Russian A-Bomb In Spurring Race

Reports Of Second Atomic Blast Sets Off Demands In U.S. For More Billions To Expand U. S. Output; Soviet Believed Set For Atomic War

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
WASHINGTON (UP)—Russia now is capable of starting all-out war and will follow up its second A-bomb blast with frequent tests of better atomic weapons, congressional and atomic experts said today.

Russia's desperate effort to match the United States in history's grimmest arms race brought calls for:

1. More billions of dollars—perhaps up to $10,000,000,000 a year—to expand vastly U.S. atomic production, and

2. Creation quickly of a civil defense program—now dragging its feet for lack of funds—which would be capable of at least mitigating the horrors of a sneak atomic attack.

The White House announcement yesterday that Russia had "recently" exploded "another atomic bomb" did not take congressional and other authorities exactly by surprise. But it put them in a mood for action.

Rep. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, said flatly he was convinced "the Soviet Union is capable today of launching an all-out war." In place of the $1,000,000,000 spent annually on atomic energy, he called for spending five to ten times that amount.

Chairman Brian McMahon (D-Conn.) announced he would ask the House-Senate Atomic Energy committee at a meeting today to approve his resolution calling for all-out atomic expansion. McMahon has said that $6,000,000,000 a year could give this country an atomic Army, Air Force, and Navy.

He and other like-minded congressmen are shooting for a start on the proposed new production to turn out "dozens" of different kinds of atomic weapons—in the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Disclosure of the new Soviet A-blast set off new battles in the East-West propaganda war.

White House Press Secretary Joseph Short noted in reporting the Russian bomb burst that President Truman specifically told him to stress that the United States still seeks "effective, enforceable, international controls" over atomic energy.

Russia has blocked such controls despite approval by a majority of the United Nations. By producing atomic bombs, Short said, Russia refutes her own publicized claims that she is interested only in peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Jackson called for more funds for the civil defense program. The House has voted the civil defense administration $65,000,000. It had asked half a billion.

McMahon said he hopes the funds "unwisely cut" by the House will be restored by the Senate. Civil defense authorities recalled that mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson reported only last Monday that there is no program capable of preventing a "catastrophe" in event of atomic attack. According to Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air chief of staff, seven out of 10 atomic bombers could get through any defense this country could put up.

McMahon has said that the Russians already have enough atomic bombs to smash 20 to 30 American cities. Jackson echoed this. Others have estimated the Soviet stockpile at 50 to 200 bombs. Unofficial sources now put the U.S. stockpile at more than 1,000.

A Two Way Weapon

Atomic Bomb Is Currently The Ultimate In Hot War Destruction, And It Can Be A Psychological Weapon; Russian Secrecy On A-Bomb Inspires Fear

By HARRY FERGUSON

United Press Foreign News Editor
The atomic bomb is a two-way weapon. You can use it to destroy the enemy in a hot war or you can use it as a psychological weapon in a war of nerves.

Both Russia and the United States are using atomic bombs as a psychological weapon, but their techniques are entirely different. Russia says nothing about how many atomic bombs she has stockpiled or whether they are of the latest type. The United States advertises the fact every time she conducts an atomic test and goes even further than that. She makes an announcement every time Russia conducts an atomic explosion.

Russia's reasoning probably is that the fear of the unknown is the greatest fear that can prey on the human mind. Ever since World War II she has been trying to capitalize on that fear. She is perfectly willing for anybody or every body to believe she has the biggest army, the best air force, the most deadly atomic bombs.

If she announces she has, say, 250 divisions, 40,000 airplanes and 50 atomic bombs, she gives away

Truman Asserts Press Published Most Of Secrets

Claims 95 Percent Of Secret Information Revealed By Papers, Magazines

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today that "the newspapers and slick magazines" have published 95 per cent of this country's secret information, and he gave that as a reason for issuing his hotly controversial security order.

The President told a long, debate-filled news conference that he will be glad to change the order if experience indicates it should be changed. He said he hates censorship and has no desire to curb freedom of speech.

But he called the security order "a reasonable approach to a difficult problem and stoutly defended it as necessary to protect secrets that might be helpful to a potential enemy."

In fact, declared the President, newsmen and their bosses should on their own initiative refrain from publishing such information even if it is released by authorized government agencies. He said the publishers should be as patriotic about this as he is.

The order was issued Sept. 25. It empowers civilian as well as military of the government agencies to withhold information when they think might endanger the national security, and establishes uniform methods of "classifying" such information.

Although the President's announcement of the new order said censorship was not involved, the order has been widely attacked by editors, publishers and many members of Congress as establishing censorship at the source of information to which the public is entitled.

Mr. Truman suggested today that newsmen should withhold even some information made available to them by authorized government agencies.

Various reporters at the news conference then expressed puzzlement over just what the President expects of them.

Over and over again, the President said 95 per cent of all this country's secret information has been released in the press.

Aims To Adjourn On October 13
WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate majority leader Ernest W. McFarland has set an adjournment goal of Oct. 13, and hopes to wind up this session of Congress no later than Oct. 20.

The Arizona Democrat told newsmen after a party conference last night that most Senate Democrats realize they cannot go home until action is completed on tax and appropriations bills.

Farmville Tobacco Average Still Up

FARMVILLE—Official averages on the Farmville tobacco market for Tuesday and Wednesday were $61.33 and $61.67, Tuesday being the lowest day.

Tuesday 654,772 pounds of tobacco were sold in Farmville for $401,601.57 and Wednesday's tobacco brought $393,204.41 for 637,636 pounds.

Gabrielson Asks Full Clearance By Probe Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—Guy G. Gabrielson, Republican National chairman, asked Senate investigators today to clear him of any "tinge of influence peddling, bribes" or other improper conduct in his contacts with government agencies.

Gabrielson made the plea in a prepared statement he filed with the committee as it opened an investigation into his relations with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC).

At immediate issue is his role in negotiations concerning $18,500,000 of RFC loans to Carthage-Hydrocol, Inc., of which he is president and general counsel.

Gabrielson denied his contacts with RFC in connection with the loans were improper. He said he was appearing before the Senate investigations subcommittee at his own request "to refute slander with facts."

The purpose of the legislation is to provide the funds to pay $10,000 to each beneficiary of service casualties.

Congress earlier this year enacted a law giving men in service free $10,000 insurance.

The amount is payable over a period of 120 months.

Trophy For Owner Of Grand Champion

Wednesday Sales Below Monday's, Though Prices Good

Sales in the Greenville tobacco market Wednesday sagged somewhat lower than on Monday when the market had its first million dollar day of the season, but the day's average still remained above the $60 mark.

In its four hour selling day Wednesday the Greenville market sold 1,481,210 pounds of tobacco and paid farmers $398,667.22 for an official average of $60.67. The average remained high although it was off $2.08 per hundred from the record day of the season Monday when the average went to $62.75. Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee in commenting on the sale yesterday said, "Row after row of tobacco continued to sell for $70 per hundred and over $70 per hundred. Farmer after farmer continues to average over $70 for his entire offering. This is one of the best years Greenville has ever had."

Beginning with sales Monday the Greenville market will go to a five hour selling day in place of the four hour day which has been in effect recently. It will mean Greenville can sell 10,000 baskets of leaf a day on its market rather than the 8,000 basket maximum which has been in effect with the four hour selling day.

"It looks now as if the next two or three days will be wet weather," Whedbee stated. "I want to urge farmers during this wet spell to be particularly careful to keep their tobacco dry. Wet tobacco and tobacco in too high order has no support price and farmers who market their tobacco in this condition always suffer a great loss."

House Approves Death Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed by unanimous voice vote and sent to the Senate today a bill appropriating $5,000,000 to pay death benefits to beneficiaries of servicemen who died while in uniform.

The purpose of the legislation is to provide the funds to pay $10,000 to each beneficiary of service casualties.

Congress earlier this year enacted a law giving men in service free $10,000 insurance.

Grifton FFA Youth's Duroc Is Show's Best

John Lewis' Sole Entry Is Crowned Grand Champion; Reserve Champion Title For Grimesland FFA Entry

By JOHN SPINKS, JR.
Reflector City Editor

A sleek, well-brushed, no-grunt Duroc pig was crowned Grand Champion of the Junior Swine Show at the Pitt County Fair yesterday.

She topped show honors from 43 other pigs of four different breeds and won for her owner a blue ribbon, $10 and the first trophy to be awarded in the annual show.

She was raised and handled by John Lewis, member of the Grifton chapter of the Future Farmers of America, who received the trophy from B. B. Drum, owner of Drum's Hatchery here, at the Chamber of Commerce banquet last night for pig exhibitors and their dads.

The junior gilt was the only pig entered in the show by Lewis and as such made the year's work of fitting her for show worth the effort. Other boys exhibited more than one pig, which paid them money in the long run, but Lewis staked all he had on his lone gilt and came home with the bacon.

Roger Mills, also a FFA member from Grimesland, came out second best with his Poland China which was crowned Reserve Champion of show. Mills entered three pigs—a junior gilt, a junior boar and a yearling—and won three blue ribbons for his day's work. For his yearling he was given first place in showmanship and also topped the championship for his breed.

The three junior champions of the show, which did not compete against each other for third, fourth or fifth places, were John Grey, Jr., Stokes FFA who entered a senior Poland China gilt; Larry Whitehurst, Stokes FFA who entered a junior Berkshire gilt; and Marvin Hardison, Chiloc 4-H who entered a senior O. I. C. (Ohio Improved Chesterwhite).

Grey won second place in show-

Iran Delegates Plan Stage Walkout If Ruling Adverse

TEHRAN (UP)—Vice Premier Hossein Fatemi said today Iran will challenge the United Nations security council's competence to deal with the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute and will walk out of the New York session if the council rules against it.

Fatemi told a press conference that Premier Mohammed Mossadeq and the 17-man Iranian delegation that leaves for New York Sunday will "repudiate Britain's complaint."

Mossadeq said in a farewell address to parliament that his appearance before the Security Council would determine if the council is "another trap or net for watching weaker nations." He accused Britain of "bringing pressure to bear and using threats against us."

Fatemi said Mossadeq "will attempt to prove that the Security Council has no competence to discuss the matter."

"If the Security Council states its competence, the Iranian delegation will not attend that session."

He said Mossadeq will pay "out of his own pocket" for his plane ticket and those of his son and daughter who will accompany him to New York. Mossadeq's son also is his physician.

Mossadeq spoke to parliament this morning.

Hilton Indicates Livestock To Be South's Big Crop

Young Farmers Told Only Fraction Of Land Devoted To Other Produce

Dr. J. H. Hilton, dean of the School of Agriculture at State College, told 4-H club members and Future Farmers of America last night to keep abreast of the times in order to progress in agriculture. Labeling them the future farmers in America, Hilton admonished the club members to keep in mind the fact that future developments in the livestock industry will look to the South as a proving ground for better breeding.

He warned them that that development will be true since the "corn belt" growers of the midwest states are looking for more grazing lands than they have in their own domain.

Hilton was chief speaker on the Chamber of Commerce program which saw an FFA boy crowned grand champion of the Junior Swine Show held at the Fair yesterday. All exhibitors in the 44-pig show and their fathers were guests of the Chamber at the annual banquet.

Other speakers on the program included Badger Johnson, president of the Chamber who welcomed the boys and their fathers; John I. Grey Jr., a FFA member from Stokes who responded for the boys; J. Howard Mays, president of the Fair who presented the cash awards; B. B. Drum who presented the Grand Champion trophy to John Lewis of Grifton; Norman Y. Chambliss, Fair manager; S. C. Winchester, county farm agent, who introduced Hilton; and B. B. Sugg Jr., toastmaster.

Hilton's belief in the future of livestock in the South stemmed from the present use of land for agriculture in North Carolina. He used charts to show that although tobacco, cotton and peanuts constitute 75 percent of the state's agricultural income, those three crops are grown on only 25 percent of the cleared acreage.

The rest of the cleared lands, he said, are devoted to corn, small grains and improved pastures. Because of that fact, he pointed out that livestock can be added to the present cash crops of the state as a supplemental income.

"Use the land resources in some type of agriculture that will supplement these very valuable cash crops," he said. And added, "Nothing can do a better job of that than livestock."

In 1945, he said, there were only 500 acres of improved pastures in the entire state. However, with the introduction of ladino clover in 1946, the year 1951 sees over 700,000 acres under improvement. And by January 1, 1952, there should be over a million acres in improved pastures, he predicted.

"We can produce yields of crops that we never imagined we could several years ago," he stated, through scientific research and the application of scientific agriculture programs.

In ten years, he predicted, the agricultural income of the state will rise from the present $800,000,000 level to over $1,200,000,000.

"It can be done. But we must have cooperation between every person connected with agriculture. It's a job for everybody."

Hilton's talk followed a program of entertainment, which included a barbecue dinner supplied by Respass Brothers, and several hillbilly songs played by the Bailey Brothers and the Happy Valley Boys who are currently entertaining the Fair trade.

Also during the meeting, the Norman Y. Chambliss award for best exhibit at the Fair was presented to the Bethel Future Farmers of America for their display of balanced farming. A check for $25 was presented to Sam Dewar, teacher of vocational agriculture at the school.

Offer Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today John Foster Dulles turned down appointment as ambassador to Japan in order to help keep the Republican party from going isolationist.

The President told a news conference he offered the GOP foreign policy advisor to the State Department the Tokyo post when Dulles called on him earlier this week.

Mr. Truman said Dulles told him he didn't believe he should take the job, that he thought he should stay in civil life and try to help save the Republican party from going isolationist.

Ridgway Promptly Asks Foe To Suggest Alternative To Kaesong; Communists Indicate Only Kaesong Acceptable

TOKYO (UP)—The Communists refused today to shift the Korean truce talks from Kaesong to the no-man's-land village of Songhyon. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway promptly asked them to suggest some other site between the battle lines. The exchange left resumption of the suspended armistice conference still possible, but only barely. While neither side budged from its basic position, neither seemed ready to take the responsibility of breaking off negotiations altogether.

North Korean Gen. Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-Huai rejected Ridgway's week-old proposal to move the conference to Songhyon in a note delivered at 10 a.m. (9 p.m. Wednesday EST). Only 7 1/2 hours later, the supreme United Nations commander sent this reply to the Red commanders:

"Since you reject my suggestion to meet at Songhyon, I propose that our delegations meet at a site selected by you and acceptable to me approximately midway between our respective front lines, where the armistice discussions can be promptly resumed."

"Satisfactory conditions can only be insured by moving the conference site to an area which is not under the exclusive control of either side."

Kaesong, where the Reds broke off the armistice conference Aug. 23, lies behind the Communist lines and is patrolled exclusively by Communist troops. Songhyon, proposed by Ridgway a week ago as an alternate site, is in the middle of no-man's-land eight miles to the southeast.

The Communist commanders indicated in their morning note that they would refuse to consider any site but Kaesong for the cease-fire parley.

Belvoir Soldier Killed In Korea

Word was received yesterday morning by Haywood Hathaway of the Belvoir Community that his son, Gordon E. Hathaway, 23, was killed in Korea September 16.

Hathaway graduated from the Belvoir School in 1948 and inducted into the Army January 4, 1951. O. H. Forrest, principal of the Belvoir School, said Hathaway was very active in extra-curricular activities while he was in school. He was a senior class officer, and a member of the student council, monogram club, dramatics club, and school paper.

Forrest also said Hathaway's teachers commented on him as a "likable person with a winning personality and good disposition." He was a member of the Baptist Church in Belvoir.

Hathaway is survived by his father of Route 4, Greenville.

Two Big News Breaks

Maybe That Atomic Bomb Explosion In Russia Yesterday Will Prove To Be Most Important News Of Day, But For A Lot Of Baseball Fans It Was That Upset

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—In this newspaper business you're supposed to figure what is the most interesting news to the most people. But maybe it's the people who can figure it best.

In our office here in Washington we have a brigade of noisy electric machines which 24 hours a day pump in news from all over and pump out news from here to everywhere.

When I walked into the office yesterday afternoon I knew something big was happening because the little group of editors on the main desk were beating out stuff on a typewriter and rushing it over to one of the machines.

There a teletype operator was sending it out to the world. I skipped over to see and it was big news, indeed. It said "Bulletin."

And right behind the bulletin tape came the news which said:

The White House had just announced explosion of a second Russian atom bomb in two years. Then followed in dignified fashion the White House statement made by Joseph Short, President Truman's press secretary.

Canadian Troops Pace Advance; Fanatic Chinese And North Koreans Put Up Bitter Resistance; Biggest UN Attack Since Korean Truce Talks Began

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)—Five tank-led United Nations divisions smashed ahead up to four miles from their jumpoff positions today in the biggest Allied offensive since the Korean truce talks began.

Canadian troops of the new British Commonwealth division paced the advance on the second day of the offensive flanking a 40-mile front stretching across the western half of Korea.

The Canadian 25th brigade seized its hill objectives west of Yonchon against light resistance. It pushed the Canadians' line three to four miles north of the positions from which they rushed out at the enemy Wednesday dawn.

Elsewhere along the offensive front, however, fanatic Chinese and North Korean Communists put up bitter resistance and in two cases fought slight U.N. withdrawals.

The Reds were making their principle stand along a 10-mile sector from west of Yonchon to Chorwon. An 8th Army briefing officer said the fighting at some points west of Yonchon was "fairly rough."

The Chinese and North Koreans fought to the death from bunkers and deep entrenchments, some of them dug into the sheer sides of rocky cliffs on the mountainous front.

U.N. tanks ranging up to 52-ton British Centurions moved up to blast bunkers pointblank. Flamethrowers hurled liquid fire through gun apertures to cremate the defenders.

The 6th Army was assaulting the enemy's "Little Siegfried Line," designed to protect the main north-west highways in western Korea and perfected during the lull in the fighting which followed the start of the Kaesong truce talks.

The U.N. assault was described officially as a "limited offensive." But it appeared "limited" only in that it was not designed to carry all the way to the Manchurian frontier.

Fighter-bombers made more than 100 close-support attacks on both the western and east-central fronts, killing more than 300 Red troops.

A U.N. tank-infantry patrol on the east-central front probed a valley east of "Heartbreak Ridge" above Yangu, but was forced to pull back by heavy Communist mortar and artillery fire.

Southwest of the ridge, a small U.N. force captured a hill without opposition.

The whole western and west-central fronts from Korangpo on the west to the approaches to Pyongyang at the apex of the old "Iron Triangle" were ablaze.

The "S. 1 Cavalry division near the center of the offensive line fought all day Thursday without reporting any substantial gain. Its 6th regiment fell back slightly under 300 rounds of enemy artillery and mortar fire northwest of Yonchon.

The 7th regiment also reported heavy resistance as of 3 p.m. (1 a.m. EST) north of Yonchon.

West of Chorwon, the Communists launched two counter-attacks against the U.S. 3rd Division. Artillery dispersed the first enemy group of 200, but the second counter-attack by 300 Reds forced a slight American withdrawal.

Northwest of Chorwon, Puerto Rican troops made limited advances against light resistance.

Dr. A. D. Frank Discusses World Affairs At Culb

On Tuesday, Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr. and Mrs. J. L. Little were gracious hostesses to the End of the Century Club, for its first meeting of the year, at the home of Mrs. Stokes. The club members and Dr. A. D. Frank, guest speaker for the day, were greeted by the hostesses and shown into the living room where they enthusiastically greeted each other and recounted experiences of the summer.

The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Moye, Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Mrs. J. T. Little, served a delectable three course seafood luncheon from a beautifully appointed table, centered with an artistic and unique arrangement of Hawaiian Wood Roses, driftwood, pyramidal berries and pomegranates on an antique bread tray.

Following the delicious luncheon a short business meeting was held, presided over by the president, Mrs. Joseph Moye.

Mrs. Stokes then presented the new books for the year, making each one sound most readable by her interesting and thought provoking remarks about them.

Mrs. Spilman, in her usual charming manner, presented Dr. A. D. Frank, saying that in his discussion of Current Topics he would bring members up to date on the happenings of the summer.

Dr. Frank said that to many people in the world, any discussion of international affairs revolved around a discussion of the relations between the United States and Russia. He put those present in a more optimistic mood when he said that he hoped some good would come out of the peace talks between the United Nations and the Communist forces, but that if they came to naught, the delay was definitely in the favor of the United States as it allowed the United States time to build up its military strength and increase its manufacturing potential. Some reliable sources say that Russia has been more hurt by the Korean War than has the United States.

He declared that Tito, although a

Communist, is an enemy of Stalin, because he believes in communism on a nationalistic rather than a world basis.

The most touchy spot in the world situation today is that in Iran created by the dispute between the Iranians and the British concerning the pumping, refining and marketing of the Iranian oil. The matter has been brought before the United Nations and it is hoped that a satisfactory solution will be reached. In event of trouble, Turkey will act as a bulwark against the Russian attempt to get control of Iran.

In the domestic field, he deplored the fact that U.S. politicians, officials and people spend so much time looking and working toward the next election rather than on statesmanship.

Following this interesting and enlightening talk the club was adjourned.

Hostesses For Round Table At Dinner Meet

Mrs. S. J. Everett, Mrs. Milton White and Miss Lella Higgs were joint hostesses of the Round Table Book Club at a dinner at the Parish House Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock.

As the guests arrived, they were served punch by Mrs. Howard Porter. The dining table was centered with red lilies, backed with ivy. A delicious turkey dinner was served to the 24 guests.

Mrs. Everett had charge of the program for the evening. In her usual charming manner Mrs. Everett read a very interesting paper about the paintings of Leonardo Da Vinci. The paper had been written by her niece, Mrs. L. M. Buchanan.

After the program a business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. E. Rawl. The new books for the year were distributed by the library committee.

Mrs. Robert Fountain was a guest for the meeting.

The meeting was opened by repeating "The Lord's Prayer."

After a brief business session, Mrs. Louise Harris gave a report on get-well and sympathy cards sent to friends during the three months.

A discussion of Hidden Answers was led by Mrs. A. C. Turnage. During the social hour, the hostesses served chocolate covered cup cakes and London Mist.

Sixteen members were present.

"Fixtures, motors, fans and other portable appliances, one-third cash, with installment note for balance."

"Wiring, when done for anyone other than the owner of the property, shall be cash."

The term "counter sales" refers to lamps, fuse, plugs, small repairs and anything that is usually sold from the office.

We have been obliged to adopt this policy with regard to our wiring and supply department to avoid keeping a considerable amount of money tied up in small accounts for long periods.

Hostesses For Round Table At Dinner Meet

Mrs. S. J. Everett, Mrs. Milton White and Miss Lella Higgs were joint hostesses of the Round Table Book Club at a dinner at the Parish House Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock.

As the guests arrived, they were served punch by Mrs. Howard Porter. The dining table was centered with red lilies, backed with ivy. A delicious turkey dinner was served to the 24 guests.

Mrs. Everett had charge of the program for the evening. In her usual charming manner Mrs. Everett read a very interesting paper about the paintings of Leonardo Da Vinci. The paper had been written by her niece, Mrs. L. M. Buchanan.

After the program a business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. E. Rawl. The new books for the year were distributed by the library committee.

Mrs. Robert Fountain was a guest for the meeting.

The meeting was opened by repeating "The Lord's Prayer."

After a brief business session, Mrs. Louise Harris gave a report on get-well and sympathy cards sent to friends during the three months.

Mrs. L. E. Flowers, who is class treasurer, gave a report.

Mrs. Hubert Dixon had charge of the devotional, using as her subject "The Country I Love Best."

Scripture was taken from John 1:3. Mrs. C. L. Ivy Sr. gave the program which consisted of a contest called "I'm Taking a Trip."

During the social hour the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. T. R. Mizelle, served fruit punch, salted nuts and cookies to 13 members and two visitors.

Group No. 1 met with Mrs. L. E. Turnage on Monday night. Mrs. Russell Mizelle, assistant group leader, presided in the absence of Mrs. B. E. Moore.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Z.B.T. Cox, who gave two chapters from the mission study book "Beginning at Jerusalem" by Dwight E. Stevenson. During the business session that followed, plans were made for the Homecoming dinner on Oct. 7th. A special committee was appointed at this time, headed by Mrs. George Windham.

The group also discussed the Area Assembly which is being held in Wilson Oct. 3 and 4.

Mrs. R. E. Pickett and Mrs. B. O. Taylor reported on plans and progress of the Christmas card sales.

A discussion of Hidden Answers was led by Mrs. A. C. Turnage. During the social hour, the hostesses served chocolate covered cup cakes and London Mist.

Sixteen members were present.

Council of Church Women Announce Plans For November

The Greenville Council of Church Women met at the home of Mrs. James S. Jenkins on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

A good representation heard reports from the president, Mrs. Jenkins, on the opening and progress of the Protestant kindergarten. Mrs. Jenkins also brought before the members the plan of having the February World Day of Prayer observed in all the city schools at the same time that church services are being held in the city churches.

The Council approved the plan and voted to approach the city school superintendent in the matter.

The Council announced plans for the observance of World Community Day on November 2. This year services will be held at the Immanuel Baptist Church with Mr. Morton Kurtz, originally from Kansas City but now of Durham, where he is serving as executive secretary of the State Council of Church Women as guest speaker.

Further business was discussed before the meeting was adjourned.

Betsy Nobles Complimented At Luncheon

On Wednesday at 1:00 p.m. Miss Betsy Nobles was extended a pre-nuptial courtesy when Mrs. J. B. Kittrell and Miss Elizabeth Kittrell charmingly entertained at a luncheon in her honor.

A color scheme of pink and lavender was emphasized in the choice of flowers used for decorations in the rooms where the guests were entertained. Purple and lavender asters were blended with pink gladioli for table and mantel arrangements in the living room and music room.

In the dining room, the long table featured an artistic centerpiece of shell pink asters combined with pom pom chrysanthemums in varying shades of deeper pink. An Italian cutwork embroidered cloth laid over pink satin was used on the table, and individual corsages of tiny pink pom poms marked the place of each of the fourteen guests. Miss Nobles found at her place a larger corsage of pink rosebuds.

Upon arrival the guests were served a tomato juice cocktail with cheese accompaniments in the living room before being invited to find their places at the long table in the dining room, where the main course and the dessert was served by the hostesses. Demi tasse was passed in the music room.

Miss Elizabeth Kittrell introduced an amusing little contest in which the guests were given small suitcases with a jumbled list of things which a bride carries on her honeymoon. The guests were to sort out the words into the proper articles and Mrs. S. T. White II was the one who completed the list first and was awarded a little gift.

Miss Nobles was given a silver vegetable dish as a remembrance from the hostesses.

Autographed Pictures To Be Presented At Club Meet

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Club on Friday afternoon, autographed pictures of the late president, William Howard Taft, and his wife will be presented to the club for hanging in the club rooms by the president, Mrs. J.H.B. Moore.

Many years ago when Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotten, then president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, was campaigning for funds to carry on the work of the Federation, she conceived the plan of selling autographed photographs of Taft, who was president at the time, and his wife as a means of raising money. Mrs. Cotten's daughter, Mrs. Elba Cotten Wesson, purchased a pair of the pictures, and about a month ago, while sorting through some of her things, she came across them.

Mrs. Wesson thought that it would be appropriate for the photographs to be displayed in the local club house where her mother was such a guiding spirit and inspiration and where her portrait hangs in memory of the fine work she did in the clubs throughout the state. She wrote to inquire whether the local club would accept them.

West Maryland Is Tinder-Dry And Water Low

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—Tinder-dry woods in fields and critically low water supplies have western Maryland communities worried.

A summer-long dry spell, broken by infrequent light rains, has curtailed the water supply to a point where commercial haulers are de-county farmers and residents of small communities.

The Potomac, lowest in five years, is down to three-tenths of a foot at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., from its normal two and one-half feet.

Mayor Virgil Alexander of the mining town of Loaconing near here estimates that a fire would guzzle up the water supply in half hour.

Fire Prevention Week Plans Set

The Civic Affairs Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce will work with the local fire department in sponsoring National Fire Prevention Week, October 8 through 14.

W. T. Kyzer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the purpose of Fire Prevention Week was to encourage people to find fire hazards existing in their home and business places and to remove hazards to keep down fire losses.

Two days have been set aside here as "clean-up" days for the removal of fire hazards. Tuesday, October 9, will be "clean-up" day in homes and business establishments and Wednesday, October 10, will be set aside as a city "clean-up" day. People are urged on this day to get rid of grass on lots and trash in alleys and gutters. The City Street Department will co-operate in having the refuse removed.

During fire prevention week material will be distributed to school children to take home to their parents and other devices to distribute information will be used, such as radio programs, newspaper articles, and motion picture trailers. Also uniformed firemen will make inspections of business establishments looking for fire hazards.

Plans for the promotion of Fire Prevention Week were made at call meeting of the Civic Affairs Committee on September 24 and Hartwell Campbell is handling the project.

Kyzer said representatives from city schools and fire prevention agencies were very cooperative in planning Fire Prevention Week.

October Designated As Month For Families To Pray Together

(Editor's note: The following treatise on the purpose of and benefits to be derived from family prayer was written by Father Charles Gable, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church here. Its purpose is to commemorate to persons of all creeds the month of October which has been designated as a month of family prayer.)

On Sunday, September 30, the congregations of the local Catholic churches, St. Peter and St. Gabriel, began a month of special prayer. This is a part of an organized Crusade which not only includes the Catholics of North Carolina but nine other dioceses as well. Though initiated by the Catholic church and directed primarily to its own members, its appeal has equal validity for all, irrespective of creed.

The Crusade is an expression of solicitude for the welfare and stability of the family, and it seeks the remedy for domestic ills and dangers in a universal and spontaneous dedication of every family to united family prayers. It envisages the transformation of the family hearth into a little church or miniature sanctuary.

The family has ever been the smallest but the most stable of human organizations. The family is conceived as the unit, or the individual brick, from the multitude of which are built all nations. The family is a natural society, where man's innate thirst for happiness, for his perpetuation, and for social security is quenched. The family is sacred, for it is the cradle not only of children, but also of the nation—its force and its glory.

Truly sublime, therefore, is the purpose and mission of the family. And to attain fully its lofty destiny, the family must be religious. Religion inspires parents to be models of virtue to their children and implants in the children not alone love of God, but also those social and moral virtues which create a happy domestic as well as civil society. Religion makes the family a fortress of loyalty to God. It is a religion which generates in children's hearts a sense of responsibility, of duty, of honor, of courtesy, of obedience, of self-discipline and above all, of love of God and neighbor—all virtues which constitute a reaction compatible with domestic unity and harmony as well as with individual happiness.

Religion, therefore, is the animating, stabilizing and unifying principle of the family. But the voice of religion is prayer. Prayer raises man above and beyond himself. Through it he communes with God. It unites minds and hearts in a concerted hymn of praise to God; it offers atonement for the frailties and faults of men; it acknowledges man's inadequacy and helplessness; and help upon the earth and its mundane needs. Family prayer does all this and more. It binds father and mother together in a hallowed union wherein the crosses and vicissitudes of life become bearable. Through it the children's love and respect for parents is increased. The most cherished and consoling memories which a dutiful son retains of his deceased parents is that of the hallowed moments when the weary father or the ailing mother knelt in profound recollection with the family in prayer. What father or mother, crushed by the burden of life, when hearing their children's pleas to God echoing their own, would not be encouraged to continue the struggle and to bear their burdens a little further.

We are living in a calamitous age. It is an age when oppression and slavery are being revived, when injustice and violence stalk society, when false ideologies and godlessness are proclaimed while the true God is being dethroned. It is a time when a variety of the basest vices such as drunkenness and impurity are made light of, when an increasing divorce rate is promoting shattered homes, juvenile delinquents and domestic miser, when war and rumors of war fill our newspapers every day. These evils are not new to history. It was ever a revival of religion and renewal of piety and prayer which brought a solution to the problems and crises of the past. So today, a solution of the world's ills is not beyond the power of family prayer.

While the primary object of family prayer is the curing of the evils that afflict present-day society, there is another important objective in the hope that prayer will be the power that will restore peace to the world. Every Christian can heartily endorse the effort on the part of his Roman Catholic fellow citizens in their pursuit of family prayer, and can readily approve their happy selection of the slogan.

"THE FAMILY THAT PRAYS TOGETHER STAYS TOGETHER"

World Wide Communion Day To Be Observed

Sunday, October 7, is World Wide Communion Sunday and is being celebrated throughout the world in Protestant churches in appropriate observances.

On that day a special communion service is being held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at 9:30 a.m. to which all church members are invited. This service will replace the usual worship exercises for the Church School Hour. The service will provide a worship experience of communion and Christian fellowship for the entire church.

At this time a special offering will be taken which will be used for the relief of human suffering through the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief. Part of it will also go for the ministry to men in service through the Methodist Commission on Chaplains and the Methodist Commission on Camp Activities.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. OODGLAS
GOODNESS MAKES MEN HAPPY
A little boy once asked his mother, "Why is it, Mother, that the sinners are always so sweet and the saints so sour?"

We would deny the implication, of course. Sinners on the whole are a pretty sour lot, and saints, when they are genuine, are usually sweet. But there is enough truth in what the little boy said to warn us against allowing our devotion to high standards to make us irritating to those around us. There is a reason why saints are sometimes sour. They see humanity plunging into courses of action which lead to tears and darkness. But by the same token, sinners can afford to be sweet because they have so few obligations in life to live up to.

There is something just a little twisted in a man's outlook on life, however, if he allows his goodness to make him anything but radiantly happy. It was Talmadge who said, "There are wit, humor, and ensuring vivacity among God's people," and it was the great St. Paul who said to his Christian brethren, "Rejoice and again I say, rejoice."

Our saints and sweet sinners constitute perversion of the divine order. It is the will of the Heavenly Father that faith should make a man's life radiant, and sin should be set forth as the thing it really is, a hideous creature of the darkness.

A New Peak For Pitt County's Parade

This year's presentation of the Pitt County Fair is by far the best fair staged in Pitt County.

The buildings and new location of the fair grounds add greatly to the quality of the show; but in addition to the physical facilities, the educational exhibits are superior to those of the past, and the entertainment features of the fair are on a higher plane than heretofore.

Of course the fair entertainment still includes the "girlie" shows which are as much a part of the carnival as the Ferris wheel and merry-go-round. At the Pitt County Fair this year, however, there is a noticeable lack of the usual money skin-games which often have dominated the midway at carnivals. The fair officials of the American Legion posts in Pitt have cooperated with the law enforcement officers of the county to clean up the fair.

The Legion officials and the law officers welcomed the attractions of Lawrence Greater Shows to the Pitt County Fair, but the pin wheels, the educated dice, and the little mice which operate to the tune of clinking quarters, half dollars and dollars found themselves barred from the midway.

In the 1951 fair, Pitt County has a more successful, truly agricultural fair that it has sought for years. The emphasis is no longer on the carnival aspect, but on the agricultural and educational exhibit aspect of the presentation.

The exhibits of the Home Demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs and FFA groups show marked improvement over those of past years, and the livestock show is broader in scope and more impressive in quantity and quality than in previous years.

Pitt County is truly on parade at the new fair grounds, and the people of the county will be missing a treat if they fail to join the parade to see what the County Fair this year has to offer.

A Welcome Reprieve From Today's Problems

When the World Series rolls around, international affairs, government deficit financing, high costs of living, and even the domestic affairs in the home sort of take a back seat as America sits on the edge of its seat in the baseball stadium, in front of a TV set or by the radio to see which team will be crowned champ of America's favorite game.

Probably in no other nation in the world does a sports series command the universal attention, or the undivided observance that the World Series does in the United States.

In spite of pressing problems on every hand and the momentous decisions which are waiting to be made, it is heart-warming to see a nation such as this let up for a few days, and devote its thoughts to wholesome recreation. Maybe the American people are human after all, and not just mechanical creations whose waking minutes are devoted solely to securing another of those coveted, almighty greenbacks as we are sometimes led to believe. That same spark which practically compels one to let business go while he follows a great sporting event, is one of the things which has made this nation as great as it is today.

For a few days the topic of conversation will be the Yankees and the Giants, and after that people will settle back to talking taxes, politics, war, peace, crime and corruption until another October rolls around.

'Scorched Earth' Policy Must Be Terminated

Officials must put a stop to the "scorched earth" policy which has caused the destruction of several hundred acres of valuable timber land in Pitt County during the past week.

Timber is becoming an increasingly important money crop in this section of the state, and every time a piece of woodland is burned by a forest fire, thousands of dollars go up in smoke and flame.

Forestry officials have expressed the opinion that the recent fires in the northern section of the county were set intentionally by persons whose identity is yet unknown. If such is the case, the individuals who set the forest fires have destroyed farmers' crops just as realistically as if a match had been set to the corn, small grain or other crops. The persons responsible for the fires should be found and brought into the courts for prosecution.

It takes a year to produce most crops, but for a crop of pine timber, it takes 15 to 20 years. Every time fire sweeps through the woodland, many years, rather than just one year, of growth is destroyed.

Finding the culprits who set forest fires is a tough job for the law enforcement officers, but if the guilty ones can be found and prosecuted, it will go a long way toward cutting down the number of costly forest fires in Pitt and adjoining counties.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—Any doubt that Senator Robert A. Taft is an eager and active rival of "Ike" Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination next year has been dispelled by the tone of the speeches which the Ohioan has delivered on his pre-convention sallies, especially in the farm states of the Middle and Central Northwest.

It was the defeat of eight agricultural states in 1948, together with his margin of defeat in Illinois, Ohio and California, which kept Governor Thomas E. Dewey from the presidency in that year. He might have carried Ohio and Illinois, if he had permitted Mr. Taft to campaign in those states.

Instead, partially out of resentment of the Taft rivalry at the convention, and in the foolish belief that the New Yorker could make a dent in the Solid South, Dewey headquarters exiled Mr. Taft to making speeches below the Mason and Dixon Line.

Mr. Taft has never forgiven Mr. Dewey for that blunder, as the Senator's recent review of the 1948 battle shows. The two will meet at Chicago next June as bitter and avowed enemies, in view of Dr. Dewey's championship of General Eisenhower for the nomination. Mr. Taft is in a fighting mood.

FRIEND—Although he used to be an Ohio corporation lawyer and he has been depicted by his enemies as anti-labor and a reactionary, Mr. Taft appeared in the guise of the "farmers' friend" in his recent excursion through the agricultural area—the same region which Mr. Dewey failed to carry in 1948. Senator Taft pointed out that he had opposed a tax on farm cooperatives, as demanded by eastern, financial interests. In fact, on his arrival at Minneapolis, he was greeted with an attack by a business organization for his stand on this controversial question. The Senator also recalled his support of Rural Electrification, and of other costly programs for the benefit of agriculture.

He mentioned, belatedly, President Truman and the American Federation of Labor had endorsed and used portions of the Taft-Hartley Act. He noted that President Truman did not recommend repeal of this statute in his 1951 message to Congress.

SHOWDOWN—As of today, although nothing is certain in American politics, most political experts forecast Senator Taft's nomination at Chicago next year. It is not too hazardous a prediction for the following reasons:

General Eisenhower insists that he will not accept the honor, unless it is handed to him on a silver platter. Mr. Taft will not be a party to such a free gift. General Eisenhower insists that the draft be unanimous. At least fifty per cent of the organization leaders oppose him.

General Eisenhower demands that the platform endorse the Truman-Acheson foreign program, for which he is the military symbol. The GOP's principal attack on the Roosevelt-Truman foreign policies will brand it as a failure and a sellout.

But the main momentum for a Taft nomination is that Republican leaders, including those who do not approve the Ohioan's philosophy, want a final showdown with the New Deal-Fair Deal advocates of a "welfare state." They can get that kind of a test with Taft, but not with General Eisenhower!

INITIAL—A trivial but interesting discussion has cropped up at Washington as to whether General Douglas MacArthur has a middle initial. For years newspapermen, including the writer, have written his name as "Douglas A. MacArthur," the "A" being for his famous soldier-father, Lieutenant General Arthur MacArthur.

According to old army buddies at the Pentagon, General MacArthur once used the "A" as a middle initial in tribute to his father. But he is recorded on the official rolls as "Douglas MacArthur." Omission of a middle initial seems to be a family tradition.

SIDELIGHT—MacArthur's father had two sons, whom he named Douglas and Arthur Jr. And the General's son, Arthur, has no middle initial.

As a humorous sidelight a Washington correspondent tried to straighten out this question by calling General MacArthur's first wife, who is now remarried. He got no help from her. She said over the telephone:

"I don't know whether he has a middle initial, and I don't care! I don't know or care how he spells his name, wears his uniform or parts his hair!"

PERTINENT—An unknown Senate newspaper correspondent recently exploded with the witliest and most pertinent gallery comment of the current Congressional session, according to Fellow-Reporter Newman Wright of the Passaic (N. J.) Herald News.

It is one of those remarks which can be destructive, especially as it has become currency in Congressional cloakrooms.

Mr. Wright does not give his name, but it seems that his press gallery associate had just read a New York Times headline to the effect that "Senator Humphrey Declares War on Poverty."

The article referred to one of those paid speeches which Senator Humphrey, the former head of Americans for Democratic Action, the Roosevelt wing of the Democratic Party, so frequently makes.

"Well," remarked the unidentified reporter, "it is about time that Senator Humphrey began to make war on poverty! He has been fighting prosperity ever since he came to the Senate!"

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday a Greenville married man, 24 years of age, received a notice in the mail of a change of draft classification, from 3-A to 1-A. This situation brings on more talk about the draft. There are still openings in the two local reserve units, the 3015th Reception Center and the 3045th Induction Station.

The pressure of the draft breathing down a man's neck is quite a problem these days. To illustrate the point, there's a story about a boy named Bud, who quit high school while in the junior class.

Bud's father is a merchant of the moderate income group, and Bud is the oldest of four children. His parents are determined that he should finish high school. They tried ordering him back to school, they tried pleading, and they talked to the school officials. Finally, the father had a heart-to-heart talk with Bud.

"Just why did you quit, son?" "Well," Bud replied, "the way things are, I'll be drafted into the service in another year. Then everything'll be over! I've got to live first!"

"And what does that mean, Bud?"

"I'm going to get a job and buy a car. I want to have a good time before it's too late."

"And a good time means having a car of your own?"

"That's right."

"I'll take you a long time to save up enough money for one."

Bud's father pointed out. "Suppose I buy you one right now. I'll do anything you want, Dad. I'll work for you every day!"

"All right, I'll buy you a car—if you'll work for me by going back and finishing high school."

Bud accepted the offer. And the used convertible he was soon driving cost him his father $900. "I couldn't afford it," he later told the school official, "but I kept saying to myself, 'One day, he may be in a foxhole, and if he is, I'll have to live with myself. I'll keep thinking, if I had only done what he wanted.'"

This story makes it plain that one point should be made: War and military training are not one and the same. In fact, having millions of men trained for fighting is the best way in the world to prevent a war! Even in war, there are five or six men in the army doing other jobs, backing up every man on the front. Being in the army doesn't necessarily mean fighting. There's plenty to be gained from military service. If you don't believe that, ask veterans of WW II. Cheer up. It's not as bad as you think.

RETIREMENT—Sometime within the next few months there may be a showdown between the federal social security program and the several retirement systems operated by state and local governments for benefit of employees.

The extended coverage of social security under provisions of congressional acts has made that type of protection against old age more desirable for some government employees than the state-local retirement plans as presently set up. At the same time, social security coverage is much less valuable to the large segment of local government employees who have adopted public service as a career. Between the groups which will be benefited by federal social security and those who find very definite advantage in retirement system membership is a considerable number of "ringe" employees whose status is uncertain.

FEDERAL—Every person working for salary or wages for government agencies or private enterprise is potentially covered by the revised social security program.

Under the revised program, an employer is required to deduct one and one-half per cent from the employee's pay, up to a maximum of $200 a year salary, and like amount from employer funds, and remit the three per cent to the federal government. That is supposed to assure that the worker upon retirement at age sixty-five will draw a monthly "pension." That amount is the same whether the worker has contributed for many years or for a relatively few months. In event of death or separation from a payroll for any reason before reaching 65, there is no provision for recovery of the amount paid in or out of part of it.

STATE-LOCAL—Under the North Carolina Teachers and State Employees' Retirement system every regular employee of any state agency, including the public schools, is required to participate. The worker pays five per cent of his or her salary up to a maximum of $5,000 which is matched by the state, to build up a reserve along sound insurance actuarial lines. The amount of benefits obtainable is based on length of service, amount of contributions based on salary, and some other factors. The Local Government Retirement System, administered by the state, has identical provisions for county and municipal employees.

LAW OFFICERS—There is also in North Carolina the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit and Retirement System. As the name implies, only peace officers employed by the state or some local subdivision of government are eligible for participation in this system. Instead of making contributions to match contributions of members the government aid to this fund is represented by collection of two dollars on every criminal court bill of costs. In some instances peace officers have choice of affiliation with the regular retirement system or the officers' benefit fund, but not both.

BENEFITS—Discussion of all the varying degrees of benefits possible to be derived from one or the other of these systems would require a lot of space and probable confusion as to details. Briefly summarized the distinctions seem to be that under the federal social security program there is limited retirement pay after age 65, with no disability benefits and no provision for recovery of contributions paid in. Under the Teachers and State Employees' Retirement System (and the same for local government units coming into their system) there are larger and varying retirement benefits after age 60, plus provision for recovering, in event of separation from the payroll, of money previously paid into the fund, and provision for disability. Under the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit plan there is provision for retirement pay, for disability pay, and for specific compensation in case of death or injury incurred in line of duty. There would seem to be no doubt at all about superior advantages of the state-local benefits over prospects from the federal program. Those participating in these prospective benefits do not want the set up disturbed.

FRINGE—There are several thousand state, county and municipal employees in North Carolina who presently are not eligible for participation in any of these retirement plans. Temporary day-wage employees of the highway commission, sheriff deputies and police desk sergeants over 60 years of age, repair men and others employed by state and local governments for special services, are left out in the cold because they do not qualify for membership in the retirement systems and there has been no provision for matching their contributions to the social security program.

It has been demonstrated time and again that Kingston is an outstanding market and given an equal chance with the two markets referred to above, it will sell as much tobacco as not more than either of them. As a matter of fact we believe the sales for the past two or three seasons in Kingston have exceeded the sales in Greenville, even though that market has had five full sets of buyers. Certainly, as was stated in these columns a few days ago, the Kingston market exceeds all other markets per set of buyers and it has done so for a number of years. Kingston wants a square deal. It would hate to see the representation of any of the recalcitrant buying companies go to jail for contempt of court, but in its final analysis as stated in another article on this page today, the courts of our land are the last resort. This bulwark of our freedom and its edicts must not be ignored by anybody regardless of who they be or what their alignments may be.

Kingston has been fighting for years for five sets of buyers and is determined to have them. This market is entitled to full consideration so far as the number of buyers is concerned, as any other market in this or any other belt and it is planned to keep the fight going until justice is done!

What Other Papers Are Thinking

CASE OF DISCRIMINATION (Kinston Free Press)

The Free Press and all friends of the Kinston Tobacco Market regret the necessity of having to take legal action in an effort to get some of the principal buying companies on this market to put a stop to the discrimination, which has been practiced for a number of years in favor of the markets at Wilson and Greenville and to the detriment of the markets of Kinston and Rocky Mount.

The most ardent friend of the companies, which are refusing to put on a fifth set of buyers on this market, cannot successfully contend that these companies are not discriminating against Kingston and Rocky Mount.

It has been demonstrated time and again that Kingston is an outstanding market and given an equal chance with the two markets referred to above, it will sell as much tobacco as not more than either of them. As a matter of fact we believe the sales for the past two or three seasons in Kingston have exceeded the sales in Greenville, even though that market has had five full sets of buyers. Business Today

There is either going to be a shortage of consumer durable goods or there is not. The men who most ought to know do not appear to be in agreement.

Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson on September 6, speaking of materials for civilian production, said, "The pinch is here now." On September 24, Defense Production Administrator Manley Fleischmann said, "The public is not likely to feel any tight pinch in consumer goods for a long time, if ever."

Mr. Fleischmann was not disputing his boss. He was referring to goods available to consumers and Mr. Wilson was talking about materials for manufacturers. Between them stand retailers' inventories. The Department of Commerce estimated total inventories of durable goods stores in August at $7,737,000,000, compared with $5,135,000,000 in August 1950.

Meanwhile Hotpoint, an affiliate of Mr. Wilson's former company, General Electric, in page newspaper ads headed, "The Truth About America's Supply of Electrical Appliances," said, "Manufacturers are already feeling the effects of material shortages and today electric appliances are actually being bought faster than they are being built." J. B. Elliott, of RCA Victor, predicted shortages in certain models and lines before Christmas.

Then Harry J. Holbrook, in charge of the consumer durables division of the NPA, told the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers that they had better hurry in redesigning their lines because of coming metal shortages. The outlook for metal furniture, especially dinettes with nickel plating, is very dim, he said.

And, at the same meeting, Dr. Vergil D. Reed, economist and vice president of the J. Walter Thompson Co., said, "No one should think in terms of shortages which aren't in the cards and never were."

So there it is. It will probably work out this way: the things you want will be scarce, but there will be plenty of things you don't want.

DEADLINES SOON FOR CHRISTMAS PARCELS

Christmas packages for service men in Korea should be in the mails by November 1, and those for Europe by November 15. Retailers specializing in gift items and food parcels will be rendering a service to their customers if they note this line in their advertising and, entirely incidentally, they will be increasing their sales.

DURABLES DECLINE, NON-DURABLES UP

Sales in every category of consumer durable stores in August were less than a year earlier, according to Department of Commerce figures. On the other hand, sales in all but two categories of soft goods stores were up. Declines were reported in the "general merchandise" and miscellaneous groups.

The decline in durables pulled the total retail sales down to 5 per cent below a year ago.

SAYS TEA ADS NOT GARRLED TO SEASONS

Tea is being advertised in the wrong places at the wrong time, Wayne Mooney, of the ANPA Bureau of Advertising, writes in the September "Tea and Coffee Trade Journal." Advertising is not focused on areas where most tea is bought, he said, and the ad peak comes in the fourth quarter instead of in the third, when buyers are most receptive. Tackling the problem on a local basis is Mr. Mooney's solution.

SPEARMINT OIL

Prices of spearmint oil have been rising in recent weeks. Production is off and reports in the trade say it may go to $7 a pound. Peppermint oil, however, is in ample supply and there are reports that some buyers have to take a drum of peppermint to get a like amount of spearmint.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—Baseball has had more crises this year than the United Nations.

If America survives the present World Series, nothing should ever get it down.

For the national pastime in 1951 became a national disease. It is doubtful whether anything has stirred the people up more since the sinking of battleship Maine. Or divided them more since the Civil War between the States.

The World Series itself comes as something of an anti-climax to the whining-ding-dong games in the National League between the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

These crucial contests did more to raise the blood pressure of the average fan than if you had put a bicycle pump in his veins. They caused folk to forget the realities of taxes, politics, and international tensions. They broke up lifelong loyalties and created new ones. They turned friend against friend. They caused ordinary hen-pecked men to become wife beaters—"If I'd known you were for the Dodgers I'd never a-married you." They caused wives to throw drinks in their husbands' face with a snarling, "Why should you be for the Giants, you—mouse!"

Here in New York the temperature every day went five degrees above the weather bureau's forecast because of the hot air stirred up by arguing fans. I don't ever remember a season where everybody buried his own troubles more in the troubles of his team.

You think I'm kidding? After the Giants lost the second game 10 to 0, one angry fellow rushed over and bit his television set in the leg.

In Brooklyn a lawyer broke down and wept openly after the Dodgers lost the first game. His wondering wife, who somehow had escaped the general madness, looked at him and said:

"He wouldn't waste that many tears on me if I dropped down dead."

Of course, that's just like a woman. They take everything personal.

In Upper Manhattan, a strong-hold of the Giants, a 13-year-old girl paid her six-year-old sister and four-year-old brother a nickel each to pray for her team.

"I can't pray myself," she explained. "I have to listen to the game on the radio."

After praying the Giants in successfully in the first contest, the two small children struck for higher pay.

"A nickel isn't very much," said the little boy. "Our kneecaps are sore."

The reaction of a visiting young Swedish woman to our tempest-in-a-teacup was interesting. Taken by Grand to see her first game, she stood astounded at the stands.

He appeared mystified at first, but gradually she became more and more absorbed in the plays. Her friends thought she was catching on fine until she asked late in the ninth inning:

"I understand everything now except why that one man keeps throwing the ball at that other group of men there."

The group consisted of the batter, the catcher, and the umpire.

Oh, well, in another few days it will be over. Then, if you cut open the head of the most rabid fan, you wouldn't even find a single baseball.

You'd find a football.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—You might say Lemuel C. Buckingham Jr. is one of the "higher-ups" in the government. Mr. Buckingham, 30, is the Public Building Service's (PBS) steeplejack painter.

His principal job is the jizzing one of painting about 800 flagpoles in the Washington metropolitan area. The tallest are those at the Pentagon building. They tower 106 feet. Other poles range from 60 to 85 feet. But the daring young man in the boatwain's chair also swings out from rooftop-attached rigging to brighten up poles extending out from the sides of buildings.

Poles need a paint job about every three years. Mr. Buckingham removes the balls on top of the poles and finishes them with gold leaf at his office during bad weather.

He also has to check every pole he paints to see if it is in good condition. Steel poles he taps with a hammer.

"If you get a thud or a dead sound, the pole has to come down. If it's a wooden pole you scrape it with a knife and probe it with an ice pick to see if it's rotting," he says. Sometimes he's half way up a pole before he finds it isn't good.

But he says he's never afraid. The rigging he is required to use makes it impossible for him to fall and he has an assistant who operates the guide ropes while he is working.

A veteran of 32 months with the Army Corps of Engineers in the Pacific during World War II, young Mr. Buckingham says he prefers his pole top job.

However, he says he has no yen to compete as a flagpole-sitter. "I'm glad to get down when

From her experience in teaching in Europe, Mrs. Hahn says children are the best pupils.

Living in Bavaria after the war, Mrs. Hahn sculptured thousands of dolls for American soldiers. She switched to life-size portraits, but expects to go back to miniature work because there are very few apartments in Canada large enough to display life-size models.

Salesman Duped Gravedigger On Phone 'Egg Route'

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP)—A Seattle gravedigger charged that a salesman duped him out of $1,133 and left him holding the bag with 1,200 hard-boiled eggs.

A grand larceny charge was filed in justice court yesterday against Walk E. Miller, 51, on the complaint of J. V. Clark. Clark accused Miller of selling him a non-existent "egg route" which allegedly supplied taverns with hard-boiled eggs.

Clark told Deputy Prosecutor

John L. Vogel all he got out of the deal was the 1,200 hard-boiled eggs. He said he paid $1,000 for the route, while the eggs and fancy containers he purchased to deliver them in cost $133.

Miller was arrested and released on $2,500 bail.

Pair Fight For Custody Of Child

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A socially prominent grandmother and a Hollywood hairdresser fought today for the custody of a 2 1/2 year-old "love child" whose mother was killed in a "lost weekend" stabbing.

The legal difficulties put a crimp in the plans of Mrs. Dorothea Willard Hooker to take her grandson back to Newport, R.I., with her.

The child, Michael, was the son of Mrs. Hooker's daughter, Dorothea (Dodo), 28, who was slain by her common-law husband a week ago in a sordid stabbing.

The husband, Thomas Cahill, 30, son of a wealthy Philadelphia tavern owner, spent four whiskey-blearied days after the killing during which he guzzled liquor and read comic books aloud to the body of Dorothea before he decided to call police.

He was booked on a murder charge.

Charles McGinnis, well-to-do owner of a Hollywood beauty salon and one-time friend of the dead woman, told police here that he had papers "authorizing" him to take custody of the child.

McGinnis said the slain woman had "premonitions of death" and left him "explicit instructions" that Michael was not to be turned over to his grandmother.

He said he had a letter from Miss Hooker which directed him in case of her death to take care of Michael himself or to turn the child over to an aunt, Mrs. Natalia White of Newport.

Police found a note among Miss Hooker's effects in her San Francisco apartment giving sole custody of the child to Mrs. White.

Continues Fight For Low Prices

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The fight for effective meat controls will continue until they are assured, according to Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalvo.

DiSalvo told the Poor Richard club here yesterday that difficulty with achieving effective controls lies in the wilful non-compliance of a "minority of the industry... a minority... which is substantial... if our early checks are indicative."

Deer-Hunting Walkout Staged

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Delegates Clarence Briggs of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (AFL) thinks he may have a solution to the "deer hunting walkout" which closed down operations at the Dalles Lumber and Manufacturing Co. mill at the Dalles.

He encouraged the union to ask their northwestern council convention to negotiate a third of vacation which "might be a deer hunting."

Early Knowledge Of A-Bomb Blast

OTTAWA (UP)—Canadian scientists apparently knew about Russia's second atomic explosion several days before President Truman's official White House announcement, it was learned today.

However, Dr. C.J. MacKenzie, president of the Canadian Atomic Energy Control commission and the National Research council, would not confirm it.

"Apparently the American government's announcement is a fact, and that's all I can say," MacKenzie said.

External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson said the United States had informed Canada and the United Kingdom of its findings several days before the public announcement. He also declined to elaborate.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

It seems a safe bet that you'll never again see houses built exactly like homes erected before World War II.

Defense restrictions on the uses of steel, aluminum and copper are bringing about the second major revolution in home planning and building that has occurred in less than 10 years.

The first big change came with postwar building costs.

That shift saw the expense of lathing and plastering widely cir-cumvented by dry wall construction. Interior woodwork was simplified with modest trimmings in place of ornate millwork. Plain plywood doors replaced more costly paneled doors. Storage walls in the form of closet rows economized on interior partitions. Many basements were eliminated. And open planning merged dining room with living room—among various other sharp departures from tradition.

Now the American home is due for another shake-up.

GOVERNORS SIGN DEFENSE PACT: — Chief executives of three southern states meet at the Governors Conference in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and sign a mutual defense pact. It binds each state to assist the others in civil defense work in the event of enemy attack. Gov. Brown (left) of Tennessee puts his signature on the agreement. Gov. Talmadge of Georgia (right) and Gov. Warren of Florida (standing) await their turns to sign. (AP Wirephoto).

The shortage of critical metals, coupled with rigid curbs on the size of mortgage loans, makes the construction of large houses difficult.

The National Production Administrator, who set the rationing of steel and copper, predicts there can be no hope of relief from present shortages before 1953. By that time, judging from past experiences, new building practices will have had time to become so well established that even a plenitude of materials may never swing the pendulum all the way back. Houses definitely will be different.

Architects are on the spot. Builders are looking to them to contrive plans that will stretch allotted materials to give home buyers a maximum amount of house for their money.

Since nails, all plumbing and heating pipes, electric wiring, reinforcing bars and sheet metal for flashing and termite shields are now effectively rationed in minimum amounts for every house—and since all structural steel, such as I-beam girders, H-beam, angle irons and plates are prohibited in one family houses—the builder expects the architect to specify what substitutes, if any, can be used.

An indication of the importance of design in solving this dilemma was brought out at a recent meeting of the Long Island Home Builders Institute. A committee on merchandisable architecture reported on research in alternate specifications a builder may use and stay within weight limitations on controlled metals.

Herman York, a leading designer of small houses, reported as chairman of the investigating committee. With sketch plans of nine houses recently built in New York suburbs, Architect York showed where metal economies could be achieved.

He predicted that the use of wood girders in the place of steel beams will be one of the first substitutes that may noticeably alter design of a house. Shorter spans permitted for wood will call for changes in plans for framing a house.

York also predicted that concrete columns may be due to appear in basements. These can be poured without reinforcement by the use of patented forms, which can be stripped, or left on the posts, as you prefer.

He explained that steel lally columns, while not included in the prohibition of structural steel, are counted in the 1,800 pounds of carbon steel allowed per house. However, adjustable steel jack columns, known as teleposts, are classed as "B" products and as such are not included in steel limitations on the job.

But the copper shortage presents far greater obstacles than the pinch in steel. York showed the builders an example of how 35 pounds and more of copper could be saved by placing kitchen and bath back-to-back and as near the front of the house as possible. This location of kitchen and bath, combined with the divided bath to take the place of two baths, appears destined to be one of the major features in future house design.

A saving of 35 pounds or more in copper is a vital saving under the Controlled Materials Plan. Only 35 pounds of copper is allowed for any house using steel water pipes. Where copper tubing is required, 160 pounds is the top copper allowance. These amounts are scarcely enough.

Engineers for General Electric point out that 35 pounds of copper should be enough to wire a small five-room house, or a four-room ranch-type dwelling. The National Adequate Wiring Bureau figures 37 to 38 pounds of copper needed to wire a house of 1,100 square feet. Figures in both cases allow for electric range wiring.

However, the GE men have figured out a way to add two full sized rooms to a house without exceeding the 35-pound copper limit. Their system is to wire all switches with ordinary bell cord on a low-voltage transformer circuit that trips relays at electric outlets. This is the system used in the remote-control wiring that greatly increased flexibility of electric control in homes.

The engineers report that the use of this principle, without adding extra features, would make it possible to build a house of 1,350 square feet, using only 35 pounds of copper wire, instead of a house of about 1,000 square feet.

The difference is equivalent to two rooms, each 13 by 15 feet in size. And the wiring trick not only stretches the copper, but also saves 61 pounds of steel that would be used in conduits or jacketed cable.

Much depends on the wiring contractor, of course, but once such economies become established, the house of the future should move toward further embellishments of these practices, rather than backward toward pre-war standards.

Says Home Like 'Grand Central'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Her home was like "Grand Central Station" with strangers cooking in the kitchen on Sunday mornings, film actress Kathryn Grayson testified in divorcing singer Johnny Johnston.

Miss Grayson was awarded an interlocutory decree yesterday after telling Superior Judge Orlando H. Rhodes "there was never any privacy in our married life."

"I would come home and find parties and not even know the people," she said, and when she objected, Johnston said she was "anti-social."

The 29-year-old singing actress said her work was affected by the continual round of "partying."

Johnston, 37, did not contest the suit. Rhodes approved a property settlement giving Miss Grayson title to the family home and custody of their daughter, Patricia, 2. She did not ask for alimony or child support, but the judge refused to approve a "permanent arrangement whereby the father is relieved of all responsibility to support the child."

The University of Alabama's head football coach, Harold "Red" Drew, served in both World Wars in the Navy.

Draftee's Word Is Not Enough

CHICAGO (UP)—Illinois draft board refused today to take a draftee's word for it that his wife is pregnant. It won't do for a husband to casually tell the officials "my wife's been pregnant for nearly a week," said Paul Armstrong, state director of selective service. "A married man must submit a sworn statement from a doctor that his wife is pregnant," Armstrong said. The director said the new policy was ordered after the recent selective service ruling making childless husbands eligible for the draft.

The service began with the hymn "I'm a Child of the King" after which Rev. J. E. Hoyle led in prayer. Introductory remarks were given by Mrs. E. G. Cole, former counselor of the Junior Girls Auxiliary.

John Grimsley Worthington served as herald and announced the Junior and Intermediate girls and Junior boys as they entered according to their advancement in the organization. The participants were commended, examined and challenged by Mrs. E. B. Wall, Junior G. A. Counselor, Mrs. J. H. Mobley, Intermediate G. A. Counselor, and Mrs. A. M. Mumford, Junior R. A. Counselor.

Frances Ray Gold, Betty Jean Mobley and Roselyn Waters had a star added to their crowns as Honor Queens. The climax of the service was the presentation of scepters to Doris Cole and Peggy Mobley who recently completed the requirements for becoming Queens with Scepter.

Flower girls, crown bearers and scepter bearers were attendants for the Queens, Honor Queens and Queens with Scepter and were members of the Sunbeam Band.

At the close of the service a lighted cross was formed with flashlights by the Queens, Honor Queens

Two Engagements At Same Time

DETROIT (UP)—Conflicting engagements at Detroit and Flint, Mich., Sunday won't stop Gov. G. Mennen Williams from appearing at both.

Williams will participate in the first part of a parade here by delegates of the Holy Name society convention, fly to Flint about 90 miles away for a speech, then return in time for the end of the parade past city hall.

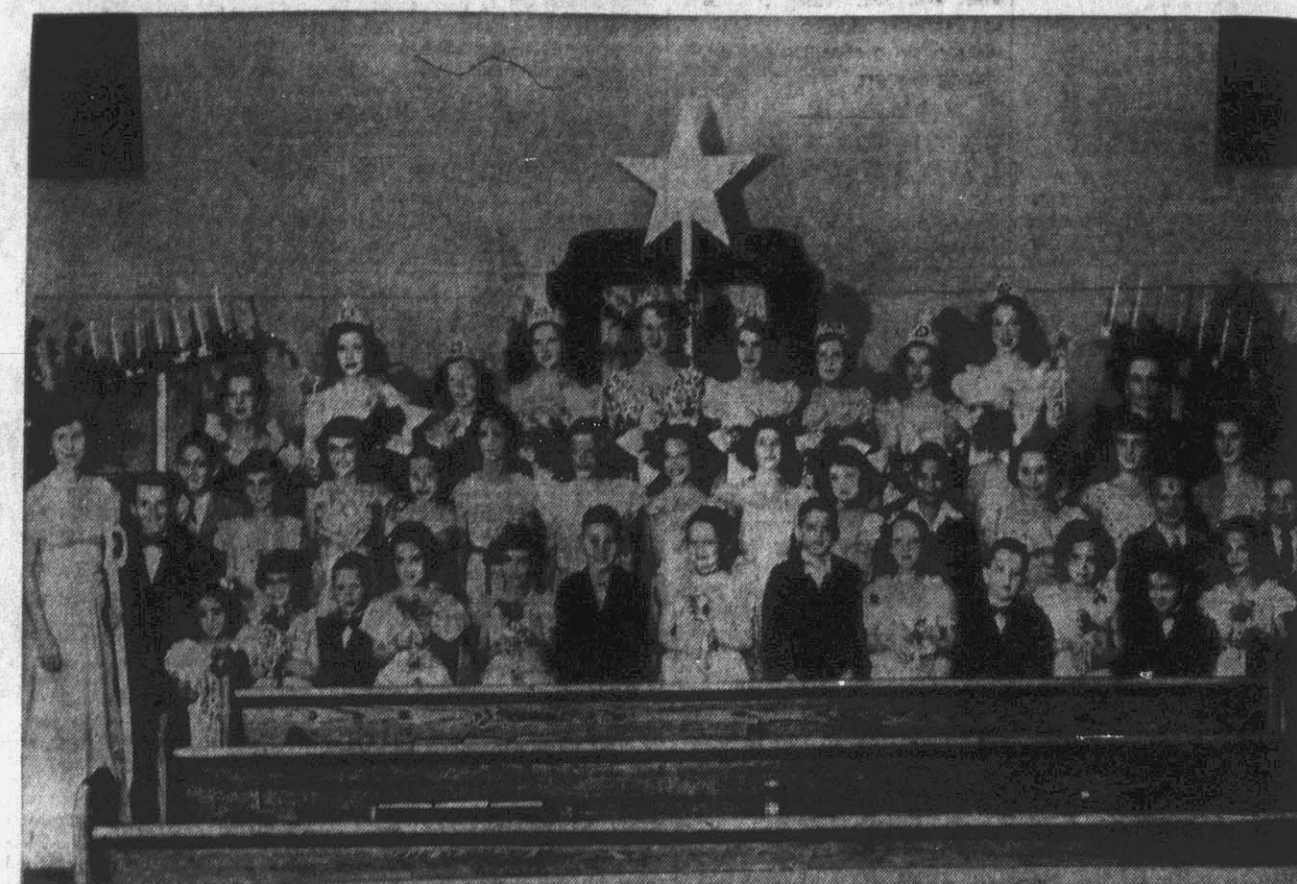

The parade will take an estimated seven hours to pass a given point.

Burned Mail To See Golf Games

DETROIT (UP)—A substitute postman awaited sentencing today on charges of burning part of his mail so he could have time to watch his friends play golf.

Thomas M. Wexworth, 19, pleaded guilty in federal court yesterday to charges he burned about 399 pieces of third class mail a week ago, then took the afternoon off to go to a golf course.

Postal inspectors said they discovered that Wexworth always delivered his first class mail, but occasionally destroyed post cards, newspapers and advertisements to shorten his day's work.

Plans Appeal In Housing Dispute

RALEIGH (UP)—Richard A. Shaw, Wilmington real estate man, notified the State Utilities commission today that he plans to appeal the commission's order allowing the Wilmington Housing authority to proceed with construction of a low-rent housing project.

The order, issued Aug. 20, empowered the authority to condemn property needed for the project. Shaw and other property owners filed exceptions which were overruled by the commission.

Shaw is being represented in the case by Wilmington attorney John Bright Hill. Commission officials said the issue may now go to the Wilmington Superior Court.

Lack Of Responsibility Blamed In Bank Frauds

WASHINGTON (UP)—FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover today disclosed an alarming increase in bank embezzlements and blamed wine, women, gambling and "lack of moral responsibility."

Hoover said embezzlements have increased almost nine per cent so far this year compared with the same period of 1950. He also reported an approximate 15 per cent increase in robberies, burglaries and larcenies.

Embezzlements have been particularly prevalent in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York, Michigan and Illinois, Hoover said.

"Gambling, excessive drinking, living above means, women, and inadequate income were factors in embezzlement cases," the FBI director said. Many cases, he added, involved a person with "an egotistical pride which forces him to live above his income."

Hoover said the basic factor involved in the embezzlement was "lack of moral responsibility which manifests itself in many walks of life today."

He urged the public to report to a responsible bank official any discrepancies in bank statements, such as failure to include deposits or variances between date of actual deposit and the date shown on the statement.

Meanwhile a severe bank official was under arrest today on embezzlement charges in a mushrooming scandal that has uncovered $3,000,000 in shortages in the past year in six Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia banks.

Otto Raymond Grotefeld, 51, teller at the First National Bank in New Kensington, Pa., was taken into custody by FBI agents late yesterday.

He was accused of embezzling $16,000 over a four-year period for the same bank which recently suffered a $550,000 embezzlement loss. Fred Hallford, chief of the FBI field office at Pittsburgh, said Grotefeld told agents he started to embezzle the money in 1947 and lost it all playing slot machines.

The roundup of accused embezzlers began Sept. 25, 1950, when a $1,300,000 shortage was discovered at the First National Bank of Cecil, Pa. The discovery was made after Charles Wagner, a cashier, shot and killed himself in his bank office.

The others arrested were Hildur Hystrom, cashier at the Union National Bank, McKeesport, Pa., accused of a $3,900 shortage; Ludwig R. Schlekut, president of the Par-nassus Bank, New Kensington, Pa., accused of a $3,000, 30 shortage; bookkeeper Mrs. Goldie Caldwell of the New Alexandria, Pa., National Bank, accused of a $28,000 shortage; teller Dennis V. Layfield, of the Wood County Bank in Parkersburg, W. Va., $364,410, and Samuel P. Lewis, Indiana, Pa., bank, $48,478.

Agents also arrested Holly Stump, Parkersburg automobile dealer, on a charge of complicity with Layfield.

Secrecy Cloaks Atomic 'Games'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission threw a security blanket today over forthcoming atomic war games at its Frenchman Flat proving ground and warned that unauthorized persons entering the area would be exposed to "serious personal danger."

The AEC and the Army issued joint announcement outlining restrictions on information about atomic tests on the desert proving ground and about combat maneuvers scheduled to get under way there sometime this month.

The announcement said the site was closed to all unauthorized persons, and the press would not be admitted.

The AEC said information released to the public about the tests would be "the minimum required for operational reasons and for safeguarding the public in the site region."

The commission has announced that the proving ground, site of a series of atomic tests blasts early this year, has been reactivated and will be used "whenever tests are required."

The announcement pointed out that the commission normally makes no official report of specific test programs beyond confirming that a detonation has taken place and reporting any radiation conditions outside the test site.

Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, commander of the Third Army Corps, which will conduct the atomic war games, said the Army has adopted an information policy similar to that of the AEC.

While the maneuvers are going on, no information will be released on the purpose of the games or "what is planned or done within the test site," the announcement said.

Finds Evidence In Getting Shave

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Plainclothesman James Johnson's shave was interrupted repeatedly yesterday while the barber answered phone calls and jotted notes on slips of paper.

Johnson finally got out clean-shaven, but returned a short time later with four other policemen and arrested the barber, Louis Marano, on pool-selling and book-making charges.

Divers Find Old Roman Jars In Gulf Of Genoa

DIANO MARINO, Italy (AP)—Divers have uncovered a large number of old Roman earthen jars in the Gulf of Genoa.

The jars were found in an old Roman vessel which probably was transporting them when it sank. The wreck lay under some 50 feet of water off Cervo, northeast of San Remo, and was covered by mud.

Divers say the work of salvaging the jars will not be too difficult. The wreck is wedged under a rocky submarine ledge where there are no undercurrents.

The jars are about 32 inches in diameter. The divers made the discovery while trying to salvage a ship sunk in World War II.

Students To Act On Segregation

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—Representatives of 14 student organizations planned to meet today with University of North Carolina Chancellor Robert B. House to register their protest against segregation of Negro students at football games.

Resolutions of protest have been passed by student religious, athletic, governmental and debating groups since university officials refused to allow six Negro graduate students to sit with other students at football games.

The student legislature called the administration's action "an affront to every student in the university." "It weakens our defense of democracy in the eyes of the 130 or more foreign students on our campus and threatens the leadership of our nation in the preservation of democratic ideals," the legislative body said.

Announces Boost In Rate Levels

RALEIGH (UP)—Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek announced today that an increase of 5.8 per cent in the rate level of workmen's compensation insurance will go into effect Nov. 1.

Applicable only to new and renewal policies, the increase will cost Tar Heel policyholders approximately $28,000 per year, Cheek said. A substantial increase in the number of claims and increased medical costs are the chief factors making the increase necessary, he said.

Charge Trio In Plot To Defraud

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—The FBI today charged three persons with plotting to defraud the government by "irregular" sales of construction materials for the Savannah River H-bomb plant through dummy companies.

Special agent-in-charge Alvin C. Schlenker of the Savannah, Ga., FBI office said a former purchasing agent for the DuPont Co. conspired with his wife and an Augusta businessman to contracts through undercover deals.

Joseph Golosky, Augusta social leader and local camera dealer, here, and Walter W. Long, former DuPont purchasing agent and his wife were arrested in Tupelo, Miss.

Schlenker said "irregular" sales meant they did not always go to the lowest bidder and he said long, as an employee in the DuPont purchasing department, schemed to steer orders to dummy companies formed by his wife and Golosky.

Schlenker said they had connections which enabled them to deliver the goods and the conspiracy involved their methods, such as failing to advertise for sealed bids.

Schlenker said no blame was placed against the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Co., general contractor for building and billion-dollar H-bomb plant in South Carolina, across the Savannah river from here.

Average prices strengthened yesterday for flue-cured tobacco on the Middle and Old Belts while holding steady on the Eastern and Border Belts.

The Eastern Belt reported improvement in general quality but the other three belts noted declines. Volume was reported heavy on all but the Old Belt.

Increases in average prices ranged from $1 to $3 for most grades of Old Belt tobacco. Some smoking leaf and a few other scattered grades dropped about $1. Orange and lemon primings showed the biggest gains, with raises of $4 an $5 per hundred pounds.

A few grades of cutters, lugs and smoking leaf moved up $1 and $2 on Eastern Belt markets, putting some of these grades at new season high averages. A small number of grades declined. Volume was still classed as heavy although some markets were out of block for the first time in several weeks.

The Federal and State departments of Agriculture reported only normal price variations on the Border Belt. The Darlington market postponed its closing date from today to Oct. 10; and Timmonsville planned to hold final sales on Oct. 11.

Royal Couple To Return Home By Boat If Possible

OTTAWA (UP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip will return to Britain by boat following their month-long tour of Canada, barring a turn for the worse in the king's condition.

Tour officials said today the royal couple had definitely decided to sail for Liverpool from St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 17 aboard the Canadian Pacific luxury liner Empress of Scotland.

The announcement ended speculation as to whether the royal couple would return home by air or ship.

If the king's post-operative condition should worsen, however, it was still likely that the princess and prince would fly home.

Japanese To Try Television In '52

TOKYO (AP)—The Japan Broadcasting Corporation will begin television broadcasts four hours daily beginning April 1, 1952.

Studios will be set up in the present JBC radio stations in Tokyo and Osaka. Programs will be transmitted on 10 kilowatt beams from towers constructed on top of the two stations. The decision to begin broadcasts next spring was made after an announcement that a commercial TV broadcasting station would be constructed by private interests early next year.

The JBC broadcasts will be strictly on an experimental basis. Tentative plans call for the use of mobile sets in various districts to give the people of Tokyo and Osaka a chance to see the programs. Only a few TV sets are privately owned in Japan now. Most of them were bought in anticipation of TV broadcasts in the near future.

Beer Fees And Taxes At Second Highest Mark

RALEIGH (UP)—Beer taxes and license fees hit the second highest mark on record during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, the State Department of Revenue announced today.

The fees and taxes totaled $5,043,882.01, an increase over the previous year of $686,972.23. The highest on record was $5,479,000 for 1947-48.

Towns and counties which permit legal sale of beer will receive one-half of the tax collections on the basis of population. The distribution will be based on the 1950 census for the first time and counties such as Onslow, which have shown large growth, will receive substantially higher checks.

Phantoms Are Hit By Injuries Before Camp Lejeune Game

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

This rainy, dreary day just about matches my spirits. As this is being written, it's drizzling outside and nothing seems right.

First of all, there's the loss of the National League flag that the Dodgers had "wrapped up" less than a month ago. If I remember correctly, there was a comment in this column once to the effect that "the Brooklyn decline will be compared in the future" with the decline of the Roman Empire if it continues.

The comparers can start comparing because the Brooklyn decline surely continued.

As a result of that loss yesterday, Charlie Dressen might well be out of a job. Not today, of course, but sometime within the next few days. It seems impossible that a ball club that was thirteen and a half games ahead in the closing month of the season could lose. Dressen will be shackled with the blame—even though he wasn't playing in a single one of the games.

Dressen has been a good manager for the Dodgers. I wouldn't attempt to say just what caused that late season slump but I hardly think it can be blamed on him. If his ball players don't get in and play ball of a major league caliber, the major can hardly expect to have a winning year.

A few incidents in the latter stages of the season can be linked with Brooklyn's fast fall. Gil Hodges' failure to hit as he did in the other portions of the season; Roy Campanella's beaming which put him out of the line-up in the final two weeks; a general all-around failure to support pitching by the Dodger batters; and, last but not least by a long shot, the apparent unconcern of the Dodgers as they continued to skid from first place.

Dressen, as manager of the 1951 Brooklyn Dodgers, was supposed to shake the club out of its doldrums. He failed to do so. Because of that failure, look for a new manager of the Dodgers next year.

If I remember correctly, this was supposed to be prediction day. The weather isn't exactly suited for predicting anything, but here goes nothing:

Lejeune at Greenville: Bill Kittrell is feeling mighty low because of all the injuries which have struck his ball club on top of the 40-6 defeat last week at the hands of Bryant Aldridge and Kinston. Lejeune hasn't shown too much this year and Greenville, although in a sad physical shape right now, shouldn't have a great deal of trouble. Injuries or not, I'll take Greenville.

Elon at East Carolina: This is the roughest of them all for a variety of reasons. Coach Bill Dole is in much the same shape as Kittrell when it comes to injuries although only Iliard Yarborough and Mike Kovack are expected to miss the game completely. Yarborough will really be missed because of what he has shown this year and Kovack's backing of Daughtry would also be nice to have around. If Jack Benzie, who has been running in Yarborough's spot, can round into the form he showed two years ago as a freshman, it will be East Carolina's game.

Carolina at Texas: Texas has no Byron Townsend play full-back this weekend and Carolina has no pass defense to play any weekend. Also, Texas has expected hot (90 degrees) weather in their favor as well as the better ball club, Texas.

Duke at Tennessee: Duke always bites off a large mouthful when they step across the mountains into General Neyland's land. They might be biting off more than they can chew this year because Tennessee is loaded for bear—or Blue Devil. Too much Tennessee money and too many big boys for Duke to beat, Tennessee.

Richmond at Wake Forest: Little Richmond University has long been The Citadel's chief contender as Southern Conference doormat and the Spiders will sweat it out in the final game of the season. The practice session found four reserve players moving into the limelight yesterday. Showing up well were Don Ondilla, tackles Bob Gaona and Joe Barkocy and guard John Coles.

Rain Predicted

NEW YORK (UP)—The weather bureau forecast occasional rain today for the opening game of the World Series between the New York Giants and New York Yankees.

The bureau said the weather would be cloudy and windy with temperatures in the 60's.

Big 4 Briefs

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—North Carolina's far Heels ran through light limbering up drills today and were to leave by plane early this afternoon for Austin, Tex.

Coach Carl Snively said the squad would work only lightly in Austin tomorrow. A 47-man squad will make the trip.

Linemen Charles Ellenwood, Mike Hogan and Don McCormick led the way in stopping Texas plays in yesterday's fast scrimmage. Connie Gravette and Van Weather-spoon were among the outstanding backs.

DURHAM (UP)—Duke held its final hard football scrimmage today before leaving to meet Tennessee in Knoxville.

The Blue Devils leave by bus for Lynchburg, Va., tomorrow and will take a train from Lynchburg to Knoxville.

Trainers said the team was in its best physical shape of the season. Only Quarterback Joe Self will miss the game.

Duke defensive players got a constant diet of Tennessee plays in the final practices. Coaches warned they would have to have a perfect defense to stop the groundgaining Volunteers.

WAKE FOREST (UP)—Wake Forest continued preparations today for its meeting with the Richmond Spiders here Saturday.

The Richmond-Wake Forest battle will be the only afternoon home game for a member of the Big Four this week.

The practice session found four reserve players moving into the limelight yesterday. Showing up well were Don Ondilla, tackles Bob Gaona and Joe Barkocy and guard John Coles.

RALEIGH (UP)—North Carolina State's Wolfpack worked up special plans today to try to break Clemson's 15-game string of victories.

The Wolfpack rates as a 13-point underdog in the Southern Conference clash at Riddick Stadium Saturday night. Clemson is undefeated since late in the 1949 season.

N.C. State's standout backs, Alex Webster at tailback and Jim O'Rourke at fullback, were the leaders in the state's offensive preparations. Both broke loose for long runs through the B team during scrimmage sessions.

Farmville Sets Up Defense For Morehead City

FARMVILLE — Farmville High School's Red Devils' defensive unit got a look at Morehead City's form of attack Tuesday as the second string ran the Morehead plays.

Also included in the day's work were drills on kick-off and kick-off returns. Tackling and blocking drills were also practiced.

Coach Elbert Moye set up the defense that he will use Friday night. He is expected to string along with the same line-up that has started in the three previous contests.

The Devils have worked all week on their offensive timing and defensive fundamental play.

Educators Hold Meet In Durham

DURHAM (AP)—More than 1,500 teachers met here today for the 29th annual meeting of the North Central District of the North Carolina Education Association.

I. Edward Kidder Graham, chancellor of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, was to deliver the principal address at the one-day convention.

Delegates from a 17-county area were on hand.

Scott, Smith, And Four Others Hurt

Scott Will Miss Rest Of Season With Injured Knee; Smith Has Pulled Muscle, Will Not Dress

By MELVIN LANG

Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's offensive team will look something like this: Bobby Conway and Joe Rowland at ends; Dixie Hobgood and Fletcher Murray at the tackles; Bobby Nunn and Sam Hux at the guards; Charlie Huffstetter at center; Sid Briley at quarterback; Bobby Perry and Bob Langston at halfback; and Doug Morgan at fullback.

The defensive will have Briley and Johnny Russell at halfback, Perry in the safety position, and Wayne Smiley and Jimmy Cheatham at linebackers. Frank Brooks and Wallace Conway will start at defensive ends and Bob Tindal and Wilton McLawhorn will handle the tackle slots. Tommy Evans and Anwer Joseph are expected to start at the guards.

Pat Sawyer and James Speight have been called up from the junior varsity to strengthen the backfield, which was left with only four players who were not injured. They will probably see some action.

The injuries will hurt the Phantoms against the strong Lejeune team, but they will still be installed as favorites. Coach Dick Lauffer's team has won three and tied one game so far this season. The tied contest came at the hands of Beaufort.

Mike Glover, a triple-threat tailback in Lejeune's single wing attack, will do most of the passing and punting for Lauffer. A transfer student this year, Glover is also an excellent runner.

Wingback Bob Peele, quarterback George Morton, and either Howard Waller or Jack Henry at fullback will complete the starting backfield. Tackle-to-tackle is supposed to be the strongest point of the team. Six of the seven lettermen who returned this year were veterans at that spot of the line. Leading the returnees are Co-captains Jack Barringer, tackle, and Laren Brandt at guard. Veteran center Charles Platt and guard Claude Marshall and tackle Bob Royster, both lettermen, are the other starting linemen. Rodney Hamby and Kenneth Kirk are the starting ends. Tom Edison, who was injured in pre-season practice drills, will dress also and will see action along with end Bobby Burkhardt.

Avalanche Of Injuries
An avalanche of injuries swept the roster of Coach Bill Kittrell's Green Phantoms this week as they prepared for the game tomorrow night with Camp Lejeune High in Greenville.

The biggest blow came to halfback-quarterback Glenn (Sonny) Scott, who will be out for at least two months and probably for the rest of the year. Scott re-injured his knee in practice Tuesday afternoon. The little back has been the work-horse of the Greenville squad during the entire season. Scott has played at every position in the backfield.

Pullback Guy Smith also joined the injured list with a pulled muscle which will keep him on the sidelines for at least two weeks, although he might dress next week. Bobby and Wallace Conway, both ends, have sprained ankles. They will dress and might see action against the Devil Pups tomorrow night.

Tackle Bob Tindal has a bruised chest but is expected to start on Kittrell's defensive team. Defensive end Vernon Wingate is out for two weeks with a cut hand suffered last Sunday.

Bobby Conway, Wallace Conway, and Bob Tindal will dress for the Camp Lejeune game and are expected to see limited action. The other three are not expected to dress.

Pileon System
Coach Kittrell has decided to use the two-pileon system against Lejeune. He stated this morning, "It is necessary to do something which will allow my limited amount of boys to rest during the game, and I think the two-team system might work. We will see against Lejeune."

The contest is scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m. at East Carolina Stadium.

Elon Has A Line Averaging 199; Lead By All-American Sal Gero

THIS IS SAL GERRO, Elon College's one-man wrecking crew who will be at left tackle for the Christians Saturday night in East Carolina's College Stadium. Gero was a first team choice on the Little All-America squad last year and is given a very good chance of repeating this year. He weighs 240 pounds.

A line averaging 199 pounds will start for Elon College's Christians Saturday night when they come to College Stadium to meet East Carolina College in the Pirates' annual Homecoming game.

The Elon line is led, of course, by their 240 pound, Little All-America, Sal Gero. Gero has long been the main cog in Elon's line and is a wrecking crew within himself when it comes to piling up the opposition. He will play left tackle and will serve as one of the Christians' co-captains.

Teaming with Gero at tackle will be the smallest man in the Elon line, Raleigh Ellis, a Virginia boy who weighs in at 175. Ellis has long been one of Elon's better ball players and if it were not for Gero, he might well be their number one lineman.

At the ends, the Christians will start Bob Lewis and Leonard Greenwood. Lewis, a Wilmington native, stands 6'3" and weighs 195. Greenwood is 6'2" and weighs 188. Both are lettermen.

At guards, Isaac Braxton, a 210 pound junior letterman from Goldsboro, will team with Al Ludwig, a 190 veteran.

Mike Moffo, 195 pounder from Connecticut, will start at center. He's another letterman and rated a fine performer by Elon followers who have seen him against Emory and Henry, Norfolk Naval Air Station, and Appalachian.

To match their big, all-veteran line, Elon will send in a backfield which averages 175 pounds. This average will be upped considerably when 215-pound Fred Biangardi gets on the field because he isn't listed in the starting line-up although he was the star in last week's 20-6 licking handed Appalachian.

R. K. Grayson, 160 pounds and 22 years old, will start at tailback for the Christians. Thus far this year Grayson has been the "Choo-Choo" of the Elon attack although he took a sideline seat last week when Biangardi ran wild.

Joe Parker, a 170 pound Durham native, will open at wingback for the Christians while Frank Tingley, 180 pounds, and Marvin Moss, 190 pounds, will open at fullback and blocking back, respectively. Tingley and Grayson are lettermen while both Moss and Parker are sophomores who did not win a monogram last year.

Elon will bring a season's record of two wins and one loss to College Stadium Saturday night. As did the Pirates, the Christians dropped their opening game and then bounced back to knock off their opponents in the two following games. After Emory and Henry had beaten them in the season's opener, Elon whipped Norfolk Naval Air Station 37-7, and then took Appalachian last week-end on Biangardi's two touchdown performances.

Elon will be in top shape for the contest Friday night providing there are no injuries in practice the remainder of the week.

Tickets are still available for the game which will start at 7:30.

Texas And Vols Both Favored

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—How can you concentrate on football when all you hear is World Series?

But here are the gilt-edge winners of this weekend's big games.

Ohio State over Michigan State: The big game of the week, possibly the big game of the season. Both teams have hordes and hordes of talent and both have plenty of incentives—Ohio State the Rose Bowl and Michigan State the smacking of another Big Ten team. The home field and Vic Janowicz give Ohio State a thin edge.

Notre Dame over Detroit: A Friday night venture for the Irish. Now that the Notre Dame coaches have found the fullback they needed in Neil Worden, the Irish could make their season successful.

Texas A & M over Oklahoma: Oklahoma supposedly has some worries about its line. And which team has a better battering ram than Bob Smith of Texas A & M?

Tennessee over Duke: Tennessee has that old Army man, General Neyland, and that old football savvy, experience.

Northwestern over Army: This is the wrong year for the Cadets to be wandering around in Big Ten territory.

Texas over North Carolina: Both teams come into this inter-sectional contest with good marks. Texas has beaten the more rugged foes and should win here.

Pennsylvania over Dartmouth: Penn has the greater all-around talent.

Illinois over Wisconsin: The Illini will avenge that 7 to 6 setback of a year ago.

Finishing the others in a hurry: Auburn over Wofford, Boston University over Louisville, Miami (Fla.) over Florida State, Mississippi over Boston College, Washington State over Oklahoma A & M.

Saturday: East: Columbia over Harvard, Cornell over Colgate, Holy Cross over Fordham, Lehigh over Bucknell, Penn State over Villanova, Princeton over Navy, Rutgers over Temple, Syracuse over Lafayette, Yale over Brown.

South: Alabama over Vanderbilt, Clemson over North Carolina State, Georgia over Mississippi State, Kentucky over Georgia Tech, Maryland over George Washington, Rice over Louisiana State, South Carolina over Furman, The Citadel over Davidson, Tulane over Baylor, Virginia over Virginia Tech, Wake Forest over Richmond, William & Mary over Virginia Military.

Because nobles of the Middle Ages had no banks in which to deposit their wealth, the Encyclopedia Americana says, they had their gold and silver fashioned into ornate cups and vases.

Coastal Conference Set For Friday Play

Two intra-conference games will be played in the Coastal Athletic Conference tomorrow afternoon.

Ayden and South Edgecombe highlight the day's activity with a game in Pinetops. The two teams finished first and second in the region, respectively, last season. The Tornadoes defeated the Edgecombe County boys, 32-6, last year in Ayden.

The teams have not played a mutual opponent this season, but in a round-a-bout fashion of calculation, Ayden will be favored by approximately 14 points. Ayden defeated Robersonville, 26-7, and Robersonville edged past Jameville by a score of 6-0. Jameville dropped South Edgecombe 31-20 last week, and a little quick arithmetic gives Ayden the 14 point advantage (?).

Another factor on the side of Ayden is experience. Although Coach Stuart Tripp lost nearly 15 men from his 1950 undefeated squad, he has 10 lettermen starting this year, including All-Coastal end Mac Whithurst. With quarterback Darrell Worthington's throwing arm improving every week, Ayden is expected to fill the air with passes to either Whithurst or left end Willis Manning. South Edgecombe, on the other hand, lost their key players, with the exception of back Brooks Webb, and have been unable to replace them in the starting line-up.

Whites Win As I. Riddick Scores From 5-Yard Line

Pullback Ike Riddick raced around right end for five yards and a touchdown for the only score yesterday as the Whites defeated Gold, 6-0, in the Little League Football loop.

Riddick started the touchdown drive by taking a punt on the Gold 45 yard line and returning it to the 15 before he was stopped. He then carried for 10 yards and first down to the 5. An offside penalty set them back to the 10 again but Charles Rumley took a pass good to the 5 yard line. Riddick then went around right end for the score.

The Gold team, which did not have the drive which brought them a 13-0 victory over Red last week, threatened but one time. A drive which had covered half the length of the field was stopped on the White 10 yard line, inches away from first down and a possible touchdown.

Harris Northrop and Mokey Laster were outstanding in the line for the winners. Quarterback Rumley shared honors with Riddick in the backfield.

Backs Charlie Smith and James Hudson led the Gold. Guard Edwin Wilkerson led the line play for the losers.

The game was postponed from Tuesday to allow the players to attend the local fair.

Eppes Opens Home Year With Strong Williamston Team

Eppes High School opens its home football season Friday night as they play host to Williamston High in an 8 p.m. contest at Guy Smith Stadium.

Defensive play was stressed in practice sessions during the week. Several long practice periods have been held in order to correct the mistakes that the Bulldogs made in losing to New Bern last week by the score of 19-12.

The hard running attack of the Bulldogs place them as a 12-point favorite in the contest over Williamston, who lost their opener last week to a potent Washington eleven.

Koslo Scheduled To Face Yanks Today

Dressen Under Fire Today; Critics Charge Newcombe Shouldn't Have Been Removed Or That Labine Should Have Relieved

By Leo H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Giants set out today to prove that the age of miracles did not end yesterday.

Still monarchs of their own fairy tale world after their incredible 5-4 ninth-inning victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, the greatest come-back team in baseball history met the World Series hardened New York Yankees in the first game of the 1951 classic only 18 hours after winning the longest and most dramatic of all National League races.

Only the odds-makers were not carried away by the fantastic story of the team that could do no wrong. They made the Yankees, shooting for their third consecutive world championship, 8-5 favorites in the opener and 9-5 picks in the series.

Giants Manager Leo Durocher, "back on top again," announced that left-hander Dave Koslo, stocky veteran curve-ball, would carry the Giants' hopes in the first game.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel stuck with his original choice—power-pitcher Allie Reynolds, author of two no-hit games this season, to send the defending world champions off on the right foot.

The Yankees, with a cash register in every foot-locker, were seeking to make it three world titles in succession. The Giants, having already written one marvelous story, had nothing to lose. It was safe to say that no more "aged team" ever entered a World Series.

Durocher's choice of Koslo caused only mild eye-brow raising although the little left-hander had won only 10 games while losing nine during the National League.

Durocher, in fact, had told a few reporters even before yesterday's game that Koslo would be his opening day World Series pitcher if he won the pennant.

Koslo's low-breaking curve-ball stuff—on the same order as the equipment used by such as Bobby Shantz and Bob Cain, who gave the Yankees considerable trouble during the regular American League season—was considered a reasonable bet to fool the Yankees by a surprising number of experts.

Reynolds, who beat Brooklyn's Don Newcombe, 1-0, in the opener of the 1949 series, was Stengel's logical choice. The Yankees' most valuable pitcher all season, he showed a record of 17 victories and eight defeats. But sprinkled among his victories were seven shutouts, including no-hitters against the Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

A crowd of almost 70,000 was expected to jam Yankee Stadium. The series was to be viewed by an unseen audience of millions on a coast-to-coast television network.

The Yankees undeniably carried the edge of almost a full week of rest into the $5,000-a-man series. They clinched the American League pennant last Friday and will enter the series in perfect physical condition.

Reynolds, who has been rested since Friday, when he pitched his second no-hitter against the Red Sox, and the other Yankee probable starters Vic Raschi and Ed Lopat will have even more rest when they draw their starting assignments.

On the other hand, the Giants will be gambling with tired pitchers in at least the first three games and will be without the services of regular right fielder Don Mueller today and probably tomorrow.

Mueller suffered a severe sprain of his left ankle sliding into third base in that hectic four-run ninth inning rally yesterday and is definitely out of today's game.

Durocher announced that stocky, smiling Henry Thompson would replace Mueller in right field if the Yankees start Reynolds, as expected. He said Clint Hartung, one-time "Hondo Hurricane" and now virtually a forgotten man, would get the call in the unlikely event that Stengel suddenly switched to a left-hander today.

Durocher admitted a tremendous factor in his decision to put either Thompson or Hartung in the outfield, was his unwillingness to take Bobby Thomson, home-run hero of yesterday's pulse-stopper, off third-base.

The Giants began their inexorable march toward the National League flag on Aug. 11—the day Durocher, desperate because Thomson could not seem to make good as an outfielder, inserted him at third base.

On that day the Giants trailed the Dodgers by 13 1/2 games. But with the insertion of Thomson at third, they caught fire and came careening down the stretch to win 37 of their last 44 games and tie the Dodgers for the pennant.

Thomson smashed a two-run homer off Ralph Branca in the Giants' 3-1 victory in the playoff series opener and yesterday struck the blow heard 'round the baseball world—the three-run ninth inning homer, also off Branca, which crowned the Giants' unbelievable streak with success.

Dodger Manager Charley Dressen still was under fire for that ninth-inning maneuver. The experts argued that he should not have removed Newcombe, he should have brought in Clem Labine—or Carl Erskine—or anybody but Branca.

It was still uncertain whether yesterday's loss had cost Dressen his job.

Today's series meeting was the beginning of the sixth between the Giants and Yankees. The Yankees have won the last three, in 1923, 1936, and 1937 while the Giants won in both 1921 and 1922.

That 1937 series was the last the Giants played in and they bowed, ingloriously, four games to one.

But, perhaps, that was before the age of miracles.

Leo Durocher Promises Impossible

NEW YORK (UP)—Having done the difficult, Leo Durocher promised to attempt the impossible today.

"The Yankees never lose, do they?" cackled the delirious Durocher, after his Giants had just won the National League pennant, "but there can always be a first time."

Brooklyn was behind him now, all that was left in a baseball sense were the all-conquering Yankees.

"You gotta work real hard to beat 'em," Durocher said, referring to the American League winners, "and we're sure gonna work real hard. We beat a good club and we hope we can carry on for National League fans in the World Series."

In another part of the Giants' clubhouse, it was pure, unadulterated bedlam as triumphant players pounded, clouted and kissed each other, owner Horace Stoneham poured champagne and Bobby Thomson, the man-of-the-hour, stumbled about in a home run daze.

"It was a bad pitch," Thomson shouted above the din, describing Ralph Branca's ninth-inning offering that he had wallowed for a three-run homer. "The pitch was high, inside... oh, hell, who cares where it was... we won, that's all let 'er rip!"

And rip they did, those exhilarated, ecstatic Giants who, for at least an hour and a half following their fabulous finish, rejoiced in a world apart from mere mortals.

here in the clubhouse. He never gave up. None of us did."

It was a gentle kind of fib but no one seemed to mind much. This was one time the Giants could do no wrong.

"I never gave up hope," said Sal Maglie, "even after they knocked me out and went ahead 4-1 in the eighth. Stoneham sat with me

The team received good news Tuesday with the return of Dick Matthews and Andy Warren, who were injured in practice two weeks ago. Although they played last week against Ayden, they were not at full strength.

Guard Curtis Roberson and half-back Billy Warren have looked good in practice and are being counted upon by Coach Lee to see plenty of action Friday afternoon.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 18

The man came into the inner office as though he had been urged along by a heavy push from the rear. He was also staggering. But it looked like he was going to recover quickly from the blow.

That's what worried Johnny. Johnny came out from behind the desk and went across the room before the man had taken five steps. His left hand shot out and grasped the fellow's raincoat.

Johnny's fist took part of the shirt, necktie and collar with it. His left arm came back like the two sides of a triangle, folding up to form almost a straight line. His right arm did just the reverse; it opened up.

It was a smooth, fast, powerful movement. His right fist smashed against the man's jaw and part of the lower cheek. Since the man was taller than Johnny, angle of the blow was just about right. The man's head snapped up and back.

Nancy, standing dazed in the doorway, the wine bottle hanging in her right hand, gave a little cry. The bottle had not broken. The stranger became unconscious and started to fall.

Johnny caught the tall, lean figure and deftly dropped it into an armchair as it fell toward him. The man's feet sprang on the rug; his head lolled to one side against a wide arm of the leather chair. He seemed to be breathing all right.

Johnny looked at Nancy and said, "Thanks, pet. I think he was going to shoot me." He bent down, scooped up the revolver and dropped it into his pocket. The expression on his face might be described as sultry. Odd lights danced in his eyes.

"Do you think—" Nancy still looked worried—"I fractured his skull?" Johnny shook his head. "What if you did? He might have killed me." "Good heavens!" she kept staring at the unconscious figure. "But why? Who is he?"

"I've never seen him before." A harsh frown on his face, Johnny started searching the unconscious man's pockets. Strangely, the man carried little of anything with him. Usually you found such items as letters, receipts, identification cards, keys, a watch. After some effort in shifting the limp figure around in the chair, Johnny came up with only some loose change, cigarettes, a pad of matches and a wallet.

Even the billfold had been stripped of everything except about twenty dollars in currency. Replacing the articles, Johnny examined the clothing and discovered that every label had been carefully removed.

He said to Nancy, "He must be pretty hot. He's not carrying a solitary thing that tells who he is or where he's from."

Johnny thoughtfully rubbed his jaw. It was quite possible this was the man who had taken his name off the telephone scratch pad at Jeannette's apartment. Maybe he was the murderer. Yet Johnny's experience told him it never paid to jump to the obvious conclusions.

Johnny said abruptly, "Get me the Cincinnati Inquirer, pet. Moe's up there. He's checking on something for me. I want to see what he's found out."

With a worried glance at the unconscious man, Nancy hurried out to the switchboard. A moment later Johnny was connected with the newspaper.

"Give me the morgue," he said. Then, to the man who answered, "Is Mr. Martin there? He was looking up something in the old news."

"He left about half an hour ago,"

Johnny murmured "Thanks" and hung up. He wondered what was keeping his partner. It was less than ten minutes' walk from the newspaper building on Vine Street to this building.

He was anxious to know if Moe Martin had located a photograph of the man sentenced to the penitentiary ten years ago. If so, would it be a likeness of this fellow here? Then the whole thing would tie in with Jeannette, because of those old love letters.

Nancy had come back into the room. Johnny said, "Moe ought to be back any minute. He might have some information for me that will tell who this guy is." He did not want to tell her the man was possibly an escaped convict. "While we're waiting, how about those sandwiches?"

Nancy looked carefully at the man in the chair. "Is it all right?"

Johnny grinned, took the revolver out of his pocket and placed it within easy reach on the desk. "Let's eat," he said. "I'm starved."

"Aren't you afraid of him, Johnny?"

"Not when I have his gun." He had noted that the weapon was loaded with shells.

He was on the second sandwich talking to Nancy. From time to time, every few moments, in fact, Nancy's gaze went to the slumped figure. Johnny saw this and said, "Don't worry, he'll stir around a bit before he wakes up completely."

But the man did not do this. Some inner sense brought him back to consciousness like an animal awakening from sleep. He made no movement but merely lay there in the slumped position for some time, orienting himself, listening to the woman and investigator talking. After a while he opened his eyes and watched them. Each time the girl turned her head his way he snapped his eyes closed again.

Once Nancy turned her head with a sudden, swift motion, right in the midst of saying something to Johnny. She caught the man with his eyes centered upon Johnny.

Saxon. Nancy gave a fearful cry. to the outer office. He yanked the door open, the man been standing there waiting for the man, for Johnny heard the door shut behind him as he dashed out of the room.

Thus Johnny was forced to draw up short in his plunge across the room. Before he had jerked the door to the outer office. He yanked the door open, the man been standing there waiting for the man, for Johnny heard the door shut behind him as he dashed out of the room.

An amazing thing happened as Johnny Saxon reached the outer corridor. The elevator must have been standing there waiting for the man, for Johnny heard the door shut behind him as he dashed out of the room.

National Library Day Is Observed Over U.S.

Today, October 4, is National Library Day and commemorates the 75th anniversary of the American Library Association, which was organized in Philadelphia in 1876 for promoting library interests in the country.

Today there are over 20,000 members of the American Library Association, of which the Sheppard Memorial Library is a member. The aim of the association is to develop and maintain standards of library work.

In North Carolina and in Pitt County, library service has developed in the past 10 years. In 1941 only 57 percent of the total population had access to library service and today 95 percent of the population has library service. Also in 1941 there were only 28 county libraries and now there are 95. Ten years ago only 12 counties had bookmobile service and now there are 90 counties which have this service.

In Pitt County the library service has grown. In 1941 the Sheppard Memorial Library had a total of 8,812 volumes on its shelves and today there are 39,408. Ten years ago the people of the county read 74,387 books and this year the total number of books read was 129,251. This year 56,251 books were read by children in the county and the books read were designed for children with illustrations, and large, clear type. Also 97 children participated in the Vacation Reading Program this past summer.

The State Aid Program, administered by the Library Commission, makes available funds to supplement the local appropriations of the library to help expand and improve its services to the community.

A service which has been developed recently is a state-wide in-library loan plan. Through this plan, various libraries build up collections of books and other materials on special subjects. To date, there are collections on textiles, art, gardening and horticulture, architecture, citizenship and government, the family and the home and books by and about the Negro. Mimeographed lists of the books in the collections are being sent to every library in the state. Through this service, any library in the state may borrow a book from a library which has the collection on their shelves.

The North Carolina Library Commission also provides advice and assistance for libraries in the state. Trained personnel from the commission is available to libraries for visits and consultation.

Judge Whedbee Has New Role As Teacher

Judge Charles H. Whedbee of Greenville Police Court today taught Dr. L. R. Browning's business standards class at East Carolina College.

Forty students—men and women—compose the class. The students wanted to know something about how the state courts are operated, particularly the Greenville Police Court.

Six GHS Pupils To Attend Meet

Six Greenville High School students will attend the state meeting of the North Carolina Press Institute at Chapel Hill Friday and Saturday.

Martha Hadley of Greenville will act as secretary of the institute and will introduce the speaker, Caroline Goldberg Hollywood correspondent for North Carolina newspapers, at the banquet Saturday evening.

Heleen Stokes, Sudie May Spain, editors of high school newspaper, "Green Lights", Faye Sermons, Shariene Howard, co-editors of the annual "Tau", and Curtis Henderson, business manager of the annual will attend the institute. Frank Toothman, faculty advisor, will also go with the group.

Saturday morning Dave Whitchard, managing editor of the Reflector, will discuss "How to Make Your Editorials Effective" at the institute.

The institute is sponsored by the School of Journalism, the Extension Division, and the Daily Tar Heel. It is held every year to give high school students a chance to improve the quality of their publications.

Thomas L. Robinson, publisher of the Charlotte News, will deliver the opening address Friday night on "The Responsibility of a Newspaper to Its Community". Several hundred high school editors are expected to attend the two-day session of the institute.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. David Braxton

Mrs. Ida Garris Braxton, 42, died at 12 o'clock Wednesday morning at Norfolk General Hospital after several months of illness. Funeral services were conducted at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Thursday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. C. L. Patrick, Free Will Baptist minister of Grifton, and burial was in the Garris family cemetery near Ayden.

Mrs. Braxton, daughter of Asa J. Garris and the late Cora Turnage Garris, was born and reared in the Ayden community. She was married to David Braxton in 1930. In 1936, she moved to Norfolk, Va. and had made her home there since that time. She was a member of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden and the Harbor Rebecca Lodge 37 of Norfolk.

Surviving are a son, David Braxton Jr. of near Ayden; her father; six brothers, Heber Garris of Vanceboro, Allen B. Garris of Culpeper, Va., Robert Lee Garris of Ayden, Walter Bruce Garris of Norfolk, Eugene Garris of Norfolk, and Jonas E. Garris of Charlottesville, Va.; four sisters, Mrs. Frank Bridges of Wilson, Mrs. James Stynes of Plymouth, Mrs. Winfred Bogey of Stokesboro, and Mrs. Cora Cuthrell of Enfield; and two grandchildren.

A Two-Way . . .

(Continued from Page One) States placed before the United Nations a plan for controlling atomic weapons and for a system of international inspection which would make certain that each nation lived up to its promises. The Russians sabotaged that plan because they don't want an international commission inspecting anything inside their own nation.

There have been some "educated guesses" on what Russia has in the way of atomic bombs. They usually come out around 50 and the assumption is that they are of the same general type as the bombs that were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Such bombs are obsolete under America's atomic program and the guess is that the latest explosion in Russia was touched off to test a new-type bomb. But there is quiet confidence among American officials well informed on atomic energy that no matter what the Russians have now they are still behind the United States in the life-and-death race.

Two Big News . . .

(Continued from Page One) One of them did a fast job. They were all laughing. That was a strange reaction to the Russian bomb. After all, it was the Russians who had exploded the bomb. I said "What . . . ?" One of the operators said "The Giants just won the pennant with a homer in the ninth."

So that was it. They had been watching the play-by-play description of the Giants-Dodgers game coming in on one of the wires from New York.

Maybe in the end that atomic explosion in Russia will prove to have been the most important news that moved all day yesterday. But yesterday to the most people it was a ball game, not a bomb.

In presenting it Chambers pointed out that the exhibit had attracted so much attention from the Fair patrons for its theme that he wanted to offer a duplicate award for it. Mrs. Charles Davenport, chairman of the club's Fair committee, accepted the prize.

Where Death On Highway Struck In Pitt

The numbers on the county map shown above tell the story of death on Pitt's highways for the first nine months of the year. Thus far, a total of eight persons have lost their lives in highway mishaps over the county while 103 persons suffered injuries.

County Has Eight Highway Deaths, Peak Not Reached

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

To date in 1951, eight persons have met violent death on Pitt County highways and an overwhelming total of $124,000 in damages resulted from this slaughter on the roads.

During the past nine months, the State Highway Patrol investigated a total of 274 accidents.

It is well known that there have been many other wrecks occurring in the county which have not been reported, though. It is estimated that over 95 per cent of all accidents occurring in the county are reported. A State law requires the reporting of any accident in which there is personal injury or property damage over $25.00.

The figure 274, does not include the accidents which the officers investigated but found to be below the $25 mark and thus no report was made.

In addition to the eight persons fatally injured in automobile accidents in the county this year, 103 persons suffered injuries, sufficient to require medical treatment.

This figure does not include the scores of persons who received only bruises and minor cuts, treated by first aid and sent home.

August, and the past month of September, were leaders for accidents with 33 accidents each. Each month also had two persons fatally injured.

The accident toll to date is regarded as large by the law enforcement officers, due to the fact that the time of the year termed the worst for accidents is yet ahead.

Records have shown that from September until the first months of the next year are always the worst months for accidents.

Leading cause found by investigating officers at the scenes of the county wrecks has been that of careless and reckless driving. Following a close second, is driving drunk.

One clear indication of the reckless driving is the fact that 12 single car accidents were reported in Pitt County last month. Of this number the two persons killed in the month were occupants in one vehicle.

So far this year, one person has been killed near Ayden; one at Pactolus; one at Fountain; two at Bethel and three near Farmville.

Of all the fatal accidents in the county so far this year, all but two involved single car accidents. Of the other two, one involved a child being run over by a motor vehicle while the other fatal accident involved a parked car near Pactolus.

In addition to the eight killed in automobile accidents; two young children have been killed in the county, but did not come under the classification of highway deaths, though one occurred on the highway.

A four-year-old boy was fatally injured when he fell from a tractor drawn wagon, while the second, a baby of 18 months was struck by a automobile while playing in its yard.

In view of the fact that the worst time for accidents is yet ahead, the Highway Patrol in the county has urged every driver to use extra caution in driving and to watch the other driver as much as he does his own driving.

Also to the farmers in the county goes the warning to keep the livestock locked up. Many accidents this year and in the past years have been caused directly by stray livestock roaming along the highways, causing motorists either to hit them or take the chance of leaving the highway to avoid them.

In the past year, several persons have been fatally injured as the result of collisions with animals on the highway. This year, a number of persons have been injured in accidents with animals.

Then with the schools filling the highways with school buses and children, motorists are cautioned to watch for school children and to observe the road rules about passing school buses unloading and discharging passengers, as well as any other rules.

A grand total of 18 persons lost their lives on the county highways last year.

The 3,000,000 frozen food storage units now in American homes have created a growing service activity in the custom processing of locally produced meats and poultry for frozen storage at home.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. Richard David

Mrs. Edythe Odess David, 52, wife of Richard David, died at her home in Vanceboro Thursday morning at 12:30 o'clock. She had been in declining health for the past year and critical services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home Saturday morning at 11 o'clock by the Rev. Sidney Matthews, Episcopal minister of Washington. The body will be placed in the family crypt in the Guilford Memorial Mausoleum in Greensboro, N.C.

Mrs. David, daughter of the late C. C. and Anna Chandler Colclough of Durham, N.C., was born in Wake County and was reared in Durham. She was loved and respected and well known throughout Eastern North Carolina. She was educated in the Durham Public Schools and later attended the Fayetteville Conservatory of Music, completing her education at Appalachian State Teachers College. She came to Eastern North Carolina and taught in the public schools. She was married to Richard David in New Bern in 1922, and later moved to Vanceboro. Until her illness she took an active part in managing her husband's mercantile business and was active in the religious, civic, and social life of the community.
