Lawmakers Put Responsibility On Pres. Truman

Truman 'Double-crossed The People' Says One In Inflation Comment

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's assertion that responsibility for a workable controls law rests with congress drew a sharp counter-volley today from Republican lawmakers.

They blamed the White House, in talks with newsmen, for the nation's current inflation troubles.

Rep. Taber (R-NY) said Mr. Truman "has double crossed the people." Rep. Jensen (R-Iowa) said the president "is getting ready" for the 1952 political campaign.

As the house continued to ride roughshod over administration controls proposals, Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday he has done all he can to get a strong bill passed and that congress must now take responsibility for the kind of law it finally passes.

Rep. Halleck (R-Ind), a GOP floor leader, said he agreed that congress had the responsibility "and we're going to give him a fair and equitable controls bill."

"But if he doesn't do any better with it than the one we gave him last September when we passed the first Defense Production Act, the country can't expect much."

"He'll get as good a bill as he did last September, when he said he didn't want any controls—a bill he refused to use until Jan. 25 of this year."

Jan 25 was the date the government imposed a general price-wage freeze. Some provisions of the law had been employed earlier.

Rep. Reed (R-NY) said it was the administration "which has been doing all the proposing that has brought us to severe inflation."

Taber, the GOP's fiscal spokesman in the House, said the president had been "pouring kerosene" on inflation fires while asking for controls at the same time.

In the meantime however, Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) officials appeared determined to make a last-ditch fight for the stronger controls Mr. Truman has requested.

Price Chief Michael V. Disalle said that if congress eliminates the first rollback on cattle prices, consumers will have to pay ten percent more for beef than they now are paying.

He made this warning in a letter to Rep. Spence (D-NY), chairman of the house banking and currency committee.

A proposed amendment to the controls bill now before the house would eliminate the beef price rollback OPS ordered last April. The House may get around to vote on this today.

Argentina Buys 'La Prensa' For Bargain Price

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine government "bought" the shuttered independent newspaper La Prensa for 18,854 pesos (1-36¢ at the free rate) yesterday and moved its officials right in.

The purchase price, which newspaper officials said was only a fraction of the true value, was set by a federal court under terms of an April 12 law expropriating the paper. The sum was immediately deposited by the government. The paper's attorneys plan to contest the constitutionality of the expropriation.

Among assets taken over was a new printing press for which La Prensa paid more than $1,000,000 only a few months ago.

At the time La Prensa was forced to close Jan. 26 it had a daily circulation of 400,000 and sold over 500,000 copies Sundays. The paper also owns several large plants and much other real estate.

Good And Bad News

Balance Sheet For Week Shows Good News In Iran Over Anglo-Iranian Oil Company While Communists Launch Propaganda Over Korean Negotiations

By HARRY FERGUSON

Balance sheet for the week between good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

GOOD NEWS There appears to be some chance that the negotiations in Iran over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., will be kept open for a few more days.

W. Averell Harriman, special assistant to President Truman, is flying to Iran to offer whatever help possible. His presence will not necessarily mean that a solution will be reached, but both the British and the Iranians may be persuaded to take one more look at the situation.

Tentative agreement has been reached on a Pacific defense pact which is broadly similar to the North Atlantic security treaty. Under its terms the United States, Australia and New Zealand band themselves against aggression, and there is a good chance other nations will be brought into it later.

It is the beginning of a united front against Asiatic communism by the nations most vitally involved.

The United States 8th Army is keeping the pressure on the Communists in Korea no matter what does or doesn't happen at Kaesong. The U. S. Air Force has been active all week, both in patrolling enemy territory and in seeking combat with enemy pilots. The communist jets that have shown up for battle have been defeated.

BAD NEWS The communist propaganda machine has been going full blast ever since the first cease-fire negotiations started. It is trying to convince the world that the United Nations forces were badly defeated, that they begged for peace and that they sent delegates to Kaesong, not to negotiate but to arrange for a surrender.

The free territory of Trieste is causing discord in Europe, and Premier Alcide de Gasperi hinted this week that Italy might withdraw from the North Atlantic Pact.

A steady stream of men, weapons and supplies is moving into the communist lines in Korea from Manchuria. There now are about 500,000 Red troops massed on the west-central front. If the Kaesong cease-fire negotiations break down, the blast killed his 10-year-old daughter Wendy. Fate, who was returning from an outdoor lavatory, too sleepy to answer her father.

Death Row Trio Given Bad News

Ruling By Federal Judge Brings Execution Date Nearer

RALEIGH (AP)—Federal Judge Don Gilliam had bad news yesterday for three Negroes on death row at Central Prison.

All three were convicted in state courts and sentenced to die. Their convictions were upheld by the State Supreme Court and the U. S. Supreme Court refused to hear their constitutional rights.

Judge Gilliam ruled, in effect, that federal courts cannot upset rulings of state courts except where constitutional rights have been denied.

The judge said he would enter orders today vacating writs of habeas corpus for Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels, cousins who were convicted in Pitt in May 1949 of first degree murder in the robbery-slaying of a Greenville cab driver, and Raleigh Speller, who has been convicted and sentenced to die three times for raping a white woman in Windsor in the summer of 1947.

If Judge Gilliam's order is filed today, it would automatically set their execution date for Aug. 3. However, their lawyers are expected to appeal Judge Gilliam's rulings to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

After the U. S. Supreme Court refused to review the cases, lawyers for the three applied for and were granted writs of habeas corpus which enticed the three defendants hearings in federal court.

Judge Gilliam heard the cases and then issued his opinions saying the writs should be vacated. His opinions asserted that habeas corpus proceedings cannot be used "for the purpose of raising the identical questions passed on" in the state courts.

New Political Party For Women

DETROIT (UP)—Mrs. Blanche Winters, Detroit, unsuccessful in several attempts to organize various social and political reform groups, announced today that she will found a new political party for women.

She said the American Women's Party will be organized at a meeting today billed as the first American Women's Continental Congress.

The party's platform calls for expressing the "American woman's viewpoint in local, state, national and international affairs," halting juvenile delinquency and encouraging morality.

Blast Results

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—An explosion and fire at an Allison jet engine plant yesterday caused $7,500,000 damage and snuffed out eight lives.

The damage figure was 15 times the previous, unofficial calculation.

Allison Division of General Motors made the damage estimate today. The eighth victim died last night, 18 hours after the blast wrecked a jet engine test building west of Indianapolis. He had been the only survivor.

The shattered area included 20 cells about one half block long and a quarter block wide—all in reinforced concrete with walls 18 inches thick. It was the worst accident in Allison history.

The floods claimed nine lives in Kansas and two in Missouri earlier this week but vigilant disaster relief workers apparently had prevented any new loss of life.

An early morning overflow by the Kansas (Kaw) River flooded the Armourdale and Argentine districts in Kansas City, Kansas, locking at the heels of the last of 6,000 residents who had been herded from Armourdale during the night. Some fled with only the clothing they were wearing.

Gasoline from a half-submerged filling station caught fire during the wild down exodus and spread to a lumberyard and warehouse. Firemen, fighting their way through the swift flowing stream, succeeded in controlling the blaze after nearly a four-hour battle.

U. S. Given Use Of Arabian Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States disclosed today Saudi Arabia has agreed to let American planes use strategic Dhahran airfield for the next five years.

The State Department said the accord was signed at Jidda June 18 and has provisions for a five-year renewal.

The U. S. helped build the field during World War II and has been using it on a year-to-year basis since then. The field is located in southern Saudi Arabia near the Arabian Sea.

In announcing the agreement, the State Department also disclosed it has agreed to let Saudi Arabia buy weapons and defense materials "in the United States. It added:

"The U. S. is prepared to provide military training in the use of the equipment to be purchased by the Saudi Arabian government in order that Saudi Arabia may maintain its internal security, its legitimate self-defense, or participate in the defense of the area of which it is a part."

Enemy Casualty Estimate Raised

WASHINGTON (AP)—The army today raised its estimate of enemy casualties in Korea to 1,207,928—an increase of 11,506 since its last estimate was issued nine days ago.

The figure covers the period from the beginning of the fighting through July 4, before the cease-fire negotiations were started with a resulting lull in fighting.

Of the total, 872,737 were battle casualties, an increase of 8,788. Prisoners totaled 163,473, an increase of 343.

Seek Bodies Of 32 Crash Dead

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Searchers waded into the South Atlantic surf today seeking the bodies of 32 persons killed when a Rio-bound airliner crashed just offshore.

The plane, en route from Natal to Rio, went down yesterday off Aracaju—about 900 miles northeast of here—just after takeoff from the airport near the mouth of the Sal River.

Cause of the crash has not been determined.

Father Shoots Child By Mistake

HOMER, La. (UP)—Farmer Derrell McKenzie told police he was awakened by a noise which sounded like a prowler and fired a shotgun into the darkness when he saw "Who's there?" received no response.

The blast killed his 10-year-old daughter Wendy. Fate, who was returning from an outdoor lavatory, too sleepy to answer her father.

New Misery For Flooded Kansas

Continuing Rains Menace Capital And University Town

TOPEKA, Kans. (AP)—Swirling flood waters and continuing rains spread new misery through sodden Kansas on this grim Friday the 13th.

Kansas City, Kas.—the big $40,000,000 industrial area of the Midwest's sprawling metropolitan center—and this capital city of 100,000 suffered the newest blows. Lawrence, site of Kansas University and 20 miles downstream from Topeka, was beginning to feel maximum pressure.

The floods claimed nine lives in Kansas and two in Missouri earlier this week but vigilant disaster relief workers apparently had prevented any new loss of life.

An early morning overflow by the Kansas (Kaw) River flooded the Armourdale and Argentine districts in Kansas City, Kansas, locking at the heels of the last of 6,000 residents who had been herded from Armourdale during the night. Some fled with only the clothing they were wearing.

Gasoline from a half-submerged filling station caught fire during the wild down exodus and spread to a lumberyard and warehouse. Firemen, fighting their way through the swift flowing stream, succeeded in controlling the blaze after nearly a four-hour battle.

Royal Couple Is Invited To Visit

LONDON (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip today awaited formal delivery of President Truman's invitation to visit the United States before accepting it.

Palace sources had indicated earlier that the royal couple, if invited—would go to the United States after completing a Canadian tour this fall.

Release Of 15 Communist Leaders Is Ordered Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan today complied with a U. S. Appeals Court ruling and ordered release of 15 communist leaders under bail previously supplied by the Civil Rights Congress bail fund.

Judge Ryan previously had revoked the bail, totalling $175,000, on the ground trustees of the bail fund were "unworthy of trust."

He had sentenced three of them to jail for contempt of court for refusing to reveal identities of contributors to the fund.

The 15 communists are charged with conspiring to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the United States government and are awaiting trial.

Ryan jailed them Wednesday with instructions to obtain bail from another source.

Miss Truman Is Home From European Travels

NEW YORK (UP)—Margaret Truman got back from her first trip to Europe today with a surprise gift for her father, a new Paris outfit for herself, and the enthusiastic opinion that there's no place like home.

"Everywhere I went it was really wonderful. The hospitality that was shown me," she said "I had a wonderful time, but golly, I'm glad to be home."

Miss Truman was wearing a navy blue linen suit, a small white straw hat, and carrying a straw purse she said someone had given her in Rome, as the liner Constitution brought her back from her seven-week trip abroad.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder boarded the ship in the harbor with greetings from her father. Mrs. Truman waited on the pier for her daughter and boarded the ship when it docked.

garet gave a big boost to American men when she was asked her opinion of Continental male charm.

Reds Reject Allied Terms; UN Proposals Broadened

Sees 'Evidence' State Dept. Is Cleaning House

McCarthy Says Suspension Of 'Security Risks' Indicates A Start

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said today the suspension of two top State Department officials as suspected security risks was evidence the department is "ready to start cleaning house."

The department, however, was stiffly silent on the reasons for suspending the high-ranking experts on Chinese and Far Eastern affairs until an investigation is made.

They are John Paton Davies Jr., a member of the top policy planning staff, and O. Edmund Clubb, director of the office of Chinese affairs. Davies is a son-in-law of U. S. Ambassador to Iran Henry F. Grady.

"This is one of the first healthy indications that the State Department is getting afraid of the McCarran committee and is ready to start cleaning house," McCarthy said.

The committee has been conducting security investigations for several months, but has been tight-lipped about its work.

The department gave no specific reason for the action other than to say that hearings on "security charges" would be started July 23 on Davies' case and July 27 on Clubb.

It was emphasized that charges were made on security grounds, not loyalty. Security charges usually are concerned with safeguarding secret information, while loyalty charges pertain to political associations.

The State Department said it would go no further, pending completion of the cases pending before the hearings. It added that suspension was required by law and that action was ordered to protect both the government and the two diplomats.

Davies and John Stewart Service, State Department Far Eastern expert whose case is still under investigation by President Truman's loyalty board, have followed similar diplomatic careers. Both were born in China of American parents and served most of their careers in the Far East.

Clubb, the last U. S. consul-general at Peiping, is a Class One foreign service officer receiving a salary of between $12,000 and $13,500 a year. Davies is only a notch lower at the $10,330 to $11,900 pay level.

Mrs. Williams will succeed Hugh G. Horton of Williamston. Clark, who is known widely for his support of the Elizabeth City High School band and for his participation in industrial and civic affairs in eastern North Carolina, will succeed C. F. Morris of Hertford.

Enemy Accused Of 'Bad Faith'

Voice Of America Cites Reasons For Parley Breakoff

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States radio today accused the communists of "bad faith" in the Korean armistice negotiations and declared this forced suspension of the talks at Kaesong.

The Voice of America, operated by the State Department, cited as evidence of "bad faith" (1) the Red refusal to permit Allied correspondents to go to Kaesong, (2) the presence of communist armed guards in the armistice city and (3) above all, a buildup of land and air power in Manchuria and Red China.

The broadcasts were prepared by "Voice" writers in line with the American government's policy of putting up a determined counter-propaganda offensive over the Red handling of the Kaesong conference. Texts were issued today for immediate broadcast in all languages used by the government radio.

In addition to the broadcast charging "bad faith," another program asserted that the basic question at issue in suspension of truce talks goes far beyond the question of newspaper representation. The program added:

"The question at issue is whether or not the communists are going to be allowed to compromise the United Nations delegation by controlling the membership of the official party."

No Further Cuts In Auto Output Pledged In '51

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government officials reportedly have promised there will be no further cuts in automobile production this year.

A Detroit Union delegation told reporters during a call on National Production Administrator Manly Fielchmann.

The delegation, headed by Norman Matthews, director of the CIO United Auto Workers, Chrysler department, came here to discuss large scale job layoffs resulting from earlier production cuts.

Matthews estimated that 100,000 auto workers in the Detroit area had been made idle due to materials cutbacks. Government orders held output to 1,200,000 passenger cars in the July-September period.

Constitution Is Suspended For 30-Day Period

GUATEMALA (AP)—Suspension of constitutional guarantees for 30 days was announced by the government today after two days of rioting that cost three lives.

The government said in a decree dated Thursday the action was necessary because the rioting was part of a subversive plot against the regime headed by President Jacob Arbenz Guzman.

Leaders of the street demonstrations called themselves anti-Communists but the government said they were "political agitators" masquerading as anti-Communists.

"Under the pretext of combating Communist activities," the decree said, "political agitators have sought to disturb the peace and unjustifiably direct their actions against the constituted government."

Bedbugs Planted In Hotel Rooms

HANAU, Germany (UP)—The owner of a new 26-room hotel in Hanau has accused a smaller, competing hotel of sprinkling bedbugs in five of his rooms.

A damage suit, filed yesterday, claimed the rival owner purchased the pests from an insect dealer. It said the owner's nephew confessed to planting the bedbugs and informed on his uncle after a quarrel.

Communists Offer To Resume Negotiations On Their Own Terms; UN Command Counters With Stronger Demand Kaesong Be Declared Neutral Zone; Prospects For Saturday Parley Dim

PEACE CAMP, Korea, Saturday (UP)—The Communists rejected Friday a United Nations ultimatum which broke off Korean cease-fire negotiations until correspondents for the world free press are admitted to Kaesong.

The Reds offered to resume the negotiations on their own terms. They said there must be a special agreement on admission of newsmen.

The U. N. command countered by making a new and stiff demand that Kaesong be declared a neutral zone, free of armed troops and Red obstruction, or alternatively that the conference be switched to some other place.

The demand went direct to Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier and commander in chief, and Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, the Chinese Red commander.

Prospects seemed dim for a resumption of talks today.

The U. N. command demanded the establishment of a circular neutral zone extending five miles from the center of Kaesong. All armed personnel would be excluded. Each cease-fire team would be permitted to keep in the area a total of 150 personnel of its own selection.

"If you agree to these proposals the present recess can be terminated and the conference resumed without delay," the message said.

A Peiping radio broadcast announced the Red rejection of the U. N. proposal and said that the Communists had invited the Allied armistice team to resume talks at 9 a. m. Friday (6 p. m. Thursday EST) but were "ignored."

The rejection statement was by North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief of the Red armistice delegation.

Peiping radio said his message was sent to Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, top U. N. negotiator, Friday morning.

The U. N. team did not show any signs of preparing to resume negotiations until word came accepting the latest U. N. demand listing the conditions necessary before the talks reopen.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. N. supreme commander, demanded earlier Friday in a broadcast to the communist generals that all Red troops be pulled out of Kaesong and that "unreasonable" restrictions on U. N. parties be lifted before armistice talks can resume.

Ridgway's statement, which threw all blame for the breakdown of the talks in the Communists' laps, superseded Joy's protest of Thursday. But at the hour that Nam Il's reply to Joy was broadcast, no word had yet come for the Red in answer to the U. N. command.

Nam Il's rejection of Joy's protest and the Communist silence on Ridgway's demands seemed to shove hopes for a quick resumption of the negotiations a step backward.

Nam Il's statement told Joy that "coverage by newsmen of the conference will not be permitted until a mutual agreement is reached."

Joy said Thursday, after a U. N. convoy including 20 newsmen was turned back from Kaesong, that his armistice team would not return to the conference until the correspondents were admitted to the city.

Nam Il's refusal to permit the western front in connection with Kaesong—which the U. N. has admitted officially—is really a communist-held city—was put in almost exactly the same words which he turned down earlier demands for free press coverage of the conference.

Other U. N. patrols from the United Nations troops drove a mile forward on the central Korean front Friday in the second day of a limited offensive to throw the balance for a feared Red "double-cross" attack.

Allied units jumped off on their drive southeast of Kumsong Thursday and advanced ahead from two to three miles to grab high ground overlooking the valleys leading north.

Friday, the attacking troops picked up another mile and eight hours later still were pounding at dug-in Reds who poured heavy machine-gun fire against them.

Other U. N. patrols gained up to 15 miles on the eastern front but made no headway against the steel defenses around the Red buildup area in the west. Probing attacks in the zone where more than 400,000 communist troops are massed drew sharp enemy counterblows and neither side pressed the action.

Above Yongju, an Allied unit fought 30 minutes with a Red group before the enemy withdrew. Activity elsewhere on the front was limited to sparring between small units and feeling-out maneuvers by patrols seeking to gauge enemy strength in the build-up region.

Just southwest of the five-mile circle around the cease-fire negotiation city of Kaesong, a group of 15 Reds engaged a U. N. patrol in a 15-minute gunfight. Again, a few miles away, a group of 50 Reds hit an Allied patrol in a short exchange of fire and then rushed east, and fought another patrol before withdrawing to the north.

February passed, March, too. And congress was going to meet time for hearings on which to decide about keeping controls beyond June 30.

It wasn't until April that Mr. Truman's people sent congress their ideas on controls. Mr. Truman asked to keep the controls two years longer and he requested stronger ones.

By this time the special groups which had been hit by controls and didn't like them were bugging an congressmen's coat laps, urging the controls be wiped 'out' or at least softened.

This was especially true of the cattlemen who were inflamed by OPS' plan to roll back beef prices, although OPS said the rollbacks were a vital necessity in an at-

of the Red armistice delegation. Peiping radio said his message was sent to Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, top U. N. negotiator, Friday morning.

The U. N. team did not show any signs of preparing to resume negotiations until word came accepting the latest U. N. demand listing the conditions necessary before the talks reopen.

Annual Outing Enjoyed By BPW Members Wednesday

An original skit, "The Good Old Days," written by Annie Laurie Aslow and participated in by several members, climaxed the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting at the Jordan Cottage, Mimosa Shores, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Hazel Joudon, membership chairman, was hostess for the evening and served a lawn supper to approximately sixty members and guests.

Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson, past president, spoke briefly on "What the BPW Club Means to Me." Some of the values received by a participating member, said Mrs. Tyson, are the stimulating fellowship with alert women in many areas of business and professional life; the opportunity to support along with other women many worthwhile civic activities in our city; the educational and informative monthly programs; and the prestige of belonging to a strong national and state organization.

During the business session, presided over by President Ruth Garner, Mrs. Chester Walsh graciously presented to Mrs. Thornton Meeks, who recently moved to Rocky Mount, a small gift from the club in appreciation of her work in the organization.

A special committee report, given by Helen Jackson, recommending that the club purchase a beautiful silver cup to be awarded annually to Greenville's Woman of the Year, was favorably accepted.

Of significance to Pitt County is the club's action to again invite an outstanding senior girl from each high school to be a guest at one of the monthly dinner meetings during the coming year.

Guests present were: Bett Tilghman, Ruth Mumford, Mary Ann Briley, Eloise Warren, Mrs. Hoover Averett, Mrs. G. C. Williams, Lois Webb, Mrs. Harry Snider, Goldie Durant, Mary Daley, Mr. Thornton Meeks, Mrs. Eleanor Norris, Mrs. W. T. Mack, Edythe Stainback, Mrs. Lee Merritt, Mrs. W. C. Warren and Rita Taylor.

Mrs. Bea Scott, librarian at Shepard Memorial Library, became a new member.

Passages from the Bible include: "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." (Philippians 2:12, 13)

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Work out your own salvation," is the demand of "Life and Love, for to this end God worketh with you. (22) . . . Prayer, watching, and working, combined with self-immolation, are God's gracious means for accomplishing whatever has been successfully done for the Christianization and health of mankind." (p. 1)

Asks For Lower Popcorn Prices

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Eight-year-old Terry Brown of nearby Garret Park, Md., wants President Truman to do something about the high price of popcorn.

"My mother told me that you are trying to take down prices," Terry wrote Mr. Truman. "I would like for you to take down the price of popcorn to 5 cents. I think it is awful that children have to pay so much for popcorn."

Terry got a letter from the White House yesterday, signed by William D. Hassett, Mr. Truman's secretary. It said: "My Dear Terry: The president has received your nice letter. He appreciates your friendly thought in writing and asks me to extend to you his very best wishes."

Lovely Afternoon Tea Given For Miss Corbett

One of the loveliest affairs of the summer was the informal tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Lindsay Savage and Mrs. Elsie Eagan at "Dillies," suburban home of Mrs. Savage, as a compliment to Miss Joyce Corbett, bride-elect of August.

Greeting guests at the garden gate were Misses Jonnie Simpson and Lenna Rose, who invited them to enter the home by the back garden door. Here they were welcomed by Mrs. Elmo Savage and Mrs. Arthur Corey, who introduced them to the receiving line. Standing in the receiving line were Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Eagan, the hostesses, Miss Corbett, the honoree, Mrs. R. E. Corbett, Jr., mother of the honoree, and Mrs. John Mayo of Washington, N. C., mother of Miss Corbett's fiancé.

The guests went from the den into the spacious living room, where they were registered by Mrs. Charles Bradwell and Miss Jane Massey. The decorations in these two rooms were lovely bouquets of assorted summer flowers in pastel shades which were artistically arranged in beautiful Jugtown pottery.

In the dining room the table was laid with an imported handmade lace cloth. A low crystal bowl holding pastel gladioli, lavender cosmos and daisies was placed on a refector which centered the table. A circle of tall green tapers was arranged around the bowl of flowers. On an antique china press, a tiered row of tapers was effectively used with a vase of tall white gladioli to add beauty to the room.

Pouring punch for the guests were Mrs. Milo Smith and Mrs. M. T. Bradshaw. Assisting in serving cinnamon whirls, tiny cheese biscuits, pastries, salted nuts, bridal cake squares and flower-shaped mints in shades of lavender, yellow and green were Mrs. Charles Howard Jr., Miss Barbara White, Miss Mary Eakes and Miss Virginia Bradshaw.

In the front hall to say goodbyes were Mrs. Joe Tabar, Mrs. George Gardner and Mrs. J. Hicks Corey. Miss Corbett was given a corsage of white snapdragons upon her arrival and was also remembered with a gift of crystal.

More than a hundred guests called during the afternoon.

Library Use Shows Gain In Past Year

The annual report for the Public Library service in Pitt County shows that 139,251 books have been borrowed for home use—a gain of 3,963 over the previous year.

From the Sheppard Memorial Library 80,868 books have been borrowed which is 39 percent of the books in the library. From the Bookmobile 41,030 books have been borrowed, which is 32 percent of the books carried on the bookmobile.

From library branches in Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain, and Winterville, 24,069 books have been borrowed, which comes to 19 percent. The Carver branch has lent 13,297 books, coming to a percentage of 10 percent.

For the entire county 58 percent of the books were used by adults. However, the Bookmobile circulated 87 percent to children. Bethel Library and Carver branch also loaned more books to children than to adults.

There are now 39,458 books available for use by the people of Pitt County. The Sheppard Memorial Library, the Pitt County Bookmobile, the libraries at Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain and Winterville, provide county-wide service. Colored residents are served at the George Washington Carver Branch Library, located at 408 Sheppard Street in Greenville.

To borrow books from the library, it is necessary to fill out a registration card, giving name and address. At present there are 12,944 people registered. (Adults 8,194, Juvenile 4,750).

Encyclopedias, dictionaries and other reference books are used at Sheppard Memorial Library. The library subscribes to 79 magazines and 5 newspapers. No record has been kept of the number of people using the reading rooms or of the reference service provided.

New books and replacements for books worn out, are added constantly. During the past year 3,827 new books were added. In the same period 1238 books had to be discarded as too badly worn for further use. Approximately one fourth of the books discarded will be re-ordered and the others replaced by more up-to-date information.

Scripture—Genesis 27:6-30; Matthew 19:3-9; Luke 10:38-42; I Corinthians 13:4-7.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Jacob, younger son of Isaac and Rebekah, stole his older brother, Esau's blessing from their blind old father, at his mother's suggestion and with her help.

The Pharisees asked Jesus if it was lawful for a man to put away his wife? Christ answered that it was written that "the twain shall be one flesh. What God hath joined, let not man put asunder."

Entertained in Mary and Martha's home in Bethany, the Lord taught Martha the important lesson that there are more important things than faultless house-keeping.

"Love suffereth long and is kind; love is not easily provoked; love beareth all things, believeth all things, endureth all things." MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 13:7.

HOW DECEPTION DARKENED AN ANCIENT HOME

Scripture—Genesis 27:6-30; Matthew 19:3-9; Luke 10:38-42; I Corinthians 13:4-7.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
JUVENILE delinquency is increasing in our land, law authorities say, and indeed, we are led to think so when we read the daily newspapers. These same authorities tell us that one of the greatest causes of juvenile crime is broken homes. Divorces are increasing with the growth of child delinquency.
When we sing the old song, "There's no place like home," most of us think of our own homes where love reigned; where differences between parents or among children were settled with renewed love and understanding—homes that we leave as we marry or business calls us to far places, with nostalgia and dream of with longing.
How many thousands of young people have no such beautiful recollections of their homes. Quarrels, misunderstandings, accusations, vengeful feelings spitefully expressed are the things they remember and, finally, maybe a mother or a father going to live elsewhere and only the one parent to take the place of the two who brought them into the world.
Children do so need both parents to help them get a right start in life. School teachers do their best; Sunday school teachers try to guide young people in the paths of righteousness—but a happy home means more than anything else in the world. It gives a feeling of security. It's a place where the youngsters bring their joys and their griefs, and mother and father help them to understand life and teach them how to make it beautiful.

Today's lesson gives us a glimpse into a home of olden time, which once was a happy one, but deceit, lying and underhand dealing destroyed its harmony.
Isaac and Rebekah were a happy couple, but they grieved because they had no children. Then God gave them twin sons, Esau and Jacob. Esau came into the world first, so was heir to his father's blessing. Jacob came after and, unfortunately, Isaac loved Esau best and Rebekah favored Jacob—instead of both parents loving both sons equally.
Isaac grew old; his sight failed, and he was sure that death was near. He called Esau to him, told him to take his bow and quiver and shoot some venison, for he loved savory meat. After that Isaac would give this son his blessing.
Esau loved his father's blessing, and he was sure that death was near. He called Esau to him, told him to take his bow and quiver and shoot some venison, for he loved savory meat. After that Isaac would give this son his blessing.

Rebekah heard what her husband said to Esau, so she told her favorite, Jacob, to quickly kill a kid from the flock of goats and bring it to her and she would cook it, and he could take it to his father and get the blessing.
Jacob said his father would know he was not Esau, although he could not see him, because Esau's arms were hairy and his were smooth. So the mother had Jacob put on Esau's clothes, and she covered his arms with the skin of the goats, and gave him the meat to take to his father.
Blind though he was Isaac knew Jacob's voice, and also asked how he had been able to bring the meat so quickly. Then Jacob told the worst lie of all; he said God had been with him to help him.
Isaac felt of Jacob's arms, and thought it was Esau because they were hairy, so he gave the younger son his blessing. You can imagine how Esau felt when he knew what his mother and Jacob had done.
How could that home ever be a place of happiness after that—with two such cheats and liars in the house? As a matter of fact, Jacob was compelled to leave home, so Rebekah, for her sins, lost the companionship of the son she loved.
What was Jesus' attitude on divorce?—The Pharisees wanted to know, hoping He would say something by which they could trap Him. Jesus answered that God had made man and woman, and a man should leave his father and mother to take a wife, and then they "shall be one flesh."
"What God hath joined together," Christ said, "let not man put asunder." But he did say that if a wife was unfaithful, the man might divorce her.
The story of Jesus' visit to the home of His friends in Bethany we had last week, so we will not enlarge upon it today. Jesus taught Martha, the careful housewife, that there are things in life more important than to worry about the food and preparation thereof, important as they are. There are women today who put an orderly house ahead of the comfort of their families.
The words of St. Paul in his First Epistle to the Corinthians should be read in its entirety and pondered by all who want their homes to be happy and harmonious—and that means all of us.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
 THE WIDER CIRCLE

Jesus was born into a generation which believed that a man should love his friends and hate his enemies. Moses had taught man how to draw a circle around himself and his neighbor, and within that circle he had said that love must operate.

Jesus came to enlarge the circle. He said that the teaching of Moses was all right as far as it went, but that the circle must be enlarged until it took in everyone. His hearers, no doubt, scoffed at the idea that a man should love his enemies. Surely it was absurd to expect that a man could entertain a feeling of good will toward one who had injured him. But Jesus made no exception in the application of this rule. He insisted that a heart really touched by the Spirit of God was a heart in which love reigned supreme; and when love reigned supreme it was his contention that no one was outside the radius of its influence.

Jesus was just one rule for the living of a godly life and that was the rule of love. He was not willing that in a single instance, or in the case of a single individual, this rule should be disregarded.

Pitt's Farm Labor Must Be Utilized

If the Pitt County tobacco crop is not going to suffer from the shortage of field hands, the farmers of the county must cooperate in utilizing the labor supply to the greatest extent.

In practically all sections of the county green tobacco workers are at a premium, and the peak of the harvesting season is still a couple of weeks away. This year there are just not enough workers for every grower to have all the labor he needs every day. But there are enough workers in the county to harvest the crop if the growers will share their labor with one another.

The increased acreage in the county from 34,300 acres in 1950 to the allotment of 39,400 acres this year means many more stalks of tobacco to be harvested. The anticipated increase in the average poundage per acre means more leaves to be handled. Those factors coupled with the demand for labor in construction and similar projects in this section have caused an acute situation in the supply of labor for the tobacco fields.

There are few farmers in the county who need all their workers every day during the harvesting season. On the days when the workers are not needed by one farmer they can be used to advantage by another... provide the farmers will exchange their labor on these occasions.

If the plan is followed, the crop can be harvested successfully, the farmers will be better off, and the field hands will be better off with the extra wages gained by working every day rather than a few days each week.

The Vicious Demon Of Taxation

The imposition of a federal sales tax is not the answer to the nation's financial problems. It should not be imposed.

The sales tax in itself if the most unfair, unreasonable tax now in existence in the country. It is an across the board levy which can not be afforded by the low income groups of the country. It takes from the low income group, particularly, money which is sorely needed to provide the very necessities of life.

The pressure on the Senate Finance Committee for the inclusion of a tax on sales in the federal tax bill is increasing almost daily. If the pressure continues unopposed, the proposal will very likely be written into law.

A Red Letter Day For The Family Calendar

Elaborate plans are being made in Greenville for the entertainment of its many rural friends of the surrounding territory at the annual Farmers Day to be held August 15.

There will be abundant entertainment for young and old alike. One of the top hillbilly bands of the nation has been booked for the occasion, contests of all kinds will be held, and fabulous prizes will be offered to the queen and other top contestants in the Eastern Carolina Harvest Queen beauty contest which will be held in conjunction with the celebration.

Greenville is inviting all people from this section of eastern North Carolina to be its guests on August 15 and join in the Farmers Day activities and celebration.

It will be a red letter for the folks hereabouts, and a day well worth marking on the family calendar.

back on its feet. That was more than 15 years ago, and the tax is still being collected on practically every purchase in a store.

For the year 1949-1950 alone the people of North Carolina paid to the state government a total of $41,869,874 in sales and use taxes. The people of Pitt County during that fiscal year paid $581,411 in sales and use taxes according to the statistics of the department of revenue. The amount is more than twice as much as the $206,954 the people of the county paid in sales taxes for the fiscal year 1940-1941. Martin County citizens forked over the state government $66,952 in sales taxes for 1940-1941, but the take from that county had risen to $190,975 for the 1949-1950 fiscal year.

The people of North Carolina have been beset by the sales tax plague and it is costing them more and more each year.

As The Reflector has said time and time again, the answer to the nation's financial troubles lies not in new schemes of taxation to bleed the individual citizens dry of their money, but rather in the abolition of the waste in federal government operations.

News Behind The News
 By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—It is doubtful if any Truman appointment has caused so much soreness and squawking among the politicians of both major parties as the shift of Governor Luther W. Youngdahl from the executive mansion at St. Paul, Minn. to the federal bench for the District of Columbia.

It places the bipartisan critics and opponents in a difficult spot. Mr. Youngdahl's record as a judge and a state executive admittedly qualify him for his new assignment. And, although members of the judiciary have been named for political reasons almost since the founding of the Republic, rarely have cold-blooded, ballot-box calculations figured so completely in choosing a man for the important court at the Capital.

There is hardly a Truman enemy in both parties who was not hurt by elimination of the popular and vote-getting Governor Youngdahl from Minnesota and the national political scene. On the other hand, Labor independents, left-of-center Republicans, and civil and religious organizations.

COMBINATION—It indicates that President Truman and National Chairman Boyle, recognizing the extent and bitterness of Southern Democrats' revolt against the Administration, which may have considerable effect on the next convention and presidential election, will seek again to win the national contest through a strange combination of organized labor, the conglomerate city vote and farmers.

It may underwrite Mr. Boyle's remark after the 1948 election that, through party reorganization and strategy based on the Youngdahl type of appointment, "We will be able to win in 1952 without the federal vote of a single state below the Mason and Dixon Line!"

HARASSMENTS—The Youngdahl promotion upset or angered many factions and individuals, including Harold E. Stassen, but the group which resent it most deeply is the influential bloc of anti-Truman Democrats headed by men like Senators Byrd of Virginia, George and Russell of Georgia, and their colleagues.

Governor Youngdahl's sponsor and promoter was Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, a vocal and active leader of the pro-Roosevelt Americans for Democratic Action. He supports every portion of the Truman "fair deal," and especially the Civil Rights section that would impose anti-poll tax, anti-lynching and FEPC legislation on the South.

Only a few weeks ago, although the Administration had seemed to lose interest in this question under the pressure of foreign and rearmament harassments, Senator Humphrey reintroduced every Civil Rights measure against which the Byrd-Russell-George faction filibustered so successfully for the last two years.

GESTURE—Mr. Youngdahl is also an advocate of this legislation. Even more distasteful to the men who call themselves Jefferson-Jackson Democrats to distinguish themselves from "Truman Democrats," the "fair deal" figure is a strong and sincere believer in non-segregation. Naturally, there is expectation that this belief will be reflected in his judicial thinking and decisions.

Several other groups may think more kindly of Mr. Truman because of this Humphrey-Youngdahl gesture. The Senator is one of organized labor's few darlings on Capitol Hill. As Governor, Mr. Youngdahl's policies apparently satisfied the farmers, or he would not have been elected three times.

He has also had the support of civic, reform and church groups because of his war against vice. He has been a sort of "Carris Nation" in his own ball-wick, frequently to the dismay of the live-and-let-live politicians.

WEAKEN—Senate Republicans would probably try to block confirmation, if they took the advice of their Minnesota brethren. For, as it was designed to do, the nomination may prevent the state GOP from preserving its position of supremacy.

Mr. Youngdahl's disappearance may insure that the state's electoral votes will go to a Democratic presidential candidate next year. It may make it more difficult to elect Senator Edward J. Thye, who must then face the voters. It may also make it easier for Senator Humphrey to regain his seat in 1954.

In short, the removal of the three-time Governor may weaken Minnesota Republicans for an indefinite period as much as benching slugger Ted Williams would kill the chances of the Boston Red Sox for the American League pennant.

WOUNDED—The politician most severely wounded is Mr. Stassen, who still makes as if he thought he had a chance for next year's Republican presidential nomination. Mr. Youngdahl and he have been allies.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JP

The other day I was talking to Charlie Horne of Horne Electric Company and he said, "Jack, you're not writing as much about your daughter as I thought you would. Every time I come home there's talk about something new my baby did. I'm sure it's the same way at your house. I had expected that you would write about the baby more."

W. M. "Booger" Scates was in the conversation and he commented, "The reason is that Jack's baby is like mine; doesn't do much except eat, sleep, laugh and cry." Then Booger and I undertook the job of contradicting ourselves. For the benefit of all potential parents, here is one man's list of what a 10-month-old baby can do:

- (1) Wake up at 5 o'clock in the morning and demand milk. While the mother is busy warming the milk, the father may walk around the house with the baby in tow, to stop the yelling. If the baby wakes up in a good mood, the father is lucky and can sleep through this ordeal.
- (2) Use a dozen diapers a day, driving a man already in debt further in debt by buying a washing machine. This throws the entire neighborhood into chaos. Every other housewife around demands a washing machine, putting Big Jack's popularity on the skids.
- (3) Drool all over everything in sight.
- (4) Say "bye bye," except when someone is around that you want to impress with the intelligence of the baby.
- (5) Snort violently through the nose, when prompted by a parent. The baby is more prone to do this in front of spectators, since it demonstrates considerably less intelligence than "bye bye."
- (6) Seek out other children with such diseases as measles, thereby requiring expensive shots.
- (7) Eat as much baby food as she sees, plus paper and various other items that meet her eye. The task of fishing things out of her mouth is a big one, but the job of worrying about the things you didn't see, and didn't fish out, is even bigger.
- (8) Patty cake, also when there is no audience.
- (9) In general, appear to be very intelligent when wife Rachel and I are the only audience; and appear to be very average when others are around.
- (10) Wah Wah like an Indian.
- (11) Practically bite your finger off with her five teeth, if given half a chance. This is followed by a laugh of delight.
- (12) Make you want three more.

And I thank you.

MUNICIPALITIES — North Carolina has 401 incorporated cities and towns with active municipal governments; 174 towns with charters but "not active in municipal functions according to best information available"; and there are 66 places once chartered as incorporated municipalities, but which had been chartered revoked by the general assembly or for other reason have completely passed out of existence. This information is contained in a tabulation prepared by Earl Tyndall under supervision of James S. Burch the division of statistics and planning of the North Carolina Highway and Public Works Commission. It is believed to be the most complete and accurate listing of incorporated municipalities ever compiled and is the result of months of research and cross-checking of records.

PURPOSE — Purpose of the study was to make sure that no city or town was overlooked in distribution of the street aid funds under terms of the Powell Bill. It is emphasized in prefatory comment that many of the towns listed may not be eligible for street aid funds, because of failure to comply with provisions of the act other than mere incorporation as a municipality. Each of the 576 municipalities has been written one or more times in effort to determine eligibility and extent of participation in street-aid money. Some local officials have not answered the letters, and others failed to give the required information. In these cases the towns are not included in the eligible list. It appears likely, however, that more towns will share in the fund than anybody contemplated when the bill was under consideration in the general assembly. Figures commonly quoted then ranged from 300 to 325 participating communities. Nobody knew or would hazard an authoritative estimate on how many incorporated municipalities there were in the state.

PROCEDURE — In his survey Tyndall started with the U.S. census reports, most generally accepted standard. This list was supplemented by highway maps, records of the League of Municipalities, and exhaustive study of files in the supreme court library. Since these compilations were complete only to 1941, it was necessary to review session laws of every general assembly since, as well as minutes of the municipal board of control.

INADEQUATE — This search yielded a complete list of incorporated municipalities, but still was inadequate for the purpose. Further study was made of old and current highway maps; soil maps dating back to 1902, and records in the department of archives and history going back a hundred years or more. These studies showed towns that had changed their names or been consolidated, but still failed to indicate which have actively functioning municipal governments. So letters were written to all of them and on basis of answers received it was discovered that there are 401 functioning municipalities in the state. Further analysis of the letters and additional material is necessary to determine extent of participation in the street aid fund.

INTERESTING — Besides being highly valuable in state-municipal relations with respect to distribution of highway funds, the listing, has supplemental value for other state departments. It is also replete with material of human interest. For instance, there is a town in North Carolina beginning with every letter in the alphabet except Q and X, although the town of Unionville in Union county, only one to begin with U, is designated as presently inactive. There are 54 towns beginning with S and 54 with M, while Zebulon has the Z bracket to itself. The present town of Columbus is county seat of Polk, but in 1805 Columbus was in Randolph. Jefferson is now the seat of Ashe county, but 150 years ago Jefferson was in Chatham county. "At Tilson's Mill on Deep River," Jackson is the seat of Northampton now, but in 1817 Jackson was a town in Rockingham county, and at the same time Jacksonville, now seat of Onslow, was somewhere in Randolph. Granville county folks are proud to call Oxford their county town, but from 1800 to 1816 Oxford was in Rowan; and Taylorsville, present seat of Alexander, was incorporated in 1817 on the "lands of George Taylor at Black River" in Sampson county.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

CAUSE FOR CONCERN — The Daily News looks with deep concern upon the House Appropriations Committee's slashing of the State Department's budget request, relatively small to start with, by 18 per cent.

One cannot help concluding that personal and partisan feelings entered into the reduction. This is particularly true as related to the bitter attacks which have been made upon Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the extent of participation in street-aid money. Some local officials have not answered the letters, and others failed to give the required information. In these cases the towns are not included in the eligible list. It appears likely, however, that more towns will share in the fund than anybody contemplated when the bill was under consideration in the general assembly. Figures commonly quoted then ranged from 300 to 325 participating communities. Nobody knew or would hazard an authoritative estimate on how many incorporated municipalities there were in the state.

occurring and which will be much greater if or as a Korean cease-fire becomes effective. Even if peace comes in Korea, and that assurance is far, far away, and is such as to be considered a triumph for the Western world, the victory will actually go to Soviet Russia if the zigzagging of Communist strategy results in our further capitulation to inflation, slowing down of our own and Western Europe's rearmament program and a backing away from foreign aid.

If this substantial reduction in State Department funds is a straw in the wind, it is an ill-wind indeed about which the American people had better become aroused before it gathers uncontrollable force.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

If there are six more weeks of good crop weather, the year end may find the government with a new staggering total of farm products.

Under the price-supports, the government had about four billion dollars worth of storable crops a year ago. The total today is less than two billion dollars. Use by the armed services and sale and gifts to friendly nations abroad cut the total in half. New indications are that federal warehouses will bulge again with the 1951 harvest.

The government estimate this week put cotton acreage at 29,510,000 acres. The Department of Agriculture did not estimate production, but trade authorities say this acreage should produce about 15,000,000 bales, two thirds more than last year. There is also a carry-over of 2,000,000 bales.

Unless new warfare requires accelerated consumption, there will be a lot of cotton available for parity loans. The situation has been worsened by dullness in textiles. Many mills are having trouble finding buyers; some have closed.

The wheat crop is also expected to be larger than last year; wheat now sells below support prices. Bad weather has menaced the corn crop, although the acreage is somewhat larger than last year. However, the high demand for meats will probably mean that much of it will go to feed.

Recent price drops indicate an abundance of fats and oils. Despite the conversion of much truck-farming land to cotton, vegetable crops are generally good and carry-overs of canned vegetables are large.

The Department of Agriculture estimates pig production at 108,818,000 about $300,000 more than last year. The Department also expects more beef will be available later this year. Growers have been holding cattle in the struggle over prices, but they will eventually have to sell, increasing supplies. However, no beef and very little pork is expected to go under government loans.

Foreign farm crops have been steadily increasing since the war. With good weather abroad, there will be less demand for American foods, turning more of it toward government loans.

CHAIN INSURED AGAINST BREAKAGE — A china manufacturer is now insuring customers against loss by breakage for a year. The company Iroquois China, of Syracuse, N. Y. will replace any pieces of a new pattern broken within that time, providing four or more are purchased.

The promotion is now being tested in Hartford, Conn., Washington, D. C., Cleveland, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and Wheeling, W. Va. It will be made available generally at the New York China and Glass Show next week.

U. S. EATS HALF OF BANANA EXPORTS — Americans are the banana eating people. Statistics compiled by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations show that exports of banana-producing countries last year totaled 98,000,000 bunches. Of these, the U. S. A. France was second with 8,845,000 bunches.

DOUBLE-BREADED SUITS V'ING IN DEMAND — The trend is definitely toward single-breasted suits, the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers reports after a survey.

Dealers said they expect 60 per cent of fall sales will be of single-breasted models, evenly divided between two-and three-button cuts. Tailors' type patterns are expected to be most popular.

U. S. TELLS HOW TO RUN WAREHOUSES — Modernization and the introduction of stream-line methods can save money in grocery warehouse operations, the Department of Commerce says in a new 78-page booklet, "Modernizing and Operating Grocery Warehouses. The booklet is a compilation of facts and guidance on warehouse operation, and is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., for 25 cents.

NEW AND HOT SKILLET: A square frying pan with a long compartment for bacon and two smaller egg sections is being introduced at the Housewares Show at Atlantic City this week by Griswold Mfg. Co., 753 W. 12th St., Erie, Pa.

GLAZE: A liquid porcelain glaze for repairing chipped or worn porcelain surfaces of tubs and appliances, claimed to dry to a high gloss in a few minutes, has been developed by Magic Iron Cement Co., 1366 E. 34th St., Cleveland, Ohio.

SUPPORTER: An improved design in men's socks in which an elastic arch support has been woven into the foot has been announced by Pocono Hosiery Mills, 358 Fifth Ave., New York.

 NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. — (AP)—Laughter is an industry today and cartooning is a big business.

A top chuckle-smith in this field is Paul Terry, creator of Terrytoons and a pioneer of the animated cartoon.

Some 40,000,000 moviegoers each week enjoy the antics of his famous characters—Mighty Mouse, Dinky the Duck, the two Terry Bears, and Heckle and Jeckle, the talking magpies.

At 64 Terry will have more money than any man in history. But he himself has remained little known to the public. That suits him.

"Put your roots in the minds of as many people as you can," he said. "Minds are all that count. Anybody who goes out for dollars alone is crazy."

Soon his big rambling studio here will put out the 1,000th Terrytoon. That leaves the cheerful, portly artist only one goal in life: "To make 1,000 more. I never want to retire. If a fellow gets that he's going to retire—whether at 35, 55, or 65—he's through as of the time he mentally decides he's going to retire."

Back in 1915 Terry quit two jobs as a comic strip and newspaper artist; make his first film cartoon. It was called "Little Herman," and it took him two months working in his own "living room" to make the 1,000 separate drawings for the five-minute feature.

"Now our cartoons run seven minutes," he said. "They have 8,000 to 10,000 drawings, and it takes 85 people eight months to produce one for the screen."

The studio turns out 26 cartoons a year now, all in technicolor. His staff also puts out several million comic books a year and is working on a television show.

"We haven't worked out the format yet," Terry said. "But I'm sure it will stick basically to children, cartoons and animals."

Terry won his first wide recognition with his series of Aesop Fable cartoons in the days of silent films.

"I had to out-Aesop Aesop himself," he recalled. "Aesop told 220 fables originally but I eventually put out 240 more—460 altogether. Sometimes I wonder if Aesop is waiting for me to give me plenty for what I did to his stories."

Each cartoon now costs up to $50,000 to produce. Over the years Terry has ploughed his profits back into his studio, trying to improve the art of animation.

"There is no sense in accumulating money," he said. "Only people who are afraid try to accumulate money. I have more faith in the pictures I make than in dollars. The dollars I make are no good to me until I turn them into another picture."

Terry believes cartooning still has a fabulous future, and this is advice to the young kid learning to draw:

"There'll always be room for the top-ones. But it'll always be tough for the ones who don't grow mentally. This trouble comes if they are too clever too

Washington Letter

 (By JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON—A young Indian with a cowl and a magic name is exciting reminiscent allegiances around the capital these days.

The cowl recalls the name—Willkie for president.

Philip Willkie, the 1940 candidate's son, has the same tousled hair, the same cowl, much of the same big-smiled earnest persuasiveness.

With the background of three years as an Indiana state legislator, Willkie came to Washington as chief counsel to the Senate subcommittee on morals and ethics in the Federal Government. Willkie expects the job to keep him in the capital until mid-July. Then he plans to go back to his Indiana politics and his Rushville law practice. Coming after revelations about deep freezers, milk coats and such things, the ethics-morals probe suggested more spicy tidbits.

But Willkie said no, that the committee would study "morality in the abstract" and probably pressed hope he would come up with some specific ideas for a code of conduct for government officials.

Now serving his second term in the Indiana House, Willkie has quietly been building his own political fences. He says he has made speeches in 36 Indiana counties at the request of local GOP organizations.

Born in Rushville, he has managed to preserve a Hoosier twang in his speech despite long residence in New York where his father was in business there. He is a graduate of Princeton and the Columbia University Law School, has a master's degree in history from Harvard and is a Navy veteran of World War II.

His views generally have little in common with those of such Indiana Republicans as Senator William E. Jenner. That would seem to rule him out of consideration for the GOP Senate nomination next year if Jenner should run for governor as expected. His district is represented in Congress by Republican Ralph Harvey, who may run for Jenner's Senate seat. This would give Willkie a chance to bid for Congress.

Associate Minister At Jarvis Memorial

The Rev. H. Langill Watson assumed his duties as associate minister at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on June 15.

Mr. Watson, a native of New Bern and Craven County, received his bachelor of divinity degree from Yale University in June of this year. He is a graduate of Duke University class of 1947, and spent three of the past four years as a student in the divinity school at Yale.

During 1949-1950, he was in England for 10 months as associate minister in the Congregational Church in the town of Ashton-under-Lyne, a place near Manchester. He was sent there under the auspices of the American Congregational Service Committee. During two months of the year, he was in Germany, traveling with a group under the auspices of the Baptist World Alliance, visiting Baptist churches in Germany.

He was accepted on trial by the North Carolina General Conference in November, 1950, and was ordained as a deacon. He received his appointment as associate pastor at Jarvis Memorial from Bishop Paul N. Garber, acting Bishop of the Richmond area, in the spring and will hold that appointment until the N. C. Conference meets again in November.

During the summer between college years he was actively associated with youth groups as counselor and advisor. He worked for two years as counselor and riding instructor at Camp Adventure and also spent one summer as minister of youth on the Walstonburg charge. While at Yale he was the minister of youth at the Congregational Church in Plainville, Connecticut for two summers.

As a high school student, Mr. Watson attended the New Bern Methodist Church in New Bern while Mr. Leon Russell, present pastor of Jarvis Memorial, served there.

"I feel," said Mr. Watson, "that Mr. Russell was a formidable influence at this time on my thinking and in my decision to enter the ministry."

He remarked that upon completion of his work at Yale, he received several attractive and lucrative offers in other parts of the country, but he returned to the south because he felt that the south was on the threshold of a new era economically, socially and politically and that the role of the church in its changing life presented more interesting and challenging opportunities.

Mr. Watson also added that he was proud to be a North Carolinian, for wherever he went—at home or abroad—North Carolina bore the reputation as being a liberal state and one known for its progressive leadership among the states of the south.

Mr. Watson is at present making his home with Mrs. V. C. Fleming Sr., on West Second Street. He is occupying the pulpit for all services during the absence of the pastor, Mr. Russell, who is in Europe.

German Farm Youths Try Lessons Learned In U. S.

By DON DOANE AP Newsfeatures

FRANKFURT, Germany — Germany's on cart farmers are getting some rude shocks these days. A bunch of teen-agers who in the old days would never dare to open their mouths are putting the blast on the old-timers' 18th century farming techniques.

The youngsters—nearly 300 of them—just came back from visiting America. There they were introduced to modern scientific farming. And now they are trying to introduce these new techniques into Germany.

It's too early to judge the results. Naturally, they are meeting some resistance among people who have farmed the same soil in the same way for centuries.

Results Showing But at least they are showing, some of the old-timers—and more what can be done.

Their efforts have the full backing of the U. S. High Commission, which has been preaching to the Germans ever since the war that they must modernize their agriculture in order to grow enough food to feed themselves.

It was the U. S. High Commission which sent these German youngsters to America. They spent six months or a year living with American farm families and going to American schools.

There they learned more than mere farming techniques. They learned to speak their minds, even to their elders. They found the courage to attack the traditions which have blocked German farming progress.

Holsteins Introduced Youngsters like Rudolph Stahl are building new types of hog feeders, introducing Holstein cows to replace low-producing scrubs.

Gerhard Weiser has helped form 11 rural youth groups in his home state of Wuertemberg-Baden, patterning them after the 4-H and FFA (future farmers) clubs he saw in America.

These groups sponsor stock judging contests and competition in improving crop yields.

Italy Puts Wind To Use In Providing Electricity

By CESARE BRUSINI AP Newsfeatures

ROME — Italy will ease its growing demands on electricity by using power stations operated by wind at a cost only one fourth of the present hydro-electric power. A large Italian metal works has bought the patents of Czech-born engineer, John Stastik.

The wind power stations operate through a number of small turbines. Regulators prevent the turbines from rotating too fast. This eliminates the inconveniences of windmills which had to change the inclination of the blades according to the wind's strength. Stastik's turbines can operate with wind of 10 feet per second.

Stastik tested his power stations in Lybia, before World War II. He says one of his 1,000 kw. stations can produce some 620,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month with normal wind. The plant costs about $22,000. Operation and maintenance is calculated to cost under $3,000 a year.

The Stastik power stations system has been recommended to other Marshall Plan countries. Requests for information have been received from Britain and Argentina.

Stastik himself is now in Argentina, negotiating with the government for the sale of his plants. The Sicilian regional administration has ordered several. They will provide towns with electricity in the water-short area of western and south-western Sicily. Other stations will furnish electricity to villages in central Italy.

Red Sox Newcomers Inject Pennant-Winning Energy

Jumped Into Lead In American League After Doubleheader Sweep From White Sox; New Blood Provided Runs Which Defeated White Sox 3-2 And 5-4

By STAN OPOOTOWSKY
United Press Sports Writer
The new blood injected into the Red Sox' veins to give them pennant-winning life jumped the Bostonians into the American League lead today after a marathon doubleheader sweep from the White Sox. Lou Boudreau was grabbed up as an expensive transubstition by the Red Sox when he was fired as Cleveland manager. Clyde Volmer was obtained last season in a trade with Washington.

At these newcomers—not the old Williams, Stephens, Goodman bunch—provided the runs that beat the White Sox 3 to 2 and 5 to 4 last night. The second game went 17 innings, setting a new American League record for a night game. Volmer, who figured in all three victories over the Yankees last weekend, hit a two-run homer and Boudreau drove in the winning run with a double in the first game before 22,000.

In the 17th inning of the second game Boudreau opened with a single, went to third on Billy Goodman's single and then scored on a long fly by Volmer—and that made the Sox the league leaders. The longest night game before this one was 16 innings when the Browns beat the Athletics in 1942. In the National the Phils beat the Reds in 10 innings at night last year.

The Yankees gained second place back on Allie Reynolds' no-hitter and Gene Woodling's homer which gave them a 1 to 0 win over Cleveland. A 10-hit blast including Root Rivers' homer and four doubles gave the Tigers a 5 to 4 win over Washington, and the A's swept a night doubleheader from the Browns 9 to 3 and 13 to 0 to complete the American League schedule.

The Dodgers ran their National League lead to nine and half games with a three-homer 9 to 3 win over the Cubs, while the Cards took second with a 2 to 0 win over the Giants on Billy Goodman's fifth inning two-run homer. The Phils routed Murry Dickson for an 11 to 6 conquest of the Pirates, while the Reds and Braves were rained out.

Reynold's no-hitter barely beat Bobby Feller's four-hitter as the fumbling Yanks sought to launch a comeback. Indian Allie had one scare when Hank Bauer had to go against the wall to catch Sam Chapman's long fly in the seventh after Woodling had hit his homer. Feller's only hits were the homer, a double by Mickey Mantle and singles by Yogi Berra and Gil McDougald. Feller, who pitched a no-hitter himself two weeks ago, had one going until the sixth when Mantle spoiled it.

Junior League Coupes Deafened By Converts

The Converts pushed across a run in the bottom of the fifth inning last night and went on from there to take a 6-4 win over the Coupes. The winning run was scored without the aid of a hit. Doug Strickland was struck by a pitched ball and quickly stole second. Doug Morgan and Bill Cattetle followed with successive walks to load the bases. Strickland raced home with the winning run when one of the pitcher's deliveries eluded the Coupe catcher.

Excellent relief pitching on both sides prevented a higher score. Bill Cattetle replaced Doug Morgan on the mound for the Converts in the fifth inning with the bases loaded and two out. He quickly struck out the next batter to erase the threat. He went the rest of the way and allowed only one hit, while striking out two.

George Phillips took over the mound for the losers in the fifth with one down and the bases filled. That threat was also erased as Phillips struck out Tommy Norris and Doug Morgan was called out when he interfered with a throw from the catcher to the third baseman in an attempt to pick him off third.

Washington (AP)—Clark Griffith, associated with baseball for nearly fifty years, said today baseball's new commissioner must be a "puppet."

Baseball club owners are now searching around for a successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who steps down from the post Sunday. Griffith told a reporter he has a nominee for the job, but he would not name him.

Sitting in his ball park office with a short-sleeved blue sport shirt open at the collar and puffing lightly on a cigar three quarters gone, the 81-year-old president of the Washington Senators reeled off his requirements for the job:

"His first duty is to the public," Griffith said. "He must be a stern czar, who rules the game with an iron hand."

"We don't want a puppet in that office."
"A fellow that will tell all the owners where to get off if they act or talk out of turn."
"Just duss for the ballplayers and owners."
"He should carry the full responsibility of the office."
"He should have a legal mind—because we have problems to solve."
Chandler, who held the post since 1945, resigned effective July 15. Club owners twice refused to renew his contract which would have run until May 1, 1952.

Population Still Rising In Italy

ROME (AP)—Neither war, migrations, evacuations nor depopulation have halted a steady rise in Italy's jam-packed population. The next census in November is 47,000,000 people and is the most populous nation in the Mediterranean area.

At the last official census, April 21, 1936, there were 43,059,889 inhabitants. Since then the Ethiopian War, World War II, migrations, evacuations and deportations all have taken place—but the country's population continued to increase.

Camera Appears, Party Breaks Up

VIENNA (AP)—The happy Russian guards at the border of the Soviet-British zone spied a harmonica in the hands of one of a band of Austrian vacationers. The Russians indicated they would like to hear a tune. The Austrian obliged. The Russians applauded. The Austrians danced.

The party suddenly broke up as the Russians pounced on the Austrian and arrested him. The unsuspecting Austrian had been innocently recording the scene with his camera. He has not been released yet.

Speedy Senator

The real break for Gill Coan came when Bucky Harris returned to manage the Washington Senators for the third time in the spring of 1950. Tabled a brilliant prospect on the basis of his sensational record in the minors, Coan had made several false starts toward stardom and was at the point where folks were beginning to think that he was nothing more than a bright minor league star. The 1949 season was a dismal one for Washington and Coan, with a .218 batting average, didn't enhance the picture.

Then Manager Harris entered the picture. Fully aware of the fact that Coan was the victim of too much well-intended advice, Harris watched the youngster for a few days and then called him aside. "I want you to follow your own training program and see if you can't get yourself squared away," said Harris. "For the rest of the training period, I won't talk to you and don't want you to talk to me. Now, good luck."

That move proved a stroke of genius. Coan regained his confidence and began living up to the promise he showed in the minors. He went on to hit .303 last season and pace his teammates at the plate. This season, Gill has been going great guns at the plate and using his great speed to full advantage in the field and on the bases.

Umpire Sanctioned Odd Home Run In Ball Mix-Up

AP Newsfeatures
PHOENIX, Ariz.—Grover Land, the old big league catcher and coach, hit one of the most unusual home runs in baseball history. This is his story:

"In Chicago, one hot afternoon in 1914, when I was catching for Brooklyn in the old Federal League, Umpire Barry McCormick failed to show up. That put the burden for the entire game on Bill Brennan. He had to call the balls and strikes plus all the action on the bases and was working up quite a sweat.

"I turned around to Bill and said, 'Why don't you move that carcass of yours in back of the pitcher and call em all from there?'"

"Bill said, 'I think you finally got an idea, you big ham.' And he took off for the mound, putting on a kind of apron to hold extra baseballs.

"Every time he ran over to the foul line to watch a ball, the baseball belt around his middle hopped all around. Brennan got disgusted and set the balls down beside him, building a pyramid so they would not scatter around.

"That was the situation when I came to the plate.

"I stepped into the second pitch and darned if I didn't hit a line drive right at the pile of baseballs. Well, those balls went every which way. Every infielder came up with one but I kept running even though they all put a ball on me at every base. When I crossed the plate Brennan called me safe because he didn't know whether I had been tagged with the right ball."

Greenies Still Defeated After Ninth Inning Rally

TARBORO — Macclesfield cut short a ninth inning rally by Greenville last night to defeat the Greenies, 9-8, in a league encounter played in Tarboro.

Leon Jones powered a deep drive over the left-field fence with one man on base in the last inning to put Greenville back in the ball game. Winning pitcher Mark Stancil quickly erased the Greenie threat by retiring the next two men to face him and ending the ball game.

The Greenies scored first with three runs in the first inning but Macclesfield came back with a pair in the bottom half of the stanza.

Thrope Smith homered for the winners in the bottom of the second with two men on base, to feature a five run uprising.

Stancil, former South Edgecombe High mound star, went the distance for the winners, while A. J. Rose and B. Ricks shared the mound chore for the Greenies. Ricks entered the game in the fourth inning and did not allow a hit for the remainder of the contest.

The same clubs will play a two-game week-end series, with the first game scheduled for Greenville Saturday night at 7:45, and the return match the next day in Macclesfield.

Joke Backfires

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians tried to outgag the New York Yankees last night with a Cadillac, but the joke backfired.

Manager Casey Stengel recently said the reason his Yank pitchers refused to ride from the bull pen to the mound in the Tribe's jeep was that they were used to Cadillacs.

So, last night, Vice President George Medinger of the Indians had his Cadillac convertible parked near the mound. It was all ready to speed a Yank referer to the mound.

And what happened: Allie Reynolds tossed a no-hitter. The relievers didn't even get off the bench.

tennis, the Davis Cup match between Mexico and the winner of the United States-Japan test, may have to be called off, U. S. Captain Frank Shields said today.

Shields said in the event the match could not be held on August 3, 4, and 5 according to schedule in Mexico City, the Mexicans would have to default.

X-Ray Picture Reverses Umpire

CHARLESTON, W. Va. —(UP)—An x-ray picture unofficially reversed an umpire's decision in a Charleston Senator baseball game 24 hours after the game ended.

Roger Wright, who was pitching for the Senators against the Dayton, (O.) Clippers, claimed he was hit on the wrist by a pitched ball.

The umpire, however, ruled that the ball nicked the bat, although Wright extended a swollen wrist as evidence.

X-ray pictures developed the next day showed the hurler had suffered a fracture of a small bone in the wrist. He was sidelined for more than a week.

Fourth Fight Set For Champions

NEW YORK (AP)—A fourth title bout between Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler and Ex-Champ Willie Pep was reported near the signing stage today.

Billy Gore, trainer for Pep, said the bout was tentatively set for Aug. 22 in Madison Square Garden.

Harry Markson, Managing Director of the International Boxing Club, said Saddler's manager, Charley Johnston, had cabled from Argentina that he was interested in a title clash for that date.

Details are expected to be ironed out when Johnston returns from South America in about ten days.

Carroll Leaves For NCRS Meeting

Recreation Director Warren Carroll left today to attend a municipal directors meeting in Chapel Hill.

The meeting will run through Saturday with an executive meeting slated for Sunday morning. It is sponsored by the North Carolina Recreation Society.

The purpose of the meeting is to inform the municipal directors of events taking place in other parts of the state.

Exhibition Tilt

A team composed of local Little League All-Stars will play a team representing the South Wilmington Little League Saturday afternoon at the Greenville Little League Park.

The game will get underway at 4:30.

Greenville and South Wilmington are slated to meet each other in the first round of the Fourth District Tournament on August 1st. The tournament will be held in Havelock.

HILL S TWICE YEARLY IS NOW

NEW YORK (UP)—Unbeaten Rocky Marciano, the Brockton, Mass., dynamite who blasted out Rex Layne in the sixth round, began moving his explosives toward Joe Louis and heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles today.

"We want Louis or Charles as his next opponent," declared manager Marty Weil, still deliriously excited at Rocky's knockout victory over highly-touted young Layne of Utah at 35 seconds of the sixth round last night.

Stocky, swarthy Marciano achieved his 31st knockout in 36 straight victories before 12,565 fans in Madison Square Garden with a looping right to the chin that dropped Layne as if he had been shot.

Before the 11-5 favorite suffered the first knockout and the second defeat of his career of 38 fights, he had been "aggrered twice in the first round, once in the third and once in the fifth. And he had been on the canvas in the fourth round in a half-knockdown resulting from a right to the body, accompanied by a wrestling touch. Only his gloves and one knee touched the canvas then.

The wild-hooking 26-year-old Italian from Brockton overwhelmed 23-year-old Layne at close quarters so effectively that Rex never won a round on the United Press score sheet, although he fought on even terms in the first session.

Layne had been favored because of victories over Jersey Joe Walcott and Bob Satterfield; also because he outweighed Marciano, 193 pounds to 185 1-2.

Moreover, Marciano had been called a "hot house" fighter whose perfect record was built up at the expense of a "bunch of stiff." Before last night the only "name" fighter he had beaten was Roland LaStarza of New York, over whom he won a split 10-round decision on March 24, 1950.

Layne had no excuses. He merely said, "I didn't feel good." But manager Mary Johnson explained that Layne had been careless in dropping his left glove too low and thereby leaving his head open to rights.

U.S. Seeking Best Men For Service In Alaska

By PETER J. HAYES
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 FAIRBANKS, Alaska —(AP)—A long-range program has been started by the military to determine the type of soldier to fight a war in Alaska.

Maj. Anthony Debons, psychological officer in the Arctic serological laboratory, Ladd Air Force base, said his department is surveying scores of troops in the Alaska command. When it is learned what sort of person is best suited to the diverse environments offered in Alaska, an attempt will be made to garrison territorial military posts with these ideal "psychological packages."

"We've still got a long way to go in our studies," Debons said. "However, we know that one type of person who would not get along well in Alaska is the person who is 'accident-prone.' That is, one who is careless, one who would forget his gloves when he went outside and end up with a bad case of frostbite.

"Would be Detriment
 "Naturally, a man like that would be a detriment instead of an asset if he went into combat up here."

Although the isolation of many military posts in Alaska results in deterioration of social ties to some men, others seemingly thrive on it. "A man may not mind too much being sent to Alaska if, say, his wife wants a divorce or he faces serious financial worries," Debons said.

"But for the most part, men come to Alaska with preconceived notions. Their attitude is superficial and they have decided before they even get here that they aren't going to like it."

Troops Classified
 Debons divides Alaska-based troops who don't adjust well to their surroundings by their geographical origins. Northerners would be more inclined to be frustrated and southerners would be depressed, he said.

"Northerners have a strong cultural background," he explained. "They think in terms of 'white collar' living such as college education and $7,000-a-year jobs. Southerners have a slightly lower educational level. They don't have the same cultural 'props' as those from the north."

Debons pointed out that GI's stationed in Alaska may be in extremely varied environments. An airman based at Elmendorf base, a few miles from Anchorage, a city of 30,000 population, would be more likely to find enough to stimulate him than the pfc. stationed on the barren Aleutian chain.

Troops stationed in Alaska are here for two-year tours of duty, except those on the Chain, Marks air base and other isolated spots, where the tour is one year.

Apt to Be Let-Down
 "We've found that there is a general let-down on the part of a man in one of these places for more than one year," Debons said. "He becomes less sociable and dealing with his fellows becomes more of a strain."

Another major aim of Debons' department is to increase the working efficiency of airmen through job analysis. He said: "That includes trying to find out how a job can be done faster; how to cut down waste motions on the part of the airmen, and how long a man can operate efficiently under such adverse conditions as the extreme lighting of the Far North."

Debons said the aeromedical laboratory is working with several Stateside universities toward finding the answers to the many psychological questions facing the military in Alaska.

Ayden Club Installs Slate Of Officers

AYDEN — Installation services were held by the Ayden Rotary Club Friday, June 29, at its regular weekly meeting.

The following officers were installed in their office by Dr. G. G. Dixon: president, E. F. Johnson, vice-president, Stinson Ross; secretary, S. M. Edwards; treasurer, Roy Turnage Jr.; treasurer, Harry Stillman; and directors, Warren Kinlaw and Harry Stillman.

The special athletic committee which helped to build the athletic field, having lights put up at the ball park, raising a fund for a supplement to the coach's salary, and buying equipment for the high school, gave the final report before disbanding.

Corey Stokes presented J. R. Taylor with a past president's pin and congratulated him on the work done by the club under his presidency.

Dr. Dixon's guest was Thomas E. Langley.

A supper was served.

July Meeting
 On July 6, the Ayden Rotary Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Ayden Community Building.

Newly-elected president Faust Johnson presided and submitted committee appointments for the year. He also presented several civic projects for consideration by the club.

Corey Stokes was voted the club's grand prize because of the outstanding program for which he was responsible during the past year. He, in turn, gave the prize back to the club to be raffled off and the proceeds to be used for a special project.

Johnson announced that he would hold a club assembly at his home on Thursday night.

T. G. Worthington had as his guest his son-in-law Jim Abernathy. Visiting Rotarians were John McVernon of Farmville and Herbert Radley and Leon Roebuck of Greenville.

Call Guardsmen To Handle Mob In Racial Rioting

CICERO, Ill. —(AP)—Bayonet-wielding National Guardsmen and police battled a hooting, jerring, unruly mob of thousands for a riotous two hours in Cicero streets last night and early today.

Eleven persons, including three soldiers and three policemen, were hospitalized in the rioting, which stemmed from a racial housing dispute. Some of the civilians were injured by bayonets. Others were injured by stones and bricks hurled at the soldiers and police from among the incensed throng of about 4,000.

An undetermined number of civilians suffered bruises and cuts in the melee between the mob and steel-helmeted soldiers and police in one of the worst riots in the Chicago area in several years. Police cars were overturned. Lighted flares were tossed into the windows and onto the roof of a 20-apartment building—focal point of the disturbance. Firemen dodged a barrage of rocks and stones to douse the fires.

Police rounded up 50 persons after the crowd had dwindled during the early morning hours. They were taken to the Cicero police station for questioning and were held without charge.

Order was established at the scene—a residential district in this community of 70,000—shortly before 1 a. m. (EST), more than two hours after the fighting broke out.

About 250 Guardsmen were assigned to remain on duty at the scene all night.

Last night's fighting climaxed three nights of violent disorders at the apartment building.

The first disturbances came after Harvey E. Clark, Jr., 29, a Negro bus driver for the Chicago Transit Authority, and his family moved furniture into the apartment he rented. The furniture was dumped out and burned by a mob Wednesday night.

No negroes live in Cicero, a suburb west of Chicago.

Gunman Nabbed In Miami Garage

MIAMI —(AP)—The FBI today dropped the name of Ernest Tait, 40-year-old desperado, from its list of "10 most wanted men." He is in Miami's skyscraper jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Two FBI agents arrested the tall, quiet gunman in a Miami garage yesterday while he waited to be tried.

Two loaded 45 automatics with which Tait blasted his way to freedom after an attempted holdup in New Castle, Ind., on April 1 were in the car, out of reach where a garage employe had raised it on a grease rack.

An Associated Press story and picture of Tait which appeared in yesterday's Miami Herald led to his capture.

Tait gave up without a struggle to R. W. Wall, FBI agent in charge of the Miami Office, and Webb Burke, his assistant.

Garageman Jesse Marrs recognized Tait when the gunman drove up in his new 1951 Oldsmobile convertible and asked to have it serviced.

"He was very quiet and pleasant and didn't act at all nervous," Marrs said. "I had his car put on the grease rack and had it jolted in the air. Then I told our service manager to call the FBI and that I'd try to hold him here."

"I told the boys not to let the car down but to act like they were working on it, but if the man came over and told them to put it down, to go to it. I didn't want anybody to get shot."

Chapter I
Betsy Drummond sat in the darkest corner of the old carriage house, a black bandage over her eyes.

"This is what it's like to be blind," she told herself. "This is what Peter knows. Never to see again! Oh, Pete, darling, I can't stand it! Not for you, Pete."

Peter had loved beauty; he had loved to walk through the woods and fields in the spring. He had been blind even in bare fields, and had pointed out to Betsy the myriad color tones of the newly turned earth. And now—Peter was blind, hopelessly blind!

Betsy had fought against that knowledge since the morning, such a short while ago, that Peter's mother had stood before her, gray-faced and white-lipped, and told her the truth.

"We've got to help him, Betsy,"

Mrs. Marshall had said. "He does not want us to come to the hospital. He wants to come home alone. All we can do is wait till he's ready to come back to us."

Ever since she could remember, Betsy had loved Peter Marshall. But he had just grinned at her, called her "Carrot-top," pulled her pigtail, and teased her. Six years makes a terrific difference in ages when you're growing up. But Peter was twenty-four now, and Betsy was almost nineteen.

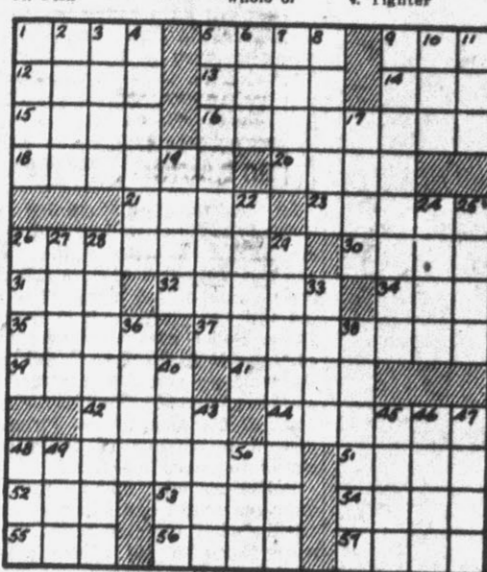

She had written to him faithfully through the long three years he'd been gone to war. From the brief, scrawled answers he had sent her, she knew he still thought of her as the leggy, carrot-topped youngster she'd been when he went away.

Peter would never see her now, as she had grown up. Her hair was a rich mahogany-red, the childish young figure had filled out; the

Serve Injunction On Lumber Firm

RALEIGH —A deliberate violation, or neglect so wanton and inexcusable as to border on willfulness by the Hoffer and Riddick Co., of Sunbury, N. C. of the OPS General Ceiling Price Regulation has caused an injunction to be served on the firm. It was announced yesterday by John Hall Manning, United States Attorney.

Judge Don Gilliam of Tarboro, who signed the injunction, ordered the firm to appear in federal court in Raleigh on July 19 at 11 AM to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted. A deputy United States Marshall served the injunction for violation of the record-keeping requirements of the GCPR. This action prohibits the firm from selling or delivering any commodities or services until compliance has been effected.

Hoffer and Riddick, a manufacturer, and wholesaler of lumber and wood products, was called on by OPS Special Agent K. R. Cotton. According to Cotton's affidavit, he visited the firm on July 5 and talked with W. C. Copeland, the firm's bookkeeper. Copeland stated that the firm maintained no records which would furnish the desired information and that he was unable to furnish any assistance in the matter.

On July 6, Cotton returned and discussed the matter with H. S. Hoffer and W. H. Riddick, owners of the firm. He reported that the general ledger, adequate for business purposes, did not supply the information required by the regulation, and that the firm had made no attempt to make a ceiling price list.

gr ten-brown eyes were steady and honest, and the small line of freckles that marched across her impertinent little nose were almost hidden by the warm sun-tan that gave her such a healthy-wholesome look.

And tomorrow, he was coming home—blind!

She was so absorbed in her misery that she did not hear the protesting squeak with which the doors of the carriage house swung open. It was not until a voice spoke that she started up so swiftly that her head struck a low beam. Her hands shook as she tore off the bandage.

A woman stood in the doorway outlined by the sunlight. For a moment, Betsy's eyes were so blinded that she saw the figure only as a blur.

"Oh—hello," said the woman, obviously startled. "Did I frighten you? I'm sorry, I had no idea anyone was here."

"That is—it's the old Cunningham place," Betsy stammered, "I've been closed for years. I live next door."

Now that her eyes were focused against sunlight, she could see that the woman was attractive. Thick, shining dark hair was tucked into a roll that framed her face. She had large brown eyes, a warm-lipped mouth, and a straight, beautiful nose that made Betsy all the more conscious of the impertinent tilt of her own.

"I'm Marcia Eldon," she said, and there was still a look of curiosity in her eyes as she took in the small, dejected figure in crumpled blue flannel shorts and white shirt. "I've rented the place for a year."

Betsy turned toward the loose plank at the back, through which she slipped. "I'll be seeing you around, I suppose," she said hurriedly, pushed back the plank, slipped through the opening, and was flying across what had once been a vegetable garden, toward the tall hedge. A moment later she was in her own side of the hedge.

She came into the house through the kitchen. Either, the Negro woman who had been her nurse as a baby, watched her as she crossed the room and, before she could escape, said gently, "Honey, it ain't goin' to do no good for you to grieve your heart out about Mr. P."

"I—I can't talk about it, Esther," said Betsy, and fled.

She chose back lanes and side streets as she hurried across town. Presently she came to a quiet little street that ended on a bluff overlooking the river. Here a small, sturdy cottage sat in a thick grove of pines.

An old man sat in one of the rustic chairs. His white head lifted alertly as Betsy came across the lawn, walking as quietly as she could. Before she reached him, he laughed and said:

"Betsy, my dear, how nice to see you!"

These old man's sightless eyes were turned toward her and his smile was friendly and fond.

Professor Hartley said, "Don't you want to see Tamar's son? He's developing beautifully."

"Oh, yes! Betsy agreed, and some of her pain and misery vanished.

The old man whistled and two dogs came leaping towards him. One was a full-grown German shepherd; the other, a half-grown pup. The puppy frolicked a moment, but at a word from the man, he came obediently and the thin old hands fitted a harness to his shoulders.

"Try him out, Betsy," suggested the professor.

She bound a handkerchief over her eyes, put her hand on the curved wooden harness above the dog's shoulders and he walked her patiently about the garden, skillfully avoiding trees, bushes, any obstacle in their path.

"He's a darling, Professor," she said. "You've been swell to give him to me and to help me train him for Pete."

"I can only hope he will give Peter the comfort and companionship his mother has given me. Come here, Betsy."

He paused for a moment, as if recalling pictures out of the past. Then he said:

"It will be hard for Peter, at first; he's young, unreconciled, bitter. It's only natural that he should be. He's going to need cheerful companionship, friendliness—but don't try to give him more than he is ready to take. Don't try to make him lean on you. Help him to be self-reliant, to live a normal life."

"I'll try," she repeated.

The old man smiled and patted her hand. "That's all anybody can do, Betsy," he told her.

Shanghai Builds Up Air Defenses

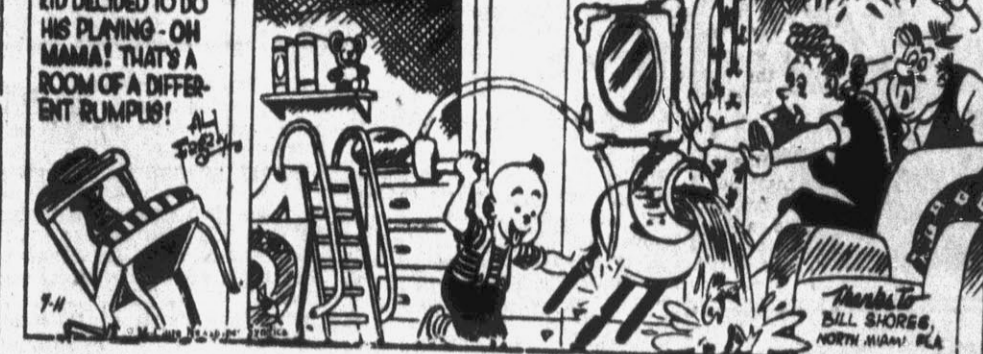

HONG KONG - (AP) - The Chinese Communists are setting up an "Air Defense Headquarters" in Shanghai to protect that city from "enemy aircraft". The headquarters will organize and train civilian defense squads similar to ARP teams in the United States. The Shanghai newspaper reporting this did not say why the city was taking air raid precautions at this time. But it pointed out that similar education and training of the Russian people before World War II enabled the Soviet Union to minimize personal and property losses from German bombers.

Mercury Rises

Warm weather prevailed here yesterday and the temperature soared in the upper 90s during the afternoon. Highest yesterday was 95 degrees in the afternoon. Lowest last night, 72, and at 8 a.m. today it was 79, the highest at that time of day this summer. Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U.S. Department of Commerce, reported.

Highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday a year ago was 85 degrees. Lowest that night, 67, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 77 degrees. A light shower fell that day and it rained the several previous days.

Youth Is Facing 3 More Charges

Since Greenville police arrested Leland Evans, 18-year-old white youth of Winterville, a week ago on the charge of larceny they lodged three other charges against him.

He is charged with breaking and entering and attempted larceny of chickens at Collins' Grocery Store 304 West Ninth Street, a week ago. Since then warrants were issued charging him with twice driving a motor vehicle without a license, and last night Deputy Sheriff Jasper Lee Mills arrested the youth on the charge of the larceny of an automobile from Heber Hudson of the Hudson's Crossroads community. The car was recovered. Evans is in city jail.

Police said the boy is a son of Coy Evans of near Winterville and lives with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Worthington, Route 2, Winterville.

In Police Court today, Judge Charles H. Whedbee postponed the hearing of the case a week so Evans' mother, who lives in Norfolk Va., can appear.

Soldiers Concur With Break-Off

NORTH OF TRUCE CAMP, Korea —(UP)—The majority in a group of U.S. infantrymen supported today the United Nations decision not to continue cease-fire talks unless Allied newsmen were permitted a liberty led by a veteran of more than one year in Korea said "maybe it is too great a chance."

The discussion took place close to two field showers spraying hot water—a wartime luxury reminiscent of home—in the combat GI's. A sputtering pump heated the water sucked out of a nearby pond. (The "shower room" session occurred before the troops had been informed of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's new terms for resumption of negotiations.)

Most soldiers, stepping out of the showers to join the conversation, said: "We shouldn't let the Chinese have their own way."

They supported the principle that the press has a right to attend the conference. All agreed no time should be wasted while men were being killed in battle.

Cpl. Thomas Darst, Baton Rouge, La., a veteran of one year and two days in Korea, spoke for the minority.

"I don't know how to tell you the truth," he said. "In a way the U.N. decision was wrong—and in a way it was right to refuse to let the rest of the convoy go into Kaesong (when the newsmen were barred)."

"Maybe it is just too great a chance."

The half-dressed men regarded Darst for a moment with thoughtful eyes. Tiny, 18-year-old Pfc. Robert C. Moury of Amanda, Ohio, was inclined to agree.

The Ohioan, who stands 5 feet 2 inches and weighs 105 pounds, said: "We ought to get some sort of a reasonable settlement — anything short of war."

His Lost Weekend Lasted Two Years

PITTSBURGH —(UP)—Edward Weiseckel, 37, of Pittsburgh took up residence in Allegheny County jail today on an abandonment charge after returning home from a "lost weekend" that began two years ago.

Weiseckel told the court yesterday that he came home from work one day two years ago and found a strange man in his kitchen. He said he told his wife: "If that's the way you want it, I'm going out for a beer."

He did.

Judge Also Knew The Language

NEW BUFFALO, Mich. —(UP)—Justice of the Peace Dominic Farina informed the defendant in a traffic case that he can speak Italian as well as the next one.

Felipe Domingo, 24-year-old Chicago truck driver, muttered something in Italian when Farina fined him $5 on reckless driving charge.

"That will be an extra $10 for contempt," the justice said. Both the court and the defendant refused to quarrel with the muttered words.

John Mercer, an Englishman, discovered in 1944 a method of strengthening cotton by 20 percent and giving it a silk-like sheen, a process still called mercerization.

tempt to keep down inflation.

At first, the cattlemen's protest didn't seem to make much impression. But the wind shifted and it became clear they were having AA LOT OF INFLUENCE IN THE lot of influence in the capital. By mid-June the mood of congress was beginning to show itself: (1) not to continue the controls for two years, as Mr. Truman asked; and (2) not only not give him stronger controls but weaken those he had.

Mr. Truman must have begun to realize the rug was being pulled out from under him. He made a major effort to regain lost ground by a broadcast to the people on June 14, or 16 days before the June 30 deadline.

He appealed to the people to urge their congressmen to give Mr. Truman the controls he asked, although yesterday he told his news conference he had never done so.

The response must have been pretty feeble. Congress' mood didn't change.

When the June 30 deadline approached and it still hadn't reached a decision, congress voted to keep the old controls another 31 days. We're running through those 31 days now.

Meanwhile, the Senate made up its mind: It voted to keep controls only another eight months more, but weaker ones. Now the House is voting, apparently determined to weaken them even more.

At this very last moment, seeing their whole program in danger of being shot to pieces, the Administration people have started to appeal to the people again to pressure congress.

For instance, Eric Johnston, head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, is storming around for public support. And Charles E. Wilson, boss of mobilization, made a similar appeal this week.

This last minute try isn't likely to change congress' mind much.

PITTSBURGH —(UP)— Three hundred and sixty-four days of the year 13 members of Pittsburgh's Friday the Thirteenth Club sit around waiting patiently for their day of days.

Drunken Driver Of Horse and Wagon Pays Small Fine
Judge Charles H. Whedbee, in Police Court today, fined Marshall Hardee, elderly white farmer who lives in the suburbs, $10 or being drunk.
Police had charged Hardee with driving while drunk a horse-drawn vehicle on the streets of the city. Hardee has fallen from his seat on the wagon and was prostrate on the ground when a policeman arrived.
In court today, the warrant was amended to "drunk on the street."
