Helicopters Take Troops To Front

First Use Of Giant 'Whirlbirds' In Combat Airlift Operation; Red Resistance Intensifying; See-Saw Fighting Heaviest Since July

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—The United States Marines called helicopters into action today to take combat troops to the eastern front where the Allies fought a murderous, merciless uphill battle against fanatic Reds.

It was believed to be the first helicopter airlift of combat troops in history. A fleet of 94 of the Marines' new 'Whirlbird' Sikorsky helicopters were summoned to fly a Marine reconnaissance unit to the blazing front and supply it in an isolated, important mountain position inaccessible by road.

The huge Whirlbirds flew from an advanced base with Marine infantrymen carrying full packs. They landed in the front lines at one minute intervals without the loss of a man and formed an aerial supply train throughout the day. They laid wire communications and took in supplies and ammunition after all troops were landed.

The helicopters flew in a total of 228 troops and 17,772 pounds of gear.

Communist resistance on the whole eastern front was intensifying steadily and aerial scouts reported an increase in enemy road traffic toward the front.

Hills were taken both by Allied and Red troops, only to be lost in counter-attacks.

Front dispatches said the see-saw fighting was the heaviest since the start of armistice talks July 10. Allied troops scrambled up wooded slopes among some of the roughest hills in Korea against North Koreans and some Chinese deeply entrenched and bunkered on the crests.

The well-equipped Reds fought ferociously to hold or recapture hills lost earlier in the six-week-old Allied eastern front offensive. In some sectors, they forced the Allies to give ground grudgingly. But the U.N. forces slammed back in counter-attacks.

Gen. William M. Hoge, second ranking officer in the 8th Army, told U.P. war correspondent Robert C. Miller that the new Red troops on the line were better equipped and had more firepower than ever before.

However, he said the fresh Communist troops were not as good soldiers as their predecessors. He said increasing Communist desertions were a sure sign of lowering enemy morale. The whole eastern and east-central fronts except for the coastal area were aflame. Some of the heaviest fighting was above Yangju at the eastern end of the Hwachon Reservoir, where the Allies were storming the next high ground north of notorious 'Bloody Ridge.'

The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo, three American destroyers, three rocket ships and a destroyer escort joined U.N. planes Tuesday night in giving Wosnan one of its heaviest poundings in the seven-month bombardment of that Communist east coast port.

Narcotics Found On Seattle Ship

SEATTLE (UP)—Customs agents said today that narcotics worth $7,000 were smuggled into the U.S. through Seattle Tuesday. The narcotics including 321 capsules of cocaine and 13 packages of heroin, were discovered in packages of cigarettes brought off a vessel here by a 35-year-old sailor.

Battle-Trained Army

Two Results Of Korean Campaign: Halting Reds In Asia And Providing West With Reservoir Of Trained Troops; Morale High In History's Best Army

By EARNEST HOBERECHT

EDITOR'S NOTE: Earnest Hoberecht, United Press General manager for Asia, substitutes today for Foreign News Editor Harry Ferguson.

NEW YORK (UP)—The war in Korea is not only halting Communist aggression in Asia. It also is providing the free nations with a reservoir of trained troops for possible European duty. Combat troops in Korea know this and are going about their job in a professional way.

While the American troops in Korea admittedly would like to be returned home, they realize at the same time that they are needed there. Morale is high and most of them are willing to do their share in Asia before being rotated to 'stateside' duty and possible reassignment to Europe.

The battle-trained veterans of Korea realize communism is a real thing, a threat they must meet daily. And to the men in the front lines, there can be no compromise

Langston Says No Slot Machines Found In Checks

Police Chief Says He Has Been Told Local Clubs Disposed Of Them

Two Greenville clubs were among those in North Carolina listed by the Office of Internal Revenue in Greensboro today as having federal licenses to operate slot machines which are illegal under the laws of North Carolina.

The office reported the two Greenville clubs have purchased licenses to operate six of the 212 federally taxed slot machines in the state.

The two local clubs reported having bought stamps for the operation of the machines are the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks No. 1645, 589 Evans Street, two machines; and the Royal Order of the Moose, 903 1/2 Dickinson Avenue, four machines.

Stamps for the operation of the slot machines are sold for $150 per machine for a year. The stamps issued and reported by the Revenue office were for the period from July 1, 1951 through June 30, 1952.

Greenville Police Chief Guy C. Langston, when asked about the slot machines this morning, said machines were reported in the clubs early in the year, but he had been advised that the machines were removed before the police department began its periodic inspections of local clubs in the spring.

"We have made inspections of all clubs since we started our program," the chief stated, "and we have found no slot machines. I have been told by members of those two clubs that they have had slot machines in the past, but they have been disposed of. They didn't say what manner they used to dispose of the machines."

Inspections of the Elks Club were made on July 5, 1951 at 9:40 p.m.; Red Rose Social Club on Albemarle Avenue, July 5, at 10:00 a.m.; and the Tropicanna Club on Bonner's Lane on July 5 at 10:20.

The Elks Club was again inspected on September 4, 1951 at 9 p.m. and the Negro Elks Club on Bonner's Lane and Clark Street at 9:25 the same date. The Tropicanna Club again on September 4 at 9:55 and the Moose Lodge on Dickinson Ave. at 10:15, September 4, and the Red Rose Social Club on the same date at 10:40.

In further commenting on the inspections, Langston stated that the clubs were not "searched" but inspection made of all rooms in the club. "We were checking at that time for gambling or gambling devices of any type and there were none observed in any of the places," he said.

Langston stated also that members of both the Moose and Elks Clubs had contacted him, saying that they were glad of the inspections and would cooperate in any way possible. "I believe if we have had slot machines in the city, we don't have them now."

"We pull these inspections whenever we feel like it. The officers don't even know about it until I tell them to go," Langston stated that he had not been with the officers on any of the inspection trips.

"I have no comment on future action by the Police Department at this time," Chief Langston added. Mayor Lester D. Page this morning, when asked about the licensing of machines in the two clubs, said:

Half-Way Point In Uniform Drive

Solicitors Hopeful Band Fund Ready Today Or Friday

Merchants Association officials announced this morning that the half-way mark has been reached in the drive to secure funds for 60 new uniforms for the Greenville High School band.

The drive officially got underway yesterday morning, but many of the solicitors already had secured donations for the uniforms before yesterday. Members of the committee this morning expressed the hope that the remainder of the money necessary to purchase the uniforms will be secured today or tomorrow so the order for the uniforms can be placed next week.

Yesterday about noon the Greenville High band paraded through downtown Greenville clad in dungarees, patched pants, old shirts and peculiar looking hats in behalf of the campaign for new uniforms. Some of the members of the band paraded without shoes despite the fall nip in the air.

Principal O. E. Dowd of the high school said four bids on the purchase of the uniforms already have been received by the school and two more are expected within the next day or two. Although nothing definite has been decided about the new uniforms, Dowd said there is a possibility that a new type uniform and new colors may be selected for the band. The committee which will decide on the new uniforms is slated to meet early next week.

Youths Calmly Admit Murder

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—A cold-blooded college freshman and two teen-aged companions admitted they killed a nurse for $135 beer money.

"We needed some beer money so we went out looking for someone to rob," said William Morrey, 18-year-old freshman at Michigan Normal College. "But we only got $135 among us."

Max Pell, of Ypsilanti, Mich., and David Royal, of Milan, Mich., both also 18, also confessed to the bludgeoning slaying of nurse Pauline Campbell, 34, at Ann Arbor last Saturday night.

"I've never seen a cooler, more cold-blooded bunch in my life," said Ann Arbor Police Chief Casper Enkemann.

The three were arrested last night after Dan Baughey, 19, son of a Ypsilanti Methodist minister, told police Morrey had confided in him last week that he had attacked another nurse three days before the murder. Police had been searching for a 'nurse-hating maniac' because of recent attacks on nurses climaxed by the Campbell slaying.

Anti-West Rally Ordered Tonight In Soviet Berlin

BERLIN (UP)—Communist authorities ordered an anti-West rally tonight on the border of the Soviet and French sectors of Berlin and authorities feared a serious riot would break out if the Red wave there were not held back.

Communist leaders were ordered to march at the border line for the rally to protest against alleged provocations by Western authorities against communism.

100 members of the Red "Free German Youth" invaded the American sector last night and tore down a barrier crossing a rickety canal bridge to traffic because it was unsafe. The Reds threw the barrier into the canal with shouts of "Americans, go home. We're of German unity" and "Down with the American barricades."

Erwin Stresses New Mission In Teaching

Teaching Of Freedom And Democracy Added To Three R's, Says N. C. Superintendent Of Public Instruction

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer BETHEL—The mission of teachers today is more important than it has ever been, stated Dr. Clyde Erwin, superintendent of public instruction in North Carolina, before teachers at the meeting of the Pitt County unit of the North Carolina Education Association last night in the Bethel High School.

"A challenge has grown to teachers that the three 'R's' are not as important as an understanding of the freedom and democracy we have in our nation," Erwin said. "A single generation can lose the freedom and democracy which must be preserved, therefore we cannot remain aloof to the obligation we have in preserving our rights. The teacher has the destiny of the country in her hand," Erwin stated further.

In his speech Erwin touched on the historical documents which should be preserved in the minds of the youth of the state and nation. He called the historical institutions "milestones of democracy" and said through influence the time has come for the teachers to teach these things to the children.

Erwin also said that teachers in North Carolina are going into the best facilities the state has ever provided. "Not all of the work in our schools is completed," Erwin said, "but we have new and modern buildings, and have reconditioned and modernized other buildings. There are 1,535 new lunchrooms in the schools in the state, 100 more new school buses, and the enrollment and need for teachers is increasing."

At the beginning of the first meeting of the year for the NCEA in Pitt County, host principal Walter Latham welcomed the teachers to the town of Bethel and the teachers presented their welcome with a "singing commercial."

Bulgarian Lecturer To Speak At JC Meeting

Tsvetan Litov, Bulgarian lecturer and church leader, will address members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce tonight, marking the third address he has delivered in Greenville as representative of the National Committee for Free Europe.

The meeting will be held at the Woman's Club at 6:30 instead of at the usual meeting place of the club. Presidents of other civic clubs in the city have been invited to attend.

Litov is sponsored in his series of addresses here by the Jaycees. His address tonight is expected to concern present conditions in Europe, both to free nations and those under Communist domination. As representative of the National Committee, he will also inform the club of the work that is being done by his organization and how local civic clubs can help.

Have We Still Got'em?

He came to this country in 1947 on a scholarship from the Methodist Church for the purpose of furthering his study at Emory University in Georgia. He is an ordained elder in the Methodist Church, having studied theology in a German university.

Litov has spoken twice since coming here, once to the Parent-Teachers Association of the Training School and to students at East Carolina.

There will be no meeting of the board of directors of the Jaycees tonight.

REVOLT IN BRAZIL RIO DE JANEIRO (UP)—Reports from Sao Paulo said today that Maranhao state in Brazil is in "armed revolt" against newly-installed Gov. Eugenio de Barros.

Illegal "one armed bandits" popped up in the headlines again today with the announcement by the Office of Internal Revenue that two clubs in Greenville had paid stamps for operating the outlawed slot machines. Two machines were listed for the Elks Club on Evans Street, and four for the Moose club. Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hodges.

Washington Wins Supreme Court's Utilities Ruling

Dunn Says Grimesland Franchise Decision Has Wide Implications

By JOHN D. SPINKS JR. Reflector City Editor Grimesland's suit against the Washington Utilities came to an end yesterday when the State Supreme Court upheld the superior court decision to allow Washington to extend its power lines into Grimesland-served territory.

The decision, written by Chief Justice W. A. Devin before he was elevated to his present court position, made Washington the victor in the suit which was first instituted in superior court in 1947.

Devin's ruling will give the Washington Utilities the privilege of interlacing its power lines with those of Grimesland south of Pamlico River and conceivably as far as Vanceboro, paralleling those of the Greenville Utilities.

Devin did not question the right of Grimesland to "construct and maintain an electric system for the distribution of electric current to consumers beyond its corporate limits."

However, he averred, "having the right to engage in this business gives (Grimesland) no exclusive franchise and, if from lawful competition its business be curtailed, it would seem that no actionable wrong would result, nor would it be entitled to injunctive relief."

Meanwhile, in Greenville today Albin Dunn, one of the attorneys for Grimesland, stated that the ruling "means that Virginia Electric and Power Company will have the right to eventually move into the area and distribute its own power."

He based his opinion on the fact that Washington recently tied up with VEPCO in an exchange of power agreement, as did other municipally-owned utilities in this vicinity.

Dunn said the Grimesland attorneys wrote that opinion in their brief on the suit after it was appealed to the Supreme Court. In Beaufort superior court last June they had attempted to make VEPCO a party to the suit, but Judge W. H. S. Burgyn denied it.

S. O. Worthington, local attorney who was also involved in the superior court proceedings, advanced the opinion today that Washington could eventually extend its own lines to the fringes of Greenville's lines in the Vanceboro area.

The June hearing of the suit never came before a jury, since the lawyers involved agreed to allow Burgyn to decide the case on the merits of law. He decided against Grimesland, which had had an injunction against Washington extending its lines south of the river. Up until early 1949, Grimesland

Army Claims New Guided Missile

Designed For Ground-To-Ground Targets; Well Tested

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army has revealed development of a new guided missile designed to be fired from the ground against ground targets such as enemy troops and installations.

Brief information about the new surface-to-surface missile, called the "Corporal E," was given to newsmen last night after a picture of the weapon was given to a picture news magazine.

The Army refused to reveal any information about the new missile except the caption under the picture, which said: "The Corporal E, a surface-guided missile, has been developed as a research instrument by the U. S. Army Ordnance. The Corporal E is the fourth missile of a series of different types developed under Army supervision. It is a companion development of the 'Wac,' which was the first guided missile of any type designed and built wholly in the United States."

Although the caption called it a "research instrument," reports have indicated that the missile will be designated an operational weapon.

Reason For Hope In Korean Talks

Plan Demo Bolt

BIRMINGHAM (AP)—A suit to clear the way for Alabama Democrats to bolt the party's presidential ticket again in 1952 was filed today in circuit court here.

It is a petition for a declaratory judgment against the State Democratic Executive Committee, now in the hands of members who want to stand by the national ticket.

The suit seeks to have the committee barred from requiring Democratic candidates for presidential elector to pledge their votes to the national party nominees.

It was filed by Attorney Horace C. Wilkinson, an elector in 1948, and a wheeler in the States Rights group which steered Alabama's 11 electoral votes into the Thurmond-Wright camp that year.

Wilkinson's petition is based on the assumption that the state committee will require all candidates for elector next year to pledge their votes to all Democratic nominees, state or national.

U. S. May Build British Bomber

Designer Flies Here To Discuss 600 MPH Jet Warplane

LONDON (UP)—A top British aircraft designer has flown to the United States to discuss the possibility of production there of Britain's new, 600-mile-an-hour jet bomber, reliable sources said today.

George R. Edwards, chief designer for the Vickers-Armstrong Aircraft Co., left Tuesday to discuss the fine points of the four-jet Vickers Valiant with U.S. experts, but his departure was not reported until today.

The Valiant, considered by British airmen to be the "fastest plane of its class in the world," is designed to operate at altitudes up to 60,000 feet. It carries no guns.

"We don't need guns on that plane, because no fighter in the world can catch it at the altitudes from which it attacks," one source said.

British aviation circles said Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U.S. air chief, inspected the Valiant when he was in Britain recently, and said that in some respects it is better than anything America now has in the air.

It was not certain which features of the plane impressed Vandenberg, but British sources say their plane can fly higher than the U.S. B-36 from a shorter runway than is needed for America's all-jet B-47.

Yesterday's sales on the Greenville tobacco market pushed beyond the 30-million pound mark which is only a few hundred thousand pounds short of last year's mid-season total.

Pounds sold yesterday amounted to 1,518,924, bringing farmers $513,703.36. The average was $53.57. The four-hour sales pushed the season total to 30,072,284 pounds for a total of $15,141,947.48 paid out. The season average for the 21 days stands now at $50.30.

The average yesterday was third highest of the season here. Monday's sales provided the top figure—$55.26. Tuesday's sales were $53.92.

'Some Sort Of Cease-Fire' Viewed Possible As Communists Propose Resumption Of Talks Without Further Bickering Over Alleged Kaesong Violations

TOKYO (UP)—The United Nations command said Thursday night there is reason for hope that a Communist proposal for immediate resumption of armistice talks may lead to "some sort of a cease-fire in Korea."

Speedy U.N. acceptance of the Communist proposal to reopen the Kaesong armistice conference was expected. The truce delegations may resume their talks before the end of the week.

The Communist commanders proposed resumption of the talks without further bickering over alleged violations of Kaesong's neutrality in a note to supreme U.N. commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Smiling Red liaison officers delivered the note to their Allied counterparts at Pan Mun Jom on the southern edge of the Kaesong neutral zone at a 20-minute meeting Thursday.

1. Proposed immediate resumption of the armistice negotiations "without any need for further discussion of the conditions for the resumption..."

2. Suggested that the truce delegates at their first meeting set up machinery to guarantee Kaesong's neutrality and deal with "unsettled" Communist complaints of prior U.N. violations.

3. Expressed hope that Ridgway would order U.N. liaison officers to consult Communist liaison officers at once "concerning the date and time for resuming the negotiations."

The Communist decision to end the suspension of the cease-fire talks came just 29 days after the Reds broke off negotiations on a trumped-up charge that U.N. planes had tried to bomb the Communist delegation's headquarters at Kaesong.

First U.N. reaction to the Communist note was a news release by Ridgway's public information office. It was made up of excerpts from the "Voice of the U.N. Command" broadcasts to Korea.

The release said the Reds appeared to have changed their policy in Korea and "perhaps... have adopted a more reasonable attitude toward the cease-fire talks."

"There is reason for hope that the latest reversal in policy and agreement to renew the peace talks may bring some sort of a cease-fire in Korea," the release said.

"If the Reds have in fact adopted a more reasonable attitude toward the resumption of the talks and the abandonment of the sidesteps at Kaesong, they also might be willing to reach a militarily sound agreement on a cease-fire," the statement said.

The U.N. command has not "changed its mind or backed down on its principles" since Aug. 23 and "stands ready now to negotiate on the same terms as before," it said.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The average city dweller with a wife and two children needs $3,600 to $4,200 a year to maintain a "modest but adequate" standard of living, the government reported today.

An elderly, retired couple needs about half that much, according to the Labor Department's monthly labor review. The estimates were included in the results of a 34-city survey of the annual budget required by a family and a 65-year-old couple.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain and any political group running it may be in for a bad time this winter.

Living costs are rising. There may be food and fuel shortages, even though both are rationed now. And labor is demanding wage increases.

In the British elections of 1949 Clement Attlee's Labor Party handed Winston Churchill's Conservatives a whopping defeat.

Committee Appointments Are Read At Third Street P.T.A.

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Third Street School held its first meeting of the current school year yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the school.

Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, president, presided and the devotional was led by Mrs. Lawson House. Miss Missbeth Norman led the group in prayer, while Miss Laura Foley, principal, gave a very inspiring reading entitled "A Child's Touch." A Hasty for parents was led by Mrs. Whedbee.

Third Street organization was accredited as a standard association. The group decided to have a Halloween festival this year as in the past. This is one of the big projects of the year and one from which the association always realizes a tidy sum to finance their activities for the school.

In concluding the meeting, Miss Foley urged parents to visit the school regularly and often. The attendance prize was won by Miss Norman's first grade.

Because of the necessary business which was conducted, a formal program was not presented. The president appointed the following committees for the year:

Program: Mrs. Robert Tunnell, chairman; Mrs. Linwood Worthington, Mrs. Burke Stancill and Miss Laura Foley; Ways and Means: Mrs. Arthur Andrews, chairman; Mrs. Percy Allen, Mrs. Rex Hodges and Mrs. W. B. James; Membership: Mrs. Nelson Bowden and Mrs. Jasper Jones; Room Representatives: Mrs. Alf Forbes and Mrs. Harold Forbes; Welfare: Mrs. Glenn Scott; Publicity: Mrs. Joe Moore; Publications: Mrs. W. N. Moore.

The organization decided to hold its regular monthly meetings on the second Wednesday of each month instead of the third Wednesday as in the past due to the conflict with the other P.T.A.'s in the city.

A certificate from the State P.T.A. was displayed signifying that the

Press Meeting Set For Raleigh

WILSON — The Fall meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association will be held in Raleigh, October 12 and 13. The date was set at a meeting of the association's board of directors here Tuesday.

The host for the meeting will be the Raleigh News and Observer, Mrs. Elizabeth O. Swindell of Wilson, president of the association, announced following the meeting.

Headquarters for the Raleigh meeting will be the Hotel Sir Walter.

"What is eastern North Carolina doing to improve its agriculture and industry?" that's the question that will form the theme of the meeting. It was decided at the spring meeting in Edenton that newspapers of the area will make an all-out effort this year to help in bringing more industry and improving agriculture in the East. Steps of progress will be announced at the Raleigh meeting.

Sam Ragan, managing editor of the News and Observer, will formulate plans for the convention.

Litov Addresses PTA Meeting

By MARTHA S. FORBES

Life in Bulgaria under the domination of the Communists was dramatically and clearly pictured last night when Mr. Tzvetan Litov, a Bulgarian minister and civic leader, addressed a large and interested audience at the Parent-Teachers Association meeting at the Training School last night.

"Our hope is upon the United States on this earth and on God in Heaven," was the message that his countrymen asked Mr. Litov to bring to the Americans when he left his country three years ago to enter the United States under a scholarship from the Methodist Church.

The meeting was preceded by a picnic held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Haar, at which time the members of the Executive Board and their husbands were hosts to the speaker, the members of the school faculty, and a few invited guests. These special guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mr. Josef Schwarz, a German educator who is visiting on the college campus making a study of instructional methods, and Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins.

A brief business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Dink James, before the introduction of the speaker by Dr. Jenkins. Mr. Schwarz was also introduced and made a few remarks. The invocation was given by Dean W. E. Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilkerson entertained a few close friends on Sunday night at an informal supper party to honor their house guest, Mr. A. C. Sampietro, and his fiancée, Miss Nina Bradley.

Guests were close friends of the couple and the host and hostess who greeted them at the door and invited them into the rooms which were simply decorated with early fall flowers in attractive informal arrangements.

From the table in the dining room, which was centered with a low bowl of fall blossoms and leaves, chicken chow mein and a tossed salad were served from silver platters. Guests served themselves to the delicious accompaniments.

Fourteen guests were present.

FCC Clings To New Rate Plans

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is sticking by its original plan to let Western Union increase telegram rates nine to 50 per cent.

It refused yesterday to make any changes in the rates which became effective Sept. 1, and made public a letter it sent the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) which is protesting new and higher press rates.

The FCC letter was to Julius Ochs Adler, chairman of the ANPA Press Communications Committee, and said it felt the rate revisions were reasonable.

However, the FCC said in effect that if ANPA wishes it may begin a new proceeding before the commission to set up a separate schedule of charges for press messages, now quoted on a ration of full-rate telegrams.

ANPA had opposed the rate changes and had asked FCC reconsideration on grounds press messages were now much too high in comparison with regular wires.

Hormones Used To Help Trees

KUALA LUMPUR —(AP)— Hormone treatment may give a big boost to the production of latex in the Federation of Malaya.

Producers claim that commercial production of a recently discovered stimulant would increase the yield of latex from rubber trees by 20 percent annually.

The stimulant is said to be a combination of plant hormones in an oil base. Although new to the rubber industry, plant hormones now have numerous uses in other branches of agriculture, including the preservation of potatoes in storage, rooting of cuttings and the prevention of the early fall of fruit.

In the early days of the New York City elevated trains, which were powered by steam engines, housewives, angered because soot blackened their laundry, sometimes hurled bricks at the engineers.

Army Almost Certain To Buy Its Beef Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army said today it got offers of only 190,000 pounds of beef in response to its request for bids on 13,000,000 pounds.

Only two of 212 packers solicited for bids made offers.

This seemed to make certain that the Army now would turn to overseas markets to get the boneless or carcass beef it needs for supplying the European Command.

The Army announced yesterday that if domestic packers failed to provide the needed amount it would request authority from Army Secretary Pace to buy overseas.

The packers have given government price controls and a shortage of high quality beef as reasons for refusing to submit bids.

Requests for bids were put out by the Chicago Quartermaster Office and results were sent on to the Pentagon during the night. An Army spokesman this morning told reporters:

"The Army requested 212 packers to submit bids on 13,000,000 pounds of beef meat needed. Of the 212 packers solicited, 83 replied to the Army's request.

"Of this number, only two made offers to supply beef. These two offered a total of 190,000 pounds.

Most of the large packers, a Chicago area marketing officer said, told him they could not bid on the "urgently needed" beef because they cannot buy enough cattle to slaughter without suffering losses.

The Army in Washington said if the request for the beef is not met, the Quartermaster General will seek authority from Army Secretary Pace to buy beef "off shore"—foreign countries.

If foreign meat is purchased, the Army said, it will be used to meet requirements of American forces in Europe, relieving a drain on West Coast supply sources. The West Coast sources normally ship to the Far East and to military installations in the United States.

American Public Is Saving Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—The two "scare buying" flurries caused by the Korean War and is now salting away its savings at a peacetime peak of 21 billion dollars a year.

The Federal Reserve Board said this was the savings rate for the three-month period ending July 1, and since then it may have increased even further.

It predicted savings will continue at this high level and help curb inflation.

The first wave of "scare buying" came in July-September 1950 after the start of the Korean War. It was so sharp it slashed the annual saving rate to only $4,600,000,000. The second, following Chinese Communist intervention in the war, cut the savings rate for the first quarter of 1951 to $9,300,000,000.

Until recently, when the Marines asked the 13,000 draftees, the Army was the only service to use the draft since it was revived after the Korean War. All the services face a heavy turnover late this year, with the release of reserves.

A new reserve program approved yesterday by a House Armed Services subcommittee would divide all reserves into three classes—ready, standby and retired. The President, after he had declared an emergency, could call up only the ready reserve, and then only if the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of Defense found the action needed for national security.

The bill would also ban the President from calling up reserves beyond the size of the armed forces authorized by Congress—now 6,000,000.

Navy, Air Force May Use Draft

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy and the Air Force may soon have to resort to the draft to meet their manpower needs, a Defense Department spokesman said yesterday.

Very dangerous is the "satisfaction" duel arising from a dispute and may involve a girl friend or times arise from these fights.

Among the duelling equipment found in the raided fraternities police found a new and unusual referee's instructions. Previously the referee had only asked the men to fight fairly. The new instructions read:

In the friendly "scar-producing" duel, only certain types of blows are allowed. The men wear arm guards and throat protectors.

Beer is often poured over the duelling wound to produce a slight infection and increase the size of the scar.

Duelling Is Gaining As German Fad

By HAROLD MELAHN HEIDELBERG, Germany (UP)—Student duelling has returned to Germany despite a post-war ban, university authorities report.

The scarred cheek again has become a mark of courage and honor. Students reported university fraternity men have been ordered by their officers to practice duelling secretly once a week and prepare for possible challenges.

Occupation authorities first banned the sport because it was practiced by aristocratic fraternities from which the elite of the army officer corps was selected. It was thought to promote German militarism and nationalism.

University authorities continued the duelling ban and fraternities allowed to organize had to promise not to duel. Since then the ban has been increasingly evaded.

The duels are held in secrecy either at a secluded country spot or in the attic of the fraternity, guarded by underclassmen and the weapons, masks and arm guards are kept hidden.

At Goettingen University police raided fraternity houses after authorities suspected duelling. They picked up dozens of foils and sabers but were unable to prosecute because they could not prove the students actually duelled with them.

Duelling is being urged by the old university graduates, many of whom wear the three or four inch scar on their cheeks. They have insisted that the new fraternity member again take up the manly sport. In two cases the students in the fraternity have split with the grads and lost their fraternity houses.

A member of a duelling fraternity may be called on to fight two kinds of duel. Most are "friendly" involving a brother fraternity member, interested only in gaining the prized scar.

Very dangerous is the "satisfaction" duel arising from a dispute and may involve a girl friend or times arise from these fights.

Emphatic Reminder That Band Needs Uniforms

Dungarees, patched pants and torn shirts comprised the uniform of the day for the parade yesterday of the Greenville High School band in behalf of the campaign of the Merchants Association to secure funds for the purchase of 60 new uniforms for the band. The parade which previously was unannounced caught Greenville's business district off guard, but the appearance of the band in its improvised uniforms attracted more attention than the music. # Sentenced In Contempt Of Wednesday's Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee sentenced Robert L. Williams, Negro, recently released from a Virginia prison, to 10 days in county jail for contempt of court.

Williams was being tried on two charges. One was for breaking and entering and damaging personal property; the other was for assaulting with a deadly weapon with intent to kill Eliza Dudley, Negro, last November. The defendant was brought back here for trial after serving time at Norfolk, Va.

Williams was insolent in his attitude toward the court. Judge Whedbee recessed the session for a few minutes, then resumed the sitting. He sentenced Williams to 10 days for contempt, and the defendant heard it with nonchalance.

In the case charging Williams with breaking and entering, the court found probable cause and bound him over to Superior Court. It also found probable cause in the case charging him with assault with a deadly weapon and bound him over to Superior Court. Williams was unable to provide bail.

Dennis Sessoma, Negro, was given six months on the roads or pay $25 and costs for not having a driver's license. Two other cases charging following too close and having improper brakes were consolidated with the first case.

Edward Mooring, driving drunk, was fined $100 and costs and his driver's license was ordered revoked for a year. The court fined him $25 and costs for careless and reckless driving, and not propped the case charging him with failure to stop at a "stop" traffic light.

Acko Staten, Negro, paid $5 for failure to stop at a traffic signal light and $25 and costs for not having a driver's license.

Henry L. McLawhorn, following too close, was given 30 days, suspended on payment of $5 on costs and he was ordered to surrender his driver's license until he makes restitution for property damage.

James G. Rodman, Negro, was found not guilty of assault.

Clarence E. Mills was fined $5 for passing a vehicle on the right. Speeding: Charlie Lee Taft, Negro, $20, costs deducted; Roy Lee Ross, $15; Richard C. Tarmon, $20, costs deducted; Willie E. Gardner, Negro, $15; Johnnie C. Peterson, $20; costs deducted; William T. Richardson, Negro, $10; Claude Vines, Negro, $15.

William E. Morgan was fined $15 for speeding and $5 for failure to stop at a "stop" sign.

William Peterson, Jr., Negro, was fined $25 and costs for not having a driver's license.

Walter Dupree, Negro, was fined $10 for interfering with an officer in the performance of his duty.

Sam B. Stocks, $25 and costs for careless and reckless driving.

David Wiggins, violation of a court order, was taxed with court costs and ordered to surrender his driver's license for 45 days.

The case against Henry W. Anderson, worthless check, was not processed.

Drunk: Purba L. Williams, Negro, 30 days in jail or pay $10; William S. Jenkins, Negro, $15; William G. Halves, 30 days or $10; Charles L. Baker, $15; James Keyes, Negro, 30 days or $15.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. DOUGLAS
PEACE VS. GLORY
We hear a great deal today about the blessings of a peaceful mind. We are urged to cultivate a peaceful spirit within us and in so doing to learn the real meaning of life.

There is much Scriptural support for this position. Jesus constantly dwelt on the beauties of peace. He said to his disciples, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." He himself was called the Prince of Peace.

But this same Jesus declared that he came not to bring peace but a sword. There were many times when Jesus dwelt upon the necessity for conflict—not conflict with persons but conflict with our own selfish propensities. Jesus was not a peace-at-any-price man. He held that goodness and an implicit trust in the power and love of God were matters of such importance that peace or anything else must be thrust aside that men might gain these priceless possessions.

A great Spanish philosopher has written: "May God deny you peace and give you glory."
Many of us find it impossible to live righteous lives without much conflict. Others have agonizing intellectual difficulties before they can arrive at anything like a satisfactory knowledge of truth. We must brush aside peace of mind that we may accomplish things vastly more precious than peace of mind. We give up peace and gain glory.

America Must Choose Its Type of Economy

In spite of what President Truman and other national leaders say about the federal spending of the United States, there is a limit beyond which this country cannot go if free enterprise is to be maintained.

Even now at half-past 1951 free enterprise in the United States is much more restricted by federal regulations than it was in 1945. Higher taxes which are necessary to keep deficit spending in sight are draining the investment capital away from the American system and sending the money through government channels.

For the living example of what Socialism does to the American people and her economic system, look at the government's taking in taxes from the people approximately 45 cents out of every dollar of national income. American citizens for the first time in the history of the United States are nowhere near as far along the road to Socialism as they are in reality nearly one-third of the national income in the United States goes into taxes.

By the present income tax structure in Britain, the government is taking approximately 90 percent of individual earnings above $3,000 a year. The noose has been so tightly drawn on business expansion and capital gain that hardly any private capital is going into the development of new enterprises or expansion of existing businesses. Practically all of it is left to the government. It has resulted in shortages of building materials, goods and an undesirable income tax structure.

Just how far is the United States from the same economic structure as Britain? At the outset an individual may say we'll never reach that point, but a closer study will show we are nearer than most people like to believe.

The American people, whether they want to admit it or not, are at the crossroads of economic principles. The choice can not be delayed indefinitely. If the nation continues the present trend in government deficit financing and mammoth federal outlays for unnecessary projects, we will soon find ourselves wrapped in a wholly socialistic government and economy.

The only alternative to complete Socialism so far as the United States is concerned is to do an about face from its policy of deficit spending and live within its budget regardless of what non-essentials must be cut from the federal spending program. In doing so, the nation runs a calculated risk of a depression or at least a business recession. If we change we are gambling that the depression will not materialize, that domestic backlogs and world market demands will take up the temporary purchasing slack which will result in the national scene.

If we do not change we are headed into the midst of Socialism at a break-neck speed.

The Reflector would certainly choose to run the risk of a depression under the American free enterprise of today rather than knowingly continue on the express route into the perennial economic depression called Socialism.

The Town Of Bethel Has A New Baby

Congratulations from The Reflector to the Town of Bethel for its new baby—The Bethel Post.

The first copies of North Carolina's newest weekly newspaper came off the press today and will be received in the mail by subscribers tomorrow.

Editor-Publisher Robert Lewis' founding today officially takes its place among the other 105 weekly newspapers in North Carolina which serve the citizens of the state along with the 83 semi-weeklies and the 46 daily newspapers. From the Pitt County standpoint, it gives the people of the county four local newspapers from which to gather news of the happenings in the county.

Since Bethel's last newspaper ceased publication around the first of the century there have been numerous people who have talked about starting a new paper there, but for one reason or another the plans never advanced beyond the talking stage. Now Lewis, fortified with three years reporting experience on the Kinston Daily Free Press has set out to give Bethel a newspaper of its own.

The Reflector wishes Lewis and The Post success in the endeavor, and a long, prosperous period of publication.

National Whirligig News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—Senator Tom Connally's off-again-on-again attitude toward Secretary Dean Acheson and the Administration's general foreign policy has caused more chuckles in Congressional cloakrooms than any incident since the riotous appearance of the bizarre Virginia Hill before the Kefauver Committee.

The honorable 71-year-old, cigar-chewing Texan, however, is not the only member to be upset and perplexed by the acclaim Mr. Acheson has achieved for his operatic performance at San Francisco. In ironic retrospect, remembering the "set Acheson" movement of only a few weeks ago, numerous Senators on both sides of the aisle ask themselves—and their colleagues—if it wouldn't be politically smart to keep at least a toe on the Achesonian bandwagon.

The Connally predicament is symbolic rather than unique. With General Douglas A. MacArthur, the Secretary of State is the most controversial figure in current American politics. Like Franklin D. Roosevelt, he is either violently hated or idolized and respected.

In short, these strangely contrasting characters can be as important factors in the 1952 presidential campaign as the Democratic and Republican card-bearers themselves. Thus an examination of the Connally psychology in the face of this problem is actually a political review and preview.

SHERWOOD—Senator Connally's position is aggravated by the fact that he is chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee. Even in days of Republican Senate control, he prided himself on sharing with the late Senator Vandenberg the title of "architect" of the bipartisan foreign policy.

Indeed, the effervescent "Tawm" frequently "cussed out" President Truman and Mr. Acheson because he thought they consulted and exalted the Michigan statesman more frequently and fulsomely than they did him.

Nevertheless, he helped to steer every foreign aid bill through committees and the upper chamber. He defended the Truman-Acheson program in the Far East and Europe, indulging in characteristically sulphurous language to denounce its opponents. With Senator Brian McMahon of Connecticut, he pooh-poohed the McCarthy charges during the famous Tydings inquiry into them.

REVOLUT—Then along came MacArthur! The deposed General was given an enthusiastic reception on his tour of several key Texas cities, and on his address before the legislature. Newspaper polls there during the subsequent investigation of his dismissal showed that the MacArthur personality and program were more popular than those submitted by the Administration's diplomatic and military spokesmen.

Many prominent and wealthy Texas Democrats, although leaning toward " Ike" Eisenhower, showed their sympathy toward the voluble critic of the foreign program for which SHAEF's commander is the military symbol. Mr. Connally's mail, and Texans rank with Californians as Congressional letter-writers, reflected this reaction.

Meanwhile, many of the veteran's old friends on and off Capitol Hill began to talk of an anti-Truman revolt in the South next year. Sitting to right and left of him, Senators Byrd of Virginia, George of Georgia, Eastland of Mississippi and Hoy of North Carolina, apposed many major White House proposals. "Tawm" began to feel lonesome.

SILENT—Worse still, there are reports that Governor Shiver, young and popular, may enter the primaries next year. As has happened in many other states, Texas may think it is time to retire their elderly representative to private life.

So, the erstwhile proponent and defender of the Truman-Acheson program led the fight to cut a billion dollars from the pending measure for extension of more economic and military assistance to Europe, as once he scoffed at critics of giveaway plans, he muttered that the United States could not forever keep the old continent on the dole.

He remained strangely silent when the McCarthys, Wherrys and Capeharts arose to demand Mr. A's head. And MacArthur keeps on talking, with millions listening!

COMEBACK—Now, however, Secretary Acheson has staged an amazing comeback in public and political opinion. It may be only temporary, in view of foreign difficulties still unresolved. But even hostile Congressional and editorial assailants praise him, and he has become almost a television matinee idol.

"Tawm" may yet be right in his estimate of Texas voters' feelings. But for such an old-timer, he talked too soon. Many fellow-members, startled by the Achesonian triumph, plan to delay decision on him and their future attitude toward him until conclusion of the Kaesong peace talks and the Korean conflict generally, the result of current discussion over Western Europe and Germany, and our strength vis-a-vis Russia in the spring of 1952.

CHECKING ON THE REDS
Henderson Daily Dispatch
During the last war the country was told that the FBI, that marvelous sleuthing agency of the Federal government, knew the whereabouts of dangerous Germans and Japs in the United States and was keeping constant tabs on their movements. And the FBI did a magnificent job if it is to the end that there was practically no sabo-age at any time.

Since relations with Russia became so sensitive and so menacing, similar assurance has been given the American people and the FBI again has done a pretty good job of it. But things have apparently not been running so smoothly as before. For, if this detective unit constantly has its fingers upon Communist spies and their fellow travelers, what has become of the four Red leaders who were part of the eleven convicted nearly two years ago, and who, when the Supreme upheld their conviction and sentence promptly disappeared and failed to show up to begin their

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

When I tell somebody that I want four children they usually say, "Wait until you get two, and then make that statement." Everybody who has that point of view should read the story in the current issue of American Magazine about "The Fabulous Jacksons of Denver."

In 12 years of marriage, the Jacksons have had 10 children! Last year they bought 3,285 quarts of milk and 41 pairs of shoes. The Jacksons aren't complaining; they planned to have 10 children because they wanted a "big, old fashioned family." Their children range in age from 2 to 14. Mrs. Jackson is 36 and her husband is 38.

The Jacksons wanted a big family so badly that they began building it even though they had no money, and even though he still wanted to go to medical school. At the times they didn't know where the next grocery money was coming from, but the children kept coming. By the time Taylor was ready to start his medical practice they already had seven children! Now Taylor is one of Denver's leading young doctors. There are five boys and five girls, but at one time the ratio was five girls to one boy. Greenville girls please note: the Jacksons do not have a maid or cleaning woman. However, one of Dr. Jackson's patients who has no money helps out with the family ironing.

During Mrs. Jackson's 11 years of having children, she largely financed her husband's medical schooling and the support of the family as well. And during much of the same time she was also working hard toward a master's degree in child psychology for herself. She wrote her dissertation, "The Use of Toys in the Growth and Development of Children," while waiting for Evan to be born. It has become a standard reference for nursery-school workers, and thousands of copies have been printed. The Jacksons go dancing every week. Mrs. Jackson says, "We love to dance. It relaxes us more than resting." They also play bridge regularly with their six-couple "supper club." For such nights out they don't need a babysitter. In fact, they haven't had to worry about a baby sitter for six years, since their oldest child, Louise, was 8. The younger ones take care of themselves.

The family is so well organized that last year Dr. and Mrs. Jackson were able to make a trip to Europe to study family living there in a field course sponsored by two universities. The 10 remarkable Jackson children could probably have managed by themselves while the folks were gone, but Mrs. Jackson asked her sister to take over.

There is one big factor that Dr. Jackson's income can stand. The grocery bill is $51.95 a week! Can you stand that?

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C. By LYN NISBET

"CHANGE—The man who had been chief justice of the North Carolina supreme court for a quarter century died last week. To his place was appointed the man who had been senior associate justice for about three years. Thus was followed precedent and the continuing status of the supreme court was again emphasized. Chief Justice Stacy was appointed to succeed Chief Justice William A. Hoke, who had held the office less than one year—following another chief who had served for a quarter century. The chief justice sits in the middle of the "bench" with the associate justices distributed according to seniority—the senior member always at the chief's immediate right and the youngest member at his extreme left. So it was that when William A. Devin assumed the station of the chief, every member of the court moved to the other side of the center, with newly appointed Associate Justice Itimous Valentine taking the seat on the extreme left.

CONTINUITY—Despite these suitcases changes, the court's continuity and permanence were not seriously disturbed. It has been said that the law is what the judges interpret it to be, and Mr. Dooley has been often quoted as saying that the "judges follow the election returns" in their interpretation. The late Justice Holmes of the United States supreme court once said that judges write opinions within the periphery of the past, and while some new thoughts are injected, the basic theories are carried along from year to year, in face of changing names and location of seats. Any opinion that runs contrary to precedent is subject to careful scrutiny by lawyers and the public.

TENURE—Members of the court are elected for eight year terms with expiration dates arranged so that under normal conditions there will be several hold-overs. Vacancies are filled by executive appointment, but it is historically true that only one governor in recent years has had opportunity to name a majority of the court. Governor Morrison appointed three when there were only five members on the court. The people apparently like that continuing idea. It will be recalled that the first and one of the few defeats suffered by the late Franklin Roosevelt in popular opinion was his abortive attempt to "stack" the supreme court of the United States.

TRADITION—The courts have respect for tradition and accept change in ideas reluctantly. The language of the courts is in many instances archaic; in fact, legal terminology all the way from the opening sentences of criminal warrants or civil summonses to the final decrees of courts of last resort, has not changed much in a hundred years. This judicial attitude has not always pleased those who sought to further their own specific temporary ambitions but it has stood as a bulwark to protect the common people who could not think for themselves.

BACKGROUND—Rex Hospital in Raleigh had its origin in the bequest of a public spirited citizen many years ago, whose will set up a method of control. The County of Wake and the City of Raleigh have contributed large sums to the hospital, both for construction and operation, although control remains in the hands of self-perpetuating private board. St. Agnes Hospital is owned and controlled by the Episcopal Church, and is one of the outstanding Negro hospitals in the state. Wake county and Raleigh also have contributed to this institution. Both hospitals take care of great deal of charity work, and the emotional appeal for further assistance on part of the taxpayers is understandable and justified.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

prison terms? They are still at large despite a nationwide man-hunt to apprehend them. They may be circulating among Communists here, or they may have made good their escape from the United States and to Russia, or elsewhere to some haven of refuge. At least they have succeeded thus far in keeping themselves out of the hands of the law.

Nor can the government learn who furnished money for their bail, now forfeited. Those who handed over the cash won't talk, and there has been no way thus far to force them to disgorge their secret.

What is said here is in no sense intended as a slur at the FBI. We have only praise for this highly efficient organization. But if these four topflight Communists have slipped through its fingers, how many others might do the same thing if it became necessary for them to do so? And what absolute assurance can there be that in event of outbreak of hosilities they wouldn't at least for a time until apprehended, move to and fro in sabotage activities? Checking on the Reds is admittedly a difficult and ticklish job. And, for one thing, they are allowed too much liberty and given too much consideration and shawn all too many favors by the government. If they were dealt with here in the manner Stalin, their hero and god, handles aliens in Soviet Russia, they might be less of a menace, and there would be fewer of them. At least they would be less bold in their subversive activities. It would be no violation of constitutional guarantees to restrict their liberties—liberties, to be sure, which they are taking every advantage of in an effort to destroy that very freedom. Constitutional privileges are not a license to any individual to attempt overthrow of this government by force. Maybe Americans one day will become convinced of that fact—and may it not be too late when they do learn.

Some of the American deaths and maimings, I cannot but feel, came from the failure of the U. N. to use the weapon of decision that was available. I mean the atom bomb.

This week a U. S. Senator said it was possible to mass produce atom bombs now at a price that would make a single atom bomb less expensive than a tank. Atom bombs even a year ago were so plentiful they could have been invested in Korea. Certainly today they are available.

The moral arguments against the employment of them in combat are so popular throughout the world that no military authority has had the courage to defeat them.

Yet, President Truman, who ordered two atom bombs dropped on Japan in the last war, said his decision saved American lives—and Japanese lives. He said he would do it again to gain

Business Today

To offset recent lags in sales, an additional number of manufacturers have begun to pay bonuses to retailers' salespersons for selling their product and this has fanned up the old dispute as to whether the practice is good business, ethical or even legal.

The bonuses are called "spiffs" or "PM's," the latter standing for "push money."

Some retailers do not object, pay from 50 cents to a couple of dollars, or give a cigaret lighter, to the salesman who sells his mattress or camera, it is all right with these merchants. They figure that selling one article is as good as selling another and that a salesman will walk a little harder if a spiff is involved; in fact, he may turn a walk-out into a sale. Besides, it always seems as if the manufacturer is carrying a bit of the retailer's payroll burden.

But many retailers object. Most of them make these points:

1. PM's tend to shift employees' loyalty from the employer to the manufacturer.
2. Pushing one brand may cause inventory congestion of other lines.
3. The management, not the manufacturer, should have the power to direct the most concentrated selling efforts.
4. If a manufacturer can afford to pay a dollar to get his item moved, he could afford to give the retailer another dollar in profit, or he could use it for better advertising.
5. Salespeople shooting for spiffs may be inclined to exaggerate the advantages of the commissionable product or disparage competitive products.
6. Some manufacturers hesitate to put their merchandise in stores where they are being sold against spiffed products.
7. Facts sometimes leak and customers may be alienated if they learn salespersons are pushing certain products to their own advantage.
8. Some legal authorities hold that payment of PM's is a violation of laws against unfair trade practices.

reference Board has calculated that consumer prices rose 8 per cent between June, 1950, and June this year. This is slightly higher than the government's estimate. The Bureau of Labor Statistics' "consumer price index rose from 170.2 in June, 1950, to 186.4 this year, a rise of 9.3 per cent.

The Board's figures show the biggest rise in house furnishings 17.1 per cent. Food is estimated to be up 11.2 per cent and clothing up 8.3 per cent.

BARGAIN FURNITURE, INSURANCE FOR TENANTS
"New furniture with $1,500 retail value in each apartment—all yours for $1 at the end of a two-year lease!" is the bait being offered by a Long Island apartment development.

The development's unfinished apartments rent from $25 to $35 less, which means the tenant pays from $600 to $840, plus $1, for the furnishings.

It also offers a $3,000 group insurance policy on the life of the head of each family.

THREE WED-KILLERS FOUND PROMISING
Department of Agriculture researchers at Beltsville, Md., are testing twenty new weed-killing compounds. So far, three have shown promising results, the researchers say. They are not yet available commercially.

Their studies also indicate that TCA, a chemical used in killing weeds in sugar beet fields, is also effective in controlling grasses in birdfoot trefoil, an important legume for pastureage, silage and hay.

FEWER FLASHLIGHTS FOR CIVILIANS
A shortage of flashlights has been hinted by manufacturers. They told the National Production Authority that the industry's allotments of steel and copper are barely enough to meet military requirements.

NEW PRODUCTS
POLISH: A nail polish containing nylon has been introduced by Faye Laboratories, Detroit. It is said to be faster drying and longer wearing than regular polish. Another new nail polish claims to give a "diamond hard" finish to nails and to prevent them from chipping or breaking is being brought to market by Helena Rubenstein, Inc., 655 Fifth Ave., New York.

SINGER: A singing canary that never needs seed or water has been brought out to amuse children or to brighten any room. The bird is plastic, in a plastic cage. A key wound mechanism makes the bird sing and rock on its perch.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—A number of American parents who have lost sons in Korea are giving consideration today to the problem of whether the atom bomb could be used advantageously in that theater.

Some have also wondered whether, if atom bombs had been employed some time ago, their sons might not have been spared death gallantly trying to take "Rice Paddy Peak," just one of a thousand Korean hill points.

Naturally some of the relatives of the 80,000 American casualties in Korea are wondering if a few score test drops of our big atom bomb backlog might save a man going up a far Korea hill.

There is also the possibility that a few volunteered atom bombs might impress some of the more thoughtful members among the Red Chinese volunteers in Korea.

Washington Letter

By HERMAN ALLEN (For JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON—If you, as a parent or teacher, suspect a youngster of having fallen victim to addiction to an opiate drug like morphine or heroin, there is just one thing to do to verify your suspicions.

"The only conclusive proof of addiction to opiates," says a new pamphlet issued by the District of Columbia Health Department, "is the person's behavior after the drug is taken away from him. When the individual has been unable to provide himself with the drug for a period of over 24 hours, very serious symptoms will develop. This can only be overcome by another dose of the drug."

In other words, turn the youngster over to the family physician for observation, supplying the doctor with all the information you can about sudden changes in behavior.

The pamphlet, prepared for the guidance of parents and teachers, gives the following outline of the symptoms of addiction to the opiates included in the "morphine group," and to sleeping pill.

MORPHINE GROUP
"Included in this group are morphine, codeine and heroin and the more recently developed synthetic substitutes for morphine such as demerol and methadone.

"No signs and symptoms of addiction to opiates are characteristic. (Cocaine and some other narcotics do have characteristic symptoms.) Addicts frequently spend their entire income, and more, on drugs and do not eat. Therefore, most addicts are emaciated."

HEROIN
(Treated separately because it is "particularly dangerous," so much so that it is even unlawful for a physician to have it in his possession.)

"Heroin may be sniffed or injected by hypodermic needle. It causes the sensation of floating in the clouds, shakiness and short, quick temper and fits of rage.

"When heroin is withdrawn, there is sneezing, excessive perspiration, watering of the eyes and loss of weight."

SLEEPING PILLS (Barbiturates)
True addiction to sleeping pills is rare. One suffering from sleeping pill addiction shows symptoms of the drowsy stage of intoxication. There may be marked deviation from the normal as inhibitions are relaxed. The individual is unable to coordinate; for example, cannot touch the nose with the index finger. When sleeping pills are withdrawn, the individual may experience convulsions.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buscher

Scripture—Isaiah 65:17-25; Acts 17:16-17, 22-23; Romans 10:12; Revelation 21:1-8.

Isaiah prophesied that the Lord promised, 'They (His people) shall not build another inhabit, they shall not plant and another eat; for as the days of a tree are the days of My people; and Mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.'

Paul waited at Athens for Silas and Timothy, and while he waited, 'his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry. He disputed in the synagogue with the Jews, and in the marketplace daily with them that met him.'

Certain philosophers encountered Paul, and they asked him: 'May we know what the new doctrine whereof thou speakest is? For thou bringest strange things to our ears; we would know, therefore, what these things mean.'

'God made the world and all the things therein,' Paul told the Athenians, 'hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth,' that they might seek the Lord and find Him.

MEMORY VERSE—Malachi 2:10.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID O. BARUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The householder tackling a concrete job finds that form is as much of a challenge to imagination as it is on the golf course or in a bathing beauty contest.

In concrete work the form determines the success of the entire job. You can mold concrete into almost any shape you want—into a Grecian pedestal for a sundial, a perfect cylinder for a lawn roller, an Egyptian obelisk for a fence post, into garden benches, window boxes and what not.

But the form, which is your mold, must be carefully planned to be exactly the reverse of the object to be cast. And the finished concrete work will have no smoother surface than the form that is used.

Concrete forms have to be rigid and strong enough to hold their shape under the great pressure exerted by heavy wet concrete. They have to be tight to prevent the escape of water, which could change the character of the remaining mixture. They have to be easy to remove after the concrete has hardened and they should be reasonable in cost, especially if you use them only once.

They used to follow the horses around. Now, he says, they retrieve insects from the grilles of automobiles parked across the way.

Sparrows Adjust To Machine Age

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—P. G. Barnickel, fisheries manager for the state conservation commission, says the sparrows in his yard have adapted themselves to the modern age.

They used to follow the horses around. Now, he says, they retrieve insects from the grilles of automobiles parked across the way.

U. S. Technicians Working In India

NEW DELHI (AP)—Twelve American technicians have started work in India under the United States Point Four Program, Finance Minister G. D. Deshmukh announced in Parliament.

Of the twelve, six are specialists in agriculture, two in applied geology, one in the manufacture of biological products, one in hydroelectric development, one in social education, and one in the manufacture of sulphuric acid from gypsum.

Ready To Admit Justice Is Blind

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Justice has always been described as blind. And Lavorne Crawford is willing to concede that fact, although not in the usual sense.

Crawford, a truck driver, was a witness at a shooting here recently. But since he can't raise enough money for bond, he is being held in jail as a material witness. It may be six months before the case is completed.

"HIS NOT GOD THE FATHER OF US ALL?"

Scripture—Isaiah 65:17-25; Acts 17:16-17, 22-23; Romans 10:12; Revelation 21:1-8.

By STEPHEN CAMPBELL

HOW COMFORTING must have been the prophecies of Isaiah to the suffering people, continuing on threatened by invasions and loss of liberty. He gave them faith and hope that their nation might yet be saved from its enemies and become a free nation. Centuries have passed since Isaiah cheered his people with his words, and the Jews have been scattered over the face of the whole earth. They have prospered—at least many of them—and in many lands. However, they have always been subjects of dreadful persecutions and have been discriminated against wherever they have lived.

As long as thousands have returned to their homeland, and many more are going there. If they moved in making peace with their neighbors, they may yet fulfill Isaiah's prophecy: 'There shall be heard in her (Israel) no more the voice of weeping and the voice of crying,' but 'they shall not build another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat; . . . and My chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands.' Let us pray so.

Paul, asking him, 'May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is? For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears; we would know therefore what these things mean.' This must have been a thrilling moment for Paul. He stood in the midst of Mars' hill, and told the assembled people how, as he qualified about and beheld their devotions, he had seen an altar with the inscription: 'To the Unknown God.' That God he proposed to expound to them.

He told them God made the whole world and all things therein. He did not dwell in temples made with hands, nor was He to be worshipped with men's hands, seeing that He needeth not things, and breath, and all things. 'And,' Paul continued, He 'hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; . . . That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after Him, and find Him, though He be not far from every one of us: For in Him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, 'For we are also His offspring.'

Chimp Is Flop In Zoo Debut; Has New Complex

CALGARY (AP)—Joey is a bit of a disappointment at the Calgary Zoo. A chimpanzee, Joey does not do any of the things chimps are expected to do, and zoo officials think he's plain dumb, not a chimp. The three-year-old seems to have a decided inferiority complex. Since his arrival last January, Joey has fooled everybody. He won't be dressed up, drink out of paper cups, or peel oranges. The only thing he's worn up to now is a slightly sarcastic expression.

He was obtained from a Florida zoo and was supposed to be a trained chimp. Zoo officials believe the long train ride may have given him a sort of animal amnesia. But maybe he's just a cynic at heart.

Dollar's Value In Far East Rises

SINGAPORE (AP)—The American dollar is soaring to a new top value among the money-changers of Singapore. They're now offering as high as $3.37 (Straits dol-

Anti-Labor Trend In British By-Elections

LONDON (UP)—The summer holiday moratorium on British politics has reached its end with a general election assured in late October. All figures, popular polls and by-elections, indicate the Tories will win.

The annual party conventions meet in Scarborough early next month. They and pending by-elections may do much to clarify the political future. By-elections are held to fill seats in the House of Commons which fall vacant.

The Labor party convention especially should show the extent of the left-wing revolt against certain government policies and whether it is serious enough for Labor to have to resolve it by a general election.

By-elections are not necessarily the best test of political sentiment in this country. But their trends cannot be ignored. On the basis of the 15 by-elections held since the 1950 general election (a 16th was unopposed), Labor's fortunes have gone down and the Conservatives up.

Comparison of Votes
None of the 15 by-elections resulted in any change in the House of Commons line-up. Labor retained eight seats it won in 1950; the Conservatives won 30 they captured in 1950 including a North Ireland seat which Labor failed to contest. But the popular vote in these shows greatly reduced majorities for Labor and substantial increases for the Conservatives.

Following is a comparison of the popular vote in the 15 by-elections with the vote cast in the same constituencies in the 1950 election:

1950 election. Total vote, 687,741. Conservative, 299,29 (43.54 P.C.); Labor, 348,532 (50.72 P.C.).
1950 by-elections. Total vote, 566,65. Conservatives, 280,746 (49.55 P.C.); Labor, 280,599 (49.52 P.C.).
Other parties accounted for 5.7 per cent of the vote in 1950 and 0.93 per cent in the by-elections. In the general election the division of the popular vote for the nation was 45.4 per cent for Labor and 43.8 per cent for the Conservatives and other associates.

Tories Hold Their Own
Thus the Tories, with fewer people voting have almost held their own in by-election popular vote while Labor's vote is down. In three of the by-elections Conservatives polled even more votes than they did in 1950.

Forsyth Board Upheld By Court

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The Forsyth County Board of Education was upheld yesterday in its attempt to close Old Richmond High School.

Judge J. Will Pless Jr., presiding in Forsyth Superior Court, dissolved the injunction which had prevented the board from closing the school.

Attorneys Dallas C. Kirby and Buford Henderson of Winston-Salem, representing Old Richmond, said they planned to file notice of appeal to the Supreme Court.

Brewing Beer Is Considered One Of Older 'Arts'

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
NEW YORK — Brewing beer was big business in Mesopotamia 2,400 years ago and women were the master brewers.

This ancient beer was called Kas, and made just like modern beer, but with some varieties not now on the market. It was Friendlier Beer, and nothing much was lacking except the commercials.

All this is revealed in a clay tablet, with pictures, from ancient Mesopotamia, now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It was translated by scholars of the Catholic University in Washington and the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago. The translation is published by the American Oriental Society with aid from the United States Brewers Foundation, Inc., New York.

The studies hint the origins of beer, far earlier. This guess is that beer originated from food preservation very long ago.

The preserved foods were barley and grains, sprouted in water, and dried when the sprouts became sweet. That is the stage when sprouts fill with malto sugars.

By 2,400 years ago beer was linked with religion. Beer-making was apparently the only profession protected by female divinity. It was under two goddesses, Nin, K.A. S.I. and Sirus. Just when women entered as master brewers is not told. But the ladies' high position was usurped by men about 2,100 years ago.

Malt was made from barley. Yeast apparently was used in fermentation as today. The scholars inferred that certain strains of yeast were cultivated for beer, even as today.

Just as now the by-product mash was known to be good food for animals and Babylonians fed it to cattle. The workers' pay appears on the old tablet. They received as part pay bread-shaped cakes called bappir or beer bread.

Like today's ads the ancient tablet emphasized taste, color and strength. There were many varieties. There was whitish beer, dark beer, reddish beer, beer with a head and beer without a head.

One beer not now sold appears to have been popular because of the number and variety of pictures on the clay tablet. This beer was drunk through long reeds or long metal tubes. The drinkers sat, in front of a large, shapely jar standing on the floor. Their beer rods were four or five feet long, curved to reach down into the jar for a sociable sip.

Judge Giving Up Driver's License

RALEIGH (AP)—Superior Court Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn is surrendering his driver's license to the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Landon C. Rosser said yesterday the judge's son, W. H. S. Burgwyn, Jr., had notified him the license was being mailed to Raleigh. The move was being taken because of the judge's health.

Judge Burgwyn was acquitted late Tuesday night in Franklin, Va., on a charge of drunken driving. He testified that he is subject to dizzy spells. The judge told the court he was seized by such a spell at the time he was arrested in Virginia July 1.

Before hearing from Burgwyn's son, Rosser had instructed Highway Safety Division Director H. D. (Taryia) Jones to notify the judge that a hearing would be held on the question of revoking his driver's license.

Meanwhile, Chief Justice W. A. Devin of the State Supreme Court said last night Burgwyn's trial "will make no difference in his court assignments. He will be assigned to hold courts if he is able to preside." The latter was a reference to Judge Burgwyn's physical condition.

The United States built synthetic rubber plants during World War II capable of producing about a million tons of rubber a year.

City Has Family Blond Squirrels

By TOM MADDOX
AP Newfeatures
OLNEY, Ill. — The tourist from Ohio looked, then stared, at squirrels scampering across the street — and jammed on his brakes. The squirrels were white and it was lucky he stopped.

Only after his double take did he believe his eyes — all the squirrels were pink (or blue) eyed albino. It was lucky he stopped, or Olney so esteems its squirrel citizens that it's a crime to kill them, on purpose.

No one knows but some believe there may be nearly 1,000 of the rare rodents running freely about this southern Illinois city of 8,600 persons.

The story behind the white squirrels is that all stemmed from a single albino whose life was saved, tells it:

Back in 1902 a saloon exhibited a cream squirrel and a white female. Tales differ on their origin. The saloonkeeper sold out and Tom and his brother took the pair home. As Tom released them, a fox squirrel arrived on the scene and killed the male.

Tom recalls he chased the killer, ran for his shotgun and returned to see the marauder starting to attack the white female. Tom said he got the killer with one shot.

A short time later the albino had an all white litter and Olney's white squirrel population was on its way.

Today some albinos have ranged as far as five miles north and south of Olney. Curiously they apparently refuse to thrive elsewhere. Cities have asked for pairs for their zoos. Olney has obliged. Each time Olney later was told that the squirrels died in the distant cities. Recently however a few albinos have been reported around Pensacola, Fla.

One reason why the white squirrels have been increasing faster lately may be because the commissioner of Olney public property, Louis Gassmann, has made the animals his personal project. He even had one albino traffic victim stuffed and mounted. Also, several residents have fed them and cared for youngsters during winters.

Olney has succumbed to its odd pets to the extent of calling itself "The City of White Squirrels."

Churchill Maps His Last Fight

LONDON (AP)—Winston Churchill and his Conservative "shadow cabinet" began shaping election strategy today as Socialists and their foes squared off quickly for a mighty election battle to control British government policy.

The former wartime leader greeted Labor Prime Minister Clement Attlee's announcement that the country will vote Oct. 25—just 25 days from now—with the cry that Britons can now place in power a cabinet effective at home and abroad and "not misled by class warfare or doctrinal fallacies." His "shadow cabinet" is made up of the younger Tories who advise him and help fight his battles in Parliament.

Attlee's brief announcement by radio to the country said the Labor Party wanted a decisive vote of confidence from the people after 18 months of government with only a very small majority in the House of Commons.

Attlee's margin on important votes has been only from six to 10 in the 625-seat House since the February 1950 elections. The Labor Party took power in 1945.

Attlee appeared to leave no doubt he wanted popular endorsement of his policies not only over the attacks from the Conservatives but also over a left wing section of the Labor Party that opposes so much spending for rearmament.

The leaders of all parties made shift opening moves.

Churchill began his talks informally with other party prominent and called a full dress meeting of the party's big guns for Saturday morning. The party central office announced it had called off its scheduled annual conference at Scarborough Oct. 11-18.

The Liberal Party was expected to call off its conference scheduled for what is now election day. The party has only nine seats in Commons but holds strategic position between the 315-seat Labor Party and the 296-seat Conservatives. Third largest party, it took a bad shelling in the 1950 election.

The leading Labor figures also held informal huddles in London, as the vanguard of a probable 1,500 candidates began to fan out for the campaign, and a boom developed in the stock market over the election turn.

Attlee was visited by his doctor at 10 Downing Street. A spokesman said the visit was routine and that the physician found Attlee "fighting fit." The Prime Minister has suffered from ulcers and had a slight attack of lumbago last week. The lumbago "seems to have disappeared completely," the spokesman said.

Labor Party Secretary Morgan Phillips indicated the party will fight for every seat in the United Kingdom. He also indicated the Labor Party fall conference slated to begin at Scarborough Oct. 1 would be out from five days to three.

Anthony Eden, Conservative deputy party leader, was expected to hurry back to London from an Italian holiday. Some predict that if the Conservatives win, the aged Churchill would take the prime ministry for a few days as a victory trophy, then turn the job over to Eden, 53, or some other younger Tory.

Churchill will be 77 on Nov. 30 and is suffering from a growing deafness.

New N. C. Drama To Open Friday

KINGS MOUNTAIN (AP)—The first of six performances of North Carolina's third historical drama — this one commemorating the Battle of Kings Mountain — will open tomorrow night at the battle-ground amphitheatre. The theatre is located just inside South Carolina.

"Then Conquer We Must," written by Bob Osborne and directed by C. J. Spivey, will be staged at the Kings Mountain National Military Park, scene of one of the crucial battles of the Revolutionary War. The play will re-enact events leading to the historic fight and much of the actual engagement between the British and Colonialists has been written into the script.

Navy Trains Specialists To Be Its Eyes And Ears

GLENNVILLE, Ill. — This is operation radar.

"Birdie four, this is Lucifer Vector 270; speed 350, Angels 25; P-51 one o'clock, Angels 22; over."

That's the radarman talk in one of the nation's most exclusive schools. Known only in Navy circles since it was opened four years ago at Glendale Naval Air Station; the secret radar school has trained hundreds of officer specialists. They are responsible for training seaman teams who man Combat Information Centers aboard cruisers, subs, destroyers, aircraft carriers and other combat vessels.

The public is permitted a glimpse of the school for the first time. When the U. S. Navy combined its various radar schools at the close of World War II, the Glennville school became its control training center. Here students practice actual interception of enemy aircraft.

A Secret Operation

Capt. Wallace B. Mechling, in charge, and his executive officer, Commander Wilson G. Wright III, guard the school's secrets like hens smothering chicks. Much of the training program must be kept under wraps for national security.

The magic of radar enables the Navy radarman to reach out into space, see invisible enemy ships and planes, tell their direction and speed, and direct counter attack. It permits the fleet officer to know where his own ships are during heavy weather.

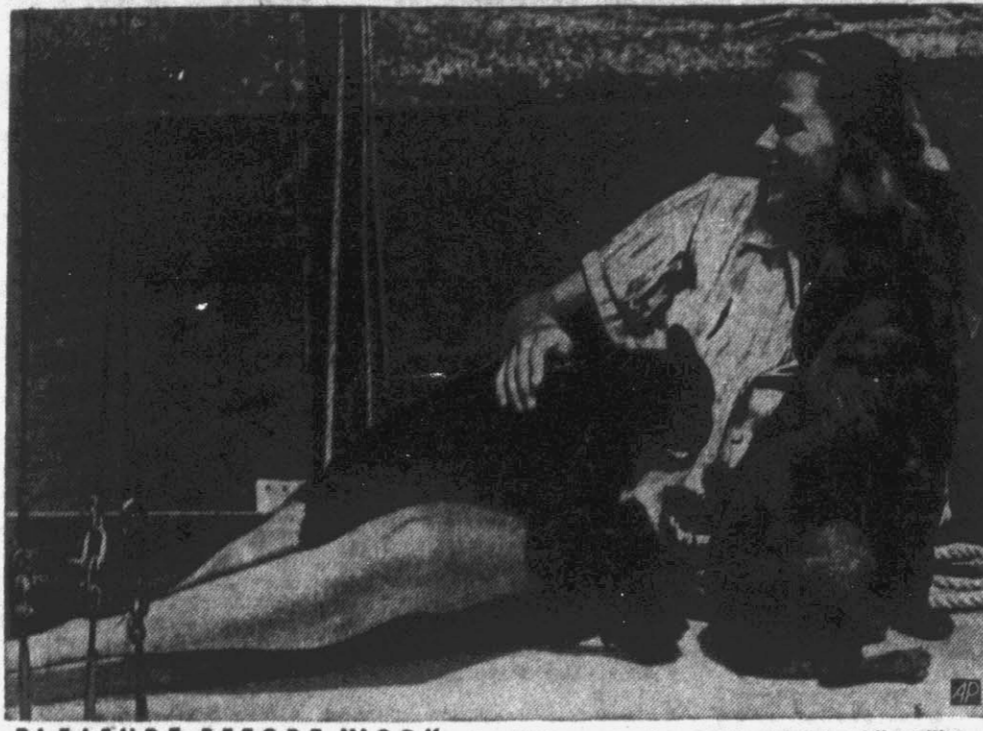

The Combat Information Center has become the nerve center of a Navy ship. Men who man the "CIC" directly serve the high command. These officers coordinate radar information with visual observations from planes and ships and from intelligence reports.

Mock Battles Staged

The training center for the eyes and ears of the Navy operates under simulated combat conditions.

Lieut. Commander H. S. Poote, Jr., is our guide. He points to the radar towers rising high above the front of the school. On top of the towers, radar antennas rotate slowly and silently, day and night. They are the radio-beam "searchlights." They can detect aircraft movements in excess of 100 miles from the radar station. A fleet of Navy jet interceptors is parked on the airfield.

Inside the school, in windowless rooms, is a world of low lights, codes and radar screens. Here officers get actual training in radar techniques. They are schooled in navigation, electronics, tactics, communications, and air control. Bent over a radar screen, much like a television tube, officer students trace movements of sea and air craft. Mock battles are set up. Radarman watch movements of the enemy and pass the information on to battle stations.

Australia Builds New Airline With Cocos Island

SYDNEY (UP)—On remote and colorful Cocos Island in the Indian Ocean, Australia is rebuilding an airstrip of strategic importance, linking Australia with South Africa and Britain.

The projected airline will run entirely south of the equator, between Perth, Western Australia, to Cocos, to Mauritius Island and thence to Johannesburg.

From Cocos air services could connect with London via Cairo. At present Australia-London services operate via Darwin, Singapore, Karachi and Calcutta.

In event of war Anglo-Australian authorities recognize that facilities in south and southeast Asia might be jeopardized. Furthermore, the present route traverses an area of increasing tensions, including the Indo-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir, Egyptian demands for withdrawal of British forces from the Suez Canal, and Communist-led guerrilla strife in Malaya.

Will Quicken Trade

The decision to establish the air service recognizes increasing trade between South Africa and Australia. The new route will cut air travel time between Sydney and Johannesburg from eight days to three-and-a-half days.

Cocos Island is a fabred pinpoint in the Indian Ocean at the crossroads of the Fremantle (Australia)—Colombo, Capetown-Singapore shipping routes.

During the war against Japan Allies established an airbase at Cocos, also known as the Keeling Islands, for aerial reconnaissance of vital shipping lanes. It also protected one of the most important relay stations in the vast British Commonwealth imperial network of communications cables.

Cocos is a group of about 20 small coral islands situated approximately 580 miles southwest of Indonesia, with a population of nearly 1200, about 800 of whom are natives, mostly of the Malay-Mollem strain.

Product Is Coconuts

Britain acquired Cocos in 1857, placed it under the Ceylon governor in 1876, and under the Straits Settlements administration in Singapore in 1886. In 1903 it was incorporated with the Singapore settlement. Its chief product is coconuts.

On November 9, 1914, Cocos was the scene of a celebrated naval battle in which the Australian cruiser Sydney sank the raiding German cruiser Emden.

To facilitate construction and administration of the air installation the British government recently transferred Cocos to Australian jurisdiction.

The initiative for reconstruction of the wartime airstrip comes from the Australian government, the sole shareholder in Qantas Empire Airways.

Five hundred Australians will work with natives on the $1,550,000 project. First step will be the erection of a small village of prefabricated houses for employees of Qantas, the Australian Civil Aviation Department, Australian Meteorological Bureau, and an oil company.

Bix Beiderbecke Not All They Say--Busse

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(UP)—The man who once played in Paul Whiteman's orchestra back during the golden jazz era, said the late Bix Beiderbecke wasn't the great figure he's cracked up to be.

Band leader Henry Busse, here for a dance and dinner engagement said it's not professional jealousy to debunk the Beiderbecke legend.

Bix was considered the original "young man with a horn." Magazine stories have been written about his style and tone two decades after his death.

"If they want a legend, there's Bunny Delgan," Busse said. "He had a phenomenal lip, wonderful tone."

Busse described Bix as a superb musician, but not the genius time has made him.

Had No Lip

"Why they made him a legend I can't understand," Busse said. "He had no lip, his playing was fuzzy, and he was often under the influence of liquor. You can't play great that way."

Busse, however, said this of Bix: "Whatever he thought out he went into with his heart. He did have a sense of tone, and he knew how to hit a note where it stood out."

Busse, a popular trumpeter, played side-by-side with Bix in the old Whiteman orchestra. He picked Charley Spivak as the best living trumpeter.

Busse described Rafael Mendez as "wonderful, out of this world."

Asked to compare them, Busse said "You can't. Joe Venuti's a good fiddle player, and so is Kreisler."

Played with Greats

Busse was first noted for his "Hot Lips," written and recorded in 1922. It sold more than a million records.

Four years later he had a tune named "Madonna," changed to "When Day Is Done." Busse wrote "Wang Wang Blues" and "Fiesta."

He was with Whiteman for 10 years, in the days when Bing Crosby, Bix, the Teagardens, the Dorseys, Frankie Trumbauer, Ferde Grofe and George Gershwin were associated with the band.

Busse came to this country in 1912 with his horn and $3. He gets as much pleasure with the horn today as he did back in the days when he was just another trumpeter.

PLYMOUTH, N. C. —(AP)—Do crows read newspapers? W. V. Hays, Washington County farm agent for the State College Extension Service, thinks perhaps they do.

Hays says the county wildlife club recently arranged a "crow shoot" for one afternoon at 7 o'clock, when the crows came into roost—or were supposed to. The event, based on a successful shoot held last year was well publicized in the local paper.

"The crows," says the county agent, "must have read the paper, since only one crow made his appearance. It is thought he was just passing through—which he did in a hurry."

Group Seeks To Dispel Myths Of Snake Populace

DAYTON, O. —(UP)—Snakes do not milk cows, roll in hoops, hypnotize birds, or have poisonous breath.

These are myths about snakes that the Dayton Society of Herpetology is trying to dispel, along with fear for snakes. Through the centuries a mass of myth and superstition surrounding snakes has been developed. But fear of serpents is the most deplorable attitude of all the misconceptions people have of snakes, according to the Dayton herpetologists.

The fear of snakes, according to snake-scientists, is not instinctive. A baby will fondle a garter snake just as readily as it will a cute puppy. But a frightened mother, rushing to rescue her child from the harmless garden snake, can cause a life-time fear of all snakes.

The herpetologist has conquered his fear of reptiles and handles them nonchalantly. But even the expert herpetologist never handles a poisonous snake needlessly.

They Strike from Fear

Fear and snakes is a two-way proposition the Dayton snake fanciers say. Just as most people fear snakes, the serpents themselves don't care to have anything to do with people. Snakes will do their best to avoid meeting people. When they strike, it is in self-defense.

Poisonous snakes are the ones that must be recognized. The Dayton snake organization says there are but two poisonous varieties in copperhead. Neither is too common, but they are still found in damp places in the state.

Snakes love damp, decaying piles of wood, sawdust left by woodmen, piles of rocks and deserted barns. If you wish to avoid snakes don't pull up loose boards, rocks or logs around damp places. You might surprise a snake and he has the advantage when it comes to surprise.

Bachelor Forms Party To Hunt For New Utopia

MELBOURNE — (AP) — John Greenston, a 57-year-old bachelor, who is tired of Melbourne's "frustrations", is recruiting men and women to go with him to an island Utopia. He plans to "escape the city jungle" and establish a cooperative village settlement, probably in New Guinea or the Torres Island—north of Queensland.

"There are hundreds of people," he explained, "who are fed up with the pinpricks, frustrations, and repressions of a big city. They are looking for an escape, and this is their chance."

Mr. Greenston is a stained-glass artisan who came from England to Australia 38 years ago.

He emphasizes that members of his group will have to be adventurous, broadminded, and of "harmonious" disposition.

USE CAR CARDS

BOSTON —(UP)—Evicted from their home, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick George hung three "apartment wanted" signs on their automobile and went house-hunting.

Mass Weddings To Be Cheaper

SINGAPORE —(AP)—It's going to be cheaper to get married in this British crown colony.

The Singapore Chinese Y.M.C.A. is sponsoring a series of mass weddings in Victoria Hall as a part of its drive against costly marriage ceremonies and celebrations. Each couple will be charged $10, including hall decorations, flowers for the bridal car, music, marriage certificates, tea for the couple and their parents, photographs and a round-the-town parade.

The ocean contains enormous quantities of plankton made up of microscopic plants and animals and the nutritive value of the animal components is said to be equal to that of the best meat.

Big Trout Dies Natural Death

CASSVILLE, Mo. —(AP)—Here is a case where the fish really was smarter than the fishermen.

A 9½-pound rainbow trout was found dead at Roaring River state park near here recently. Thousands fish the trout water there every year.

A. G. Morris of the state conservation commission diagnosed it as death of old age.

U.S. COMMERCIAL BUDGET BEEF BUDGET CHUCK ROAST

To meet the needs of every customer, every food-budget, Colonial continues its policy of two grades of beef at two prices. "COLONIAL PRIDE" is our top grade—grain-fed, "naturally tender" beef, the best you can buy. It's U. S. Government Graded CHOICE or better. "BUDGET BEEF" is our thrifter grade—more lean meat, wholesome and nutritious. It's U. S. Government Graded COMMERCIAL. Both grades are clearly marked on each cut to make your selection quick and easy.

You can really profit by Colonial's division of grade and price. Buy "COLONIAL PRIDE" for occasions when you want the finest and save money by using "BUDGET BEEF" for everyday economy.

Of course, both "COLONIAL PRIDE" and "BUDGET BEEF" are quality meats from the nation's top packing houses—both carry Colonial's Seal of Satisfaction, with a Money-back Guarantee!

Every Cut Clearly Identified as to Grade and Price!

Green City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 4

She slipped hurriedly into a red gown. It was backless, cut almost down to the waist, and it displayed the fine sweep of her shoulders. She was in her thirties, and her skin was good.

"But where are you going, Jeannette?" the young girl wanted to know. "What about here? What about the show?"

"I've fixed it with Louie," the singer said. "I'm cutting the last show. I showed him a fake telegram and he thinks I have a spot in New York. Told him I had to leave tonight. Louie's swell. He thinks I'm getting a break at the big-time money."

"But where—"

A smile lit up Jeannette's eyes for a second. "Don't ask me, baby. Not now. I'll write and tell you. I don't want anyone to know." She looked at the clock. "I'll see you for a few minutes after this show. It's almost time to go on."

Jeannette kissed her quickly on the cheek. "Don't look so tragic, sweetheart. Anyone would think this was a wake." She turned, moving toward the hall door, the red gown swishing around her long legs.

The redheaded girl could not see the sharp look of urgency in Jeannette's eyes, the expression that seemed to say she wanted to get this performance over with as quickly as possible.

For a moment Irma stood frowning, still wondering. Finally she left.

Less than fifteen minutes later Jeannette hurried down the side hall to her dressing room. She was finished. In five minutes she could have her clothes changed and her suitcase ready. She'd catch one of the cabbies returning to Cincinnati, just across the river. She had a few things to pick up at her apartment. There was a train from Union Station at one o'clock.

She felt bad about Irma, that child. Yet she hoped she wouldn't have to see her again. She couldn't explain this tautness that was a part of her. She only knew it was real, and fearful, and that she had to get away.

She fought off the chill that started across her bare shoulder blades, and burst into the room.

"Hello," a man said quietly.

He was a big man, solidly built. "I said hello," he repeated.

"You've no right—" the tall brunette started to say.

Reaching behind him, he turned the key in the door lock. He stood leaning against the closed door, watching her, his face immobile. Jeannette, since turning sharply, had not stirred.

"If you had phoned me," he said easily, "this—rather unusual way of seeing you wouldn't have been necessary. Why didn't you call me back? I left a number."

The woman watched him intently. "I was busy."

The smile washed from his face and there were little dark lights in the back of his eyes. "Why were you packing?"

"You were running out."

"I've been offered a better job," she said quickly. "I have to report there right away."

"You're lying," he said flatly. He stepped away from the door. His movements were smooth and athletic. He reached out and took hold of her shoulders. She winced under the grip of his fingers.

"Now look," he said harshly. "You and I made a deal, sweetheart. There was a little item of two hundred dollars involved. Remember? Money you were to use, if necessary, at the auction rooms tomorrow. Now—"

"Shuddup!" He shook her. His eyes were fiery. "I'm one who sticks to an agreement. There's three hundred more waiting for you when the purchase is completed. We settled that night before last. You're not going to back down now. You're going to be there tomorrow at two o'clock sharp and—"

With a quick twist, she backed away. Her splendid smooth shoulders showed the marks of his hands. She was trembling. She backed toward the open suitcase behind her.

"I'm not going through with it!" she cried. "I've changed my mind." She scooped up a long white envelope from the dresser. "I had this all addressed, ready to mail to you tonight. Here's your money. Now—get out!"

Anger flared in his dark eyes. "You fool," he snapped. "You stupid fool! Do you think after all that build-up I'm going to let you back down now. I've spent my money on you."

He came toward her, and suddenly his hand shot out and struck her face.

She swayed back against the suitcase. She felt the pain of the blow right through her teeth. A sob came from her throat. Then she spun, fumbling in the suitcase. Before he could grab her she had seized the automatic and aimed it at his chest.

"Get out!" she said. Her voice was shrill.

Watching the gun, then her frightened eyes, he backed toward the door. The trembling of her hand seemed to worry him. You never knew about an excited woman with a gun. "Now wait a minute—" he started to say.

"Unlock that door!"

He had the door open, half way and he was saying again, "Now just a minute. I wasn't going to do this. I didn't want to threaten you..." His left hand slid into his dress suit pocket and out again. There was a two-inch wide piece of paper that fluttered in his fingers. He kept watching her eyes as he shook a fold out of the slip of paper. It had been clipped from a newspaper page.

"This," he said, "might interest you." He held it toward her.

She was watching him warily, suspecting a trick.

"Read it," he said, and moved carefully toward her, holding the newspaper clipping out for her to see.

The two-word heading caught her eyes in the heartbeat of time that she took her gaze from his face. Two words: CONVICT ESCAPES.

Five Islands Near Italy Remain Holiday Ideals

ROME—(UP)—A taste for nature and solitude, mingled with the spirit of Robinson Crusoe, can be gratified in a group of tiny and thickly wooded islands which stretch out into the blue waters of the Tyrrhenian sea off the coast of Tuscany near Leghorn and Pisa.

The islands have strange and intriguing names—Capraia, Gorgona, Giglio, Giannutri and Montecristo—and up to last year they were nothing more than five little dots on maps of the Mediterranean.

Giannutri and Montecristo have no permanent population, except a colony of wild rabbits and a few remaining mountain goats.

The islands were "discovered" last year as ideal vacation spots by a group of literary Romans who were disgusted with the growing disregard of civilization for privacy and nature. The islands this year have become the sanctuary of young couples who seek the pastoral life.

Sea Furnishes Food

Material comfort is scant on the islands. The houses are built of crude rock and wood. Running water is out. But food is plentiful and tasty, provided you can catch it with your own hands.

At Capraia you can even eat murenaea, the carnivorous eel which emperor Nero once kept in his imperial pools and fed with slaves. But this sort of delicacy is reserved for expert underwater hunters.

An underwater fish gun is an indispensable tool on the islands. Rabbits are hard to catch but the waters surrounding the rocky perimeters of these islands are filled with lobsters, mullet, murenaea and other marine life.

The "dernier cri" in the way of unusual food is roasted murenaea, but it may cost you a slice of your own flesh to secure one. Murenaea are the most difficult catch in those waters. An adventurous spir-

Bonanza In Coal Brings Riches To Small Village

NEU BUEDDENSTEDT, Germany—(AP)—This small village of 2,402 inhabitants—except for golden destiny—would be just a slum. Most of its people are miners and the soil is barren.

But it has: A school for 49 children which cost $309,000, an even more expensive community building which includes a luxurious restaurant, a bowling alley and sleeping rooms for visiting sports teams, a $6,188 fire truck that has never been used and stands in a brand-new fire depot, fashionable flats and streets built with concrete. In fact, Neu Bueddenstedt claims to be the richest village in Germany.

From a company which started mining brown coal in this area after the war, the community is now getting $357,000 taxes per year, which is about $143 dollars for each of its citizens.

cult to squeeze food supplies out of "blagers living on the fringes of the dense jungles.

That's because more and more villagers are telling police the whereabouts of terrorists, and their jungle hideouts are quickly raided. The government also is restricting village food supplies.

Plankton in an ocean space about the size of a football field and five feet deep would be needed to meet the nutritive requirements of one person for one day.

Terrorists Face Hungry Death

KUALA LUMPUR—(AP)—Red terrorists in the northern part of Selangor state in Malaya are getting hard up for food. One of them, who surrendered, told authorities that his gang was so short of food that many of its members had taken to eating fruit.

Terrorists generally throughout Malaya, are finding it more diffi-

Phantoms Favored In Game With Morehead

Defense Still Big Question Mark

Co-Captain Joe Rowland Returns To Action As Kittrell Stresses Work On Phantom Defense

With the 20-7 defeat by the Edenton Aces still putting a bitter taste in their mouths, the Greenville High School Phantoms today closed their workouts in preparation for their second game of the year, tomorrow night in College Stadium against Morehead City.

Coach Bill Kittrell's squad has been cast in the role of the favorite in the game with the Carteret County Class A team.

While defensive line play has taken the upper hand in this week's drill, Kittrell has also devoted quite a bit of time for scrimmaging in an effort to perfect the plays which would not "go" against Edenton last week. Quarterback Glenn Scott and halfback Bobby Perry still appear as the big guns in the Phantom backfield although halfback Guy Smith has done some good work in this week's three hard practice sessions.

Smith, who was in and out of the line-up last week against Edenton, may well be one of the starters tomorrow night. Fullback Sid Briley has not been the type ball carrier that Kittrell appears to want and the Phantom coach may try Smith at the position Friday.

In the line, the Greenville team received some good news this week with the return of co-captain Joe Rowland who has been out of action for the last three weeks with an injured shoulder. Rowland's return will give the Phantoms added strength at the ends although they will have to wait about a week before Rowland can be expected to put in full-time duty at his position.

Kittrell's troubles with a defensive line may be somewhat smaller this week with a game past his team. "Against Edenton, our defense was lousy but we'll profit by the experience picked up in the game. We won't be a pushover for anybody," Kittrell said.

The coach's reference to the ex-

Graziano Looks To Middleweight Champ Robinson

DETROIT (UP)—Rocky Graziano today looked forward to a possible shot at middleweight champion Ray Robinson, but it took a typical Graziano finish against Tony Janiro last night to move him into contention.

The 29-year-old power-laden puncher, who wrestled the middleweight crown from Tony Zale in 1947 only to lose it the following year, rose from the brink of defeat to score a 10th round technical knockout over a younger and lighter Janiro.

With defeat staring him in the face, Graziano cut loose a volley of desperation blows in the last round and sent Janiro to the canvas. The 24-year-old ring veteran from Youngstown, O., bounded to his feet before a count could start, but referee Lou Handier had already raised "the Rock's" hand as the winner.

Screams from Janiro and his manager, Frank Jacobs, were in vain and Handier's decision stuck. After the fight, Jacobs revealed that he had objected to Handier as a referee when his name was announced.

"It's a shame when a referee has to take a fight away from a boy when he's tried so hard," Jacobs said bitterly.

Handier had given Janiro five of the nine rounds completed, awarded three to Graziano and called one even. Judge Joe Lenahan gave Janiro five rounds, with two for Graziano and two even. Judge Jack Aspery scored six rounds for Janiro and three for Graziano.

"I knew I was behind," Graziano admitted after the bout, "but I thought I could win on points by winning the last round. I didn't know I was that far behind. Now I want a fight with Robinson."

Williamston-Tornado Contest To Feature New Participants

Five New Coaches In Southern Conference

Commissioner Expected To Be Picked Today

CHICAGO (UP)—Baseball expected to pick its new commissioner today.

A pair of National League stalwarts, Ford Frick, league president, and Warren Giles, president of the member Cincinnati Reds, were the two top candidates.

It appeared that one of them probably would be named some time this afternoon for the rich post, expected to pay upwards of $50,000 a year for five years.

As in 1944, the owners of the 16 major league clubs were understood to have sifted the vast field to replace A. B. (Happy) Chandler down to only four or five men.

But among these, Frick and Giles, were the top choices. They were the same pair who were voted into a deadlock in 1944 to permit Chandler to gain the post as a dark-horse candidate sponsored by Larry MacPhail, then the New York Yankee owner.

Other names known to be in the running, but not regarded as serious threats, included former Postmaster General James Farley and George Trautman, head of baseball's minor leagues.

Representatives of virtually all clubs participated in backroom negotiations yesterday, striving to produce a 12th vote for one of the candidates. It appeared that no matter which man is elected, another ballot will be taken to give him the unanimous support of all teams.

Today's meeting will be the first officially called to pick Chandler's successor. Three other sessions, all unofficial, have been held, but purely to winnow the field and to provide discussion of the requirements of the job.

No contract was to be offered immediately to the successful candidate. Instead, the contract will be worked out following the election.

O'Neill didn't say much. He talked a little about figures—how if the Red Sox took the edge in the eight game series coming up with the Yankees, if Detroit knocked off Cleveland, if, . . . But he looked and he talked like Joe McCarthy did back in 1948 when these same Cleveland Indians buried a "great" Red Sox team on this same field in a one game playoff.

It could well be the end of the road for O'Neill.

He was widely second-guessed after the first of these two crucial games for failing to have a pitcher warmed up in time to stanch a Cleveland rally. Yesterday he had virtually every pitcher in the house warming up. He used six of 'em but he couldn't stem the Indian uprising. Now it looked like he was bossing another Red Sox team that folded in the stretch.

TARHEEL BACKS
DURHAM—One of the top freshman backfield outfits at Duke University this year is composed of all North Carolinians. It has Worth Lutz of Durham at quarterback, Charles Niven of Wilmington at left-half, Claude Midkiff of Mt. Airy at right-half and Tiny Burtner of Greensboro at fullback.

The Cincinnati Reds, as a team, struck out fewer times than any of their National League rivals in 1950.

Elon Opens Home Football Tonight

ELON COLLEGE, (AP)—The Christians of Elon College open their 1951 home football season tonight in Burlington's new high school stadium.

Tonight's opposition for Elon will be the Norfolk Navy team. The Christians lost their season's opener to Emory and Henry last week. Tonight's game will be Elon's last non-conference tussle before entering North State Conference competition against Appalachian.

Today, most of the league's 15 teams who play this weekend—everybody but Tech and Maryland—underwent a final brush-up of plays.

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, heartened by a 3-0 shutout victory over St. Louis that boosted their National League lead to three and one-half games, exuded confidence today as they went out to battle the Cardinals for the last time this season.

Manager Charley Dressen, who has been cautious in his predictions, was a little more talkative about the pennant race with the New York Giants after watching Elwin (Preacher) Roe win his 21st victory of the season last night.

"We're all right now," he said. "I think we'll win."

With 11 games left to play—six with Philadelphia, four with Boston and today's game with the Cardinals—the Dodgers would have to all but collapse to lose the pennant. The Giants have only eight games to play.

"We'll win," husk first baseman Gil Hodges grinned. "But we're just playing 'em one at a time."

Mickey Vernon of the Washington Senators hit nine home runs in 1950. Five of them were at Yankee Stadium.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS
Can State beat Carolina this year? Of course, the most logical of answers would be "Wait until Saturday and find out," but most of the time a football fan isn't very logical. The average John Q. Fan likes to go way out on a limb for his alma mater and that's exactly what most of the State College fans are doing.

Those who saw or heard the game Saturday were impressed by State's offensive power. A victory such as that is something that has been mighty scarce in Riddick Stadium for the past few years and it's understandable as to just why Wolfpack followers would be tempted to yell that this is State's year in football.

What most of those people giving State the nod in Saturday's battle are forgetting is that while Catawba didn't actually score, they managed to complete a lot of passes against State. The State pass defense was so weak that it (at times) looked almost pitiful.

I would not be so foolish as to attempt to say that State isn't capable of stopping a competent passing attack. But they will have to improve greatly this week if they expect to stop the Tar Heels Saturday afternoon in Kenan Stadium.

Carolina has whipped State the last five times the teams have met. The way I see it, there's no reason why they should not make it six in a row. Carolina just has too much of everything. About the only thing State has that Carolina doesn't have is a tackle of Elmer Costa's ability.

Duke's chances with South Carolina will depend largely upon the ability of Steve Wadiak to penetrate the big Duke forward wall.

Wadiak, one of South Carolina's greatest football performers, gained over half of South Carolina's 1950 yardage and is the big gun around this year. He's good and there is no joking about his abilities when it comes to carrying the mail for the Gamecocks.

Duke, on the other hand, has a new formation to try out and a whole bunch of new ball players to add to the fifteen lettermen from last year's team which won seven and lost three. Bill Murray has come in to replace Wallace Wade, the "Grand Old Man" of Southern Conference football.

Anyone who has any worries about the success of the "T" at Duke can go to the football squads of East Carolina and Camp Lejeune for information. The actual score of the East Carolina-Duke scrimmage has never been announced, formally or otherwise, but it is known that the Blue Devils handled the Pirates rather handily.

The score of the Lejeune scrimmage is another matter. While it's never been released from official information sources, a very reliable source says that Duke won 82-0. Twelve touchdowns and ten extra points were scored by the Dukes in their victory and every man that dressed for the scrimmage got to play.

From the size of the squad available, over 75 men, Murray will have little trouble in filling the gaps left by the graduation of Mike Souchak, Ceep Youmans, Tom Powers, Jack Mounie, Jim Ed Gibson, and Bill Cox. Most of the men available were raised with the "T" formation and reports from Ted Mann's office seems to indicate that the Blue Devils have adapted themselves very well to the situation.

Of course, South Carolina has much more available than Wadiak, but he has been, and will be, the main spoke in the wheel of South Carolina football. The team's unit strength is being rated as "good" by the more competent observer but their defensive line took a terrific beating from graduation.

Wadiak's three partners in the 1950 backfield, Bishop Strickland, Jerry Kincaid, and Ed Pasky, aren't around this year to help him out. Thus far, only Hootie Johnson has shown himself to be a capable replacement for either of the three players.

One more note about Carolina: one on the ironical side.

In yesterday's Reflector, a story by the United Press said that Coach Carl Snavely had tentatively nominated Skeeter Hesmser for the starting fullback spot in Saturday's game. The ironical thing is that Hesmser was not invited (as were the other candidates) to come to Chapel Hill for early practices.

The report carried in Dick Herbert's Sports Observer in the News and Observer about the East Carolina bus breaking down on the trip to Mississippi is all wrong.

Both the coaches and the team members are enjoying a big laugh at Herbert's expense because they all came back with the same opinion: the trip was the best they had ever taken. They had an air-conditioned bus and a driver that they claim is the best in the world. Their trip was safe and fast—mostly due to the efforts of Buddy Guthrie, the driver.

Red Devils Prep For Hertford

FARMVILLE—The local Red Devils take on a big task Friday night as they tackle the Hertford High Indians on their home field.

Reports from Hertford say that Coach Elie Pearing has 20 lettermen returning for this season's play. His starting line-up has an average of 160 pounds down the middle and a 195 pound average in the backfield. Tackle Clinton Winslow, a 230 pound senior, is expected to lead the Indians.

Both schools opened the season last week with identical scores against their opponents. Farmville dropped Norfolk by a 32-6 count while Hertford did the same to Maxton. The Red Devils took the measure of the Perquimans County team last year, winning out 25-0 in a game which saw three of the local boys played on the injured list for the remainder of the year.

Coach Elbert Moye has sent his Farmville squad through several hard practice sessions this week in preparation for the game, which is expected to provide the toughest outside opposition of the year. This week's workout was highlighted by a night scrimmage Tuesday night.

Several of the newcomers to the team are battling for starting positions and it is not definite just who will start for the Red Devils.

Passing and kicking-protection drills were held Wednesday with signal drills scheduled for today.

The game will mark the second inter-sectional game for Farmville this year. The Red Devils open the Coastal Conference season with Robertsonville on October 12. Snow Hill comes to Farmville for a game next week.

Big Four Briefs

WAKE FOREST (UP)—Wake Forest's demon Deacons went through a last light drill today and boarded a plane for Boston to meet Boston College tomorrow night in their first game of the season.

Coach Tom Rogers, preparing for his first game as a head coach, took his boys behind closed gates yesterday and gave them a long hard drill on both offense and defense. Rogers said his team is in good physical shape and at a peak in morale.

DURHAM (UP)—All but two Blue Devils were physically ready for South Carolina today, but reports from the Duke training camp said all was not well with the team itself.

The offense was off its form in yesterday's scrimmage and the defense seemed to lack its usual sprit as it practiced against South Carolina players.

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—North Carolina's Tar Heels rolled through heavy drills today and trainers said most of the squad was in good shape for Saturday's battle with N. C. State.

Guard Doc Vinters and sophomore back Lou Britt, a prospective starter on defense, were both out with ankle injuries which seemed likely to keep them on the sidelines Saturday. Most of the other players were ready to go.

The Tar Heel offense yesterday prepared special plays for use against State while the defensive unit boned up on Wolfpack tactics.

RALEIGH (UP)—Missing the services of lanky tailback Alex Webster, N. C. State took it easy in yesterday's drills to avoid injuries which would weaken the Pack's chances against North Carolina.

The entire drill was given over to blocking work and was defense. Harvey Yeates who doubles on defense at both end and linebacker was out with a knee injury but probably will play against the Tar Heels.

Cardinal Hopeful
ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Danny Lewandowski has pitched his way into the Inter-State League record book. Danny, a right-hander from Buffalo, N. Y., recently won his 24th game by beating the Sunbury Giants, "1. No other pitcher in Inter-State League history has ever won more than 22 in a season. Lewandowski, who is a member of the St. Louis Cardinal system, has lost only five contests for the Allentown Redbirds.

ONLY TWO SENIORS
DURHAM—Of the outstanding halfbacks on the football team at Duke University, only two are seniors. They are defensive ace George Grune and reserve Fred Schoonmaker. Grune may see action on offense this season.

Sagging Red Sox Not Out—O'Neil

BOSTON (UP)—Stout Steve O'Neill, sagging like a rain-filled awning, bravely tried to lift his chin after giving his Red Sox the day off today.

"We're still not out of it," he said, still shocked by the 15 to 2 pasting his charges had taken yesterday from Cleveland.

But you could see he was a guy trying to whistle his way past a graveyard.

"They're still not out of it, not by a long shot," Manager Al Lopez of the Indians had said. But you couldn't believe him either.

O'Neill didn't say much. He talked a little about figures—how if the Red Sox took the edge in the eight game series coming up with the Yankees, if Detroit knocked off Cleveland, if, . . . But he looked and he talked like Joe McCarthy did back in 1948 when these same Cleveland Indians buried a "great" Red Sox team on this same field in a one game playoff.

Players Called For House Probe

WASHINGTON (UP)—Baseball players are expected to be among the witnesses called by the House baseball investigation when it resumes its hearings Oct. 15, or two days after the House adjourns—whichever day comes later.

A spokesman for the group, a subcommittee of the House Monopoly Investigating Committee, said a list of the witnesses will be announced later. In its previous sessions, the group heard testimony from former star Ty Cobb as well as representatives of both major and minor leagues.

The subcommittee is trying to decide whether baseball is a monopoly and, if so, whether it should be exempt from anti-trust laws. It also will go into the question of organized baseball's "territorial rights" systems which allows minor league teams some control of big-league radio broadcasts in their territory.

Light Drill Today Closes Pirates Pre-Game Work

A light practice this afternoon is all that is left in the way of drills before East Carolina College takes the field tomorrow night in Newport News, Va. against the Naval Apprentice School.

Both Tuesday and Wednesday, the Pirates worked over two hours as Coach Bill Dole sought to correct the mistakes that cropped up in last week's 40-0 loss to Mississippi Southern College. No big line-up changes are planned for the game by Dole although it has become fairly conclusive that he intends to run on a two-plateau basis for the remainder of the year.

Jack Britt, the Fairmont sophomore, and Al Auerback, the defensive tackle from Greenville, both returned to practice this week after having missed the trip to Mississippi. Britt spent most of last week in the college infirmary with a touch of the flu but is expected to be able to go against the Apprentice School. Auerback sprained his ankle two weeks ago in the scrimmage with Duke and still has trouble with it. He probably will see most of the game Saturday from the bench.

Dole has already started working out the puzzle of the two-plateau. He doesn't have much to say about it, but he says, however, and probably won't be "set" until the Pirates open their North State Conference slate, October 6 against Elon in College Stadium.

The Pirates will leave for the game with Apprentice School Friday morning via chartered bus. They will return to the campus Friday night following the ball game. The game will not be broadcast as was the Mississippi Southern College game.

Passes Feature Ayden Practice

AYDEN—Passing by Darrell Worthington and Hal Edwards featured an hour long scrimmage here yesterday as Ayden continued preparations for its opening contest in Williamston Friday night.

The majority of the passes were caught by ends Mac Whitehurst and Willis Manning, both carry-overs from last year's starting eleven which won the Coastal Conference championship for the second year in a row.

Delano Cox and John Cheek led the down-field running. Edwards also took his share of the running against the second string defensive unit.

Offensive line play was led by tackle Todd Kittrell, guard Riley Tripp, and center Curtis Dennis. Wesley Cannon, W. O. Jolly, Billy Davidson, and Jimmy Jenkins—who is expected to jump into a starting position at any time—led the defensive squad.

When the second string took its turn on offense, Wesley Cannon, Billy Powell, McGlohan, and Harry Ross starred.

Ayden travels to Williamston Friday night for the first game of either squad. The Green Wave lost to Ayden in the opener last season and went on from there to take the state Class A championship, winning the last 10 games.

Lopez Sure Of Indians' Chances

BOSTON (UP)—Bald Al Lopez, grinning as if he already had won the American League pennant, said today that all his Cleveland Indians needed was a look at Fenway park's chummy left field fence to put them back in the thick of the furious flag feud.

"That's the best tonic in the world," he said. "We won it back here in 1948 and that's what we're going to do again. When we came here I said two wins would be great for us. Well, we've got one of 'em and now we'll go for the other this afternoon."

J. V. Practice Gets Underway

Junior varsity coach Bo Farley stated yesterday that nearly 40 boys have reported to him for the first week of practice for the 1951 season. Farley will have an inexperienced group as only six have ever played before. Their first game is against Kingston in Greenville on September 21.

Tennessee Ranks First In South

NEW YORK (UP)—Almost every section of the U.S. has two potential powers gunning for the mythical national championship this football season.

Maryland dominates the Southern Conference. Although Jim Tatum's club lost two and tied one last year when equally tremendous accomplishments were anticipated, it figures to be even stronger for '51.

But otherwise, there are two big ones boiling in every pot. Here's the rundown:
SOUTHEAST—Tennessee was voted No. 1 in the nation by the United Press board of coaches, and Kentucky has Babe Parilli throwing touchdown passes with deadly precision again. Both teams loom great.

EAST—Princeton and Cornell are the big ones. They were last year, too, only Princeton went undefeated while Cornell lost two, once to Princeton. The cribbing scandal ended Army's domination for at least a year.

MIDWEST—Michigan State and Ohio State have the brute strength that typifies Big Ten football.
SOUTHWEST—Texas A&M and Baylor are the two big ones in this area. Baylor is the climax of a comeback.

MIDLANDS—Oklahoma's undefeated string of 31 games was snapped by Kentucky in the last Sugar Bowl, but Bud Wilkinson is ready to roll. Nebraska is his rival, as it was last year, only more able now.

ROCKIES—Wyoming and Utah. Wyoming was upset by Florida last week in its opening game after going undefeated last year, but the team still has promise. Utah, like Texas A&M, is coming back.

PACIFIC COAST—California and Washington. California has 40 men of first string caliber. Washington was hit hard by an early injury to quarterback Don Heinrich, but still must figure among the national leaders.

There'll be disappointments, to be sure. And the big boys will knock one another off. But at the moment the nation seems to have more grade A football powers than in any season since the war.

NBA Boxing Rankings Lists Turpin Third

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson today is the first boxer in the 31-year history of the National Boxing Association ratings system to lose and regain his title in a three month period between NBA announcements of last standings.

In releasing its third-quarter ratings for this year, the NBA listed Randy Turpin as the outstanding boxer in the Middleweight Division before he lifted the title from Robinson in an amazing upset on July 10.

His rating has sagged to third in the outstanding boxer group after his Sept. 12 defeat by Robinson in New York. He is preceded by Dave Sands, Australia and Laurent Dauboullie, France.

Blanchard Satisfied With Army Life As AF Captain

NEV. URGH, N. Y. (UP)—Doc Blanchard, a man of few words, needed only two of them today in commenting on a pro football career that went 4-glimmering—'Ah'm satisfied.'

The brawny half of Army's famed to chdown twins was standing off to one side as the Los Angeles Rams went through passing practice.

Glenn Davis was having some trouble hanging onto the bullets unloaded by Bob Waterfield. When ever he snagged one, a claque of teen-agers in the bleachers cheered faintly. When he muffed one, they cheered louder. When he ran and "broke" for some cameras, the k's hollered and rattled the planks. Blanchard's face remained a mask.

"But, Doc, you might be making more than you do now," somebody tried again.
"Ah just told you."
So instead of plowing up and down somebody's baseball park on a grey Sunday afternoon, Capt. Felix Blanchard of the Air Force is coaching the Army JV's and piling up flying time at nearby Stewart Field.

But turn back the clock to January 1947 and there were Blanchard and Davis applying for rurlougas to pl in the brand new All-America Conference. The San Francisco 49ers were hot to lay both of them and the Brooklyn club was after the plunging fullback.

Over in the National League the Pittsburgh Steelers hollered that the "outlaw" circuit had no right to either player. Finally the Air Force got them.

Ex-Coaches Help
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Two former head college football coaches assist Biggie Munn with the Michigan State grid chores. They are Lowell (Red) Dawson, former Tulane meator before the war, and Steve Sebo, who coached little Alma, Mich., college.

HOME-GROWN
DURHAM—Of 60 gridders listed on Duke University's early varsity football roster, 33 were from North Carolina. A large number of the 30 freshmen on hand were from the Tar Heel State too.

Faculty Blasts W&M Athletics

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UP)—The faculty of William and Mary moved today to take the college out of big-time athletics in order to end the athletic program's "insidious influences" on academic life.

The faculty's action was touched off by the recent resignations of the college's president, athletic director and basketball coach following revelations that the athletic department had altered records of high school athletes to allow them to enter the college.

The faculty blasted the athletic set-up in a six-page statement, which a faculty committee said had been adopted unanimously at a Sept. 17 meeting attended by 85 per cent of the 112-man faculty.

Henceforth, the committee said, the faculty will elect four committees which previously had been appointed in order to subordinate athletics "to their rightful place."

These committees are those on admissions, athletics, scholarships, and academic status.

The statement said these elected committees would "exercise tight control over athletics in the future" at William and Mary, second oldest college in the nation.

"The insidious influences of the athletic program have eaten at the most vital elements of academic life," said the statement.

"The flagrant violations of academic principle during the past two years can only be regarded as unmistakable symptoms of deep-seated, unhealthy conditions which could, if unchecked, destroy the very integrity of the college."

The high cost of big-time athletics, the statement said, has taken funds from "essential improvements which are of greater concern and would be considerably more beneficial to the whole student body. The result is a distortion of values, cynicism, and a feeling of real resentment."

R. N. (Rube) McCray, athletic director and head football coach, and Barney Wilson, head basketball coach, resigned last month after being asked to explain the irregularities in admission of athletes. College president John E. Pomfret also resigned last week after the college Board of Visitors criticized administrative leaders of the college for failing to act promptly in the athletic scandal.

Wynn Wins No. 20; Yank Rookies Homer

Race Tightens As Indians Close Series With Boston To Take On Weaker Teams In The American League

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

Since the Indians where the Yankees no longer can hurt them, the big "IF" situations in the American League's fast-ending race definitely favored them today to win the pennant.

Jubilant because they are through battling with both the contending Yankees and Red Sox, the comeback boys from Cleveland now have only six more games to play, and should win only half of them.

Here is the "IF" picture today after the Yankees topped the White Sox 5 to 3, and the Indians tomahawked the Red Sox 15 to 2, leaving the embattled New Yorkers three percentage points in front, but with a lead that is shakier than a watchmaker with a hangover:

The Yankees have won 90 games, lost 54 for a percentage of .625 and 10 games to play. The Indians have won 92, lost 56 for a .622 percentage, and have 6 games to play. The Red Sox have won 86, lost 57 for a percentage of .601, and have 11 games to play.

Disregarding the fact that five of Cleveland's six games are with the Tigers, whom they have defeated in 16 out of 17 starts, and that the other is with the fading White Sox, the Indians still have the best of it in the crystal ball.

For should they win only three of those six games for a final reckoning of 95-59, the Yankees would have to win six out of their remaining 10 to take the flag or five of 10 just to tie. At the same time Boston, almost hopelessly out of it now, would have to win 10 of its remaining 11 to finish on top and nine out of 11 to tie.

Cleveland Manager Al Lopez insisted that his boys would be in command if they could just split the four games on their road trip with the Yankees and the Red Sox. And they did it—3 to 2.

For after dropping two in a row to the Yankees, they went in and rammed their fists down the throats of the choking Red Sox with two well-earned, under-pressure triumphs.

Yesterday, as Ray Boone, Bobby Avila and Luke Easter hit homers to make Early Wynn's 20th triumph a breeze, the light-hitting Indians collected 11 safe blows off five pitchers. It was the first time Wynn had won 20 games in a 12-year big league career.

The Yankees made only three hits to 10 for the White Sox, but two were homers by their prize rookies, Mickey Mantle with two walked batters on base, and Gil McDougald with the sacks empty. That was all the help reliever Bob Knuva needed for his 11th victory.

Bobby Shantz of the A's scored his 17th victory in an 8 to 1 triumph over Detroit.

In the National League, the Dodgers increased their lead over the idle Giants when Preacher Roe, hurling on his "night" in St. Louis, blanked the Cards 3 to 0 on five hits for his 21st win against two losses.

In the only other games, the Pirates topped the Braves 7 to 3, while the Senators came from behind with two runs in the eighth to end a four-game losing streak by beating the Browns to 3.

Leading Golfers Open in Reading

READING, Pa. (UP)—Golf's brightest names, including leading money winners Lloyd Mangrum and Jim Ferris, opened a four-day grind over the Berkleigh Country Club course today in quest of fame and fortune in the fifth annual $15,000 Reading Open.

The field of 102 pros and 36 amateurs will find the 6,000-yard course revamped and toughened especially for their invasion of this Pennsylvania-Dutch community.

Sammy Sneed, last year's winner, won't be around to defend his crown. But Cary Middlecott, the 1949 titlist who copped the Eastern Open last week, will be out to bust the par-70 layout. The Memphis dentist set a tournament record of 266 in winning the 1949 joust.

Other stalwarts competing in the 72-hole medal play include comeback golfer Skip Alexander, Chick Harbert, Clayton Haeffner, Dave Douglas, Fred Haas, George Fazio and Joe Kirkwood Jr.

Songwriter Says Today's Ballads Too Goody-Goody

LONDON (UP)—A British songwriter said today that now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the barroom ballad—before Tin Pan Alley whitewashes it out of existence.

"We must band together to save this heritage for our children—our male children, of course," said grey, courtly composer Tolchard Evans.

"I shudder when I think of the goody-goody songs which are all that will be left for the next generation if the present trend continues."

Yadkinville Fire Causes $25,000 Damage In Theater

YADKINVILLE (AP)—Fire caused about $25,000 damage to a theater here yesterday.

Smoke damage was also reported to stocks of two stores adjoining the Seats theater, where equipment valued at between $7,000 and $8,000 was destroyed.

Assistant Fire Chief P.D.B. Harding of the Yadkinville department said the fire apparently started from a short circuit at the rear of the theater.

The investigation is part of a stepped-up drive by OPS to nab slaughterers who pay over-ceiling prices for cattle, and to find out where the beef is going and what is being paid for it.

OPS Plans Take Court Action In Beef Cheating

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government soon will start court action against slaughterers in New York, Cleveland, and Chicago on charges of cheating customers on beef sales and other price violations.

The Office of Price Stabilization announced the pending action today as it sent special agents into nine Western cities to investigate slaughterhouse operations.

The investigation is part of a stepped-up drive by OPS to nab slaughterers who pay over-ceiling prices for cattle, and to find out where the beef is going and what is being paid for it.

$25,000 Damage In Theater Fire

YADKINVILLE (AP)—Fire caused about $25,000 damage to a theater here yesterday.

Smoke damage was also reported to stocks of two stores adjoining the Seats theater, where equipment valued at between $7,000 and $8,000 was destroyed.

Assistant Fire Chief P.D.B. Harding of the Yadkinville department said the fire apparently started from a short circuit at the rear of the theater.

Bulgarian Visitor Describes Communist Experiences

Communism "as millions of people in Europe and Asia experience it in their daily lives" was pictured graphically by Tsvetan Litov, Bulgarian church leader, at a student-faculty assembly at East Carolina College Wednesday morning of this week.

Addressing a group of approximately 1500 men and women in the Austin auditorium, the speaker drew upon his own experiences as he described the conditions under which people in Communist-dominated countries live. He addressed the sponsorship of the National Committee for a Free Europe, and was introduced to the East Carolina audience by Dean Leo W. Jenkins of the college.

Behind the Iron Curtain, he said, life in a country like his own Bulgaria is marked by lack of basic freedom, injustice and hardship. "Emphasized the fact that there, in a country of politically individualistic people, a one-party system is enforced. Suppression of the press and of free speech, concentration camps and forced labor, and the 'sealing off' of the country so that entering and leaving it are highly difficult or impossible are mentioned as characteristic of Communistic rule there and elsewhere.

Urging his hearers to know Communism "by its fruits," Mr. Litov reminded the East Carolina audience that Communism is a world problem of gravest concern to all free men. "Communism," he said, "strives to achieve world domination. Your country is the prime objective of Communist aspiration."

A period of question and answer directed attention especially toward the Voice of America and Radio Free Europe, which Mr. Litov said are reaching the masses in the satellite countries of Europe. "Totalism he described as 'a cancer to Communism,'" and he stated that other resistance movements, particularly underground activities, are a threat to Soviet power. Idealism, the desire for power and material gain, and he cited as varying motives guiding those who support Communism.

For fifteen years minister of the largest Methodist Church of Sofia and a prominent journalist in his own country, Mr. Litov came to the United States in 1947 to study at Emory University, Georgia. He has lectured extensively in this county.

Slow Process In 'Fuehrer' Purge

AP Newsfeatures
BERLIN The word "fuehrer" is slowly being denazified in Germany but it is a painful process.

Once an ordinary word meaning "leader," the term "fuehrer" took on capital letter size when Adolf Hitler chose it as his most desired title.

After the collapse of the Third Reich, the Germans tried to shed everything associated with Hitler and get along with the occupation powers. In so doing, they neatly sidestepped the use of the word "fuehrer" though at times it was mighty inconvenient.

At first, they adopted the word "leiter" as a capable substitute but soon dropped that one like a warm spud. It reminded them of Reichsleiter Martin Bormann, whom nobody ever really liked regardless of how they felt about Hitler.

Little by little, the more daring just stopped worrying about the thing and where a job called for the title "Lokfuehrer" (locomotive engineer), it was called just that.

To everyone's surprise, nobody minded on the Allied side. The German was somewhat abashed to "discover the Allies knew better how to differentiate between a small "f" and a large "F" than he did.

Today, the word "fuehrer" is in some use but it still has not become general. There is an odd reluctance among the general public to indulge in it.

In any event, the people are extremely careful to keep the word out of the nomenclature of their political parties. This, they feel, would be edging a little too far.

The Park of the Red Rocks in the hills west of Denver includes a natural sandstone amphitheater capable of seating more than 10,000 people.

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, headaches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 10 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Coldest Camp In Canadian Army

OTTAWA —(AP)—Men with service at the Canadian army base in Fort Churchill, Man., can claim to have trained at the coldest camp in Canada.

The Canadian defense department has compiled figures on climatic conditions in 33 military camps and training areas. They contained surprises for many service men.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the RECTOR KITCHENS

With September's blow hot, blow cold weather, homemakers enjoy a main dish that's popular served hot or cold. So for a quick-to-prepare, high protein meal, the Rector Kitchens recommend unsurpassed Wilson's Certified Dutch Brand Loaf.

This is an old-fashioned, home-style meat loaf. Your dealer carries Dutch Brand Loaf in a shape that slices square, or oval. Both are the same tasty, ground meat, made from the leanest pork and beef, chopped medium coarse. Here's meat loaf that has the natural meat flavor, seasoned just right with but a hint of delicious spices. The Wilson's Certified Label tells you—it is America's Finest!

Wilson's Certified Dutch Brand Loaf has many uses and many customers. You'll "love" it, too! Whether you choose to serve it cold or hot, dinner will be on the table in a jiffy, and a mighty fine dinner, too.

Dutch Loaf Dinner, Hot
Prepare a double recipe of B-V gravy as given on the Wilson's B-V carton by melting:
4 tablespoons fat, margarine, butter or drippings
Then stir in: 4 tablespoons flour
Mix smooth and gradually blend in: 2 cups cold water
Cook and stir to a thin 'gravy' thickness. Add:
2 teaspoons Wilson's B-V dissolved in small amount of hot mixture.
Add enough:
3/4 or 1/2 inch thick slices of Wilson's Certified Dutch Brand Loaf to serve your family.
Bake or heat in skillet 10-15 minutes, just long enough to heat through (never let it boil as that has a toughening effect). Serve hot with mashed potatoes.
Dutch Brand Loaf, Cold Plate—Slice Dutch Loaf and serve with pickles. Accompany with slaw.

The Wilson Label protects your table

Truman Asks Heavier Tax Load To Meet Bills

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman appealed to the Senate today to vote a heavier tax increase than the one recommended by its finance committee.

His request, contained in a letter addressed to Vice President Alben W. Barkley, was read as the Senate met two hours earlier than usual to debate the $5,500,000,000 tax increase bill.

The President said Congress should approve tax increases that would approach his $10,000,000,000 goal as nearly as possible. That is the minimum needed, he said, to offset an indicated federal deficit.

He recommended higher levies on both individual and corporation incomes to "strengthen" the bill. He also said the increased corporate taxes should apply to all 1951 income instead of that earned since April 1.

The $5,500,000,000 yield expected from the Senate bill is the estimate of the finance committee. Mr. Truman predicted that it would raise only $2,500,000,000 in the current fiscal year ending next June 30 and can spend $65,000,000,000.

Members of the finance committee insisted that income taxes would be pushed just about to the limit by the pending increase bill. But a bloc of administration supporters prepared to fight for a bigger tax increase.

Administration senators also predicted that the finance committee bill would leave the government with a $7,000,000,000 deficit when this fiscal year ends.

But the finance committee chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) reiterated his belief that the Treasury will show a cash surplus for the fiscal year if the committee's recommendations are adopted.

"They (the administration) just can't spend it," he told reporters. "Revenue is coming in at a billion or a billion and a half more than estimated and I don't think they can spend $65,000,000,000."

Cheer Bitter Foe Of Administration In Fighting Talk

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) drew cheers instead of the expected boos from 9,000 ex-Marines last night when he characterized President Truman as being "stubbornly stupid."

McCarthy was guarded by city and county police who expected trouble from his controversial speech at a national convention of the Marine Corps League. There were ovations instead.

He got the biggest applause by quoting a "Democratic senator" as saying:

"We have had presidents who were stubborn and we have had presidents who were stupid, but this is the first time we have combined a president who is stubbornly stupid."

Morale Of Red Chinese Soldiers Said Weakening

9TH CORPS HQ, Korea (UP)—The United States Army's second ranking commander in Korea said today that the morale of Chinese Communist troops is weakening and that surrenders have reached an unprecedented rate.

This deterioration has occurred despite increased enemy fire power and improvement in transport, Lt. Gen. William M. Hoge of Lexington, Ky., commanding the 9th Corps, said at his headquarters.

(Hoge's statement led to immediate speculation on the possibility that the Communist high command might have agreed to resume armistice negotiations partly because of its knowledge that the Red position was weakening.)

Langston Says . . .

"I am opposed to the machines and not in favor of them in any form, shape, or fashion." It is the duty of the police department to take whatever action will be needed, the Mayor said. "I might bring the matter before the Board at their next meeting, but in the meantime I plan to discuss the matter with Chief Langston."

Bad Time . . .

Today they have a majority of only six among the 625 seats in Commons.

That's a tight squeak for any program Atlee's party wants to put through, although it did nationalize the steel industry after the 1950 elections.

Atlee's own party has been split a bit by opposition from within the ranks. And, in addition to its other problems of getting back to normal, Britain, as a member of the Atlantic Pact, has to arm and produce arms, meaning more money the government has to spend, more expenses.

Britain To Buy Needed Oil From Red Romania

LONDON (UP)—Great Britain, cut off from its main source of oil in Iran, has made a deal to buy 200,000 tons of oil from Communist Romania, it was disclosed today.

The deal was made by the government-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., whose immense interests in Iran have been nationalized.

It was understood the price would be 1,000,000 pounds ($2,800,000).

British officials said the deal was an example of the advantages of keeping open trade channels with Communist countries despite opposition in the United States. But many Britons were surprised that the government turned at once to a Communist satellite country to make up a part of its loss of oil from Iran.

4-H Clubs Enter Exhibits In Fair

Pitt County 4-H Clubs will show educational exhibits at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair.

Clubs which will have exhibits are the Falkland junior club, Fountain junior club, Winterville-Ayden-Grifton club, and the Pactolus senior club.

The Winterville-Ayden-Grifton club will have a clothing exhibit, showing the ways to change a dress for different occasions and an exhibit on good grooming. The Pactolus club will exhibit a miniature small home for farm families that can be built for less than $5,000.

A special section at the fair will be for 4-H club members and all girls from 10 to 18 to exhibit work of their own. Helen Hicks, assistant home demonstration agent, said the division will eliminate competition between older and more experienced women and school girls.

was buying power from Washington and wheeling it to customers via its own lines. At that time, however, relations between the supplier and the purchaser became strained. Washington notified that it would terminate its contract, and Grimesland thus began buying power from Greenville, which it has done since then.

Washington in the meantime began construction of new lines south of the river to Chocowinity, in Grimesland-served territory. A restraining order, granted by Judge Clawson L. Williams in 1949, halted the construction temporarily and Grimesland dropped its suit against Washington for $24,577.49 damages.

However, the injunction order came before Burgwyn in June, concerning whether or not Washington was required to apply to the State Utilities Commission for "trespassing" on Grimesland territory. Burgwyn ruled it did not since the law applying to the regulation of public utilities does not encompass the operations of municipal utilities.

1951-52 school term. Conley said 22 new teachers were beginning work in the Pitt County schools and said 20 teachers had been in the county schools over 20 years and had done a "wonderful job."

"The work this year is not going to be easy, it is going to be difficult," Conley said, "and it is important and necessary to lead children in achieving their chance in life." He said he was glad to find many teachers studying and in a graduate group. "We have 190 teachers in the county schools holding 'A' certificates," Conley said.

Annie Lee Jones, elementary supervisor, said it was a pleasure to bring greetings to the teachers and a privilege to have the opportunity to work again with the teachers.
