Big Three Open New Treaty Talk

Formal Negotiations On German Peace Terms And Revision Of Italian Treaty Begin; Russia Indirectly Attempting To Throw Monkey Wrench In Works

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Big Three Foreign Ministers opened formal negotiations today on a "peace contract" with Western Germany while Russia sought indirectly to upset the proceedings.

Also on the conference's agenda were proposals to revise the Italian Peace Treaty to permit a rapid buildup of Italy's skeleton Army, Navy, and Air Force.

Informed sources said Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman were aiming for definite agreement at least on the Germany contract before the two-day conference ends.

They leave for Ottawa Friday to attend the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) meeting in the Canadian capital.

If the contract draft is completed here, it will be rushed to the Bonn government of Western Germany for approval. The foreign ministers were said to be hopeful the contract would be accepted by West Germany in time for formal announcement at the meeting of NATO late in October in Rome.

The Kremlin apparently was keeping close watch on the conference here in Moscow yesterday. Russia handed France a note charging it with acting contrary to the spirit of the Franco-Soviet pact by working for West Germany's rearmament.

It was an old charge, made in previous notes, but its renewal was remarkable by itself.

One of the problems facing the three diplomats is how German units should be employed in Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact Army. The French are said to want assurances that the first German units to enter military service should be a "European" soldier—not as German soldiers.

They see the United States as in a hurry to get German units formed immediately and attached to Eisenhower's army until a European army plan is ready.

The foreign ministers would give West Germany essentially the same treatment as Japan in the proposed contract agreement. They want to shift occupation controls to the government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

They would want permission to keep troops in West Germany until such time as it achieves the freedom to resist Communist aggression—within or without.

The West Germans were certain to demand some stiff prices before agreeing to such a contract, including a downward revision of occupation costs.

Revision of the Italian Peace Treaty will be particularly difficult. Russia is a party to the treaty, and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia—on the outs with Josef Stalin and being wooed by the West—will be affected by what is done about Trieste.

The local draft board is scheduled to send 15 Pitt County men to Raleigh tomorrow morning for pre-induction physical and mental examinations. This is the first group to be sent this month.

County Dairymen To Get Testing Station For Milk

Health Department Granted Permission Set Up Gear At Utilities Plant

A petition from 11 dairymen in the county asking for a milk testing laboratory in Pitt has brought results.

W. M. Pate, senior sanitarian at the Pitt County Health Department, and Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Greenville Utilities Commission, met yesterday morning to make further plans for the establishment of a milk testing laboratory in the county.

Swartz gave Pate permission to set up the laboratory at the water and light plant.

The equipment for the testing station has been in the health department for some time but there was no place to set it up.

The health department will install its equipment at the water and light plant and use some equipment which is already there. Pate said the arrangement would be temporary until a permanent laboratory could be set up.

The sanitarians will collect milk samples periodically from dairies in the county and test them, looking for the following: Butterfat, bacteria, specific gravity, and solid non-fat.

Pate said he hoped to get the laboratory set up by the end of the week and have it ready for operation next week.

Previously 11 dairymen in the county petitioned the County Commissioners to set up a milk testing laboratory in the county and presented the petition to the County Commissioners at a meeting Sept. 7.

The petition was referred to the Pitt County Board of Health from which work progressed from there.

In presenting the petition, the dairymen declared: "Laboratory examination of milk is imperative to good milk production, good milk quality, and good sanitation."

The dairymen also said the present system of taking milk samples to New Bern for testing was unsatisfactory.

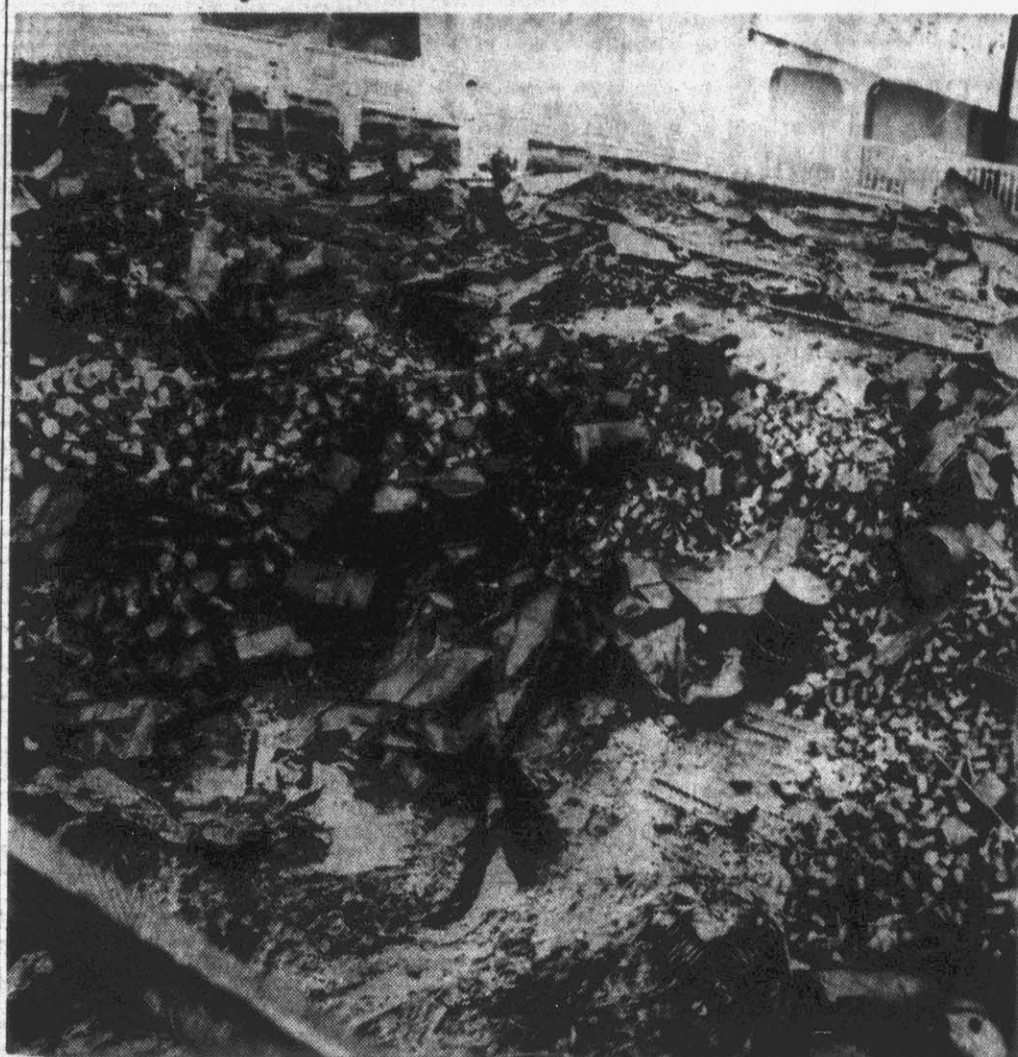

Pate said practically all of the larger counties in the state have milk testing laboratories and he was pleased to see Pitt County get one.

Two Nat'l Guard Divisions To Be Called To Duty

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army announced today that two more National Guard divisions, the 37th from Ohio and the 44th from Illinois, will be called to active duty early next year.

The 37th, commanded by Maj. Gen. Leo Kreber, will report about Jan. 15 at Camp Polk, La., for training.

Only Blackened Ruins At Site Of Blaze

Black, twisted ruins are all that remain of the Sinclair distributing plant which was destroyed by a flash fire here yesterday morning around nine o'clock. Firemen fought the blaze until past 12 o'clock yesterday and a crew remained at the spot until late in the afternoon. Temporary offices for the destroyed plant have now been established at the Hendricks-Barnhill company nearby. (Daily Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Truce Prospects Appear Brighter

Communist Attitude Still Key To Kaesong Issues

TOEYO (UP)—Prospects for resuming Korean armistice talks seemed brighter today with the way open to settle the issue of Kaesong's neutrality.

It appeared that the United Nations and Communists have set up conditions which make agreement possible on the matter of the incidents which broke up armistice mistice meetings. But the final still with the Reds.

A smiling Communist officer received this morning the U.N. note admitting that an American B-26 strafed Kaesong Sept. 10—as charged by the Reds. The U.N. expressed regret for the pilot's mistake.

The Communist officer at the Pan Mun Jom outpost below Kaesong exchanged no words with the U.N. representative the note but still smiled as he handed over a message from the Communist command rejecting the proposal to shift the talks from Kaesong.

The note from North Korean Premier Gen. Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh Hual to U.N. Commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway was drafted before the U.N. note on the strafing. Thus, it was not indicative of the Communist frame of mind following the Allied admission.

Big Harvest In Sight Despite Floods, Drought

WASHINGTON (UP)—Despite floods in the Midwest and droughts throughout the Southwest, the United States expects its second largest all-crop harvest in history.

The overall crop now is 33 per cent above the 1923-32 average. Although it barely tops the 1949 mark, the Agriculture Department noted in yesterday's monthly crop report that it is exceeded only by the bumper year of 1948.

Agriculture experts say a September forecast usually is fairly "firm," but they are not sure about the remainder of the growing and harvesting seasons. The large crops in prospect are needed to fill the nation's reserve bins against any emergency.

House Winds Up Brief Vacation

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House wound up a three-week vacation today and settled down with the Senate to a grind toward early adjournment.

Democratic leaders officially still were shooting for Oct. 1 as an adjournment date. However, most members thought this was a little too optimistic.

Although the Senate stayed on the job when the House quit on Aug. 23, it still has not caught up with the House legislative record.

Marshall Resigns Top Defense Job

Umstead Enters Political Lists For Governorship

Expected Decision Ends Months Of Speculation About His Plans

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary George C. Marshall resigned today and will be succeeded by Deputy Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett, it was announced by the White House.

Marshall quit for personal reasons other than health. His resignation came a year to the day after President Truman nominated him to be defense secretary to succeed the ousted Louis Johnson.

William C. Foster, head of the Economic Cooperation Administration, was selected to succeed Lovett as deputy defense secretary.

Richard M. Bissell Jr., now deputy ECA administrator, will become acting administrator.

Marshall had said good bye to the regular Pentagon press corps a half hour before the announcement. But he bound them to an agreement to say nothing about his resignation before it was announced by President Truman.

Marshall said that when he took the job a year ago he agreed to stay only until June 30, but remained longer because of the Korean situation and the San Francisco Japanese peace treaty conference.

Marshall, who will be 71 on Dec. 31, appeared to be in excellent health as he bid farewell to newsmen in his office.

Mr. Truman, who regards Marshall as the greatest living American, accepted the resignation "with very great reluctance."

The resignation is effective at the close of business today.

But Marshall apparently held himself ready for consultative assignments in the future because his resignation spoke of ending his "retiree" daily service in the government.

Views Farm Bureau On Permanent Basis

By CHESTER WALSH Reflector Staff Writer

The Farm Bureau is as much a permanent part of the farming program as planting and harvesting crops. It is the backbone of the farm community, and it is a grass roots and democratic organization," he added.

Pearshall, who has attracted favorable publicity over the country as a result of his development of a closer relation between landlords and tenants, said, "We are not for scarcity of farm products. We are for producing on the farms all the consuming public needs for reasonable prices. We realize the vital importance of controlling production to meet the demands of consumers. Since the Farm Bureau program was written into federal law we must stand fast behind it. We must meet the opposition and always be vigilant."

The speaker had no prepared script of his address. He felicitated the more than 100 farmers present and referred to Pitt County as the "cradle of the Farm Bureau in North Carolina." He pointed out that there are now 80,000 farm families in North Carolina, and enumerated many of the benefits to farmers who grow tobacco, peanuts and cotton as a result of acreage and price control.

"We must recognize the fact that we must have vigorous and active farm bureaus to work vigilantly for farmers' welfare and progress," Pearshall said. "We should lay the facts on the table. We nurtured the plan for farm parity prices and as a result we get a better share of the national income. Parity means fairness. The Farm Bureau fought for this principle and now is striving to maintain it. All we ask is 90 per cent of parity. The farmers are not against any group, they only seek a fair deal. Through the Farm Bureau Federation, we come nearer getting our share of the national income."

Pearshall pointed out that people are carrying more of their problems to Washington. "We may not like it," he said, "but the trend now is to move from state to federal government, and we should guard against it. If we did not have price support, what would the price be? I thank God for the Farm Bureau, and none can question its value to farmers."

"On the eve of your Pitt County Farm Bureau membership drive, (and I understand your quota is 4,000 members) I plead with you to work it."

Higher Gas Rates Voted By Utilities Commission

Increase Of Ten Cents Per 1,000 Cubic Feet Becomes Effective With October Bills; Flexible Rates Adopted

An increase in gas rates for city consumers was voted by the Utilities Commission last night.

Beginning with the October bills an increase of ten cents per 1,000 cubic feet used will be noted. The Commission took the action due to rising costs of propane gas, which the Utilities has been using for its consumers for many years.

On a recommendation from an engineer employed to study the Utilities' electrical, water and gas system, the increase will fluctuate with the rise and fall of gas prices from the manufacturer. Recently, the price of propane was hiked one cent per gallon by the producer. The engineer's recommendation was that the Utilities should raise or lower its consumer price ten cents per 1,000 feet for each one-cent fluctuation of the producer cost.

Figured on the basis of 5,000 cubic feet consumed during one month's period, new price would be $10. That is an increase of 40 cents over the old Utilities' rates.

The new rates, which will be charged in October for this month's consumption, will be quoted on the Utilities' bills. They are: $2.60 per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 2,000 feet consumed, $1.60 per 1,000 feet up to 5,000 feet, and $1.30 per 1,000 feet for everything in excess of 5,000.

Average bill under the old rate for a five-member family was $7.50

Communist Party In U.S. Seen Going Underground

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Communist Party has closed its doors in many states and sharply reduced its activities in others, a nationwide survey showed today.

The FBI sees this as a sign the party has gone underground.

But a spokesman for national Communist headquarters said: "We've done the best we could to try to keep our heads above ground. It is not our doing that pressure from authorities, threats of violence and local ordinances have prevented public meetings, kept us from renting halls and barred us from renting office space."

Whatever the reason, many state branches of the party have closed shop. In other states, offices remain unmanned, telephones unanswered. Issuance of literature has stopped, or been heavily curtailed.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says party membership has fallen from 52,000 last year to 37,000 at present. The party's top leaders are on bail, or in jail for conspiracy.

Meetings, when held at all, usually are of small groups in private homes.

Two of the party's major centers—National Headquarters in New York City and a regional office in Boston—recently have moved from well-furnished quarters in good locations to smaller, cheaper layouts.

The party is badly strapped for money, its spokesmen say. They assert inability to hold "mass meetings" has made it hard to collect funds.

Robert Lovett Named Successor; Resignation Comes Exactly One Year After Appointment To Succeed Louis Johnson

Academic Discussion

Praise And Criticism Of Acheson's Handling San Francisco Conference Hardly Merited; Arranged Beforehand, And Anybody Would Have Done Same Thing

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now the Republicans are squabbling among themselves about Secretary of State Acheson—praising and blaming—which is a break in the usual routine of united Republican attacks.

This probably leaves Acheson fairly cool. Long ago he had to learn to live under Republican criticism of the harshest kind, expecting few pleasant words from that direction.

While toughening his skin against the long barrage, of course, he may have become just a little more self-conscious, knowing that no matter what he did he might get a kick in his well-pressed pants.

This kind of self-consciousness in a Secretary of State could have a lasting effect on history, although historians might never be able to point out when or where, for this is possible:

A man made self-conscious about his every decision, knowing each may be criticized, may lean over backwards to make pleasing decisions instead of the kind he'd make if his untroubled judgment was being used.

But the subject which brought about the present Republican squabble about Acheson is hardly more than academic: the way he handled the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco and torpedoed Russian attempts to wreck it.

Two Republican senators—Knowland of California and Smith of New Jersey—who had been outspoken critics of Acheson paid tribute to his work at the conference.

This didn't sit well with another Republican, Senator Malone of Nevada, who sees trouble from the treaty and disaster from all of Acheson's dealings with China, past, present and future.

He said Acheson engineered a treaty which would mean the end of Nationalist China and the entry of Red China into the United Nations.

"Acheson," he said, "has been a party to everything that is now resulting in the loss of China."

But what made the Senate discussion about Acheson's work at San Francisco academic in the first place was this:

He did only what anyone in his position would have done.

Crossroads Ahead

Error By United Nations Airman Has Given Reds In Korea Powerful Propaganda Tool; Course Of Action, Peace Or War, May Hinge On Next Ten Days

By HARRY FERGUSON

The action of a United Nations pilot who wandered off his course and fired a burst of a machinegun bullets into the truce town of Kaesong may develop into a turning point in the Korean war.

The door now is open for the Communists. They either can accept the apology of the U.N. high command and reopen the negotiations for a cease-fire. Or they can take the strafing of Kaesong as an affront and an excuse for launching the new offensive for which they have 1.5 million men.

Either way, the present log jam will be broken, and the next Communist move will depend to a great extent on how they can best save face. If they calculate they have 51 chances out of 100 to score a crushing defeat over the U. N. army, the guns will start flaming in Korea in a big way.

What this high command knows is that this is about their last chance in Korea. They have brought in fresh troops; they have Russian T-34 tanks; they have more men than at any time since the war started. And they have some people who know how to handle machinery and repair it if it becomes damaged. In the past

New Schedule Is Set For Farm Policy Discussions

The series of farmer meetings on farm policies has been cancelled and three other meetings have been scheduled.

Reason for the cancellation of the original schedule is due to lack of attendance at the three meetings held thus far. County farm agent S. C. Winchester, one of the speakers on the program, described the attendance as "very poor."

Thus, the meetings that were originally scheduled for Grimesland, Farmville, Belvoir, Bethel, Pactolus, Bell Arthur, Stokes and Greenville will not be held. Instead, three meetings will be held that will bring together farmers from several townships instead of from just one.

The new schedule is: September 14, 7:30 p.m., Farmville High School

Service League Opens Year With Plans For Full Fall

Members of the Service League of Greenville assembled at Sheppard Memorial Library on Monday morning, September 10, for the 11st meeting of the fall season.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, opened the meeting with prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. David Harder, called the roll and read the minutes of the annual luncheon meeting in May. The treasurer's report was heard and letters received by the corresponding secretary were read.

The president extended words of welcome to League members after the summer vacation and congratulations to the committees which functioned during the summer. These committees were: Layette, Lending Chest, Emergency Charity and Hospital Service.

The president then gave a report on her own activities during the summer in dealing with the Jerome H. Cargill Co. of New York. This company will be held November 21 and 22 in an effort to secure funds for the support of the Laughinghouse Hospital. General chairman of the Follies will be Mrs. M. P. Root.

Woman's Club Meets
The Woman's Club held its first meeting for the coming year Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. M. Horton as hostess.

The new president, Mrs. Horton, opened the meeting with the reading of the collect asking the members to read it with a new significance—especially the words: Be Large In Thought, In Word, and In Deed.

The meeting was given entirely to the business of organization and planning the year's program. The new yearbook was approved and will be handed out at the next meeting.

Dennis Dupree Looks Back On Agricultural Advances

By CHESTER WALSH
Dennis Dupree, 3c 361st ROSE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dennis D. Dupree, Negro agricultural specialist, who has been Pitt County farm agent for Negroes about a third of a century, was recently given a vote of confidence by the County Commissioners.

He has been on duty continuously since 1918, and is the first Negro to hold the position of county agent in Pitt County. Born near Farmville and reared there, he attended high school and Agricultural and Technical College for Negroes in Greensboro. He met Miss Emma Dillard of Peaksville while in college and they were married in November, 1922. (She is a school teacher, having taught in Farmville, Greenville and Pitt county Negro schools, and sometimes now substitutes for absent teachers.)

"We have always worked together and always did our best to advance the interests of Negroes and promote good-will and mutual understanding between both races," Dupree said.

Reminiscing in his office near the agricultural building, Dupree recalled that when he started work as farm agent there was no permanent pasture on any Negro's farm in the county. Very few farmers had cows, and not so many of them took the trouble to tend a vegetable garden, except for collards.

Sanitary privies in rural sections were rare, the farm agent said. Open wells instead of enclosed pumps were the rule rather than the exception in those days.

DENNIS DUPREE

Contagious diseases were more plentiful then and typhoid was the dreaded summertime ailment.

Improved health laws, more effective functioning of the representatives of the Public Health Service, better drinking water, more milk in the family diet, screening against flies and spraying against malaria bearing mosquitoes, were effective in improving the health of the people and raising the standard of living in rural communities, Dupree said.

"We persuaded the Negro farmers of Pitt county to increase the corn yield from 10 to 20 bushels an acre. Negro farmers bought improved breeds of dairy cattle and several Jersey bulls to improve the strain. The increase in the number of cows on Negro farms in this county led to more interest in dairying and now many Negro farmers are more or less equipped for dairying and are selling their milk to Carolina Dairy in Greenville," Dupree stated.

"We are now reaping the benefits of many years of hard work by our department and Negro farmers are keeping abreast of the times. Their homes are better equipped with labor-saving devices and they are practicing intensive farming to a considerable extent," he said.

He pointed out that the home demonstration agent and assistants and the 4-H club boys and girls are playing an important part in the improvement of standards of living among Negro farmers.

County Farm Agent Dupree has on his staff Talmadge Mitchell, assistant Negro farm agent; Mrs. Amelia Capenart, home demonstration agent; Mrs. Margaret Wade, assistant; and Miss Estner M. Porter, secretary.

Questions Ike's Republicanism

CHICAGO (UP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) says "there is some doubt" that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is a Republican.

He backed Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O) for the GOP presidential nomination on a radio program last night.

Dirksen said there is doubt of Eisenhower's Republicanism because "I see people speculating on the subject and some going over on special trips to ascertain whether the general would accept a nomination on the democratic ticket or the republican ticket."

COW MIXED UP
FORT MITCHELL, Ala. (UP)—V. O. Deloney, county agent, reported that a farmer's Hereford cow has given birth to twin calves of different breeds. Deloney said such births occur only once in about 600,000. One of the calves is a Brahma and the other a Hereford.

Maggie and Nellie are names of towns in North Carolina near the Cherokee Indian Reservation at the eastern gate to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Machine Scoring Series Of Tests

Scoring of a battery of tests given annually to new students entering East Carolina College is being done on the campus this fall for the first time by means of an IBM test scoring machine. The equipment, installed during the summer, is now available for testing programs in the college and, on payment of a small fee, in public schools of this area.

New students at East Carolina have just completed a series of tests given under the direction of Dr. Hazel Taylor, director of testing at the college. In administering the examinations, she was assisted by approximately fifty faculty members.

Adjustment, inventory, English placement, reading, and psychological tests have already been given to new students. Study habits and interests tests are scheduled for later this term.

Results of the fall testing program are used in assigning freshmen to sections of English composition courses in which the work is suited to their needs and in organizing work in remedial reading for students who require special instruction. Scores and other data are made available to faculty counselors and to other staff members.

Dairy Field Day Slated Thursday

A dairy field day, sponsored by Ralston Purina Company, will be held at Green Hill Dairy tomorrow morning and afternoon for dairy farmers of Pitt and surrounding counties.

The project is the second to be held in Pitt by the feed company and is designed to promote interest in dairying as a diversification of farm income in eastern North Carolina. The first field day was held last fall at the Harvey Dairy in Greenville.

Several speakers have been scheduled for the program, including bankers from this section who will present their view of the livestock future in this section; and representatives of Ralston-Purina who will discuss production methods.

The four and a half-hour program gets underway at 10:30 a.m. at the dairy, located a few miles from Greenville on the Falkland highway. Included on the program is a barbecue dinner at noon.

Speakers will be Archie W. McLean, president of Planters National Bank and Trust Company Rocky Mount, who will present the bankers' view; and company representatives, R. P. Oliver, H. D. Cuthrie and Lyle Leichter.

The program will close with a question and answer period at three o'clock.

Welfare Dept. Notes

To date less than 2,000 insane and mentally defective North Carolinians have been sterilized under the existing law—a figure that represents less than one out of every 41 of the State's estimated mentally unfit.

This means that for every one man or woman who has been sterilized, there are 40 others who can continue to pour defective genes into the State's blood stream to pollute and degrade future generations.

North Carolina has the legal means of protecting itself and its children from this needless tragic problem. "It is unfortunate that widespread confusion on the subject of sterilization is hampering the full use of this protection", says K. T. Futrell, superintendent of the county welfare department.

Futrell said when the public understands that sterilization is not a punishment but a measure of better health, that it's not a personal sacrifice but a very real protection both to the patient and to the future generations, then the law which was placed on North Carolina's statute books to help improve the State's inheritance and to lower the number of helpless, dependent, and destitute charges, it will be able to provide its full measure of comfort and protection.

Strength for the Day

THAT DRUM-MAJOR STICK
A tired eastern professional man had taken his family on an automobile trip across the continent. The children amused themselves by seeing how many different state automobile plates they could spot. One day a car whizzed by. "Hey on it, Dad," said the little fellow in the front seat; but it soon became evident that the fellow was driving too fast for them. Then the little chap settled back and said with a sigh, "Gee, I wish that guy had brought his wife along with him."
The ameliorating influence of womanhood! The male does not like to be reminded of this because the influence of womanhood is for the most part an indirect influence. The modern woman wants to be out in front with the man, leading the parade or managing it. The girl drum major who now marches in front of high school bands are symbolic of the desire of present-day womanhood.
The indirect power of womanhood is, next to the living spirit of God, the most powerful force in the world. On the other hand, the direct influence of womanhood is very slight in comparison. Women are the world's teachers. They are the molders and conservers of life's best traditions.
The modern gal doesn't like this. She wants to be out front twirling the drum major's stick. But there's a better place than that for her if she only knew it.
The information they accumulate would certainly throw some light on Pitt County's past. It would give Pitt a tangible source of information it does not now have for checking on its ancient history.

A Peep Into Pitt's Ancient History

When one walks around on good Pitt County soil he hardly gives a thought to what may be buried far below the surface of the ground. It takes something like the unearthing of the fossils of leaves and reeds or maybe fish or animals to bring one's thoughts to what sort of place Pitt County was thousands of years ago.
The unearthing of fossils recently by digging by the White Construction Company has aroused new interest in Pitt County's underpinnings, and the history they carry.
Naturally it is out of the question for the county to undertake vast excavation projects just to find out what lies buried deep under Pitt's outer crust. It is likewise foolish to suppose that many people hereabouts are going to dig holes 20 or 30 feet deep just to find out what the earth contains. But there may be some people in the county who like the idea of poking around in the earth and have taken it up as a hobby.
If there are such people in the county, some sort of group could be formed and

A Pretty Picture From A Gloomy Subject

President Truman's statement concerning the financial condition of the United States sounds more like a campaign speech than an effort to enlighten the people on the true economic status of the nation.
The Chief Executive denounced as lies the claims that the government is spending its way into bankruptcy. From his speech, he would have the people of the United States believe the financial resources of the nation are unlimited, and government spending can follow the same pattern. For the thinking men and women of the country, that can be taken as little more than political poppycock for vote-getting consumption . . . and the election is still more than a year away.
There is no doubt that the economic resources of the United States are greater than they have ever been in the history of the nation. But by the same token the government is spending billions upon billions more in this period of prosperity than it has in the past decades. In this period of great prosperity the national debt is continuing to rise rather than being cut down. By the same token the taxes have reached the point where the people who earn a living are working about one day out of every three so they can pay their bill to the government.
As long as the period of economic prosperity lasts the people of the nation will continue to meet the government obligations as they now stand; but if these obligations continue to rise as they have during the past five years a slight business slump could knock the props out from under the economy. The earning power of the individual would go down, the earnings of corporations would drop, and as a result the government revenues from taxes would drop at the very time more federal funds were needed to prime the economic pump. If it reached the point where the government could not meet the interest payments on its debts, the whole bottom of our economy would drop out.

The way the debt is mounting even in this period of prosperity, such a condition is not inconceivable. It is far from impossible.

The United States is not teetering on the brink of bankruptcy now, but unless some fetters are placed on government extravagance, we may be facing that economic catastrophe in the not too distant future.

Truman the artist took a rather gloomy subject and painted from it a gay and beautiful picture.

Another Example Of U. N.-Red Difference

The United Nations admission that a UN pilot bombed and strafed the truce city of Kaesong is indicative of one great difference between the free nations and the Communists. The free nations are willing to admit their mistakes and see that they don't happen again. The Communists refuse to acknowledge a mistake, and manufacture new and bigger lies to cover them or divert the world's attention from them.
The U. N. command said the bombing of Kaesong was caused by an error in navigation by a pilot, but naturally the Communists are going to do everything in their power to discount the U. N. statement. Their propaganda will build up the one-plane incident to proportions which will rival the mammoth air strikes against German cities during World War II.

When one gets down to brass tacks about the raid on Kaesong, however, it probably will have little if any effect upon the cease fire talks. If the Reds wanted to continue the talks, the little incident would not carry weight. If they do not want to continue the talks, they will build the minor incident into a major factor to be used as an excuse for completely breaking off negotiations.

National Whirligig News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Although events in Korea have forced President Truman and Secretary Acheson to back away from any vague ideas they may have had of eventual recognition of the Red regime in China, the officials of four leading American banks, two in New York City, one in California and one in Washington, D. C., have reason to be dubious about the Administration's proclaimed hostility toward Stalin's puppet government.
These four banks have more than a billion dollars of deposits registered officially in the name of the Chiang Kai-shek government, or in the names of the Generalissimo's relatives and official associates.
They do not know whether it is money honestly come by, or whether it consists of "graft" which Chiang's family squeezed out of American loans, and deposited here for insurance against their eventual exile from Formosa.

DRAFTS—Mao Tse-tung periodically makes a demand that these funds be transferred to his account on the ground that the cash consists of Chinese government assets, and that it belongs to him, inasmuch as he controls China. These drafts, naturally, bewilder the bankers.
If they turn over the money to Mao, and if he should be unseated through a Chiang Kai-shek victory financed and reinforced by American arms, they would be in a hole. They would then have to pay twice, for Chiang would make the claim that they erred in honoring the Reds' drafts.

DILEMMA—The bankers have laid their problem before the State Department time and time again. They have asked Secretary Acheson whether these deposits belong to Chiang or Mao.

But, although Washington recognizes the government in exile on Formosa, and is at war with the Red regime, Mr. Acheson refuses to give an unequivocal answer to the bankers' requests. He does not want to assume the responsibility in the financial field, although we now recognize and rear Chiang.
This same dilemma frequently crops up when there is a revolution or change of government in Latin-American states. As a rule, State decides in favor of the new regime for political and diplomatic reasons, even though it may publicly deplore the way in which it came to power. But the China money problem is far more difficult and complicated than the penny deposits of, say, Nicaragua.

DIBSONISM—Secretary Acheson may be forced to reveal these hitherto unpublished facts of finance as a result of Chiang's recall of the two Chinese officers who have been operating here as his purchasing commission. Chiang maintains that they are dishonest, and they will probably be shot if they return.

They intimate that they have fallen from official grace because they are too honest for him and his family, including the Soongs and Kungs, his brothers-in-law.
Should the two unhappy military purchasers seek asylum in this country as against a dawn shooting or hanging on Formosa, the Administration will have to pass judgment on the identity of the Chinese crooks and grafters.
If the Administration permits them to remain here, it will amount to a condemnation of our ally, Chiang Kai-shek.

FEE—Although the Administration belatedly proposes the MacMahon proposal for an investigation of the "Chinese lobby," simply because it would show that former Roosevelt and Truman officials draw fat fees for representing a score of begging foreign governments at Washington, any Truman-Acheson decision on the two generals' recall and future status will undoubtedly be reviewed by a Senate Committee.
It will be the kind of an investigation the White House does not want.

REVELATIONS—Further revelations about the pro-Chiang Kai-shek "China lobby" have come to light since I recently revealed that the men who sponsored lend-lease and other give-away laws during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations now represent the nations benefiting from that legislation.
A former Cabinet member, an original Roosevelt "brain trust" and one of President Truman's ex-hoast writers and secretaries are now working for Chiang, writing Senate speeches on his behalf and lobbying, with their friends on Capitol Hill.

Comrades Headed For Their Cell

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Since I love the freedoms of America, I think they are worth paying for. But like everybody else, I like to complain about taxes. One tax expert by the name of Rowell Magill, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, thinks that taxes can't go much higher without killing off the taxpayer.
Mr. Magill talks about "Henry Suburban," a man in the average income group, who has to pay heavy income tax and social security. In addition, there are many taxes that Henry almost never thinks about. He is aroused in the morning by his alarm clock (price $5 plus $1.25 tax). He walks across the floor of his $8,000 house (annual property tax $240) and switches on the electricity ($ 1-2 cents tax on each dollar of his monthly bill) which lights the bulb (price 20 cents plus 2 cents tax). It's hard for poor Henry to touch an item that isn't taxed:

cuff links (price $3.50 plus 77 cents tax), toaster (price $20.50, plus $1.74 tax), refrigerator (price $300, tax $25.53), cigarette (price per pack, 10 cents, plus 7 cents federal tax and 3 cents state tax). Even Henry's wife whom he kisses goodbye cost him a $2 marriage license, to say nothing of the tax on the lipstick he wipes off.
Yet the biggest part of Henry's tax story is still to be told. "Take Henry's toast," Magill says:
"The farmer had to pay taxes on his land and machinery, and he also paid most of the taxes Henry pays. The miller, too, had taxes to pay. . . . Transporting the flour includes taxes, railroad taxes, taxes on gasoline and oil. The baker paid taxes on his property, unemployment-compensation and social security taxes. The retailer's mark-up included still more taxes." One way or another, all of these items wound up on Henry's toast.

What does it come to? Several economists recently estimated that if Henry's income is in the $3,500 a year class he pays in the form of state and federal taxes, seen and unseen, about $98 a year, or a little over one-fourth of what he makes. In other words, for 13-14 weeks of the $2 in the year, every morning when the alarm clock rings, Henry sighs, gets up, and goes to work just to earn enough money to pay his taxes.
After reading the report of Magill, glance at the week's news and you'll see that the Senate Finance Committee, still trying to figure out how to pay for the Government's expenditures, continued to hammer away at a tax bill. The House has already approved a $7.2 billion tax bill, but last week the Senate cut it $1.4 billion.
And I thank the Senate.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYN NISBET

Y.D.C. — The state convention of North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs at Carolina Beach this week is expected to result in some degree of clarification in the political atmosphere. The DC has its own internal politics, finding expression in candidates for the state presidency, positions on the national committee, adoption of resolutions and other matters of organizational policy. For the first time in history North Carolina has a real contender for presidency of the National Young Democratic Clubs in the person of Basil Whitener of Gastonia, a situation that puts the state convention in national limelight.

POLITICS — Whitener's principal opposition is among the mid-western and Pacific coast states, which the Tarheel YDC regards as "radical." That means Whitener is entering the national tournament as a conservative. And that, in turn, might have some influence on whether the state group elects a conservative or a liberal president—if they can distinguish between them or determine which is which. So far as most North Carolina politicians are concerned, the significance of the Carolina Beach meeting lies in anticipated auxiliary and off side activities of old line politics. Immediate YDC politics may get warm, but major interest will be focused on the doings of prospective candidates for governor and other state offices next year and the peregrinations of federal employees, including staff members of senators and representatives in congress. Traditionally these are the things which make political meetings interesting and significant. There is no reason to think now that the UDC convention this week will be different. There are other ways in which the happening at Carolina Beach may forecast developments all the way up from a minor YDC state office to president of the United States. One of the chief factors in this chain of events will be money, the influence of which will be direct in some instances and deviously remote in others.

AFFILIATION — The Young Democrats, just like the old Democrats and the young and old Republicans, are reluctant to talk about anything as sordid as dollars. Any county or state YDC or YRC group would vigorously resent implication it would sell its vote for any amount of money. But—county groups cannot vote in state conventions, and state groups cannot vote in national conventions, unless they are "affiliated"—and affiliation costs money, at a fixed rate per voting member. To keep whatever odium attaches to this policy as far away as possible, let's ignore the state convention and consider the national. There is fairly reliable information that two of the biggest states will vote for Basil Whitener for national YDC president if they are "affiliated." Less reliable information is they will not vote for any other candidate, even though their affiliation fees are offered to be paid. So, these states will not vote at all unless the White-river partisans put up approximately five thousand dollars—$2700 for one, $2300 for the other—to "affiliate" them.

NO SALE — These groups insist there is no semblance of selling votes in this arrangement. Just like the individual voter who says he will not vote for Joe Dooks under any circumstances, but will vote for John Doe if John's friends will send a car to take him to the polling place—otherwise, he just won't vote; county and state YDC groups say, in effect, we won't vote at all unless you haul us to the polls by paying the affiliation fee, in which event we will vote for you. There may be a few individual voters and a few state-county groups purchase-able on high bids. That kind of vote selling is frowned upon in decent circles; but what can be done about these folks who say we are for you and want to vote, if we can get to the voting place, except to help get them there. That is not selling or buying votes, but it takes money just the same. And that situation is approximately the same among young Democrats, old Democrats, all ages and types of Republicans and independents.

DROUGHT — Municipal officials generally are concerned about possibility of a water famine because deficiency in rainfall over a period of years has seriously lowered reservoir levels. Farmers are finding that tobacco and corn now being harvested is in many instances below standard quality because of lack of rain at strategic periods in growth. Many white two outfits are very happy over absence of rain clouds during the past summer. Not a single performance of the "Lost Colony" on Roanoke Island or "Unto These Hills" at Cherokee was rained out this year, although attendance was affected several times by earlier showers or the tened rain.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LEGALIZED GAMBLING (Henderson Dispatch)
In its desperate search for source to tax as means of raising more money for the spenders to disburse, the Senate Finance Committee has approved a levy on gamblers, who are expected to yield around $400,000,000 a year. Although expressing doubts that the levy could be enforced, the committee decided to give it a fling. The House approved a similar tax but accompanied its action with a statement that it did not intend to give the color of legality to any illegal enterprise. But that is exactly what both houses have done.
A special Senate crime committee has just finished a six months investigation of gambling and other vices existing in the country, and turned up startling revelations and conditions in various localities. The committee and others denounced these evils, yet both houses come along now and place the stamp of approval upon gambling. What a monstrosity.

In the light of this development, just how much sincerity was there in the committee investigation anyhow? Might, as well license milk coats, deep freezers, five centers, infusion peddlers, and what have you. They are all pretty much in the same category, and all of them indecent, vicious, immoral and a disgrace to men in high places.
This new tax would apply to bookmakers, operators of numbers lotteries, betting and other forms of gambling. How can this be interpreted as anything else than licensing these devices? And how can such a tax harmonize with denunciations of evils that were turned up in the recent inquiry? It can't, and, in effect, nullifies much of whatever of good may have resulted from the investigation. It would be little worse if the government legalized a national lottery.

The situation is akin to the practice of the Federal government in issuing licenses to individual or corporate distillers in the states, thus from its own standpoint legalizing an activity which is banned by state law in many instances. Decent citizens need not expect other than corruption so long as their government goes in for this sort of policy.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The importance of tax and foreign aid legislation and the intention of Congress to sign off October 1 is making it almost impossible for action on a large number of pending measures affecting business.

There is no hope of getting any action this session on proposals to plug the loophole in the so-called Fair Trade Act. Several measures have been suggested to get around the Supreme Court decision knocking out the "non-signer" clause.

The measures for simplifying customs procedure are also certain to lie on the shelf. Importers and exporters will have to get along with the vastly complicated customs procedure, the intricacies built up over the years, until next year at least.

There won't be any action either, on the bill by Representative Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) setting up a $25,000,000 fund which the Secretary of Agriculture could use to finance, up to 85 percent, the construction of modern wholesale produce markets in cooperation with states. Nor is any action likely on proposals of Representative Isidore Dollinger (D., N. Y.) to set in the Department of Commerce. When this reaches the action stage, it will bring in a vast array of lobbyists because Mr. Dollinger's scheme grows from his belief that knowing about non-advertised brands of many products which may be better or cheaper.

Also for future consideration will be a pension plan of considerable interest to small business men. Drawn up by the New York State Bar Association, the plan offers for the first time an adequate old-age security to hundreds of thousands of persons who work for themselves. It will also enable employees of small firms to set up pension funds when the firms themselves would find them too cumbersome. The plan essentially involves the postponement of income taxes on earnings paid into retirement funds until the fund is distributed.

Bills not acted upon before October 1 will not die, and action on them can be resumed when Congress meets again. But often the original enthusiasm for a new measure vanishes over a long recess.

TRADE HEARS RUMORS OF NEW PRICE WAR
Retailing circles are buzzing with rumors of another price war sometime soon.
Some manufacturers report that big buying organizations have offered to take over large inventories at steep cut prices and this has fostered the rumor that ammunition was being accumulated for road price cutting. Whether the war would be confined to a few cities or spread can only be guessed at. Meanwhile, the buying organizations aren't saying anything.

IMPORTS OF TEA AT HIGH LEVEL
Imports of tea into the United States for the year ending June 30 totalled 10,500,000 pounds, about 10 ounces for every man, woman and child.
The total is about the same as a year earlier, but it is 17 percent above the 1949 imports. India and Ceylon were the largest suppliers, each sending in a third of the total. Formosa sent in 3,500,000 pounds, compared with only 2,063,000 pounds from all of red-bound China.

FARM SCENES DRAWN FOR BANKS' CHECKS
Scenes of dairy farming, grain raising, beef and hog raising, rural industry, oil wells and logging may soon appear on larger numbers of checks drawn on rural banks. A series of drawings by John Wenrich have been adapted into 120 designs by and are being offered to rural banks.

COCOA DROPS BELOW BRAZIL'S PEGGED PRICE
Cocoa prices have slipped since Brazil gave up its efforts to peg the export price at 34.65 cents a pound. It has recently been bid a couple of cents below the pegged price. Reports that a huge surplus has been piling up in Brazil have been denied, but buyers appear to be skeptical.

OBEDIENT QUADRUPLED
While some other lines reported serious summer slumps, the Industrial Furnace Manufacturers Association reports that its 42 members booked $71,930,000 in orders that month, more than four times as much as booked a year ago.

Hal Boyle's Column

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
(For HAL BOYLE)
With all the important things swirling about our heads, the following is a very minor complaint. I wish, however, that Dame Fashion and Mother Nature would get back into step.

For quite some time, the current feminine habit of rushing the seasons has been a source of irritation to most of us who are not fashion-plate but do try to look presentable.

Around January, for example, when my world is snow covered and the temperature hovers around freezing, most of my city's mind-bearing females bust out with open-toed shoes and the latest thing in next season's straw hats.

Then, in July, with the thermometer dancing between 80 and 90, and with air-conditioning units running full blast all over town, these same ladies start appearing in all the smart places with dark, cold-weather headpieces made of velvet, velour and adorned with feathers and sequins instead of flowers.

Another thing, people have taken to wearing navy blue the year round. Once upon a time, within my own memory, a dress or suit of navy blue with little white touches was as sure a harbinger of Spring as the first robin. It's lost all significance.

It seems only a few years ago when most of us were guided in our dressing by some old, tested rule: "Change not a thread until April is dead" was a family motto in my house, and change not a thread it was—during the long under-wear we kids were forced into—regardless of what shenanigans the weatherman was up to. There was a firm belief that if anyone beat May 1 for laying aside winter clothes (and in those days we wore clothes for more than one year unless we grew out of them) the penalty held out was, at best, a bad cold; at worst, pneumonia.

Nowadays, however, central heating, air-conditioning, plane travel and other modern improvements have pretty much defeated the onslaughts of heat and cold. Many people habitually travel quickly from climate to climate, blithely adjusting from bitter sub-zero cold in the ski country to the white-shoe warmth of Florida overnight.

In this mixed up world, it's no wonder that the seasons are losing their significance and that Spring is coming on earlier each year as far as fashion is concerned. Pretty soon, if the speed-up continues, the fashion cycle will actually catch up with Spring.

It is only the women who have been getting ahead of the weather in this bewildering fashion. Men stick closer to the calendar than the fair sex. Take a look around the cold weather stores next Spring and you probably won't see a straw hat on a male until mid-May—and after that magic date they'll multiply like bottle flies. May 15, or the nearest Sunday to that date, has marked the opening of the straw-hat season for generations—and it's a date for the gentleman to observe as carefully as their wedding anniversaries.

Would there were some hard women. As it is now, a girl who and fast riles like that for the wanders around in a cool, shady straw hat in mid-August can feel only self-conscious among her sisters who are sweltering but chic in their new velvet bonnets decorated with brilliants.

It's all very well to be smart in the head, but you can count me out when fashion decrees we have to rush the season whole hog. No matter what Jacques Fath and Christian Dior may possibly enunciate some future day, I refuse to wear winter clothes and fur coat until after Labor Day or a straw hat before St. Patrick's Day.

Washington Letter

By FRANK KAREY
(For JANE EADS)
WASHINGTON—Doing mental work in a noisy atmosphere appears to make you do more—but less accurately—than you'd do in quiet surroundings, a Pennsylvania psychologist said today.

Dr. R. Kendon R. Smith of the Pennsylvania State College says it appears that the overall effect on "adequate output" is practically negligible. Smith got his lowdown from tests conducted among Penn State summer students of both sexes.

"It is of possible interest," he related, "that almost all the subjects were members of the band or glee club."

The seventy-odd students were divided into two groups. One was assigned clerical tasks while working in a quiet room. The other did its stuff to the accompaniment of an intermittent raucous noise from a battery of loud speakers in an auditorium. The noise consisted of the highly amplified buzzing of an electron tube.

It must have been as much fun as playing bingo because the prof told everyone in advance that cash prizes would be awarded for the best scores—a total of $4 in major prizes and a whole bunch of $1 "consolation" awards.

The tasks assigned included name-checking and number-checking. The time limit was a half hour. The results: The team working in the noisy atmosphere tackled more items than did the crew in comparative quiet. The "noise club" got more items correct—and more incorrect—than did the others—but its percentage of accuracy for the whole job was lower.

The professor, who reported the results in the quiet columns of the technical journal Science, remarked:

"It has thus been found that the effect upon short-term mental performance of bursts of intense noise is to increase the quantity and decrease the quality of response, but that these effects are of such magnitude as to suggest that they are practically negligible."

"It may be that the allegedly malignant effects of extraneous noise are to be found primarily in terms of depreciation in sustained performance, or of interference with functions other than adequate output."

No One-World For Coffee Bean Users

By JACK RUTLEDGE

WASHINGTON — What is a cup of coffee? Sounds simple, but you'd be surprised at the answers you get to this question in various parts of the world.

The basic ingredients are usually (a) coffee, and (b) water, but what cooks of one country do with them—and add to them—just doesn't make what is known as a cup of coffee in another country. Cooks of one country add fats to brewing coffee, others eggs, whipped cream is used in one nation. Lots of lemon in another. The Ugandans simply everything by just eating the dried beans themselves.

The methods of brewing vary even more widely. The Pan-American Coffee Bureau, which represents the coffee producing countries of Latin America, frowns politely on some of these practices, but points out happily that no matter how you brew it, somebody somewhere likes it.

Some Like It Hot The Bureau has compiled a list of coffee preferences the world over. Here are some of them. In the United States, which consumes more coffee than any other nation (82 billion cups a year), people like drip coffee, percolator coffee, or coffee made the vacuum way. Some even like it boiled with the white of an egg to settle the grounds.

Some native tribes in Africa drink a beverage made of toasted coffee hulls—straw-colored and slightly sweet. In Abyssinia and Somaliland they mix pulverized coffee beans with fats as a food ration. The Ugandans cook the beans in boiling water, dry them in the sun and eat them.

In Egypt they make coffee as they did 300 years ago—coffee grounds, highly sweetened, served in tiny cups. The Turks boil the water, add sugar and boil the water some more. They finally get around to adding coffee (powdered), after which they boil it four times more. Greeks like it that way, too, served in demi-tasses and syrupy with sugar.

The French like a highly roasted coffee, brewed drip style, with two parts coffee and one part hot milk topped with whipped cream. Everyone can guess how the British make it, says the Bureau—they boil it, like they do all their other food.

The Germans also boil it, three-fourths of it being simmered for 10 to 15 minutes, the remainder added for a 6-minute steeping or infusion. The Germans, says the Bureau, originated the so-called coffee drinking period, or kaffeeklatsch.

Russians like Turkish coffee and also Cafe a la Russe, which is strong black coffee, flavored with lemon.

"Hard people to understand, the Russians," the Bureau comments. Mexicans have a method peculiarly their own. The roasted beans are pounded to a powder in a cloth bag which is then immersed in a pot of boiling milk and water. Cubans grind the coffee fine, put it in a sack, then in a pot and pour cold water on it.

Brazilian Brew How do the Brazilians like it? They ought to be experts, as that country produces more coffee than any other nation in the world. The Bureau says:

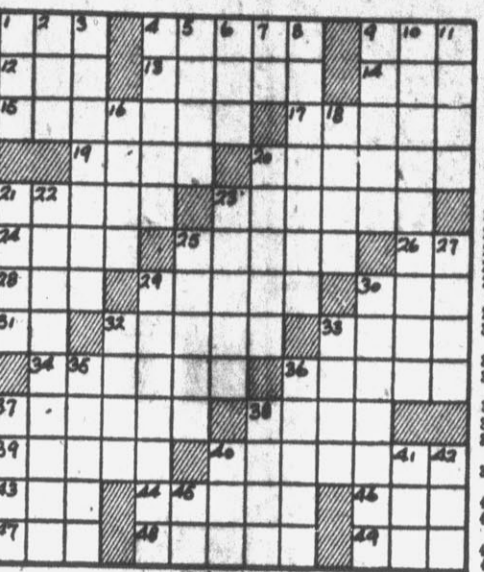

"In Brazil, the beans are roasted very high, almost to carbonization and ground very fine. A combination Turkish-French method is used."

The use of glazed tile for wall and floor decoration was invented in the Near East and has been used there practically from the beginning of recorded history.

Claims Acheson Hurt Anti-Reds

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) said today Secretary of State Acheson "did a good gavel-banging job" at the Japanese peace conference but dealt "another blow at anti-communists in China."

Senator Knowland (R-Calif), on the other hand, declared the treaty signed at San Francisco last week is a good one aimed at keeping Japan out of the communist orbit.

McCarthy, arch critic of Acheson, outlined his views when a reporter asked him for comment on two Republican senators' praise of the way Acheson conducted the treaty conference.

The public praise has come from Knowland and Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.). They attended the conference. Both men, particularly Knowland, have been sharply critical of Acheson in the past with respect to Administration policy in the Far East.

"As I understand it," said McCarthy, "Senators Knowland and Smith commended Acheson for the way he presided at the conference sessions, and did not direct their remarks to his policies."

"I don't question the fact that he did a good gavel-banging job. For that, the stage-setting was beautiful. He kept Nationalist China from attending the conference and he invited the Russians, who fought the Japanese only a few days as compared with the years Nationalist China did."

"It was another clear cut blow at the anti-communists in China."

Judge Calls For More Witnesses

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—You have a judge's word for it—you probably can get by with being drunk here unless police can find a witness.

General Sessions Judge Alfred Frazier ruled that you can't be convicted unless you're not only drunk but a nuisance. And this requires a witness—not just the officer's word for it.

Frazier said he has been dismissing 90 per cent of the drunkness cases brought before him because arresting officers failed to prove the suspects had been "nuisances."

Friday Night—One Hour of Color Movies Made In South America In The Jungles

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

A Greenville boy, Al Auerback, will be staying home tomorrow morning when the rest of the East Carolina College football team leaves for Hattiesburg, Mississippi. The sprained ankle Al suffered in the Duke scrimmage Saturday has not yet healed and he's still having to make his way with crutches.

Doc Smith, the other Pirate injured in the Duke scrimmage, is improving every day and should be near his top physical shape Saturday. The Pirates have only one rough workout remaining—this afternoon—before they leave.

An article in yesterday's Reflector said that one Kansas college would be more than glad to have a few of the expelled West Point football players. The coach when he heard that one of the ex-cadets was heading toward the school, said that he "was happy and hoped that he (the guard) would bring about 45 more boys with him. We can surely use them."

This policy is a little different from that set up by other schools. There are hardly any other schools that will permit the boys to enter the college, let alone play football. I think I would be inclined to go along with this group.

In my way of thinking, the cadets who were booted out don't have much of a defense if they were actually violating the honor code. Regardless of what they might say, who they might try to implicate, or what have you, there is no excuse for cheating . . . at least not to me.

Perhaps it's true that the expelled cadets deserve another chance. But I still think I would hesitate to allow them to play.

Magic Number For Bums Drops To 11

NEW YORK (UP)—The "magic number" for the Brooklyn Dodgers dropped today to 11.

That means any combination of Dodger victories or Giant defeats that adds up to 11 will give the Dodgers the National League pennant. Reason: If the Giants win all 14 of their remaining games, and the Dodgers need to win only 11 out of 18 to beat that with 99.

The magic number had been 13 before the Dodgers won a night game from the Reds last night, 7-0, while the Giants split a doubleheader with the Cards.

60 Boys Report In League Opening

Warren Carroll, director of the local recreation commission and head of the newly formed Little League Football League, stated this morning that nearly 60 boys have turned out for the first two days of practice.

The chief desire of the league is to let each boy play, but if we think he is too small, we shall talk to his parents and request that he be kept in light work as much as possible.

Carroll continued with, "Football might be considered dangerous for these small boys, but experience shows that the boys will play anyway, and often with boys larger and rougher. In our program, we have a weight limit and we do our best to give the utmost in supervision." Equipment for the players, who are expected to reach a total of 80 before the season opens, is short, with not enough for each player to have the required amount. The players were asked to furnish all of the equipment that they could, with a large amount of the participants bringing all the equipment.

Tuesdays and Thursdays are reserved for game days, while practice sessions are planned for Mondays and Wednesdays. In order that they will have some free time away from the field, each boy will participate only three days a week after the regular play gets underway.

He succeeds A. C. Crowden, and will be aided by three men. Daniels opened practice last week, with about 30 boys reporting. The sessions throughout the week were held in light equipment.

When you stop to consider that the bulk of East Carolina's squad is from smaller North Carolina towns, you might see what I mean. The Pirates usually don't hold their own but for obvious reasons they can't go out and get the big name high school stars here. They get some of them, of course, but most of the big name boys take off for one of the Big Four schools and give ECC only a passing glance. That leaves Pirate football up to the group that comes from the Class A and Class AA schools.

The fundamental knowledge of football which most of the ECC players have is sound enough to permit them to make their way easily into college ball. They learned those fundamentals in the high schools—such as Ayden, Farmville, Robersonville, and the other "small schools" around here. Why not support the high schools this year?

Percy Daniels Is New Head Coach

Percy Daniels, assistant on last year's coaching staff, has been named head coach for the Epps High School Bulldogs for the 1951 season.

He succeeds A. C. Crowden, and will be aided by three men. Daniels opened practice last week, with about 30 boys reporting. The sessions throughout the week were held in light equipment.

Matmen Come To Indians Divide 2 With Athletics

Rocky Mount In Show Saturday

ROCKY MOUNT—A conglomeration of movie and television stars, former football players, a former national weight-lifting champ, a father and son team and a bearded Texas wild man, will make up the second big wrestling show to be held in Rocky Mount's Municipal Stadium, this coming Saturday night, Sept. 15.

With the local Civitan club sponsoring the bouts and all proceeds earmarked for charity work, a mat show which should surpass the excellence of the initial venture is expected. Over 4,000 fans were on hand for the first one in August, and because of the demand since then, the Civitans decided to bring in the second matinee.

The TV stars are the Garibaldis, Gino and Leo, a father and son team and two of the nation's leading matmen. Leo, the son, tackles Sid Neighbors in the main go, while Gino goes against the Texas wild man, Rough House Jack O'Brien in one of the opening matches.

Another wrestler seen on video and the screen before is The Great Scot, one of the headliners of the first show. Scot will go against Bobby Weaver, a former football player. Scot is scheduled to take his long wavy locks before the Hollywood cameras in a few months as the star of a new "Mr. Universe" picture.

The former weight-lifting champ is Bud Curtis, who was wrestling in Honolulu less than two months ago. Curtis packs 220 pounds of muscle and buttons his shirts around 52 inches of chest. He held the national championship in 1945 and proved to be the most popular wrestler on the first card. He'll go against George Williams in an opening match.

The meanest wrestler on the card will probably be Rough House Jack O'Brien, a Texas badman, who cut his eyeteeth on a steer's horns. Rough House isn't pinned often for the simple reason he usually gets disqualified for his dirty work before anyone has a chance to lay him down. He's bald and wears a beard which adds to his formidable appearance.

Four big matches will be staged and enough tickets for everybody will be available at the box-office at the ball park Saturday night. Rain or shine the matches will be held. Ringside duets go for $1.75; general admission, $1.25, and colored seats $1 even.

TV Can Kill Boxing—Greene

CHICAGO (UP)—Boxing must do something to regulate live television, or it might kill the sport, National Boxing Association Commissioner Abe Greene said today.

Greene said the NBA Executive Committee probably will meet "sometime in the next couple of months" to try to do something to control live video.

"It's killing the small clubs," he said, "and that's where the talent comes up. If you don't have the small clubs going, there's no place to develop the fighters for these big shows they have on television."

Cellarites Are Big 'Contenders' For Flag As Pennant-Minded Clubs Seem To Fold In The Home-Stretch

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Second division teams appeared today to be more interested in who wins the American League flag than the contenders themselves.

The big contenders suddenly are treating first prize as if it were a treacherous foe. Such as last night when the Browns rose up from the frustration of accumulated years and twice knocked out the Yankees, 4 to 3 and 6 to 3, winning their first double header in Yankee Stadium since Sept. 19, 1945.

But did that help the Indians, even though they regained first place? They had a grand chance to take a comparatively firm hold on the lead in Philadelphia. And they acted like champs by coming from behind to top the postiferous A's, 6 to 5, in 11 innings in the opener. Then, leading 5 to 4 by also coming from behind with four runs in the eighth inning of the second game, they suddenly began to act as if it really didn't matter who won the pennant. They let the sixth place A's score five runs in their half and go on to win, 9 to 5. So instead of taking over two games in front they have only a single game lead.

Boston was the only contender to show a solid profit for the day, yet the mighty Red Sox sluggers could muster only three hits in their 4 to 3 win over fifth place Detroit. And the Boston boys still have faces as crimson as their Sox over the two-way humiliation they suffered at the hands of the A's Sunday.

Bill Dickey, the veteran Yankee coach described the situation best, as he growled—"This is the easiest pennant anybody ever could want to grab—a winning streak and any one of the three of us would be home—but nobody seems to want to win the darned thing."

The Browns had the most fun in their sweep of the Yankees. Rookie Jim McDonough won his own game by singling in two out in the ninth. Then two especially frustrated ex-Yankees, Cliff Mapes, and Tommy Byrne, went to work in the second game. Mapes hit a three-run homer to put the Browns in front for good and Byrne received credit for his fifth victory.

The Indians won the opener when relief pitcher Early Wynn tripled to score the tie-breaking run and receive credit for his 18th victory.

Cigaret Salesman Flops On Channel

DOVER, Eng. (UP)—Big blond Tom Blower gave up three miles off the French coast today on his way back to England in an attempt to swim the channel both ways non-stop.

The 37-year-old cigaret salesman was beaten by strong tides off the French coast. He started from here at 6:11 a.m. yesterday and after a hard fight reached France in 18 hours and 42 minutes.

He quickly turned around and started back. He was pulled out of the choppy waters exhausted after covering three miles.

Lopez Tips Hat To Lowly Browns

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Manager Al Lopez of the Cleveland Indians, who are back on top of the American League by one full game, doffed his baseball cap to those lowly St. Louis Browns today as "a bunch of wonderful guys."

Such praise was more than fitting, for the Browns, by beating the Yankees in both ends of last night's two-night doubleheader in New York, enabled the Indians to overtake and pass the Yanks.

Florida City Is Given Apology

LAKELAND, Fla. (UP)—Princess Elizabeth has sent this proud Florida city her "sincere apologies" for the "typing error" that placed it in California.

The letter, declining an invitation to Lakeland on her forthcoming tour, was addressed to "Lakeland, Polk County, Florida, California, USA."

Lt. Gen. Sir Frederick A. M. Browning in the royal apology blamed the mixup on a typing error.

In the fall, water holes near White Sands, N. M. often turn red in color. Chemists say algae, which thrive on sulphur water, are the cause.

SANDY SILER, a junior from Siler City, is shaping up as Bill Dole's replacement for the departed Roger Thrift. Siler is a big 190-pounder who runs, passes, and kicks well enough to be Dole's number one quarterback. He was Thrift's understudy last year. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee.)

British Scribes Choose Turpin

LONDON (UP)—Britain's sports-writers picked Randy Turpin to beat Sugar Ray Robinson in New York tonight, but left themselves an "out" in case the Learnington, Eng., Negro loses.

Typical of the press comment as the battle hour drew near was the prediction of Peter Wilson of the Express.

Said Wilson, "If Turpin can get through the first five rounds, he will win. I expect Turpin to outlast the danger period."

Tom Phillips of the Mirror, who picked Turpin in his first bout against Robinson here, said "I believed then he (Randy) could lick Robinson. Now I believe that he can lick him any night of the week."

OUTCAST OF DESTINY

PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 27
Jack stood close to the wall. He had buckled his gunbelt about him and the weapon which was aimed at Brent was not the Derringer he carried under his left arm but the heavy Colt with the pearl butt plates. Ferguson said, "Stand still, Tex, while I draw the fangs." He went behind Brent, tugged the Colt from its holster and felt him over quickly for other weapons. There was a knife and he took it. Ferguson stepped away and said, "You may sit down."

Brent walked to a chair and sat down. Judy was lying on the couch with a blanket thrown over her. There was a gas in her mouth and the brown eyes were fixed on him in an agony of fear and desperate anxiety. He lifted the corner of his mouth and said, Hello, honey. Keep the chin up."

Ferguson had moved over to the desk. He had Brent's gun in his hand. He took a coil of thin rope from a drawer and tossed it to Jack. He said, "The him to the chair while I keep him covered." Jack caught the rope and lashed Brent's wrists and ankles to the chair.

"Just to be sure he won't interrupt us," purred Ferguson. "Now, Jack, we'll do a little figuring. Sit down here at the desk. I'll give you the various amounts and you can figure your percentage."

Jack came swiftly to the desk, holstered his gun and sat down to the chair. Ferguson said, "The amounts are right there in that book before you. There's paper and pencil you can use."

Jack reached for the pencil, drew a tablet of paper toward him. He opened the record book, bent his head over it to study the entries.

Ferguson raised the gun he held and Brent saw the lust of the killer flame in his face. There was no time for him even to shout a warning. Ferguson shot Jack in the back of the head and even before the boom of the shot had died was pointing the weapon back at Brent.

Jack fell forward on the desk, then toppled sideways and rolled to the floor. Brent, driven by a cold fury, strained at the ropes; he ceased his struggles when the gun was pointed at him. The killing lust was on Ferguson's face and Brent knew he would shoot if all movement was not instantly arrested. In that brief moment of struggle he had felt one of the knots which held his hands give slightly.

He froze, forced himself to remove his hot gaze from Ferguson and glanced over at Judy. Her eyes were wide and staring and she was writing in her bonds. When he looked back at Ferguson the man had regained his calm and was once more the genial, smiling Uncle Jim. He bent over and took the pearl-handled Colt from Jack's holster. "I'm afraid he won't be needing this," he said. He smiled at Judy. "So sorry, my dear, but it had to be. Shotgun and Biff are gone; why should I share with Jack Roselle?"

Brent was working at the knot patiently, quietly. He said, "I reckon Cole and me had it figured right. Stoot left the door open, you came in and hid until my father opened the vault, then you forced him to carry the gold to the wagon. Harvey and my father sat on the seat and you rode in the bed of the wagon behind them. When you were far enough from town you shot them and pushed them off the seat, then drove off the road, lashed the gold on one of the horses and rode the other."

"Clever!" Ferguson sat down in a chair facing Brent. "You really guessed that?"

"My brother and I together, it had to be that way. But you made one mistake; you thought Stoot was dead but he wasn't. He lived long enough to mutter two words, Shell and Destiny."

Ferguson shook his head regretfully. "Yes, I slipped up there. Your brother came to Destiny and if he had lived he would have found his man. He succeeded in doing what you have not been able to do; he followed Shotgun to this house. But he too made a mistake; he asked Lu Roselle if she knew a man named Shell. She didn't, but she passed the question on to Jack and he asked me if I knew Snell. I told him I didn't, which was the truth. The name is Snell, not shell, Ferguson Snell."

He smiled at Brent, the two guns balanced on his knees. "I invited Cole in to have a drink and a chat. I told him to sit down and went into the back room to get the liquor. I fetched a gun instead and I shot him as I passed behind his chair. He was quite heavy, but I managed."

Brent controlled himself with an effort. The knot was giving but he must keep Ferguson talking. He said, "Are you going to turn Judy free?"

"She'll have complete freedom, but not just yet. I have some things to do first. Would it entertain you if I were to tell you my plans?"

Brent told him that it would. Ferguson was pleased. He thought quite a bit of himself and his cleverness and now he had an audience. "It's really quite simple. You heard Jack tell of the posse camped near town; they'll undoubtedly attack in the morning. They will round up a lot of wanted men but the real prize will have flown. The buckboard is already loaded. The gold is in it, hidden in a false bottom. There's really quite a lot of it. I'll make Judy as comfortable as possible and the guards will let Uncle Jim through. I'm really forced to take her along for my own protection. Also I'm quite fond of her."

"When we're ready to leave I'll pour kerosene about quite liberally and then I'll stand in the doorway and put a merciful bullet in your brain." He beamed benevolently as though he were about to confer a great favor on Brent. "Then I'll flip a match into the room and —woosh!" He made a wide gesture.

"Lem Purdy and his posse will see the flames and come on the run, and Judy and I will speed away in the opposite direction. It's only a hundred miles or so to the border, you know. Once in Mexico an accommodating padre, a brief ceremony, and the distinguished Americano and his beautiful senora will proceed to scatter the pesos. We may even go to Europe. Neat, eh?" He stroked his handsome beard like a peacock preening its feathers.

The knot was giving. Brent said, "Yeah, neat."

Primitive Tribe Found Hidden In Walled Village

DARWIN —(AP)—A completely walled-in village inhabited by primitive tribesmen, who had never seen a white man before, has been discovered by a Dutch patrol deep in the Dutch New Guinea jungle.

The story of the discovery was told by the Chief Justice of Dutch New Guinea, Dr. Bernard Damen, who visited Darwin recently. Dr. Damen said the village had been built into a fortress against hostile tribesmen, and the patrolmen had to crawl singly through a small hole in the wall.

The astonished tribesmen advanced on them in a threatening manner with spears and bows and arrows. Patrol leader Den Haam calmed the villagers by singing them some native peace songs, and then gradually won their confidence by giving them presents.

Gold Medals For Non-Candidate

BUENOS AIRES —(UP)—Eva Peron was given two gold medals yesterday and was promised a third in recognition of her decision not to run for vice-president.

The blonde wife of President Juan D. Peron denied she had been forced to withdraw as her husband's running mate in the Nov. 11 elections.

"I know that some curs say that I could not serve as vice president or that I was forced to withdraw," she said in a speech last night. "But I also know that the Argentine people know this is not so." Her husband announced she would receive the Grand Peronist Medal, "extraordinary grade" at a ceremony Oct. 17.

Views Singapore As Culture Hub

SINGAPORE —(AP)—Malcolm MacDonald, British Commissioner-General for Southeast Asia, says he hopes Singapore will become one of the world's great cultural centers.

Praising Indian and other foreign artists who have given performances here, MacDonald said in a speech at Victoria Theatre: "Singapore is a cross-roads where several civilizations meet. Here, the culture of Europe and India, China and Malaysia all mingle and mix. That is one reason why we hope, in due time, to make this city much more than the valuable and famous commercial centre which it is today."

United Nations Issuing Own Postage Stamps

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (UP)— Mail from United Nations headquarters will carry the world organizations' own postage stamps beginning in October.

It will mark the first time that any international organization has issued its own stamps. The League of Nations and some of the UN's own specialized agencies have used stamps of various nations over-printed with their own designations but none issued stamps specifically printed for them.

The UN postal administration has arranged for the issue of stamps regular issue—1c, 1½c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c, 50c, $1; air mail issue—6c, 10c, 15c, 25c. The regular issue stamps are expected to go on sale early in October.

Not Valid Elsewhere

The stamps will be sold only at the United Nations post office in the new headquarters building on New York's East River. From the date of their issue only UN stamps will be used on any mail leaving here, whether official or personal, but the UN stamps will not be valid for postage from any other point.

The stamps will be issued by the UN postal administration established by the General Assembly last November, under an agreement with the United States Post Office. The U. S. Post Office will operate the UN post here. Revenue from stamp sales to philatelists will be retained by the UN and receipts from stamps sold for actual postage purposes will be retained by the United States.

Anticipating a heavy demand from stamp collectors, the UN postal administration has issued the following directions for philatelists:

The stamps will be issued in three groups with an interval of a few weeks between each group. The initial group will contain six stamps of the regular issue—1c, 1½c, 2c, 3c, 5c, and $1, a total face value of $1.35½. The second group will contain the remaining five stamps of the regular issue—2c, 10c, 15c, 20c and 50c, a total face value of 97c. The four airmail stamps will comprise the third group—6c, 10c, 15c, and 25c, a total face value of 56c.

Directions Given

All first day covers must be sent to the UN postal administration, United Nations, N. Y., by mail, well in advance of the issue date of each group, which is expected to be announced soon.

Envelopes for "first day of issue" cancellation should be sent, together with a certified check or postal money order covering the face value of the postage to be affixed—a minimum of 2c for each unsealed envelope.

Certified checks or money orders in U. S. dollars should be made payable to "the United Nations, New York." Postage stamps and personal checks will not be accepted in payment.

Plans are being made to service both addressed and unaddressed covers as follows:

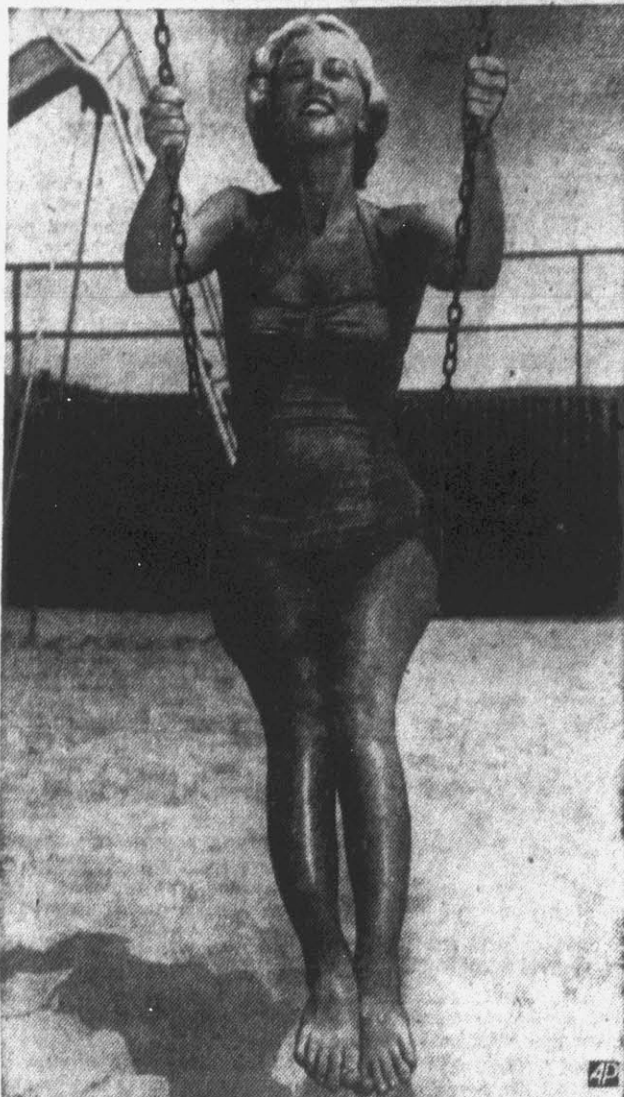

Addressed covers will be stamped, cancelled on the first day of issue of the UN stamps, and returned to the sender by mail.

For Cancellations

In case where first-day cancellations are desired on unaddressed covers, a self-addressed return envelope or an address label should be enclosed with the order and the remittance should cover the cost of return postage. The UN suggests that the minimum registration fee also be included. Unaddressed covers will be stamped, cancelled on the first day of issue, and returned to the sender under cover.

Denominations and number of stamps ordered for each envelope should be indicated in pencil in the upper right corner of each cover.

"In view of the fact that it will not be possible for the UN to furnish adequate facilities at UN headquarters for dealers to service their first day covers themselves," a UN announcement said. "It is requested that dealers send in their covers in bulk by mail with complete instructions as to denominations and quantity of stamps to be affixed and cancelled."

REA Looks For Larger Demand

WASHINGTON — (AP)— The Rural Electrification Administration thinks it is over one hump, but expects another shortly. It thinks the peak has been reached in the installation of new lines. Last fiscal year 117,000 miles were put into use. This was a drop of 35 per cent from the previous year.

The new hump is expected in the amount of power delivered to existing lines. It is explained that most farms are now on power lines. But in many cases, farms on the lines do not yet have a full quota of appliances. The amount of power delivered took a 25 per cent jump last year and has doubled since 1948.

Stalin's Greatest Shock Is Learning Satellites Are Poor Military Risks

By JOHN FISHER
Stalin's greatest shock is that after years of economic aid, propaganda and purges, his Eastern European satellites today are less reliable as military allies than ever before.

Right now Moscow, by lashing its toady governments, is trying hard to correct this condition. Recently the United States Supreme Court (339 U. S. at p. 429), in commenting on a case before it, declared, "The international police state has crept over Eastern Europe by deception, coercion, coup d'etat, terrorism and assassination. These cruel pressures again are being applied with increased ferocity in the Communist bloc. The latest crescendo of horror is the kidnapping of children in Hungary as part of the mass deportations which started in May. The twin objectives of this fresh inhumanity is to mold boys and girls of religious parents into atheistic Reds and also to serve warning of what happens to those who neglect to submit to the state.

From the viewpoint of puppet regimes a tighter grip on their captives is necessary because the overwhelming mass of people still refuse to accept Communism. Even among native-trained Marxists, recent moves of Russian imperialism have aroused nationalist sentiment. Many top Red officials from Poland to Bulgaria are secret Russianophobes, working clandestinely against their foreign bosses.

Indoctrination Schools Expanded
In Czechoslovakia the Social MVD established a school to train picked students to penetrate the anti-Communist underground. A Russian-hating red in that class disclosed the names and photos of this counter-espionage group to the resistance so that patriots can watch out for the traitorous snoopers.

Knowledge that foes of Russia are in their own hierarchy prompted Hungarian rulers to expand indoctrination schools on all party levels. In 1950 a third of the membership was forced to take refresher courses. Now 45 per cent has been ordered to study Stalin's biography, the history of the Russian Bolshevik Party and the "classical works of Marxism-Leninism."

Istvan Kovacs, Central Committee secretary, in explaining the new cadre-training courses for bright, young Reds, admitted that the "enemy, disguised as workmen, are penetrating lower organizations and, due to lack of vigilance on the part of under-secretaries, are worming their way even into state administration."

But education is a slow process. mission, terror again is used to frighten people into quicker submission. In the early class war, when Stalinists were seizing control of governments, open and active opponents were struck down. But today even the passive and helpless are victims of Red sadists.

Mass Deportation Frequent
For example, Sofia recently murdered Nikola Mushanov, former Bulgarian Prime Minister. When arrested in May he was 80 years old. So paralyzed that he could scarcely walk, he had no means of reaching "enemies of the state." Since he was under guard and isolated in a mountain village for five years, they could not contact him. But with no further justification than the evil desire to display their power, the Reds dragged this cripppled, old man to jail and killed him.

The device most frequently employed today to get rid of "unreliables" is mass deportations, patterned on the merciless expulsions that have been carried out in Baltic countries since 1944. In some Eastern European states the number of expellees has reached 10 per cent of the population and the forced exodus continues.

In Czechoslovakia thousands of workers have been uprooted and sent to the new munitions factories in the Orava mountains or as slave gangs, building new military depots and airports in the Zilina region or digging in the coal and uranium mines.

Peak of Heartlessness in Hungary
But the immediate peak of heartlessness is in Hungary, where, according to reports received from the underground by the American Hungarian Federation, over 100,000 people—chiefly from the middle class—already have been removed from their homes.

Such accusations, screamed Radio Budapest recently, are "outrages of death. We are expelling all fascist Horthy agents and former generals, knights, bankers and landlords but not the 'middle class' as charged in the mad ravings of the war-inciting press."

I have never seen Secretary Acheson display more cold anger than in describing these outrages at a Washington press conference he said, "Members of families have been separated. Women, children and the aged are being forced to perform hard and menial labor. Some have committed or attempted suicide prior to their deportation and others, who have undergone the ordeal, have also sought this escape."

Certain groups are given a few days warning. As a result, such advertisements as these have been printed in Hungarian papers:

Reject Repealer
By 8 To 5 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces, beaten in first round efforts to knock out of the price control laws a provision denounced by President Truman, still have not lost all hope.

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday rejected 8 to 5 a move to repeal what the President termed the terrible Caphart amendment. Senator Caphart (R-Ind.) has defended the provision and said it actually was written by four Democrats and two Republicans, and not by him alone.

"Household unexpectedly broken up, everything to be sold cheap."

"Apartment fully furnished, furnishings for sale cheap, due to urgent departure."

But most victims get only a few hours' notice and are rounded up by the police at dawn and shipped off in sealed cattle cars with only what belongings they can carry.

Helpless Deportees Dumped
In Death Trains
Communist youth groups are assigned to railroad stations as "jeering squads" to hoot at the unfortunates. In Debrecen they not only spit at the victims but destroyed their pitifully small luggage.

Blind, crippled and incurable patients have been carried from hospitals and dumped into death trains. Among the aged deportees was the mother of former Mayor Sipocs of Budapest, 102 years old.

Some children under six years from Christian homes have been kept back, as their parents were sent away, and placed in the "Rakost Othon." Red state orphanages, where they are to be reared as Communists. Others have been torn from their mothers arms and transported to distant Russia, where they, too, will be raised as godless Communists.

All parentage records are destroyed so that there never will be family recognition or reunion. Thus Communist genocide tries to damn innocent little children.

Rigorous Tests
Used By Navy

NEW YORK (AP)—Navy testing of materials has to be rigorous to avoid failures under battle conditions. This has been applied at the Navy yard here to thermostats, which must continue to function in ships which are under attack and which are firing their own guns.

Thermostats from the Minneapolis-Honeywell Co. are attached to steel plates three feet square and a half inch thick. A 400-pound weight is then dropped on the plates to simulate battle conditions. The delicate instruments must function after the tests.

NEWS—DOG BITES COP
WHITEMORE, Mich. (UP)—Deputy Sheriff Herman Huber wishes he had worn gloves on traffic duty. Huber was waving traffic on when a dog stuck its head out of a passing car and bit his finger.

Former Gunner Now Missionary

SINGAPORE (AP)—A former Royal Air Force gunner is going to Australia to establish a Moslem mission in either Brisbane or Melbourne. He is Ghulam Elahi Morris, who was known as George Morris until he abandoned his Christian name upon his conversion to the Moslem religion at Woking Mosque in England. Morris said he would found the mission at his own expense and become a missionary.

Plan Liquidate Enemies By 1952

SRINAGAR, Kashmir, (AP)—The Communist regime in West China's Szechuan announced in an official broadcast monitored here that all anti-Red forces in the area would be "totally liquidated" by the end of 1951. "When we have cleared the country of the enemies," declared Szechuan commanding General Wang Chin, "the new government can proceed with a program of land reforms."

Warn Farmers of Grain Spoilage
WASHINGTON (AP)—Grain spoilage due to weevils can develop very rapidly, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says. Five generations of rice weevils can develop in 120 days, the department says. If conditions were ideal, one pair of weevils might produce 151,875,000,000 weevils in that time. Department men say that ideal conditions are virtually impossible. But they point to the mathematical computation to show that farmers and grain storage men should watch closely for infestation. They estimate that five to ten per cent of all stored grain is destroyed by pests.

Reject Repealer By 8 To 5 Vote
WASHINGTON (AP)—Administration forces, beaten in first round efforts to knock out of the price control laws a provision denounced by President Truman, still have not lost all hope. The Senate Banking Committee yesterday rejected 8 to 5 a move to repeal what the President termed the terrible Caphart amendment. Senator Caphart (R-Ind.) has defended the provision and said it actually was written by four Democrats and two Republicans, and not by him alone.

Rigorous Tests Used By Navy
NEW YORK (AP)—Navy testing of materials has to be rigorous to avoid failures under battle conditions. This has been applied at the Navy yard here to thermostats, which must continue to function in ships which are under attack and which are firing their own guns. Thermostats from the Minneapolis-Honeywell Co. are attached to steel plates three feet square and a half inch thick. A 400-pound weight is then dropped on the plates to simulate battle conditions. The delicate instruments must function after the tests.

Humorist Adds Fun To Ruritan Meeting

PACTOLUS—Entertainment and laughter rocked the community building at Pactolus last night at the annual ladies night celebration of the Pactolus Ruritan club.

Edmund Harding, nationally known humorist and after dinner speaker from Washington, made the principal address at the meeting honoring the wives of the Pactolus Ruritans and the members of the Pactolus school faculty.

Harding took as the topic for his address "What Kind of Women We Like" and reviewed the outstanding characteristics of the wives of the 32 presidents of the United States. He continued his humorous lecture pointing out the outstanding traits which women look for in their husbands and men look for in their wives.

Following the barbecued chicken dinner the entertainment committee of the club presented Miss Peggy Bowers of Greenville who sang "Mocking Bird Hill" and "Caroling Moon". Miss Bowers was accompanied by Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, Sr. at the piano. Members of the club and their wives were called on to participate in a series of games and contests conducted by the entertainment committee and prizes were awarded to the heaviest couple present, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Satterthwaite; the lightest couple present, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tripp; the woman with the largest foot, Mrs. J. P. Davenport, Sr.; and the couple with the most children, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Little won the contest in which the wives made up their husbands in rouge, lipstick and powder, and Mrs. Gaskill won the string eating contest which was participated in by five members of the Pactolus school faculty.

Jack Tripp welcomed the wives to the Ruritan meeting and Mrs. Lee, Jr. welcomed the teachers and Mrs. Cavendish responded in behalf of the members of the Pactolus school faculty.

In addition to the wives and teachers, other guests of the club included past president of Ruritan National Curtis Old and Mrs. Old of St. Brides, Va., Past District Governor H. E. Hill and Mrs. Hill of Greenville, Cpl. R. B. Bowers of Greenville, Miss Edna Carrow of Grimesland, M. Sgt. Charlie

Fire In Which House Was Destroyed

Firemen battled a fire Monday afternoon in the Bama section which destroyed one two-story house and severely damaged a nearby residence. The call was the fifth for the fire department on Monday. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Tripp of Battle Creek, Mich., Miss Peggy Bowers and Miss Betty Lou Mills of Greenville, R. F. Laughlin of Greensboro and Dave Whitchard of Greenville.

President Hubert Simmons presided at the meeting and appointed a nominating committee composed of Noel Lee, Roy Tripp and Lester Simmons to report to the club at the next meeting on nominations of officers for the coming year.

Corn Production For N. C. Drops

RALEIGH—North Carolina's corn production this year is estimated at 70,917,000 bushels, a drop of 13 per cent from last year's output of 81,985,000 bushels.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service reported yesterday that the forecast is based on reports from growers as of Sept. 1.

Meanwhile, the agency stated that estimates indicate the Tar Heel peanut crop will be 13.2 per cent larger than last year's production. As of Sept. 1, the crop was forecast at 278,460,000 pounds of nuts, the largest since 1948. The estimated yield per acre is 1,170 pounds. This compares with a yield of 1,065 pounds per acre in 1950.

Yield estimates for corn have declined one bushel since Aug. 1. An average of 33 bushels per acre is now predicted, a drop of four bushels from last year's record-high yield of 37 bushels.

Flue-cured tobacco production is estimated at 923,076,000 pounds, the same amount as forecast a month ago. The burley crop is estimated at 19,140,000 pounds. This compares with the 1950 burley production of 17,850,000 pounds.

Several Hundred Attend Funeral For Reynolds

WINSTON-SALEM—(AP)—Several hundred mourners attended the funeral services here yesterday for William Neal Reynolds, last of North Carolina's tobacco tycoons.

The flower-draped casket of the 88-year-old philanthropist and sportsman who died Monday, was laid to rest within the half-circle of a granite monument that bears his name.

The area around the six-column monument was blanketed by nearly a hundred floral offerings. Several were in the form of giant horseshoes, symbolizing Reynolds' love of horses that had earned him the title of "Grand Old Man of the Harness Racing Sport."

Offices and factories of the Reynolds Tobacco Company, which he helped build, were closed during the service.

Red Banks Club Plans Stand At County Fair

The Red Banks Home Demonstration Club made plans for its concession stand at the Pitt County Fair during its meeting Tuesday at the Community Building.

Twenty members attended the first meeting of the club for the coming year and also discussed its year's project, "Improvement of Buildings". Mrs. Martha Forrest, president, presided over the meeting.

Sue Brickhouse, county home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on the care of electrical appliances in the home and emphasized the care of the refrigerator.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Hugh Hardee and Mrs. L. T. Hardee, hostesses, served refreshments. After the meeting adjourned, the group discussed the menu for the men's fellowship supper which will be held September 12.

A margin of error of about 10 per cent must be conceded in estimates of the total world population based on those countries which conduct periodic counts.

Water Pressure At Fire Site Said 'Low'

By ROY HARDEE
 Yesterday's destructive flash fire which destroyed the Sinclair oil distributing plant brought comments from citizens and firemen alike that water pressure in the area was low, preventing firemen from having a strong enough supply of water to battle the blaze for some time.

Gardner stated that water pressure on the first hose lines laid into the heart of the fire were "very weak and prevented the men from getting in close to the blaze."
 "For about the first 20 or 30 minutes the flow of water was not as it should have been," Chief Gardner stated.

Firemen working the Mack pumper which supplied the water for the fire fighters stated that the flow of water coming from the hydrant was so weak that the suction line running from the hydrant into the truck could be pressed together with hand pressure.

Firemen reported that the flow of water picked up sometime later and strong enough streams of water were usable.

A large half-million gallon storage tank is located just a short ways from the fire.

Greenville Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz today declared that there was plenty of water in the lines at the time of the fire. He further stated that the reason the flow of water was slack was due to the fact that the fire department hooked up two pumps to a six inch line at two hydrants which reduced the water's flow.

"There is a 10-inch line connected with a hydrant at the corner of Chestnut and Line Avenue which could have been used but was not," Swartz stated. This line carrying a pressure of 46 pounds was supplied by the large storage tank.

After the first 20 or 30 minutes of the fire, fire fighters had plenty of pressure on the hose lines from the six-inch line.

Only one pumper was hooked to the hydrant and three hose lines were run from it. A fourth line was laid from a hydrant some distance up Dickinson Avenue, but no pumper was used, the fire department stated.

Other difficulties encountered by the fire department yesterday was

General View Of Oil Company Fire

Firemen fought the roaring flames at the Sinclair bulk plant fire yesterday morning from behind barricades to protect themselves from the heat. Above firemen use a stream of water in an effort to cool down the fire, keeping it from the five large storage tanks shown to the far right. Firemen prevented the loss of any of the tanks which would have endangered the entire area. (Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

The failure of a second-call reserve pumper to start, and the bursting of over 300 feet of hose.

One of the two trucks called into service on the second alarm failed to start and considerable effort had to be used to bring it to the scene of the fire.

It was the second time this year that the truck has been called out on a second alarm and has failed to leave the station under its own power.

The faulty hose yesterday brings to around 800 feet of hose which has given way while being used at fires.

Warming Up

Warmer weather prevailed in this area yesterday and last night. Highest temperature yesterday was 89 degrees. Lowest last night, 65, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 72. A slight drizzle of rain fell here yesterday.

Today one year ago more than an inch of rain fell here.

Tossed Matches Do Start Fires

ROSEVILLE, Cal. (UP)—Two North Sacramento brothers were held on $5,000 bail today because one bet the other $5 that tossing of a match from a speeding car would not start a fire.

They were arrested after being spotted by an airplane patrol which followed the path of several small fires along the road.

LOADED WITH LUCK
 EAST POINT, Ga. (UP)—A suburban Atlanta family says it won't be surprised at any good luck that happens now. A daughter, Linda, 12, found 46 four-leaf clovers while playing in a yard. For extra measure, she came up with five clovers that had six leaves.

AD MAN CASHES IN
 MILWAUKEE (UP)—A Milwaukee beer depot operator advertises a "television packet" of beer. The packet contains six bottles of beer, each a different brand, so the TV viewer can switch brands as he switches programs and watch each beer sponsor's show with a clean conscience.

WINE FOR COWS
 ROME (AP)—Italy has agreed to send Switzerland 400,000 liters of wine in exchange for cattle. The transaction, outside of the current clearing agreement between the two countries, will bring Italian wine producers an average of 20 Swiss francs per hundred liters of wine.

WHAT NO BEER?
 ST. LOUIS (UP)—Mrs. John N. Law says her pet fox terrier, Ginny, has expropriated the ottoman in front of the family TV set, watching the show with rapt attention. The dog walks away from the set only when beer commercials come on.

 join the Farm Bureau or renew your membership and support the organization," he said in concluding.

Pearson, who is president of the North Carolina Agricultural Foundation, explained its mission. Through funds provided by the foundation, State College is now in position to hire the best specialists for teachers and to keep distinguished scientists who may be enticed away to other states by higher salaries.

J. B. Bunting of Bethel, president of Pitt County Farm Bureau, presided. Dr. M. T. Frizelle of Ayden said the invitation. Floyd F. Hendrix introduced the speaker.

Arch J. Flanagan of Farmville, chairman of the Farm Bureau membership drive for 1952, outlined plans for the campaign.

Capt. W. E. Little of Grimesland, educational director, outlined the Farm Bureau educational program for Pitt County.

Sam C. Winchester, Pitt County farm agent, explained the mechanics of the membership drive.

 tractor could proceed with the project as soon as possible. (The contractor would in turn buy them from the Utilities).

He further stated that he had done so under the impression that members of the Commission knew the materials were being requisitioned. He was backed up in that by Chairman Roy Martin who stated he and Pace and city treasurer Chester Harris had okayed the orders.

However, Kittrell and Pace were placed on a committee to draw up the resolution which would place in the Commission's lap the authority for ordering such materials.

Crossroads . . .

 Nobody living in nations that enjoy a free press and radio will believe them, but they will make powerful propaganda in the Iron Curtain countries. They now will revive talk that the real reason the United Nations army is in Korea is, not to defend a sovereign nation against aggression, but to use the battle-field as a springboard for the conquest of Asia.

It all shapes up making the next 10 days decisive on the matter of whether there will be peace or war on and around the 38th Parallel.

Academic . . .

 position would have done if he had been Secretary of State and had any sense at all—he shut up the Russians and rammed through the treaty.

If he hadn't done so, if he had let the Russians run with the ball, he would have looked inexcusably ridiculous, and for a good reason: the dice were loaded against the Russians before the conference began.

There is no doubt, as the nationwide TV audience could see for itself, that Acheson handled himself with quiet dignity, some wit, and a chilling firmness against the Russians when they tried to shoot off firecrackers.

 But the real job of wrecking the Russian wrecking crew was done before the conference started. The U. S. had lined up enough allies and friends, getting them to the conference and knowing they could be depended upon, to frustrate any Russian tricks when the conference got under way.

So the real job of handling the conference was done before it began. In this Acheson had to share honors with John Foster Dulles, the Republican who put the treaty together and worked it out with U.S. allies.

When the conference started, Acheson had the score in front of him. All he had to do was blow the whistle on the Russians. They had to dance to the pre-arranged tune.

Whether this treaty in the end will mean bad news for the U.S., as Senator Malone seems to think, can't be forecast with certainty by anyone this early.

Being human, the Japanese will be on the lookout for the best way to feather their own nest, making their decision in the long run on that basis and not on whether it's good for us or the communists.

'Gag Bid' Won Property That Will Be Costly
 PITTSBURGH (UP)—Thomas W. Haley of Mt. Lebanon Township was given a second thought today to a $2 "gag bid" he made on a piece of township property up for sale.
 He said his bid, the only one entered on a 78 by 40 foot lot, was entered as a gag and that he had never seen the property.
 "I don't know what I'll do with it. I haven't even seen it," he said.
 However, when he learned that it was virtually impossible to construct a building on it because of zoning and building restrictions and that tax assessments were $820 he said, "I guess I'll have to look into that."

Burglar Alarm Caught Inventor
 PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Jacques Whaumbush, 45-year-old watchman, wished today that the special burglar alarm he designed for a group of apartment houses where he works was not so efficient.
 The alarm worked perfectly Wednesday night and patrolman Vincent Mercurio arrived in time to collar the burglar.
 Last night, Mercurio heard the watchman's unusual name called out at the police recall. He drove to the apartment house and arrested Whaumbush on several traffic violation charges.

'Voice' Radio Planned In N. C.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department reported today that a new and powerful radio transmitter will beam Voice of America broadcasts direct to Russia from North Carolina.
 A department spokesman said one transmitter will be erected in North Carolina and another near Seattle, Wash. The exact sites, he said, have not yet been determined and are "still under negotiation."
 Construction will begin in the "very near future," as soon as the land has been purchased.
 The spokesman said the transmitter in North Carolina will have an output powerful enough to reach listeners in European Russia, Africa and Latin America.

BANANAS COME HIGH
 JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP)—Lydia M. Holley paid a dear price for a bunch of bananas. As she leaned over to select the bananas from a produce truck, a diamond brooch worth $1,000 dropped from her dress. She didn't miss it until after the driver had pulled away.
