Abadan meanwhile was flowing into limited storage facilities at a greatly reduced rate but company officials said the present output—3,300,000 gallons daily, would fill the tanks in about 20 days, after which the refinery would have to shut down.

This, Britain has said, would be followed by withdrawal of the company's skilled British managerial and technical workers.

Grady had called on Mossadegh seeking a compromise which would permit the British tankers to load at Abadan. The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has ordered its tanker captains to refuse to sign receipts demanded by the government and saying they owe the new Iranian National Oil Company for the cargoes.

Upon his death, the spade was given to his wife who in turn gave it to Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith. The Smiths recently gave the spade to the church for the program.

Reached by telephone from Frankfort, an official of the Czechoslovak Information Ministry said the trial was going on but information about it "can be read later in our newspapers."

Oatis and three Czech nationals employed by the Associated Press in Prague are charged by that country's Communist government with having operated an "espionage center" under orders from AP headquarters in New York. The Czechs charged yesterday that the AP bureau even fostered murder plots.

The official Czech news agency told inquirers it would not issue a report on the trial until its conclusion, which is expected Thursday.

The Associated Press statement in reply, issued in New York, said the Czech charge "falsely accusing the Associated Press of espionage is so preposterous it will deceive no one in the free world."

Oatis, 37-year old newspaperman from Marion, Ind., was arrested April 23 and has been held in jail without a chance to see a lawyer, friend or U. S. diplomatic representative. He is the first reporter holding American citizenship to be arrested by an Iron Curtain country.

The Czech government charged Oatis on April 27 with "securing and verifying certain secret reports" and spreading "material insulting to the Czechoslovak Republic and its order."

Mayor Page Urges Harmony In Greenville's Government

Grocery Prices Show Slight Gain In Recent Check

Dept. Of Labor Report Reveals Greenville Price Trend Is Up

Local food buyers paid a little more for their grocery items during the most recent retail pricing check than they have paid in months previous.

Conducted by the North Carolina Department of Labor, the pricing check was made June 15 in seven North Carolina cities including Greenville, Asheville, Charlotte, and Wilmington.

Greenville's grocers were higher on 16 items out of 53 than were the other six cities. They were lower on eight. The remainder of the articles priced found the Greenville shopper on a par with those in the other cities, sometimes below the average. Other times a bit higher. The Department of Labor checkers priced eight different types of groceries, including cereals and bakery products, meats, dairy products, eggs, fruits and vegetables, beverages, fats and oils, and sugar and sweets.

Local grocers were higher than the rest of the state on bacon, milk, ice cream (bulk, evaporated), milk, bananas, carrots, lettuce, tomatoes, canned peaches, canned corn, canned beans, dried navy beans, shortening, salad dressing, margarine, and sugar.

They were lower than the rest of the state in cookies, round steak, chops, salt pork, cheese, eggs, green beans, and Irish potatoes.

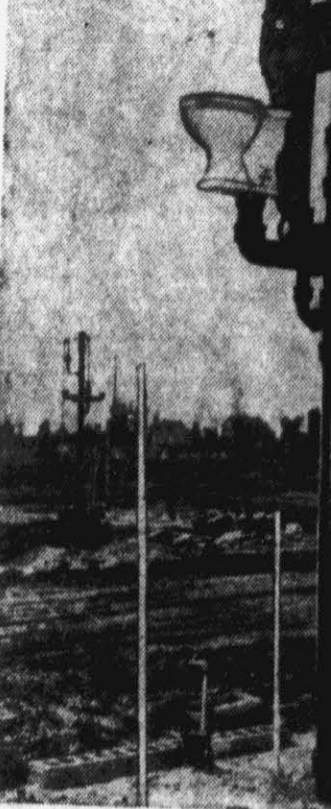

A report on other cities in the pricing check shows that the food basket was cheapest in Wilmington June 15 and highest in Greensboro. During that particular day Wilmington led the state with 15 items lower than anywhere else, and Greensboro was at the bottom of the list with four low items.

Thirty-One Hurt In Bus Accident

DESLOGE, Mo.—(UP)—Thirty-one persons were injured, seven of them seriously, when a fast-moving Greyhound bus crashed down a 15-foot highway embankment north of here.

The southbound bus tumbled over the side of the road yesterday when side-swiped by a car driven by Phillip Larkins, 20, St. Louis, authorities said.

Larkins and Arthur Erwin Kueker, Collinsville, Ill., driver of the bus, were among those seriously injured.

'No Axe To Grind' Says New Mayor; Five Aldermen Sworn; H. H. Duncan New City Clerk; Other Appointees Named

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR.
Greenville's mayor Lester D. Page, in taking office as head of the city government at noon today told the members of the board of aldermen, "If there is any animosity of any kind, let's forget it. Let's settle down and work for the people of Greenville."

Page was elected to the office of mayor in the city election this spring after being relieved of his duties as chief police of the city by the board of aldermen a year ago.

"We're both connected here by the people," Page told the members of the board. "It is our duty to cast aside all feelings and work therein. Feel free to discuss with me at any time anything pertaining to the city. I'll not try to high pressure you into anything I want done. I have no axe to grind."

The new mayor and five members of the board of aldermen were given their oaths of office by Clerk of Court D. T. House, Jr., shortly after the meeting of the city officials began at noon.

The oath of aldermen was taken by Robert Lee Smith, who defeated incumbent W. M. Pollard in the recent city elections, and Aldermen R. E. Rogers, Heber B. Tripp, James S. Jenkins, and R. E. Howell who were re-elected to office last May.

"It is indeed an honor to be elected mayor of Greenville," Page told the members of the board, and then he told them it is imperative that the aldermen and the mayor work together and be united for the good of the city.

The law firm of Harding and Lee was retained as the city attorney, and Chester Harris was reappointed city treasurer.

Seven Top Communist Leaders Sent To Jail

Warrants Issued For Four Who Failed To Surrender As Ordered; Court's Action Climaxes Three-Year Fight

NEW YORK—(AP)—Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan today ordered seven top Communists to be served prison terms and issued bench warrants for four who failed to surrender.

Ten of the 11 had been sentenced to five years imprisonment for teaching the violent overthrow of the United States government. One had received a three year term.

Those ordered arrested were Henry Winston, 35, organizational secretary of the party; Gus Hall, 39, Ohio State Chairman; Robert Thompson, New York State Chairman, and Gilbert Green, 43, Illinois Chairman.

All had been at liberty under bail of $20,000 each, furnished by the Civil Rights Congress, which the U. S. Attorney General's Office has branded as subversive.

Those who lined up before the bench when their names were called were Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., former New York City Councilman; Eugene Dennis, General Secretary of the party; John B. Williamson, Labor Secretary of the party; Jacob (Jack) Stachel, Educational Director; John W. Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, party newspaper; Carl Winter, Michigan State Chairman, and Irving Fash, member of the National Committee.

All had been free under bail ranging from $20,000 to $30,000. It was just three years ago, in July, 1948 that a federal grand jury indicted the Communists. Their trial in federal court here opened January 17, 1949, and ended the following October.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina who presided at the long trial, went through an ordeal that few jurists have had to face. Five defense attorneys received prison sentences for contempt of court.

Ridgway Expected To Accept Communist Proposal For Meeting In Kaesong Area; Red Propaganda Campaign Tries To Show UN Seeking Cease-Fire Because Of Military Failures; North Koreans Urged To 'Annihilate Enemy'

TOKYO, Tuesday—(UP)—United Nations and communist troops fought grimly on today with orders to "kill the enemy" while their leaders attempted to arrange a cease-fire meeting.

A message from U. N. Supreme Commander Matthew B. Ridgway, accepting a communist proposal for a meeting in the Kaesong area, was expected shortly.

Both the North Korean Pyongyang radio and the Chinese Communist Peiping radio opened a propaganda campaign intended to show that the United Nations were seeking the cease-fire—which Russia first suggested—because of the failure of allied military operations.

There was no big scale action on the front. The war as a whole seemed petering out.

Whedbee Takes Oath Of Office

Sworn In Today As Judge Of City's Recorder's Court

Charles H. Whedbee took the oath of office as Judge of Greenville Recorder's Court and Eli Bloom was sworn in as solicitor at the City Hall today.

David T. House, clerk of Pitt County Superior Court administered the oaths of office.

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, pronounced the invocation.

Judge Whedbee spoke briefly and pledged his "best service in the fulfillment of the important judicial position."

He succeeds J. W. H. Roberts as judge of the municipal court. Whedbee was elected judge at the spring primary election. Roberts had been judge for 14 years. He was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Judge Louis C. Skinner, a United States naval officer who lost his life in the Pacific theater during World War II. Later Roberts was elected for four terms. He served nine years.

Whedbee is a graduate of the law school of the University of North Carolina. He was solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court many years. Whedbee is widely known in radio circles in Eastern Carolina. He was for many years public events announcer on the Greenville radio station and served for some time at a Washington broadcasting station. He also was an active leader in scouting here.

Judge Whedbee announced that a short session of Police Court will be held Wednesday morning (July 4th) to dispose of jail cases on the docket.

The court is in session three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday—at 9 a.m.

Groundbreaking Sunday For New Church Annex

Members of the First Presbyterian Church yesterday participated in groundbreaking exercises for the $100,000 Educational Building which will be under construction in the near future.

Members joined together in the lot on West Fifth Street adjacent to the Sanctuary immediately after the morning service.

Mrs. P. M. Johnston, a Sunday School teacher for 50 years, her three grandchildren and representatives of the departments of the church broke the ground on which the building will be constructed.

The ceremony was opened with the congregational singing of "The Church's One Foundation," which was followed by reading of the scripture and prayer by the Reverend Leonard Topping.

Those who took part in the groundbreaking were: Mrs. O. M. Johnston, her grandchildren William Morton Johnston, Jr., Robert Bunn Johnston and John Heath Johnston; F. Harding Sugg and J. Howard Moyer, representing the building committee; Miss Betsy Gammon, representing her father Gammon M. Friend, superintendent of the Sunday School; Miss Christine Johnston, representing the children's division.

J. Bryan Brown, representing the church session; Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, representing the teachers of the Young Peoples Department; Jesse R. Moyer, treasurer of the building fund; Mrs. Leonard Topping, adult advisor of the college students; Mrs. James S. Jenkins, representing the women of the church; Mrs. W. Earl Stokes, representing the eight circles of the women.

FINNS HOLD ELECTION HELSINKI—(UP)—Finland began a two-day general election today to choose 300 Parliament members and most observers believed it would result in a swing to the left.

But the North Korean communist radio admonished Red troops to "mercilessly annihilate the enemy and shoot down his planes. A Red communique said 1,800 U. N. troops were killed or captured on the eastern front Saturday and Sunday.

An 8th Army spokesman said U. N. forces would keep killing Communists until an actual cease-fire order came.

"Our orders have been to kill the enemy wherever we find him," the officer said. "Despite the prospect of armistice talks, these orders have not been changed nor do we anticipate any change."

"We have the superior fire power and we are going to continue using it to the fullest advantage."

There were indications that the U. N. command intended to use air and artillery to the utmost to impress upon the Reds that the Allies have plenty of punch to continue the war if cease-fire talks fail.

However, authorities at headquarters were reported to feel that an armistice stopping the war along the 38th parallel would be a "most satisfactory victory" for the U. N.

Communist acceptance of Ridgway's offer was broadcast late last night by Peiping and Pyongyang. It was signed by Kim Il Sung, premier and commander in chief of North Korea, and Gen. Peng Teh-Ruai, "commander of the Chinese volunteer forces" in Korea.

The main bodies of the opposing armies remained behind their defenses, contenting themselves with patrols and small probing attacks to keep tabs on each other. U. N. patrols ranged up to five miles north of their lines.

Planes and warships kept up their bombardment of communist territory. Fifth Air Force fighters bombed out supply roads and railroads from Manchuria in at least 14 places and destroyed or damaged four bridges. One American Mustang was hit by enemy small arms fire and crashed in flames behind the enemy lines.

The Communists replied to Ridgway's cease-fire offer just 39 hours after the supreme commander had proposed a truce meeting aboard the Danish hospital ship Jutland in Wonsan harbor, 60 miles north of the 38th parallel.

The desire to switch the proposed meeting from Wonsan to the Kaesong area was believed a face-saving gesture.

Kaesong, ancient capital of Korea, lies about 10 miles and a half south of the 38th parallel and 35 miles northwest of Seoul on the western front. If the conference is held there, the Chinese could say that the cease-fire was negotiated in South Korea, rather than aboard an Allied ship deep in communist territory at Wonsan.

Reasons suggested for the desire to delay the talks were that the Reds did not want to appear too anxious for a cease-fire and for prestige reasons wished to set the time and place of meeting, and that the Chinese and North Korean commanders wanted more time to consult with Russia.

Only A Pause In War

If A Cease-Fire In Korea Is Accomplished, The Main Bout Between Russia And The West Will Go On; Much Can Be Lost By Relaxing America's Vigilance

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Cease-fire in Korea will be only a pause in the bigger struggle with Russia. Anyone who looks for an end to that one in the foreseeable future is suffering the grand illusion. Some kind of peace may be restored in Korea and we may be able to claim we did what we set out to do: stop the Communist aggression south of the 38th parallel.

But it's too soon to bank on peace even in Korea. For once a cease-fire is agreed on, if it's agreed on, there may be months of haggling. And how we make out in that remains to be seen.

Why the Russians and Chinese were willing to call off the shooting just now can only be guessed. Certainly, the Chinese had suffered enormous losses and were losing face in Asia.

Russia had suffered damage in Korea, too. Until Korea, communism had taken over country after country from the inside. Through greed to take all Asia in a hurry, or arrogance in the belief the west didn't dare move, the Communists decided that in Korea they'd attack for the first time.

It was a good place to test the United States, to see how far it was willing to go to stop communism. If it didn't move into Korea, the rest of the world would lose faith in this country, thus making Communist conquests elsewhere easier.

This country not only went into Korea but brought its allies along. Worse, for Russia, the U. S. and its allies in Europe began to arm against Russia.

The U. S. went halfway toward a wartime footing. The shock of Korea speeded up its arms program by many months, a great advantage if war with Russia itself broke out.

And, again worse for Russia, the mood of this country destined as the Korea fighting went on, showing this country was willing, if necessary, to make much fiercer war, even if it meant war with Russia, as the Senate inquiry into the firing of General MacArthur showed.

While the General was all for making the fiercer war now, the

Costly Solution To Defeat Wasps

READING, Pa. (UP)—Orlando Consoled decided yesterday to use an oily rag as a torch to burn out a wasp nest in his garage before tearing down the structure.

The burning rag set fire to the nest. It also set aflame the garage and the fire spread to the home of his next door neighbor, Earl Baer. Firemen called to the scene had to fight off the wasps while putting out the blaze.

Consoled said he was saved the trouble of tearing down the garage. But damage to the Baer home and to electric tools stored inside the garage amounted to $1,800.

Treasured American Document 'Kicked Around' For Long Time

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Declaration of Independence probably has been the most beat-up and kicked-around parchment in our history.

But today that document, along with the Constitution and other valuable American papers, was put in a hermetically-sealed case of special glass to be preserved forever in the Library of Congress.

The Declaration, particularly, shows the wear of water, time and all-around bad time. The first part about "when in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve," etc., can't be read at all. And a man needs a magnifying glass even to read the signatures of the patriots who signed the Declaration July 4, 1776.

After what happened in the early years, it's a wonder anything is left of the document. I did a little browsing and learned from the files of the Library of Congress that the Declaration has had some bad moments.

There was the time during the War of 1812 when the British roared down on Washington and started burning up the place, including the White House. Dolly Madison, wife of the president at the time, tucked the precious paper under her third petticoat and beat it out the back door.

Later the parchment was packed hurriedly in a linen bag and hidden overnight under a bale of hay in a barn belonging to one Edgar Patterson. The next day it was taken secretly to the home of "Rev. Mr. Littlejohn, at Leesburg, Va., where it stayed for several weeks. Another time a careless photographer caught the edges on fire and only the quick thinking of an onlooker saved it. In those days the only sort of "flash" photography was to put powder in a holder and set it off in synchronization with the opening of the lens shutter.

The picture man had misjudged his distance and the Declaration started up in flame.

Yet another time in the 1820's an engraver wanted to make some "wet" impressions. He over-wet and almost ruined the precious document.

But now, what is left of the Declaration is safe, thanks to 10 years of research by the library, the National Bureau of Standards and scientists who perfected the special technique of hermetic sealing. No air, bug or human hand can get in to spoil things ever.

June Bride

Mrs. Charles Alton Lewis, who before her marriage on June 9, was Miss Juanita Dickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Dickerson of Greenville. Mr. Lewis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Lewis of Greenville.

A thief in the night would have to have a pretty strong axe to do a decent job of destruction, since the glass which seals the papers is about six times tougher than ordinary glass.

Other documents will be similarly protected.

One of them is Thomas Jefferson's "rough draft" of the Declaration of Independence. This was penned in the home of a young German bricklayer with whom Jefferson roomed in Philadelphia. It shows plainly the corrections made by John Adams and Ben Franklin. These are Jefferson's manuscript notes of the proceedings in the Continental Congress. And the entry for July 4 also contains a resolution that the committee of five "bring in a device for a seal of the United States of America."

All these are on permanent exhibit—for all to see.

THE GARBAGE PAIL ISSUE

"What impressed you most about your visit to the United States?" someone asked a European. And his reply was "The size of your garbage pails."

And why not? Every twenty-four hours we throw enough food into our garbage pails to keep half the starving people of the world at a subsistence level. Furthermore we pay our farmers not to raise grain. We destroy potato crops. There have been times when we have killed off livestock to keep the price from going too low.

It seems utterly ridiculous to those of us who do not understand, and we wonder whether anyone understands or not. Why in this world, teeming with food values, should anyone starve? The social and racial distinctions within a nation are not to be compared in their cruelty with the distinctions which exist between privileged and underprivileged nations. We may be proud of the size of our garbage pails and the fact that we have such a high standard of living, but we wonder whether the underprivileged peoples of the world may not rise up in judgment against us some day and make us wish that we had never been born.

Communism thrives when one nation has big garbage pails and other nations have no garbage pails at all because they have no need of them.

Harmony Is Essential In City Administration

Peace, unity and cooperation during the next two years will be the key to success for the new administration which took office in Greenville today.

There has been evidenced in the past a great deal of animosity between Mayor Lester Page and some of the members of the board of aldermen. But for the good of the city, any ill feeling which still exists between the members of the board and the new mayor must be laid aside and forgotten.

The mayor and the members of the board of aldermen were elected to office in good faith by the voters for one purpose: to give the city the best administration possible. The citizens are due the earnest efforts of the aldermen and the mayor to do just that.

Many important and far reaching decisions must be made by the governing officials of the city during the next two years. The decisions must be made through open, sound, consideration by the mayor and the aldermen. The fundamental issues the city government will face must not become fogged or distorted by personal feelings or friction within the administration.

There must be harmony of action and unity of purpose by the mayor and the aldermen of the city to progress as it should during the next two years.

Periodic Inspections Are A Good Thing

The periodic inspection of public places, lodges and clubs of Greenville by the police department is a move which should be welcomed by the local citizens.

If it is vigorously carried out by the police, it should rid the city of the gambling devices and lottery tickets which are present now. It will go a long way toward keeping Greenville free from the slot machines, punch boards and other gambling devices which have come into local clubs and business places from time to time.

Though investigating officers may not uncover many such illegal devices, the very evidence of their watchfulness will act as a deterrent to importing such items.

That aura of Prevention which cloaks Chief Langston's plan is a thousand times worth the element of Cure, denoted by "enforcement" after a law has been violated.

Of course there will be some citizens who will be highly indignant at the action of the police department. Some individuals will express the opinion that the policemen are poking their noses into something which does not concern them, and something which they should keep their hands off of.

But these chronics are with us always.

The citizens of Greenville each year through taxes spend between $80,000 and $100,000 for local law enforcement. The enforcement of all the laws is the business of the police department, and it is the concern of all the people of the city.

Membership in any particular club or organization should not furnish an individual immunity from a law by which all the citizens are expected to abide.

The clubs and business places of the city should welcome the periodic inspections by the police department. If they are not operating gambling devices in violation of the law, they have nothing to fear from the inspections. If they are operating gambling devices in violation of the law, the individuals responsible for the presence of the devices should be brought into the courts and prosecuted.

Carrying out the proposal of the police department will make the city of Greenville a better and more wholesome place in which to live.

Pitt County as a whole would be much better off if the plan of periodic inspections were followed by the sheriff's department, individual police departments outside of Greenville, and other law enforcement agencies throughout the county.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Secretary Oscar Chapman has hinted that he will resort to a generally unused weapon for extending federal authority into many new fields besides water power and natural resources, if he is balked by the courts from depriving the Federal Power Commission of its licensing jurisdiction over three hydroelectric projects in California, Idaho and North Carolina.

In a recent address before the Federal Bar Association that did not attract the attention it deserves, the Cabinet member pointed out that the Supreme Court's decision in the little known Gerlach case had opened strange vistas and visions for expanding federal power under the "general welfare" rather than the "commerce" clause of the Constitution.

AUTHORITY—The "commerce" clause, according to Mr. Chapman's interpretation of this and other decisions, once marked the boundary of federal control over non-federal activities, agencies and resources. Frequently the Supreme Court has had to stretch and strain that provision in order to justify its findings for great corporations in conservative regimes and for the United States government during the Roosevelt-Truman period.

Now, according to the Secretary of the Interior—and his conclusion seems justified from Justice Jackson's ruling in the Gerlach litigation—the "general welfare" rather than the "commerce" clause fixes the boundary of federal authority. Moreover, it extends the border-line farther than even New Deal-Fair Deal planners ever dreamed or anticipated.

It also prescribes more definite and sterner prohibitions against private interests when their plans collide with the government's.

LIMITS—Should the Supreme Court stick to this ruling in other fields besides power and natural resources, and it seems to have done so in upholding Social Security and AAA legislation for farmers, there is no way of defining the limit of the federal government's authority in every field of human and economic activity.

CONTENTION—The Gerlach litigation involved a livestock company which used to feed its cattle on banks of the San Joaquin River that were frequently flooded. When the construction of a federal dam in the Central Valley project checked floods and killed the pastures, the firm sued for damages. They were awarded compensation in both the Court of Claims and the Supreme Court.

One government defense contention was that the obstructing dam had been built under authority of the "commerce" clause, permitting it to regulate the flow of the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers so as to improve navigation, control floods and provide for water storage. Under the Federal Power Act, Interior can sell power only when it is a by-product of these other "commerce" activities.

POWER—Although the Supreme Court held against the government as to compensation, Justice Jackson really did Interior, and Secretary Chapman, a favor. He rejected entirely the federal lawyers' invocation of the "commerce" clause as a reason for building the dam and denying compensation. After referring to the Social Security and AAA decisions, he continued:

"Thus the power of Congress to promote the general welfare through large-scale projects for reclamation, irrigation, or other internal improvements, is now as clear and ample as its power to accomplish the same results indirectly through resort to the strained interpretation of the power over navigation."

IMPLICATIONS—Even Mr. Chapman is none too certain of the implications of this decision. But, in his address to the Federal Bar Association, which is composed mostly of government lawyers, he was extremely optimistic.

He declared that it "put a new constitutional foundation under our program for the conservation and development of water resources." He said that "we seem to have found new constitutional bearings in the field of water resource development."

"Moreover," he continued, "the constitutional principle which the Supreme Court found in the Gerlach case takes us far beyond the vision heretofore given to us. How far it may lead, I do not venture to say."

Instead of being restricted to development of "navigable streams" under the "commerce" limitation, Mr. Chapman believes the government now has a primary interest in "any commercially valuable interstate stream." That could probably mean any interstate river with edible and saleable fish in it!

WORRIED—Attorneys for the Federal Power Commission are understandably worried over the effect this decision, which was handed down a year ago, will have on their jurisdictional dispute with Interior in the Idaho, California and North Carolina cases.

Interior is admittedly relying on a "strained" interpretation of the "commerce" clause in the Central Valley (California) and Roanoke River (North Carolina) controversies. Secretary Chapman's legal staff has not invoked the Supreme Court's broadening of federal powers in the Gerlach matter.

Interior and FPC argue the Roanoke River case before the Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va., on September 4. It will be interesting to see whether Secretary Chapman will try to use this new weapon then, and what this highly respected but independent judicial body will say about it.

The Casualty List — From Home

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYNN NISBET

Daily Reflector Bureau

HOPEFUL—L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, is optimistic about the immediate future of southern farming interests, although admitting that the situation is not all bright. Ballentine is back from attending the Southern Conference of Commissioners, Directors and Secretaries of Agriculture in Atlanta. He was named president of the organization, and has already begun plans for a special session during late summer or early fall in Western North Carolina. (His election as president was another honor coming to North Carolina. Four years ago Governor Kerr Scott, then commissioner, was elected president of the national organization.)

REPRESENTATIVE—Ballentine said the top agricultural men from sixteen southern states are more representative of all phases of their state life than is the national association. Majority of the commissioners in the nation are appointed by the governors of their respective states, whereas all but three of the sixteen southerners are elected by the people. He further said they were too busy discussing problems peculiar to agriculture to get much into the subject of general politics. There was strong opposition to price roll backs and controls of farm produce, sentiment being that effort should be made to encourage production of foodstuffs rather than discourage it.

COTTON—There is some concern over the cotton situation, estimates for the 1935 crop being upwards of eighteen million bales, approaching if not reaching an all time record. This will come from larger acreage and better yield per acre than for several years past. There is evidence that the whole south is going into wider diversification of farming on community or sectional basis rather than on individual farms. Mechanization has made it difficult for one farmer to spread his activities, it being more economical to use high priced machinery cultivating crops for which it was designed. This is also causing a trend toward larger farming units.

POOLING—Relaxation or requirements for compliance on part of small business with government specifications so as to permit small business firms to pool their resources will benefit many North Carolina firms, in opinion of spokesmen for the commerce and industry division of the department of conservation and development. The new plan has just been formulated and announced by Maurice Tobin, secretary of labor in President Truman's cabinet, who said the action was taken "in the interest of obtaining maximum participation by all segments of American industry, small and large, in the government procurement program." It is pointed out, however, that permission to make collective use of plant and equipment facilities does not relieve any participating person or firm from full compliance with federal regulations affecting wages, hours, child labor and other provisions of the public contract law.

LUCKY—After Governor Kerr Scott had tentatively agreed to "ghost talk" for Fred Fletcher on his morning WRAL radio program sometime in July, he was pinned down to pick a date. He chose Friday the Thirteenth. That is traditionally an unlucky combination and some folks wondered why the governor picked it. Maybe he was smart. There are just two Friday the thirteenths appearing on the 1935 calendar. One was in April, the other in July. On the April date the general assembly in joint session declined to confirm the governor's appointments to the state board of education. But—next day the general assembly adjourned and got out of town. Maybe the governor figures he can "take anything for one day if the next day brings such good luck. Anyhow, for one day less than two weeks from now, on Friday, July 13, Governor Scott will spend a couple of hours as a combination disc jockey and radio commentator. It won't bother him to get to work an hour before his regular office schedule or to be an hour late getting to his office in the capitol, because he will have a good time wise-cracking, making serious comments, singing birthday songs and what have you.

DIVERSITY—As implied in its title the department of conservation and development has perhaps the most diversified job of any branch of state government. The statutes setting up the department prescribe that appointments to the board shall be made with an eye to the varied interests with which the department is concerned. Governor Scott and his predecessors have done a fair job in complying with this provision, but there are several noteworthy omissions. member directly connected with the textile industry or with the furniture industry or the tobacco industry, but they are indirectly PERSONNEL—As presently constituted the board has two manufacturers, Chairman Miles J. Smith of Salisbury, who manufactures rubber hose, and W. J. Damoff of Asheville, official of the Champion Fiber Company, who also doubles as a forester. There are two insurance men, Charles S. Allen of Durham and Aubrey Cavanaugh of Warsaw. There are two farmers, Fred F. Latham of Belhaven and J. C. Murdoch of Troutmans, with Lawyer W. B. Austin of Jefferson also giving large attention to farming.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

BORN IN AMERICA

(Kannapolis Independent)

In international trade, goods labelled "Made in U. S. A." have come to mean a product turned out through advanced technology by skilled workmen. It is a mark more highly regarded abroad than it is at home, where there is still glum attachment to imported items.

We have just had proof that "Born in U. S. A." also has its high value abroad. First, Eamon de Valera was returned to head the government of the Irish Republic, of which he was the architect and first premier. He is Brooklyn born. Then, President Galo Plaza Lasso of Ecuador made an official visit to Washington and addressed a joint session of Congress in flawless English. He was New York born and went to college in California, Maryland and Washington.

Whatever the native attitude toward our government, and it must be confessed that apathy and cynicism abound in this country, the vigor of our form of government still can and does inspire the men and women who come here seeking an atmosphere of freedom, and it instills in their offspring a love of liberty they are eager to impart to their countrymen on their return home.

As President Plaza summed up the appeal of this nation abroad, "You are not interested in conquering land and subjugating peoples. You are not interested in imposing your rule anywhere; your purpose is far more noble and of far greater value."

value." May the air of liberty they breathe in this country always inspire such sentiments in our visitors and neighbors from overseas!

GET THEM OFF THE EARTH

(Greensboro Daily News)

"My boy is in his bedroom banging his head against the wall. He wants us to kill him. Please, in God's name, what can we do?"

This is what the mother of a teenage heroin addict told a writer for the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

What can we do? A young surgeon from Alabama, who has been an addict himself, told the Senate Crime Committee one thing we can do.

We can make it a death offense to peddle dope to children. "The states and the federal government can make it a capital offense. Selling narcotics to children is as bad as any capital offense on the books, including murder, rape, arson and burglary."

The Lindbergh law put a crimp in the kidnappers. The same thing can be done to those who for a price turn youngsters into addicts, thieves, prostitutes and murderers.

Hanging is too good for them, but since drawing and quartering has gone out of fashion, we can try electrocuting or gassing them. At that they would get off very lightly.

FIRST LIEN ON BUSINESS

(New York Sun-Journal)

The first lien on any business is wages. The worker gets his off the top—before the suppliers, the tax collectors or the investors.

If a business goes broke, overdue bills for labor are the first to be paid as the assets are liquidated. Not until that charge is met in full can any other debtor get all or any part of what he has coming.

These facts are obvious as day and night; and that's one reason rarely think of them. All other kinds of obligations may be deferred; the owners may get nothing on their investment; but the worker is always paid in full.

This is as it should be. The old saying that the laborer is worthy of his hire has literally found its reflection in the law and in universal business practice. It is indicative of the place that labor holds in our free enterprise system under a representative form of government. In most businesses, the payroll is the largest single item of expense aside from the purchase of materials and supplies, and much of the money for those requirements winds up in pay envelopes all over the country.

Labor in America gets more money than labor anywhere else. It has far better living standards. It receives many valuable benefits—unemployment compensation, pensions, old-age payments, on. No group has a greater stake in the American economy and the American system of doing things.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
When advertising agencies, newspapers, magazines, radio stations and other media tell business it ought to keep advertising even though it is making few consumer products, the advice is often met with a raised eyebrow. That's natural. Advice from those sources smacks of self-interest.

But now comes the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which is scarcely an advertising man's club, with the same advice in even stronger terms.

During the last war, the Chamber notes in its newsletter, some manufacturers did drop off their ad budgets, content merely to fill orders. "It took these companies nearly five postwar years to get back on their selling feet," it adds.

One of the best examples of the long-range effects of war-time advertising is provided by Willys-Overland, the Chamber goes on. "During the war, they sold all the jeeps they could make to the government, but still they advertised."

"The result: in 1940 sales totaled $14,000,000; in 1946, sales were $60,000,000, and by 1949, sales were $142,000,000—10 times the prewar figure."

"Scott Paper Co. was another heavy advertiser during the war although their products, too, were overproduced. Scott's 1940 sales were $20,000,000; 1945 sales were $38,000,000 and 1949 sales were $84,000,000."

"Numerous other examples could be cited of companies that retained prominence in their field by aggressive war-time promotion. Chevrolet, Jello, Revere Copper & Brass, and Celotex are but a few of the advertisers that reaped the benefits of careful, long-range planning."

"During World War I, demand exceeded the supply of such products as Pear's Soap, Force Breakfast Food and Sweet Caporal Cigarettes. To 'save money,' these companies stopped advertising for the duration. They were never able to regain the high degree of acceptance they had enjoyed before the war."

QMC FIGHTS BLENDERS

MAY CUT NYLON SUPPLY

There's a lot of significance in an announcement of the Quartermaster Corps that it will replace its traditional 18-ounce all-wool serge shirts with a 16-ounce wool-nylon blend.

The decision was reached after thorough research (it will boost civilian demand for this type of fabric. Consumers will feel that she knows, the longest hair in America. This has brought her considerable fan mail, from men as well as women.

Three lady milliners wrote her sternly:

"You're ruining our business because you don't wear hats."

One nostalgic old fellow in South Africa wrote:

"I'm happy to know at least one woman in the world still has long hair."

Another man asked that she mail him the longest hair in her head.

"Just what for," she said, "I have no idea."

One possibility, of course, is that the gentleman wanted it to tie around his wife's throat the next time he saw her in curlers.

To which a lot of women might reply:

"Oh, that would mean a lot of extra nuisance and expense."

But Miss Theobald says that is not so. She says long hair is cheaper, more practical, and less of a bother.

She is in a position to know. She is five feet seven inches tall and her dark chestnut hair is five feet three inches long. It reaches to her ankles, weighs more than three pounds dry and seven pounds wet. It is so long it has to be washed in a bathtub—and she does that little chore herself.

As for the overhead cost:

"I haven't been to a beauty parlor for anything except a manicure since 1928."

As to the trouble it takes:

"I can brush, braid and arrange my hair in fifteen minutes in the morning. I don't have to touch it again until bedtime, and it only takes me a few minutes to re-braid it. But women with short hair have to fuss with it all day long. Every breeze musses it."

The young mezzo-soprano has sung fourteen roles in the Metropolitan Opera, and is the only star in the opera's history, man or woman, who has never had to wear a false hairpiece.

That record was broken, however, when she went west to play in the film, "The Great Gatsby."

"Hollywood is never satisfied," she said. "They didn't know what to do with my hair. So they put a long wig over it and cut a hole in it so my chignon could stick out."

(Editor's Note: For the information of our male readers, a chignon is a knot or mass of hair worn at the top or back of the head.)

The only other trouble she has had with her hair is keeping tennors out of it.

"In one role I had to faint on stage," she said. "The tenor was supposed to kneel by me, sing an aria, and then revive me. But he knelt on my hair. The harder he lifted, the less happened. Finally I had to give him a dig in the ribs to get him up on his feet."

One money-saving item:

"On cold, nasty nights when I have to go out I braid my hair around my throat. It is warm as fur and much better than a scarf."

Still another money-saver:

"You aren't stuck with somebody else's idea of a hat. You can wear the maddest, most delightful things in your braids—fruits, flowers, veils, strings of brilliants."

Miss Theobald has so far as if it's best for the Army, it's best for them, too.

More immediately, it may mean that nylon will become scarcer. The QMC has issued a call for 3,150,000 yards of this material and it will probably keep on buying it for years, since international difficulties and universal military training appear to be long with us. More nylon plants are under construction but additional output is unlikely before 1952.

NRDGA TO CLEAR UP NOTIONS ON PROFITS

A national educational campaign to eliminate popular misconceptions about retailing is being planned by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Details are still being worked out.

One of the first steps will probably be to correct public confusion between margins and profits. This confusion has been worsened, many merchandisers believe, by Office of Price Stabilization statements on margins, including one that retail mark-ups total a billion dollars a year. Many persons think this means profits. Part of the campaign will probably stress what the public buys when it pays a mark-up, such as services, community welfare, payrolls that add to community prosperity, a hefty share of taxes, etc.

A Chicago firm is now selling advertising space on the backs of transfers issued by surface vehicles. In Italy, where space on sidewalk curbs is already sold to advertisers, the government is considering the sale of advertising space on cigarette packs. The tobacco business is a state monopoly. Other foreign countries have sold advertising space on the backs of postage stamps.

Three lady milliners wrote her sternly:

"You're ruining our business because you don't wear hats."

One nostalgic old fellow in South Africa wrote:

"I'm happy to know at least one woman in the world still has long hair."

Another man asked that she mail him the longest hair in her head.

"Just what for," she said, "I have no idea."

One possibility, of course, is that the gentleman wanted it to tie around his wife's throat the next time he saw her in curlers.

To which a lot of women might reply:

"Oh, that would mean a lot of extra nuisance and expense."

But Miss Theobald says that is not so. She says long hair is cheaper, more practical, and less of a bother.

She is in a position to know. She is five feet seven inches tall and her dark chestnut hair is five feet three inches long. It reaches to her ankles, weighs more than three pounds dry and seven pounds wet. It is so long it has to be washed in a bathtub—and she does that little chore herself.

As for the overhead cost:

As to the trouble it takes:

"I can brush, braid and arrange my hair in fifteen minutes in the morning. I don't have to touch it again until bedtime, and it only takes me a few minutes to re-braid it. But women with short hair have to fuss with it all day long. Every breeze musses it."

That record was broken, however, when she went west to play in the film, "The Great Gatsby."

"Hollywood is never satisfied," she said. "They didn't know what to do with my hair. So they put a long wig over it and cut a hole in it so my chignon could stick out."

(Editor's Note: For the information of our male readers, a chignon is a knot or mass of hair worn at the top or back of the head.)

The only other trouble she has had with her hair is keeping tennors out of it.

Air Base In Azores Is Key To Defense Planning

(AP)—This tiny Portuguese island, which for centuries thrived on its fishing and its vineyards, has become one of the key bases in the Atlantic Pact plan for the defense of Europe.

Terceira's importance is largely an accident of geography. It is two-thirds of the way across the Atlantic from North America and within flying distances of most of the American air bases in Europe. Its importance is growing daily.

Heavily laden cargo planes of the U. S. Military Air Transport system take off from American bases for Europe. Because they can land here and refuel, their gas loads are lighter and their pay loads are heavier.

Old Customs Linger

Terceira still depends on its ancient customs for a livelihood. It is the fishing boats still put out from the villages. Farmers till the fields and the vineyards on the volcanic slopes from which a few wisps of sulphuric gas still issue.

Housewives of Terceira still embroider the Madeira linen for which the islands are famous, but the work is done to the roar of planes overhead. Besides army planes, civilian airlines use the Azores as an important stop in their round-the-world schedules.

For MATS Langley Field has become one of the biggest bases on the Atlantic division. Planes arrive around the clock for flights to England, to Port Lyautey or Tripoli in North Africa or to Germany. The field is a Portuguese air base but the planes are mostly American.

Terceira is on the scheduled routes from the United States but planes put down here from many non-scheduled flights.

Many Sea Rescues

The field, under command of Col. George S. Cassidy, is mainly a re-fueling stop. There are maintenance workers and a large air sea rescue group equipped with the latest devices for rescuing those down at sea. The Portuguese sailors who have fished the stormy Atlantic waters for centuries are valuable assistants.

Terceira, second largest of the Azores group, is deceptive. It appears to slumber in the summer sun, remote from Europe and remote from the United States. The constant drone of the planes heard from the distance add to the somnolent effect.

The field is busy, however, approaching the state of activity it reached during the last war. Already more than 550 American officers and airmen, 50 American civilians and 1,200 civilian Portuguese employees work here.

Thinks 'Right Drug' For Polio Is Coming

By PAUL F. ELLIS

United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK—(UP)—Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., said today he believes the "right drug will come along" to help him battle against infantile paralysis.

Francis, of the University of Michigan's school of public health and an expert on the causes of epidemics, pointed out the fundamental difficulty in finding a "drug" to fight polio lies in the difference between virus diseases and those caused by bacteria.

He made his statements in the July issue of The National Foundation News, published by the March of Dimes organization. The March of Dimes supports polio research.

Francis said the new drugs, such as penicillin, can be used to combat bacteria, but they just don't work in virus diseases.

"Bacteria," he said, "are highly developed, self-sufficient organisms as compared with the more dependent and parasitic viruses."

"Bacteria can obtain their food from many sources; they can convert material to their own needs, and they multiply freely under these conditions. Moreover, when they enter the body they grow primarily outside the cells of the body and the resulting disease, to a large extent, is inflammation produced by the blood serum and the white cells."

The story of the viruses is different. For instance, viruses are much more "intimate parasites," according to Francis.

"They select specific cells of the body, enter them promptly, and in this location, are protected from the action of the normal defenses of the body, as well as from the influence of chemicals that might be harmful to them if they grow outside the cells, like bacteria," he said.

The polio virus is one of the smallest. It is believed to attack first in the alimentary tract, and go from there to the nerve cells.

"If this is correct," Francis said, "the danger of paralysis could be eliminated by drugs that would prevent establishment or multiplication of the virus in the alimentary tract before it extended to the nerves."

Such a drug also would eliminate further spread of polio, Francis believes.

In the early days in their discussion of television engineers referred to it as "distant electric vision."

Women Warned Draft 'Possible'

That was the advice yesterday of Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey. However, Hershey said he himself is not now among those who "believe" should do very much affirmatively about actually drafting them.

To get greatest control of BOLL WEEVIL at lowest cost per acre

YOU MUST USE aldrin

Here's exactly why:

Greatest coverage... just one pound of aldrin—as a dust or spray—controls the pests on 4 acres of maturing cotton. That's power!

Lowest cost... compare aldrin costs per acre of control with any other insecticide and you'll find that aldrin-izing is real economy.

Lessens risk from rain... aldrin gets in its lethal punch so quickly that most of its kill is completed within a few hours. Even if it rains the day after aldrin-izing, you don't have to re-do your work.

Three-way kill... no matter how aldrin gets to the weevil—contact, eating, fumigant action—it dies. That goes for thrips, tarnished plant bugs, rapid plant bugs, cotton fleahoppers and grasshoppers, too.

Greenies Drop Weekend Contests To Farmville Red Sox By Scores 7-6, 5-1

Seven Unearned Runs Cost Saturday's Game Despite 12 Hits Scored By Locals; Sunday's Game Protested On Umpires' Decision

By MELVIN LANG
Greenville dropped a pair of games to the Farmville Red Sox over the week-end by scores of 7-6 and 5-1.
Seven unearned runs in Saturday's game handed the 7-6 victory to manager Norman Clark. Clark was hit hard and often but went the distance for the Red Sox, as he was reached for 12 base hits, including two extra base blows by Lou Colie. The Greenies got off to an early lead by scoring three runs in the first inning. Colie doubled and scored on a single by Leon Jones, as Jim Corbin followed with his first of four hits during the night. Larry Rhodes sacrificed both runners up the bases and Bill Phillips walked to load the bases. Jones was forced home when George Sauls was struck by a pitched ball. Tom Boyd then brought Corbin home with the third run with a single. Phillips ended the inning when he was thrown out attempting to score on Boyd's single.
Farmville came back with a single run in the second when William Sanderson reached base safely on an error and scored on a double by Joe Homes.
Greenville scored single runs in the third, fifth, and eighth innings to build up a 6-5 lead going into the ninth inning.
Paul Gay led off the fateful ninth for Farmville by getting an infield hit. He was sacrificed to second by Pete Piestrak and after Ralph Britt had filed out to left field, Millard Webb came through with his first hit of the night, a triple against the rightfield fence, scoring Gay. Webb scored the winning run a few seconds later as the relay from Lou Colie bounded away from third baseman Charlie Chatten.
Jim Corbin led the Greenville batting with four singles in five attempts. Colie collected a double and a triple in five attempts.
A. J. Rose went the distance for the Greenies and gave up only seven hits but seven miscues by his team-mates kept him in constant trouble.
Farmville won a 5-1 protested game in Greenville Sunday afternoon before 450 people.
Greenville protested the game in the second inning when the umpires could not agree on a decision about a baserunner. The runner had crossed a base and then returned to the previous base. The outcome of the game will be decided in the next few days.
Farmville scored three runs in the fourth to take the win. Paul Gay led off by working Johnny

Ormondsville Sweeps Macclesfield Series

Ormondsville took two wins from Macclesfield in games over the week-end. In Saturday's contest, the league leaders won by a lopsided score of 15-4. They came out on the long end of a 6-3 score in Sunday's game.
Ed Couche, led Ormondsville Saturday by blasting out two home runs and a single. His first homer came in the fourth with two on. The second fourbagger was a grand-slam job in the eighth. Manager Garland Little also connected for a home run in the fifth with two men on base.
Stuart Tripp and Sam Stell rapped out three safeties in five times at the bat for the winners.
Doug Bruton went the distance to receive credit for the victory.
Bob Laughinghouse homered for the losers in the third. The sacks were empty at the time his blow was delivered.
Pestell for a walk. Pete Piestrak followed with a single. Both runners scored when Ralph Britt's long fly to centerfield went over the fielders head for a home-run. Dewey Harris, the Greenies centerfielder fell flat of his back in attempting to field the ball.
The Red Sox cemented the contest with a pair of runs in the seventh.
The same clubs will play a divided doubleheader next Wednesday, July 4, with the afternoon game scheduled for Guy Smith Stadium and the evening contest for the Farmville park.

Belgian Champ Is Soundly Whipped By Sugar Ray
TURIN, ITALY.—(AP)—Belgian champion Cyril Delannott, nursing an eyebrow-to-waistline collection of black and blue marks, glumly said today: "Nobody can beat Ray Robinson."
Robinson, with an easy three-round victory over Delannott under his belt and $20,000 check in his wallet, wasn't around for comment. He was enroute to Paris where he starts training today for what he calls the "big one."
That's the world middleweight championship bout against Randolph Turpin, European and British Empire Middleweight King in London a week from tomorrow.

Chisox Tapped Heavily By Casey For All-Star Tilt

CHICAGO.—(UP)—Casey Stengel raided his own New York Yankees today for baseball's greatest "old man," Joe DiMaggio, but he tapped the surprising Chicago White Sox for kids and quantity in picking his second consecutive American League All-Star squad.
DiMaggio was named for the 13th time as an All Star, but the only two rookies on the 25-man squad were White Sox outfielders Jim Busby and Orestes Minoza.
Altogether, six White Sox aces were named for the squad, and two of the sextet, second baseman Nelson Fox and shortstop Chisox Carrasquel, were named by popular vote of the fans as starters.
The other two are first baseman Eddie Robinson and pitcher Randy Gumpert.
Stengel's pitching selections were made under a new rule of one pitcher per team. Stengel picked southpaw Eddie Lopat, from his own club, Mel Parnell, Boston, and Bob Shantz, Philadelphia, and right handers Ned Garver, St. Louis, Fred Hutchinson, Detroit, Boz Lemon, Cleveland, and Conrado Marrero, Washington.
The Red Sox placed next to the White Sox in representation with five. Outfielders Dom DiMaggio and Ted Williams, who had an All-Star game batting average of .417 for eight games, were starters.
Also on the squad are third baseman Vern Stephens and second baseman Bobby Doerr.
Yogi Berra was voted the starting catcher, and Stengel picked shortstop Phil Rizzuto as Carrasquel's first replacement for the July 10 classic at Detroit.
Detroit has starters Vic Wertz and third baseman George Kell, Cleveland has catcher Jim Hegan, named to spell Berra, and outfielder Larry Doby.
The eighth starter was first baseman Ferris Fain of Philadelphia.

"I had to leave Feller because I thought Lemon would be better under the circumstances. How was I to know Feller would pitch a no-hitter, Golly, that'll cook me with the fans."

White Sox Give Up Top Standings To Yankees

By STAN OPOTOWSKY

The White Sox bubble burst yesterday as they gave up the American League lead to the Yankees for the first time since May 28.
It had to come. These Sox who have not finished in the first division in seven years made a magnificent lunge for glory with a 14-game winning string, and thereafter they fought off the jabbing Yankee resurgence in valiant vigor.
But for two weeks the dark shadow of the inevitable was cast over Comiskey Park, and in the dusk of a Sunday the Sox fell. The Yankees started the day a half game out of the lead and they licked the Red Sox 5-2 on Ed Lopat's six-hit effort. The shaky White Sox went 11 innings—inst the Browns in the first game of a double-header before Orestes Minoza's home run gave them a reprieve.
Then came the second game. Ned Garver and the feared fall. Garver choked off the Sox with two hits, beat them 3-1 and Chicago tumbled to four percentage points below the Yankees. The Sox have won 44 and lost 25 for .638 against the Yankees' 43-24 for .642.
The Sox fall yesterday was a sad contrast to the Cleveland surge as Bobby Feller became the first modern-times pitcher to hurl three no-hit games when he licked the Tigers 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheader. Bob Chakales allowed only four in whipping the Tigers in the second 2-0.
Elmer Valo's three two-run homers paced the A's to 10-7 and

Chapter 25
"In two weeks, the police lost interest. They dismissed it as a hoax, or the wild imaginings of a madwoman. And as interest waned, I forgot about it too. And then one day, she got in touch with me again. She wanted to see me personally, but only if I would guarantee that she wouldn't be molested, that she could come and go freely and anonymously."

Leighton took a long swallow. "I made my first mistake; I said yes. We met in a small restaurant. After that, I made my second mistake the real mistake—I promised to see her again, on the same basis."

Leighton began to pace up and down restlessly with his drink in his hand. "The girl was infatuated with me. And being neurotic as she was, that was the character of her attachment to me. I wasn't just a man to her—Leighton paused, reddening. "—A man involved in an extra-marital intrigue. I was a god, a superior somebody who would give her strength, and wisdom, and courage. At first, I did not fully realize the insane basis of her attachment to me—When I did realize it, it was too late—I could no longer detach myself."

Jigger said, "How'd you come out to get involved in the first place—You, the envied husband of the belle of the society pages?"

It lanced, deep into the flesh. Leighton flushed. "That's between the belt, Jigger."

"But in earnest. You're famous, in the big money, with a wife out of a story book—By all counts, the one fellow who should be immune to the urge to philander."

Leighton studied Jigger gravely. "I'll answer that. I'm not in love with my wife, and I can never be. We're a union of deceptions, lies, surfaces. She's rich, too rich; and too well born. She only knows the invention I've made of myself. If she ever discovered my true origin—Leighton disfigured his mouth—"She'd scream at the bed I was born in; faint dead away."

I suppose it tickled his conceit, to boast about a wealthy connoisseur and collector purchasing him, and for important sums of money. So, I bought his trash, and burned it."

Jigger stared blearily, and Leighton suddenly dissolved right before him. He found Leighton again and fixed his stare strongly on him—His mind was clouding as though in a few minutes it must go to sleep.

"Did Susan Hunter use the alias Anne Brown during her relations with you?"

"All the time."

"Who do you think murdered her?"

Leighton said thoughtfully, "Arents, as a rejected lover. Or her father, in view of his motive—With his daughter alive, he was vulnerable, and in danger. Also, huge sums were at stake."

"But you said her father believed her already dead—Killed in a fall from a bridge?"

"He later discovered that Susan was alive. On a rash impulse, Susan had telephoned him shortly before her murder—She was trying to dare the courage, to come out of hiding, live openly, resume her true life."

Jigger nodded thoughtfully. The girl had telephoned her father—Leighton's disclosure tallied with Aunt Penny's testimony; it tallied too with the conflict of decision told in the girl's last writing in Professor Scott's group.

Jigger inquired, "What was her telephone conversation with her

"She threatened to reappear publicly as Susan Hunter, denounce 'm, bring him to book for his crimes. Her father begged her to hold off begged for a chance to make amends, begged for time to find a way to undo the frightful thing he'd done. He said he was remorseful, broken, —litriden—But he was lying, of course, merely stalling for time—Time to arrange to murder her finally."

Consider Radio On School Buses

WASHINGTON, N. C.—(UP)—Two-way radio communication for school buses will be pioneered in Beaufort County this year, County Schools Superintendent W. F. Veasey said today.

The system will enable maintenance trucks to reach disabled school buses more quickly, he said.

Already three maintenance trucks and a central control station have been equipped with radios. Equipment soon will be installed in the county's 92 school buses.

Self-Financed 'Spy' Departs

NEW YORK —(UP)— U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, calling himself "the only self-financed spy in existence," headed for Tibet today on another expedition that may irk the Russians.

Douglas left by plane yesterday for a 10-week pack trip through the Himalayan Mountains, which separate Russia and Red China from India.

He referred to himself as a "self-financed spy" because the Russians accused him of espionage in 1949 when he spent his vacation along the Soviet-Iranian border.

Robbers 'Traded' Unneeded Items

Camden, N.J.—(UP)— Burglars with a flat tire robbed Edward Strzylanski's gasoline station during the weekend.

Strzylanski told police that a hydraulic jack, a new tire and five quarts of oil were stolen. The burglars left behind a punctured tire and tire changing tools.

Soviet May Be Trying To Delay Or Avoid Arming Of Red China

By JAMES D. WHITE
SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — In promoting a cease-fire in Korea, the Russians may be trying to delay, if not avoid altogether, arming Red China—an unwelcome ally.

The Chinese armies in Korea desperately need more firepower and air cover. That possibility has been implicit in the situation from the moment Soviet delegate Jacob Malik made the suggestion in a radio speech recently. Apparently Russia suggested an armistice without consulting Red China.

The Kremlin rarely makes a major move for any one single reason. So it is possible, of course, that Russia already has committed itself to provide the large number of planes, tanks and guns the Chinese must have if they are to carry out their threat to drive "American imperialist aggressors" off the Korean peninsula.

It may be a stall for time. The key of eventual control of Asia is control of Japan, just as Britain is the strategic vantage point for dominance of Europe.

Russia and Red China may be cooperating fully on the question of a Japanese peace treaty just at this time when it is of critical importance because of American efforts to achieve a peace settlement without the dictation of Communist terms—and therefore without Communist participation.

But it would be assuming a great deal to think that Chinese and Russian interests will coincide in the end when the chips go down for the control of all Asia.

The reason the Chinese have agreed to a cease-fire conference is that the internal situation in China has changed since they embarked upon their intervention in Korea.

Initial Chinese success in Korea outweighed in the Chinese mind any natural misgivings that China might be doing a job for Russia.

The frightful toll of Chinese life, estimated in the hundreds of thousands, has changed all this.

There has been time for Chinese to realize their soldiers are dying like flies in Korea—with no air cover.

Two Killed Over Juke-Box Tunes

BRANCHVILLE, S. C. — (UP) — Police Chief J. W. Ethridge and a Negro youth were killed here because of an argument over "juke box" priority.

Two teen-agers, Carroll Gantt and Sammy Scott Way, claimed the right to select the first tune after each had dropped a nickel into a restaurant music machine.

Police said Gantt became enraged, reported the incident to Chief Ethridge and went home after his shotgun. He returned to the cafe and fired three blasts inside.

Robert Barnes, 23, was killed by other Negroes. The police chief was killed as he arrived to check on Gantt's complaint.

Sheriff George L. Reed said Gantt admitted killing both Barnes and Ethridge.

Thirteen Given Oaths Of Office

RALEIGH — (UP) — Eight special superior court judges and five members of the new state board of opticians took their oaths of office here today.

Judge Jeff D. Johnson, associate justice of the State Supreme Court, delivered the oath to the special judges, all reappointed by Gov. Kerr Scott. The group included Judges Susie Sharpe, Reidsville; Harold K. Bennett, Asheville; W. T. Hatch, Raleigh; W. H. S. Burgwyn, Woodland; A. R. Crisp, Lenoir; Howard Godwin, Dunn; W. I. Halstead, South Mills; and George B. Patton, Franklin.

The opticians board, sworn in by Secretary of State T. H. Dale, included Edward W. Dula, Durham; W. B. Flaherty Jr., Asheville; Frank McBryde, Fayetteville; J. B. Barnette, Charlotte; and H. L. Ridgeway, Raleigh.

Unorthodox, But Wound Up Fight

LOUISBURG — (UP) — Rudolph Rogers' unorthodox method of breaking up a fight had one man in a hospital and Rogers in jail today.

Rogers found his brother Oriene and B. C. Crudup, both Negroes, in a street fight here. Sheriff P. W. Perry said. He broke up the fight by jumping in his car and running over Crudup, the sheriff said.

Today Crudup was in critical condition at Franklin County Hospital. Rogers was in jail charged with assault with a deadly weapon, hit-and-run driving, driving after his license had been revoked and drunk driving.

Heavy Drain On American Supply

DALLAS — (UP) — Texas oilmen today forecast a critical drain on the world's oil supplies by the end of this month due to the unsettled Iranian situation.

Producers, independents, wildcaters and big manufacturers from the rich Texas fields said the seizure of the vast Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. properties by the Iranian government will create the shortage.

If the British technicians should remain at Abadan and other crisis points in Iran, this danger would lessen, but shortages still would be felt in the oil supply because shipments from the Iranian fields already have been reduced to a trickle, they agreed.

High Point Seeks Long-Hidden Box

HIGH POINT — (UP) — High Point citizens are looking for a box. Not an ordinary box—this one has been missing 100 years and is filled with papers of historical value.

On July 11, 1851, the box was buried during ground-breaking ceremonies in Greensboro which marked the start of work on the North Carolina Railroad. Instructions were left that the box should not be opened until July 11, 1951.

Now High Point, which marks its birth with the beginning of the railroad, wants to open the box during its centennial celebration July 8-14. But no one can remember where the box was buried.

Contents of the box are no mystery. Minutes of the ground-breaking have been preserved at the University of North Carolina. They say the copper container was filled with a copy of the railroad's charter, names of the original stock subscribers, newspapers and coins, and a speech to be read when the packet was opened in 1951.

The minutes-writer just forgot to mention where the box could be found.

High Point traces its beginnings to the installation of the railroad. People rushed to buy land in this area when they learned the railroad would cross the Fayetteville and Western railroad at this point. When the railroad reached here Nov. 22, 1856, it found a newly-built community waiting.

Urges Buying Of Fuel In Summer

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Secretary of the Interior O. L. Chapman called on all state governors today to whip up public support for the summer fuel-buying program designed to avert spot oil and coal shortages next winter. Chapman said public support of the campaign will "make it possible to assure an adequate supply for all consumers and help materially to make rationing and other controls in the fuels industries unnecessary."

The crowds get a large kick out of it and even the violators wind up amused, and smarter, rather than angry. The hand-picked cops wheeling tons and spreading a make this possible by using general air of courtesy.

AIR FORCES HQ, Tokyo — (UP) — A ground radio operator monitoring U. S. Air Force high frequency bands reports he heard the following message from an American jet pilot to his wingman during a fight with communist jets:

Firemen Control Gas Tank Blaze

A possible serious fire was averted yesterday afternoon when a gasoline tank exploded at the Purina Mills on Farmville Boulevard. Greenville firemen responded to a box alarm at Fleming Street school and found the blazing tank.

However, the fire was finally put out, after it erupted with a second explosion, spreading gasoline over the building. Firemen controlled the blaze in a small area and very little damage resulted.

The alarm was turned in around 6:30, and was the only call answered by local firemen over the week end.

Edgecomb-Martin Co-op's REA Loan Given Approval

A $460,000 Rural Electrification Administration loan has been approved for the Edgecomb-Martin REA Co-op.

The announcement of approval of the loan to the co-op which serves rural customers in eight eastern North Carolina counties came from Washington this week-end.

The funds from the loan are to be used for system improvements on the present lines of the co-op, and for the construction of 110.7 miles of new electric power lines to serve approximately 700 new customers in Edgecomb, Martin, Pitt, Nash and Halifax counties.

He said no new lines are to be constructed outside the area already served by the co-op.

In addition to the construction of the new lines, Sexton stated, $11,550 of the loan has been earmarked for the purchase of meters, $56,000 for the purchase of transformers, $10,000 for engineering fees, and $16,000 for office and transportation equipment for the co-op.

Office Manager M. R. Sexton of the Tarboro office of the co-op said this morning approximately $265,000 of the loan will be used for the construction of the new lines, and approximately $194,000 of the loan will be used for system improvements over the 900-odd miles of electric lines already owned by the co-op.

Sexton said the line extensions will consist mostly of short lines in the areas already served by the co-op, and the extensions are being constructed, "to make our area coverage more complete." He said no new lines are to be constructed outside the area already served by the co-op.

June's Air Mail . . .

post was heavier during the latter part of the month than the first part.

Whitehurst estimated that the mail was about 10 percent heavier than the city gets direct air service. He and Dudley figured that the increase would approximate 50 to 75 percent, or 15,000 or more pieces each month.

At the present time, Whitehurst said, there isn't much percentage in sending north and south mail via air because the trains out of Rocky Mount can usually get it to its destination at about the same time.

The post office officials kept their report secret until today, pending final figures on the mail. Otherwise, Kyzer stated, there may have been an increase in air mailings if persons thought it would help get air service here.

He will use the post office report with his other exhibits concerning local desire for air transportation when he presents them to the Civil Aeronautics Board July 16.
