Western Delegates Await New Tricks From Soviets

Chances Of Eleventh-Hour Difficulty At Peace-Writing Conference Viewed As Probable; Intervention In Korea And Walkout Considered Possible

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)— Western delegates said today they fear new tricks from the Russians to try to prevent signing of the Japanese peace treaty, including possible all-out Russian intervention in Korea.

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala) reflect[s] the views of the United States' delegation and those of many foreign diplomats on chances of 11th hour trouble here or in Korea.

"I don't believe they can stop us now," he said, "but I'm keeping my fingers crossed. I believe that when Saturday comes we will be prepared to sign the treaty. I'm sure the Communists, however, have plenty of tricks to pull here or elsewhere."

When asked what the Russians might do, Sparkman, a member of the U. S. delegation, said "they are capable of intervening in Korea among a great many other things." He said in Korea the Russians could order their planes and submarines into action as retaliation for their defeats here on the treaty.

Ambassador John Foster Dulles, who guided treaty talks for a year, said he "assumed" the Russians, Polish and Czech delegates would walk out of the 52-nation conference before the treaty is signed, probably tomorrow.

"I doubt that they will sign the treaty, and they surely won't want to be spectators at the signing," Dulles said.

[S]ecretary of State Dean Acheson, parley president, hoped speeches on the treaty could be wound up this evening with signing ceremonies [s]et for tomorrow.

Poker-faced Andrei Gromyko alone stood in the way of meeting the schedule that is expected to see 48 or 49 nations signing the Japanese treaty.

Twenty-five countries already h[a]ve disclosed their plans to sign and the remainder of overwhelming majority support will pile up during today's morning, afternoon and evening sessions. So far, only the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia have indicated they won't sign. Poland will sound its Red echo near the end of the speaking list.

Gromyko was sure to be heard from when the other speakers finish if he can get the floor.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) said he had information from a foreign delegation that the Soviet bloc would walk out. Gromyko, asked for comment on Bridges statement, said—"Not interested!"

Tough-talking Sir Carl Berendsen of New Zealand gained the Lion's share of yesterday's applause for jibing at the Russians. [P]inting to Gromyko he said the Soviet delegate was here "to do mischief."

Berendsen branded the Soviet Union as "the prime and only inciter of world disruption and dissension." He challenged Gromyko to "lift the mystery" on the fate of some 370,000 Japanese prisoners of war held by the Soviets at the end of the war.

"These people have not come here with any intention of assist[i]ng Japan or advancing the cause of peace," he said, pointing again at Gromyko.

The only woman delegate, Dr. Gertruda Sekaninova-Cakrtova of Czechoslovakia, harangued for 63 minutes—three minutes over the hour allotted each speaker — against the treaty. Her main point was that American "leaders" feared peace.

New Ferocity In Korean Fighting

Surprise Chinese Thrust Driven Back With Estimated 2,000 Casualties; Counter Attack Gains High Ground

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)— Allied troops lashed back with a violent counter-attack against tanked Chinese forces today on Korea's western front and drove the enemy into retreat with an estimated 2,000 casualties.

The surprise Chinese thrust down the ancient war road to Seoul cut off three advance United Nations patrol bases before the Allies uncorked their own drive. The entrapped Allied units fought their way back to their own lines with their dead and wounded and then turned to join the counter-attack.

Allied troops regained a hill northwest of Yonchon and west of that city 1,100 Chinese Reds were reported in retreat.

The surprise Red assault may have been a softening-up blow before a full-scale offensive. But the Reds found no soft points in the Allied lines.

The Communists may have been just showing their teeth in a pressure move tied in with Red stalling on the Kaesong cease-fire talks but the U.N. troops were ready.

Advancing U.N. troops drove into high ground overlooking the Majang-Myong area northwest of Yonchon shortly after noon Friday and the Reds turned and pulled back before close contact was made.

U.N. artillery and tank fire withered the enemy positions as the counter-attack pushed on.

Far to the east, defeated Communist troops who gave up Bloody Ridge and the hills above the hotly-contested "Punchbowl" Valley streamed northward and an Allied officer said there were reports of many Communist desertions and assassinations of Red officers.

The western front assault cost the enemy at least 400 counted dead and 23 prisoners in addition to an estimated 1,600 wounded while warplanes knocked out at least five of the Russian-built T-34 tanks aiding the Red attack.

Despite the setbacks on the western and eastern ends of the Korean war front, the Reds were desperately jamming supply trucks and carts through a day-and-night U.N. air blockade. Thursday's non-stop air patrols destroyed or damaged a record 857 enemy vehicles, to bring their 12-day toll of enemy trucking to 5,657.

Reds Silent On Ridgway Bid For New Parley Site

Meeting On Neutral Ship At Sea Appears Only Condition Agreeable

TOKYO (UP)—A meeting on a neutral ship at sea appeared today to provide the only condition under which either the Communists or the United Nations will agree to resume the Korean cease-fire talks.

The Red leaders still were silent today on the U.N. demand for a new conference site. Their truce team rejected as "Unsatisfactory" the latest Allied notes about Kaesong neutrality violations. But the Communist delegation made no new protests.

Failure of the Reds to make an immediate reply to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's proposal for a new meeting place brought neither pessimism nor optimism here. The official view is that it is up to the Reds to make the move that will either get the talks back on the road or ban them for good.

An answer is certain to come, if only because the Communists do not want to take the blame for the final collapse of the talks.

A meeting on a neutral ship seemed to offer the only hope for getting talks started again because no suitable land sites exist.

It seemed the Reds may be waiting either for developments at the San Francisco Japanese peace treaty conference or for the outcome of their sudden attack on Korea's western front before replying to Ridgway.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red truce delegate, answered the three notes sent to him Tuesday by Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy curtly rejecting Communist protests against alleged U.N. violations of Kaesong's neutrality.

Nam Il's replies, contained in two notes dated Thursday and broadcast today by Peiping radio, insisted that the U.N. take responsibility for the alleged incidents and, called Joy's reply "unsatisfactory" but did not go into the matter of the violations again—a marked departure from Red actions in the past.

Leaves And Reeds Found In Digg ings Are Thousands Of Years Old

The possibility that Greenville and Pitt County were once the outer edges of the Atlantic ocean or some other large body of water was voiced recently when long buried leaves, which had started the formation of peat were uncovered near the city limits. In the above photo, H. R. Pele, inspector for the state at the White Asphant Company plant, holds in his hands portions of the pressed leaves which were found 30 feet below the surface of the earth.

Some of the hidden secrets under the soil of Pitt County were brought to light recently when several fossils were unearthed by the White Construction Company on the Pactolus highway. In the photo above are shown hunks of the blue clay in which reeds and branches of swamp plants were bound embedded and preserved intact. Investigators have advanced the theory that the findings may be thousands of years old. (Reflector Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

Re-Checks Planned On Bad Sanitation Findings

Waldrop To Again Inspect And Determine If Recommendations Carried Out; 392 Of 500 Homes Need Repairs

Greenville's sanitary inspection program, launched several weeks ago, aimed at cleaning up the unsanitary conditions prevailing in various sections of the city, is moving along at a good pace.

That was the word given out this morning by J. Caroll Waldrop, sanitary inspector for the city of Greenville.

Waldrop estimated today that a total of 500 homes in the city have been inspected to date; of which 392 were found to be in need of sanitary improvements or repairs to the present ones.

Found lacking in most of the houses inspected were either toilets, sinks, or water and sewer outlets.

"One point which I want to stress is that at the end of the present survey I plan to go back over the inspections blanks and then check to see if the work recommended has been carried out. If it has not, then we will have to take measures to see that it is", the inspector stated.

By the time the job of inspecting the entire town is completed, the first places inspected will have been inspected for two months, or ample time to see that the repairs or recommendations have been carried out.

All investigations made thus far has been in areas of the city where there are now water and sewer connections available to the land owners, and the check is aimed at finding housing units which have not been properly connected with the city lines.

"I am working with the City Utilities Commission and inspecting now only areas which have the necessary sewer lines and water works. After this work is completed, I will begin on the areas which are not now joined with the city sewer and water lines, such as the Bama, North Greenville, and Cotton Mill Hill.

Progress of checking the houses for the past several weeks has been slow, Waldrop reported, due to the fact that a lot of people have been away from their homes, making it impossible to examine the houses.

So far, Waldrop stated that he has had no "kicks" from the land owners or the tenants about his have been most cooperative and inspecting. Most of the people seemed glad that there was the prospect that some type of improvements will be made.

At the present time the drive is at about the one-third mark.

Waldrop has estimated that over 1500 houses will have to be inspected before the drive is completed. "Of that number, I would think changes will have to be made in possibly 1250 of them", he remarked.

Some land owners have already started to make the recommended repairs or replacements.

"One man expressed the view that he repaired his houses years ago when a similar drive was under way (that was when the present outlawed 'vogel type' units were installed) and that he was not going to do anything about his until he found out that the city meant business,' Waldrop stated.

The inspector advised the land owner to get the work started as soon as he could.

Waldrop further stated that members of the Pitt County Health Department have offered any assistance needed by the sanitary inspector but as yet have not been used in the survey work.

Regular conferences have been held between members of the Health Department about the work and they have been very helpful, Waldrop said.

Estimated time needed before the job of surveying the entire town is completed has been placed around four or five weeks.

Two Prisoners Flee Road Gang

Make Escape Early This Morning In Vicinity Gum Swamp

AYDEN — Two prisoners of the state prison farm at Greenville escaped from a road working crew early this morning about two miles from here.

According to information received here, the two prisoners made their bid for freedom in the vicinity of the Gum Swamp while working on the road.

The escaped men were last seen making their way down a wooded path headed for the deep swamp.

As soon as the discovery of the men's escape was made known, the word was flashed to all law enforcement cars in the county and nearby areas alerting them on the escape.

The two men were listed by prison officials as George Bass, 25, 160

Clues To Early Pitt Found 30 Feet Deep

Fossils Indicate County May Once Have Been Bordering Large Body Of Water; Found Buried In Strata Of Peat

By ROY HARDEE
(Reflector Staff Writer)

What lies under the crust of Pitt County's outer layer? Has the land we now know as Greenville and Pitt County once been the outer edge of the Atlantic Ocean and at one time covered by its pounding waves?

That question was raised recently with the unearthing of several fossils at the White Construction Company on the Pactolus Highway.

In the process of digging for sand to be used in the manufacturing of asphalt, construction company workers discovered several items which may bring the early history of the land in this area into a sharper focus.

Uncovered from a depth of 30 feet were layers of pressed leaves which were just beginning to start the formation of peat, the first stages of coal.

The layers of leaves, clearly seen with the naked eye, ranged in depth of two to four inches and more in spots. Also, well preserved reeds and leaves were found in black hunks of clay.

H. R. Peele, state inspector at the asphalt plant, was the first to note the importance of the materials and called two faculty members of East Carolina College, asking them to examine them.

Dr. George C. Martin of the Geography department and Dr. H. C. Jones of the Science Department made the investigation of the materials and came up with the following conclusions:

The materials uncovered by the digging, ranged in age of a few thousand years to between 20,000 and 30,000 years old, according to the East Carolina faculty members.

"The only way in which the exact age of the fossils can be determined is by testing with radioactive materials," Dr. Martin stated. "However, we can be sure that the substance found here is thousands of years old."

Dr. Jones expressed the theory that the leaves and reeds found in the ground are the remains of swamp land or marsh areas, preserved from decay by being completely embedded in the black clay, forming an airtight vault for them.

"From outward appearance the sections of reeds and such found appear very much like "cat tails" bull rushes, commonly found in swamp areas which would further bear out our idea that this area was once under the ocean or the outer edge of the sea."

The leaves which were just beginning to turn into peat were not as well kept as the reeds because they were buried in sand and water and air was allowed to reach them. "Possibly in time, small deposits of coal will be discovered around this section," it was stated.

Further indications that Greenville and Pitt county may have been under water at one time, either by the ocean or some other large body of water for a long time and worn of small, nearly perfectly rounded stones and pebbles, indicating they have been carried along in a body of water for a long time and work smooth by the action of the water.

Also the sizes of the grains of sand, larger at the surface of the land and getting smaller as they go deeper, indicate clearly that the surface has been under water.

The presence of several pieces of granite in the area has not been explained.

Dr. Jones pointed out that in some section of Greenville there have been found shell deposits which adds to the belief that the region was once near an ocean.

Further study of the fossils is scheduled as soon as possible, the teachers stated.

City Street Work Gets Top Priority

Parking Problems Also Get Attention Of Aldermen; Recreation Planning To Be Followed Through As Requested

Greenville aldermen last night gave top priority to six street improvement projects when the city gets around to spending the $49,739 it will get from the Powell bill funds.

The recommendation of the street committee naming the projects in the order they should be undertaken was accepted by the board without objection.

The projects in order of importance as designated by the aldermen are: (1) repair work on East Fourth Street adjacent to the high school ravine; (2) paving of two blocks on Grande Avenue and all of Myrtle Avenue which has curb and gutter; (3) paving two blocks on Manhattan Avenue; (4) paving one block on Chestnut Street between Watauga Avenue and Skinner Street; (5) paving two blocks on Tyson Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets; (6) paving one block on South Alley from Atlantic Avenue to Albemarle Avenue.

In its resolution setting up the priority on street work, the board stipulated that the paving work be done only if the property owners along the proposed projects agree to bear two-thirds of the cost and the city pay one-third.

In an effort to eliminate some of the traffic congestion in the business section of Greenville the board accepted the recommendations of Police Chief Guy Langston and ordered parking eliminated on the east side of Pitt Street from Fifth to Second Streets. Pitt Street, Langston said, will be used by trucks hauling tobacco from the north side of the river to the factories.

The board likewise ordered: removal of all parking next to the traffic island by the ACL railroad between Tenth Street and Dickinson Avenue; the elimination of parking in front of the United Surplus Store and Williams 5 and 10 at the intersection of Greene Street, Dickinson Avenue and Eighth Street; and installing parking meters on the east side of Evans Street from just beyond the Texaco Service Station to Second Street.

The street committee was instructed to investigate the possibility of taking off a portion of the northwest corner of the Greene Street-Dickinson Avenue intersection to facilitate traffic movement.

Highway traffic as well as city traffic was on the agenda of the aldermen last night, and the board unanimously passed a resolution for the establishment of an alternate route U.S. 258-A from Kinston through Greenville connecting with U.S. 258 at Scotland Neck. R. B. Nelson of Robersonville appeared before the board and explained that the proposed route for a U.S. highway would follow N.C. 11 from Kinston through Grifton, Ayden, Winterville and Greenville, then through Stokes, Robersonville and on to Scotland Neck.

The aldermen accepted the recommendations of the City Planning Board and the Recreation Commission to follow through with the planning for recreation areas for the city and to employ Engineer Eugene Martini to develop site plans for

Child Falls From Wagon Severe Injuries Are Fatal

Tragedy struck late yesterday afternoon and with it took the life of a four-year-old rural youth.

Malcolm Joyner of Route 2, Winterville, was fatally injured when he fell from a tractor-drawn trailer upon which he was riding along with six other children. Ages of the children ranged from 4 to 12. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melton Joyner.

The driver, Elmer Ray Blount, Negro, 16, stated he did not know the child had fallen from the wagon until he felt a bump and believed one of his tires had gone flat.

Blount said he stopped the tractor and it was then that he discovered the Joyner child had been injured.

The accident occurred on a curve of a rural road about 100 yards from the J. B. Speight seed farm some two miles south of U.S. Highway 264.

Blount carried the injured child to the Speight seed plant where the child's father was.

Manning Nobles, also at the seed farm plant, rushed the child to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he died shortly after arrival. The accident occurred about 4:55, investigating officer H. M. Morrow reported.

Doctors at Pitt Memorial stated that the child's chest was crushed, causing death.

It was believed that the wheels of the wagon rolled over the boy's body after he fell.

The trailer at the time of the accident was headed towards the seed farm, loaded with corn, which caused the children to ride near the top of the side rails.

No account was given by the children as to how the child fell from the trailer.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated this morning that he is still conducting an investigation into the accident and has not yet decided if an inquest will be necessary.

The fatality brings to seven the number of persons who have lost their lives in mishaps on Pitt County's highways this year.

Thursday's Leaf Sales Are Best

Yesterday's sales on the tobacco market here was the largest during the season in averages, pounds, and money paid out to farmers.

Tobacco brought an average of $50.01 for the 1,837,890 pounds which sold for $919,051.42. A slightly larger percent of the better grades of tobacco began to appear on the market yesterday which caused the increase in poundage, money, and averages.

But Supervisor of Sales W. L. Whedbee said the floors continued to be flooded with medium and common grades of tobacco.

Wednesday's sales averaged $48.05 for the 1,786,762 pounds of tobacco which sold for $858,522.37 and a medium and common grade of tobacco was on the floor, mostly tips and bottom primings.

Britain Quietly Building Deep A-Bomb Shelters

LONDON — (UP) — Britain has quietly launched a civil defense program that is honeycombing the ground under its major cities with atom-bomb shelters 100 feet deep, it was disclosed today.

The plan for such shelters has been in existence for some time. Now Britain apparently has given up hope of a peaceful atomic age and has begun putting the program into effect.

News of the shelter projects leaked when curious persons tried to learn why laborers were tearing up a recently repaved street in London's High Holborn area. Onlookers soon discovered this was no ordinary street repair job.

Foremen in charge of the projects admitted they were sinking deep shafts but said they were pledged to secrecy on the purpose. All workers have been hacking away with great energy, in contrast to the leisurely pace of ordinary London street repair work.

Similar shafts were discovered near No. 10 Downing St., home of Prime Minister Clement Attlee and the center of a vast group of government buildings.

De Gasperi Sails For U. S. Parley

CHERBOURG, France (UP)— Italian Premier de Gasperi sailed last night for America on the British liner Queen Elizabeth. He will attend the 12-nation North Atlantic Treaty conference in Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 15 and will visit Washington Sept. 24-26.

It is believed he will seek revisions in the Allied peace treaty with Italy in line with the more liberal Japanese treaty to be signed in San Francisco.

News Balance Sheet

Good Side Includes Firm Stand In San Francisco, Arms Progress And Victories In Korea; Berlin, Kaesong And Iran Centers Of Week's Bad News

By HARRY FERGUSON

Balance sheet for the week between good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

GOOD NEWS

1. The anti-Communist nations took a firm stand at the Japanese peace treaty conference and beat down the attempts of the Russians and their satellites to sabotage the proceedings. It was another example of the tougher attitude the Western powers have adopted in the face of the Moscow program for world conquest.

2. The United States is making rapid progress in perfecting the [a]tom that will be used in event World War III breaks out. In addition to improvements and refinements in atomic bombs, definite plans are under way now to construct atomic airplanes and atomic-powered submarines.

3. The United Nations army in Korea has won a series of engagements in a limited offensive designed to keep the enemy off balance. The striking and defensive power of the U.N. army has been built up to the point where its firepower per man now is the highest and strongest of any army in history.

BAD NEWS

1. The Russians are making threatening gestures in Berlin. They have imposed a highway tax which has slowed down to a crawl traffic moving into the city. Allied parcel post shipments from Berlin to the West virtually have been halted. The tactics are similar to the ones the Russians used when they imposed the Berlin blockade.

2. The Communists continue to stall on the cease-fire negotiations in Korea, and are using the time gained to build up their forces for a possible offensive. U.N. high commanders announced this week that "volunteers" from Russia's European satellites have appeared in Korea.

3. The Iranian oil crisis continues to threaten a huge source of fuel for the Western world. Settlement has been further delayed because the Iranians are now in a controversy among themselves on whether to serve an ultimatum on the British who operated the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

Missed Opportunity

Russians Outsmarted Themselves When, Five Years Ago, U. S. Proposed Treaty To Keep Japan Disarmed For 25 Years; Now They Are On Short End

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Writing about the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco is a little like writing about Julius Caesar.

Caesar is dead and the signing of the treaty was ancient history before it started. It was fixed, certain and in the bag before the delegates met to make sure the Russians couldn't stop it.

But while the mere signing is a foregone conclusion, no one is wise enought to predict the eventual outcome of what has happened in San Francisco. The United States has taken few steps in its history more important than this.

Japan is to be free again: free to re-arm and make its own way, and we have a new and important ally. That's for the present. We hope it works out all right, that in the end Japan won't go on another rampage, that she will remain an ally, and that she won't eventually go communist or tie up with the communist.

This treaty with Japan couldn't be more far-reaching and unpredictable if we had suddenly turned Germany loose again, with guns in her hand.

Future trouble started on the first full day of the conference when Russia's Andrei Gromyko, who knew from the beginning he couldn't block the treaty but went through the motions, made it clear Russia won't recognize the treaty.

The irony in all these Russian screams of pain about the treaty is that they missed the boat on Japan. They outsmarted themselves when they had a chance five years ago to work out a deal with the U. S. to keep Japan disarmed for a quarter of a century.

Back in 1946, before American-Russian relations went rotten, the U. S. made a proposal to which, as the diplomats say with their typical understatement, the Russians were "unresponsive."

In that year the U. S. proposed that this country, Russia, Britain and China (that was before China went communist) consider a treaty to keep Japan disarmed for 25 years. Russia dead-panned it and nothing happened.

Junior Woman's Club Begins Year's Work

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Tom B. Brown, president. A tentative budget was approved as well as a report of the Ways and Means Committee for financing the budget.

Mrs. Sam Weeks, secretary, read a letter from the district president in which it was urged that Civilian Defense, Books for Europe, and Music be stressed during the year.

Mrs. Kenneth Allen was appointed War Bond Chairman, while Mrs. Larry Averette accepted the appointment as clothing chest chairman. Mrs. Howard Gratis was elected to fill the vacancy of the first vice president.

The club voted to observe October 6 as Annual Tag Day for the Watson Memorial Fund.

Mrs. Kenneth Hite, Mrs. Howard Gradis, Miss Marion Perry, Mrs. Tom B. Brown, Mrs. Thurman Dail, Mrs. Malcolm Williams, Mrs. Aubrey Taylor, and Mrs. Larry Averette were chosen as delegates to represent the club at the District Meeting in Colerain on October 9th.

Dr. Howard Gratis spoke briefly on behalf of a Blood Bank for Pitt County, after which the club voted unanimously to endorse such a program.

Following the business meeting Mrs. R. C. Pearce Jr. and Mrs. Charles Horne Jr. served iced drinks, mints, cheese sticks and cookies.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. A. B. Whitley, Mrs. Joe Robertson and Mrs. James Davenport.

Joint Hostesses Honor Bride

Mrs. Charles Randolph, the former Billie Dove White, was the honored guest at a bridge party given by Miss Peggy Edwards and Miss Blanche Majette on Monday, August 27.

A profusion of late summer flowers were arranged artistically in Miss Edwards' home and formed a beautiful background for five tables of bridge.

Mrs. Randolph was presented a corsage of white asters and remembered with a gift of china in her chosen pattern. Mrs. Richard Jackson was also remembered with a gift.

High score was won by Mrs. W. A. Hudson and Mrs. S. A. Porter was winner of second high. Low score went to Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell.

Several extra guests joined the bridge players for refreshments, which consisted of ice cream, decorated cakes and mints carrying out the bridal motif.

Ayden Christian Church

On Sunday evening, September 9, at 7:30 Rev. Gilbert Davis Jr. will be installed as pastor of the Ayden Christian Church.

Dr. D. Ray Lindley, president of A. C. College, will be guest speaker using as his subject "The Call to the Christian Ministry." Several Christian ministers from neighboring towns will participate in the service. Ministers of the Ayden Ministerial Association will also take part.

This is a Union Service to which all are cordially invited.

Mrs. Minges Entertains For Mrs. Spilman At Luncheon

Mrs. Hoyt Minges was a luncheon hostess on Wednesday at 1 p. m. when she entertained to compliment Mrs. J. B. Spilman Jr., a recent bride.

The guests were greeted informally at the door by the hostess and Mrs. Spilman, who was wearing a white corsage presented to her upon her arrival. Massive arrangements of mixed cut flowers were tastefully used on tables and mantels to provide a lovely setting for the party.

Iced punch was passed on trays as the guests gathered. From a well appointed table in the dining room, Mrs. Roy Coburn, mother of the guest of honor, and Mrs. John Clark served broiled chicken and fresh fruit salad from silver platters at either end of the table. The centerpiece was composed of white pompoms and carnations artistically placed in a silver bowl.

The guests found places marked for them at individual tables set up in the sun room and the drawing room. The dessert course was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Carolyn Clark.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Spilman was invited into the living room, where a small table covered with an organdy cloth was wheeled in, on which was a miscellaneous collection of shower gifts. The beautifully wrapped packages contained a variety of linen gifts brought to her by the guests.

Eighteen guests were invited to share in the compliment to Mrs. Spilman.

Commissioners Proceedings

The County Commissioners had a two day session this week. All members present. The usual pauper and other regular business was before them and usual orders issued. The reports of the several county officers were received and ordered recorded.

The second day was devoted mostly to the Chicod-Pactolus river bridge matter. The board decided they would not build a bridge at this time and the matter was postponed until some other future date.

The petition for the discontinuance of the Stantonsburg road from the Tarboro road to the old race track was "examined, approved and ordered advertised."

Mother of Local Resident Buried

Funeral services for Mrs. John R. Honaker, 90, mother of Mrs. L. L. Rives of this city, were held in Wytheville, Va. Wednesday afternoon and burial followed in St. John's Cemetery there.

Mrs. Honaker died Monday in the Wesley Hall Hospital in Greensboro after a critical illness of two weeks. She had been in declining health for two years.

She is survived by three daughters and two sons, 13 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Rives returned yesterday from Wytheville.

Receives Commission

Second Lieutenant Junius H. Rose Jr., USMC, will arrive in Greenville tonight to spend a five dy leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rose, before reporting to Quantico, Va.

Lt. Rose received his commission as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps this morning at Parris Island, S.C. where he had been in Officers Candidate School. J. H. Rose and Donald Rose of Greenville attended the ceremonies at Parris Island this morning at which Lt. Rose received his commission.

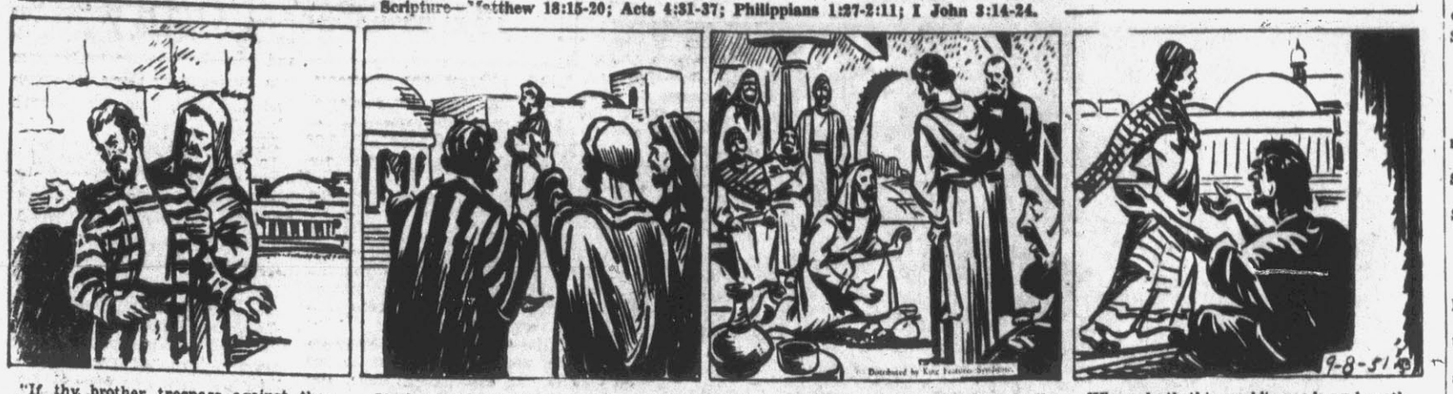
Fellowship in the Church — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 18:15-20; Acts 4:31-37; Philippians 1:27-2:11; I John 3:14-24.



"If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone; if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother."

If the brother will not make up the quarrel, take two or three friends to him; if they fail to make peace between you, take the matter to the church.

Members of the early church shared all things in common. Joses, having land, sold it, and laid the money at the apostles' feet for the needs of all.

Whoso hath this world's goods and seeth his brother have need, and will not help, "the love of God dwelleth not in him."

MEMORY VERSE—I John 3:16.

FELLOWSHIP IN THE CHURCH

"THEY WERE OF ONE HEART AND SOUL . . . AND HAD HAD ALL THINGS IN COMMON."

Scripture—Matthew 18:15-20; Acts 4:31-37—Philippians 1:27-2:11; I John 3:14-24.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THIS IS the story of what Jesus said about conduct of life in the church; and of how the members lived after the church was founded. It also tells us of Paul and John's advice on the Christian way of living.

The words of Jesus were uttered near Capernaum when the apostles had been disputing among themselves as to whom should be the greater in the kingdom of heaven. Jesus rebuked them, you remember, by putting a little child in their midst and saying that unless they could become as the little child in spirit, they could not even enter into that kingdom; and also that he who would be greatest should be willing to be the servant of all.

Jesus only used the word "church" twice during His ministry. St. Matthew tells us that He said: "If thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother."

If the brother would not admit his fault, the member was to take two or more friends and try to get the brother to make amends. If that failed, the matter should be taken to the church. Failing to get an admission of guilt and atonement, the brother was then to be cast out from the brotherhood.

In recent lessons we have been given the story of the community living of the early church members, mostly Jews in Jerusalem. St. Luke tells us that "the multitude of them that believed were of one heart, and of one soul; neither said any of them that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things in common."

None wanted for anything, for "distribution was made unto every man according as he had need." One, Joses, or Joseph, had a piece of land which he sold, and "brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet."

Unlike the young man who had great possessions, but could not bring himself to part with them, and so went sorrowfully away, Joseph gave all he had and lived happily with his brother church members.

"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that, whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit with one mind, striving together for the faith of the gospel:

"And in nothing terrified by your adversaries which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of salvation, and that of God. For unto you it is given in behalf of Christ not only to believe on Him, but also to suffer for His sake."

Again: "Fulfil ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.

"Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus; who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Himself the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men;

"And being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

"Wherefore, God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name above every name."

Surely disputes that rend churches, causing much bitterness and hatreds, would disappear if this advice was followed and differences were discussed in this spirit.

So it could be between nations if all would meet at the council tables in that same humble, loving spirit, instead of being on the point of flying at one another's throats, and hurling libelous charges at one another.

All nations, like all people, have faults. We, in our free country, do not always act in the spirit of the Master, forgetting that He, who had no sin, was humble in spirit and said He came to minister unto the world; not to be ministered unto.

St. John wrote:

"We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

"Whosover hateth his brother is a murderer, and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

"Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

"But whoso hath this world's goods, and sees his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, the love of God dwelleth not in him.

"My little children, let us love in word and truth."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
IMAGE AND LIKENESS

We read in the sixth chapter of I Corinthians, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God? and ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price: glorify God therefore in your body."

There is also another passage which speaks of the whole of a believer's life being a temple of the Holy Spirit, and another which says that his body is a member, or a part, of Christ. This all indicates the very sacred character of human life. It needs to be considered always when we are thinking of the evil that is within us.

Yesterday, mention was made of that twist of soul which we all have—that inborn disposition to do evil rather than to do good. This is true, but it is also true that our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit, that we are sacred because we are joined intimately with the divine nature. We are made in the image and after the likeness of God.

Therefore let us not deceive ourselves into believing that we are getting the most out of life when in any way we sin against our bodies, by dissipation of any kind—by intemperance, impurity, or any form of bad or irregular living.

When we do such evils, we impiously raise our hands and strike at God Himself.

Sitting On The Solution Isn't Helping At All

As the tobacco marketing season continues and business activity in Greenville surges toward its peak for the year, the streets of the city are becoming more and more congested with automobiles.

The lines of cars waiting for the stoplights are getting longer, the empty parking spaces have virtually vanished and the vehicle scramble in Greenville's business section is steadily growing worse.

While all this is going on the City Planning Board and the Police Department are sitting tightly on their hands waiting until the rush season passes before installing the one-way traffic system in downtown Greenville recommended in a major street plan made after a survey of traffic on the city streets.

The Reflector does not understand why the Planning Board and the Police Department insist that the plan should not be installed for this fall when it is needed most. As The Reflector pointed out several months ago, the one-way system could have been installed before the traffic peak was reached, and drivers would have been used to it by now.

Even though the system has not already been installed, it is still not too late to start its operation and have the city enjoy the benefits it will bring in the heavy traffic between now and Christmas.

The city of Kinston, even with its wide streets, has been faced with the same traffic problems Greenville has. Kinston originally intended to wait until January 1 to install the one-way system, but now the City Council has decided to move the date up to October 15 to help take care of the traffic congestion this fall. Greenville could do the same thing if the aldermen, planning board and police department would get their heads together on the matter.

Greenville needs a good one-way traffic system in its downtown section as badly as any city in this section of the state. Since such a system already has been mapped out for the city, there is no reason for delaying the project many months when it could be installed in the near future and benefit the city during the remainder of the fall.

Surely there will be some inconveniences and confusion when the system is first put into operation, but the great advantages the system carries certainly justifies its being installed immediately.

Grifton's Dream Is Becoming A Reality

Grifton's dream of growth which sprang up with the location of Du Pont's new Dacron plant just a few miles away are transcending into the realm of reality.

The first dwellings of the 41-unit housing project which has been under construction in the town are being occupied. The town can now watch its population increase day by day as more of the houses are completed and more new families move in. New businesses and other signs of a rejuvenated life are making their appearances in the business section of Grifton as well.

The town of Grifton, which for many years has been a sleepy little town on the banks of Contentnea Creek, has stretched its legs to meet industrial progress stride for stride. The people of Grifton have done a lot of turning during the past few months getting ready for the growth which has been assured them. They didn't sit back and wait for new life to come in and plop down in their collective lap. They went out and sought the growth, and are now beginning to see some of the tangible results. The Reflector is confident Grifton will continue its strides to keep abreast of the opportunities that come knocking.

The example which the town of Grifton has set by its action is one that could be followed profitably by other towns of Pitt County.

Politics Must Not Influence Sentences Of Job-Sellers

The court in Jackson, Miss., should not spare the rod in issuing sentences to any of the persons found guilty or pleading guilty to charges of selling or conspiring to sell federal government patronage jobs.

It's bad enough to have the jobs handed out on the basis of political support to the successful candidate, but when individuals go around peddling the federal jobs for cash, the court should really crack the whip.

C. U. Murphy of Winona, Miss., and his wife have pleaded guilty to the charges against them and both are under prison sentences. Murphy faces an eight month prison term, and his wife can have her eight month term changed to two years probation on the payment of $250 fine.

If other defendants in the job-selling racket are found guilty, they should be handed stiff sentences.

After the trial is over, however, vigilance should be kept to be sure that the same political organization which put the individuals in the position to sell government jobs does not use pressure to have the guilty ones freed after serving only a token part of their sentences.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—A careful perusal of Department of Justice files listing prominent American individuals and law firms lobbying here on behalf of foreign governments explains why President Truman and Senator McMahon of Connecticut have not pressed the latter's demand for a senatorial investigation of the so-called "China lobby."

Senator McMahon, who has become the principal apologist and defender of the Administration's foreign policy on Capitol Hill, angrily called for an inquiry of the pro-Chiang Kai-shek group during the Tydings hearing of the McCarthy charges against alleged State Department leftists, and again during the MacArthur inquiry.

STRATAGEM—It was the White House stratagem to blame many of its Far Eastern difficulties, including the MacArthur war strategy that has now been adopted almost in every detail, on the "China lobby." The Truman-McMahon contention was that Chiang Kai-shek friends were financing and aggravating Capitol Hill insistence on more generous aid to the Generalissimo.

Their purpose was to expose the Formosa faction as responsible for growing criticism of the Truman-Acheson-McMahon program.

President Truman readily agreed to the McMahon scheme. He ordered every government department involved in Far Eastern matters—State, Defense, Treasury, Commerce etc.—to mobilize material that would be pertinent to the inquiry.

But the White House interest in the question vanished as soon as Mr. Truman discovered how many political and personal friends would be caught in the broader study of the international lobby at Washington.

DANGEROUS—The two most politically minded members of his Cabinet fought the plan bitterly. John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, and J. Howard McGrath, Attorney General and former Democratic National Chairman, took the fight to the White House. They have apparently convinced Mr. Truman that the revelations would be politically dangerous.

They have warned him, in effect, that the broadened McMahon inquiry would show how Democratic politicians have profited personally from the postwar $50 billion which American taxpayers have sent to the nations they represent here.

ASSIGNMENT—The lawyers and legal firms registered with the Department of Justice declare officially that they simply provide legal, economic, engineering and public relations help and advice to their foreign clients.

In reality, their assignment is to obtain funds and financial favors from the U.S. Treasury, as Mr. Snyder and Mr. McGrath know. They have a lot of information about the foreign lobby's activities that is not contained in the formal files.

Here are only a few surface operations which a Senate investigating committee would discover, if President Truman had not decided to suppress and sidetrack Senator McMahon's naive demand for an investigation:

FIRM—Secretary Acheson's old firm—Covington, Burling, Rublee, O'Brian & Shorb—represent numerous nations which have been the beneficiaries of U.S. largesses, and which have been promised heavy aid for the future.

Their overseas clients include Pakistan, Colombia, Denmark, Iran, Peru and the Royal Swedish Air Board. They had previously obtained large fees as Poland's legal representatives at Washington.

The law firm headed by former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who was Senator McMahon's political sponsor in Connecticut and here, also does a tidy business. Partners in the firm include William Stanley, Mr. Cummings' Assistant Attorney General, and Max Truitt, son-in-law of Vice President Barkley. They lobby for Spain, the Dominican Republic and Newfoundland.

PROFITING—Clark Clifford, former Truman secretary and ghost-writer, is on the payroll of Indonesia, which has received and will receive vast American help. Indeed, it was Truman-Acheson pressure which forced former Queen Wilhelmina to give semi-independence to the islands. They owe Clark a fat fee for that alone.

Although a relatively unknown and obscure person, Oscar S. Cox wrote the Lend-Lease Law when he served under Henry Morgenthau in Treasury. He is profiting from his inside knowledge and connections now, as Washington agent for Italy, France, Belgium, Austria and Costa Rica.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Since I live only half a block from the East Carolina stadium it seems like daylight at my house when the team has its night practice. Wednesday night I had been inside the stadium scribbling notes for a column about five minutes when the manager spotted me.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but we are having closed practices and you'll have to leave." Coach Bill Dole knows me, but he was too busy with the practice to be bothered, so I didn't request identification.

Last night I had been in the stadium about 10 minutes when Coach Dole's son, Bill, age nine, approached me with the question, "Who are you scouting for?"

"Nobody. I write for the Reflector."

"Oh yeah? Let me see your notes." Young Dole examined the hen scratching carefully. Nobody can read my notes, not even me when they get cold, so Bill figured I could still possibly be a scout from an enemy team. In between huddles, Billy checked with his Daddy, who confirmed my innocence.

It just goes to show that the East Carolina team has a bag of tricks that they plan to keep as secret as possible.

It's a real show to see Coach Dole conduct a practice scrimmage. He goes into a huddle with his offensive team, flips to a page in his loose-leaf notebook of plays and the best play to suit the situation is picked.

As the play progresses, Dole picks out the weak points, and good points as well, and makes comments to the players. Line Coach Jack Boone operates from the defensive team, as Dole operates from the offensive.

Dole makes his reminders firm, but never harsh. Wednesday night he said to a player, "You let that man get away from you. I don't care if he runs from here to Chocowinity, cover him!" In the same breath, he will praise one of his players for a nice tackle.

The Pirates lost 12 lettermen, including Roger Thrift, honorable mention back on the Little All-America last season. But they have 16 lettermen returning, and a squad of almost 50 that includes many promising candidates.

To meet the increased enrollment and demand for tickets, the college is building permanent type seats to hold 700 more fans. These stands will be on the south side of the stadium. Stands on the north side will be for the student body.

Every year East Carolina College stands out as a digger asset to Greenville. The athletic program is one of the main things that builds the prestige of a school, and Dole is the man who can build the athletic program.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYN VISBET

DELEGATES — While chief political interest is focused on the primary election next year and probable candidates for state offices, expecially for governor and lieutenant governor, some far-looking manipulators are thinking as much about the precinct, county and state conventions of the Democratic party. These events can be as important by determining party policy as the statutory elections for choosing respective chairman, have very little authority under the law—although there is statutory provision for the committees to make fill-in nominations for public elective offices—but they have considerable influence upon the administration of government.

ORGANIZATION — Under the Republican plan of organization county chairman constitute the state executive committee, and the state convention elects the state chairman and a man and a woman members of the national executive committee. Under the Democratic party plan of organization the state convention names the executive committee, upon nominations made by the meetings, and the committee so constituted selects its own chairman, who does not have to be a member of the committee. Both Republicans and Democrats elect in state convention delegates to their respective national conventions, but the Democratic delegates are charged not only with responsibility for adopting a platform and nominating candidates for president and vice president, but also for choosing the man and woman members of the national committee. For that reason the selection of county delegates to the state convention, and state delegates to the national convention, becomes an important function of the Democrats attending these several meetings. Delegates to the nations' convention are sometimes instructed and therefore bound as to how they shall vote on certain platform provisions or candidates for presidential nominations. Only once in recent years has the state convention by resolution sought to bind the man of the executive committee.

HISTORIC — That was in 1936. The Democracy had just come through a hotly contested gubernatorial primary, in which Clyde Hoey had defeated R lph McDonald in a run-off after Sandy Graham and John McRae had been eliminated in the first vote. Franklin Roosevelt was conceded certain nomination for re-election as president, and it was also conceded that Roosevelt would write the platform, so the national delegates didn't have much to do except name members of the executive committee. After delegates had been nominated in the congressional caucuses there developed a campaign to pledge them for Josephus Daniels as national committeeman. Some of the Graham faction didn't apprve and moved into strenuous activity for a few hours, sold a substantial number of Hoey folks on an idea, with result that the convention itself instructed the delegates to name A. D. (Lon) Folger, who had been Graham's campaign manager. Pursuant to these instructions Folger was duly placed on the national committee as North Carolina's member. He served there until his death in an automobile accident some five years later, although he resigned a special judgeship commission to hold his post on the committee.

REPEAT — There is some evidence that history may repeat next year with at least some effort made to get the convention to instruct the delegates with respect to choice of a national committeeman. Difference between now and sixteen years ago is that the movement is starting earlier on both sides. is Jonathan Daniels, who shows every inclination to retain the post, ain growing sentiment that he should be replaced. But the opposition does not yet have a candidate and may not have until after the primary next May. That statement calls for some additional historic background as to how national committeemen in general and Daniels in particular have gotten themselves named to this position of political prestige.

PROCESS — While national convention delegates and the state executive committee ostensibly pick their top men, actually these places are regarded in practice as patronage for the newly nominated governor. When Gregg Cherry was nominated in 1944 he and his group backed W. P. Horton for national committeeman, although it was known that former governor and newly nominated senator, Clyde Hoey, desired the post. Horton got it. In later political shuffling Horton was persuaded to accept the state chairmanship a State Senator Joe Blythe was made national committeeman. Blythe moved on to become treasurer of the national committee.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

COALITION AGAINST TRUMAN
(New York Daily News)

Some week ago, we discussed briefly in this space a plan which is in the works of an alliance of Republicans and Southern Democrats to cut the stilts out from in the 1952 Presidential election.

The plan is still in the works, under Mr. Truman's Fair Dealers and the works seem to be grinding faster and to better purpose all the time.

Chief engineers of what the more alert among the Fair Dealers are already trying to smear as "the unholy alliance" are Senator Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) and the National Coalition Committee. The latter's mail address is Box 633, Clarksdale, Miss.; it is willing to send information to honestly interested inquirers; its chairman is Capt. Tom L. Gibson of Friars Point, Miss., and it has active members at strategic points all over the country.

Generally speaking, the proposal is that the Southern Democrats go into their party's Presidential convention next summer with (1) an anti-Truman candidate of their own, and (2) a demand for restoration of the former rule that it takes a two-thirds majority of the delegates to nominate.

Following the expected failure of these maneuvers, the Southerners would pull out, go home, and swear to choose Electoral College members who would vote for some candidate other than the one nominated at the Democratic convention. The Republicans, if the plan jells, would already have nominated Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates agreeable to Southern Democrats.

It's a difficult and delicate business. But we think it is vital to the nation's safety that the Fair Dealers be booted out of national power next year, and any scheme that offers a hope of achieving that result has our best wishes.

By ELMER ROESSNER

The rise in taxes on distilled spirits from $9 to $10.50 a 100-proof gallon will have some interesting repercussions. The rise has been voted by the House and approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

It means an increase of 30 cents a fifth on 100-proof spirits.

That's only about 2 cents a drink and few drinkers would mind it—if it stops there. But it very likely won't.

The Office of Price Stabilization would probably like to see the tax just passed along. But that may not happen.

The added tax is paid at the distillery. Since the tax rise means an estimated $168,000,000 a year, that means that the distillers will have to lay out that much until it is passed to distributors, when they will take up the burden until they pass it on to the retailer. Thus, the tax will mean increased capital for much of it involving borrowing and paying interest.

The rate of theft of liquor is likely to increase as the value per bottle rises. It will be an increased temptation to hijackers, ordinary stick-up men, shoplifters and employees.

Because of that hazard, as well as the increased per bottle valuation, insurance costs will also go up.

When salesmen get commissions on dollar volume, sales costs will go up. The tax and these not-so-incidental incidentals will probably make each bottle cost the final seller considerable more than the tax. Since Congress has forbidden the absorption principle in price control, the OPS will probably be obliged to consent to price rises greater than the tax.

This, in turn, will increase the profit margins for bootleggers. Just how much bootlegging is going on now is a matter of dispute. The Bureau of Internal Revnue says its vigilance in decreasing it; distillers' organizations say it is rising. But the higher margins will be a strong temptation for more bootlegging and if the government is going to keep it down, suppression may cost a large chunk of that $168,000,000.

SPENDING MONEY HELPS ECONOMY

During the depression of the thirties, many wealthy persons stored expensive autos in fear of criticism—if not actual violence—by the unemployed. Now that $50,000 thrown in Venice by mystery millionaire Don Carlos de Bestegui is being criticized because there is so much unemployment in Italy.

The people who stored Cadillacs and used street cars added to the unemployment of service workers. And Don Carlos's party undoubtedly increased the employment of caterers, costume makers and others. It probably did exactly as much good for the Venetian economy as $50,000 in leaf-raking projects.

WITH PERLE MESTA OUT OF THE COUNTRY:

Americans, as well as Venetians must be going in for more parties—or at least more stuffed-shirt dinners. The company that claims to make half of the formal men's wear sold (S. Rudofker's Sons Inc., Philadelphia,) reports sales this year are running 20 per cent ahead of last year. Its total sales are forecast at 250,000 garments this year.

TV, RADIO STOCK HIGH; SALES DRIVES EXPECTED

Vigorous sales campaigns in the Fall months are anticipated as a result of disclosure by Dun & Bradstreet that dealers held between 900,000 and 1,150,000 new television sets at the beginning of August. Between 350,000 and 450,000 were table models. Total new home radios were estimated between 1,400,000 and 1,700,000 sets.

Stocks were about 15 per cent lower than at the first of July, showing dealers are working out of difficult inventory situations.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(AP) —There are about 100,000,000 war veterans in countries outside the iron curtain.

A 36-year-old former U. S. navy bomber pilot is leading a drive to organize them in a program to win real world peace.

"The veterans were created by war and know how horrible it is," argues Elliott Newcomb. "And you can't kid them. They may be the force to end all wars."

He is Secretary-General of the War Veterans Organizations, organized in Paris late last year at the invitation of French war vets. Nineteen nations having some 30,000,000 veterans were represented at an emergency conclave of the new IFWVO in Rome this year.

"We found that the veterans have common bonds that cross national boundaries," said Newcomb. "They wanted peace, and were willing to fight for it. Our organization isn't made up of Pacifists. It's slogan is 'Peace With Freedom.'"

The IFWVO exchanges information about the status of veterans legislaton in the different countries and is fighting for better treatment of disabled exwarriors.

"Right now, for example," said Newcomb, "because of patent difficulties and other international barriers no amputee in any country gets the best possible artificial limb that could be made. We feel the manufacture of these prosthetic devices should be standardized internationally.

The IFWVO supports the United Nations fully and has called for a strong U. N. armed force "to support military aggression wherever it might occur." It also has urged the establishment of a U. N. world development authority "to pool skills and resources for economic reconstruction."

But the veterans want to do something more dramatic to insure world peace.

"We think the diplomats are fumbling the ball," said Newcomb, a slender, dark-haired, intense man who used to sell office equipment for a living. "They pay too much attention to protocol.

"We believe the Russians are are the primary cause of world tension. But we also feel that the West doesn't have a positive enough answer to the basic world problems. Being against communism isn't enough. You have to support something better."

The "World Vets"—nickname of the new federation—have created a nine-man commission to explore causes of tension in Europe, the middle East and Far East. This commission will report back its findings and suggest remedial measures to end the tensions.

The idea than is that the World Vets, through separate member organizations, will bring all the pressure they can on governmental bodies to adopt measures to lessen the war-threatening tensions.

Des this program sound nebulous?

"It isn't nebulous," said Newcomb. "We plan to put the facts in people's hands. There are 100,000,000 vets this side of the iron curtain, and with their families they come to about 250,000,000 people.

"We think that makes a hard code of leadership in the fight to stop war and protect human rights."

One of his goals is to call a rally of 1,000,000 vets in Europe in a mass demonstration for a workable world peace program.

"I think that would have some effect," said Newcomb quietly. "We refuse to accept the concept that war is inevitable. Men make wars, and men can stop them".

Washington Letter

By EARL BERKLEY
(For JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON — Georgia Neese Clark says you can have a career and be a woma too. She's been doing it for a long time—ever since she got her first job as assistant cashier of her hometown bank in Richland, Kansas.

Out in Kansas in those days the homefolk said "Georgia is quite a girl" Now she is treasurer of the United States—the first woman to hold that post, which is just under cabinet rank.

But that's only part of the Georgia Clark story. She became president of the bank a year after she took her first job and has been a farmer, general store owner and grain elevator operator.

Mrs. Clark rose in politics in 1936. She was named Democratic national committee-woman for Kansas. She had been a staunch supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Hazel-eyed and good looking, Mrs. Clark also has been an actress. Back in 1921 she attended drama school. She toured the country for 10 years with a stock company and did a number of plays with well-known actresses like May Robson and Pauline Frederick.

Mrs. Clark's divorced husband is an official of the Agriculture Department in Kansas. They had no children.

She told me she was really surprised when President Truman chose her to be treasurer in June 1949. "You know," she remarked with her easy smile, "I would never be classed as a genius. Two friends classified as such wound up in a hospital."

Mrs. Clark's signature appears on all currency. Her job involves disbursement and accounting for all public monies. Of medium height with short dark hair, she favors tailored clothes—business—like but still feminine. She likes to travel and wants to visit Europe again sometime. She had a wonderful visit there from May 23 to July 2, but the vacation turned out to be rather official, she said. She went to London, Geneva, Frankfort, Berlin, Copenhagen, Luxemburg, Brussels and Paris.

"I bought a few things in Paris," she confided, "but you know I'm a little thrifty—so everything cost well under the $500 allowed to be brought home duty free."

Mrs. Clark said there isn't any woman in a job comparable to hers in Europe. Everyone she met was interested in her work, she said, but she suggested a few were too interested. She was talked into making speeches in West Germany and Copenhagen.

OUTCAST OF DESTINY

PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 23

Bub hurried into the Palace and glanced towards the bar. Biff was not there. His crossed eyes travelled swiftly about the room. There was a man at the table with Judy but it was not Biff. He hurried along the aisle between bar a nd layouts searching for Biff. He did not find him. Biff had gone.

He did not dare inquire for him. He went out and started a circuit of the town, peering into every saloon he came upon his worried gaze probing and searching. No Biff. There was only one place left—Biff's shack. He went swiftly towards it, stopping at his own shanty only long enough to snatch his gunbelt from its peg on the wall and buckle it about him.

Brent did not find the clue he sought. He found a book with notations in it, dates and amounts, and judged it to be a record of Biff's holdups. In a way it was evidence that Biff was not the man he wanted because any record kept by the big boss would be a complete one of all raids.

He did find a wide floor board beneath a rag rug which came away easily when pried with his knife, and beneath the board was a hole with an ironbound express box in it. The box was locked but Brent was sure it contained Biff's share of bank loot. He was replacing the board when the latch clicked. He whirled about on his knees, his hand stabbing for his Colt. He did not have time to get it out; he had a hasty glimpse of an open doorway and a big man bounding towards him with curved fingers extended, then Biff hit him.

He had no chance whatever. Biff came like a hurtling bull and he drove at Brent while he was still six feet away. He hit Brent squarely and hurled him backwards, gripping. Brent's wrist as he drew his Colt. He gave a twist which a gorilla could not have withstood and the gun went spinning; then his big hands closed about Brent's throat and clamped down.

Thecloth hood was of no benefit whatever; the fingers tightened like iron bands and Brent had the instant and frightening conviction that his was the end. He fought desperately, shooting short jobs at the face above him, trying to get his legs from under the great weight in order to kick. He was too close to strike effectively and Biff took the blows without flinching.

The remorseless pressure on his windpipe did not let up in the slightest; he lay with his mouth open gasping for air which could not reach his lungs. The strength went out of him, his blows weakened, ceased. He flung out his arms helplessly. They were struggling near the stove and one of his hands fell on an iron poker.

A renewal of strength flowed into him; he gripped the poker tightly, raised it and brought it down hard on Biff's head. Biff winced and tried to duck. Brent struck again and again, short, hard blows. Biff cursed and let go with one hand and Brent got a fleeting gasp of reviving air. Once more he brought the poker down and this time Biff let go with the other hand and staggered to his feet. He was standing just out of reach of Brent's feet and his fierce black eyes narrowed and glittered as he raised the Colt and pointed it at Brent's hooded head. The muzzle looked as big as the Black Hole of Calcutta.

Neither man heard the pounding boots of the Cockeyed Kid; the first intimation they had of his presence was the boom of his gun from the doorway, and it is doubtful if Biff heard that. The bullet took him squarely in the back of the head and knocked him violently forward. He fell like a log on top of Brent and the impact nearly knocked the wind out of Brent's body.

The Cockeyed Kid bounded into the shack. He was no longer an old man but an outlaw with his wits keyed up by danger. He snapped, "Wiggle out and let's git outa here! Come on—git goin'!"

Brent squirmed free and got shakily to his feet, and while he was doing it the Cockeyed Kid blew out the light. "This way," he said shortly and leaped through the doorway. Brent stooped and felt for his gun and did not find it. His fingers touched the rag rug and he pulled it over the loose floor board. Then he ran out of the shack after Bub.

Bub dodged around the shack and made for its rear. As they ran they heard the pound of boots on the planks of the sidewalk farther up the street. The Cockeyed Kid sprinted straight for his own shanty. When they reached it he said, "Git into the barn and on the roof. And stay there." He thrust his gun into Brent's hand. "Take this, I won't need it but you will."

Brent seized the gun and ran into the stable. He climbed the ladder, felt his way along the sill to the beam which passed under the sagging ridgepole. He could see the edge of the broken roof in the faint moonlight; he seized it and drew himself onto it.

The Cockeyed Kid bounded into his shanty and hastily lighted a lamp. He just had time to hang the gunbelt on its peg when the back door opened and Cliff Durham, gun levelled, leaped into the room. He said tightly, "By grab, Cockeye, I got you cold this time!"

Bub turned on him fiercely. "Got who cold! I heard a shot and come runnin' to git m' gun, and danged if some son-of-a-pup hadn' stole it!" He pointed to the gunbelt with its empty holster. "Looky! Empty holster. What in time good is a empty holster? I tell you some lousy bum busted in yere and stole my Peace maker!"

Cliff lowered his Colt, frowning. The gun was certainly gone and the old catamount seemed mad enough about it. And after all, it couldn't have been this old wreck who had tangled with Biff Williams. He swore lustily and turned back into the alley.

After his exchange with Bub, Cliff had gone to the Palace to break the news of Biff's death and seek the aid of Jack's men. He took Jack aside and said, "It's that Tex feller; there ain't no doubt of it."

"What makes you so sure?"

"I'll tell you. Remember the night the show was in town? Well, some jigger in a black robe that covered him from hat to boots held up Sam Carter. He caught me flat-footed and batted me over the head with a gun barrel. I been lookin' for that feller ever since. I had a hunch it was Tex but you said you'd sent him to Juniper. Now I'm askin' you, was that Tex?"

"It was," answered Jack in his toneless voice.

"Keno. Well, I was amblin' along the street when I heard the shot in Biff's shack and I seen two jiggers come out. There was a little moonlight but it was pretty dim and I was too far away to recognize anybody, but one of them fellers was wearin' a black robe. I know that because there was no shape to him, just straight up and down from top to bottom. I chased 'em but they gave me the slip. That black robe tells me it's Tex who's raisin' all the hob in this man's town."

Jack said, still in that monotone, "Get him. Raise the bounty to five hundred dollars. And I want him dead."

LuLong Entering Talent Event In Confident Mood

ATLANTIC CITY —(AP)— Miss North Carolina prepared today to enter a talent contest in the Miss America pageant with the confidence of a girl who already has one contest victory to her credit.

LuLong Ogburn, the Smithfield, N. C., beauty queen, won the bathing suit contest Wednesday night. Last night, wearing a huge, hoop-skirted evening gown, she paraded down the runway in the evening gown contest to the cheers of the audience. Winners were not announced in the preliminary evening gown contest, but LuLong was named among the finalists tomorrow night.

According to Mrs. A. G. Glenn of Smithfield, Lulong's chaperone, Miss North Carolina has shaken off the effects of a cold that had been bothering her since the pageant opened, and is now ready for the final contests in the national beauty pageant.

NO USE FOR YEN

Indian Medicine Men Had Talent

CHICAGO —(UP)— Modern spiritualists could learn a trick or two from the old "shamans" or medicine men who performed for North American Indian tribes, according to Donald Collier, a curator of Indian archeology at the Chicago Natural History Museum.

Collier doesn't know how the old-time "mediums" pulled their stunts but some of them were quite fancy, he said. They didn't stop with table tipping. They made tents quiver and shake.

Some shamans, he said, had themselves bound with thongs in a specially-built seance lodge. Soon the lodge began shaking and a few minutes later the thongs were tossed through the open top.

Most of the shamans claimed they were aided by spirits from the Happy Hunting Ground. Usually they were the spirits of animals such as turtles and elk, rather than human ghosts.

"Some of the shamans were famous for their extraordinary feats," Collier said.

"One medium sent his spirit helpers with a load of furs many miles to a trading post from which they brought back within an hour several cases of whisky.

"Another medium, during a time of famine, produced in exchange for four marten skins a 50-pound sack of flour that his helpers had brought from a post 100 miles away.

"In another case a shaman is said to have produced fresh blueberries at a seance in the midst of winter."

About 155 different jobs are open to enlist men and women in the U. S. Army.

'Harry Will Run' Aver Kansas City Pals Who Knew Him When

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—The man chewed his cigar meditatively and stared around the lobby of the Muehlebach Hotel.

Secret Service men stood quietly beside an elevator door. On a special stand was a large and impressive seal of the president of the United States.

"I've known Harry Truman for 40 years," said the man with the cigar. "And I think I know him about as well as anybody. Heck, he's going to run again and don't let anybody fool you.

I was just up to see him and I asked him outright. But he wouldn't tell me—he didn't have to. He'll run, don't you worry."

This sort of assured speculation goes on around the clock in the Muehlebach lobby while the president is in Missouri. Mr. Truman divides his time between his home in Independence, 14 miles away, and a lavish 11th-floor penthouse reserved for the White House staff at the hotel.

When the president is in the hotel, the tiny elevator reserved for penthouse traffic hauls load after load of old cronies and political associates up to the suite.

The old friends, at least the ones encountered by reporters, seem to take Mr. Truman's re-election candidacy as an established fact.

Many of the friends and home-state political associates ask that their names not be printed, lest the president be displeased. But some of them are quite frank.

George E. Allen, a political consultant to the president of long-standing, said his best guess was that Mr. Truman would run against Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O) in 1952 "and win."

But Allen added quickly, "that's pure speculation."

Allen was here from New York to talk to the president about the projected Truman library in Independence to house the president's papers.

Vivian Truman, the president's brother, also stood around for a while, chatting with old friends.

"Is he going to run?"

Vivian smiled broadly.

"I don't know," he said. "He hasn't told me. I just don't know."

One of the president's closest friends—who asked that his name not be used—seemed to sum up the situation succinctly:

"I think the president would prefer not to run. But I think, too, that he will eventually come to the conclusion that he has to run to protect his program and because of conditions generally abroad and at home."

"What if Eisenhower runs on the Republican ticket?"

"Then, my friend," he said, "all bets off. I don't know what would happen."

Senate Fearful Broadcasts And TV Mean 'Ruin'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Don't ever mention televising, broadcasting or even photographing Senate sessions if you have any humane regard for the lawmakers' feelings.

It gives them the shivers.

The question bobbed up again at a Commerce Subcommittee hearing yesterday, and tied the session into a knot while the three members present voiced their protests.

Said Senator Hunt (D-Wyo): "It might cause a big turnover in congress."

Senator Benton (D-Conn) added: "It would completely ruin the United States Senate."

And Senator McFarland (D-Ariz): "Everyone would be wanting to advertise themselves. It would play up the showmen in Congress, rather than the workers."

McFarland, the subcommittee chairman and Democratic leader, suggested that senators make enough speeches now, without having microphones to encourage them.

Wallace J. Campbell, president of radio station WCFM in Washington, retreated hastily from his suggestion, voiced at hearings on bills proposing moves to require television to raise the cultural level of its programs. Campbell had said he thought a broadcast of daily Senate sessions would be instructive.

Forty-Two Head Of Purebred Cattle Sold

GREENSBORO —(AP)— Forty-two head of purebred cattle from all parts of the state were sold here yesterday as the two-day show of the North Carolina Guernsey Breeders Association came to an end.

A cow consigend by Quail Roost farm of Rougemont and owned by George Watts Hill, drew top price at the sale—$550.

Two cows consigned by Clifton Henderson of Tarboro and A. L. Brown of Concord were sld for $510 each. Two other Guernseys brought $500 each—one consigned by Dr. H. C. Carr of Chapel Hill and the other by A. C. Mims of Rocky Mount.

Better Lighting Cuts Road Toll

CLEVELAND, O. —(UP)— Better street lighting in 13 cities has cut night automobile deaths an average of 64 per cent, the National Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau suggests.

The biggest saving of life on figures before and after improving the lighting showed in Cleveland, where 17 fewer persons were killed.

Running second was San Antonio, Tex., with 15. Next came Grand Papids, Mich., and Salt Lake City, Utah, each with 11.

ANSWERING CALL FOR ASSISTANCE— S/Sgt. Hugh Fowler prepares for practice rescue jump from helicopter during training in Japan. He carries complete medical gear.

Religious Belief Still Prevailing

BOSTON —(UP)— Fewer than 2000 of the 50,000 patients admitted to Boston City Hospital in a 15-month period insisted they had "no religion."

David B. Alpert, who made a survey of the hospital records, interviewed the "unchurched" patients and reported that all were men and that none was of Jewish descent.

In an article in the Methodist publication Zions Herald, Alpert said the patients with "no religion" fell into three definite classes:

Group I was composed of about 10 men in their late 70's, —"highly intelligent and widely traveled... they had not aligned themselves among the denominations, and tey indicated that they had come to know and respect other religions in foreign lands."

Group II consisted of some 30 men between the ages of 38 and 45—"taciturn, reticent, keeping to themselves, refusing to make friends or to chat with other patients...It was evident that each was in emotional crisis, struggling and determined to fight it out alone."

Group III included several boys about 16 years old, children of mixed marriages, who said they "couldn't be bothered" going to church—"the undisciplined, the friendless, the neglected and the discouraged victims of serious cultural differences which they could not reconcile."

July Building Permits Go Over $8 Million Mark

RALEIGH —(AP)— North Carolina's cities and towns issued permits for $8,150,210 worth of building in July.

This is $5,000,000 less than the value of permits issued in June, the state Labor Department said in its monthly report yesterday.

Housing permits issued in July were valued at $3,644,783. Comtial building authorized was valued at $3,353,232. Additions, alternations, and repairs authorized by building permits totaled $1,152,195.

Only two cities reported issuing permits valued in excess of one-half million dollars. Charlotte issued permits in July totaling $2,050,681. Greensboro permits totaled $888,821.

NO DEMONSTRATION

PEABODY, Mass. —(UP)— Leonard Falt, who goes around demonstrating fire apparatus, had to sound a fire alarm when he discovered a burning barn. He had left his demonstrator pumper at home.

Standard submarine cable weighs 19 tons to the mile.

Higher Railroad Charges Okayed

RALEIGH —(AP)— Railroads serving North Carolina have the green light to raise their minimum charges on less than carload shipments from $1.38 to $2.

In approving the boost yesterday, the State Utilities Commission pointed out that the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the same increase for shipments which cross state lines.

Western Beauties Sweep Honors In Second Round

ATLANTIC CITY —(AP)—Western beauties rode off with the honors in the second round of the Miss America Pageant last night.

South Dakota's Miss Marlene Margaret Rieb, 19, of Parkston won the bathing suit award and Miss Utah, Colleen Kay Hutchins, 25, of Salt Lake City took the talent trophy.

The brown-eyed blonde Miss South Dakota, who wants to be a doctor like her father, showed off her five feet seven inches and 122 pounds in a black bathing suit. She measures 35 inches at the bust, 24 at the waist and 36 at the hips.

Miss Hutchins, a graduate dramatics student at the University of Utah, offered a scene from Maxwell Anderson's "Elizabeth The Queen." A blue-eyed blonde, she is five feet 10, weighs 143 and measures 36 at the bust, 24 at the waist and 36 at the hips. She was dressed in a royal blue velvet gown with pearls about her neck.

The western winners join two southern belles who won the first preliminary round Wednesday, piling up precious points for the finals Saturday night to pick a Miss America among the 51 contestants.

Miss Alabama, Jeanne Moody of Cherokee and Miss North Carolina, LuLong Ogburn of Smithfield were the first round winners.

The last preliminary before the finals will be held tonight.

Parties Slated For Students Of ECC Tonight

Churches all over Greenville will honor the new students of East Carolina tonight and tomorrow at parties.

All of the parties will be held in the respective churches with the exception of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and the Free Will Baptist Church. The Methodist's party will be held in the Wright Auditorium of the college, due to crowded conditions at the church, and the Baptist's party will be held at the parsonage, 303 Meade Street.

Most of the churches are planning a social hour in which the guests can get acquainted and participate in various kinds of entertainment. The parties will begin at 7:30 tonight except the one held by the Free Will Baptist Church, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

A number of the parties are in honor of the new students but others are invited by the pastors and student workers to attend.

Last Rites Saturday For Malcom Joyner

Malcolm A. Joyner, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Melton E. Joyner of near Winterville, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 5:58 o'clock Thursday afternoon as a result of internal injuries received a short while earlier in a fall.

He was with other children riding on top of a corn-laden wagon drawn by a tractor near his home on the highway when he fell.

Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Walter B. Nobles, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, and burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville.

Surviving in addition to his parents are a brother, Melton E. Joyner Jr. of the home; his paternal grandfather, Marshall Joyner of near Winterville; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Fulford of Farmville.

Rain Keeps Loop-Leading Clubs From Further Action In Hectic Flag Race

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

The hectic three-way scramble in the American League which almost certainly won't be straightened out until the final week of the season found the Indians getting a big break today because it rained on the Yankees and Red Sox.

When yesterday's big doubleheader between the Yankees and Red Sox was postponed and crammed into a revised schedule in which the two teams will play five games during the last three days of the season, the pressure mounted on those teams. They must play doubleheaders Friday and Saturday, Sept. 28 and 29, and wind up the season on Sunday with a single game.

Moreover, if it should rain for any of the three days of this heavy make-up schedule, the games will be wiped entirely off the books because there is no provision in the rules to take care of postponements after the official ending of the season.

The pressure-packed stretch run now finds the Yankees and Red Sox taking on each other eight times in the final 10 days, three games being in Boston Sept. 21, 22, and 23, before the grand climax in Yankee Stadium.

And what will the Indians be doing all of this time? Now in front by a full game, the Ohioans will have a tough time protecting that margin in an extended road trip which begins tonight in St. Louis and which doesn't end until the two final days of the season.

But in the stretch when the other contenders will be trying to beat each other down, the Indians will be feeding on second division opposition.

The activity yesterday was limited to the also-rans. The Pirates moved up into a sixth-place tie with the Reds by defeating them 7 to 4 as Bill Howerton hit a three-run homer and Dick Cole conked a two-run double. The Cardinals made 11 hits including Stan Musial 32nd homer in a 10 to 2 triumph over the Cubs in Chicago.

In the only American League game, the White Sox pounded out 17 hits in a 9 to 4 victory over the Browns. Chico Carrasquel and Minnie Minoso made three hits apiece and Eddie Robinson hit a homer. Ken Wood got one for the Browns.

The Dodgers and Phils and the Giants and Braves were rained out in the National League, while the Indians and Tigers had an open date in the American.

Pirates Work On Passing In Night Drill

An hour long scrimmage last night featured the work-outs of the East Carolina College Pirates yesterday. No drill was held yesterday morning, but the afternoon and night sessions went on as scheduled.

Coach Bill Dole of the Pirates had the candidates for the squad working mostly on pass offense and defense in an effort to mold an aerial attack that will compare with that possessed by the Pirates last year.

Reserve quarterback Lynwood Grissom did much of the tossing in last night's drills. He is Sandy Siler's understudy but his work last night was impressive to the few who were allowed in the closed practice sessions being held by the Pirates.

The Pirates, who took time out from their drills yesterday to register, will begin their class work this morning. A new practice schedule is being drawn up by Dole.

Aussies Aim For Tennis Profits

NEW YORK — (AP) — Australian Davis Cup officials hope to make the Davis Cup Challenge Round Matches a gigantic financial success this winter. The authorities have approved a ticket price of 4 pounds for best seats at White City courts Dec. 26, 27, 28. This is equivalent to about $18 per seat. All tickets will be sold in series of three and none will be available for single days. Less expensive seats, of course, will be on sale each day.

Cartier Favored

NEW YORK (UP)—Middleweight Walter Cartier of New York, who has a string of 17 victories, was a 2 to 1 favorite today to beat Billy Kilgore of Birmingham, Ala., tonight in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Series To Be On Coastwide TV

NEW YORK (UP)—The World Series will be televised from coast to coast this year for the first time in history.

Completion of arrangements for the telecast, made possible by the opening of the new trans-continental cable and micro-wave stations, was announced today by Joseph H. McConnell, president of the NBC television network.

The NBC network will carry the series into areas with a total of 85,000,000 population.

In addition, Mutual Broadcasting System announced that the 545 radio stations of its network will carry a radio broadcast of the series for the 12th straight year.

Blind Ump!

TORONTO—(AP)— A blind umpire?. And popular with players and fans alike? It doesn't seem possible, but it is.

Charles Medick, 28, sightless since infancy, arrived here today to officiate at the Canadian National Exhibition and International Table Tennis championships.

Medick referees by ear. The sound of the ball hitting the table or net gives him a mental picture of the play.

Football League Formed In City; Meeting For Today

Little League baseball has been finished for only a few days, but a new Little League has been formed.

A Little League football loop is being formed for all boys under the age of fourteen, with four teams tentatively slated for the city. The program gets underway this afternoon at the league park.

Recreation director Warren Carroll will meet with interested boys at 4 p.m. today to discuss the proposed league. It is opened to all youngsters who attend the city schools and have an affirmative statement from a doctor before reporting for practice.

A weight limit of 110 pounds has been placed on the participants.

Rules of high school football will be followed with the exception of seven minute quarters.

The aims of the league, as stated in the rules and by-laws which will govern regular season play, will be to develop worthwhile athletic skills and knowledge through football activities, for the boys of Greenville.

Perry Leads In Scrimmage With Ayden Yesterday

Runs by Greenville Halfback Bob Perry featured a two-hour long scrimmage yesterday between the GHS Phantoms and the Ayden Tornadoes.

Perry took a pass from Phantom Quarterback Glenn Scott on the second offensive play by Greenville and scampered away from the Ayden secondary. Although no score was kept in the contest, Perry broke away three times during the afternoon on possible touchdowns.

Both teams showed raggedness in spots during the practice, but both coaches were inclined to believe this would be gone before the opening games roll around.

John Cheek, halfback for the Tornadoes, went around end for several gains to pace the sputtering Ayden attack. Tornado passing, which has long been one of the locs successful points of the Ayden attack, did not begin to connect until late in the contest.

Backer-up Jimmy Cheatham, Bobby Conway, Bob Tyndall, and Sam Hux paced the Greenville line. Bobby Langston and Scott shared the backfield spotlight for the Phantoms.

Linemen Riley Tripp, Gordan Hart and Randall Harrington led the Ayden eleven Cheek, Darrel Worthington, Hal Edwards and Delano Cox paced the backfield.

Local Horses Cop Honors In Event

Local show horses captured one first, one second, one third, and one fourth prize in a show held in Enfield on Labor Day.

J. H. Crenshaw, atop Mighty Chief, took first spot in the Model Class and the Reserve Championship in the Five Gaited Championship Stake Class.

Snow King, ridden by Mrs. Hugh Winslow, copped second place in the Ladies Five Gaiter Class, and finished fourth under Hugh Winslow in the Amateur Five Gaited Class.

The next show scheduled for the horses is in Norfolk, Saturday.

Three-Pickle Pitching Prize

DENVER — There's nothing in the record book, of course, but Rafael Rivas, Cuban southpaw pitcher for the Denver Bears, thinks he is the only pitcher ever to win three one-gallon jars of pickles in one game.

It happened when the Bears held "Platteville night" at the stadium and several score folk from Platteville, Colo., drove down for the game.

They brought jugs of pickles for which their town is famous and offered them as prizes for various batting, fielding and pitching feats. Several players won pickles, but Rivas won the most.

Big Four Briefs

CAMP LEJEUNE (UP)—North Carolina State's football squad held light workouts today in preparation for an exhibition game with the Camp Lejeune Marine team tomorrow.

Both teams held scrimmages yesterday in heavy rain and mud that limited offensive tactics to power plays. State tailback Ted Potts sparked the scrimmage with both runs and kicking. One Potts quick kick went for 70 yards.

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—Four sophomore first-string Tar Heels appeared destined for heavy duty during the regular season.

DURHAM (UP)—Duke coach Bill Murray turned to a freshman, a sophomore and a junior today in his search for a kicker.

Doing the punting were James York, Asheboro freshman; Red Smith, Winston-Salem sophomore, and Billy Lea, Lynchburg, Va., junior.

Guard Truett Grant of High Point got into his first drills of the season but defensive guard Bob Berger missed practice with a leg injury.

WAKE FOREST (UP)— Wake Forest's Deacons traveled to Cherry Point today to play the Marine base squad a practice game tomorrow.

The Deacons went easy on contact work yesterday, putting most of their efforts into running and passing drills. Quarterbacks Ed Kissell and Dickie Davis did the to receivers Ed McClure, Jack Lewis, Ken Bridges and Bob Ondilla.

Chicago Revives Falconry Sport

CHICAGO —(UP) —Seomone in the Chicago area is practicing the ancient sport of falconry and having bad luck at it.

Police captured two falcons, both wearing leather thongs on their legs indicating that they were trained for the hunt.

One of the birds was destroyed but the second was turned over to the Anti-Cruelty Society.

Fazio Leads Empire Open But Mangrum Closing In

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP)—George Fazio was in the lead, but tourney favorite Lloyd Mangrum was in a fine challenging position today as the field went into the second round of the $15,000 Empire State Open golf tournament at the Shaker Ridge Country Club course.

Fazio, from Pine Valley, N. J., fashioned a one-under-par 69 in yesterday's opening round, better than anyone else could do over the rain-soaked, 7,000-yard layout.

But even so, he had just a one stroke lead over Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Buck White of Greenwood, Miss., winner of the recent tournament at Sioux City, Iowa. And just two strokes away was the feared Mangrum.

If it wasn't for poor putting, Mangrum, the leading pro money winner of the year, might have seized the first-round lead.

But at that he fared better than co-favorite Jim Ferrier of San Francisco. The transplanted Australian was putting okay, but was shaky on his approaches and finished with a seven-over-par 77.

Mangrum was in a four-way tie at 71 with Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Tex., Max Evans of Detroit, and Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass.

Tarpon Rodeo Growing; Women Getting Into Act

NEW ORLEANS —(UP)— The New Orleans Tarpon Club, which is dedicated to destroying the idea that the tarpon is a rich man's fish, reports that 250 persons, ranging from taxi drivers to manufacturers, are trying to win its 1951 city limits rodeo.

Every year since 1938, the Tarpon Club has held a rodeo in the city limits of New Orleans. It gives away a boat, an outboard motor, fishing tackle, oil, gasoline and whiskey to the winners. This year, the prizes are worth a total of $2,000.

It costs $1 to enter the rodeo. A state fishing license costs another dollar. A contestant can buy a star drag (deep sea fishing) reel for $12, make himself a couple of lures and a rod for about $10, and he is in business. A boat and an outboard motor can be rented for about $6 a day.

The rules are simple: the tarpon must be caught inside the city limits, the fisherman can't use heavier line than 72-pound test, he can't have any help while he's fighting the fish and eligible fish must be caught in July, August or September.

Tarpon weigh upwards of 200 pounds. They're vicious, fast bundles of muscle and will jump 15 feet out of the water when they feel a hook bit into their mouths. A good fisherman can bring one to gaff in 30 or 45 minutes, but they have fought as much as three hours.

After a fisherman gets a tarpon into his boat, there isn't anything he can do with his fish except take its picture, weigh it and call the garbage wagon. A tarpon isn't fit to eat.

For that season and because tarpon fishing is usually associated with fancy resorts, big boats and custom-built tackle, many anglers think tarpon fishing is a rich man's sport.

Nearly half of New Orleans is water and it takes in fine tarpon fishing grounds: part of Lake Pontchartrain, the Rigolets, which connect Lake Borgne and Lake Pontchartrain, Irish Bayou, Lake Catherine and the Chef Menteur.

Most tarpon in New Orleans are caught along a seven-mile railroad bridge that runs across the eastern end of Lake Pontchartrain. The lake is narrow and gets a heavy tidal flow, which attracts tarpon that lie under the bridge to eat mullet, sardines and croakers or croacker on their line and wait for tarpon to strike.

The Tarpon Club advises amateurs to take a veteran with them on their first fishing trips. Tarpon are a deceptive fish. They may jump into a boat, or after they are gaffed and boated, summon up the strength to sweep a man into the water with their tails.

The biggest tarpon ever caught in the rodeo weighted 174 pounds. Fifteen have been landed this year, the largest of which weighted 110 pounds. Many entrants are women, and women won first prizes two years.

Mrs. Catherine Ebrenz, a bank cashier, won in 1946 with a 154 pounder. Glendy Culligan, former women's editor of the New Orleans Item, won in 1947 with a 139-pounder.

Paul Kalman, president of the club, took Miss Culligan out so she could write an article for her women readers. She'd never been fishing before and dressed for her first expedition in a two-piece bathing suit.

She'd hardly hooked the tarpon when the brassiere of her bathing suit came apart under the strain Kalman and Frank Pfister, who also was along, couldn't hold the tackle while she repaired the damage, because that would have broken the contest rules.

Pfister took off his shirt, and while Miss Culligan held the rod with one hand, he and Kalman helped her nto it. She salvaged both modesty and the fish.

Boxing Brothers Appear In Court

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)— Boxing's battling Flanagan brothers were scheduled to tell a judge today about their "minor skirmish" with "about 50 sailors" at Chamberlain Navy Air Base Wednesday night.

The "slight disagreement, according to leading lightweight contender Del, started over the relative value of aces and deuces in a stud poker game at the chief petty officer's club on the base.

"We wuz robbed," said Del and featherweight brother Glen who were jailed yesterday after spending the night cooling off in Hennepin County jail.

"It was a nice friendly game until that sailor called a deuce an ace," Del said. "I claimed it was a deuce and the trouble started."

The two Irishmen said a swarm of sailors jumped them. "But we were doing all right for a while."

"I don't mind tangling with two or three guys—but not 50," Del said. "It looked like the whole base turned out."

To Investigate Flores Death

NEW YORK (UP)— The New York State Athletic Commission will hold a hearing today regarding the death of young welterweight Georgie Flores last Monday of ring injuries received in a knockout at Madison Square Garde nlast week.

Rigid Schedule

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Jim Pollard, ace forward on the Minneapolis Lakers, is having a tough summer schedule. Jim is playing baseball in the Minnesota State Semi-Pro league for Jordan, Minn. He also is studying for his degree in Physical Education at the University of Minnesota. Each morning he teaches swimming at the University Farm School. When Pollard has some additional time he sells autos for a Minneapolis concern.

Robinson's Legs Are Big Question Mark

POMPTON LAKES, N. J. (UP) — Here at "Camp Goofycrest" skeptics are beginning to wonder if Sugar Ray Robinson's legs are gone as he trains for Wednesday's title fight with middleweight champion Randy Turpin.

Just when one would expect the slender Harlem boxing-master to be making his most strenuous efforts to get "sharp," he loafed through two successive sparring sessions.

The lord of Goofycrest admitted languidly today, "I'm just takin' it easy so I don't get stale. I gotta keep my weight up."

Among those mystified by Sugar's strange conditioning program was Lou Viscusi, manager of ex-featherweight champion Willie Pepe.

Viscusi said, "Maybe Robinson and his handlers know what they're doing, but I never heard of anything like it. There's only one way to get in shape for a fight—by hard work, by plenty of hard work."

Pepe's pilot said he couldn't understand why "an over-stuffed welterweight" like Robinson should be worried about going stale when he weighed 158 pounds.

A small club promoter from New York City watched Sugar Ray loll through five rounds with four mates indoors yesterday and then declared, "He's washed up. His legs are gone. And he's taking it easy so his lack of legs won't be too obvious." The promoter requested that no one use his name.

During those five rounds with sparring mates the ex-middleweight champion again used a flat-footed shuffle instead of his former up-on-the-toes dancing step.

Yanks Will Win World Series . . ?

NEW YORK (UP)—Eddie Sawyer of the Phillies today labeled Brooklyn "the best club in baseball" and predicted the Dodgers would beat the Yankees if the two clubs meet in the World Series.

"I don't see how it's possible to beat Brooklyn," declared the popular Philadelphia pilot. "We tried all year and couldn't do it."

Sawyer grinned at his own joke but then grew serious again.

"They're solid at every position," he added. "They have good hitting and good pitching. You can't ask for a whole lot more, can you?"

Sawyer said he felt the Giants had a slight chance of overtaking the Dodgers, but added it would take a spectacular sprint to catch Brooklyn.

"You mean to say you still think the Giants have a chance?" someone said.

"Why not?" Sawyer replied. "Look what happened to us last September. Remember all the trouble we had in the last few weeks? I can tell you right now, I still remember it. . .very well, in fact."

3-Bottom Mounted Plow
Fall plowing gives the WD and its new 3-bottom plow a chance to show what they can do. Let us prove to you that the WD will do the work of a much heavier tractor and that the new square-built plow is built to take it.
Two Allis-Chalmers features:
1. HYDRAULIC TRACTION BOOSTER automatically puts extra weight on the WD rear wheels as the drawbar load increases. Takes off the extra weight as soon as you pass the tough spot.
2. THE PLOW IS FREE-SWINGING. It follows contours and is free to dodge rocks. Short-coupled hitch gives quick penetration at the ends and mounts the plow bottoms close to the rear wheels for uniform depth control.
Let us prove it in your own fields.

New Publicity Chairman For Red Cross Is Named

Miss Muriel Shotwell, member of the news staff of the Daily Reflector, has been named publicity chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The announcement of the appointment of Miss Shotwell as publicity chairman, was made by Chairman Hoover Taft of the Pitt Red Cross chapter. At the same time Taft announced the resignation of W. H. Watson who has been publicity chairman for the Red Cross.

Taft said Watson will continue as a member of the board of directors of the Pitt Red Cross chapter, and will assist Miss Shotwell.

Miss Shotwell joined the news staff of The Reflector last March following her graduation from East Carolina Teachers College. She is a graduate of Greenville High School and attended Furman University before transferring to East Carolina.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Shotwell of Greenville.

Taft said Miss Shotwell will announce the appointment of a publicity committee for the Pitt Red Cross chapter in the near future.

Jaycees Map Horse Show And Song Session Plans

Discussion of two major projects to be sponsored by the Jaycees in September and October consumed the principal portion of the business session of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce last night.

J. B. Smith, chairman of the horse show committee, reported to the club on the progress made toward the staging of the show at Guy Smith Stadium on October 14.

The club also heard a report on the singing convention which will be held at the East Carolina College stadium on September 30 at 2:30 under the auspices of the Jaycees. The convention will feature vocal groups from this section of the state with emphasis on hymns and other religious music.

State Director Ben Rouse reported to the club on the quarterly meeting of the state board of directors of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce held in Rocky Mount September 25 and 26. Rouse read to the club the resolution of the directors urging action be taken to prevent the reorganization of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina.

It was announced last night that the Rev. Tzvetan Litov, a Methodist minister from Pleven, Bulgaria, will address the Greenville Jaycees at their meeting on September 20. The club will hold its meting that night at the Woman's Club and have presidents of the other civic clubs of Greenville as its guests.

John Zeh, local Fuller Brush salesman, was inducted into the club as a new member last night.

President Dan Saleed presided at the meeting.

216 Students At ECC Want Jobs

The new dean of men and psychology professor, Clint Prewett said this morning that the preliminary figures showed that 216 students so far have applied through the Dean's Office for jobs on the campus, in Greenville and the surrounding areas.

The college has been able to place some of the students in work on the campus but cannot accommodate many more who need jobs to enable them to stay in college. The students who need jobs have specified part-time work, wanted in the afternoons since morning classes are scheduled for a large number of students.

Dean Prewett said many of the applicants have worked before and have had good experience. The students have specified to some extent what kind of jobs they prefer but they will be given tests to see what type of work they are best suited for. More will be learned about the student following interviews and tests.

Most of the applicants for jobs are men but some girls have also applied for self-help jobs.

Police Officers Blood Is Tested For Transfusion

Chief Guy C. Langston's plan for having members of the Greenville police department donate blood for a blood bank in case of emergency has been carried out to a considerable extent.

He said all police officers have been to Pitt County Memorial Hospital to have their blood typed. Records of the types are available at the hospital and the police station.

"We never know when some officer may be wounded or seriously injured, and we want to be prepared on quick notice to donate the type of blood needed for transfusions," the chief stated. He said numerous police officers have donated blood for transfusions in emergencies and will continue to do so when requested.

pounds, dark complexion. His home was given as Goldsboro. The second man was Mack Walden, 35, 180 pounds, very dark hair. His home address was not listed. Both men were wearing olive brown prison garb.

Ayden Police Chief Riley who was on the prison chase this morning stated that the men were possibly a good way into the swamp now, but that they would find the going tough as the area is very wooded and swampy.

Dogs from the prison camp in Greenville were on the trail of the men, followed by members of the Pitt County Sheriff's department and State Highway Patrol.

A late report after noon today placed the convicts as having been seen on Highway 11 south of Ayden. That area was being patroled heavily.

Tobacco Marts' Selling Time To Be Cut Sept. 10

All tobacco markets in the Eastern and Middle Belts will sell four and one half hours beginning the week of September 10.

The information was received in a telegram to W. L. Whedbee, supervisor of sales on the market here, from F. S. Royster, president of the Bright Belt Association, Incorporated.

Whedbee said the Greenville market can sell 9,000 baskets daily with five sets of buyers during the four and one half hours.

Rites Sunday For Korea Casualty

The remains of the late Pfc. Gilbert H. Brown, age 21, who was killed in action in Korea on January 19, 1951, have arrived in Greenville. He was a member of Company 1, First Infantry Regiment of the Eighth Regimental Combat Team and went overseas in June, 1950.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown of near Cox's Mill at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Sam Kennedy, Free Will Baptist minister of Beulahville, and burial will be in the family cemetery nearby. Full military honors will be presented by a squad of men from Fort Bragg. Members of the Charles Gray Morgan Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be active pallbearers, and members of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion will be color bearers.

"G. H.," as he was known to all his friends, was born and reared in the Chicod community and attended Chicod School. He enlisted in the U. S. Army in February, 1948.

Surviving are his parents; a brother, Clayton Brown of the home, and two sisters, Mrs. John Croxton of Deltaville, Va., and Mrs. Leon Newman of Charlottesville, Va.

of the nations represented on the Far Eastern Commission (FEC) to discuss a Japanese peace treaty.

The nations on the FEC, all of whom had some interest in Japan's future, were the U. S., Russia, Britain, France, China, Canada, Australia, India, Netherlands, New Zealand, and the Philippines.

(The FEC was created in the first place as a sort of supervisory body to see that Japan lived up to its surrender terms.)

But Russia didn't want all those nations to have a voice in shaping a treaty, no matter how much interest they had in Japan. She suggested instead that only the U. S., Russia, Britain and China consider shaping a treaty. Russia could have vetoed anything the other three nations wanted. The U. S. wouldn't go for that.

A year ago, after the Korean war started and this country realized it had to build its Pacific defenses fast, the U. S. went to work on a treaty, consulted with other nations, including the Russians who didn't like it, made some changes to suit the others, and came up with the treaty which the U. S. likes generally even though not all the others signing it like all parts of it.

City Street Work . . .

Greenville.

The board received two petitions for paving to be done in the Elmhurst section and one petition for curb and gutter work on one block of West Rock Springs Drive. Both petitions were ordered filed with similar petitions received by the city. The board approved the action of the street committee in authorizing curb and gutter work done on South Evans Street to be paid for by the property owners.

The street committee was instructed by the board to investigate repairs to damage to the property of the Negro Masonic lodge and other private property incurred in opening Side Street between Third and Second Streets. The committee likewise was authorized to look into opening another street in the cotton mill section and have the work done by the street department if the cost is not excessive.

The board passed a resolution authorizing the property owners in Tucker Circle to pave streets with the approval of the city engineer, and to have drainage for the streets installed at city expense.

The request from the Junior Chamber of Commerce to sponsor a horse show, tax free, on October 4 was granted by the board. Henry Gooding and Hemp Little were granted permission to hold three dances in October, November and December at Growers Warehouse provided they pay the regular city taxes for such entertainment.

A question of the technicality of city property ownership came up when City Attorney R. B. Lee informed the board that the city Board of Education had requested the aldermen to give the Board of Education a deed to the high school property, in exchange for which the Board of Education would give the aldermen a deed to the property of the Sheppard Memorial Library. Lee explained that the wiring of Greenville High School has been condemned, and the school board would like to have the deed to the property in order to get state aid in making necessary repairs. The matter was referred to the city property committee, the mayor and the city attorney with power to act.

In other matters of business the aldermen granted the request of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission for $500; the request of the Little Theatre group for use of the city courtroom for play practices; accepted a letter from the Pitt County Memorial Hospital thanking the city for aid during the time the hospital was under construction, and a letter from President John D. Messick requesting repair work on the sidewalk along Fifth Street in front of the college.

A finance committee recommendation was accepted by the board and $20,000 of the city's "idle" money ordered invested. $10,000 will be invested with the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Roanoke Rapids, and $10,000 with the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Sanford.

After hearing reports from department heads the board adjourned ending a session which lasted three hours and 15 minutes.

Driver Arrested As Result Of Auto Collision

A driver was arrested on charges of careless and reckless driving yesterday around noon as the result of a highway accident one half mile South of the Greenville city limits on the New Bern Highway.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Abner Rasberry Stepps, 30, Route 2, Greenville skidded and went into the path of an oncoming car driven by Heber William Barrow, 45, of Route 1, Vancesboro.

Damage to both cars was estimated at $150 by Pfc. Paul C. Whitley, investigating officer.

Neither of the two drivers were injured.
