Smoke Billows Upward From Blazing Fuel Plant

Clouds of black smoke roar upward from the burning bulk Sinclair distributing plant which was destroyed by fire here this morning at a loss estimated over $50,000. The two alarm blaze had engulfed the entire building and was racing towards the bulk storage tanks when firemen arrived. A 10,000-gallon railroad tank car, unloading gasoline at the time of the blaze created an added danger and prevented firemen from fighting the fire at close quarters. Bulk Oil Plant Fire Loss Is Estimated Above $50,000

Blaze Believed Touched Off By Static Electrical Spark; Five Huge Tanks Of Gasoline Endangered; Nearby Businesses Unhurt

By JOHN D. SPINKS, JR. Reflector City Editor
The bulk plant of the Sinclair Oil Company here was completely gutted this morning after a fire broke out about 8:45.

Damage to the plant and a tank car of gasoline on the Norfolk and Southern Railway siding was estimated at over $50,000 by J. G. Clark, distributor for the company in this area.

It was believed by Clark the fire was begun by a static electrical spark that set fire to bulk oil midway of the plant which is located at the railway overpass on Dickinson Avenue.

Plant superintendent Ralph Sullivan said he first saw flames break out in the middle of the plant about 8:40. He said he and Clark and Miss Frances Cassick, secretary, managed fire extinguishers in an effort to put out the flames that were licking at barrel of bulk oil and anti-freeze stored in the plant.

However, Sullivan said, the flames got out of control and had spread to all parts of the building before the Greenville Fire Department arrived on the scene. The trucks arrived about 8:45.

Five huge tanks of gasoline, containing upwards of 40,000 gallons and which were located on concrete pillars about 40 feet behind the plant, were endangered.

Flames licked at the foremost tank but firemen were able to wet

Farm Bureau Set To Open Drive

T. J. Pearsall To Address Dinner Marking Drive's Start

The campaign for 3,500 members of the Pitt Farm Bureau will get underway tonight when the campaign workers and the board of directors meet for a kickoff barbecue dinner.

Over 75 persons are expected for the dinner. They will hear reports on Farm Bureau progress during the past year in addition to plans for the coming campaign.

Featured speaker for the occasion is Thomas J. Pearsall, president of the State College Agricultural Foundation Corporation. Pearsall, who is a native of Rocky Mount and was former speaker of the state house of representatives, will address the group on the merits of Farm Bureau and also will urge them to vote in the proposed five-cent per ton additional charge for fertilizers and feedstuffs.

That proposal will be presented to farmers in a November referendum.

Other speakers for the county Bureau will be Arch Flanagan of Farmville, chairman of this year's campaign; W. E. Little of Grimes land, educational director of the county organization; and S. C. Winchester, farm agent.

The dinner meeting will begin at seven o'clock at Respass-James Barbecue House.

Boys Buried In Treasure Hunt

YONKERS, N.Y. (UP)—Two teen-age boys, digging for hidden treasure on the estate of the late millionaire Mrs. Agnes Bigelow, were buried alive last night when a 20 foot embankment caved in on them. Previous treasure hunters had found $39,141 hidden in her house.

Robert Smith, 15, and Arthur Lockwood, 14, were buried for 30 minutes before rescuers dug their lifeless bodies from the "treasure" tunnel in an embankment behind the estate. Four other boys who had joined in the project escaped from the cave-in and called police.

Secret Meeting In Boyle Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Investigations Subcommittee called a secret meeting (1 p. m., EST) today in its probe into the political influence of William M. Boyle Jr., Democratic national chairman.

The group, headed by Senator Hoey (D-N.C.), declined to disclose details or even say where it would meet.

Assail Talks As War Conference

BERLIN (AP)—The Russian-controlled press here today denounced the Washington talks of the Big Three western foreign ministers as a "war conference."

Communist papers charged that the United States, after having concluded a war pact with Japan against the Soviet Union and China at San Francisco, now seeks the same deal with Western Germany.

"No San Francisco for us," declared the Communist-edited Berliner Zeitung.

DESTROYER HIT TOKYO (UP)—The U.S. Navy disclosed today that the destroyer escort USS "Sivyerling" was hit three times off Wonsan, Korea, by Communist shore fire Saturday with only minor damage and no casualties.

Judge Swears In His Son As Practicing Attorney

Swearing in a new lawyer in superior courts of North Carolina is a common occurrence nowadays. However, when a judge administers the oath to his own son—that is a judicial novelty.

It happened yesterday afternoon in Pitt superior court as Judge Quincy Nimocks of Fayetteville swore in his son Steven Hale Nimocks as a practicing attorney in the state of North Carolina.

Steve, 25, graduated from Wake Forest Law School last May and passed the North Carolina Bar examination last month. He was presented to the court by Albion Saad, plaintiff, former superior court judge and friend of Judge Nimocks who is presiding during the fall terms of superior court here.

In presenting the young attorney to his father, Dunn referred to Judge Nimocks as "your illustrious father" and admonished him to follow in his father's footsteps in the practice of law in the state courts.

Also present for the ceremony were Mrs. Quincy Nimocks, Mrs. Steven Nimocks, both of Fayetteville, and Mrs. Charles Marsten of Greenville.

Steve came to Greenville to be sworn in by his father, rather than taking the oath in Cumberland County superior court before another judge which is the usual procedure.

Prior to the swearing-in ceremony in the afternoon an inquiry case was settled between George Saad, plaintiff, and the Greenville Baseball Club.

Saad, who is proprietor of Carolina Grill, presented a complaint against the defunct club, stating it

Mrs. W. H. Young of Burgaw was elected president of the women's auxiliary of the society.

Wright succeeds Dr. James Henry Smith of Wilmington as president of the society which includes dentists from 33 counties in the state. Other officers elected at the meeting were: Dr. W. H. Young of Burgaw, president-elect; Dr. R. L. Whitehurst of Rocky Mount, vice-president; Dr. C. R. Minges of Rocky Mount, secretary and treasurer; and Dr. R. A. Daniels, Jr., of Roanoke Rapids, editor.

Wright was also named as a delegate to the State Dental Society meeting along with Dr. Minges, Dr. B. McK. Johnson of Greenville, Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville, and Dr. L. E. Edwards of Washington.

The society went on record as endorsing the use of fluorides in municipal water supplies in an effort to reduce dental decay. Greenville was named as the site for the next meeting of the Fifth District Dental Society.

President Sees No Bankruptcy

Claims U. S. Economy Stronger Than Ever; Says Foes Political-Minded

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today the United States is stronger economically than ever before. He denounced as lies claims that the government is spending its way into bankruptcy.

He said those who are spreading the story of possible bankruptcy are doing it to "frighten voters—particularly as visions of elections dance through the heads of gentlemen who are politically inclined."

Mr. Truman spoke at the dedication of the new seven-story limestone and granite building for the General Accounting Office, watchdog agency for congress on federal spending.

Using the bristling language of a political campaigner, the President charged that a great deal of "misinformation" is being circulated about government spending. Some of it, he said, is "done in ignorance, some with malice aforethought."

As an example he cited an article in a widely circulated magazine used "meaningless butterfly statistics" they seem to have been plucked right out of the air with a butterfly net "in an attempt to show that waste and extravagance is running wild in the government."

He did not name the magazine. But a White House aide later said Mr. Truman referred to an article by Stanley High in the July issue of Readers Digest.

For did Mr. Truman name names in hitting at those he said have spread the story that this country is spending its way into national bankruptcy.

This has been a familiar Republican campaign cry, and has been voiced by some Dixie Democrats on the outs with the national administration. Among the latter are Senator Byrd of Virginia and Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his Cleveland speech last week said one of the "clearly defined" issues confronting the nation is whether "we are going to squander our limited resources to the point of our own inevitable exhaustion."

Of those he said have been talking of the threat of bankruptcy, Mr. Truman said: "I want to say to these gentlemen (Continued on page ten)

Greenville Leaf Prices Going Up

Monday's Average Hits $51.12; Over 1,719,000 Pounds Sold

The average price on Greenville's tobacco market took another hike on yesterday's sales as the market average reached $51.12, for a rise of 67 cents a hundred over Friday's average.

The market yesterday sold 1,719,476 pounds of tobacco and paid farmers a total of $89,928,771 for their offerings. Commenting on Monday's sales, Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said, "This is the highest average of the season and reflects the fact that a slightly larger percent of the tobaccos are beginning to make their appearance on the Greenville warehouse floors. The greater part of the sales, however, consisted of medium and common types."

In his statement this morning, the supervisor of the market pointed out that the sales switch which will be in effect next week on the number of piles of tobacco that Greenville will sell per day. One set of buyers will be taken from 11 markets in the Eastern belt and assigned to the Old Belt and the Carolina-Border belt for one week, but the markets from which the buyers are taken will be allowed sufficient time each day to sell the regular number of piles of tobacco.

In the case of Greenville it will mean the same number of piles of tobacco will be sold with four sets of buyers as would have been done with the five regular sets of buyers.

Chadwick Did It

SANGATE, France (UP)—American swimming star Florence Chadwick conquered a pea-soup fog and heavy tides today to become the first woman to swim the English Channel from England to France.

Elyse deBryne, deputy mayor of this city port, said the 32-year-old San Diego, Cal. secretary reached here at 2:48 p.m. after starting out from Dover last night at 10:27 p.m.

Late this afternoon Miss Chadwick returned in triumph to Dover and reported the official crossing time was 16 hours and 23 minutes.

Miss Chadwick achieved her triumph after a courageous battle.

No woman had negotiated the difficult westward swim since channel swimming began in 1875. Seven men had made it, but none of them fought such rugged conditions of tide and fog.

Members of Miss Chadwick's party said she was made ill for six hours by fumes from the small motorboat that accompanied her. They said she became sick seven times and added: "She just made it."

Announce Allied Pilot Bombed And Strafed Area September 10 As Reds Charged; Continuation Of Talks In Doubt

TOKYO (UP)—The United Nations command announced tonight that a U.N. pilot bombed and strafed the truce conference city of Kaesong Sept. 10, as the Communists had charged.

A pilot of the 3rd Bomb Group attacked the city which had been declared a neutral zone for the purpose of the armistice conference, by accident, a headquarters statement said.

"The U. N. command regrets this violation of the agreed neutrality which resulted from the pilot's error in navigation," the statement said. "Appropriate disciplinary action is being initiated. It is noted that investigation conducted by the liaison officers established the fact that no damage resulted from the attack."

The admission came after a long series of flat rejections of Communist allegations that U. N. forces had attacked Kaesong.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway had suggested that the truce talks, which the Reds broke off on the allegation that U. N. forces violated Kaesong's neutrality, should be moved to a new site.

In official statements broadcast by Red radios, the Communists rejected this proposal and kept insisting that their complaints were justified.

The Reds used the new statement to boast a little about how the U. N. "had to agree" to accept the Kaesong site in the first place, stressing the high propaganda value the Communists put on the U. N. agreement to come into their territory.

Ridgway still was waiting for the official Red reply to his note.

The statement, which Peiping radio said was issued by the Red cease-fire delegation, declared that: "Negotiations can proceed on an equal and normal basis in order to reach a just and reasonable armistice agreement only if the United Nations forces' side change their arrogant and unreasonable attitude, abandoning their attempt to divert attention and sincerely and responsibly deal with the series of provocative incidents."

"Otherwise, the United Nations forces' side will definitely bear the full responsibility for all the consequences resulting from their procrastination and obstruction of the negotiations and of breaking up the negotiations."

It charged that reports that Red troops and tanks were in Kaesong were fostered to "buttress the demand for a change of the site. . . and also as justification for breaking up the negotiations whenever they deem it necessary."

The statement said that until the question of the incidents is settled, the truce talks can not be resumed.

UN Officer Says Soldiers Could Be Advisers To Communists In Korea; Allied Patrols Take Two More Hills

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—Caucasian troops wearing uniforms similar to those worn by Russian soldiers have been seen near the Kaesong front, UN dispatches said today. A U. N. officer said the soldiers could be Russian advisers to the Communists.

United Press Correspondent LeRoy Hansen reported from the central front that eight soldiers believed to be two officers and six enlisted men, were seen in the uniforms about seven miles behind the front lines.

Hansen did not specify how the U. N. forces got the information but the details available about the soldiers' uniforms hinted at close-hand inspection, either by U. N. patrols or agents behind the enemy lines.

The uniform fits the description of the Russian uniform, an allied officer said, "with the exception of the absence of shoulder boards."

Two of the men wore khaki uniforms with high black riding boots.

The report came as troops of the famous U. S. 25th "Lightning" division seized the second of two hills below Pyongyang in central Korea, Tuesday as Chinese forces pulled back under a savage air and artillery barrage.

U. N. patrols showed up into Red territory early Tuesday in clear, brisk weather, seeking out more enemy defense positions to crack in the continuing allied offensive.

The 25th was the fourth American division identified in action on the Korean front. The U. S. 2nd and 7th Infantry and the 1st Marine divisions were named earlier.

Three other attacks along the front showed the Communists back in local actions. In one fight near Kumhwa at the eastern anchor of the old "Iron Triangle," 15 horse-mounted Chinese soldiers appeared as reinforcements for an embattled Red unit—the first time in several months that enemy cavalry units have been sighted.

There was no let-up in the bruising assaults on enemy positions across the 135-mile front nor in preparations for an expected all-out Red offensive as the cease-fire stalemate persisted.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman, former President Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur have made speeches recently and all three had one thing in common.

Instead of naming names and being specific, they resorted to general charges and general indictments. Not one of them used a name, thus following the old technique of public speakers mixed up in politics.

In all three cases the speakers were attacking some one or some group, without saying whom. This left the job of interpreting what they really meant up to the public or commentators for newspapers and radio.

But an interpretation by someone else is always second hand, and open to doubt, and the speaker can always return and say he was misinterpreted, which is a convenience, particularly in politics.

Since this is a traditional political tactic—making charges without naming names or being specific—the public is used to it and never surprised, no matter how often it happens.

Next Bout In Cold War

Russia And The West Already Lining Up For A Fight Over Germany; Liberal Peace Terms Planned By Allies; Reds May Believe Own Propaganda

By HARRY FERGUSON

The next bout in the cold war will be over Germany. The foreign ministers of America, Britain and France are in Washington today planning their strategy.

Their problem is to end the formal state of war that exists between the Allies and Western Germany and get the Bonn government firmly into the anti-Communist coalition. It is not going to be as easy as it sounds, not nearly as easy as it was to crush the Communist opposition at San Francisco and sign a peace treaty with Japan.

Russia's stake in what happens in Western Germany is enormous. Western Germany isn't and the Russians can think back to World War II when Hitler's legions were knocking at the gates of the Communist capital.

The principal reason that the Japanese treaty was an easy

Supper Hostess On Thursday night Mrs. Walter Patrick was a gracious hostess when she had members of her contract club for supper and bridge. Bowls of dahlias, zinnias and other flowers made a pleasing setting for the party.

As guests assembled, they found their places at the card tables. A delectable fried chicken supper was enjoyed.

High score was made by Mrs. Woodrow Smith and second high by Mrs. Milton Hart. The visitor's high went to Mrs. Jack Chapman.

Others present for the evening were Mrs. Glendel Tucker, Mrs. Carey Garris, Mrs. Elmo Smith, Mrs. Sam Nelson, Mrs. Edward Hart, Mrs. Roy Jackson, Mrs. Wiley Gaskins, Mrs. Julius Chauncey, and Mrs. Ben G. Tucker.

Red Oak News

All members and friends of Red Oak Christian Church are cordially invited to attend Homecoming Day at Red Oak next Sunday, September 16. The program for the day is as follows: Sunday School at 10 o'clock with F. L. Allen, superintendent, in charge; church services at 11 o'clock with sermon by our pastor, Rev. Harold Tyrer of Bath and special music by the Conway brothers with Mr. Dan Sutton at the piano; dinner on the grounds at 12:15 o'clock; community singing, recognition of guests, short talks by members and visitors at 1:30 o'clock. At 7:30 that night, Rev. Elmore Turner of Washington will conduct a series of meetings that will last ten days.

Mrs. James Allen and Mrs. Leon Tyson will have charge of the music for all of these meetings.

All ladies who bring picnic lunches are also asked to bring a gallon of sweetened tea.

Funeral Wednesday For Heber J. Jolly Funeral services for Heber Jesse Jolly, 63, who died at his home in Winterville Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock after a long illness, will be conducted at the Missionary Baptist Church in Winterville Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. The pastor, the Rev. E. G. Cole, assigned by the Rev. Walter B. Nobles, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, will officiate, and burial will be in the Winterville cemetery. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of service. Members of the Improved Order of Red Men, Tribe No. 56 of Winterville, will have charge of the services at the grave.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Velma Williams Jolly; a son, M-Sgt. H. J. Jolly, Jr., of the Army Air Corps, now stationed at Litchfield Park, Arizona; two daughters, Mrs. Al M. O'Hara of Hyattsville, Md., and Mrs. Earl Sadler of Winterville; three grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Walter Wilson of La Grange.

CROW'S NEST GETS EGGS PORT HURON, Mich. —(UP)—Five birds' eggs turned up, of all places, in the crow's nest of the Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw. Crew members couldn't decide what kind of bird left her eggs in the nest, well hidden among the wires and steel beams of the lookout post.

Girl Club To Be Organized On Saturday

Here is an invitation to all of the little ladies in town between the ages of 8 and 12 to join a club to be organized just for them. The first meeting is to be held Saturday, September 15, in the Army at 10 o'clock, and every following Saturday. The club is to be co-sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Woman's Club.

Varied programs will be planned for the members. At present, plans are being made to include such activities as dancing, puppetry, different phases of arts and crafts, doll making, hiking, camp style cooking, planning parties, and singing. These are activities that every girl of the above age will enjoy.

The purpose of this club is to bring children of a common age level together to participate in wholesome recreational activities, develop sportsmanship, stimulate leadership, and to exercise creativity. Being a member of this club will subject the child to many activities, one of which he may develop into a personal interest and maturity as a hobby for many years to come.

Pastor Expected To Return Friday

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, is expected to arrive back in this city Saturday, September 15, after a two months' absence.

Mr. Russell has been one of 300 delegates from 38 countries who were chosen to represent the numerous independent Methodist bodies who have been attending the Ecumenical Conference in Oxford, England. These conferences are held once every ten years.

Most of the delegates have been housed in colleges of Oxford University, like Christ Church and Lincoln, which are connected with the origin of Methodism.

Before the Conference convened, Mr. Russell visited in France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Scotland and other points of interest in England.

Mr. Russell will make the ocean trip home aboard the Corona, and will arrive in Greenville on Saturday. He plans to occupy the pulpit for the Sunday morning service.

Trio Held For Attempted Tar And Feathering

SPARTA —(AP)—Two women and a man are being held under $5,000 bonds on charges of attempting to tar and feather Mrs. Ethlyn E. Richardson, 50, postmistress at Whitehead, six miles west of here. State Bureau of Investigation agent John B. Edwards identified the trio yesterday as May Alice Landreth, Reba Jane Joins and Burt Atwood. He said they attempted to tar and feather Mrs. Richardson at Whitehead the night of Aug. 30.

According to Edwards, seven or eight hooded and robed persons went to the Richardson home that night, bound and gagged the postmistress, and took her 100 yards from the house where they attempted to tar and feather her. An approaching car frightened the mob away.

Doctor Surplus In West Germany

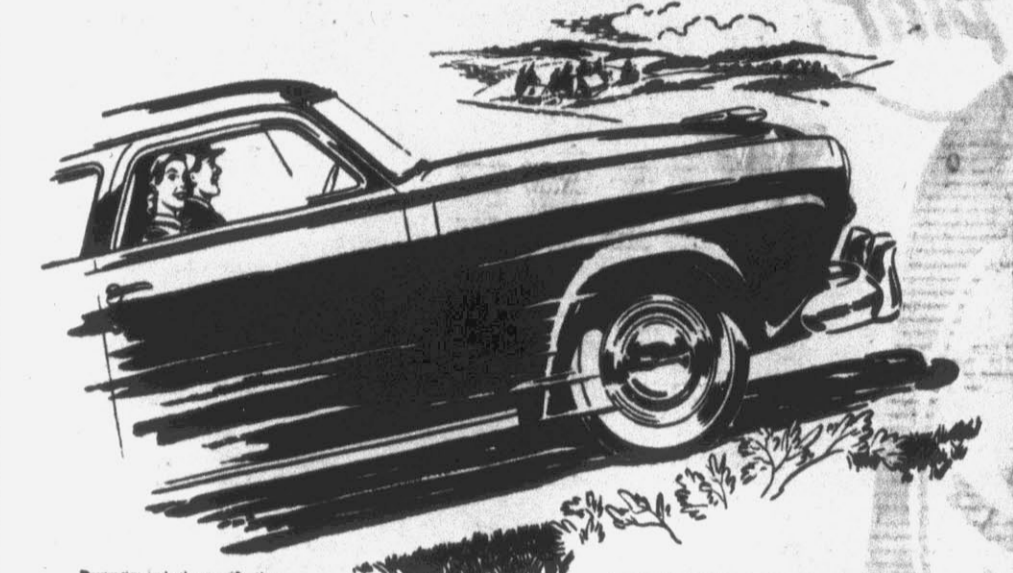

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y. —(UP)—Western Germany has so many doctors that some of them are forced to dig ditches, sell ice and work in factories to earn a living, according to two German medical men.

Oskar Hepp, medical director of the Orthopedical University clinic at Hamburg-Eppendorf, Germany, and Werner Schulte, member of the committee for technical science for disabled persons in that country, painted a gloomy picture.

On the other hand, they said, there is a big shortage of doctors in the eastern zone.

The two came here to study the use of amputee employees at the International Business Machine and Endicott-Johnson plants.

Instruction Course For Home Nursing Finished

Miss Mabel Daughtry, home economics instructor at East Carolina College, returned here recently after taking a five-day instructor's course at Georgia State College for Women.

Miss Daughtry was sent to take the course by the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross to enable her to become a certified instructor. Home nursing is a required course for home economics majors at East Carolina College and with Miss Daughtry teaching the course, the students are able to receive Red Cross certificates on completion of the course.

The home nursing course at Georgia State College for Women was given to prepare instructors in teaching a 14-hour course and included teaching methods, organization of classes, and instructing. Miss Daughtry said she enjoyed the course very much and they began classes at 8 o'clock in the morning which lasted until 5:30 in the afternoon.

Dr. Bessie McNeil of East Carolina College, Miss Daughtry, and Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross, are outlining plans for a home nursing workshop to be held at the college next summer.

Mild Monday

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 87 degrees. Lowest last night, 59, and at 8 a.m. today it was 68. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago the highest temperature was 81 degrees. Lowest that night, 70, and at 8 a.m. next day it was still 70. Half an inch of rain fell that day.

Re-Wiring Of High School Is Now Under Way

Work has begun in Greenville High School in re-wiring the building to take care of new electrical equipment recently installed.

When the school was built, the wiring installed did not allow for the modernization plan which is now taking place. The addition of light fixtures which furnish from three to four times as much light as used before has increased the burden on the old circuit. Several new electric stoves have been added to the home economics but cannot be used until the school is re-wired to carry the increased load. A study of the wiring in the school has been underway for over a year and engineers surveyed the situations and drew up specifications. Work has already been done in the C. M. Epps High School, West Greenville School, and the Third Street School toward installing new wiring take care of electrical appliances. The Fleming Street School will be the next to have work done on the wiring.

Not only is the work being done for safety measures but also to furnish better light in the classrooms and modern electrical equipment. J. H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, said the wiring of the Greenville High School would cost about $5,000 and work would be completed as soon as the rest of the materials arrived and could be installed.

Employees Awarded Longevity Emblems

Virginia-Carolina Chem Corp. has awarded service emblems to four Greenville employees who have been in service of the company for 10 or more years. E. M. Sawyer, Supt. of the firm's Greenville plant received a gold emblem with two rubies signifying his twenty years of service. H. R. Munford of Greenville sales office received a gold emblem with one ruby signifying fifteen years of service. J. R. Allen received a plain gold V-C emblem for ten years of service, and James Langley an employee of the Greenville plant received a gold emblem with one ruby for fifteen years of service. The award were made by Chas. T. Harding, Gen. Manager, Fertilizer Manufacturing Dept. of the Chemical Company, whose home office is located in Richmond, Virginia, where it was founded in 1895.

On Girl Scout Camp Club Given Report

By WYATT BROWN

Rotarians heard a glowing account last night of the Girl Scouts highly successful Summer Camp at Camp Hardee this year. Camp Hardee is sponsored by the Greenville club. Mrs. J. K. Long, commissioner of the Greenville Girl Scout Council, and Mrs. E. L. Henderson, executive secretary of the Greenville Girl Scout Council and also camp director at Camp Hardee told the club members what a fine year they had had and much of the success was credited to the cooperation and assistance of the Rotarians.

Mrs. Long said that an account of how the Greenville Rotarians have helped with Camp Hardee has been sent to National Headquarters of Girl Scouts and will be used as a model in their national conference to be held soon on the role of men in Girl Scouting.

Mrs. Henderson opened her remarks by calling the Rotarians the Girl Scouts' "friend number one." She then listed how the money the Rotarians had given had been used. With the money two new bath houses, complete with bathing and toilet facilities, had been built. Also a playground for tennis, volleyball, badminton and other field games. She commented that the playground rated next to the water front in popularity with the girls.

Another gift of the Rotarians, she said, was the large quantity of sand that had been placed on their beach, greatly increasing the size of the sandy beach. Right in line with the gifts she told how one Rotarian had come down with a tractor and ditched all around the large playground.

Another gift she related was a gas cook stove complete with a double oven affording the camp adequate cooking facilities now. She also reminded them that they had had the leaves raked up and the grounds cleaned up before camp.

Then she told of the camp's program of activities including archery, arts, crafts, boating, and many other activities including singing and dancing.

In the three camping periods they had two filled to capacity and one of twenty-five. Capacity is forty-eight, she explained; but one period was expanded to fifty by using some ingenuity in providing a mattress for two beds.

Mrs. Henderson concluded by declaring the summer's camping season saw the greatest number in camp and the best time. She reiterated the gratitude of the Scouts and the Scout leaders for what the Rotarians as a group and as individuals had done.

At this point eight of the senior Girl Scout campers under the direction of the Camp Hardee music counselor Dot Stauffer sang some camp songs for the Rotarians. The Girl Scouts were: Joanna Hardee, Mary Will Long, Lou Cheatham, Jerry Lassiter, Sarah Adams, Hannah Proctor, Nelson Blount, and Kitty Collins.

Then Mrs. Long told the Rotarians of some long range plans for Camp Hardee. She preambled her statement by saying she had visited some of the larger, more expensive camps in western North Carolina and found the Camp Hardee facilities on a par. The western camps had more extensive programs but Camp Hardee has the basic activities. She predicted that Camp Hardee would have a program as good as any

Second Election

CARTHAGE—(AP)—The second beer-wine election with in a year was held in Moore County today.

Last year, Moore voted in favor of beer and wine but the state Supreme Court ruled the election illegal in that it violated a state law that any elections must be 60 days apart.

After the election was overturned, Southern Pines, Pinehurst, Aberdeen, Carthage and Robbins won the privilege of calling local beer-wine elections. That has been held in abeyance pending the new county-wide vote.

The election will not affect present state-controlled ABC package liquor stores in Southern Pines and Pinehurst.

Nurse Resigns At Health Dept.

Miss Janie Johnson has resigned her position as nurse at the Pitt County Health Department to go to Chapel Hill for further study in nursing.

She will leave the health department in a few days where she has done regular clinic work to take a course in public nursing at the University of North Carolina. Dr. T. G. Basnight, health officer, said he accepted Miss Johnson's resignation with regret and he hopes to replace her in the near future.

RIGHT WAYS AND WRONG

Are you throwing away your life? Lots of people do. Some throw it away on drink. Some wallow in their passions, as a hog wallows in the mire. Others cherish grudges, and throughout their lives they are unforgiving and hateful to others. Many a person throws his life away because he makes the acquisition of wealth first on his agenda and pays no attention to human values—in his own heart, in the circle of his family, in the business and social world in which he moves.

But paradoxically enough, the Bible commands people who throw their lives away, only it is very careful to direct them as to how they are to throw them away. Said Jesus, "Whoever shall lose his life shall save it, and whosoever shall lose his life shall save it." It was the contention of the Great Teacher that the way to find happiness is to forget about it and to keep busy in the living of an unselfish and useful life. When one does this, he loses his life, he throws it away. And behold, the bread he has cast upon the water comes back to him later in the form of real happiness.

We have to throw away our lives and to throw them away every day, if we are going to be happy. But we have to throw them away according to the directive found in the Bible and not according to the fashion and pattern of the world.

Spare That Tree And The Repair Bill

The Street Department of the City of Greenville has worked out a solution to one of the most controversial problems it has had in a long time. The Reflector believes the problem has been solved to the delight of all concerned—the people of Greenville—and to the satisfaction of those who viewed the problem from strictly a business standpoint.

We have reference to the laying of a new sidewalk along Fifth street in front of East Carolina College. The sidewalk has been in need of much repair for a long time. The roots from the big trees along the street had caused the sidewalk to buckle and break in many places. A sure-footed mule could hardly walk along the sidewalk without stumbling somewhere along the route.

The situation for some time looked as if either the beautiful trees along the street must be sacrificed, or the sidewalk would have to remain a line of broken concrete. The Street Department, however, came up with the solution, and it is now being carried out. The sidewalk has been taken up and a new walk is to be laid 24 inches farther back from the street and the trees in the park strip.

In this instance a solution was found for the problem and the trees were saved. In another instance, Greenville may not be so fortunate.

To The Reflector it seems a good idea for the city to prohibit the planting of trees in park strips along the streets to avoid having to cut down beautiful trees in the future, and the expense of relaying sidewalks which have been broken by roots of growing trees. The benefits received by such a practice would not be evident to the city in the near future, but during the next 25 years, it could save the city thousands of dollars in sidewalk and street repair bills.

LuLong Is Still Queen In Tar Heelia

LuLong didn't take the crown of Miss America at Atlantic City, but she brought home the third place trophy, a handsome scholarship, and plenty of favorable press clippings of which she and North Carolina can be proud.

LuLong became the first Miss North Carolina to reach the finals of the Atlantic City extravaganza of beautiful, talented young women from all over America. She proved herself a real credit to the state and to the small town of Smithfield.

Although the official judges at Atlantic City decided otherwise, it will be a long time before the majority of the people of North Carolina become convinced that Miss America of 1951 should have come from Utah instead of the Tar Heel state.

So far as the Tar Heels are concerned LuLong has everything Miss America should have, and plenty to spare.

America's Debt To A Million Men

Somewhere along the Korean battlefield on Labor day or the day after the millionth American laid down his life for the principles of freedom and democracy just as the first Minuteman gave his life for the same principles at the battle of Lexington in 1775.

The name of the millionth GI to give his life on the battlefield for his country will remain forever known only to God, but the memory of him and his now silent comrades in arms down through the years will be cherished forever in the hearts of his countrymen who have been spared to enjoy the freedoms for which he sacrificed his life.

Since the bold colonists of the new world struck the spark of freedom 176 years ago, the people of America have defended it valiantly, and fanned it into a roaring flame which has swept through most of the world. For almost two centuries the men of the United States have raised their swords in battle when efforts at the conference table failed and the tyrants began their march to crush freedom.

How much longer American youths will be called to arms to defend the freedom of their people or how many more will die on the battlefields around the world can only be guessed. How many other millions of lives will be wrecked by war, how many billions of dollars will be spent on weapons or how many trillions will be spent to repair war's devastation remains a secret only the future will answer.

To the fundamental principles upon which this nation was founded the American people must adhere. The American people of today must make certain the million men who have given their lives in the battle for freedom will not have died in vain.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—The Truman-Acheson foreign policy will come under severe senatorial scrutiny as a result of the negotiation of executive treaties which extend our military and diplomatic boundaries and commitments into areas so remote that it is obvious that we cannot support these guarantees with our present forces.

There is no or scant senatorial objection to the defense line we have drawn in the Pacific, which runs roughly from the Aleutians to Japan and thence to New Zealand and Australia. It is generally agreed that we need this bastion to prevent the Russians from establishing beach-heads which would threaten the Philippines, Hawaii and our Pacific frontier. But the Administration program which worries Senate ratifiers is the plan to include Turkey, Greece, possibly Yugoslavia and Spain, within the North Atlantic Military Pact. Their inclusion within the NATO alliance would mean that, if any of these nations were attacked by Russia, we would be forced to go to their rescue, and possibly set off the spark of World War III.

QUESTION—Under the written provisions of the North Atlantic Pact, these Mediterranean countries could become members of the alliance without Senate okay. But when this document was submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, it was stipulated by Secretary of State Acheson that any amendments would have to be approved by the Senate.

Therefore, any reopening of the treaty to approve the adherence of Turkey, Greece and Spain will furnish the occasion for a post-Korea review of the Administration's foreign program.

The Senate's final question will be: Where is our ultimate defense frontier? What line do the Russians have to cross before we go to war?

FACT—The secret fact is that the Truman Administration has not yet drawn a line whose aggressive crossing by the Russians would precipitate all-out war.

Despite negotiation of treaties designed to encircle the Soviet, the United States and its Allies have not said where they would decide to make a warlike stand in the event of Russian attack.

We have resisted Communist aggression in Korea. Although this offensive was inspired and reinforced by Moscow, we prefer for diplomatic reasons to overlook that fact.

We refuse to regard Stalin's bargain-basement war in this area as reason for a showdown with him. We refuse, largely because we and our Allies are militarily weak, to make Korea a test case on a large scale.

RETALIATION—When and if we ask admission of Spain, Greece, Turkey, and possibly Yugoslavia to the North Atlantic Military Alliance, we will be saying to Stalin that an attack on any of these countries means an attack on the United States. In retaliation we shall defend them, even if it means the outbreak of World War III.

But it is still doubtful if the U.S. Senate will confirm any treaty which commits us to go to war because of an invasion of such remote lands as Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia.

SHIVER—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' demand for recognition of the Chinese Communists sent a shiver through the Truman Administration nerve centers. President Truman was particularly upset because he knows how close Mr. Douglas came to being President of the United States.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt decided to run for a fourth term in 1944, his preferred vice-presidential candidate was Justice Douglas. He told all visiting politicians that, if he had to drop the radical Henry A. Wallace he wanted Mr. Douglas.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Down at the store where I work we recently hired a man from Muskegon, Michigan. Ronald Jensen by name. Ron married a Greenville girl (Edna Locke) whose station is at Cherry Point in the Marine Corps, and has come to Greenville to live.

Working with Ron is giving me a good chance to compare a city like Muskegon, where everything under the sun is manufactured, with our town of one main industry, tobacco.

The first comparison came at a local service station, where Ron had two very significant comments: (1) It almost seems to take half a day to wash a car here. In Muskegon, they put a car under one of those three-minute washing machines, charge you $1.25, and make you think you've had a wash job. (2) And when it comes to greasing, they squirt your car a few times and send you on your way. Here they fill every fitting with grease.

And when it comes to used cars, Ron is amazed. In Muskegon he never heard of such a thing as giving a guarantee with a used car, the way they do here. Up there if you come back to use your car for the day after your purchase crying because the motor has fallen out, it's tough, brother. They tell you that it's your car and there is nothing they can do about it.

Still another comparison came to light the other day when Ron and I were talking and I said, "Let's think of some business we can go into, for a small investment, and make a killing on the side, at the same time keeping our jobs."

Ron said, "I've got just the business. It can't miss. A trailer rental service. There are six in Muskegon and you have to wait in line for a trailer."

We outlined the business on paper, and it looked great. To start operation all we needed was:

- (1) A well-located lot, which we hoped to rent for around $25 a month.
- (2) $800 for buying six two-wheel trailers, for a start.
- (3) A trustworthy man to handle the rental transactions.

Our rates would be $5 a day, or $2.50 a day if rented for as long as a month, or $1.75 an hour. By keeping the six rented out, we could pay for them in about two months. Of course we planned to buy more, perhaps sell some, and trade if profitable.

Like any business, it pays to make a thorough survey before jumping into anything, so while making our regular calls we asked our customers their opinion of the idea.

One said, "I needed to haul some things last week, but all I did was borrow my buddy's truck. I didn't have to bother about hitching up a trailer; the truck was better, and he didn't charge me a cent."

It was the same story all over town. In Greenville everybody seems to have so many friends that anybody can borrow a truck or trailer. Thus, no demand for rentals. It's the same old story: In Greenville we practice that God Southern Hospitality that you hear so much about.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYN NISBET

NARROW—The chairman of a political party has a pretty narrow path to follow. If he deviates a few inches from center in either direction there are members of his party ready to accuse him of exerting undue influence because of his position. Howard McGrath, now attorney general in the Truman cabinet, was charged with using his position as national Democratic chairman to put over pet schemes of the administration.

William Boyle, who succeeded him as national chairman, is now under senate investigation for alleged misuse of influence in connection with government loans.

IN STATE—Monroe Redden, chairman of the state Democratic committee in 1942, was severely criticized for activities in behalf of pending constitutional amendments which the party convention had not endorsed. Capus Wayne, chairman in 1949, was criticized for activity in behalf of the secondary road bond issue. From time to time top flight personnel in the Democratic party organization has been accused of excessive activity in behalf of candidates in the primary. Last year for example Chairman Everett Jordan was criticized for supporting Willie Smith for the senate, but not as much as the vice chairman, Mrs. D. A. McCormick for overt activity in behalf of Frank Graham. Now, with another gubernatorial campaign in the offing, similar rumors are going around. One hears almost every day, around Capitol square that Chairman Jordan is going out of his way to boost the prospects of William Umstead for governor, while Vice Chairman McCormick is just as diligently trying to block his chances. Maybe so and maybe not, and maybe it doesn't make as much difference as some people think. After all, the voters of North Carolina have a way of doing pretty much as they please.

PROCEDURE—It is apparent that very few people have knowledge of the plan of organization and procedure in the two major political parties. Accepting information obtained from a Republican, long active in his local party affairs, it was stated here the other day that the state executive committee of the Republican party is made up of the county chairmen. That is not the case at all. The state committee is composed of four members from each congressional district and one additional member for each 2500 votes or major fraction of that number cast for the Republican candidate for congress in that district at the preceding election.

IGNORANT—Upon learning that an active Republican was so badly misinformed with respect to his party organization, your reporter decided to query several Democrats about procedure in their party. Some public officials, holding office by virtue of Democratic nomination, did not know how many votes are in the state executive committee. Others could not remember the basis of representation in county and state conventions, or whether the suggested plan of bonus votes for states in the national convention, similar to that for the Republican state committee, had been approved. Copies of the plans of organization and party rules can be obtained from respective state chairmen, and it is suggested it will be a good idea for interested citizens to get and read these rules before next spring.

PLATES—Through July 31 the state department of motor vehicles had 1,137,458 license plates of the 1951 series for automotive vehicles. These plates were divided into twenty-four different kinds, twenty-two for automobiles and two for motor cycles. Except in four instances the purpose for distinctive plates is to aid officers in law enforcement, since the statutes authorize heavier loads and different types of service for motor vehicles carrying some identifications.

EXCEPTIONS—There is a white tag with black numerals preceded by the letter P, with the word PERMANENT N.C. across the bottom. This type tag is permissible on public owned vehicles and some private buses and trucks under utilities commission regulations, and 1,281 have been issued. Other limited-use tags are mainly concession to personal pride. There is the official class with plain numeral ranging from 1 to 200, reserved for state officials. No. 1 always goes on the state-owned limousine assigned to the governor's office. The other low numbers are paid for by the users, including state officials, judges and solicitors, members of congress and former governors. Members of the supreme court have a special series with numerals 1 to 7 preceded by a large J, and the chairman of the highway commission is entitled to H-1. A total of 182 plates have been issued to the official group. The other special designation is for members of the national guard of which 591 have been distributed. Some person entitled to low number tags do not want them, but generally they are highly prized.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SENATOR BYRD'S WARNING
(West Point, Miss., Daily Times Leader)

The magazine Banking recently carried an article by Senator Byrd of Virginia, called "Saving for Defense." The Senator made it clear that he favors all necessary measures for defending the free world from the Communist menace. Then he said: "The free enterprise system will not operate at maximum capacity in fiscal insecurity. It cannot survive confiscatory taxes."

"Yes, the President and the administration are still insisting on increasing taxes; and they are still insisting on Federal expenditures for nonessential, domestic-civilian, political programs, including socialized medicine, housing and agriculture, not just as usual—at an increased rate in most instances.

"If the expenditure budget requested by the President were reduced 10 per cent, the new taxes he has requested could be cut 50 per cent."

"This can be done without impairing any essential function of the Government, either military or civilian."

would actually undermine and weaken our defenses. They would do that in many ways; by diverting manpower and materials needed for defense to other purposes; by starting a new inflationary spiral and further cheapening the dollar; and reducing the values of savings of the people; by destroying initiative, and the will and ability of the nation to produce at maximum capacity; and, most important of all, by saddling us with a system of state socialism which would differ only in degree from that in the totalitarian states. Wars can be lost without a shot.

Business Today

The peace treaty with Japan and the mutual assistance pact with the Philippines, plus the other treaties and alliances building a trading area as vast as the Pacific Ocean itself, are steps toward creating a great new market for American goods.

American business has lost China as a market. Red China has been written off in the red ink of American exporting companies. But between the American coast of the Pacific and the low-water marks of the Red Tide on the Asian shore is a vast market and, what is more, it is a new market for many American exporters.

The Japanese Peace Treaty marks a turning point in the shift from government buying for Japan to private buying. For some exporters, it will be a serious blow; instead of selling to one or two centralized government agencies it will mean dealing with hundreds of private Japanese importers, each with a different credit rating.

The Filipino treaty adds much less, in a material way, to prospects for American sales there. For one thing, American exports have proceeded within the limits of the Philippines' ability to buy, ever since the end of the shooting war in the Pacific. For another, the Economic Cooperation Administration is continuing to function as an aid to the Philippines. But a new relationship between the Philippines and America has matured that should result in better trade relations.

The Indonesian Republic, created under the aegis of the United States, has not developed as a good market. The Indonesians are having a depression of their own and robberies from ships have become so widespread that insurance is difficult to obtain. But the islands are capable of producing great amounts of oil, tin and other materials needed in America and it is only a question of time until private enterprise triumphs over latest socialism there.

American self-interest in Indo-China has made that a large market for the United States. Governmental aid to Indo-China is large, and it, like other foreign aid, is expected to shift gradually into private channels. Under the current foreign-aid program, proposed appropriations for the Far East and Pacific areas total $530,000,000 for military and $237,500,000 for economic assistance.

HOW TO GET SHARING OF PACIFIC SPENDING
And what of the small business man seeking to sell in this vast, new market? His best bet is to a bit of camping on the doorstep of the nearest office of the Department of Commerce or the ECA. His second-best bet is to contact the nearest commercial offices of the Japanese, Filipino, and other Far Eastern governments.

The Australian and New Zealand land commercial offices in this country should not be overlooked. There will be a lot of red tape and a lot of backing and filling. But the market runs into the billions, and for those with goods wanted it should be worth the patience and effort.

BANK HOURS CUT, INSURANCE GOES UP
Shortage of bank personnel is causing more communities to consider shortening banking hours. The immediate effect of this is to increase insurance rates for retailers in those areas. Because retailers must hold receipts for longer periods, insurance companies hold that danger of thefts and fire increased.

Memphis banks recently eliminated Saturday openings. This forced retailers to double the amounts of their week-end withdrawals and to hold their cash for an additional twenty-four hours. Insurance rates promptly rose.

KITCHENS, DINING ROOMS SHRINKING IN AMERICA

Recent surveys show that the American kitchen is getting smaller and that dining rooms are disappearing. These facts, obvious to those who have been shopping around for new homes, will have great impacts on manufacturing industries. The developments call for more dual-purpose furniture for living rooms and more cupboard space for kitchens. At the same time, it means a diminishing market for large dining room suites and bulky kitchen furniture. It also creates a market for a large number of space-saving gadgets.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—He was just a little man with a mighty big modern problem.

Sunlight flooded his room—and he wished it would be hit by lightning instead.

That would at least delay the ordeal he must face this day. "H-m-m-m," he said to himself as he studied the mirror for the tenth time.

"This suit sure does make me look older," he told himself, and he made a face at his reflection.

Moodily, he stroiled over and leaned out the window to get a breath of fresh air. The tree outside was beginning to lose its leaves already, and again he felt the pressure of time upon him. How much faster the days seemed to speed nowadays!

Out of the house next door came a little golden-haired girl of three. He watched her as she toddled about the yard, sharing her lollipop with a small strange fox terrier that wandered up. Musingly, he thought to himself how lucky she was. No cares, except to keep her frock clean.

Suddenly, unreasonably jealous of her youth and freedom, he called down sharply to her: "Tell that dog to go away!"

She looked up in surprise, then waved the lollipop at him and said, "Hullo."

"Tell that dog to go away," he said again, exasperated.

"Why?"

"Never mind why. You do as I say."

"Go away, dog," she said, obediently. The fox terrier merely wagged his tail and took another lap at the lollipop.

"Gill!" came a shout from the window. The dog glanced up and saw a threatening figure leaning out as if to throw something. The dog shrugged philosophically, then scampered away.

"You scared him," said the little girl. And, weeping, she ran back toward her front door, crying, "Momma, Momma!"

"Well, we can come home early if you want to," she said. "But you do have to go, my little man."

He saw the iron determination in her eyes, but he made one last plea. "I don't want to go to kindergarten," he said, and broke into tears. "Mama, can't I please just wait and go to college instead?"

Washington Letter

By CLARKE BEACH
(For JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Perle Mesta lured a couple of touring U. S. senators out of Paris to fly to Luxembourg and have a talk with some officials there about the little country's problems.

They attended a small dinner party at the U. S. legation where Mrs. Mesta is the minister. The guests included some Luxembourg officials. Later that night the senators, Green (D-R. I.) and Sparkman (D-Ala.) flew back to Paris.

It was another small triumph for the famous Washington party-giver. She had been summoned to Paris to testify before a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee which was holding hearings on U. S. foreign aid programs in Europe. All ranking U. S. diplomats in Europe were being called as witnesses.

Many of them urged the senators to come to their countries and see the situation for themselves.

But to all of them except Mrs. Mesta, the senators explained they were too busy and could not leave the city. They were, in fact, working at top speed. The next morning at 10 o'clock—a Sunday—Green and Sparkman were back at the embassy in Paris holding more hearings.

Mrs. Mesta in her testimony gave an enthusiastic little sales talk on Luxembourg, stressing the cold facts about industry, business and taxation. She made quite a point of the fact that tax collections are high and that Luxembourg uses very firm measures to see that taxes are paid. This was a canny remark under circumstances, for some countries to which the U. S. is giving aid have been accused of not collecting all the tax money they could.

She paid a restrained tribute to Luxembourg's lady ruler, saying: "The country has been ruled since 1919 by the Grand Duchess Charlotte and has enjoyed a remarkable governmental stability, with two of the Cabinet Ministers remaining in office for 25 years or more."

She started out by pointing out somewhat apocryphally that Luxembourg was a very small country because "in years past Belgium took a slice of her, Belgium took a slice of her and France took a slice of her."

Southeastern Counties Form Regional Council

By LYNN NISBET
DURHAM — Sponsors of the movement to form a regional council for the general development of the southeastern section of the state were generally pleased with accomplishments at the organization meeting in the Fender county court house Friday night.

Interest in the proposal was manifested by the presence of representatives from each of the eight counties embraced in the charter — Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Duplin, New Hanover, Pender, Onslow and Sampson. The group adopted a constitution and elected temporary officers after considerable debate, which at times almost got out of hand. Delay in completing a permanent organization was regarded as further purpose to get started right.

Another meeting will be called in a few days by Lee Braxton, mayor of Whiteville, who was elected temporary president. Other officers included Aubrey L. Caven-ough of Duplin and Hugh Morton of New Hanover, vice presidents, and Dave Neilson of Columbus, secretary-treasurer.

Preliminary work for the organization meeting had been done mainly by Cavenough, a member of the state board of conservation and development; Marion Shuffler and W. C. Guthrie, of the commerce and industry division. The state officials declared their purpose of continuing as much support of the project as possible, but indicated it is largely up to the local folks to carry on.

The idea of regional co-operation is not new, but here as at other places, attempts to make it effective run into community rivalry and jealousies. Before going into the business part of the meeting, the one hundred or so attendants heard State Treasurer Brandon

Church Dedicates Mountain Today

MURPHY — (AP) — About 700 delegates from the United States and foreign countries witnessed the dedication of Ten Commandment Mountain by the Church of God here today.

Ten Commandment Mountain, so called because on it appears the world's largest presentation of the commandments topped by the world's largest outline of a bible, is located 19 miles west of here on TVA Highway 204 near Hiwassee Dam.

The ceremonies, directed by Bishop Homer A. Tomlinson, were highlighted by a march up the steps of the mountain led by the Bahama's Islands brass band.

Concrete letters, 4 by 6 feet, spell out the commandments, while the bible, 24 by 34 feet, stands on a base 13 by 60 feet. Estimated cost of the work was set at about $500,000.

Senators Cool Toward Special Treaty Session

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senators showed no enthusiasm today for a proposal that they hold a special session later this year to consider ratification of the Japanese peace treaty.

Senator Knowland (R-Calif.), who flew back from the San Francisco conference yesterday, urged his colleagues to ratify the treaty promptly, either before they take a recess about Oct. 1 or at a special session in November or December.

Democratic leader McFarland (Ariz.) told a reporter "somebody always can think of something to keep us here all the time." He added, however, that "when the treaty is reported by the Foreign Relations Committee, I favor prompt action."

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee, which would do the preliminary work toward ratification, said he knew of no request for quick action or any reason for speed.

"I haven't sounded out the boys yet," he added, referring to government officials and senators who participated at the peace conference.

Senator George (D-Ga.), a committee member, said he saw no reason why action could not be put off until congress returns in January for the new session. George said he would just as soon vote before the planned Oct. 1 adjournment but was opposed to any special session.

Senator Jenner (R-Ind.), who has

SEVERELY CRITICIZED the peace treaty, said he would oppose any special session to ratify it.

For immediate consideration he proposed study of possibilities in plants, both by canning and freezing methods, to relieve complete dependence upon the fresh food market for produce of the area.

It takes money to do these things, he said, citing the fact that a capital investment of $20,000 is required to furnish one person a job. It is necessary to call on outside money for assistance, but

Hodges cited history to prove that North Carolina had been developed largely by North Carolinians — especially in the textile, tobacco and furniture industries.

Location of the DuPont plant near Kinston, and J. P. Stevens plant near Wilmington, were cited as illustrations of how the whole section benefits by industrial payrolls anywhere in the area, and as further proof that artificial county lines should not influence economic or cultural progress.

Monday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Arder Wilson, Negro, guilty of assault on a female, and gave him six months on the roads.

The court suspended sentence on condition that the defendant pay $25 and costs and remain of good behavior and not violate any laws for a year.

Jimmie Harris, rural resident, was bound over to Superior Court after the court found probable cause against him in three cases charging forgery. Testimony was that Harris forged the name of William Whichard of near Stokes to three checks and had them cashed.

Jesse D. Roberts, Negro, was found guilty of being drunk. The court gave him 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $25 and costs and ordered him not to go to his mother's place of abode while drinking intoxicants.

Raymond Best, Negro, was found guilty of possessing non-tax-paid whiskey for purpose of sale. The court gave him six months on the roads, sentence suspended on condition that he pay $300 fine, costs deducted.

Boy-Dog Team Fails To Click

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — (UP) — The old story of a boy and his dog may be just so much fiction, according to L. J. Dyal, assistant pound master here.

Dyal said about 250 dogs are disposed of each month after being kept at the pound for longer than the required waiting period. "Kids just don't seem to go looking for them," Dyal said.

Bank Records In Mushroom Caves

HUDSON, N. Y. — (UP) — Mother Earth, acting as a super storage place far out of reach of atom bombs, theft and fire, has received her first consignment of valuables in this area.

A load of microfilm and bank records were deposited in the Iron Mountain storage vaults, a fortress of deep caves near here.

The microfilm, brought in by helicopter, is owned by the Diebold Safe & Lock Co. of New York City. The records, carried by armored car, belong to the East River Bank, also of New York.

Herman Knaust of Saugerties, N. Y., one of the owners of the caves, said federal and state governments here and abroad have inquired about availability of space.

Among those interested in renting storage room are banks, museums, insurance firms and educational institutions.

Knaust is a member of Knaust Brothers, one of the largest mushroom-growing firms in the world.

By JIMMY ELLIS
Although the Greenville Robins dropped out of the Coastal Plain League only a few weeks after the 1951 campaign opened, there was a Greenville influence on at least one of the remaining six ball clubs. That influence, Herman Mason, played no small part in the success of the New Bern Bears as that club finished in second place during the regular season and then stomped Goldsboro, four games to two, in the semi-finals of the playoffs.

Anyone who ever saw Mason play his shortstop position won't forget him. He literally mops up every thing that comes his way and his fielding mistakes are few and far between. His fielding ability was what first attracted George Ferrell, a St. Louis Cardinal scout, who signed him for the Cardinal organization. Herman's hitting has never been too good and that may have prompted the Cardinals to give him his release. This season, his batting average was no where near the leading ones but he always managed to come through when the chips were down. Ferrell, who managed the Goldsboro Cardinals this year, has said time and again that he wished for a shortstop of Mason's abilities in the clutch, both at the bat and in the field.

Another Greenville player, Sandy DeMartino, also turned in some good ball for the Bears before Manager Harry Land decided to get a more experienced outfielder. The New Yorker played both the outfield and infield for Land and the Bears and should be more than good when he gets a little experience under his belt.

While we're on the subject of baseball, let's discuss the chances of the Coastal Plain League next season.

There have been many predictions this year that the League would fold after this season. After all, it's a pretty expensive proposition to keep a baseball club running—especially when it has four veteran players on the roster.

The directors of the League had an eye to economy when they changed the player classifications this summer. In their latest meeting, the cut it down so that a club can carry only one veteran and around 12 rookies. The remainder of the seventeen men would be limited service players.

This action will no doubt prompt some of the hesitating clubs to remain in the league. At one time, the St. Louis Cardinals just about had their bags packed in Goldsboro because the assets and liabilities didn't quite balance. Now it seems that the Cardinals might be willing to give Goldsboro another try if other towns in the League will continue to operate.

The Athletics are willing to go back into Tarboro. Rocky Mount has a working agreement with the Detroit Tigers. Roanoke Rapids has been assured that the Washington Senators will stay there another year. New Bern can work with the Chicago Cubs and Kinston can go back to the

Former Star Dies

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—(AP)—One-time Brooklyn Dodger star James Herman (Hank) DeBerry died at his home here yesterday at the age of 66.

He was a scout for the New York Giants at the time of his death. His playing career covered 14 years, from the time he broke into organized ball with Paducah, Ky., of the Kitz League, until 1931, when he spent part of the 1931 season with Oakland of the Pacific Coast League.

DeBerry reached the peak of his fame in the 1920s, when he was the Dodgers' first-string catcher. He and fireballer Dazy Vance made up one of baseball's great batteries.

Babe Leads In Women Golfing

ATLANTA—(AP)—Babe Zaharias will be out to increase her leading money winning honors in the $7,500 Women's National Open Golf tournament Thursday over a course she says she likes "just fine."

Mrs. Zaharias, who was announced yesterday as the top money winner by Fred Corcoran, Women's PGA Tournament director, toured the Druid Hills Country Club course but said she didn't keep score.

Corcoran said the Babe has won $15,687.50 since January 1, nearly $3,000 ahead of her nearest competitor, Patty Berg. Miss Berg, of St. Andrews, Ill., has won $12,787.50.

Others in the upper bracket of the money winners are Louis Suggs of Carrollton, Ga., $5,237.50; Marlene Bauer of Midland, Tex., $3,379.17; Betty Jameson of San Antonio, $2,650; and Alice Bauer of Midland, $2,483.33.

All of these are among the 17 pros entered in the National. The complete list of nearly 60 amateurs is headed by Amateur Champion Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta and Clare Doran of Cleveland, runnerup for amateur honors.

Phants Practice Under The Arcs Tonight At ECC

Coach Bill Kittrell announced this morning that his Greenville High School Phantoms will practice under the lights of the college stadium tonight at 8 p.m.

The public is invited by Kittrell to come out and watch the Phantoms as they work-out for the first time at night this season.

Kittrell, and his assistant, Dave Bannerman, have been preparing the squad, now totaling 29, for the season opener on September 14, with Edenton's Aces on the East Carolina gridiron.

The Phantom mentor said at the same time that the spirit of the squad has increased considerably during the last two weeks. "The team as a whole made a fine showing in both the Wilson and Aiden scrimmages, with the first year men showing exceptionally well."

The coaches were especially pleased with the play of backs Doug Morgan, Gene Duffey, Jimmy Speight, Bobby Langston, and Bob Perry, who broke away for three long runs in the Aiden scrimmage.

Quarterback George Sideris and fullback Wayne Smiley also came in for praise. In the line, new comers to the team Vernon Wingate and Frank Brooks, both ends, led the line in the recent sessions, backed up by Dixie Hogwood and center Jimmy Cheatham. Tackle Bob Tyn-dall was also outstanding in the scrimmage against the neighboring Tornadoes.

After the Edenton game, Greenville plays host to Morehead City and then travels to Kinston for a game with the classy Red Devils, an old rival of the local team.

ONE OF FIVE

MONT RETURNS

COLLEGE PARK—Tommy Mont, who replaced Bill Meek as backfield coach at the University of Maryland, returned to his alma mater after four years with the Washington Redskins.

ANY STARS?

DURHAM—There are plenty of moons around at Duke University football practice these days, but Coach Bill Murray is busy trying to find some stars. The Moons are Conrad, Opal and Tracy. Conrad and Opal hail from Atlanta, Ga., and Tracy is a Durham freshman.

STAR POPPAS

DURHAM—Three players on the 1951 Duke grid team are sons of famous poppas. Tackle Henry Kistler, Jr., is the son of the captain of the 1929 Duke grid team, guard Tom Miller is the son of the famed "Rip" Miller, assistant athletic director at the Naval Academy, and quarterback Sam Eberdt is the son of Jess Eberdt, star center on Coach Wallace Wade's 1930 Alabama Rose Bowl team.

FASTEST IN NATION

DURHAM—Around Duke they call Piney Field, feet football halfback and track dashman from Martinsville, Va., the fastest back in the Nation. Piney ran the 100-yard dash in 9.6 seconds this Spring as a member of the Duke track outfit.

SET RECORD

COLLEGE PARK—Pete Augburger, rangy end from Mt. Lebanon, Pa., set an all-time pass receiving record in his senior year for the University of Maryland last season when he caught 25 passes for 422 yards, three for touchdowns.

Pirates Leave Thursday For Opening Game

Leading Yankees In Game With Brownies

By JOHN GRIFFIN

United Press Sports Writer
The contenders start hammering down the homestretch in the pennant races today and it looked like the big question was, will it be the Indians or the Yankees against the Dodgers in the World Series?

And it's very likely that question won't be answered until the last couple of days of the season—or perhaps even the last day, last inning, and last pitch.

But the final act of the baseball drama begins today as the Yankees who lead the American League by 904 percentage points, play host to the St. Louis Browns in a two-night doubleheader at Yankee Stadium and the Indians invade Shibe Park, Philadelphia, for a similar program against those pesky Philadelphia A's.

It's true that the Boston Red Sox, who play host to Detroit in a single game, are still mathematically in the A. L. race, just as the New York Giants still have a mathematical chance to overtake the Dodgers in the National League.

But the chances of the Red Sox and the Giants aren't very good, according to a study of the statistic and schedule books made during yesterday's "off day" in the baseball wars. They each need a "miracle."

Take the Giants. They trail the Dodgers by 5 1/2 games. The New Yorkers have 16 games to go and, if they win all 16, would finish the season with 99 victories. To beat that, the Dodgers would have to win only 13 of their remaining 19 games.

And, of course, it's not likely the Giants will win all 16. Let's say they win at the terrific rate of 13 out of 16—really sensational ball. Why, then the Dodgers would have to win only 10 out of 19—which is only a shade over .500.

That's how desperate the Giants situation is, although fiery Manager Leo Durocher concedes nothing and just barks, "we'll play 'em one at a time."

Thirty-three members of the East Carolina College football team will leave Greenville Thursday morning at 8 o'clock for Hattiesburg, Miss. where they will open their 1951 grid schedule Saturday night. The Pirates will face the Southerners of Mississippi Southern College.

The Pirates will spend Thursday night at Mobile, Ala., and will arrive on the Mississippi Southern campus Friday in time for a light workout. They will spend Friday and Saturday nights in Hattiesburg and will begin the return trip home via chartered bus on Sunday. They will spend Sunday night in Mobile and are expected back in Greenville sometime Monday.

In addition to the 33 players, Pirate Coach Bill Dole is planning to take along three managers, two coaches in addition to himself, a trainer, and a publicity representative to make a total of 41 persons. Dole has presented Mississippi Southern to his team as one which plays a tough schedule and neither asks nor gives any quarter. Last year, he cites for an example, the Southerners faced Tennessee, Alabama, and Louisiana State University and this year will face both LSU and Alabama again.

Meeting Mississippi Southern in the opener is all a part of the general plan to improve the schedule at ECC according to Dole. He says that his team, despite the fact they have worked hard since fall practice opened, is hardly ready for such a game and he would not attempt to make any sort of prediction about the outcome.

There are two members of the Pirate squad, Doc Smith and Al Auerback, who were injured in last Saturday's scrimmage with Duke and at the present time both are big question marks. Smith, the 218 pounder from Chocowinity who plays offensive guard and defensive tackle, has a bum shoulder while Auerback, a defensive tackle from Greenville, suffered a sprained ankle. Smith is expected to be able to take part in the action against Mississippi Southern but Dole has said that Auerback will have to do some last improving if he's going to get in the game.

Mississippi Southern itself is a school about the same size as ECC and is located in Hattiesburg, a town of around 30,000 in lower Mississippi. The Southerners were champions in their conference last year and have sixteen lettermen back for duty this year. Pre-season publicity from the school indicates that they have a big squad which is highly respected throughout their part of the Mississippi valley. The majority of their

Kansas State Is Home For 'Cadets'

MANHATTAN, Kas.—(AP)—Kansas State College, winner of only one conference football game in the Big Seven since 1944, has a welcome sign out for ousted West Point cadets.

Robert L. Volonino, first string defensive guard at West Point last year, was reported enroute to the Kansas College and Head Coach Bill Meek commented last night:

"I hope he brings about 25 of those cadets with him. We've got plenty of room for them."

Frank Volonino of East Paterson, N.J., father of Robert, said his son had left yesterday for Kansas State and hoped to play football next year.

ROAD-TEST IT FOR PROOF OF PERFORMANCE!
It's more a treat than a test, when you put a new Mercury through its paces. You never knew that traffic could be tamed so easily, that parking could be so effortless, that hills could simply melt away! The secret? Lots of things—its husky V-type "8" engine—its low-slung design—its nimble steering. Yes, here's sweet driving, with all the thrills that makes this Mercury so popular.

BUDGET-TEST IT FOR PROOF OF VALUE!
Does it have a down-to-earth first price? Mercury's price tag you can understand—a big dollar's worth for every dollar invested.
Will you be sure of good gasoline mileage? Mercury has continually proved its more-miles-per-gallon by winning in officially sponsored economy tests.
Will upkeep stay low? Mercury engineers have engineered trouble out for extra years of money-saving dependability.
Is it famous for long life? It is indeed! 92% of all Mercurys ever built for use in this country are still on the road, according to studies of the latest annual official registration figures.
3-WAY CHOICE! For "the drive of your life" Mercury offers you a triple choice in dependable transmissions. Merco-O-Matic Drive, the new simpler, smoother, more efficient automatic transmission—or Thrifty Touch-O-Matic Overdrive are optional at extra cost. There's also silent-ease standard transmission.

2-WAY TEST PROVES MERCURY BEST... FOR THE BUY OF YOUR LIFE!

Chapter 25

He wheeled, jumped to his left and ran. He bounded from side to side in a zig-zag course while the gun behind him thundered and lead whined past him. He reached the buildings on the far side of the street, and now the black robe helped because he became one of the shadows which engulfed them. But he was a moving shadow and he could see other shadows which he knew were men coming out of passageways to the street. To turn into one of these passages would be sure death. He kept to the main street.

It couldn't last long. Ahead of him he saw a bunch of men coming at a run, spreading out as they advanced. More of them were coming out of the Palace and other saloons, all with guns in their hands and murder in their hearts. He circled wide to avoid the light from Hannigan's store and as he did so three outlaws came through the doorway and one of them cried, "There he goes!" and once more lethal lead ripped through the air about him.

ed marching across his brain. Who was better fitted to lead the three outlaw bands than the genial Uncle Jim. He was everybody's friend; he would never be suspected; he dealt in the purchase and sale of gold and would be familiar with the handling of specie. As a gold dealer he would be able to exchange stolen currency for winner's gold and then convert this into currency which did not bear the taint of theft. And because of his contacts and ability to move about unsuspected he could spot jobs for the three-gangs with ease and efficiency.

He cut across the street heading for deeper shadows; he glanced over his shoulder and saw more men coming from the other direction. He was caught between the two groups, trapped. He came to a building with light seeping below cracks under drawn shades; it-door opened and he saw a rectangle of dim light with a bulky figure showing against it. Brent had drawn his gun and he automatically lined it on the man. The man whispered quickly, "Don't shoot!" and then, "Is that you, Tex?" He was Uncle Jim Ferguson.

Tex halted, his gun still covering Ferguson. His gaze flashed to the right and then to the left. The outlaws were closing in, but they had slackened their speed, sensing that they must come upon him soon, anticipating a burst of gunfire from the shadows which lay thick between the two-groups.

Uncle Jim whispered, "This way—quick!"

He turned, and Brent leaped after him into the hallway and softly closed and bolted the door behind him. Ferguson turned left into his office and Brent followed him. The shades were drawn. Ferguson opened a heavy door and said, "In there!"

Brent entered the gloomy closet and the door closed behind him and he heard a key grate in the lock. There came a pounding on the outer door and the sound of Ferguson's footsteps across the floor as he went to answer the summons. His voice came, muffled but distinct, "Who is it?"

Followed the sound of conversation and Ferguson's words, "But he couldn't have come in here; the door was locked. Look if you want to."

Brent thudded on the floor as men came into the office, looked about and then went through the other room and out the rear doorway into the alley. From outside the house came confused noises, the pound of boots on the sidewalk, a thud of hoofs in the street, men calling to one another, an occasional jittery gunshot as somebody fired into the shadows. Gradually these sounds diminished as the search spread to the alleys.

Brent released his drawn breath and relaxed his muscles. For the time being he was safe. Good old Uncle Jim!

He was standing between two rows of hanging clothes, in a closet that was narrow, five or six feet deep and as black as pitch. He moved back until he could lean against the rear wall and stepped on cloth. He bent and picked up a coat, brushed it off with his hands and hung it on a nail his finger found.

Footsteps crossed the floor and Ferguson's voice came to him, "All right in there?"

"All right, thanks."

"Fine! You'll have to stay there awhile. Keep very quiet."

Uncle Jim moved away from the door and Brent heard him go through the back room and rear door. He returned in a few minutes and the small metallic noises which followed told Brent Ferguson was opening the safe. Somebody rapped on the back door and Brent heard the clang of the safe door, then Ferguson's footsteps as he went to answer the knock. When he returned there was somebody with him and what that person spoke Brent recognized Jack Roselle's voice.

"No trace of him anywhere. I now who's been helping him. It's that Purdy fellow. He's gone. My first hunch was right; he's a lawman. And it looks like Tex has thrown in with him."

"I'm not saying he's a lawman; I said he's thrown in with Purdy. He came to Destiny to find a man named Shell. He thinks that Shell killed Slim Cole and he looks enough like Slim to be his cousin, or maybe his brother."

There was a moment's silence, then Ferguson said in his mild voice, "I wouldn't get too stirred up about it, Jack. If Tex is after this Shell person he won't leave Destiny as long as he has a chance of finding him and with all your boys looking for him you'll round him up sooner or later."

"I'm not afraid of Tex; what has me worried is this Purdy. If he's the law he's got a pretty good line on things by this time and has gone after a posse. I'm ready to settle up and pull out of here."

"Well, perhaps you're right, but don't get panicky. If Purdy has gone after a posse you'll still have a couple days' leeway."

They walked to the back door together and the sound of their voices faded. Brent lifted the corner of his mouth in a grim smile. Uncle Jim knew how to play the game. Brent understood now why the man was so universally liked; he could side in with you and appear to agree without really committing himself.

Ferguson returned to the office and once more opened the safe. Brent could hear him moving about and he made several trips to the alley. This puzzled Brent until he remembered that Ferguson handled quite a lot of gold. If he were planning a buying trip he'd probably load his backboard at night when nobody could observe him. It was a good thing, he thought, that Ferguson had the good will of the outlaws. In his business it paid.

It was becoming stuffy in the closet. E-w long had he been here? He had left the barn around eight and it had taken him at least two hours to search Jack's house. Another half hour for the trip to Cliff's cabin and he had been in the closet close to an hour. It must be midnight.

Chapter 26

The second match burned out and he stood there frozen, thinking fast. The man who had drugged Judy and entered her room had snagged his coat on a nail in the window frame and the threads Brent had picked from the nail were black broadcloth threads. And this coat had been discarded, tossed to the back of the closet. And it must belong to Uncle Jim Ferguson. A train of pertinent facts started marching across his brain. Who was better fitted to lead the three outlaw bands than the genial Uncle Jim. He was everybody's friend; he would never be suspected; he dealt in the purchase and sale of gold and would be familiar with the handling of specie. As a gold dealer he would be able to exchange stolen currency for winner's gold and then convert this into currency which did not bear the taint of theft. And because of his contacts and ability to move about unsuspected he could spot jobs for the three-gangs with ease and efficiency.

The sweat which dampened Brent's brow was not altogether induced by the closeness of the air in the closet. Uncle Jim! Unbelievable but undoubtedly true. Yes, Ferguson was the leader of the outlaws, but was his name really Shell? Was he the man who had murdered Benjamin Hollister and Brent's brother Cole? Certainly he was big enough and strong enough to transport the body of his victim to the alley where it was found.

If Ferguson was Shell, why had he saved Brent from the outlaws? Reflection brought the answer to this. Brent had surprised him there in the doorway and Brent's gun had covered him. The quick-thinking Ferguson had instantly found a way of making him secure by locking him in the closet. Brent remembered the heavy door; he was as safe here as though he was in a cell.

He moved to the front of the closet and quietly tried the knob. Yes, the door was locked. The door was too stout to batter down, but he could probably shoot away the lock. But Ferguson would never let him get away with that; he'd call in the outlaws or shoot him as he emerged in order to save the five hundred dollars reward. Judy must be here in this house. It was Ferguson who had drugged her that night, it was Ferguson who had sent the message which had brought her here. He was the one man in Destiny whom she would have obeyed.

It was silent in the office, but even as he listened Brent heard slow, heavy footsteps in the hall. He remembered the staircase which climbed to the second floor; somebody was descending those stairs. The footsteps crossed the floor of the office, he heard the slight give of springs, then came Ferguson's voice. "There you are, my dear. You don't mind if I put this blanket over you do you? I don't think we'll be disturbed but one never knows."

My dear! Judy!

There was no answer; Judy no doubt was bound and gagged. What was he going to do with her? Set her free after disposing of Brent or destroy her too? He heard the rustle of paper, the opening and closing of drawers. It came to him suddenly that Ferguson was preparing to flee.

And then a knock sounded on the front door. It was a peculiar knock, one sharp rap, then two softer ones, then another sharp one. He heard a chair scrape as Ferguson got up to answer it. He heard him walk across the floor and into the hall, heard him as he unbolted and opened the door. He heard Ferguson say, "Oh, it's you, Jack. Come in, man; come in."

They entered the office together, Jack talking as they walked. And now his voice was not level and monotonous, it was sharp with anxiety. "Jim, we've got to get out right now. Some of the boys rode along the Juniper trail and spotted a fire. They injured up on it thinking Tex might be camped there. There were twenty or thirty men around that fire and Purdy was one of them. I tell you they're closing in on us."

"And?"

"I want my cut. I'm getting out."

"Of course. We'll have a settlement now."

They had halted, and evidently Jack saw Judy on the couch. He asked, "What are you going to do with her?"

"Turn her loose, I suppose. She's served her purpose; she drew Tex into the net."

"A lot of good it did; he slipped right out again."

"Oh, no, he didn't," Ferguson sounded amused and proud. "I've got him save enough. He's locked in that closet over there."

"Tex Brent? In that closet? How the devil did you do it?"

"He trusted me," Ferguson said simply. "Everybody trusts Uncle Jim. The boys were hot on his trail and I stepped outside and bumped right into him. He had a gun and was a desperate man. I brought him in—and hid him."

"Jim, are you stringing me?"

"You doubt my word? I'll prove it. Draw your gun and cover the door. That's right. If he is stubborn, let him have it."

Brent heard him approach the closet and levelled his gun with the panel impulse to fire through the door panel when he had located Ferguson's position, to kill him at whatever the cost to himself. But he couldn't do that; he had to think of Judy.

Ferguson's voice, came from outside the door. "Listen to me, Tex. I'm going to unlock the door and you're going to come out with your hands up. Jack will be covering

Chased 'Saucer' In Jet Fighters For Thirty Miles

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y. (UP)—Two Air Force jet pilots reported today they chased a mysterious, round flying object—traveling at a speed they estimated at 900-miles-an-hour—for 30 miles and couldn't catch it.

Wilbert S. Rogers, of Columbia, Pa., told Mitchell Field authorities that he and Capt. Edward Ballard, of Dover, Del., sighted the object yesterday over Sandy Hook, N. J., while they were on a routine flight in a T-33 jet training plane.

"I don't know if it was a flying saucer, but it sure was something I've never seen before," Lt. Rogers, pilot of the plane, said. "We couldn't have caught it in an F-86." (The F-86 Sabre jet is the United States' fastest jet fighter.)

Rogers described the object as white or silver-colored and said it was about the size of a fighter plane.

Lt. Rogers and Capt. Ballard, on a flight from Dover Air Base in New Jersey, said when they sighted the object they were traveling at 500-miles an hour at 20,000 feet. "I pointed it out to Capt. Ballard," Rogers said, "who suggested we try to follow it. But we soon found it was no use. It was going too fast."

The object moved in an arc from Sandy Hook to Redbank, N. J., and then headed out to sea at Asbury Park, N. J., Rogers said. He estimated it traveled the 30-mile course in two minutes, or at a speed of 900-miles-an-hour.

The U. S. Air Force and Navy have officially said that flying saucers reported previously had been nothing more than weather balloons.

"This couldn't have been a balloon," Rogers said, "because it was descending and no balloon goes that fast."

He said they got as close as 8,000 feet from the object which kept a constant speed and "didn't appear to be running away."

Tanker Of Gasoline Goes Up In Flames

Thousands of gallons of gasoline from the tank car shown above go up in smoke as fire raced through the bulk plant of the Sinclair Oil Company this morning around nine o'clock. Firemen used foam and water to fight the burning liquid. The tank car caught fire from the main portion of the building, as gasoline was being transferred from the car to the storage tanks. Capacity of the tank car was reported at 10,000 gallons. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Mrs. Oia Kittrell, vice-president of the club, gave the welcome address to which Mrs. Starling responded.

Next Bout . . .

(Continued from Page One) tions with the Western world. The theory is that once they become convinced that they would throw themselves wholeheartedly into the common defense of Western Europe against the threat of Russian aggression.

The Moscow propaganda line is that Eisenhower is raising an army because he wants to invade Russia and the Red radio has repeated that assertion so often that some Russians probably are beginning to believe it themselves. So the tension will rise in the next few weeks and months. The stakes in Western Germany are high and both sides intend to play their cards to the limit.

Judge Swears . . .

(Continued from Page One) owed him close to $400 for meals given the ball players. The suit was brought against Roy Dissinger, Sam Ferrari, Russell Catalano and Walter Dobush, all part owners of the former Greenville Robins.

The court ordered the confiscation of several pieces of equipment to be sold in an effort to pay back part of the debt. Included were a popcorn machine, coffee urn, a refrigerator, an ice box and a hot dog box. They will be sold to highest bidder at public auction.

The only other judgment rendered during the one day of court, which adjourned for the term late in the afternoon, was a divorce action involving Bertie R. Harris from Johnnie M. Harris. It was granted on grounds of two years' separation.

(Continued from Page One) of which the tanker was parked. They had to park their trucks in the street on either side of the underpass and hoist the hoses up the concrete sidings and over the tracks in order to fight the flames on the west and east sides of the plant.

They also had to tunnel under the tracks to get their hoses across and into the lot so that the switch engine could get into the lot.

No damage was done to any of the other business establishments in the neighborhood. Employees of Hendrix-Barnhill Equipment Company, located about 40 feet east of the oil company, moved several pieces of their machinery away from the lot.

Others put hoses on the roof to wet down the spidder from the north-east-blowing column of smoke.

Several of the barrels of bulk oil exploded inside the plant but did no damage. However, one blew through the roof, into the air, and landed about 200 feet across Dickinson Avenue on the other side of the Greenville Mills.

None of the firemen was injured while fighting the flames. Fire Chief George Gardner reported. All off-duty policemen were hastened to the area to guide traffic around the flames and into streets in the immediate vicinity.

About mid-morning Clark stated that the company will continue to operate. The office will be located at Hendrix-Barnhill Equipment Company, he said, and will be open from now until a new office can be constructed.

He informed a reporter that several other oil companies located here had offered him their facilities to operate his business when they learned about the fire.

President Sees . . .

(Continued from Page One) men who are spreading this story, "Don't be afraid. This is something that has been worrying you for a number of years now. It's something you've been saying over and over again. It wasn't true when you began to say it, it has not been true as you have repeated it over and over since then, and now it's further from the truth than ever.

"The country is stronger economically than it has ever been before. Its people are more prosperous. After paying their taxes, the people have an average per capita income that will buy 40 per cent more than it did in 1939, in spite of increases in prices. Corporations are making more money than they ever did and, even after paying taxes at the new high rates, their profits are running at a higher rate than any year except the record-breaking 1950."

Indirect . . .

(Continued from Page One) life who undoubtedly are honest and some who probably are dishonest but the question left unanswered for those who followed the speech was this: Who's dishonest?

TONIGHT 7:00 and 9:00

On Our STAGE

STATE

and who's honest? General MacArthur, in a speech at Cleveland on Sept. 7, made a talk which, because of its apparently careful avoidance of the specific, has been interpreted in several ways.

At the start he said: "It is gratifying indeed to have this opportunity to address the citizens of Cleveland and of the state of Ohio—a state which has contributed so abundantly to America's leadership past and contemporary. Indeed, indications multiply that this leadership may even be increased in the not too distant future."

At first glance interpreters thought this surely meant the General expected Senator Taft of Ohio to get the Republican nomination for president.

Later, although the General's words didn't say anything of the kind, some interpreters thought the General wasn't supporting Taft at all but would like the nomination himself.

T's might amuse the General, who has said he has no political ambitions, but the public itself will have to remain puzzled until the General speaks some more or until the Republican nominations are closed.

Then he took a slam, without naming names, at "Our political and military leaders." There's no doubt he had President Truman in mind when spoke of "political leaders." He has no love for the man who fired him.

But when it came to determining whom he meant by "military leaders," the interpreters moved in and said: "General Eisenhower." The said more, too, trying to read MacArthur's mind:

They said he was trying to say—although it's hard to understand why MacArthur, who's never at a loss for words, couldn't have said it himself—that he doesn't want nomination and will fight to keep Eisenhower to get the Republican nomination from it.

It's possible this interpretation may surprise MacArthur. It may also have surprised Eisenhower but since MacArthur didn't name Eisenhower the latter could hardly answer, if he wanted to.

Pitt Man Freed On Parole By Johnson

RALEIGH (AP)—Archie J. Castleton, 39, was among sixteen prisoners who have been freed on parole, it was announced today by Parole Commissioner T. C. Johnson.

Castleton was sentenced from Pitt in February, 1951, to 13 months for temporary larceny and driving drunk after his license was revoked.

CONTINUE CASE AGAINST MAN FOR ABANDONMENT

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. "Yehdee" continued until next Monday, the case against William C. Gerard, World War II veteran, who is charged with abandonment and non-support of his wife and four children. The judge explained that he was giving the defendant time to enlist in the armed forces after Gerard stated he desired to join again.

Judges Protest Beauty Winner

NEW YORK (UP)—The gilded "Mrs. America" crown nestled on the honey-blonde locks of Mrs. Penny Duncan today, but a mounting storm of protest was beginning to make it insecure.

A rebellion in the ranks of judges was spreading under the leadership of actor Wendell Corey, who indignantly charged that the lass he and at least seven other male judges had rated most delectable had been made an also ran by the Mrs. America committee.

Two other judges, Eileen Wilson, a singer, and Maggie Johnson, a television home-making performer, backed up Corey saying Mrs. Peggy Greel, "Mrs. Central Florida," was the choice of most of the judges in both the beauty contest and in homemaking.

Publicity agent Bert Nevins said the claim was made by a "Publicity stunt" by Corey, who has a movie about to be released.

"In 21 years of doing publicity, I have come to recognize a publicity stunt and this fits exactly in that category," Nevins said.

Corey refused to ground his lance however, saying that only one of 12 judges on the beauty committee did

Last 3 Victims Of Auto Collision Leave Hospital

Pitt County Memorial Hospital yesterday released the last three of the eight persons injured in a motor vehicle collision at 13th and Charles streets Saturday, September 1.

They are Florence Smith, Clara Price and Marie Roebuck. Barber Smith was released several days ago. Delbert Smith, Mack Smith and Helen Roebuck were treated for minor injuries and released shortly after the collision.

David Smith, Wilson college student, driver of the car that collided with the parked truck of Shade Lee Clark, farmer, was seriously injured. He received a fractured pelvis, broken shoulder and fractured skull. He was transferred several days after the collision to McGuire Veterans' Hospital, Richmond, Va.

Smith's car was demolished when it crashed into a tree. Clark's truck was damaged to the extent of $700, police said.

One Hurricane Heads Northward

WASHINGTON (UP)—One of two Atlantic hurricanes moved toward New York-European shipping lanes today, but the second was petering out as it approached Iceland.

The weather bureau reported the more severe hurricane was about 400 miles south-southwest of Newfoundland moving at about 28 miles an hour with winds of 95 miles an hour near its center and gales of about 40-50 miles an hour extending 200 miles from the center.

The second hurricane, sixth of the year, decreased to severe northeastward at about 40 miles an hour toward Iceland, the weather bureau said.

Thieves Didn't Miss A Thing

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The thieves that broke into food broker Howard Orr's office yesterday did not miss a bet.
