'Nothing New' In Soviet Peace Bid

Letter Cabled To Truman Dismissed By State Department And Key Lawmakers As Containing No Retreat From Past Positions By Kremlin

WASHINGTON (UP)—State Department officials and some key congressmen dismissed today as "nothing new" Russia's latest bid for a five-power peace pact.

Russian President Nikolai Shvernik, in a letter cabled to President Truman last night, outlined a Soviet program for ending the East-West feud.

Shvernik suggested that the United States and Russia end their trade war, limit armaments, control atomic weapons and join Great Britain, France and Communist China in an anti-war pact.

Observers pointed out Russia obviously was trying to by-pass the United Nations. Congress inspired a Soviet-American exchange by passing a resolution expressing American friendship for the Russian people.

Mr. Truman, in relaying this resolution to Moscow July 7, expressed hope to Shvernik that the iron curtain could be lifted.

Shvernik's reply to Mr. Truman insisted that Russia "hospitably receives communications of peace from any country."

"There is no doubt," Shvernik wrote, "that friendship between peoples which is mentioned in your communication pre-supposes development of political, economic and cultural relations and connections between peoples on a basis of equal rights."

"The duty of all peace-loving peoples consists in steadfastly carrying on a policy of war prevention and preservation of peace, of not permitting arms races, of attaining limitation of armaments and the prohibition of atomic weapons with the establishment of inspection over the implementation of such a prohibition, and of cooperating in the conclusion of a five power pact for the strengthening of peace among peoples."

No one indicated confidence that the Soviet message could lead to much.

Most of the Soviet proposals have been studied before by the United Nations — and found to be full of bugs.

1. Atomic energy—The United States wants unlimited international inspection of all the world's atomic facilities. Russia won't say who could inspect Soviet facilities or how often. So negotiations on atomic control have broken down.

2. Arms limitations — Russia wants the West to limit its atomic weapons. The West wants Russia to limit the size of its huge armies and tank corps. The two sides, in negotiations, never have gotten down to talking the same language.

3. Big Five pact against war—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinskiy made this proposal to the U. N. in 1949 and 1950, but got no response from the West. The Western powers feel that a pact denouncing war is valueless unless the members, including Russia show that they genuinely want to live and let live.

4. Trade war — The United States has led a campaign against Western trade with the Communist block in retaliation against Soviet-supported wars and threats of wars. The United States is not interested in calling off the trade rivalry unless world tensions relax.

Shvernik virtually ignored the question of lifting the iron curtain. Instead, he demanded that the United States stop "discriminations" against the Russians. He enclosed a resolution passed by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet—

North Carolina College Looks To Higher Standard

Elder Hopes For Emergency Outlay To Meet Action By Council

RALEIGH (UP)—Dr. Alford Elder, president of North Carolina College in Durham, said today he hopes an emergency state appropriation of $271,200 will make graduate courses at the Negro school equal to those at the University of North Carolina.

The Council of State approved the appropriation yesterday in a move designed to reduce the number of Negro students seeking admission to the university.

Included in the appropriation was $43,200 to set up a doctoral program in education, starting in 1952. It will make the college the first Negro school to offer a Ph.D. degree.

The remaining $228,000 will be used to bolster present undergraduate and graduate training.

"The college already is meeting minimum requirements for accreditation by the American Association of Universities and Colleges," Elder said, "but that isn't good enough for us."

"With additional facilities in both staff and buildings, we hope the graduate programs we offer will be equal to those at the university."

At present the college offers no graduate work in several fields, and its doctoral program will be limited to education. The university, by action of its trustees, is committed to accept qualified Negro students who seek courses not available at North Carolina College.

Elder said the college plans to spend $35,000 of the additional funds in each of the next two years to improve the present undergraduate work, $54,000 yearly for graduate work and $25,000 yearly to expand its library.

Seven additional undergraduate teachers will be hired at an average salary of $5,000. They will be assigned one each to art, biology, dramatic art, English, foreign languages, health education and history and geography.

The $54,000 yearly for graduate instruction will provide nine teachers averaging $6,000 in the fields of biology, business, music, philosophy, physical education, political science, psychology, sociology and speech arts.

In organizing its doctoral program, Elder said, the college will hire one resident professor and two visiting professors in each of the areas of administration, curriculum, guidance and elementary education. Resident professors will be paid $7,000 and $3,000 is allotted for each two visiting professors.

Another $3,200 is allotted for a reference librarian. The college employs both Negro and White teachers.

Sanitarian Will Resign August 12

John Zey, former sanitarian, has resigned from the Pitt County Health Department, his resignation becoming effective August 12.

Zey has been working with the Sanitation Department of the local health office for the past five months. He resigned this job to accept another position in Greenville.

He is a graduate of East Carolina College and is a native of Hopewell, Virginia.

President Of Russia

You Seldom Hear Of Nikolai Shvernik Who Is Supposed To Be Equivalent In Rank To President Truman; His Letter In Reply To Urgings From Truman

By HOMER JENKS

The Russians have suddenly pushed their rarely heard-of president to the fore in the Communist "peace offensive."

His name is Nikolai Shvernik, and he bears the impressive title of President of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

In rank, he is supposed to correspond to Harry S. Truman, president of the United States. But in reality he is little more than a convenient figurehead.

He is only an alternate member of the Communist Party Politburo, the real rulers of Russia. The top man in the Politburo is Premier Joseph Stalin, otherwise chairman of the council of ministers and secretary-general of the central committee of the Soviet Communist Party.

Shvernik sent a letter to President Truman acknowledging the American president's letter of July 7, which included a congressional resolution expressing American friendship toward the Russian people.

The government-controlled Russian press hasn't published President Truman's letter or the con-

Old Glory Flies At Communist "Peace" Festival

Members of an American delegation carry two United States flags in the parade at the opening of the Communist Youths' "World's Peace Festival" in East Berlin, Germany. Only 11 persons identified as Americans were present. The main theme of the festival is hatred of the United States and loyalty to Russia's Prime Minister Stalin. Ask Non-Segregation In Martin County Schools

Robersonville And Parme Residents Present Petition To Board Of Education; Discrepancies In System Charged

WILLIAMSTON—Martin yesterday became the second North Carolina county in which non-segregation in the school system has been requested.

A petition to the Board of Education yesterday morning requested that white and Negro students in the county schools not be segregated because of conditions of Negro facilities throughout the county.

It was presented by a group of Negro residents of the Robersonville and Parme communities through Herman Taylor, a Negro attorney from Raleigh.

Today J. C. Manning, superintendent of the county school system, stated that the petition did not "over-exaggerate" the conditions of the Negro schools.

"On the whole," he said, "they seemed to state facts."

"There are certain inequalities which we know exist and everybody knows exist," he said. "There were only a couple of instances (in the petition) in which they seemed to exaggerate."

In his presentation Taylor stated that he realized the conditions of Martin schools were similar to other counties in the state, but that he had been employed by the Negro citizens of the two communities to state their case. However, it was noted that none of the petitioners present at the meeting recognized Taylor when he entered the room.

Manning reiterated the fact that the first petition was filed in Cumberland county in connection with non-segregation in the Fayetteville schools in June. However, Taylor's petition was the first in the state accusing an entire county system of discrepancies in physical facilities.

Manning pointed out that whatever could be done for both white and Negro schools is being done as fast as possible.

"I think," he said, "we're proceeding pretty speedily in correcting some of our discrepancies. However, I think it'll take a long time to alleviate the problem even in our white schools."

He stated it was difficult to correct quickly all the deficiencies under the existing county funds allocation.

Graham Resumes Pakistan Talks

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—While the armies of India and Pakistan restlessly guarded national borders, United Nations mediator Frank P. Graham resumed talks today with Pakistan officials on Kashmir, northern state coveted by both nations.

Graham, accompanied by his civil and military advisers, conferred two and a half hours with Sir Zafullah Khan, Pakistan's foreign minister, and minister for Kashmir affairs Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani.

Rail Line Ends In Blaze Of Glory

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—Old No. 67, the one train each day on a branch line to Perry, went out in a blaze of glory.

Sixty-eight paying passengers climbed aboard for the last trip. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad said it was the first time in a decade that the 57-mile run had made a profit.

ON DEER'S SIDE

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(UP)—Hundreds of children boomed as William C. Sullivan, SPCA superintendent, carried out his job. While the youngsters watched, Sullivan was forced to destroy a 125-pound doe which jumped through a school-room window.

Confirm Increase In Price Of Food

Agriculture Dept. Reports Jump In Farmers' Income

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department confirmed today that housewives have known all along: food prices have gone up, especially meat.

The department said in a farm income report that farmers got $15,400,000,000 for their crops during the first seven months of 1951, a 17 per cent increase over the same period last year.

The income jump, however, was not all net gain. Farm costs—production and living expenses—rose 12 per cent during the seven-month period, the department said.

Meat and livestock products accounted for $10,700,000,000 of the farmers' crop income, a 26 per cent gain over a year ago. With marketings about the same, the jump resulted from a 26 per cent increase in prices, the report said.

The $4,700,000,000 which farmers got for grain and fiber crops, however, was about the same as last year, the department said, with higher average prices offset by a smaller volume of marketings.

But housewives could take some encouragement from a Bureau of Agricultural Economics report today. It predicted that farmers' prices, edging downward since last February, would slump even further during coming months with bumper crop in prospect. The lower farm prices, the report said, should tend to reduce food costs.

The report added, however, that while food prices may fall at the farm level, they may go up at the retail level as a result of the new Defense Production Act. The new controls law continues substantially the same price control standards for farm commodities, but relaxes limitations on processing and marketing profit margins on all materials, including food.

Firmly Oppose Korea Partition

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—President Syngman Rhee said yesterday South Korea was resolutely against any partition of Korea "at any line south of the Yalu River, much less the 38th Parallel."

Rhee made the statement in an impromptu speech to a crowd demonstrating in the west coast city of Kusan against a cease-fire.

Egypt Warns Britain Of Plan To End Defense Pact

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt has warned Britain that she intends to cancel the Anglo-Egyptian mutual defense treaty by the end of this month. The treaty, which permits Britain to keep troops at the Suez Canal, has been a sore spot between the two countries since the end of World War II.

Egypt's Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah Eddin told a cheering parliament that Britain had closed the door to further negotiations on the disputed treaty and it would be cancelled "before the end of this session of parliament." The session is expected to end late in August.

Eddin's statement was a formal reply to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison's charges in the House of Commons July 30 that Egypt is taking an "uncompromising" and "irresponsible" attitude toward the major problems in the Middle East.

Since negotiations started in 1946 to renew and revise the treaty, Egypt has demanded that Britain withdraw her troops from the vital Suez—main supply route during World War II. Egypt also wants to incorporate the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan under King Farouk's rule. Britain has declared world tensions—and particularly those in the Middle East—make it necessary that she keep her troops in the Suez to protect Egypt's as well as Britain's interests. She also opposes turning the Sudan over to Egypt.

Traditional 'Dollar Day' Event Set For Thursday

Traditional Dollar Day will be held here Thursday, August 9. Dollar Day will be a one-day event and has been made famous during the past fifteen years, or longer due to bargains offered in the stores and liberal discounts made by merchants. Dollar Day is sponsored by leading merchants here and is a city-wide cooperative event.

During the past years, Dollar Day has drawn large crowds to Greenville's stores and many people from communities and surrounding towns visited Greenville for this event. Last year shoppers were lined up outside the stores as early as 8:15 for the 9:00 opening to take advantage of bargains offered by merchants. All merchants participating in the traditional Dollar Day will display special items for the one-day event other than the merchandise which will be marked down. Through the cooperation of the city, the parking meters will have a holiday. Parking all over Greenville will be free for shoppers. Ercell Webb, president of the Merchants Association, urges all employees not to park their cars on the main street so as to allow parking space for shoppers.

Ridgway Insists On Stronger Guarantees

Vinson Urges New Air Power Action

Calls For Immediate Action On 163-Group Air Force And Two Additional Super Aircraft Carriers For Navy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee called today for immediate action to build a 163-group Air Force and two additional super aircraft carriers.

The Georgia Democrat, one of the most powerful figures in Congress on military matters, said this extra air power is imperative to America's defense.

"If we are to have this force in time," Vinson said in a statement, "the decision to allocate the necessary resources must be made immediately, and the fund should be included in the next budget to be submitted to the Congress."

He made no estimate of the cost of the planes, but said the Air Force would need 300,000 more men and that bases would cost about $400,000,000.

A $56,000,000,000 defense appropriation approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee, which comes up in the House tomorrow, includes funds for a 95-group Air Force. The present strength is about 87 groups.

Only one big new carrier has been authorized, a 59,900-ton ship with a near-flush deck, capable of launching and recovering atomic bombers.

Vinson said two more such ships should be built as fast as possible. Of the three, he said, two should be assigned to the Atlantic and one to the Pacific.

His proposal for a 163-group Air Force and 25 troop-carrier wings intended primarily for joint Army-Air Force operations.

"This country is today vulnerable to air attack," Vinson said. "The most effective defense against such an attack is adequate air power to meet it, and, above all, to strike back at its sources."

"It is impossible in modern warfare to postpone or avoid decisive action in the air. No matter how much strength we may be able to assemble on the ground or the sea, we cannot hope to defeat Soviet power unless we have superior strength in the air."

"Air warfare, once begun, moves very rapidly toward a decision. If the air battle is lost, the war is certain to be lost. In order to win the air battle, we must have in being, an air force superior to any that could be thrown against us."

Vinson said existing aircraft plants could turn out all the extra planes needed to build the stronger force. He did not estimate cost of the planes.

Approval came after lengthy discussion was heard on the proposed deal with Carolina Power. A large crowd of citizens on hand for the special session fired questions back and forth at the board and Paul Lyman, special representative of the Power Company. Generally sentiment of the people was that the town should effect the power check-up which would assure a power supply.

The Town Council voted in a body in favor of accepting the proposal of the Carolina Power Company which was tentatively set to begin on October 1, 1952. However, a clause in the contract will not be binding until shortages can be overcome, making it possible to build the necessary power lines into the area to be served.

The contract as outlined by the power company calls for the purchasing of 900 kilowatts of firm power per day in a 20-year contract.

The signing of the contract will put Farmville on a steady agreement similar to other Eastern North Carolina towns in this section who have tied in with power companies in an effort to booster their power supply, at rates cheaper than they can produce themselves.

Housewives Ready To Sue Gov't In Tax Struggle

MARSHALL, Tex.—(AP)—Marshall housewives who had their bank accounts attached for social security taxes they refused to pay for domestic servants say they'll ask the Internal Revenue Bureau at Dallas to give the money back.

If it won't, Kenneth Abney, husband of one of the women, said they would ask Rep. Patman (D-Tex.) to introduce a bill in Congress permitting the women to sue the government.

Internal Revenue agents yesterday attached the bank accounts of some of the rebelling women—and got $36.03.

But nine of the 18 women involved apparently had withdrawn all their money in anticipation of the federal action.

Road Petition Is Given Approval

The County Commissioners yesterday approved a road petition from citizens in Winterville Township for paving between Ayden and Farmville.

The road is known as the Old Kingston Road and the request is for two miles of paving between R. B. Rouse's station to Bull Eye house.

Year Of Duty Is Ruled 'Enough'

CLINTON (UP)—"Enough is enough," Judge Leo Carr said as he excused Ivey D. Simmons from jury duty yesterday.

Simmons finished a year of duty on the Sampson County grand jury last week. When the new grand jury list was drawn, Simmons was on it.

Flatly Refuses Resume Cease-Fire Talks Until Communists Give Stronger Pledge That Armed Troops Be Kept Out Of Zone; Red Radio Stations Silent

TOKYO (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway flatly refused today to resume Korean cease-fire talks until the "communists give a stronger guarantee that armed troops will be kept out" of the conference zone.

The supreme United Nations commander also told the Reds that the talks would be broken off altogether if there are any further violations of the Kaesong area's neutrality.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy and the three other American members of the U.N. negotiating team remained in Tokyo, apparently pending a Communist reply.

Even if the Communists give the requested guarantee, a U.N. spokesman said, the truce conference probably will not be resumed before Thursday.

Communist radio stations still had not replied to or commented on Ridgway's sharp refusal to the Red commanders eight hours after it was put at broadcast.

However, the Chinese Communist radio at Peking, county-charged U. S. forces with violating Kaesong's neutrality. It said:

1. About 20 American troops fired on Paju-unchong within the neutral zone on July 16.

2. American and South Korean troops from July 10 through 24th penetrated into the vicinity of the neutral zone on 17 different occasions.

3. American planes over to bomb North Korea pass over Kaesong day and night, "thereby causing tension in the atmosphere of the conference site."

4. The bombardment of the fringes of the zone by American warships' is "distinctly in Kaesong's area."

Despite these acts of violation by American troops, the Peking broadcast said, "the Communists did nothing beyond bling the attention of the Americans to these incidents."

"From the two different attitudes on the part of the two parties concerned, it may be clear that it is our side that really de is early realization of a truce and it is the same side that intentionally tries to block the progress of negotiations."

Ridgway's sharpest message yet to the Communist commanders is to the Communist request for "immediate" resumption of the deadlocked cease-fire talks.

Ridgway sent his sharpest message Communist explanation that mortar and machinegun squads were inside the supposedly neutral zone Saturday by accident. He in effect rejected Red orders against a repetition as insufficient.

"It must be clearly understood that my acceptance of the armistice talks is conditional on complete compliance with your guarantees of neutralization of the Kaesong area," Ridgway said.

"Any further failure in this regard will be interpreted as a deliberate move on your part to terminate the armistice negotiations."

"I await your acceptance of this condition."

Ridgway bluntly told Gen. Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier and supreme commander, and Gen. Peng Teh-huai, Chinese commander in Korea, that Saturday's incident was neither "minor, accidental" nor "trivial," as they had contended.

Ridgway broke off the talks Sunday after the U.N. delegation complained that company of armed Communist soldiers marched past

McCarran's Probing

The Story Of Senate Judiciary Committee's Digging Into Communistic Influences; Tardiness In Getting Down To Business; Key Commission Dies

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator McCarran and his fellow-senators on the Judiciary Committee have shown much eagerness in digging into communism themselves.

But they have shown a tardiness in putting into motion some other government machinery for working the same field, including an examination of our whole loyalty and security program.

McCarran, a Nevada Democrat but not friendly with President Truman, is chairman of the very important Judiciary Committee whose members this year created a subcommittee of themselves to look into communism. It's a twin of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

It's working now on possible Communist links in the State Department. But last year McCarran was chief sponsor of a measure—called the Subversive Activities Control Act—to flush members of the Communist Party into the open.

That act called for Mr. Truman to appoint a five-man board to decide whether the Communist Party is a Soviet agent. Before the board could operate with full blessing of the law, it had to be approved by the full Senate, a step which first needed approval by McCarran's Judiciary Committee.

Thus McCarran's group had to effect life and death power over any board appointed by the President. Although Mr. Truman appointed the board last October, the Judiciary Committee kept the board and the program in suspense until last week when it finally approved three of the five board members. It hasn't decided on the fourth. The fifth had resigned because of illness.

The government's loyalty and security program—to get rid of disloyal government workers and those who cannot be trusted with secrets—for one reason or another—has been criticized on two main counts. It wasn't tough enough, and it didn't give enough protection to the rights of individuals.

Last January Mr. Truman appointed a commission of nine prominent men, all outsiders, headed by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, to examine the whole loyalty-security program to see how it's doing and how it could be done better.

"Eastern Carolina's Shopping Center"

Home Of Former Residents Shown In Current Magazine

By MARTHA S. FORBES
In the August issue of "Living" magazine, there is a section devoted to an article entitled "The New Generation in New Bern."
Among many of the lovely homes which are pictured and about which comments were made is the newly remodeled home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bynum, former residents of this city. Mrs. Bynum is the former Catherine Utley, daughter of Mrs. Ray Tyson of this city. Mr. Bynum for a number of years was manager of a local drug store.
Their home, pictured in two full pages of color in the magazine, was originally part of the slave quarters of the famous old Guion House, located close to the old bridge entrance to the town. Catherine and Bill bought the former outbuildings about a year ago and began an extensive program of remodeling the four huge rooms of the red brick vine-clad dwelling to suit their own family needs. They added a wing to one side which contains a dining room and a kitchen and made six rooms out of the original four.
The home was left as much as possible in its original state. A long, bricked over porch was rebuilt to form an attractive and cooling spot for outdoor pleasure, and the modern kitchen is pine-paneled and lovely with old iron hinges and locks.
The living room boasts two fire-

Rotarians Hold Weekly Meeting

By WYATT BROWN
The Rotary Club spent most of its time last night being given Rotary information by Floyd Hendrix, Chairman of the Club Service Committee. He elaborated on the technicalities of classifications of members.
Herbert Waldrop gave a three minute thumb sketch of his life to date. He gave his place of birth as Hendersonville, North Carolina. His childhood pursuits were carrying telegrams and delivering newspapers for spending money. Every morning his father held family prayer. He attended East Carolina College and then Kings Business College finishing the latter in 1913. Shortly after that he went to work for the Guaranty Bank where he has continued to work.
Guests of the club last night were Joe Taft, Colonel Dan Taylor, and J. B. Kittrell, Jr., of Philadelphia. Visiting Rotarians from Ayden were Wes Gooding and Faust Johnson, from Washington there were Ray Phillips and Max Roebuck. Charles White, Club president, presided.

Mrs. Coward Hostess To Members of Club

GRIFTON—Mrs. John Coward was hostess on Friday night to members of her bridge club and invited players for three tables at her home on Church Street. A tempting supper plate with iced tea and sweets was served before the games.
High scorers for club members were Mrs. David Parker, Mrs. Hober Wade. The visitor's high went to Mrs. Woodrow Smith. Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
A FINE FORMULA
Most people do not like to be called conservatives. They are afraid this may mean that they are puritanical or intellectually behind the times. Most people like to stick out their chests and make everybody—including themselves—think they are up-and-coming liberals, creative thinkers.

Yet in the long run humanity always comes back again to the conservative position. Liberalism is a corrective for the excesses of conservatism. When people get too far to the right, become moribund in their thinking and unwilling to do anything but stay put, then the liberal has to come along with a sharp stick and give the conservative a jab.

Usually conservatives dominate governments. This is one reason why governments are often badly managed, but it is also the reason why governments manage to hold together at all. Liberalism do a fine piece of work so long as correction is necessary, but when they have to manage a large enterprise, their theories begin to interfere with the realities of life, and chaos ensues.

Don't be afraid of being laughed at for your conservatism, whether that conservatism is economic, political, or religious. To conserve means "to keep in a safe or sound state." But watch lest your conservatism become self-satisfaction and regression.

A friend of mine describes himself as a conservative with a troubled conscience. That's a fine formula.

A Bee, A Mule And No Tail Light

It doesn't always take a big thing to cause a highway accident. The accidents which are caused by seemingly minor incidents are just as dangerous as those caused by the everyday factors of speeding, drinking and carelessness.

During the past week-end there were three auto accidents reported in Pitt County. Each of the accidents was caused by a seemingly unimportant factor. A loose mule on the highway was given as the cause for one accident, a faulty tail light the cause of another accident, and a bee the cause of the third.

There are statutes which regulate mules running at large, and there is a statute which requires all vehicles to have a tail light in good working order. As for the bee which caused one accident, we don't know of any statute which might prohibit him from flying into any car window he sees fit.

But the three accidents, and the three causes clearly point out what has become obvious to those who travel the highways. You have to watch out for the carelessness of the other fellow . . . the man who allows his mule to run at large, the man who drives without a tail light, and the unfortunate driver who has his attention attracted by an intruding bee.

The Berlin Rally Is Backfiring

Backfires have come early in the 15-day demonstration of communist youths in East Berlin. Each day is bringing the communist leaders more red faces to match their philosophy.

The first blow came to the communists when the young lady who was chosen as the model "progressive woman" for the demonstration scrapped the whole thing and took refuge in West Berlin declaring she had rather scrub floors in West Berlin than be the glamor girl of the eastern part of the city.

The allies have relaxed their restrictions on entrance into the western part of the city, and so far 57,000 communist youths have played hookey from the eastern rally to gape at the loaded shop windows in West Berlin.

They are seeing for first time democracy at work, and what it has meant to West Berlin. The occasion is affording the communist youths an opportunity to compare their first hand impression of conditions in West Berlin to the propaganda reports they have been fed daily by their communist dictators in the east. And at the latest report a total of 86 of the visiting youths had requested asylum in the west so they would not have to return to the communist zone. The model "progressive woman" was one of the individuals who asked asylum.

The communist leaders have spent many months preparing for the 15-day youth rally in East Berlin, but we'd venture the opinion that the stocked store windows and the hospitality being shown the young communist visitors in West Berlin are causing their leaders much more concern than how the East Berlin demonstration is coming off.

The incident is another indication that the communists are losing their iron-clad grasp on the individuals who make up the masses of citizens in the countries under the communist heel. Similar incidents are becoming more and more frequent, and it may be that they will flare into an open rebellion in the not too distant future. But we must not be too optimistic. The communists are using all the forces at their command to prevent just what we are hoping for.

$56 Billions Herald Changes To Come

Fifty-six billion dollars is an awful lot of money. It's so much that no ordinary mind can conceive its value in everyday terms; all we can do is marvel that any government can consider the appropriating of such a sum for military purposes.

And this outlay approved by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday is "just a starter" on the overall cost of defense and meeting the costs of government for the fiscal year ending next June 30. It is all the more amazing in that this $56 billion for the United States' military budget is by far greater than the entire national budgets for 1948 and for 1949.

What does it mean? It means federal taxing, spending and buying at a vastly stepped up rate over an era of taxing, spending and buying that many people considered foolhardy. There is no end in sight.

Somewhere, of course, there is a limit. Whether it will be recognized is something else again; for always, when the "squeeze" is on, people will stake their lives and livelihoods on the preservation of their accustomed way of life. Actually, in that very "preservation" there are hidden factors which change the very principles which would be kept.

So with this initial allocation for military needs we sense the beginnings of changes that lie ahead. Whether those changes are good or bad, this republic can take pride in its strength and willingness to meet any test without fear and few backward glances.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Local politicians report to Washington, including Republican National Headquarters and GOP-ers on Capitol Hill, that the grassroots and curbsome sentiment is pling up so tremendously behind the Eisenhower-for-President movement that it may prove irresistible at Chicago next year. Some foresee a first-ballot selection.

Although many prominent leaders have declared for the General and are active on his behalf, the present development seems to be a case in which the people are pointing the way to the politicians.

When local, county, state and national bosses read poll after poll in which "Ike" leads both Taft and Truman, they cannot dismiss the results as they would the tally in a beauty contest.

CLAMOR—Such a definite trend has a deeper effect on the party president-makers now than it would have in past years. After twenty years of exile from national power, the GOP's only aim seems to be to find and nominate somebody—anybody—who can defeat the Democrats.

When that prospect happens to be a smiling, popular, military hero with a fine war and postwar record of accomplishment for victory and possible world peace, they begin to conclude that it is senseless to seek elsewhere for their man on horseback.

In their opinion, the demand for Eisenhower is not what the politicians characterize as a "groundswell." It has become a clamor like that heard in the baseball or football stands for a five-star hero.

SUBSTANCE—The Eisenhower movement does not appear to have the synthetic qualities of Wendell Wilkie's last-minute drive for the nomination in 1940. Unlike the public utility magnate's captivation of the convention and the party, the current trend has definite and visible substance.

Although few recognized it at the time, the Wilkie buildup was a wholly synthetic operation. It was financed, promoted and publicized by eastern financiers and internationalists, and by an influential publisher of several magazines. To the populace and the politicians he was an unknown only a few months before the GOP assembled at Philadelphia.

INFLUENCE—Ironically, President Truman is robbing Republican rivals of their strongest argument against an Eisenhower nomination, and a weakening issue which the Democrats would raise in the campaign against an Eisenhower candidacy. This is, as the General said, in 1948, that a military man should not head the government save in exceptional circumstances.

Although the Truman faction raised this question during the MacArthur affair, the fact is that military figures and policies have never before had such overpowering influence on our everyday lives and future prospects.

Officers like Marshall, MacArthur, Eisenhower, the late Admiral Sherman, to mention only the top brass decide questions of civilian as well as military nature, at home and abroad.

DECISIONS—General Marshall, for instance, inspired both ECA and the North Atlantic Military Alliance, and General Eisenhower now administers both programs. MacArthur's public differences with the Administration have affected Far Eastern decisions more fundamentally than the White House or State Department care to admit.

It is the Pentagon, against the opposition of Britain and France, which forced Truman and Acheson to agree to closer military association with Spain, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey. It was Admiral Sherman who, as a part time diplomat, closed the deal with Generalissimo Franco for American use of his naval bases in return for economic and military reinforcement.

POLICIES—By inspiring and operating our basic policies on national defense and foreign affairs, the military now determine the amount of taxes we must pay, the allocation of contracts and raw materials to industry, the controls necessary to keep down wages and prices, and many other matters which, before war became total and global, were handled by elective, civilian officials. For better or for worse, though it seems to be necessary, we have become an armed state.

Thus, the argument against putting a military man in the White House may lose its force, thanks to Mr. Truman's reliance on Army-Navy advisers. If so, it will advantage "Ike" from a political standpoint.

Move Over

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The other day I overheard a statement by E. T. Stafford of the Stafford Oldsmobile Company. The comment I heard went something like this: "After we reach twenty-five years of age, not many of us still want to fight the ocean waves."

Despite the fact that I wasn't in the conversation, I butted in. "Well, you're looking at a man twenty-seven years of age who's still anxious for the feel of those waves slapping against him."

However, I didn't mention to Mr. Stafford that I hadn't been in the ocean this summer. Last weekend Faye and I took in Morehead, so now the story of a 27-year-old vs. the ocean waves can be told.

The headline of the story could read, "Young Greenville man's weary muscles sore from battle with ocean waves." The sub-head, "Youth bears head and shoulder wound from fracas."

Before going any further, let me point out, especially to Mr. Stafford, that I'm anxiously awaiting a return engagement with Mr. Ocean.

The swim would have probably been uneventful if I hadn't run into the Reflector's managing editor, Dave Whichard, III, on the beach. We agreed on taking a swim.

About fifty yards out I said to Dave, "I've been trying to learn how to ride a wave for 10 years, and I never can hit one exactly right." Dave was an excellent teacher.

"When I say 'go,'" he explained, "start swimming fast. When you feel the wave take hold, stop swimming and slap your arms down by your sides. When you feel the pull of the wave subsiding, thrust your arms over your head, ducking at the same time."

"Gotcha," I said.

"One precaution," Dave said,

"Don't duck too soon, or the wave will send your head to the bottom."

"Gotcha."

Less than a minute later, I was holding my poor aching head. It's a great sensation to have the bottom of the ocean slap you in the face, even when you've just been warned that it might happen.

The push of that wave had given me a thrill that nothing could stop, not even the skinned shoulder and forehead. Dave and I were like 10-year-olds, riding the waves up to the sand.

"If you want to have some real fun," Dave said, "let's get a surf board." From then on, it was like a scene from a technicolor movie short. The surf board would take us all the way to the beach.

It just goes to prove that anybody, even a man over 25, can learn to ride a wave if he's willing to risk his neck.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYN NISBET Daily Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET
WORLDWIDE—Whether the world is getting larger or smaller is a moot question, the answer depending entirely upon the viewpoint. Communication and transportation facilities undoubtedly have moved the old border lines. No so many years ago the range of personal acquaintance with geography and people was limited to a few miles from home base. Now it runs with the equator and is bounded by the poles. Telephones, radio, television, automobiles and airplanes have almost eliminated time and distance as factors in the gathering and disseminating information about places and people in remote sections of the globe. International cartels in business, united nations organizations in government, have made one big community out of the world or a small world out of the big community.

EFFECT—That has a lot of effect upon geo-politics. It also, believe it or not, has a lot to do with baby chicks and tobacco seeds, cotton shirts and woolen breeches. There is now a direct relationship between the bootlegging of American tobacco seeds in China and the growing of poultry in Pender county. There is direct relationship between the stepped-up production of cotton in Egypt, expanded sheep raising in Australia and establishment of DuPont plants at Burnsville and Inston. The world situation has definite influence upon the sale of calves in our mountain counties and development of pastures in eastern North Carolina. As the world gets smaller or the community gets bigger, the situation will become at the same time more complex and more paradoxical as it appears on the surface. Those who refuse to recognize and cooperate with changing conditions will face more serious difficulties; those who recognize and join forces with the progressive march will find it simple and easy and will fit their individual operations into the new scheme of things. Let's back up a bit and review some history.

COTTON—From Mother Eve's fig leaf apron to their relatives' animal hide wrap through the processes of plaited vine fibers and handwoven hair to the production of silk and linen fabrics, covers a span of many centuries. Other centuries were devoted to development of mechanical weaving of goat and camel hair and better processes for using vegetable fibers shivered from cane and palm-trees, and numerous reeds and grasses. Then there came developments in use of other fibers, the movement getting its biggest impetus from invention of the cotton gin and improvements in wool handling about a hundred years ago. The cotton gin and the modern loom gave to the southeastern part of North America a dominant position in the textile world. Several times threatened by cotton growing in Egypt, India and other parts of the world, the southern part of the United States held commanding position until a few years ago. Then rayon, nylon, dacron, orlon and numerous other synthetic fibers offered more serious challenge.

TOBACCO—Records are not available as to where or when tobacco was first grown and used, but history seems to support the claim that Sir Walter Raleigh introduced it to the civilized world from North Carolina less than four hundred years ago. For a long time the southeastern corner of North America dominated the world tobacco markets as completely as it dominated the cotton market.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(New Bern Sun-Journal)
An Army sergeant who had also served in the Navy and with the Marines and Air Force recently wrote to an American newspaper. He had spent six years overseas and many months in Army hospitals.

"I have seen," he says, "too many servicemen there fighting the unnecessary, extra battle against despondency, loneliness, and the terrible feeling of being unloved and forgotten by the folks back home.

All the attention and care of the various morale, recreational, athletic, spiritual and special service sections of the various components of the Armed Forces, the Red Cross and their unsurpassed 'Gray Ladies', the superlative entertainment of such top-notch entertainers as Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and others, cannot completely combat this melancholy and misery without the whole-hearted support and cooperation of the folks back home themselves.

"My request of you will clarify the entire problem and solution. Will you please join with other newspaper, TV, stage, movie, magazine, lecture, church, club and celebrities to urge the folks at home to please write cheery, newsy letters—often with their latest snapshot—and some small inexpensive gift once in a while, to their relatives—friends—acquaintances—of the town boys overseas or in the Armed Forces hospitals?"

"This is my own personal campaign for 'Mail From Home' for my buddies. Will you please let me know what you sincerely and frankly think of it, and what you will do to help get 'Mail From Home' for the boys overseas and in our Armed Forces hospitals?"

(Wilson Daily Times)
Because he could buy protection, Frank Costello escaped the clutches of the law for years. He appeared safe as long as he had only the local bigwigs to deal with. He got in trouble after the federal government stepped in. But isn't that a sad commentary on home rule? If, for a price, will tolerate known gamblers and racketeers, even allowing them on occasion to name party nominees.

Al Capone, when in high favor in Chicago, almost ran the town. He and his henchmen bossed about all the underworld enterprises. He was caught not by the people he was fleecing, but by the federal government in that way Capone was lifted from the picture. But the federal government didn't get all the Capones by a long shot. Evidences of that were brought out by the Kefauver committee.

One it managed to miss was Costello who's looked on as the kingpin in the racket. Now he's been indicted not for failure to pay taxes, not for operating racket, but for contempt. He refused to answer many of the questions of the investigating committee. Yet it's generally known that he's been the tops in the racket—he's bribed about every official in New York in order to stay in business. That he may go to jail is beside the point. He should have been in jail many years ago.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The greatest single governmental force for change is taxes. The impact of taxes on all business is far greater than controls, allocations, anti-trust laws, federal trade rules, food and drug regulations or any of the other hundreds of governmental laws. It is probably greater than all of them put together.

High personal income taxes have aided the post-war housing boom. Many families have discovered that there is no tax deduction for the property tax and interest they pay in the form of rent but that if they buy a home, property taxes and interest are deductible. Buying a home can mean deduction of $500 a year or more off the top, highest-taxed, bracket of its income.

High personal income taxes make it difficult for families to build estates out of earnings, so they invest more in insurance, stocks and speculative enterprises. Many a father today advises his son to go into business instead of working for a salary. If the business appreciates in value, the gains are taxable only at the moderate capital gains rate, while tax rates on salaries rise as the salaries increase.

The excess profit tax is stimulating considerable business expansion. Many businesses are spending what would be profits taxed at 77 per cent in developing new markets, expanding research, bringing out new products and increasing advertising. Tax advisers are constantly being asked, "How can we convert expected earnings taxable at 77 per cent into capital gains taxable at 25 per cent, and still stay within the law?"

Top executives are demanding stock options instead of raises, preferring to gamble on the appreciated value of the stock, taxable at capital gains rates, than take raises which would go largely in taxes. Stock options are also a hedge against further inflation.

Corporation tax rates are having a deep effect on forms of business organization. Not many years ago, the trend was to incorporation. Even milk and laundry routes were incorporated. Many a wife found herself the minority stockholder in her husband's business. Now the trend is to individual ownerships and partnerships, where the earnings are taxed once, not twice.

The charity deduction provision in tax regulations has helped keep up and even expand the incomes of charity and similar organizations. A man with a seven-figure income who gives away a million dollars over a period of years can get the honors and satisfactions of a gift of that size at a net cost of only a fifth of that sum.

And, as pointed out here recently, taxes are wiping out the old tradition of owning the land for a business operation. Renting is cheaper today.

In fact, scarcely any important business conference opens today without someone asking, "Now, let's see. What are the tax angle?"

TRADE GAP LESS BUT MAY INCREASE
The gap between American exports and imports has been narrowed since the early postwar years, the National Industrial Conference Board finds. However, it says the trend may be reversed by the export of defense weapons to democratic nations. The big gap after the war was caused by the large shipments of relief aid abroad.

CONTEST GLEANS SCARCE HANGERS
A Massachusetts cleaner put on a contest, offering a bicycle and $10 and $5 prizes to the child who brought in the most wire hangers. It also paid 40 cents a hundred. At a total cost of $112 it took in hangers that would have cost $425 new.

COLORED POPULAR IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
While a (McCall's) magazine poll recent showed that the average woman does not want colored refrigerators, refrigerators and kitchen appliances, that's not the way exhibitors at a recent home show in Los Angeles see it.

Many of the kitchen displays went in heavily for color, some echoing the color schemes of the rest of the house. One showed bright lemon wall cabinets with pine green appliances. Another had a bronze refrigerator reflecting the copper and brass fixtures of the kitchen.

Built-in, recessed and enclosed cabinets and appliances were featured in many displays.

VIBRATIONLESS: Gun triggers with so little vibration it's almost imperceptible are claimed for new 22-caliber coil action rifles by Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven 4, Conn. Electronic devices were used to trace cause of trigger vibration.

Hal Boyle's Column

By RELMAN MORIN (For Hal Boyle)
NEW YORK—(AP)—My wife, who is a career woman and admits to strong feelings on the subject, has a favorite liche, to wit: "A woman, in any kind of business, has to work twice as hard as a man to get half as far."

I used to be stuck for an answer to that, but the war in Korea provided one. "How about Marguerite Higgins?" I ask, by way of a crisher.

Maggie Higgins was the only woman reporter over there on a daily stint. She represented the New York Herald-Tribune. Some others came and went on quickies. (One, in fact, made such a quickie that she had to consult a map when she got back to find out where she had been!) But Maggie made a job of it.

She came back with a Pulitzer Prize, an excellent book, and a clear track for the lecture circuits. A Hollywood studio wanted her life-story as the basis for a picture, but agents made the mistake of showing her the story-outline they had in mind, and she said nix to that. There were many other emoluments that came to her.

All of them were richly deserved.

Whether Maggie worked twice as hard as the men on the same beat would be hard to determine. Let's just say that she worked as hard as most, and harder than others. In any case, the point is that when the rewards were being passed out Maggie was handsomely remembered. And so she should have been.

She underwent all the usual hardships of war correspondents—plus. For example, she stayed with a South Korean division for a week or 10 days, and I do not recall that any other American correspondent did that.

It was much more dangerous than sticking with American units, and by the nature of things, not much different from natural. Newspaper readers over here naturally were more interested in closeups of what Americans were doing than they were in any of the allied units. I doubt that she got much copy out of it, but it was typical of her thoroughness to assign herself to the ROKS.

Her bravery, in fact, bordered in plain recklessnes.

One day, a correspondent's jeep was moving up near the front and it came to a fork in the road. An M. P. was standing there, and they asked directions of him.

He pointed down one road and said that was the quickest route to the unit they were hunting. But he added, "I wouldn't advise you to go that way. The Goots have it under observation and they shot hell out of another jeep about an hour ago."

The boys debated for a moment, and decided to take a chance. Maggie was in the jeep. As soon as it moved out of earshot of the M. P. she said, with some irritation, "I have nothing but contempt for people like that. If you worry about being shot at, you'd never get a story."

Coming from Kimpo Airtfield one afternoon she pointed to a bridge. "We were here last night," she said, "following the tanks when they took Kimpo. There was a lot of fighting around this bridge."

And she said, pretty much like a junior leaguer discussing the horse show, "It was quite exciting."

She lived in her dirty slacks and shirt for weeks on end, ate out of cans, and swallowed the yellow dust within a murmur. At that point, she was asked for exactly nothing in the way of privileges or amenities due her sex.

Every two months or so, she would fly over Tokyo, put on a dress, get a manicure and have her hair done. Maggie is a very pretty girl, tall, slim and blonde, with nice blue eyes, and a winsome almost a little-girl manner.

This is wholly deceptive. On a job, she is ferociously competitive, and eternally driven by a restless necessity to be wherever "the story" is. When the last war ended, she was in Paris. She speaks good French and knows the country well, and she could have stayed there. But she didn't. She was hell-bent to get to Berlin "because there will be so much more news there."

As a group, women reporters are mighty good. Maggie is one of the best.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Victoria Geaney hasn't been fishing for three years. She's been too busy being official housekeeper-hothead to Uncle Sam's Sunday-best company. Now she may find some time for her favorite sport.

Prospect House, historic Georgetown mansion leased by the State Department since 1949 as guest house for visiting dignitaries and presided over by Mrs. Geaney, has been sold.

Leased on a monthly basis for about $12,000 a year from Mrs. James V. Forrestal, widow of the first defense secretary, it was purchased by wealthy Rep. Thurmond Clatham (D-NC) for a reported $187,000.

Prospect House was leased when the government's original guest residence—Blair House, occupied by President Truman and family since repairs were begun on the White House—got too cramped for fancy entertaining.

First official guest at Prospect House was the Shah of Iran, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who slept in a four-poster bed in a second-floor-back master bedroom overlooking the Potomac.

Last guest to dream the night away in the mansion, built in 1788 by a rich sea captain, was the president of Ecuador, handsome and personable Galo Plaza, who was formerly his country's ambassador here.

Mrs. Geaney, before going on to Prospect House, had presided over Blair House as official hostess since it was purchased by the Government in 1942. She previously had served the fabulous Blair fam'; in that beautiful mansion for 25 years and it is still "home" to her. She is looking forward to the day when she can move back.

In the meantime, she thinks she'll fish a bit in Chesapeake Bay and other waters near her own country home at Oxon Hill in nearby Maryland . . . which she calls "My Retreat."

"We've been almost too busy to breathe," Mrs. Geaney told me. "In addition to putting up the Shah and the president of Ecuador—a lovely man—we entertained the prime minister and the president of Chile, and we've had a constant round of dinners, teas, receptions, garden parties, brunches and such."

Real Wedding Held After Bogus Rites

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—A teen-age soldier whose bogus wedding to a 15-year-old girl landed him in jail last week heads toward Korea today a legally married man.

It will be a real bride that Pvt. Thomas Carmon, 19, will kiss good-bye. He and young Betty Sue Mullins legalized their amusement park romance two days ago with a "quickie" ceremony in Georgia.

The wedding carried out the wishes of Betty Sue's mother, Mrs. Bessie Mullins, who made certain demands on Carmon when she learned he had tricked her daughter into believing they were married.

Mrs. Mullins indicated, however, that she had relented in her stipulation that the couple make their lawful wedding night a kissless one.

"I just want them to be happy," she said, when she learned of the elopement.

The soldier and Betty Sue took part in a double wedding farce which was enacted under an old oak tree a week ago. Carmon and Terry-Brice, 18, had met Betty Sue and a 17-year-old girl friend in an amusement park.

The boys proposed, the girls accepted and they were "wed" by a "country parson," who later was identified as Roy Arwine, 16, a school chum of the "bridegrooms."

The youths were arrested for violating Tennessee's age of consent law, but the charges were dropped and Carmon agreed to marry his "bride."

When they were unable to obtain a certificate in Tennessee because up with a "carload of friends" at the home of the Rev. George W. McClure, pastor of the Woodland Park Baptist Church at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. McClure performed the ceremony last Sunday.

"She swore that she was more than 18," the minister said. "If there had been any reasonable doubt about her age, I wouldn't have married them."

Joined Panel Talks At Regional Meet of Banking Institute

Clyde J. Warren, teller at the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., participated in a panel discussion during last weekend's regional meeting of the American Institute of Banking at Fort Monroe, Va.

Warren, who is a teller at the bank, discussed "Promoting Chapter Programs," while five other members of various national committees dealt with other chapter problems, such as educational programs, chapter financing, and women's work.

Warren has been employed at the Guaranty Bank for the past five years and is past president of the Greenville chapter of the AIB. He received his office as member of the national membership and enrollment committee during the June convention of the Institute at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Not So Hot

Moderately warm weather continued to prevail in the Greenville area yesterday and it was similar to that yesterday a year ago.

The local Weather Bureau observer reported the highest temperature yesterday as 83 degrees. Lowest last night, 67, and at 8 a. m. today the mercury stood at 70.

Total rainfall the past 24 hours from numerous light squalls early today was one-tenth of an inch.

Highest temperature recorded here yesterday a year ago was 85 degrees. Lowest that night, 55, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 65. No rain that day.

Commercial Feed Shipments Fall Off During Year

RALEIGH (UP)—Assistant Agriculture Commissioner A. Hugh Harris reported today that tonnage of commercial feeds delivered to North Carolina dropped off during the last fiscal year.

Harris said inspection tax collections indicated 697,000 tons of livestock and poultry feeds were sold in the state in the fiscal year 1950-51. The tonnage in 1949-50 was 830,343.

Harris said livestock and poultry numbers increased, so the decline in feed sales probably could be attributed to improved pastures and increases use of home grown feed stuffs.

Hold Hearing On Trucks For ACL

RALEIGH — (AP) — The State Utilities Commission was slated to hold a hearing today on an application of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad for authority to operate trucks between all its stations in North Carolina.

The trucks would haul mail, express, freight and other cargoes normally handled in less than carload lots. The railroad now uses trucks to supplement its rail service between some of its stations.

Meanwhile, the Norfolk Southern Bus Corporation was scheduled to show cause at a hearing today why it should not be ordered to handle express for the Railway Express Agency at Creswell and Columbia.

Fourteen Cadets Have Final Hearings; Await Discharge

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UP)—Fourteen of the 50 Army cadets facing dismissal from the U.S. Military Academy for classroom cheating have had their final hearings and are going to active duty today at nearby Camp Buckner awaiting discharge.

It was learned that the cadets have been put to work clearing shrubbery while Army officials decide their fate.

Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, superintendent of the academy, scheduled a press conference today and was expected to give the Army's official statement on the cheating scandal exposed last Friday.

Sources at West Point said parents of many cadets were hurrying here to help clear their sons' names and that one father, an officer on active duty, was traveling more than 1,500 miles.

Parents already on the scene begged President Truman last night to forgive their sons in a "fatherly" way and let them repay the nation in service for the "error of their youth."

In a telegram signed by the "Parents Committee of 90 Accused Cadets," the president was asked, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, to allow them to graduate and receive Army commissions.

Lt. Col. Harrison Travis, former West Point instructor and father of one of the cadets, said he had dispatched the telegram to the president as spokesman for the anguished parents.

The committee pleaded with Mr. Truman that dismissal in disgrace and without trial of their sons would be a "travesty on the American idea of justice and a needless waste of the lives of these young men."

"Your order restoring them to duty without prejudice subject to proper cadet discipline... would be appropriate, charitable and a fatherly act of understanding leadership," the petition said.

Travis drew up the petition last night shortly after Irving had joined football Coach Earl Blak in welcoming a congressional investigation.

Yesterday, Blak ended a four-day silence to voice his faith in the "ninety," which may include his son, Bob, quarterback of the Army's 1951 football team.

Blak, faced with losing all but one man in his starting 1951 football lineup, if the cadets are dismissed, said he would announce Thursday in New York whether he plans to continue as head coach of the "Black Knights."

Sources said baseball, basketball, boxing, swimming and track teams also could be affected by the mass ouster of cadets.

"I am sure that when the whole story is understood, no fair-minded man will condemn them," Blak said.

Noisy Lion Puts City In Uproar

ALBANY, Ga. (UP)—Anybody know how to make a lion shut up? City officials who are in an uproar over the roars of a lion named Ralph would appreciate receiving the information.

If they put Ralph back in the zoo, nearby residents will set up another clamor. If they leave him in the city dump, lion-lovers will continue to complain.

Ralph was exiled to the municipal refuse pile because he was disturbing the neighborhood around the zoo by roaring about being separated from his mate, Judy.

Visitors to the zoo immediately bombarded Mayor Menard Peacock and the city council with letters of protest.

"You should be ashamed — putting Ralph at the dump," one of the lion's fans wrote. "A lion's place, roars and all, is at the zoo. My kids are awfully mad about this."

So were other kids, including a 10-year-old who suggested that Ralph was merely hungry. Another letter recommended outfitting Ralph with a headgear which would turn his roars back into his own ears.

Officials tried reuniting the lion with his mate, but even this didn't quiet him. The council is still open to suggestions.

CHICAGO (UP)—A patron of a swanky handbook in suburban North Lake Village brooded on fate as police raiders herded him and other bettors outside.

"What a time for a raid," he groaned. "I've got a $1,000 parlay going."

Prices Edge Up On Border Belt

By UNITED PRESS

Price averages climbed slightly as the flue-cured tobacco markets of the North and South Carolina Border Belt moved into their second week of sales.

Averages for cutters, primings and nondescript showed rises of $1 and $2 per hundred pounds. Fair lemon primings jumped $4 per hundred and best and poorest thin nondescript made a gain of $6.

The Federal and State Market News Service reported that lugs failed to follow the trend and were steady to $2 lower.

Most markets reported light volume but better quality caused by a greater proportion of cutters and less nondescript. Lugs dominated the marketings, with few baskets of leaf appearing on the floors.

Reports for the first full week of sales showed 16,068,375 pounds of tobacco sold for an average of $48.76 per hundred. Last year's opening week sold 17,471,620 pounds for an average of $55.50.

Florida Out To Get The Summer Dollars

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — (UP) — Florida, long a haven for the "winter refugee" is going after another, richer segment of the tourist market.

Covetously eyeing the multi-million-dollar vacation traveler trade, the state is revamping its "come-hither" advertising to hit the average tourist instead of the "idle rich."

Florida isn't going to stay trying to get the wealthy winter tourists who annually flock to its gold coast playgrounds but greater emphasis is going to be put on its appeal to the more lucrative trade of the summer traveler.

The average expenditures of this entirely different market are smaller individually than that of the winter vacationer but there are so many more of them.

Beverly Grizzard, acting director of the state advertising commission, disclosed that Florida has been appealing only to about 20 per cent of the tourist potential and almost ignoring the average vacation traveler.

"It's phenomenal that we have built such a big industry just on the small segment of people who want to escape the winter," he said.

The tourist potential is estimated at between $10,000,000,000 and $15,000,000,000. Last year, Florida tapped $885,000,000 of this and Grizzard predicted the state's tourist take this year will go over a billion dollars.

The advertising commission is out to corner a larger share than that.

The vacation travel trade, comprising 80 per cent of the tourist potential, represents almost entirely a "consumer's market," the kind that puts money in the pockets of merchants and the treasury of a state.

According to Grizzard, the summer traveler will take in all of Florida, not just the rich playground resorts. When they discover all-Florida, he said, "it will be Katy bar the door."

The advertising official said the "bargain appeal" is the basis for the summer promotion, the old gimmick of a millionaire's vacation at piggy bank rates.

Frogs have been known to eat fireflies. Birds, despite their good appetites for insects, are more fastidious, and rarely if ever eat fireflies, U. S. Government studies show.

New Income Tax Boost Predicted Effective Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Walter W. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee said today that the new personal income tax boost probably will not go into effect until Oct. 1.

George, who just returned from a rest in his Vienna, Ga., home, told newsmen that he saw no chance of the tax hike starting on Sept. 1, as approved by the House. George said his committee would begin closed door sessions Monday on the House-approved $7,200,000,000 tax increase bill.

He estimated it would take about two weeks for the committee to agree on changes in the House measure. This would mean that the bill would not be ready for Senate debate until the end of August.

The House set Sept. 1 as the beginning date for higher income taxes, which are one of the bill's main money-raising features.

George said he would recommend Oct. 1, which is the beginning of the fourth quarter of the calendar year and the second quarter of the fiscal year.

George refused to predict what other changes might be made in the House measure, which falls far short of the $10,700,000,000 increase asked by the administration.

But he admitted that the proposed changes in excess profits taxes and the new rates on individual and corporate income levies would be two of the toughest points for his committee to agree upon.

George all but dismissed any possibility of his committee approving any form of general sales tax at the manufacturing or retail level. Many "sine" groups have advocated such a tax. He said he didn't think it "worthwhile to lose any time discussing the sales tax."

BOOKIE FAILS TO PAY
NEW YORK — (AP) — A Bronx housewife gave the police an assist in their drive against gamblers by having an alleged bookmaker arrested. Her complaint was that he failed to pay off after she had parlayed $100 into $1,885 betting on horse races.

The woman, a mother of two children, told the court she bets an average of $40 a day on the races without drawing on her bank account or her husband's $85 weekly pay.

Converts Defeat Sedans; Annex Junior League Title

Big Rally In 8th Gives Morgan Win

Converts Tally Five Runs In Eighth Without Benefit Of Hit; Doug Morgan Hurls Win To Send Converts To Tourney

By MELVIN LANG

Five big runs in the eighth inning last night gave the Converts a 10-7 win over the Sedans and the Junior League championship for 1961.

The championship, which was originally scheduled to be played in a two-out of three series, with each game going six frames, was decided by the single nine inning game last night.

The Converts scored their winning runs without the aid of a safety. Bill Catielle and Earl Wright led off the big rally by walking. Glenn Scott laid down a bunt down the third base line, and when the Sedan hurler, Gene Hudson, attempted to get Catielle going into third, he threw the ball over the fielder's head, with Catielle scoring. Wright crossed the plate as Doug Strickland's grounder was crossed. James Tyson brought Scott home with a perfect sacrifice bunt.

Doug Morgan laid down another bunt and was safe as Hudson threw the ball over the first baseman's head, with Strickland scoring. Hugh Harrison walked and Roger Mills fanned. Randolph Tripp hit a grounder to the second baseman which he threw to the pitcher.

Wright crossed the plate as Doug Strickland's grounder was crossed. James Tyson brought Scott home with a perfect sacrifice bunt. The Sedans took a five to two lead in the first three innings but were unable to hold it as their defense fell through. They committed a total of 10 errors. The winners made eight fielding miscues, for a combined total of 18 errors in the game.

Doug Morgan gained credit for the win, going the route of the contest. Morgan was tagged for eight hits. The young righthander fanned five and walked six.

Gene Hudson hurled the first seven and one third inning for the losers and was charged with the defeat. He was relieved by Guy Smith in the eighth inning. Hudson fanned 13 men in the encounter while walking nine. Smith struck out one during his brief tenure on the mound.

The Sedans rallied in the top of the ninth but were unable to plate

Tom Morgan Leads Yankees To Victory

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer

It looks like some pitching advice from a couple of wise "old timers" has made rookie Tom Morgan the New York Yankees' "miracle of 1961."

For following instructions to the letter, young Morgan calmly mowed down the Washington Senators 4 to 0 last night with a five-hit, merely his eighth straight victory and his third shutout. He's just what the doctor ordered for the Yankees in their hot pennant battle.

And big, big assists go today to those two veteran Yankee coaches, former catcher Bill Dickey and former pitcher "Milkman Jim" Turner.

Realizing that the shambling, easy-going Morgan could prove actually the same brilliant surprise that young Ed (Whitey) Ford was last year, Dickey and Turner have been carefully tutoring the rookie righthander in the crafts of the mound.

Result: Morgan now stands just one win behind Ford's phenomenal streak of nine wins last year that brought the Yanks a pennant. Ford now is in the Army.

Though Morgan was winning regularly, he had been showing an inability to finish. Turner and Dickey diagnosed his trouble as bearing down too hard in the first three innings, advised him just before last night's game to use his change-of-pace pitch more often.

The wisdom was proved as Morgan kept his "stuff" all the way against the Senators. When he got in a jam he had his power in reserve.

"His body moves slow, but his mind moves fast," observed manager Casey Stengel. "He learns awful fast and never forgets. He's gonna stay around here a long time and make a lotta money."

Could be he'll help the Yanks

Ayden Gridiron Star Picked For All-Star Contest

AYDEN—Conard "Teddy" Bullock, star quarterback for the Ayden High School Tornados, has been chosen to play for the East All-Stars in the scholastic All-Star football game to be played in Greensboro Friday night.

Bullock, who stands six feet one inch and weighs 175 pounds will run the Eastern squad from the T formation. Ayden star made the mythical All-Coastal Conference, a Class A loop, for two years in a row.

He was also picked to play in the Optimist Bowl last season but declined the offer. Bullock recently received a football scholarship to Fork Union Military Academy in Virginia.

He is a rising senior.

Stan Retains Leadership; Minoso Heads Americans

CHICAGO (AP)—Although slumping two points to 344, rookie Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox continued to lead the American League batters during the week.

Washington's Gil Coan skidded nine points in averages computed through Sunday's games and dropped from second to fourth place. He has a .331 after tapping only six hits in 26 trips.

Injured Ferris Fain of Philadelphia returned to second with an unchanged .334 while Detroit's George Kell went into third with .332.

Tom Morgan of New York posted the best pitching percentage with .71 for .876 but Cleveland's Bob Feller was the top winning hand with 17-4. Vic Raschi of New York still set the strikeout pace with 114.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial of St. Louis has a new challenger for the National League batting title in Richie Ashburn, the Phillies' fleet center fielder.

Ashburn, tops in total hits most of the season, passed Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn during the week ending Sunday to make his bid.

Musial at 370 holds a 13-point edge over Ashburn's 357 but the persistent Phil is climbing fast.

While Stan lost five points in a week, Ashburn moved up six with 14 hits in 33 at bats for a week-long .424 pa.

Robinson, troubled by a sore hand, slumped 13 points to .345.

Exchangites And Jaycees Take Little League Wins

The Exchangites scored four runs in the top of the third inning yesterday to go ahead of the Lions and on to victory by a 6-3 count.

Roger Bullock started the rally with a clean single, followed by an error on a grounder by Francis Nunn, Charlie Smith singled to advance the runners. Dick Evans gained life on an error by the third baseman. After Angus Duff was safe on a fielder's choice, a grounder by Ralph Johnson was errored by the first baseman. Donald McArthur walked and the inning ended as both George Nickols and Alf Forbes grounded out, pitcher to first.

Nickols was the winning pitcher, coming into the mound in the second inning. He replaced Ralph Johnson, who went to second base. Charlie Staton and Mack Roebuck did the hurrying for the Lions, with Staton starting and being charged with the defeat.

Charles Smith led the winners at bat with three singles. Second Game

In the second game of the double-header, the Jaycees swamped the Kiwanians by a 14-2 score.

Walker Allen went the distance for the winners, allowing but five hits.

The winners did not reach the Kiwanis hurlers for but five hits, but the two pitchers, Garrett Folger and Jack Spain, issued a total of 18 free passes.

Six runs in the first inning did the trick for the Jaycees, who are leading the league. Six walks and two singles, by Dick Nobles and Wayne Suggs, featured the wild scoring. They scored eight more runs in the fourth on seven walks and three safeties. Singles by Suggs and Arthur Andrews and a double by Nobles were the limit of the hits for the Jaycees.

Baseball Investigators To Have New Mystery Witness

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional investigators of baseball turned today (9 a.m. EST) to something of a mystery witness for more information about the game.

Chairman Celler (D-NY) of the House Judiciary Committee identified the scheduled witness only by his name—Ross C. Horning.

He declined to tell newsmen where Horning is from or what his connection is or has been with organized baseball. Neither would he indicate what tack his testimony might take.

Veteran sports writers on the scene were at a loss to place him. But the memory of yesterday's testimony by A. B. (Happy) Chandler, the recently unseated high commissioner, lingered on.

Rep. Herlong (D-Fla.), one of the backers of legislation to exempt baseball from anti-trust laws, told a reporter he thought Chandler "made a pretty good witness for baseball."

"I wish he had come out flat-footed on the need for legislation for the game," he said. "I know that he thinks it is necessary also."

Herlong, former president of the Florida State League, will testify on Friday along with other sponsors of similar bills—Reps. Mills (D-Ark.), Price (D-Ill.) and Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) who is also president of the Western League.

Aware that baseball's high moguls meet today to name his successor, he suggested they also make these changes in the rules:

(1) Give the commissioner complete authority; (2) elect him on the basis of a simple majority vote instead of requiring 12 of the 16 votes; and (3) let the commissioner have the right to fire the secretary-treasurer of baseball as well as hire him.

Grid Yanks Seek Neale For Coach

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York football Yanks were scouring the country for a coach today—and reports were that they wouldn't have to look far.

Deposed last February by the Philadelphia Eagles, has the inside track for the job.

Neale could not be contacted immediately and owner Ted Collins merely indicated that he would have to find someone fast. That much is understandable. The Yanks started training at Ripon, Wis., last Friday and the players still have not seen a head coach.

Until yesterday, Red Stader had the job. He said he was fired. Collins said he was "completely shocked" at Stader's action, maintaining Red was not fired.

Said Stader, who has been Yank mentor since mid-season of 1948: "I most certainly was fired. I was told definitely that I was through. Needless to say it was a shock to me I was ready, willing and able to carry on my duties as coach, and I figured on doing so."

Apparently the entire situation evolved around an interpretation of a contract Collins admitted he asked Stader to sign concerning his health. Stader spent most of June in the hospital with a heart ailment. Collins maintained he was advised it might be fatal for Stader to continue as coach.

Large Field Seen In Hambletonian

GOSHEN, N. Y. (UP)—Harness racing officials poured over the rule book today to see if they could start 11 horses abreast in tomorrow's rich Hambletonian stake, which is expected to draw a record field.

The entry deadline for the $90,000 event, the world's richest harness race, was at 10 a.m. (EST) today. A decision on how many horses will start abreast was expected before the draw for post positions, which will be held shortly after the entry box closes.

A six-way split of the huge purse and the lack of a standout candidate were expected to draw 22 starters. The record high in previous Hambletonians was the 19-horse field of 1945.

The Hambletonian is decided by two-heat victories with the winners of the first three meetings in a fourth, if necessary. Post positions for the first heat are decided by lot but the order of finish in preceding heats decides the positions after that.

New Mad Dog Vaccine Has Promising Try-Out

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
NEW YORK—(AP)—A new mad dog vaccine is in use this summer, with promising results.

This rabies vaccine not only protects animals but also prevents an infected animal from possibly passing the hydrophobia to another animal.

Rabies is spread by saliva. This vaccine has the added quality of preventing the infection from showing up in saliva. That seems to mean that if a vaccinated dog should go mad, this saliva could not do harm, either to humans or to animals.

To date, with 15,000 vaccinations, there have been no reported failures. Former vaccines usually were not one hundred per cent effective. A few rabies cases appeared.

The new vaccine is made by the Lederle laboratories division of the American Cyanamid Company. It is named Flury, after a Macon, Ga., child of that name, who died of rabies about ten years ago.

Some of the virus that killed her was taken by Dr. Harold N. Johnson of the Rockefeller Foundation, to Montgomery, Ala. He was working there on rabies at the time widespread in the South.

Dr. Johnson used this Macon virus as part of a routine search for new things in vaccines. He gave this virus to young chickens, thereby creating a new strain.

A Lederle Laboratories team, Doctors Herald R. Cox and Hilary Kowrowski, modified the vaccine further by producing it in embryo chicks. This step got rid of the occasional temporary paralyzing after-effects of rabies vaccination.

The new vaccine then was tested on thousands of dogs in Georgia and New York. In Georgia the tests were supervised by W. L. E. Starr and Dr. Thomas Sellers of the State Department of Health. In New York by Dr. Alexander Zeissig of the State Department of Health, and in New York City Drs. Ralph Muckenfuss, Morris Greenberg and Herbert Baum of the city's health department.

About 10,000 dogs were tested. There were no bad reactions. Many dogs were given huge doses of rabies virus, enough to kill. Not one of these dogs got sick.

The trade name is avianized rabies vaccine, avianized because chickens are the source.

Extra Axles To Avoid Violation Of Highway Law

RALEIGH—(AP)—Extra axles will be installed on the State Highway Department's bigger truck to avoid violation of the state's highway weight limit laws.

This was reported yesterday by Highway Commission Chairman Henry W. Jordan. He said 13 tandem axles have been ordered for big asphalt trucks. Bids will be opened Aug. 16 on 12 axles which will be placed on trucks hauling stone from quarries to road jobs.

Jordan explained that by adding the extra axle, a truck can carry a fuller load and still be within the legal weight limit. A state law limits the load to 18,000 pounds per axle.

School Administrators Slated To Convene Here On August 9

Administrative officers representing various schools in the state will meet at East Carolina College Thursday, August 9, for a conference which will deal with several major problems presented by their work.

Dr. Edgar M. Finck, visiting faculty member at the college this summer, will direct the conference. A morning meeting in the Austin auditorium and a luncheon in the college dining hall will be devoted to discussions of "Drop-Outs Between Grade School and High School," "The Administrator's Responsibility for Improving Instruction," and "Consolidation."

Dr. Allen S. Hurlburt, formerly head of the East Carolina Department of Education, who for the past year has conducted a school survey for the State Department of Public Instruction, and Dr. I. E. Ready, superintendent of schools in Roanoke Rapids and visiting faculty member at East Carolina this summer, will be among principal speakers at the conference.

Both will discuss problems presented by students who leave school before they have completed their education.

John Cameron, director of the division of surveys for the State Department of Public Instruction, will speak at a luncheon meeting in the North Dining Hall of the college. His topic will be "Consolidation: How It Can Actually Be Achieved." President John D. Messick of East Carolina will welcome those present; and D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, will act as toastmaster.

Dr. E. C. Simonini, faculty member of the East Carolina Department of English, will play some of his original arrangements of popular airs.

A panel discussion among eight speakers, including superintendents, principals, supervisors, and classroom teachers, will center attention on the duties of the school principal in improving instruction. Dr. Finck will act as coordinator.

Supersonic Plane Is Moved Openly

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(UP)—The highly secret Bell X-1A experimental plane was moved from the Bell plant here to the Buffalo airport in an open trailer but company spokesmen said nothing vital was revealed.

"Although the plane is in a top-secret category, its external appearance is no secret and it looks almost exactly like the original supersonic Bell X-1," a spokesman explained.

The plane was taken to the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory at Buffalo airport for installation of additional instruments preparatory to test flights. No mention was made of the site or date for the tests.

Singapore Citizens Don't Like Treaty

SINGAPORE—(AP)—A large section of the Chinese community in Singapore feels frustrated by terms of the draft Japanese peace treaty—they see no hope in these terms of recovering large funds taken from them by the Japanese as donations during the occupation.

Scholars Still Dispute Bible Cave Discovery

JERUSALEM—(UP)—An inquisitive Palestine goat that strayed away from the herd a little over four years ago not far from Jericho has set off a controversy.

Historians and biblical scholars are on one side and archeologists on the other.

The dispute has been going on for some time but it has flamed more bitterly after a debate at the Jerusalem University between the chief exponents of both views.

The dispute concerns the authenticity of 17 ancient scrolls, most of which are said to be the earliest Hebrew texts of several books of the Old Testament.

When the goatherd saw one of his charges going up a rocky hillside he ran after the animal.

On the way up he passed a circular opening in the rocks. The rock he flung at the goat went into the small cave entrance.

He heard the sound of something cracking and called help.

Jars Found Intact

Two Arab lads wriggled inside the cave and discovered one broken jar and other jars intact. In the unbroken jars they found several rolls of parchment.

Each Arab took four rolls. One sold his share to an antiquities dealer in Bethlehem, who re-sold them to the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. The other four were sold to the Monastery of St. Mark in Jerusalem, from where they were sent to the United States.

Prof. E. L. Sukenik of the Hebrew University, who deciphered most of the scrolls, is sure they are authentic texts written during the second century B. C. Dr. O. R. Sellers and Dr. J. C. Trever of the American School of Oriental Research are also certain there can be no doubts as to the authenticity of the scrolls. Such scholars of world-wide renown as Prof. W. F. Albright and Prof. Millar Burrows support this thesis.

Those experts believe the scrolls are genuine manuscripts dating back to the pre-Christian era. They claim that the script and style of writing are indisputably convincing when compared with other ancient documents.

Called Trivial

Prof. Solomon Zeitlin, editor of the scientific Jewish Quarterly Review, however, is quite sure that the scrolls date back only as far as the Middle Ages. As such, he contends, they have comparatively little value for either biblical scholars, historians, linguists or students of religion.

Some of the scrolls come from old Jewish libraries in Hebron which had been sacked after the massacre of 80 Jews there in 1929, Prof. Zeitlin said.

Although Prof. Zeitlin had no opportunity to study ancient scrolls in Hebron during his visit there in 1925, he believes they were all written in the Middle Ages.

He thinks the Arabs who stole the scrolls during the pillage of Hebron's Jewish quarter in 1929

Hybrid Fruit Is Breeders' Dream

GENEVA, N. Y.—(UP)—During the past few weeks dozens of crosses have been made in the orchards, vineyards and small fruit plantings on the grounds of the state experiment station here.

It is the annual quest for the fruit breeder's dream.

From the crosses made with apricots, sweet cherries, peaches, apples, pears, plums, and the small fruits will come thousands of seedlings to be grown to fruiting age and compared with existing varieties.

Most of the crosses will be discarded at first sight but the possibility always exists that an outstanding variety may be born.

Among the current fruit breeders' "dreams" are high quality, large sized, productive apricots that will thrive under New York conditions; better midseason or main crop sweet cherries as well as a good late sweet cherry; blight-resistant pears; hardy, early ripening peaches; better processing apples; and table and wine grapes that possess more of the qualities of European or "California" grapes.

POTENT EVEN IN DEATH

MONTICELLO, Ind. — (UP) — Lawrence Kraud, a policeman, used a dead queen bee to corral a swarm of bees massed on a fire hydrant. He put the dead insect, which had been killed by a car, into a cardboard carton and the swarming bees flew in.

get together with dealers in antiquities and staged the find to enhance the value of the manuscripts.

Consequently, Prof. Zeitlin urges the setting up of a commission of scholars to investigate the authenticity of the scrolls.

Professor Criticized

Prof. Sukenik and other archeologists maintain that Prof. Zeitlin never read the Hebron scrolls and has never compared their form of writing with the type of characters used in the scrolls discovered by the goatherd.

Among the scrolls investigated by Prof. Sukenik is a complete, almost undamaged text of the Book of Isaiah nearly identical with the authorized text fixed by Jewish tradition 1,900 years ago. This 23-foot long scroll is said to prove how carefully the traditional reading of the text was preserved over a 2,000-year-old period.

An early commentary of the Book of Habaku, chapters from the Book of Genesis and Leviticus in ancient Hebrew, Phoenician characters, chapters from Deuteronomy and Judges, a tiny fragment from a book of war hymns and the hitherto unknown text of a book called by Prof. Sukenik "The War of the Children of Light and the Children of Darkness" are included in the scrolls valued by students of language, Bible scholars and historians alike cherish them.

Vast Shasta Project Is Now Serving California

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The new California Central Valley reclamation project has gone into full-scale operation, with 10 days of civic celebrations in California.

The Central Valley Project is one of the greatest engineering enterprises ever undertaken by the United States government. It will move large quantities of irrigation water virtually the 500-mile length of the Central Valley, the longest distance man has ever attempted. Immense hydroelectric power will be developed.

Engineers told the United Press that the Central Valley Project will have an economic significance at least four times greater than the Tennessee Valley development, which amazed the world by its demonstration of the multi-purpose utilization of a complete river system.

It is unique among reclamation systems in the fact that it combines the Sacramento and San Joaquin watersheds into a single system, with the surplus water from the south-flowing Sacramento River made available to the insufficiently supplied north-flowing San Joaquin. Eventually, all of the important tributary streams will be harnessed for irrigation water and electrical power.

Because California climate and crops are substantially similar to those of the Mediterranean area, the Central Valley already has attracted many settlers from southern European countries. The migration is likely to continue. The agricultural program is expected also to create a large additional demand for Mexican farm workers. The Central Valley is about 500 miles long, 50 miles wide, covers 18 counties with 43 cities, and now supports 1,600,000 people. Its ranches, orchards, vineyards and dairies already turn out products worth about $640,000,000 annually.

The program now being developed ultimately will provide water for 2,000,000 acres of land not now irrigated, and will produce 8,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of power a year. Low-cost power is expected to lead to an industrial boom in the valley, which economically complements the San Francisco Bay cities.

The key engineering structure in the vast project is the giant Shasta Dam across the Sacramento River. The dam was rushed to virtual completion during World War II to serve the abnormal demand for hydroelectric power in that region.

Shasta Dam, second highest in the world, is 602 feet high. It is topped only by the Hoover Dam, 726 feet. Shasta has a crest two-thirds of a mile long and contains 6,000,000 cubic feet of concrete.

Before the Central Valley program was started, a large part of the area was menaced by water famine, as the underground water table was steadily sinking. Some ranches had drilled wells as deep as 2,000 feet, at an almost prohibitive cost. A menaced area of 800,000 acres will be saved by the new irrigation facilities.

COOK PAYS SOCIAL CALL
TOPEKA, Kan. — (AP) — Mrs. Daisy McDonald presided over the Kansas governor's mansion kitchen as chief cook for 35 years before she made her first visit to the chief executive's state house offices.

HOTEL NUISANCE... Your hotel window isn't the place to hang your wet bathing suit, any more than your living room windows.

HEART STILL GOING
SAN DIEGO, Calif. — (UP) — Mary Carillo is 103 years old and her friends were alarmed when she had a heart attack and was taken to the hospital. Their alarm was short-lived. She was released 40 minutes after arrival. Doctors said her heart slowed down but didn't stop.

In 1900 the United States had 12,500,000 people more than 45 years old; today there are 42,500,000.

Milk Scorpions For Anti-Venom Serum

TEMPLE, Ariz.—(UP)—Here's a man who is on the prowl for a poisonous child-killer, the southwestern scorpion. He doesn't want them dead, however. He welcomes the brown crawlers with their stingers ready for action.

He is Dr. Herbert L. Stahnke, head of the biological science department at Arizona State College. Dr. Stahnke "milks" his scorpions to produce anti-venom serum.

The poison is injected into cats in small quantities. Cats are especially invulnerable to the scorpion sting, because of an ability to produce a neutralizing fluid. The cat's blood is converted into anti-venom serum and is injected into children who suffer scorpion stings.

The treatment is one hundred per cent perfect if victims are treated soon after the sting, Stahnke reports. Adults rarely die of a scorpion sting but they suffer extensively through painful swelling.

The new serum and public education in first aid has cut down scorpion-sting deaths in Arizona from around 25 per year to two or three per year during the past decade, Stahnke says, though, that more serum is needed this year due to an abnormally large scorpion "crop." The doctor wants every hospital in the state to have a supply of the serum.

Biggest problem in serum manufacture is obtaining "milker" scorpions in a steady supply. The insect doesn't breed in captivity and specimens must be gathered in the field. Stahnke has neither money nor the personnel to collect them.

"We've appealed to the citizens of the southwest to bring scorpions to us," the doctor said. Gathering them alive is dangerous, though. Also, people have such an aversion to them they'd rather kill them instead of capturing them alive."

Stahnke said the post office department's failure to cooperate has hindered his work.

"The department refuses to approve any type of shipping containers we've offered," he explained. "I guess they don't want to lose any of their postmen. If we could get a cheap container and give it wide circulation, it would solve many of our problems. The way it is now, those who gather specimens have to bring them to the college in person."

In 1847 fire destroyed the church and the bell melted. What was left of the metal was cast into a new bell, less than half the size of the original.

The half-size bell was used at Villanova College and later by a Jamaica, L. I., church founded by the Augustinians.

Recently the Augustinians returned it to Villanova, where it has been placed on view in the college's new library.

Fond Memory Of Horse And Buggy

PHILADELPHIA—(UP)—Marcus Roggenburger, who has completed 35 years of accident-free driving for a downtown department store, looks back fondly to the days of the horse-drawn wagon.

He uses a one and a half ton truck now, but there was a day when he had a snappy, horse-drawn buggy with a gold stripe down both sides and yellow wheels. He liked the buggy much better.

"Horses had brains and they always knew when to stop," Roggenburger said. "Most drivers now don't have brains and they never know when to stop."

Twin Of Liberty Bell Still Shown

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—One of the first things most tourists want to see in Philadelphia is the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall. "Care" does a tourist travel to Villanova College near Philadelphia to see the Liberty Bell's "twin." Few persons know it exists.

The history of the twin bell was recalled during preparations for the observance this year of the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The "twin" is known as the "London Bell." It was cast in London when the Liberty Bell, at that time not known by its present name, cracked on its first ringing.

By the time the second bell arrived here, the Liberty Bell had been repaired. So the London Bell was hung in Philadelphia's state house and was used to sound the time during the years 1753 to 1828.

It eventually passed to the Brother Hermits of St. Augustine and they hung it in St. Augustine's Church near the Delaware

Soviet Reign Of Terror Holds Albania In Check

By HELEN FISHER
United Press Staff Correspondent
PRIZREN, Yugoslavia—(UP)—Russian "instructors" have infiltrated every sizable town and even some tiny villages in Albania, Albanian refugees reported.

From talks with recently arrived refugees at nearby Djakovic and "old" refugees settled here for two or three years, this picture of the current regime in Albania emerged. Only two Albanians are held fully responsible for the country's present unhappy situation: Premier Enver Hoxha and Mehmet Shehu, minister of interior. All other Albanian officials have been so overshadowed by the two that they are considered nonentities.

The two are ancient rivals and are reported to quarrel violently even now, when they have reached the highest posts in the country. At the moment Hoxha is still the stronger but Shehu is said to be ready to grab his job at any opportune moment.

Terror Spread
There is more personal hatred in Albania for Shehu, who is directly responsible for the police terror which has gripped the country, the refugees said.

Albanians generally regard Hoxha as merely obstinate, an ambitious man who has become a tool of the Russians. They believe that neither of the two is a convinced Communist.

Both are considered as simply hungry for power and ready to adopt whatever ideas seem most likely to provide it.

Many refugees have reported that Shehu delights in appearing incognito, dressed as a private in the army or police force at particularly bloody round-ups or executions.

Russians Run Army
Behind and controlling Hoxha, Shehu, and their Albanian subordinates are thousands of Russians. Russian officers in full uniform control the army. There are cases where Albanian colonels have to take orders from Russian lieutenants.

Russian secret police, not in uniform but identifiable by their appearance at police headquarters to give instruction to their Albanian counterparts, are numerous.
In addition, there are thousands of Russian civilians scattered all over the country, generally known as "instructors."

They control every sizable business enterprise and every important government administration down to country governments, and even sit in some small villages, especially those near the Yugoslav frontier.
In Kukus, for example, there is a unit of 20 Russians headed by a high-ranking army officer, all in civilian clothes.

Few of the Russians speak any Albanian. Albanians trained in Moscow serve as interpreters and aides.

Many Executions
Under Shehu's energetic administration and Russian prodding, the

'TAKE IT AWAY, PLEASE'—Birmingham, Ala., highway police discuss dismantling of this house during removal to another site. When told it would block highway, police consented.

Albanian police have been reinforced by "special brigades" which act as flying squads to quell suspected trouble.
Some 600 of them recently camped on a group of villages in the Dales-Puks district near the frontier, where growing numbers of Albanians were escaping into Yugoslavia. Volunteers for the brigades agree to serve at least five years.

Albanians are frequently executed without trial by both the brigades and the regular police, often before the eyes of their families. Others go before firing squads after summary trial by traveling military courts.

The families of executed men and refugees are crammed into the concentration camps which dot the entire country. The largest is at Tepelena (east of Valona in southern Albania), where more than 8,000 persons, including many women and children, are "interned."

Old Coins Used To Buy Ice Cream

MELROSE, Mass.—(UP)—The ice cream peddlers were running out of humor. So were the children.
The youngsters were trying to buy ice cream with two-cent pieces and other outdated coins, some of them 300 years old.

Police investigated. They discovered the coins were part of a collection, apparently stolen, which had been dropped behind a tenement house.
They believed the thief was a youth about 16 who had been scattering coins for the youngsters for several days. No one seemed to know the youth. To add to the problem, no one had reported a coin collection stolen.

Copra and teakwood are among the products of the Indian State of Travancore.

Grandma Adopts Returning Vets

SEATTLE, Wash.—(UP)—An 87-year-old Fargo, N. D. woman has adopted all the returning veterans arriving here from Korea under the rotation plan.

Mrs. H. B. Hanson has not missed a troop ship arrival although she has no sons or grandsons aboard. She said:
"Lots of folks who would like to meet the boats have to work or stay at home, so I get up early when a ship comes in, have a big breakfast, and then get down to the docks."

Army, Navy, and other service personnel handling the arrivals say "she is a sort of grandmother to every man debarking here from the fighting front."

Mrs. Hanson is always seen on the dock waving a gaily colored scarf to the home-coming heroes. When a ship docks, Seattle port of embarkation employees look for Mrs. Hanson and always have a reserved chair waiting for her.

"I can't cheer very loudly," Mrs. Hanson said, "but I can wave my scarf." She has greeted more than 10,000 returning veterans.

Young Hermit Is Fully Prepared

LA PORTE, Ind.—(UP)—After a two-day search for a missing boy, police found 13-year-old Denny Norman camping out in a makeshift tent in a thicket not far from his home.

Benny had built a tent by propping a blanket on tree limbs. He took his puppy along and provisions for "roughing it." They included five boxes of cookies, a dozen apples, peanuts, a few cans of sardines, a can of salmon, a stack of magazines and a spray gun to kill mosquitoes.

OLD PAINTING FOUND

WINNIPEG—(AP)—The congregation of the Russian Orthodox Holy Trinity Church here held a special service of veneration for one of the oldest icons in the world, a painting of the Virgin Mary which is believed to have been done by the Apostle St. Luke.

Ancient Paris was captured and plundered several times by the Vikings.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — (AP)—
A specimen of a tree once thought to be extinct is flourishing in West Virginia University's Arboretum.
The tree is the Metasequoia Gylptostroboides, a relative of California's giant Sequoia. Dr. Earl L. Core, head of the University's Department of Biology, said three specimens were planted this past Spring after they were presented by the Brooklyn Botanical Garden in connection with a national study of climatic requirements. Two have since disappeared and are believed to have been stolen from the Arboretum, but the third has taken hold in a manner indicating that West Virginia is the proper habitat for the tree.

Seeds were gathered in 1947 in a program directed by Dr. E. D. Merrill of the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, Mass., and seedlings now have been distributed to numerous institutions here and in the Far East for testing purposes.

Omaha Town Law Says No Head Cold

OMAHA — (AP)—Railroad travelers with head colds would have to give Omaha a wide berth if authorities should decide to dust off one musty ordinance on the city's books.
It requires railroad conductors to wire ahead if any passengers show signs of the sniffles or other symptoms of contagious disease.

Another silly law cited by Dr. Edwin D. Lyman, acting city-county health director, permits arrest of a householder who is unfortunate enough to have a damp basement. Dr. Lyman says he's not prepared to try to enforce these outdated ordinances.

Age Is No Bar

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — (UP)—
"You can't go on living like a statue, day by day, dying by degrees," an 80-year-old Sacramento man said to his cronies.
J. A. Spann got peered about the way his age was against him when he applied for work.
He rounded up four others in the same predicament: James Katon, Joe Baker, Fred Collard, and E. Farley. They formed a cooperative and advertised for any kind of work around homes and offices.
They figured they could do many chores, since the group consisted of an ex-plasterer and ex-miner, ex-contractor and an ex-dam construction worker.
It must have been a good idea because now the self-styled "old monkeys" are looking for a central shop to store tools to carry on operations.

The Girl Next Door

By Peggy Gaddis

Chapter 24
Professor Hartley turned his head, listening intently, as he caught the sound of an approaching footstep. A moment later, he said eagerly:
"Peter—good morning! This is a pleasant surprise!"
"Thanks, sir."
"Something's wrong, Peter," said Professor Hartley.
"I'm not sure about that, Professor. Maybe something's been wrong, but now it's right. I've been walking and doing a lot of thinking. I seem to be able to think straight this morning for the first time in a long time. Marcia," he added, "has broken our engagement."
"I—I scarcely know what to say, Peter."
"Why not say what everybody else in town will be saying—that it's no more than should have been expected; that I was a fool to gets a letter from there this morning—a big fat one with air mail stamps all over it. She rushes upstairs to read it. Then she yells for me and says she's got to get her things packed up. I hear her telephoning to the railroad depot for a ticket. She's leavin' on the 7 o'clock train tonight."

"How come she's goin' to New York now?" Esther wondered aloud. "It's only four days till she's going to marry up with Mr. Peter."
Celia leaned forward. "You know something, Esther? I don't get in my mind that she's goin' to marry up with Mr. Peter at all."
Esther's eyes widened. "Celia, do you lost your mind?"
Celia shrugged. "Well, it's a mighty long way to New York. She won't even get there till tomorrow night," she pointed out. "She'll have to get right back on the same train. It's aim to get back for the wedding." Celia looked around cautiously, then added in an ominous voice:
"Esther, she ain't comin' back. Otherwise, how come she's takin' all her things with her?"
Esther sat very straight her eyes troubled, but she made no comment.
"And just before she sent me out for these here things—with a disparaging gesture, Celia touched the package on the table—"she calls up the Marshall place, and I hear her sayin', uppity-like, 'I want to see Peter. It's important. She sounds like she's madder than a wet hen.'"
Esther sighed and shook her head, but Celia seemed to sense her thoughts. "Ain't it a pure shame, Esther," she said, "that woman comin' down here and upsettin' things like she's done? Poor little Miss Betsy. She's the one I feel sorry for."
After Celia had gone, Esther sat for a long time at the kitchen table. Then having made up her mind, she strode through the house to where Edith sat on the screened porch with her sewing.
"Miss Edith, honey, I heard some news." Esther folded her hands across her plump stomach and looked down at her employer with an air of portentous solemnity. "That Eldon woman is leavin' for New York tonight, and she ain't comin' back."
Edith tried to silence her, but she was too late. Betsy stood at the living room window, listening.
"Eddie, what on earth are you talking about?" she demanded.
"Lord help us, honey!" exclaimed the old Negro, distressed. "I didn't know you was at home."
Betsy brushed Esther's explanation aside. "What about Marcia Eldon?" she asked. "Who said she was leavin'?"
"Celia stopped by. She told me. Miss Marcia's got a ticket on the Limited tonight. She's packin' all her clothes. She—well, she wouldn't do that if she was aimin' to come back."
Betsy stared at Esther for a moment, and then she vanished into the living room.
"I always did talk too much," Esther muttered. "Miss Edith, I'm sure sorry. I didn't know she was home."
"Of course you didn't. It's all right. But I can't imagine why Mrs. Eldon is going away. Perhaps she and Peter have decided to be married in New York. But I can't imagine why, when they've made all their plans to be married here in Centerville."
"Miss Edith, honey, you reckon that woman changed her mind about marryin' up with Mr. Peter?"
Edith caught her breath. "Oh, no, she couldn't do that. I'm sure she wouldn't do such a thing. Why, it wouldn't be decent."
Esther made no comment, and her wise old eyes were inscrutable. But she had her own opinion of Marcia and her reactions to things other people considered decent.
(To Be Continued)

During the final session of the 81st Congress a $300,000,000 fund was voted for the purchase of emergency drug and food stocks, and for which the Civilian Defense administration recently issued a blueprint for storage.
The attorney general was not a member of the President's cabinet until 1814.
