Heavy Fighting Goes On In Korea

UN Troops Jump Off In Drenching Rain Against 'Bloody Ridge' In 13th Day Of Battle; Reds Desperately Try To Dislodge ROKs From Hill

UNITED NATIONS FORCES pushed the Communists off a newly-captured hill on the 13th day of the battle of "Bloody Ridge" today.

(An unconfirmed and highly doubtful report from Chinese Nationalist sources on Formosa said the Communists have massed some 1,950,000 men for an offensive in Korea, including 100,000 members of an international corps.)

UN troops jumped off against the western flank of "Bloody Ridge" northwest of Yanggu on the East-central front at dawn in a drenching rain.

Despite the slipper slopes, the Allied soldiers had cleared one important hill and were assaulting another 2 1/2 hours later. Little resistance was encountered, but some U.N. casualties were caused by mines and booby traps.

In the punch bowl area above Inje, farther east, U.N. forces finally repulsed an enemy probing attack after a six-hour fight.

Communist troops also battered fruitfully at the west U.N. penetration in North Korea.

North Korean Reds tried desperately to dislodge South Korean forces from a hill near the east coast some 30 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

The South Koreans captured the hill north northwest of Kansong, Monday in the northernmost U.N. thrust since the Allies pulled out of North Korea last winter.

The Communists threw a regiment—some 2,500 troops—against the hill in the first of a series of counter-attacks Monday night.

Massed U.N. artillery poured a hail of death on the Reds for a half-hour and they fell back in confusion.

Heavy Communist casualties were reported.

B-26 light bombers pounded an airfield at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, Monday night despite bad weather in the stepped-up U.N. campaign against enemy air bases in North Korea.

Other U.N. bombers and fighter-bombers hit Red supply convoys serving the enemy's offensive buildup. Since last Friday, Allied pilots have been credited with destroying or damaging 2,000 Communist trucks.

Accused Lottery King And Former Police Arrested

GREENSBORO (UP)—Greensboro's alleged lottery boss, Francis D. (George) Smith, 52, and four former policemen were arrested yesterday and charged with conspiracy to commit bribery.

Smith's co-defendants were the same officers fired from the force Aug. 14 after convicted lottery operator C. A. (Shag) York charged them with accepting protection money.

Three of the former officers—J. H. Adams, F. B. Meney and R. L. Paschal said they were unemployed when recruited. The fourth, R. L. Perrell, is working for a tire company here. All posted $1,000 bonds and Smith gave $3,000 bond for appearance at a preliminary hearing Sept. 4.

All Jet-Propelled

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UP)—Thomas E. Braniff, president of Braniff International Airways, predicted today that all commercial passenger planes will be jet-propelled "within another five or 10 years."

Holding The Ball Again

Call It A Ball Or A Hot Potato, But The Reds Have Tossed It Right Back To Ridgway; They Have No Intention Of Calling Off Armistice Parleys

By HOMER JENKS

The Communists have tossed the ball back to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Red Gens. Kim Il Sung and Peng Teh-huai told the supreme U.N. commander that they have no intention of calling off the armistice talks just because he accused them of "malicious falsehoods."

What's more, they said, Ridgway himself is guilty of "reversing—the truth" in accusing them of taking an air raid on Kaesong.

Pitt Grand Jury Indicts Pactolus Man For Murder

First Degree Murder Charge Returned In Axe-Slaying Last Saturday

By JOHN D. SPINKS JR., Reflector City Editor

The Pitt County grand jury early this afternoon returned a true bill of indictment against William Henry Smith, 36-year-old Negro of Pactolus, for the murder of George Joyner late Saturday night.

Smith was charged with first degree murder. It is expected that Solicitor W. J. Bundy will call the case for trial during this week's term of court.

Joyner died of wounds sustained after Smith had struck him with an axe at a service station on the Pactolus highway at 10 o'clock Saturday night. The axe struck Joyner in the shoulder and nearly severed his arm. He died early Sunday morning in Pitt Memorial Hospital from loss of blood.

There was no coroner's inquest since Smith admitted killing the man in the presence of witnesses.

Other true bills returned by the grand jury were: Josephus Corbett, breaking, entering and larceny; Wayne Canady, eight indictments for forgery; Lonnie Jones Jr. and Wilbert Moore, larceny; Willie David Richardson and Arlander Barnhill, breaking, entering and larceny.

Roberta Boyd Sutton, assault with deadly weapon.

Benjamin Randall Whitfield, John Wesley Hardison and Robert Elton Taylor, breaking, entering and larceny; R. A. Scroggs, six indictments for forgery (continued); and Harvey Fillingame and James McLamb, highway robbery.

Other grand jury cases and their disposition: Howard W. Peele, crime against nature, no pro- with leave; L. B. Tucker, assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, transferred to Pitt Recorder's Court; Herbert Dean Anderson, No. 4, true bill.

James Williams, assault on female with intent to commit rape, assault charge transferred to Pitt Recorder's Court, intent to commit rape charge no pro; Roberta Boyd Sutton, assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, no pro; Roberta Boyd Sutton, breaking and entering, pleaded guilty to forcible trespass.

Cases heard yesterday with judgments: Walter May Harris, assault, pleaded guilty, six months, suspended on payment of $100 to prosecuting witness; Clayton Earl Robertson, drunk driving, continued; Hermon Ellis, drunk driving, pleaded guilty, sentenced to 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $100 and costs, driver's license revoked for one year.

Roberta Boyd Sutton, forcible trespass, pleaded guilty, paid costs; Roberta Boyd Sutton, assault with deadly weapon, pleaded guilty, sentenced to four months on the roads, suspended on payment of $85 to prosecuting witness; Frank McKinley, sentenced to 90 days on the ley Webb, drunk driving, pleaded roads, suspended on payment of $100 and costs, driver's license revoked for one year.

Other judgments: Donny Boone, assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, action abated because of death of defendant; Herman Suter, assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, no pro; Cash Bradshaw, assault on a minor female, no pro; Thomas T. Goddard, drunk driving, no pro.

Divorces granted yesterday morning.

Constant Effort To Tax Tobacco

Tobacco Council Predicts Another Fight Next Year

RALEIGH (UP)—F. M. Parkinson of Richmond, Va., executive director of the National Tobacco Tax Research Council, predicted yesterday that efforts to raise state and local taxes on tobacco products will be renewed throughout the nation next year.

The council, formed two years ago to fight tobacco taxes, met here to plan expansion of its public relations program. In the process, it ran into a difference of opinion as to whether the campaign should try to counteract arguments against the use of tobacco or should be directed entirely against tax increases.

Joseph Kolodny of New York, president of the council and managing director of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, said the new public relations program will increase the council's budget from $35,000 a year to between $100,000 and $150,000.

A steering committee composed of two representatives each of tobacco growers, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers will direct the public relations program.

Kolodny advocated aiming part of the drive against "propaganda being issued against the use of tobacco." However, Carl T. Hicks of Walsenburg and J. Con Lanier of Greenville, representing growers in the steering committee, objected.

Hicks said the council would be "stepping on dangerous ground" to oppose groups which object to tobacco on religious grounds. Lanier pointed out that the council was formed primarily to fight taxes.

Parkinson reported that the organization opposed tobacco tax legislation in 22 states in the last year. He said its efforts were responsible for defeating tax legislation in nine states and lowering taxes in 10 states.

Condemns 199 Of Living Quarters

Sanitary Inspector J. C. Waldrop has made 199 condemnations in the city's cleanup campaign of unsanitary conditions.

Condemnations were made because some living quarters had neither sink nor toilet, a toilet but no sink, and the unapproved Vogel-type toilets. Owners of the condemned places have been granted 60 days to correct the unsanitary conditions on their property.

A report on each of the condemned places will be made during the inspection and turned over to the proper authorities. One copy will go to the property owner, one copy to the mayor and a permanent copy will be placed on file in the Health Department.

W. M. Pate, senior sanitarian, has urged the fullest cooperation of owners, agents and tenants in making Greenville a better place to live.

Declare Balloons Being Shot Down

NEW YORK (UP)—The Crusade for Freedom charged today that eight planes bearing Russian markings tried to machine gun message balloons floated over Czechoslovakia from Munich, Germany.

Crusade spokesmen said freedom messages contained in 10,000 balloons already had been received by Czechs.

Help For Tito

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France have agreed to provide $50,000,000 in economic aid to Yugoslavia to support Marshal Tito's "contribution to the security of the free world."

The Economic Cooperation Administration, in announcing this today, disclosed it already has allocated $29,500,000 as an initial installment to help the Yugoslavs buy cotton, coke and steel.

Offer 'Soak The Rich' Campaign

BRITISH SOCIALISTS Plan Drive For Rearmament Funds

LONDON (UP)—Britain's socialist Labor Party promised a new "soak the rich" campaign today to help pay for rearmament.

"There are still too many people in this community living on the labor of others," a policy statement said.

The statement was published as a prelude to the Labor Party conference at Scarborough in October. The pledge to the wage earner and threat to those living on unearned incomes will become party policy if Prime Minister Clement Attlee decides to call a general election L. L. coming year.

The statement was aimed particularly at persons whose incomes are derived from investments.

"To pay for rearmament, some sacrifice must inevitably be made by everyone, but the greatest sacrifice should be asked from those who have large unearned incomes and who enjoy a high standard of living without making any contribution to the nation's effort," the statement said.

After taxes are paid, the number of rich Britons even now is small.

In the last pre-war year—1938-39—there were 6,500 persons with incomes of more than 6,000 pounds after taxation. In 1948-49—the last year on which figures have been published—there were only 68 persons with incomes of more than 6,000 pounds after taxation.

Wife Of Missing British Diplomat Also Disappears

BEAUVALLON, France (UP)—The American-born wife of missing British diplomat Donald D. MacLean has dropped out of sight today as completely as her husband—and in somewhat the same baffling manner.

There was much talk—and little evidence—that she had been called to a rendezvous with her husband.

Mrs. MacLean's reported disappearance six days ago struck the fashionable Riviera at the height of its summer season.

One informant claimed Mrs. MacLean still was inside the villa into which she moved last week ostensibly for a vacation with her mother, two sisters and children.

In evidence there. Repeated telephone calls to the villa elicited the information that the "line is out of order."

A police guard kept all visitors from the grounds. There was no explanation for the precautions.

It was understood that Mrs. MacLean still has not picked up registered mail for her from Chicago, her former home in the local post office. It has been there several days.

MacLean, too, disappeared three months ago at the start of a "vacation" along with Guy Burgess, another British Foreign Office official still missing.

MacLean, chief of the British Foreign Office's American Department, and Burgess, formerly attached to the British embassy in Washington, boarded a cross-channel excursion vessel at Southampton May 25, landed at St. Malo, France, and were last seen in a taxi believed headed for Paris.

It was then feared they might be fleeing behind the Iron Curtain with information of vital importance to the West.

Low Leaf Grades On Local Mart

Low grade primings and tips continued to flood the Greenville tobacco market yesterday as sales resumed for their second week.

Yesterday's average was the lowest since the market opened last Tuesday, finishing at $47.48 for the day's sales. A total of $585,416.48 was paid out to farmers for offerings amounting to 1,233,402 pounds.

W. L. Wheabee, supervisor of sales, reported that practical top for high quality leaf was $69 with the better pieces selling in the $70s.

Sales today were light with heavy sales not expected until the latter part of the week.

Wheabee reminded tobacco farmers that all markets in the state will be closed next Monday, Labor Day.

AFRAID TO LIVE

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Francisco Malpica, 98, killed himself yesterday because he feared he "otherwise might live forever."

Elephant Herds To Parade Here

Herds of elephants will parade through Greenville tomorrow in "The Parade of Elephants."

The King Brothers Circus will present an extra special feature tomorrow morning around noon as a reminder of circus day here. The parade will feature many of the elephants who will perform in the ring at the circus.

The circus is expected to arrive here early in the morning and no doubt a number of youngsters, and adults, will be on hand to watch the circus unload and get ready for performances.

The first performance of the King Brothers Circus will begin Wednesday afternoon at 8 o'clock and the night performance will begin at 8 o'clock. Altogether there are nearly 200 circus stars and performers in the show, including the clowns; many of which are making their first tour in this country.

Scout Council Commissioners Hold Meeting

A staff meeting was held last night by the East Carolina Council commissioners, Boy Scouts of America, at Respass-James Barbecue House.

Ralph Snow explained the fall round-up program to the men present and also explained the new way to issue charters to troops.

A total of 20 commissioners attended the meeting which got underway at 6:30.

Also last night the District Committee held its regular monthly supper meeting at the American Legion Home, at which time routine matters were discussed.

Ridgway Says Reds Used Own Plane In Fake Attack

'Deliberate Fraud' Charges Statement By UN Command; Questions Reliability Of Any New Evidence Offered; Observers Look For New UN Offer

TOKYO (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's supreme headquarters charged today that the Communists used one of their own airplanes to stage a fake bombing of Kaesong.

A statement issued by the supreme U.N. commander's Public Information Service repeated that no U.N. airplanes of any description were over Kaesong at the time of the alleged bombing of the armistice conference neutral zone.

"Our air alert system reported that an unidentified aircraft approached Kaesong from the west at 11:20 p. m., the exact time of the alleged attack," the statement said.

"Since no U.N. command aircraft was in the area, it is beyond doubt that this was a Communist aircraft."

All evidence establishes the conclusion that "the Communists perpetrated a deliberate fraud," the statement said.

Commenting on the new Red demand for a reinvestigation of alleged neutrality breaches, the headquarters statement said:

"Should the investigation be reopened it is probable that much more convincing evidence of a bombing attack would be presented."

The statement implied that Ridgway probably will reject the Red demand for another investigation of two alleged violations—certainly that he will not accept it on the Communists' terms.

It strengthened belief also that Ridgway may propose a fresh start in the armistice talks, and suggest that both sides appoint new negotiating teams and shift the conference away from incident-ridden Kaesong.

Speculation that Ridgway might propose a new conference site was based on belief that the U.N. command is fed up with the series of baseless complaints filed by the Communists about alleged incidents within the Kaesong neutral zone.

However, there was no immediate indication as to where he might propose the conference be shifted.

Ridgway originally had suggested that the armistice talks be held aboard the Danish hospital ship 'Julia' in the Communist east coast port of Wonsan, 50 miles behind the enemy lines.

There was a possibility that Ridgway would suggest that the talks be held in no-man's land, midway between the opposing armies. Although the Kaesong area has been declared neutral for the purpose of the truce talks, it nevertheless lies behind the Communist lines.

Appointment of new negotiating teams might enable the two sides to explore new areas of possible agreement, informants said.

Cold Greeting

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman gave the new Czechoslovakian ambassador a cold greeting today, telling him the best way to improve present poor relations between the two countries is to free imprisoned American newsman William Oatis.

Mr. Truman was short and to the point as the new envoy, Vladimir Prochaska, presented his credentials at the White House.

He brushed off Prochaska in less than five minutes.

Eyewitnesses at the ceremony said that the President, in blunt terms, told the envoy he had nothing further to discuss with him until the Communist-dominated Prague government did something about releasing Oatis.

New Warden For Central Prison

Former Reidsville Chief And SBI Agent To Take Post

RALEIGH (UP)—Robert A. Allen, 35, former Reidsville police chief and special agent for the State Bureau of Investigation, will take over Saturday as new warden of the state's Central Prison.

State Prisons Director Walter F. Anderson named Allen to the job four days after he fired former Warden Joe Crawford following a difference of opinion about prison policy.

Allen will relieve assistant Prisons Director H. H. Honeycutt who has been acting as warden since Crawford's dismissal. The salary is $3,400 per year plus a $60 per month state apartment.

Allen is a widower and the father of three children. He joined the Reidsville police force in 1937 and became police chief in 1941.

He joined the SBI in 1946 and resigned the first of this month to enter the hardware business in Reidsville with his brother, L. E. Allen.

The new warden is a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy and studied law and crime procedures at the Institute of Government of the University of North Carolina.

Anderson said John Dellinger will continue as deputy warden at the prison and deputy Bruce Poole will remain temporarily in charge of construction for the entire prisons system.

No other changes in prison personnel are planned immediately, Anderson said, but a complete reorganization will take place "as soon as we can get it."

"We are going to reorganize the prison system so there is a direct line of authority," he said. "We intend to arrange it so that everyone knows what he has to do and to whom he is responsible."

"We are not going to fire present personnel and bring in new men. We hope to utilize much of the present personnel as soon as they have been trained."

Third Of Cadets Accepting Offer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—More than a third of the 90 cadets ousted from West Point have taken advantage of an anonymous rich man's offer to send them to Notre Dame. It was announced today.

The Rev. Louis Thornton, director of the admissions, said 32 former cadets have applied for admission under the terms of the offer which specifies they take no part in Notre Dame athletics.

That 'Enchanted' Man

India's Prime Minister Seems To Think India Can Survive On Sidelines Of Basic Conflict Between Two Ideologies; A Neat Trick, If It's Possible

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—India's Prime Minister Nehru is a man living in enchantment.

He seems to think India can survive without choosing sides in the conflict between communism and the rest of the world.

In the end, maybe it can. But remaining a spectator will be a neat stunt if it works. Nehru may think it's shrewd to try.

India, with its 350,000,000 people, has watched many struggles and seen many empires stumble down into dust.

It is still here, although it was tied to the British yoke for centuries and has been free and independent for only a year and a half.

This ancient background, and the fact that India still survives, may help Nehru take what he considers the long view, the view that by remaining aloof India can ride out this latest storm.

But there never has been a struggle like this one, none so basic, none so truly world-wide and desperate.

For, although this struggle is now

WSB Considers Early Action In Copper Walkout

May Ask Strikers To Show Cause Why They Continue Harmful Strike

By ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Wage Stabilization Board was reported to be considering today asking striking copper workers to show cause why they have not called off the walkout which is hurting the defense effort.

Some labor and government sources said, however, that only a court injunction would get the independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union back on the job.

President Truman, who warned that the one-day-old strike affecting 100,000 workers already has had a "very serious impact on the defense program," referred the dispute between the union and the Big Four copper producing companies to the wage board yesterday.

Mr. Truman and board chairman W. Taylor both asked the union—ousted from the CIO on charges it was Communist-dominated—to end the strike while the board holds hearings and recommends terms.

Union president John Clark declared the union would not go back without assurances that the government "will press for acceptance by the companies of the government's own proposals for settlement of the dispute."

The strikers themselves were firmly behind Clark. They showed no indication of acting on the president's request, unless Clark gave the signal, despite the president's appeal on behalf of national defense.

"We want a contract," said Harry Johnson, an employee of the Kennecott Copper Corp., at Birmingham, "ah."

"I definitely feel that even if President Truman requested the men to go back to work, they won't do that they're out. Now that the strike's on, I'll take a contract and nothing else to get them back."

Some officials of the union said the strikers were sure that no quick settlement would be reached and many were planning short vacations.

Picket lines were orderly and union headquarters in Denver said it had received no reports of violence.

Observers felt that a settlement between the union and Kennecott would set a pattern for ending the strike, but none seemed forthcoming.

Federal mediators proposed the companies grant the workers a 16-cent-an-hour increase and a 4 1/2 cent pension plan. The union accepted the offer, but the companies rejected it.

Would A-Bomb Seat Of Trouble

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UP)—Harry E. Williams, 72, of Portland, Ore., national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, said today he should "give Russia 48 hours to get the Communists out of Korea" and if that fails, use the atom bomb.

In an address to the Spanish War Veterans' annual convention, he said the bomb should be dropped on Moscow, "the seat of all the trouble."

He said that Russia has enormous problems. No country has more. Newly united Britain, it is, is a scary almost trying to start from scratch. At this very start of its new life it must find a way to defeat Japan and build industry.

And its military force is only strong enough to last perhaps two weeks in a modern war. And Nehru must be careful about irritating communism, since his two biggest neighbors are Russia and China.

But the simple and practical question Nehru must face, however much he tries to duck his head, is the question any head of a government has to answer for himself, is this:

"Do I have any doubts that communism would take over India if it could? Do I have any doubt that if it wins in the struggle with

Strength for the Day

MOODS
Do you indulge your moods? Some people are more moody than others, but everyone experiences the ebb and flood of emotional tides. It is only those individuals whose emotions one hour are at flood tide and at the next ebb tide who have a real problem in the matter of mood.

Whether we like it or not self-control is a must in the lives of every one of us. We think we get great satisfaction in "blowing off our tops," in brooding over fancied injuries, in thinking about our failures and pitying ourselves for them. But there is no happiness in this sort of nonsense, all of which is the result of diseased emotions. Our moods, when they are normal, reflect either a satisfactory or unsatisfactory state of body or mind. When moods become too pronounced, when they stand out on a man like an over-sized nose or the absence of an ear, then they are abnormal. Moods are all right as long as we keep them in hand. They are very bad when they get out of hand.

How can we manage them? Self-analysis—that is, standing before our problems and asking ourselves just what they really are—is helpful. A few moments of quietness, and above all quietness interspersed with prayer, are also helpful procedures for people who are continually ravaged by their moods.

Be Sure There Is No Backfire

Wake County law enforcement officers have made the headlines in newspapers across the state through a new activity. They are soliciting funds from Raleigh businessmen to purchase a club house for the Wake County Law Enforcement Officers Association.

We can not recall right off hand of having heard of another such law enforcement group which has a club house of its own, but it sounds like a good idea for the officers. It will afford them a place to gather in their off hours, cultivate acquaintances into friendships, and probably make for more cooperation between the various law enforcement departments in the county.

In Pitt County the lounge of the police officers at the city hall in Greenville serves somewhat the same purpose although it is not on nearly so elaborate a scale as that proposed by the Wake officers. All in all, however, it follows the same line of thought.

The only drawback to the project undertaken by the Wake Association, so far as The Reflector can see is that of soliciting funds from the various businessmen of the community. Undoubtedly the officers will be particular about the firms from which they solicit funds to make sure there will be no possibility of any donation at some future date being construed as a purchase of protection from, or immunity to, the laws which it is the duty of the officers to uphold.

The officers can not be too careful to keep themselves above reproach in soliciting the funds for their new club house.

Fighting Materialism With Materialism

The false gods of materialism are commonly regarded as the great evil of Communism's philosophy; and we raise the question, are we not battling those false gods with an equally idolatrous materialism of our own?

"Materialism" is a tenet which holds that the material well-being of the individual should rule in the determination of conduct. In the long view, that is the proclaimed goal of Marxist theories . . . the promises are selfish, though the means involved are cruel, harsh and lack recognition of the every-day rights we hold in high esteem.

Directly and indirectly, the propagandists of the West (chiefly American) hold forth this same lure of materialism to woo slaves of Communism's empire to the ways of freedom. The material comforts of countless automobiles, telephones, bath tubs and tractors; well-laden tables, radios and washing machines are, in effect, held up as the rewards of Democracy.

Freedoms of the individual, his rights and responsibilities under a republican government are accorded "equal" status with the material advantages of free enterprise and the natural wealth of the North American continent. This, we hold to be a most feeble argument upon which to rest the case for winning the minds and hearts of peoples who have already chosen to place their trust in the promises of a materialistic philosophy.

The rights of man and the freedoms of thought and action and self-government are the "selling points" of Democracy. Or have we forgotten them?

Mere possession of wealth has already become accepted as a standard, to a certain degree, of respectability and pre-eminence in America's social strata.

Conscious, or unconscious emphasis upon this country's physical wealth and the ignoring of our philosophical wealth might well result in the death of the latter and the rearing of a materialistic idolatry fully as evil as that of Moscow, though purely American in origin and concept.

Another Dam On Russia's Supply Stream

Senator Sparkman of Alabama has asked the Senate to adopt a new bill aimed at cutting off the flow of potential war goods and arms to Russia and other Communist countries.

It seems fundamental that the United States and her allies would not be sending arms or materials for making arms and ammunition to their admitted enemy. It seems that the nations would place more emphasis on their own safety and national security than to ship war materials to a country which sooner or later may reasonably be expected to make war on every sovereign nation of the world.

Yet there are too many nations as well as individuals who place the dollar and the pound ahead of anything else. They can see no harm, except perhaps the fall of some other country, in shipping Russia war goods for which she is willing to pay dearly.

Last June a step toward halting trade with Russia became law when Congress tacked to an appropriations bill a rider which ordered the president to halt economic aid from the United States to any country which was engaging in trade with Russia or her satellites. That measure did some good, but it cut off only a trickle of Russia's flow of goods from outside the iron curtain.

Perhaps the new measure proposed by Sparkman will succeed in stopping only another trickle of Russia's river of supply, but every little bit of trade that can be cut off from the Communist reservoir of supplies will weaken the Communist position. If the Sparkman proposal is enacted into law along with some of the "no-exception" amendments that have been proposed for the bill, it should take a big bite out of Russia's supply routes from the free world.

There is always the possibility that such a bill will not get through Congress, and even after it receives congressional approval, there is the possibility it will cause antagonism among the allies of the United States who are trading with Russia. The United States must make it clear, however, that she does not intend to continue to pump millions of dollars into nations whose industry is turning out war materials for the Communists.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—President Truman will soon act on the advice of prominent party leaders that he break up the "Missouri gang" of politicians at the Capital, whose alleged use of their positions to enrich their pockets has provoked such widespread criticism on and off Capitol Hill.

His first move in a reorganization designed to strengthen him for a 1952 nomination and possible reelection will be the dismissal of National Chairman Boyle, the former Kansas City policeman, who has been accused of accepting fees in order to obtain an R.F.C. loan for his client.

It is understood that Mr. Boyle's successor will be Paul E. Fitzpatrick, now Democratic State Chairman of New York, and an extremely loyal Truman man.

OVERBOARD—Although the President has exonerated Chairman Boyle of the R.F.C. charges, and is reluctant to part with old cronies, he has shown no hesitancy in tossing them overboard when their activities jeopardize his fortunes.

He dropped Louis A. Johnson as National Defense Secretary after declaring that he would be retained. He agreed to a reshuffling of the five-man R.F.C. after opposing it. And the E. Mezie Youngs, both husband and wife, have been banished from the presidential family.

The parting with Mr. Boyle will be friendly. In fact, the chairman will probably ask to be released in order that he may return to his law business, which should become quite lucrative because of his White House connections.

It is also expected that Mr. Boyle will then be in a stronger position to corral convention delegates for the President throughout the Middle West, where anti-Truman sentiment is strong.

BACKERS—The selection of Mr. Fitzpatrick is designed to mollify powerful eastern leaders and the Roosevelt wing of the party, for they have been grumbling over the ascendancy of the Missouri faction in party councils. Among the New Yorker's principal backers are Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Bronx Boss "Ed" Flynn, Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing and House Majority McCormack of Massachusetts.

It was Mr. Fitzpatrick, for instance who persuaded Mrs. Roosevelt to declare for Mr. Truman in 1945 at a time when she was inclined to remain silent because of disagreement over certain changes in her late husband's major policies.

It was Mr. Fitzpatrick, together with Mr. Flynn, who engineered the deal whereby William F. O'Dwyer was removed from New York City Hall to the Embassy at Mexico City.

EFFECT—Indeed, the shift in the chairmanship should have a market effect on the Truman personality and policies. This would be true because Mr. Fitzpatrick would accept the position almost under protest, and, therefore, on his own terms and as his own man. He has large real estate holdings in Florida, and has been thinking seriously of quitting politics permanently.

Ready Made Lair

Somebody Told Me

If I told you that Wife Rachel and I have never had one disagreement in our four years of marriage you would know that I was telling a lie. However, if I told you that we have had very few, you might believe me.

And you might find this hard to believe: Of the few we have had, not a single one has involved finances. All of this build-up is to convince you that W.R. and I were very chummy when I went into her wallet the other day. "Got any money?" I asked.

"I think so," she said. That statement floored me. Anybody as far in debt as we are who doesn't know about every penny in his pocket should change his ways.

When I finally found W. R.'s wallet, it did contain $5, enough to save the day. At a first glance, I couldn't believe the bulging sight I saw. The wallet was at least three inches thick. But it took only a few seconds to discover that there was only one thin $5 bill there. The rest was junk.

If you have ever read "Blondie" in the Reflector, you have seen Dagwood ask himself, "Why do I get these fiendish ideas?" That's exactly the same question I asked myself when I saw W. R.'s wallet. Translated, the question was, "How did I get the idea of taking all of this stuff out of Rachel's wallet?"

Days passed after my removal of the loot. One day when Rachel wasn't at home I sneaked the loot out of its hiding place for a quick glance. It was hard to believe my eyes when I saw a super market cash register slip dated June 10, 1949. Most of the rest of the loot read something like this:

creamed cheese rolls
ice cream
juice
kleenex
soup meal

Also included were a dental appointment for November 7, but it didn't say what year, a piece of kleenex, several copies of sales tickets from department stores, and an announcement of a contest in which 230 washing machines would be given away! (We bought one last month!)

It was a great effort, but W.R. admitted after three weeks that she hadn't needed the loot. But just in case, I'm keeping it in cold storage.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

DIFFERENCES — The Republicans in North Carolina are about as badly divided in opinion and relationship with the national party organization as are the Democrats. Comes now John A. Wilkinson of Beaufort county challenging recent statements in this column questioning Calvin Zimmerman of Raleigh. Wilkinson, it will be recalled, waged a vigorous campaign for the United States senate against the late J. M. Broughton in 1948. He writes: "If you have correctly quoted Mr. Zimmerman in the column (August 21) and one several weeks ago, he does not speak the sentiments of the Republicans of eastern and central North Carolina." Zimmerman had indicated he found very little support for the idea advanced by Senator Karl Mundt of South Dakota for a "marriage" of Southern Democrats with mid-Western Republicans to sponsor a coalition national ticket. Wilkinson says he has attended conferences with Republican leaders throughout Eastern Carolina and finds them not only favorable to the idea, but actively seeking ways to bring about such a "marriage." He finds practical unanimity in support of the idea, but differences of opinion as to best way to achieve it.

ANTI-TRUMAN — "We are all solidly opposed to the efforts instigated by the Truman administration and its political allies to break down racial separation in the South," says Wilkinson. He thinks that if there were prospect of really significant attraction of strength to the party in the south, the Republicans would go a long way toward meeting the southern position. He further insists that the national organization has not ignored the south to the extent Zimmerman thinks.

ASSISTANCE — He admits the Republican has not spent as much money in the south as some party members desired, but cites several instances of fairly liberal contributions. In 1948, for example, he received $10,000 for his senatorial campaign in North Carolina, the maximum allowed for any one senatorial contest, while Tennessee and Virginia Republicans also received help from the national treasury.

CAMPAIGNERS — Wilkinson also denies that the Republican party has sent many big time campaigners into North Carolina. He recalls that Dewey made two trips to this state during his pre-convention campaign, and that Senator Telford campaign actively in North Carolina in the fall of 1948. Joe Martin, when national chairman, spent a week in North Carolina, and there has not been a Lincoln Day Dinner season in many years due to a number of prominent Republicans coming into the state. Any lack of attention to the south in general and to North Carolina in particular, according to Mr. Wilkinson, is and has been due to scarcity of money rather than intent to by-pass the section. Significantly he adds: "Naturally there are many different ideas about the kind of help that is needed and what group should be appealed to. Never the less, throughout the party generally there is no thought of ignoring the south. A powerful organization called the Republican Round-up Committee has been especially active in trying to work with the so-called Dixiecrats."

APPOINTMENTS — Wilkinson also challenges the statement that North Carolina Republicans have been by-passed in the making of appointments. Somewhat wistfully he reminds that there have been no Republican appointments since 1932, but for a long time after that two of the three federal judgeships were held by Republicans. Judge John J. Parker had been named a member of the circuit court of appeals, Hoover to the U. S. Supreme Court. Confirmation of this appointment was defeated in the Senate by a combination of Southern Democrats and Radical Republicans. That was not the fault of the Republican national administration, and it stands now as a perpetual reproach to the Southern Democrats who voted against Judge Parker—and now find themselves with southerners like Black and Vison. It is difficult for men of ability to rise to top-flight appointments. But all things considered, Wilkinson thinks the Tar Heel Republicans have "ared" pretty well.

Y. R. C. — In the Young Republican Club field North Carolina has been especially active on the national level. North Carolina's Algernon Butler, Worth Henderson and others were prominent in the organization—the national Young Republican group, and up to now Tarheels have been extremely active in YRC circles, several having held national offices.

FINALLY — "Also, let me emphatically state that the Republican party in North Carolina does not believe in trying to out-Truman. Let anyone who doubts that present such a program to the next executive committee meeting or the next state convention. I will take the liberty of venturing just one prediction: Thomas E. Dewey will not be the party's nominee for president in 1952."

(Note: Messrs. Zimmerman and Wilkinson are agreed on that last point—that Dewey will not be the nominee.)

What Other Papers Are Thinking

RESULTS ARE WANTED! (Kinston Free Press)
The Senate has passed by an 81 to 0 vote a resolution calling for a cessation of all trading with Czechoslovakia until William Oatis, Associated Press bureau manager at Prague, is released from prison. The newsman was imprisoned some months ago and finally convicted of "espionage" because he exercised his American right in reporting what actually was going on in that country and not what the Communist dictators wanted him to print. The resolution takes cognizance of this violation of a free press and seeming determination on the part of the Communists to make party members of all who enter their country, even though they be diplomatic or press representatives of the United States.

The passage of the resolution occasioned some violent criticism of the Communist procedure and some criticism of the State Department for not prosecuting the demand for Oatis' release more vigorously. Senator Knowland of California didn't think the resolution went far enough and that diplomatic as well as trade arrangements should be broken.

Results are wanted! It looks like some very stern action is going to be necessary before the Communists come to their senses and realize that American citizens and representatives must be treated properly.

The Free Press utilizing these "peaceful" methods of securing the release of Oatis and others who may be imprisoned and persecuted on trumped up charges, but if favors more drastic action if these plans fail to produce results. The American flag must be respected and those who owe allegiance thereto should be protected at all costs.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The biggest thing in business are the little ones, said Max Hess, Jr., chairman of the Consumer Education Committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. By little ones, Mr. Hess referred especially to children in the 5 to 10 age group.

The bumper crop of war babies, he said, has had profound effects on retailing throughout the country. The major merchandise trend of the year is in children's apparel and toy promotions.

In his own department store in Allentown, Pa., juveniles' candy purchases have risen from 10 to 35 per cent of the total, the ratio of sales of juvenile books to adult books has been reversed and the toy department has been up a year-round basis. Juvenile clothing and furniture departments have been greatly expanded.

While their number has been largely responsible for the increased importance of children, there are other factors. Mr. Hess's survey indicated.

One is the western craze, intensified by television and tremendous promotions and advertising budgets. While western clothes and toys will continue popular for a long time to come, he said it appears to have passed its peak and he predicted a new type of child's hero, —probably the inter-space adventurer —would have major influence on juvenile merchandise next year.

Another factor is the increased awareness of department store and specialty shop executives of the importance of the juvenile market. Five or six years ago, he said fashion designers and merchandisers paid little attention to specialized children's departments. Today there is scarcely a department store in the country without large juvenile sections.

Juvenile sales, Mr. Hess said, will reach climax in the Christmas shopping season. He would not be surprised if total sales top every previous Christmas season.

Footnote: The birth rate has been rising this year and may top 1947, when 3,699,940 babies were born.

HERE'S HOW TO GET ALLOTTED METALS

What an exporter can do when he cannot get controlled materials for which he has an allotment is told in a government announcement:

Send to the Office of International Trade, Washington 25, D. C., (a) a copy of all orders sent to mills, (b) copies of their refusals, (c) a letter asking for relief and certifying to the authenticity of documents a and b, and the license itself. The O.I.T. will then help to find a source.

FABRIC: A fibre fabric, described as unusually heavy and made of tightly-twisted strands coated with special plastics, has been developed under auspices of the Fibre Fabric Group. Seven firms have been licensed to manufacture it for auto seat covers.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)— One of the best ways to study people is to watch how they come to work in the morning.

The way you enter the office each day tips off your character almost as much as if you sat down and wrote the story of your life.

Over the years certain types become familiar. Recognize them in your office? For example—

1. The Pedestrian Philosopher—they usually travel in pairs. One groans as he comes through the doorway, "Oh, another day, another dollar." And his pal echoes, "Yah, a million days, a million dollars."
2. The Workhorse-Who-Tries-To-Make-The-Best-Of-It-All—he gets off the elevator and says, "Well, back to the old salt mine. Heh, Heh, Heh." Somehow this type never gets lockjaw or a new phrase.
3. The Fellow-Who-Thinks-A-Good-Offense-Is-The-Best-Defense—he shows up with puffy circles under his eyes and trots around yelping at everyone accusingly, "And where were you last night?"
4. The Suburban Gardener—He arrives with his arms in bandages and bleating, "I can't understand it. I plant tomatoes, and what comes up? Poison ivy. I can't understand it."
5. The Living Hangover—as the elevator stops to let him off, he puts one foot out tentatively, hoping he won't fall on his face. He then shudders swiftly toward his desk to end the agony of saying "Hello."
6. The Junior Executive—he is trying so hard to get ahead he even calls his mother by her first name. He breezily asks everybody in the elevator how they are and gives the operator a cigar on the way out.
7. The Chronic-Coward-Who-Is-Always-Five-Minutes-Late—he looks boldly at the office clock says loudly, "Where are they going to fix that thing anyway? Isn't anything ever done right around here?"
8. The Sultry Stenographer—this 40-hour week vampire halts a moment in the doorway like Madame Pompadour in her boudoir. Then she dimples and says, "Oh, you!" at some male sally. She is dreaming of running her fingers through Clark Gable's hair under an apple tree. But in five more years she'll be married to the office bookkeeper, and going around the house barefooted.
9. The Apple-Polisher—he gets in five minutes early, tips open his collar, and throws papers all over his desk to look busy. He rushes up to brush lint off the boss's coat when he comes in. And if the boss throws him an absent minded "Thanks"—well, this little bee just melts into happy jolly.
10. The Gambler—"Give you five to three against the Dodgers," he says. "That is, if you'll lend me five."
11. The Rugged Individualist—this is my favorite office character. When people greet him with, "Well, what's new?"

Washington Letter
By SIGRID ARNE
(FOR JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON — Sometimes there really is something new under the sun. Right now it's a small bulletin which brings together all the news about women who are rising to responsible government positions throughout the western hemisphere.

It is issued by the Inter-American Commission of Women. The Commission was first dedicated to getting the vote for all women in the western hemisphere. Now that the job is more than half done, the bulletin is an exciting story to tell about the way qualified women are rising to jobs in cabinets and in the diplomatic service in lands where women 25 years ago couldn't even walk the streets alone.

Not a single nation south of the U. S. permitted women to vote when the women of the United States went to the polls for the first time in the presidential election of November 1920.

Now the senator and senators can vote for the top national officers in Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Panama, Venezuela, Ecuador, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, Argentina, El Salvador and Costa Rica.

In four nations they are still permitted to vote only in local elections: Mexico, Peru, Haiti and Bolivia.

In four nations the women citizens still have no voice in the government that rules them: Honduras, Nicaragua, Colombia and Paraguay.

Here are some of the women who have taken on top jobs below the Rio Grande:

Emma Gamboa was named a technical advisor to Costa Rica's ministry of education, the first woman in such a job.

Maria del Carmen Vargas was appointed to a job in the Guatemalan ministry of economics and labor.

Miss Lavalie Urbina has been named a judge in the Mexican higher court system.

Olga Nunez Abaunza, a Nicaraguan lawyer, was made an under secretary of education. She was the first woman to graduate from the law school at the University of Nicaragua.

Panama has a woman cabinet officer, Maria Santo Domingo de Miranda, minister of labor, social welfare and public health.

Cuba also has a cabinet officer, Mariblanca Sabas Alomá, who is a minister without portfolio.

Dormant' Chinese War Is Still Flaring Along Coast

Editor's Note: A United Press staff correspondent, Shen Shan, has returned from a five-day visit to Nationalist guerrilla bases in the Taicheng islands a few miles off the Chekiang coast. Shen visited the bases and gathered considerable material little known until now:

By SHEN SHAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
TAIPEI, Formosa —(UP)— The dormant Chinese war is still active off Chekiang Province.

Thousands of sea-borne Nationalist guerrillas centered on Taicheng Island, midway between Shanghai and Formosa, are imposing a serious threat to Communist shipping and control of the sea lanes.

The Communists and Nationalists are separated by a channel of only 10 miles and small-scale fighting is frequent.

Two waves of junk-borne guerrillas under the command of Maj. Gen. Lu Wei-hsiang one of more than 20 guerrilla leaders, made a daring sortie recently against the mainland. They withdrew after bloody battles with Communist garrison forces along Wenchow Bay.

Warships in Action
Nationalist warships, plus scores of guerrilla gunboats, make the waters off Chekiang unnegotiable for Communist shipping. To keep the flow of essential materials, the Chinese Reds have dug a canal linking Anchow Bay and Taichow Bay to the north.

Despite internal bickerings and lack of heavy weapons, the morale of the guerrillas apparently is high. They receive direct orders from the national defense ministry in Taipei and conduct their operations accordingly.

Maj. Gen. Wang Hsiang-yi, another guerrilla leader, and chief magistrate of Taicheng Island, told the United Press, "we'll hold out here as long as possible. If the government launches a counter-attack, my boys will be the first ones to ford the narrow strip of water to reach the mainland."

Best estimates put the number of island-based guerrillas at more than 6,000. There are at least three units with at least 1,000 fairly well-equipped men.

Tactics Taught
Most of the guerrilla leaders have been in Taipei, where they were taught the latest guerrilla tactics and political knowledge. Many are returning to their bases, strung from Tachui, some hundred miles south of Shanghai to Pishan, another 80 miles further south.

The Nationalist navy has to defend Taicheng and the surrounding islands. The number of warships here is larger than that in Keelung, northern Formosa, and battle-seasoned marines are guarding the islands.

Col. Nai Yang-chu, marine commander, told the United Press he was confident his handful of men can beat back any Communist attack on Taicheng if the Reds do not put naval and air forces into the war.

Nai and Wang agreed that so far Chinese Red forces facing Taicheng have not shown any indications of embarking on an invasion. They are on the lookout, however.

series of slides will be shown, depicting the FCX operations in North and South Carolina, including retail and wholesale outlets and feed and fertilizer plants.

LIFE ON WHEELS
MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(UP)— A mother wren built a nest and hatched her eggs in the radiator grill of a jeep station wagon here, despite the fact that the vehicle frequently was driven from 50 to 100 miles per day.

PIKE IN COLLISION
CADILLAC, Mich. —(UP)— Dale priest and his brother, Harold caught a nine-pound, 36-inch northern pike with an assist from a motor boat. The brothers netted the fish when they found it floating and unconscious, apparently struck by a boat.

FRIEND NOT FRIENDLY
COLUMBIA CITY, Ind. —(UP)— John Friend was fined $30 for being unfriendly. He was charged with disorderly conduct and being a public nuisance in Mayor Ed Binder's court.

New Rail Line Adds To Alaska Defense Ability

By PETER J. HAYES
United Press Staff Correspondent
ANCHORAGE, Alaska —(UP)— Alaska's "Toonerville Trolley" is fast gaining the stature of a high-balling main line vitally important to the defense of the territory.

The government-owned Alaska Railroad is undergoing a $75,000,000 rehabilitation program which will be 90 per cent finished this fall.

Completion of the four-year project will provide a first-class transportation link from the port city of Seward north to Fairbanks, the strategic defense artery of Alaska.

Most of the improvement of Uncle Sam's railroad is credited to Col. J. P. Johnston, a railroader since 1917. Johnston served as an Army transportation officer during World War II in Iran, India, China and the Philippines.

Challenges Faced
When Johnston was appointed general manager of the railroad in 1946, he faced a tremendous challenge. It had been operating in the red year after year. Rolling stock was considered obsolete. Shop buildings were ramshackle and inadequate at line points other than Anchorage headquarters.

What's more sub-zero temperatures, permafrost, snow and floods posed problems rarely encountered by railroad men elsewhere. Tracks took on the appearance of a Coney Island roller coaster where they crossed the spongy tundra and muskeg which freeze in the winter and soften in the summer.

Johnson went to work. The rolling stock was replaced with 1,000-horsepower Diesel engines and sleek hospital cars were converted into passenger coaches. Two blue and yellow Aurora streamliners were inaugurated on a daily run between Anchorage and Fairbanks. Road-bed ballast was increased to support 118-pound rails. In one 12-mile stretch more than 1,000 degrees of curves were eliminated. Shivering repair men were installed in steam-heated, glass-insulated shops in Anchorage and Fairbanks.

Profit Shows
When Johnston took over the operations of the railroad he received instructions from Congress to show a profit, "or else." Last year the margin was only $2,700, but it was the fifth straight year of operating "in the black."

Also noteworthy is the fact the Alaska Railroad has not imposed a rate increase since 1937, despite mounting labor and operating costs. In fact, there have been five rate reductions during Johnston's term. Some commodities are carried at lower tariffs than on railroads in the United States.

The amount of freight handled by the ARR has tripled since 1941 as a $200,000,000 military construction program in Alaska moved into high gear.

Johnston predicts that the railroad's 58 Diesel and steam locomotives and 2,095 freight cars will move more than a million tons of freight over its 640 miles of main line this year.

Lonely Lookout For Gun Tests

LACARNE, O. —(AP)— George Howton has the kind of a job that requires patience and a liking for solitude.

He is control tower operator at the Erie Ordnance depot here. His job is to be certain that there are no boats or airplanes on, over, or within this section of Lake Erie when the big guns are being tested.

Howton spends his eight hours, surrounded by radio equipment, peering over the expanse of the lake which he must keep clear. When there are not tests in progress, Howton occupies himself in fixing up his 10-by-10 foot lookout tower 100 feet in the air.

Expect 900 For Summer Session Of Pitt FCX

WINTERVILLE — Approximately 900 persons are expected to attend the summer meeting of the Pitt FCX tomorrow afternoon at the high school here.

N. L. Stott, manager of the local farm cooperative, stated the meeting will combine business with pleasure, part of the latter entailing a huge barbecue dinner.

Business agenda for the meeting includes the election of five farm patrons to the advisory board of the local store. Also included will be the hearing of a complete financial report covering the business activities of the store for the past fiscal year.

A dress contest—"The FCX Fashion Parade of 1951"—will be a highlight of the day and will feature farm women and girls modeling dresses which they have made from feed bags. Top three winners will be awarded prizes of $10, $5 and $3.

A part of the dress contest will be a display of 14 dresses made from feed bags which were prepared for showing at meetings of the National Cotton Council. The wardrobe includes children's dresses and a variety of street and evening dresses.

Other events on the program, which will begin at four o'clock, are a ball-driving contest, a quiz program and horseshoe pitching. A

Giants Move Within Five Games Of Bums; Indians Lead Yanks By One

Polo Grounders Extend Winning Streak To 16 Games, Longest In National League Since 1935

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

You would almost think the National League race was tighter than the American today, the way the Giants exploded their joy over moving to within five games of Brooklyn, while the Dodgers could not even find much consolation in Ralph Branca's near no-hitter.

Statistically, the excitement still belongs to the American League where the Indians have a precarious one-game edge over the Yankees, and the Red Sox are five games behind in third.

But emotionally, the unabridged madness was on both sides of the Brooklyn Bridge, in Flatbush, as the last-place Pittsburgh split a doubleheader with the Dodgers, there was a growing realization that "this thing could happen."

Charley Dressen, the confident little manager, could only say that "they still have got to catch us and what team would you like to be rooting for at this stage of the race if one was five games to the good?"

His optimism wasn't reflected by players—or by fans. Benny Weinrigg, the press-box attendant who comes close to being Brooklyn's No. 1 rooster, summed things up pretty well when he said, "I think the situation is desperate."

In the Polo grounds, the awash-buckling Leo Durocher, never more excited in any baseball battle of his lifetime, resorted to old superstitions as his Giants made it 16 in a row for the longest National League winning streak since 1935. He now looks at the scoreboard two or three times a minute—"just to see how we're doing."

The aftermath of the big Monday slate of doubleheaders was that the Giants won 5 to 4 in 12 innings and 5 to 3, while the Dodgers blanked the Pirates, 5 to 0 on Ralph Branca's brilliant two-hit pitching, then succumbed to old difficulties as they lost, 5 to 2.

The far behind, third-place Braves beat the Cardinals 9 to 3 and 4 to 3. The Braves, who have much of their schedule left with both Brooklyn and New York and are playing their best ball of the year, could do much damage as the season closes out.

Also worthy of note was the double-whitewashing of the Reds by the Phillies, 3 to 0 and 3 to 0, because last year's champs also are going to play a number of games with the one-two contenders.

In the only American League game Dave Philley hit a homer to provide lefty Bobby Shantz with his winning margin as the Athletics topped the Tigers 1 to 0 on a seven-hitter in Detroit.

Pittsburgh left Branca with only a brilliant 12th inning instead of an immortal spot in the record books when Pete Castiglione drove a clean single to left to start the ninth. George Metkovich followed with a single he got on the let-down but Branca bore down to preserve the shutout and the victory.

It was well for Brooklyn that he did because in the second game, the Pirates made three quick runs off Erv Palles in the first inning and breezed to their triumph as Clyde McCullough drove in four runs, two with a double and two with a homer.

In the first Giant triumph, the pressure was on all the way and it almost blew the valve in the 12th when the Cubs scored a run off Larry Jensen to go ahead, 4 to 3. But the indomitable New Yorkers rebounded as Alvin Dark walked and Monte Irvin singled and took second on a throw-in.

Bobby Thomson drew an intentional pass and Whitey Lockman tied the score with a blop single that left the bases loaded and set it up for pinch-hitter Bill Rigney to drive in the winning run with a long fly. There was more ease to the second triumph which was clinched with rallies that netted three runs in the first two innings.

1951 Softball Champs

Home Builder's Supply (shown above) are 1951 champions in the City Softball League, winning a total of 14 games and losing but five over the season. They defeated Varsity Shell in the semi-finals of the post-season tourney and edged by Post Office for the championship title. They are: (front row) John Lautares, Julian Vainright, Gene Skinner, Ford McGowan, and Roy Wilson; (second row) Don Carson, Manager Dan Gordon, J. S. Barber, and T. M. Suggs.

Farmville Wins First Game In BBL Tournament

FARMVILLE—Ralph Britt connected for one of the longest triples ever seen in local ball park last night in the seventh inning to drive in a runner and give Farmville an 8-7 win over Ormondville.

The Red Sox victory now places the Bright Belt League finals at two wins for Ormondville and one for Farmville. The tourney is a best of seven affair.

Mark Herrin, making his first appearance on the mound since American Legion days, over four years ago, hurled shut-out ball for the first five innings to record the victory. He was relieved by Joe Hines in the seventh, when Ormondville rallied for five runs. Harvey Lee Webb finished on the mound for Farmville, entering the contest in the eighth.

Ormondville called for Doug Bruton to start, who was relieved by Red McDaniels, marking his first appearance on the hill during the year. Bruton was charged with the defeat.

Britt and Millard Webb led the winners at bat with two hits apiece. Ed Couche and Bruton each rapped out a brace of singles for Ormondville. Jimmy Byrd collected a three-bagger for the losers.

Branca Robbed Of No-Hit Chore For Fourth Time

NEW YORK (UP)—Big Ralph Branca of the Brooklyn Dodgers ruefully reflected upon his fourth "near-miss" of a no-hit pitching performance today and dolefully concluded he should have heeded his catcher.

Going into the ninth inning with a no-hitter in the opening game of a twilight-night doubleheader against the Pittsburgh Pirates last night, Branca shook off a signal by catcher Al Walker and then sadly watched Pete Castiglione line a single to left field.

"A signalled for a curve, but I had to act smart and shake him off," said Branca in the dressing room after the game. "I meant to throw Castiglione that fast ball down around his knees, but it came up there high and inside right where he could get a good piece of it," he added angrily slapping his thigh.

George Metkovich followed with a bouncing single through the middle, which Branca might easily have handled had he not been off-balance after his delivery and had to settle for a two-hit 5 to 0 victory.

Back in 1947, he had two potential no-hit, no-run games ruined by the St. Louis Cardinals as he went into the last two innings.

Branca's third near-miss came the following year against the Cincinnati Reds. After he had pitched hitless ball for seven innings while the Dodgers built up a 3 to 1 lead, Pee Wee Reese fumbled a ground ball and then Johnny Wyrostek hit a home run to tie the score.

Horses Win Nine Ribbons In Show

Local show horses brought home the bacon Sunday as they took nine ribbons, including three first place ribbons, in a show held in Newsoms, Virginia.

"Mighty Chief," shown by J. H. Crenshaw, was the first horse to win, taking second place in the Model Class. In the Amateur Five Gaited Stake Class, "Snow King," with Hugh Winslow up, captured fourth spot. "It's Magic," ridden by Roland Mayo, capped sixth place in the same event.

"Buster Allen," ridden by Mrs. Hugh Winslow, took first place in the Ladies Pleasure Class. "Snow King," with Mrs. Winslow up, won second prize in the Ladies Five Gaited Stake Class.

John Hassell rode "Buster Allen" to first place in the Gentleman's Pleasure Class, while "Mighty Chief," under Crenshaw, took first in the Championship Five Gaited Stake Class. "Captain Kai," ridden by Mayo, finished seventh in the same event.

Earlier in the month, on August 10-11, "Buster Allen" took the Reserve Championship Ribbon in the Open Pleasure Class of the Dunn, N. C. Show, with John Hassell up. "Mighty Chief," ridden by Mayo, finished fifth in the class.

Hugh Winslow rode "Captain Kai" to the sixth spot in the Open Amateur Class. The "Chief" and "Captain Kai" finished fifth and sixth respectively in the Championship Five Gaited Stake Class.

On Labor Day, these same horses will be entered in the Enfield show, and on September 10 they will travel to Norfolk.

Tight Battle In Junior Batting

CHICAGO (AP)—A pair of infielders, first baseman Ferris Fain of Philadelphia and third sacker George Kell of Detroit, are battling neck-and-neck for American League hitting honors.

Fain took the batting lead during the week with 332 while Kell kept pace with 331. Fain rejoined the official top ten list after making the required 30 trips to the plate.

The erstwhile leader, Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox, dropped to third with 328.

Ted Williams of Boston was fourth with 324; followed by Gil Coan, Washington, 321.

Art Aragon Takes On Jimmy Carter In Non-Title Bout

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Art Aragon can't take Jimmy Carter's lightweight crown when they fight tonight because it's a non-title affair. So the local Mexican will have to content trying to take the measure of the Harlem Negro.

But this won't be easy. The bout is slated for 10 rounds or less, with clever Carter favored to decision the Mexican, who can hit hard with either hand.

Carter packs a rock-a-bow-woop himself. He knocked out Ike Williams in the 14th round to win the title last May.

A sellout is expected at the Olympic Auditorium. This means each fighter will collect $10,000 to $12,000 for his efforts.

Sandy Saddler Loses To Marco

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Skinny Sandy Saddler will have to carry a lot more ammunition in defending his featherweight title against Willie Pep next month than he unleashed in losing a bruising split decision to Paddy (Stubby) de Marco last night.

The Brooklyn slugger outweighed the lanky Negro by seven and a half pounds, but that didn't account for the way de Marco battered and pushed the champ around the ring through 10 rounds of steady slugging.

Saddler had figured the non-title fight in the Milwaukee arena as a mere warmup for his fourth title bout with Pep in New York Sept. 26. But he changed his mind the moment the opening bell sounded.

It was sweet revenge for de Marco, who lost to Saddler two years ago in a ninth-round TKO.

The Brooklyn lightweight had Saddler against the ropes early in the first round. It was a bitter, slugging fight the rest of the way, with Saddler getting the worst of it.

Legion Finals

SPRINGFIELD, I. (UP)—Cincinnati and Wichita, Kan., teams met on the diamond today to decide which gets the American Legion baseball section championship.

Both teams reached the finals by knocking over a hapless Menasha, Wis., nine yesterday.

Cincinnati squeaked by Menasha, 1 to 0, and Wichita topped it with a 7 to 4 victory.

Thirteen members of Michigan State's football team are enrolled in advanced ROTC units.

Tornadoes Begin Preparations For 1951 Grid Slate

By JAMIE LANG, JR.
AYDEN—The Ayden football Tornadoes got down to heavy drills yesterday for the onward coming season.

This was the first full practice of the season, but the team put on heavy equipment and went to work on conditioning exercises. With the first game on September 21, with Williamston, 1951 state champions, the Tornadoes are fast rounding into shape.

Although the club will not have very many seasoned performers, Coach Stuart Tripp is looking forward to a successful year. Tripp is confronted with the problem of replacing a total 12 players who have left from last year's Coastal Conference champions.

Gone are All-Conference players Teedy Bullock, Mac Hardee, Walter Meeks, Troy Jackson, and Greg Davis. The line has been shattered with the departure of Davis, Meeks, Jackson, and B. L. Byrd and Jerry Britt. Gone also from the front are James Hemby, Billy Harris, and George Thomas. Backs Snodgrass, Wilson and David Manning graduated and have joined the ranks of the departed.

Heading the group of returnees are All-Conference end Mac Whitehurst and backs Darrell Worthington, Hal Edwards, and Delano Cox. The line will be built around lettermen Riley Tripp, Randall Harrington, Norman Skinner, and Willis Manning. Jack Cheek will be battling for the other backfield post.

Twenty-three boys reported to practice yesterday, with more expected this week, after the opening of school.

Davis Cup Officials Seek Player; Trabert Drafted

Bill Murray

DURHAM, N. C. — A new football era looms for Duke's famed Blue Devils.

Gone are the magic of head coach Wallace Wade, the single wing style offense and many players on the 1950 squad.

Whether Murray can pick up successfully where the fabulous Wade left off is a question that will be answered when the 1951 schedule unfolds against such tough foes as Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, South Carolina and Pittsburgh.

After a two-month search, Duke alumnus who compiled a great coaching record at Delaware — the split-T formation and a host of promising new talent.

In their place have come youthful-looking Bill Murray—a Duke official chose Murray from a long list of applicants to succeed Wade. For Murray it was like coming back home. He was a star half-back for Duke in 1928, '29 and '30. In his last year he gained more than 1,000 yards by rushing.

Murray hails from Rocky Mount, N. C. He is 42, married and has three children. He has a pleasant smile and a quiet manner, yet beneath it all he can be tough on a football field.

His 10-year record as head coach at the University of Delaware was brilliant. His teams won 49, lost 16 and tied two. During three seasons—1941-1942-1946—he guided Delaware through undefeated seasons.

Of the forthcoming season, Murray says, "We'll lose some and we'll win some. We've got a lot of work to do on defense."

The Port Worth Cats in the Texas League last year won 39 games by one run. The Cats won a total of 88 games.

Mathew Kilroy, pitching for Baltimore in the American Association in 1946, (then a major league) struck out 505 batters.

Dick Savitt And Frank Sedgeman Win Matches To Enter Fourth Round; Top-seeded Doris Hart Advances

By STEVE SNIDER
United Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—The U. S. tennis championships took on new significance today as American Davis Cup officials began a search for a possible replacement for young Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, who has been called for naval induction.

The 21-year-old University of Cincinnati star, sensation of the season and a powerful threat for the American crown, received orders to report at Bainbridge, Md., Sept. 24.

Even if Trabert is lost to the U. S. squad that hopes to wrest the Davis Cup from Australia in December he aims to take the American crown with him into the Navy.

He walloped Dieth Mateur Jr., Villanova, Pa., yesterday and was a hot favorite to advance into the fourth round today against southpaw Jack Geller of Greenwich, Conn.

All seeded Americans and all but two ranked foreigners still were in the running as the fourth day of Wimbledon Champion Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., and Frank Sedgeman of Australia, favored to meet in the finals, topped the program. Savitt drew Lorne Main of Canada while Sedgeman, victor over Gil Bogley of Warren, O., 6-0, 6-4, 6-2, was paired against George Ball of New York. Winners advance to the fourth round.

All seeded survivors except defending champion Art Larsen of San Leandro, Cal., and Ken McGregor of Australia, had a chance to enter the fourth round today. Larsen made the third round yesterday with a 6-2, 6-0, victory over Garner Anthony of Hawaii but drew an extra day off. McGregor, a round behind the field, was paired against Fred Hagist of Berkeley, Cal., in a second rounder.

Fourth-seeded Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Cal., winner in impressive style over Ricardo Balbi of Chile, was matched against Bill Vogt of Philadelphia and fifth-seeded Billy Trabert of New York, idle yesterday, faced Fumiteru Nakanoo of Japan.

Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, Budge Patty of Los Angeles, Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., and Straight Clark of Pasadena, Cal., were scheduled for third round action.

In the women's division, second-seeded Shirley Fry of Akron had a chance to jump ahead of the field into the quarter-finals against Pat Ward of Great Britain. Miss Fry, who drew a first round by, trounced Susanne Herr of Miami, 6-0, 6-0.

Top-seeded Doris Hart of Miami, Wimbledon champion and the title favorite, opened with a 6-0, 6-3 victory against Julia Sampson of San Marino, Cal., and was paired against Mrs. Elfi Carroll of New York in a second rounder.

Stan Still Tops In Senior Loop

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League batting race assumed a familiar complexion today with the St. Louis Cardinals' Stan Musial and Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at the head of the pack.

Robinson, who edged into second place behind Philadelphia's Richie Ashburn during the week, still has a lot of ground to make up, but he's gaining.

Musial leads the race with a mark of 362 for 117 games through last Sunday. Robinson is batting .340 for 118 games. Ashburn is third with .337, his average slipping two points during the week.

In fourth place was Johnny Wyrostek of Cincinnati with .327, followed by Al Dark of New York, .319.

Gavilan Favored To Retain Crown

NEW YORK (UP)—Free-wheeling waterweight champion Kid Gavilan was a 13-5 choice today to make a successful defense of his title tomorrow night in a 15-round "endurance contest" against Irish Big Graham of New York.

For boxing men were convinced that the teevisev bout at Madison Square Garden will be won by the batter with the most stamina over the rugged championship route.

Few experts anticipate the fight, third meeting of these two men, will end short of the 15-round distance in a knockout. Neither man is reckoned to pack enough wallop to put the other away, especially since Graham never has been knocked off his feet, much less kayoed, and Gavilan has been foored but never stopped.

OUTCAST OF DESTINY

PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 14

Lil finished the number and the couples returned to their tables and ordered drinks. Brent caught Judy's eyes on him and thought there was a lightened appeal in them. He stopped behind Biff's chair and spoke over his shoulder. "May I have the next dance, Miss Clane?"

Judy shifted her gaze to Biff and it was Biff who answered. "You may not, Miss Clane's engaged for the evening."

"I reckon that's up to Miss Clane, isn't it?"

"It is. How about it, Judy? Do you dance with him or don't you?"

Judy was looking steadily across the table at Biff. She didn't answer for the space of ten heart beats, then she looked up at Lex, her gaze direct and level. "I'm sorry, Lex, but I've promised every dance to Biff. Some other night, ma be."

She did not smile and the fear was still in her eyes. He looked intently at her, trying to read what lay beneath that look, then bowed stiffly and turned away.

Jack's toneless voice reached him. "Take it easy, Tex. Better go home and get some shut-eye; we ride in the morning."

Again the word had been passed and again he had missed it. Brent swore in disgust and exasperation and strode from the room. They met at the Palace and rode North. Brent beside Jack. As they emerged at the end of the street they could see the camp of the stranger, Lem Purdy. Lem sat in front of a fire with a skillet in his hand; he waved to them, then became intent again on his cooking.

Brent asked Jack, "Find out any more about him?"

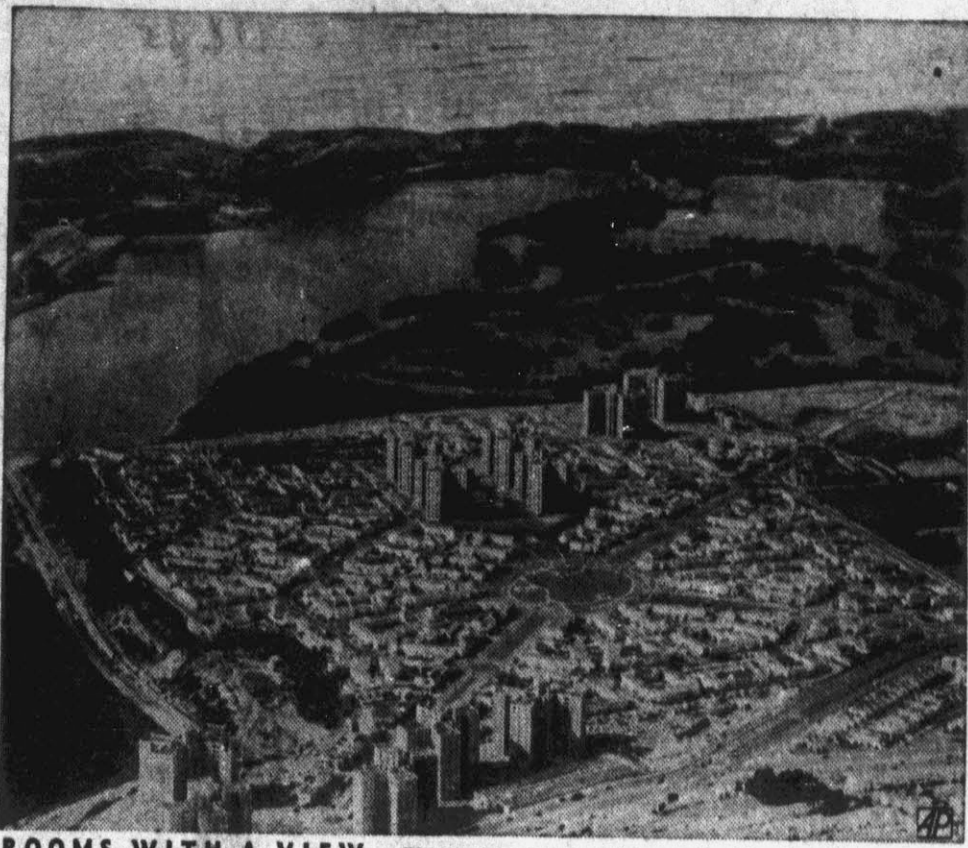

"No. He's pretty closemouthed. But he seems to be minding his business."

As was the case on the former raid, they rode steadily for two days, but their course lay more to the northwest and Brent judged that they were going to hold up a train on the main line. For some reason Brent was seized with the feeling that they were being followed. There was nothing tangible; he saw no one when he scanned the back trail and he heard no sound of pursuit when they halted to rest their horses.

They made camp in a little hollow and after warning them against making a fire, Jack rode off to scout the layout. The uneasy sensation of being followed had left Brent, but he felt depressed and apprehensive. He told himself it was because of Judy and tried to shake off the feeling. There was no smoking lest the flare of a match betray them.

"She's comin'!" exclaimed Stub, and they all listened. They heard a faint rumbling that grew steadily louder, then came the whistle for brakes. Jack got up and said, "Let's go."

Brent went to his horse and drew his rifle from the boot, then followed the other four as they left the blackness of the trees and headed for the water tank which loomed against the starlit sky.

They reached the tank and Jack said, "Red, get behind one of those timbers so the headlight won't pick you out. Wait until the fireman gets up on the tender before you jump them. Hawley, you and Frisco come with us."

The four walked along the path which paralleled the rails. A pinpoint of light ahead of them grew larger and they knew it for the engine headlight. They moved away from the tracks and Jack said, "Lie down flat and don't move until the engine passes."

They flattened themselves on the ground and the light grew in size until it was a giant eye looking for the tank. The fan of light swept by them and the train shuddered to a stop. The express car was directly opposite them.

They were all on their feet now and Brent looked back along the train. There were four coaches following the baggage car and all were lighted but the last one. He said, "Jack, that roar coach is dark."

Jack said, "Probably an empty," and turned his attention to the front. Hawley and Frisco had moved to the rear platform of the express car. From the engine ahead came a soft call, "Okay, boys!" and Jack said, "Here we go."

Brent did not follow him; why he was never able to say. Jack strode swiftly to the door of the express car, tried to roll it back and found it locked. He rapped on it with his gun barrel and called, "Inside there! Open up or we'll blow it open!"

There was no answer. Brent stooped and sent a glancing underneath the coach. He could detect movement on the far side of the train and there were shadows in the patches of light from the windows. He snapped erect and called sharply to Frisco and Hawley, "Watch it! The other side!" and even as he said it flame stabbed the darkness beyond the platform of the coach and the roar of a riot gun shattered the air.

The charge of buckshot caught lawley squarely in the middle and almost blew him apart. Frisco hummed his Colt, firing in the general direction of the platform and started backing away. Brent, glancing towards the darkened car, saw men coming from both front and rear in swift, shadowy streams.

He yelled, "Jack! Get out of here!" and started jumping his Winchester. He aimed low, splintering the ballast stone and sending the pieces into the faces of the charging men. Frisco passed him, swearing, trying to reload his gun. Jack came at a run, his Colt flaming. Another blast from the riot gun sent buckshot screaming through the air above them.

Brent said, "Run for it! I'll hold them off." They ran for the trees and he dropped to a knee and leveled the rifle. He shot carefully, coolly and the steady fire pinned down the posse, sent them crawling beneath the coach to the safety of the far side.

When he had emptied his Winchester he drew his Colt and started backing towards the trees. He fired steadily, sending the slugs

May Soon Test First A-Bomb

LONDON (UP)—The appointment of Lt. Gen. Frederick Morgan as head of Britain's atomic energy program touched off speculation today that this country soon may test its first atomic bomb.

Morgan, 57, helped plan the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II. He retired from the Army in 1946. He will succeed Viscount Portal as controller of atomic energy. Lord Portal is retiring.

Only Important Cases On Friday

In Police Court today, Judge Charles H. Whedbee and Solicitor Eli Bloom agreed to try only jail or other important cases next Friday and adjourn court early.

The court will recess to permit court officials and members of the bar to attend the Fifth Judicial District Bar Association meeting at Trent Pines, New Bern, Friday, Aug. 31, at 11:30 a.m.

Rivals United To Cope With Flood Lonely Lookout

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Business men here have found out that when times are toughest competition isn't.

After the waters of the nation's most devastating flood had receded, many a business man offered services and facilities to his washed-out competitors.

One truck line owner lent his men and trucks to two rival lines to help them evacuate records and equipment. Two furniture dealers worked, side by side to help a less fortunate merchant move his merchandise to a higher floor.

One newspaper let its rival use its presses and paper to get back into production while the flooded plant was fixed up.

SPITTOONS RULED OUT
COLUMBIA, S. C. (UP)—From now on, tobacco-chewers riding trains in South Carolina will have to grin and bear it. Gov. James F. Byrnes signed a bill repealing a provision that railroads must furnish one spittoon for every two seats on passenger trains.

into the side of the dark coach. He caught sight of a man running from the direction of the engine and when guns started blasting from the cab he knew it was Red Conrad. Red stumbled, recovered, and kept running. Brent's gun was empty and there was no time to reload; he sprinted for the woods, stumbled into the deep darkness of the trees, saw a horse and snatched at the bit. He swung into the saddle and got out of there fast, following the crashing ahead of him which told of the flight of his companions.

Alternate Chores Of Children

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

All too often parents make the mistake of assigning set chores to each child.

According to the National Kindergarten Association, chores should be alternated so that regardless of age, each child would take his turn at hard and easy ones.

The association's Hilda Richmond cites the Croft family as a case in point.

Mrs. Croft had sent their youngest child James to the store for something. He brought it home minus string and plus some dust, showing that the little boy had dropped it.

Protested Mr. Croft, "Why in the world send James to the grocery when Herbert could do the errand so much better and get home sooner?"

"Then James would never learn to do errands properly," answered Mrs. Croft. "I change the duties about so all may be taught to accomplish each task well and so as to be fair, too. James might feed the cat and weed the onions better than Herbert—in fact I know he would—but he must learn to carry things carefully, also, and to bring home the right article and the right change."

Mr. Croft had occasion to recall it some time later when, while cutting the grass in his backyard, he overheard his neighbor's two children grumbling and wrangling over some trivial assignment. "I never get a chance to go to the store," whined Richard.

"Of course not," retorted Fred. "Mother likes her meat and cheese to be still covered with paper when she receives them. But you needn't complain, for you always get the job of sprinkling the flowers."

"That's because you don't do it right," explained Richard. "Just the same, I don't think it is fair for you to get all the easy things to do."

"Easy!" said Fred. "I like that! Going through the hot sun or the rain isn't easy."

The boys' father came out to quiet them and then leaned over the fence to chat with Mr. Croft. Naturally, the talk veered round to the children and Mr. Blank praised the Croft children, saying, "Your three boys don't seem to argue much. How do you manage it?"

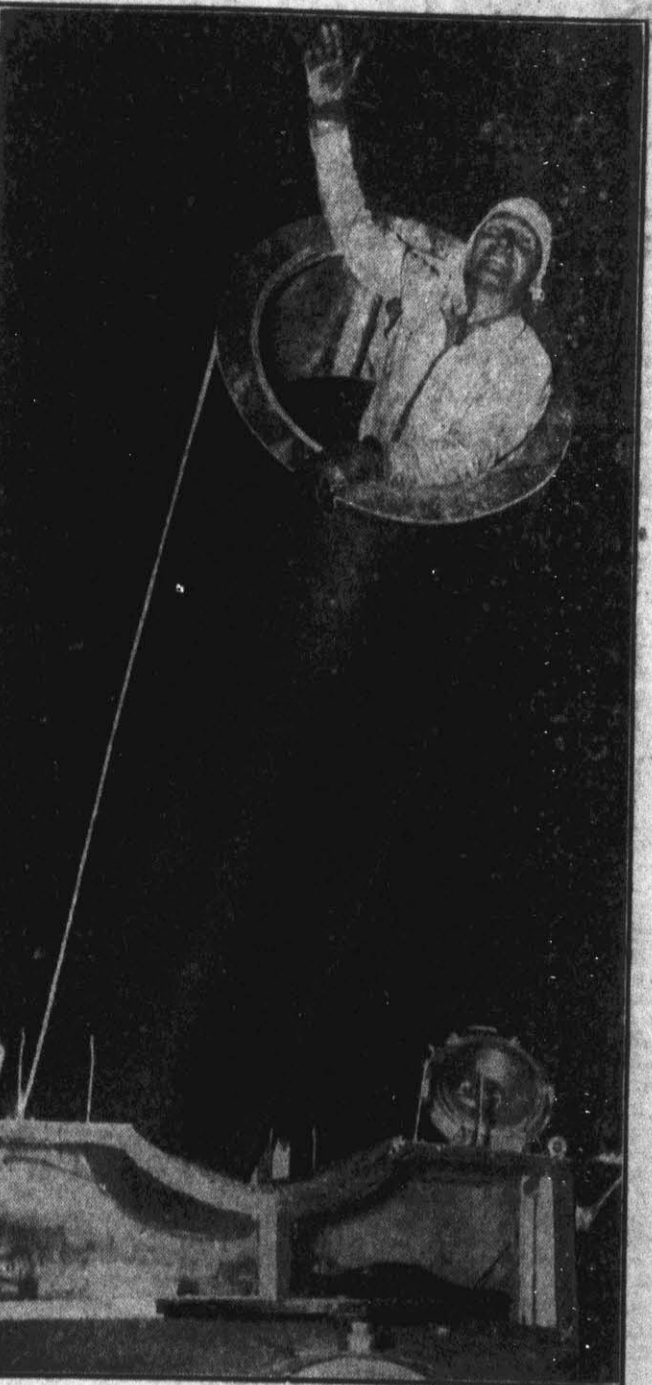

"I can't claim any credit for it," answered Mr. Croft. "In fact, I used to think my wife was making a mistake with her bookkeeping system of alternating the chores so each boy would take his turn at hard and easy ones, but it seems to work out well."

"Is that the way you do it? I exclaim the neighbor. "It sounds reasonable."

"Hey, Richard!" called Mr. Blank. "Mother wants some whole-wheat bread for lunch. Run down to the store for a loaf and let Fred rake the grass."

The look of gratitude on the face of his little boy, as he took the money and skipped joyfully away, quite touched Mr. Blank's heart. "I've been a dumbbell," he said.

Shot From Cannon In Daring Feat

A terrific boom—a flash—and the Great Zucchini is shot bodily from the mouth of a giant cannon, hurtling through space at the rate of over 900 miles an hour. One of the most daring feats ever conceived and performed in the land of sawdust and spangles, Hugo Zucchini, who has developed the art of being fired from a cannon into a top-notch circus feature, will be one of the many star performers with the King Brothers Combined Circus, coming to Greenville, Wednesday, August 29th, for afternoon and night performances at the circus grounds near the Farmer's Warehouse.

THE OLD AND THE NEW—British soldiers demonstrate contrast between the new .250 rifle (left) and old Enfield, at Warmminster, Eng. New lighter weapon has higher fire rate.

Wonder Of 'Big Show' Will Be Seen In City Tomorrow

The Big Show comes tomorrow! Elephants with manicured toes and stately white ring horses; educated jungle beasts and gaily striped zebras; handsome horses and snobbish little llamas; trainers and performers bespangled, and clowns in chalk and vermilion masks,—these are some of the manifold wonders together with red and gold cages, dens, baggage wagons and floats that will thrill Greenville circus fans early tomorrow morning as the famed King Brothers Circus, — one of the nation's biggest and most popular shows, arrives for afternoon and night performances at the circus grounds near the Farmer's Warehouse under the auspices of the Exchange Club.

Survives Fever Of 109 Degrees

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—Bernard Seiden, 54, amazed doctors at Mount Sinai Hospital here by surviving a feverish condition which kept his temperature at 109 degrees for 30 minutes.

Physicians said death usually results when the temperature of the human body reaches 107 or 108 degrees. After Seiden, who had entered the hospital for a kidneystone operation, topped that, his temperature dropped back to 107 degrees for three hours.

From way back THE CIRCUS, as epitomized by the magic name of King Brothers, has been one of the things guaranteed to bring out the "small boy" in most everyone, so, naturally enough, there is no doubt be a goodly number of youngsters of all ages on hand early tomorrow morning to witness the hoisting of the acres of tents and the countless other unique sights as the huge show makes itself ready for the first of two performances tomorrow afternoon.

Sheriff's Officers Had Trouble Taking Man Into Custody

Sheriff's deputies arrested Jimmy Tripp, white man of the Black Jack community, on a drunk and disorderly charge late Saturday night at Pate's Grill, on the New Bern Highway, near Greenville.

Sheriff's Deputies Loyd Manning, Jasper Lee Mills and Duke Andrews had considerable trouble arresting Tripp, they said.

As an extra special show day feature, "The Parade Of The Elephants" will be presented downtown at noon as a reminder of circus day and the many thrills in store for circus fans.

By noon-time, all of the acres of tents will have been raised and everything put in readiness for the opening performance.

A whole herd of elephants and a fleet of powerful heavy-duty motor trucks and caterpillars, will aid in the hoisting of the various sized tents, the largest being the gigantic big top which seats nearly 8,000 persons.

Rides 25 Miles On Bike Daily

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(UP)—Joan Carney, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., pedals 25 miles a day on her bicycle.

Joan picked up the habit at Columbia University in New York and when she came here as an occupational therapist she brought her bicycle with her.

Joan pedals eight miles to her job, then bicycles back with a stop off at her club for a swim. After supper, she rounds out the 25 miles.

Joan's ambition is to sail for Europe next summer for a bicycle tour of the continent.

Glass Of Beer Cost Him $60

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The beer Lawrence Langenecker had at a corner tavern cost him $60 because it wasn't his in the first place.

Mabel Hill, operator of the tavern, told the judge that Langenecker came into her tavern and refused to leave when she ordered him out.

Then, she said, he grabbed a glass of beer from a customer and drank it. That's when she called police.

The formal charges were peace disturbance and resisting arrest.

DOGS BITE IN

DYER, Tenn.—(UP)—Luther Carrell's two dogs don't like to see him go swimming in a nearby pond. When Carrell dived into the water, his dogs went in after him. When Carrell refused to come out, they ran off with most of his clothes.

J.W. Butler Honored As New EC Alumni Secretary

GOLDSBORO — A group of Kinston and Goldsboro friends of James W. Butler, manager of the Goldsboro Chamber of Commerce who leaves September 1 to take up his duties as general alumni secretary for East Carolina College at Greenville, gathered in supper session on the terrace of Goldsboro Hotel here Thursday night and paid high tribute to Butler's service to Goldsboro and Eastern Carolina.

J. Herman Canady of Kinston and Goldsboro was official host and toastmaster. He sparked the meeting with humorous and serious remarks that established a high standard of good fellowship. He welcomed his guests and presented each one for brief remarks about Butler and their knowledge of his varied service. He observed that he had letters from Butler's father, Rev. A. J. Butler, whose health would not permit attendance; from Jonathan Daniels, editor of The News and Observer; Carl Goerch, State Magazine editor, and others who lauded Jim by mail and expressed their deep regrets at being unable to attend the supper session. Dave Whitchard, Jr., Greenville newspaperman, and Dr. John D. Messick, ECC president, also sent their regrets at being unable to attend.

Those present who paid tribute to Butler were: J. P. Strother, managing editor of The Free Press, who brought greetings from that newspaper and recalled that Butler was once a carrier for it; John C. Hood of Kinston, druggist whom Butler served as delivery boy a generation ago, who declared that he still considered him "one of my boys," and wished him well in the future; President W. V. Westmoreland of the Goldsboro Chamber of Commerce, who declared that Butler had "never failed to answer the call of service to his community and fellow man;" Editor Henry Belk of the Goldsboro News-Argus, who observed that "Jim seems to be the same he was yesterday and will be the same tomorrow—an active public servant and friend to all;" lawyer Ogden Parker, Canady's son-in-law, who paid tribute to Butler as a friend whom he felt he had known all his life and whose services would be missed by Goldsboro; Neil Joseph, who spoke for the Kiwanis Club and the Merchants Association, noting that Butler would be sorely missed by the community; Grom Lennon, president of the Rotary Club and a comparative newcomer to Goldsboro, who recalled Butler's fine help in making him "at home" in Rotary and the community; Fred Parker, Wayne County attorney, who paid an eloquent tribute to Butler and his varied community service; Wiley Parker of Goldsboro, who expressed his appreciation to Butler and to Canady for making the occasion possible.

Manager C. L. McCullers of the Kinston Chamber of Commerce closed the talks with an eloquent tribute to Butler's work as a chamber of commerce executive and noted that the section would gain what Goldsboro is losing.

Twenty Cases In Monday's Court

Twenty cases were disposed of in Police Court yesterday, and two of them involved traffic violations. Six cases were for assaulting females.

Paxton W. Humphrey faced three warrants—one for trespass, one for using vulgar and profane language and another for being drunk. Judge Charles H. Whedbee, on recommendation of Solicitor Eli Bloom, nol prossed the trespass case. The court fined Humphrey $10 for being drunk, and $15 for using vulgar and profane language.

Dave Woolard, Negro, assault on a female, 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $40, costs deducted, and he is not to violate any law for 12 months.

Charley Cherry, Negro, assault on a female, 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is not to violate any law for 12 months.

Johnny B. Taylor, Negro, paid $10 for assault on a female.

Fred Fleming, Negro, paid $15 for assault on a female.

James E. Steverson, Negro, assault on a female, 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is to remain of good behavior for 12 months.

J. C. Moore, Negro, charged by Lulu Belle Streter, Negro, with the larceny of her watch, was found not guilty. For assaulting a female, the court gave Moore 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted. He is not to molest Lulu Belle Streter or violate any law for a year.

Ernest Watson, Negro, paid $5 for gambling.

Samuel T. Atkinson, Negro, improper lights, was given 30 days suspended on payment of $5 and he is not to operate his car until the lights are properly fixed.

L. C. Roscoe of Petersburg, Va., was fined $25 and costs for not having an operator's license.

Drunk: William Bynum, Negro, 30 days or $10; O'Neal Prince, $10; Abram L. Newton, Negro, $10; James E. Wilson, Negro, paid $10 for being drunk, and $15 for assault; Jesse D. Roberts, Negro, $15; Willie Hardy, Negro, $10.

Air Cadet, Lost In Mid-Air, Is Helped By Radio

GREENVILLE, Miss.—(UP)—An air cadet at the Greenville Air Force base probably is still dazed from a practice flight.

Cosler S. Kline, of Lincoln, Neb., not being familiar with the Mississippi country side, became confused on a routine flight and radioed the base "to help me locate myself."

The instructor, Don Speed radioed Kline to fly until he found a town and then keep circling.

Then Speed asked the state highway patrol to be on the lookout for an Air Force plane going in circles. Patrolmen spotted Kline circling methodically around the little town of Water Valley.

Speed went to the rescue. He found his student still wearily and dizzily circling and directed him back to Greenville.

Lenient Draft

OMAHA — (AP) — Selective Service officials have been so lenient with deferments to date that only one of every 16 registrants has been inducted, according to Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow, deputy director of Selective Service.

Addressing the convention of United National Italian-American service organization, 1 a 1 night, General Renfrow said, however, that if draft calls go up, Selective Service officials will have to put much tougher deferment policies into effect.

TOO REALISTIC
BOSTON — (UP) — Three-year-old Joan Crowell played "mother" a little too realistically with her 11-month-old sister Marilyn. Joan found a bottle of paracetic acid and applied it to the baby sister's gums. She had used up half the bottle before discovered by her mother. Marilyn was hospitalized, sleepy but otherwise unharmed.

Hadacol 'King' Enters Politics

CHARLOTTE — (AP) — Dudley J. LeBlanc is leaving Hadacol for politics.

The fabulous patent medicine king from Louisiana announced his candidacy yesterday for the Democratic nomination for Governor of his native state in 1952.

LeBlanc told the State, Columbia, S. C., morning newspaper, that he would leave his Hadacol good-will caravan here today and return to Louisiana to make his formal announcement. The caravan, including entertainers Jack Dempsey, Carmen Miranda, Dick Haymes and Candy Candino, is here for a scheduled performance tomorrow night.

Only two days ago, in Augusta, Ga., LeBlanc announced the sale of his patent medicine to a group of eastern financiers and businessmen for about $10,000,000.

LeBlanc, a Louisiana state senator who has built Hadacol into a multi-million dollar business through high-powered advertising campaigns, failed in his bid for the governor's office in 1932.

Indictments For Newsmen Fighting Violators Of Law

CHARLES, La. (AP)—Paper men who crusaded against open law violations are indicted on charges of defaming three admitted gamblers and several public officials.

And the Peoples Action Group which instigated a special session of the grand jury to investigate law violations, is under order to give the grand jury a list of its members. The list had been kept secret to aid in the PAG's private investigations.

The Calcasieu Parish (county) grand jury refused to indict Sheriff Henry Reid whom the PAG had accused of malfeasance in office.

Named in the indictments handed down yesterday were Thomas B. Shearman, publisher of the Lake Charles American Press; his son, William Hugh Shearman, co-publisher; Kenneth L. Dixon, managing editor; James W. Norton, city editor; and Carter George, police and court reporter.

They were accused of defaming Claude Williams, Sam Smith and E. J. Miller, three admitted gamblers and night club operators; district Attorney Griffin P. Hawkins; Assistant District Attorney Melvin Wetherill; the 13 members of the Calcasieu Parish police jury; the Parish governing body; and Sheriff Reid.

Williams, Smith and Miller recently pleaded guilty in district court

Drivers Warned Of School Daze

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Shirley Temple's ex-husband, John Agar, is under sentence of 150 days in jail for drunk driving.

The 30-year-old actor was sentenced yesterday to six months with 30 days suspended and was fined $150. He was arrested Jan. 13 in the San Fernando Valley on a drunk driving charge and while awaiting trial was arrested April 8 in Hollywood on a similar charge. Convicted by a jury on one count, he pleaded guilty on the other.

Agar's lawyer, Llewellyn Moses, and probation officer B. H. Levy recommended straight probation.

Agar had blamed his drinking on his first marriage, to Miss Temple, and attributed some of his difficulties to unfavorable publicity.

"Don't blame this on Shirley," Municipal Judge Vernon W. Hunt warned. "He's just a potential killer, that's all. What if it was your family he killed? I'm not going to take the responsibility of his killing someone—some father, perhaps."

Moses said Agar is undergoing treatments by a famous psycho-neurologist and expressed fear that if he goes to jail his battle against alcohol may be lost.

Agar's second wife, the former Loretta Barnett, gave him a tearful embrace as he was led to jail. They were wed May 16 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Agar Sentenced To Stay In Jail

With the opening of Pitt County Schools this morning, there came a word of warning from the State Highway Patrol to the motorists in the county.

Captain S. H. Mitchell, commanding officer of Troop "A," this morning urged all motorists in the county to be extra careful in driving and be on the alert for school buses and their passengers. "The county has been lucky in the past several years by not having any serious accidents involving school buses and we want to keep the record that way," Mitchell said.

Last year a number of reports were made to the Greenville Patrol office about school bus violators, who passed loading or unloading school buses along the highways.

There is a state law which requires all drivers to stop when meeting a bus which is taking on or discharging passengers. Violations of this law will be reported to the patrol and action taken against the driver, Mitchell said.

The farmers of the county came into the limelight next as the Patrol officer asked that every effort possible be made to see that live stock is kept fenced in and not allowed to roam loose on the highways.

Records at the Patrol office here show that as high as seven mules or other livestock were killed in one week's time last year. In addition several persons were injured in accidents involving livestock and thousands of dollars of property damage resulted. In 1949 several persons were killed as the result of wrecks caused by livestock.

Mild Weather

prevail in the Greenville area and the temperature did not get into the 90s yesterday.

Highest temperature reported by the local Weather Bureau was 82 degrees during yesterday afternoon. Lowest last night, 69, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 73. A light drizzle of rain fell yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday a year ago the highest temperature here was 92 degrees. Lowest that night, 66, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 75. No rain that day.

The sky was overcast during the forenoon today, with indications of rain.

Coach Reports GHS Athletics Now At Low Ebb

"The situation among Greenville High School sports could not be any lower than it is at the present time," stated high school football coach Bill Kittrell last night speaking before the Greenville Lions Club.

"A check of the past records of football teams in Greenville High reveals that equipment, materials and players have never been at the low ebb which they have reached this year."

Kittrell hastened to point out that he was not trying to make excuses before the start of the 1951 football season but he was just stating "the facts."

Morale among the high school students and players is very low and it is due largely to the poor support which has been given the athletic teams in the past by the townfolk, said the coach.

"It means a lot to the team to see a good crowd in the stands at their games and at practices as well," Coach Kittrell pointed out.

The most boys to report for practice so far has been 22 and now the squad has dropped down to 17. However, a large number of boys are working, and by the time school opens it is expected that total strength of the team will stand around 30.

"The 17 boys we have working out now will form the nucleus of this year's team and they are 17 boys who want to win, but they need the support of the people in Greenville."

"This year we will not be able to go by power but will depend largely on the squad we don't have the weight," Kittrell said. "The formation of the High School Booster's Club was one of the best things for high school sports that could happen. It is one of the most important things ever to occur in the city."

Kittrell then introduced Dave Bannerman, assistant coach this year, and former Navy back. Bannerman is tutoring the line of the 1951 Green Phantoms.

Bannerman reported a dim view for the line but said that they are ready to put up the best show possible.

President Jimmy Harris presided over the meeting.

Kittrell and Bannerman were introduced by W. J. Stell, who was in charge of the program.

O. E. Dowd, former District Governor, inducted Jimmie Warren as new assistant secretary of the local club.

A special meeting of the Blind Committee was held following the regular club meeting, at which time the date for the forthcoming white cane drive was to be set.

Needs Of Employees Discussed By Bryan

A. W. Bryan, superintendent of the National Carbon Company plant here, addressed the members of the Greenville Rotary Club last night on "Employer-Employee Relations."

"In any business, large or small, one of the most difficult problems is to bring to all employees who work at jobs which are so easily made to seem like endless drudgery, the motivation, the feeling of happiness and satisfaction which comes with accomplishment, the urge for greater achievement, the enthusiasm necessary to the continued success of the business," Bryan declared. "With that accomplished everything else is relatively easy."

The employee-employer relations are based on certain problems which must be solved in the operation of any business, the speaker said. The first problem is the selection of employees who can do a good job, and secondly, ways and means of stimulating employee interest in the quality and cost of production.

In accomplishing the latter, Bryan declared, "the employee has got to be made to feel that he is a vital part of the organization. He has got to know something about the company, its products and policies, why they are important to him as an individual employee."

He pointed out that each employee must have a job in which he has a feeling of security, and one which he feels has an open avenue for advancement. "Employee activities provide excellent means of self-expression and an outlet for energy not demanded on the job," Bryan said.

"The success of every business enterprise is dependent to a large extent on the cooperation and good will of its employees. Unless the employee possesses those characteristics the chances of having an efficient, smooth running operation is greatly reduced. One of the most effective ways to destroy good will and reduce cooperation and develop wrong attitudes on the part of employees is to ignore grievances and complaints. If labor unions can be

Get Permission To Include Costs

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Office of Price Stabilization today gave wholesalers permission to include sales promotion costs in ceiling prices for their own brands of groceries.

The order, effective Sept. 1, applies to wholesalers who own or have exclusive rights to certain brands. If such brands account for 10 per cent or more of his total sales, the wholesaler may add up to five per cent of the net cost of the product in advertising and sales promotion costs to the ceiling prices.

Woman's Purse Is Stolen From Car Parked On Avenue

Mrs. L. L. Rives, 406 East Eighth Street, reported to police yesterday that her purse was stolen from her parked car on Albemarle Avenue.

Police quoted her as saying she parked the car near 807 Albemarle avenue and left her purse in it containing about $30 in currency, some checks made payable to her, and her driver's license and valuable papers. Police are investigating.

Warehousemen Make Complaint About Boys Taking Leaf

The manager of Keel's Warehouse, on South Dickinson Avenue, today complained to police about small boys hanging around the loading doors of the warehouse and stealing bunches of leaf tobacco.

Warehouse workers said the boys taking tobacco from trucks at warehouses and from trucks in transit, evidently are employed by group-ups to glean the tobacco for small sums of money.

A factory attaché told police the other day many boys risked their lives running behind big tobacco trucks and plucking bunches of tobacco. They are in danger of being struck by trucks following the one they are looting, police quoted a tobaccoist as saying.

Police are investigating with a view to finding out the identity of adults who hire the boys for the hazardous task.

Boy's Condition After Accident Said To Be Good

The condition of Wayne Windham, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Windham, who was injured when he ran into the path of a Greenville taxicab yesterday, was described as being very good today by Pitt Memorial Hospital officials.

Windham suffered a broken shoulder blade and other minor bruises and cuts when hit by a taxi driven by Carney Alligood. The accident occurred in front of the Garris Supply Company on Dickinson Avenue about 10:40 yesterday morning.

Investigating officers quoted the driver as stating that the boy walked out from a line of traffic waiting for the traffic light at Five Points into his cab.

Alligood said he saw the boy when he was about six or seven feet away but could not avoid hitting him.

No charges were filed against the driver.

Scout Court Of Honor Scheduled

A court of honor will be held tonight in the City Hall for Pitt County Boy Scouts. It was announced this morning by Scout Commissioner Jack Dowdy.

Presentation of merit badges and advancement certificates will be made at the session tonight, Dowdy stated.

Troop 200 of Winterville will be the honor guard and present the colors.

Other members of the Pitt District will assist as members of the court.

J. B. Kittrell, president of the District, will preside over the service.

Soldier Awarded Red Cross First Aid Certificate

ESSLINGEN, Germany—American Red Cross European Headquarters reported today that Private James B. Cox, RD 2, Box 270, Griffin, has been awarded the Standard First Aid Certificate.

Pvt. Cox, who is with the 351st Infantry at Trieste, FIT, was chosen for the safety school by his commanding officer. He was given instruction in both the prevention of accidents and the proper first aid care of accident victims. Upon completion of the Army-sponsored course he received the certificate.

The Red Cross was asked to help reduce the accidents in Europe that are costing American taxpayers over half-million dollars monthly and the education safety program was set up for service personnel.
