Truce Delegates Confer In Tokyo

Confident Negotiations Will Be Resumed; Communists Claim Manchuria Bombed; Van Fleet Predicts Reds Will Eventually Accept UN Armistice Terms

TOKYO (UP)—Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate to the Korean cease-fire talks, flew in to Tokyo today for conferences with U.N. supreme commander Matthew B. Ridgway as high officials indicated their confidence that negotiations will resume.

A spokesman refused to comment on Joy's visit.

In Korea, 8th Army commander James A. Van Fleet said he believes truce talks will be resumed. He said he thought the Communists will accept a cease-fire line on U.N. terms.

Peiping radio, in an English-language broadcast, claimed that a U. S. heavy bomber dropped a bomb Aug. 29 at Shihchutsechen in Liaoning province and then flew off in the direction of Korea.

Later the same day, Peiping radio said another bomber flew over Yungtcheng and Antung—in the area where the Chinese have a big airfield.

Peiping also cited "imperialist disturbances" caused by warships Aug. 29. The vessels appeared off the Shantung coast Aug. 29 and 30, Peiping said, and turned searchlights on Chinese cities and fired signals flares.

There was no break in the propaganda war between the Communist radio stations and Ridgway's "Voice of the United Nations Command" through the 12th day of the suspension of cease-fire talks.

The "Voice" charged today that there was a definite link between the stalling of the Reds and the San Francisco Japanese treaty conference.

"The Reds may be deliberately prolonging Korea's suffering and frustrating its eventual unification in order to blackmail the rest of the world at San Francisco," the Allied broadcast said.

"Once again the Communists have made the Korean people victims of Red hypocrisy and greed."

The Red radio repeated its old charges of U.N. violations of Kaesong's neutrality, but Sunday night threw in a veiled hint about the support of the Soviet Union.

A Peiping broadcast stressed Red China's tie with Russia, quoting messages from Mao Tse Tung and Stalin reaffirming their military friendship against "aggression in Asia."

BLACKLISTED HONG KONG (UP)—Communist newspapers reported today that 18,000 persons have been blacklisted "for liquidation" in Shanghai as alleged counter-revolutionaries

Faculty Meeting Formally Opens New ECC Term

Messick Cites Instructors' Opportunities And College Advantages

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College presided this afternoon at a faculty meeting which officially opened the 1951-1952 session on the campus here.

The Twenty-third Annual Orientation Program for Freshmen at the college will open at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning with an assembly in the Wright auditorium.

The great opportunity and responsibility devolving upon teachers as they prepare students for work in education and for other pursuits into which they may enter was the theme of the East Carolina President's message to the staff this afternoon.

Directing young people toward becoming useful, wholesome and active citizens both during and after their college experience, he said, is one of the greatest and most challenging opportunities offered the teacher.

He particularly stressed that, in motivating the intellectual development and the activities of students, the teacher must be alert to every opportunity presented in classroom and other situations.

"We must remember," he stated, "that our students will teach as they are taught, and our responsibility is great in seeing that every learning situation, method and technique available is utilized in the process of instruction."

He recounted recent contributions of different departments to students on the campus, to in-service teachers, and to people in general in eastern North Carolina.

Both departments and individuals at East Carolina, he declared, have projected their resources through classroom procedures, clinics, workshops, and conferences, and have utilized every possible means of technique and method to motivate activity and learning on the part of those they wish to help.

Dr. Messick outlined for the faculty the new standards for teacher education of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

He recommended that these be studied, analyzed and used in evaluation of the college program preparatory to a visitation at East Carolina in the spring of 1952 of the accreditation committee of the AACTE.

Facts and statistics showing the growth and progress of East Carolina College were presented to the faculty by Dr. Messick.

Fifty percent of the teaching staff this fall, not including the laboratory school, is slated, hold the doctor's degree, as compared to 29.8 percent in the fall of 1948. An enrollment of 2,602 students is expected.

Six Hospitalized After Sunday Morning Crash

Eight persons were sent to Pitt Memorial hospital early Sunday morning when the automobile in which they were riding went out of control, striking a pick-up truck and crashing into an oak tree some 121 feet from the point of impact.

Speeding Car Fails To Make Curve, Wrecks

Smashed Into Parked Pickup Truck, Catastrophically Demolished; All Eight Occupants Hurt

A speeding automobile, driven by David Smith, 24, college student of Wilson, failed to make the curve at 13th and Charles Streets Saturday night, knocked a parked pickup truck 125 feet along Charles Street, then catapulted 121 feet against an oak tree and was practically demolished.

Smith and seven occupants of his car were injured. Six of them were injured seriously enough to remain at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, and then released.

Police said Smith was unable to give them much information about the wreck. He will be arrested, an officer stated.

The report shows that Smith's car turned from 13th Street onto Charles Street at great speed, and that it collided with a parked truck with its parking lights on, on the left side of the street.

Shade Lee Clark, farmer of Route 4, Greenville, driver of the truck, had just parked his vehicle and gone in to visit Roland Harris, 1208 Charles Street, when Smith's car

Stringent Rules To Curb Gromyko

Procedures For Treaty Conference Aimed At Russians

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The United States and Britain today circulated a draft of stringent rules that would hamstring any Russian effort to stall the San Francisco peace conference.

A copy of the rules was made available to the United Press as San Francisco prepared a welcome for President Truman who arrives today to open the peace conference tomorrow night.

The proposed procedures are certain to provoke the ire of Russia's Andrei Gromyko and the chief delegates of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

But American and British diplomats were confident they could get the general outlines of the "Stop Russia" plan approved by the conference without major amendments.

Copies of the rules already have been distributed to many delegations and Gromyko is to get his soon, possibly today. The tone of the rules increased chances that the Communists might walk out of the peace parity.

The rules were understood to have been discussed last night at the Palace Hotel during a 60-minute meeting between Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida who arrived yesterday from Tokyo.

The rules provide: That the conference would be conducted in accordance with the terms of the invitation extended by the United States on July 20.

The invitation provided that the peace conference would be held "for conclusion and signature" of the American-British treaty. This rule would block Moscow's treaty

More Than 500 To Die In Holiday Toll Says Council

Reds Throw 6,000 Men Against Line

UN Forces Hold; Commander Warns Enemy Can Put 850,000 Men And 1,000 Planes Into New Offensive

6TH ARMY Q. Korea, TueHs (UP)—The Communists hurled an estimated 6,000 men against United Nations lines in East central Korea Monday as Gen. James A. Van Fleet warned that the Reds could put 850,000 men and 1,000 planes into a new offensive within two weeks.

Enemy troops were supported by a heavy concentration of artillery and mortar fire as they staged one of their heaviest drives in recent days in the area north and northwest of Yangju.

U.N. troops, however, held their positions and in some places made small advances.

Allied warplanes roared through heavy fog to continue a round-the-clock air offensive against enemy supply columns. More than 9,000 enemy vehicles have been spotted behind the lines in the last three days.

Bombers and night fighters destroyed or damaged 500 out of 1,800 vehicles attacked up to dawn Monday.

The air war brought the longest jet battle yet fought between F-86 Sabrejets and 40 Russian-built MIG-15 jets over North Korea Sunday and cost the Reds four planes. No U.N. planes were reported lost.

Along Bloody Ridge in east Korea, U.N. troops and Reds slugged at each other without letup. The Allies won one new hill position in a daylong fight, beat off more than a dozen enemy assaults in scattered zones and hacked out slow gains despite stubborn resistance.

Van Fleet told the United Press "we can crush anything they throw at us and they know it."

Van Fleet said that he thought the Reds want an armistice "because they need it" and because the North Koreans are in no condition to face another winter.

But the Red smashing of forces is the largest yet undertaken by them in Korea.

Labor Day Traffic Rate Already Surpassing 300 Mark With Big Homeward Bound Movement Ahead; Drownings And Other Causes Boost Total

By the Associated Press

The National Safety Council Monday predicted an all-time high Labor Day traffic death toll of more than 500. It based its prediction on the fact that the total already had surpassed the 300 mark early Monday, with the big homeward bound movement yet to come.

Fatalities between 6 p.m. local time Friday and 10 a.m. local time Monday totaled 336. There also were 75 deaths from drowning and 60 from miscellaneous causes, for a grand total of 471.

"It looks now as though the traffic death toll over the Labor Day holiday will pass 500 and set a new all-time record," Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Safety Council, said in a statement.

The all-time traffic high is 410, set Labor Day, 1949.

"This is a high price indeed to pay for a little holiday fun, even in these times," Dearborn added. "It is a tragic and intolerable price when you remember that these lives of American citizens are being wasted needlessly and brutally because of selfishness and carelessness."

Prior to the holiday, the National Safety Council had estimated there would be 300 traffic deaths in the 78 hour period starting at 6:00 p.m. local time Friday and ending at midnight Monday, local time.

For the first seven months of 1951 there were 19,470 traffic deaths, or 21 every 24 hours. Projected over a 78 hour period this would give a total of 295 deaths. However, this figure includes those who died weeks or months after receiving injuries in traffic accidents.

Last year there were 385 traffic deaths, 80 from drowning and 96 from miscellaneous causes over the Labor Day holiday. This made an all-time high of 559. In 1949 the traffic deaths amounted to 410, although the total from all causes was lower than in 1951.

Seven members of a Fort Worth (Texas) family were killed and three others injured Sunday night when their auto collided with a truck south of Fort Worth.

At Aitkin, Minn., seven members of a family lost their lives after their car overturned in plunging into a eight foot deep water-filled ditch.

The largest single accident during the holiday was a fishing boat disaster off the eastern tip of Long Island Saturday. The boat, with 56 persons aboard, capsized. Thirty-seven persons perished. Nineteen bodies have been recovered and 19 persons were rescued.

Eastern Belt Sales To Keep 5-Hour Day

Royster Informs Local Supervisor Of Schedule Change; Heavy Sales Anticipated Here Tuesday

Sales on the tobacco markets of the Eastern belt will continue at five hours a day from September 4 through September 7.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee of the Greenville market said he received a telegram this morning from President F. S. Royster of the Bright Belt Warehouse association informing him of the change in the sales schedule in this belt.

When the original schedule was set up, it called for five hour sales on the markets of the Eastern belt for the first nine days of the season, and for four and one-half hour sales for the second nine days of the season. The four and one-half hour selling days originally were to begin tomorrow, but with the announcement from Royster, the five hour selling day will continue at least through Friday.

The ruling will mean Greenville can continue selling a maximum of 10,000 baskets of tobacco a day through this week. Asked whether the five hour selling day would continue after Friday, Whedbee said he did not know. They just made this decision for this week only," he added.

After a market holiday today for Labor Day, Whedbee said he expected a full sale on the Greenville market tomorrow. "There's plenty of tobacco here," the supervisor said. "We'll have 10,000 baskets on the floor tomorrow. Whether the weight of tobacco for tomorrow's sales will be the greatest of the season will depend on the percentage of tips and primings. On Friday the Greenville market sold 1,800,724 pounds of tobacco in its heaviest sale of the season. The offerings consisted of about 50 per cent primings and 50 per cent tips. If the percentage of tips goes up on the sales tomorrow, Whedbee said he expects the total poundage to be above that on Friday's sale.

City Schools Toured Sunday

A number of parents and city and school officials toured the Greenville city schools yesterday afternoon to see improvements that have been made in the schools.

The tour began at the Greenville High School where the visitors saw new light fixtures, a remodeled home economics department, sanded floors, and a new coat of paint on the entire building. From the high school, the group visited the other schools here.

At West Greenville School the visitors inspected the new activity building which was constructed at a cost of $11,000 and includes a gymnasium, lunchroom, and auditorium. The building will be used for all school activities, and J. H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, said the building was modern and up-to-date in all respects.

New toilets were also added for younger children.

The Fleming Street School boasted a new coat of paint, remodeled toilets. The C. M. Epps High School has had its floors sanded, and additional furniture and lights added. Two features of the school were the new commerce department which is in operation for the first time and the new unit to the agricultural building. Rose said this building was the best equipped of its type in eastern North Carolina.

General renovation in the Third Street School was carried on during the summer plus new sanded floors and painting.

Rose said the Greenville city schools are in better condition than ever before and there is not a dirty spot in the schools. In commenting on the school system, Rose said he anticipated the largest enrollment in the schools than ever before. The enrollment last year was 3,400 and it is expected to reach 3,500 this year.

The cost of renovation in the schools ran in the neighborhood of $50,000 and work was carried on by a regular force of men employed by the city schools.

Making the tour yesterday were the following members of the school board: J. B. James, chairman, Dr. E. M. Criss, Mrs. L. M. Buchanan, Mrs. W. J. Stell, W. L. Allen, Joe Taff, and J. Knott Proctor. City officials on the tour were L. D. Page, mayor, J. S. Jenkins, and J. E. Collins.

'Foolish' Fees

WINCHESTER, Va.—(AP)—The Rev. Stephen L. Flickinger, pastor of the Centenary Reformed Church here, won't accept a fee for conducting funeral services for Korean war dead.

Furthermore, says Flickinger, any minister who does "isn't fit to be a minister."

The government allows a standard $10 fee but Flickinger says it is "the height of foolishness" for a preacher to be paid for conducting a service for a man who gave his life for his country.

New Fairground Facilities Praised As Among 'Best'

Officers of the Pitt County Fair Association made final plans at a recent meeting for the annual agricultural event which will be held from October 1 through 6.

T. Frank Taylor of the building committee made a full report on the new exhibit building and livestock building which is located adjacent to the airport.

It was reported that the exhibit building provides approximately 40 eight-by-eight booths which will be taken up with exhibits from home demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs, home economics clubs, vocational agriculture, colored exhibits, crops, horticulture, canning, and floral arrangements. Sue Brickhouse, home demonstration agent, is serving as director of the women's division, and Sam E. Winchester, county agent, is serving as director of the men's division.

Farmers of Pitt County are being offered $3,000 for agricultural exhibits and the management is urging farmers to bring exhibits to the fair and help carry out the slogan, "Pitt County On Parade."

Officials say the new plant of the Pitt County Fair provides one of the most complete fairgrounds in the south, providing modern and up-to-date lunchroom stands and rest room facilities. J. Howard Moye, president of the fair association, said: "We feel that we have a real fairgrounds plant now, one of the best in the south. We are getting good support from our agricultural friends, and we are going to do our best to present a fair that our county will be proud of."

Norman Y. Chambliss, who is serving as manager of the fair for the third year, made a report of all activities up to date. He made the definite statement that the plant provided here is one of the finest he has ever seen. Chambliss told the committee he had just seen the shows that were coming here at the West Virginia State Fair.

The Lawrence Greater Shows will occupy the midway, presenting over 20 riding devices, and up-to-date shows and concessions. Featured attraction at the fair this year will be a high act, "Jeanette and Paul". The attraction will be staged in the afternoon and evening.

Officers of the Pitt County Fair are: J. Howard Moye, president; A. F. Rowe of Ayden, C. S. Edwards of Farmville, and W. L. Cherry, vice-presidents; James R. Worsley, secretary; W. T. Kyser, assistant secretary; Larry Averette, treasurer; T. Frank Taylor, superintendent of grounds and buildings; and Norman Chambliss, fair manager.

Second Hurricane In South Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—A second hurricane was located today 1,100 miles east of the Windward Islands and east of hurricane "Dog," which churned westward across the Caribbean Sea.

The Miami Weather Bureau said the hurricane was spotted by the steamship, "Barn," as it ploughed into the winds of the tropical blow in the Atlantic, some 2,600 miles southeast of the Florida peninsula.

The weather bureau said the steamship reported wind direction of the r-w hurricane from three positions—sufficient to indicate the whirling form of a new tropical storm. The weather bureau sent hurricane hunter planes out to get the exact location, direction and size of the second blow.

Fog-eyed hurricane "Dog" headed westward across the Caribbean after delivering a glancing blow to the French colonial island of Martinique.

OUTCAST OF DESTINY

PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 19

They halted a couple hundred feet from the Palace and Brent slipped to the ground. "If anything starts," he said tersely, "tie the horses and get out of here."

He walked along the alley, rounded the vacant store and stood at the street corner, watching. All around he could see vague forms moving. He took a chance, slipped around the corner and into the building, then made his way to the roof. The window was open.

"Yes, Tex?"

"Think you can climb over to the roof?"

"Darling, I could fly!"

Footsteps sounded in the passageway beneath and a voice called sharply, "Who's up there?"

I stood still, hoping the man would leave. He didn't; he raised his voice in a shout, "Hey, fellows! Over here! He's on the old store roof!"

Brent ran towards the scuttles, swearing under his breath. He started to lower himself through the opening but drew back as he heard men enter the building. Somebody yelled, "The trapper's open! Sock it to him if he shows!"

Brent ran to the back, threw himself flat as a wiggled over the eaves. He hung for a second, then dropped.

A gun roared as he released his hold and he felt the bite of the bullet on his cheek. He jerked out his Colt while he was in mid-air, landed like a cat and whirled. He saw a dark bulk and fired and the bulk folded abruptly.

He started running towards the wait... as and his heart sank as a body of men rounded the far corner of the Palace. He was cut off. He fired into the mob until his gun was empty and had the dismal feeling that he was licked.

And then from beyond the charging men came a bloodcurdling yell and the thunder of hoofs, and the advancing men stopped in their tracks and turned. The Cockeyed Kid and the two horses were coming in a thunderous rush.

Right through the mob they rode, scattering men to right and left. Bub's gun was blasting and at every shot somebody fell or staggered away. With a cry of sheer joy, Brent started running on a course parallel with that of the horses. A man leaped at him from the corner of the building but Brent hit him like a charging bull and sent him flying. Then his horse was abreast of him and he snatched the horn with his left hand, jumped and let the momentum carry him into the saddle.

He thrust the empty Colt into his holster and seized the rein. Bub pressed into his hand. Lead was whining about them, but it was dark and they were moving swiftly. At the next passageway Brent wheeled his horse sharply to the left and Bub swung with him. They reached the street and turned right and pounded along towards freedom.

The houses of Destiny dropped behind them, and they were on the open range and headed for the nearby hills.

They rode hard, Bub choosing the route, and as dawn was breaking he led the way into a mountain park where there were grass and water and a grove of trees which would afford concealment. When they reached the latter Brent said, "I don't want you to get into this any further than you are. Ride back to town; it was too dark in that alley for anybody to recognize you."

The Cockeyed Kid glared in his general direction. "You don't have to tell me how you got into this mess; I'm gonna help git you out. For one thing you'll need grub and I kin fetch it to you."

Brent put a hand on his shoulder. "Thanks, oldtimer. Hunker down; I'm going to tell you a story."

They squatted on their heels by their horses and Brent told him everything. The old man listened without interrupting and when Brent had finished he nodded vigorously. "I'm with you, son, every jump in the road. That's flat. And my guess is that the feller you're huntin' is Jack Roselle."

"That's what I thought at first, but now I'm sure he's in the clear. He told me last night there was a man I'd have to meet and said he'd take me to him after the Palace closed. How about Biff Williams?"

"Second choice, with Cliff Durham runnin' him a close third."

"Cliff Durham," Brent was surprised.

Marijuana Easy To Get Into Country

By CHARLES SCHWANITZ

United Press Correspondent

CUJAD VALLES, Mexico (UPI)—"Marijuana Segment certainly you can buy it."

The truck driver's weather-puckered nose crinkled in a sly grin and his slitted eyes swept the unbacked, brush-studded plains south of the Texas-Mexican border.

His rusty truck had broken down and I had given him a lift to Ciudad Victoria. He was the first of 20 odd Mexicans I asked the random question—where can you buy the Mexican dope—during a 2,000-mile automobile trip through Mexico.

The answer, with one exception, was always the same. It was an understating twinkle in brown eyes and explicit directions to the nearest bodega, Mexico's traditional two-bit beer shacks, or to a private home.

During our 15-mile ride together the truck driver gave me an interesting clue. Most of the dope smuggling across the U. S. border was not done by organized rings but by wetbacks.

The wetbacks, Mexican job hunters illegally sneaking across the U. S. border, seem to finance their trips in the States by taking along a pound or two of marijuana, or loco weed, as they call it.

Profits Large

Marijuana prices in Mexico range from 150 pesos, or about $9 per two pounds to 300 pesos, the equivalent of roughly $18 for a Mexican quarter on South Halsted St. in Chicago two pounds of marijuana will bring as high as $300, reported in refiners, the addicts' cigarettes.

Marijuana smuggling is a prosperous and far-flung enterprise between the border towns along the Rio Grande. It's anybody's guess how many wetbacks cross and recross the frontier during a month. The number is estimated to run into the tens of thousands.

Of every one of them smuggles only two pounds of the drug into the States, the total traffic still runs into millions annually. That smuggling done by the big-time operators in the border towns.

Truck drivers jockeying their heavy loads of agricultural products along the serpentine cloud-skirted Inter-American Highway from southern Mexico to the Mexican border towns of Nuevo Laredo, Mexicali, Reynosa and Brownsville are responsible for most of the smuggling.

Inspection Futile

Although the Mexican government maintains federal inspection points along the highway, it's obviously impossible for them to tear apart every trucker's spare tire or dismantle his gas tank to check for the marijuana.

Marijuana smoking is an ingrained habit with many Mexicans, from the barefoot Indians living high in the hills in straw-thatched huts to some of the southern republic's best-known orchestra leaders and movie actresses.

The marijuana habit is looked on with sb. under-shrugging tolerance, much as the average American will regard the heavy drinking of a happy-go-lucky lunk.

As a result the drug is easily obtainable everywhere in Mexico and no questions asked.

In the small town of Santa Ana, nestling high in the Sierra mountains along the highway to Mexico City, a woman openly approached my car, offered me up to 10 pounds of the "crazy weed" in exchange for a flashlight, an old leather jacket and a carton of American cigarettes.

Same Old Story

On the outskirts of Jacala, a slightly larger town on the same highway, I stopped to ask a young Indian, 18 or thereabouts, the way to Mexico City and threw in my stock question about marijuana.

He was inclined to be suspicious of me. After I gave him a five-peso tip he relented, grinned and said he didn't have any but he could get me some.

In one of Mexico City's best hotels I was asked a random question: how could I get some cigarettes. He eyed me closely and when I winked he grinned, pocketed the ten-peso tip and hurried off to get me a pack of ready-made marijuana cigarettes.

They were neatly packaged. As a concession to the sanitary proclivities of Americans, the package was cellophane-wrapped.

It was the same story throughout—exotic in big city bars, hill town beer shacks and motor courts.

Feeling Of Optimism Among West's Diplomats Over Outcome Of Jap Pact

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—There seems to be quite a lot of optimism about the Japanese peace treaty; that it will work out all right for this country.

It certainly should for at least some time to come. And maybe it will permanently. That is the hope.

Right now Japan is an American ally. It will be allowed to rearm. And by special agreement this country will be permitted to keep military bases in Japan.

This provides the United States with its most western outpost for American planes in case of any push by communism, whether from China or Russia.

By an accident of geography, Japan is in the identical position, in relation to the mainland of Asia, as Britain is to the mainland of Europe. Both are huge islands just off the coast.

And since both are American allies, this country has aerial outposts anchored near both continents, if communism pushes eastward, an arrangement of incalculable advantage to the United States, so long as both countries remain allies.

The treaty is considered far more generous to the Japanese than, during the war, one might have imagined it would be.

While the Japanese lose some territory which they took from their neighbors over half a century, they haven't had to make much reparation for the damage they did. And now, six years after the war, they become an independent people again, free to rearm and make treaties with any nation which suits them.

They have done well during the six years of American occupation, as a report by the United Nations over the weekend shows: the Japanese are enjoying better economic conditions—even in food, which must be largely imported—than many of their victorious neighbors.

And there has been some satisfaction expressed that the Japanese have made much progress toward democracy as a result of the American occupation although it remains to be seen now whether this sticks.

Some of their Pacific neighbors, who were our allies in the war, look with misgiving on re-armed Japan. And the Russians, of course, don't like the treaty if for no other reason than the obvious one: It ties Japan to us instead of to Russia.

So all in all at the moment the mood here seems optimistic, although no one is predicting what the future holds. It is an optimism born of necessity: we could not go on occupying Japan forever; we did the best we could during the occupation to win her to our side; and now in the treaty doing the best we can to keep her as an ally.

Practically nothing, during the period of optimism, is being said about the possibility of a darker side eventually: a Japanese swing away from us and toward communism and Russia.

It's a possibility which seems remote now and not a problem for the immediate future, particularly since we'll keep military forces in Japan, probably for an indefinite period, although the terms of the military agreement haven't been revealed yet.

But Japan needs raw materials—it has none of its own—for its factories, and then markets for what it produces. The allies have the problem of supplying the materials and the markets to keep Japan away from communist temptations, which could provide materials and markets. It will be a continuing problem.

More American Trying To Penetrate Iron Curtain

By JOHN FISHER

New efforts are being made by Americans—officially and otherwise—to penetrate the Iron Curtain and bring spiritual and material aid to captive peoples who still refuse to accept Communism.

In the forefront are newly organized movements by American citizens of European blood, and exiles in both Europe and the United States.

They are increasingly alarmed by the endless torrents of Communist propaganda saturated with hatred for America, that is showered on their fathers' homelands and by the purges that are killing off all types of opponents of the Red regimes.

With them it is a race to maintain hope among the isolated peoples and furnish some form of help to resistance movements before the public despairs or the active opponents are either imprisoned or executed.

A drive to encourage non-Communists in Soviet bloc states has just been started in Washington by the Federation of Americans of Central and Eastern European descent, which has national headquarters in New York.

Nine major American national groups are affiliated with the Federation—Polish, Lithuanian, Ukrainian, Byelorussian, Slovak, Carpatho-Ruthenian, Hungarian, Croatian and Serbian. Arrangements are being completed to include Latvian, Estonian, Czech, Rumanian and Bulgarian groups.

America's Voice Still Heard

Despite its multi-language character, the organization is American with American-born and American-educated leadership. Among its top men are Joseph A. Jankovics, Secretary General, Dr. Lev E. Dobriansky of Georgetown University, president of the Ukrainian Congress Committee of America and Stephen E. Balogh, Executive Secretary of the American Hungarian Federation.

Another organization in close contact with the resistance movement in sorely persecuted Czechoslovakia is the National Committee for Liberation of Slovakia, of which Dr. V. S. Kraljovic of Washington is chairman. Evidence of the importance of tangible signs of American friendship was revealed by him last week.

A message was smuggled to him from the "Liberty Legion" of the Slovak underground thanking Congressman Charles J. Kersten of Wisconsin for introducing a resolution in Congress directing our representative in the United Nations to demand "free elections be held for the Czech and Slovak peoples under police supervision of the United Nations."

"One of the most powerful weapons we can give European undergrounds," declared Dr. Kraljovic, who was liberated from a Hitler concentration camp by Patton's army, "is to promise them self-determination as in the Kersten resolution. Without that assurance, resistance members would not today have the heart either to work or fight against Communism."

Underground Is Effective

The hope of such assurance has buoyed them up now. The Czechoslovakian "Liberty Legion" is one of the best resistance movements in Europe. As early as 1945 Czechs and Slovaks tried hard to stop the growing power of local Communists, "White Partisans" in the mountains harassed the Reds.

After Potsdam, which boosted Communist strength, "Crusaders" appeared, wearing on coat lapels a Christian cross, the insignia of membership. This was banned.

Pious people then took advantage of religious pilgrimages to shrines and church gatherings. Previously when the Reds seized control in 1948, as many as 50,000 participated in a single pilgrimage as their most effective way of expressing their opposition to Communism.

Since then has come more desperate resistance. Saboteurs blew up viaducts and railroad bridges en route to Russia. To bring in food Communist authorities used military trucks. But partisans attacked the trucks in the Dargov mountains and carried off the food and the weapons of the convoys.

Other underground daredevils so blocked the railroad to Poland that it was out of commission for two months. When Red police and soldiers in March of this year attempted to liquidate the resistance groups, anti-Communist partisans from the Russian Ukraine slipped across the border and helped the Slovak freedom fighters.

Another Czech branch of resistance is the "White Legion," engaged chiefly in psychological warfare. It operates clandestine papers and radios, telling the people how the Red government is sending 15-year-old boys slaves to the mines or what America is doing in defense mobilization.

We Must Be Careful

Ukrainian, Polish and Hungarian underground contact in America point out that as Communist vigilance and oppression increase, the greater is the need of material aid. They say the resistance people want small printing presses, paper, ink and portable radio transmitters so they can spread their messages.

They welcome helpful printed matter from the outside and later would be eager for Tommy guns. But at this stage most—except in forests or mountains—resistance groups discourage violence as too often it brings punishment and death to innocent families of the fighters.

United States officials abroad hesitate to act in conjunction with Friendship balloon messages, the undergrounds lest they be charged with direct interference in the internal affairs of a sovereign state.

East German underground people wanted a landing field in the American zone of West Germany close to the border of the Soviet zone so that refugees in small planes could escape. But officials rejected the idea.

In the Mutual Security Bill is a provision for funds for selected persons who are "residing in or escaping from" Iron Curtain countries either to form "such persons into national elements of the military forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or for other purposes."

Its application might tap the vast manpower reservoir of escapees in defense of the free nations and strengthen the arm of resistance fighters.

Moscow sits on the necks of satellites who yearn for independence. Less than half of the people of the U.S.S.R. are Russians. These many non-Russians are potential revolutionists, if they see a chance to break the chains that bind them.

"Voice of America," American liberation units, Kerensky's newly formed alliance of five anti-Communist Russian exile groups and all other wise measures to penetrate the Iron Curtain will keep hope alive among the victims of Communist tyranny until independence comes to every captive nation.

Gun Collection In The Hundreds

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Harry C. Knode, an enthusiastic Houston gun collector, estimates he has about 300 firearms, ranging from flintlocks to highly prized minutemen by apprentice gunsmiths.

Oldest guns in the Knode collection are matchlocks. He has both Asiatic and European models. Hammers on these weapons were called "serpentes," which released the trigger setting off a match into a pan for powder, which fired the charge in the barrel.

Knode is vice-president of the Texas Gun Collectors Association, which has 217 members.

MacArthur Sees Insidious Work

ATLANTA (UP)—"The enemies of freedom are inclining racial and religious animosities in this country," according to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

In a message to yesterday's opening session of the 56th annual encampment of Jewish War Veterans here, MacArthur declared "suspicion, distrust and disunity" are being used to arouse "strife and destroy unity." He said the nation's survival depends upon all Americans of whatever race, creed or color standing together.

Truman Stresses Religious Needs

CHICAGO (UP)—President Truman says that the nation needs religious education for the courage to face the future at home and to demonstrate abroad that the United States practices what it believes.

Mr. Truman made the statement in a message endorsing Christian Education Week—Sept. 30 to Oct. 7—sponsored by the National Council of the Churches of Christ.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS RELIABILITY
LABOR DAY

Those of us who are past fifty years of age can remember the time when men often worked ten to twelve hours a day and were lucky if they had only a 4-day week. Much that the left-wing radicals say today about industrial conditions at the turn of the century is true. The working man fifty years ago had a tough time of it. Anyone with a heart in his breast rejoices over the fact that a man can no longer be driven by arbitrary power as he was in those days.

But when the pendulum starts to swing, it swings in a mighty arc. Strikes, lock-outs, "walks," riots were dreadful realities a few decades ago. On the whole, today's labor conditions are so much better that we should rejoice over the change. But slow-downs, picket lines, infiltration of communists, and the stirring up of racial hatred in the interest of subversive groups—these are present-day realities which make the picture none too hopeful.

And always it is a few powerfully fanged canines in both the employer and the employee groups which cause trouble. The overwhelming majority of American employers are fair and honest. The same is true of the overwhelming majority of laboring men. The trouble-making minority in both groups needs to be firmly handled by sober and determined public opinion.

Farmers, Let Them Hear Your Opinions

During the next three weeks farmers from all sections of Pitt County will have an opportunity to tell representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture the things they don't like about the multitude of programs administered by the department.

The department is holding a series of meetings throughout the county to find out what the farmers think of the agricultural programs generally and individually. The farmers of Pitt County should not allow the series of meetings to be a cut and dried affair. If they have grievances or suggestions with respect to the programs, they should let them be heard in no uncertain terms.

In street corner conversations, discussions at the cross roads filling station and civic club meetings the farmers express to each other their feelings about the agricultural programs. Now they have the opportunity to express to representatives of the Department of Agriculture their feelings about the program. Pitt farmers should take advantage of the opportunity.

Like many other federal departments, the Department of Agriculture has under its jurisdiction a phenomenal entanglement of affairs. At these meetings in Pitt County there will be representatives of the Agricultural Research Administration, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Cooperative Extension Service, Office of Information, Production and Marketing Administration, Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, Farm Credit Administration, Farmers Home Administration, Rural Electrification Administration and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

They of course are just a few of the agencies under the Department of Agriculture, but they cover such important subjects as crop loan projects, marketing quotas, acreage allotments, stabilization prices, agricultural conservation program and many others.

It would be foolish to assume that all the farmers in Pitt County are completely satisfied with all the programs. It likewise would be foolish to assume that the farmers of Pitt County, who long have exerted leadership in promoting agricultural organization and agricultural legislation by the federal government, do not have some good, sound suggestions which if accepted would make the programs more helpful to farmers and to the nation as a whole.

If the farmers want to help the agricultural programs and to help themselves, they must speak their pieces at this series of meetings. If the representatives of the Department of Agriculture do all the talking and the farmers keep their mouths shut, the meetings will be a colossal farce.

The Fight Must Be Continued

The Senate Crime Investigating Committee has died of old age just as it was reaching its prime in service to the American people.

In its brief 14 months of work it made as great a contribution to the welfare of the American people as any similar group in the history of the United States. Now that time has snuffed out the life of the committee, the continuation of its work falls to the Senate Commerce Committee which should rake further into the muck and mire that conceals the criminal activities in the United States and covers the close alliance between the crime syndicates and political organizations.

More than any other governmental group we can remember, the Senate Crime Investigation Committee had an utter disregard for party lines. It picked out facts embarrassing to Democrats and Republicans alike, and let the chips fall where they would.

The revelations of the committee have made the American people cognizant of the hold organized crime has in this country. They have created among the people a strong desire to stamp out this serious threat to the freedom and the welfare of the people of the United States. Now that the fire has been kindled, the people must not lapse back into complacency.

The committee investigations created among the people of the country an interest which can not be rivaled by any other governmental group. The initiative exerted by the committee has carried down through the state and local levels in many cases. In some instances the strangle hold of gangsters and racketeers on state and local governments has not been broken, but practically everywhere the hold has been weakened noticeably.

The Senate Commerce Committee can carry on the crime investigations at the top levels, but it is up to the local communities to clean the rats out of their local burrows. Gamblers, dope peddlers and other racketeers must be coped with on the local level as well as the national level. The local law enforcement agencies can do a part of the job, but federal legislation designed to stamp out the crime syndicates and their operations must be passed before the underworld monarchs can be dethroned by law.

In the recommendations left behind by the committee there are suggestions for action by the federal government, state and local law enforcement groups and private citizens. They must be followed if the internal menace to American freedom is to be removed.

WASHINGTON—The politico-economic forces of organized labor, as represented by such great organizations as the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Railway Brotherhoods and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, are divided more violently on this anniversary day than at any time since Franklin D. Roosevelt made them a virtual partner in politics and government.

The principal reason for the new division is the determination of certain younger members of the A. F. of L. to operate independently of past labor allies, and to loosen its twenty-year-old ties with the Democratic Party and the Truman Administration. The man who heads this movement is George L. Meany, the assertive and aggressive secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L.

He was largely responsible for the decision to pull out of the United Labor Policy Committee, which was organized early in the rearmament effort, when the various groups felt that they had not been given sufficient representation in Mr. Truman's war council. He also helped to break up the A. F. of L.'s loose alliance with the major farm organizations, especially the Farm Bureau Federation.

CLAMOR—Mr. Meany's counterpart in the C.I.O. is the rough-and-tumble Walter Reuther, head of the United Automobile Workers. He believes that his organization can achieve its aims in dealing with Washington and industry, if it pursues a more independent program.

Both men have been irritated by the compromising policies of such oldsters as William Green and Philip Murray, respective presidents of the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O.

The wage and other gains won by labor in recent months, according to the Meany-Reuther theory, have resulted from their more belligerent and threatening action. In almost every instance where they have obtained pay increases and greater voice in President Truman's war cabinet, it has been the result of the younger group's insistent clamor and commotion.

CHANGE—Labor's new trend has naturally provoked speculation that (1) it will break openly with the Administration in the 1952 presidential campaign, and (2) that Mr. Green and Mr. Murray may step aside or be deposed at the forthcoming annual conventions. There are many leaders, and the number is growing, who favor such a course.

But such a revolutionary change is not likely immediately. Although the several groups may not serve as an annex of the Truman-Boyle political headquarters, as they have in past years, they will probably declare for the Democratic nominee separately and qualifiedly. They will bargain in pre-convention and pre-election powwows.

After considerable squabbling, they have wrestled what they want from the White House, especially approval of escalator clauses in their contracts. Mr. Truman has fought for the price controls they regard as necessary to protect their purchasing power. They favor his foreign aid program because war and civilian contracts guarantee high employment and wages.

POWER—Labor has no special regard for the men now mentioned as possible G.O.P. nominees. They are suspicious of General Eisenhower's military background.

With Mr. Truman, they would rather rely on a chance to swing Senator Taft. They maintain that his great Ohio triumph last year could not be duplicated on a nation-wide scale. They have already shown their dislike for Governor Dewey and Harold E. Stassen.

Messrs. Green and Murray will probably be retained, unless they step aside voluntarily. There are too many jealousies among rival candidates for the unions to agree on any two men without serious disruptions. But the two elders are merely figureheads, with real power over labor and political policies resting in the younger clique.

PROBLEM—Holland, for instance, is such a congested land that it cannot find training ground for an expanded force of 100,000-odd men. The Hague tried to obtain camps from the British in their German zone, but London had to reply: "No room here."

General Eisenhower will emphasize this problem in his next report or on a late 1951 visit to this country. The Administration will rely on his demand to obtain the funds from Congress, for approval will mean a terrific boost in the already steep rearmament bill.

INSURANCE—The State of North Carolina has done a pretty good job of concentrating control over state governmental activities into appropriate agencies. Subject to general supervision of the governor's office with its auxiliary budget bureau and division of purchase and contract, varied functions of the several departments and institutions are fairly well fixed in respective departments. The glaring exception is in the field of insurance. Control over insurance coverage for protection against fire destroying state property, for compensation in event of injury, sickness or death of employees, and for retirement pay in old age, is scattered all over the premises—despite the fact North Carolina has an insurance department recognized as one of the best in the country, and a centralized budget policy that has proven very efficient.

SCATTERED—There are four independent state departments handling insurance, plus several other collateral insurance activities directly involving governmental agencies. There are the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System, with its associated Local Government Employees Retirement System; the Law Enforcement Officers Benefit and Retirement System; the Industrial Commission, which administers the workers' compensation act; the Employment Security Commission—all of which deal with phases of human casualty insurance. There is also the state self-insurance fund and the insurance division of the state board of education, involving fire insurance carried or underwritten by the state itself. On top of these are several related groups handling casualty, life and fire insurance—all without any centralized control or regulation by any single state department—but with direct state connections. It is in this area of quasi-governmental activity that greatest need for closer supervision is apparent.

RESPONSIBILITY—The state has direct responsibility as a self-insurer for losses occurring to state owned property covered by its blanket provisions. The last legislature provided for purchasing coverage in private companies, which in effect amounts to reinsurance, for single risks in excess of $50,000. The state also is entirely responsible for fire loss of public school houses.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

MORE THAN BUILDINGS REQUIRED
(Greensboro Daily News)
It is merited praise which North Carolina receives from the U. S. Public Health Service for the progress made in its hospital construction program.

Not only the extent of the program, since its inauguration a few years ago, but the planning and the actual construction of the hospital buildings which have sprung up in nearly all the state's counties come in for commendation. After spot inspection by a health service architect, it has been officially declared that little or no fault can be found with them.

But while joining in this praise the Daily News would remind that buildings, physical facilities and their equipment represent but one phase, although necessarily the first, of the hospital and medical care program in which we are committed in North Carolina. To be utilized these institutions must be staffed. That means more doctors, surgeons, technicians and nurses; remains to see that no bottlenecks occur and that threatening shortages are relieved as quickly as possible. The same leadership and the same general interest, co-operation and support are essential if these ends are to be attained, for not until they are can the program mean anything like what it should to North Carolina and its people.

UP TO THE PEOPLE

(Williamston Enterprise)
The low ethical standards prevailing in some quarters in Washington, D. C., are traceable to the people, in part. And it can be pointed out that Washington has no monopoly on low standards of ethics and morals.

We can't expect much out of Washington if we tolerate such things as the Butler campaign in Maryland, and similar campaigns nearer home.

We have got to abandon the idea of achieving success, regardless of how it is gained. Men who would best serve the public and themselves have got to realize that it is not right to do anything to get rich, get elected or get whatever else they want.

When the people realize that a man, running for office, would desert ethical standards to gain victory, is a dangerous and unworthy man, then we can expect better things out of Washington.

WHERE ARE THE CONTROLS?
(Henderson Dispatch)
The railroads are allowed to raise their freight rates. Permission is granted for wage increases. Higher prices for meats are to be granted. All by government agencies that are charged with controlling the nation's economy in the interest of the people and as a check against inflation.

Of what benefit are controls, therefore, if decrees are issued to permit the very processes it is proposed to throttle? Why have no restrictions if they are not to restrict?

Some observers who claim authority for their conclusions say that these trends are to continue, but that inflation is to be prevented. It appears to be a paradoxical interpretation, but correct at least as to mounting costs. Somebody somewhere along the line stands to be caught in a mighty tight squeeze in the economic cycle. And probability is that more people will be hurt than will be helped in the process.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
With attention focused on labor today, it may be a good time for all business men to recognize and reckon with the fact that labor will cost them more in the year ahead.

The idea of cost-of-living increases in wage rates is spreading into every enterprise in the country. Until recently, cost-of-living increases benefited only three or four million men whose unions had succeeded in getting such provisions written into their contract.

Now the Wage Stabilization Board by unanimous vote of 18 members, representing the public and management as well as labor, has adopted a policy of approving wage increases negotiated to cover rises in costs of living.

This simply means that, after negotiation or strike resulting in a cost of living increase, the board will consent to the rise. But in actual practice, the results will be far broader. Every union and every union leader has been given a green light to demand a cost-of-living wage increase. And because the Wage Stabilization Board is a government agency, its decision will be popularly understood to mean that government not only consents to cost-of-living increases but actually asks for them. In some circles employers who resist escalator clauses will be regarded as "agin the government."

The ideas will spread, as such ideas always spread among the beneficiaries. Even non-organized workers will take the attitude that the government wants all employers to raise wages as living costs go up and if such boosts aren't forthcoming, they will be asking where they can report their bosses.

Cities, states and the federal government itself will be especially vulnerable. Many already have made cost-of-living adjustments in wages and salaries, setting a pattern for the others. And it will be difficult to reject demands for rises in this persuasive, governmentally approved pattern.

General Electric last week offered a cost-of-living raise to its 370,000 employees to other big companies are thinking of it. Soon it will be part of union demands on all companies, and then the unorganized demands of other workers. Even these unorganized demands can be successful. It will be easy for workers denied the benefits to get jobs in plants that grant them.

ADMINISTRATION PREDICTS RISE IN PRICES
Of course, if the cost of living does not rise, wages tied to those costs won't go up. But President Truman said the new Defense Production Act would cause price increases and Eric Johnston, head of the Price Stabilization Agency, predicted that living costs would rise from

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—An open letter to a prospective holiday traffic fatality:
Dear Sir:
You are probably going to die needlessly today.

You are one of the hundreds who are always ticketed for death during the carnival of carnage that takes place on American highways during a holiday weekend.

Too bad. You're a nice guy. People like you. Your wife and kids are going to miss you terribly. They will, that is, unless you kill them. Too, in the same accident that takes your own life. Yes, your family will always remember you kindly. Even your son, who will have to go to work instead of college. He won't blame you too much for your moment of carelessness that will cost him the career he wanted.

"Poor Dad," he'll say. "He just didn't think."

And he'll be right. For it is pure carelessness that is going to kill you today.

I wonder how it will happen to you? Trying to pass another car on a hill? Speeding around a curve too fast on worn tires? Or will it be faulty brakes? In any case it will be something you could have avoided by using common sense.

Will they find you impaled on your own steering wheel, or hurled into a ditch and bleeding into a roadside ditch? You'll be lucky either way. For death will have erased your stupidity as quickly and as painlessly as death can. At the hospital they'll simply tie a D.O.A. tag on your body—"Dead On Arrival"—and haul you to a morgue.

But death often isn't that kind to careless people. You may suffer horribly in your shattered car. And some doctor may work two or three hours on the operating table trying vainly to keep alive the bloody pulp of torn flesh and broken bones that yesterday was you.

Doctors and nurses in the hospitals get to feeling pretty blue on holidays, waiting for the hopeless accident cases that always come. They hate to fight so hard to save a life and then lose it, even a foolish life.

The sad thing about it is, of course, that it is all so unnecessary. There is still time to avoid it. But, no, you have a stupid rendezvous with death—and you are going to keep it.

ten to sixteen billion dollars in the coming year. That would be a rise of from 8 to 9 per cent and would undoubtedly touch off demands for pay increases in that ratio.

Since then the Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized a freight rise of 9 per cent in the east and 6 per cent in the west and south. Michael V. DeSalle, Price Stabilization Administrator, says this will provide a basis for higher ceilings for everything shipped by rail.

So the wage escalators will be moving up, never down.

NEW TAX BOOST MAY UP DEMANDS
Then there is another element. New, higher income tax rates are soon to be effective. They mean higher withholdings and less take-home pay.

Preservation of the take-home pay became a basic labor doctrine after the end of World War II, just as cost-of-living increases are becoming a basic doctrine at the end of the war. Overtime dropped off and, with the take-home pay plea, labor demanded and generally got rises that offset the loss of overtime pay.

It is not impossible that this same demand will rise again with respect to higher taxes. Of course, the Wage Stabilization Board may not approve increases for that purpose. Certainly the argument will be advanced that one of the purposes of the higher taxes is to diminish the purchasing power to diminish the rise of inflation. But if tax adjustment increases are turned down, it will only stiffen demands for cost-of-living increases.

In making plans for the coming year, management will have to calculate on labor being more expensive and purchases of machinery, expansion, pricing and selling will have to be planned with that in mind.

Washington Letter
By BERN HAUGLAND
(For JAM EADS)
WASHINGTON—A large percentage of youth of school age now are frustrated.
That's a quote from a 65-page pamphlet, "Frustration in Adolescent Youth," newly released by the U. S. Office of Education.
Schools have tended not to accept responsibility for treating frustration through compulsory school attendance and rewards, the booklet adds. "These methods are not applicable to frustrated individuals. New methods must be evolved."
David Segel, a specialist in tests and measurements, is the author of the study. He says that among the frustrated individuals are prospective drop-outs, those who are referred by teachers for disorderliness, those who are failing in studies, those with low scholastic aptitude scores and the like.
"Actually the group eliminated from school is not the group of youths who are most 'frustrated,'" Segel says. "In fact, elimination from school may in many cases start the youth on a search for a new goal and new method of working toward that goal."
Segel says the traditional high school too often is concerned with teaching things possibly useful some time in the future, with little attempt to relate them to the student's current needs and interests. He adds that many many teachers and pupils mistakenly regard group training as designed to cultivate "leaders."
"In the process of group dynamics, the aim is to produce democratic persons, those who are fair through such persons can effectively and progressively actions be initiated," Segel says. "In this process, the group recognizes the ability of some individuals to do one thing better than others, and these individuals are by that fact given more responsibility in that area than others."
"To often the purpose has been that of the development of persons who can lead others through force of their physical virility, ability to verbalize and the like."
"Such leaders are often the product of a frustration and their capacity for 'intelligent leadership' is probably lower than that of some other members of the group."
Segel says secondary schools should spend much more time on appraising and counseling their students than they do.

Fifty Report For Pirate's Opening Day

Three Sessions Held On Saturday

Sixteen Lettermen Included In Group; Bucs Prepare For Season Opener With Mississippi Southern; Face Toughest Slate

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Editor

Full practice began with a bang Saturday as 50 men reported to Coach Bill Dole for East Carolina's opening day's work-outs.

Sixteen lettermen were included in the reportees, headed by quarterback Sandy Siler, backs Jack Benzie, Jack Britt, and John Daugherty.

The line will have such 1950 stalwarts as ends Cecil Winslow, Bobby Hodges, and Dwight Shook; tackles Bill McDonald and Don McKenzie; guards George Graybill and Dennis Smith; and centers Frank Madigan and Luke Taylor.

The Pirates face the toughest schedule in the history of the school, opening with Mississippi Southern on September 15, and following in order with Naval Appointments, Naval Air Station, Elon College, West Carolina, Guilford, Lehigh-Rhine, Appalachian, Cherry Point, and closing with the Citadel.

Mississippi Southern, the opening opponent, is a powerhouse among smaller schools in the South, and is expected to give the Bucs their toughest competition.

Dole will have a big job on his hands to fill the shoes of fourteen lettermen who graduated last year. Pacing the graduates were All-State and All-Conference quarterback Roger Thrift and All-Conference end Frank Maennie. Co-captains Billy

Rams Preparing For Grid Opener

ROBERSONVILLE — Coach Bob Lee has been sending his 1951 Robersonville High Rams through drills twice daily since August 15 in preparation for the season opener with Windsor on September 14 and the oncoming Coastal Conference competition.

Prospects for this year's team indicate a smaller but faster squad than in past seasons. Coach Lee has 10 lettermen returning to form the nucleus of the team, although seven starters were lost.

Boys who will probably carry the brunt of the 1951 slate are: backs—Dan Clark, Bobby Clark, Jimmy James, Andy Warren, Gaston Andrews, C. L. Crawford, and Pete Johnson; Linebacker—Billy Warren, William Taylor, Dick Matthews, Larry Martin, Curtis Roberson, Maurice Everett, R. H. Weaver, Julius Budacz, Charles P. Bill Bailey, Billy Bailey, and Russell Ball.

Jimmy Highsmith is the 1951 student manager.

The schedule follows:
Sept. 14—Windsor
Sept. 21—Open
Sept. 28—At Ayden
Oct. 5—Vanceboro
Oct. 12—At Farmville
Oct. 19—At Tarboro
Oct. 26—South Edgecombe
Nov. 2—At Central High (Elizabeth City)
Nov. 9—Plymouth
Nov. 16—Benvenue
All home games start at 3:15 p. m.

Little Leaguer Of Year

Twelve year old Ike Riddick, the terrific combination star of the first place Elks, has been chosen as the Little League "Star of the Year."

His amazing pitching ability enabled him to out-shine such hurlers as George Nickols, Jim McGee, and Garrett Folger. Ike's slugging was one of the main reasons why the Elks took top honors.

Riddick was the number two pitcher in the league. To prove that his no-hit, no-run victory over the Jaycees was no accident, big Ike rolled up a beautiful 6-2 record. This no-hitter entitled Riddick to a spot in the Little League Hall of Fame.

Ike batted well over 400, a feat which put the big right-hander among the top five sluggers. He has clouted 4 homers.

In what might have been Ike's greatest game, he blasted out a homer and a double against the Wilmington All-Stars. Also in the same game he pitched to six men and struck out five of them.

Our congratulations go to Ike as we think the great Elks pitcher well deserves this honor.

Ike Riddick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Riddick, who reside at 612 Elm Street.

Sexias-Savitt Schedule Meet

By STEVE SNIDER United Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—Top-seeded Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., and Frank Sedgman of Australia, generally accepted as the world's ranking tennis players, were favored today to reach the finals of the U. S. championship in a pair of semi-final matches delayed a day by rain.

The downpour yesterday was a break for Savitt, whose bid for a grand slam of Australian, Wimbledon and U. S. titles has been hampered by a leg infection, and his physician hoped the bonus day of rest would have him near peak condition for his semi-final against upsetter Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

Sedgman, ace of the Australian Davis Cup team, was paired against U. S. champion Art Larsen of San Leandro, Cal., in the other semi-final.

Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith of England and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., were scheduled for one semi-final in the women's division with Wimbledon queen Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and 16-year-old Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Cal., in the other. Miss Hart and Miss Fry, finalists at Wimbledon and numerous other tournaments abroad this summer, were favored to reach Tuesday's final.

Savitt, winner over Budge Patty of Los Angeles Saturday, was only a slight favorite over Seixas because of his questionable condition. Patty, himself, had a sprained wrist and still forced Savitt to five sets. Seixas, meanwhile, stormed from behind to knock off Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Cal., in another five-setter for his second straight upset.

Seixas ousted Ken McGregor of Australia in the previous round.

Mueller Leads In Rout Of Dodgers

One-Day-Old Inspires Father Don To Tie Home Run Record By Hitting Fifth Circuit Drive In Two Days

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Little one-day-old Mark Mueller was the inspiration today for a home-run hitting spree in which his father, Don Mueller of the Giants, tied a big mark in the major league record books and kept his mates hot in pursuit of the panicky Brooklyn Dodgers.

Daddy Mueller found out about the arrival of his son in a St. Louis hospital just before he went to bat in the eighth inning yesterday after he already had crashed his fourth homer in two days on the previous trip.

"So I just had to hit one more," he said. "I knew it was going to happen the minute I got up there. And now—right now—I'm the happiest guy alive."

That was probably true, but the weekend home-run king of the Giants wasn't much ahead of his back-slapping teammates in the elation department. For once again, with an 11 to 2 rout of the Dodgers that put them within five games of first place, they were convinced they could perform a miracle and catch up, even though time is fast running out.

Manager Leo Durocher, emphasizing that the Giants now have won five in a row from the Dodgers and that the Brooks' once overwhelming lead of 13 1-2 games could be reduced even more in the Labor Day doubleheaders, said that this "could be a real pennant race—one we'll never forget."

Big Jim Hearn pitched six-hit ball for his 14th victory and Bobby Thomson also got a two-run Giant homer. Roy Campanella homered for Brooklyn.

In the American League, the Indians broke loose from a hitting slump and banged four homers to top the Browns 5 to 1 to move within half a game of the Yankees, who were rained out in Washington.

Virgil Trucks of the Tigers edged lefty Billy Pierce of the White Sox 4 to 0 in a five-hitter in the only other American League game.

Elsewhere in the National League, Ken Raffensberger of the Reds pitched the fourth one-hitter of his career, blanking the Cubs 7 to 0 as Eddie Miksis spoiled his no-hitter with a topped infield roller for a hit in the third but the Cubs bounced back to win the second game 3 to 0. The Phillies cashed in on errors by second baseman Roy Hartsfield and Sam Jetmore for five unearned runs in a rain-shortened six-inning, 5 to 3 victory over the Braves.

The Indians made three of their homers in succession off Brownie Ace Ned Garver in the third inning to tie a major league mark. Harry Simpson, Al Rosen, and Luke Easter got the successive homers, while Bobby Avila also hit a homer later to complete the Cleveland scoring as Mike Garcia pitched seven-hit ball for his 18th victory.

The Yankee game in Washington was rained out after an inning and a half with the score tied at 1-1. It probably will be replayed in New York Sunday as part of a doubleheader. The Red Sox double header with the Athletics also was rained out.

Mueller Going To 'Retire' Bat

NEW YORK—(AP)—Don Mueller plans to "retire" the bat with which he belted a record-tying home run to celebrate the birth of his son.

The New York Giants' outfielder, who yesterday smashed his fifth homer in two successive games, at an instant after learning of the arrival of his first child, said today he will ship the bat to his home in St. Louis "and keep it for my little boy."

The bat will act as a reminder of the happiest day of his life, said Mueller joyfully. "I'm going to pack it up tomorrow along with the bat with which I hit three homers on Saturday, and send them home."

The 26-year-old flycatcher, known as a home run hitter, batted in 10 runs, five each day, in exploding those five round trippers. He was the big gun in the Giants' sweep of the two-game series with Brooklyn, 8-1 and 11-2.

Only four other players—all sluggers of note—ever hit five homers in two successive games. They were Cap Anson, Ty Cobb, Tony Lazzeri and Ralph Kiner. Kiner, the last to do it before Mueller, accomplished the trick three times, all in 1949.

Mueller, hitting at 26, has slamed 15 home runs this season. Last year he hit seven. Playing in a total of 87 games in 1949 and '48, he hit only one round tripper.

Lejeune Advances To Quarterfinals

WICHITA, Kas.—(AP)—If the Sinton, Tex. Oilers get past Fort Wayne tonight, they'll have a good chance of coping the National Semi-pro Baseball Tournament title.

Sinton and the Fort Wayne, Ind., Capeharts, the defending champions, meet in the feature of a three-game quarterfinal card.

All teams in the quarterfinals, except Sinton, have lost one game in the double elimination tournament.

Thirty teams were in the original field. Six are still competing.

In last night's games, Fort Wayne eliminated the South Amboy, N.J., Briggs, 2-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Bob Katz.

Sinton handed the Atwater, Calif., Packers their first loss by a 3-1 score. Fort Campbell, Ky., beat Casa Grande, Ariz., 4-3, and the Lafayette, Ind., Red Sox blanked the Camp Pickett, Va., 43rd Division team, 5-0.

The Camp Lejeune, N.C., Marines advanced into the quarterfinals by shutting out the Superior, Neb., Knights, 3-0.

Tonight's schedule (Times Eastern Standard):

7—Atwater vs. Fort Campbell
8:15—Sinton vs. Fort Wayne
11:15—Lafayette vs. Camp Lejeune

Star Passes Cigars

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Former Michigan grid great Tom Harmon, now a radio and TV sports announcer, was passing out cigars today after his actress wife Elyse Knox presented him with a potential football tackle.

The Harmonos became parents for the third time yesterday with the birth of a husky nine pound, four ounce boy.

Boxer Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Boxer George Flores lost his greatest fight early today.

The 20-year-old Brooklyn waterweight died at 12:20 a.m. (EST) of a brain injury.

He had been in a coma since Wednesday night, when, before a large crowd in Madison Square Garden, Roger Donoghe knocked him out in the eighth and final round of their bout.

Flores' 18-year-old wife, Elaine, mother of a month-old son, was at his side when he died. She collapsed after Dr. Peter Gerald announced that Flores had died.

Experts Favor Cochise In Race

CHICAGO (UP)—Brandywine stable's Cochise, surprise victor in the $100,000 added Arlington Handicap, was the choice to win the counterpart race of this earlier triumph, the even-ricer Washington Park Handicap today.

But a field of 22 horses, including some of 1951's top sprinters, was expected to start in the richest mile race in history, and the shorter distance for this event figured to give them greater hope of capturing the winner's share of $115,450 of the $160,650 gross.

Cochise, a big grey five-year-old, was the four-to-one favorite despite top weight of 125 pounds under jockey Ovie Scurlock.

Standout sprinters in the field, all with less weight, included Old Capitol, Rokeby Stable's County Delight, Calumet Farm's trio of Bewitch, Wistful and All Blue, Hal Price Headley's Litho, and King Ranch's Curandero.

Cochise has lifetime earnings of $27,985, amassing $116,957 of it this year, but will be second in earnings in today's field. Bewitch, listed at six to one today, has brought home $42,605.

In addition to the huge winner's share, second place will receive $25,000, third $12,500, and fourth $6,250.

Wake Forest Begins New Gridiron Era

By ED JOYNER
United Press Sports Writer

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (UP)—Tom Rogers, starting his first season as head coach of the Wake Forest Demon Deacons, moaned the pre-season blues like a veteran today and then admitted he has a "pretty fair" starting lineup.

That "pretty fair" lineup includes a handful of standouts other coaches in the Southern Conference would give their teeth to claim. But Rogers' plaint, a familiar one in Baptist hollow, is "no reserves."

The stocky Rogers probably has a better idea of his material than any of the four other new coaches in the conference. He was long-time line coach for the Deacons before he stepped up to fill the shoes of flamboyant Peahead Walker, who resigned last year to help out his old friend Herman Hickman as assistant coach at Yale.

Rogers has five of his seven starting linemen back from last year—big, hard-charging bruisers who helped make the Deacs the nation's No. 1 team on total defense.

Bill George and Ed Listopad are the bright spots of the line, holding down the tackle spots. At guard Rogers can take his pick of Bill Link, Clyde Packard, Leonard Palletta and Bill Finance. Letterman Tom Donahue has the edge at center, but sophomore Dave Francis will give him tough competition.

Flanking his forward wall, Rogers has two seasoned ends in speedy Jack Lewis, sophomore standout last year, and Ed McClure.

Helping to ease Rogers' pain is a clockwork backfield that is equally dangerous from the ground or air.

It includes two of the country's best passers in quarterbacks Dickie Davis and Ed Kissell. Packing an elephant's share of the group wallop is pilingriving Bill Miller, a bull of a boy who stacks up with the best fullbacks in the South.

Rounding out the attack unit at halfback are fast and fancy Larry Spencer and the Deacon's prize surprise of 1950, Guido Scarton. Scarton's power-packed speed made him a brilliantly consistent ground gainer either through or around Wake Forest opponents last year.

The debit side of the picture shows some reason for Rogers' moans. He has 20 lettermen returning, but graduation and military enlistments took some of 1950's brightest performers.

The schedule:
Sept. 21—Boston College at Boston; Sept. 29—N.C. State at Raleigh; Oct. 6—Richmond, here; Oct. 13—William and Mary at Richmond, Va.; Oct. 20—George Washington at Washington; Oct. 27—North Carolina, here; Nov. 3—Clemson at Clemson; Nov. 10—Duke at Durham; Nov. 17—Baylor at Waco, Tex.; Nov. 24—South Carolina at Columbia.

Michigan State athletic teams during 1950-51 compiled a record of 94 wins, 53 losses and two ties in 13 intercollegiate sports.

'Miss Pepsi' Is Favorite In Race

DETROIT (UP)—Miss Pepsi, the tried and true racing bat owned by the Dossin Bros., today ruled as a heavy favorite to win the silver cup in the Detroit River.

Driven by veteran Chuck Thompson, Miss Pepsi coasted to an easy victory in the 250th Birthday Festival Regatta Saturday over the same course, leaving all rivals far behind.

However, the silver cup is an altogether different race than the festival regatta. It places emphasis on endurance rather than speed.

While the festival regatta consisted of two 12-mile heats, the silver cup is a marathon consisting of five heats at the same distance.

A year ago, Miss Pepsi appeared winner of the silver cup but was relieved of the title by a last minute decision of the judges. They ruled the sleek craft had cut a buoy and ordered it disqualified.

Lopez Says Indians Have Lost Their Batting Slump

CLEVELAND (AP)—Al Lopez thinks the three home runs Harry Simpson, Al Rosen and Luke Easter belted on a cluster of four pitches snapped a hitting slump and put Cleveland back in the pennant race.

"I think that did it," said the Cleveland manager who previously had noted his club had to break out of its hit-and-run famine if it was going to stay close to the front running New York Yankees.

The blows—off Ned Garver's pitching yesterday—sparked an 11-hit attack and led to a 5-1 win over St. Louis. The victory pushed the Tribe to within half a game of the Yankees whose tilt at Washington was rained out.

"We hit a good pitcher and he had good stuff," Lopez continued.

The 11 hits were the most the Indians had collected in any contest in their last 14 starts. Last week when the Yankees pushed them out of first the Indians averaged six a game.

Simpson smacked the first of the four-baggers with two out in the third after Bob Avila singled. The ball lined to left field where Ken Wood missed a shoe string catch.

After Simpson rounded the bases for an inside-the-park round trip, Rosen let Garver's first throw go for a ball and then rifled the next pitch into the left field stands. Easter tagged the next one over the right field fence.

The four runs were the most the Indians had bunched in an inning since Aug. 19. Last week they averaged one run a game.

Prospect Still Look Good For Adjourning Congress By Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic leader Ernest W. McFarland, said today that prospects still look good for hitting his Oct. 1 target date for adjournment of Congress.

One of the biggest obstacles fell last week when the slow-moving Senate used only three days to debate and pass the bill authorizing a huge foreign aid program.

McFarland told reporters that the Senate so far has met the deadlines he has set. He said he is shooting for passage of the "must" bills by Sept. 15, leaving the next two weeks for the cleanup.

His must bills have included the foreign aid measure, the regular appropriation bills and the tax increase bill.

To pass those measures by mid-September, the Senate has been working daily, taking only a long Labor Day weekend while House members were enjoying a three-week holiday.

After a routine session tomorrow, the Senate will resume work Wednesday. Legislation scheduled for Wednesday includes a bill to authorize the transfer of destroyer escorts to other nations and another to authorize a $5,900,000,000 military construction program.

McFarland also wants to get action this week, at a Saturday session if necessary, on the armed services appropriations bill, which is still in committee.

The tax bill, still in the finance committee, is on the program for next week. The committee is unlikely to recommend much more than $6,000,000,000 in new levies.

The House has approved a tax boost of $7,200,000,000. Differences will have to be compromised, and the likelihood is that the final bill will be about $6,500,000,000.

Yesterday Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder said Americans are "pretty well off" and can pay the higher taxes without injuring the national economy.

McFarland said bills to increase postal rates and postal salaries also will be worked into the schedule, if and when possible.

Aquatic Pickets Demand Tariffs

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Several hundred West coast fishing boats were set to stage a miles-long aquatic "picket line" today to back demands for a protective tariff on importation of Japanese frozen tuna.

The fishermen have complained that imports of Japanese tuna have reduced the price of domestic tuna from $900 a ton to about $250 a ton.

Faculty Meeting . . .

denis for the regular 1950-1951 session was compared with an enrollment of 1382 students during the same period for 1946-1947.

The college staff will be entertained at a dinner given by members of the Faculty Wives Club. Mrs. Hubert Coleman is chairman in charge of arrangements for the event, and Mrs. W. E. Dole has prepared a program of entertainment for the social meeting. Special guests will be new staff members and their wives or husbands. President and Mrs. Messick, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman and the honor guests will be in the receiving line.

Speeding Car . . .

collided with it.

Walter Lee Clark of near Greenville owns the truck. Damage to the truck was estimated at $700, police stated.

The injured: David Smith, driver, hip injuries and lacerations. Florence Smith, possible hip fracture. Barber Smith, possible fracture of the jaw. Marie Roebuck, hip and other injuries. Clara Price, fractured ribs. Delbert Smith and Mack Smith of Greenville and Helen Roebuck received bruises and lacerations. Delbert and Mack Smith were released from the hospital. Helen Roebuck was to be released today.

The collision occurred shortly after midnight, when Labor Day traffic to seashore resorts was unusually heavy.

A resident was quoted by Police- man W. B. Cole as saying the crash of the two vehicles could be heard half a mile away.

The fire department emergency truck and Wilkerson's ambulance transported the injured to the hospital.

Stringent Rules . . .

that Gromyko brought with him.

2. "Representation at the conference shall be confined to the governments of Allied powers invited by the government of the United States of America to participate in the conference." This would block any move by Gromyko to demand that Red China attend the conference.

3. The United States and Britain would explain the treaty during a period "which shall not exceed one hour each" and then all other delegations "may make a statement in no case to exceed one hour" and these speeches would only be on the present Japanese treaty. This would prevent any Communist filibusters. It would also rule out talk on extraneous subjects.

4. After a delegate had made his speech, he could not be heard again until all others have been heard and then only if the conference "shall decide as to what, if any, further statements will be permitted and under what conditions."

5. "No delegate or representative may address the conference without having previously been recognized by the presiding officer. The presiding officer shall have the power to call a speaker to order and if the speaker does not conform, shall terminate his recognition and call upon the next speaker."

Police Officer Nearly Lynched

COLONIAL BEACH, Va. (UP)—County and state police patrolled the streets of this coastal town today to prevent a recurrence of the near-lynching of a police officer during the weekend.

The officer, Charles White, bailed "outsiders" for starting the trouble. White and another policeman were forced to hide in a locked restaurant while the crowd outside stoned the building after they arrested a Washington man, Rogers J. Roberts, during a waterfront restaurant brawl.

White said Roberts claimed he and his brother, Everett, had been robbed of $200. The officer said Roberts hit him and used abusive language when he tried to arrest him, and he blackjacked him.

The crowd closed in yelling threats, and White retreated into the restaurant, locking the door. When state troopers arrived shortly afterward, the crowd had dispersed.

Rhee Says South Korea Can Add To Men In Field

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—President Syngman Rhee said today that the Republic of South Korea can raise 280,000 new troops for the United Nations if training facilities and arms are made available.

Rhee told the United Press in an interview that this is "the time to be constantly on the alert" against a new Communist offensive.

"The Communists may strike in full force at any time," the 76-year-old president said, "in an effort to win at least a limited objective for the sake of prestige in the Japanese peace treaty conference."

Such action might be an effort to recapture the capital city of Seoul, more for propaganda value than military use, he indicated.

Unhurt In Crash; Injured By Fall

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Walter E. Emery, 31, escaped injury in an automobile crash last night. His wife, Ariantia, 30, suffered slight shock.

While Emery was escorting his wife into the Atlantic City hospital, he slipped and fell on some steps, fracturing his ankle. Emery was admitted to the hospital, his wife was discharged.

Mystery Lights Over War Front

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (UP)—Mysterious red lights originating in Communist territory floated over the Allied lines tonight for the fourth night in a row. United Nations officials could offer no explanation.

The lights, which eye-witnesses said resembled a chandelier, apparently were carried aloft by a balloon or helicopter, and then moved across the lines by wind at a height of 2,000 feet.

They disappeared into the rear areas.

Jap Delegates Short Of Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Japanese delegates to the peace conference are admittedly short of cash and full of professed humility.

Members of the delegation have only $155 apiece in spending money but feel this may be enough since most of them don't speak English and haven't enough interpreters to staff a first-class shopping tour.

PRAYDA PROTESTS MOSCOW (UP)—The Communist newspaper Pravda again accused the United States today of violating the Potsdam and Yalta agreement and said Japan already was an American war base.

President Flies To Pact-Signing In San Francisco

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman flew to San Francisco today with a warning to Russia not to throw any monkey wrenches into the Japanese peace treaty machinery.

The chief executive took off for the West coast at 7:28 a.m. (EST) aboard his DC-6 Independence and was scheduled to arrive in San Francisco 10 hours later.

His pilot, Col. Francis T. Williams, plans a non-stop trip.

Mr. Truman was in a jovial mood when he arrived at the Washington airport to board the plane. He engaged in his usual banter with reporters, but put everything he said "off-the-record."

Mr. Truman will open the peace treaty conference tomorrow night with a major speech which is expected to tell the Russians once more that the United States will oppose strongly any Soviet interference with successful conclusion of the Japanese treaty.

Mission Tent Is Going To Grifton

The Gospel Tent of the Roanoke Baptist Association will be moved from Rocky Mount on Tuesday and set up at Grifton, where evangelistic services will be begun in a few days, according to an announcement yesterday, by Rev. L. Grady Burgess, the Associational Missionary.

A successful evangelistic campaign was conducted in the tent at 1200 Tarboro St., in Rocky Mount, with a Sunday school being organized on Sunday afternoon as a result of the meeting, and plans are under way for the establishment of a church in that section of the town. The new work in Rocky Mount is to be known as the "Edgement Baptist Mission."

Meetings are now being held in the Scout Hut on Redgate Avenue, with a Sunday school each Sunday at 3:00 p.m., and with a prayer service each Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

"Present plans are to leave the tent at its location on Main St. in Grifton, at the water tank, until the middle of October," Rev. Burgess said. It will be used for both evangelistic services and the establishment of mid-week prayer services, and very likely a Sunday school.

Daily evangelistic services will be announced later.

Big Copper Firm Almost Back To Full Production

DENVER (UP)—Officials of the Kennecott Copper Corp. said today the firm was almost back to full production, but three other strike-bound firms were deadlocked in their efforts to reach a settlement with the union.

Although it was Labor Day, the miners were in the pits digging copper at Kennecott after the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union ended its six-day old strike against the large producer yesterday.

Louis Buckman, manager of the Kennecott open pit mine at Bingham, Utah, said full production would be reached by tomorrow, but the shut-down cost the nation an estimated 9,000,000 pounds of copper.

Attempted Rape Of Girl Charged

Police during the weekend arrested James Knight, 21-year-old Negro truck driver, on the charge of attempted rape on Mary Elizabeth House, 13-year-old Negro girl.

Police quoted prosecuting witnesses as saying the alleged attack occurred in a vacant house in Bonner's Lane. Prosecuting witnesses are Lonnie House and Mary, Negroes, 1304 Railroad Street. Knight was scheduled to have a hearing in Police Court today.

Slowly Shuffle Back To School

The streets of Greenville were filled this morning with sleepy-eyed boys and girls, slowly shuffling their way back to school after a vacation which was termed by some as "too short."

The city schools opened their doors this morning to the 1951-1952 school year, expecting one of the largest enrollments in the history of the schools. O. E. Dowd, principal of Greenville High School, said he expected 575 students to report to the high school, which is the largest enrollment in the history of the school.

Many boys and girls are entering the Greenville City schools for the first time this year and 30 new students registered at the high school last week. Plans were made by school officials to take care of the new students in the high school when they met this morning separately from the other students to receive instructions.

So begins another school year here.

Pair Injured In Auto Accident

STOKES—Two persons were injured yesterday afternoon near here when the automobile in which they were riding failed to make a curve, going into a ditch.

Injured were: Oscar Lee Brown, 21, who suffered cuts over the eyes and on his chest. Also injured was Orlander James who received cuts on the eye.

The car was driven by James Howell of Route 2, Robersonville.

Officers who investigated the accident stated that the car was traveling at too high a rate of speed to make a curve, going into a ditch and turning over on its left side.

Damage to the automobile was estimated by investigating officer B. A. Jackson at $300.

Investigation of the accident is not complete, pending further questioning of the driver, it was stated.

The accident was one of two accidents to occur in Pitt County over the past weekend.

Find Moonshine In Raiding Homes

A lot of moonshine whiskey was poured out during the weekend when ABC and police officers rounded up two Negro defendants and charged them with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for purpose of sale.

The officers Saturday arrested William Henry Goward, 76, Negro of 1306 West Fifth Street, when they found him sitting on a glass jar of moonshine whiskey at the home of John Atkinson, Negro, on West Fifth Street. He posted $200 bond and was released.

Atkinson was absent when the raid was made. He was arrested Sunday and posted $300 cash bond. Participating officers were J. M. Ward, J. L. Taylor, Claude T. Manning and R. W. King, and City Detective Norman H. Byrd and Lt. M. E. Corbett.

The officers said they also found six gallons of non-tax-paid whiskey buried on Atkinson's premises.

The same officers said they caught Raymond Best, 31, Negro, 623 Hudson Street, in the act of pouring

Recent Air Force Policy Changes Affect ROTC

Some recent policy changes of the quarter sophomores. The new plan USAF will affect enrollment of college students in the air force ROTC programs, according to Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College.

The Air ROTC unit at East Carolina probably will enroll many additional students for training under the newly announced policies.

College units may now enroll non-veteran sophomores and a limited number of juniors in the first year basic course which was previously restricted to freshmen and first
