Flares Dropped Over UN Base

Unidentified Plane Disappears To Northeast Of Cease-Fire Team Encampment; Denunciation Of Red Bombing Fraud Is Second In Ten Days

TOKYO, Sunday (UP)—An unidentified plane dropped flares over the United Nations advance cease-fire base in Korea last night a few hours after the Allies denounced as a "fraud" the latest Communist allegation that a U.N. plane bombed Kaesong.

The plane apparently flew in from the northeast, from North Korea. It disappeared in the same direction.

Because of darkness it was impossible to determine the type of the plane. Even if it was a Communist craft the Allies were not expected to protest because the advance base is not a neutral zone like Kaesong, where the interrupted cease-fire talks have been held.

From an altitude of about 2,000 feet the plane dropped about 12 flares which lighted the countryside.

The strange merry-go-round of Red allegations, most of them obviously manufactured, increased belief here that Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway may suggest that when and if cease-fire negotiations are resumed the meetings be held at a new site.

There was an alternative suggestion that teams of U.N. and Red military policemen patrol the Kaesong neutral zone together.

The denunciation of the latest Red bombing complaint as a "fraud" was the second time in 10 days that the U.N. had suggested that the Reds staged fake "raids" on their own positions and tried to blame the Allies.

A spokesman at the advanced base, 15 miles southeast of Kaesong, said investigation team believed the bombing a "fraud" because of:

1. Over-emphasis by the Communists on how large and "real" the bomb craters looked. The spokesman said the Communists appeared to have "improved their technique" in this respect.

2. "Constant insistence that the Allies knew exactly where Gen. Nam Il's residence was situated. When the U.N. officers disclaimed knowledge that he had moved out of the center of Kaesong, they replied, "but you have reconnaissance."

3. Violent objections to the U.N. delegation's attempt to use a tape recorder during discussion of the incident.

A colonel who headed the investigating team, told the Communists there was no conclusive evidence even that an aircraft had dropped the two bombs.

However, he conceded that the testimony of Korean civilians who said they lived in the area indicated the bombs had been dropped from a plane rather than planted in the ground and then detonated. But he called the complaint a fraud.

U. S. Air Force Col. A. J. Kinney, head of the U.N. liaison team, announced the finding after an on-the-spot investigation of Communist charges that an Allied plane dropped two bombs in the neutral zone today.

Battered Foreign Aid Bill May Be Again Slashed

Next Test Comes When Actual Voting Of Money Gets Under Way

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman's much-battered foreign aid program, cut more than $1,000,000,000 by the House and Senate from the $9,500,000,000 he asked, could be slashed more when Congress puts up the actual cash.

The aid program emerged from the Senate last night carrying $7,286,250,000. The House previously had approved $7,498,750,000.

The bill authorizing the program now goes to a House-Senate conference committee for adjustment of differences.

Once the final product is approved, the whole program must go through Congress again in a bill providing the cash to carry it out, and that can be cut, too.

After a session running 12 1/2 hours, the Senate passed its version of the bill last night by a vote of 61 to 5.

It ignored Mr. Truman's complaint that committee cuts totaling $664,250,000 were false economy. It responded by cutting $249,500,000 more from the bill.

The Senate voted to authorize $776,000,000 in military aid and $1,310,250,000 in economic aid for anti-Soviet countries. The corresponding figures in the House bill were $6,013,000,000 for military and $1,485,750,000 for economic aid.

Western Europe would get most of the money. The Senate version would provide that area with $5,008,350,000 in military aid and $880,500,000 in economic aid. The Middle East and Far East and Latin America would get lesser amounts.

The Senate opened yesterday's marathon session by defeating, 41 to 31, a Republican-led move to cut the committee-approved total for Europe an economic aid by $111 million.

Still sticking by the committee, it then turned around and voted 66 to 17 against a proposal to provide the full $8,500,000,000 asked by Mr. Truman.

Advocates of a substantial cut mustered additional votes during the afternoon for a reduction of $250,000,000 in economic help for Europe. This proposal squeaked through, 36 to 34.

Finally, the Senate cut the committee figure for European military aid by $37,000,000 to offset a $37,500,000 increase in money voted for Israel and Palestine.

Chairman Tom Connally (D-Tex.) of the Foreign Relations committee said he was gratified by passage of the bill because it assured the world "that we will aid Western Europe to arm and fortify itself against any attack by Communist countries."

East Carolina College will open its forty-third regular session Tuesday, September 4, at which time about 700 freshmen are expected. They will begin their orientation program at nine o'clock, and continue orientation and registration through Thursday. Upperclassmen will register on Thursday, and class work will begin Friday morning.

The outlook for a large enrollment is splendid, as more students have indicated a desire to enter than ever before. Approximately 800 students more than can be given rooms on the campus have paid reservation fees; of these 175 have withdrawn because they cannot room on the campus and have been unable to find satisfactory rooms in Greenville.

Four Cars Collide In Freak Mishap

Wet streets and speed caused the freak accident shown here at the corner of Greene and West Fourth Streets late yesterday afternoon. All four automobiles hooked bumpers as the rear car crashed into the third, which was stopped for the traffic light. The third automatically nosed into the second car, causing it to jam into the rear of the front one. Damage in the four-car collision was estimated at $1,800, $750 to No. 3 and $400 to No. 4. Numbers 1, 2 and 3 were driven by Marines, part of the 10,000 released from Camp Lejeune yesterday for the Labor day holiday. Arrested was William H. Clifton, 20, of Creswell, a civilian. Airport Officers Are Re-Elected

All officers of the city-county airport commission were re-elected to their posts for the next 12 months during last night's first meeting of the fiscal year.

J. Ed Waldrop, member of the board of aldermen, was re-elected chairman of the five-man body, having held the office since last summer. C. C. Harris county commissioner, was re-elected vice chairman, and Willard T. Kyzar, chamber of commerce manager, was re-elected secretary-treasurer, a post he has held since the commission was organized in 1947.

The five-man body heard reports from Kyzar and aldermen W. W. Speight and W. E. Watson concerning the recent air line hearing before the Civil Aeronautics Board in Winston-Salem. Kyzar reported that it was difficult to determine what progress had been made at the hearing concerning whether or not Greenville and Pitt County will obtain air service.

However, he said, "I think our position was greatly enhanced." Final hearing in the matter will be September 10 before the CAB in Washington, D. C.

Meeting with the officers were R. E. Rogers, Jr., and M. Brown Hodges, commission members representing the Greenville aldermen and Pitt County commissioners, respectively.

Play Catch With Hand Grenade

NEW YORK (AP)—The passerby's hair stood on end. He stared at the two small boys playing catch with a hand grenade still equipped with its firing pin.

Police bomb squad men were called to the Brooklyn street to check the grenade. The frightened boys, about five years old, fled when the "ball" was seized.

Then the bomb squad men sighed "relief." The grenade was not loaded.

Lower Tariffs Effective Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. tariffs will be cut Oct. 1 on certain cameras, toys, machinery, china, clocks, harmonicas and wool yarn, the State Department announced today.

The lower tariffs were negotiated with Germany at a mass tariff cutting conference at Torquay, England, last winter.

Holiday Closings

Although merchants in Greenville will observe their annual custom of remaining open Labor Day, all city and county offices will be closed all day Monday.

All offices in the city hall, with the exception of the Merchants Association, will be closed as will offices in the courthouse and the agriculture building. The banks in town will be closed, also.

The Post Office will observe the national holiday and no mail will be delivered on either the city or county routes. Parcel post, however, will be delivered as usual and there will be a letter collection in the city beginning at four p.m.

All ABC stores in the county will remain closed. There will be no sales on the Greenville tobacco market, either.

Ike Studies Use Atomic Weapons

WASHINGTON (UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is studying closely the use of atomic weapons in the field against any aggressor who marches against Western Europe.

Defense Secretary George C. Marshall has given that assurance. Such weapons would possibly include atomic weapons fired like artillery shells from giant mortars, guided missiles with atomic warheads, or small A-bombs which could be dropped from fighter-bombers.

The possible use of tactical atomic weapons has been fully taken into account in planning the build-up of Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact army, Marshall wrote Sen. Brian McMahon, (D-Conn.).

McMahon, chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, had asked Marshall for assurances on these points.

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission is speeding development of more compact A-bombs to be used directly against enemy forces in the field. It is believed to have tested some in Nevada earlier this year, and more tests are coming up—possibly with similar weapons.

Experts believe it is only a matter of time before U. S. armed forces—including those under Eisenhower's command—will be equipped with new-type atomic weapons.

Western Union Ends Ten-Word Minimum Rates

NEW YORK (UP)—WESTERN UNION COMMUNICATIONS TODAY MESSAGE LIMIT STOP NOW GET FIFTEEN AT HIGHER PRICES STOP

The telegraph company ended its 100-year institution today by eliminating the 10-word telegram minimum rate under an increase plan granted by the Federal Communication Commission.

Fifteen words will be allowed in the lowest rate messages at an increased cost of 9 to 50 per cent over the former 10-word rate.

But the new 15-word rate will be cheaper than the old rate for 15 words, the company said.

Five-Hour Sales For Next Week

The Greenville tobacco market will continue its five-hour sales day through the four selling days of next week.

Originally, sales were scheduled to be cut back to four and a half hours during the first nine days of September. However, result of a meeting of the sales committee of the Blue-Cured Tobacco Warehousemen's Association in Lumberton last night was the extension of sales for the half-hour period.

Sales supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported that the local warehousemen had sold 100,000 lbs. of tobacco yesterday. Pounds on the market during the five-hour selling period was the highest since the market opened last week—a total of 1,800,734 being sold for $856,508.71. The average for the day was $47.56.

Much of the tobacco on the floor yesterday was left over to be sold Tuesday when the local market reopens after the Labor Day lay-off, Whedbee said. However, floors contained the largest amount of low grade tobacco that has ever been sold in one day on the market here, he said.

Average for the week was figured at $48 even. Pounds sold during the five days amounted to 6,262,144 for $3,006,091.93. To date the market has averaged $48.07 on total poundage of 9,840,998 being sold for $4,730,717.08.

Southern Heat Wave Scheduled To Stay Awhile

ATLANTA, (AP)—Temperatures of the 100-plus variety, now an everyday thing in much of the sweltering south and southwest, were promised again today by the weatherman.

Some areas within 100 miles of the gulf coast could hope for temporary relief through widely scattered thundershowers, but elsewhere it was more of the same.

MacLester, Okla., and Presidio, Tex., took high readings of 108 yesterday. Magnolia, Ark., was only one notch below. At Birmingham the official high was 100 degrees, but a lot of private thermometers registered 113.

To Name Member Of ABC Board

The board of county commissioners will meet with the boards of health and education Monday to appoint a new member of the county ABC board.

The appointment was made necessary by the death of T. Slaton Ayden who died August 3.

Chairman of the board is J. W. Jumper of Farmville with Haywood Dal of Greenville as the other member.

Conservatives Are Returned

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP)—Prime Minister Sidney Holland's National Government was returned to power today in a smashing election victory over the Laborites.

U. S. Today Signs Mutual Defense Pact For Pacific

UN Troops Push New Offensive

Most Of Front Aflame In Limited Attack; Tarheel Airman Credited With Probable 'Kill' Of MIG-15 In Battle

8TH ARMY H.Q. Korea (UP)—United Nations forces battled up thickly-wooded slopes along a 30-mile front in eastern Korea today, killing hundreds of Reds in their advance.

Far to the northwest, 15 American Sabrejets ripped into 40 Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters and probably destroyed one of them in a vicious 30-minute dogfight. All Sabrejets returned safely to base.

Maj. Winton W. Marshall of Raleigh, N.C., leader of the first flight of eight Sabrejets, gained credit for the probable kill.

"We jumped 16 MIG's, close in, and then followed the thorough violent evasive action," Marshall said. "I pulled in close behind one Red and kept hitting him with short bursts."

"All at once, his plane exploded into flames and went into a steep dive, still burning. I then broke off and went after another."

Allied infantrymen jumped off at dawn Saturday to carry the second round of their two-week-old limited offensive on the eastern and east-central fronts into its second day.

They charged into Communist bunkers and trenches with fixed bayonets and showers of hand grenades while massed artillery hurled a shattering barrage of flame and steel ahead of them.

Most of the front was aflame from the Sea of Japan coast inland to the southeast, approaches to Kumsong, big Communist base 29 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

The Allies captured five key points.

Alaska Again Is Air Crash Site

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—The crash of a Navy patrol bomber on a bleak Aleutian island brought to 84 today the number of persons dead or missing in 10 widely-scattered Alaska aviation accidents in the past six weeks.

The Navy said a ground search party had recovered eight bodies after a Privateer with 10 aboard crashed and burned yesterday on an island about 1,200 miles southwest of here.

The Alaska Command public information office here said there "was always a slim possibility" the other two might have parachuted or still be alive on the 30-square mile island.

Wreckage of the four-engine plane was spotted by a search plane. The Privateer was on a routine patrol flight from its base at the Adak naval station.

It was the second plane of the same type to crash in the same area during the past three weeks. On Aug. 12, a Privateer crashed on Amak Island, killing the 12 persons aboard.

Officers could offer no explanation for the large number of air accidents that have marked the worst period in the territory's aviation history.

The series of crashes began July 21 when a Canadian-Pacific Korean airlift liner vanished with 28 persons aboard in the vicinity of Yakutat, near the top of the Alaska panhandle.

Australia And New Zealand Join New Security Guarantee As Curtain-Raiser To Next Week's Japanese Peace Conference; Aimed At Red Expansion

Berlin Highway Traffic 'Taxed'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—The United States, Australia and New Zealand today sign a mutual defense treaty extending this country's security guarantees over a vast new area of the world.

It provides another link in a future Pacific-wide military alliance against the communist threat and is a curtain-raiser for next week's Japanese peace conference.

Arriving by plane yesterday, Secretary of State Acheson in an obvious reference to Russia said the days ahead would show which are the peaceful nations and which are those that "talk peace while taking action that may impair and prevent the strengthening of peace."

The tripartite pact is conceived by its creators as raising a warning flag to Moscow against any aggressive thrust into the southwest Pacific. At the same time it places a barrier in the way of any future resurgence of Japanese imperialism.

It will be signed at the historic Presidio of San Francisco, headquarters of the U. S. Sixth Army, in a setting of military pomp with artillery booming in gun salutes to each delegation.

Today's treaty signing, like the conclusion in Washington Thursday of a similar U. S. Philippines Defense Pact, stands with the Japanese peace treaty-set for signing Sept. 8—as part of a great allied plan to secure the Pacific against any extension of communist power.

The tripartite and U. S.-Philippines treaties are beyond Russia's reach. But Gromyko is expected to do his utmost to wreck, stall or delay the signing of the Japanese treaty, which the United States and Britain are sponsoring as the keystone of the whole security pact.

Washington, D. C. (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson today announced that the United States and Britain are sponsoring a new treaty with the Philippines to sign Sept. 8.

The first of these battles is expected to develop Wednesday.

Acheson and Dulles, with joint sponsorship of the British delegation, plan to propose for conference adoption a set of rules which would make it the business of the conference to sign the peace treaty as it has been drafted by the United States and Britain after consultation with all the other governments represented here, including Russia.

The object of these, which would also limit debate by any one delegate to about one hour, is to prevent the treaty from being altered and to end the sessions with the signing next Saturday afternoon. Because of the little time allowed for the whole meeting, Wednesday and Friday night sessions are planned.

Russia is expected to oppose these rules. Gromyko's delegation is armed with "proposals," according to a Moscow announcement, on the subject of a Japanese treaty. It is expected that these will amount to a demand for rewriting the whole treaty, and the Russians will not want rules under which they could be called out of order.

Truman Signs 4 Appropriation Bills Totaling About $10 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman yesterday signed four appropriation bills totaling about $10,000,000,000. One authorizes the building of 50,000 public housing units this year.

All measures finance the operation of various agencies including the Labor, Agriculture and Interior Departments for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

And all cut federal employment of the agencies and departments involved by 10 percent. One of the new laws carries an amendment which limits vacations of all federal workers except postal employees and those working abroad to 30 days, a 6-day cut in most cases.

The measures signed: Independent Offices Appropriations bill—$6,162,825.17 for a score of agencies including the Veterans Administration ($2,964,000,000), the Atomic Energy Commission ($1,139,832,750), and the Tennessee Valley Authority ($238,389,000).

This is the money bill which authorizes construction of 50,000 new housing units under the Public Housing Administration. It represents a victory for Mr. Truman over the House, which first cut the total to a mere 5,000, boosted it after a presidential rebuke.

Interior Department Appropriations bill—$511,841,816. Labor Department and Federal Security Agency Appropriations bill—$2,512,400,207. Agriculture Department Appropriations bill—$802,988,636.

Crowd On Grandfather Mountain Views Annular Eclipse Wonders

LINVILLE PEAK, Grandfather Mountain, N. C. (AP)—For early-risers in a 30,000 square mile area of Virginia and North Carolina, the sun rose as a fiery ring this morning in 1951's second annular eclipse.

Low hanging clouds almost spoiled the view for 300 observers gathered about this 5,664-foot peak, but just at 5:57 a.m., they cleared away, giving what scientists called an "excellent" view of the moon passing across the sun's face.

In the area of the full eclipse—a path 95 miles wide extending from the Norfolk-Portsmouth area of Virginia almost to this Blue Ridge peak—the eclipse was seen as a ring as the moon blocked the sun.

Because the moon was a little too far from the earth to completely hide the sun, it was annular—ring—eclipse. In a total eclipse, the moon would block out the sun entirely.

Clouds gathered close to the horizon frightened spectators here in moments before dawn. As they broke away, the moon was already in position, then as it slowly moved across the sun's surface, they occasionally drifted back.

Scientists had a compass set up to point their telescopes to three degrees north of east. The direction was exact, with the sun and moon in a direct line.

Bailey's Beads—little flashes of light shining through the rugged valleys and canyons on the moon—were clearly visible.

Most of the spectators stayed here until the sun had cleared the moon at 6:20 a.m. About 75 of them had camped on this peak all night. Scientists said Linville Peak was the highest point in the United States in the exact center of the eclipse's path.

A slight pre-dawn wind gave photographers the jitters. They feared it might topple their tripods and cameras.

For other parts of the country, extending to the middle west, the amount of the eclipse varied from about 90 per cent complete to just a small crescent shaped portion of the moon barely covering an edge of the sun.

Atop nearby towering 6,884-foot Mt. Mitchell, some 200 persons viewed the spectacle through a thin layer of high clouds.

It was the last annular eclipse of the sun to be completely visible in North Carolina in the 20th Century.

Heath-Rogers Vows Spoken In North Winston Baptist Church

WINSTON-SALEM — Miss Barbara Lee Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Rogers of 948 East Twenty-second Street, became the bride of Private First Class Joseph J. Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Heath of Greenville, at 7 p.m. Friday, August 24, at North Winston Baptist Church.

Rev. James M. Hayes performed the double ring ceremony assisted by Rev. W. R. Wagoner. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. George H. Wright, organist, and Bob Duncan, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ankle-length gown of Chantilly lace and net over tulle with a matching lace bolero and a fitted bodice with a full bouffant skirt. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion and Chantilly lace fell from a crown of shirred illusion. She carried a white prayer-book topped with a white orchid.

Miss Carolyn Rogers was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a powder blue, strapless, ankle-length dress of marquisette over tulle with matching head-dress and stole. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed summer flowers.

Jimmie D. Heath was best man for his brother. Ushers were J. Carl Saylor, John H. Lantz, James E. Lantz, and William A. Lantz.

After the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip. For travel the bride wore a navy linen bolero suit with white accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Heath was graduated from John W. Hanes High School and is now employed in the office of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Mr. Heath was graduated from Patebus High School in Patebus. He is now serving in the U. S. Army at Fort Meade, Maryland. Before entering the army, he was employed at Western Electric.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

September 1, 1911

Dr. Thomas G. Basnight has located in Greenville and occupies a suite of offices in the Edwards building on Evans Street, just north of the courthouse. Dr. Basnight is not unknown to a great many people of Pitt County as he practiced medicine at Stokes several years, at which place he was held in high esteem and enjoyed a large practice.

B. M. Bass, a native of Tarboro, has accepted a position with Messrs Speight and Company and will enter his home in Greenville during the cotton season. Mr. Bass has had several years experience in handling the fleecy staple.

Mrs. Nana Brown left Friday for Hassells.

Country Style Party Honors Eloise Tucker

A unique "blue-jeans-and-plaid-shirt" party was given for Miss Eloise Tucker on Thursday night when Mrs. Robert Mays invited seven friends from Greenville to have supper with her at her summer home at Bayview.

A delightfully informal fried chicken supper was served rustic style from a table covered with a red checked gingham cloth and centered with a miniature twin lantern post.

After the supper hour, the friends "played at" cards and ridiculous prizes were given to holders of high and low score.

Those from Greenville who attended were Misses Eloise Tucker, Marian Brown, Ann Oakley, Mure Shotwell, Mrs. Pat Dayson, Mrs. Faye West and Mrs. Durward Tucker.

Mrs. M. E. Pollard gave the devotional which was taken from a missionary book, "Strong Son of God." The last two chapters were reviewed, "The Plot to Kill" and "Jesus' Crucifixion."

Mrs. Lee Corbett had charge of the program of which was a discussion of "The Hidden Answers." Refreshments were served to 13 members.

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. James W. Flake

Funeral services for Mrs. Bettie Moye Flake, 59, widow of James W. Flake, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Brockwell, in Chapel Hill early Friday morning following several months illness, will be held at Pine Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Greenville at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and burial will be in the Flake cemetery.

The Rev. R. N. Hinnant, pastor of Pine Grove Free Will Baptist Church, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Jack Tyson, Methodist minister of Carboro. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of service. Nephews will be active pallbearers, and nieces will be flower bearers.

Surviving are five sons, Louis Flake of near Ballard's Crossroads, Carl Flake of Rocky Point, Earl Flake of Bell Arthur, Joe Flake of Farmville, and William C. Flake of near Winterville; three daughters, Mrs. C. L. Strumb of Greer, Va., Mrs. Floyd Brockwell of Chapel Hill, and Mrs. Garland Canady of Raleigh; 26 grandchildren; two great grandchildren; five brothers, Ed and G. Jeffrey Moye of Greenville, Joe Moye of Robersonville, Meekin Moye of Ayden, and Bill Moye of Winterville; and seven sisters, Mrs. John Bairdree of near Farmville, Mrs. Joe Braxton of Belvoir, Mrs. Martha Braxton and Mrs. Jim Nobles of Winterville, Mrs. Allen Flake and Mrs. Lester Sutton of near Greenville, and Mrs. Eva Fleming of Greenville.

John S. Nelson Named To Phi Beta Kappa

John S. Nelson, son of Mr. J. Ed Nelson and the late Mrs. Nelson of 1604 Dickinson Ave., Greenville, was one of 37 graduating students of the University of Southern California to be elected of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society.

Nelson is now doing graduate work in the French department of the university.

Wheeler-Nobles Engagement Announced

Mrs. Camilla Daniel Moore announces the engagement of her granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth Nobles, to Mr. Robert Lathrop Wheeler, son of Colonel and Mrs. Druid Emmet Wheeler, of Rockford, Ill. Miss Nobles is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William L. Nobles of Greenville. The wedding will take place October 20.

Joint Hostesses Entertain For Joint Honorees

Mrs. Charles Horne Sr. and Mrs. Charles Horne Jr. were hostesses at an informal morning party Friday which was given to honor Miss Eloise Tucker and Mrs. J. B. Spilman Jr.

Corsages were given to the honor guests by the hostesses as they were welcomed upon their arrival at the home of Mrs. Horne Sr.

Lovely flower arrangements were used by the Mrs. Hornes with magnificent roses featured in a number of places. The refreshment table in the dining room was covered with a blue cloth and centered with a bowl of white roses, white asters and "dusty miller," a graceful fill-in vine.

Iced drinks in tall tumblers, assorted sandwiches, celery and carrots, pastries and salted nuts were placed on platters and trays for the convenience of the guests.

As the party drew to a close, the hostesses presented the guests of honor with crystal in their respective patterns.

Approximately twenty-four guests were present.

OUTCAST OF DESTINY

PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Brent said nothing. He heard the soft sound of footfalls and then there was silence. He said, "Jack!" but there was no answer. Jack had gone.

He settled back on the bunk with a large chunk of lead in the pit of his stomach. Gone now was his chance to meet the man he so much wanted to meet. Damn Lu Roselle! How had Jack found out? The answer was not hard to find. Cliff Durham had followed her and had seen her come into the shack. He had hurried back to tell Jack, the knowledge that it was Brent's shack she had entered making the prospect of Jack's wrath the more satisfying.

After a while Brent sat up and rolled a smoke. The lead in his stomach dissolved in the acid of resolution. He had to leave destiny but that didn't mean he was licked. He'd still find his man. He'd camp in the hills and get Bub Whitaker to keep him supplied with grub. He'd take the old man into his confidence; he had to. Bub could tip him off when a raid was about to be made and he could watch for the gang when it returned and follow the leader to their secret headquarters.

And Judy? He clamped his jaw determinedly. He'd take her with him; somehow he'd get her out of Destiny.

He got up and reconnoitered from within the shack, then ventured into the darkness. He went along an alley, passed the rear of the Palace and went into the building with the trapdoor in its ceiling. He got up on the roof and settled down to wait.

The Palace closed at last and the girls came upstairs. He saw Lil and Judy enter their room and Lil came to the washstand to turn up the lamp. He crossed the roof to its edge and rapped on the pane. Lil could not recognize him but she raised the sash. He said, "Move back, I'm coming in."

She moved away and he half leaped, half dived through the window. He said shortly, "Lock the door."

Judy was staring at him, her eyes wide. She turned, and shot a bolt. He said, "Keep your voices down Judy. I've got to get out of Destiny before morning or be the target for every gun in town."

He walked over to her and took her into his arms. He kissed her, then said simply, "Judy, I love you. I can't go without you. I haven't a damned thing to offer you but a lonely camp some where in the hills and a sure dose of lead poisoning if they find us. I'm a skunk for asking you, but will you go with me?"

Never before had he looked into a face so transfixed. Radiance came into it, the quick glow of utter faith and devotion. The brown eyes warmed, a delicate pink stole into the cheeks, the red lips curved in a smile of infinite tenderness.

"Yes, Tex, I'll go with you. Anywhere in the world."

She stood on tiptoes and he bent down and kissed her on the lips. Lil said, "Good gosh and the cows come home!" and sat down on the bed. After a moment she said, "Break, kids! For Mike's sake, Tex, sit down and tell us what happened."

He told them; told them with Judy's hand in his and an arm about her slim waist. He told them everything, trusting Lil but knowing that it didn't matter now whether or not she betrayed him.

"Then you really aren't an outlaw!" cried Judy softly. "You made up to Lu just to learn things. Oh, Tex, I've wanted to tell you about Biff but I didn't dare. The night of the dance he told me that if I didn't cut you cold he'd force a quarrel and kill you. I hated to do it, but for—for your sake—"

She started to cry, softly.

"Hush, honey! That's all past now. Get ready to leave. I'll get a horse and saddle for you. When you get stuff together put out the light. I'll be back and we can get away over the roof. Savvy?"

"Yes, Tex." She raised her lips and he kissed her and got up. He leaped over to the roof and descended through the trapdoor to the first floor, then followed the alley to the livery corral. The night hostler was asleep in the office.

Brent got his horse and saddled up by the light of the lantern, then selected a gentle mare which he knew was for sale, found a small saddle and cinched it on.

Jack Roselle entered the house to find Lu pacing the floor. She had done some fast thinking and had her story ready. She said before he could speak, "Jack, I went to Tex's place on business, our business."

"Interesting," said Jack coldly. "Tell me about this business."

"Listen! Don't Tex remind you of somebody we both knew?"

"Don't make a riddle of it. Who?"

"Slim Coe. I noticed it at once and when he started asking questions about Slim I was sure. He's a brother or a cousin or something. Slim asked me once if I'd ever heard of a man named Shell, remember? Well, right after that he was killed. Tonight Tex asked me the same question. Slim and Tex are both looking for a man named Shell."

Jack was staring at her now. "So!" he said softly. He continued to regard her for another few seconds, then turned abruptly and left the room.

Lu gave a sigh of relief and sank into a chair. She was safe.

Brent finished saddling up, then tipped into the office and put enough money on the desk to pay for the horse and rig and went out without awakening the hostler.

He was about to mount his horse when he heard the thump of boots and snapped about, his hand dropping to his Colt. The Cockeyed Kid came up at a run. He said, "Tex, what's happened? Jack's rounding up all the hands he can find and I heard him tell one of 'em there's a bounty of fifty bucks on your hide. You gotta get out of Destiny on the run!"

"Thanks, Bub; that's just what I'm fixing to do."

"Any way I can help? I got m' hardware strapped on and I'm rarin' to go." He patted the gun at his hip.

Brent said, "There's no time to explain now, but I'm going to the Palace after Judy. I'm going to take her with me. If you really want to help you can hold the horses for us. Will you do it?"

"You're danged tootin' I will! Let's go."

Night Bridge Party Given For Bride Elect

Mrs. Charles Howard Jr. was a co-sponsor bridge hostess on Wednesday night at her home on Eastern St.

The party was one of the pre-nuptial courtships extended to Miss Eloise Tucker, who will be married tomorrow afternoon in ceremonies at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Tables were attractively arranged in the living room and sun porch for the refreshment hour when the guests arrived. The honoree was remembered with a corsage, which she found at her place at the bride's table.

Prior to the progressions of bridge, the hostess served a sweet course, and during the game, iced drinks were passed.

Mrs. Ben Harrison was given a prize for compiling the highest score at cards, while Mrs. Wesley Johnston was the recipient of the consolation gift.

Mrs. Howard remembered Miss Tucker with a gift of china in her selected pattern.

A Tribute To Mother!

Abraham Lincoln said, "All that I am, or ever can be, I owe to my mother." And that, we think, sums up what all of us think about our mothers. It isn't only on Mother's Day that we should revere the name and memory of Mother. Every minute of every day we should unstintingly show our love and endeavor to make her life easier and happier. If your Mother has passed on, show that her memory still lives in your heart. Visit the cemetery frequently and lay lovely living flowers on the sacred spot where she sleeps forever. This will be a token payment of all she did for you.

Nearly 9,000 'Kids' Watch Circus

All Ages Get New Thrill Over Big Top Wonders

By MELVIN LANG

The old axiom, "Everybody loves a circus," was proven Wednesday as nearly 9,000 people turned out to see the mammoth King Brothers Circus.

Children were everywhere, and yells of joys were mingled with the cry of distress. All that one could hear while walking through the animal tent was, "What a big elephant!" or "Look at that one, Mom!"

Fifteen of the big guys were included in the show, with several taking part in the acts.

Another attraction was a spotted giraffe, 18 feet tall. This sky-scraper or coat King Brothers, an estimated $18,000 to purchase and bring to America. He is what is known as a reticulated animal because of the perfectly matched spots on his body.

Once inside the big tent, a variety of shows kept the children, of all ages, agog, some at the daring evidenced by the high rope artist, others, just agog.

But the final act gained everyone's attention. On entering the tent, the first thing seen was a large cannon mounted on a truck. With a blast of music, the public address announcer introduced Hugo Zachinski, the human cannonball. Tense with emotion, the people moved to the edge of their chairs, watching Zachinski lower himself into the yawning mouth of the big gun. Suddenly—Boom!—He came hurtling through the air and landed squarely in the middle of a net which had been placed between the uprights at the other end of the tent.

Very few of the people present at the afternoon and evening shows realized the work that had taken place to make it possible for the circus to come to Greenville. The entire unit often moves as far as a hundred miles for one night stands, then moving on the next night.

You may wonder how it is possible for them to do this, and still put on a show the next afternoon.

Precision teamwork is the answer for this mass movement in such a short time. The workmen—there is no such thing as a circus roustabout—have done so many times that they know exactly where each item should be placed while putting up the tents or packing the equipment after a performance.

As soon as a show is finished, the equipment is placed on trucks and moved on to the next site. By the time that the main show is over, the big tent as all that is left, besides the concession stands and a few minor articles. This is done within two hours after the final act. The entire show is gone within three hours.

Few people know that a circus the size of King Brothers is a small city within itself. A postmaster travels with the caravan, delivering mail and posting outgoing correspondence.

A generator, big enough to provide electrical power for a city of several thousand people, is enclosed within a large truck which travels with the show. Approximately 30 miles of electric cables are laid each day. Each tent has an outlet of 100 feet.

Some of the married couples have small generators in the trunk compartments of their cars. Women do the ironing and washing right on the lot with the electricity furnished by their own plant.

King Brothers is now in its 32nd season. It was originally founded by Floyd and Howard King. Howard sold out two years ago to the Cristiani family, stars of the show. Floyd is still with the outfit.

The Cristianis are members of an old circus family. The present group represents the seventh generation to carry on the circus tradition. They are primarily bareback riders, although they perform as aerialists also. Lucio Cristiani, head of the family and superintendent of the shows, is a clown in the bareback riding act.

Seven members of the family were Cristianis at birth, while four of the brothers have married and their wives now perform with the circus.

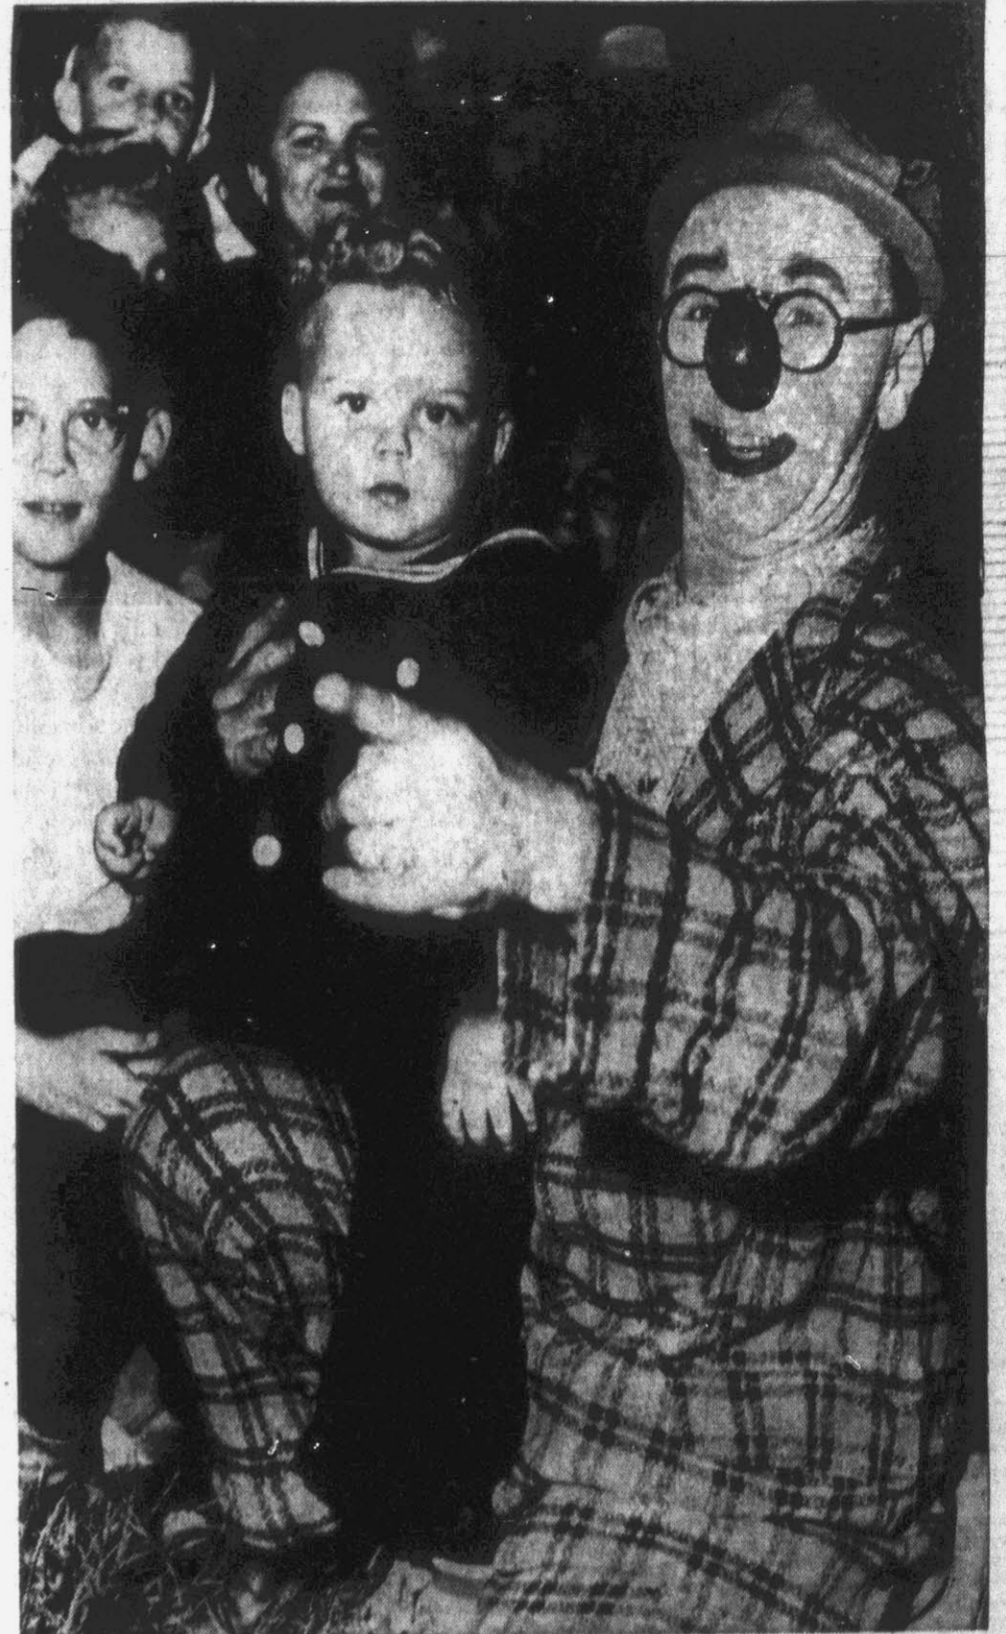

While talking to Corky Cristiani between shows, she stated that a future bareback rider began training when very young and does not begin the actual riding until about 12 years of age.

The show features a pair of brothers in a clown act, Jack and Ruby Lanrus. Also featured on the comedian side is a big guy called "Brownie", who has been a circus clown since 1907. Nolly Tate, dressed in an old suit and a big, red nose, has been in show business for 35 years.

Yes, the circus came—and the people went to see.

"I am tired and want to go home," cries little Nell Marie Jones, as her father (center right) aided by Brownie, head clown of King Brothers, tries to bring out a laugh. Sister Linda Ann, looks on with a half-formed tear on her cheek.

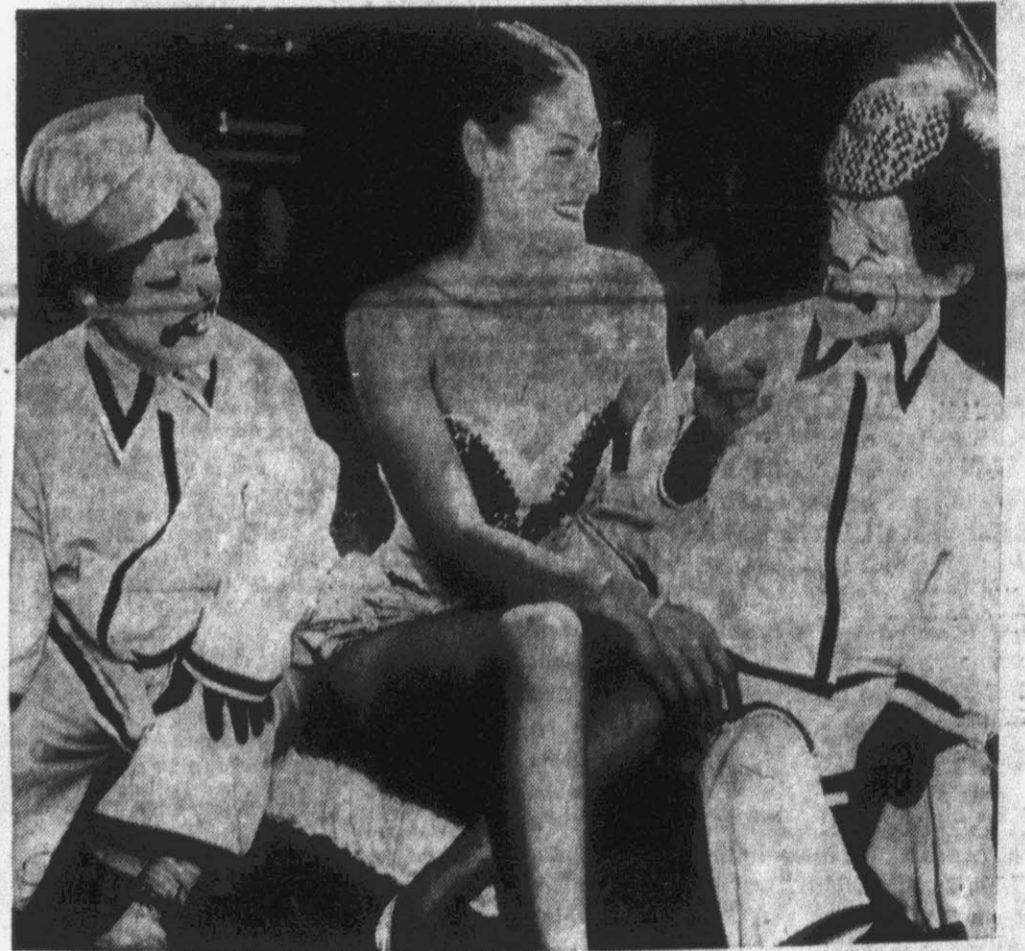

Nolly Tate, veteran clown of over 35 years service with the circus, takes time out to try and get a laugh from little Richard Baker of Greenville, but he seems to be taking in the main attractions at the time. (Photos by Staff Photographer Roy Hardee).

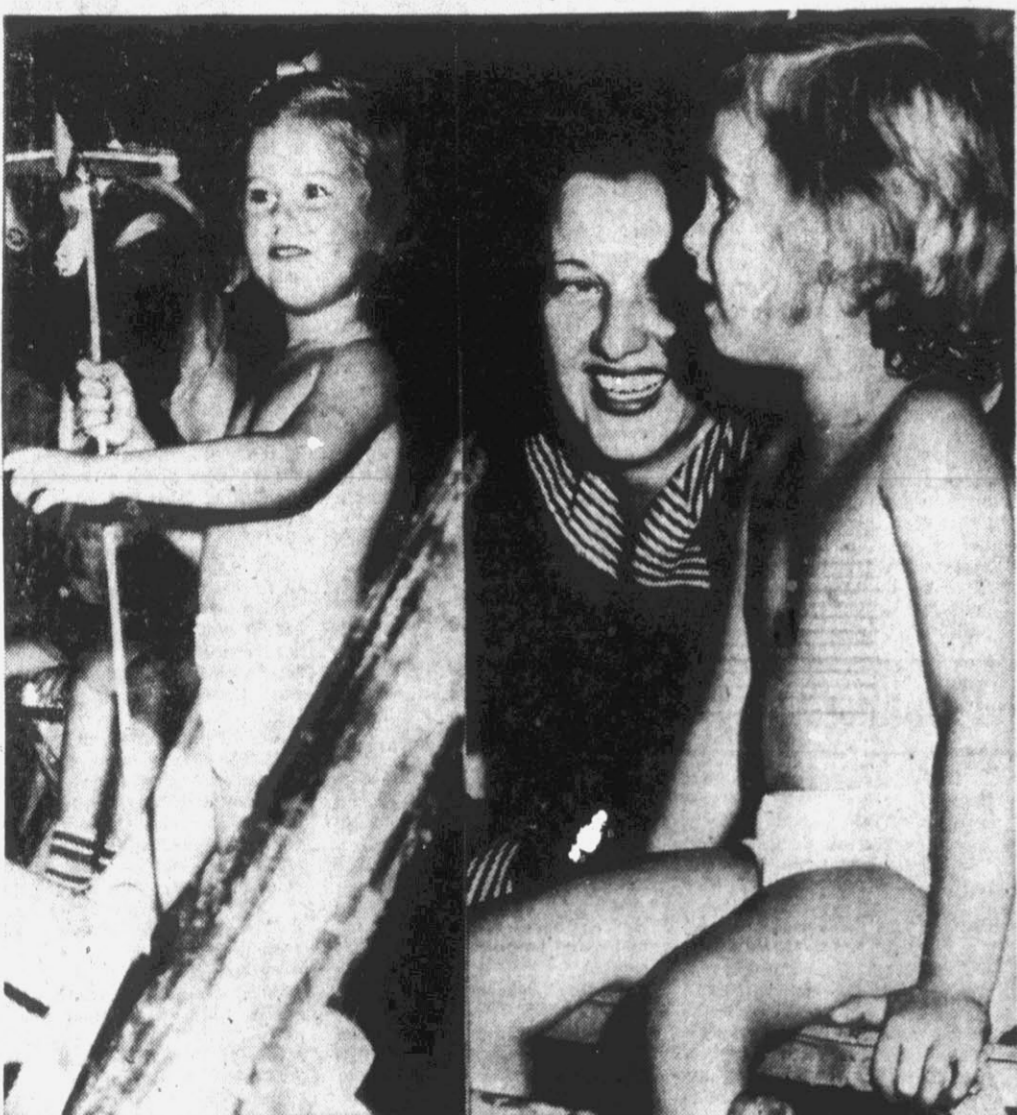

Little Charles Dees, holding a bag of peanuts, eyes the trunk of an elephant, debating whether or not to trust his hand so near the animal. However, Charles, urged on by his father in the center of the picture, finally found that feeding the animals under the big tent could be a lot of fun.

"She flies through the air with the greatest of ease" could be applied to the young lady above as she performs during the Wednesday night attraction of the King Brothers circus which was attended by overflow crowds.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS RELIABILITY
SUPPRESS THAT LAUGH
One of the outstanding leaders of American thought has recently pointed out that we as a people have got into the habit of being amused by crime and by evil in general.

We know, of course, how many people are willing to laugh at the drunk man. But if that convivial individual gets behind a steering gear and drives his car over two or three reputable citizens or perhaps their children, then the drunk man isn't quite so funny as he first appeared. Once in a while a criminal is held up as a good-natured Robin Hood who steals from the rich in order that he may give to the poor. There are women appearing on radio, stage, and television whose stock in trade is the fact that they live scandalous lives, and all this, after being promoted for advertising purposes, is glossed over because the dame in question happens to be a good-natured person who was willing to give some needy person her last dollar.

Evil is not funny, and it is not funny for the simple reason that it is evil. Our universe happens to be constructed in such a way that evil of any variety brings an end result which is disastrous. Stop laughing at evil. There are enough funny situations and funny people in the world to keep us chuckling without our guffawing over things that are lewd, intemperate, coarse, violent, and evil.

A Decision On A Business Basis

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided that saving the taxpayers $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 by placing a carrier wing base at Goldsboro is better than putting the base at Raleigh-Durham airport which a Senate subcommittee favored.

The Reflector is in accord with the committee action. The reactivation of Seymour Johnson air base at Goldsboro will be much less expensive to the government than the construction of new facilities at Raleigh-Durham. In spite of the fact that Raleigh-Durham received the approval of a Senate subcommittee, it would have been necessary to start from the ground up and build practically all new facilities at the airport. At Goldsboro, on the other hand, a great part of the facilities which were used during World War II are still standing awaiting further use. Some improvements will have to be made, there is no doubt, but it will be a much smaller undertaking than the construction of a complete new base.

In our opinion it would have been more advantageous politically for probably more people had the base been located at Raleigh-Durham, but from the standpoint of business the dollars and cents savings which Seymour Johnson field provided more than offset the political advantages of Raleigh-Durham.

More government decisions should be made with dollars and cents rather than politics as the determining factor.

An Invitation To Be Accepted

How long has it been since most of the adults of Greenville have been in one of the public schools of the city? Off hand we'd guess the length of time for the majority of the people would have to be measured in terms of years rather than months. If the average Mr. and Mrs. Greenville would take an hour or so off to look around inside the schools, they probably would be very surprised and pleased to see the interior changes which have been made since their last visit.

On Sunday afternoon Greenville schools are holding an open house for all the people of the city to give adults an opportunity to see exactly what facilities will be used by the children after the fall school term opens Monday morning.

The citizens of Greenville have approximately $2,000,000 invested in the physical plants of the public schools of the city, and where that much money is at stake, the people surely should be interested in looking around to see what they have to show for their money. The schools of Greenville may not be the most elaborate in North Carolina, but they still rank high among the schools of the state.

The open house will afford the people of Greenville a fine opportunity to review their acquaintance with the conditions of the city school buildings, and to meet the faculty members in whose hands lies the responsibility for educating the youngsters of Greenville.

The Reflector urges the citizens of the city to attend the open house the schools will be holding tomorrow afternoon.

Three-Fold Results From Retaliation Against Czechs

The economic and diplomatic retaliations threatened by the United States unless Czechoslovakia releases imprisoned AP Correspondent William N. Oatis should be followed through forcefully by this nation.

Oatis was sentenced to ten years in prison by the mock Czech court on a trumped up spy charge. Oatis' activities in Czechoslovakia were confined to doing a job of reporting for the American people—not spying for the United States government. The imprisonment of Oatis by the Communist government was another example of the Red strategy to "rub out" those individuals of whom they are afraid.

The Czech ambassador has declared that his government will not yield to the "trade, propaganda or political pressures" of the United States; but The Reflector is of the opinion the Communist tune will change once these pressures are brought to bear.

The incident has brought to light another step in the changing trend of the United States policy toward Communist nations. It is another departure from the policy of appeasement which this nation followed for too many months. The fact that the United States has the support of Britain and France in the proposed economic retaliations against Czechoslovakia likewise indicates those two nations are more inclined to stand their ground against Communist outrages than they were several months ago.

The economic and diplomatic retaliations bespeak more confidence on the part of the Western Allies and reflect the growth of military strength within the free nations of Western Europe.

It is necessary to bring retaliations into action against the Czechs to win for Oatis the freedom which he should have, the action will serve a three-fold purpose. It will result in Oatis' being freed; it will boost the confidence of the Western allies, and it will serve as a stumbling block to the Communists in their path of future moves.

News Behind The News
Every Saturday this veteran newspaper correspondent at Washington devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Miller Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—What kind of a Commission on Ethics in the Federal Government does Senator Paul Douglas plan to set up? asks T.S. of Richmond, Va. "Will it be a group of political hacks that will be just another official or semi-official agency to make us believe that conditions have been corrected? Or will it have power to remedy abuses recently disclosed by Congressional investigations?"

CENSORS—Answer: The Senator from Illinois. I am convinced, would like to create a body of official or unofficial censors of government morals that would command the respect of the public.

He has indicated that, besides framing a code defining "improper practices" for elected and appointive officials, as well as for the so-called lobbyists, he wants a commission to pass upon future violations of these standards.

In his quaint letter requesting lobbyists to give him advice on this question, he wrote: "We are thinking here of possible action by the public and by private and public interest groups, as well as action by the Congress and by Administrators."

Thus, I take it, he would seek members for the Commission on Ethics from distinguished citizens as well as from the ranks of experienced officials.

MEMBERS—Although these are only tentative suggestions, I have heard mentioned as possible members the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the Vice-President and Speaker of the House.

It is obvious that a few men with government background and service would be needed, for they know the ropes. As public representatives, men like Herbert Hoover, Bernard M. Baruch and Paul Hoffman have been proposed informally.

As I wrote earlier, there is still scant sympathy for the Douglas idea on Capitol Hill or around the White House. But the Senator is a purposeful and determined man. He may yet surprise—and confound—his detractors.

INGRATITUDE—"How does Secretary Acheson reconcile our generous treatment of India with Nehru's hostile attitude toward our policies in the Far East?" inquires M.R. of Brooklyn, N.Y. "I refer, of course, to our $190,000,000 shipment of wheat to his starving people and his refusal to sign the Japanese peace treaty because, in his opinion, it is too tough on Communist Russia and China!"

Answer: Poor Mr. Acheson makes no attempt to reconcile Prime Minister Nehru's ingratitude. Never, since I have been observing him at close range, have I seen him so upset and autistic as he was when Nehru assailed the provisions of the pact to be signed at San Francisco next Tuesday.

His official lecture of the Indian statesman was one of the sharpest criticisms of a foreign leader, barring the Russians, he has uttered.

The Piper

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

One of the most interesting stories in this week's news proves that it doesn't always pay to say exactly what you think. Joan Stocker, 18 years of age, is the wife of a U.S. Air Force sergeant stationed in Newmarket, England. For several months the Stockers have been living in England, boarding with English families.

One day Joan got completely fed up and sent a letter to her home town newspaper, the Palo Alto California Times. "We are writing," she said, "to let you people back home know just what is going on in the minds of the English. They believe Americans all have big houses, strings of cars, closets full of clothes and more money than we know what to do with. They charge us all fabulous prices for housing. We go into shops where prices aren't marked. The prices go up; we're Americans. A G.I. is considered a drunkard and a spendthrift. The English girls fall all over the GIs. You've never seen so many pickups and camp followers that tramp up and down the streets in this area. You have no idea how we American people and you people back home are talked about. All of us are the objects of remarks which are certainly nasty after what we've done for them." Joan's home town paper printed the letter.

It so happens that an Englishman lives in Joan's home town, so he clipped the story out of the newspaper and sent it to the newspaper in Newmarket, population 8,767. Most of the population started talking about Joan. The chairman of the district council said, "I and the rest of the town take a very poor view of it. We shall refuse it officially." The local newspapers in London grabbed the story and gave it a big play.

Just about everybody involved was greatly upset about Joan's letter except her landlords, Sid Taylor and his wife. Mrs. Taylor said, "It's a great pity Joan wrote the letter, but she and Ron have been our friends since they came here three months ago. They are welcome to stay as long as they like."

Joan was much more concerned. "I dare not leave the house. The local people might go for me. Sergeant Stocker said, 'As far as I am concerned, the neighbors can complain until their eyes drop out.'"

The Air Force public relations officers wanted to smooth the mess over. Joan soon made a statement for the press: "I would like to emphasize very strongly that I was not referring to the town of Newmarket. Our rent is just. The neighbors have all been swell. I am proud to live in Newmarket." Soon afterward, the town was calm again.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYN VISEBT

NO COMMENT—Ronald Houtt, Johnston county farmer, answered questions about whether he would be a candidate for congress against Harold Coolidge with the usual political expression: "No comment." The one-time director of the highway safety division and former member of the general assembly, was in Raleigh on other than political business, he said, but was taking advantage of the opportunity to find what the capitol square gossip is. He admitted he had received important offers of support for congress, but he didn't figure there is any great popular demand for his candidacy at this time.

CORN MEAL—T he gotten around to checking on the quality of corn meal offered for sale to the public. Casual approaches to the proposition have met with a spirit of cordial co-operation on part of millers and sellers of this primary ingredient of the basic diet of many North Carolinians. To most people corn meal is corn meal, about the only recognized difference in degree of fineness to which it is ground and in natural color. That used to be true, but modern processes have added hazards that were undreamed of by our grandfathers.

RESIDUARY—One of the things the scientists are interested in with respect to many plant and animal products used for human food is the indirect residual influence on the ultimate product of certain chemicals used in fertilization and pest control among lineal ancestors of the current animal or plant. This factor probably is less important with respect to corn meal than to many other foods. One of the reasons government chemists keep such close check on the ingredients going into feeds and fertilizers is because of the residual effect on consumers of meat and vegetables. It sounds crazy, but it isn't, to say that it is possible for sulfur drug content in livestock feeds to immunize human consumers against the beneficial effect of sulfur drugs used for treatment of certain ailments.

COMPLEX—This is just one illustration of the complexities of modern living, and it emphasizes truth of the dictum that solution of one problem frequently creates other new problems. Exact balance is difficult, almost impossible, to maintain. Control at one end throws the scales out of balance, requiring control on the other side, and the process continues in a sort of endless circle. That has been the history of government and economics. The pendulum swings from absolute monarchy to dictatorship of the proletariat, with equally unsatisfactory results. Ruthless dominance by big corporations gave place to equally ruthless control by big labor unions. Too rigid laws restricting the rise of gangster mobs with apparently greater power than established government. The killing of one kind of bug left the way open for other bugs, upon which they had preyed, to take over as control, leaving humankind at as much disadvantage as ever.

OLD STORY—All this is a long way from the matter of pure food laws as applied to corn meal—and still it isn't so far away. It is essentially the age-old story of the fox dividing the cheese until there wasn't any to divide, and the contest between the lichen and the rats. Re-

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TRAINING SAFE DRIVERS (New Bern Sun-Journal)
The significance of a large and rapid group of safety-trained young drivers, who usually have only one-third as many accidents as untrained students, is noted by Julian H. Harvey, manager of the accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies. More than two million youths have received special courses in their schools during the last four years to make them safer drivers when they take the wheel of the family car or drive their own automobiles.

School-trained drivers in 48 states now comprise more than three per cent of the nation's 80,000,000 drivers, says Mr. Harvey, and they are increasing at the rate of 600,000 a year. It is twice the rate of four years ago. Ten states have won the Association's Superior Awards for offering courses in driver education during the 1950-51 academic year in at least 50 per cent of their secondary schools, with not less than half of the eligible students enrolled. North Carolina is included among the states which won awards for giving driver education courses in at least 25 per cent of their secondary schools, with not less than 25 per cent of eligible students enrolled.

"Driver education has been found to be one of the best answers to the problem of reducing the growing toll of death, injury and damage on the highways," says Mr. Harvey. "The growing acceptance of these courses and the steadily-increasing number of boys and girls trained in them in the ways of traffic safety for themselves and others offer real hope that in the not-too-distant future every youth will receive driver education in schools before taking the wheel of the family automobile or driving his or her own car. Were it not for the progress driver education has made, I shudder to think what the accident toll might be today."

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The degree of success of the Defense Bond drive that opens Monday and continues through October 31 will have important implications for retailers and manufacturers. It will be a measure of how much the public is committed to the idea of saving as opposed to spending for consumer goods.

One of the factors that has reduced sales since the early months of this year is the rise in savings. Total personal income has been rising during that period but sales have not risen in ratio.

The Department of Commerce figures on savings for the last year and a half reflect, mirror-like, three trends in consumer's buying. The quarterly savings, at annual rates, have been:

1950	billions
1st quarter	12.5
2nd quarter	8.9
3rd quarter	4.6
4th quarter	16.8
1949
1st quarter	9.3
2nd quarter	19.8

Savings during the first two quarters of 1950 moved along at normal rates; then when the start of the Korean shooting touched off a buying panic, savings dropped to a third of what they had been during the first quarter. In the fourth quarter, the scare of shortages diminished and savings rose. Then came the January-February spurt in buying, reducing the rate of savings in the first quarter of this year. Then buyers' resistance rose and savings jumped to close to twenty billion dollars, at annual rates.

If buying of Defense Bonds starts off at higher rates than the Treasury expects; if city after city tops its quota, it will be a pretty good indication that the public is continuing its buying resistance. On the other hand, if bond sales lag, it will be an indication that the public is stepping up purchases.

This does not mean that merchants should fear the bond drive. With personal income running at more than $250,000,000 at annual rates, there is plenty of income for a high rate of consumption of goods, for taxes and for savings. And money put into bonds grows to become a greater buying power later on.

GRAIN STOCKS UP 56 PER CENT IN FOUR NATIONS

Grain stocks in the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—the four principal exporting countries—were on July 1 for the third successive year above average on year, the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations reports. The United States has 54,550,000 short tons, compared with an average of 22,795,000 tons. Canada had 10,775,000 tons, compared with an average of 7,480,000 tons. Australia has 3,202,000 tons, compared with an average of 2,604,000 tons.

ALLOY: An alloy that eliminates the tendency of many stainless materials to corrode when used in plugs and valve discs has been developed by Copper Alloy Foundry Co., Hillside, N. J. The alloy, V2B, is said to be three times harder than alloys ordinarily used.

SHAKERS: Salt and pepper shakers in the shape of whimsical angels, with white robes and gold wings, are being in-Corp., 240 Madison Ave., New York.

MEMORANDUM: A bottle of liquid plastic and 15 assorted patches constitute a new plastic mending kit, said to be useful in repairing most plastic items. It is by Novelty Plastics, 2314 Rhode Island Ave., N. E. Washington, D. C.

FINISH: A finish for rayon covers, rayon shawl gabardine and other fabrics is said to repel water and to resist food, beverage and perspiration stains. It is by Mande Fabrics, Inc., 1413 Broadway, New York.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—War is for people who don't know any better—or who can't help themselves.

It interrupts or destroys the chief pleasure of this world—which is to live happily.

War is the last resort of a nation that tells another nation it must have its way, by force if necessary.

The fact it also says its goal is peace is confusing. By peace it means, "I want my own way and my own system."

Wars, birthed by ambition or principle, have tended to end in the same way: they renew chaos instead of achieving order.

All leaders, dictatorial or democratic, throughout history have sent millions of men to bloody death on strange battlefields to win a victory by force of arms that can only be temporary.

How can war achieve permanency when it is most often merely hate against the foreigners?

Rome finally killed Carthage, and then Rome sickened and died. "By" She couldn't police her own great system.

The Romans spread a colossal net of awe for order that still afflicts us, their conquerors, after the barbarian outbreaks of these many centuries. The passion for a pattern that the Romans set still endures.

And one who has a hopeful eye about the march of history cannot feel that the passage of 20 centuries has been less than a step toward a unified world. Hope is better than a timetable.

Napoleon and Hitler tried to achieve world unity by the direct assault of power. So had Alexander the Great. The British, a small people with a great mind, worked by the twin channels of prestige and strategic strength toward the same goal.

The muscle of America rules the world today except for the untested might of Russia. Not only the muscle of America but its dreams. Dreams can win, too.

What happens to the world in our time depends on whether America and Russia bump heads and heads in battle.

Will they?

They sometime and somehow may probably have to do so, but I am optimistic enough to believe it won't be tomorrow.

As the world has shrunk, great nations have tended to fight each other just as small nations in Europe once could afford the luxury of enmity expressed in combat.

But this irresponsibility is dying...

Sometime some nation in the long story of mankind must pledge its money and men, and minerals underground to something finer than either future profit or boyish restlessness—the goal of eternal peace.

Men and nations often reach for power because they are ne-

Washington Letter

By MARGARET KERNOLDE (For JANE EADS)
WASHINGTON—Girls, are you looking for adventure? York that could be difficult and dangerous? State Department officials say there are more and more opportunities in the field of foreign affairs.

Carlisle H. Humelsine, deputy undersecretary for state administration, told me "Their duties in many outposts are difficult and dangerous, but they have demonstrated courage and patriotism countless times." He said 10 times as many American women are in foreign service today as just before World War II.

Today about 30 per cent of the Americans in foreign service are women—2,665 out of 8,910 persons at 300 posts in 73 countries.

This year the promotion of a former school teacher to the top of the American corps in foreign service brought cheers from government girls. Frances Elizabeth Willis, native of Metropolis, Ill., once taught history at Gouches College and political science at Vassar. Now she's a foreign service officer, class one, at Helsinki, Finland, making more than $12,000 a year.

She is the first American woman to reach the top of the career foreign service ladder. During her 25 years in that service she has been stationed at Valparaiso, Santiago, Stockholm, Brussels, Luxembourg, Madrid and London.

As acting chief of missions at Helsinki, she is on a technical par with Ambassador Figenie Anderson (Denmark) and Minister Perle Mesta (Luxembourg).

Foreign service assignments for women include 1,500 clerks or stenographers and 800 translators, interpreters and librarians.

Four American women have been in foreign service at least 10 years. They are Margaret Carnes, a clerk at Mexico City; Bertha Carr, a political officer at Istanbul; Doris H. Corrigan, a cashier at Montreal and Agnes Schneider, a consul at Paris.

The State Department prides itself on the work of wives of men in foreign service too. Some officials told me the wives of ten must work as hard—without pay—as their husbands.

This is the hand of Justice. It reproves those people who have strayed from the path of truth and good living. Honest men and righteous men have chosen another hand; one which is not pictured here. They never need the reproof of Justice, for they have chosen the Hand of God. Each man is free to decide which hand will lead him. Some never see the Hand of God, and their way through life is barren and pointless. But with the help of the Church, you can find the right path. By attending its services and joining in its work, your way through life can be made straight and happy. Take the Hand of God, and you need never fear stern Justice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Joe Rowland Elected Honor Captain Of Green Phantoms, Team Looks Good

Backs Get Off Several Long Runs Against Wilson High In Scrimmage Wednesday Afternoon; Linemen Progressing Fast

Joe Rowland, veteran guard, has been elected honor captain of the 1951 Green Phantoms.

Rowland was elected by his teammates in an election held earlier in the week. He will serve throughout the year, while Coach Bill Kittrell will appoint a co-captain for each game.

After two weeks of practice, Coach Kittrell is pleased with the showing of his squad, but still believes the smallness of the team. The practice squad numbers only 17 players.

Backs Glenn Scott, Doug Morgan, Sid Briley, and Bob Perry looked good against Wilson High in a scrimmage held Wednesday afternoon. They got off several long runs through the middle of the Wilson line.

Scott also gave an inkling of what was to come during the season by completing five of eight passes.

Linemen Rowland, Charles Huffstetter, Sam Hux, Bobby Nunn, Wallace Conway, and Bobby Conway were outstanding in the scrimmage against the triple A foes. These boys have been standouts in practice sessions throughout the year.

Kittrell sent in his second string defensive line during the first part of the mock Wilson game, but after two touchdowns had been scored by Wilson, he sent his first stringers into the contest, who immediately stopped the opposition cold, not allowing them past the 20-yard line.

The Phantoms have two more weeks of practice before the first game, with Edenton here on September 14. With more players expected after the opening of school next week, Kittrell has hopes of fielding a strong team.

Lopez Tries To Stop Skidding

CLEVELAND (UP)—Manager Al Lopez of the Cleveland Indians, still looking for the right combination of what he believes to be the world's best ball players, studied his lineup today, trying to decide if another change might end the Tribe's alarming slump.

Still managing a smile after last night's 6 to 3 drubbing at the hands of the last-place St. Louis Browns, Lopez jestingly considered himself and general manager Hank Greenberg as possible replacements.

The Indians' desperate need for a dependable hitter was seen in their consideration of the 25-year-old Rudy York as a possible first base replacement or pinch hitter. York has pored his weight down, but his four years out of major league competition weigh heavily against success.

"We're willing to try anything, though," Greenberg said.

Basketball

Pictures of the 1950 North Carolina State - Louisville and State - Michigan basketball games will be shown Tuesday night in the armory.

The pictures will be shown at 8 p.m.

Little League emblems have arrived and the players are requested by Warren Carroll to pick them up at the armory.

Bucs Scrimmage

East Carolina will hold open house tonight for the football public at a scrimmage between the members of the 1951 Pirate squad. It is the first day of fall practice and will be the only time that the public will be allowed to watch the Bucs practice.

Too Many Bosses For Davis Cup?

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

America's hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia were fading rapidly today because direction of the U. S. tennis forces is divided among three bosses instead of the whole show being run by one man.

The situation is so hushed up that it is even money, in tennis circles, that the over-directed and under-tutored Americans may not even get past Sweden in the inter-zone finals which precede the challenge round "down under" in December.

Frank Shields, who could handle the team competently because of his tournament experience, is the titular head of the team. But he walks in the shadows of Walter Pate and Alrick Man, two former non-playing captains who will accompany him and the team to Australia. It is a situation where Shields is often second-guessed—and too often first-guessed.

Australia, on the other hand, puts its team squarely in the hands of Harry Hopman. A former Davis Cupper, as is Shields, Hopman teaches workable court strategy instead of table cloth tactics, so the Aussies look like a cinch to keep the silverware.

The pennant race is decided—in the Class D Wisconsin State league, that is. The Sheboygan Indians became the first team in organized baseball to nail a 1951 pennant to the mast when they boosted their lead to 13 games last week with 12 left to play.

Now that Old Fearless has picked the 1951 all-America football team, the 1955 Kentucky Derby winner and the 1959 heavyweight champion (Rocky Marciano, who should be old enough by then), J. O. Townsend of Kansas City wants to know who's gonna win the pennant in the major league races this season.

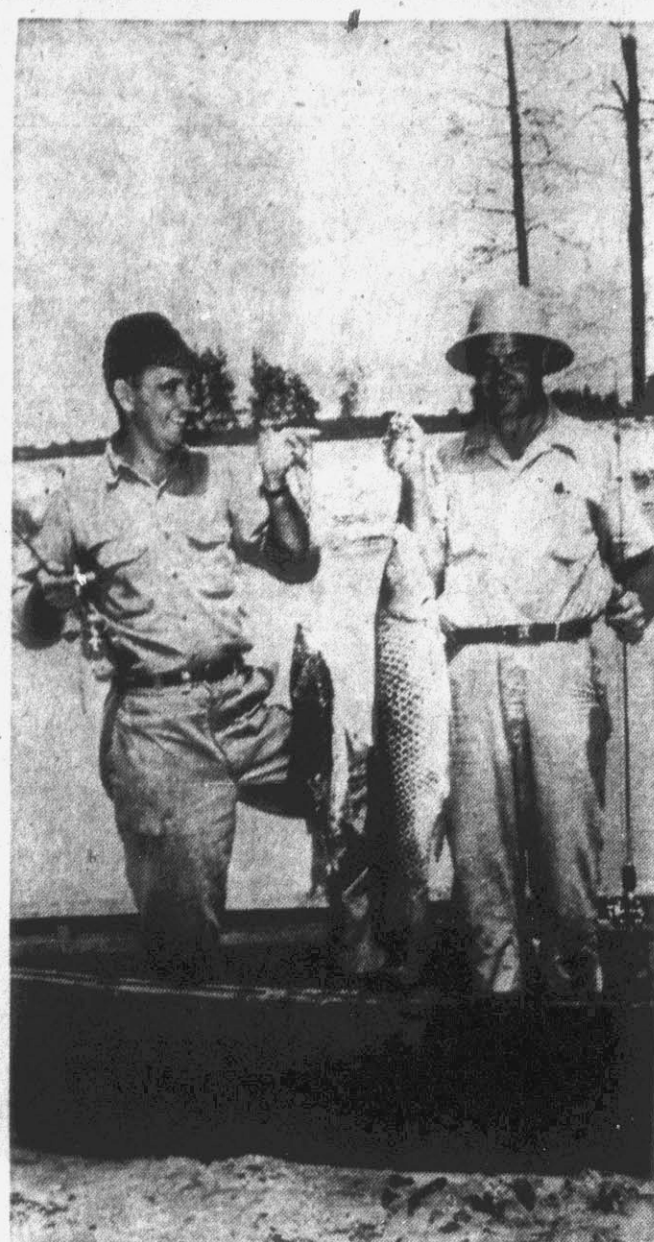

In the National League I don't see how Brooklyn can lose it, and across the street it's the Yankees . . . which may call for some hasty revision the night of Sept. 30.

Gunder Haag, the Swedish swiftry who set the mile record of 4:01.4 a couple of years back, just could not get fast enough on foot. The one-time thin man, who now looks like Herman Hickman on a curtain stretcher, has become a motorcycle racer. . . and he says it's easier, too.

Happy Birthday: Monday, Eddie Stanky, 34, and Bob Hoernschmeyer, 26; Tuesday, Eddie Waitkus, 32, Red Corriden, 64, Bill Talbert, 33, and Eddie Moylan, 28; Wednesday, Gene Bearden, 31, and Max Bishop, 52; Thursday, Maxie Rosenbloom, 47, Porky Oliver, 36, and Vince DiMaggio, 39; Friday, Nap LaJoie, 76, and Paul Brown, 43.

Conservation Corner: The parrot doesn't build a nest but lays its eggs in the dust which accumulates in the trunks of dead trees. . . (The question is, how do you get a decayed tree trunk to a park Avenue apartment?)

Ransom Jackson, third baseman for the Chicago Cubs, was a star baseball and football player for both Texas University and Texas Christian University.

NOT MANTEO but right here in Pitt County. Yes, R. A. McLawhorn, Jr. (left), and Frank Young caught these fish within ten minutes drive of Greenville. They were pulled from a privately owned lake known as "Beaver Dam Lake," out on the Stantonburg highway, on the R. A. McLawhorn farm. The lake will be opened to the public Monday morning.

Southern Conference Gets Started In Football Today

REICHMOND (AP)—It was "up with the chickens" today for a good many of nearly 1,000 football hopefuls as pre-season platoon practice got under way among the 16 teams of the Southern Conference.

It was a dubious distinction for Maryland—pre-season favorite. Few have lived up to their advance billing in recent years in the sprawling loop that covers Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and the District of Columbia.

With nearly 100 men scheduled to report for practice, Coach Jim Tatum frankly admits it's "the best team I've ever coached." He has his entire backfield corps working mentioning back from last year, and his line is bulwarked by All-American guard Be Ward.

But strange things have happened to favorite in the Southern Conference before, and Tatum confesses his team could lose seven games if the worst that could happen should . . . about.

Guard J. J. Dudeck heads 25 returning lettermen at Carolina, which faces a tough schedule but has home highly publicized talent. Clemson lost its "dream back"—sid of last year, but has a strong line. About 70 men—a lot of them top caliber material—are scheduled to greet new coach Tom Rogers who replaces D. C. (Peahead) Walker, at Wake Forest.

Rex Wright, the dean of Southern Conference coaches in point of continuous service — he's been at South Carolina since 1939 — has about Steve Wadlak to top a list of about 20 returning varsity men and rising sophomores.

Former Duke star Bill Mauer takes over his alma mater, replacing Wallace Wade, who had coached the Blue Devils since 1938 with time out for war service. Wade now is conference commissioner.

Another new coach, Marvin Bass — former line mentor — replaces R. H. (Rube) McCray at William and Mary with a team of questionable status. McCray said it was the "best bunch of boys" in the last seven years at the time he resigned in the midst of a college scandal.

Three of the teams—Duke, Carolina and W & M—will be using T formation plays this season for a first time after years of operating exclusively from the single wing.

But Tar Heel coach Carl Snavely — a Clemson mentor Frank Howard, despite his backfield losses — can be counted on to field strong outfits.

Tom Nugent, the offense-experimenter at Virginia Military, could turn out the surprise outfit of the conference. The Keydets already are being tabbed the "dark horse" team with host of returning veterans and a fortunate conference schedule.

Crippled Savitt Wins; Tries For Semi-Final Post

By STEVE SNIDER United Press Sports Writer FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—

The odds were dead set against 19-year-old Nick Savitt today as the Orange, N. J. giant bid for a berth in the semi-finals of the U. S. tennis championship against steady Budge Patty of Los Angeles.

Savitt hobbled into the quarter-finals yesterday with a 6-3, 6-1, 6-3 victory over 10th-seeded Straight Clark of Pasadena, Cal., despite an infection that stiffened his left leg. But Patty is in superb form and threatened to thwart Savitt's bid for a grand slam of the Australian, Wimbledon and U. S. crowns.

In the other quarter-final on the day's schedule, fourth-seeded Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Cal., was matched against seventh-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

The winners will join defending champion Art Larsen of San Leandro, Cal., and Frank Sedgman of Australia, who reached the semi-finals yesterday with hard-fought victories on the center court.

Sedgman put down a nerve-rattling assault by 21-year-old Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, overpowering the rising American star in the fifth set after Tony had rallied to win the fourth.

Larsen advanced one notch by sweeping the remaining two games of a match against 18-year-old Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., which had been carried over because of darkness, and then rode into the semi-finals with a 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 triumph over his long-time foe, Gardner Mulloy of Miami.

Savitt relied almost solely on his booming service and long ground-strokes to eliminate Clark.

"It's lucky he made so many errors," said Savitt. "My leg bothered me quite a bit when I tried to move around. I'll try to play Patty but I sure hope I can run better."

In women's singles, Wimbledon champion Doris Hart of Miami was paired against Nancy Chaffe of Beverly Hills, Cal., in one quarter-final and Mrs. J. J. Walker-Smith of England against Mrs. Magda Rurac of Los Angeles in the other.

Shirley Fry of Akron, O., and Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Cal., reached the semi-finals yesterday with triumphs over British Wimbledon Cup players. Miss Fry turned back Kay Tuckey, 9-7, 3-6, 6-2, and Miss Connolly, the 16-year-old galley favorite, trimmed Jean Quertley, 6-3, 6-3.

Yankees Gain As Indians Lose To St. Louis, 6-3

Cleveland Fans Are Good Players

CLEVELAND (AP)—"You people in Cleveland have some darned good ball players," St. Louis Browns manager Zack Taylor insisted today.

Zack, of course, was not talking about the Indians. He meant one of the fans in the right field stands. He is positive one of them caught Bob Lemon's home run ball in the seventh inning last night.

Cliff Mages, who is paid to catch baseball, was standing in right field when Lemon smashed one. According to Mages and Taylor, Mages stood against the wall, and without jumping, put the glove in the line of flight.

When he squeezed, they said, nothing was there, but at that very moment a "human hand reached out."

Umpire Bill Summers — a "good umpire" in Taylor's words — decisively ruled that the ball bounced off Mages' glove into the stands. One lady, seated six or seven rows back, held up the sphere as proof and the other fans in that section argued that Summers was right.

But Taylor was so sure Mages had the correct version that he argued until he was thrown out of the game.

"I still think a fan — I don't know whether it was a man or woman — caught that ball," he said good naturedly (after all, he won, 6 to 3) "and I think he or she should own up to it."

"Mages wasn't so amazed when the ball wasn't in his glove, he started looking for it on the ground and couldn't find it. It was the darnedest thing you ever saw."

Mages reported: "Reached right in and grabbed it. I should have pulled him out of the stands." Utterly unconcerned about that little byplay was former Indian Satchel Paige, who entered the game in the ninth inning with two on and nobody out, and walked a man to load the bases.

Then he stopped the Indians with-out a hit, allowing only one run.

seven in the $63,400 Hopeful at Saratoga.

Both colts have bounced into contention for the two-year-old championship in recent weeks, and should both win today their expected meeting in the Belmont Futurity next month will shape up as a "natural."

World Series Contestants Could Be Settled Over Labor Day Weekend; Dodgers Lead By Seven Games

By CARL LUNDQUIST United Press Sports Writer

Thirty days hath September but it probably won't take that many to set up another World Series battle between the Yankees and the Dodgers.

Both races, for all practical purposes, could be settled over the long Labor Day weekend.

In the American League, the Indians are skidding and the Yankees aren't kidding. In the National the Giants, who have been kept alive only on the hope of a miracle, are apt to find shortly that it was a mirage instead that they were chasing.

The big battle today is in the Polo Grounds and it could be a "last chance" for the Giants as they meet the Dodgers in a two-game series with everything at stake. The Giants trail the Dodgers by seven full games and if they should win both today and tomorrow, they would only regain the ground they lost this week when their 16-game winning streak was broken.

Despite the fact the Giants won three in a row from the Dodgers the last time they met, Brooklyn still enjoys a 12-6 record for the season and the club seems to be clicking again, particularly at bat.

Ralph Branca, who just missed a no-hitter in the ninth inning in his last start for Brooklyn, will be shooting for his 13th victory. Sal Maglie, considered by many the best pitcher in the National, will oppose him. But he has tapered off of late from his terrific early season pace, whereas Branca has been coming strongly.

There should be much more excitement in the American League where the Yankees enjoy only a one-game margin over the Indians, but it is beginning to look as if Cleveland is in the midst of another of its notorious fold-ups under pressure.

The Indians were at low ebb last night when they dropped their sixth game in the last eight starts to the last-place Browns, 6 to 3. Bob Lemon, who had been the Cleveland "stopper" of late, had his winning streak stopped at seven games. Hank Arft and Fred Marsh tagged him for homers as the Browns collected 11 hits in all.

In the ninth, with the bases loaded and none out, old Satchel Paige came in and cut things off with one run, striking out Larry Doby to end the game.

In the only other game in the majors, the still-alive White Sox topped the Tigers, 2 to 0, as ex-Detroitier Saul Rogovin pitched a seven-hitter. The victory put them 10 1/2 games behind the idle Yankees. Nellie Fox singled, stole second, went to third on a wild throw and scored on a two-base error by shortstop Johnny Ligon on linie Mino's grounder. Eddie Robinson drove in Mino with a single.

Apps Begin Practice With 65 Expected To Turn Out

By BILL GARVEY

BOONE—Sixty-five hopefuls will scamper into the September 1 dawn to begin football practice at Appalachian State Teachers College. The Mountaineers, defending North State Conference champions, will not have as many candidates to choose from as in recent years.

Since the "war," opening day has found as many as 115 men ready for the campaign for honors, but the draft has found its way to the 1-top campus and has trimmed the field considerably.

Fifteen lettermen return to the Appalachian fold—nine linemen and six backs. The line will not be as potent as it sounds, however, because both first string tackles and offensive ends are either victims of graduation or Uncle Sam.

The beginning of Preston Mull's college coaching career leaves him with a big problem in replacing these ends and tackles. The biggest loss to the squad was suffered last week when all-conference center Mac Smith entered the Army. Line reserves with varsity experience are also at a premium, although experienced guards are on tap. Newcomers must fill the gap and bear the load or Appalachian must take her lumps.

The backfield shapes up as just a little better than last year. Jack Groce, shifty right halfback from Wilkesboro is ready for the race this year and he has his weather eye cocked at laurels that will surpass his 1000 yard rushing total and the state's high scoring mark. Lester Hardin and Ray Triplett are slated for duty at fullback and left half, with Alvin Hooks, and Steve Gabriel alternating at the quarterback slot. Capable backfield reserves are in abundance.

A scant twelve days of practice is all the mountain boys will have at their disposal before their opening contest. Conditioning drills will occupy much of the opening week of practice with work on offense and defense coming the second week. Appalachian opens with Guilford in Winston-Salem on September 15.

The Chicago Cardinals have seven tackles, six of whom weigh more than 250 pounds. The "light" tackle is 235-pound George Eberle.

DuPont Speaker Addresses Club

The DuPont Company's plant on the Greenville-Kinston highway will be ready to start manufacture of "Dacron," a new dress material in 1953, E. V. Albrechtson, service superintendent, said at the Kiwanis Club last night.

The speaker gave a brief narrative history of the DuPont company from the time it was started for the manufacture of black powder down to the present. Referring to the plants in Delaware, Albrechtson said the DuPonts always have been loyal to their employees. He enumerated some benefits provided by the company in the way of accident and health insurance, social security, etc. He said if a man quits his job or is laid off, the insurance in force takes care of him for 31 days afterwards. The company also participates in rehabilitation of injured employees. After a year's service, employees are given two weeks' vacation with pay.

The DuPont superintendent, who is stationed at Kinston, was frank in his answers to a broadside of questions fired at him by the Kiwanians. He stressed the point of the friendly relations prevailing between the DuPonts and their employees.

Replying to a question about what effect locating the DuPont plant in this section would have on the prosperity of the community, Albrechtson said the company would probably start with about 1,400 employees. He said key officials are imported, but the general run of employees will be recruited in this section.

In concluding, he said with emphasis, "the Greenville-Kinston highway, in the course of a few years, will be a surprise to the average citizen. Progress and development invariably follow where DuPont plants are established."

J. Edmund Waldrop, had charge of the program, and introduced the speaker. President H. Glenn Haney presided.

Try Four Cases In Police Court Friday Morning

Police Court was in session a short time yesterday morning until important cases had been tried. Some cases were continued.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee adjourned court to permit lawyers to leave for New Bern to attend a one-day meeting of the Fifth District.

J. T. Oakley, charged with abandonment and non-support, was called and he failed to answer to his name. A capias instantar was issued for him.

John H. Streeter Negro, paid $25 and costs for not having a driver's license.

Edward Jenkins, Negro, found guilty of assault, was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on condition that he remain of good law for six months. The charge of assault with a deadly weapon was combined with the above charge, Solicitor Ell Bloom said.

CAP Unit Plans Staff Session In Near Future

Units of the Civil Air Patrol will meet in the near future to discuss plans for better public information releases and to consist inter-unit activities.

The staff meeting will consist of three eastern North Carolina units, the Washington-Greenville unit, the Kinston unit, and the New Bern unit. Plans are being made for joint search missions and field days among units to get the pilots together and compete in contests.

At the first of the week three officers of the Washington-Greenville unit met with the New Bern flight there. The officers were Captain W. W. Moore, Captain M. L. Mason, and Warrent Officer L. H. Sheppard.

Legion Sponsors Wartime Show

Pitt County Post No. 39, American Legion, is sponsoring "The Pay-off" depicting the fate of some late enemies, including Hitler, Mussolini and Admiral Togo. "The Pay Off" will be shown in a trailer truck at Fourth and Evans streets next Monday and Tuesday. No admission will be charged. Lester Turnage, American Legion commander, said. Those who visit the trailer truck may donate any amount they desire. The Legion post will share in the profits.

Somewhat Cooler

Yesterday was not as hot as the same day a year ago. Highest yesterday was 89 degrees, and the highest yesterday a year ago was 95.

Lowest temperature here last night was 71, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 74. One-sixteenth of an inch of rain fell during the day, Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

New Pastor At Pentecostal Holiness Church

The Rev. Harvey E. Johnson will assume the pastorate of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Greenville beginning with the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning. Mr. Johnson has had wide experience as evangelist, pastor, and conference superintendent. He is a native North Carolinian but served in Northern conferences of his church until three years ago when he transferred back to his home conference and assumed the pastorate of the Wilmington P.H. Church.

Rev. Johnson succeeds the Rev. Ralph R. Johnson who has been pastor of the Greenville P.H. Church for the past five years. Mr. Ralph R. Johnson goes to Wilmington.

Charge Negro With Assault With Knife Albemarle Avenue

Police arrested Elie Leggett, 42, Negro tenant farmer, Route 2, Ayden, on Albemarle Avenue yesterday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on G. W. Roebuck, Negro.

Roebuck signed a warrant against Leggett, charging him with assaulting him with a knife. He will be tried in Police Court next Monday morning.

Martha Pingel Addresses Club

Dr. Pingel spoke on "Luck" and ty of East Carolina College last night addressed the members of the Greenville Exchange Club.

Dr. Pingel spoke on "Luck" and traced for the club a series of lucky events occurring during her search for material for her thesis on Richard Hildreth.

The Exchange Club voted to approve the project sponsored by the local chapter of the Red Cross for establishing a blood bank for Greenville.

President Robert Moye who presided at the meeting told the club the report on King Brothers circus, sponsored in Greenville by the Exchange club, was incomplete because some bills are still outstanding, but he added the club made a "little money" in sponsoring the appearance of the show. Beginning next Friday night the meetings of the Exchange club will be held at 6:30 instead of 7 o'clock as they have been during the summer months.

Girl Scout News

Scout troops will start regular weekly meetings beginning with the week of September 10. The number of each troop with the time and place of meeting will be released the first of next week. The Scout enrollment has increased until it is necessary to organize at least four more troops to adequately care for all Scouts and Brownies. Leaders and suitable places for troop meetings are greatly needed. If anyone will help as a leader, or as assistant leader, or can offer a suitable meeting place, please call Mrs. J. K. Long, commissioner, at 4814 or the Scout office 2229.

The council will provide a day of training for all leaders and prospective leaders before troop meetings begin. Each leader will be given an opportunity to become acquainted with the Scout program and how to carry it out. The time and place of this training course will be announced at an early date.

The colored Scouts will begin their meetings at the same time as the white Scouts. Their training program has not been worked out, but will be soon. Two of the leaders, Miss Catherine Caesar and Miss Lotys Gray spent six days in Greensboro at a Scout workshop with Miss Figner from the national branch office as director. These two leaders will give the others the benefit of what they got from the course.

Willis Crandall, Route 1, Robertsonville, to Lela Keel, Robertsonville.

Two Cars Collide On West Fifth

Two cars collided on West Fifth Street, near Tyson street, about 7 a.m. today and considerable damage resulted. No arrest was made.

The investigating officer said a car driven by John F. Moore, Negro, Route 1, Stokes, and one driven by James W. Allen, Negro, 413 Ford street, collided during a fog. Allen's car struck the rear of Moore's vehicle.

Estimated damage to Moore's car was $50; Allen's, $150.

Proclaim Flea is Bigger Nuisance

ALBANY, Ga. (UP)—The Dougherty County health department officially proclaimed the flea a greater nuisance here than the mosquito, and said the exodus of Labor Day weekend vacationers would make things worse.

When dog owners take their pets away with them, the health department explained, fleas hatching in this section's sandy soil find so few animals to feed upon they seek human hosts.

Twice Knocked Down By Auto

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Donald C. Hammond faced reckless driving charges today after his car knocked down Mrs. Horace Monday twice.

Hammond's car grazed Mrs. Monday, 26, sending her sprawling. As she got up the car lunged forward, felling the woman again and bruising her hip and arm.

Gross area of forest lands in New Mexico is 20,000,000 acres.

Scott Silent On Hodges' Running

RALEIGH (AP)—Governor Scott declined to be drawn out yesterday by new men on the reported gubernatorial candidacy of State Treasurer Brandon Hodges.

Scott was asked at his news conference what he thought of Hodges as a candidate for governor in the 1952 race.

He replied: "Brandon has done a good job as state treasurer. He would do all right."

Asked if this statement was an indication that Hodges is "your second or third choice" in the developing race for governor, Scott said: "No, it does not indicate that."

Hodges has said that he is seriously considering running for governor next year.

The governor has indicated he would support Capus Waynick if Waynick should run for governor.
