Foreign Aid Funds Face Fresh Attack

Much-Cut Measure Ready To Move From Two Committees To Senate Floor Where New Economy Moves Planned

WASHINGTON (UP)—A much-cut $7,357,000 foreign aid bill—approved by two committees—was ready today to face new economy slashes in the Senate itself.

Chairman Tom Connally (D-Tex.) said the measure, probably will reach the Senate floor Tuesday. The combined Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees have approved the bill unanimously yesterday.

Committee action made it all but certain that the measure in its final form will be $1,000,000,000 short of the administration's $8,357,000,000 request. The Senate committee cut $864,250,000; the House $37,000,000.

One supporter of the committee bill conceded that it will face new economy moves when it reaches the Senate floor.

As approved by the committees, the bill authorizes $6,013,000,000 in military aid to bolster defenses of

Red Jets Again Challenge Sabres In Air Scramble

Flee To Sanctuary From Outnumbered U. S. Airmen; Build-Up Goes On

By ROBERT C. MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent
SOUTH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)—U. S. planes beat off Communist jets for the second straight day today and knocked out 400 Red bombers rushing reinforcements and supplies to the fighting front.

Thirty of the Communist's crack Red-10 MIG-15 jet fighters challenged 21 American Sabrejets northeast of Sinuiju on the Manchurian border during the morning. One enemy jet was damaged before they fled to the safety of Manchuria.

Returning American airmen said the Red pilots were much more aggressive than they had been yesterday, when the Sabrejets destroyed two MIG-15s. All Sabrejets returned safely to base from both engagements.

Other U. S. planes—bombers and fighter-bombers—raked Communist convoys moving reinforcements and supplies south toward the battlefield for an expected Red offensive.

They spotted more than 1,000 trucks, many of them running through the pre-dawn darkness with headlights on full in defiance of the Allied air raiders.

Pilots reported the road between Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, and Namschon on the western front "loaded with trucks." Heavy activity also was noted in the Yangdok area behind the eastern front.

The increasing Communist activity both in the air and behind the front bore out the warning of U. N. commanders that the Reds are preparing to unleash a ground and possibly an air offensive coinciding with any final breakdown in cease-fire talks.

Radio Pyongyang said in a broadcast Saturday, quoting a North Korean newspaper:

"Now is the time for us to strengthen plans to destroy the enemy. If necessary, we are fully prepared to drive out the enemy, not only from the ground, but from the air."

Action on the ground front for the moment was confined to the eastern sector.

South Korean forces there seized four hills, killing 100 enemy dead and taking 100 prisoners. The week-old battle of bloody ridge. The Communists on this sector have suffered 9,000 dead and wounded during the week-long South Korean limited offensive.

Hit Key Port

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS (AP)—U. S. B-29s today for the second time in more than a year bombed Rashin, Red supply port 20 miles from Russian territory which General MacArthur wanted to knock out early in the war.

Thirty-five Superforts hurled more than 200 tons of bombs on Rashin (Najin) in clear weather.

The Far East Air Forces in Tokyo gave no report of damage. But it said 100-pound and 500-pound bombs were dropped on the port's marshaling yards and railroad facilities.

The Superforts met no anti-aircraft fire or enemy planes. All returned safely to their bases in Japan and Okinawa.

Almost 50 B-29s hit Rashin in the first attack Aug. 12, 1950. They struck by radar in heavy overcast and dumped some 500 tons on their targets.

Rashin, one of the best ports on the east coast of Korea, is 110 miles southwest of Vladivostok.

Slight Increase In Leaf Average

Whedbee Reports Four-Day Sales Averaged $48.18 Here

Four-day sales for the Greenville tobacco market averaged $48.18, showing a slight increase over average price brought opening day.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported today that total sales during the selling week which began Tuesday totaled $1,724,625.15 being paid out for 3,578,854 pounds. These figures, he said, are official rather than "inflated estimates."

Yesterday, for the first time this week, the market average dropped below the $48 figure, tending to bring the week's average down. Sales on the floors yesterday were $629,160.56 being paid for 1,319,978 pounds. The average for the day was $47.66.

Compared with first week's figures for the 1950 opening, total money paid out in addition to market average and poundage are far off the pace. On August 25 last the Greenville market had paid out $4,411,875 for 7,941,856 pounds, averaging $55.66 for the five days.

Whedbee reiterated the reason for this year's poor first week showing: low grade primings and common tips with a small scattering of better grades.

"It's about as common a break of tobacco than we've ever had here before," he said.

Ridgway's Stinging Reply Expected To Result In Communist Rejection

Senate Tax-Writers Aim At Top-Bracket Income Group

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate tax-writers reached for the bank accounts of upper bracket taxpayers today to provide an 11 per cent ceiling on tax increases in low and middle brackets.

Under the new Senate plan, upper bracket taxpayers would still pay considerably less than the amount due under the $7,300,000,000 tax bill passed by the House. But they would pay more than the formula approved by the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday would have cost them.

In decisions already made, the committee has sliced about $200,000,000 from the yield of the House bill.

The committee scheduled a session today to move on to other provisions in the bill, which also covers corporation income and excise tax increases.

The committee's tentatively approved a new formula would offer taxpayers a choice between two methods in computing a special "defense tax" to be added to the tax due under the present law:

1. He would take 11 per cent of the tax due under the present law, making his total tax $111 if his present tax is $100.
2. He would deduct his present tax from his net taxable income (after exemptions and deductions) and apply a rate of eight per cent to the remainder.

Under either method, the taxpayer would pay less than under the House bill, which provided for 12.5 per cent increases in the payments of nearly all taxpayers.

The Senate plan would yield an additional $2,400,000,000 a year from personal income taxes compared with the estimate of $2,836,000,000 under the House bill.

In its previous plan, the finance committee had provided for no flat percentage increases as the House did.

Instead, the committee proposed putting a defense tax of two to three per cent on the money left after deducting the present tax due from net taxable income. This was the pattern followed in one of the methods approved yesterday except that the rate was lifted to eight per cent.

Previously the committee found that most married taxpayers in the $5,000 to $15,000 bracket would pay more than under the House bill while upper bracket taxpayers would have substantial savings.

The committee voted to put the new tax into effect Nov. 1 instead of the Sept. 1 date fixed by the House. It also put a Dec. 31, 1953, expiration date on the defense tax.

In other decisions yesterday, the committee recommended killing two House provisions. One would increase the capital gains tax, now 25 per cent, to 28.125 per cent. The other would apply a 20 per cent withholding tax to dividend, interest and royalty payments of more than $100.

Scornful Tone Of Sweeping Indictment Precludes Acceptance As Loss Of Face; UN Commander Ready To Talk When Enemy Is Ready

TOKYO (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway sent the Communists an offer to resume Korean armistice talks today, but wrote it in such stinging terms that the Reds seemed likely to reject it.

His coldly scornful tone meant that the Reds could not agree to return to the conference table without losing "face" before the world. Allied observers believed it next to impossible for the Communists to accept the offer.

However, the final word must come from the two Communist generals to whom Ridgway addressed his message—Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier and commander-in-chief, and Peng Teh-huai, commander of Chinese "Volunteers" in Korea.

The supreme United Nations commander rejected all Communist complaints of Allied violations of Kaesong's neutrality as "malicious falsehoods totally without foundation in fact."

He said the latest complaint—that a U. N. plane bombed the conference city—was "so utterly false, so preposterous and so obviously manufactured for your own questionable purposes" that it did not merit a reply.

The offer to resume the talks broken off by the Communists was in the final paragraph:

"When you are prepared to terminate the suspension of the armistice negotiations, I will direct my representatives to meet with yours, with a view to seeking a reasonable armistice agreement."

Ridgway's message to the Communists commanders was perhaps the most sweeping indictment ever to pass in modern times between generals or statesmen in the course of an effort to establish peace.

The Reds broke off the cease-fire talks Thursday on obviously faked evidence that a U. N. plane had bombed Kaesong the previous night. The two Communist commanders protested the alleged incident and demanded a "satisfactory" reply.

Ridgway's reply was broadcast over the armed forces radio and delivered by an Allied liaison officer to Col. Chang, chief Communist liaison officer, just inside the Kaesong neutral zone shortly before 1 p. m. (10 p. m. Friday EST).

In it, Ridgway said that none of the incidents cited by the Reds as U. N. violations of Kaesong's neutrality actually merited a reply.

The included alleged firing on Pan Mun Jon just inside the neutral zone last Sunday and the ambushing of a Communist military patrol near Kaesong the same day in addition to the supposed air raid on Kaesong.

"When not fabricated by you for your own propaganda needs," Ridgway said, "these incidents have proven to be the actions of irregular groups without the slightest connection, overtly or covertly, with any forces or agencies under my control."

"In spite of this, I have consistently required my senior delegates and the commanders of the forces under my command to grant you the courtesy of a full inspection and report of every alleged incident, regardless of its manifest falsity."

"The evidence in this most recent alleged violation (the 'raid' on Kaesong) was even more palpably compounded for your insidious propaganda purposes than your earlier efforts."

J. Con Lanier Acquitted Of Hit-And-Run Charge

Lenoir County Jury Deliberated One Hour And 35 Minutes After Taking Case Yesterday Afternoon

KINSTON—A Lenoir County jury yesterday afternoon acquitted J. Con Lanier, Greenville attorney and former mayor, of hit-and-run driving charges growing out of the death of Willie Henry Tripp of O-Union last November 25.

The jury deliberated one hour and 35 minutes after taking the case at 2:30.

Lanier was visibly moved by the verdict and showed emotion for the first time since the trial began Tuesday of this week. He was surrounded by members of his family who had been in attendance during the three-day trial. Only about 20 other persons were in the courtroom when the jury returned the verdict.

Judge Leo Carr, who adjourned this week's term of court after the jury appeared, delivered a "straight" charge to the jury, making no particular reference to the defendant's reputation in eastern North Carolina. Carr reiterated the fact that State's evidence was mostly circumstantial and reminded them that the defendant "admits contact at the scene of the accident" and denies knowledge of having hit anyone.

Defense attorneys Albion Dunn of Greenville and Fred L. Sutton and Jesse Jones of Kinston asked for another examination of the automobile before Carr delivered his charge to the jury. They contended that Highway Patrolman Walter Taylor was lying when he stated a dent in the car post had been repaired since he saw the car (two days after the accident).

An automobile repair man here cut into the metal of the post with an acetylene torch to determine if any repairs had been made. He stated after his examination that the paint and metal on the post had not been touched since the car left the manufacturer's plant.

On the other hand, the original indictment of manslaughter was un-suitably on a motion by defense counsel, Carr ruled that the State had not shown culpable (criminal).

Stage Joint Raid On Bootleg Still

ABC Officers Of 3 Counties Destroy Big Distillery

WASHINGTON—ABC officers of three counties joined in a raid this morning on a large liquor still in the Cherry Run section of Beaufort County.

The illegal liquor-making machinery had been under observation by nine officers most of Friday night, though the unit was not in operation.

No one was caught at the still site and there were indications that the still had not been operated for several days.

Pitt County ABC officer J. M. Ward stated that the unit was one of the best constructed outfits that he had found in many years. The still was about the cleanest-operated to be found in some time the officer stated.

Destroyed when the still was blown up this morning, was a 200-gallon pot type still with 2100 gallons of mash, contained in 42 50-gallon barrels. Also destroyed was a 100 gallon pre-heater, 100 gallon capacity cooler and two copper condensers.

Oil burners were being used to heat the unit, the officers stated. Officers making the arrest were Clyde Stubb, Ben Stowe, Beaufort County ABC officers; A. T. U. agents E. A. Bennett, Carl Churchill; Martin County officers Roy Peale, Cecil Bullock; Pitt County officers J. M. Ward, R. W. King and C. T. Manning.

Full-Scale Probe Of Boyle Dealing

Senate Investigators Seek Connection With RFC Loan

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Permanent Investigating Committee decided today to conduct a full-scale investigation of the American Lithofold Corp. of St. Louis and its dealings with the RFC and Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle Jr.

Chairman Clyde R. Hoey (D-NO) said the inquiry also will include company dealings "with other officials or agencies of the government."

The committee decided on a full scale investigation after hearing a report from committee investigators who made a "preliminary" inquiry into charges that Boyle received a big fee from Lithofold, a heavy RFC borrower.

Hearings probably will start early next month.

The St. Louis Post Dispatch recently charged that Boyle received a fee for representing the firm, which received $500,000 in loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corp., the government's big lending agency.

Boyle has denied any wrongdoing. He said he got only $1,200 from Lithofold and severed his connection with the firm when he became a Democratic Party official. He denied he had anything to do with the RFC approval of the loan application.

Hunt Sabotage

DECOTO, Cal.—(UP)—Six FBI agents today guarded the splintered remains of a United Airlines DC-68 pending the arrival of technicians who will determine whether sabotage played a part in the crash that killed all 50 persons aboard.

Chief agent Harry M. Kimball said fingerprint experts and laboratory technicians were called in from Washington to help identify the dead and to examine the fragments of wreckage for possible clues to sabotage.

Kimball declined to say exactly what the experts would look for in the wreckage except that his men were "making an inquiry to determine whether sabotage has been committed."

New Ordinance Being Prepared

Would Ban Removal Of Wire Wreaths From Cemeteries

A new ordinance for the City of Greenville is in the making.

The ordinance, if put into effect, will make it illegal for persons to take wire wreaths from graves in the cemeteries here without the permission of the family of the deceased. The ordinance will also prohibit florists or any persons to buy the stolen wreaths and to resell them if bought.

Reber Trapp, chairman of the cemetery committee, says the taking of the wreaths from the cemeteries has grown into a profession and persons are stealing wreaths from the cemeteries almost as fast as they are put out.

The ordinance has resulted from complaints of people who ask for wreaths to put on graves and then discover them stolen after a short time. There is already a city ordinance which prohibits loitering in the cemetery but no law to prevent people from taking the wire frames and reselling them.

The ordinance is now being drawn up by R. B. Lee, city attorney, and will be presented to the Board of Aldermen at the next meeting of the board either to be passed or turned down.

If the ordinance is passed and put into effect, the fine for taking the wire wreaths without permission will be up to the discretion of the court and the act will be termed as a misdemeanor.

County's Cotton Is Best In Years

Outlook Of 350 Lbs. Per Acre; Treatments Effective

The county's cotton crop, while it is the biggest in acreage since the early 1930's, is the best in productive value in many years.

Although cotton picking has not begun, from the looks of the stalks in the fields now the county average should be about 350 pounds per acre—about three-quarters of a bale.

County Farm Agent S. C. Winchester reported today that the crop is the best he has seen in many years. Treatments were more thorough this year, he said, due to the lack of concentrated rainfall during the worst of the boll weevil infestation. However, cool nights and dry winds early in the growing season killed a great deal of the plants which ordinarily would have matured into healthy stalks.

However, farmers got busy during the weevil season and pretty well licked the insects, Winchester said, something they were not able to do last year when intermittent rains made thorough treating impossible.

Most farmers got treating during the first ten days of August, he said which gave them weevil insurance through the 15th of the month. Others quit during the latter part of July when tobacco began to ripen faster.

Gets Authority For State Loan

RALEIGH (AP)—Governor Scott has received authority from the Council of State to lend $500,000 in state funds to the state-controlled Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad.

The money would come from the general fund. Before it can be made available to the railway, however, the loan must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The loan, approved yesterday by the council, will go towards laying 20 miles of new track and generally improving the railroad's route.

Soviet Signing Of Pact Unlikely

WASHINGTON (UP)—American officials today described as "wishful thinking" unofficial reports that Russia might sign the Japanese peace treaty at San Francisco next month.

"Such Soviet action is possible but not probable," one high-ranking official told a reporter. "It's way down at the bottom of the list."

Unofficial reports from Tokyo said that the Russians might pull a switch, but the State Department, doesn't think so.

The American delegation is bracing for a full-scale Soviet effort to delay and block the treaty by a propaganda filibuster. Talks have been started with other friendly nations on ways to restrict debate and to get the treaty signed by Sept. 10—at the latest. The hope is that the conference will end Sept. 8.

Moscow's delegation headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko would have a tough time justifying a Soviet signature in view of the running Communist propaganda attacks on the treaty, officials said. An explanation to Red China would be particularly difficult for the Soviets.

Officials here believe the only way the Soviets could skirt their previous anti-treaty stand would be to promise Red China secretly that existence of normal Soviet-Japanese relations would mean increased Red strength in Japan and a later Chinese-Japanese treaty. The treaty leaves it up to Japan whether to sign with Red China, Nationalist China, or neither.

Minister John M. Allison, chief deputy to Ambassador John Foster Dulles in charge of the treaty, last night challenged the Soviets to sign the treaty if they really want peace in the world.

Former Duke U. President Dies

DURHAM (AP)—Dr. Robert Lee Flowers, 80, Chancellor and former President of Duke University, died last night of hardening of the arteries.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Duke Chapel.

Dr. Flowers had been President of Duke from June, 1941 until November, 1948, during the war and post-war years. Late in 1948 he asked to be relieved of his duties but agreed to accept the chancellorship. Dr. Hollis Edens succeeded him as president.

Last spring Dr. Flowers completed 60 years service to Duke and its predecessor, Trinity College.

Hungary Rejects Treaty Revision

BUDAPEST (UP)—The Hungarian Communist government rejected today a United States demand that the Hungarian-American friendship, trade and consular agreement be modified.

As the result the agreement was presumed to be terminated.

The State Department in Washington asked revision of the agreement July 5. It warned that if the Hungarian government did not agree the pact would be considered ended.

Child Wounded In Play With Gun

ROBERTSONVILLE—An accidental blast of a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of Harvey Butley, 8-year-old Negro boy, seriously wounded a hand of Marie Little, 7-year-old Negro girl this morning.

Police Chief William T. Smith said the gun was discharged while the Butley boy was playing with it. The wounded girl was taken to Ward Clinic, where one or more fingers may have to be amputated, the chief stated.

The shooting occurred on the William Cherry farm, about a mile from Robertsonville.

Deputy Premier Says Iran Now Ready To Sell Crude Oil To Anyone

TEHRAN, Iran (UP)—Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi said today that Iran is ready to sell crude oil from its stocks in Abadan for cash to "any foreign customer"—presumably including Russia.

He made the statement after all British technicians withdrew from the oilfields on the heels of the breakdown in Anglo-Iranian oil talks.

Fatemi said Iran did not need any foreign experts to produce crude oil and some refined products because Iranian engineers could do the job.

Although the big British refinery at Abadan is still in possession of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., Fatemi made it plain that Iran intends to go ahead with the production and sale of crude oil.

He said Iran is in a position to sell large quantities of crude oil, but only a limited amount of refined products at present.

He also disclosed for the first time the text of a letter headed U. S. mediator W. Averell Harriman before the envoy boarded a plane for Belgrade last night.

The letter, signed by Premier Mohammed Mossadeq, said British cabinet minister Richard Stokes' proposals for settlement of the oil dispute were incompatible with Iran's economic independence.

Moreover, he said, Iran would not consider giving a 50 per cent discount to a purchasing organization. While Iran wants to keep British personnel, he said, it would not sign an agreement with a foreign government for this purpose.

Fatemi said the government had instructed the commission in charge of the nationalized oil industry to submit a report at once on ways and means of combating "economic disaster" threatened by the withdrawal of the British.

Most of the British will return to Britain but the government has ordered a skeleton staff to remain at the Abadan refinery—largest in the world.

Former Prison Warden Is Appointed Safety Director

RALEIGH (UP)—Joe Crawford, fired Thursday as warden of Central Prison, prepared today to take over a new state post as director of safety in the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Dr. Henry Jordan, commission chairman, named Crawford to the new post only a little more than 24 hours after new prison director Walter Anderson relieved him as warden.

Crawford will take over his new work on Monday, filling a vacancy left when H. C. Jones moved up to the job of director of the Motor Vehicles Department's highway safety "sion."

The salary for the new post has not been set but probably will be smaller than the $7,200 plus quarters valued at $600 Crawford received as warden. The salary range for the new job is $4,800 to $5,700. Crawford will have charge of the safety program among the commission's 14,000 employees in 98 of the state's 100 counties.

Jordan said he named Crawford to the safety job because the highway department is "reluctant to lose good men." He said it was unfortunate that a clash of temperaments resulted in his dismissal as warden.

The new appointment was announced shortly after Gov. Kerr Scott told reporters at his press conference that he had no new post in mind for Crawford.

Anderson said he is "not in a hurry" to name a new warden and probably wouldn't give the matter any consideration before Monday.

Analyst Advises Young People To Settle Down In Small Cities

By ROGER BABSON
GLOUCESTER, Mass.—Many young people are wondering where it is best for them to get a job and live. They are being told to settle down in small cities.

I advise against taking a position in one of the biggest cities; certainly not in one of the twelve cities which Washington says is liable to be bombed in case of World War III. As for settling down and raising a family in one of these twelve cities, this seems a good idea.

The list: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh, Washington, D. C., and San Francisco.

A study of the latest atomic bomb information leads me to believe that about 100 miles from the center of such a big city is the best place to live.

Both free from bombing and free from the radio waves, also you should not suffer from the refugee problem which could be very serious to be suburbs of these twelve big cities.

Not only are small cities better places to bring up a family, but they offer the best long-run business opportunities. Before the present day of high taxes and high living expenses the big city offered attractions to the young man who wanted to make money quickly; but not now.

Today, smaller places offer the best long-run, money-making opportunities. Real estate in the above cities is now at top prices; but real estate in most smaller cities could double in price. Some day the manufacturers who are now in these twelve cities will flock to the smaller places. The time to buy small city property is now before the rush begins.

The time to buy most property is when no one wants it. Such opportunities always exist somewhere—but few persons are wise enough to take advantage of such bargains. The time to sell property is when someone else most people will not sell them. The average man will not sell when he buys or sells.

Here is another thought: Buy land by the acre just outside any good city and later sell it by the foot. I buy it on the right side of that city—that is, in the direction where the community is growing. Every city—large and small—is growing best in some one direction where the best houses are being built.

A small city is sure to offer opportunities for young businessmen. A small town is better off in a small puddle—he is apt to get drowned in a big pool. In the same way the small businessman may get drowned easily in some big city where he may be forced to pay tribute to racketeers or be bled by crime gangs.

In the smaller cities any young man of good character can join the local Chamber of Commerce and one of the Service Clubs and work up to be a director thereof. This he cannot do in one of the above twelve cities. He can buy stock in a local bank of smaller cities and perhaps become a director thereof. His wife can become active in the Women's Club and the Parent-Teacher Association.

I never feel so lonesome as when I go into a big city. Church, I do not blame the members for having no interest in me. The same applies to the Y. M. C. A.'s of the big cities. But a small city Church always make me feel at home.

Certainly no one should attend any Church just to help himself in business or even to get acquaintances. Yet, we all must have some social life and it is best to find our friends at a Church rather than anywhere else. That is where I found the girl with whom I have lived fifty happy years! Moreover, this was in Gloucester, Massachusetts, where I am writing this column. It was then a small city, while Wellesley, where I starred in business, had at that time, only about 5,000 inhabitants.

Dole Addresses Kiwanis Meeting

East Carolina Football Coach Bill Dole showed motion pictures of some important national football games played last season for the Kiwanis Club last night.

Cliff H. Edwards had charge of the program.

The coach said the pictures would serve as a "warmup" for the Kiwanians in anticipation of schedule games for the ECG Pirates this fall. He spoke briefly, outlining some of his gridiron plans, and reminded that ECG has a tough schedule this year.

"We may not win as many games as we would like, but we have some mighty good football material," he said.

"Thanks for your fine support. Our boys will get out there and work hard because they know you Greenville and Pitt county folks are backing us up," he added.

President H. Glenn Haney, who presided, reminded of the election of delegates and alternates to the Carolina Kiwanis District. Past District Governor Sam D. Bundy of Farmville directed the election. Find 'Proof' Of Insincerity In Korean Affair
TORONTO (AP)—U. S. Defense Secretary George O. Marshall says Korea gives conclusive proof that it is futile to expect any sincerity in Russia's peace offensive.

Marshall made this statement when he arrived yesterday to open the 72nd annual Canadian National Exhibition. He is the first American ever to be chosen for the honor.

"In this business in Korea," he said in his opening address, "we find conclusive proof of the futility of expecting sincerity in the pursuit of peace on the part of the Soviet government."

He praised Canada's "significant contribution" to the U. N. forces in Korea and her help in forming the United Nations and the Atlantic Pact.

Offers Tip For Tomato-Ripening
"Normal room temperature, not sunlight, is the key to ripening tomatoes that have not reached full redness and ripeness," says Anne Parker Hodges, a specialist home agent, in a report on tomatoes.

A temperature of 60 to 70 degrees is suggested for ripening this scarlet pride of the garden. The sunny window still has no advantage over shaded or dark places such as the basement, for the ripening process. In the summer, the sun sometimes gives too much heat and light for proper coloring of picked tomatoes that are under-ripe. Too much sunlight may either prevent normal color development or make the color blotchy.

The effect of sunlight in ripening differs from what sunlight does to the tomatoes on the vine. Growing tomatoes benefit richly from light, a determining factor in their content of Vitamin C.

Summer field-grown tomatoes, which get abundant sunlight, contain about twice as much Vitamin C as winter and fall greenhouse fruit.

"The refrigerator, of course, is the place for storing fresh tomatoes which are already ripe. But placing under-ripe tomatoes in the refrigerator stops the ripening process that makes the tomatoes watery," Mrs. Hodges concluded.

Lawmen Hunting Rest Of Corpse
GREENVILLE, Miss. (UP)—Investigators of a baffling apparent homicide waited today for additional clues—including the rest of the corpse—to float to them on a small river near here.

Fuzlers already found in the Florence River at various times this week, said Marshall O. W. Wanker of nearby Anguilla, Miss., include a woman's dress and underclothing, sheets and parts of a human body.

What connected all these clues, Wanker said, was a "sort of sawdust" that covered every article found thus far.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Telephone rates are going up, and a 10-word which so often ended with "Love" is going out.

In most cases, the exact amount of the rate increase remains to be worked out. But the minimum charge will be for 15 words instead of the present 10.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) late yesterday disapproved as too high proposed rate schedules filed by the Western Union Telegraph Company and designed to yield $11,000,000 net revenue.

However, the FCC agreed the company needs up to $9,800,000 more revenue as a result of a July 1 wage increase.

As a result of the FCC action, the company must start all over and draft new schedules. If they meet with FCC approval they will be allowed to go into effect promptly.

Graduates Of ECC Wed In Morning Rites In Baltimore

The wedding of Miss Florence Jerardine Boerckel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Wesley Boerckel of Baltimore, Md., and Mr. Thomas Victor Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bell of Warrenton, N. C., took place Saturday morning, Aug. 12, at ten-thirty o'clock mass in St. Mark's Catholic Church, Catonsville, Md., with Monsignor Joseph Leary pastor, officiating, using the double ring ceremony.

White gladioli and green fern set the altar in its simplicity as vows were exchanged. Tiers of cathedral tapers lighted three altars.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white imported Swiss organdy. The basque bodice was styled with long tapering sleeves and double lace Peter Pan collar. The floor length skirt was styled with a ruffled hemline. Her veil of bridal illusion was fingertip length and was attached to an organdy Juliet cap and she carried a bridal shower bouquet of white roses to the altar. After the nuptial mass, she dedicated her white roses to the Blessed Virgin Mary and returned to the altar carrying a white satin prayer book topped by a white orchid and showered with ribbon and Stephanotis.

Miss Mary Gertrude Watt, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Ruth Wilson, Mrs. Jane Wiener and Miss Judith Mohnsek of Baltimore were bridesmaids. Miss Watt's dress was aqua lace over tulle and was fashioned with a fitted bodice and a Peter Pan neckline. She wore a matching picture frame hat and oyster mits. She carried an old fashioned bouquet attached with a pale yellow satin ribbon. The bridesmaids wore identical dresses of emerald bordered organdy. The pastel shades of blue yellow and lavender organdy matched their picture frame hats and nylon mits. They carried nosegays of mixed flowers trimmed with pink satin ribbon.

The best man was Bruce Bell, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were William C. Taylor of Greenville, N.C., John F. Colow of St. Albans, N.Y., and Maximilian C. Wiener of Baltimore.

The bride's mother wore a floor length dress of dusty rose silk crepe trimmed with lace and a purple orchid corsage. Her Juliet cap was also trimmed with lace and she wore nylon mits. The mother of the groom wore a dress of navy silk crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of a purple orchid also. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. F. C. Zang of St. Albans, N.Y., wore a grey silk dress and white accessories and a tea-rose corsage. Mrs. A. S. Morgan, aunt of the groom, wore a silk crepe dress of aqua and a tea-rose corsage.

Following the ceremony a breakfast for the bride party was held by the bride's parents at their home in Baltimore. A reception for relatives and friends followed the breakfast. The couple left for Miami, Fla. following the breakfast. For traveling the bride wore a light blue corded suit with navy blue accessories and pinned to her suit the white orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Mrs. Bell graduated from Catonsville High School and East Carolina College, receiving her B.S. degree in August of 1950. She was entered in the 1949-1950 edition of "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities" and was voted the best all-around student during her senior year. For the past year, Mrs. Bell has been a member of the faculty at the Gray Manor School in Baltimore.

Chapter 12

Brent glanced across the room at Biff Williams. He had stepped away from the bar and was watching the doorway through which the girls had gone. He turned and went out, and Brent, his face tightening, followed him.

Biff went down the street and turned into another saloon, and Brent walked to the half-doors and looked over them. Biff was at the bar. He had a drink then moved over to where four of his men were seated about a poker table. He said something to them and sat down with them. Brent, remembering Shotgun, went back to the alley and followed it to the rear of the Palace.

The door which led to the stairway was open and enough light filtered down from the hall upstairs to enable him to see if anyone entered from the alley or through the side door in the Palace. He sat in the doorway of the stable and watched for an hour, then walked around the block and went into the barroom. Shotgun was not in the place and Biff

Brent stepped back, hunched his shoulders and hit the door like a battering ram. It gave and he was in the room. The light from the hall was too dim to show him much; he thumped a match into flame and held it high. Judy lay asleep on the bed, partly uncovered, her dark hair streaming over the pillow. Lil said, "She seems all right, but somebody's been messin' with the covers."

Brent struck another match and lighted the lamp on the washstand. He came back to the bed, bent over Judy and smelled her breath, then raised an eyelid and looked at the pupil. He said softly, slowly, "The dirty louse!"

He straightened and looked about the room. The window was open; he crossed to it and saw that it overlooked the roof of the adjoining building. He knew now why he had seen nobody come or go through the rear doorway.

Lil asked, "What is it, Tex?"

He turned and she saw the fury in his face. "Laudanum," he said briefly. "That one whiskey she drank was doped. And it looks as though we got here just in time. Stay here with her; I'll fix it with Jack."

He went down the stairs and into the saloon. He said to Jack, "Somebody doped Judy's drink and got through the window into her room. We scared him away when he tried to get in. I told Lil to stay with her."

Jack nodded and said nothing. There was nothing to say.

He went out and walked to the saloon which Biff had entered. Biff was still at the poker table, but that meant not a thing. The man he was playing with were his own men and would alibi him if he needed an alibi. Brent swore under his breath and walked to Shotgun's shack. There was a light in it and when he looked through the window he saw Shotgun sitting at a table studying a solitary layout.

Brent went around to the front, grasped the door handle and pressed the latch and the door opened. He stepped quickly inside, kicked it shut after him. Shotgun wheeled about in his chair, tensed, then saw that Brent had not drawn his gun and got slowly to his feet. "What the devil do you want?"

"I want to know where you went when you left the Palace."

"What's it to you where I went?"

"Plenty," he advanced slowly and Shotgun began backing away. If he had not been so angry he would have wondered at this. For Shotgun was not the man to back away from any man. He drawled, "I reckon you'd better start talking."

Shotgun gave a quick glance about him and backed away two more steps. He was near the stove. He growled, "What's got into you, feller? You the kind to jump a man when he ain't got but one arm?"

"Where did you go when you left the Palace?"

"I came straight home; I been here ever since."

"I think you're lying. I think you climbed to the roof beside the Palace and got through the window into Judy's room." He was still moving slowly towards Shotgun, stalking him. Once more Cuthbert took a backward step. He stumbled against the wood box and put out his hand as though to brace himself against the wall. The hand darted into a corner and came away with the sawed-off shotgun he always used. He tossed it up, caught it deftly by the small of the stock and Brent heard the click of the hammers.

He dived under the weapon, hitting Shotgun just above the knees. He heard the roar of the gun, felt the blast of the explosion, then Shotgun went sprawling over his back.

Brent heaved upward and threw Shotgun's body clear, then whirled like a cat and pounced upon him. He tore the weapon from Cuthbert's hand and hurled it the length of the room, then snatched out the man's Colt and threw that after it. He got up, dragging Shotgun and the man sat down heavily on the bunk.

Brent stood over him, his fists clenched. "Now I want the truth," Shotgun's eyes blazed his hate but there was a hint of fear in them. He evidently thought he was dealing with a crazy man. He said, "I told you where I was. Dammit, I told you the truth."

Brent stood glaring down at him for a moment, then expelled his breath and took a backward step. "All right. If you did it you've got away with it so far; but I tell you, Cuthbert, I'm going to find the man who got into Judy's room and when I do I'm going to shoot him in his tracks."

He turned away abruptly and strode out of the shack.

Two dove seasons, one September 15-29 and the other January 1-15, will be effective this year, with a daily bag of eight birds, and shooting hours from noon to sunset.

Rails and gallinules may be hunted from September 1 through October 30, with a limit of 15 rails and gallinules singly or in combination, and 25 sora allowed per day. Shooting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise to the hour of sunset. J. O. Teel, of Greenville, district game and fish warden, stated.

CHEAPER, TOO?

NEW YORK (UP)—The National Committee of the Communist Party has announced it will move from its present headquarters to a smaller office.

Congress is playing politics with YOUR INCOME!

CONGRESS is about to boost YOUR income tax again. At the same time, purely for ulterior political reasons, Congress still permits income tax exemption to more than 35,000 profit-making business corporations. Congress allows ONE OUT OF TEN corporations to pay little or no Federal income tax on their business profits. Congress lets them escape taxes of more than ONE BILLION DOLLARS A YEAR ... while taxing YOU more!

Congress adds that billion dollars onto the tax bill of you and every other income taxpayer. Their political chicanery is costing you money ... will soon cost you more unless you demand an end to this tax discrimination.

These profit-making businesses coddled by Congress ... in return for political favors from their leaders and promoters ... are COOPERATIVES, SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS, MUTUAL SAVINGS BANKS, CREDIT UNIONS, and other cooperative banks and corporations of this kind. Even some MUTUAL FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE COMPANIES are given favored tax treatment that adds to YOUR tax bill.

It is time you protested against Congress making a political football out of your pay check, your pocketbook, or your business income. Write your Congressman and your two United States Senators immediately.

The House of Representatives has ALREADY PASSED the new 1951 tax bill raising your individual and business income taxes by billions, but doing absolutely nothing to tax the billions in profits of these tax-exempt corporations. This legislation is NOW before the Senate.

Make your resentment of this tax discrimination against you heard in the halls of Congress. Write your Congressman and Senators today. Demand that they tax the untaxed first, before increasing your or anyone else's Income Tax again.

Write your Congressman - c/o House Office Bldg.
Write your Senators - c/o Senate Office Bldg.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
GOD HAS WON A RECHERCHER
One of the basic contentions of the New Testament is that Jesus Christ established the kingdom of God upon the earth.
Of course from the worldly standpoint, the kingdom of God was established with a very small number of Christians in the world. Even today there are many more non-Christians in the world than there are Christians, and among the nominal Christians only a certain percentage of these can really be said to measure up to New Testament standards.
In other words, God has won only a beachhead in His invasion of the world's life. From the beginning of time, some people have believed in the one true God. But with the coming of Jesus, this incoherent belief and allegiance became centered in a Person. But God in Jesus Christ won only a beachhead in the teeming life of the world.
Think of the social circle in which you move and ask yourself if this is not true. Think of the office or mill in which you work; think of the city in which you live, the country to which we owe our allegiance, the world of which each of us is such an infinitesimal part. Is it God has won only a beachhead. Is this not true?

The Lesson Was Learned At Munich

The Communists still cling to time as a vital factor as they fence with the U. N. forces in the mock negotiations for a cease fire in Korea.
The Communists have not made it clear whether they intend for the termination of the peace negotiations to be permanent or temporary. There have been indications that the Communists would like to abide by the latter interpretation.
The United States and the United Nations, however, have shown the Communist aggressors all the patience any group could be expected to give. The Communists have not negotiated in good faith in the cease fire conferences. They have manufactured numerous lies about the negotiations and the United Nations' violations of the Kaesong neutrality zone. On one of their fabricated tales they based their action in breaking off the negotiations.
The Communists have now massed what they believe is a sufficient amount of troops and supplies in the battle area to stage a full offensive against the U. N. troops. The 48 days of fruitless negotiations have been on the side of the Communists and they have taken advantage of the time. We can only hope the United Nations military men have not let grass grow under their own feet during the period.
If the Communists had entered the negotiations in good faith, a cease fire agreement could have been reached many days ago. They have used the same strategy of delay that Hitler used at Munich. They have taken advantage of the same pattern of appeasement which Hitler received from the man with the black umbrella. If the Communist aggressors are allowed to do so, they will follow the same pattern in this decade the Nazi aggressors followed more than a decade ago. The free world can not afford to make the same mistake again.
It is horrible to think of many thousands more American lives being sacrificed on the far away battle fields of Korea. But the United States has learned the bitter lesson that our freedom here at home must be defended in foreign fields. It is horrible to risk broadening the Korean conflict into another world conflagration, but can we pull out of Korea altogether and expect the Communists not to exert their military power in some other theatre of the world?
In Korea the chips are down. The wagers are heavy on the table. The United Nations must blast with all their might to preserve their freedom and that of other peoples around the world. If the peace talks are definitely off, and the full scale conflict resumed, no holds must be barred, no fetters of international politics must bind the United Nations forces.

the present generation will offer a second time their lives on the altar of freedom rather than submit to Communist oppression.

Not Pink Elephants This Time

When elephants go parading through the corn fields and tobacco fields hereabouts, they are usually of the pink variety and the observer is aware of the cause of the illusion.
But imagine, if you can, the shock received by farmers near Louisburg Thursday when a herd of runaway elephants came thundering down the highway and across the fields. The folks in that section who saw the elephants running loose doubtless were relieved to read yesterday's paper and find that the real elephants were actually there. They weren't a result of too much corned ham or corn liquor. They had escaped from a circus parade.
The reaction of the farmers was natural. One was startled to see a herd of elephants munching ears of corn from his field. Another rushed his family into a house and bolted the doors. And as usual there was a humorist in the group—he said he would like to have one of the smaller elephants to pull suckers off his tobacco.
It just goes to show the unusual incident always causes a sensation and usually brings forth some new ideas. But we doubt elephants will replace the mules or the tractors in the corn and tobacco fields of eastern North Carolina... except perhaps when the circus comes to town.
For once at least it was the elephants, not the folks who saw them, that got into the corn.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News
Ray Tucker will resume his Saturday, question-and-answer column next week. Meanwhile, he continues his report of national economic and political conditions, based on his recent 7,000-mile swing around the country.

SAN FRANCISCO—Governor Earl Warren of California intends to strive for the Republican presidential nomination next year, or to be such an important factor in the national convention that he will rate a top Cabinet post under a Republican Administration.
Since he is now 59, and his present term will end in 1964, this is his last chance, as it is Senator Robert A. Taft's.
The likable Californian has deliberately remained aloof on his ambitions because his few close advisers regard this attitude as the best strategy. In their opinion, Mr. Warren's chance will come only if and when the delegates fall into a deadlock over such front-runners as Senator Taft, General "Ike" Eisenhower, Harold E. Stassen and possibly Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

"DARK HORSE"—They believe such a stalemate to be likely for the same reasons entertained by many politicians elsewhere. General Eisenhower, for instance, may be unavailable because of continued duty in Europe. They also feel, and sentiment was of Chicago appears to justify their belief, that the party may hesitate to nominate a military man. "Ike" is far more popular along the Atlantic Seaboard than out here.
In view of his ultra-liberal philosophy on social, economic and foreign problems, Mr. Warren can hardly accept Mr. Taft. The Californian fought him at Philadelphia in 1948, when Governor Warren became a Dewey running-mate on a "me, too" platform, and he will undoubtedly oppose the Ohioan again.
For obvious reasons the California group see no chance of another Dewey nomination. Thus, by a process of elimination, the Warren promoters think that he may "dark horse" his way to the prize. They also note that Congressional reapportionment gives their state a larger delegation both in the convention and in the electoral college, second only to New York's.

CHANCES—Although Governor Warren has been wooed and sounded out by the Dewey-Duff-Darby clique which favors General Eisenhower, he has kept out of all intra-party intrigue lest it damage his own chances. But if he should become the key man in a convention struggle, it is believed that he would line up in the European commander's camp.
Assuming that the General depicts himself as a progressive Republican, it would be difficult for Governor Warren to do otherwise. As a state executive, Mr. Warren has advanced such "liberal" ideas that he has antagonized the conservative leaders of his party.
They consider him to be as far left of center as the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. On these questions he is so far apart from Mr. Taft that it is difficult to realize that they belong to the same party.

CONDEMN—On foreign questions, too, Mr. Warren seems to sympathize with the eastern, internationalist crowd. Although he appeared at the homecoming welcome of General Douglas A. MacArthur, he did so only in his official capacity, and slipped away as soon as it was convenient and diplomatic.
Only a month after this ceremony, however, he broke his silence to suggest that he disagreed with the dismissed soldier. Speaking at the dedication of a new killer submarine at the Mare Island Navy Yard, Governor Warren declared that "this is no time to further political interests by criticism of national policy."
With that remark he seemed to condemn not only General MacArthur's continued crusade against the Truman-Acheson program, but also the Taft-Wherry-McCarthy opposition on Capitol Hill.

HANDICAPS—Governor Warren, however, has many handicaps to overcome in regaining presidential stature. National politicians still resent his refusal to carry the fight to President Truman in 1948, which they regard as the reason for the G.O.P. defeat. Warren defenders blame don't-rock-the-boat strategy entirely on Governor Dewey, however.
Although he has carried his state by tremendous majorities in three elections, virtually eliminating James Roosevelt from national politics in 1950, Governor Warren could not hold it in the 1948 campaign. His enemies interpret the contrast as evidence that he is only a popular, parochial figure.

OBSTACLE—Despite his amiability and delightful personality, he has won a reputation as a "loner wolf." He irritates many Republican candidates for Congress last year, including Senator Richard M. Nixon, when he refused to tie his campaign to theirs.
His refusal is attributed to his fear that such an alliance would have cost him Democratic support based on his ultra-liberal policies at Sacramento.
These are practical, political obstacles in his path to the nomination. Nevertheless, any man who arrives at Chicago with a potential 100 or 150 delegates will be an influential figure in a Taft-Eisenhower showdown. And he would make a likely Attorney General if the G.O.P. should return to power at Washington.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
In my opinion you're missing half of your life if you don't read the funnies. That's why I was attracted by a question and answer game with Al Capp, creator of the comic strip, 'Li'l Abner'.
Question: How did you get the idea of Li'l Abner in the first place?
Answer: Well, first I had another idea—the idea that it would be nice to eat regularly. When I came into the field, the adventure strip was replacing the comic strip. Little girls talked like Senator Taft and detectives murdered innocent bystanders in line of duty. I couldn't draw a straight adventure strip, and I couldn't sell a straight comic strip. So I combined the two. Abner is the result. The formula is simply this: fearful things are happening all the time—but they are happening to foolish and comic people.
Is your strip as easy to draw as it looks?
Thanks. It's a terrible grind—but the purpose of all the toil is to make it look easy. There was a wonderful English cartoonist, Phil May, whose drawings looked as if they were done in one cheerful minute. After his death, they published samples of his drawings. It was a real education for me, as it should be for any cartoonist. Phil May has been my model ever since.
What is the "social significance" of Li'l Abner?
Search me. I just put down what I see around me. I exaggerate, of course. But I have to see it to exaggerate it. If I what I do has any social significance, it's because the world around me has social significance.
Have newspapers ever refused to run your strips?
Sure. The editor of the Seattle Times read a strip very fast and was under the impression that Abner was eating his father. Every 10-year-old knew Abner was eating roast chicken, but the editor didn't. He kept the strip out of the paper.
Any other instances of suppression or censorship?
I had quite a tangle with the Pittsburgh Press. They objected to some U.S. Senators are ignorant, boorish and dishonest. Me, all I ever knew about Senators came from reading the column of Lee Pittsburg Press.
What is your favorite comic strip?
The strip I enjoy most is "Nancy" by Bushmiller.
And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYN NISBET
ZANABONI — One of the most interesting and interesting of the European newspaper men whose visits to this country are sponsored by the state department is Vittorio E. Zanaboni, editor of Giornale di Trieste. That's the Italian way of putting it. Zanaboni has been in the United States for about a month, including several days in North Carolina during which he attended the sessions of the state press association at Writtsville Beach. He was fortunate in having for his guide in this state Charles Parker, head of the state advertising division, who had known and worked with him in Italy during the military government days near the end and immediately after World War II.
IMPRESSIONS—The Italian newspaperman was greatly impressed with distances and sizes of things in America. His own newspaper has in excess of 50,000 circulation, but seldom goes beyond eight pages. The 24 to 48 page regular issues and huge Sunday editions of American papers amazed him. He was greatly surprised to find that North Carolina has forty-five daily newspapers, and nearly two hundred of less frequent publication, and with the fact that a great many North Carolina families subscribe to three or four newspapers. He was also impressed, as numerous other visitors have been, with the independence of North Carolina newspapers from outside financial control and their consequent freedom of editorial policy. Everyone of the forty-five Tarheel dailies is owned and controlled by North Carolinians. There may be some out of state minority stock ownership, but there are no chain papers or absentee landlords in the entire group. The joint ownership of morning and afternoon newspapers in Asheville, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Durham and Wilmington affects to very limited degree the editorial independence of the separate papers.
IN BUSINESS — This little story would be more effective if names could be used, but obviously they cannot. The story deals with an eleven-year-old son of an important state official, who got into business on his own initiative and was quickly put out of business by threats of a visit from the tax collectors. There was a construction job near the lad's home and he had made friends with several of the workmen. When one of the workmen said he wanted a drink of water, the boy went to his home, fixed up some ice water and gave the fellows on the job a drink. One of them said he would like to have a bottled soft drink, and the boy produced one out of his dad's ice box supply. The workmen gave him a dime—and an idea. He went into business of selling "pops" for a dime. About the third day, just when business was getting good and the lad had visions of a new bicycle out of profits, one of his customers asked if he had license to sell soft drinks. That was something new, the kid was interested and checked into the matter. What he discovered put him out of business.
TAKES OUT — He found he would have to obtain a privilege license from the state and from the state and from the city to continue in business. Also, he would have to keep books and on sales made and pay the three percent sales tax. Furthermore, he would have to tell his dad how much profit he had made so the old man could include that amount in his income tax report and pay taxes to both the state and federal governments. He discussed the matter briefly with his customers, more fully with his father, and summer up the situation with the cryptic statement: "Well, dad, I think I had better go out of business." That is the story. It may or may not have a moral.
MOUNTAIN — One of the most picturesque mountains in Ashe county will continue, for some time at least, to bear the name of Negro Mountain. The state parks division is developing a nice little park on top of the mountain and plans are in the making for the highway commission to build a good road to the park site. Some of the more finically sensitive people connected with the project conceived the idea of changing the mountain's name. They were going to accomplish this by resolution of the board of conservation and development or the highway and public works commission. But they ran into several snags. In the first place, it has been known as Negro Mountain for so long, no departmental resolution changing the name would be recognized by local citizens.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A LITTLE DICTATING
Although we quite agree with the Senators and Congressmen who maintain that we should cut off aid to those nations which continue to sell to the Communists, won't our actions again be interpreted as dictation? And are not most nations like most people? Don't they exhibit some much traits when, to get something, they find strings attached? Won't they tell us to mind our own business and let them mind theirs?
Americans are impetuous in that regard, because we're paying the bills, we more or less take for granted that we can tell those who are receiving that aid what they may and may not do. To them, however, we're looked on as upstarts. They were nations when we were a backwoods community. Simply because we've grown rich should we set like those nouveau riche who all too frequently in one way or another show off their wealth? Sometimes that's hard for nations like Britain and France to take. For France was the center of manifold activities long before America was looked on as being an adult. Britain for 300 years ruled the seas. In the course of that ascendancy she amassed a fortune the likes of which hasn't been duplicated by any other country. In the circumstances, isn't it hard for her to bow down to American dictation? Our Senators and Congressmen should bear those things in mind before telling others what to do. We resented it when Britain took her sailors off our boats.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
New York probably influences the thinking of the rest of the country more than any other community, more than Hollywood.
A large share of the country's news originates in New York. It is second only to Washington. A large part of the national advertising is written on Madison Avenue. An important segment of the fiction and magazine articles is written in Connecticut and other environs of New York. Most of the great national trade papers are edited in New York. A disproportionately large share of radio and television programs originate there. Because Wall Street is there, much of the financial and business opinion rise in New York.
People in many parts of the country resist New York and New Yorkerism. Several Brooklyn-born salesmen we know always introduce themselves as Missourians or Texans when traveling in the hinterlands. It seems to melt a little resistance, they say. Nevertheless, New York thinking must have great influences on the rest of the country.
This matter comes up today because business is lagging in Gotham. Textiles and apparel constitute New York's largest industry and that industry has been hit sharply by the drop in cotton and wool prices and by the decline in consumer purchases. The Department of Commerce reported this week that American families are currently spending a smaller share of their income on clothing than in any year since the Department started keeping records in 1929.
There is important clothing production in many other cities. But nowhere does it constitute such a sizable share of the local economy as in New York. When the garment business declines in New York, so does night club and theater attendance, and the buying of countless products, from perfume to automobiles.
And New York has a reputation for being one of the crying-est towns in the country. Towns have reputations, and for reason, like that. When business is at its worst in, for example, Los Angeles, talk is always at the bravest. Sales slow today? A Southern Californian will assure you they are much better than they were six days ago. (That was Sunday.) But in New York, partly because many of its people are of highly emotional races, many complain even when business is great. It could be better, you know. And this must have its effects on the flow of information and opinion that goes out over the rest of the country.
No one really knows how much this affects business elsewhere. Some college ought to take on the question as a research problem.
UNION, EMPLOYERS BOOST PAID SALES

shoulder pads. But one union has joined with manufacturers to get more shoulder pads worn. The International Ladies Garment Workers Union and the Women's Apparel Shoulder Pad Association have united for a long-range public relations program to create "widespread acceptance of shoulder pads."
CONGRESS CAN'T HELP CANADIAN DEALERS
"Our Canadian cousins are in trouble," the Old Promoter remarked today. "While credit up here, Canadian retailers have to collect a third down and the 'balance' in 12 months."
"Canadian appliance dealers have been conferring with Mort Farr, president of the National Appliance and Radio Dealers Association, on their credit problems. That ought to help in a limited way, but the credit problem can't be solved the same way it was in the U. S. A."
"How was that?" we asked.
"Getting Congress on the dealers' side," said the O. P. with a grin.

Hal Boyle's Column

ROARING SPRING, Pa. — (AP) — There is a log cabin by a tinkling brook in the hills some miles from here.
And over the stone fireplace in the cabin is a large glass-framed picture of a young officer.
The officer was Capt. Frank Camp, a fighter pilot in the last war. The picture has dimmed a little, but not enough to hide the trace of a smile on his young face.
Captain Camp did his war flying and dying in Tunisia.
In one of his last letters to his father, James Camp, representative of a dairy farmers' cooperative, he wrote:
"Find me a farm back home where I can stay the rest of my life."
The young captain took off on a battle mission one day, and never returned. "Missing In Action," said the War Department.
Clinging to the hope his son had been shot down and taken prisoner, the father kept on searching for the right farm. Finally he found what he wanted—nearly a square mile of open field and wooded hillside. Plenty of pasture land for young Frank to graze cattle on, plenty of forest in which to hunt the spring deer.
And the father built a neat log cabin by the brook. He put the picture of Frank above the stone fireplace. And the long years of family waiting began. But Frank never came back. No trace of him or his plane was ever found and perhaps they went down together in the blue waters of the Mediterranean.
France and I rode out to the old farm the other day with Frank's older sister, Helen, and her husband, George Palmer, the foreign correspondent. Their two daughters, Nina and Zona, were along, too. On the way we talked about a third child the Palmers expect in October.
"I'd just as soon have another girl, but Helen thinks it would be nice if it's a boy," said George.
Helen was very close to her young brother, and a son would help fill the hole in her life left by the death of Frank.
Two horses that Helen and Frank used to ride—Comfort and her son, Lieutenant—came up to the cabin, and we fed them some ears of corn.
The two little girls romped and squealed beneath the picture of their uncle, and they were young to look up and wonder who he was.
Later we went out into the yard and shot at paper targets with an old rifle. Helen had the highest score.
"You didn't have your eyes open when you fired that isn't fair," said George.
"I used to beat Frank, too, and he said I was just lucky," said Helen.
That was the only mention she made of her brother. After all these years, his loss is still too near for her to put into words. As we left, she said:

"Dad comes here once or twice a week, but he usually comes alone."
The last thing I saw as we shut the cabin door at twilight was the luminous smile of Captain Frank, at home in the home he never lived to see.
I don't know of any soldier who has a finer memorial.

Washington Letter

By SIGRID ARNE (For JANE EADS)
WASHINGTON — Let's look over the shoulders of the people who read the letters that stream into the State Department in reply to the "Voice of America."
Letter in Chinese from Shanghai: I am one of your listeners in Shanghai. Since the occupation of this city by the Communists, people in Shanghai depend solely on your broadcasts for accurate news. No matter whether they are upper, middle or lower class (even the cooler and rickshaw pullers) they discuss the news each morning.
In German from Yugoslavia: "It is a wonderful feeling when one has a address and can write a letter to America. This is the first letter of my lifetime, and I am wondering if I could get an answer." (He did.)
In Hungarian from Holland: "My sister from Hungary writes that those whose radio set is not quite powerful cannot hear the broadcasts. Yet those who do hear it tell what they heard to persons they can trust."
In Russian from East Berlin: "Numerous Soviet army men are listening with pleasure to your broadcasts. Unfortunately we cannot listen to you in other languages of the Soviet Republics. Please inform us over the radio the time and wave length of your broadcast in Armenian, Georgian and other languages."
In German from East Berlin: "Your magazine which was addressed to the 'drop' which my husband had arranged in West Berlin is in my hands. I am very sorry to have to inform you that on Sept. 21, 1950, my husband was arrested by the NKVD. Since that day we have no trace of him."
In Spanish from El Salvador: "My reason for writing is important. My country has just authorized the organization of labor unions. It is to be expected that the Communists will try to get in." (This writer wanted a copy of a "Voice" program that described the bad conditions behind the Iron Curtain.)
Through most of the letters runs a thread of gratitude for honest news. Many are so concerned about getting the American programs that they suggest shifts in time to catch the workers before they leave home or before they go to bed. Many report on Russia attempts to jam the "Voice."

NEW SCHOLAR

It is a great day in the life of a child, and one of solemn reflection for his parents, when he toddles away from home for his first day in school.

The beginning of school days marks the end of an epoch and the beginning of another in the course of a modern child's life. From the sheltered precincts of the home he steps out for the first time "on his own."

From this time on, he begins to shape his own conduct and make his own way in the world—timidly at first perhaps, but gradually with greater confidence—like the fledgling in the early days of flight.

Religious instruction should by all means go hand in hand with the teachings of the secular schools, so that the child's spiritual life may expand with his intellectual growth. For education without God is empty.

Wise parents bring their children up in the Church, so that all their secular training may rest upon a foundation of eternal truth.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Football Drills Start This Week For Bill Kittrell's Green Phantoms

HEAD KNOCKING—The team goes through a practice session with Bannerman in the quarterback position.

Greenville High Footballers Begin Practice Sessions For 1951 Season

Drills Began Monday With 22 Players Reporting; Smallest Number Of Boys In History; Bannerman Reports

Those grunts and groans that you have been hearing for the past week in the vicinity of Third Street School are nothing to be alarmed about, for that is merely the results of conditioning exercises taken by the local high school griders.

Head Coach Bill Kittrell and his assistant, Dave Bannerman, have held practice sessions since Monday morning, preparing the boys for the opening game on September 14, when Edenton High comes to Greenville.

Kittrell, in his first year at the helm of the Green Phantoms, stated yesterday that the boys have shown a desire to learn the essential rules and new plays necessary for a good team.

Only 22 boys reported to practice Monday morning when the first drill was held. Of these 22, the smallest amount to report on opening day in the history of the high school football, two are sidelined with blisters and one has dropped off the squad, leaving a total of 19 players to carry the burden.

Assistant Coach Dave Bannerman reported Wednesday afternoon and has taken over the linemen. Bannerman starred on the Naval Academy's team last season.

When asked about the chances of more boys reporting, Kittrell replied, "The field is still wide open for new boys to come out before the opening of school. It would be better if new men would report before school starts."

The backs are looking good at this time while the linemen are learning fast. The line is hampered somewhat as each man is playing at new position.

Veterans Fletcher Murray and Jimmy Cheatham haven't reported yet.

Amateur Finals Slated For Today

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—An Ohio school teacher and a television advertising salesman met today in the 36-hole final of the 1951 Women's National Amateur golf tournament.

The school teacher is Clair Dorna of Rocky River, O., who teaches part time in the Cleveland schools and at Western Reserve.

The advertising salesman is Dot Kirby, veteran golfer from Atlanta who has been trying without success to win the national title since 1934, when she first started tournament play as a 14-year-old girl.

Claire, playing in the national amateur for only the third time, ousted the last former champion in the field, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C., 2-up, yesterday.

Miss Kirby, who was beaten in the finals of the 1939 and 1947 women's amateur championships, gained the title round by beating Grace de Moss of Corvallis, Ore., 6 and 5.

Yanks Defeat Tribe As Woodling Stars

By CARL LUNDQUIST United Press Sports Writer

Gene Woodling has been in Manager Casey Stengel's doghouse so often he can almost be expected to bark for his supper, but the quiet Yankee leftfielder was ready to desert his canine companions for good today.

In fact, without Woodling the Yankees would be in real trouble. On one of the hottest hitting streaks of his career while the other Yankee sluggers have been quieter than a convent of field mice, he has gotten 15 hits in his last 20 times at bat and four of the 10 the Yankees have picked up in the critical two games just played with the Indians.

Last night he produced the only runs of the game with his 13th homer, a two-run blast off Early Wynn in the seventh inning that gave the Yankees a 2 to 0 triumph and cut Cleveland's lead to two full games.

Woodling, an Ohioan himself from nearby Akron, never has forgotten the snub he got from the Indians when they cast him loose after he had played briefly with them in 1946. This season he has gotten five of his 13 homers against the Indians and has personally beaten them in several games.

Stengel, with that extra special help from Woodling, got away with a colossal gamble when he started soft-stuff Stubby Overmire in the big game. It was a desperation move and it worked, although Overmire needed help from reliever Joe Mauer.

The Dodgers stayed 7-1-2 games ahead of the Giants in the National League with a brilliantly pitched three-hit, 1 to 0 victory for Ralph Branca over the Cubs after New York won from St. Louis its 12th straight game, 6 to 5, on Bobby Thomson's daring slide home in the ninth inning.

The Braves twice topped the Reds, 5 to 1 and 2 to 1, as Warren Spahn pitched his 14th victory and rookie Clint Nichols his eighth. The Pirates won a 5 to 1 decision from the Phillies when Murry Dickson won his 17th game and Gus Bell hit the first grand-slam homer of his career.

Garver, spotting the A's a 3-0 lead in the first inning on the 28th homer by Gus Zernial, also had to contend with 1,500 grand stand manager, who were officially named assistant coaches by owner Bill Veeck.

Art Lawson Defends Nat'l Singles Today

By STEVE SNIDER United Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—Cocky Art Larsen opens defense of the National Singles tennis championship today with the flat prediction that he will win the title again.

Whitney Reed in the Pennsylvania tournament, and I had a bad hand that week."

Larsen was matched against Tom Lewyn of Scarsdale, N. Y., to kick off the 103-man chase for singles laurels. Play in women's singles also begins today at the West Side Tennis Club here.

Top-seeded Savitt, who beat Larsen in the Wimbledon quarter-finals, drew a first round bye, and did not play.

Second-seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati plays Bill Ciochier of Valley Forge, Pa., fourth-ranked Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Cal., faces Hal Burrows of Charlottesville, Va., and seventh-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia takes on Corp. Bernard Barten of Lawton, Okla.

James Hudson And Ike Riddick Hurl Two-Hit Victory For Elks; Oscar Stoneham Scores Winning Run In Fourth

James Hudson and Ike Riddick bested Francis Dunn and George Nichols in a Little League mound duel yesterday as the Elks took a 1-0 game from the Exchangites and a 2-1 lead in the championship play-offs.

The Elks pushed Oscar Stoneham over the plate in the bottom of fourth inning to win. Stoneham led off the inning by walking. After Hudson flied out, Ike Riddick singled to send Stoneham to second, who immediately stole third base. Milton Harrington fanned and Joe Moyer hit a grounder to the Exchange third baseman, who errored the ball, allowing Stoneham to score the winning run.

Riddick started for the winners but was relieved in the third by Hudson, who received credit for the win. Each hurler fanned four and walked two, while allowing one hit.

Francis Nunn, who took over the mound in the fourth, was the losing pitcher. Nichols started for the Exchangites.

SPARTANS ON ICE

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State's hockey team is looking ahead to better times. At least past performances indicate as much.

The Spartans renewed intercollegiate hockey after a lapse of 20 years with the 1949-50 season. They played 14 contests and lost them all.

A Tribute To Our Civic Leaders

There have been others—such as Benjamin Franklin—who healed family troubles as well as those of the commonwealth. Today, the fine, efficient men who guide the civic destinies of our community do not have time to personalize their talents. But they work assiduously for the good of the greatest number . . . and they do a most commendable job. They do their utmost—give of their time and effort—to make our community—your neighborhood—your life more abundant. Give them your support. Show them you appreciate their goals and achievements!

Twenty-Five Clowns In Circus Here Wednesday

Twenty-five of the world's greatest clowns doing stunts and cutting capers all at the same time, will make the youngsters scream and their elders roar with laughter, when the huge King Brothers Combined Circus, comes to Greenville, Wednesday, August 29th for afternoon and night performances at the circus grounds near the Farmer's Warehouse under the auspices of the Exchange Club.

Probably never before in recent years has such an aggregation of noted clowns been presented in a single performance. Yes, indeed, the pick of all Spanglers, and, they're all top-notchers.

And they all take part in the big show's new opening spectacle, entitled "The March", in which great masses of people, in dandies participate.

With its 200 men and women acrobats and performers, the handsome horses and ponies, the three great herds of performing elephants, the big menagerie, and a multitude of other 1951 attractions, the huge show this year offers the most imposing array of features in all King Brothers' history.

Such noted stars and displays as the renowned Cristiani Family of somersaulting barback riding marvels, with Lucio Cristiani, conceded the most talented riding comedian in all circus history; the Great Truzzi, Europe's sensational juggling star; La Louisa, the dynamic, daring aerialist from France; Hugo Zaccini, the original human cannonball; the man actually shot from the mouth of a giant cannon; the Sabatini Troupe of aerial stars who zip each other from one side of the big top to the other; the Great Davison, the high-in-the-air thriller, and many others of equal note, who go to make up the best program of circus attractions ever before offered by the King Brothers.

Admission will be given at 2 and 8 p.m. with the main gates opening at 1 and 7 p.m., and an extra special show day feature, "The Parade of the Elephants" will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the many thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

For the convenience of circus patrons, a downtown ticket office will be in operation show day at the Bissette Drug Store at No. 416 Evans Street, where tickets for both performances will be on sale at the same prices charged at the circus grounds.

Welcomes Public Debate Of Case

PITTSBURGH —(AP)—Aldo Icardi, former OSS Lieutenant accused by the Defense Department of planning the slaying of a superior officer in Italy during World War Two, is in favor of a public discussion of the case on the radio.

Icardi, who has denied the accusation, said yesterday he welcomed an offer by the Civil and Criminal Courts Bar Association of New York City, to participate in a radio discussion of the case.

Icardi and ex-Sgt. Carl G. Lodice, of Rochester, N. Y., are accused of plotting the death of Maj. William V. Holtzman, who was killed while the three were on a mission behind enemy lines.

Lodice, who also denies the charges, has been invited to join Icardi on the program.

The date for the proposed broadcast has not been announced.

MODEL YACHTS COSTLY

BOSTON —(UP)—The miniature model yachts sailed in international races cost about $800 each, enthusiasts here report.

Exchange Club Sponsors Circus

The Greenville Exchange Club last night used its program period for planning to sell tickets to King Brothers Circus, which shows here next Wednesday, matinee and night.

President Sweeney Moyer presided. Jake Hadley, chairman of the Circus Ticket Selling Committee, said the Exchange Club will receive 50 per cent of the money for tickets sold. The money will be allotted to the club's civic projects fund.

Tickets are on sale at the Flanagan Drug Co. on East Fourth St. The Exchange Club will not receive any benefit from tickets sold after Tuesday night, Chairman Hadley said.

The parade will be held about noon Wednesday.

The elephants—a big herd of them—will feature the circus and the parade. A 50-piece band; the famous Zaccini, who will be shot from an out-sized cannon; the Christiani family, stellar barback riding stars; 20 funny clowns, 200 "spanglers" stars and performers; a menagerie of wild beasts, and a spectacular show with scores of attractions comprise some of the features of the circus. Ora O. Parks, publicity man for King Brothers Circus, said.

Governors Eye Election Issues

FRENCH LICK, Ind. —(AP)—Three midwestern governors today placed public morals, inflation, and world peace as major issues in the 1952 election campaign.

The governors are Henry F. Schickler of Indiana, Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

They walked to newsmen and spoke at a public radio interview late last night at a midwest conference of Democratic leaders.

The conference, at the French Lick Springs Hotel, will end tonight with an address by Vice-President Barkley.

Schickler listed as a prime 1952 issue the "peace and security of the world to save America for future generations."

Stevenson added, "and we can't do that without saving the peace of the world or without resistance to communist imperialism."

Williams said, "Stalin's greatest weapon is inflation in America."

Schickler declared, "the moral fabric of America is in distress and needs to be reconstructed."

The governors said the Truman Fair Deal program and what they called "disturb and division by epithets and slander" also would be issues next year.

The governors said they believed President Truman is gaining in popularity. But they said they had no assurance he would seek re-nomination.

All three governors denied any personal national political aspirations.

Harriman Talks To Marshal Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia —(AP)—President Truman's roving trouble-shooter W. Averell Harriman arrived here today to talk with Premier Marshal Tito about Yugoslavia's basic needs in the way of military and economic assistance.

Enroute home from Tehran Harriman looked wan and weary from his long efforts to break the deadlock in the now suspended negotiations between Britain and Iran over oil nationalization.

PITT — SUNDAY and MONDAY

Lou Costello takes a hillbilly bride and Bud Abbott serves as best man in this scene from the hilariously funny hit, "Comin' Round the Mountain."

Survivor Relates Wreck Anguish

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Eleven hospitalized American survivors today described the anguished "crying and screaming" in a French train wreck that cost 20 lives—six of them American.

"It was a hell of a crash," said Sgt. William H. Van Dusen, Jackson, Miss. "I was in the middle of the last car which got the full hit."

Van Dusen, his wife, Mildred, and eight-year-old son and seven other Americans—four from North Carolina—were flown in an ambulance to the U. S. Army's 98th General Hospital here from the wreck at Sany-sur-Nied, 12 miles east of Metz, France. Twenty-nine Europeans also were injured.

Van Dusen described the tragedy which occurred when one international express train ran into the rear of another.

"The crash came from the rear," he said. Both ends of the car became pulverized. That's where the people were killed.

"Then the car slid a jackknife over the next coach. There was lots of crying and screaming. I was pinned down by a seat."

The fire engines arrived and they had to raise a ladder to the car sitting on top of the next coach to haul us out."
