New Swimming Hole Condemned

Here's a portion of Meadowbrook Beach, the city's new-found swimming hole, located on the city's outskirts at the edge of Meadowbrook. However, Health Department sanitarians have tested the water and found it to be polluted and are urging persons not to use it. (Staff Photo By John Spinks, Jr.)

Ole Swimming Hole Declared Insanitary By Health Officials

Water Found To Be Polluted And Not Enough Flow In Pool To Carry Off Wastes; Swimmers Urged To Stay Away From Water

The Health Department yesterday put the quietus on the best swimming hole in Greenville since the swimming pool closed.

Meadowbrook Beach, so called because it is located on the fringe of Meadowbrook and primarily because its white sand approximates more of an ocean strand than any other watering hole hereabouts, is a dead issue so far as the Recreation Department is concerned.

To most persons in Greenville, Meadowbrook Beach never was an issue, primarily because they never heard of it, much less swam there. But recently the Recreation body was making serious overtures concerning the possibility of making it a community swimming hole.

But no soap, say Health Department sanitarians. The water has been inspected and found to be polluted, due to the presence of body wastes in the water and not enough flow in the artificial pond to carry off those wastes.

The 300-by-100-foot rectangular pond came into being when White Construction Company erected its asphalt plant there. During the past two years, enough sand has been scraped off the surface to make a hole about 12 to 15 feet deep in the center.

When the city swimming pool was condemned in June and closed to the public, since then Meadowbrook Beach came into being and attracted to many hot days, something close to 100 bathers on one swimming, so to speak.

According to Heber Tripp, chairman of the Recreation Commission, the body was considering hiring lifeguards to work at the hole during the summer. In that way local citizens and their families could enjoy a swim during a hot day, tending to keep many of them out of Tar River.

According to Willie Pate, chief sanitarian for the department swimming in Greenville's newest hole is just as dangerous as taking a cooling dip in the river. Except for the fact that there is no current in the pond, which is one of the dangers of river dunking, there are products they buy abroad. And they can get only 18 per cent more for their own goods in the world markets.

Britain also has to buy more today because of the rearmament program urged on it by the United States. However, the Labor government has kept the volume of imports from rising more than 10 per cent by cutting down on the amount of civilian goods it buys abroad.

The Anglo-Iranian oil crisis tends to further aggravate the situation. If Britain loses Iranian oil for good, it will have to turn to alternative sources. Most of these demand dollars for their oil, and Britain has all too few dollars.

With this grim picture in mind, Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell decided to turn to the U.S. He asked for a conference in September with Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder.

Among other things he is expected to ask for a postponement in the repayment of the $3,750,000,000 loan made by the U.S. to Britain in 1946. It probably will be granted. The repayment was scheduled to have

City Fathers To Decide On Ordinance Enforcement

Whether or not the City Code's ordinance concerning water and sewer connections is enforced will be decided by the Board of Aldermen at tomorrow night's monthly meeting.

By action of the committee of sanitation, meeting this morning with Mayor Page and Health Department sanitarian Willie Pate, the enforcement of the ordinance will depend to a large extent on how much backing city officials give sanitarians in their condemnation proceedings of unsanitary privies and water outlets in the city.

Meeting in an effort to "do something" about Greenville's slim areas, a suggestion of which was set forth as a feature story in the Saturday edition of The Daily Reflector, were Aldermen Heber Tripp, chairman of the committee, and E. E. Rogers and C. K. Beatty, street department head. They recommended to put the issue in the laps of the board as a whole for discussion.

The hoped-for outcome of such discussion is that the board will back up the sanitarians when they condemn privies in sections of the city where sewer connections are available.

If such backing is given, it will be the sanitarians' duty to make such condemnation of all unsanitary sewage disposal units, leaving it to the Municipal Court to enforce the law against landlords who do not make the improvements.

As stated by Mayor Page, the ordinance is on the books, and enforcement of it is required.

Why it has not been enforced in the "blowing over" of a similar furor in 1948. Afterwards, the city hired a sanitary inspector to recommend what needed to be done. Eventually the furor concerning enforcement of the ordinance died down. Since, not much has been done about it.

Sanitarian Pate estimated that it would take his staff 12 months to comb the city and make the necessary condemnations. If, he said, the city could furnish his staff with a man to carry part of the burden, the job might take less time. That will be decided later.

Leaguers Win

HAVEROCK — Greenville's Little League All-Stars took the opening game of the Fourth District Tournament, which opened here this morning.

They defeated the South Wilmington Stars, 6-4, after stopping a two-run rally in the sixth inning by the loss.

Ike Riddick started on the mound for the winners and was relieved in the sixth. He received credit for the win.

Say Reds Will Go Underground In Defense Of Party

Official Warns Of Underground Work In Defending Of Indicted Reds

LOS ANGELES (UP) — A Communist Party official warned today that the Reds will go underground if necessary to carry on the defense of 12 "second-string" chairman of the party's Los Angeles defense committee, told a press conference yesterday was aimed at "the destruction and illegalization of the Communist Party."

"They hope the arrests will make us run, but we do not choose to run," Carlson said. "If we are forced underground, we'll go underground. We will continue to fight under whatever circumstances are forced upon us."

Carlson, who immigrated to this country from Poland in 1920, is at liberty on bail pending a hearing on government efforts to deport him as a subversive alien.

A federal grand jury deliberated only 45 minutes before returning indictments against the party's "second-team," including William Schneiderman, top California Red

NELL BLOUNT EDWARDS BOBBIE WINBERRY

Two More Pitt Girls Enter Beauty Pageant

Two more contestants today entered the Greenville Farmers Day Beauty pageant bringing the total number of contestants to five.

Miss Nell Blount Edwards of Chocod and Miss Bobbie Winberry of Falkland are the two new entrants who will seek the title of Eastern Carolina Harvest Queen and an all-expense paid trip to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Miss Edwards is a rising senior of Chocod high school, and is sponsored in the pageant by the Chocod 4-H club of which she is a member.

Last year she was chosen the best camper at the 4-H camp at Fisher's Landing and awarded a medal for the honor. She is the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Edwards of Greenville Route three.

Miss Winberry, 18, graduated from Greenville high school in the class of 1951 and will enter the school of nursing at Rex hospital in Raleigh in September. She is a soloist at the Boyd Memorial Presbyterian Church in Falkland, and is being sponsored in the pageant by the Greenville Jaycees.

Miss Winberry is the daughter of Mrs. Caroline Winberry of Greenville route one.

Other contestants who have entered the beauty pageant so far are Miss Betty Rose Wilkerson of Farmville, Miss Betty Lou Worthington of Ayden and Miss Julia Stokes of Belvoir.

The closing date for entries in the pageant is August 13, and Pageant Chairman Ben Rouse urged young ladies between the ages of 15 and 25 Pitt, and surrounding counties who wish to enter the pageant to send in their entry blanks as soon as possible.

Truce Line On Parallel Asked By Communists

Cease-Fire Talks To Stop Unless United Nations Command Agree With Truce Proposal

By EARNEST HOBERECHT United Press Staff Correspondent

PEACE CAMP, Korea, Thurs. (UP) — The Chinese and North Korean Communists asserted today that cease-fire talks will collapse unless the United Nations command agrees to a truce line along the 38th Parallel.

A blast of Red propaganda statements restating a flat demand for the parallel instead of the present battle front as the truce line was opened last night as a deadlock in the cease-fire negotiations at Kaesong passed through its sixth day.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Acheson answered that the United Nations cannot accept the demand for a truce line on the parallel. He fully supported the Allied idea of a line in the general area of the present battle line.

Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, Chinese commander in Korea, said "the peace conference will inevitably fall" if the U.N. does not retreat.

The North Korean radio followed with a statement to the same effect in which the official Central News Agency said "if the cease-fire conference is ruptured they (the U.N. delegates) must bear all the responsibility for its consequences."

Local Red Cross Appeals For Aid

Special Funds Needed To Help 16,000 People In Flood Areas

Appeal has been made to local members of the Pitt County Chapter of the Red Cross to contribute funds which will be passed along to chapters in the flooded states in the Midwest and Mississippi Valley region.

Information obtained by the Pitt chapter shows that as of Monday of this week more than 50,000 families have been affected by the floods of the last 30 days in Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Illinois.

The damage ranges from over 1,500 homes completely destroyed to over 22,000 homes damaged. To date more than 16,000 persons have applied to the Red Cross chapters in those four states for aid in rehabilitating their families and their homes.

In a letter from chapter chairman E. Hoover Taft Jr. to local members, Taft pointed out that the Red Cross has been sending regular and volunteer workers into the stricken area to help the thousands of homeless residents. The local appeal came after both President Truman and the president of the American Red Cross had appealed to the individual chapters for financial donations.

In asking for the donations, Taft stated that this solicitation is not to be confused with the annual fund raising campaign conducted in March of each year. Local solicitation, he said, is being done by letter rather than through open requests, which is in keeping with the national organization's request.

Prices Continue Good On Market

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (AP) — Heavy sales and good prices are continuing on Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets. The average through yesterday ran $3.12 higher than last season's average.

Prices on most grades of leaf declined slightly yesterday. Small gains were registered by lower grades of lugs and best thin non-descript.

Good lemon and low lemon leaf dropped $2 a hundred pounds under Monday's averages. Low orange leaf advanced $1. Best thin non-descript jumped from $26 to $29 a hundred.

Total season's sales through Monday were 71,651,245 pounds at an average price of $51.25. The 1950 season average was $48.12.

Financial Crisis

Same Old Trouble For Britain In Sight; Once Again Looking Toward United States For Aid; British Blame Rise In World Prices For Difficulties

By HOMER JENKS

Britain seems to be headed toward another financial crisis. And once again the British are looking to the U.S. for help.

It's the same old trouble all over again—Britain can't balance its budget. Once more it is paying more for the goods it buys abroad than it makes on the goods it sells abroad.

The country is something over $1,500,000,000 in the hole in world trade for the first six months of this year. And the trade deficit for the remaining six months may be even greater.

The deficit will be reduced somewhat by what the British call "invisible exports"—income from investments abroad, insurance sold to Americans and other foreigners, freight carried in British ships and other services.

Calls For 41,000 Men In October

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Defense Department ordered Selective Service to try to draft 41,000 men in October for assignment to the Army and Marine Corps.

It will bring to 675,000 the number of men ordered for induction since the beginning of the Korean war.

It also will bring to a total of 18,000 the number of men inducted for the Marines. All other draftees have gone to the Army.

The draft call for October is approximately 6,800 higher than the September call.

Calls for August, September and October are substantially higher than those in June when 20,000 were inducted and July when 15,000 were inducted.

New Control Law

Controls Law Will Be Political Football In 1952 Election Rise; Truman Claims To Patch It Up, Will Ask Congress To Patch It Up

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now we have a new price control law. It will take us a few months to see whether prices go up.

If they go up this law, which President Truman signed last night, will be a political football in the 1952 election campaigns.

If they go up, the politicians will blame one another while the ordinary citizen stands by, suffering in his pocketbook.

Because the law is complicated, it's doubtful any ordinary citizen could understand it well enough to decide who's to blame if prices rise. But the groundwork has now been laid for the blame ahead, if inflation gets worse.

On the one side are the President and his assistants, condemning this law; on the other are the members of Congress who passed it.

The President signed it last night but explained he would have vetoed it if that hadn't meant the country would then be left without controls at all.

All controls were supposed to end June 30 unless Congress extended them. By deadline time Congress hadn't decided. So it agreed to keep them another month.

(It used the month of July to put together a new controls law and finished the job Monday, just on deadline again, and laid it in Mr. Truman's lap.)

This is what he had to say, in effect, when he signed: The law is bad; it will mean higher prices and therefore higher wages; it's so vague in spots not even government agencies can figure out all it means yet; and he'll quickly ask Congress to patch this law to keep prices down.

The other side of the picture has been given by Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan, one of the Republicans who helped piece this new law together. He said:

"It gives the President all the authority he needs to control prices and prevent them from getting wholly out of hand, if it is properly administered."

Now if prices go down the Democrats and Republicans may be able to draw up their battle lines on the statements made by Mr. Truman and Rep. Wolcott.

This President has served notice this law, unless Congress improves it, will mean higher prices.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR August 1, 1911

Suggs-Gray
Taking their numerous friends almost entirely by surprise, Mr. B. Bruce Suggs of Greenville and Miss Lillian Gray of Kinston were married in the Christian Church in Kinston at 8:45 o'clock this morning, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. E. Griffith, rector of the Episcopal Church.

The happy couple left on the early Atlantic Coast Line train enroute for the mountains of Pennsylvania to spend their honeymoon. They will also visit some of the Northern cities.

Mr. Suggs is one of Greenville's best young men and very popular. He is auditor of the Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company, and also secretary and treasurer of the Reflector Company. His bride is one of the teachers of Greenville graded school, a most charming young lady, and exceedingly popular in both Kinston and Greenville.

They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Reunion Plans

FOUNTAIN—A committee on arrangements met at a dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. M. D. Yelverton Tuesday, July 24, to make plans for the third annual Smith-Eagles Family Reunion, which will be held at the Farmville swimming pool August 15 at four o'clock in the afternoon. Members will receive letters of invitation from the corresponding secretary, Larry P. Eagles, on his farm near two-way before he left for Korea.

June H. Rose, general superintendent of the Church School, presided at the assembly, at which all departments of the Church School were present. In paying tribute to the men, Mr. Rose, speaking for the Board of Christian Education, the Workers Council, and the pastor, reviewed briefly some of their activities and spoke with high praise of their loyal devotion to the church school program. Mr. Young and Mr. Fleming have both acted in the capacity as teachers and department superintendents, and for fifteen years or more have guided and instructed the young teen-agers in their Sunday school work. Both have been active in scouting activities and, as Mr. Rose stated, "in every place where leadership for young boys was needed, each was willing and eager to do his share."

Rodney Fulcher, speaking on behalf of the members of the Senior Department, most of whom "grew up" with Mr. Fleming and Mr. Young, paid tribute to them for their work in the past and stated that it was largely through their influence and guidance that he and dozens of others like him had first become vitally interested in the church and scouting programs.

Bill Drum, now acting superintendent of the Intermediate Department, on behalf of the teachers, pupils of that department, and Board of Christian Education presented the two men with gifts.

A large group of worshippers was present for the impressive service.

Greenville Young Man At Coast Guard Academy

Greenville is now represented in all of the nation's three military academies with the entrance of Cadet Ralph P. Smiley into the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn.

Smiley entered the academy several weeks ago after taking a series of mental and physical tests. He was selected from a group of over 400 young men over the nation who applied for the appointment. The men were selected on the basis of scores made on tests and the number of men who could be accepted into the academy at the time.

An average day at the New London Academy begins at six o'clock followed by chow at seven o'clock, inspection and drill until nine o'clock.

After this the men attend classes until twelve, including seamanship, rope tying, history, health and communication. After an hour rest for lunch, the cadets return to the books until four o'clock. Only free time allowed is between the hours of four and five-thirty. Then night classes end at nine o'clock and taps for the barracks come at a few minutes after ten.

Upon completing their first leg of training, the men will embark on a summer training cruise in the latter part of August of this year. The fourth class cadets will not

Large Number For Pact Army

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Lodge (R-Mass) hinted today that the Atlantic Pact Army in Western Europe may number some 7,000,000 men within "the next few years."

While other senators wrangled over details of the administration's new $8,500,000,000 (B) foreign aid program, Lodge told a reporter this country must step in with full support.

Declaring that the United States should have a completely trained and organized field army of about 350,000 in Europe during the next year, he added:

"In the next few years this should be no more than five per cent of the total forces there."

Marlboro Man Dies In Wilson Hospital

Wilton Earl Parker, 50, merchant of Marlboro near Farmville, died in Woodard-Herring Hospital in Wilson on Tuesday morning following a heart attack suffered last Thursday.

Mr. Parker farmed until several years ago when he began operating a grocery store in Marlboro. He was a member of the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church.

Funeral services will be held from the late home on Wednesday afternoon at 4:00, conducted by Rev. Leonard B. Manning, pastor of the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church. Interment will follow in Hollywood Cemetery at Farmville.

Surviving are his wife, the former Emily Tugwell; a daughter, Mrs.

Walter Stanley of Walstonburg; two sons, Ernest Parker of Farmville and J. T. Parker of Walstonburg; four sisters, Mrs. Ralph Shirley and Miss Dixie Parker of Farmville, Mrs. Warren Goble of Hamlet and Mrs. George Baker of Walstonburg; a brother, J. M. Parker of Walstonburg; and five grandchildren.

Navy Confident Over Submarines

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy is confident the "it" can control the submarine menace with anti-submarine aircraft in event of war with Russia.

Vice Adm. John H. Cassady, deputy chief of naval operations, has told Congress that anti-submarine warfare would be successful as the result of the "vigorous" program for modernizing aircraft.

The plan, he said, calls for combined operations of land and sea: patrol squadrons with carrier-based "hunter-killer" air groups.

Cassady warned, however, that research is not keeping the United States on even terms with Russia on technical developments. He cited the Russian MIG-15 as a plane that, in some respects, outperforms any U.S. fighter in operation in Korea.

Editors Miffed At Tom Dewey

SINGAPORE (AP)—Singapore editors, miffed because they weren't invited to a luncheon honoring Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, refused today to publish his speech in which he appealed for better understanding of America.

Dewey's speech criticized the Singapore press for overemphasizing stories of racial troubles in the U.S. but editors said that wasn't why they wouldn't publish it.

They said the reason was because they had not been invited to the luncheon and that their reporters and photographers covering the event were rudely treated.

Dewey made the speech before the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. Top Malaya and Singapore leaders, including Gov. Sir Franklin Gimson and Commissioner General Malcolm MacDonald, attended.

Before taking off for Jakarta, Indonesia this morning, Dewey said he was sorry to be mixed up in a press dispute with which he had no direct connection.

Speeders Violate Law In Limited Zone Districts

Police Chief Guy C. Langston said officers have orders to enforce traffic regulations in the city and on the suburbs. Many offenders have been cited to court for speeding at 45 and more miles an hour in zones marked "35 miles an hour." Others have been arrested for failing to stop at "stop signs and driving too close to the cars ahead."

"A red blinker light means stop. A yellow blinker light means get under control and a 'stop sign' means stop, not slow up," the chief said today. "The officers are out there to protect you and others and to make traffic in Greenville and vicinity safer for everybody," Langston added.

Welfare Dept. Notes

The regular monthly meeting of the Pitt County Welfare Board met Thursday evening, July 26, at the Welfare Office.

Miss Gladis Kivett, Field Representative from the State Office, met with the board to review the work of the department for the past year and make up and sign the administrative review.

Six new Old Age Assistance applications were approved, 28 Old Age cases were reviewed and revised. Ten Old Age cases were closed with one transfer in and two transfers out of the county, a net loss under the previous month of four. One hundred and ninety-seven addresses were changed.

The Aid for Dependent Children showed four new applications approved, with nine cases reviewed and revised and seven cases closed or a net loss of three cases under the previous month.

The Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled showed 12 applications approved, one reviewed and revised and one closed.

The department has 28 per cent less ADC cases active for July than was active in April. This decrease was a result of employment of children, husbands return from prison, etc.

The presence of increased benefits from Old Age and Survivors Insurance for persons age 65 or older has increased by almost a hundred cases during the year of those receiving Old Age Assistance. Also contributing to this decrease is the new property clause and income to children within the home.

Beginning with October all Old Age Assistance active cases and those making application who own property are to be notified that acceptance of Public Assistance money will constitute a lien on any property they may own collectable at their death. Beginning Oct. 1, 1951 each applicant for Old Age Assistance must sign an agreement, which is a part of his application, showing that any assistance paid him constitutes a claim against him and his estate enforceable according to law.

A crippled woman now receiving public assistance has requested the department to assist her to locate a wheel chair. Anyone who may desire to loan or donate a wheel chair may call 2943 and the applicant will be notified.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES
What does the Bible teach us about prayer? It teaches first of all that prayer is essential to the health and growth of the spiritual life. The soul can no more live without prayer than the body can live without food. There is no choice about the matter; it is imperative.

Again the Bible assures us that the value of prayer largely depends upon the regularity with which it is employed. We need not expect spiritual growth if we pray today and then neglect prayer until some baffling circumstance drives us to pray, a week or a month from now. Some people believe that because the prophet Elijah ate a meal and in the strength of the meal went forty days, they can do likewise with reference to prayer. But the counsel of the Word of God is against them.

Above all, prayer must be sincere. We must come clean in spiritual matters as in temporal. It is futile to try to deceive God. Prayer lays upon us the responsibility not only to be sincere in what we ask, but in what we do.

Dictatorial Edicts Should Not Be Tolerated

The government's action is cutting Indiana off from the federal welfare funds for the aged, blind and dependent children is clearly another attempt by the centralized government in Washington to batter down another barrier of individual state sovereignty.

It should not be tolerated by the high court of the nation or the people of the individual states.

The Indiana state legislature, realizing the relief rolls of its state and many other states are being usurped by the politicians through the federally imposed secrecy ruling, voted to open its relief rolls to the public. For daring to defy the Washington bureaucrats the state has now been cut off from the $18,500,000 the federal government has been allotting for distribution to its needy.

The Indiana legislature is indeed acting within its power in opening the state relief rolls to public inspection. It is an action which should have been taken long ago by all the states. No good reason has been forthcoming from the federal government to support the secrecy ruling which it has clamped on relief rolls for many years. If the relief rolls do not contain names which it should not have, there is no reason for their not being made public. If the politicians and bureaucrats have padded the rolls with ineligible relief recipients, the public rightfully should know of the action.

The action of the Federal Security Administrator in cutting off Indiana's funds is an effort by the federal government to exert dictatorial powers over the individual states.

The very fact that the federal government is resorting to such drastic measures to maintain the cloak of secrecy around the relief rolls is in itself an indication that the rolls should be open to public scrutiny.

The fundamental principal of public vigil on governmental operation should not be thrown aside because of dictatorial edicts by federal bureaucrats.

Add The Score Once More Please

There are few things in the Iranian oil situation which just will not add up to their surface appearance no matter how the figures are set down.

Yesterday the last trickle of Iranian oil from the big Abadan refinery was cut off when a British engineer shut off the last two pumps. The action not only cut off one of the Western nations' principal source of oil, but it also threw 12,000 Iranian natives out of work.

The explanation offered for the shut down is that the storage tanks are filled to the brim, and there are no British ships to take the oil away. The British ship masters, so the report says, refuse to recognize the Iranian nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian oil company.

On the other hand, a spokesman for the British government this week said the government recognizes the nationalization of the oil company by the Iranian government, and is willing to work out an agreement on the matter.

The hitch is this: If the British government, which owns over 50 per cent of the Anglo-Iranian stock, is willing to recognize the nationalization, why should the ship-masters refuse to haul the oil from the nationalized company?

Could be that the ship captains are more opposed to the nationalization than the government, or it could be the ship captains haven't gotten the word that the British government recognizes the nationalization. More than likely, however, the men of the sea once again will be Britain's ace in the hole.

They'd Better Hunt Another Broom-Pusher

Senator Robert A. Taft has picked a good banner in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952, but in the humble opinion of The Reflector, it will take more than a "house cleaning" platform to get the GOP nomination for the fiery Ohioan, and more votes than the Republican die-hards could muster to elect Taft to the presidency.

Taft is an old line Republican who has been unsuccessful in earlier bids for his party's nomination. He hasn't the support of the more liberal wing of even the Republican party, and the big labor unions would welcome another chance to lop off his political head even though they have not been able to do it in Ohio senatorial elections. Those factors coupled with Taft's legislative record, would make it most difficult to convince the American voters that he is not strictly a big business politician.

The suggestion that the federal government needs a thorough house cleaning is not opposed save by the avid Truman administration supporters. But for a man to champion the house cleaning cause, and bring the voters to the polls, the Republicans had better look for a more popular man than Senator Taft.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Tragic floods in the Middle West, droughts in other farm areas, bumper crops generally and the need for more power facilities for rearmament plants have suddenly made two Denver boys the most politically important members of the Truman Administration, especially if the President wins in 1952. By comparison, Democratic National Chairman Boyle becomes only a cog in the vote-getting machine.

The two are Oscar Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, and Charles F. Brannan, the bald-headed and genial Secretary of Agriculture. As happened in 1948, they are counted on to hold the farm and public lands states, which have more electoral votes for the Democrats than the none too "solid South," no matter who the candidates may be.

The 1952 role, however, has become even more critical because of natural events over which politicians have no sure control—namely, floods, droughts, huge crops and the power shortage in the "cold war" emergency.

All these problems, to a great extent fall under their jurisdiction, and their authority in handling them will enable them to influence many millions of voters.

LEGIONS—With the exception of the Post Office, most of whose employees are now under Civil Service and Hatch Act prohibitions against political activity, Messrs. Chapman and Brannan command the most potentially powerful political legions in the United States.

Mr. Chapman's consists of the 17,000 employees of the Bureau of Reclamation, which is headed by the extremely partisan Commissioner Michael W. Straus. As a smart ex-newspaperman and an Ickes protégé, "Mike" knows—and uses—all the tricks of the ballot-box trade. In fact, he is far more aggressive than his boss, Mr. Chapman.

Mr. Brannan's field force consists of about 90,000 local grass-roots members of advisory committees throughout the nation, which plan, direct and influence production, marketing and pricing policies affecting millions of farmers. These are neighborhood groups, which discuss and settle dollars-and-cents problems with producers in their homes and barns, in the fields, or at community centers, almost every day in the year.

INFLUENCE—Until a few weeks ago, it was thought that these 90,000, part-time, Brannan aides were barred by the Hatch Act from taking any part in politics. But Mr. Brannan's legal advisers have suddenly discovered that, save for the few days when they draw $7 per diem from Uncle Sam, they can "politic" as furiously as National Chairman Boyle and Gabrielson.

The importance of this ruling cannot be underestimated. Operating on the level of ward, precinct and county affairs, this government-paid group can wield tremendous influence. Whichever party has their support should carry the farm states. In 1948 they worked for Mr. Truman out of disgust with the Dewey-Stassen farm program, and they swung the election. These local committees, for instance, decide the amount and allocation of federal payments, which are based on how well individual farmers follow federal standards of liming, fertilizing and other soil conservation practices. In 1950, these payments totalled $265,000,000, and they will amount to $228,000,000 in 1951.

POWER—The members of Mr. Brannan's community committees, of which there are eight to ten in 3,000 counties, are elected by the farmers themselves. They, in turn, elect the county advisory boards, of which there are three members each in 3,000 counties. They are the down-to-earth advisers on the production and marketing program that brings money to farmers.

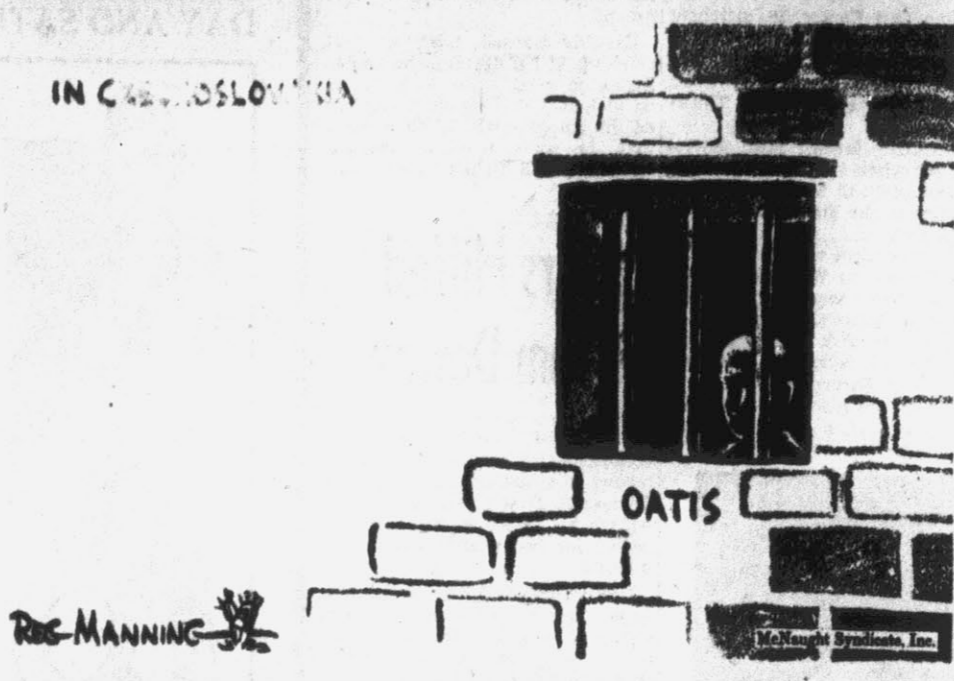

It is the technicality of their election by the farmers which, according to Agriculture's Solicitor, makes them exempt from the Hatch Act, save for the three or four weeks when they actually draw pay from the Treasury.

In view of bumper crops, a possible drop in farm exports and Capitol Hill's reduction of funds for agricultural payments, these local committees should enjoy greater power in 1951 and 1952 than ever before. So, it is not surprising that Secretary Brannan is again the fair-haired boy around the White House.

ELMER, N. J. TIMES: "It is amazing to observe at this late date—34 years after the tragic establishment of Communism in Russia—that the United States Government is fully and amply clothed with constitutional powers to protect itself at all times against the threat of imported anarchy and revolution. The power of the government to defend itself—and the people—against violence and terrorism in no way conflicts with the protections of free speech and free press guaranteed to law-abiding citizens under the Bill of Rights."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I was talking to a Greenville husband about home life. I'll admit that the story can't be nearly as good if I leave his name out, but this is a case of dire necessity. If I printed the name the poor fellow's wife would probably shoot him.

The discussion centered around the duties of the wife in the American home. There were several very important duties that this husband mentioned emphatically:

1. Keep the salt and pepper shakers full.
  2. Keep towels on the racks.
  3. Keep soap in the soap dishes.
- "These three things," he said, "that ruin a man's morale when they aren't taken care of." The next logical step in this discussion was statements on how well the average man upholds his end of the household. Normally,

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYNN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

JOKE—There seems to be a poke on somebody, but it's hard to tell who is the victim. Chambers of commerce, made up of businessmen and maintained by profits from private enterprise usually take the lead in opposing government encroachment and "socialization." This week the state association of chamber of commerce executive is holding its annual convention at Fontana—outstanding example of government in the field of power production and operation of recreation facilities in competition with private enterprise. Looks like funny business.

TRIBUTE—Despite frequent urging to give the flowers while the recipients are alive, most people wait until after death to pay highest tribute to the public services of great men. Last Thursday on the same day and in adjacent communities in North Carolina two state boards recognized the services of living men in appropriate manner. At Willard the state board of agriculture staged a testimonial dinner honoring Dr. Charles Dearing, retiring after 31 years as superintendent of the coastal plains test farm. At the same time the state hospital board of control in session at Goldsboro by formal resolution named the new chapel on the Negro hospital campus the Thomas O'Berry Chapel, in recognition of the contribution made to the cause by Tom O'Berry through years of service in the legislature and as member of the consolidated hospital board since its establishment in 1943.

ECLIPSE—The Astronomical League of the United States is making extensive preparations for viewing the annular eclipse of the sun on September 1 from North Carolina mountain peaks. Main observation site will be Grandfather Mountain, with stations on Mitchell, Clingman and other peaks. The shadow of the moon will cover the sun except for an outer ring all around for a brief time about sunrise in the mountains. According to the state advertising bureau the eclipse should be visible at sunrise and shortly after along a path of about 40 miles from mountains to coast, including the cities of Hickory, Statesville, High Point, Greensboro, Burlington, Durham, Henderson, Roanoke Rapids and others.

POLIO—North Carolina has been relatively free from polio this year, reports up to the past weekend listing 82 cases diagnosed within the past four months. Since peak incidence usually occurs during early and midsummer, there is basis for hope there will be no widespread outbreak of the dread disease during 1951. This prospect is basis for protest registered by the state advertising division against the continued claims sponsored by the state office of the national infantile paralysis foundation that North Carolina is the worst polio state. The advertising bureau bulletin suggests that the Foundation does this year after year in order to boost contributions in the March of Dimes campaign, "completely heedless of the fact that they are needlessly scaring tourists away from North Carolina." It adds that the Foundation later will solicit contributions from the business and resort places they are damaging by this type of publicity.

FACTS—Several years ago at height of the worst polio epidemic in half a century, when North Carolina did seem to be the worst sufferer, the advertising division fully in efforts to get facts publicized. No effort was made to minimize the serious nature of the conditions, but effort was made to prevent "blowing them up" to look worse than they were. Protest was registered then against the method of totaling cases in every report, and incidents were disclosed of the official record carrying three or four cases in some counties in August, when in fact the victims had been released from hospitals without permanent effects of the disease, three months before. Those who cater to tourist and vacation trade doubt that this practice helps in control measures, and they know it is damaging to their business.

CROPS—There are many sections in the state where unfavorable seasons, diseases and insect infestation have cut expected production of crops below earlier estimates. Some farms and communities report enhanced prospects. J. E. Winslow, one of the biggest farm operators in Pitt county, said seasons had been just right on most of his farms and there was more good leaf in his tobacco field Saturday than there was Monday, "despite unusually heavy harvesting during the week."

GRAFT—Glenn Gilmore, member of the state board of agriculture, is as much concerned about graft as Governor Scott or somebody else. Only he is thinking about a different kind of graft. Operator of a big nursery at Julian, Gilmore has long contended for a certification system for bud and graft stock in plants, similar to rules applying to certified seed for field crops and registered livestock. He argues that heritage and environment affect plant life as much as they do animal life, and that the same ill effects are obtained by inbreeding or careless breeding of plants as are found in animals.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

Acheson said that, regardless of the outcome of present armistice negotiations in Korea, the urgent need to prepare the country and the free world against Communist aggression and treachery will not be altered. That is definitely true. It is likewise the part of great wisdom that this country should be ready for a major Communist assault in Korea in event peace talks break down, as they easily could.

It is equally wise that an exact course be charted for this country and that there be general understanding and agreement as to what that shall be. Apparently no such consensus exists now, as is evident from the frantic and always different demands that are being made upon Congress. One request cannot be acted upon until another or others are sent up to Capitol Hill. No one seems to know just what really is required. It is as if a number were pulled out of a hat and whatever that may be somebody asks for its enactment by Congress. Such procedure does not build confidence in the national administration on the part of the people of the country.

Business Today

One of the things furniture dealers and other retailers have to contend with is the decline in new housing starts. Bureau of Labor Statistics show that 574,500 non-farm dwelling units were started in the first six months of this year, compared with 705,700 in the first six months of 1950. It was planned that way by the authors of government restrictions on housing credit.

Another thing retailers are confronted with is that the long-range trend is toward smaller houses, which means that less furniture and furnishings are required.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency has just released data on a survey of single-family detached houses built in the first half of 1950. The trend to smaller houses is clearly shown in comparison with a survey of housing built in 1939 and 1940.

In 1950, only 14 per cent of the new homes were more than one story. Ten years earlier, 33 per cent were two or more stories. In 1950, only 36 per cent had basements. In 1940, slightly more than half had basements.

In 1950, half the houses had four rooms, almost all the rest had five or six rooms. In 1940, only 22 per cent were of four rooms, almost half had five rooms and the rest, some 26 per cent, had six or more rooms.

The average 1950 home had 980 square feet of floor area. Ten years earlier, the average new home had more than 1,100 square feet.

Of course, the number of housing units being built this year, even under credit restrictions, is much greater than in 1940. In that year, 603,000 units were started, very few more than were started in only half of this year. Each new housing unit is a new market for furniture dealers but, alas, each new house is a smaller market.

The fewer basements mean fewer new markets for rumpus room furniture and the like. The fewer rooms mean that each new home is a smaller market for furniture and furnishings; the lesser floor space means that each new home is a smaller market for floor covering. Smaller houses have already had an impact on the furniture and home furnishing market. It has contributed to the

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—My entire life has been changed. It took me five years of contemplation and people said I was crazy. They told me not to do it, but I built a home.

Or rather, I got a builder to build it on my own little half-acre 40-odd miles out on Long Island on the former, Otto Kahn estate—now known as Cold Spring Hills.

This, however, is not a complaint, even though people still continuously warn me about the Long Island Railroad, the biggest little railroad in the world. Thus far, I don't have too many complaints about the LIRR, but I've been riding it only a few weeks.

A country boy who moved into the city, I decided maybe the country wasn't so bad after all, and six years ago my wife Vi and I picked out our own plot of ground.

We paid our taxes every year, except one time when the bill got shoved back in a seldom-used drawer. Every so often we would drive out and admire our hunk of woods, occupied by some 40 oak trees, a couple of birches and poison ivy.

About 14 months ago, we decided it was time. We became more friendly with a University of Michigan graduate who came close to winning a national contest in architecture last winter.

Maybe if we hadn't bothered him so much about the plans for our six-room ranch house he would have won it. Anyway, he promised the plans would be under our Christmas tree. Christmas Day, we looked. No plans.

Two weeks later, after several long conferences with Vi and some changes here and there, he gave us the blueprints and said: "Here's your headache. I hate to do this because I think I've just lost two friends. You'll be calling me all kinds of names."

He was wrong, though. I find that I'm just able to climb the 80-foot driveway on a 25 per cent incline after an hour's ride on the Long Island, that there are two ways to get into the house through the cellar and three or four other ways without breaking any windows.

It took Vi a year to get her ideas on paper, cut out paper models of the furniture to scale and find contractors and sub-contractors to swear she'd get the kind of materials she wanted.

It wasn't the architect's fault that she forgot a light in the cellar lavatory or one in the attic where we store a few of our collected after 18 years of married life. He followed her ideas to the inch.

The location is grand even if nobody knows people live in our house. It's hidden behind oak trees. They're 100 years old but taking them down would mean a lawn which means a power lawn mower and plenty of muscle. But that's just a minor detail.

First day in I had to erect a medicine cabinet in the cellar lavatory so I could shave. The medicine cabinet in the bathroom is in, but there's no basin. Shortages it seems.

In some places the painter put more brush on the window panes than on the woodwork. He didn't miss the doorknobs either, but he did miss a radiator cover completely and several strips of moulding.

The electric light over the wash tubs doesn't work, but the cellar radio plays well. We're out too far to get good television reception and there's too much static. (Editor's note: The Ecks now get fine TV reception—without static—thanks to the TV repairman. Seems the Ecks inadvertently had hooked up their lead-in wire to an insulated part of the aerial.)

During the summer there's a pump at the water pumping station that beats and beats. For the first week Vi thought it was her heart kicking up again. I thought it was the drummer at the local military academy band until we learned that he only works—out on Saturdays.

On Sunday we drive five miles for the newspapers. We're about three miles from the super markets. We've been thinking of growing vegetables, but then why should we? Our neighbors for acres around have been giving us string beans and beets every day and about six miles away is a farmer's market where you can get a wash basket of corn for 35 cents.

WASHINGTON LETTER
By SIGRID ARNE
(For Jane Lane)
WASHINGTON—Kitchen hot? Hate getting dinner?
Look at what the ladies of 150 years ago were up against. You can get some idea from the directions for baking, found by the women who are restoring Kenmore in Fredericksburg, Va. That was the home of George Washington's only sister, Betty. She was Mrs. Fielding Lewis.
It's doubtful Mrs. Lewis ever stood over Kenmore's ovens, but somebody had to. And here are the "cooking hints" they followed:
"Ovens should be heated with light dry wood. Chestnut is best. You may substitute pine. It must be split up small; not a stick being left thicker than your wrist."
"The oven wood should be all ready the evening before it is wanted for baking, that the oven may be heated early. In putting in the wood place it near the door of the oven (for there the draught is strongest) and lay the sticks across each other in a square pile, as children do when they play at building houses."
"Put in sufficient wood at once, for instance an armful. The door of the oven must be left open the time the fire is burning. Kindle the wood with some live coals and waste paper. After it has been burning well for about a quarter of an hour, with a long stick push the fire back towards the centre of the oven, and stir and quicken it."
"When the coals look dull and whitish remove them from the oven with a large shovel. Next, take a long stick to one end of which is fastened a coarse wet cloth, and wipe out the floor of the oven. Then let it rest for about five minutes."
"To try the heat, throw in a piece of paper, and if it burns instantly, the oven is too hot. You must wait a little longer."
"The things to be baked should be ready for the oven when the oven is hot. You must have a peel, or long-handled wooden shovel to slip under them when you set them in or take them out. As soon as they are in, shut closely the door of the oven."
"Pies and large loaf-cakes (except gingerbread which burns easily) require a hotter oven than bread."
"It is best to bake the bread by itself. If the loaves contain a quarter of a peck of flour each, they will require two hours at least to bake."

Navy Denies It Has Surplus Oyster Forks

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy has rolled out its big guns and boomed a haughty denial that it has 123,000,000 useless oyster forks. An admiral said there are only 128,084.

But the Navy doesn't want to sell them because all the silver plating is peeling off. And what would souvenir collectors think if the official USN stamp came off while gulping oysters?

The Navy's oyster fork stockpile was a little too much for a House appropriations subcommittee. Secret testimony released today showed that it took Rear Adm. Charles W. Fox, chief of supply, the better part of a day to explain:

1. How the Navy got stuck with the forks in the first place.

2. What oyster forks are doing in the war emergency reserve.

Fox started squirming when Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.) said he had heard the Navy owns 11,000,000 dozen oyster forks. A gross exaggeration, Fox said. He gave the correct figure as 10,693 dozen.

But the admiral added unhelpfully, 10,422 dozen of these are useless. They were bought in 1942 and the silver plate on a wartime alloy proved "unsatisfactory."

"The procurement of this entire lot of silver was a waste of money," Fox said candidly. The forks cost 18 1/2 cents each.

"How essential is an oyster fork to the Navy?" Mahon demanded.

Really not essential at all, Fox replied. As a matter of fact, he told the subcommittee, the Navy has just eliminated oyster forks from its list of essential equipment in time of "emergency."

Teen-Ager Loses To Death In Game Of 'Roulette'

CHARLOTTE (UP)—A pretty 14-year-old blonde high school student gambled with death in a game of "Russian roulette" and lost her life, coroner Dr. W.M. Summerville said today.

The victim was identified as Sandra Lane Cleveland, daughter of A.J. Cleveland Jr., operator of a dry cleaning establishment. She was found on her father's bed, a .32-caliber revolver beside her and a bullet hole in her forehead.

Sandra's nine-year-old brother, A.J. Cleveland III, discovered the body yesterday. The girl had gone into the room to make up her father's bed.

Summerville said there was no reason to believe that the girl took her life deliberately. He said she was happy and in a good frame of mind.

The attractive teenager apparently took all the bullets but one from the revolver, spun the chamber, put the barrel to her forehead and pulled the trigger, Summerville said. The other bullets were stacked in a neat pile on the bed.

Tobacco Shipping Prices To Change

RALEIGH (UP)—Tobacco shipments by rail will cost less and railway express shipments will cost more in North Carolina next week.

The State Utilities Commission issued an order today allowing railroads to cut their rates for carload shipments of unmanufactured tobacco within the state. A hearing will be held Aug. 22 into protests by motor carriers.

The commission also allowed a 80 cent increase in the minimum rates charged by the Railway Express Agency. Company officials estimated the increase would raise annual revenue about $68,248. A similar increase for shipments between states was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission in May.

WAF Recruiting Officer To Talk To Local Women

In an effort to increase the strength of the WAF—Women in the Air Force—a WAF recruiter will be in Greenville next Tuesday to discuss the Air Force program with women in this area.

Last month orders from the Defense Department went out calling for 40,000 additional women to apply for duty with the WAF between now and next summer. The action, which would increase the present strength by approximately seven times, would result in an ultimate strength of about 4,000 officers and 44,000 enlisted women.

The increase directive from the Department of Defense was designed to get as many women enlisted in the WAF in order that more men could be released from their present duty assignments.

Commenting on the WAF recruiter's work here, Sgt. Donald Selbert and Guy Foster, local recruiters for Army and Air Force, stated the Air Force offers many opportunities for young women to continue their education and to learn interesting skills.

"A few of the positions now being held by WAFs are those of weather technician, draftsmen, supply clerks and photo laboratory technicians," they said. "For these and many other specialties the Air Force provides extensive training which gives a young enlistee the opportunity to rise through the ranks to positions of leadership."

The WAF recruiter will be located at the local recruiting office all day for the purpose of answering questions concerning the present training program. The office is located in the Post Office on the second floor.

The proposed movement for regional planning in Pitt and adjoining counties, which was presented in a meeting of representatives from Greenville, Farmville, Rocky Mount, Kinston, Washington, Grifton and other towns in the area, held in Greenville July 20, was discussed at the meeting of the Farmville Kiwanis Club by F. Badger Johnson, President, and Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

President Johnson stressed the value of area cooperation in planning for further industrial development on an area basis, and the handling of important matters which will accompany such development. He stated that as authorized at the Greenville meeting, all communities will at an early date be asked to participate in furthering the movement by representation on an area committee.

He further stressed the fact that the program is in a formative stage, but that similar action in other areas in the country have produced impressive results.

After outlining the possibilities of development through such a program, Manager W. T. Kyzer reviewed the problems which will accompany it as being need for expansion of housing, utilities, schools, and transportation, and the labor supply as well as use of productive farm lands for plant sites.

The first steps in carrying out such a program, he stated, are to determine, what do we have? what do we want? how do we do it? and who does what?

The end results are better job opportunities for youth, increased income for more people, expanded markets for farmers, and greater civic, cultural and educational advantages for the area.

Cargo Ships Will Carry Nicknames Of Some States

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new marine class cargo ships being built for the government will carry the nicknames of various states.

Vice Admiral E. L. Cochran, head of the maritime administration, announced today the names of the first 14 mariners. Contracts have been let for the building of 35 of the 20-knot, 12,000-ton vessels.

The keystone mariner, named in honor of Pennsylvania, will be the first of the new class of ships to be launched. The vessel is scheduled for launching early next year at the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., Chester, Pa., and will be in service by mid-1952.

Other ships which so far have been given names and the states they will honor include: Old Dominion Mariner, Virginia; Tar Heel Mariner, North Carolina.

The increase directive from the Department of Defense was designed to get as many women enlisted in the WAF in order that more men could be released from their present duty assignments.

Promotions For Two Policemen

Police Chief Guy C. Langston yesterday announced the promotion of two members of the police department to the rank of sergeant. They are Thomas E. Gadsdon and William M. Carr.

Gadsdon is traffic sergeant and Carr is desk sergeant. Gadsdon has been on the force nine years and has an excellent record. At the spring police school he averaged 96.7 in his tests.

Carr has been on the Greenville police force a year. Previous to joining the force he was a construction foreman for the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company. He averaged 90.3 in his tests at the spring police school.

The chief also announced the appointment of a new member of the police force. He is Sam McLawhorn, 25, of Stokes. He started work last midnight.

The chief also announced appointment of Samuel Wright McLawhorn as patrolman on the police force. The new officer started work last night.

"McLawhorn's record is excellent," Langston said, "and he has unusual talents to qualify as a police officer."

McLawhorn is from the Winterville community. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLawhorn. He is married to the former Miss Madeline Boyd of near Greenville. McLawhorn will be in the motorcycle squad. He succeeds Johnny Mobley.

Famed 'Little Blue Book' Publisher Drowned Today

GIARAD, Kas. (UP)—Emanuel Haldeman-Julius, famed "Little Blue Books" publisher recently convicted of income tax evasion, drowned accidentally in the swimming pool of his palatial home, a coroner ruled today.

The body of the 62-year-old publisher, clad in swimming trunks, was discovered last night by his wife in the pool of their large country home on the outskirts of Giard.

Firemen worked for an hour trying to revive him but were unsuccessful. His wife said she saw him about an hour before she discovered the body. He told her then he planned to take a swim, she said.

Sheriff Elmer Kneebone said there was no evidence of suicide. An autopsy substantiated his opinion.

Haldeman-Julius gained prominence as the first publisher to print low-cost books for mass circulation. The "Little Blue Books" were read by millions and became internationally known.

For the most part they were classics on which the copyright had expired. Their five-cent price and huge newspaper advertising campaigns skyrocketed sales soon after the books were introduced in the early 1920's. The price was raised to a dime during World War II.

He was sentenced last April to six months in prison and fined $12,000 for reporting an income of only $17,000 in 1945 and 1947 when his actual income was shown to be $84,000.

Begin Operating New Business

WILKEBORO (AP)—Farmers in northwestern North Carolina officially began operating their own business today—a $1,000,000 milk co-operative.

The co-operative is already a going concern. The purchase of the Coble Dairy plant here, along with three milk receiving stations, was completed yesterday by officials of the Yadkin Valley Dairy co-operative.

Paul Burch, Mountain Park dairy farmer, is president of the recently organized co-operative. A native Tar Heel, Claude B. Wells, Jr., will be general manager.

May Have 'Roving Judge' In State

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Congress passes a bill recommended Monday by the Senate Judiciary Committee, North Carolina will have a "roving" federal judge.

Sen. Hoyt of North Carolina said yesterday that a survey by the committee showed there are sufficient cases in the state to warrant another judgeship, even though U. S. District Judge E. Yates Webb of Shelby and Asheville, continues to conduct hearing in spite of his retirement.

The state now has three judges, one each for the east, middle and west districts.

Bob Feller Hurls Indians To 5-3 Victory Over Senators

Indians Gain On Idle New Yorkers

Feller Regaining Old Form As He Leads Tribe To Victory; Red Sox Drop 8-6 Encounter To St. Louis

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Staff Writer

Bobby Feller's proudest moments in baseball may be just ahead today because the incomparable Cleveland righthander is pitching at the same lustrous level as in 1928 and 1940, the two greatest years of his career.

Feller, No. 1 winner in the majors with 18 victories and only four defeats, gained his latest triumph last night, 5 to 3, over the Senators in Washington, putting the Indians within two games of the idle Yankees and a full game ahead of the Red Sox, who were defeated, 8 to 6 by the lowly Browns.

The one-time Iowa plowboy, whose fireball made him the greatest pitcher in the majors in the decade before World War II, no longer has that zip in his grip, but he's winning more consistently now than ever. For in 1940, when he had his top year in the majors with 27 wins and 11 defeats, his mark on Aug. 1 was 17-6, giving him a better percentage as of now. And in 1930, the year in which he wound up with his top winning percentage of 34-9, he had a mark of 15-6 as of this date.

Last night's victory which came when the Indians put over three runs in the ninth inning, was especially significant because it put Feller in the books officially as Cleveland's all-time top hurler. It was his 224th triumph, topping the club's previous all-time high of 223 set by Mel Harder, now a Cleveland coach, between 1930 and 1947. Feller has won his games in the much more short span of 1934-1951 counting over three full years for navy service.

Feller gave up eight hits and when he went out for a pinch-hitter, Mike Garcia protected his margin. Bobby Avila's single produced the two marginal runs.

At Boston, the Browns roared up with four runs in the eighth to clinch the victory for reliever Satchel Paige, who went to the rescue of ace Ned Garver who pulled a leg muscle in the fifth. The Red Sox protested the victory because they claimed Paige's famed "hesitation pitch" constituted a balk motion with runners on base. Two of the Browns runs came home on a wild throw by Billy Goodman.

In the only other American League game, the skidding White Sox lost their 10th decision in the last 11, and fell 7 1-2 games behind the pace, dropping a 4 to 3 game to the Athletics.

In the National League, Brooklyn won its 10th game in a row as Don Newcombe won his ninth straight and his 15th of the season, 5 to 3 from Pittsburgh, while the second-place Giants stayed 1-3 games back by topping the Cubs, 4 to 3. Rookie Chet Nichols of the Braves blanked the Cardinals, 6 to 0, on four hits, and the Phillies made six runs in the ninth, three on a homer by Del Ennis, to defeat Cincinnati 7 to 5.

Lefty Alex Kellner limited the White Sox to seven hits while ex-Chicagoan Hank Majesi hit a home run, triple and single to set the hitting tempo against his old mates.

Newcombe delivered a triple and two singles while Carl Furillo and Duke Snider also made three hits each in the Brooklyn victory. Snider and Peeves Reese hit Dodger homers.

Bobby Thomson drove in all the Giant runs with a pair of homers to furnish the edge for Jim Hearn's 10th victory in Chicago. Hank Sauer hit a homer for the losers.

Earl Torgerson made the only extra-base hits of the game, a homer and a double in young Nichols' triumph at St. Louis. It was his fifth victory and his second shutout. He walked only two batters.

The Phillies made their victory stand on four walks and four hits. In addition to the homer by Ennis, Andy Beninick hit a scoring double he also delivered a home run earlier. Hank Edwards homered and also hit a double and single in his outfield debut for the Reds.

Sawyer, fed up, called a 20-minute clubhouse session last night, just before the Phils-Reds game, and told the boys in plain talk exactly what he expected of them henceforth.

Nine of Eddie's athletes jogged onto the field in mixed mood. For eight innings one might have said the tongue-lashing had served only to depress the Phils, if not actually to give them an inferiority complex. Howie Fox, the Cincinnati pitcher, was breathing along with a 5 to 1 lead. Then, as if suddenly remembering the boss had his dander up, the Phils spurred with six runs in the ninth and took the game from the stunned Reds 7 to 5.

Big Entry From Chapel Hill For AAU Swim Meet

WILSON—The Chapel Hill Swimming Club will probably set a new attendance record for number of entries in the Southern AAU Swimming meet here this week.

Bob Ousley, coach of the Chapel Hill team and assistant swimming coach at the University of North Carolina, announced today that it will enter 50 swimmers in the meet.

The three-day event opens here Thursday night with a beauty pageant. The competition in the water events will begin Friday afternoon and will close Saturday night.

Among the Chapel Hill swimmers will be Jimmy Thomas, North Carolina University's All-American swim star and holder of several American AAU records. Another outstanding swimmer wearing the Chapel Hill colors will be Susan Fink who holds many Carolinas AAU backstroke records.

Highlight of the swimming meet will be the National Junior Women's AAU 400 meter free style relay. More than 300 swimmers will compete in this year's swimming meet making it the largest ever held in the south.

Eighteen teams from throughout the United States will send swimmers. Any United States swimmer is eligible to take part if he is approved by the Amateur Athletic Union since this is an open event.

The scene of the swimming meet will be Wilson's Municipal Swimming Pool. The sponsors of the event are the Wilson Jaycees and the Wilson Department of Recreation and Parks.

Sawyer Rears At Lagging Phillies

CINCINNATI (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer has laid down the law to his lagging Philadelphia Phillies—and it all adds up to a new and uncompromising austerity program for last year's National League champions.

To say the 1935 Phils have been a disappointment to their fans is to put it charitably. The team simply hasn't had the same old spark and hustle and "we-can't-miss" spirit.

At times the players have seemed to be at cross purposes. Rumors persisted that there were bickering and bad feeling within, perhaps worse.

Sawyer, fed up, called a 20-minute clubhouse session last night, just before the Phils-Reds game, and told the boys in plain talk exactly what he expected of them henceforth.

Play Lejeune

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Red Sox will play Camp Lejeune's Marines tonight in Camp Lejeune.

The Marines played Ormondsville in Farmville earlier in the season and a large crowd was impressed with the fine play of such players as Harry Agganus, former Boston College All-American. The Camp Lejeune team is coached by Bill Shea, former New York Yankee.

Celler States 'Majors In East Only Is Intolerable'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Celler (D-N.Y.) of a House Judiciary subcommittee investigating organized baseball said today that having major leagues only in the eastern states is "intolerable."

"There must be changes," he told newsmen. "And I'm going to insist on it. We can't have this iron-clad system forever."

The committee, trying to determine whether baseball should be exempt from anti-trust laws, looked today to two minor league spokesmen for further information (9 a.m. EST).

They are Harry Simmons, public relations man for the International League, and George Trautman, president of the minor leagues' National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs.

Celler's blast today was touched off by the testimony yesterday of Ford Frick, National League president, regarding the rejection of major league status to the Pacific Coast League.

Frick explained to the committee that the major league agreement specified that there shall be two major leagues.

And this would have to be changed by a vote of the club owners, he said, if any other league were to succeed in joining big time.

The National and the American—the only two major leagues—operate east of the Mississippi. West Coast teams and clubs in the Pacific Coast League are urging expansion of big time ball in their direction.

Frick pointed out that the minor leagues also would have to change their rules before any existing loop could make a bid for major rating.

Former Receiver Wants Brownies

HARLINGEN, TEX. (UP)—Rollie Hensley, for 19 years a catcher in the major leagues, said today he'd like to get back into the big circuit, this time as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Hensley, now manager of Texas City in the Class B Gulf Coast League, confirmed he had applied for the job "as soon as Bill Veck (new Brown owner) said there'd be some changes made up there."

Hensley, a dead, though, that so far he hasn't received a word from Veck.

Play Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Swedish Helsingborg Football Club has accepted a financial guarantee from the Singapore Amateur Football Association to play three games in Singapore in November. The Swedes will receive first class accommodation as part of the contract. They will also play two matches in principal towns of the Federation of Malaya also with a financial guarantee.

Joe Louis Takes On Cesar Brion On Come-Back Trail

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Aging Joe Louis, a prohibitive favorite, takes another step in his comeback campaign here tonight as he battles Cesar Brion, the pride of the Argentine, in a return bout scheduled for 10 rounds.

A near-sell-out crowd of 15,000 fans is expected to pay about $75,000 to watch the bout. The battle will not be aired on either radio or television.

Southpaw Golfers To Enter Semi-Finals In Play Today

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—(AP)—The National Left-handers' Golf Tournament goes into quarterfinal and semifinal match play today assured of a new champion. But the most expert guesser would hesitate to pick him out of the eight survivors from a starting field of 95.

Winners of this afternoon's semifinal meet in a 36-hole match for the title tomorrow afternoon.

Second and third round play threw the race wide open by eliminating one co-medalist and two former champions, who had, between them, won the crown five of the 16 times it has been up for competition.

The biggest upset was scored by Ken Mast, 25-year-old Bluffton, O. college coach. Mast upset defending champion Bomb Buchanan of Indianapolis in the third round, 3 and 2.

The other ex-champ to bow out was Alvin Everett of Rome, Ga., a three-time winner. Everett was an easy 6 and 4 second-round conquest for Jim Bartell, Jr. of Tarentum, Pa. Bartell then lost his afternoon match to Jim Dezern of Durham, N. C., 4 and 3.

Jack Walters of Tacoma, Washington State Open champ and runner-up in last year's Left-handers Tourney, sidled co-medalist Dick Linn of York, Pa. One up in the second round and then went 21 holes for another one-up decision from Bob Malone of Fort Worth, Tex.

Co-medalist Ross Collins of Monticello, Ark., turned in a pair of lopsided victories—6 and 5 over Herb Heinlein of Indiana, Pa. and 6 and 4 over Herman Wyman of St. Louis. In addition to Mast, Dezern, Walters and Collins, the remaining players include:

Fred Blackmar of Luling, Tex., 18-year-old champion of the Texas Southpaw Golfers and winner yesterday over Chuck Funk of Latrobe, Pa., 3 and 2, and Norman James of Hickory, N. C., 8 and 7.

Dick Savitt And Don Candy Meet

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J. (UP)—Top-seeded Dick Savitt meets Don Candy of Australia today and Sid Schwartz of Brooklyn, who scored the first major upset, opposes Frank Sedgman, another Australian, in the featured third-round matches of the Eastern grass courts tennis championships.

Savitt eliminated Bill Tully of New Rochelle, N. Y., 6-2, 6-0, yesterday while Schwartz surprised the gallery by defeating seventh-seeded Earl Cochell of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Second-seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, who faced Paul Remy of France today, scored a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Bill Lurie of Brooklyn in his second round match. Veterans Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Billy Talbert of New York also gained the third round.

Frick pointed out that the minor leagues also would have to change their rules before any existing loop could make a bid for major rating.

Third Round Of Play In National

KALAMAZOO, Mich.—(AP)—The National Junior and Boys Tennis Championships moved into the third round of play today with the top-seeded stars still on hand.

"Stop Bob Perry" was the cry. The Los Angeles youth, Western Junior Champion and No. 1 seeded in the Nationals, has lost only three games thus far. Yesterday he scuttled Bobby Payne of Richmond, Va., 6-0, 6-0.

Both fighters have predicted victories, but the bettors believe in the Louis who ruled the world's heavyweights for 11 years. One betting emporium said the odds were "about" 12-1, but there was very little action.

Louis whipped Brion, winning a 10-round decision in a meeting in Chicago six months ago. This time the Brown Bomber expects to win by a kayo; Brion has predicted a victory for himself by decision.

The former champion, who has been worried about his weight being down as low as 204, hopes to enter the ring weighing around 210 Brion will pack about 195 pounds.

Brion enters the ring with an American record of 24 fights. He has won 20 of these, 10 by knockouts. Of the four defeats he has suffered by decision, he has won the only two rematches.

Louis thinks this is an important step on his comeback campaign and a return shot at the crown he wore so long.

"I probably won't get that chance until next January, at least," says Joe, "but in the meantime, I've got to keep on winning."

When it is all over the club's new owner hopes he will have a winning team.

Chief move in the eight-player affair was the shift of outfielder Ray Coleman to the Chicago White Sox—on waivers.

The rest of the picture showed pitcher Dick Starr going to the Washington Senators on waivers; hurler Lou Sleater and shortstop Tommy Upton to the Kansas City Blues on option; infielder Kermit Wahl and pitcher Bobby Hogue to Kansas City in an outright sale. Coming in are outfielder Cliff Mages from the New York Yankees and pitcher Fred Sanford from the Senators—both via the waiver route.

This leaves the club four men below the 25-player limit, allowing room for more shuffling.

Veck Reshuffles St. Louis Browns

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Bill Veck has put a lot of hustle into the St. Louis Browns—at least players are hustling to catch trains.

Six players have left the club in two days. Two are coming in.

When it is all over the club's new owner hopes he will have a winning team.

Tam O'Shanter Is Golfers' Largest

CHICAGO (UP)—Golf's little man, the average pro, got a chance at the big money today, but his hopes to win any major prize in Tam O'Shanter's annual All American open were pretty slim.

A field of 156 pros got under way in the qualifying round of 18 holes for the annual scramble, but only the 24 low scorers and ties will get a chance to go on when the money rounds open Thursday.

Then the field will be expanded by exempt players, including all the big names of the game, plus a lot of other pros never heard from before.

They'll play for first money of $2,500 of the total prize list of $15,000. It was better than an even 5-1 that stars such as Sam Snead, Bobby Locke, Lloyd Mangrum and Alister Hoggie will knock down most of the sizeable checks.

Yesterday Babe Didrikson Zahar, Chicago, and Helen Detweiler, Indio, Cal., both professional women veterans, slapped out 74's to cut two strokes off the feminine par and Patsy Berg, Minneapolis, came in with a one-under-par 75 in the qualifying round of the women's open.

Most of the rest of the women posted taller from 80 upward before the sponsors decided to call off the whole thing and pass the full field of 30 into Thursday's first round of the "for keeps" event.

Ezzard Charles And Joe Walcott Meet For 'Bout'

NEW YORK (UP)—Ezzard Charles was expected to triumph over champion Jersey Joe Walcott today in their dispute over the date for a return heavyweight title fight.

Backed by "about 10,000 letters from clergymen and other youth-moulders," Pappy Walcott wants to delay their return but until next summer so that he can "deliver the message of a clean life to the nation's youngsters."

But backed by a contract providing for a return bout before Oct. 16, ex-champ Charles insisted that Jersey Joe carry out the terms of his agreement.

Their managers were slated to make their arguments before promoter Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club today at a secret hurdle here.

Norris admitted he would not try to force Walcott into a quick defense, in case the Charles outfit unexpectedly agreed to a delay.

In such case Norris would be ready to substitute a featherweight title fight between champion Sandy Saddler and ex-champ Willie Pep at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 28.

May we suggest a Sitting?

No doubt about it—you'll make a mighty handsome picture in a strapping new '51 Buick.

But it isn't the way you look, but the way you feel that's really important.

We'd like you to discover a Buick's ease and comfort, a Buick's power and performance, a Buick's steadiness and control—just to see if maybe you have been missing a travel treat.

We'd like you to discover what a valve-in-head engine, as Buick builds it—gingered with Fireball combustion—can mean in pulse-pounding thrill and in big miles-per-gallon figures.

We'd like you to learn what coil springs on all four wheels—not just in front—can do in the matter of smoothing a rough road and keeping you on an ever-level keel.

We'd like you to see what generous roadweight and a rigid torque-tube mean in solid steadiness of ride—what Dynaflo Drive* does for you in downright comfort and convenience—what a breeze it is to handle so big and roomy and impressive a car.

Most of all, we'd like you to note the easy-to-take price tags our cars wear—what a whale of a lot more automobile you get for your money in today's Buicks than you'll get elsewhere.

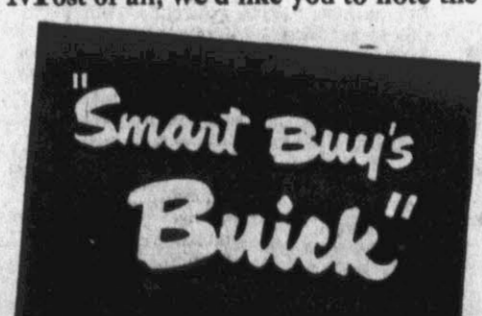

So—come in for a sitting soon, won't you? Whether you try a SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER, you'll find it the top buy in its field—and a beauty from any angle.

Tells Russians Their Own Government Is To Blame

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison told the Russian people through their own press today that their government must take the blame for the East-West split.

His full statement and a reply to it occupied five columns of the official Communist newspaper Pravda. Pravda's reply said in short there was "not a grain of truth" to Morrison's charge.

The unprecedented exchange resulted from Morrison's challenge in a London address June 13 for Pravda to give space in its columns to the British viewpoint. Pravda accepted the challenge June 28 on condition its reply appear in the British press.

(All London morning newspapers gave prominence to the unique exchange of views. Four printed Pravda's complete text.)

Moscow citizens enroute to work clustered around at least a thousand bulletin boards to read Morrison's words in the posted editions of Pravda. They read the small print quietly and passed on.

Morrison was assured of an audience of millions in the Communist world. Pravda, unquestionably the most important Communist newspaper, has a circulation running into the millions. It is read by additional millions on public bulletin boards, in libraries and in factory clubrooms.

Morrison emphasized British civil freedoms, denied the West was preparing a new war, and explained the reason for the West's defense program.

"You are told we are warmongers," he declared to the Russian readers, that in alliance with the other countries of Western Europe and the United States, we are arming to the teeth to attack the Soviet Union. . . This is not true, none of it is true. . .

"Why is it then that we have considered it necessary to build up our strength and to devote so much of our national resources to rearmament when we would rather devote them to improving the standard of living of all of us?"

"To be frank with you, it is because of the policy which has been pursued by the Soviet government since the end of the war. At the end of the war, we had hoped that the wartime cooperation between the great powers would continue and become strengthened in peace. We expected and strove for cooperation with you in the United Nations. But alas, our hopes were disappointed."

In a discourse on Britons' freedom from arbitrary arrest, Morrison declared:

"British citizens are not removed from their homes. They are not deported. They are not sent to labor camps. If there is a knock at the door in the early morning, there is no fear that it is the police."

Pravda replied that "in no country is there such freedom of speech, freedom of the press or personal freedom, freedom of organizations for workers, farmers, intellectuals, as in the Soviet Union."

Pravda declared, however, that freedoms guaranteed in the Soviet Union do not exist for "enemies of the people, for the landlords and capitalists overthrown by the revolution. Nor does it exist for incorrigible thieves, for subversive agents, terrorists and assassins sent in by foreign secret services."

"The prisons and labor camps exist for these gentlemen and for them only."

Pravda called again for a big power peace pact, reduction of armaments, outlawing of the atom bomb and a ban on war propaganda.

A year ago yesterday, highest temperature here was 92 degrees. Lowest that night, 72, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 77. No rain that day.

A year ago today, an inch and a quarter of rain fell in the Greenville area.

Loses Painting Battle For South

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Addison Thompson's paintbrush battle for "the honor and glory of the South" was cut short by Judge Jewell Spurling.

Police discovered Thompson painting "Vote Dixiecrat" on the Elysian Fields Ave. overpass before dawn.

"Do you have a permit to paint these signs?" asked Judge Spurling.

"No," Thompson said, "but I'm fighting for a loyal and just cause, the honor and glory of the South."

"There are legal ways to do that," Spurling said. "I find you guilty . . . $15 fine."

Terms Low Bids As Satisfactory

RALEIGH (AP)—State Highway Engineer W. R. Rogers, Jr., today termed as "generally satisfactory" the low bids opened yesterday on 53 road improvements in 45 counties.

Rogers said the low bids, totaling $6,140,179.99, were $297,620.01 below the commission's estimates.

He added that "there were indications of a general reduction in prices from the previous two lettings." Of the 53 projects, 29 will be financed under the $200,000,000 bond issue program.

The Girl Next Door

By Peggy Gaddis

AP News Service

Chapter 17

Bowling along the road that brief mile to Peter's home, Betsy wished she could think of some way to prolong the drive.

"Marcia's a grand person, isn't she?"

"Wonderful." The tone of Peter's voice made the word a paean of praise. In fact, it was said with such simple conviction, such sincerity, that Betsy blinked a little.

"Look here, pal, you aren't getting crazy ideas about Marcia, are you?" she demanded.

"Can't a man admire a grand girl like Marcia without falling in love with her?"

"I don't know," said Betsy, her voice shaking a little. "You tell me!"

"Wouldn't I be a pretty fool to allow myself to fall in love with any woman—let alone one as beautiful and desirable as Marcia Elton?"

"Allow? Who ever heard of anybody allowing himself to fall in love?" she demanded. "I don't believe anybody really wants to fall in love. It's just one of those things. You go along all peaceful and happy and minding your own business—and then boom! There you are—head over your own business—and then there's misery! And there isn't one single thing you can do about it!"

"The Voice of Experience" he chided her, and tried to match her attempt at flippancy. "You certainly make being in love sound like a wonderful experience."

"Being in love is ghastly, and I hate it. I wish I could stop. That's the plain, unadorned, concentrated devilishness of it—you can't stop!"

Peter looked startled and sorry. Betsy looked at him. "I've had years of experience," she told Peter after a moment. "I've been in love since I was twelve!"

Peter looked slightly annoyed. "You don't know the first thing about love."

"Bo Norris thinks I'm grown up enough to marry him, and maybe I will!" she announced with a calmness that surprised her.

But the look that flashed across Peter's face was the most cruel blow she had ever received. It was one of acute relief! Peter was glad she was going to marry Bo!

"Bo Norris, eh?" he was saying now. "Well, that's great, Betsy. Bo's a grand guy! Congratulations. I'll send you a set of solid silver pickleforks for your wedding present."

"And I'll take good care of them, and send them back to you when you and Marcia get married," Betsy said through her teeth.

"I'm afraid you'll keep 'em for life, then, Betsy. For the Lord's sake, do you suppose I'd ask any woman to share the sort of life I lead?" he burst out savagely.

"She'd like it—if she loved you."

"But Marcia" not in love with me."

"No, I suppose not," Betsy agreed with perfect sincerity. "But she'll marry you like a flash if you want her to."

"That's enough!" snapped Peter. "Well, don't snap my head off, Betsy protested, with some heat. "Marcia's ambitious. She's—well, she's glamorous and all that, but she's practical, too. She hasn't any money, and she needs a lot of it to go on studying to be a great singer."

Suddenly Peter laughed. It wasn't a very pleasant laugh, and his face looked tired.

"Betsy, my sweet," he said dryly, "we're a couple of fools. Here we sit arguing and throwing brick-bats at each other, and all because of a woman who would laugh her head off if she so much as suspected I'm in love with her."

"Then you are in love with her," Peter nodded. "Now go ahead and laugh."

"I'm laughing fit to kill," she said at last, in a voice so low that Peter could scarcely distinguish the words.

"You should be, Betsy. It's very amusing," he said bitterly.

He fumbled for the catch of the car door, and swung it open.

Gus, alert since the moment the car had stopped, was already on the sidewalk as Peter climbed out of the car. Gus pressed against him, and Peter, in a moment of rare annoyance with the dog, said sharply, "Hang it, stop shoving me!"

"Stop shouting at him!" Betsy blazed. "Gus has been trained to be of service to the one he loves—and that happens to be you! If you were not so pig-headed and stubborn you would have sense enough to know that love likes to serve."

With that parting shot, Betsy got out the car racing off down the street, so blinded by tears that she could scarcely see how to drive.

"Betsy!" Peter called out. "Wait a minute!"

He had taken a hasty step toward the sound of her car. That unconscious step took him off the sidewalk, and he tumbled, just as another car came down the street. With lightning-like speed, Gus leaped forward, sending Peter sprawling, but out of the way of the car.

"Sorry, old man," he said huskily, and if the dog did not understand the words, he caught the rite of affection in Peter's voice and quivered with pleasure. "You win," said Peter. "No, that's not quite right. You lose, old boy. But maybe that's the way you'd like it. Betsy said love wants to serve. Well, you shall serve, Gus. I'll try to make it up to you, some way. You're still going to have freedom and fun, but I guess from here on out, the two of us will walk in step, huh?"

Gus, in his dog-way, indicated that this was exactly the way he would want it, and went beside Peter up the walk.

The following morning when Peter set out for his daily walk, Gus' wooden harness was in place, and Peter's hand was upon it. Gus walked proudly, leaning slightly against his master's leg, his handsome head raised, his eyes alert and on guard.

Mrs. Marshall stood at a window in the living room, watching them go down the walk. She could not imagine what had changed Peter's idea about the dog's service, but she was profoundly grateful. At least, Peter no longer walked alone in a world of darkness.

Rookie Police Smash Narcotics Ring In Cities

NEW YORK (UP)—Ten rookie policemen were credited today with smashing a narcotics ring that sold $200,000 worth of heroin each week in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Narcotics agents said it was not known whether the ring was involved with a $10,000,000-a-year organization broken up last week-end, but evidence indicated both were directed from Italy by Lucky Luciano, deported vice overlord.

The newcomers to the force, including three still on probation, were assigned to watch the chief suspect, Peter Galente, 38, because their faces were not familiar to narcotics peddlers.

Galente was arrested last night and police said he was one of the biggest narcotics distributors in the East and supplied peddlers in the Midwest.

Remark Brings Conduct Charge

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP)—There is no law here against asking a policeman why he doesn't get a job and go to work.

Anthony F. Marino, Camden attorney who admitted making such a remark when a policeman gave him a parking ticket, was found innocent of a disorderly conduct charge yesterday.

Beats Salesman To The Draw

DETROIT (UP)—Mrs. Katherine Brown, 53, was on two years probation today for selling a door-to-door salesman a house for $480 when he rang her doorbell. Salesman Jerome Copeland complained she didn't own the house.

NOTICE IN THE SUPERIOR COURT NORTH CAROLINA PITT COUNTY

LILLIAN E. THOMAS vs. LEE S. ILES

The defendant above named will take notice that an action entitled as above has been commenced in the Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, for the purpose of having declared null and void an alleged purported marriage between the plaintiff and the defendant herein on the grounds that on the date of such purported marriage the defendant had a living wife and could not lawfully enter into a valid marriage contract with the plaintiff herein, and the defendant will further take notice that he is required to appear before the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, at his office in Greenville on the 24th day of August, 1951, or within twenty (20) days thereafter, and answer or demur to the complaint filed in this action, or the plaintiff will appeal to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

This the 23rd day of July, 1951.

EVANGELIST
Oliver B. Greene

One of the nation's greatest evangelists, having been on the field for more than 14 years. Over 110,000 have made a profession in his meetings. He has been doing daily radio programs for more than 13 years. He is a Missionary Baptist, but his meetings are interdenominational. He has just closed a meeting in Fayetteville where more than 10,000 flooded the prayer rooms for an experience with the Lord. If you hear him once you will hear him again!

Explorer Scouts Begin Canoeing Junket Down Tar River Enroute To Wilmington

Twelve Eastern Carolina Explorer Scouts began a junket by canoe down the Tar River from Rocky Mount early Monday that will take them 180 miles to Washington, N.C. where they will land next Friday.

The trip was given the young men as a reward for having served on the staff at Camp Charles, Eastern Carolina Council Camp, during the past season.

They arrived in Rocky Mount Sunday and Monday night were guests of Troop 7, of that town, and the Troop's Scoutmaster, Vernon Sechrist. They were guests at a corn beef and cabbage supper last night. Ralph Mozo, Council Executive, and Tom Newbold, East Carolina Council Scout Commissioner, Rocky Mount, were also guests at the dinner.

Using six canoes, two to a boat, the Explorers will stop every night somewhere along the banks of the river, and their camp.

It is the first Scout exploration of the river in the Council's history, it was indicated today.

While the Camp Staff is going on the trip for "fun," they, at the same time, will explore the reaches of the river and observe wild life along its winding curves to determine the value of such a trip for Scouts and Explorers for the future.

During the trip, Scout Executive Mozo and Commissioner Newbold plan to fly along the course and drop messages to the boys from the air as they travel down the waterway.

POLICE DISCOURAGES BEGGARS ON STREETS

Itinerant beggars plying their trade on Evans and other streets in the city have been ordered to move along, a police report states. State welfare laws prohibit begging in public places.

Truce Line . . .

A U.N. communique said the negotiators "failed to make progress" or change their basic positions during two hours and 22 minutes of debate.

However, Brig. Gen. William Nuckols, the official Allied briefing officer, told newsmen that the communist negotiators had seemed "more reasonable." He did not elaborate.

A 17th negotiating session was called for Kaesong at 11 a.m. Thursday (8 p.m. EST) for another attempt to fix a cease-fire line, but some observers saw only a 50-50 chance of ever reaching agreement.

There was speculation that the Red negotiators were stalling until they get new orders from Pyongyang and Peiping whether to back down as they did on their initial demand for withdrawal of Allied troops from Korea.

The Reds are demanding that the Allies withdraw up to 30 miles in some sectors to establish a demilitarized buffer zone extending six miles on either side of the 38th Parallel. The Allies insist that the fighting end along the present fighting front.

Peng's speech indicated the Reds might break off negotiations rather than yield on this vital point.

"Without doubt," he said, "the road to a peaceful settlement lies only in the two sides withdrawing with the 38th Parallel as the basis, setting up a demilitarized zone, at the same time carrying out other cease-fire conditions, and within a fixed period withdrawing all foreign troops from Korea.

"If the U.N. army does not show sincerity, and deliberately offers impossible demands and sticks to them, the peace conference will inevitably fail."

Peng said the Chinese "volunteer army" in Korea is invincible because it is fighting a "just war against aggression," has a high degree of political consciousness and has learned "from experience how to battle a better armed enemy with inferior weapons."

Even Communist newsmen in Kaesong agreed that an impasse had been reached in the talks. They said something would have to be broken soon—either a compromise proposal or another recess—if the conference were not to break down altogether.

Youth Home On Leave Loses Arm In Accident

A 19-year-old Navy youth, home on leave, lost his left arm yesterday afternoon when the car he was driving sideswiped an asphalt truck on Dead Man's Curve on the Fackland highway.

Injured was Charles Ray Harris, age 19, of Route 1, Greenville.

Investigation of the accident was conducted by Patrolman Paul C. Whitley who stated that the Harris car pulled around a barricade erected on the right shoulder of the highway, sideswiping the truck.

Harris was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital by ambulance where he was treated. Soon after arriving at the hospital it was deemed necessary to remove the boy's arm below the elbow, Whitley stated.

Two passengers in the car at the time of the accident were not injured. The accident occurred at 12:25 yesterday afternoon. Driver of the asphalt truck which was headed towards Greenville was Burnice S. Nelson of Route 2, Robertsonville, age 41.

No charges have been placed against either driver, Whitley said.

To Buy Paintings For The State

RALEIGH—(AP)—A five-member art commission has been named to direct the purchase of $1,000,000 worth of paintings for the state.

Governor Scott yesterday announced the appointment of these members: Dr. Robert Lee Fumber of Greenville and Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh, one-year terms; Edwin M. Gill of Greensboro, Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington of Warrenton and Dr. Clemons Sommers of Chapel Hill, two-year terms. The commission was created by the 1951 legislature to supervise the expenditure of a $1,000,000 appropriation for art purchases made available by an earlier legislature.

Settlement Gives Rocky Mount Two More ABC Stores

RALEIGH—(AP)—Rocky Mount apparently will get two additional ABC stores as a result of a dispute which was settled yesterday by the State ABC Board.

The dispute arose when Nash County sought to open a new liquor store on its side of Rocky Mount's main rail line. Rocky Mount lies in both Nash and Edgecombe counties, with the main tracks of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad as the dividing line.

Edgecombe decided if Nash county should have a new liquor store in Rocky Mount, it should be allowed to open another one, too.

Two delegations appeared yesterday at hearing before the State ABC Board. It decided that four stores would not be too many for a city of approximately 30,000.

The Nash and Edgecombe ABC officials will pick site for the stores and State ABC Chairman Robert Winston will pass on their selections.

Heater Explosion Kills Three Babies

DETROIT (UP)—Three young children died early today in their frame house set afire by an exploding hot water heater their mother forgot to turn off while she went out for coffee.

Firemen had to handcuff the hysterical father, James Harris, 27, who tried to re-enter the house after once being forced out by the flames and thick smoke.

His wife, Alberta, 27, told police she had turned on the heater about 5 a.m. to wash dishes. After doing some housework, she said she stepped around the corner to a restaurant for coffee.

One Of Youths Wants To Make Bogus Wedding Legal

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—One of two youths who hoodwinked their sweethearts of a night into a bogus double wedding said today he wants to make it legal.

"It was my fault," Thomas Carmon was quoted as saying, "and I still want to marry Betty."

The 19-year-old soldier, who is to leave for Korea soon, was held in jail here charged with violating Tennessee's age of consent law. Terry Britte, the other "bridegroom," was free on bond.

Fifteen-year-old Betty and 17-year-old Carl, whose last names were withheld, agreed with Carmon. They said they would gladly go through official ceremonies with the youths who picked them up at an amusement park Sunday afternoon.

The boys took the girls for a spin on the park rides, picked up a friend posing as a preacher and "married" them under an old oak tree on a bay-country road.

The honeymoons ended shortly before dawn when the boys carried the girls home, where the "brides" told their mothers about it.

The "country preacher," 18-year-old Roy Arwine, was charged with abetting the hoax.

Betty's mother told Atty. Gen. Hal Clements Jr. at a hearing yesterday that her daughter and Carmon were still voicing mutual love more than 24 hours after they had been parted. Betty, her mother said, had never had a date before meeting the soldier.

"I could have killed him when I found out about the fake marriage," the mother said. "But he talked so sweetly at the jail. I just don't know what to do. I've got a big heart."

Authorities indicated they probably would drop the case if the families declined to press charges and the couples go through legal marriage ceremonies.

Textile Workers Remain On Jobs

DANVILLE, Va. (UP)—Textile workers stayed on their jobs in the huge Dan River Mills today without a contract while the CIO textile union and company officials worked on a new agreement.

The old contract expired at midnight, but union officials told members at a mass meeting yesterday that a strike now would not be to their advantage. Agreement has been reached on 10 sections of a proposed new contract, but the union is opposed to a company proposal to eliminate the union dues check-off system, they said.

City Fathers . . .

He urged everyone—advanced swimmers and sink-easies alike—to stay away from it because of the condition of the water. Although, he said, the Health Department cannot condemn it for swimming purposes, since it is not recognized officially as such by city or county authorities, there is a definite danger of contracting certain diseases from the water, among them typhoid fever, dysentery, scarlet fever, diphtheria and sore eyes.

Say Reds Will . . .

The 12 were charged with conspiring with national party leaders to advocate and teach "the duty and necessity of overthrowing the government of the United States by force and violence."

The indictments also charged them with plotting for the past six years to organize the Communist units in California and to recruit persons employed in "key basic industries and plants."

SHOOT'S AUDITOR

MANILA (UP)—Claro Santiago, chief accountant of the daily newspaper Philippines Herald, resigned his job today, then shot and killed the newspaper's auditor, wounded the business manager and telephone operator and committed suicide.

Federal Agencies . . .

The 11-month law gives the government authority to roll back prices on some non-agricultural products—cotton, wool, lamb and veal—provided that the new ceiling price gives sellers their highest price of the six months preceding the Korean war outbreak, plus subsequent cost increases.

The new law also continues rent controls, but allows rent boosts of up to 20 percent over levels of June, 1947. It continues the government's authority to grant priorities and allocations on scarce materials.

Just before Mr. Truman signed the legislation, DISA issued a new manufacturing price ceiling order in hope of getting some roll-backs in spite of the new law. It covers manufacturers of clothing, cotton and wool textiles, machinery, shoes, radios, television sets, building materials and thousands of other items.

Then the Marshall Plan came to Britain's rescue. The Labor government at the same time took the drastic step of devaluing the pound from $4 to $2.80. This reduced British prices in the world markets and enabled the British to compete with American exporters on more even terms. But at the same time it forced Britain to pay more for the imports of raw materials needed by its factories.
