Women In The Church

By Mary Fowler

Miss Patricia Ann Woodruff, of Armstrong Mills, Ohio, was commissioned a foreign missionary of the Methodist Church, by Bishop Herbert Welch, at a special service recently at the Lexington Avenue Methodist Church, New York August 9 for Union Theological Seminary as a representative of the Woman's Division of Methodism's Board of Missions and Church Extension, Born in Akron, Ohio, Miss Woodruff received her B. A. degree in 1948 at Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio. She received the master of religious education degree from the Biblical Seminary, New York, this year. During the last few months she has been on the staff of the Spanish Evangelical Church in East Harlem, serving Puerto Ricans.

In the shrine-city of Meshed, Iran, where pilgrims go to shed three tears on behalf of the Holy Martyred Imam, successor to Mohammed, and thus win their way into paradise, there is much poverty and disease. But recently Presbyterian missionaries have been giving practical help by setting up stocking-making machines in a former poorhouse, and teaching poor women to operate them.

A club of well-to-do Moslem women was asked to sponsor the project. Besides helping the workers economically, they provide, with the help of the Red Lion and Sun (Red Cross), at least one meal a day for their children. When a sudden flood swept through the old city moat and destroyed over 1,000 homes these Moslem women were leaders in relief.

Two young women from India, who are studying in the United States under the "Crusade Scholarship" program financed by the Methodist Church, have been elected to membership in Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary society. They are Miss Sumriti Das, education student at Northwestern University, and Miss Premalatha Shanthappa, studying nutrition at Syracuse University. Miss Das is a teacher at Lee Memorial Training Center in Calcutta, and Miss Shanthappa is a teacher in the Mission Hospital in Bidar, Hyderabad State. A total of 600 "Crusade Scholars" have come from 61 countries since the program was begun in 1945.

Reds Give Women 'Equal Rights'
HONG KONG —(AP)—In Communist China all people are equal — only women are more equal than others.

That seems to be the explanation of a recent Peiping directive ordering "all institutions throughout China" to strike off their books "any regulation" preventing pregnant women from entering into service or training.

The new directive, says an official Red news agency dispatch, "is in complete union with Article 6 of the Common Program "Women shall enjoy equal rights with men in political, economic, cultural, educational, and social life."

Ceylon Swamped By Red Agents

HONG KONG —(AP)— Communist trade agents in Hong Kong apparently have switched their attention to Ceylon, which has refused to go along with either the UK or the UN embargo on strategic exports to Red China.

Independent Sing Tao Joo Fao reported this week that local trading firms have already ordered 800 tons of raw rubber from Ceylon. They plan to ship the rubber direct from Colombo to a port on the Chinese mainland, thus bypassing export regulations of this colony.

Tuesday Party Given For Miss Conklin

Miss Janet Conklin, who will be married in August to James Rodgers of the Greenville High School faculty, was honored on Tuesday evening when Miss Margaret Listman entertained for her.

The party was held in the parlors of Ragsdale Hall, which were appropriately decorated with hand-made bouquets of gladioli in various pastel shades.

Canasta was played at three tables, and at the conclusion of play, Miss Elizabeth Drake was given a prize for compiling the highest score.

The hostess served refreshments of molded ice in shapes of wedding slippers, bells and flowers; decorated cakes; fresh nuts and lead punch. The refreshments carried out the bridal color scheme of green and white.

Following the social hour Miss Conklin was showered with a collection of gifts for the kitchen. The packages were arranged in a large glasspan filled with suds of white plastic. The pan was set in an improvised kitchen sink which was hidden behind a screen.

Miss Conklin was the recipient of many attractive and useful things, and the opening of the gifts was greatly enjoyed by all.

Volume Of Poetry By Local Author Just Published

By MARtha S. FORBES
"Catalyst," a short volume of poetry which has just been published by the Exposition Press in New York, is the second published work of Martha Pingel, an assistant professor of English at East Carolina College.

In the author's own words, this significant volume has been described as an "interpretation of life." In her dedication she wrote, "Since memory always casts its shadows on the present moment, in all fairness I can only dedicate this work to the elements which produced it—New York for knowledge and labor, North Carolina for encouragement and hope."

The book is composed of 45 "thoughts"—some long and rather complicated to follow, others concise and beautiful in their simplicity. In speaking of her own work in art, Dr. Pingel said that the thoughts were recorded over a period of several years with no positive intention except the compulsion to record on paper the feelings that were surging through her mind during various moods and moments of poignant experiences.

Some of the poems are published as they were first written down by the author, without one letter changed from its original position. Other compositions were worked over lovingly for months until the exact interpretation was caught and imprisoned by words which painted the exact mood that she was trying to capture.

Many of the poems are unconventional in form, meter and subject matter. But can one ever formalize or stylize impressions and thought interpretations? Their proper unconventionality is a mark of success on the part of the author to express verbally the mysterious and intricate thought processes that chase around in one's mind.

Others of the poems are gay and delightful little bits of poetry that catch the fancy of anyone because they express so adequately the way we all feel at times.

The volume of poetry records thoughts which are like fantasies—or like the subconscious mind injecting itself through a haze of dreams into a moment of reality.

One particularly pleasing little selection to me is found in the short poem entitled "Mankind," in which man in his struggle for existence is compared to a moth which struggles towards the flame, only to grasp and die.

An amusing little fantasy was inspired by a group of chattering women returning from a trip to Raleigh late at night in a rainstorm. The monotony of the windshield wiper against the constant chit-chat of the women is caught delightfully in the informality of the sketch.

One poem was inspired by an early morning stroll along the banks of Tar River on a frosty winter morning. The cypress trees along the banks of Pamlico River outlined in moonlight suggested an interesting geometric pattern to the author, which resulted in another "mood" fantasy.

Many of the poems are discordant and jarring, suggesting moods of despondency. Others are the impressions made thoughts of such profundity and depth that the reader is left feeling jarred and bewildered.

But all of them deal with themes of universal appeal and their crystal clear interpretations are a pleasure to read. In the words of the author, "The written word should reflect the same dimensions as life itself, plus one more—the quality of timelessness while being attached to a specific time."

"Catalyst" is the successor to "An American Utilitarian: Richard Hildreth as a Philosopher," published by Dr. Pingel a few years ago. The author, a native of New York, was awarded her doctor's degree in philosophy from Columbia University in 1947. During the war years she was a volunteer worker for the American Red Cross, later serving as a "gray lady" in the Special Services Division.

A petite blond with brown eyes, she makes her home with her parents on North Library Street. She may frequently be seen in the early morning or late in the evening out walking in the eastern part of the city with her huge German police dog, of which she is almost as fond as of writing ("Catalyst," By Martha Pingel, Exposition Press, New York, 1951. 64 pp.)

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
 ALL DOWN BUT ELEVEN
 We Americans are an unhealthy people. This may be as astounding to you as it was to me, but the United States ranks twelfth among the nations of the world in health matters. Linked to this information is the fact that of the hospital beds in the United States, one half are occupied by persons suffering from nervous disorders.

Here in America we have the biggest and best hospitals in the world. Our medical schools are certainly as good as the best in any other country. We spend more on all health services than any other nation. Yet we rank twelfth among nations of the world when it would seem that we ought to rank first.

What is the matter? We are victims of cancer, heart trouble, tuberculosis, rheumatic fever, and stomach ulcers. Some of these diseases are inexplicable in origin, but others are the result of undisciplined and irregular living. We work too hard; we play too hard; we drink too hard; and we seek after happiness as if it depended upon swiftness of foot and fullness of purse.

Cleanse the mind and soul of America and our health rating will certainly improve. There is no reason why the Scandinavian countries, Australia, New Zealand, and others should rank higher than the United States in matters having to do with physical and mental well-being. We can rank first, and we should.

A Bad Penny Turns Up Again

The absentee ballot, one of the most abused of all election gimmicks, is creeping slowly, stealthily back into North Carolina politics.

A 12-year precedent against the use of the absentee ballot in local elections in North Carolina was broken by the authorization of its use in the ABC election of Winston-Salem. Whether the ballot's bid for a come-back will spread to the primaries and local elections generally will be determined by the people of North Carolina.

The people should guard carefully against its ever again playing a major role in the elections throughout the state.

The Despicable Narcotic Peddler

The heavy sword of justice should crack down on the unscrupulous individuals who are peddling dope to the youngsters of America, and sowing the seeds which may undermine the well being of the nation.

During the past few weeks the nation has been shocked by sordid stories from blurry-eyed youths who have related how their lives became a conglomeration of dope, prostitution, robbery and even murder after being handed a reefer by some guy who was willing for them to "smoke one on him".

The narcotic traffic is becoming increasingly heavy. More and more young people are becoming addicted to the drugs.

The laws must be made more rigid and the penalties for the conviction more severe if the nation collectively and the states individually are to stamp out this menace to their welfare.

The person who peddles narcotics, the man who starts a kid on his way to addiction to drugs, is committing a crime equally as horrid as murder, rape, or arson. The capital punishment is not too severe for such a character.

But in North Carolina, what punishment does the law prescribe for those who are found guilty of violating the narcotic drug act?

The state statute places a maximum penalty of three years imprisonment or a $1,000 fine or both for the first offense against the act. And the maximum penalty for such a despicable crime is not mandatory. It is left entirely up to the court. Even for a second conviction of violating of the state's narcotic drug act, the maximum penalty is set at five years imprisonment or a $3,000 fine or both. And again it is left in the discretion of the court to be as lenient as it wishes with the convicted criminal.

Capital punishment for peddling drugs may seem drastic action, but drastic measures must be taken if the nation is to protect its youngsters from a fate worse than death—addiction to narcotics.

The Tragedy Of American Holidays

The tragedy of the Fourth of July celebration, as with all the other holidays, is the number of lives which are lost through carelessness on someone's part.

During the 36 hours between Tuesday and midnight last night some 178 people across the nation met accidental death. The vast majority of the deaths—98—as usual were caused by highway accidents.

The highway safety organizations are pleased with the behavior of the drivers on America's highways during the holiday because the fatalities were fewer than was anticipated. And indeed the highway deaths were fewer than in past years; but the slaughter continued in the heavy traffic.

Better highways, more safety precautions in constructing roads, more highway patrolmen and various other steps have been taken to cut down the number of highway deaths. However, the principal factor in the highway accident rate—the person behind the wheel—still remains aloof from the efforts to bring down the number of highway deaths.

Until all the drivers realize the deadly weapon they have when they are behind the wheel, the highway fatalities will continue to boost the nation's death rate.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The Fourth of July, 1951 may have marked the date when the United States abandoned its appeasement act in the "cold war" drama, based on official admissions of military weakness, and assumed a more aggressive and firm attitude in general accord with General Douglas MacArthur's proposal. Several secret conferences to that end were staged here before the national anniversary.

Even the Generals and Admirals who paraded our temporary "weak" in testimony before the Russell Committee do not believe that they overplayed their hand in the attempt to discredit their ousted colleague's specific recommendations on Korean strategy. While still against provocation of Russia to an immediate conflict, they feel the time has come to show a bolder front for its effect on Moscow, her satellites, our allies and wavering neutrals.

President Truman himself has sounded this more courageous note in recent speeches and statements. Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, who has opposed an apologetic behavior from the start, is largely responsible for a stiffer official spin at the White House and Pentagon. His reports on present and potential production of arms are surprisingly hopeful.

FACTORS—Moscow's cease-fire suggestion, although only one of many factors, lies behind the decision that the United States should not pull its punches for fear that Stalin to strike a sneak blow like the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Viewed from any angle, and regardless of its consequences, the Russian offer is believed to reflect grave internal difficulties in that country and in her relations with Mao Tse-tung.

There is the further fact that the Communist invasion of Indo-China seems to have been checked effectively, largely because of new evidence of French determination and defiance of the Reds. Turkey and Yugoslavia have shown unusual signs of hostility toward the Kremlin without any retaliation. So far Moscow has confined her anti-British and anti-American activities to troubled Iran and other sections of the Middle East to political intrigue and propaganda.

STRENETH—It is true that Russia may be hoarding her strength for a massive thrust at the aneur of the Anglo-American line in Central Europe, which would explain her withdrawal from the Far Eastern theater. That is a factor ever present in our planning. But there is also a question of how much strength Russia has for hoarding purposes—economic as well as military.

The cease-fire proposal connotes more than an indication of the Reds' current uncertainty, in Washington's opinion. If Moscow were ready for all-out war, or if she still thought it advisable to keep us engaged in bargain-basement conflicts like that in Korea, she would hardly have asked for an armistice, with the idea of terminating hostilities.

WEAKNESS—The Malik-Gromyko "feelers" also raise the question of China's value as a Russian ally. Mao cannot afford to continue to lose his finest troops in the Korean combat. He is known to be complaining over Russia's failure to supply him with food, arms and heavy weapons of all kinds. After his first enthusiasm over his troops' victories, he now knows that he cannot stand up against modern American firepower.

As we found that banal-screaming Japs were only human when facing well-trained and well-equipped western forces, so the Pentagon has lost its earlier inferiority complex with respect to mass onslaughts of bugle-blowing Chinese Communists.

For these reasons, both civilian and military officials here are slightly ashamed of the moments of weakness they have felt, and for having given such vehement expression to them at the MacArthur hearings.

GUARANTEES—The new offensive program now under consideration has many aspects. First it demands that General Ridgway and other field negotiators exact stiff terms from the enemy as the basis of an armistice in Korea, with guarantees against renewed aggression.

Otherwise, Truman-Acheson claims that a stand-off at the 38th parallel amounts to a "victory" would sound hollow. On that basis, General Eisenhower should have stopped the war with Germany when he reached the Rhine, and General MacArthur should have been satisfied with his achievements when he recaptured Guam, Wake and the Philippines.

The Communists, as well as the American people, might not regard a "weak peace" as a sign of American strength.

ACTION—Now that we seem to have the upper hand, or at least an equal lip, a shift to the offensive requires other equally important actions and demonstrations. The Pentagon planning committee has been studying these schemes for months, but the situation now demands that they be put into operation, to wit:

Our on-again-off-again tieup with Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa should be strengthened. For possible commando operations against the mainland, he should be given small and heavy arms, tanks, planes, warships. Instead of only an American mission of 800 officers, a full division should be landed on his island for further training, like that on Okinawa.

Insofar as our resources permit, the present small stream of weapons to Yugo, Turkey and Spain should be augmented. We have World War II tanks, planes and artillery in abundance that would make these countries "positions of strength," as Secretary Acheson phrases it. We would rebuild their airfields so that they can accommodate our latest jet models.

Finally, but importantly, President Truman should use his great influence to force NATO members, especially Britain, France and the Low Countries, to step up their rearmament programs at least 25 per cent. It should not, so the Pentagon thinks, let timid diplomats keep him from demanding greater sacrifices on their part.

It Ain't The Heat

Somebody Told Me

By E. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, Jr

Last Friday night in Columbia, S. C. supper time came and I happened to be with Gordon Berry, Tom Webb, Francis Worsley, and Joe Gaston. This was to be our last night in Columbia, so we had no intention of sparing the horses.

Right now I can't recall the name of the restaurant we selected for supper, but it was a seafood place with a name something like "The Market." As we scanned the bill of fare I happened to comment, "You know, I have never eaten a lobster."

Somebody cracked, "Where you been all your life?" For that remark, I had an answer: "For a man of a mere 37 years and a moderate income, I have been quite fortunate when it comes to getting around. I have eaten in Antoine's in New Orleans and Toots Shor's in New York. You can say I was out of place in both places if you like, but you can't say there's any more swank to be found anywhere."

"All of that swank and you never had a lobster?"

"Never. In fact, I have never seen one that was less than $3.50 before tonight, and I have never seen any fish that I would pay that much money for."

"Oddly enough, this restaurant had a baby lobster on special for a mere $1.75. This was too much of a bargain to turn down. You've been in the same boat. In a case like that you aren't sure you want the thing, but it's so cheap that you can't afford to turn it down."

"But even before I could invest $1.75, I turned to the man sitting next to me, who happened to be Joe Gaston, tobacco buyer for the Export Tobacco Company. "Joe," I said, "have you ever eaten a lobster?"

"Yes."

"If I order one, will you give me some free advice on what to do with it after it gets here?"

"Be glad to."

"That kind of cooperation was hard to beat, so I ordered the thing. Before Friday night, all I knew about a lobster was that people who have money eat them, and they had to use nut crackers to do it.

Joe quickly explained that the crackers weren't nut crackers. They are special crackers for the lobster's claws. First, you strip all the meat you can find, dipping each fork-full into the melted butter provided. Frankly, the baby lobster doesn't have too much meat to offer. After stripping all you can use, you crack the lobster's claws and munch another bite or two.

After this experience you may profit from this free advice: Order a lobster if you like. You can eat it without embarrassment, even if you've never seen one before. There is very little grace that can be exercised in eating one of the things, so don't worry about it. The job is 95 per cent confidence and 5 per cent ability. This part is my opinion only: If you have to pay more than $1.75, you're stuck.

And I thank you.

COMPARISON—Last Saturday night "The Lost Colony" symphonic drama was presented on Roanoke Island for the first time this year. One week before, June 23, the symphonic drama "Unto These Hills—A Drama of the Cherokee" opened the 1951 season at Cherokee. Inevitable question is how the two performances compare with each other. Comparison is hard to make. It would be difficult for an expert theatrical critic, and is almost impossible for a layman. They have a lot in common, and there are such vital distinctions that any accurate comparison would require a mass of explanatory notes. Here is the opinion of one man, admittedly no expert, but who takes pride in the belief he is sort of an average North Carolina attendant at such performances.

RANGE—First consideration must be the time element. Lost Colony has been presented every summer since 1937, except for two or three war years, while Unto These Hills is starting its second year. More significant with respect to time is that the Roanoke story covers less than five years, while the Cherokee story embraces three centuries. (Cherokee and Roanoke are used to distinguish the plays in order to save words.) That is an important item. The plays run for approximately two full hours each, not counting intermission time. Naturally a story covering three centuries must run faster than one covering five years.

IMAGINATION—There is room for imagination play in both. There is room for play of imagination in both, but there is a lot more probable history behind the Cherokee story. There is similarity in the basic features of minority groups heroically battling majorities, and there is similar tragedy in the minorities having to yield to impendence pressure.

DIFFERENCE—There is basic difference in that the Roanoke colonies fighting for existence on a land they were trying to take from its original inhabitants, while the Cherokees were fighting to hold their homes against the impact of outsiders. There is mystery about what happened to the Roanokers, none about the fate of the Cherokees. In the Lost Colony drama Paul Green has to make his comedian, "Old Tom," do a lot of philosophizing in an attempt to justify the British colonization of the New World.

In the Cherokee drama Kermit Hunter leaves responsibility for the philosophic import to history. On Roanoke Island the white people lost, in the Great Smoky Mountains the white people won. But in both instances the Indians suffered tragic loss.

TECHNICAL—Technical—Technical— even a layman can see that the Roanoke performance runs more smoothly. It is better

"staged" on a less adequate or impressive stage. Costuming is better; so is synchronization of the background music. The text is more scholarly, and maybe for that reason has less punch. One of the most noticeable physical differences is that for years the stage at Fort Raleigh on Roanoke has been widely publicized as the "waterside theater"—and there is no water in sight. At Cherokee the visitor cannot fail to be impressed by the mountains surrounding the "mountain-side theater." The only ship scene at Roanoke is when three masts show up above the background passade, without sails—but moving faster than any sail ship is expected to travel. When the Spaniards move onto the stage in early scenes at Cherokee, they come right off the mountains—they did in fact. When the colonists move onto the stage at Roanoke the narrator must create the illusion they have come from ships. So far as the spectators can see they might have come from a nearby drawing room or public square.

PREFERENCE?—Which is the better show to see, if one cannot see both? The answer is the same as to the question of whether a blue dress or a red one is prettier. And further answer is that it is impossible for any person to say which is better until he has seen both. Both are commended as entirely worth the expense and effort required to get to them.

His 20,000 snails and 25,000 white mice—the mice cost 25 cents each and he wears out 800 a week—are housed in the giant Lederer Laboratories here, some thirty miles from Manhattan. They are cared for by two technicians—Ann Greening and Fred Linderman.

Linderman sometimes wonders what he will say when one of his three young children gets around to asking about his job. "How can I explain what a snail farmer does?" he asked.

Miss Greening used to share the average woman's deathly fear of mice. After three years of working with them, she now handles them as fearlessly as she handles their kittens.

Despite the 25,000 mice stacked in cages around its walls, there is no mouse trap in the laboratory.

When we break the figures down in terms of days, we find that this year in North Carolina more than two persons have lost their lives each day in some accident, and that more than 35 persons have been injured each day. That picture is appalling.

We have long since concluded that it is not a matter of preaching safety. It is a matter of practicing it. If this rate of death, injury, and destruction keeps on as it is now doing, we may name our highways "Tombsone boulevard."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Credit controls have put some brakes on inflation and the new tax rates will put more, but the least-braked inflationary force is state and municipal borrowing and spending.

In the first nine months after the outbreak of the Korean war, states and local governments borrowed more than $2,000,000,000. This is just as inflationary as any other expansion of credit, whether by the federal government or by individuals.

In addition, it contemplates the use of scarce materials, since this sum is being spent largely for construction.

The actual total is larger, because in many instances the federal government matches expenditures by states for highways, hospitals, airports and public housing.

There are some brakes, of course. There is the voluntary credit restraint program, by which states are to obtain approval before floating new bond issues, but the states cannot be bound by decisions. In addition, the National Production Authority has power to disapprove of new projects requiring more than 25 tons of steel.

Perhaps the strongest brake, as of the moment, is the state of the bond market. Investors are demanding higher interest rates and hence bids for state and municipal issues have been running lower than expected; in some instances bids were so low that the issuing political body has withdrawn them from the market.

One of the factors that prevents these controlling forces from working is that a large part of state and local construction is essential to defense. A large part of the American highway system is in bad shape. More and better roads are needed for fast hauling of defense supplies. New hospitals and homes are needed near new rearmament plants.

There has already been a tendency of state and local leaders to shift spending from parks and mausoleum-type public buildings to highway's and defense facilities, but the fact that these projects are essential does not make them any less inflationary if financed with borrowed money.

And some day in the future, awareness of the needs of better civil defense organizations and facilities will grow and many states will be tempted to finance them by borrowing instead of by higher taxes.

BOOKLET EXPLAINS MATERIALS PLAN
 For those who do not completely understand the Controlled Materials Plan—which includes most of us—the Department of Commerce and the National Production Authority have published a booklet under the alphabetic title of "The ABC's of CMP."

The agencies have also published another booklet on "Allotment Accounting for consumers under CMP." Both booklets are available from field or Washington offices of the Department of Commerce.

U. S. TAKING SHARE OF CANNED FRUITS
 Some canned fruits may be harder to buy as a consequence of sales to the armed forces. The Department of Agriculture has ordered packers to set aside various percentages of their pack for government buying. Set asides range from 10 per cent of the blueberry pack to 41 per cent of the figs canned. Other set aside percentages: apples, 24; apricots, 36; blackberries, 24; cherries, RSP, 24; sweet cherries, 27; fruit cocktail, 14; peaches, 15; pears, 14; pineapples, 13; purple plums, 26; and pineapple juice, 12.

SILVER RISES NEAR TREASURY'S PRICES
 The price of silver has gone up from 87.75 to 90.16 cents an ounce and dealers expect it will go higher when manufacturing jewelers start buying for Christmas. It will probably not exceed 91 cents, the price the U. S. Treasury pays for domestically mined silver.

Most silver used in the arts is imported from Mexico; American miners prefer to sell theirs to the Treasury at its Congressional-ly-fixed higher price. But Mexico has stopped exporting silver in order to replenish its supply of minted coins and to make coins for several foreign countries.

NEWEST AD MEDIA: BABIES' BIBS
 Use of space on backs of transfers and cigar packs for advertising was recently mentioned here. But there's an even more unusual space being offered for ads. It's on baby's bibs.

A Chicago firm is offering the space on plastic bibs which are sold to restaurants.

LIGHTING: A new lighting system uses refractors, prisms and lenses to diffuse light and to concentrate it on desired spots, has been developed by Helophane Co., 342 Madison Ave., New York. It enables light to be concentrated on operating tables, controls of machines, etc.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

PEARL RIVER, N. Y.—(AP)—Amid 20,000 snails and 25,000 white mice a scientist here is raising worms to try to wipe out a disease afflicting 144,000,000 people.

That is about one out of every fifteen persons alive on this earth.

Yet you probably never heard of the disease. It is called schistosomiasis. It is prevalent in Puerto Rico, South America and the Orient. In some areas of Africa and Egypt 80 per cent of the population have it, and in acute cases it is often fatal.

The villains are tropical worms known as schistosomes. Under a smallpower microscope a female worm looks like a miniature, over-ripened banana. The male worm looks like a Brooklyn Dodger baseball fan with his team trailing 4-0-1 in the 9th inning—bent over and pale.

The scientist fighting them is Dr. Reginald Hewitt, at 40 one of the great worm men of the century. Several years ago, after testing more than 1,000 preparations, he perfected the drug Hetrazan, newest weapon against another age-old tropical worm scourge—Elephantiasis.

"So far we've spent $200,000 in the last three years and tried some 5,000 different compounds looking for something to whip schistosomiasis—and that may be only a drop in the bucket," Hewitt said cheerfully. "All we have got so far are a few interesting leads—but we'll find the answer."

The task is made more difficult by the complicated life cycle of the schistosomes. They are parasites which require two hosts—usually human beings and a certain kind of small water snail.

The cycle: The worm embryos hatch in the snails and escape into the water. Human beings are infected by drinking the water or bathing in it. The worms mature in the body and their eggs pierce blood vessels, often causing internal hemorrhages. After being discharged by the body, the egg whip through creeks in search of another tiny snail in which to continue their cycle.

Dr. Hewitt's way of short-cutting his attack of the problem has been to use white mice instead of human beings as the primary hosts for the worms. It is easier and safer to test compounds with them.

His 20,000 snails and 25,000 white mice—the mice cost 25 cents each and he wears out 800 a week—are housed in the giant Lederer Laboratories here, some thirty miles from Manhattan. They are cared for by two technicians—Ann Greening and Fred Linderman.

Linderman sometimes wonders what he will say when one of his three young children gets around to asking about his job. "How can I explain what a snail farmer does?" he asked.

Miss Greening used to share the average woman's deathly fear of mice. After three years of working with them, she now handles them as fearlessly as she handles their kittens.

Despite the 25,000 mice stacked in cages around its walls, there is no mouse trap in the laboratory.

"If one gets loose we just have to catch it," said Linderman grimly. "It might be infected."

Dr. Hewitt is mulling over some historic statement to make if and when he discovers a drug to destroy schistosomiasis. Scientists at such epochal moments are supposed to say something striking—such as "Eureka."

But he is still taking a ribbing from his colleagues for his remark when he first found the drug in 1945 that spells hope for more than 200,000,000 sufferers of limb-swelling elephantiasis.

Looking at the effect of the drug through his microscope, Dr. Hewitt ejaculated: "Well, I'll be —!"

Recalling that remark, he said with a grin: "Next time I hope to have something more quotable ready."

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—From a thousand glassed-in mountain-top lookouts cabins, lonely vigilants scan the nation's forests ready to spot and report what might be the beginning of a devastating forest fire.

The lookout stations—mostly in Montana, Oregon, Utah, Idaho, Washington, but some in Eastern states—are not manned exclusively by men.

The Forest Service reports some women and as many as 200 married couples are sharing important fire prevention jobs this summer.

Though lookouts have telephone and radio contact with each other, some are reached only by trail and see no other human being except the ranger's assistant when he brings occasional supplies on horseback.

Lookouts get about $60 for a five-day week during the season, but the job appeals to many who like outdoor life, the opportunity to study and read, and forest experience. Some just hunker to get away from the hurly-burly world—like Miss Dorothy Martin, once a New England school teacher, now a newswriter in Forest Service's information office here.

During the war—from May to November of 1943 and '44—she was a lone lookout on Mt. Pequot in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. "I had been a school teacher and I had an urge to get to a very high place to 'be alone,'" she told me.

"I found it, all right," she added. "I reached it by climbing a three-mile trail up-hill. It was all walking, no riding, and I had to carry all my own food."

Miss Martin had been teaching English and social sciences in the Center Sandwich, N. H., high school when she saw an ad asking for a "woman to man a lookout tower."

"They say some lookouts take the job so they can finish a master's thesis, read or knit. I don't know when they find time. You have to look for signs of fire every 30 minutes until sundown. If you give a nice thorough look, following trails and streams and sighting camping areas and such, it takes a good half hour."

East Carolina Schedules Series Of Seven Conferences And Workshop

East Carolina College has scheduled for the second term of the summer session, July 11-August 17, a series of seven conferences and workshops connected with the public schools. This program continues a series of nine clinics, conferences, and workshops held during the first term this summer.

Three workshops have been announced for the approaching session. These will center attention on the state's resources and their use, outdoor education, and education against alcoholism. Conferences for the second term will deal with science in the secondary school, citizenship education, the curriculum in the elementary school, and public school administration.

Resource-use Education will be considered at a workshop extending throughout the period of July 11-August 17. Directors will be Dr. Austin D. Bond of the department of science at East Carolina and Mrs. Mary Sue Fonville of Raleigh. Similar workshops held in previous summer sessions at the college have attracted a large attendance among public school teachers, supervisors, principals, and superintendents. Emphasis will be placed this summer on analysis of natural, human, and social resources of North Carolina and on the problem of how the schools can employ these resources in their programs and contribute toward better use of the state's assets. A number of off-campus speakers will take part in programs offered during the term.

An outdoor Education Workshop, scheduled for July 29-August 11, will be held at Crabtree State Park near Cary, N. C. It will deal largely with problems of organizing a camp and planning camp activities. Dr. C. G. DeShaw of the East Carolina health and physical education department will be director.

A third workshop will offer discussion of "Alcoholism in Health Education." The effects of alcohol on the human body, with emphasis on the sociological and economic implications of alcoholism, will receive chief attention. Scheduled for July 11-21, the workshop will be held at the University of Tennessee Laboratory School.

Conferences, their subjects of discussion, directors, and dates are as follows: Science in the Secondary School, Dr. Charles W. Reynolds, director of the college science department, July 19; Citizenship Education in the Public Schools, Dr. Howard Clay of the social studies department, July 26; Curriculum in the Elementary School, Gladys Merville, supervisor in Norfolk County, Va., August 7; and Public School Administration, Dr. E. M. Finck, visiting professor of education, August 14.

Switches Crop After 99 Years

IOWA CITY, Ia. —(AP)— Many Iowa communities and even farmsteads are celebrating centennials this year but there'll be none at the Joseph F. Buschmayer farm near here.

For 99 successive years, the farm has harvested good crops of corn for the Buschmayer family. This year the place was seeded to clover, timothy and alfalfa—no corn.

The reason is that Karl Joseph Buschmayer, 22, son of the owner, was called to Army service. Without his son's aid, the elder Buschmayer passed up sowing his customary crop.

COLLEGIANS PREFERRED: Youthful Movie Actress Peggy Dow (above) has let the word get around that she prefers to date college boys instead of actors. "I have nothing against actors," she says. "But let's face it—they are self-centered and egocentric." Being with actor folks during the work day is enough, opines Peggy. (AP Wirephoto).

Interests Of Child May Build Careers

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE AP Newsfeatures

Does ten-year-old Mary kick and scream when the piano teacher walks in the door? Does teenage Oswald prefer collecting snake eggs to studying his Latin geometry?

A new book written by a Duke University psychologist and a Chicago guidance counselor may help parents like these.

Written by Blanche B. Paulson, Chicago public school guidance supervisor, and Dr. G. Frederick Kuder of Duke, "Discovering Children's Interests" points out that parents must understand interests in order to guide their children intelligently.

"Young people often choose a vocation without considering their interests," the authors write.

Susie wants to be an airline hostess because she believes it to be a glamorous job; Sam quits high school to join the Navy because "that's what all the other fellows are doing."

"But in the long run," the psychologists write, "satisfaction with a job or career will depend on whether or not that work is enjoyable to the person."

Besides their importance in shaping careers, interests can play a big part in satisfying children's basic desires for security, adventure and creative self-expression, they say.

Here are some tips for parents who want to help their children satisfy these needs through interests:

1. Use your knowledge of your child's favorite school subjects, his choice of books and radio programs to suggest creative leisure pursuits.
2. Suggest books that will give your child more skill in his leisure time pursuit. It's often through a hobby that a child gains a feeling of competence and worth.
3. Help children with the same hobbies to form clubs to display and talk over their work. Such activities help children achieve social approval, one of their most important needs.
4. Encourage your child's efforts. Jimmy's first poem needs family appreciation, and Susie's cooking ventures should be respected. Children want their interests taken seriously by adults, especially those they love and respect.
5. Share your children's interests and activities. Plan an evening a week for the entire family to get together and work on hobbies. Don't jump to conclusions about interests through overzealousness to help your children, the psychologists warn. Children's interests shift and change as they grow and have more experiences.

Cracked Skulls Keep Missionary Busy In Africa

SEATTLE—(AP)—A Seattle woman is going back to Pig's Peak to mend broken heads and minister spiritually to the Bantia people of southeastern Africa. She is Miss Estella MacDonald, who has spent most of her adult life working with natives of Africa as a missionary for the Church of the Nazarene. She sails from New Orleans soon.

She will be returning to Pig's Peak, where she served from 1941 to 1947 in Swaziland, South Africa. She recalls from her previous sojourn there that most of the medical cases she handled were broken heads.

"The natives carry what they call snake sticks," she said. "There are a lot of snakes down there. But, when the natives get full of their own mountain style of beer they start using those snake sticks on each other's skulls."

"Parents and teacher should not feel guilty about having interests other than children," the authors emphasize. "Like adults, children prefer grown-ups who are vital, buoyant, interesting. By having 'outside' interests, you enrich the lives of your children. You make life more interesting for you—and there fore for them, too."

"Discovering Children's Interests" is published by Science Research Associates, Chicago, Ill.

Plans Made For Floating Drydock

Plans made for 18 Rose PALERMO, Sicily. —(AP)— A new $3,200,000 floating drydock, partially financed with American funds, is expected to make Palermo the leading repair and service center for tankers on the vital Middle East oil route.

This ancient port, known to mariners before Christ was born, has become increasingly popular with tanker operators. The present drydock, built in 1899 and only equipped to handle ships of 15,000 tons, is occupied every day. At times there are as many as 14 tankers in Palermo's port either undergoing or waiting their turn.

Plans for the new floating drydock call for an ultra-modern in station designed to double the port's facilities. It will accommodate ships of 30,000 gross tons.

Public Office Won By Recount

CENTRALIA, Ill. —(AP)— An election candidate finally won his office—three months after he apparently tied then lost by a coil loss.

Democrat Paul Drott won the toss for Brushy township highway commissioner in Saline county, Ill. But Republican Oval Hankins' demand for a court recount gave Hankins a one vote victory.

Some sun spots are believed to be 50,000 miles in diameter.

Chapter 20

The white light at the end of the long tunnel became blindingly bright as he moved closer to it. Jigger fixed his gaze into careful focus and saw a white vision with golden hair bending over him. He closed and opened his eyes rapidly, then looked straight into her face. She smiled comfortably, took the long thin glass out of his mouth, then went to a square enameled table and wrote on a pad.

She came back, helped him up his head forward, and put a glass to his lips. Jigger set his elbows down as props and sipped obediently, letting his eyes roam. Soon the design grew and elaborated in his mind. He was in bed under crisp sheets; tightly bedded in with his arms imprisoned, with a nurse before him. He looked to the window. It was daytime, bright and clear. He could see a balcony shaped in an 'L' against the back of a gray-brick building. On it were people wearing robes over pajamas. Patients. It was a hospital.

Jigger put fingers to his nose, cheeks, forehead. His fingers traced the area slowly. Bandages; he was wearing a skull cap of bandages and tape. His eyes flashed alarm.

"Just nasty cuts," the nurse said comfortingly.

"How long have I been here?"

"You've been unconscious through the night."

The opening door sent a draught of air over him. A man in the doorway motioned, and the nurse left the room. The man entered, and came up to the bed.

It was Capt. Prescott.

Prescott regarded him coldly. "Are you able to talk?" he asked. Jigger smiled weakly. How much did Prescott know, he wondered.

Prescott said, "You can get it all off your chest. There's little you can tell me that I don't already know." He took a folded newspaper out of his pocket and held it before Jigger.

A headline and a sub-head surrounded a short, bulletinized story: "MERLE LEIGHTON ARRESTED IN TRUNK MURDER"—and—"RADIO PERSONALITY, POLICE CHIEF, AND ARTIST FIGURE IN SURPRISE ARRESTS."

Leighton had really tied a horse collar on him. Leighton had suggested Scotch but had poured from the rye decanter for himself.

Jigger said disgustedly, "Miracle is the word all right. It's a miracle I'm alive, playing village idiot for Leighton the way I did."

But Prescott wasn't rejoicing over the miracle. His expression was austere, and his eyes hostile. Jigger stared at the police captain for a solemn moment.

"You said seeing me stand up under it?"—Jigger asked suddenly—"Seeing me jump, Rumely?"

"I was following close behind—in a squad car."

Jigger's eyes narrowed. "Suddenly from nowhere?"

"From the suite adjoining Leighton's. We had his room wired. We heard everything that went on all the time you were with Leighton. The switchboard girl signalled me when Rumely phoned up from downstairs and Leighton gave him the okay to go ahead and do his stuff. When Rumely picked you off the sidewalk, I was right behind in a squad car."

Jigger said, "Front seat at a show, huh." His thoughts were bearing down on an idea that were sending shivers through him.

Prescott said nothing.

Jigger said, "You picked me out of the cellar?"

"I called an ambulance."

The cold waves kept running through him; it took everything he had keeping his tones even. Jigger said, "Disappointing Act Three curtain to the show for you, huh."

Prescott looked steadily at him, but didn't reply.

Jigger said, "You didn't have to wait for the final curtain, Prescott. You could have closed the show in the second act."

Prescott said, "It wasn't that bad a show."

Pacific Air Lifts Set New American Record

ITAMI AIR BASE, Japan —(UP)—Million dollar pilots flying five dollar transports have established new records for the 11-month-old Marine Trans-Pacific air lift.

Tonnage and efficiency marks were scrapped by the Marines who have moved everything across the Pacific from helicopters to baby carriages.

They safely carried thousands of passengers including wounded, v.p., and ground troops in transports so antiquated they are evaluated at $5 each on the government's books.

The Eddie Rickenbacker of the Marine air 'ft Col. Dene C. Roberts, known from California to Korea as the "Pacific Fury."

Col. Roberts was ordered to establish a Korean air lift last July 15. He had his maintenance crew servicing aircraft on Guam four days later. Regularly scheduled flights began within a week, and have continued without interruption ever since.

"It was a lot easier than it sounds," The gray-haired Colonel explained.

Everything Ready
"We had everything ready to move and simply loaded all our own people and equipment in the planes. We spread them out across the Pacific, where they set up shop.

In less than a year the $5 fleet has flown more than 3,500,000 miles with only one accident and has never lost a passenger.

Its Trans-Pacific route goes from California to Hawaii, thence to Korea via the Pacific islands and Japan.

Greatest Feat
The airlift's greatest feat of the Korean war was at Wonsan last fall when it took over the air field two weeks ahead of the infantry and kept its own ground armaments until the Wonsan harbor was cleared of mines and the planes could be brought in over the beach.

The air lift's tonnage records were established during the Marine operations in Korea when the veterans were flown out of the front lines and replacements flown in. An average of seven minutes was required to make the turnarounds. The plane engines were kept idling to speed up the departures. The best record established was four minutes for a plane to be emptied, reloaded and prepared for takeoff.

Farm Serves As Room For Class

AMES, Ia. —(AP) Classes are held in the farm yard and fields and machinery serve as "text-books" in one course at Iowa State College. This is the way the students in the course in farm management took their final examination at the close of this year's term.

They were taken to a nearby 153-acre farm, and give time to examine the buildings, tour the fields, note the type and condition of the soil, check the fences, observe the livestock and take inventory of the machinery. Then they talked with the professional farm manager and quizzed the tenant at length about every detail of the operation.

When they were through, the students sat down in the farm yard to answer a series of question about their evaluations of the farm and its resources, and what they believed would be a good program for the future to get maximum net income for the owner.

Faculty members who helped plan the course say they believe it is a good way to tie together the teaching from the departments of animal husbandry, agronomy, agricultural engineering, and agricultural economics.

In The Services

Pfc. John S. Whichard was named honor man of the graduating class of the Army leadership school at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., last Friday.

Pfc. Chester L. Langley of Farmville ranked second high in the leadership school graduating class which has just completed eight weeks of training.

The leadership school company of which Whichard and Langley were members had one of the highest percentages of graduates recorded by any leadership school company. A total of 92 out of 100 men in the leadership school company were graduated from the training course.

Whichard and Langley are now awaiting assignment to Officers Candidate School for further training.

Sgt. William T. Jones of Farmville returned to the United States from Korea June 30.

American-Born Nazi Youth Now U.S. Navy Cadet

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Thanks to two American GIs, a former Nazi seaman and member of the German Youth Movement is now a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy.

In fact, Frederick William Knops, Jr., first realized he was an American citizen after the United States took over the Munich Seeburgh-fach-schule—trade school for seamen—in 1944.

An Army sergeant captured Knops as he tried to escape, checked his papers and told him he was an American citizen. Another asked: "What are you doing here? You belong to the States."

Knops then began to learn what being born in Meunt Vernon, N. Y., could mean.

It was one year after his birth that Knops' parents, both native Germans, decided to return to their old home in Dusseldorf, Germany. That was in 1931. Only after hard work and perseverance did their son 18 years later begin the long road of service to the United States at the Naval Academy.

The hard work came in when Knops, returned to the United States at the age of 16, decided to switch to an American naval career.

When Allied air raids began in earnest, Dusseldorf became a flaming city and a "terrible sight."

Knops' mother moved first to Bavaria, then to Austria. Her American son, meanwhile, was having his first direct contact with the German Youth Movement.

He left three camps at Reichenthal, Zirkels, and Prensau—after only short stays to rejoin his mother. When they were both living in Mondree in Austria he entered the seamen's school 40 miles outside Munich.

"The course was calculated to turn the cadets into the toughest kind of seamen," Knops explained. After Knops' first year there, the U. S. Army arrived, bringing with it the knowledge of its American citizenship. He and his mother moved to the American zone in Austria and the young boy was given a civilian job with American forces.

He soon applied for passage to the United States and after slightly more than a year's wait got it and left Germany to join an aunt and uncle in Brooklyn, N. Y. His parents remained.

Wounded Self After Assaults

SINGAPORE —(AP) — A 71-year-old man became sick and tired of being assaulted by fellow inmates at the House for the Aged. So, he slit his own throat. It didn't work and he was arrested on a charge of attempted suicide. He pleaded guilty and was released in $100 bail on a promise of good behavior.

Cominform Can't Block Romance

BELGRADE —(AP) Cupid still does a brisk business in Yugoslavia despite a severe housing shortage, the hardships of a rebuilding country, and the constant threat of war and invasion from the Russian-led Cominform.

Government statistics show that there have been an average of 500 marriages a day since the end of the war, as against a daily average of 50 divorces during the period.

Pop Bottle Band Uses 'Anything'

Swift Current, Sask. —(AP)— An old aluminum teapot and a pile of soda-pop bottles are the mainstays of Swift Current's unique "Bottle Blowers' Orchestra."

Using small medicine bottles, ordinary-size pop bottles, and quart-size pop bottles (the "bass" section) for accompaniment, the youngsters who make up the band supplement the musical group with tinettes, an auto harp, drum, and a set of melodic bells. Each bottle is filled with colored water to a different level, producing a musical note when the player blows into the top of the bottle.

All musicians play from music.

Air Conditioning Made 'Invisible'

NEW YORK —(AP)— One of Fifth Avenue's largest department stores (B. Altman Co.) has been air-conditioned by installation of equipment during business hours without the knowledge of the shopping public and without disturbance of sales operations.

After the work had been in progress for more than three years, the United States Air Conditioning Corp., of Minneapolis, revealed details of the unusual project.

Elimination of all visible ducts preserved the architecture of the high-ceilinged main floor that has an area of almost two acres. Most of the fabrication of units in the system was performed in the sub-basement during store hours.

Grasshopper War Jolts Hong Kong

HONG KONG —(AP)— Jittery Hong Kong dived for cover one day this week when the pro-Communist "Wen Wei Po" blazoned the headline: "People's Air Force Goes Into Action for First Time in Chinese History"

But the small-print story beneath cleared things up. The planes were eliminating grasshoppers, not people, and in North west Anhwei, not Korea. Four planes took part in the "mission."

Love Wins Out

LOVE, Va. —(UP)— This little community on the crest of the Blue Ridge mountains was named after an itinerant preacher settled a bloody feud between the original settlers, the Coffees and the Fitzgeralds. The way the story is told, the families listened to the preacher's words of brotherly love and decided to change the name from Meadow Mountain to Love.

Organized Government Aid For Alcoholics Grows Over Country

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(AP)—

State by state, organized government aid for alcoholics is sweeping the country. The aid is medical care, research, rehabilitation. Today 29 states and the District of Columbia have tax-paid agencies for these purposes. Most of this has happened in the last five years.

The basic idea is to regard inebriates as sick men and women, and to treat them as diseased rather than as criminals or as social misfits.

According to the societies which sponsored this new move, there are 65 million drinkers in the United States, most of them quite normal and not suffering from alcoholic disease.

Family Sails On Long-Awaited Trip Of Dreams

VANCOUVER —(AP)— The in-urable romantics who gaze on Vancouver's waterfront have just seen one family's dream coming true.

Quietly and without fanfare, a little sailing ship put out to sea on an adventurous voyage recently. On board the Wind Song were a man and wife and their wide-eyed child. The trip they had planned for six years was finally a reality.

Skipper of the vessel was Allen Farrell, 38-year-old artist, and his crew consisted of his wife and eight-year-old son Kerry. For Farrell, the voyage was the start of a vagabond adventure he had planned years ago. The Wind Song is schooner-rigged, built by the Farrells out of the best and stoutest materials.

One of the dreams of their voyage the Farrells are heading for the Hawaiian Islands and the port of Hilo, 2,400 miles distant. They plan to earn their way from island to island by selling the skipper's paintings and stories, or doing odd jobs.

Grass Greener On The Other Side

SKOPLJE, Yugoslavia —(AP)— It is worth your hide to venture across the border from Yugoslavia into Bulgaria these days. Thirteen sheep found that out recently. They decided the grass grew greener on the other side of the border, and crossed over.

The invasion didn't catch the Bulgarian guards napping. In precise military fashion, they began an encircling movement and then opened fire. Seven sheep became lamb chop luxuries for the guardsmen's mess. Six scared but unscathed survivors hotfooted it for home.

a-half millions classed alcoholics, those who teeter on the edge of this baffling ailment. Among this number are nearly three-quarters of a million who rate the title of "chronic excessive" deteriorated drinkers." Drunks was the old word.

The power behind the state sweep is the National Committee on Alcoholism, the section on alcohol studies of Yale's laboratory of applied physiology and the National Conference of State Agencies on Alcoholism. The spark which started the movement was the research and publicity issued by the Yale people.

There was little new in this spark, but the results seem to indicate that the fuel it fired is new, namely a growing belief that medical care and research may do what other methods have failed to do for more than five thousand years.

The plan is for states to use not only some money and medical brains, but also legal powers. Those who do not want to be doctored for alcoholism, may legally be required to take treatment. The state agency is allowed to make the effort to salvage. Just applied is not clear on a national scale, for most of the state agencies are frankly out to study what is best to do.

The difference is in use of this power. There is no life commitment. The state agency is allowed to make the effort to salvage. Just applied is not clear on a national scale, for most of the state agencies are frankly out to study what is best to do.

The principles are to try to write clear and fair medical regulation of alcoholism as a disease; to set up commissions with responsibility in each state; to acquire hospital facilities or clinics designed for alcoholics; to avoid legal punishment.

Added to these principles in many of the states are educational campaigns in schools, for the public and for officials, channeled toward the greatest achievement of all—prevention of alcoholism.

The National Conference of State Agencies on Alcoholism lists in its survey only these nine states as not yet having a state sponsored program: South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, West Virginia, Wyoming, and North Dakota.

Chicken Farm Is Importing Breeds

CENTRALIA, Ill. —(AP)— Chinese, Japanese and American sisters get along with nary a skirmish—at least in the Albert Shadwell's Effingham county, Ill., poultry lot.

They imported the foreign breeds in hopes of crossing them with American strains. The foreign hens have short drumsticks, squatly chassises and white plumes.

Highway Funds' Surplus Set For Improving Roads

RALEIGH —(UP)— An allotment of $7,100,000 in surplus highway funds will be spent for major improvements on the state's primary highway system, Highway Commission Chairman Henry W. Jordan announced today.

The funds will pay for 18 projects involving widening present two-lane highways to four lanes in heavily travelled sections and improving entrances into Western North Carolina from Tennessee, Georgia and Virginia.

Jordan said work on the projects will not begin before next year. Some projects, he said, may be held up pending settlement of right-of-way agreements.

The proposal projects include improvements on U. S. 29, 64, and 70; a new entrance from Tennessee to the Waynesville area along the Pigeon River; and a two-lane addition between Durham and Raleigh.

Jordan said U. S. 29, most travelled highway in the state, will carry four lanes of traffic from when present plans are completed. The new allocation will build four-lane segments between China Grove and Concord and between Lexington and Thomasville.

The $200,000 road bond issue for secondary roads has released all surplus funds for use on primary highways, the commission chairman said. Gov. Kerr Scott has approved allocations of more than $21,275,000 for primary highway projects.

In the present allocation, 12 of the 18 projects lie in Western North Carolina.

LIKE MERRY-GO-ROUND

AYER, Mass. —(UP)— Arthur E. Lozeau, 25, of Nashua, N. H., didn't know whether he was going or going. Arrested for speeding on Saturday, Lozeau paid a $20 fine in district court on Monday. On the way home to Nashua he was caught speeding again. Tuesday he was stopped a third time in the same county and Wednesday he was back in court.

Dear Judy

AP Newsfeatures
This is the time of the year when daughter and mother both face the problem of "the older man." Daughter writes that she is in love with a man much, much older than herself. Mother writes that daughter is being a little fool, and what can she do about it.

It is strange that older men have more appeal in the summertime than their younger brothers. However, each year it is noticeable and it may be because: (a) he can look more handsome since he commands a big wardrobe (b) he has more money and can entertain a girl at a beach or golf club and (c) he is more mature, considerate and a smoother talker.

Then too during the summer a schoolgirl on her vacation, who has been date-starved for a long time is likely to seek companionship with the first man who suggests fun.

She is likely to meet her "older man" at (a) the country club dance when she is with Mom and Pop (b) at the hardware store where she has a summer job or (c) on the beach where the average man feels at liberty to strike up an acquaintanceship with unescorted women (d) he might be her dentist, doctor or the professor of her summer class in art or English. There is no telling where a teen-ager will get the notion that she is in love with a man old enough to be her father, in some cases.

Many a girl who builds up romance in her mind mistakes the friendliness of a family friend or an employer for romantic interest. She builds up her daydreams to fantastic proportions, and every kind act on the part of the man she has tabbed for her knight is magnified to the hilt. She thinks he looks at her especially sweetly, or is going out of his way to be near her, because he happens to visit family or friends when she is present.

Sometimes the older man is unconscious of this interest—sometimes he has encouraged it. However, it often develops that the girl is the pursuer, at least at first.

There are many little temptresses, who for want of romance and affection, will try to attract the married man they meet at a resort—with or without his wife. Men are notably weak when it comes to women, but even if he does fall for the poor little dear, what has she accomplished? Chances are that 999 men out of a 1,000 return to their wives even if they have been led astray temporarily.

The summer romance leaves many a girl brokenhearted. She thinks she can pack into two weeks or a month all the romantic yearnings of her heart, and not pay for it. She will encourage men who would not appeal to her during the school year or back in her home town or who would look ridiculous with her at the Junior Prom.

Take it easy, girls. Try to take summer fun in stride. Sometimes it is lonely being dateless at the beach, or not being invited to the club dance or not having a young man to serve to you at tennis. But isn't it better to wait until the right boy comes along.

Then, too, it would be a better investment for the future, if you encouraged the younger boys in your local group, rather than their paunchy elders. Young boys might not be able to afford the orchids or the important dinners, but you'll have more fun with them on a simple beach picnic or backyard barbecue.

Young men, of course, could break your heart, also. But that might be your doing if it happens. There is no point in letting a summer romance go to your head, if you do not know anything about the boy. And it certainly is pretty silly to make a lot of charming plans for the boy before he even learns your name.

Claim Plague In Chinese District Has Been Beaten

HONG KONG —(AP)— The Chinese Communists say they have won the nearly-hundred-year battle to stamp out bubonic plague in the Onpu district of Kwangtung.

According to the Canton "Southern Daily", the rat-spread menace which appeared first in 1863 had been "basically" destroyed. One case was reported in April, but the patient was given treatment in time and has passed the danger period. The Communist report credited the "scientific methods" of Peiping's Health Ministry for checking the plague, while the people themselves resorted to making an "annual offering to the gods on the 28th day of the first moon."

Ransom Isom, 40, got more than he asked for. Isom was arrested on a drunkenness charge and asked officers to get him a 5-day jail sentence. Judge John J. Brennan gave him 30 days.

Pitt Fishermen Hook Approximately 600 Pounds In One Day

Five Pitt County fishermen found the ocean and the fish exactly right one day last week and brought home 127 king mackerel, six Spanish mackerel and one bonito. The fishermen (left to right) are Prince Mills, T. J. Stocks, Jesse Lee Mills and W. Luke Mills, all of Greenville, and W. H. Manning of Grimesland. The fish caught by the party totaled approximately 600 pounds and were caught from the yacht Blue Water in the Gulf Stream off Morehead City.

Treasure Hunt A Riotous Success

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(UP)—The annual treasure hunt sponsored by the St. Petersburg Times was a riotous success.

Nobody got killed searching for the buried $200, but: Six persons were injured in two traffic accidents during the wild scramble;

One woman fell into Boca Ceiga Bay and had to be rescued; and Four treasure hunters had to be pulled out of waist-deep mud.

The excitement started when the newspaper published the final clue to the treasure's location yesterday. Some 1,000 persons stormed into the plant just as the presses started rolling at 1 a.m. They tore down the iron bars of the cashier's cage in the rush to buy papers. Traffic backed up past the police station a block and a half away and hemmed in a patrol car which was trying to answer a call.

More than 5,000 persons then flocked to a ritzy residential section on Treasure Island and uprooted so many markers on a home development site that engineers may have to re-survey the entire project. The bridge tender counted 2,000 cars jammed on the causeway.

The treasure was found by five persons 30 minutes after the final clue was published and 18 miles from the island where the mob willed until dawn.

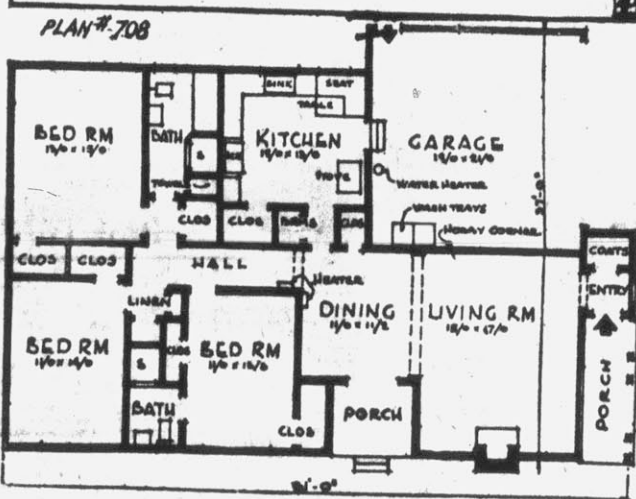

The Times, which attracted only a few hundred hunters with its $50 treasure last year, has not decided whether to risk raising the ante again next year.

Negro Infant Dies From Strangulation

Carlton Ray Clark, year-old foster son of Andrew Smith and wife of Winterville, died of strangulation during a coughing spell early today. Dorner Griffin H. Rouse said there will be no inquest.

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. today. Burial was in the Winterville cemetery.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
A CALIFORNIA PLAN for a compact three-bedroom house suitable for a narrow lot. This house is only 37 feet wide, as shown in the drawing. It can be turned for a broader facade for a wider lot, as shown by the plan. Plan 708 by J. Lloyd Corrich, architect, 583 Market St., San Francisco, the house offers Californians ideas for any location. Built without basement, it can be heated with wall heaters, which are proving practicable in all climates. Each of the two baths are planned for stall showers. There are 12 closets and the two-car garage is adequate for storage, laundry and a hobby bench.

Production . . .
Since Wilson's report is full of figures on production and the problems of production ahead, it is not the kind of reading a man would take home for the kids. . . . But it is exciting for anyone with patience enough to plow through it. It gives in some detail the pro-standard of civilian living. We have not reached the goal yet, and we do for some time.

Wilson said: "At least two years of intensive labor are ahead of us in this nation before we reach our present goals of military strength and productive power. . . . the military production program is still essentially in the 'topping-up stage'."

Congress, of course, may cut the program if it thinks, because of peace which may come in Korea, that we can afford to relax and take it easier.

But with the program continuing, Wilson and those around him are worried there may be damaging inflation if Congress eases up on the inflation controls.

Children Die In Boating Mishap

BERLIN—(UP)—An East German excursion steamer carrying about 150 orphans on a vacation outing exploded and burned on the Spree River today, killing an estimated 50 or more persons. At least 30 other persons, including two adults, were hospitalized. The explosion threw many children into the water. Others leaped into the river with their clothing in flames. Some reached shore, but many drowned.

Still other children were trapped by the flames in the stern of the vessel and perished. The orphans ranged in age from 8 to 12. East German police barred entry to the Spree shore and East Berlin officials refused to release official casualty figures. But West Berlin police and fire officials who were admitted to the scene as observers said the death toll was at least 50.

Inquest Ordered In Strange Death Of Sergeant

His body was found on the Southern Pacific bridge over Memorial Drive at the western end of Houston Tuesday, an hour after a troop train passed.

Military authorities said they could not determine whether he leaped, fell, or was pushed from the train.

Under Secretary Of Army Hurt In Plane Accident

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea.—(UP)—U. S. Under Secretary of the Army Archibald S. Alexander rested comfortably in a field hospital today with slight injuries from an airplane crash.

Alexander was returning from a frontline inspection trip when the crash occurred near the town of Chilmou. Alexander's single-engine reconnaissance plane was caught in air currents as it flew through a pass often used by light aircraft unable to get sufficient altitude to top the peaks.

Farmville Red Sox Wallop Greenies By Top-Heavy Scores Of 22-5 And 10-5

Eleven-Run Third Inning Starts Farmville On Way To Dizzy Heights In First Game; Fast Start Clinches Nightcap For Red Sox

The surging Farmville Red Sox blasted Greenies in a pair of July 4th games, 22-5 and 10-5.

A big 11-run third inning accounted for half of Farmville's runs in the afternoon game. Sixteen men went to bat in the hectic inning as the Red Sox collected six walks, two singles, a pair of doubles, and were helped out by the Greene infield, which committed three errors.

Six runs in the second clinched the game for the winners. William Sanderson led off by striking out and was followed by Buck Hardee, who rapped out his first of the three singles that he collected in the contest. Roger Thrift followed with another single and moved to third as Boyd Webb's grounder was error'd, with Hardee scoring. Thrift scored on Millard Webb's infield out.

Gaither Cline, Pete Plestrak, and Ralph Britt then singled in succession, with Cline scoring. Plestrak crossed the plate when Paul Gay's grounder was error'd. Britt was caught in a run-down between third base and home, but scored when the Greene catcher threw into the dirt to the third baseman.

The Greenies staged a mild, three-run rally in the third. Leon Jones moved to lead off the inning and singled to second on a single by Bill Phillips. When Larry Rhodes followed with the third single of the inning, Jones scored. Rhodes moved to second when Tom Boyd's doubled-play grounder was dropped by the shortstop, with both runners safe, leading the bases. A single by Brownie Trippe accounted for one run. The third run crossed the plate when the third Greene pitcher, Julian Vainright, walked.

Roger Thrift was the winning pitcher in the abbreviated seven inning contest, which was shortened so that the teams could play a second game in Farmville. Thrift was relieved by Pete Plestrak in the fourth inning.

Manager Jack Boone used three pitchers, with James Piner being the starting and losing pitcher. Warren Aldridge came in in the third with none out and did not last the inning. Julian Vainright relieved him and went the rest of the way.

Farmville got off to a fast lead in the bottom of the first inning to defeat the Greenies in the nightcap played in Farmville. Three runs crossed the plate as the result of three walks and a triple.

Boyd Webb led off by reaching Lehigher Leonard Sullivan for the first of a trio of walks. After Manager Norman Clark and Millard Webb had also walked, Catcher Ralph Britt slammed out a triple to deep centerfield to score three runs.

Tom Boyd, Greene shortstop, collected the first Greene home run of the season as he rapped out a 365 foot four-bagger in the second inning. The bases were empty at the time.

Clint Provost, former Kinston High School star, started on the mound for the Red Sox but was relieved in the third by Harvey Lee Webb. Webb received credit for the

Junior League Baseball Starts Play With First Game Tonight

The opening game for the Greenville Junior Baseball League has been set for tonight at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Converts and Sedans will oppose each other in the inaugural contest, with the Wreckers and Coupes playing in the second game, on the sixth. Game time has been set for 7:30 each night.

Players and managers for the teams were chosen recently. The Sedans will be managed by John Warner, while Bill Kittrell will coach the Converts. John Farley is to be the manager for the Wreckers. A manager for the Coupes will be chosen before game time.

Warner will have as players on his Sedan team: Billy Dunn, Leland Evans, Bob Howell, Bob Hudson, win, his third of the year. Greenville again used three hurlers, with Sullivan starting and being charged with the defeat. He was relieved by E. B. Ricks in the seventh and Billy Edwards came in in the eighth to finish up.

The night game was a Bright Belt League game, while the afternoon affair was an exhibition tilt.

The next home game for the Greenies is slated for Saturday night, when they play host to the league leading Ormondville nine.

Veck Plans New Manager For His St. Louis Club

ST. LOUIS—(UP)—Showman Bill Veck takes official control of the hapless St. Louis Browns today, and he indicated he'll have a new manager running the club as soon as he can.

Joyous Veck toured the park yesterday, chatting with the fans as the club played a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians before the largest throng to see the team this season, 10,770. He spoke with the customers in all sections of the park, including the bleachers, to see what they expect from the regime.

Then, to reporters, he sounded what seemed the death knell of Zack Taylor's reign as the club manager: "I can't answer about a new manager until I take over the club. However, when we see fit to change managers, we will do so."

Teams Battle To An 18-Inning Tie

PINETOPS—Pinetops and Macclesfield struggled to an 18 inning 5-5 tie yesterday in a Bright Belt League game played here.

Neither team scored after the eighth inning, when Pinetops pushed across a pair of runs to knot the count and force the game into overtime. Darkness caused the game to be called at the end of the 18th inning.

Macclesfield was led at bat by Phillips, with 2-4, and Hollister, 3-7. Manager Suggs collected three hits for the local team.

Howard Bullock, Billy Brady, Louis Zappas, Charles Overton, R. J. Kennedy, James Speight;

Wade Tucker, Bobby Ward, Horace Godley, Felton Holliman, Garland Cox, Bobby Conway, Dan Mills, Earl Hardy, Thomas Hardy, Bob Shackelford, and Bobby Nobles. Coach Kittrell will have: Eric Strickland, Randolph Tripp, Roger Mills, Bill Catlette, David Nobles, Earl Wright, Jarvis Preston, Robert Brantley, Wayne Bishop, Harold Edwards, Jimmie Ross; Doug Morgan, Huey Harrison, Kemp Edwards, Bobby Bullock, Eugene Hardee, Billy Boyd, Glenn Scott, James Tyson, Tommy Norris, and Robert Howell.

Farley's Wreckers will be composed of: Clark Nobles, Jerry Phillips, Dixie Hobgood, Smith Worthington, Bobby Streets, Linwood Hooks, Hall Edwards, William Teel, Tom Hodges, Charles Pollard;

William Eason, Pat Sawyer, Jimmy Perkins, Billy Bost, Anver Joseph, Johnny Sideris, Leroy Faulkner, and Jack Paramore.

The Coupes will have: Ray Hardee, N. C. Hardee, Jerry Ballard, Lee Folger III, Jamie Lang, Jr., Bobby Wynn, Ralph Riggs, Joe Ward, Elmer Willoughby, Lester Edwards, Robert Reid, Lloyd Ellis, Selby Strickland, E. M. Moot, George Sideris, Howard Mills, Pete Harris, Joe Clark, Joseph Hogan, Maylon Little, and George Phillips.

Stranahan Faces Heavy Pressure

PORTRUSH, Northern Ireland—(AP)—The pressure was on Frank Stranahan today. The big Toledo, O., muckerman knew he had to shoot a sub-par round to stay in the running for the British Open Golf Championship.

One more bad round, and the leaders will be too far away for him to catch in the final 36-hole stretch course Friday.

"Every night before I fall asleep, I play Portrush in 65 mentally," he sighed. But when he got for his first 18 holes yesterday, he could spot no better than a 37-38-75, far off the pace. The leaders are Jimmy Adams of Scotland and Norman von Niida of Australia, each with a gaudy 68.

But they will have to keep going at full blast to stay in the lead, because Bobby Locke, the South African automaton who is seeking his third straight British Open Championship, got home in 71.

Boxer Seemingly Dies Of Heart Attack In Ring

CHARLOTTE—(AP)—An investigation was underway here today into the death of a 17-year-old Durham amateur boxer who collapsed and died during a benefit bout.

Dr. M. L. Fisher said M. L. Chandler, 17, of Durham, apparently died of a heart attack in his bout with Ray Therrell, 16, of Mt. Holly. An autopsy was planned in an effort to determine the exact cause of death. Ring officials said, however, they did not believe the youth died from a blow received in the fight.

Chandler and Therrell were in the third and final round of the second fight on a card being sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans.

Suddenly Chandler collapsed, his head striking a rope and then the floor. Dr. Fisher, who was at the ring, rushed into the ring and supervised artificial respiration. The youth was not revived.

Ralph Kiner On Suspension List

PITTSBURGH—(UP)—National League home run king Ralph Kiner of the Pittsburgh Pirates started a three-day suspension today, but the Cincinnati Reds don't think it began soon enough.

Kiner received a $100 fine and the three-day banishment after being tossed out of a game for the first time in his major league career. Tuesday when the Pirates were playing the Cubs, Pirate General Manager Branch Rickey said, however, that news of the suspension was not received here until after yesterday's doubleheader with the Reds began with Kiner in the lineup.

Rickey said he telephoned the league president, Ford Frick, and received an okay for the suspension to start today instead of yesterday.

However, Reds Manager Luke Sewell said he is officially protesting the 4-1 and 16-4 losses to the Pirates because Kiner played. Kiner hit two home runs, one of them a grand slammer, in the second game.

The grand slam home run was the ninth of Kiner's career, more than any other active National League player has hit.

Argentine Ace

Several of the leading American golf stars who played with Roberto De Vicenzo, the Argentine champion, characterize him as potentially the best foreign golfer ever to appear in this country.

The manner in which De Vicenzo triumphed over the strong field in the Palm Beach Round Robin caused many more pros to second the motion. Very long and straight off the tee, a fine iron player, De Vicenzo showed the only weakness in his game in the 72-hole test at Wycklyk—he was unsteady on short putts.

Last winter, Roberto joined the touring pros after he had won the Mexican open championship in a field that included Jimmy Demaret and Vic Chayal from north of the border. He stayed on to compete in the Masters at Augusta and then returned to Buenos Aires to check on his job and his family before the Palm Beach tournament.

Pancho Segura Eyes Profit In Pro Tennis

NEW YORK—(UP)—Like most professional trouper, laughing, lovable Pancho Segura turns deadpan when he is away from the tennis galleries and rather would talk money.

The bandy-legged Ecuadorian has been playing for the Yankee dollar since 1947 and reputedly socked away 70,000 of them over that period. He also may have lost some in the complex, ill-fated round-robin tournament which concluded yesterday.

Pancho no longer loves tennis for the sport of the thing, old bean. It is a money-making venture with him, like laying bricks, and he wants you to know it.

"I make money, I don't play for fun," he said, examining his copper legs as he stripped for a shower. At one time he thought of going to diplomatic service for his country when he got too old to play. But now he's also broaching the idea of being a coach.

"You can coach and make money," he said. Less than a year ago, Pancho beamed and shook hands all around when he signed up as Jack Kramer's victim on the Bobby Riggs tennis tour. He put his feet on a desk beside Bobby's in a "big shot" pose for the cameras as they waved the contract. Then he described how he would bring Kramer's smashing game to a standstill.

"But I couldn't sleep nights," Pancho said today. "That's one reason why I lose. We often didn't get off the courts until 2 a. m., then we were supposed to go on to some place else. I was tired."

"No more of that one-night stand business for you then, Pancho?" "Oh, yes, because then I make money."

Surging White Sox Back In Top Slot

Tendency Is Not To Concede Pennant, But To Wait As Boston Moves Ominously Upward; Cleveland Close Behind

BY STAN OPOWOSKY United Press Sports Writer A young team's grit and an old man's revenge gave the White Sox the American League lead on July 4th, the day they say the pennant is won.

But as the socking Sox surged back into the lead they relinquished only Sunday the tendency is not to concede them the championship, but rather to wait for Labor Day or even Arbor Day.

For at the very moment the Chisox grabbed timorous hold of first place by a mere half game, the Boston Red Sox moved ominously to a spot two and a half games out of first place and the Indians were just four and a half games out.

Only in the National League did the July 4th myth take hold. There the Dodgers wriggled out of their slump with gusto to beat the Giants twice and stop six and a half games in front.

The dauntless White Sox were the heroes of the moment, however. They won the game they had to. When grizzled old Duck Harris relished his revenge by bossing his Senators to 9-6 and 6-5 victories over the Ya-tee team which fired him as manager, the Chisox were ready. They had lost the first game to the Tigers 6-3. But a victory in the second meant the league lead, and the won it 5-1, by billing up four runs in the opening inning.

Meanwhile, the Red Sox whipped the Athletics 9-0 and 9-5, and Cleveland downed the Browns 6-5 and 4-3 to keep it a four-team race.

The Dodgers licked the Giants 6-5 on Preacher Roe's 11th inning sneeze bunt and 4-2 on Ralph Brancaccio's seven-inning, two six-hitters gave the Phils 4-1 and 3-1 triumphs over the Braves; Ralph featured the Pirates' 4-1 and 16-4 sweep over Cincinnati; and three Cardinal homers meant a 10-5 win over the Cubs, the second game being washed out.

Three singles, an error and Al Zarilla's homer gave the Chisox their four-run first inning which chased Dizzy Trout and won the nightcap at Detroit after the Tigers got 12 hits, including homers by Joe Ginsberg and Hal Evers, to win the opener for Hot Newhouse. Gil Coan was the man who mangled the Yankees for Harris, a man who got the boot as Yankee

Faulkner Wins Darlington Event

DARLINGTON, S. C.—(AP)—Pint-sized Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif., pushed his huge Grant Special racer in front of the field here yesterday to capture the $5,000 first prize money in the 250-mile Fourth of July big car race at International Raceway.

The five foot four Faulkner, speeding well ahead of the field after the 31st lap, took the biggest bit out of the $20,000-plus prize money distributed on a percentage basis after figuring gate receipts from a crowd of 18,000.

Faulkner made the 250 miles in two hours, 23 minutes and 14.04 seconds. His official speed was 104.23, which was a little off the 104.651 pace set by Johnny Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., who won the inaugural 200-mile here last December.

Tony Bettenhausen, of Tinley Park, Ill., driving the Belanger Special which Lew Wallard piloted to victory in the Indianapolis 500, placed second.

Only 16 of the starting field of 26 qualifiers finished the race.

Snelson Captures Crown In Midget Races In Wilson

WILSON—Gil Snelson of Richmond held the honors in the midget auto races held here yesterday. Snelson crossed the finish-line in first place in the main event and also took first in the initial heat. He was timed at 4:18 for his neat triumph.

manager after winning the pennant and finishing third in his two seasons. Coan hit two three-run homers, one in the five-run ninth inning, in the first game and drove in the winning run with a single in the sixth inning of the second game.

Mexican Pab Avila performed similar heroics for the Indians. He climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally with a two-run single to win the first game, then singled Harry Simpson home from second base with the winning run in the 18th inning of the four hour 19 minutes 17 hicap.

Mickey McDermott gave up four hits, and allowed no Athletic past second base for the first Red Sox triumph while a three-run burst in the third inning brought the Sox from behind to win the second.

With the Giants leading 4-0 in the eighth inning of the first game at Brooklyn, the Dodgers got three runs on homers by Roy Campanella and Pee Wee Reese. Gil Hodges' single drove in a run in the ninth to tie the score. In the 11th Bobby Thomson's homer put the Giants ahead again, but in the 12th half Duke Snider doubled and Jackie Robinson singled him home to tie it again. Then Roe's bunt brought in Robinson for the win. Duke Snider's 26th homer featured the nightcap win.

Dodger-Giant Feud Renewed In Explosive Ebbets Field Games

NEW YORK—(UP)—A manager who got ejected twice in the same game... A protest that won't be protested... An argument which raged on the field even after the fans started leaving the park... These were the fireworks which popped in the latest renewal of the Dodger-Giant feud.

And out of them came a Dodger sweep of the Fourth of July doubleheader to regain a 1-2 National League lead just when the other clubs hoped they were folding.

The twin bill at Ebbets Field was played to the tune of World Series tension, spiced with explosions every inning.

The wild finish left the fans limp, but the fireworks hadn't even started.

In the second inning of the nightcap, umpire Scotty Robb got into a heated argument with Dodger Manager C. Riley Dressen on a ball-and-strike decision. Sparks began to fly and Robb gave Dressen the heave.

But Dressen's vanishing act was not exactly perfect. He reappeared a few minutes later in a seat in the Dodgers' box, which hangs from the balcony.

The Dodgers had a 4-1 lead with Ralph Brancaccio pitching smoothly. But Thomson lashed a triple and with one out, Bill Rigney singled to score him with the Giant's second run. Wes Westrum singled to put the tying run at first base and Hank Schenz was sent in to run for Westrum.

Durocher made another move—he sent rookie Earl Rapp up to pinch-hit in his first major-league at-bat. The rookie spanked a bouncer to Robinson at second base. Jackie scooped it, tried to tag Schenz running to second but missed, and threw to first base for the out on Rapp. Dodger first baseman Gil Hodges relayed to second in an attempt to catch Schenz but the ball went sailing into left field.

As two Giant runners scooted madly about the bases and Durocher leaped with glee, umpire Babe Pinelli signalled that Schenz was out—for running out of the baseline to avoid Robinson's tag—and the game was over.

Then came the wild ninth inning of the nightcap.

Laxness Charged In Failure To Stockpile Key Defense Mineral

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The Senate preparedness subcommittee accused the Army and the Munitions Board today of "jeopardizing" one of the most vital defense programs by their "inexcusable" failure to stockpile tungsten.

The subcommittee warned in a scathing report that the United States and the entire free world are "on the verge of tungsten starvation."

Tungsten, hardest metal used in industry, is used as cores for high velocity projectiles capable of piercing enemy tanks. It also is used in jet engines.

The main source of supply is Red China. Other sources are Korea and Southeast Asia, now disrupted by war.

Describing the situation as "little short of desperate," the subcommittee reported that "production can be increased; more efficient methods can be found; non-essential uses can be slashed ruthlessly."

"But the fact remains," the subcommittee said, "that no foreseeable eventuality will provide all that is needed by the European democracies and the Americas to meet their essential civilian and military requirements.

"The harsh inescapable fact is that we can foresee nothing short of a miracle that will produce enough tungsten for the combined essential needs of ourselves and our allies."

Using language seldom found in congressional reports, the subcommittee attacked the "bureaucratic blindness" of officials who failed to set adequate stockpile goals, and likened the situation to a "children's game of blind man's bluff—with all the players blindfolded."

While the Army was pressing development of armor-piercing shell with tungsten carbide cores, the subcommittee reported, the Munitions Board did not even know what the Army needed.

"When they finally got together it was too late," the subcommittee said. "China, the principal source, was just about ready to fall into the hands of the Communists."

Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) called the situation "one of the worst examples of the evil effects of bureaucratic complacency upon the defense program that our subcommittee has uncovered."

Grandmother Of 13 Pups Takes Over Family

Here's a human interest story that should go far toward holding its own in the dog kingdom:

A dog owned by Billy Dunn, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albion Dunn of Greenville, was killed by a car last week a few days after giving birth to 13 half-Dalmation-half Bull Terrier pups.

Billy was worried about whether the pups would survive, having lost their mother. However, the pups' grandmother came to the rescue the day after her daughter's death and began nursing the 13. They've been holding their own ever since.

According to Billy, the present litter-by-proxy makes the 25th family the grandmother Dalmatian has raised. She's 13 old and has had two litters each year for the past 12 years.

The present family pushed her nursing total over the 150-pup mark—a record anywhere, thinks Billy, particularly so since she hasn't had any pups since last summer.

London in World War II, killing men, women and children. The British retaliated against Berlin. Since then every city within bomber range of the enemy actually has been "the front lines of the war."

Hitler, and now the Communists, have made it a common practice to massacre prisoners. The Japanese in World War II let them starve to death or die of disease. There was no attempt to exchange prisoners.

And the flag of truce has lost its meaning. That is why Ridgway is being so careful to see that arrangements are made in advance.

The Communists in Korea have paid no more attention to white flags than they have to the red cross that is flown by hospital units.

About the only way you can arrange a truce with them is to negotiate by radio with all world listening in much as the neighbors used to do when the telephone rang on a rural party line.

Under present plans, three U.N. officers no higher in rank than colonel and two interpreters will leave Seoul's Kampo airfield at 9 a.m. Sunday (6 p.m. Saturday EST) in a helicopter for Kaesong.

No newsman will accompany the delegation, nor will they be permitted to enter the Kaesong area on their own.

tem when the police department went to three platoons. Thus three men and the chief have been on duty at all times, working in 24 hours shifts.

Still with the improvements in 1945, no additional steps were made to bolster the strength of the department, leaving seven pieces of equipment to be moved by the four men on duty.

In commenting on the proposed needs of the department, Chief Gardner praised the work of the volunteer firemen and paid men alike for the work that they had carried out in the past ten years. "By their work in holding down our fire losses, we have been able to operate the department for the past ten years," the chief said.

'Unfriendly' . . .

Wilson submitted to President Truman a 25,000-word mobilization report loaded with gloomy predictions of what would happen if Congress took the Korean peace talks as a signal to let down on controls and defense spending.

He said Korea is "but an episode" in the long-range struggle against communism and that "new aggressions" elsewhere could explode into a third world war.

Wilson's report cited "striking advances" in the development of new atomic weapons, along with big strides in the expansion of our armed forces and the tooling of American industry for war.

But it also emphasized that the overall arms program is running 20 per cent behind schedule; raised the possibility of oil shortages if the Iranian crisis is not settled quickly, and asserted that inflation has piled an extra $7,000,000,000 on to the nation's defense costs since Korea.

Wilson said inflation has been halted only temporarily and will become a serious menace again next fall and winter when the full impact of the arms program will be felt.

President Truman relayed the report to Congress with a strong letter of endorsement. He asked the legislators to "reconsider the crippling changes they now contemplate making in the controls law and give him the wage-price-credit curbs he has requested."

"Otherwise," he said, "the consumers in this country may be plundered by renewed inflation and our whole mobilization program threatened with disaster."

Wilson lashed out bitterly in his report against "important groups" who have "allowed their concern for their own welfare to threaten a program of stabilization that is in the interest of all the people." He made it plain that he was referring principally to the meat and livestock interests.

On the optimistic side, Wilson reported that only local shortages of rawpower have developed and that the armed forces already are close to their planned goal of 3,500,000 officers and men. They include, he said, the equivalent of 24 Army divisions, a Navy of 1,100 ships plus 2 1/2 Marine divisions and supporting elements, and an Air Force "building toward" 95 groups.

"The most striking advances," he added, "are in the field of atomic weapons. Atomic bombs, considerably improved over those used in World War II, are being produced on an industrial basis. The development of atomic warheads for artillery shells and guided missiles is proceeding, as is that of the atomic powered submarine."

In addition, progress is being made in "defensive" measures against atomic attacks, in methods of detecting and measuring radiation, and in decontamination procedures.

Near 'Career' . . .

One Sunday morning in May of 1920, he and Mayor D. M. Clark Post Office. Somewhere on Evans were walking from church to the street clerk's got around to asking Duval if he would consider taking the appointment as city clerk. Before the two arrived at the Post Office Clark had Duval's consent board of aldermen he was installed in the job.

That lasted for a month. Duval clerk by the incoming board. However, after serving 13 months as assistant, the 1921 board re-appointed him to the clerk's job which he held until August 1, 1929. At that time he left city work for two years, favoring the manager's and bookkeeper's job with Southern Transportation Company, a trucking firm located here.

But two years later he was back at the tax helm again, this time continuously until Monday of this week. And during his more than 28 years in city government he has missed only a week from his job. "A little blood poisoning," he says, made it impossible for him to walk around.

But during the time he was walking around the city hall, he instituted a new system of bookkeeping and billing which enabled the city to collect a high percentage of its taxes each year. During the war years Duval received commendations from the League of Municipalities when it notified him he had got more money out of the paying electorate than any other clerk in the state. That was during the period 1941-45 when he averaged between 96 and 98 per cent.

Another innovation, this time statewide, which he put into motion was the Duval Plan, which was passed by the general assembly two years ago. That plan authorizes each board of aldermen in the state to supplement any 25-year employee's retirement funds up to 50 percent of his average salary during the last five years. Previously, such a plan had to be put before the people for a vote.

He also worked tirelessly for the present Municipal Employees Retirement System which passed the Legislature in 1943. That system is used extensively throughout the state and allows each employee up to 40 percent of his salary per month on retirement. During the session of the 1941 legislature, the system was inaugurated but called for a referendum. Two years later the legislature passed it without the stipulation calling for a vote of the people.

Although Duval has spent a large part of his working life in the public eye, he has not always been dealing with figures as they pertain to collection of money. His first job consisted of teaching just about every subject in a small rural school in Columbus County. He began teaching in 1901—"everything from ABCs to algebra"—and continued until 1905 when he entered business college in Raleigh. While he was in Columbus, he met Miss Ada Hickman, a native of Whiteville, and married her in 1908.

They moved to Weidon where he was employed at the Weidon Cotton Manufacturing Company. They now have three daughters, all of whom attended East Carolina Teachers College, married and are living here. They are Mrs. F. T. Harper, Mrs. Edward S. Flanagan, daughter of former mayor Roy Flanagan, and Mrs. Amos C. Leggett.

Duval's plans are indefinite at the present time. He retired automatically this year, one year after
