New 'Furore' On Secrecy In Offing

Truman Defense Of Secret Information Executive Order Draws Biting Criticism; Statements 'Clarified' By Secretary, But Raise New Questions For Press

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Reporter WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman's defense of his secret information executive order was certain today to kick off another congressional furor.

Sen. John W. Bricker (R-O) already has described the order as being a "disturbing iron curtain" around government agencies, and Mr. Truman's news conference remarks on censorship yesterday apparently would not satisfy him, for one.

Mr. Truman said yesterday that "95 per cent of our secret information has been revealed in newspapers and slick magazines, and that is what I am trying to stop."

His remarks in a prepared statement and in a give-and-take with newsmen produced conflicts in the minds of newsmen about the security program.

Joseph Short, the President's press secretary, held an unusual 45-minute meeting late yesterday—hours after the news conference—with all information officers of the departments and agencies.

He said that they were told to avoid classifying any information not actually involved in national security.

Short said he stressed the necessity of "keeping information that does not involve the security of the United States out of classified categories."

"I found that the information officers already are on the ball," Short said, "and that they understand that this order and the regulations are not to be used for any other purpose than to protect the real secrets of the United States."

This is part of our campaign to create an atmosphere under which there will be no suppression of news other than that of a vital security nature as a result of this order.

A conflict stemmed from the President's statement that when a newspaper gets information from the Defense department, the real responsibility for maintaining security rests on the publisher rather than the originating agency. This led to a hailstorm of questions about voluntary censorship which the President said he was not advocating.

Later the White House sought to clear up this point by saying that it was proper and safe to publish information obtained from "responsible officials qualified to judge the relationship of such information to the national security."

Pollsters Claim Churchill Party Probable Winner

LONDON (UP)—Public opinion polls indicated today that Winston Churchill's Conservatives should win the Oct. 25 general election with a majority of perhaps 75 to 100 seats in the House of Commons.

All signs point to a close fight, however, and the picture might change in the next few weeks.

King George VI, still recovering from a serious lung operation, held a bedside privy council at Buckingham Palace this morning. He signed a proclamation dissolving Parliament in preparation for the election.

Good And Bad News

Bad News Of Week Outweighs Good News In Russian Atomic Bomb Explosion, Red Offensive In Indochina And Growing Doubts Over Possible Cease Fire

By HARRY FERGUSON

Balance sheet for the week between good news and bad in the hot and cold wars:

GOOD NEWS: 1. The United Nations army punched out substantial gains in Korea and demonstrated to the enemy that it still can control the battlefield whenever it wants to.

2. A breathing spell was won in the Iranian crisis when the British decided to withdraw some 300 oil technicians from the refinery city of Abadan.

3. Authorities in the Allied part of Berlin stood firm in the face of attempts by the Eastern Bloc Communists to intimidate them.

4. The Communists rejected the U.N. proposal to move the truce talks away from Kaesong and prospect for a resumption of cease-fire negotiations.

Board Comes To Two Conclusions On Mr. Termite

Aldermen Hear Verbal Treatise On Pest In Considering Extermination

By JOHN D. SPINKS Reflector City Editor

After a verbal treatise on the workings of the termite last night, the Board of Aldermen came up with two conclusions:

1. He's not to be lived with.

2. And you've got to get down to earth to exterminate him.

He's a pesky fellow the termite, cunning, clannish, resourceful and has a special affinity for the woodwork in municipal buildings.

The bug or worm—actually he's a white ant—that people call termite must be reckoned with on his own grounds, the man said. One has to go to the root of the problem, so to speak, working from the ground up.

However, he recalled one time that he exterminated termites from the fourth floor of a building with nary a trace of how they got up that high.

That was the suburban variety which is particularly common in California but had somehow migrated to North Carolina—four stories up.

Then there's the dry wood variety which had been linked for the Baptists in a small North Carolina town, he said. Pretty near he ate away the foundations before he could be run out of church.

And that he was no respecter of creeds was proven when it was found that he had taken up digging with the Presbyterians close by after the Baptists finished with him.

He put the clincher on his argument with a story about a large concern which had constructed a fireproof vault in which the year's sales records were kept.

Just to make doubly sure of their safekeeping, they were installed in a metal filing cabinet, also.

What happened? As might have been expected the termites had eaten their way through a crack in the cabinet drawer, and were well on their way toward complete destruction of the records by May 6, making it impossible for the company to close out the fiscal year.

Get rid of the termites, he said, and the fiscal year will take care of itself.

Death Benefits Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House and Senate passed and sent to the White House yesterday a bill setting up a $5,000,000 fund to pay death gratuities to beneficiaries of some 12,000 servicemen who died on active duty.

Congress recently approved a new free $10,000 insurance program for servicemen, but payments have been held up by a lack of funds because a general appropriations bill still is pending in Congress.

Township Drags In '51 Campaign

Only One-Third Of Farm Bureau Quota Met By Greenville

As far as the Farm Bureau membership drive in the county is concerned, Greenville Township has been described as "the rotten core of a good apple."

Reason for the statement is Greenville's lack of progress in signing its quota of members to the Bureau. To date the township workers have written only 33 per cent of their quota: 137 $4 memberships out of a goal of 565.

The statement was made by workers in other townships who have either reached and surpassed their quota or are much closer to it than is Greenville. They were of the opinion that there is an apparent lack of interest throughout the township in helping the county reach its goal.

Although the money for only 191 memberships has been turned in to the treasurer, it is believed by Hugh

Freighter Breaks Up Into Halves, Sinks Off Coast

ELIZABETH CITY (AP)—The freighter Southern Isles broke into halves and sank early today. It carried a crew of 24 men. Hours afterward the Coast Guard reported seven men rescued and five bodies sighted.

Coast Guard headquarters here said the steamship Charlotte Lykes radiated that she had rescued seven of the Southern Isles' 24-member crew and had sighted the five bodies.

The Southern Isles broke into pieces about 200 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N. C. The Charlotte Lykes, about one hour's steaming time from the stricken ship, rushed to the scene and put out life boats for searches. One of the rescued men had a broken leg.

The Coast Guard cutter Cherokee was dispatched from Norfolk, Va., early this morning was expected to reach the area late this afternoon.

Two Coast Guard PBM Martin Mariners, which took off from Jacksonville, Fla., were due over the area in late morning. Each carried life rafts, signaling kits and sustenance kits, containing exposure suits, food and water, sufficient for 50 adults.

Two American freighters were hurrying to the scene. They were the S. S. Warrior and the S. S. Forence Luckenbach.

The cause of the Southern Isles' break-up about 5 a. m. (EST) was not immediately known. She was traveling rough waters, a residue of a hurricane which blew along this coast only yesterday.

Many Entries In Horse Show Here October 14

Plans for the Junior Chamber of Commerce horse show to be held in Greenville October 14 were discussed in detail last night at the meeting of the Jaycees.

The entry committee reported a large number of show horses from this section of North Carolina and parts of Virginia already have been entered in the event, and many more entries are expected before next week-end.

Six classes of show horses in addition to the pony class and the local classes are to be exhibited at Guy Smith in a number of years.

Four young ladies of Greenville have been chosen as ribbon girls for the horse show and will present the awards to winners in the various classes. The ribbon girls

Eighth Army Drive Breaks Communist's Winter Line

Will Put In Facilities At College View Apartments Development; Agree To Pay Pension To J. O. Duval

The Board of Aldermen passed a motion last night at its meeting to put in drainage facilities at the College View Apartments development between 5th and 10th Streets which was taken into the city limits during the Springs.

Vance Harrington, owner of the development, asked the city to install drainage facilities which he estimated would cost about $1,500.00 in return for $20,000.00 worth of curbing and gutting which he will pay for.

The street committee previously turned the drainage proposal down but it was passed last night although Mayor Page declared the city was in bad shape financially for taking new developments into the city limits which require work on the streets.

C. K. Beatty, superintendent of the street department, brought up the question that the city paying for the drainage in the College View Apartments development would set a precedent for other people who said people who have the work done themselves are charged $10.00 an hour for the use of the city's motor grader.

Alderman Waldrop said since the city is getting $20,000.00 worth of curbing and gutting for $1,500.00, the city should pay for the work in the new development.

The aldermen agreed to give J. O. Duval, retired city employee who is totally disabled, 50 percent of his average monthly salary for the past five years after hearing a plea from J. G. Clark and a letter from C. W. Howard on Duval's behalf.

The city officials are allowed to do this by an enabling act of the state legislature. However, it is in the discretion of the aldermen as to which retired city employees can receive the pension, depending on their disability.

The letter written by Howard concerning aid for Duval said Duval after he reached retirement age and Howard claimed he was deserving from every standpoint.

J. Hicks Corey presented a petition to the aldermen asking that paving be done on Maple Street between 5th and 10th Streets. The petition was signed by all but two residents but they had agreed to pay for curbing and gutting.

A motion was made on Corey's request and passed that the petition be turned over to the Street Committee with the power to act.

R. B. Nelson, petitioner from Robersonville, asked the board to approve the request to the federal government that the name of N. C. Highway 11 be changed to US 13. The Pitt County commissioners approved the petition at a meeting on Tuesday.

The changing of the name of the highway would route tourist traffic from New York to Florida through Stokes into Greenville and south through Winterville, Ayden and Grifton to Kinston. Chief of Police Langston said it would cause a traffic problem here but that it

Superior Court To Open Monday

Judge Quincy Nimocks To Preside Over Second Fall Term

The second fall term of superior court for trial of criminal cases will open here Monday morning with Judge Quincy Nimocks presiding.

Scheduled for trial are 41 cases during the five days of court, all of which have either been appealed to superior court, or have been held over to it for trial. Fourteen cases will face the grand jury for hearing.

Actually the term is a mixed term for trial of both criminal and civil cases. However, in the past the preponderance of cases heard have been those of a criminal nature with only a smattering of civil issues—mostly motions and orders—to be heard.

Heading the trial calendar are 14 cases of drunk driving which have arisen since July 1950. All are up on appeals from lower court and the majority will be heard for the first time in superior court. A few others have been called for trial in previous terms but were continued.

Other cases for trial are: worthless check, four; assault with deadly weapon, three; reckless driving, three; assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, two; allowing livestock to run at large, two; non-

Confusion Multiplied

Why Newsmen Have Condemned President Truman's Recently Inspired Security Order; Yesterday's Conference Leaves The Press Still Further Up In Air

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's order to government agencies not to disclose to potential enemies information harmful to the security of the United States is hardly more than a week old. He issued it Sept. 25.

But already it is knee-deep in controversy and explanations and as time goes on it gets more tangled. For example, some of the White House explanations have had to be re-explained.

Ordinarily the Defense and State Departments are the two big agencies dealing in information which, if divulged, might help Russia and harm us. They have a security system—that is, arrangements for keeping certain information secret.

What is perhaps less generally known is that some other agencies, which might not at first glance seem to have dealings in security problems at all, have and have had for some time security programs of their own.

Two examples are the Agriculture and Commerce Departments. For instance, while the Defense Department may be working out a program for bacteriological warfare, if that becomes necessary, the Agriculture Department may have a hand in that same program in so far as farm animals are concerned.

To prevent public disclosure of information which its officials considered a matter of security, the Agriculture Department as long as 18 months ago set up a security system of its own and appointed officials to handle it.

Which means: certain information in the Agriculture Department is marked secret or confidential and is not revealed to the public. When he issued his order last week, President Truman said it provides "for the first time uniform standards for classifying and protecting security information throughout all the executive branch of that government." That means every government agency.

At the same time, he warned that his order prohibited government employees from withholding any information which was non-security. This didn't satisfy newspaper editors around the country.

Doctors speculated today on the personality changes that may have taken place while the 28-year-old Navy veteran was in the hospital.

He cut a hole in his chest and massaged his heart until Hewitt began breathing. It was believed to be the longest period in medical history that a person has been without life and then revived.

Hewitt later was transferred to the veterans hospital here. His condition remains "critical" but, as his doctor says, "He's alive, and that's very satisfactory."

One of the two doctors who performed the thoracotomy said Hewitt's brain may have been damaged in the 15 minutes it was without circulation of blood—damaged enough to change the man's entire personality.

"He may have even a complete amnesia," the doctor said. That would mean that Hewitt, even if he recovers, would not remember any of his past life. He would truly be beginning a "second life."

"As far as I know," the doctor said, "Five minutes is the maximum time the brain can survive without damage. He has not regained consciousness yet. Perhaps he never will."

In two days, the 3rd division had inflicted an estimated 1,300 casualties—300 dead, 622 wounded and 35 prisoners—on the Chinese on the newly-captured hill and two other heights.

Although blasted continuously in one of the heaviest Allied artillery bombardments of the war, most of the deep Communist mountain emplacements were still intact. One Red entrenchment, buttressed by dirt and logs, was large enough to shelter 1,000 men.

The Communists were believed to have taken up new positions farther north guarding the low-lying plains below Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

Eleven B-29 Superfortresses thundered out ahead of the U.N. ground forces and blasted the center of Pyongyang. They dumped 130 tons of bombs on the 1,200-foot steel railway bridge across the Taedong river, which bisects the Red capital.

The Superfortresses reported only "meager" anti-aircraft fire and no fighter opposition. All returned safely to base.

At the same time, American jet fighters shot down one Soviet-built MIG-15 jet and damaged another in two battles over northwest Korea. A total of 134 planes took part in the two dogfights. In one, the U. S. jets were outnumbered nearly three to one.

All U.N. jets returned safely to base.

The sudden Communist withdrawal on the western and west-central fronts came as a surprise. The Reds had stalled the U.N. offensive Thursday night and early Friday with their stiffest resistance of the war and vicious counter-attacks.

Resistance melted soon after dawn, however. From all along the offensive front came reports of non-existent to only moderate opposition.

Mrs. M.P. Hoot Hostess To Inter Se Club

On Wednesday Mrs. M. P. Hoot was a charming hostess to the Inter Se Book Club for the first meeting of the year, at a luncheon at "Hoot Haven," her summer home at Island View Shores on the Pamlico.

After a walk on the beach, the members of the club and special guests, Mrs. Leighton Blount, Mrs. John Messick, Mrs. J. H. Waldrop and Mrs. Marvin K. Blount were served a two-course luncheon by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Wm. H. Taft and Mrs. David Evans. The table was covered with an eye-catching arrangement of autumnal colored vegetables in a polished wooden bowl. Food was served from large hammered aluminum Lazy Susan and platters. Tables were set on the large screened-in porch, and were centered with brass baskets filled with long-leaf pine.

Everyone gathered together in the living-room, after lunch, and amid the atmosphere of a log-burning fire, Mrs. Hoot presented the program for the afternoon, which was the presentation of the new books for the year. Following her interesting and thought-provoking comments on each of the books, much enthusiasm was expressed by the members present as to their anticipation of an enjoyable year of good reading. In the absence of the president, Mrs. David Evans presided at a short business session.

Churches of Christ, Scientists
"Unreality" is the topic of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches next Sunday.

The Golden Text is from Proverbs 10:22 "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it."

Passages from the Bible include: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science reveals the possibility of achieving all good, and sets mortals at work to discover what God has already done; but distrust of one's ability to gain the goodness desired and to bring out better and higher results, often hampers the trial of one's wings and ensures failure at the outset." (p. 260)

Thalian Club Meets With Mrs. Aycock

The Thalian Book Club held its first meeting of the 1951-1952 club year at the home of Mrs. E. B. Aycock on Tuesday at one o'clock.

Lovely fall flowers were used as a centerpiece for the dining room table and throughout the house. The hostess served a delicious two course luncheon.

After lunch the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. L. S. Picklen. She welcomed two new members, Mrs. J. E. Nobles Jr. and Mrs. R. P. Badham.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Aycock, who introduced Mr. George Lauires, speaker for the afternoon.

Mr. Lauires spoke on Precious Stones, and he gave a most interesting program. He stated that there were three different types of gemstones, synthetic and genuine. The synthetic gems have all the properties of the genuine stones and are sometimes more beautiful. Most true stones have flaws. Their value is in their color, not their flawlessness, he said. He showed many beautiful gems of all three types as he illustrated his talk.

Mrs. P. H. Sugg, librarian, distributed the new books for the year, and there being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Christian Church Announcements
In cooperation with the Christian people of every denomination upon this planet the Eighth Street Christian Church will observe World-Wide Communion Sunday on this first Sunday in October. Every member of the church has been urged to make this service one of rededication and consecration.

The classes and departments will meet at 9:45 as usual, will register their attendance and receive the offerings, and then at 10:10 every class and department will assemble in the church sanctuary for the Rally Day program. James L. Harris, Jr. is superintendent of the school and will be in charge of the program at that time.

The Chi-Rho fellowship, intermediates, will meet at the church Sunday afternoon at 5, and the Christian Youth Fellowship will meet at 6:30.

The month of October has been set aside as "Loyalty Month" at the Christian Church in which every member is given the opportunity to express in attendance and support his loyalty to the church.

Series Of Parties Honor Smith-Worthington Party

Prior to her wedding on Saturday, September 22, Miss Sue Worthington and her fiancé were entertained extensively. Among the number of pre-nuptial courtesies were a shower party, a cake-cutting and a luncheon.

Mrs. Harris Entertains
Mrs. C. C. Harris at Ballard's Community entertained on Friday, September 14, at 8 p. m. at her home in honor of Miss Sue Worthington, who was married to Robert Smith on September 22.

The party was a miscellaneous shower.

Miss Worthington was presented a lovely white corsage of chrysanthemums by the hostess on arrival. The guests were greeted at the door by the hostess and honor guest, Miss Worthington introduced her mother, Mrs. Chester Worthington, and also the mother of her fiancé, Mrs. W. H. Smith of Greenville.

Mrs. Eli Bloom and Miss Joanne Bloom invited the guests into the spacious living room. The four guests who were receiving wore lovely corsages of pink carnations.

Mrs. Bloom and Miss Bloom entertained the guests with a musical program, which was opened with a dedication to Miss Worthington. The dedication was the song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Five ladies were asked to participate in a contest called "Stop The Music." Ten selections were played by Mrs. Bloom with Miss Bloom singing, and the music was stopped for the contestants to guess the selection. Mrs. Tarnage was the winner and received a bottle of cologne.

Following the contests, Mrs. Bloom and daughter sang a duet and several other selections were rendered before the musical program was concluded with the group singing "When I Grow Too Old To Dream."

The guest of honor was presented a large basket, decorated in white, that was loaded with an assortment of gifts. The beautifully wrapped gifts were opened by Miss Worthington with many compliments.

Then the guests were invited into the dining room for refreshments. The table was covered with a Madeira cutwork cloth. A bowl of white asters and chrysanthemums centered the table and this arrangement was flanked with green candles in crystal candelabra. Mrs. Smith served lime ice punch from a crystal punch bowl at one end of the table, while Mrs. Worthington served individual bridal loof cakes from a crystal platter at the other end. Guests served themselves to salted nuts and mints. The traditional bridal colors of green and white were used in the refreshments and decorations throughout the house.

As the guests departed they were asked to register in the bride's book by Mrs. Jack Kite of Greenville, sister of the bride-elect. The bride's book was a gift from the hostess to Miss Worthington.

Goodbyes were said to the numerous guests by the daughter of the hostess.

C-Of-C Opens Campaign To Secure 150 Active Members

An intensive two-week campaign designed to secure 150 new active members for the Greenville Chamber began today under the direction of Membership Chairman Van C. Fleming, Jr.

Fleming said the purpose of the membership campaign is to add new members to the organization which already numbers some over 300 local business firms and professional men among its members. "We need the new members to have a budget to meet the actual demands on the Chamber of Commerce by the community since it is growing at the present rate," Fleming stated.

"We have to have some organization representative of the city to bring new people and new industry into Greenville, and give them service," the chairman continued. "The Chamber of Commerce is that organization. It is obvious that the government and large industry are diversifying and moving to the South. In time large industry is coming to Greenville, and the Chamber of Commerce must be ready to meet the challenge."

A series of cards will be mailed to prospective members of the Chamber of Commerce during the next two weeks promoting the theme, "We'll get more done if we get together." The first of the series of cards which was mailed today pointed out, "It takes concerted action to get things done in these modern times. It takes cooperation and mutual assistance... and that's where your Chamber of Commerce comes in."

"Our Chamber of Commerce receives excellent support from the business firms and professional men of the community," Chairman Fleming stated, "but we are hoping to broaden the base of our membership group and have more individuals take part in our program. Coordinating the efforts of men who have varied interests and points of view is a challenging job, but the community building achievements of the Chamber of Commerce prove that it can be done. It has demonstrated that effective teamwork in attaining sound, continuous community development requires that the whole team be in the game."

entertained for members of the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests at an attractive cake cutting at their home on East Third Street.

The guests were welcomed at the door by the hostess and host and greeted by the bride couple.

An outstanding mantel arrangement was the focal point of interest in the living room, where white flowers and fern provided an appropriate setting for the party. Silver candelabra with white tapers were at each end, and a charming arrangement of white carnations and chrysanthemums were placed between them. On a table in front of a large window was a beautiful basket of giant mums and smaller button mums.

From a well appointed table in the dining room, the guests enjoyed a dessert course. The large three tiered bride's cake was featured at one end of the table and a platter of molded ices was at the other end. The cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom and satin ribbons which were tied to the favors which were tied to the graceful streamers from the cake platter, which was encircled with ivy. An all white centerpiece lent further beauty to the table.

Mrs. W. H. Smith, mother of the groom-elect, served the cake after the bride couple cut the first slice and the favors were pulled. Mrs. Worthington served the green and white bridal loof cakes from a crystal platter at the other end.

The honoree was wearing an arm corsage of red roses, a gift from the hostess. Miss Worthington at this time presented her gifts to her attendants in her wedding, and Mr. Smith also remembered his groomsmen with personal gifts.

Wedding Luncheon
Prior to the wedding on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, parents of the groom, gave a luncheon for the members of the families and the wedding party.

The guests were greeted at the door of the Smith home by the host and hostess. The bride-elect was presented with a corsage of yellow gladioli.

Pink dahlias and assorted late summer flowers were used for decorations. A three course turkey luncheon was served to the guests seated at individual card tables which were centered with a single lighted candle.

Mrs. Smith's daughters assisted in serving.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. BOUGLAS
ONE LITTLE STEP
Recently I sat talking with an old friend about baseball heroes who had tumbled off their thrones like Rumpstiltskin falling off the wall.
There was the pitcher who won a game pitching only 72 balls across the plate, but he muffed an easy fly and lost a world series. Another famous player lost a world series because he failed to touch second base in what appeared to be a glorious pennant-winning home run. Just recently a player lost a very important series of games because he thought the game was over, when someone galloped across the home plate; whereas it would have gone on for at least one more inning, if he had put out the batter at first.
All these men were superlatives in the baseball world, but they are remembered today more for their mistakes than for their achievements. Mark Anthony, in his oration over the dead body of Caesar said, "The evil men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones."
It all adds up to the fact that a little mistake can spoil a whole lifetime of achievement. That one little mistake is like a drop of poison in a glass of water, or like the little slip which causes a workman to plunge from a great altitude to his death. So little, yet of such great consequence.

A Boy Can't Do A Man's Work

Governors of the 48 states put the egg in the right lap when they resolved that the "prime responsibility" for suppressing organized crime lies with local law enforcement officers.

The governors, wise as they are, however, overlooked one little point. You can't send a man with an air rifle to knock out a tank.

They should not have sought to absolve themselves of the responsibility of helping to crush organized crime as their resolution indicates they wish to do.

In states and localities where crime interests have gained considerable control in government from the governor right on down, the law enforcement officers can not be expected to shoulder the entire blame for letting crime syndicates run roughshod over the law. The governors in their resolution "insisted" that the responsibility for stamping out crime lies with local officers; but they never got around to censuring these of their own group who have failed to cooperate with local and federal officials who have sought to stamp out crime syndicates.

Governor Fuller Warren of Florida, one of those who most vigorously refused to give even the slightest cooperation to the Senate crime investigators, seized the opportunity at the convention to lambast the crime investigations. The other governors let him go his merry way without reprimanding him for his conduct in condoning the criminal activities in his own state.

Organized crime is an enormously large business in the United States, and it is going to take vigorously and concerted efforts by local, state and federal officers to curb its activities.

The governors are big men in their respective states, and they are going to have to shoulder a big man's portion of the burden of crushing organized crime. Their opposition to organized crime should be more vigorous than the passive resolution they passed at the convention in Gatlinburg.

Gambling With Time As The Fuse Burns

While the world hopes some quirk of fate will bring to the Communists a desire for peace and brotherhood among men, it watches the Moscow directed warlords open new fronts in efforts to enslave more people of the world and extend the iron curtain.

It severely taxes ones sense of values to decide whether the United States and the other western nations are acting wisely in leaning over backwards to avoid World War III when the Communists strike one blow after another in their "small wars" against freedom.

In Indochina Communist troops have begun a new march against French troops and innocent people. The Communist army is headed by Moscow trained Ho Chi Minh, and reports from Nationalist China say the Chinese government has completed plans to intervene in the Indochina war this fall with 80,000 men and its own general as overall commander. Meanwhile the Communist government in China will train 10 Vietminh divisions and equip them with Russian weapons.

The free people of the world know that the Communist movement, no matter where it is seen, receives its commands from Moscow. In Korea the United Nations is fighting Russia; in Indochina, the French are fighting Russia. The screen of Chinese faces far from hides the real enemy of free people. Yet in Flushing Meadow, in the halls of the majestic buildings of the United Nations representatives of the free nations, large and small, sit down and try to reason with these demagogues whose only aim is world domination and world enslavement.

The United States is reluctant to sacrifice American lives in a third World War if it can possibly be avoided, and it is reluctant to bring death and destruction to millions behind the iron curtain as long as there is a thin thread of hope for peace remaining. Our hope for peace is still alive even in the face of ever increasing odds against it. The hopes for peace find their origin in faith, rather than reason, but nevertheless the American people cling to the hopes because peace is the end we really want.

By faith rather than reason, America has come to the conclusion that time is on our side. World War III, if it came tomorrow, would be the most terrible the world has ever known. No nation could reasonably expect to escape the horrors of war. World War III, if it comes a decade from now will be more horrible comparatively speaking; but in the meantime lives may be spared, and some stroke of the Almighty in the future may spare the world from its own destruction.

To strike now at the heart of Communism would set the world aflame with a great war. To gamble with time may mean a greater price to be paid in the future than it would cost now to rid the world of oppression.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Truman trait most exasperating and frightening to Republican opponents fully confident that he will seek reelection in his politically pugilistic ability to "roll with the punch." No President since Calvin Coolidge possessed such a gift for ducking a potential haymaker, and counterattacking so swiftly as to keep his foe off balance.

His latest demonstration of this shiftness was his demand that public officials and even the heads of national committees make public the income they receive from private employment and investments.

Brushing aside revelations that White House aides have accepted deep freezers, mink coats, cameras, and the habit of Internal Revenue collectors of taking fees from firms whose income returns they supervise, Mr. Truman capitalizes on his own official family's lack of ethics.

HALO—He drapes Democratic National Chairman Boyle, who says he severed all private law connections when he assumed his present post, with a halo. At the same time he seems to strengthen the case against Republican National Chairman Gabrielson, who has admittedly carried on negotiations with the RFC as president and counsel of the Carthage Hydrocol Corporation.

Few people, of course, will know or care that Mr. Boyle draws $36,000 a year and generous expenses, while Mr. Gabrielson serves the GOP for nothing. Nor will they take the trouble to learn that Mr. Gabrielson obtained a regular business loan from the government agency before he ever dreamed of entering active politics.

INFIGHTING—The RFC incident has led White House enemies, with 1952 in view, to recall many other evidences of Mr. Truman's skill at political infighting, and to speculate on how he will employ it, if he should head the Democratic ticket next year. The speculation is timely. In view of Senator Taft's lead in the race for the GOP nomination, for the Ohio Senator has none of this deviousness and craftiness. He is a toe-to-toe slugger.

Republicans are reminded of the liberal Democrats' blatant criticism of the President before the 1948 convention. His failure to make an aggressive fight for Roosevelt reforms on Capitol Hill led the Americans for Democratic Action, which then represented the Hyde Park faction of the party, to denounce him as lacking the will or the courage to do battle. The same suspicion inclined Governor Dewey to counsel an easy-going, "Me too" kind of campaign.

REVERSE—It was, perhaps, this performance which convinced him that a consistent and standard pattern of behavior in politics is a liability rather than an asset. Whatever reason Mr. Truman may never hesitate to reverse himself, and to confound his enemies. He has been doing it ever since. For instance, he once said that Louis A. Johnson would remain as Secretary of Defense as long as he sat in the White House. But when Korean reverses accumulated, the West Virginian was fired. Even after certain Alger Hiss disclosures, Mr. Truman denounced the Congressional investigation of Communist sympathizers in the government as a "red herring." It was not long before he became a "red" hunter himself.

He branded the RFC inquiry as "asinine," and "reappointed" the five RFC members then under fire. He referred to Senator Fulbright, the investigating committee chairman, as a "man with too much education." But he accepted the Fulbright plan for a single administrator, withdrew the five names, and appointed Stuart Symington as "cleanup man."

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.
One columnist usually likes to write about another. Although Hubert Mewhinney is a long way from Greenville (Houston, Texas), but his column carries out a theme that is popular everywhere: People want to read something besides news.
Hubert calls his column "Meeting All Comers," and he has earned the reputation of being the city's know-it-all. He tells readers how to get rid of their chimney basins, how to tell a male cocklebur from a female cocklebur (a female has bars), and whether armadillos are good to eat (they are).
Hubert's readers are always trying to catch him on a fact that he doesn't know. One reader insisted that bookkeeper is the only English word with three double letters, but Hubert—has at least three more: "Poopeepee (a seaman who is peeped at from a poop deck), racoonnookeeper (the years ago there were a great many farmers who booted the idea of a gal chemist running some dirt through glass bottles and telling how much lime he needed on his land. That has changed and popularity of the service is leaping. Four times as many samples were tested last year as in 1948-49, twice as many as in 1947-48. Dr. W. L. Nelson, chief of the division, is already wondering what he will do if the geometric growth continues and there is further delay in getting the new agricultural laboratory building.

SAMPLES—The soil samples come into the laboratory in paper cartons holding about a pint. Each carton is accompanied by data identifying its source as to the section of a field, even to the quarter acre plot. The farmer keeps a copy of the data, so when the report comes back he can tell which piece of ground it covers. When these samples arrive they are given a laboratory identification which follows all through. Then the dirt is thoroughly pulverized and screened, and started through its several processes. One spoonful is tested for potassium content, one for phosphorus, one for lime and so forth. A report goes back to the farmer of the exact content of the sample, along with recommendation as to how much of this or that should be added by applied fertilizer for the particular kind of crop to be planted.
DEFICIENCY—One important finding has been that the state generally is woefully deficient in lime. The experts estimate need for a million tons a year to meet minimum requirements, much more could well be used. It was also found from analysis of the 85,000 samples last year that 84 percent of the land intended for seeding Ladino clover and grass and 56 percent was low in potash. The agronomists are quick to point out that this report does not mean that every farm needs more lime, phosphorus and potash. They are dealing with averages and percentages. It might well be that in a county generally low in potash, for instance, one field might have an excess which other elements. For that reason it is important that each plot be tested every three to five years. And that idea, incidentally, is the reason for the geometric progression in number of the samples submitted for analysis. The soil laboratory wants them, but if demand for the service continues at same rate prevailing during the past four or five years there will have to be increased facilities.
FREE?—This service is listed as free, because no charge is made. In that same sense the analyses in other departmental laboratories are free. But, as everybody has long ago discovered, nothing is "free." A popular "freedom" is not free. Someone, for chemical, for salaries of technicians, and other components of the total service rendered. The department of agriculture spends several hundred thousand dollars a year for which no direct charge for service is made. There are some services rendered by the veterinary and inspection divisions on fee basis at request of citizens, but the soil testing is nearly all the analytical laboratory work is "free."

What Other Papers Are Thinking

GIVE 'EM THE WORKS (Henderson Dispatch)
The Chinese Reds finally, as seems likely, so gum up procedure as to make cease-fire talks in Korea a failure, the Allied command ought to throw everything in the books at them. If they are determined to force military showdown, with all the risks involved, there is no alternative but to meet force with force, as Mr. Truman recently remarked in support of America's preparedness program.
That might drive Moscow into the open, as if anything more were needed in that respect, Europe already is excited over rumors that Stalin is preparing to call for another big four meeting in an effort to calm a jittery world, although if he does that, it will not be in the interest of permanent peace, but merely strategy. He is reported to be willing to call off the Korean War in return for a cessation of armament in Europe. But how can he call off the Korean conflict if, as the Kremlin all along has claimed, it had nothing to do with it? The Red dictator is about to let the cat out of the bag as to his own position, and to confit convictions most people have held already that Red China is fighting only as Stalin's stooge in pulling his chestnuts out of the fire.
Actually, the further this conflict of ideologies moves the clearer it becomes that the Russian ruling clique is the moving spirit in keeping the world in strife and discord. The Allies will be stupid indeed if they fall for this trick. If Stalin forces the off all attempts at peace, United Nations forces should go all out to give them the works. And if they walk into the trap of halting the preparedness program, here and in Europe, they will have only themselves to blame if the sky comes crashing down upon them.

Business Today

Inventors and engineers in their own way are doing as much to solve the manpower problem as all the planners in Washington.
The manpower situation, contrary to earlier prophecies, has not yet become serious. The peak of defense production, originally expected in the last quarter of this year, is now expected in the first quarter of next year and it may not come until the second. As a matter of fact, employment dropped about one million in the 30 days preceding September 8 but unemployment did not rise, largely because many student workers returned to classes. The unemployment total stood at 1,600,000, still constituting a large pool from which to draw workers. There are, however, great shortages of engineers, draftsmen and other highly skilled defense workers.
The great increase in invention and use of labor-saving machines is a critical shortage. The great rise in the use of fork-lifts in industry and transportation has saved thousands of man-hours. Monstrous machines are digging coal out of the earth and miners out of jobs. Billing and accounting departments of great stores have become largely mechanized. New electronic equipment can revolutionize industrial and commercial accounting, Joseph E. Jennings, Atomic Energy Commission consultant, told the Controllers Institute of America this week.
Automatic control instruments that almost think, and free technical manpower for other tasks were demonstrated at the Sixth National Instrument Exhibit at Houston. They are the forerunners of the nearly automatic plant, G. M. Muschamp, Brown Instruments engineer, predicted. There were 68 plants manufacturing control instruments in 1939; today there are 500, he said. Many of the instruments are an outgrowth of weapon control devices during World War II. Bridgeport Brass recently unveiled a robot pneumatic "sense" to "feel" about and read requirements for handling intra-plant communications and metallurgical samples. The machine carries messages or samples to any one of nine stations in the plant without operator or dispatcher.
Scores of other machines replacing human labor are being put into operation. A San Francisco company has introduced a machine that picks meat out of crabs. It removes about 80 percent of the shell pieces, then the meat passes under an ultraviolet light that gives the meat and the shell particles different colors so that the rest of the shell can be readily removed by hand. And in Houston, a machine has been developed to remove shells from small shrimp, eliminating from 15 to 60 hand jobs per machine, getting 5 to 10 per cent more meat than human pickers and permitting cheaper canned shrimp.
TELEVISION SHOWS USE UP STAGE SETS
Television burns up a lot of gag material. It also uses up stage sets at a terrific rate. Once a setting has been used on a network, it can rarely be used again unless it is being used in a continuity show. Some bits and pieces can be rearranged; sometimes sets can be sold to other shows. A first-class set used in a comedy show appeared in a tense drama later. Some of the viewers got the plot confused because they kept thinking of the comices in the earlier show.
Manufacturing sets has become a big business in the TV sets has become an important center and the need of fresh cost items.
A READY-MIX
Pancake Day will be celebrated next February 26.
Baking it are a dozen giant food companies, all of which have one or more products used in making pancakes or that go with them. Pancake Day has been celebrated abroad for centuries on the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday, say the promoters. They now have a battery of publicity men inventing old pancake traditions and legends. Consumption of their stories are expected to increase the consumption of pancake mixes.
FINANCIAL WORKERS REVIVE OLD TACTICS
Speaking of financial workers—the United Financial Workers union, which has been campaigning for closing the New York Stock Exchange on Saturdays, tomorrow morning will present in front of the Exchange a series of skits lampooning the bosses who make them work on Saturdays.
This is not a new idea. It was used centuries ago by the old guilds, which put on public plays to ridicule those they didn't like. If the U. F. W. succeeds in reviving the idea, picket lines in the future may take on a Thespian appearance, with strikers lampooning the boss and his
Until, of course, the time when the American Guild of Variety Artists insists that the pickets join their union.

Hal Boyle's Column

YANKEE STADIUM (AP)—I have just checked 10,000,000 American kids.
I used up a seat in a ball park that ought to have gone to one of them.
All my life I wanted to see a world series game, and now I have. And I feel just like a boy who has knocked at his girl friend's house—and found she's moved away.
Darn this world anyway. You get everything you want 25 years too late.
When I was a kid, my father, who had played a little semi-pro ball himself, was a great admirer of the New York Giants.
"Son," he used to say, "When you grow up you may take to stealing, you may break your mother's heart, and you may beat your wife in public. But promise me one thing—never sell the Giants short."
But I had a secret vice. I was a Yankee fan. And in my heart there was a shrine that said "Babe Ruth."
So when—after all these years—a friendly angel got me a ticket to the first world series game between the Giants and the Yankees, I felt like one who is surprised by an old dream come suddenly true.
This excitement lasted through the first two innings. Then I noticed that the crowd of 65,672 was making hardly much more noise than the bystanders at a chess match. Where was their enthusiasm?
"It's always like that the first day," explained the man next to me. "The stands are full of big shots who want to brag about seeing the opening game. They don't dare holler for fear of raising their blood pressure."
As the game wore on I began to feel depressed. There were some brilliant plays, and it is always satisfying to see anything done well. But it was like watching a ballet.
And then I realized why I was not having the fun I'd looked for. I didn't really care which team won, and I didn't know the names of the players.
"Those weren't the Yankees I had come to see. Somehow I guess I had subconsciously hoped that Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig would be out there, still hitting them high and far."
"Where did Ruth knock his home runs?" I asked.
"The Babe?" said my neighbor. "You never saw the Babe hit a long one? He used to drop them in the right field bleachers. And when he swung and missed—well, he still looked as good as anybody out there today."
We talked about the old Yankees then, while the Giants finished clobbering the modern Yankees, 5 to 1. And it was more fun talking than watching.
As the game ended I dropped down a dime for a hot dog.
"Whaddaya want—half a hot dog?" said the vendor.
Twenty cents for a hot dog? Baseball has changed in lots of ways. Well, anyway the mustard is still free and tastes as good as ever.
And tomorrow I'm going to buy me a record book and find out what's been going on in baseball. When the old heroes are gone, you have to find new heroes or cure up the game.

But I'll always be haunted by the ghost of the one who no longer knocks them a mile in the house that Ruth built.
Washington Letter
WASHINGTON—It took two characters. The Victorian-Gothic years just to find a proper pair of old lamp posts to do the job right, but now the Rev. William Sharp is proud and content with his little church.
A Washington landmark, St. John's Church in historic Georgetown—185 years old—has been restored to its original Georgian character. The Victorian-Gothic restyling the structure underwent in 1890 has been completely removed.
Celebrating completion of the six-year task with the rector and the congregation—which includes Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson among many distinguished Washingtonians—was Bishop Angus Dun of National Cathedral.
Church architect Milton Grigg of Charlottesville, Va., who directed the restoration, found the two lamp posts from a back street in Baltimore.
Restoration of the Episcopal church, the Rev. Mr. Sharp points out, is an important phase of the general program of restoration in the old and exclusive Georgetown district of the capital, being restored to their original Georgian charm.
"What is happening in Georgetown," Mr. Sharp told me, "in some ways is more significant than the restoration of Williamsburg, for there is no outside individuality. It is the work of individuality, a whole community, changing, redeeming, revivifying, getting back to the atmosphere of the founding fathers."
The history of the little church goes back to 1794, when the Rev. Walter D. Addison scattered his inherited wealth among relatives in Maryland and came to preach to a few families in the prosperous port of Georgetown.
Much of the town stood on land granted by Lord Baltimore in 1788 to explorer Col. Nimrod Beall, some of whose descendants are now members of Old St. John's.
Mr. Addison was determined to have his own church, and Capitol architect Dr. William Thornton drew the plans. There were delays, but the subscription finally was renewed with a donation from Thomas Jefferson. In 1804 the congregation finally moved into the church, but Mr. Addison returned to Maryland to battle "the flood tide of sin."
Mr. Sharp recalled, John J. Sayre was first rector. Early in Washington society rolled up in glittering four-horse carriages. Created coaches of foreign diplomats died to the door.
John Sayre wedded, and a vestryman Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," wrote a memorial. Mr. Addison returned to serve until he became blind in 1831.

Crippled Bucs Play Elon In Homecoming Game Saturday

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

Bill Kittrell is feeling mighty low these days. Yesterday he could count no less than six boys on his Greenville Phantom squad that would either miss a large part or all of tonight's game with Camp Lejeune.

Perhaps the biggest injury of them all is the one suffered by Sonny Scott, the 132 pound quarterback. Scott banged up his knee in Tuesday's practice and will be out for the greater part of the year.

Before this season's schedule was attacked by the Phantoms, Dole has said that much of the Greenville success this year would depend on what Scott did. This put a lot of pressure on the boy, playing football for the first time with the Varsity, but he came through like a veteran in the first three games and showed promise of living up to Kittrell's expectations.

Now that Scott is out, Kittrell will have to shift Sid Briley back into the quarterback slot. Briley has seen most of his action from fullback, but he has worked at quarter in one game this year and did well. Doug Morgan will take his place at fullback.

complaints of various injuries but only end Vernon Wingate is the only one of the group that is expected to sit out tonight's game. Bob Tindal, Wallace Conway, and Bobby Conway will all dress but are expected to see limited action.

Kittrell will use a modification of the two platoon system tonight against the Devil Pups. "There aren't enough boys to let some plays most of the game and get tired. We just don't have the substitutes. I've got to do something to give the boys a little rest now and then and the two-platoon system might work," Kittrell is quoted as saying.

The Phantoms' opposition tonight has won three games and tied one for the season. They've got a good line and in Mike Glover have a tailback that is supposedly on a par with any other back in this class of football.

Game time is 8:00 o'clock tonight in East Carolina's stadium. Ellard Yarborough, the mainstay of the East Carolina backfield before he was hurt last Saturday, is evidently determined to play some more football this year.

Revised Line-Up Set To Start In Contest

By JIMMY ELLIS

Reflector Sports Writer Coach Bill Dole closed out heavy drills yesterday afternoon for his East Carolina College Pirates as the team continued to prep for Elon College and its Homecoming game tomorrow night. The game will start at 7:30 in College Stadium.

Most of the work in drills this week has gone toward finding suitable backfield replacements for the injured Pirate ball carriers. There still remained the possibility that Halfback Jack Britt would join a couple of others on the sidelines for at least a part of the game tomorrow.

Britt sprained his ankle last week against the Naval Air Station. He has been running in practice this week but the ankle still seems to be stiff and Britt might see only limited action.

Ellard Yarborough, fast-stepping halfback, and Mike Kovack, the fullback who ran well two weeks ago, are out of the game for sure.

Yarborough, who injured his knee, was up and around yesterday — without crutches. He walks without very much of a limp and if the injury heals properly, he might be able to see some action in the last few games.

Kovack's knee is swollen and it's almost a cinch that he will have to see the game from the bench tomorrow.

John Daughy, the first team offensive fullback in the first couple of games, will resume his place at fullback tomorrow night and might possibly give double-duty action. He plays defensive left halfback.

At the halfback spots, Dole has been experimenting right and left in an attempt to get some speed and strength there. Jack Benzie, the Portsmouth junior, has been running well in practice this week and might get the starting nod from kind of football, slowly building up to the Kinston game.

Dole at one of the positions.

Paul Gay, a freshman from Wilson who runs hard and gives the game all he has, might get the nod at the other halfback although he has been bothered somewhat by a slightly stiff ankle. Gay has seen only limited action thus far this year but he has looked good in the few times he has carried the ball.

Other Pirate backfield hopefuls have been getting attention from Dole and his staff this week and a couple of them are almost certain to play a large role in tomorrow's game.

The Pirate line which has started all three games thus far will probably be in the line-up when kick-off time rolls around tomorrow. This would have Dwight Shoe and Bobby Hodges at the ends, Bill McDonald and Don MacKenzie at the tackles, George Graybill and Doc Smith at the guards, and Frank Madigan at center.

The Pirates' defensive line-up will have Cecil Winslow and Larry Rhodes at the ends; Jesse Aldridge and Bobby Thomas at the guards; and a combination of two tackles from the list of McDonald, Smith, MacKenzie and Bob Bradley. The defensive backfield will have Luke Taylor and Claude King at the line-backing posts, Daughy and probably Benzie at the halfbacks, and Hawk Grissom at safety.

There was nothing new from the practice quarters of Elon's Christians as they quietly continued to work for the game. Coach Jim Madlory of the Elon team is expected to bring his squad, around 40 strong, into Greenville tomorrow around noon. They will return to Elon immediately after the ball game.

Koslo Stars As Giants Hand 5-1 Loss To Yanks In Series Opener

NEW YORK (AP)—Leo Durocher's winning gamble with Dave Koslo gave the incredible New York Giants an edge today in their World Series date with destiny—and the New York Yankees.

Apparently Durocher can do no wrong in this most remarkable comeback story in all baseball history. He took a chance with his No. 4 pitcher yesterday and got away with it, 5-1, against Allie Reynolds, who "warmed up" for the Series with a no-hitter against the Boston Red Sox.

Now Durocher has Larry Jansen (23-11) ready for today's second game at the Stadium. Jim Hearn (17-9), Monday's playoff winner at Brooklyn, is set for Saturday and Sal Maglie (23-6) ready to come back Sunday with three full days rest.

Instead of a weary crew of staggering pitchers Leo has his three best ready to go in order. And the Yanks already have used up the feared Mr. Reynolds. Retreating in confusion from the 8 to 5 odds favoring the Yanks, the market now says 6 to 5 and take your pick.

With the Giant array of right-handed batting power, lefty Eddie Lopat (21-9) is no cinch to square the Series for Casey Stengel today. A control pitcher whose stuff usually produces many fly balls, Lopat will have to thread the needle to escape trouble from rioting Bobby Thomson and Monte Irvin.

Despite Koslo's seven-hit mastery, Irvin's prodigious deeds and Alvin Dark's three-run homer, the Giants' opening victory at Yankee Stadium was a drab "morning after" to their glorious pennant clinching of Wednesday.

That man Irvin, finally hitting his stride as one of the great hitters in modern day baseball, really had himself an afternoon yesterday against Reynolds.

Monte tied a Series record with four hits, one a triple, stole home against Reynolds with the second Giant run in the first inning and contributed two fine catches. What more can a man do in his first World Series game?

Irvin and Koslo were the story into the left field seats in the sixth, 31-year-old control artist from Me-until Dark hammered his homer that nailed it down for Koslo, the nasha, Wis.

Chapter 17

Since there was only one elevator in operation at night, Johnny was forced to use the fire stairway. He cursed his luck as he started down the stairs three steps at a time.

When he reached the ground floor he learned why the elevator car had been waiting for the man on the upper floor. The elevator operator was tied and gagged, and right at that moment Moe Martin was in the act of releasing the helpless operator.

The operator was spluttering. "He steps into my car and slugs me, that's what he does. Then he straps my hands behind my back and gags my mouth. Ties me up with my very own belt, that guy! Next he runs the car up the shaft and leaves me lying there... after tying up my feet with my necktie! I tell you..."

Moe Martin saw Johnny. His round eyes were excited.

"I saw him, Johnny, just as I came in the lobby!" Moe started to exclaim. "Do you know who that man was? Right up there at the newspaper I found..."

Johnny quickly crowded in between his stocky partner and the elevator operator. At the same time his eyes warned Moe Martin to lay off whatever revelation he was about to make. Johnny himself talked loud and fast.

"Sure," he said. "Sure, - saw him. A prowler in the building, that's what he was." And, to the skinny little operator, who was still spluttering about the way he'd been man-handled, "I heard him out in the hallway and tried to catch him..."

The man demanded, "You know him?"

Johnny shook his head, and the operator quickly turned to Moe Martin. "Did I see you say that you knew..."

"Never saw the guy before in my life, so help me," said Moe Martin emphatically.

"I'm gonna call the police," said the operator.

Johnny Saxon touched the man's arm. "I wonder if we should?"

"Why the hell not? That guy might've..."

"Publicity like that," explained Johnny, "is bad for the building. You know, the tenants... they might become worried and move..."

"Johnny let the implication sink in.

"Say, that's right!" said the operator. "I never thought of that. Then he had a new idea. 'The building owners might blame me, besides. It would sure make a monkey out of me if they knew the way he caught me.' I guard..."

"That's just what I meant," said Johnny in a serious manner. "I'm glad you agree with me. No real harm was done. Perhaps it will be best if we forget the whole matter. Do you feel all right?"

"Not a scratch," said the operator.

"I wonder," quickly finished Johnny, "if you'd run us up to our floor. I have some important business hanging fire..."

"Sure... sure thing." The operator kicked the gag handkerchief aside, put on his necktie and belt, which Moe had been holding, and closed the doors. They shot up the hatchway.

Expression on Moe Martin's face said he was about ready to burst with news, but he managed to keep quiet until they were out of the car and the operator had again started back to the main floor.

Then he exploded. "Say, what was the idea of shutting me up, Johnny? I saw that man just as I came into the building. Then I found the operator tied up and was kept busy..."

"Now, tell me what you tracked down in the newspaper morgue?" prompted Johnny.

"I was trying to tell you—" Moe started.

"That was obvious, pappy. Only thing is, I didn't want the elevator operator getting too curious. You don't want to spend any time in jail here, do you?"

Moe's eyes widened. "Of course not..."

"All right... Now, what were you going to say?"

They were walking down the hallway toward the office. Moe explained breathlessly, "That guy was Jeannette's husband. Johnny. Ten years ago. He killed a guy and they sent him up. Now he's escaped from Ohio State penitentiary and they're combing the state for him. You know who he is, don't you? His picture was there in the old newspaper, and even though it was taken ten years ago, you can tell. It's the same man who came hurrying out of this building just a few minutes ago!"

Johnny said without excitement, "I sort of thought it was." They had reached the outer office and paused just inside, looking. "He came up here and damn near shot me."

"Why?"

"I guess he thought I was chummy with his wife while he was cooling his heels in the pen."

"He's the one found my name and address written on the telephone pad in Jeannette's bedroom. He probably figures I keep a couple of my suits hanging in her closet!"

"Then he killed Jeannette—his own wife!"

"I'm not too sure, pappy. Maybe he thinks I killed her."

"But it has to be him!"

"Why?"

"Well, just because."

"If I murdered a dame," said Johnny thoughtfully, "I certainly wouldn't chase around town checking up on guys I thought might have been going out with her. I'd sure as hell lay low for a while. That's what any murderer would do."

He looked toward the inner office frowning, then hurried through the connecting doorway. He whirled around and came back instantly.

"Nancy's gone!" he said, and his mouth was grim.

"Gone where?"

"She was here just a few minutes ago," Johnny said over his shoulder as he streaked back toward the corridor.

Moe Martin's short figure trailed after him.

Johnny was wearing the fire stairway doorway when it opened and Nancy's slim figure appeared. He gave a sigh of relief. "Are you all right, baby?" he asked with concern.

"Are you all right, Johnny?" Nancy cried. She touched his arm and her hand was trembling. "I started down the fire stairs, lost you... didn't know whether you had gone all the way down or were on one of the other floors. That man! Where is—"

Johnny said, "Baby, we might as well tell you about it. I didn't want to frighten you before, while the guy was still in the office. His shaved head put me on my toes. He's an escaped convict." He turned to Moe. "Tell her about it, pappy."

Abraham, God's Pioneer

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 11:27-12:18.

Terah, who lived in Ur, took his son, Abraham, his son's son, Lot, and their families, and left Ur to go into the land of Canaan...

Abraham went to Canaan, but there was a famine, so he took his family to Egypt, where because his wife was beautiful and he thought Pharaoh might covet her...

Abraham and Lot had grown rich in Egypt, so that when they returned to Canaan there was not room for their combined flocks and herds in the land...

After the separation of Abraham and Lot, Jehovah told Abraham to lift up his eyes and look north, south, east and west, and He would give him all the land he saw for him and for his seed forever...

Abraham, God's Pioneer

HE OBEYED GOD'S CALL AND FOUNDED A NATION

Scripture—Genesis 11:27-12:18.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL WITH THIS lesson we begin a new series on the beginnings of the Hebrew nation.

Our country was peopled by pioneers, whether they came on the Mayflower or other vessels of early days, or were born here in the very young days of our land.

Most of our ancestors came from other parts of the world with the true pioneer spirit—that is, they came, not knowing under what conditions they would be living, but with the hope and the courage to face all hardships to found homes for themselves and their children.

3,500 since the Exodus and the birth of the Jewish nation. They have been hated and persecuted more than any other nation on earth...

At Bethel Abraham pitched his tent and erected an altar to Jehovah. Everywhere he went and pitched his tent, there built he an altar for worship of his God.

There was a dire famine in the land to which Abraham and Lot went, and, seemingly without Jehovah's permission, they went to Egypt where there was food.

The Golden Text

Calling of Abraham

MEMORY VERSE "He looked for the city which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God."—Hebrews 11:10.

Abraham was not a great conqueror in the accepted sense of that word.

The significance of his life was not military nor legislative, nor literary, but religious—Marcus Dods, Scottish divine and Biblical scholar. Yet his belief in one God, the true God, has given him his lasting influence.

If Abraham had continued to live in Haran he probably would have been one among his brothers, an influential sheik, "a continuator of the Terah name—not the originator of a new epoch."

Canaan was an ideal spot in which to carry out God's will. It was not in immediate contact with nations of idol worshippers. It was in the midst of mighty empires, but their struggles for eminence did not necessarily affect his life.

No great highway led through its center. Its natural barriers and difficulties of position gave it the liberty of establishing relations with foreign countries, or of keeping its isolation. It was to become the nursery of true religion.

"And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; . . . and I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse; and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed," said Jehovah.

It is some 4,000 years since the birth of the promised seed.

her for a wife. He ordered them all to leave Egypt at once.

However, Abraham and Lot had prospered mightily in the land of Egypt, and when they returned to Canaan, their flocks and herds were so large that there was not room in the same land for them to graze, and their servants, the herdsmen, quarreled violently.

Then Abraham did a most unselfish thing—a truly Christian thing: He told Lot to look all about him and choose the land he wanted, and then Abraham would go in the opposite direction for land on which to settle.

Lot chose the rich land bordering the Jordan river, near the wicked city of Sodom. He must have been sorry he chose that place later, when Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by Jehovah's command, although Lot's life was saved.

The second divine call came to Abraham then, and he was told to look about him—north, south, east and west, to walk over the country, and he should receive all that his eyes saw for himself and for his seed forever.

"And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then may thy seed also be numbered."

"And Abraham moved his tent, and came and dwelt by the oaks of Mamre, which are in Hebron, and built there an altar unto Jehovah."

"He looked for the city which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God."—Hebrews 11:10.

Training Course For Scouts Set

Between 25 and 30 Boy Scouts of the Pitt District are expected to attend the training course for patrol leaders and senior patrol leaders of the district being held this weekend at Camp Charles near Bailey.

District Commissioner Jack Dowdy said the scouts who will attend the training course are to meet at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Saturday morning at 9:30. The scouts attending the training course are to take tents, bedding, other camping gear, and food for three meals. Dowdy suggested the scouts take bag lunches for the noon meal Saturday.

The patrol leaders and senior patrol leaders will be given instruction in patrol and troop organization, patrol activities in the troop, in civic duties, patrol games, conduct of patrol meetings, handicraft, fire building and camping.

District Commissioner Dowdy and Field Executive Howard Hunter will accompany the scouts on the training course. Dowdy said any scoutmaster or other scouters of the district who wishes to attend the training course is invited to do so.

Attend Regional Red Cross Meet

Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Junior Red Cross Chairman, and Dorothy Nell Henderson, volunteer, attended a Southeastern Area Administration Group meeting for chapters in Raleigh Wednesday.

The meeting was conducted by Allen J. Carter, Regional Director, Southeastern Area, and was attended by the General Field Representatives covering the area.

The session covered general administrative matters such as the program, raising policy, the blood program, and chapter and budget finances.

Mrs. Taylor said the blood program was of primary importance at the meeting since there is some misconception regarding the Armed Forces Blood Donor Program. "Some people," Mrs. Taylor said, "have the idea there are two programs—one conducted by the Red Cross and one conducted by the military."

She said the Red Cross has been designated by the Department of Defense as the official procurement agency for the collection of blood for the Armed Forces and the need for blood is greater and greater.

Forgery Charge Placed Against Greenville Woman

New Bern police yesterday arrested Mrs. A. G. Kruske, 30-year-old housewife of Greenville, on the charge of forging the name of Mrs. A. C. Buck on a $5 check and cashing it at Kite's Service Station, Fourth and Greene streets.

A. C. Buck of Pitt County, her father, signed her bond for $200 and she was released, according to police.

Two other warrants are on file in Greenville against Mrs. Kruske. One charges forgery of a check for $25 on Cox Floral Company; the other is a check for $6 with Mrs. W. L. Cox's name on it, cashed by Carney L. Allgood, taxicab driver.

The cases will be tried in Superior Court in Greenville next week.

Confusion . . .

The managing editors of Associated Press newspapers were meeting in San Francisco the day the order came out. They studied it carefully and then condemned it in a resolution, calling it a "dangerous instrument of suppression" which extends "the cloak of military secrecy to the civilian establishments of the government."

They condemned it on a number of grounds. For example: they said they didn't think the President had shown such a sweeping order, permitting concealment of information, was necessary; it had been issued without any chance for discussion by the public.

Perhaps the two main objections of the editors to the order can be summed up this way:
1. It opens the doors to wide news censorship in peacetime, a dangerous step in a society like this where the people have a right to information.

2. The order is so loose it permits all kinds of government employees to conceal their mistakes by slipping a "secret" label on material which isn't of a security nature at all.

(No newsman, under the order, could be punished for publishing information obtained from a civilian agency even though it was marked secret.)
But yesterday Mr. Truman told a news conference publishers have a responsibility not to publish information which might help an enemy even if it was cleared as all right for publication by a government agency.

This spread confusion, for under that reasoning how would anyone ever know what was safe to publish if he should have to hesitate to publish what a qualified official said he could publish?

The White House tried to clear this up a little later by explaining it would "be all right to publish information obtained from an official qualified to judge its national security value but should be very careful using such information if obtained from people not qualified to judge its security value."
But the White House failed to explain how anyone was to judge whether information came from qualified officials or unqualified ones.
