Largest Refinery Plant in Iran Closed Down

Cuts Off Last Trickle Of Iranian Oil To West; Idles 12,000 Native Workers

ABADAN, Iran (UP)—The biggest oil refinery in the world—the Abadan plant of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.—closed down this morning.

A British engineer switched off three giant pumps bringing the huge refinery to a stand still, cutting off the last trickle of Iranian oil to the West and idling some 12,000 native workers.

The shut down came as U.S. roving ambassador Averell Harriman flew into the capital of Tehran from London to try to speed up new Anglo-Iranian talks on settlement of the bitter oil dispute.

A British commission headed by Lord Privy Seal Richard Stokes will fly to Iran shortly to try to settle the dispute.

At the same time the Iranian Parliament extended martial law in the Khuzistan province oil fields for two months.

The close down of the refinery was not a hostile move by either side in the dispute but because the huge storage tanks at the plant were filled to the brim. There are no tankers to carry away their oil because the British ship captains refuse to recognize Iranian nationalization of the oil.

Highway Patrol Opens New Garage For Troop "A" Here

Shown above is the newly completed State Highway Patrol garage located at the intersection of Fifth street and the 10th Street highway extension. The structure, 62x32 feet, is modernly equipped in every way to repair the automobiles operated by Patrol Troop "A" which covers the Eastern section of North Carolina. Patrol Unit Expansion Partially Completed

Modern Automobile Repair Garage Opened Here And In Operation; Serves Highway Patrol Troop "A"

By ROY HARDEE The first unit of a proposed expansion of State Highway Patrol facilities in Greenville was completed recently and placed in operation, with the opening of a modern automobile repair garage.

Located in the forks of Tenth Street Extension and Fifth Street, the building, a cement and steel structure, overlooks the Grimesland highway from a commanding height.

Delayed for some time because of lack of steel and then for construction difficulties, the unit is now serving Troop "A" which patrols the highways of eastern North Carolina from below Raleigh to the coast.

At the time the garage was constructed it was designed to replace the old outdated unit operated in Williamston which had been used since 1936, but one man is still located there to handle peak repairs when the new garage becomes over-loaded.

A total of 93 cars are serviced regularly by the new unit and in addition a number of spare cars are kept at the garage for emergency use or breakdown of the other units.

Build of cement blocks with steel reinforced roof the new Patrol garage cost an estimated $25,000, when finally completed.

Long range plans call for the construction of a modern two story Patrol Troop headquarters building on the same site to house all the offices and barracks for the troop.

A recent announcement was made in Raleigh that $75,000 has been allotted for the building but as yet the bids have not been let. It was believed that the bidding will start the latter part of August.

Four full time mechanics are employed at the garage with the possibility that additional personnel will be added as the need arises.

Intense Communist ground fire slightly damaged one C-119 and forced the flight to veer off until the enemy guns were silenced by U.N. crouching troops. No casualties were reported, however.

Farther east, U.N. infantrymen dug out the last remaining Communist on mountains above Yanggu on the east-central front. The division wrested the main peak of the heights from the Reds yesterday after a 5 1/2 day battle.

Elsewhere the 135-mile fighting front, action was limited to patrol clashes and small-scale Communist probing attacks.

None of the enemy thrusts penetrated the allied lines and most were repulsed in a matter of minutes.

Groundwork Laid For Athletic Programs

Groundwork was laid last night for the organization of a club of 100 members to support the athletic and physical education programs of Greenville high school.

Approximately 25 Greenville businessmen gathered in the high school library to discuss the organization of a group to give a boost to the athletic program of the school which has lagged behind those of other schools in the Northeastern conference since the end of World War II.

Various speakers at the meeting pointed out the need for more city support of the high school athletic program, more attendance at the games, and more advance season ticket sales.

H. L. Hodges, Jr. was named temporary chairman of the group, and each of the 25 members present last night was asked to invite four or five persons interested in Greenville high school athletics to join the organization. A permanent club is to be formed at a meeting set for the high school library at 8:15 next Monday night.

"We are going to form an organization to help Greenville high school," Hodges said this morning. "Everything done by the organization will be under the wing of the school. We want at least 100 people at the meeting Monday night. It is open to the public."

Third Contestant Enters Farmers Day Beauty Show

entered the senior class during the first session of summer school. She will graduate next June with a degree in primary education.

Previously, she attended Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C., where she studied voice after graduating from Ayden High School in 1948. At Carolina she is member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Meanwhile, a note of optimism was voiced by the Jaycee committee in charge of the contest to be held the night before Farmer's Day. Ben Rouse, chairman of the committee, stated that with Miss Worthington's entry, interest throughout the county is increasing.

"Although we haven't had an entry from outside the county," Rouse said, "I think we'll hear from many more girls between now and the August 13 deadline."

Application blanks have been sent to all civic clubs and organizations in the county in effort to increase interest in the communities. Rouse reported that the clubs seem very interested in sponsoring girls for Queen of the Harvest Festival.

All applications must be in the hands of the committee by midnight August 13. The girl must be between 15 and 25 and must live in a rural area or a town of not more than 3,000 population. Applications can be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce here or from a civic club in the girls' community.

Half Pass Draft Deferment Test

Of 165,000 College Students Taking Test, 102,000 Got 70 Or Better

WASHINGTON (UP)—Selective Service headquarters reported today that well over half the students who took the first college draft deferment test got a score of at least 70, the mark recommended as a passing grade.

The report was based on a preliminary tabulation of results of the May 26 test. The figures showed 165,000 college students took the first test and more than 102,000 got 70 or better.

Test scores will be used by local draft boards in determining which students to defer to continue their education. Draft officials recommended that those who made 70 or better be deferred but the recommendation is not binding on the local boards. It merely serves as a guide.

Officials said the results indicate that about 40 per cent of the students in the lower portion of their classes received a score of 70 or better and about 75 per cent in the upper portion of their classes scored as high.

Truman Expected To Sign Bill On Economic Controls Today

Deadlock Nears Crisis Stage In Cease-Fire

Returns Money He Stole Three Years Ago

University Of North Carolina Student Declared Conscience Bothering Him

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—A University of North Carolina student whose conscience almost drove him "nuts" after he stole $1,900 from a ship's safe three years ago, learns today if he will face prosecution.

Milburn M. Respass, 27, of Pike Road in Beaufort County, N.C., walked into Houston police headquarters Sunday. He carried a suitcase containing $1,300 and calmly told officers it was part of his loot from the safe of the SS Mary Luckenbach.

Police doubted his story and for 24 hours the conscience-stricken youth demanded that they believe him.

He told of taking $1,900 while he was serving as a purser aboard the SS Mary Luckenbach at Galveston, Tex. He persisted to such an extent that police double-checked and they found his story "true in every detail."

"I took the money while I was drunk," he told officers. Since then, he said, "every time a door opened I expected to see a policeman coming in after me."

"I've about gone nuts," he added. Respass said he hid $1,300 in his North Carolina home but found last Friday that he could no longer fight his conscience. He went to the cache and found it gone. A neighbor had taken the money, he said, but gave it back.

Respass came here with the $1,300 and offered to make up the additional $600 with a promissory note.

W. J. Burns, chief of Galveston detectives, said he thought Respass has already more than paid for the crime. He believed Respass would be freed but it would have to be with the agreement of an insurance company which restored the funds to the steamship line.

The Luckenbach company said it had "no further interest" in the case.

Stabilization Officials Say Next To No Chance Would Truman Veto Bill; Would Not Give Him Powers He Had Requested; Gives Power To Truman To Allocate Scarities

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman was expected to sign recently the new economic controls bill today, along with a blast at the measure as inadequate to prevent further inflation.

Congressional leaders and stabilization officials said there was next to no chance that Mr. Truman would veto the bill, although it would not give him many of the powers he had requested.

They noted that the structure would let the broad controls expire at midnight tonight under the current one-month extension.

The United Labor Policy Committee, claiming to represent 15,000,000 CIO and AFL members, promised to support Mr. Truman if he vetoed the bill. The committee called the measure a "callous betrayal" of consumers and a "disgraceful surrender to those who stand to profit from inflation," but said it would go along with the president if he felt he had to accept the legislation.

In addition to price control and rent control powers, the measure gives Mr. Truman authority to allocate scarce materials, issue priorities and give production incentives to some defense scarce materials. It also relaxes curbs on installment buying.

The measure denies the president powers that he had requested to continue livestock slaughtering quotas, build war plants, license firms under price control and grant farm subsidies.

Two senators acted yesterday to give Congress another look at the controversial slaughtering quota issue. Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D-SC) and Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind) introduced a bill to authorize such curbs so that the Senate Banking Committee can hold hearings on the question.

Basically the controls bill would: 1. Permit some price rollbacks in addition to the present 10 per cent beef price rollback, but allow boosts in price ceilings which do not represent a seller's highest price during the six months just before the Korean outbreak-plus subsequent cost increases. Sellers also would be assured their customary percentage markup on merchandising.

2. Allow rent increases in residential properties of up to 20 per cent above June 1947 levels. However, increases already granted would count against the total boost.

The government could recontract rents in areas declared "critical" to the defense effort, and roll rents back to pre-Korean levels.

3. Reinst consumer credit terms on installment purchases. New and used automobiles could be bought for one-third down with 18 months—instead of 15—to pay the balance. Eased credit terms also would be approved for radios, television sets and the like, and all trade-ins could be figured as part of a down payment.

The Senate approved the bill last Friday, several hours after a Senate-House Conference Committee finished piecing it together from separate bills approved by each chamber. The House followed suit yesterday by a 294 to 90 roll call vote.

Tom Connally Unhappy

The Texas Democrat Dislikes To See Money Pulled Out Of Taxpayers' Pockets And Go Into Foreign Aid; Unhappy Over Armed Services Committee

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many a man is unhappy at seeing money pulled out of his pocket and pumped around the world in foreign aid. This particular kind of unhappiness seized upon Senator Tom Connally yesterday and he made it known.

The tall Texas Democrat, whose white hair dangles over his collar like an actor's, is usually genial but at times can be short-tempered.

Yesterday was one of those times and before he had his say on foreign aid something else happened which probably didn't improve his temper.

He's chairman of the Senate's powerful Foreign Relations Committee, where membership and chairmanship carry importance and prestige.

His committee was holding hearings on President Truman's request for $5,500,000,000 for arms and economic aid for other countries. It sometimes happens that important Senate committees squabble over the right to hold hearings on a particular problem. Yesterday the Senate's powerful

Killing May Continue

Cease-Fire Talks Enter Fourth Week And Large Scale Withdrawal By America Looks Far Away; Marshall Says Talks Possibly Continue Until September

By HOMER JENKS

Cease-fire talks in Korea entered their fourth week today, but it looks as though the shooting and the killing will continue for at least as many more weeks.

Even farther away—perhaps months away—is any large-scale American withdrawal from that unhappy, battle-devastated peninsula. When will the war end?

The most authoritative guess on that question has come from U.S. Defense Secretary George C. Marshall. He told a congressional subcommittee that the peace talks probably would continue into early September.

Communist newsmen in Kaesong speculated to United Nations correspondents that the armistice would be concluded sometime between Aug. 15 and 18.

Some U.N. newsmen covering the peace talks have predicted agreement within a week, but that seems overly optimistic in the light of the obstacles already encountered or still awaiting the negotiators.

What's more, the United Nations are still far from convinced the Communists really want peace in Korea.

Decree Skirts To Be Longer In 1952 Fashions

PARIS (UP)—Christian Dior, Paris fashion dictator, has decreed that milady's skirts this winter must be nearly as long as the "new look" style he made famous four years ago.

The bacher designer unveiled his latest creations in a plush, perfumed salon. Models displayed skirts, 10 to 12 inches off the floor.

The "new look" of 1947 set hemlines at a flat 10 inches from the floor.

But Dior's 1951 designs featured somber black for daytime wear in contrast to the bright hues of four years ago. In addition, they accented the "natural and sincere" line instead of crinolines and petticoats.

All extraneous trimmings were ruled out.

Dior was clearly bucking the season fashion trends of other Paris houses. His new styles were in direct contrast to the new "Gibson Girl" look of hour-glass figure, high bosom and flaring skirts.

Army Captain Recovering From Knife Wounds

RALEIGH (AP)—An army captain is recovering here today from knife wounds apparently inflicted by his attractive young wife in her attempt to keep him from going overseas.

Mrs. Hilda Banks, 27-year-old brunette of Richmond, Va., told police yesterday that she stabbed her husband, Capt. Vaughn H. Banks, 35, of Fort Bragg, N. C., because "something told me not to let him go to Korea."

Detective Lieut. W. G. Madrey said that Mrs. Banks had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, but that her husband had refused to sign the warrant. She is being held under $2,500 bond.

Questioned about the stabbing which took place in a Raleigh hotel yesterday, Mrs. Banks was quoted by Madrey as saying: "Something told me to save him. I blacked out and the next thing I knew he grabbed me and told our son to call a doctor. The couple's eight-year-old son had spent the night with them in the hotel."

Banks, originally from Elizabeth-Tenn., was stationed at Camp Pickett, Va., but was at Fort Bragg during army maneuvers. According to Madrey, Banks told him he was leaning over packing a suitcase when he felt the knife plunge into his back.

Madrey quoted Mrs. Banks, whom he described as "high strung and nervous" as saying she always carried a butcher knife while traveling. She told the officer that her husband had already served overseas twice. Madrey added that Mrs. Banks was apparently under the impression her husband was going overseas again, because he had written her to bring his clothes here.

The specific charges against Davies were not revealed.

Tom Connally Tongue-Lashes Marshall Plan Administrator

By JOHN L. STEELE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee tongue-lashed the administrator of the Marshall Plan today seeking funds to bolster "little wobbling countries" in Asia.

The expected outburst by the veteran Texan occurred in an open session of the committee as it heard administrator William C. Foster on the $8.5 billion foreign arms and economic aid bill.

Connally apparently had been nettled by an earlier decision to conduct further hearings on the bill with the Armed Services Committee sitting in — a step he opposed. But Foster brushed the full blow of his wrath.

Foster urged passage of the bill to help "defeat the Communist drive for world conquest" and create better living conditions abroad at the same time.

He said that Western Europe now is producing 44 per cent more industrial goods than before World War II, and then he urged Congress to authorize $930,000,000 in military and economic aid for Asiatic countries.

Connally roared in protest. "You fellows spend all your time thinking how to spend money" while Congress is "squeezing" the taxpayer for more revenue, he said. The Economic Cooperation Administration, Connally said, was established to push for economic recovery in Europe and now should "get out of business."

"Now you're putting your emphasis on chasing problems in Southeast Asia. Western Europe is our big problem. It's through Western Europe that we're going to be attacked," Connally shouted.

When Foster tried to reply, Connally became angrier. The United States, Connally said, cannot "subsist itself," and now "you fellows want to take care of the whole world."

"You're not the whole United States, but you act like it and talk like it," he said. "Now you want to build up and take care of these little wobbling countries."

Foster, a successful businessman until he went into government service, tried to explain that he thought the threat of communism is a global one, and that Southeast Asia can be immeasurably strengthened against Red penetration with a relatively small amount of U.S. aid.

Connally would have none of it. He cut Foster short to lecture him again and again, before turning the questioning over to another senator.

A few minutes earlier Connally complained that he agreed to work on the foreign aid legislation with the Armed Services Committee only because there was "a gun at my head."

The armed services group claimed equal jurisdiction on the bill because about three-fourth of the money is for arms shipments. Foster told the senators that despite the increase in production in Western Europe is not doing enough yet to achieve both military security and economic recovery.

He urged consideration of a program he has sought before aimed at a $100,000,000 increase in Europe's gross national production. Such a "grand design," he said, would assure military security and wipe out depressed living conditions upon which communism thrives.

OPS Authorize Higher Prices On Pork Roasts

WASHINGTON (UP)—Consumers will have to swallow an average five to six cents a pound price increase on pork chops and pork roasts.

The Office of Price Stabilization late yesterday authorized slaughterers to hike their prices immediately on lighter weight pork loins, with the increases to be passed on by retail butcher shops.

OPS officials said the pork price increases at retail markets probably will range from three to nine cents a pound, but that the bulk of increases for housewives probably will be five to six cents.

The action was taken, OPS said, to relieve slaughterers whose pork prices have been frozen since January, while prices of lighter weight hogs have increased "substantially."

come from lighter weight hogs. OPS has no authority to control prices of hogs until they reach parity — the theoretical "fair" price to the farmer.

The price agency is preparing uniform dollars-and-cents ceilings for all pork producers which will be issued "soon." OPS does not want to issue them until hog prices reach parity.

The "interim" regulation sets a maximum ceiling price of 52 cents a pound on pork loins weighing 16 pounds or less and delivered at Chicago. Ceilings in other parts of the country range from 51 to more than 5 cents a pound, plus transportation costs.

WORKERS ESCAPE FIRE
SPRUCE PINE (UP)—The charred ruins of the Feldspar Flotation Co. main plant were cleared away today after all 70 workers escaped unhurt.

The fire broke out in a roof above a dryer, assistant fire chief George M. Bartlett said. Volunteer firemen from nearby Burnsville and Newland joined Spruce Pine's fire department in checking the blaze before it spread to other plants nearby.

Louisiana "Dead" Man Found Alive

Legally dead and "buried" in Louisiana for two years, Sam Jones (right at top) was found alive in Denver, Colo., July 25. He is questioned by Chief Deputy Sheriff John Faulkner (left) from New Orleans. At bottom are Donald Easterwood (right) and his wife of Baton Rouge, La., who are happy over news that Jones has been found. Easterwood was tried in 1949 for the "murder" on Jones but was acquitted. His trial resulted from the disappearance of Jones from a filling station in New Orleans at which both worked. Later, a decomposed body was found buried in nearby swampland and was legally identified as that of Jones. (AP Wirephotos).

Find Extent Of Decay Of Earth

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced that its Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago has perfected new methods for determining the age of the earth by analyzing the extent of radioactive decay in rocks.

According to this "lead-uranium clock," the earth's rocky crust was formed about 3,000,000,000 years ago.

Defense Officials To Arrive In U. S. Mistaken As Red By His Friends

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense ministers of Great Britain, France and Canada will arrive tomorrow for a top-level world strategy conference with U.S. officials, informed diplomatic quarters said today.

The Defense Department said that the meetings, scheduled for Thursday and Friday, will center on the problem of standardizing small arms weapons among the armed forces of the Western world.

But diplomatic sources said the defense ministers also will review global strategic problems facing the Western Allies. They noted that arms standardization is not important enough to demand the presence of defense ministers.

According to diplomatic sources, the ministers — Emanuel Shinwell of Britain, Jules Moch of France and Brooke Claxton of Canada — will confer with Defense Secretary George C. Marshall, another indication, they said, that the meetings will not be limited to a discussion of arms standardization.

Student Drowns When Abandoned

EAGLE RIVER, Wis. (UP)—An Illinois college student drowned after his friends abandoned him on a raft 250 feet from shore as a prank, Coroner Pat Gaffney said today.

Gaffney said two students and a counselor at a summer school would be called as witnesses tomorrow in an inquest into the death of Carl W. Weber, 20, Anna, Ill.

Young summer campers decided to poke fun at his poor swimming ability, Gaffney said, and rowed him out to the raft on Trout Lake. When Weber stepped onto it, they wouldn't let him back into the boat and rowed back to shore.

But 45 minutes later, no one was visible on the raft, and the youths assumed Weber had somehow managed to swim ashore. They didn't become alarmed until he failed to show up for supper.

Admit Robberies In Four States
MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (UP)—A married couple and two men from Iowa, who have admitted robberies in four states, face a preliminary hearing here today on charges of larceny.

Sheriff Robert Medlin identified the four as Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McNitt, James W. Brooks, all of Sioux City, and Floyd E. Baker of Elliston, Iowa.

Medlin said the four admitted robberies and break-ins in Tennessee, Northern Mississippi, Northern Alabama and Iowa. He said they left a carnival in Sioux City July 21 and have been "hedge-hopping" ever since.

Two of the four were arrested Sunday after an attempted break-in near here.

Medlin said quantities of stolen goods and four sets of license plates were found at a tourist court near Knoxville, where a third suspect was arrested. The fourth was picked up at a railroad underpass near Jefferson City, Tenn.

Thomas' Finances Investigated

NEWARK, N. J. (UP)—Government agents investigated today the finances of former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, who still owes a $10,000 fine on his conviction for padding his congressional payroll and taking salary kickbacks.

U.S. Attorney Grover C. Richman said Thomas had paid no part of his fine, but had offered the government some land. The offer was turned down, Richman said.

Reports that Thomas planned to buy the Bergen County, N. J., weekly newspaper started the investigation of his ability to pay the fine, Richman said.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

GOOD RULE OF LIFE

Great success in business, science, and the professions seems usually to be achieved by those who give themselves to nothing but their work.

And yet we wonder sometimes if these successful people really are successful. Are they happy? Are they really getting much out of life? Are they beloved by their families and sought after by a wide circle of friends?

Occasionally we see a person who takes life very much as it comes, not paying a great deal of attention to success and yet who has made a whale of success out of living. I can think of a businessman who died a few years ago, pretty unsuccessful judged by standards of efficiency, and yet one of the most enviable characters I have ever known. He touched life at a hundred different points, and from morning until night he seemed to be full of exuberance, with the cup of his joy full and running over. He did not have much money, but in his heart he was a great person.

The world is wide
In time and tide
And God is guide;
Then, do not hurry.

That man is bliss
Who does his best
And leaves the rest;
Then, do not worry!

A Losing Proposition Is Out Of The Question

Much as the people in some rural sections of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties need electrical service which could be supplied by the Greenville Utilities, the people can not find fault with the Utilities Commission for rejecting the bids on the 242 miles of lines for rural projects.

Liberal estimates on the construction cost of the project ranged from $300 to $350,000, but the lowest legal bid from five contractors was $407,000. The members of the Utilities Commission acted in their own good judgment and with the advice of their engineers in rejecting the high bids. In so doing they acted in the best interest of the people of the city who own the utilities and likewise in the interest of the rural subscribers who will be footing the bill for the expansion when it is made.

The call for new bids on the construction of the rural electric lines will cause a delay of approximately one month in the beginning of construction if any acceptable bids are received on the second bidding.

The real delay which has caused the 2,284 potential customers of the rural areas to wait for electric service came not from the Utilities Commission, but from the federal agencies through which Greenville had to secure the loan for the project. The Utilities Commission applied to the Rural Electrification Administration for the loan in December 1949, and it was not until 17 months later that the loan received final approval and the green light was given for bids on the project to be called for.

During those 17 months while the matter was wrapped tightly in government red tape, the Korean war broke, electrical materials became scarce, and construction costs rose appreciably.

Even if the new bids which have been called for on August 14 are found acceptable by the local Utilities Commission, they will be much higher than the cost estimated when the city first began on the project to afford electricity to many more rural residents.

The Utilities Commission is anxious for the expansion of its rural lines just as the rural people who have no electricity are anxious to have electrical service. But the city can not afford to, and the rural people should not expect them to, go into a losing financial proposition to furnish the electricity.

Back To The Ole Swimming Hole

Keeping kids out of the swimming hole, in the summer is like trying to keep ducks out of water. It's next to impossible. In most instances, however, certain safety measures can be provided for swimming places which are extensively used.

Since the city swimming pool has been closed this summer, Greenville children are making good use of a water-filled sand pit near the Meadowbrook section. Hundreds of kids frequent the refreshing spot these hot days, and so far their delight has been without incident. But the city can not afford to trust the lives of its kids to luck indefinitely.

Since the swimming hole is affording a fine recreation facility for the children of Greenville, it would be a good idea for the city recreation commission to take a hand in affording safety measures for the place. It surely gives the appearance of a mighty fine place to be developed for recreational use . . . and the kids have set out on their own to develop it to its fullest as far as swimming is concerned.

It seems to The Reflector the recreation commission could take a hand in several ways.

1. The commission could seek permission of the owner of the sand pit for it to be used by the kids of the city for swimming.
 2. The commission could have the water tested to see if it contains any disease germs, and if it is otherwise safe for the kids to use.
 3. If satisfactory results are obtained from the first two points, the commission could put life guards at the sand pit and safeguard the children who swim there.
- At any rate, the recreation commission should look into the matter thoroughly.
- If the water is unfit for swimming or there is treacherous quick sand at the bottom of the sand pit, the commission should warn the citizens who are allowing their children to swim in the place.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The "third House of Congress" has taken such complete charge of the 82nd session that only a few score men on Capitol Hill will be the responsible authors of the most important laws on foreign and domestic problems ever enacted at Washington in time of peace. It is an almost unprecedented situation, resulting largely from lack of any national leadership.

As a result, only a handful of legislative experts of both House and Senate will possess any real understanding of measures vitally affecting the tax-wage-price structure, and extending American commitments to almost every corner of the globe in these troubled times.

Perhaps 400 of the 531 members will vote blindly but obediently. Naturally, they will be in no position to explain the meaning or significance of their actions to their constituents. The resulting confusion when these laws become effective early in the fall will be appalling. It will be a case of the blind leading the blind.

It should provide a golden field day for lawyers, lobbyists, accountants and tax experts.

SYSTEM—The "third House of Congress" consists of the system under the so-called "conference committees," representing the House and Senate, iron out behind closed doors any differences in the two chambers' versions of any specific measure.

Although an ancient and necessary method of reaching agreement on legislation, it is surprising how few people understand its operations, and how it exercises undemocratic and czaristic control.

It is here that the expressed will of Congress—and, sometimes, of the people—is frequently thwarted by unrecorded and irresponsible trading and logrolling by a minority group. Although conference committees are not supposed to introduce any new material into their finished product, they frequently rewrite and revise House and Senate measures so that they bear only slight resemblance to the original House-Senate bills.

Before explaining in detail how this conference committee machinery works, it seems advisable to expose its evil aspect.

STRATAGEM—Under this now-you-see-it-and-now-you-don't system, members find it possible to vote several different ways on the same question, thus satisfying every element of their constituency without revealing their hypocrisy and double-dealing.

They can resort to this stratagem because their votes on the original bill are recorded and become a matter of public and permanent record, whereas the votes on conference reports are usually viva voce. A record ballot on the conference compromise can be forced if a sufficient number demand it, but that would spoil the fun. It is rarely demanded.

Thus, a member may sound off with a noisy "aye" for economy, stringent controls and low taxes for the permanent written record. But he may take exactly the opposite stand when he votes "viva voce" on the conference job, even though it differs entirely from the original bill he supported so warmly, and solely for vote-getting purposes.

REBELLION—This system of parliamentary irresponsibility is not a new development. But it has rarely attained such extreme forms as during the current session, and for very definite reasons. It results chiefly from Capitol Hill rebellion against President Truman, and his failure to furnish guidance and leadership.

For one thing, it enables supposedly loyal Truman men to stand by his program on the recorded vote, and then desert him on the semi-secret tally on the conference reports. Many Democrats are indulging in this form of White House double-crossing.

A strong Chief Executive, forcing House and Senate to enact measures as he wanted them, could checkmate the "third House of Congress." But with House and Senate passing such vastly different measures, it gives the handful of conferees a broad field in which to lay down the law as they not Mr. Truman, want it written.

POWER—Another reason for aggrandizement of the authority of the "third House of Congress" is the delay and controversy surrounding enactment of such major measures as higher taxes, anti-inflation controls, national defense and foreign aid. The members have become restless, grouchy, impatient, disgusted. They yearn to escape from Washington's midsummer heat and humidity, which threaten to surpass recent records. So they are inclined, even eager, to vote for almost any kind of a conference report, even though it does not represent the beliefs they embodied in their original votes.

The conference committee system of legislation also enhances the power of the conservative element on Capitol Hill. Although named by the House Speaker and the Vice-President, the House-Senate conferees consist of top Democrats and Republicans on the committees which prepared the bills in the first instance.

CONSPIRACY—As a rule, these senior committee-men are elderly and conservative politicians, with Southern Democrats holding a majority of the important chairmanships and ranking posts. Few have any sympathy with the White House program, especially on the domestic side, and they use their conference committee authority to defy the President.

Mr. Truman knows what goes on behind these closed doors, having served on many conference committees himself. But there is nothing he can do to counteract the conference-committee conspiracy against him.

In view of the length and lateness of the session, and with the M.C.'s anxious for a September-October vacation, he can hardly afford to veto any major measure. Even though tax, economic controls and foreign aid bills differ completely from his proposals, he must take what the "third House of Congress" gives him. Otherwise, the weary, dispirited and leaderless members will trample on his vetoes.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I was riding through the campus of East Carolina and ran into Agnes Barrett, secretary to President Messick. "Jack," Agnes said, "weren't you in Miss Eunice McGee's Third Grade?"

"Sure was, back in 1933."

"I thought so. Yesterday I was cleaning out one of the filing cabinets in the President's office, and I found some letters written to Dr. Wright, when he was President, by members of Miss McGee's Third Grade. I thought maybe you would like to have the letters."

The letters were written by Louise Anderson, Layton Clark, Elizabeth Bridgers (Mrs. Norman Wilkerson), Claude Christopher, Margaret Baugh, Carl Corey, Lucy Clyde Blount, Geraldine Baker, Annie Mae Cannon (Mrs. John Bunch), and me.

Miss McGee told members of her third grade that since the President of the College had given us permission to plant a garden on college property, we should write letters telling him about the garden and thanking him for the use of the property.

Claude Christopher, now a member of the Greenville Police Force, wrote this one:

Dear Mr. Wright,

I enjoyed the garden you lent us and we have some lettuce and radishes, ragged robins and phlox. We have learned our multiplication and we have learned to read stories to the room.

We have learned to work in clay and I made three bears. Carl made a bear climbing up a tree getting honey.

Love,

Claude Christopher Junior Elizabeth Bridgers, now Mrs. Norman Wilkerson, wrote: "We certainly do thank you for letting us use the land to make a garden on. We have learned many things about flowers and vegetables. One of our college teachers brought some narcissus bulbs to plant in our garden. We have many other things in our garden. There are some ragged robins and some peonias and lots of other things, too."

Layton Clark, now with the American Tobacco Company, wrote: "We certainly do thank you for the plot of land. The flowers are very pretty. We have some tulips, California poppies, pinks and verbena and a whole lot of other flowers. They are real pretty. We sent some flowers to five different grades. We sent some to Miss Taylor, Mrs. Savage, Miss Faison and Miss Johnson and Miss Redwine. They were big bunches, too. It was interesting to plant seeds and to watch them grow. We learned to work in our garden and to chop the weeds so our flowers would grow. I hope we can have a pretty garden next year like we did this year."

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

EAST-WEST—The rivalry between east and west and the uncertainty about where the dividing line should be drawn is not confined to politics. It gets involved in arguments over calf and lamb buying among farmers, and in discussions about tobacco markets and the selling of potatoes and cabbages. Tobacco farmers in the old belt, lying mostly west of mid-state, having long contended that eastern farmers because of earlier marketing dates, skimmed the cream off the tobacco prices. Now some of the eastern buyers of calves claim that the mountain breeders are gypping them in prices charged for calves to be taken down east for "feeding out" as well as for breeding purposes.

Most people have long ago concluded that horse-trading and cattle-buying were games at which odds were even and if somebody got gypped there wasn't much said about it. That doesn't keep the eastern and western folks from arguing about it, as two friends were doing the other day. Funny thing about that argument was that the easterner regarded Randolph county in the west, while the westerner complained about the easterners from Davidson county out-trading his folks.

HORSE-SHOING—Your reporter had his first night of a mobile horse-shoing blacksmith shop the other day. Later he learned that they are rather common throughout the east, where there are still enough farm mules to require attention and not enough to support the numerous individual farm and cross-roads community smithies so common a generation ago. Intrigued by an arrangement of smoking forge, anvil, rows of new and used horse (or mule) shoes and other equipment fitted on the rear of an ancient Ford rambling down the highway near Garner, your reporter asked the driver of the car in which he was riding to stop for investigation. It developed that H. G. Johnson, who used to operate and still maintains on part-time basis a fully equipped blacksmith shop, was on his way to put shoes on a neighbor's farm mules.

LOST ART—Horse-shoing is fast becoming a lost art. Very few blacksmiths—and that breed is rapidly passing in favor of specialized welding shops, wood-working plants, etc.—will shoe horses or mules. Farmers with work stock requiring such attention find it extremely difficult to get the animals from the farm to the shop, so a few oldtimers have yielded to progress to the extent they take the shop to the animals. Mr. Johnson says he continues the practice mainly as a friendly service to his neighbors. He just doesn't have the heart to charge what it costs to drive his mobile smithy eight or ten miles to trim a mule's hoofs and apply the iron shoes. He declined to give out with a price list, but said he tried to be reasonable in his charges so neither he nor his customers would lose too much on the deal.

FIRE—In reply to Governor Scott's suggestion that North Carolinians ought to capitalize on natural resources for promoting a real grape and wine industry in this state, Col. John Harrison, chancellor of State College, told a good story. He said some years ago two young instructors at the college sought to do just what the present governor suggests, and attempted some new processes for making wine out of grapes. That was in the era of fanatical prohibition, and the young men were fired from the college. Governor Scott, with a twinkle in his eye but deep seriousness in his voice, asked if they were really fired for attempting scientific investigation or for "drinking up the research." The governor intimated that the last named offense would be much greater.

STATE-AID—Fairly accurate figures can be obtained, but their separation from the general appropriations would be difficult, as how much money the state of North Carolina collects in taxes and then returns to counties and municipalities for spending at discretion of local officials. Public school, public health and public welfare allocations come in a different category, because most of those funds are distributed under regulations of federal or state governments with local authorities having little voice in the matter.

DIRECT—There are three important instances in which the state collects taxes and remits substantial portion of it to local government units for spending in discretion of local boards. Latest and largest of these items is the approximate four and three quarter million dollars to be returned to municipalities for street work under terms of the 1951 act. Use of this money is limited to streets within incorporated towns and cities; beyond that there is not much restriction on its use by state laws.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SCHOOL SALARIES (New Bern Sun-Journal)

Salaries of public school teachers in the large communities of the South more than doubled from 1925 to 1949, as compared with a national increase of about 84 per cent, says an announcement by the Southern regional director of the United States Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics. Both the southwestern states and the border states reported an increase of 111 per cent, and in the southeastern states the advance reached 114 per cent. It represents a serious effort of the section to better the schools and their work.

The increase in the southeast, the authority continues, was slightly higher than the 76 per cent increase for another large group of municipal workers, namely policemen and firemen in cities of 100,000 or over. However, it was much less than the 125 per cent increase in weekly earnings of production workers. During the same 25-year period, the bureau's consumers' price index of goods and services usually purchased by moderate-income families rose 36 per cent. Since 1939, however, retail prices have increased 71 per cent as compared with an increase in teachers' salaries of 62 per cent.

Within this quarter-century there were four more or less distinct periods of salary changes for teachers. Modest increases marked the period from 1931 to 1935 were reflected in salary cuts. By 1938, in fact, salaries in large cities were back to the 1925 level. The third period, 1935 to 1939, was characterized by the restoration of previous reductions. In 1939 salaries were slightly higher than in 1931. Since 1939 the trend has been steadily upward.

Salary movements of elementary and secondary school teachers have closely paralleled one another in the last ten years—the increases since 1939 were 63 and 60 per cent, respectively, a development which can be attributed partly to the increasing importance of the single salary schedule.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The cease-fire in Korea may result in revivification of plans for further decentralization of American industry.

Ever since the A-bomb fell on Hiroshima, top Pentagon planners have urged greater decentralization of production. These urgings became more insistent when it was established that Russia has an atomic bomb. A bomb in the Detroit, Pittsburgh or other key areas might halt the production of essential parts of weapons and endanger the entire rearmament program. It was feared.

Somewhat later, plans were drawn up for a partial decentralization of government offices in Washington. These provided for the establishment of sections of key government agencies established on a 40-mile periphery of the capital. While these plans were submitted to Congress by Jess Larson, chief of the General Services Administration, no action has been taken. Apparently Congress does not want to exhibit any symptoms of fear and, besides, other demands for federal funds appear more urgent.

Under the plans for industrial decentralization, it was proposed that defense contracts be split up, so that any one weapon could be produced in several parts of the country. If any company wanted larger contracts, it would be up to that company to set up additional facilities outside present target areas.

When shooting broke out in Korea, these plans were largely laid aside for the more urgent task of getting arms in a hurry. There was no time to spend inducing industries to establish new plants. It was more important to retrofit existing plants that already had a supply of materials, machines and manpower. However, the National Production Authority has taken decentralization into consideration in granting priority on materials and accelerated tax depreciation for new plants.

Now, so it appears at the moment, the United States will have a little more time. And, if an atomic war has been postponed, it seems certain that it will be even more violent if and when it does come. So you can expect a revival of Department of Defense insistence on scattering plants and probably cooperation on the part of Congress, the National Production Authority and other government agencies.

USING EVERYTHING EXCEPT THE CACKLE

If beef gets too high, you may be invited to try cacklebursers. Or roosterwurst. Or henfurters.

Under E. O. Essary, the University of Tennessee Agricultural Experiment Station at Knoxville has been developing ways of utilizing old roosters, breeder hens and imperfect birds in the same way beef packers use old cows. Using only breast and leg meat, the experiments have developed techniques for making chicken sausage, chicken loaf, chickenburgers, chicken bologna and chicken frankfurters. The rest of the birds go to soup. If these products prove popular, they might protect grade A poultry prices from competition by lower grades.

POWER TOOLS HIT NEW HOME MARKET

Manufacturers of fractional horsepower appliances have discovered a new market.

For years, the greater part of these motors for home use have gone into suction cleaners, washers, fans, mixers and other tools for mother. Now a score of companies are producing combination power tools for father. In these, a single motor furnished power for sanding, buffing, polishing, boring, sawing, driving screws, etc. While they have been available for years, manufacturers have largely concentrated on the hobby market. But recently, with large-scale advertising, they have been tackled by the department store, hardware store and appliance markets.

The makers believe they can sell these power tools in as many homes as others have sold vacuum cleaners.

NEW AND HOT

SAFE For gas stations, all-night restaurants and other establishments, a money depository has been designed by Herring-Hall-Martin Co., Hamilton, Ohio. It may be anchored to a floor with a swivel connection, which prevents it from being twisted off; cash may be slipped into an inner compartment through a slot; it can be opened only by using both of two keys.

"I don't want any part of the government. They've had two hundred years to help the Indian. If they haven't done it by now they never will."

It took an estimated 800,000 to create Mt. Rushmore, and they had to blow off only 360,000 tons of granite, Zilkowski says. He also says he could put four Mt. Rushmore's in the head alone of his Crazy Horse Memorial. And he thinks some people out here feel that is giving an Indian too much prestige—even in his old hunting grounds.

"I have to blow away six million tons of rock altogether," he said. "That would build a highway four inches thick, thirty-four feet wide and fifteen hundred miles long. To do it will take three hundred thousand tons of dynamite. With dynamite costing about four hundred dollars a ton that means $1,200,000 for explosives alone."

WASHINGTON LETTER
By SIGRID ARNE (For Jane Eads)

WASHINGTON—When Mrs. James Monroe was mistress of the White House (1817 to 1825) the big place could be pretty cold and drafty. She was prepared with a tonic.

The recipe is preserved in the records at the Monroe law office in Frederick, Md., which has been restored through the goodwill and hard work of some Frederickburg people and some of Monroe's direct descendants.

The recipe calls for two ounces of gentian root, one ounce of bitter orange peel, one ounce of Virginia snake root, one half ounce of calamus, a few camomile flowers and one quart of brandy.

The recipe says: "Let the above ingredients stand two or three days in a bottle; then swallow ten minutes before dinner, one third wine glass mixed with two thirds water."

Remember your grandmother talking about "pandowdy" for dessert? Here is the recipe Mrs. Monroe served in the White House:

"Bare and core the apples and cut them into small pieces. Put them in a pudding dish. First put them in cold water, then fill the pudding dish with molasses and season with cloves, cinnamon and allspice."

"Cover the dish with dough and let it set to bake in a slow oven until done; let set until the oven is cold, longer the better. Take out and break the crust into it, and put it on the fire to simmer. Then put into a mold to grow cold. Serve with cream."

"The James Monroe law office records also disclose how the president liked to have whiskey sours prepared.

The formula calls for two glasses of whiskey, one of water, four lemons with everything but the seeds, one third cup of sugar dissolved. "Mix and let stand 24 hours or more, say the recipe."

The long, low-lying brick building in which Mr. Monroe practiced law includes many of the personal possessions of the couple, among them the desk on which President Monroe wrote his "Monroe Doctrine."

The handsome desk was bought in France. It is high, made of mahogany and fitted with brass. Of course, it has secret compartments. If you happen to know where to press, sliding panels roll open.

Conference Set For East Carolina On August Ninth

Three major problems confronting school administrators of the state will form the basis of discussion at a conference to be sponsored by East Carolina College, Thursday, August 9. Dr. Edgar M. Finck, visiting faculty member at the college this summer, will direct the conference. A morning meeting in the Austin auditorium and a luncheon in the college dining hall will be included on the program.

Topics for the conference were selected by students in a class in Public School Administration taught here by Dr. Finck during the first summer term. Members of the class, which included in personnel both teachers and school officials, based their choice on the pertinency and timeliness of the subjects. At the conference, speeches, a panel discussion, and open forums will center attention on "Drop-outs Between Grade School and High School," "The Administrator's Responsibility for Improving Instruction," and "Consolidation."

Dr. Allan Hurlburt, formerly head of the East Carolina department of education, who for the past year has conducted a school survey for the State Department of Public Instruction, will speak on "Drop-outs." His talk will be the first public presentation of a study of drop-outs made by him in three eastern counties of the state and only recently completed. Dr. I. E. Ready, superintendent of schools in Roanoke Rapids and visiting faculty member at East Carolina this summer, will outline a practical plan of preventing drop-outs which has been tried and found effective.

Duties of the school principal in improving instruction, devices and techniques available to him in encouraging better teaching in his school, and allied topics will be discussed in a panel. Ray Armstrong, superintendent of Goldsboro schools, W. F. Veasey, superintendent of Beaufort County schools; and other speakers, including administrators, supervisors, principals, and classroom teachers will take part. Dr. Finck will act as coordinator.

"Consolidation: How It Can Actually Be Put Across" will be the subject of discussion at the luncheon. President John D. Measick of East Carolina will greet members of the conference. D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, will act as toastmaster. Other speakers will soon be announced.

Dr. Finck, conference director, is making final arrangements for the meeting. He won a national reputation as a school administrator during 29 years of service as superintendent of the Tom's River school system in New Jersey. The progressive program of education followed there under his leadership was favorably discussed in the press and in leading journals of education. For several summers he has been a visiting professor at East Carolina summer sessions.

Security Board Holds Censorship Plans Ready

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National Security Resources Board is holding in readiness censorship plans which could be put in effect "in a matter of hours" upon the outbreak of war.

This was disclosed in testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee by Jack Gorrie, acting chairman of the board. Gorrie appeared before the subcommittee at a closed session July 17. His testimony was made public today.

Gorrie gave no details and was asked for none. After describing the various functions of the board he told the subcommittee:

"We are keeping in a state of readiness certain other plans, such as censorship of wartime communications, which are not required in the current emergency."

Later, in a reply to a committee-man's questions, Gorrie said at the present time he has on the censorship planning job one man and a secretary.

Rep. Richard B. Wigglesworth (R-Mass) wanted to know "what do you have to maintain in a state of readiness?" Gorrie replied: "On censorship, in the event we were attacked you have to have it in force in a matter of hours. The quicker the better, because it prevents the enemy from knowing the destruction he may cause on your country."

Finding Use Of Radioactive Waste

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission reported today that it is pushing a project to make use of radioactive waste materials from its big production plants. These materials provide a source of radiation which the AEC said it might in the future be possible to use to: 1. Killize foods and drugs in containers without heat by killing harmful organisms with radiation. Stimulate chemical and physical reactions, otherwise difficult to bring about, and thus produce new or cheaper materials. 2. Improve luminous paints and lights.

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Singer Frankie Laine undergoes minor surgery today for a leg ailment sustained in a 1935 walkathon contest that will cost him $50,000 in addition to his medical expenses. The operation forced the singer to cancel $50,000 worth of personal appearance engagements scheduled for August.

Motorized Rickshaw Adds New Menace To Far East

SPEED THRILL—This motorized rickshaw was built for one but three French sailors in Saigon crowd aboard.

By KENNETH LIKES SAIGON (AP)—A new menace looms in the Far East—the motor rickshaw. Some time ago the ancient type of rickshaw, pulled by a runner, gave way to three-wheel, medium-speed vehicles pedaled like bicycles and usually called pedicabs or trishaws.

Now, pedicabs and pedestrians in Saigon are scurrying off the streets, shoved aside by three-wheel motor-cycles which have been converted into taxis. A passenger perches on a seat slung over the front wheels. Whipping along at 40 miles per hour or flinging around a sharp corner, it is thrilling—and dangerous. That is why motor "cyclones," as the French call them, have been nicknamed "suicide cars."

For anyone trying to cross a street, they present a unique kind of hazard. From head-on, one appears to be an ordinary pedicab creeping toward you. You try to cross in front. The motor cycle bears down on you at a fantastic clip.

A survey shows: They are still looked upon with disfavor in Hangkong where, in the city's narrow, crowded lanes, they could be a hazard. In tradition-loving Bangkok, they are being resisted, too, and the tendency there is rather toward more elaborate and streamlined versions of the bicycle-type pedicab.

The question of licensing powered rickshaws in Singapore has caused a municipal dispute. Oddly enough, the coolies who have the weary job of pumping bicycle-type pedicabs have lobbied loudly against installing motors. It is all an imperialist plot to put small operators out of business, it is argued.

Allocations For TV Stations Ready

NEW YORK (AP)—It's nearly three years since the Federal Communications Commission put the lid on issuing licenses for new TV stations.

Chairman Wayne Coy of the commission indicates allocations should be ready by the end of the year. But veteran industry observers, including Martin Codel of TV Digest, say it will be late 1952 before new stations get on the air.

One of the reasons for the license freeze was to eliminate inter-station interference. When new stations do start up, the plan is to use ultra-high frequencies. The industry still is experimenting to develop practical broadcasting equipment. Present receivers will need an adapter to pick up these higher frequencies.

Search For Radio-Active Capsules

COMPTON, Cal. (UP)—Police joined gas company workers today in a search for a small metal capsule containing dangerous radioactive ingredients used to locate defects in pipelines.

The Southern California Gas Co. said the three-inch-long capsule was lost or stolen yesterday while a crew of workmen were laying pipe. It would inflict serious and possibly fatal burns on anyone who handled it.

Modesty Forced To Let Culprit Go

LONG BEACH, Cal. (UP)—Manufacturer Ernest Haneline, 42, chased a half-nude burglar from his home, but modesty forced him to let the culprit escape.

The would-be robber wore only a shirt, but Haneline, because of the heat, had been sleeping entirely nude.

He called police, who later arrested William Nielson, 22. Nielson allegedly admitted breaking into the manufacturer's home.

Energy Commission Reports Progress In Atomic Weapons

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission reported today that "we are certainly making progress" toward perfection of atom-driven submarines and airplanes.

It also reported new all-time high record production of atomic weapons of various kinds.

Indicating the speed with which new and better weapons are being designed, AEC Chairman Gordon Dean said that atomic tests will be "much more frequent in the future."

These disclosures were made in the commission's 10th semiannual report to Congress and at a briefing on the report for newsmen. Other disclosures included:

1. The world's first atomic "breeder"—a machine theoretically capable of producing more atomic fuel than it consumes while at the same time liberating useful electric energy—has been completed at Arco, Ida. It will go into operation in two or three weeks. It will be months, however, before it can be determined whether it actually "breeds" new fuel. If it does, U. S. atomic resources automatically will be increased 100-fold.

2. The AEC is "not quite ready" to disclose when and where the new atomic tests will be held. It came close to confirming that last winter's tests in Nevada were of compact warheads for tactical weapons such as artillery shells, guided missiles, and torpedoes, or for comparatively small A-bombs to be delivered by light planes.

3. Future tests may be held at other proving grounds yet to be established. Dean said that "every part of the world" has been considered at one time or another. This raised the possibility of a test designed to give the world an impressive display of U. S. atomic might.

Dean would not, however, discuss any "psychological warfare" maneuvers. Nor would he confirm or deny reports that an Aleutian Islands test, under Russia's nose, had been scheduled but later canceled. This test, it is understood, was to have been an underground shot to determine the A-bomb's "quake effect."

The AEC would say nothing that might tell an enemy how soon this country expects to be propelling submarines and aircraft with-spilling atoms.

But it reported that actual development of atomic aircraft engines by the General Electric Co. has "advanced" in the past six months. And it said "the theoretical feasibility of nuclear-powered flight" has definitely been established.

Atomic engines in theory could drive airplanes many times around the globe without refueling. And because they would not require oxygen or any conventional fuels, they could fly at tremendous speed at heights not now attainable.

The atomic airplane is, however, "very much behind" the atomic submarine, according to Dr. Lawrence R. Hafstad, head of the AEC's reactor division. One atomic sub engine is well under construction at the Arco reactor station and design of a second is far advanced.

Tobacco Prices Continue Low

Quality, prices and volume failed to live up to high expectations as flue-cured tobacco sales opened on nine South Carolina auction markets in the "order book."

Grade averages climbed as high as $69 or hundred pounds for fine lemon lugs yesterday. But in general the quality was not as good as on opening day last year and average prices for most grades were only steady to slightly higher than last year.

The federal and state market news agency reported that a larger proportion of low qualities and non-descript held down the averages. Most of the reported gains were $1 and 2 per hundred pounds.

The bulk of marketings consisted of low to fine lugs, low and fair primings and cutters, and non-descript.

Most warehouses cleared their floors in the four-hour selling time and light sales are forecast for the next several days.

Deliveries to the stabilization corporation ranged from 10 to 25 per cent on individual markets. Last year the corporation took about four per cent of first sales, which totaled 6,989,914 pounds and sold for an average price of $56 per hundred.

They will play their first game Wednesday morning at 10:30 a.m. against a team from the South Wilmington League. The winner of this game will play the North Wilmington All-Stars tomorrow afternoon at 5:30.

W. O. James and Reynolds May are the co-managers of the local squad.

Greenville has been allotted an hour to practice on the Little League field in Havelock this afternoon, beginning at 5 p.m. The players and members of the official party will be quartered in the Cherry Point Marine barracks.

Each member of the squad has been a standout performer during the regular season. The squad includes: Mike Riddick, Mike Riddick, James Hudson, Angus Duff, Roger Bullock, Hudson Miller, Charles Rumley, John Barnhill, Eddie Lee, George Nichols, Mack Roebuck, Charles Smith, Jim McGee, and Garrett Foster.

This team played three exhibition games, winning two and dropping one. They defeated the Pollock Cubs from the South Wilmington League, 5-4, in a game played in Greenville three weeks ago. Raleigh's Kiwanis League All-Stars scored four runs in the first inning and won 4-1.

Greenville traveled to Wilmington last Saturday and won handily, 11-3. Included on the squad which the locals defeated are several boys who will appear in the Havelock tournament.

The batting power of the local Palica Returns To Join Dodgers

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Erv Palica, the young pitcher who has been in Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen's "dog house," was on his way to rejoin the Dodgers here today.

The 23-year-old righthander from Lomita, Calif., had been working out privately in Brooklyn since he pitched in the exhibition game against the Philadelphia Athletics at Cooperstown, N.Y., on July 22.

Dressen called Palica a "hitter" and who doesn't belong in the majors after a 13-12 loss to the Pirates in Brooklyn several weeks ago. He said Palica would pitch nothing but exhibitions until he shows "he's ready to throw the way he should."

Palica will be here tomorrow, Dressen said yesterday. "He called me and told me he was ready."

Palica had been working out daily in Brooklyn while the Dodgers were in Chicago and St. Louis. Yesterday he telephoned the Dodger manager and told him he never felt better and was anxious to re-join the club.

Dressen said fine and how about grabbing a night train for Pittsburgh so he could be ready for a relief appearance should Don Newcombe need assistance tonight. Palica also is slated to hurl in one end of Sunday's doubleheader in Cincinnati. Erv beat the Reds twice without a loss last year.

Kurovski Goes Up
ALLENTOWN, Pa.—(AP)—Winey Kurovski, former star third sacker for the St. Louis Cardinals, is making the grade as a successful manager. Whitey pilots the Allentown Redbirds, a Card farm in the Interstate League. Recently he was nominated to manage the Eastern All-Stars against the Western All-Stars—an inter-league contest. Whitey's squad won the game, 10-9 in 10 innings.

Farmville Splits 2 Game Series With Macclesfield
FARMVILLE—Farmville divided a pair of weekend games with Macclesfield, dropping the first game Saturday night here, 6-5, and taking the second contest, played in Macclesfield by the score of 15-1.

Macclesfield scored two unearned runs in the top of the ninth in the series opener to take the 6-5 victory. They plated the winning runs on a walk, a scratch hit, and three errors.

Farmville, who tied the game at 2-2 and 4-4, made a gallant attempt in the ninth. The Red Sox pushed across one run before the side was retired.

Catcher Bobby Clark, Tarboro High player, led the winners with four singles in four times at the plate.

Pete Piestrak led Farmville at bat with a single and a triple in four times up.

Farmville Wins
Paul Gay tripled in the fourth team, which was lacking in the first two games erupted in this last game. The Riddick and Jim McGee led the 14 hit attack with a home run and a double apiece. Catcher Angus Duff also rapped a long four-bagger. Shortstop James Hudson, who was a catcher with the Reds during the regular season, collected three singles in four times at bat. Duff batted four runs across the plate.

A tour of the nearby Marine base is included in the repertoire of events planned for the enjoyment of the visiting teams.

Teams from Greenville, Kinston, Havelock, South Wilmington, and North Wilmington will participate in the tourney. Kinston and Havelock will meet in a first round contest tomorrow afternoon preceding the clash between the first game winner and North Wilmington.

Gehring Takes Detroit Office

DETROIT (UP)—Charles Leonard Gehring, who assumes the duties of vice president and general manager of the Detroit Tigers Oct. 1, said today there will be some new faces among the Tigers next season.

The 48-year-old former Detroit second baseman who will succeed Billy Evans in the front office, said "I'm still a little vague about my duties with the Tigers."

"This all happened in quite a hurry, but I guess my job will be to split up," he said. "I understand that some of the usual financial duties of the general manager will be handled by someone else."

Gehring was named Saturday by Tiger owner Walter O. Briggs to take over the high-paying job, estimated at $50,000 a year, when Evans made public his resignation after five years with Detroit.

"I'll have to study the record books quite a bit," Gehring said. "I've been away from baseball for almost 10 years, and I really haven't been keeping in close contact with the game. My business has kept me pretty busy."

The curly-haired former Tiger great who was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1949, is a partner in the Gehring and Forsyth manufacturers agency.

"I haven't checked the records and I don't know who's who, but I always welcome new names and it's a safe bet we'll have some in 1952," he said. "But I'll know more what to expect when I go south to the winter meetings."

Southpaw Golfers Begin Tournament
YOUNGSTOWN, O.—(AP)—The nation's best southpaw golfers swing into a second round of match play today in their 17th annual tournament on the 6,600-yard Tippecanoe Country Club course.

A starting field of 96 in the championship flight was pared to 32 yesterday by an 18-hole qualifier and an opening round of match play. That was a change from the original plan to have a 36-hole qualifier and start match play with only 16 pairs.

Competition today and tomorrow will determine finalists for Thursday's 36-hole match to decide the title.

There is a former champion in each of the two tourney brackets. Defending champion Bob Buchanan of Indianapolis, a private on leave from Sampson Air Field at Geneva, N.Y., is in the lower bracket. He also won the crown in 1947. In the upper bracket is Al Everett of Rome, Ga., a three-time winner of the National Left-handers Golf Tournament.

Norman Clark, manager of the Red Sox, hurled the victory, going the length of the eight inning affair, allowing but four hits, all singles.

William Sanderson led the winners with four singles. Pete Piestrak and Millard Webb also collected two singles.

'How To Wear A Girdle' Advice Given By Berra

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Yogi Berra, the kid with the hour-glass figure, offered some elastic advice today on "how to wear a girdle."

"I put it on and forget about it," declared the chunky Yankee catcher. "After awhile, I don't even know I got it on."

"Don't get the wrong idea, Yogi isn't wearing the form-fitting contraption because he wants to cut a dashing figure. He's wearing the girdle on the advice of trainer Gus Mauch in an effort to protect a pulled muscle in his back."

"It makes you feel kind of tied up," Yogi revealed, "but they told me it's good for me, so I'll wear it for awhile. When I put on all my catching harness, I can hardly feel it, anyway. It must be tough for women to wear 'em all the time, but I guess they know what they're doing."

Berra, who has been wearing the girdle for the past few days, now is a veteran in climbing in and out of it. When he realizes it or not, he is not setting any kind of precedent in wearing it.

Tommy Henrich, now a Yankee coach, wore a special corset for a while in 1949 after cracking into a fence at Comiskey Park and suffering a serious back injury.

Henrich's foundation garment hardly hindered him at all. While wearing it, as a matter of fact, he rapped Mel Parrish of the Red Sox for a home run in the last game of the season that helped the Yankees clinch the 1949 pennant.

Berra's girdle hasn't been hampering him, either.

"I'm getting' my base hits," he grunted, "and the thing ain't botherin' my swing very much."

If anything, "the thing," as he calls it, has been helping him at a split up," he said. "I understand that some of the usual financial duties of the general manager will be handled by someone else."

Gehring was named Saturday by Tiger owner Walter O. Briggs to take over the high-paying job, estimated at $50,000 a year, when Evans made public his resignation after five years with Detroit.

DiMaggio Is Key To Race-Al Lopez
By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Cleveland Indian Manager Al Lopez answered a question about the outcome of the American League's torrid three-way pennant battle today with the query, "How does Joe DiMaggio look?"

Lopez said his own third-place Indians "are stronger now than at any other time this season" but he figured DiMaggio "is the key to the whole thing."

"You don't know about those old fellows like DiMaggio and Johnny Mize who mean so much to the Yankees from Washington, D. C. "If DiMaggio gets hot he could be the difference."

Lopez said both the Yankees and Red Sox had a decided advantage over the Indians for the remainder of the schedule.

"They have only one more Western trip," he said. "But we have to make two more Eastern trips. Both those teams are very strong at home."

"But," Lopez added, "things aren't as bad as they could be. I checked my schedule today and we have only two games to play the Red Sox at Fenway Park and two with the Yankees at the stadium. We're much stronger against those teams at our own park and we have three games with each there."

The popular freshman pilot said there were many reasons why the Indians are stronger now than earlier in the season.

"Luke Easter is able to play now," he said. "The two kids at second—Ray Boone and Bobby Avila—have shown great improvement and we have added bench strength in Barney McCosky and Clarence Mattern."

Al said there was one thing he wasn't worried at all about—pitching.

"My pitching is great," he said. "Great. Feller, Wynn, Lemon and Garcia are strong and going well. Brissie is fine. And the others are good, too. The staff has great depth."

Postponed
The Junior League game scheduled to have been played tonight has been postponed until a later undetermined date.

It was slated to bring together the top two teams in the league, the Converts and Wreckers.

Yankees Blast Bengals To Increase American Margin

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Some day in the long distant future grizzled grandpas are going to be talking about the night they saw Joe DiMaggio make a schoolboy blunder for the first time in his life, so it was nice to report today that the big boy wound up a hero anyway.

It had to be seen to be believed. DiMaggio, of all people, holding a ball in centerfield, thinking there were three out instead of two and letting George Kell of the Tigers score all the way from second with what could have been the winning run.

That is, it could have been except that a guy named DiMaggio stepped up to bat, swung in the ninth, and lashed a single to right field to break up the ball game in a glorious 5-to-4 Yankee victory—their fourth in a row, their 10th in the last 11, and a wonderful 62nd birthday present for Manager Casey Stengel. It put the Yankees 2 1/2 games ahead of the deadlocked Indians and Red Sox in second place.

DiMaggio himself had the simplest of explanations for what he had done.

"I know why you're here," he said. "Go ahead and ask me and I'll tell you it was a dumb bone-head play. The old boy in center thought there were two men out instead of one. And an instant later, as embarrassed as I was and deserving the boos they were giving me, I decided that there just wasn't a darned thing I could do about it."

"Yep, I guess that puts us in a class with the old-time Dodger Daffiness boys. Come to Yankee Stadium for laughs. The Yankees put on a show for you. Colorful—that's us."

But, though the big boy was kidding, he wasn't taking it quite as lightly as that. As superlative a centerfielder as the game has known, it will hurt him always that he was once guilty of a monumental boner.

Though he couldn't do anything about it when the incident occurred there was the deepest of determination when he strode to the plate with two out in the ninth. Joe Collins on second after a two-base hit, and Bobby Brown on first after being walked.

Who had been given an acre of room in rightfield, aimed the ball sharply over the first baseman's head for the game-breaking hit. Had two runs been necessary, both would have scored.

The smash gave Pitcher Ed Lopat his 13th victory, but he had to fight all the way for it. The Tigers led 1 to 0, then 2 to 1, and finally 4 to 2, when the two runs scored in the eighth, the second on Joe's lapse. The Yankees tied it again 4 to 4 in their half of the inning and left it up to Joe to do the rest of the ninth.

There were no other games scheduled in the American League and in the National, the Cardinals snapped a five-game losing streak by defeating the Braves 4 to 3, while the Reds, who had lost seven in a row, topped the Phillies 7 to 5. The Cubs edged the Giants 7 to 6. Brooklyn and Pittsburgh had an open date.

Coupes Take First Game, 2-0, As Sedans Win Second By 5-2
Lloyd Elks doubled in the top of the seventh inning of the first game of a Junior League doubleheader to send Bob Reid home with the winning run as the Coupes defeated the Sedans, 2-0, in a game which was the continuation of a rained-out affair last week.

In the second game, a three-inning affair, the Sedans roared back to take a 5-2 win.

Reid led off the big seventh in the opener by singling. The next two men struck out, and then Elks came through with his long blast to send Reid home with the first and winning run of the contest.

Pinetops Beaten By Ormondsville
ORMONDSVILLE—Barry Jones singled Red McDaniels across with the winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning here Saturday afternoon as Ormondsville took a Bright Belt League contest from Pinetops, 5-4.

Darrell Worthington hurled the entire game for the winners, allowing but eight hits. The young righthander held the Pinetops nine scoreless until the seventh inning.

Sam Stettin, Ed Couche and Garland Little led Ormondsville at the plate with two safeties each. Little collected a two-bagger.

Peck Stokes and Horace Jefferson rapped out a pair of hits to lead the losers. Webb homered for Pinetops in the eighth with two on base.

The second game scheduled to be played between the two clubs, slated for Pinetops Sunday, was canceled because of rain, in the third inning.

Ormondsville will play Macclesfield in a Bright Belt League contest next Saturday in Macclesfield, returning home for a game Sunday.

Spanish Bases Could Be Liability As Asset; Inner Conflicts Among People

By JOHN FISHER
We may not discover for months whether our new military base bargain with Francisco Franco is an asset or a liability, provocative of trouble.

Some diplomats, pointing to the unprecedented recent strike wave as an indication, maintain that the Generalissimo's discontented people were on the verge of forcing him to soften his harsh rule.

Encouraged by attacks on "corruption and incompetence" in the regime, appearing in the Spanish Catholic press, moderates as well as leftists were demanding and receiving promises of reform.

But now, observers say, American needs of approval and financial aid have restored the Caudillo's waning strength so that he will again reject proposals to clean up his government and tackle the roots of the economic problem.

For 11 years Franco has had dictatorial powers for solving the prolonged economic depression. Until lately his excuse for failure was that Spain had been denied Marshall Plan assistance.

Now, so unstable in his political position, he clings to Uncle Sam's coat-tails. Every lean or friendly military gesture by the United States is described in the Spanish press and radio as evidence that Washington backs the Franco regime.

No European side of the Iron Curtain endures greater misery than Spain, an ordeal from which stems growing discontent. Much of the Prado's earlier support was from government officials and the army.

Today even top bureaucrats are so poorly paid that many are compelled to find private jobs after hours. Despite long inflation, school teachers' salaries have not been raised since before the war.

Undernourishment Among All
Everyone below the rank of colonel is hard-pressed financially. Enlisted men earn extra money for their families by selling a part of their double ration of bread and olive oil.

The big brass was angered by Franco's hesitation over restoration of the monarchy. A group of captain-generals presented a written demand for a housecleaning in the Falangist bureaucracy. Some openly sided with the National Committee, composed of political critics of the regime. Rumors of a coup d'etat have been bruited.

Civilians are in distress, especially in the Andalusian orange and lemon belt. The average daily pay of a farm hand is 15 pesetas, barely enough for a half dozen eggs.

It would be unfair to blame Franco for all peasant ills. Much of the wretchedness is the result of four successive years of drought. Fortunately, record rainfall this year has filled reservoirs and a bumper harvest is in sight.

Health surveys reveal that in Madrid nine of every ten persons are undernourished. Approximately 28 million Spaniards today are existing on resources which at the turn of the century barely supported 18 million. Jobless workers must either beg or starve; there is no social security. Many city families dwell in damp caves.

Trade Unions in Passive Revolt
Not only church and army but also labor has become exasperated over government incompetence. Letters were circulated among union members denouncing official "laziness, favoritism, profiteering and crookedness."

Statistics reveal that in recent years the Generalissimo spent three times more in building jails than new schools. Spain is the only western country where numerous children live in prison in which their parents are confined.

These gloomy conditions form the background of the spontaneous wave of strikes that burst in March in the Catalonia and Basque provinces, near the French border, and spread south, recently reaching Madrid.

Spanish trade unions are the pattern of disciplined syndicates, organized to carry out the economic policies of the state. Hence, to quote Franco—"a strike is a crime and must be treated as such." Nevertheless, loyal Spaniards in Barcelona struck in complaint of soaring living costs, wherein food prices are nearly eight times higher than in prewar days. Other cities soon followed.

The significant fact is that many divergent elements shared in stimulating the taboos of walkouts. Some strike notices bore monarchist slogans. Employers with grievances over controls encouraged their men to draw tools and, despite disapproval by authorities, willingly paid for strike time lost. Members of the Falange, Franco's own monolithic party, were among arrested agitators.

This united effort influenced the regime to increase the pay of government employees 30 per cent and to reimpose controls that reduced the prices of fish, potatoes and other commodities.

"Land of Despair and Death"
Of course, the Communists struck their finger in the pie and boasted that they had sparked the strike, a claim rejected by impartial witnesses. But there is no doubt Stalin's trouble-makers exploited the orderly protest movement. In Barcelona they carried banners inscribed "This is but the beginning." They flooded malls denouncing "Butcher Franco for the starvation and ruin to which he has doomed all Spain."

Dolores Ibaruri, Secretary of the Communist Party and foremost of female Reds, in her official report stated, "The struggle, which began as a campaign against hunger, developed into a predominantly political struggle against Francoism and its American patrons. It was a vivid expression of the people's protest against American penetration (and against Franco) who, in the service of American warmongers, is to turn our country into a land of despair and death."

News of the recent deal, by which Washington receives strategic bases in return for economic aid, activates the sharply conflicting opinions of Americans regarding Franco.

Some consider him a devout, well-intentioned ruler, striving against heavy odds to build a nation previously wrecked by Communism in the civil war.

Others loathe his type of totalitarianism and fear that if he shores him up, he will deny the Spanish masses the greater freedom recent events were forcing him to grant. Stung by this loss, they argue, the people, in the event of war, will revolt, destroy our bases and side with Russia.

But Washington, cognizant of all recognizable pitfalls, feels that the bases are of such importance to our global defense system that we must take a chance.

The Girl Next Door

By Peggy Gaddis

Chapter 1
Fifth had picked up the telephone and given the number of the house next door, across the lawn and around the unclipped hedge. She waited, and then a man's voice said, "Hello?"

It was Peter's voice, and Edith recognized it instantly. She felt a vague sinking of her heart, but she answered him promptly.

"Hello, Peter. Is Mrs. Eldon there?" "This is Edith Drummond."

"Oh, how are you, Mrs. Drummond? Just a minute and I'll call Marcia."

She heard Peter go away from the telephone, and, after a moment's footsteps coming closer, then a burst of smothered laughter.

"Hello, Mrs. Drummond," Marcia's voice came with laughter. "Edith accompanied by Peter's ever some trivial incident, perhaps, that had been amusing only because they had shared it."

"I didn't know you had come and could not keep her voice from sounding formal. 'Mrs. Prior and Mrs. Hutchens are here, and we thought you might like to take a hand at bridge.'"

"That was sweet of you to think of me, Mrs. Drummond," said Marcia politely. "But I'm afraid I shall have to ask you to give me a rain-check. There are some people here."

"Yes, of course—some other time, then."

After she had put the telephone down Edith stood for a moment, just staring at it, thinking. Peter had seemed so completely at home.

He had answered the telephone; he had shared laughter with Marcia, and he had given her no indication of other voices. Yet Marcia had said, "Some people are here." Edith knew instinctively that there was no one there but Peter.

She made herself go back to the two women, who were waiting in the parlor, with three bottles of Coca-Cola and three glasses and a plate of cookies on a tray, as an excuse for her long absence.

"Is she coming over?" asked Anne, reaching for a cookie.

"No, she's got guests," answered Edith.

The rest of the afternoon moved with a jerkiness that was completely foreign to the three friends, and Edith was sorely relieved when Anne decided it was time to leave.

She didn't know quite how long she stood there, but at last she heard footsteps coming toward her, and looked up. A tall young man in slacks and a shirt with an open collar, the sleeves turned back to his elbows, came toward her. Beside him paced a beautiful dog. It was, of course, Peter, Marshall and the dog, Gus.

"Hello, Peter," Edith made her voice sound warm and friendly.

"Oh, hello Mrs. Drummond," said Peter, and paused.

"Your dog's a beauty, Peter," said Edith, embarrassed because she could think of nothing less in-

HUBBY HUNTER FINDS HER MAN.—Mrs. Jean Gregory, 27, divorcee of Vicksburg, Mich., who advertised for a husband two weeks ago, has married the man she wanted all the time. He is Lewis Kline, 33, her former suitor for three years. Mrs. Gregory and her husband are the newlyweds after their marriage at Angola, Ind., Tuesday. They used to go together but broke up several weeks ago. Mrs. Gregory told the world she would marry any man who would support her and three small children and pay medical bills of her cancer-stricken mother. Forthwith, she got more than 300 marriage proposals, including Kline's. (AP Wirephoto.)

Old Icebox Worth More Than Junk

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. John Kropf, 65, yearning for modern convenience, gave away her old-fashioned ice box to a junkman and bought a new electric refrigerator.

The junkman carted the box away but left it aboard his truck which he parked on a vacant lot over the weekend.

The youngsters—Arthur Ross, 12, and Joyce Kline, 10—decided to play "house" on the truck. Accidentally, they kicked open the ice compartment of the ice box.

Inside was a small green box wrapped in newspapers. And inside that—$13.85 in cash. Some of the paper money was mouldy.

Arthur hurried to his father who inspected the box, found the Knopf address scratched on the side.

Mrs. Kropf was astounded. She said her retired farmer-husband, now 82 and ill, apparently had saved the money and then cached it away in the ice box.

She rewarded the children for finding the treasure when she deposited the cash in the Allentown National Bank.

Still Has Hiccups After Three Years

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Thin, hollow-eyed Jack O'Leary, who has hiccupped once every second for more than three years, leaves today for a Portland, Ore., clinic, where he hopes to find a cure for his strange ailment.

The former grocery clerk, 28, started his marathon hiccupping June 13, 1948, following an attack of peritonitis that affected the nerves and muscles controlling his diaphragm.

His weight has dropped from 135 to 81 pounds during the siege, and he is unable to sleep more than a few minutes at a time before his hiccupping awakens him.

Three Arrested On Liquor Charges During Week-End

Three Pitt Counties were taken into custody by local officers during the weekend and charged with violating the state liquor laws.

The officers listed the three as Elizabeth Best, 27, of 301-B Center Street, Greenville, and George Ellison, 45, of 101 S. Main Street, both of the St. Johns Church section of Swift Creek township.

Best was arrested Saturday night at her home when officers found three gallons of bootleg whiskey on her premises. County ABC Officer J. M. Ward said the whiskey was found in one of the bedrooms of the house in the middle of the floor together with pint bottles and a funnel. Best was released under a $200 bond pending action in today's police court.

Other officers taking part in the raid were ABC Officers Claude Manning, J. L. Taylor and Dick King. Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews and city police officers M. E. Corbett and Capt. Berg.

Early Sunday morning ABC officers Ward, Manning, King and Deputy Sheriff L. E. Mann arrested the Ellison couple when they found a quantity of the bootleg whiskey on their premises. Both defendants were released pending the August 14 session of Pitt County court.

Miss Young said two weeks ago she came to Italy to marry Negrini and had taken first steps to relinquish her American citizenship.

"I came to Italy to get married, and I do not want to return to the United States before achieving my purpose," she said at the time. "I came to Italy of my own free will because I wanted to marry Luciano Negrini."

The former missionary had quickly interjected that "only the Pope could permit me to marry her."

Then he added: "I am only joking, of course. I know perfectly well that as a priest I never could marry a young girl."

Army To Release 100,000 Men

WASHINGTON (UP) - Assistant Defense Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg said today the Army intends to release 100,000 members of the enlisted inactive and volunteer reserves by the end of the year.

That figure includes only reservists recalled to active duty as individuals, Mrs. Rosenberg told a House committee.

The program for discharging reservists, she said, is a part of the military policy for sending inactive reserves home as fast as qualified replacements are available. She said the Navy and Air Force are also releasing reserves under the same policy, but gave no figures. Mrs. Rosenberg, testifying on a bill to reorganize the military reserve system, said the United States today faces "the most menacing world situation in our history."

Drunks featured the docket in Police Court Monday. Seven of the 12 cases Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of were for public drunkenness.

The court sentenced both defendants to 60 days on the roads, sentences suspended as to both on payment of $15 each to Clevern Earl Stevenson and $25 fines each, costs deducted. The judgment of the court also ordered that the two defendants be of good behavior for two years.

Charles Dickens, found guilty of a breach of the peace, was fined $50. W. G. Williams, 1307 Glen Arthur Ave., was the prosecuting witness.

J. T. Oakley, found guilty of assault, was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $10 on court costs and he is not to violate any criminal law for six months.

Lions Hear Talk By H. L. Watson

Greenville Lions meeting in their regular weekly session held at the Woman's Club last night heard a talk by the Rev. H. L. Watson.

Watson is serving as pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church in the absence of Rev. Leon Russell who is on a two months tour of Europe.

Watson's talk was directed at the role which the Christian must play in maintaining a free world.

Contrasting the ways of the enslaved world with those of our own nation.

A committee was appointed by President Jimmie Harris to find girls for the club to sponsor in the forthcoming farmers' day celebration.

Guests of the club last night were three of the club's little league baseball team. They are: Charles Statton, Billy Statton, and Lewis Arthur.

President Jimmie Harris presided over the meeting.

Following the regular supper meeting a short meeting of the Board of Directors was held.

Tom Connally . . .

angrily to the ECA chief, he declared: "You want to take the money that is squeezed out of the taxpayers and go over there (Asia) and support some of these wobbly countries. . . ."

"You fellows who spend all of your time spending the government's money never think where the revenue comes from, you are chasing a problem out there when our main problem is in Europe."

This explosion caused a buzz in the Capitol since Connally—as a former Democrat of Mr. Truman and chairman of the committee—ordinarily would be expected to help push the President's program through.

And Connally's opposition to aid for southeast Asia further complicates our foreign policy problems where the water gets just a little muddier every time someone else jumps in and starts sloshing around.

Italy Will Deport Priest's Fiancee

MILAN, Italy—A young American girl who came here hoping to marry a Roman Catholic priest she met in Chicago will be deported next week.

Claire Mary Gertrude Young, 20, of Chicago, has been held in San Vittore jail since Saturday when, according to police, she insulted officials who refused to renew her permit to stay in Italy.

Police said she had falsified her birthdate in personal document and therefore they refused the extension.

They said Miss Young will be held in the jail until she is escorted aboard the American liner "Independence" August 6. They said the American consulate had approved their course of action.

The priest Miss Young says she came to marry is 43-year-old Luciano Negrini, a former missionary in China. He says he has been refused permission to see her in jail.

The two met while Negrini was soliciting funds for Catholic missions in Chicago.

He said last night that the best thing is for the girl to go home and for him to follow her to the U. S. There, he said, they could "decide quietly what to do in the future."

Negrini said his request for secularization (reversion to non-priestly status) had been turned down by church authorities and explained that, as a priest, he "could never marry a young girl."

The girl's mother, Mrs. Ellen Brady Young, arrived here earlier this month.

State Calls For Hospital Bids

RALEIGH—(AP)—The Budget Bureau announced yesterday that the State has called for new bids Aug. 28 on a big tubercular hospital planned at Chapel Hill.

Bids were received on the 100-bed hospital last year, but the State was forced to reject them because they exceeded the available appropriation. The 1951 General Assembly directed the Medical Care Commission to provide up to $500,000 of federal hospital building funds for the structure.

Tentative plans call for the big tubercular hospital to operate in conjunction with the University of North Carolina teaching hospital now being built at Chapel Hill.

Strikes At Large Plants Idle Forty Thousand Workers

Widespread strikes today idled more than 40,000 workers in manufacturing, transportation and utilities.

Strike votes by metal and automotive workers neared, with another 106,000 threatening to walk out.

The nation's largest strike idled 22,000 employees of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. at East Peoria, Ill., where 12,000 production workers went on strike to back up their demands for a 28-cent hourly wage increase.

Another 10,000 workers were forced to leave their jobs by the walk-out which halted production of farm equipment and earth-moving machines. The production workers were members of the CIO United Auto Workers.

Eleven hundred AFL bakers went on strike at midnight in Minnesota's Twin Cities, leaving only small bakeries to supply bread to the metropolitan area of 1,000,000.

A midnight walkout of 550 steel workers at the McWane Cast Iron Pipe Co. at Birmingham brought the total number idled by strikes in Alabama alone to nearly 5,000 workers.

At Detroit, federal and state mediators entered the 35-day-old wild-cat strike of Hudson Motor Car employees prompted by a dispute over production standards. Settlement was reached between 6,000 AFL truck drivers and 430 trucking firms in Ohio.

Training Of Personnel Cited As Big Problem

RALEIGH—(AP)—John M. Gold, who bows out today as head of the state prison system, says one of the big problems facing incoming Director Walker F. Anderson is the training of personnel.

Gold asserted yesterday that "you can't have a good prison system without trained and qualified men. Uniformity and efficiency must be achieved if the prison department is to have a modern, improved system."

Gold, who served for almost a year as prisons director, takes over tomorrow morning as city manager at Winston-Salem.

He said that all prison personnel, especially division supervisors, camp superintendents, stewards and guards, should undergo thorough training. He explained that they need the schooling to understand their work and to keep abreast of modern penal theories.

Israel's Labor Party In Lead

TEL AVIV, Israel (UP)—The "planned economy" labor party Mapai held a commanding lead today in Israel's second general election and Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion was expected to return to power as leader of a coalition government.

With almost two-thirds of the votes counted in yesterday's nationwide balloting, Mapai and the two parties which would join it in a coalition held a percentage lead over all possible combinations which might be formed against them.

There was no breakdown on the number of seats each of the 17 contesting parties had won of the 120-seat Parliament.

Trailing Ben-Gurion's party were the free enterprise General Zionists and the leftwing Socialist Mapai.

The orthodox religious party Hapoel Hamizrachi and the liberal Progressives were expected to join the Mapai in a new coalition.

The Communists, never a major factor in Israeli politics, were running last.

A major factor in yesterday's voting were the thousands of new immigrants in the new state since the 1949 election. The election was fought primarily on domestic issues.

The voting was heavy with more than 700,000 of the country's 900,000 eligible voters participating.

The election results will be announced partly in absolute figures and partly in percentages "for security reasons." Israel still technically is at war with the Arab states and does not want its population figures by townships revealed.

WSB Gives Okay To Wage Hikes

By ALAN ADAMS

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Employers viewed the government's new policy on merit and length-of-service wage increases today as a way to reward their workers—but not too much.

The Wage Stabilization Board said the new regulation provides "maximum flexibility" for merit pay increases, but warned that it was strict enough to prevent a "flank attack" on the wage stabilization program.

The regulation cancelled a temporary order issued last February which allowed merit and similar increases to be paid only if they had been part of a company's policy in effect before Jan. 25, 1951.

The new order provides that such established merit plans may be continued, but also allows employers who did not have a merit program to adopt one. However, it prohibits employers from giving any merit boost above the highest such increase granted in 1950.

The order allows payment of merit and length-of-service boosts to workers who are paid according to minimum and maximum rates for a job without board approval if:

1. The employer has had a past practice of such payments and uses 1950 as a guide.
2. An established plan has been in effect prior to Jan. 25. Merit boosts can continue under this plan regardless of the amount.
3. An employer who has had no merit plan pays such increases up to only six per cent of the total wage payments made to rate range employees.

Employees who are paid a certain rate regardless of the job can get merit boosts, providing their employer sets up a rate range schedule whereby the top rate is no more than 25 per cent above the lowest job rate. The employer then may pay merit boosts up to six per cent of the overall rate average.

Deadline Extended

Announcement was made today from the local draft board that the enlistment period that was to have expired today has been extended another month.

The new deadline—August 31—applies to every man between the ages of 19 and 26 who is not new in the Armed Forces. During the next month all persons who wish to enlist in any branch of service may do so. Also, it applies to any man who has taken pre-induction examinations for the draft but has not been inducted. However, if he has received orders to report for induction, he may not enlist.

Patrol Reinforcements For County Announced

The ranks of Pitt County patrolmen, left understaffed by recent transfers and promotions, will be strengthened Wednesday with the arrival of two new patrolmen for the county.

Announcement of the men's arrival was made this morning by Captain S. H. Mitchell, commanding officer of Troop "A" of the Highway Patrol which has its headquarters in Greenville.

However, the personnel of the county patrol will still be one man less than several months ago because three men were transferred from the county and so far only two men are being replaced. Plans called for two additional men at a later date to bring the total to seven.

New officers arriving here Wednesday will be Bruce H. Jackson, rookie, who just graduated from the Chapel Hill Patrol training school last week. Jackson is originally from Dunn, and will be stationed in Farmville. He will replace Cpl. Ernest Guthrie who was transferred the first of the month to Hertford.

Second officer coming into the county will be Rodney Howell, patrolman of Rathford. Howell has been on the Patrol for over a year. He will be stationed in Greenville.

Captain Mitchell stated that Jackson will work with a veteran officer for sixty days prior to taking over the Farmville territory.

Mitchell also revealed that when the seventh patrolman is added to the county, he will be stationed in Falkland. Reason for stationing a man in that region is to put additional personnel where they can work some of the more heavily traveled highways. It will be the middle of September before the new men come, as they will be selected and assigned from the Patrol Training school now being conducted in Chapel Hill and set to end in September.

In the event that traffic conditions around Grifton warrant the placing of an officer in that region with the opening of the new Dupont plant, the Falkland officer may be transferred, Mitchell stated.

When the patrol returns to its normal strength, officers will be spection teams into each other's camp to insure compliance with the armistice, or whether the task shall be entrusted to neutral parties.

Then will come the question of how far into rear areas these shall be permitted. The Communists have shown a marked reluctance in the past to permit outsiders a glimpse of their armies.

If these points can be settled, agreement on the rest of armistice agenda should follow quickly.

But even once a cease-fire has taken effect, American and other U.N. soldiers will have to remain in Korea to guard against any breakdown in the armistice and any surprise Communist attack before a final settlement.
