

Mr. And Mrs. Coleman Give After-Rehearsal Reception

A lovely pre-nuptial wedding court-day was extended to the Samplers-Bradley wedding party on Wednesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Phil Coleman entertained following the rehearsal at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

As the guests entered the door, they walked into rooms which were beautiful with crystal and silver appointments which carried out the bridal motif. A small antique tier table bore a low silver bowl in which was floating a giant white aster encircled with fern. This floral arrangement was flanked by white tapers in low silver holders, and on the lower shelf of the table was laid the satin bride's book on white brocade satin. This too was encircled with fern and topped with a lovely satin bow.

On another table was a crystal tray holding a floating white chrysanthemum and fern which was lighted by a white taper. In front of the fireplace was a tall basket covered in white, the hands of which were entwined with ivy, and holding a massive array of white gladioli. The scene on the mantel was a miniature bride and groom standing under an archway topped with tiny crystal bells. This was placed against a background of ivy which fell in graceful graces from the wall light brackets above the mantel.

In the dining room the table was covered with a white Maderia cut-work cloth and all appointments were of silver and crystal. At the back of the table was a three-branched silver candelabra with glowing tapers, in front of which was a crystal swan filled with fern topped by large white asters and pom pom chrysanthemums. The neck of the swan was tied with a tulle bow topped with a white blossom. In the wake of the big swan were two smaller swans filled with green and white bridal mints.

Crystal Sunday night supper platters held various assortments of hors d'oeuvres, ham biscuits, cheese tidbits and assorted pastries. Silver dishes held assorted salted nuts, and decorated crystal cake stand. From a silver platter at one end of the table the guests served themselves to steaming coffee.

On the buffet was a complete bridal party with miniature dolls dressed in formal attire as the bride and groom, the minister, two bridesmaids and two groomsmen. They were arranged on a white satin runner before an altar background formed by graduated candles in silver holders. On another side table was a crystal chandelier set encircled with fern and lighted by tapers.

One of the most attractive features in the home was the wishing well table in the living room. A large formal bride doll was placed in front of a silver bowl, behind which was a white card with the words "Wishing well" printed in silver. A satin covered wishbone, a satin horseshoe and a crystal bride's slipper adorned the table, and after the guests were served, the hostess gave each one a shiny new penny which each threw into the wishing well after making a wish for the bridal couple. When all the pennies were thrown in, the hostess tied them up in a "bag of gold" and presented them to the bride-elect. Twenty-four guests were invited to this delightful affair.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
September 21, 1911

The demand for cotton pickers continues.

One cart brought two barrels of Scuppernon grapes in today. They seem to be abundant.

There were big times again today out on the tobacco market. In many instances prices reached such a high figure as to cause a shout from the happy farmers and warehousemen. The place to get good prices all the time is on the Greenville market.

Coffee is also climbing up, the price tree trying to catch up with sugar.

Something that Greenville needs and needs badly is a good hospital. Life is too valuable for people taken with sudden illness that requires an operation to be subjected to the danger of being carried elsewhere and the delay in receiving proper attention.

Churches of Christ, Scientist
"Matter" is the topic of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches next Sunday.

The Golden Text is from Psalms (73:26) "My flesh and my heart faileth; but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever." Passages from the Bible include: "And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." (1 John 2:17)

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "All things will continue to disappear, until perfection appears and reality is reached." (p. 353) "Spirit and its formations are the only realities of being." (p. 264)

Christian Church Announcements
The special music Sunday morning will be "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" by Fillmore sung under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Carter with Miss Jeanette Hamilton at the organ. The pastor has announced to speak this Sunday morning on "The Advancing March of the Kingdom."

The Chi-Rho fellowship will meet at 5:30 and the CYP will convene at 6:30 Sunday evening with Billy Tucker as counsellor. Mr. and Mrs. John Carrington are youth sponsors for this coming year.

Rally Day will be observed at the Eighth Street Christian Sunday school this year on the first Sunday in October and Promotion Sunday will be observed on September 30. The goal has been set for 350 in Sunday school on Rally Day, October 7.

The Mockert Union will meet this coming week on Wednesday afternoon at 4 with the Eden Christian Church just beyond Snow Hill. Billy Tucker is president this year. Supper will be served by the host church at 6 and a men's meeting will follow at 7:30. The Christian Woman's Fellowship and the Christian Youth Fellowship will have charge of the afternoon program.

The Disciples will not have a national assembly this year, but instead will have 17 area assemblies all over the United States and Canada. The one nearest us is at Wilson on October 3-4. Plans are underway to have a large delegation from the Eighth Street Church at this meeting. Many national leaders will be present to speak at the various sessions.

Methodists Plan Institutes On Family Life

The churches of the New Bern District of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church will hold a one-day institute on family life and marriage counseling at Queen Street Methodist Church in Kinston beginning at 10 a.m. September 24, and adjourning at 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Board of Education of the North Carolina Annual Conference, through its Department of Family Life Education, the Advance Committee of the North Carolina Conference, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Conference, the institute will feature a number of family specialists and other resource leaders. Among these are: Dr. C. Newman Hogle, pastor of Freeport Methodist Church, Freeport, N.Y., and Professor of Marriage Counseling at New York University; the Rev. D. D. Holt, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Durham; the Rev. J. T. Greene, director of Family Life Education for the North Carolina Conference; and Rev. F. Morris, executive secretary of the North Carolina Conference Board of Education.

Other speakers and participants are the Rev. B. B. Slaughter, superintendent of the New Bern District, Rev. K. W. Taylor, pastor of Walsenburg Methodist Church, Rev. H. L. Harrell, pastor of Oarrs Chapel, La Grange, and Mrs. F. P. Brooks, representing the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the New Bern District.

The morning session will emphasize the role of the church in family life education, while the afternoon session will deal mostly with marriage counseling. The women delegates will meet in separate session in the afternoon for a discussion of the function of the Woman's Society of Christian Service in promoting Christian Family Living, while the ministers will have a seminar on the techniques and types of situations encountered in marriage and family counseling.

Mary A. Silverthorne Library Dedicated

The late Mary Ann Silverthorne was honored in a reverent dedication service Sunday night, September 9 at Providence Methodist Church in Chocowinity.

Mary Ann was the wife of Roy Silverthorne of Washington.

A beautiful altar set and Bible were presented to the church in her honor by her mother, Mrs. J. E. Ecklin.

The church library, begun by the Methodist Youth Fellowship and the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the church, was dedicated to her and named "The Mary Ann Library."

Several poems written by Mary Ann were read, and the Rev. C. G. Nickens, pastor, accepted the altar set and the Bible and the library in the name of the church.

Apron Sale To Be Held Saturday
The women of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church are holding another apron sale tomorrow for the purpose of raising funds for furnishing the new Educational Building.

On Dollar Day during the summer a number of tables were set up in front of the various business establishments from which the young people of the church sold aprons which had been made by many interested ladies of the town. The response was so good that more aprons were secured for another sale. These articles will be on sale tomorrow in front of Blount-Harvey's, J. C. Penney's and Belk-Tyler's. The public is urged to cooperate in this project and to buy an apron to help buy a chair for the children of the Methodist Church School.

Factious P.T.A.
The Executive Committee of the Factious P.T.A. met in the high school library Tuesday afternoon, September 18, with Rev. J. D. Verneison, president, having charge of the meeting. Ten persons were present. Committees for carrying on the year's work were chosen and chairman selected. A change was made in the time of the regular monthly meetings. This year they will be held on the third Monday night in each month.

It was announced that the Halloween Carnival will take place on October 31st. The committee will meet again.

Briefing Meets For Church Women Planned

The North Carolina Council of Church Women is sponsoring a series of nine one-day briefing-conferences on the work and scope of the work of the United Church Women.

It has long been felt that women of the member churches of the United Council of Church Women should be better informed as to the work and the nature of the activities of the Council. Thus a series of these one-day sessions have been planned, to be conducted by leaders in the federal organization sent to this state by national headquarters. Some of the institutes were held during the week of September 11-14 in the western part of the state.

Those for the eastern section will be held next week in the following places:
September 24—Raleigh, at Puller Memorial Baptist Church from 10:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.; September 25 Fayetteville, at First Presbyterian Church from 10:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; September 26, Rocky Mount, at Parish House of the Episcopal Church on Church Street from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; September 27, Kinston at First Baptist Church from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; and September 28, at Wilmington, at Fifth Avenue Methodist Church from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The national office is sending Miss Esther Stamata, director of Christian Social Relations of the United Church Women and Field Workers, who will be present at the meetings in the above mentioned places.

A barbecue and chicken lunch will be served at Rocky Mount and those going to Kinston are asked to bring sandwiches for their own lunches.

Those desiring to go from Greenville to any of the meetings are asked to contact Mrs. Paul Ricka.

"A FREE MOVIE"

Rev. Greene is showing a free movie for the youth of Pitt County. This film is an actual case of JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—a boy who went bad, but at last found himself. Every youth in this county should see this movie. Every mother and daddy should be drafted to see it! Don't let anything keep you away from the big tent Friday night!

SUNDAY 3:00 P.M.

"DIVORCE"

What is Adultery? What are the Bible grounds for divorce? Are there any Bible grounds for re-marriage of divorced people as long as the mate of either is alive? Can divorced people be saved? If they can with which wife or husband will they live after they are saved? The Bible answers all these questions.

"The Meanest Man In Pitt County"

No it is not a catchy subject. Rev. Greene will literally preach on the "Meanest Man in Pitt County." He is not referring to the devil; he is talking about a two legged man that wears pants and lives in Pitt County. Ladies get the old boy to the tent Saturday night and Greene will doctor him for you!

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

MONEY HAS ITS LIMITS
When Simon the Sorcerer tried to buy from the apostle Peter the gift of the Holy Spirit, Peter's answer was, "Thou shalt not buy with money." "Thou shalt not buy with money," because thou has thought to obtain the gift of God with money.

There are some things money will not buy. Almost everyone is willing to admit this, but very few people really mean what they are saying when they make the admission. Deep down in their hearts they believe that if they had a sufficiently large bank account, they could buy everything they want and achieve everything they want to achieve.

And perhaps they are right—for their desires may not be very elevated. Their ideals of achievement may be low. If all they want are good clothes and the gayest kind of pleasures, then they can buy such things with money. They can buy liquor with money, and drugs and good food and the society of many of their appetites. But none of these things will bring happiness, and the possession of none of these things constitutes a real achievement.

George Washington Carver, the Negro scientist, refused an industrial retainer of $100,000 a year and chose instead to remain a college professor at a few thousand dollars a year salary. Robert E. Lee turned down a fortune rather than allow his name to be used to advertise a lottery. "My name," he said, "is not for sale."

There are some things—and some persons—which money cannot buy.

Justice Was Killed Gangland Style

It was murder!
Justice was not only stabbed in the back, but figuratively fitted to a cement "overcoat" and dropped from Brooklyn bridge. Scene of the crime: Kings County Court, New York, N. Y.

Eighteen men, sworn to uphold the law, were accused of conspiring for eight years to protect a bookmaker's empire. The crowd was trapped and the gambler promised to equal.

In building his case, the State based its argument on the anticipated identification of the accused by bookmaker Harry Gross.

After spectacular shenanigans, Gross balked; the case against eighteen former policemen accused of accepting multi-million dollar bribes was wrecked. They walked out of the room free men, though the shadow of their past hovered over each.

Odds against their ever being brought to account for their roles in the N. Y. C. Police Department scandal are overwhelming. Two years of work and $400,000 expense money went for naught.

District Attorney M. F. McDonald claims the whole blow-up was a calculated plot to wreck investigation of the tie-in between police and gamblers.

It might well be.
At any rate, the shocking setback dealt the forces of law and order is ample evidence that the underworld will and can resort to any device to survive.

Ground Work For A World Federation

Communism suffered another blow as Greece and Turkey were taken into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and the nations which comprise the treaty group adopted a program to eliminate travel, transportation and communication barriers between themselves.

Although it is significant that Turkey and Greece on the Russian flank became a part of the North Atlantic Alliance, it is probably more significant in the shaping of world history that the nations have moved closer to a federation than an alliance by virtue of the new program.

If the problem of trade and other barriers between the nations of the pact can be eliminated successfully as outlined in the NATO program, there is a good chance that the other obstacles which confront the possibility of an international federation between the nations of the NATO will be overcome. The result in time may well be the beginning of an international federation which will include all the free nations of the world united against Communism. Eventually it may grow into a world federation of nations for which the political leaders have been groping.

The member nations of the NATO are surely much closer to an international federation than the United Nations Organization is at the present time.

While the world waits for the retaliation of Russia to the inclusion of Greece and Turkey in the NATO group, we may be sure of one thing. The actions at the Ottawa meeting of the North Atlantic nations have dealt a serious blow to the cause of Communism, and have laid the groundwork for greater unification of nations in the future against the Communist movement.

This Promises No Easy Victory

Despite the record of victories in recent by-elections and pronouncements by pollsters, Winston Churchill's Conservative Party is by no means a sure winner in Britain's coming general elections.

And should the Conservatives win, there is no immediate prospect of removing the burden of Socialism from the British people. Tories themselves admit that defeat of the Labor Party is but the first step along an extremely long road of recovery. They concede that much of the nationalization program effected by Laborites will be retained. For how long? They don't say.

The Labor Party took but six years of control to accomplish the greater part of its socialistic program. So well did they perform the task that observers fear it will take as long or longer to overcome the economic paralysis creeping over the people.

That paralysis may well have deadened the spirit of enterprise to a degree that individuals, too many of them, will choose to rely on the "safe" living of governmental controls.

Just how "safe" that life has become is illustrated by the thirty-cents worth of meat allowed each individual weekly; and housewives are urged to use their electric appliances during hours when industrial plants are idle. Coal and electricity promises to be even more scarce this winter than last; other current scarcities are expected to be more keenly felt. Rather than more "more for everyone," Socialism's "less for everyone" is becoming more pronounced.

However, a lot of Britons have benefited or thought they have. . . many see it to their advantage to keep the current party in power, and they are seemingly well organized.

No matter how their political life looks to us from our side of the ocean, it is still going to be a close contest, and up to the British people to decide.

News Behind The News
WASHINGTON—The upshot of Secretary Dean Acheson's recent talks with British and Foreign Ministers at San Francisco, Washington and Ottawa is that the United States will furnish our allies with more men, money and arms in return for letting us assume full military and economic command of the world alliance against Russian Communism.

To put it bluntly and undiplomatically, Washington has persuaded London and Paris to permit us to take on even heavier burdens in Western Europe, the Eastern Mediterranean and in the Far East without giving us commensurate benefits. In fact, we granted Foreign Ministers Morrison and Schuman almost everything they asked.

The United States did wrest certain concessions as listed below, but even they broadened the area within which we have guaranteed to build up anti-Russian forces. These include such remote spots as Greece, Turkey, the Middle East generally and Indo-China.

To understand the significance of the trade, it is helpful to know the original, pre-conference demands which each side planned to make on the other at the western allies' most strategic "cold war" meeting.

AGREEMENT—The major Truman-Acheson desire was that Britain and France exert their influence to obtain almost unanimous agreement to signing of the Japanese peace pact, thereby blocking off a Russian filibuster that would divide the democracies. They succeeded, even persuading the two Asian countries of Pakistan and Indonesia to affix their signatures.

IN RETURN, we granted London's insistence on an offensive-defensive military alliance with Australia and New Zealand. Paris demanded and obtained the promise of United Nations (United States) reinforcement of her hard-pressed troops in Indo-China, if the Chinese Communists intervene en masse.

ACQUISITION—The U.S. wanted Anglo-French acquiescence to the inclusion of Greece, Turkey and eventually Spain in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. British and French Socialists have protested bitterly against any coalition with France, threatening the political security of both the Attlee and Flevin ministries.

The Scandinavian countries objected vigorously, as did Britain and France at first, to making the two Mediterranean nations full members of NATO. They feared the new membership would stretch their commitments too far, invite an early attack by Russia and reduce the amount of arms we could ship to present members. With Turkey, the Scandinavians would be the first to suffer from a Red invasion.

OBJECTIVE—On our promise that we shall furnish sufficient weapons for the new signatories without reducing present reinforcement of existing members, the British, French and Scandinavians have agreed to withdraw their objections.

Our third great objective was to win Foreign Minister Schuman to our program for including Western German units in General Eisenhower's Western European Army. Schuman agreed, although he must yet obtain Parliament's consent, but only on condition that we increase the American military complement far beyond the strength originally contemplated.

HORSE-TRADING—The United States did not fare so well on other quid pro quo deals with Ministers Morrison and Schuman, especially the stubborn and horse-trading Britisher. These touched internal politics and economics so intimately that he dared not give final pledges.

Washington suggested that London refrain from extreme disciplinary action against Iran in the oil controversy for fear it would throw this key country into the arms of the Reds. Morrison could not commit his government to any definite policy, but he agreed to permit W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's emissary, to try his good offices again.

Last Minute Rush To Tie Loose Ends

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Just about everywhere you go in Greenville these days you can find somebody talking about football. Two local coaches, Bill Kittrell of Greenville High School and Bill Dole of East Carolina College, are men that get the most out of the material they have.

Today's story is about coaches that perhaps got the most out of their available material, too, but nevertheless lost games. The pressure on the coaches became so great that they quit football.

Ray Eliot of Illinois University was "Coach of the Year" in 1946, because he brought his team the Big Ten championship (their first in 18 years), and won over UCLA in the Rose Bowl 46-14.

Yet here's what happened to Ray last year, and remember that he is still one of the nation's top football brains: He went to a movie on the campus at Illinois. In the newscast were scenes from the previous Saturday's 14-7 defeat by Northwestern. The students in the audience hollered "Eliot—BOOO!" When the camera focused on the Illinois bench, featuring Eliot's face, students drowned out the sound track. "Out! Out! Eliot—Out!"

Ray Eliot slumped low in his seat. His wife quietly cried. There are some things that even a football coach's wife can't be expected to take.

What crime had Eliot committed? He had failed to win one important game out of nine. Otherwise, his team had beat Washington, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, UCLA and Ohio State, scored 137 points to their opponents' 56. They had missed a trip to the Rose Bowl by one single touchdown. Actually he had one of the nation's top records.

Down in the dumps, Eliot flew to the University of Southern California, to look for another job. USC was looking for a coach, but already six organized USC graduate lobbyists threatened to withdraw their financial support if Eliot was hired. In effect, he was fired before he could be hired.

Ray went back to Illinois much wiser. A friend of his says, "He knew then that he was in a racket which passed from control of schools to a minority of loud-mouthed fanatics with check-books, who are the dictators."

It takes broad shoulders to withstand the pressure of alumni and other supporters who want football victories above all else. Somebody has to lose, so there will always be coaches with the fans at their throats. All I have to say is thank God for private enterprise. And if you are on some coach's back, get off. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Raleigh, N. C.

By LYN NISBET

JUDGES—The Judges, including supreme court justices, have been much in the limelight during the past few days. Capitol Square, distressed at the sudden death of the late Chief Justice Stacy, was gratified at elevation of Justice W. A. Devin to that post and generally pleased with appointment of Illinois Valentine of Nashville to the vacancy on the high court. Also there is general expression of pleasure at full acquittal of Special Superior Court Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn on charges of drunk driving in Virginia. Up to that point the story is on the record. From here out it is speculative.

Capitol square folks are speculating on prospect of opposition in next year's election to the recent appointees as chief and associate justices of the supreme court, and to future activities of the special superior court judge.

SUGGESTIONS—Judge Burgwyn has 21 months of his current appointive term to serve, and by that time will be eligible for retirement and status of emergency judge. There is some feeling that although completely acquitted in the Virginia courts, there might be embarrassment attached to his presiding over criminal courts in future defenses charged with similar offenses would be tried. So the suggestion is made that perhaps Judge Burgwyn will be utilized to preside over civil terms during the rest of his tenure. Opinion hereabout is that if Chief Justice Devin is a candidate for election next year he will have no opposition, but that Associate Justice Valentine will almost certainly have to fight to retain his seat on the high court. Those who secretly hope the chief might retire next year are overly optimistic. He is about the huskiest eighty-year old to be found anywhere, and belongs to a family in which ninety-plus years is regarded slightly above middle age. Opposition to sitting justices is rare and seldom successful. It has been many years since a member of the supreme court was defeated. There are some factors in the present situation which lead to belief this time it might be different.

OPPOSITION—Already there is opposition brewing to Associate Justice Valentine. Chief Justice Devin will have to file in the election only for an unexpired term, since the late C. J. Stacy was elected last fall for an eight year term. Valentine will have to file twice, since the term of the associate justice he replaced expires January 1, 1953. He will run for the unexpired term from date of election certification to December 31, 1952, and for the full eight year term beginning the next day. A sort of quirk in North Carolina election laws requires that double filing. A governor can appoint only until the next general election, and if a judge of the election is usually certified the latter part of November. If the incumbent did not file for both the unexpired and the succeeding full term somebody else, maybe a Republican, could get elected for that short period between the time election results were determined and the new term of office began. In 1948, for example, W. B. Umstead and J. M.

Broughton paid double fees and ran twice in the same election for United States senator, because the regular term was ending. In 1930, Frank Graham and Willis Smith had only one filing fee to pay; because they were candidates only for the unexpired part of the term to which Senator Broughton had been elected.

CANDIDATES—Several prospective opponents for Justice Valentine have been mentioned, with Judge R. Hunt Parker presently getting major attention. J. L. Emanuel, prominent Raleigh attorney who was a witness in the Burgwyn case Tuesday, brings word that the North Carolina lawyers and citizens present on that occasion manifested enthusiasm for Judge Parker. He has been on the superior bench for nearly twenty years, following several years tenure as solicitor, and is generally regarded as one of the most prominent students of law and history in the state. Furthermore, it is known that he has long cherished the personal ambition to serve on the supreme court.

CONSERVATIVE—The time between now and next spring when notice of candidacy must be given is too short for adequate appraisal of his attitude on the supreme court, but prediction is made that if Associate Justice Valentine has as much as five years tenure he will be considered one of the most conservative members of the court. There will be nothing unusual about this surface transition. It has happened many times, most notable examples being Justice James C. McReynolds and Hugo Black of the United States supreme court.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LEGISLATING SAFETY
(Henderson Dispatch)

Just what can be done by the State legislature toward reducing highway accidents and fatalities is not clear. President Coleman Roberts, of the Carolina Motor Club, has written Governor Scott urging that a special session of the general assembly be convened to undertake some action to meet North Carolina's "critical traffic safety problems." Roberts' description of the situation is certainly not overstated; how to overcome it is the bottleneck.

At its regular session last winter, the legislature had a chance to do what could be done about the slaughter on the highways. It actually did very little, not because of unwillingness nor because it was unconscious of the need. There was simply very little of a tangible, concrete nature that appeared practical and possible. A year or so before the session convened, the governor had named a statewide safety committee to study the situation and to make recommendations. That committee surveyed the field and offered recommendations, but they fared exceedingly poorly at the hands of the lawmakers.

In his letter to the governor, Roberts cited the thirty percent increase in highway fatalities the first half of this year, and said the loss of life and property "has reached such staggering proportions that some extraordinary action seems necessary." Statistics were given to show that accidents increased from 12,208 in the first half of last year to 15,817 in the January-July period in 1951. Injuries were twenty-two percent greater and fatalities ten percent more. In the period last year, 5,442 persons were injured, as against 6,442 this year. Fatalities rose from 423 to 464.

Roberts argued that a special session of the legislature would "impress our representatives with the seriousness of this condition and the need for action." He claims that "we need laws with teeth in them that will make certain of punishment by jail sentences, as well as a fine for violations of all traffic safety laws." All of which is quite true enough, yet the legislature showed no inclination last winter to enact such laws. Nor is there assurance that it would act very differently at a special session.

Business Today

You have heard it said, and you'll hear it said more often, that the United States has reached the limit of income taxation. The law of diminishing returns will set in if rates are raised any higher. According to this theory, people won't be interested in getting raises or making more money; all they will get out of it will be the fun of handling it and a lot of tiresome book-keeping.

Some people are saying that because they sincerely believe it. Others are saying it because they believe that if they say it often enough everybody will believe it and Congress won't dare raise the rates any further.

Mill Factory recently polled a number of companies; 75 percent of the respondents said that high taxes are diminishing the incentive of executives and 46 percent said they noted a reluctance of executives to take on added responsibility because taxes would take so much of their raises.

First National of Boston, that old caddy of conservatism, says in its current New England Letter that if all personal taxable income of $25,000 a year and over were confiscated by the government, the amount would pay the government's running expenses for only ten more days.

It is quite probable that income tax rates could be raised further, much further, without decreasing the total collections.

But assume they can't be and assume that the defense program requires even more money than the current $60,000,000,000 a year rate. What happens then?

Then the government taxes pensions, savings, bond holders, unorganized workers, insurance holders and annuities.

It doesn't do it by levying a direct tax on these people least of all pay it. The process is even simpler. It increases the money supply by borrowing. This is simply inflation. It takes away part of the purchasing power of each dollar.

Organized workers and industry can make up for this by getting raises and increasing prices. But those who have fixed incomes can't.

Fantastic, isn't it? But it has been done before. The inflation since 1939 has taken away half the buying power of people who live on pensions and savings and much of the buying power of those workers who have been unable to get compensating pay increases.

IT'S TOO BAD BEEF
ISN'T CUT AS MUCH

With all the talk about higher prices, it may be pleasant to hear about a really big price cut. The price of Vitamin B-12 was cut this week from $450 a gram to $350. That figures to a cut of $45.39 a pound.

INTEREST IN PREMIUMS FORECASTS COMPETITION

High attendance at the annual premium show of the Advertising Association of America in New York is pretty good evidence that many merchandisers believe it will be necessary to offer premiums to keep sales high next year. A total of 172 premium manufacturers are exhibiting and most report a large number of inquiries.

While plenty of metallic premiums are still available, the trend is largely toward plastics. "Any articles formerly made of copper, chrome, stainless steel and nickel have been replaced with counterparts of plastic. There is even a nail file of plastic."

ELIZABETH'S COLORS BASIS OF PROMOTION

The American apparel industry expects to turn a penny on the coming visit of Princess Elizabeth. The Wool Bureau has sent to wool manufacturers, retailers and buying offices swatches of "Edinburgh green" and "Elizabethan rose," chosen by Her Highness for her visit. Samples of "Mayflower pink" and "Cupid blue," sponsored by Liz for children, have also been sent. Apparel houses are expected to feature the colors in new fashions.

The colors were obtained from the British Colour Council.

DOWN TO FUNDA ENTALS IN LOST SALES

The South Bend, Ind., Association of Commerce has sent members a 26-point check list in a campaign to "improve business and appearances of stores. Most of them are points of cleanliness. But point No. 25 is: "Is the lock on your door stuck so that customers can't come in?"

This is a very important point and business men in other places should look to their locks. Almost nothing, except a visit from the sheriff, retards a business as much as having a door that can't be opened.

NEW PRODUCTS

SPICE—A concentrated mixture of 27 spices has been developed. It may be sprinkled on foods or converted into a sauce by the addition of water, vinegar, tomato juice, etc. The processors Gentry Div., Consolidated Grocers, 135 S. La Salle St., Chicago, plan to sell only to manufacturers and packagers.

4-BLADED—A screw-driver with four blades, that can be used straight or offset, was shown at the New York premium show by Shelton Plane Tool Mfg. Co., Shelton, Conn. Blades not in use slip into the handle.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK —(AP)—So you think you have troubles, and life's got you down?

What would you do if you actually had a permanent handicap in life? How would you face it?

The American Legion is getting some wonderful answers to that question in "Operation Comeback," a nation-wide contest to honor veterans who have overcome physical handicaps.

The 586 entry letters are a roll-call of human spiritual valor in rising above adversity.

Take the case of Jephthah C. Tankley of Atlanta, Ga., a young West Point graduate hit by an enemy mortar shell in Italy in 1944. Both arms were fractured, his left eye was gone, both legs were amputated.

"There wasn't much left for a young man who had planned an army career," he wrote. "The facts were cruel but clear; one life had ended—a new one must begin."

"I made a definite decision not to worry one bit about my injuries, to treat them as an existing condition, and to do whatever was necessary to master the situation and perform some worthwhile service in the future."

He spent two years in hospitals getting eye-and-limb fittings and learning to walk again.

"Since that time everything has been wonderful," Tankley said. He went through law school and was elected president of the student body. He has married, bought a house, has an 18-month-old son, is engaged in law practice in Atlanta.

"I drive my own car when and where I please, and most of my friends do not suspect the extent of my injuries," his letter continued. "I have not lost a single day from work because of my so-called disability. For all these things I am very thankful."

Equally grateful is Lewis Astor Moore, a nearly blind insurance executive of Gadsden, Ala.

Moore, a survivor of the Bataan Death March in 1942, all but lost his sight from nutritional disease suffered in Japanese prison camps.

"I could not possibly have attained the success I have had (except for) the assistance of the Veterans Administration and my wife, whom I met while in service and who is also a disabled veteran," he wrote.

Although his vision has steadily weakened, Moore in five years built a general insurance agency which nets him $10,000 to $12,000 a year. He is active in social and war veterans' organizations.

Another impressive letter came from Ralph J. Anslow of Giddings, Calif.

An exploding mine in 1943 blew both his arms off at the elbows, punctured his eardrums, severely damaged his mouth and teeth and scarred his face beyond recognition.

He was completely blind for four-and-one-half years and underwent five operations. He now has fair vision in one eye. The other is artificial.

"Extensive plastic surgery, tattooing and sandpapering of my face drastically improved my appearance," he said, "and treatment restored my hearing."

"Using hooks for hands, Anslow learned how to eat, write, dress himself and use garden tools. He now supports himself, his wife, and his children as a special service officer for the Blind Veterans Association, for whom he edits a news bulletin.

"The miraculous restoration of my vision has strengthened my faith in God," he wrote. "Struggling with difficulties teaches me patience and appreciation of the feelings of others. I dedicate time daily to increasing my self-sufficiency and becoming a more productive American citizen."

They are only a few of the many who have had the faith and courage to fight back, when their world seemed at an end.

Washington Letter

By MARGARET KERNODLE (For JANE EADS)

WASHINGTON — The "black market" in American babies has federal and state officials shaking their heads again and hoping for new laws to control it.

The other day Dr. Marjorie M. Eliot, new head of the U. S. Children's Bureau, told me "I hope we can wipe out the black market in babies." She defined it as "placing a child for profit."

"We know what good adoption laws and practices are," she said, "and we have demonstrated how effectively they can protect the rights of the child, his natural parents and his adoptive parents. Let's get them operating and used everywhere."

"When a baby is cradle snatched for profit, his rights are totally ignored."

Instances of black markets in babies have been reported in recent years in Tennessee, Florida, Oregon, Illinois, Ohio, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

There are signs of a slow-down in baby-buying since half the states passed new adoption laws meeting essentials suggested by the Children's Bureau.

Some of these suggestions are: 1. Placement only by agency authorized by the State Department of Public Welfare.

2. Recording of adoption proceedings in court, preferably in the state of the petitioner for adoption.

3. State welfare department study of each case and recommendations to court.

4. Consent to adoption obtained from natural parent by person or agency having legal responsibility for the child.

5. Closed court hearings on adoptions.

6. Trial adoption for about a year before final adoption.

7. Provision for guardianship if home is found unsuitable.

8. Passage of laws concerning relinquishment of parental rights, regulation of child-placing services, guardianship and custody of children and legal definition of rights and obligations of parents.

night and twice on Sunday under the huge canvas top.

The services, now in the sixth week, have drawn thousands of people during the time that Mr. Greene has been here. Many attended the services from curiosity; many more from a sense of need of a great religious revival have poured into the tent night after night to find solace for their souls; hundreds of others have listened by the hour because they never tire of hearing the "old, old story."

Mr. Greene, who has been doing evangelist work for fourteen years, is one of a party of five who travel with him all over the eastern part of the United States, holding inter-denominational services in cities large and small. Other members of his party are Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Collins, song leader and pianist respectively; Miss Sadie Greene, sister of Mr. Greene, who plays the vibraphone, and young James Anthony, who plays the Hammond organ during the summer. Anthony has left the party since it has been in Greenville to return to his studies at Bob Jones University, a theological seminary in Greenville, South Carolina, where he is studying for the ministry.

Mr. Raymond Harwell also accompanies the group on their tours and serves as equipment man, looking after the tent, keeping it clean, and checking on the electrical fixtures daily. There are two girls who are employed as secretaries, and Mrs. Greene and her two sons are with the party most of the year. One son, Tommie, is in the fourth grade this year, and during the school year, he stays with his grandmother in Greenville, South Carolina. The other son is five-year-old Dave, well known to members of the congregation.

"Until I was 21," said Mr. Greene, "I was a terrible sinner—the worst in the world. Why, when I was 13 years old, my father actually had papers drawn up to have me committed to a reformatory. But through the intervention of my saintly sister, Dad was persuaded not to send me away."

Mr. Greene went on to say that it was this same sister, along with his mother, who led him to his eventual conversion by her constant prayers and never dying faith in him. In his own words, he says about that experience: "I was forced to take my sister to a revival meeting one night in order to have the car for a date. When we arrived at the door of the little country church, my sister walked up to the door, and holding me by the hand, she led me inside—strictly by accident on my part. That was the beginning."

One week later he became converted, and ever since that time 16 years ago, he has devoted his time and talents to bringing others to Jesus and saving others, who like himself of earlier years, are lost.

After his conversion, he felt the call to preach so strongly that he worked his way through almost three years of college, attending a small denominational Junior College in the mountains of South Carolina.

He held his first meeting the summer following his first year of college. He has never stopped since. He has preached to hundreds of thousands in his tent meetings and has reached hundreds of other thousands through his daily radio broadcasts.

Mr. Greene and his party operate a great business in helping humanity through means of evangelistic services held for four to seven weeks in various places where they are invited to go or feel led by the Spirit to go. The party broadcasts daily from five radio stations, in addition to the radio station of the town in which they happen to be. In Greenville the daily program is presented direct from the tent at 10:00 a.m. They also support personally missionaries in five countries—West Indies, Cuba, Central America, Ecuador and Alaska.

Their work is along inter-denominational lines, and though Mr. Greene himself is a Missionary Baptist, other denominations are represented by other members of his party.

The Big Green Tent is unusual in many ways. In the first place it is one of the largest of its kind in the country. The present tent, which was new this year, suffered severe damage in a high wind storm shortly after being erected in this city. Originally it was 100 by 300 feet and was designed to seat 3500 people. He has already ordered a new one for next year which will be 120 by 300 feet and will seat 6500 people. The first tent which he started out in was a mere 40 by 60 feet and would hold only a few hundred. The present tent is beautifully lighted with post "chandeliers" of neon lights, and the seats are of wood and steel construction and are comfortable and roomy. A blazing neon banner suspended above the platform proclaiming "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" is the essence of Mr. Greene's message. A lighted picture of Christ, named "Inspiration", is at the back of the tent. This is an authentic oil painting which was given to him by a doctor friend in Goldsboro.

For thirteen years the Gospel Hour, as his radio program is called, has been broadcast daily. Mr. Greene stated that before the evangelistic party goes into a state for the first time, they are preceded by at least one year of broadcasting through local stations. He tape-records his broadcasts from his tent and estimates that radio time alone, not counting the cost of equipment, is around $75 a day. Contributions from the radio audience make this phase of his work practically self-supporting. His two secretaries handle the details of his radio work and correspondence in connection with it. All letters who come from listeners of his radio audience are personally answered.

There is another phase of the work that is little known. A magazine called "The Gospel Hour News" is published monthly in Greenville, South Carolina, to which there are 7000 subscribers. The members of the evangelistic party contribute all the articles except for a few that are quoted from other sources.

Mr. Greene is also the author of several pamphlets. Among the titles are "The Unpardonable Sin," "Adultery, Divorce and Remarriage," "The Last Great War," "The Korean War: The Beginning of the End?," "Booze," and "From Disgrace to Grace." The latter publication is the story of his life, and all may be ordered from him from his home address in Greenville, South Carolina.

Mr. Greene annually visits the mission field where their missionaries are located. He takes color movies which he brings back and shows as part of his weekly services. Next February he plans to visit Palestine.

"I personally know of more than 200 young people who have been converted in my meetings who are now preparing for full time Christian service," stated Mr. Greene. "It is things like this which encourage me and make me feel as though my labors are bearing fruit."

The Greene Evangelistic party travels from one engagement to another by motorcade. There are four 32-foot trailers and two small trucks in which the equipment of the party is packed. The families live in four trailers which are modern and well equipped in every respect. During their sojourn in Greenville, the trailers are parked just beyond the Ayden-Farmville intersection on the Farmville highway.

In closing the interview, Mr. Greene said that the party had met with favorable response in Greenville and that the public had given them good support.

The Big Green Tent Revival Services will be concluded the last of September. Following his visit here, Mr. Greene will go to Roseboro and from there to Goldsboro. He is booked solid through the year 1952.

Nat'l Kids Day Program Slated

Tomorrow—September 22—is "National Kids' Day."
A program appropriate to "National Kids' Day" will be presented at the Kiwanis Club tonight at 6:30 by James W. Brewer, chairman of the Boys' and Girls' Committee.
Dr. J. M. Barrett, Police Chief Guy C. Langston and J. W. H. Roberts are assisting in arranging the program for the meeting and for other features.
Manager Gordon Sturm of the Pitt Theater and Curtis Cohen, manager of the Roxy Negro Theater, will show a free picture tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for kids up through the sixth grade.

The motion picture is about baseball. It is titled, "It Happens Every Spring." Ray Milland is the star.
Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood columnist and philanthropist, is president of National Kids' Day Foundation. "National Kids' Day" is designed to attract more attention to the problems of the underprivileged children of all races and to raise funds to meet these needs. It also attempts to focus attention upon the accomplishments of youth.

Dares McCarthy Formally List Reds In Gov't

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. William Benton (D-Conn.) said today that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) is "scared and frightened" and should put up or shut up about Communists on the congressional payroll.
Benton challenged McCarthy to tell the Justice department about any Communists that are on the congressional salary list. McCarthy's assertion that several members of Congress have "Communist" or their staffs "was termed by Benton as 'another reckless charge.'"

McCarthy made the statement at Savannah, Ga., Wednesday. He is now required to produce an affidavit no names. Benton has introduced a resolution seeking to determine whether McCarthy is fit to hold office.
About 50 hours of hand labor are now required to produce an acre of peanuts.

WHETHER CONSIDERED AN OLD TOWN OR A NEW TOWN! WINTERVILLE, N. C. HAS A PLEASANT STORY TO TELL

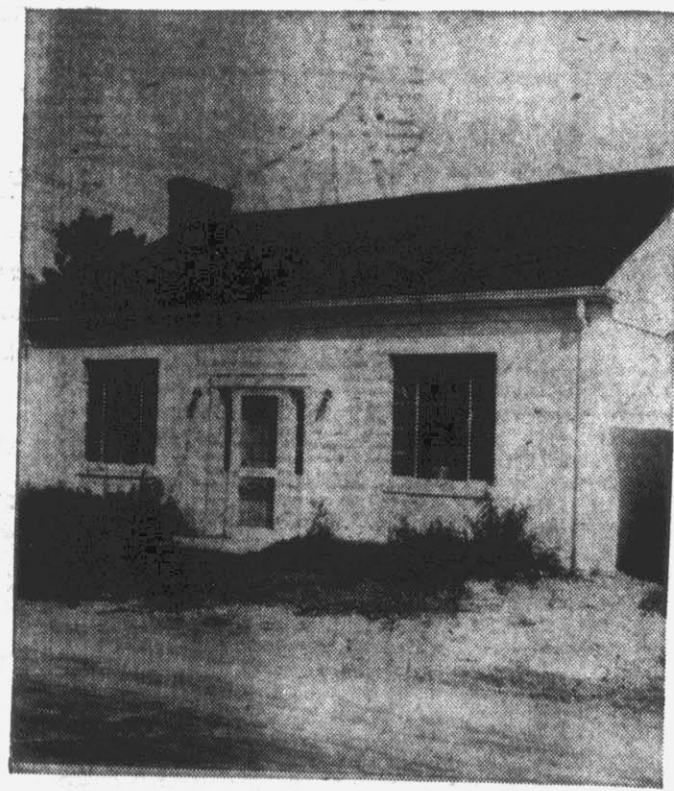

Winterville's Town Hall—One of the landmarks of a thriving town.

Gone are the days of the horse and buggy in Pitt County, and of the days when Cotton was King and the chief money crop. Although those days are of by-gone years, they are the years and the two commodities that went into the building and final incorporation of a town called Winterville, N.C.

Probably the most important man responsible for the founding of Winterville was a man named A. G. Cox. Mr. Cox's father had built a cotton plant around 1866, about one mile from the present site of Winterville. After his father's death Mr. Cox made many improvements to the plant. The only railroad that was close enough to handle the shipping needs of the plant was at the now present site of Winterville. Around 1886 the cotton plant was moved near the railroads. A community began to grow and thrive with a lot of the people working at the plant.

About 1900 the community was incorporated and given the name of Winterville. Later, tobacco became the chief money crop and the town began to grow and continues to grow today.

Yankees Continue To Lead In American; Beat Chisox

Dodgers Edge Cardinals As Cincinnati Tops New York Giants; Satch Fans Four To Beat Washington

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

If it comes down to the last inning of the last game of the season and the Yankees have to come from behind to win it for the pennant—don't bet against 'em.

The old sentimentalists who have seen Yankees rise to the occasion so many, many times in the past, will tell you there is a heart and a soul in those pin-striped uniforms even before they put the player inside of it. And maybe they're right.

There are many who tire of the Yankees winning pennant after pennant and there is a revival once more of that old cry that resounded through the golden era of Babe Ruth to "break up the Yankees."

But what is there to break up about a "powerhouse" in which day after day the opposition gets more hits, where not one player is among the league's leading batters, where nobody on the roster has driven in more than 33 runs in a league where the pace-setter has a total of 124, and where even in home runs, the old Yankee trade mark, there is not a challenging leader?

But despite these deficiencies, the heart, the hustle and that raw clutch courage are there when there is a game that just has to be won.

There could be no better illustration than in yesterday's smashing 5 to 4 triumph over the White Sox. Joe Collins, occasionally able to hit a long ball although he is not noted for it, connected for a three-run eighth inning homer, giving the Yankees the victory they needed to go half a game ahead of the idle Indians.

After Chicago had taken a 4 to 2 lead mainly on the efforts of big Eddie Robinson who homered for one tally and tripled and came home on a fly ball for another, the Yankees looked beaten in the eight. But Saul Rogovin, who had yielded no runs since the first inning got in trouble when Phil Rizzuto singled and Mickey Mantle walked. Then Collins delivered.

The Giants, who have been existing on hope alone found all of their dreams ebbing away after the Dodgers topped the Cardinals 4 to 3, and the Reds put across three runs in the eighth inning to beat the New Yorkers 3 to 1. That put Brooklyn 4 1-2 games in front with only 10 more to play. And it means that any combination of five Dodger victories and Giant defeats will settle the issue—once and for all.

In a night game, the Browns beat the Senators at Washington 4 to 3 as relief pitcher Satchel Paige struck out the last four Senator batters and gained his third victory. There were no other games scheduled.

Will Intervene In Brazilian Revolt

RIO DE JANEIRO (UP)—Brazil's President Getulio Vargas was expected today to order federal intervention in Maranhao state to quell an armed revolt there against Gov. Eugenio de Barros.

Federal troops controlled the state capital of Sao Luiz but the city's normal activities were virtually paralyzed. At least four persons have been killed and 38 injured in the past three days.

Raimundo Bastos, 25-year-old leader of the uprising, claimed 12,000 farmers are in armed revolt against the "electoral fraud" which placed Barros in power.

TO PROVIDE TROOPS
TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Mainland reports said today Communist China is stepping up plans to provide troops to Viet Minh rebels for a major fall offensive in Indochina.

BASEBALL AT EASE
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The catcher for an impromptu baseball game sat in a chair to do his catching, says Jeanette Harrison.

Games Tonight

Greenville's Phantoms attempt to get on the winning side of the ledger tonight as they take on Morehead City at the College Stadium at 8 p.m.

The Phantoms are favored in all circles to take the measure of the Class A Carteret County school.

This is the only game in the county tonight, as East Carolina goes to Virginia for a night game and the other two high schools which play go outside for opposition. Ayden opens up tonight in Williamston and Farmville, fresh from a 32-6 victory over Norlina in its opener, takes on the Hertford Indians in Perquimans County.

Mexican Cagers Enthusiastic, But Lack Height

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (UP)—Mexican basketball players are long on enthusiasm but short on height and thereby pose a problem for Penn State basketball coach John Lawther.

Lawther, on leave from his academic duties, is teaching the sport south of the border. He found that Mexicans shoot and dribble better than our teams but trail Americans in all-around ability.

"Except for about 20 teams in the whole country," Lawther wrote from Mexico City, "adult basketball is somewhat inferior to ours. Defensively, they're weak and their offense is based on one idea—run faster and longer than the other fellow."

"These people are long on enthusiasm but short on height. There are an unusually large number of players in their 50's and 40's."

Half Of Dismissed Cadets Find Homes

WEST POINT, (AP)—More than half of the 90 cadets dismissed from the U.S. Military Academy in the cribbing episode have enrolled in other colleges and universities.

The list includes at least 26 of the academy's 1951 football squad, who have enrolled in 17 different schools. Several others expect approval soon of their applications.

The Sport Reflector

by JIMMY ELLIS

High School's second game of the year will be reeled off in College Stadium tonight. There is no reason why there shouldn't be a large turnout of fans for the game even though the Phantoms lost their first game, last Friday, by a rather convincing margin.

Coach Bill Kittrell is probably finding that high school ball is a bit faster than the midget football which he has coached for several years. Whether it is a difference in the material available or a difference in the spirit and hustle is an issue which would be hard to define, but the difference is very definitely there.

Morehead City will bring a team to town that, as usual, we know very little about. Promised information on the town has failed to materialize as yet although it might get here in time for publication in today's Reflector. Let's hope so, anyway.

East Carolina is being rated the favorite in their game tonight with the Naval Apprentice School of Newport News. Both teams have lost one game, ECO's, of course, to Mississippi Southern College and the Apprentice School's to the William and Mary "B" squad.

Probably the only change in the line-up which started last week against MSC will be at one of the halfback spots where Jack Britt will replace Jack Benzie. Britt spent most of last week in the college infirmary with a touch of the flu and Benzie played the game down at Mississippi last week-end. Illard Yarborough is almost a permanent fixture at the other halfback.

Congratulations are due the major league owners for the selection of Ford Frick, president of the National League, as the new commissioner of Organized Baseball. If there is anyone around today who will do the job in a competent manner, it is Frick.

In the years that he has been president of the National League, the loop has been run in a competent manner. He is a lover of baseball and will not make a farce of the commissioner's job. He has the interests of baseball at heart.

The selection of probable winners in Saturday's Big Four opening games is wavering back and forth. The game that is the most like a see-saw in predictions is the Duke-South Carolina game. I'll stick with Duke.

Melvin Lang takes over from here for more local news: Ayden's Tornadoes find themselves in an unusual spot today—as an underdog. This is possibly the second time in three years that this role has been placed upon the Tornadoes, who have won the Coastal Conference for two years straight now, rolling up a win streak of 15 in a row.

Coach Stuart Tripp has had to rebuild his entire backfield and the line from tackle to tackle.

This first game, with Williamston, will probably provide the toughest competition of the year for Ayden. Williamston dropped its opening game to the Tornadoes last season by a score of 19-7, but then went on to take their last 10 games, winning the Class A State Championship.

Although the Green Wave has a new coach, a new formation, and several new names on the roster, all but three men are back from last year's starting line-up.

Elbert Moyer, coach of the Farmville Red Devils—also a member of the Coastal Conference—seems to think this year that he has the best team that he has ever had in Farmville. The Red Devils were plagued with injuries all last year, but the jinx seems to have been lost so far in 1951. They opened with Norlina last Friday and dropped them by the tune of a 32-6 margin.

The Red Devils are also in an underdog role today as they tackle Elie Pearing's Hertford Indians, who are expected to be one of the leading contenders in the East for the state championship. The Indians are heavy favorites to take the crown in the Albemarle Conference.

Old Pro Tied For Lead In Reading With 2 Unknowns

READING, Pa. (AP)—Two unknowns and an old pro, tied for the first round lead in the $15,000 Reading Open Golf tournament, agreed today it will take some fancy putting and accurate driving to cop first money.

That sentiment is echoed by Jim Turnesa, swarthy 37-year-old veteran from Briarcliff, N.Y., chunky Doug Ford of Harrison, N.Y., and bland-haired Jimmy Clark from Laguna Beach, Calif. Each posted a 69, two under par.

Out of the 142 players that banged away in the first round only four others also managed to fire under-regulation figures and seven posted par scores.

Shooting 70s were Jerry Barber, Pasadena, Calif.; Earl Stewart, Jr., Dallas, Tex.; Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N.C. and Ed Tabor Harrisburg, Pa.

Bracketed at par were Tommy Bolt, Durham, N.C.; Ed (Porky) Oliver, Lemont, Ill.; Jack Burke, Jr., Houston, Texas; Skip Alexander, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Bob Gajda, Birmingham, Mich.; Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y. and Milton Marusic, Herkimer, N.Y.

Big Jim Ferrier, the putting artist from San Francisco and a pre-tournament favorite along with Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist, and Lloyd Mangrum, leading money winner, carded a 35-37-72.

Ford Frick Gets Ball's Top Post

Vote By Warren Giles Gives Commissioner-ship To Frick; Gets Contract For $65,000 Per Year

By ED SAINSBURY
United Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UP)—For Frick ascended to baseball's top job today. The 56-year-old Indiana native, who narrowly missed it seven years ago, won unanimous election as commissioner last night through an assist from an old friend, Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds.

Giles, the only other candidate in contention for the job at the first and only meeting to pick the successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, withdrew after more than seven hours of deadlocked deliberations and 17 ballots.

Immediately the 18th ballot was taken and each of the 16 major league clubs voted for Frick, former sports writer who has been the popular president of the National League for 17 years. He was given a seven-year contract at $65,000 per year, $15,000 more than Chandler received.

Giles got his chance to make his gracious gesture, and Frick his chance for baseball's top job, only through a blunt speech by the youngest major league executive, Charles A. Comiskey II, 25-year-old vice president of the Chicago White Sox, when the stymied meeting nearly broke up in late afternoon.

"We've got to elect a commissioner today," Comiskey told the meeting. "If we don't we won't get one for a long time. And if we don't elect one today, we can't elect either of the men we've been voting on today. We will have destroyed them both. And we'll have to start all over again to try and find a commissioner. Neither of these men would be eligible again."

His speech resulted in a quick vote to hold the meeting overtime, into the night, to try to settle the problem. The owners broke for dinner and then took several more ballots.

At 9 p.m. (EST) Giles, who had been absent during the voting, re-entered the room.

"I told them my only interest in baseball," he said, "that I believed we needed a commissioner. I withdrew."

Eighteen minutes later Frick was elected.

Frick's appointment as commissioner was effective immediately and he will direct the World Series in that office. It was assumed that he would resign immediately as president of the National League.

State JVs Defeat Wake Forest Juniors

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina State College's Jayvee football team defeated Wake Forest College's Jayvees 2-0 last night on the strength of a third period safety.

State Tailback Hal McCarter, while deep in Wake Forest territory, tossed a behind the goal line pass in the third quarter. It was caught by Wake Forest Halfback Craig Blackburn who was tackled behind the goal by State End Harry Lodge.

City Footballers Begin Practice For Opening Day

Simple fundamentals of football were taught to 101 boys this week as the local Little League Football Conference swung into high gear or its first season.

The boys have been divided into four clubs, commonly known as the Red, White, Blue, and Gold teams. They were divided according to age, experience, and size.

An equipment shortage has been solved as the boys now bring part of their own uniform. Each player now has a complete uniform.

The coaches will come from East Carolina. They are donating their time in order to acquire the experience for later years.

Two bowl games with Kinston, to be played later in the season, have been planned. A pair of the Greenville clubs will travel to Kinston for the first contest, with the Kinston clubs returning to play another group in Greenville.

The regular season opens on September 25. A double elimination tournament is planned for the city championship.

RETURNING FROM WAR
SEATTLE (AP)—Corporal David R. Nanny, of Farmville, is among the sixteen North Carolinians aboard a Navy transport bringing Army rotation troops here from the Far East today.

The Chicago Cardinals football squad went to training camp with 55 players—10 ends, 6 tackles, 11 guards, 4 centers, 5 quarterbacks, and 19 other backfield men.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 5
She seized the clipping and read it. A strange reaction came over her. A strange reaction came over her. The fright that had been in her blue-dark eyes now changed to terror. She then seemed to get the man standing near her. Her gun hand lowered, and she stared at the clipping as though every part of her had been frozen by the words.

He said, "You don't think I go at things half cocked, do you?" He laughed a little. "You see, sweetheart, I know everything about you. Especially about him. He escaped last night. Maybe in prison he watched the papers. Sooner or later he was bound to see the advertisements that appear regularly in the big dailies. Your picture... this club here. Do not think he hasn't looked for some g like that!"

As he talked, he took the automatic from her hand. He stepped back and closed the hall door again. She did not move. She seemed incapable of action.

"I imagine," he went on smoothly, "he's already looking for you. You're on a spot, darling. But here's one way—"

She didn't seem to hear. He touched her arm, shook her a little. "Did you hear? I can help you."

Her terror-wide eyes came up to him. She didn't answer for a moment, then she whispered, "How?"

"First," he said with assurance, "we'll get you out of here." He indicated the suitcase. "You've got everything ready. This is the only place where he can locate you through the newspapers. He won't know about the apartment in Cincinnati. Can you fix it here so no one will reveal your home address?"

She nodded, almost as though were hypnotized.

"Good!" He put the automatic in his pocket and indicated the suitcase. "Never mind changing your gown. Grab a wrap." He picked up the long white envelope and pushed it into her hand. "I'll help you. I'll guarantee he'll never find you. There's only one thing. His voice was sharp again. "Tomorrow, you go to the auction and do what I said. That's all you have to do. As simple as that."

He stepped to the open suitcase, lowered the lid, stood waiting a moment before snapping it shut. "Well!" he prodded impatiently. Slowly, her head moved up and down. Her hand went up to the bosom of her red gown and she tucked the newspaper clipping down his front.

The man snapped the suitcase shut with finality. "I'm taking you home," he announced. "Come on. Hurry. I wouldn't stall around here another moment. You can't tell—"

She shot him a swift glance, her eyes fearful. "The clipping says he escaped... last night..."

"Yes. Now hurry!"

It was mid-afternoon, and the big house was very quiet, and warm. Beth Sherman lay on the bed in the large upstairs bedroom and listened for sounds of anyone moving about downstairs. The drowsy, lazy, relaxed feeling that she had felt after the shower had worn off. She wore only a robe.

She rolled over on her stomach, cupped her chin in her hands and watched the windows. Outside the sunlight was bright on the snow-covered landscape.

Beth imagined she saw the party of skiers far off on a distant hillside and kept staring at the spot. Then she used it as a mere trick of the bright glare of the sun on gleaming white. Her gaze left the window and touched on various parts of the room.

It was a lovely room, done in pale blue and beige. The furniture was modern and expensive, straw-colored, like pale delicate grain just ripening. She watched the way it touched the array of cut glass bottles on the vanity, colored them, reflected the hue against a large circular mirror suspended directly behind the dressing table. She liked these nice things. They were rich and substantial.

They met her think of Dave, her husband. Dave Sherman was substantial and successful. She was so proud of him.

Yet she would have loved him if he were a clerk. Their marriage... the past few wonderful years... had been everything she'd dreamed could ever happen. She decided that these years had wiped out every bit of the past, the shadows, the times of uncertainty, the unhappiness that had been with her for so long. She could think about that other marriage that had almost occurred without flinching. The scars had healed; she no longer woke up in the middle of the night, trembling, fearing, wondering about the future.

She decided it was time to dress and sat up, stretching lazily, content with every living moment. She moved across the room to the dressing table, wondering just what color scheme and perfume to wear for dinner tonight.

Beth Sherman was not a beautiful woman. But the fine, delicate lines of her face, her wide-set brown eyes, her small firm chin gave her an attractiveness that was highlighted by a small trim figure. Her hair was still slender; her legs boyish and supple.

Though she was almost forty, Dave oftentimes said, catching her stepping from a tub, or dressing, "You're cute." The remark always made her the more determined to keep herself lovely in her husband's eyes. He meant so much to her. Every night!

Sometimes, thinking of the past, remembering the years of loneliness before she had met Dave, she became horrified at the thought of growing old, perhaps becoming stout and unattractive. She'd die if Dave's love ever cooled.

It wouldn't. Ever!

She straightened her trim shoulders with decision, smiled back at her clear-eyed image in the vanity mirror, and murmured, "No more of that. Beth Sherman, or you will have lines in your face!" She started selecting the powder and makeup base she was going to use, and the exact scent of perfume

Soldier Dead Wins War Inscription

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The word "Korea" will be inscribed on markers on graves of all U. S. Armed Forces men killed in that country and buried in national cemeteries.

President Truman ordered this yesterday, untangling red tape which had prohibited such identification because the Korean conflict is not officially a war.

Regulations say that inscriptions on government headstones in national cemeteries may contain the name, date of birth and death, abbreviations of military awards held, a religious emblem and "the war in which service was rendered."

The President ordered that the word "Korea"—but not Korean war—should be inscribed on markers.

The headstones of servicemen buried in other than national cemeteries can carry any inscription relatives desire.

Fewer Passenger Cars On Display

WASHINGTON—(AP)—There are one-fifth fewer passenger cars in dealers' showrooms today than there were in June. The number is expected to drop even lower in early 1952.

The National Production Authority (NPA) told an automobile advisory committee meeting here yesterday that an informal survey showed a 20 per cent decline in new passenger cars in the past three months.

The drop began in June when stocks were at an all-time high. The prospect of a further cutback in materials such as stainless steel and copper after Jan. 1, combined with an apparent pickup in sales, point to a sharper decline next year.

Abandon Search For Lost Bomber

TOKYO (UP)—Search was abandoned today for 14 crew members of a B-29 Superfortress which crashed into the Sea of Japan yesterday after bombing North Korea.

Planes and ships which swept a 100-mile area near where the plane crashed were ordered back. The left wing of the plane, a rubber raft, a parachute and a survival kit were recovered but no trace of the crew was found.

That would go best with the velvet dinner gown she planned to wear tonight.

An hour later she was ready to go downstairs.

Preachers Once Paid In Wheat

LANCASTER, N. H.—(UP)—This Coos County town, now an important trading center, once was noted as a wheat-growing area.

So important was wheat in the town's life that even the preachers were paid in that fashion—five bushels being the price for a day's pulpit work. This included two sermons of almost interminable length, most interminable length.

Daylight Saving Winds Up Sunday

WASHINGTON (UP)—Come Sunday, Sept. 30, some 60,000,000 Americans and Canadians get back that hour of sleep they lost when daylight saving went into effect last April.

If you're one of them, when you go to bed Saturday night, Sept. 29, turn the clock back one hour. That's right—back. You put it ahead an hour in April.

The official turn-back time in most places is 2 a.m. daylight on Sunday. But it's not considered cheating, if you don't want to stay up, to put the hands back when you hit the sack.

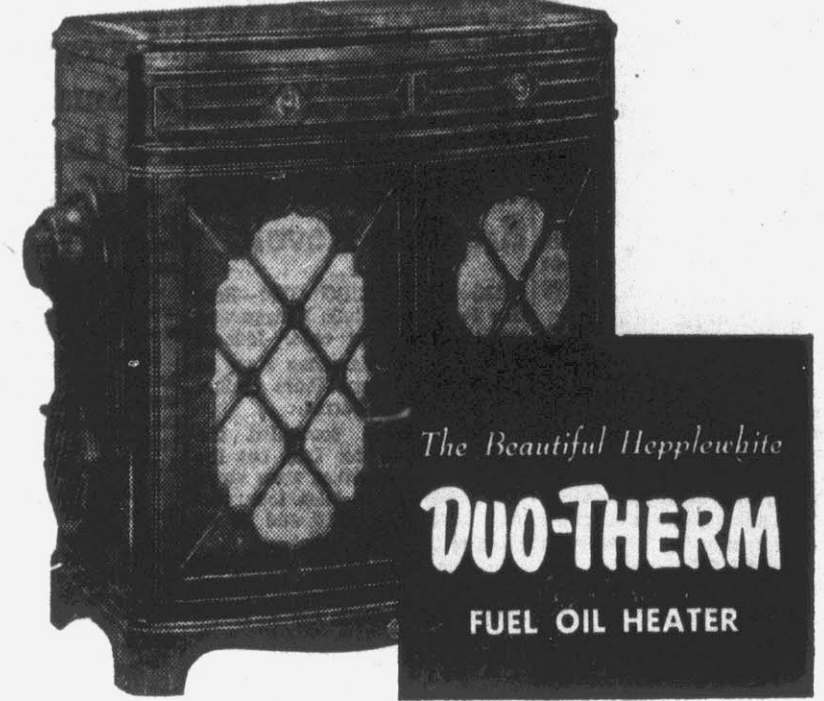

In more than half of the states, chiefly in the South and West, standard time is observed throughout the year and the folks living in them won't have to fiddle with their clocks and watches.

Among those who have been on daylight time, the change back to standard won't be as much of a wrench as the April change from standard to daylight.

That is particularly true of mothers of all fry. They had a time getting their youngsters to go to bed at 8 just because the clock said 8. The youngsters knew it every muscle of their unsleepy bodies that it was only 7.

Oysters can and do change their sex from male to female or female to male in middle age.

Witnesses Plan Annual Assembly

The semi-annual circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in this area will be held in the high school auditorium at Morehead City Friday-Sunday, October 5-7.

The assembly, expected to attract hundreds from the many congregations in Eastern North Carolina and other nearby communities, will be highlighted by a public meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At this time, G. D. Miller, district servant in charge of the assembly, will deliver a Bible discourse on the subject, "Security in a Troubled World."

The opening session will begin Friday evening at 7 o'clock with songs, followed by a brief discourse by Miller on the subject, "Be Aglow with the Spirit." The Theocratic Ministry School and service meeting will complete the session.

The assembly will reconvene Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to hear K. M. Starrett of Wilmington discourse on "Shining as Illuminators." The ensuing hours until noon will be used by the delegates to advise the Sunday public address. An afternoon session beginning at 1:30 o'clock and the circuit activity meeting beginning at 7:15 p.m. will complete the second day of activity.

Sunday morning's session will begin at 9 o'clock with a discourse on Baptism by Miller, after which candidates will be immersed. Circuit servant F. R. Eldridge will address the morning session on "Fit for the Master's Service."

After the public lecture, the Sunday afternoon session will be completed with a summary of the Watchtower study for the day and brief closing discourses by Eldridge and Miller.

Among the delegates attending this assembly will be the following families from Greenville and Pitt:

For BUSINESS and SOCIAL reasons IT PAYS to look young again!

WHEN you find gray hair a handicap in business or social life, do as countless other men and women have done. Use Westphal's Hair Color Renewer Aid and darken your hair to a youthful-looking color. You, alone, control the change from light to medium, to dark — exactly as you wish. Easy-to-follow directions on every bottle. Merely apply it (as you would a hair dressing) and rub it in with your fingers. An occasional application will maintain your hair at the shade you desire without staining your scalp. In fact, it stimulates, refreshes and keeps your scalp free from loose dandruff.

You need no proof of dependability because this preparation has been sold in drug and department stores and barber shops throughout the country since 1881. Start today — in the privacy of your home. Buy the one pint economy size or the 7 1/2 oz. bottle at prices you'll like.

SINCE 1881 WESTPHAL'S HAIR COLOR RENEWER AID

Named To Staff Of Coker College

Miss Frances Hobgood of Greenville has been appointed a member of the instructional staff of Coker College in Hartsville, South Carolina.

She will be a member of the business education department of Coker. Miss Hobgood has taught business education and mathematics at the Charles L. Coon High School in Wilson.

She graduated from East Carolina College in 1947 with a B.S. Degree and worked at the college this summer toward a master's degree. Miss Hobgood is the daughter of Mrs. A. E. Hobgood, 122 N. Library Street.

F.W.B. Fellowship Organized At E.C.C.

Twenty-one Free Will Baptist students of East Carolina College met Monday night, September 17, at 7:00 p.m. in the Y Hut to organize a F.W.B. Fellowship.

Leah McGlohon and Ruth Little led the group in singing some choruses after which Rev. Rashie Kennedy of the Greenville F.W.B. Church read some scripture and made comments on the need of a closer fellowship among the F.W.B. students at E.C.C. Rev. J. B. Narron led in prayer after which he made a short talk on Fellowship.

The following officers were elected to head the Fellowship: Matthew Prescott, president; Agnes Faye Mallard, vice president; Joyce Calhoun, secretary-treasurer. The following committee chairmen were appointed: Program Committee, Agnes Faye Mallard; Publicity Committee, Leah McGlohon; Entertainment Committee, Mae Silverthorne; Infirmary Committee, Ethel Massengill; Refreshment Committee, Margaret Grant and Charles Bedford.

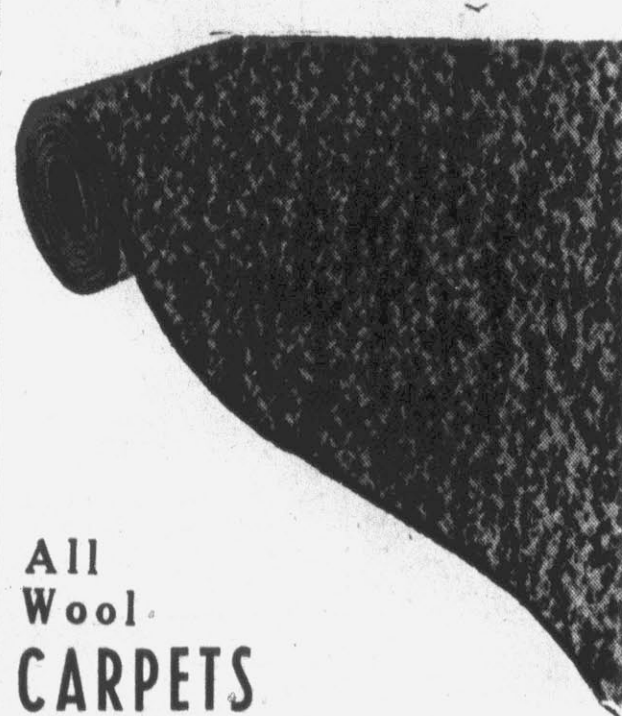

The Fellowship will meet each Monday night at 8:00 p.m. in the Y Hut on the campus. Each Free Will Baptist student who was not present at the meeting is urged to attend the Fellowship and other students are welcome.

The following students were present: Mae Silverthorne, Freddie Hinnant, Ethel Massengill, Margaret Grant, Agnes Mallard, Barbara Clements, Nell Lee, Dorothy Best, Charles Bedford, Rev. J. B. Narron, Matthew Prescott, Ruth Little, Betty Sutton, Betty Boyette, Joyce Willis, Leah McGlohon, Charles Dudley, Charles Harrell, Bill Spencer, Joyce Calhoun and Sarah Casey.

Rev. Rashie Kennedy was elected counselor and Rev. J. B. Narron co-counselor.

54 Years Continuous Service

Last Rites Set For Albert J. Peaden

Albert J. Peaden, 57, of Rt. 2, Greenville, died at a Raleigh hospital Thursday at 8 a.m. after an extended illness. He was the son of the late Martha and John Peaden of Pitt County and a veteran of World War I. He also served in the U. S. Navy from 1920 to 1924. Since leaving the service he has been engaged in farming until ill health forced his retirement.

Surviving are his wife, Sennie Allen Peaden of the home; three brothers, Julius Peaden of Pountain, Lorenza Peaden of Greenville and Collie Peaden of Farmville; one sister, Mrs. Rosa Elks of Greenville; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held from the home Saturday afternoon at 3:30. Frank A. Julian, minister of Jehovah Witnesses, will officiate. Interment will follow in Greenwood Cemetery.

Litov Addresses Junior Chamber

Traveling Litov, Bulgarian church leader now on tour of the United States, told members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night not to burn themselves on the problem of Communism but to take a lesson from European countries who are now dominated by the Red heel.

Speaking in the interests of the National Committee for Free Europe, the Methodist pastor likened his admonition to that of a child burning his hand on a hot stove. Rather than getting burned themselves, he said, it is better to learn the lesson from others who are now experiencing such domination.

Litov spoke briefly on the deportation of Europeans from their native towns and cities to concentration camps in their own countries or to camps in Russia. He estimated that more than a third of the 500,000 population of Sofia, his native city, have been jerked from their homes and put in forced labor by the Reds.

He asked the club, "Is Communism a paradise or is it a hell?" Elaborating on that question, he stated that fear is paralyzing the masses of Europe, simply because they are afraid of what might happen to them if they talked too much. He illustrated that fact by saying that he was always afraid to say anything from the pulpit that might antagonize party members in the congregation for fear that he might be deported to a camp.

In a humorous vein, he further illustrated the fear of talking too much, telling about American and Russian soldiers fishing in the same river, each on opposite banks. The Russians had no bites, the Americans had their hands full pulling in fish. The Russians asked why. An American GI informed him that Eastern Zone fish were afraid to open their mouths.

Cottonseed meal is a valuable feed for cows and sheep but is sometimes toxic when fed to hogs.

Missionary To Speak On Sunday

Miss Beverly Neilson, (above), daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. J. A. Neilson, will speak at Emmanuel Baptist Church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service concerning her recent work as missionary in the Hawaiian Islands.

Miss Neilson, who is a graduate of Wake Forest College, spent ten weeks this summer in the islands under the auspices of the Southern Baptist Convention. Her work was sponsored jointly by the Foreign Mission Board and the Baptist Student Union of the Church.

Qualifying her for her mission work was a summer's teaching job in East Harlem, New York, where she worked with Puerto Ricans, Italians, Negroes and Jews last summer. During other summers prior to her college graduation she conducted Vacation Bible schools taught study courses, took religious surveys and assisted generally as an associational missionary.

She graduated last June from Wake Forest, cum laude, with a bachelor of arts degree, majoring in English and taking a minor in sociology. This year she is studying for a degree in Primary Education at East Carolina and next year will enter the Southern Baptist Women's Missionary Union Training School in Louisville, Ky. From there she plans to enter the mission field as her life work.

The public is cordially invited to hear her message Sunday morning.

394 Students In Air ROTC Unit

Students at East Carolina College now enrolled in the college Air Force ROTC unit number 394, an increase of more than 100 students over last year's registration, according to figures from the office of Major Lomax L. May, professor of air science and tactics.

Among members of the college unit, 196 are freshmen. For the first time the unit is offering this fall a course in Flight Operations, enrollment in which is limited to thirty cadets, all first year advanced students. Fifty-five other first year advanced students are taking courses in Administration-Logistics.

Major May heads a staff of ten instructors in charge of ROTC work at the college. This number represents an increase of four members over last year's staff, the additions being made because of the larger student enrollment this fall.

In addition to the regular training program, the East Carolina ROTC unit also gives training to a rifle marksmanship team, a rifle drill team, a drum and bugle corps, and other related military activities.

Approximately 85 per cent of the commissioned graduates from East Carolina, states Major May, are on active duty with the United States Air Force. This figure represents approximately 35 graduates of the college.

NOT SO MODERN

DALTON, Mass. — (UP) — If you think football under the lights is a comparatively modern wrinkle in sports, you're all wrong. Records show that on Sept. 3, 1901, the Dalton football team voted to hold a practice session "under an electric light" at Pine Grove Park.

Head Of Giant Food Chain Dies Of Heart Attack

NEW YORK — (AP) — John A. Hartford, 78, chairman of the board of the A. & P. chain food stores, died yesterday after a heart attack in a Manhattan skyscraper elevator.

He had been attending a board meeting of the Chrysler Corp., of which he was a director.

The A. & P. — The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company — was founded by his father, George Huntington Hartford, in 1859, with a single store on New York's lower east side. The business then was called the "Great American Tea Co."

The son conceived the idea of an "economy store," which he opened in Newark, N. J., in 1942. This idea developed into more than 15,000 stores in 1950, when the supermarket method was introduced and food store consolidations started.

East Carolina . . .

Continued from page one) bled 638, Dr. Oppelt states, and showed an increase over the 474 requests of the previous year. Placements by the Bureau increased from 87 to 93. Demand for teachers in several fields also increased markedly during this time. Dr. Oppelt points out, especially in art; business education, including both teaching and non-teaching position; English; foreign languages; vocational home economics; industrial arts; and coaching athletics.

Three 1951 graduates who majored in industrial arts at East Carolina accepted school position, according to the recent report. They are the first graduates in this field to be placed by the college.

You Can See . . .

For you can't be too sure what will be said:

"If General Eisenhower is the Republican candidate, since he's never done much political talking, if any; and if by campaign time we're in war with Russia or, by a miracle, have established firm peace."

But, knowing what the two sides have been saying already, here's a sample of what to expect if the Reds don't get mixed up in the campaign:

Democrats — In spite of high taxes, made necessary to arm and stop communism, employment is at a peak and the people have high income and corporations have greater profits than at any time in history, all under the democrats.

Republicans — High employment and income and profits might not be so high if the pump wasn't primed by the arms race. If it wasn't for this artificial stimulation the country would be in sad shape. Taxes wouldn't be so high if the Democrats hadn't been so free and easy with government money. And the smell from the RFC investigation: that mink coat in the White House and White House aides getting free hotel rooms. The Democrats are trying to lead us down the road to socialism and snuff out free enterprise. They're trying to turn this into a welfare state. They tried to do it by "socializing" medicine.

Democrats — If there's been any wrongdoing, prove it. Don't sneer at compulsory health insurance. The people need it. That heading for "socialism" charge is a phony and the fact that free enterprise was never doing better is the proof. This country halted the march of communism through the far-sightedness of its Democratic leaders who are responsible for the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact which is ringing Russia with steel. And where would we be today, and how much progress would communism have made, if we had listened to those Republican leaders who wanted to whittle down the Marshall Plan, opposed the Atlantic Pact and arms for Europe and, in short, were willing to let communism gobble up the rest of the world by isolating us?

Republicans — That charge of isolationism is a phony. Some of our leaders wanted to conserve American strength, instead of spreading it thin around the world, by making America invincible first. The Democrats waited to see the real menace of communism. Mr. Truman denounces communism now but only a shot time ago he was calling Stalin "Good Old Joe." If we had been far-sighted, we'd never have let the communists take over Asia. And there's probably be plenty more, like arguments about inflation and charges of communism in the government, answered by charges of "sneer."

Defrosts so Fast Ice Cream Stays Hard

IT'S THE NEW Westinghouse FROST-FREE REFRIGERATOR-FREEZER

Model ADA-96 9.6 cubic feet

YOU CAN BE SURE...IF IT'S Westinghouse

Eliminate special shopping trips . . . you can keep frozen foods all the time in your Westinghouse "Frost-Free" Refrigerator—even while it's defrosting. That's because this modern miracle refrigerator automatically defrosts itself before frost builds up—and does it so fast, even ice cream stays hard. It disposes of defrost water automatically, too. Come in—see it TODAY.
