Blood Again Runs As British Army Truck Ambushed; Driver Wounded

Emergency Declared In Cairo; Egypt Threatens Take Case To UN

By UNITED PRESS

Blood ran again today in the Anglo-Egyptian dispute. A British military truck was ambushed on a lonely Egyptian desert road west of the Suez Canal today and the driver wounded by a fusillade of shots.

It was the first bloodshed in the Anglo-Egyptian crisis since Wednesday. The attackers were not identified.

British Army sources said the truck was one used by the Naafi—the British post exchange service—and was manned by two Egyptian employees. When the driver fell wounded, his companion took over the wheel and raced the truck back to its base.

The ambush came in the midst of these other developments in the Anglo-Egyptian crisis:

1. All Cairo was put under a state of emergency.

2. The Egyptian director of education in the Sudan left by plane for the Sudanese capital in defiance of a British ban on his return.

3. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah el Din Bey threatened to take the Anglo-Egyptian dispute to the United Nations.

4. Britain further increased its strength in the canal zone against a possible showdown with Egypt over the right of British troops to guard the canal.

Reinforcements totalling at least 6,000 troops and seven warships have arrived in the trouble zone since the first of the week.

The British truck was ambushed on a lonely stretch of road across the desert between Quassassin and Telet-Kebr, about 30 miles west of the Suez Canal.

The last previous bloodshed occurred early Wednesday, when British troops guarding the only bridge across the canal killed two Egyptian soldiers after the Egyptians opened fire on them.

The whole dispute stems from Egypt's cancellation of its 1936 treaty with Britain. The treaty provided for joint Anglo-Egyptian administration of the Sudan and permitted British to station troops in the Suez Canal zone for the protection of the canal.

British Troops Seize Bridge Over Suez Canal

Armed British soldiers patrol the area around the El Ferdan bridge across the Suez Canal which they seized in a clash with Egyptian soldiers. Two Egyptian soldiers were killed in the fighting for possession of the only bridge spanning the canal. It is about midway between Port Said and Ismailia. The fight greatly increased the tension in the dispute between Egypt and Great Britain over control of the canal zone and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Cairo).

Liaison Officers Effect Compromise On Security Zone; Only Remaining Issue Is Right To Fly Over Kaesong

MUNSAN, Korea (UP)—United Nations and Communist liaison officers cleared the next-to-the-last obstacle to resumption of the Korean cease-fire talks today.

There was speculation here that the armistice conference would be reopened in a circus tent at Panmunjom Monday or Tuesday.

A compromise broke the deadlock over the width of the security zone to be established along the U.N. truce camp at Munsan and the Communist camp at Kaesong, 15 miles to the northwest.

Panmunjom is midway between them.

The U.N. proposed—and the Communists agreed—that the security zone should be 400 yards wide. The Communists at first had demanded a three-mile wide zone, but Friday suggested one of two miles.

The U.N. command, however, had wanted the security zone confined to the road itself.

The only remaining question still to be settled is the right of U.N. planes to fly over the Kaesong area.

The U.N. has agreed that pilots will be instructed to avoid Kaesong, but argued that accidental or unavoidable flights over the area would give the Reds an excuse to break off the armistice talks again if there were any formal ban.

Chief U.N. liaison officer Col. Edward J. Kinney said he had proposed the use of "technical aids" such as lights and balloons to turn aircraft away from the area.

He said they would be set up at Munsan and in the 1,000-yard radius neutral zone around the conference tent at Panmunjom.

It seemed possible that the Communists might agree to establish their own "technical aids" at Kaesong to turn away U.N. aircraft.

"We expect the thing probably will get settled tomorrow one way or the other," Kinney said.

The latest compromise—on the security zone between Munsan and Kaesong—was worked out at the longest meeting yet held by the two liaison teams in the tent at Panmunjom. It lasted four hours and 10 minutes, plus time out for lunch.

Money in the three bills awaiting action in the last-minute rush exceeded the entire federal budget of a little over a decade ago. Since the first of the year, Congress has acted on defense appropriations—including foreign aid—totaling about $80,000,000.

Some of the spending was authorized for the fiscal year ending last June 30, but most of it was for the current fiscal year and some for future years.

The House wiped out most of the doubts about adjournment when it voted yesterday to approve the $5,691,000,000 tax increase bill. This measure, passed by the Senate Thursday, was little different from the one rejected by the House Tuesday.

While the House voted on taxes, the Senate was passing the appropriation bill carrying money for the construction of military bases.

To reconcile differences between the House and Senate versions, this bill still had to run through a House-Senate conference committee today before going to a final vote in both chambers.

The same conference committee reported agreement last night on the bills providing funds for foreign

Tobacco Market Tops 1950 Record

Last Year Surpassed In Terms Of Dollars And Pounds Sold

Tobacco market, 34 front Rose

With the completion of yesterday's sale on the Greenville Tobacco Market, Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said the market passed last year's record in both money paid out and pounds of tobacco sold.

Sales through yesterday totaled $4,443,554 pounds sold for $35,747,631.93, for an average of $55.47 for the entire season to date. Last year the Greenville market sold for the entire year $2,700,247 pounds for $35,325,935.00. Whedbee said much more tobacco remains to be sold in Greenville this year.

Last sales on the market were 7,030,090 pounds sold for $4,262,904.64, and an average $60.64.

Whedbee said Greenville is having one of the best years in its entire history, and more tobacco has been sold in Greenville this year for over $70.00 per hundred than has ever been sold here before in the entire 60 year history of the market.

"Prices continue as strong as ever on the Greenville market," said Whedbee, "and expect a full sale of tobacco for Monday of next week."

Six-Year-Old Is Shotgun Victim

Accidentally Shot By 9-Year-Old Brother Near Bethel

BETHEL — A six-year-old Negro boy died instantly this morning from a blast of a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of his nine-year-old brother.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse who investigated the death with Sheriff's Deputy Jasper Lee Mills, said the shooting was accidental and no inquest will be held.

Rouse identified the dead child as Elbert Brown, Jr., and the boy who fired the fatal blast as William Davis Brown. Both were sons of Elbert and Rosa Brown who live on Thomas Williams' farm on Robersonville route two about four miles east of Bethel on the Big Oak road.

The coroner said the boys were alone in their home at the time the younger boy was killed. The shotgun blast entered the back of the six-year-old child and went all the way through his body. The report of the shot and screams of William Davis Brown brought neighbors to the house where they found the child lying on the floor in one of the rooms of the house.

Rouse said nine-year-old William said he did not know the gun was loaded when he was playing with it, although the parents of the children were quoted by the coroner as saying the gun had been left unloaded. Rouse said the old single barrel weapon was held together with wire, and the condition of the exploded shell indicated it had been in the chamber of the gun for some time.

City Jail Repairs Get Under Way Here On Monday

Tentative Plan For General Lock System Discarded Says Langston

Repairs to the Greenville City Jail will get under way on Monday, Chief of Police Guy C. Langston announced this morning.

A tentative program of installing a series of levers whereby the cells could be opened only from the outside has been done away with, the Chief said.

One prime factor in disregarding this plan, was the expense involved; low bids on the projects submitted to the Chief and Mayor were in the neighborhood of $2,000.

Reason for the repairs being made is due to the fact that three county prisoners which were confined to the prison here while the county jail is being renovated, escaped by jimmying the lock on the cell doors.

Discovery of the faulty lock and escape of the three prisoners was not found out until Saturday morning, two weeks ago today. The three made their escape sometime Friday night and have not been located since.

Langston pointed out soon after an investigation was made into the escape that the prisoners were able to make their escape due to the faulty construction of the locks and it was a factor which has been present since the cell block was first installed. "It was only luck that prisoners had not been able to discover the weakness before," Langston said.

The repairs to be made will consist of placing angle iron strips from the floor to the roof of the cell doors, completely covering the locks from within which will make it impossible to jimmy the locks. This work will get under way Monday and is expected to be completed sometime later in the day.

Cost of the project is expected to be less than $100, Langston said. The locks are already covered from outside and thus the metal strips will serve the same purpose as the more costly lever system.

At the time the escapes got out of the cell block they would have been foiled in their attempt to gain freedom but for the fact that two sections of bars had been removed from a window leading onto the roof of the building, when a ventilator fan had been installed. The fan was removed and freedom of the cell block gained.

The bars now have been replaced and once the improvements are made in the jail cells the City jail should once more be able to hold its prisoners without danger of them escaping.

Sky Scrapers Is Topic Of Paper At Inter Se

Mrs. L. M. Buchanan was hostess to the Inter Se Club on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Pennsylvania Avenue. Mrs. Vance Perkins, the president, presided over a business meeting.

The program was presented by Mrs. Joe Taft, whose subject was "Sky Scrapers." Architecture is usually rated as America's greatest contribution to the arts and the greatest achievement in this field is the skyscraper. Mrs. Taft described some of the early skyscrapers, the designs for which were taken from classical styles, and then discussed the clear-cut, open skyscrapers of today, when the science of the engineer and the creative genius of the artist have combined to produce a new urban architecture.

After the exchange of books, Mrs. Buchanan, assisted by Mrs. Burke Stanchell, Mrs. Wendell Smiley, Mrs. I. D. Duncan, and Mrs. Sam Underwood, served delicious refreshments.

First Aid Study Of Bandages At Aries Club

The Round Table Book Club met with Mrs. H. H. Duncan at her home on Dickinson Avenue. The president, Mrs. E. E. Ravi, presided. At the conclusion of a short business session, the leader for the afternoon, Mrs. Howard McGinnis, read a very interesting and informative paper, entitled "The Wesley Family." In this paper she, in a very charming manner, briefly related the history of the education, accomplishments, activities and influences of the family of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism in England.

Following Mrs. McGinnis' paper, as requested, Mrs. Wiley Brown presented a very clever, interesting and entertaining thumb-nail sketch of her life. Mrs. Howard Porter then told of the origin of the word, "O.K." and Mrs. S. J. Everett presented a new word, giving the pronunciation and the meaning.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Higgs and Miss Lela Higgs, served a delicious salad course and coffee.

Military Chiefs Said Lagging In Atomic Warfare

WASHINGTON (UP)—Military leaders are not keeping up with atomic developments which will revolutionize concepts of warfare," according to Rep. Carl Durham, vice chairman of the congressional atomic energy committee.

The North Carolina democrat

told the House yesterday that the armed forces should spend more time and effort "mastering atomic energy problems (because) the time will come when an aggressor can hardly afford to mass his troops in a dense concentration for an attack — for he would thus expose himself to atomic bombs used tactically against him."

A Tribute To Our Milkmen!

Those cheery, white-clad men who deliver your milk every day . . . do you ever consider the part that they play in your family life? Dependable as the rosy morning, at your door daily 365 times a year, eager to please you . . . does anyone give you more important service? Next time you see your Milkman, give him a friendly slap on the back and tell him what a grand job he's doing. He'll beam with happiness and tell his boss what swell folks you are. And, incidentally, on Christmas morning, you could put out a nice gift for him. You always do? Fine!

Bloodmobile Slated Come To Pitt At Early Date; 200 Donors Needed

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

Hoover Taft, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross, announced today that Pitt County will be included in the National Red Cross Blood Program.

Although Pitt County is listed in the southeastern area by the Red Cross, the county will be served by the eastern area blood center in Norfolk. Through the efforts of the county chapter during the past few months, the county was approved to have a bloodmobile come here.

A field representative from the southeastern area is expected here within the next few weeks to make arrangements for a blood donor center to be set up here.

Arrangements will have to be made for the setting of the blood donor center in some building in the city and red cross workers will be present to assist the staff doctors and technicians. The bloodmobile will carry its own staff and equipment for taking and preserving the blood until it can be processed and stored.

In order to get the bloodmobile to Greenville, the Red Cross chapter here will have to promise that at least 200 persons will be present to donate one pint of blood.

Part of the blood will go for civilian use and part for military use. Taft said if the county took part in the blood program, blood would be available without cost for any Pitt Countyman who needs blood in case of emergency, even if they did not give blood when the donor center was here. Taft said even the rarest types of blood would be available if needed.

The blood will be processed and stored in Norfolk and if it is needed here it will be rushed either by exp as, by highway patrol, or by plane, depending on how quickly it is needed.

Taft said he wished to express his appreciation to the Pitt County Medical Association, the county hospitals, and civic clubs for endorsing the blood bank program. "We've surmounted the first difficulty in getting the bloodmobile here," Taft said, "but the biggest responsibility is getting the donors present when the bloodmobile arrives. I feel confident that the people of the county will respond to the urgent need for blood."

Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter said she has received many calls from people wishing to donate blood and she said everyone will have the chance to do so when the bloodmobile arrives here.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
ARISE AND STAND UPRIGHT
Have you ever gone into a planetarium and listened to the lecturer as he reeled off distances in light years which made your head swim? The nearest stars are so many millions of miles away that we would have to have a long blackboard if we tried to write out the enormous figure. The result of all this is that we come to regard ourselves as only little specks of dust in an infinite universe. Our planet is too insignificant in the solar system to merit any distinction. And we, on that planet, are too inconsequential even to maintain our self-respect.

But snap out of such a mood. This is not an attitude for an upstanding human being to take. Someone has said that we are suffering today from astronomical intimidation. The universe overwhelms us. We come to value dust highly and divinity not at all. We are vanquished by bulk and appalled by space. As time like this we need to turn to the first chapter of Genesis and read that God has made man in His image and after His likeness. We need to remind ourselves that one living soul is of more value than a million dead stars. Why do we need to be appalled by space if the power of God is everywhere? Why do we need to be cast down if the voice of God bids us rise up? Why do we brood over our weakness when the very hand of God is extended to give us strength in our weakness?

The Supreme Court-A Power Or A Figurehead

Of all the cases which are to be heard before the United States Supreme Court during this fall term, one, although little publicized, is the most important to the freedom of the American people.

The decision of the court and the action which follows will decide whether the judicial system of the land is more powerful than the administration where laws are concerned, or whether arrogant administrations under grasping leaders can disregard the orders of the court which interprets the supreme law of the land.

The case is that of the rightful owners of the Dollar Steamship Company versus Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and the United States government. The owners are seeking possession of the stock of the company which was taken by the government as security for loans, and which has not been returned to the owners although the loan has been repaid in full with interest by the company.

The case has been before the U. S. Court of Appeals three times and before the U. S. Supreme Court three times, and each time has been decided in favor of the private citizens who own the steamship company. Last April the Court of Appeals gave Secretary of Commerce Sawyer five days to comply with the court order to return the stock of the steamship company to its rightful owners. Sawyer did not comply and was charged with civil and criminal contempt of the court. Again in May the court by unanimous decision ordered Sawyer to return the stock or go to jail, because in the words of the court, "No man is so high that he is above the law."

The Court of Appeals declared its decision final, and Associate Justice Jackson wrote for the Supreme Court, "This conclusion we, by refusal to review, in effect confirm."

Yet Sawyer did not go to jail, nor has the stock of the steamship company been returned to its rightful owners; for President Truman in a letter to Sawyer after the decision had been confirmed "in effect" by the Supreme Court told the Secretary of Commerce, "... you are directed to continue to hold this stock on behalf of the United States."

In those words President Truman openly defied the Supreme Court and the supreme law of the land. Apparently by his action, he expects to interpret the constitution in the way it best suits his selfish, socialistic system of tyranny; and the Supreme Court and the people of the United States be damned.

That is the kind of man we have in the White House today, and that is the man some Democratic party leaders would have head the national political ticket in 1952.

After six years of legal controversy there is little likelihood that the Supreme Court this fall will reverse the decision in the Dollar Steamship company case and decide in favor of the government. When the Supreme Court hands down its decision this fall, the people of the nation will see whether the administration is ready to abide by the supreme law of the land as high court interprets it, or whether the arrogant administration under Truman will continue to openly defy the constitution and the supreme judicial body of the nation.

The outcome of the case will determine whether the judiciary in the American system of government is still a power or whether it has become an impotent figure-head which must bow to the whims of the administration.

The very freedom of the citizens of the United States hangs in the outcome of the controversy.

Caught In Greenville's Daily Traffic Jam

The rush hour traffic jam which occurs in Greenville's business section every afternoon should be alleviated.

It seems to The Reflector that the Police Department could take steps to facilitate the movement of automotive traffic and pedestrian traffic in the business district at noon-time and during the late afternoon.

As it is now traffic is lined for a block or more at times during the rush period while a motorist waits to make a left turn or waits for a string of pedestrians to ambulate across the street—usually against the traffic light. The congestion which results is something awful.

If the Police Department would station traffic officers who really know how to direct traffic at five points and the corner of Fourth and Evans Streets, and at the Dickinson Avenue-Grande Avenue intersections during these rush hours, the congestion could be alleviated. It might be a good idea to cut off the traffic signals at one or more of these intersections while the officers were directing traffic.

The officers do a fairly good job of keeping the traffic moving on Saturday afternoons, and they could help matters greatly if they were on duty at these strategic intersections during the rush hours every day.

News Behind The News

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker, 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—"Why," asks Mrs. M.Y. of Brooklyn, N.Y., and many other readers, "are so many prominent Republicans boosting Senator Taft for their party nomination for President instead of General MacArthur? I would vote for MacArthur against Taft, Truman or anybody else."

Answer: The Brooklyn woman's question is one which keeps bobbing up in political councils and discussions. From the favorable reaction General MacArthur has received on his trips and speeches throughout the land, from Pennsylvania to Texas, he will be an influential force and personality in the 1952 election.

SOLDIER—General MacArthur is naturally proud of the frequent mention of him as a possible Republican presidential nominee. However, if he is as smart as I believe him to be, he must know that he has no chance for the nomination or election.

Despite General Eisenhower's popularity, I doubt if the American people will place a professional soldier in the White House.

General MacArthur, according to Washington's understanding, favors the nomination of Senator Taft. For personal and political reasons, as he will make clear sooner or later, he distrusts and dislikes General Eisenhower.

ROLE—MacArthur's role, in the event of a Taft-Eisenhower struggle for the nomination, may be decisive in numerous key states. "Mac" as Chief of Staff when "Ike" was only a Major and his errand boy at Washington, may tell stories about his erstwhile subordinate that are not generally known.

From personal knowledge, I can say this: General MacArthur does not want the presidency, but he would like to see Senator Taft win that honor. "Mac" would probably be Defense Secretary in a Taft Cabinet.

REACTION—In a recent column, which has provoked an exciting reaction among my readers and politicians on Capitol Hill, I noted that several Wall Street banking and investing firms were boosting Eisenhower in the belief that his nomination and election would send stock market prices to new, post-war highs.

Although the "fat boys" in downtown Manhattan prefer Truman or Eisenhower to Senator Taft, they seem to like MacArthur. His stubborn stand in Korea, according to the investment propaganda letters they are sending out to customers, has contributed to the present bull market.

COURAGE—The significance of General MacArthur's reception on his return home, says a Wall Street October letter, "was not so much the man as his message. He articulated so clearly, succinctly and sincerely the thoughts, ideas and hopes in the minds of enough millions of Americans to strike a highly responsive and resounding chord in the nation's consciousness."

"It may or may not be coincidence that since then (MacArthur's return and speeches—Ed. note) a greater degree of courage, a lesser degree of timidity and fear have characterized the handling of international affairs."

"We seem more confident now than then of the ultimate outcome of the struggle with Communism, and so do our Allies."

BOOM—"We have taken the initiative from the Russians in the no-longer-so-cold war. We signed the Japanese Treaty. We will presumably go ahead with a German treaty, permit Italy to rearm, back Tito's Yugoslavians and Franco's Spain."

"The stock market has reflected this greater confidence by widening ratios of stock prices to dividends."

It should be noted here that the prospective boom, as Wall Street reads tomorrow, is based on an Eisenhower defeat of Truman. And with this disclosure make Harry mad, on top of his enforced firing of Democratic National Chairman Boyle!

"At a recent date," says this letter, referring to the Truman-MacArthur break, "stocks sold 17.82 times dividends, the highest ratio of any since just before the election of November, 1948. Last April the ratio was 13.27. At the bottom of 1949, it was 14.20. As previously mentioned, this ratio, at major bull market highs, has gone to an average of 30 times dividends."

"This same market letter, Mrs. M.Y., although supposedly a plug for General Eisenhower and MacArthur, will be employed for the reelection of Harry S. Truman."

Another Renovation Job Urgently Needed

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

One of the most discussed questions in the wide world today is: What is a Christian? This question brought on a new problem last week in Waterloo, Iowa, in the Black Hawk County Courthouse. The answer meant the disposition of $75,000.

It all started back in 1939, when a man by the name of William B. Small died. In his will he directed that the income from $75,000 of his estate should be distributed to "persons who believe in the fundamental principles of the Christian religion and in the Bible and who are endeavoring to promulgate same." When his wife died in 1949, ten nephews and nieces sued to break the will. Their argument was, "There is no common agreement as to what constitutes the fundamental principles of Christianity."

The hearings got underway in Waterloo. The first four witnesses spoke for the trustees. The Rev. Charles S. Hempstead, district superintendent of the Methodist Church, Dr. Russell D. Cole, president of a nearby Methodist school, and Methodist English Professor Miron A. Merrill, all testified that a Christian can be defined as one who believes in the Apostles' Creed, that is, the Trinity and the Divinity of Christ.

Methodist Layman Stephen A. Cohan, a longtime friend of the dead man, testified that this was what Dr. Small himself believed. Then came witnesses for the nephews and nieces to testify that a Christian might believe almost anything, or nothing. As for the Apostles' Creed, said the Rev. Lewis L. Dunnington of Iowa City's First Methodist Church, "many things" in it are unacceptable to many Christians. On the question of the Virgin Birth, for example, "I tell my parishioners to pay their money and take their choice."

Father Robert Spahn, Roman Catholic chaplain for Iowa State Teachers College, pointed out that his church takes a strong stand against private interpretation of the Bible, and warned that a man may be deceived in thinking he is guided by providence. Christ himself, warned Father Spahn, was persecuted by "those who thought they were doing the will of God."

Another pastor testified that many theologians are in "complete disagreement" over Christianity's fundamental principles. Four more ministers, two Lutherans, a Baptist and an Episcopalian, did confusion worse confounded.

When it was over, the judge gave himself several weeks to prepare a decision.

And I thank you.

RECREATION — The North Carolina advertising division is breaking precedent in a new series of industrial advertisements to be published within the next few weeks. One of the ads portrays a couple of hunters with the limit shoot of water-towl. Another paramours a golf course with a factory in the background. Other similar pictures and text emphasize the fact that in North Carolina industrial workers, from top executives down to janitors, will find recreation facilities close at hand. The increasing importance of entertainment in non-working time has been noted in the location of industrial plants for some years. So far as known, this state is the first to point the situation so clearly, and also to the fact that anywhere in North Carolina the employees of a manufacturing plant are within half a day's drive of the mountains or the seashore.

PARKS — In the same connection the parks division is moving to equip the state parks, particularly those in concentrated population areas, with more adequate facilities. These parks are designed primarily for use of North Carolinians rather than as attractions for out of state tourists. Attendance at Hanging Rock and Morrow Mountain during the past summer proved the need for larger facilities to accommodate one day visitors, chiefly middle class wage and salary earners of large industrial plants. As industry moves into the east, more attention will be given to Cliffs on the Neuse and the Bladen lakes areas. To fit into the long range plan, the board of conservation and development this week took action terminating the lease of Hiwassee Park from TVA, and transfer of $50,000 set up the budget for its development to Cape Hatteras. Budget approval is being asked to transfer appropriations for specific projects at Hanging Rock to some more needed development in the same area. Similar transfer has already been approved for Mount Mitchell. Most of the changes made arose out of building costs exceeding amounts available for structures as originally planned.

ABORTIVE — There is legal question whether the resolution approving development of a state park on Mount Jefferson can be effectuated on account of there is any place by that name. The proposed development is at the site of a few picnic tables provided by the forestry division on top of Negro Mountain in Ashe county, part of which is owned by the state and part by the town of Jefferson. The formal resolution sets out that the name of the mountain shall be changed to Mount Jefferson. However, the only authority for naming or changing the name of a mountain is a federal commission of the Smithsonian Institution. As it stands now, there is no Mount Jefferson and no authority for developing a park on Negro Mountain, so it is likely nothing will be done until some of the boards with power to act take further steps.

CO-OPERATION — There was a bit of unintended and unconscious irony in the barbecue staged by the Winston-Salem chamber of commerce at which members of the board of conservation and development were guests. The state board members walked right out of a session where discord was apparent and feelings controlled with obvious effort, into the chamber of commerce atmosphere where co-operation was the order of the day and concrete achievements to prove its effectiveness. The occasion was a joint meeting of the agriculture and small industries committees, held on a farm owned and operated by Raleigh Angel, who was introduced as a man who made a good living solely as a farmer. A visit to the chamber of commerce offices in the former home of Thurmond Chatham disclosed that the Winston-Salem organization has better facilities for promoting development than does the state board of conservation and development. A bus ride around the agriculture section, an inspection tour of Western Electric's radar plant, and the visit to the Angel farm afforded tangible evidence that the chamber of commerce is doing its job.

PUBLICITY — State Auditor Henry Bridges has adopted a new policy with respect to audit reports on state departments, institutions and agencies. Heretofore reporters and others interested had to make special request to obtain copies of the audit reports, and many times they had no way of knowing when a report was completed. Bridges new idea is that when the audit report is finished and delivered to the appropriate official agencies, a copy will be placed on the big table in the auditor's office for the convenience of newspaper and radio men. This is a service both to the reporters and the public whose business it is to know what goes on in their tax supported agencies.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOEY AND CHAPMAN
(Wilson Daily Times)

More Senators should join Clyde Hoey in his denunciation of Secretary of Interior Chapman for fighting the building of a dam with private money on the Roanoke river. For it simply does not make sense to a man who is tax and money conscious. The dam the Virginia Electric and Power company wants to build will supply the same areas that a government-built dam would, and the people of North Carolina and Virginia would have the power that the Governor of our state has been constantly calling for.

The flies in the ointment are the REAs. Of the 15 that are operating in the region now, all with government money, only two earn profits. The other 13 regularly show deficits. And even the two that make profits don't make enough to amortize their loans from the national government. But they've joined together in what they call a league and they're going to fight to preserve their jobs, if that's possible. In such circumstances, it's only natural that they would want federal power. They'd get it for less money, for one thing, and they'd control its distribution, for another.

Some who're socialistically-minded think of the power lords only as they existed in the lush twenties. It doesn't occur to those bureaucrats that even the power companies have reformed. What's more, it's the private companies' taxes which support the deficit-operating REAs. Naturally, the latter aren't anxious to lose their grip on the rural people. But we, if we're fair, must think of such things in terms of profits and service, not service alone. If we don't, soon we will be operating all our power companies with government deficits.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The steelworkers union has notice it will seek a huskier wage boost than the four-cent-an-hour permitted under the present wage ceilings. Steel wage negotiations are scheduled to get under way next month, and in any case steel makers are seeking a price increase on the claim their last hike was insufficient to cover accumulated cost increases.

If steel's price goes up, all of us will feel the effects. Steel enters into every corner of our economic life, whether it's steel for farm machinery to raise food, or steel for industrial machinery to make clothes.

Last December, you'll remember, both wages and prices in the steel industry went up, with labor securing a boost of approximately 16 cents an hour and the industry lifting prices an average of about $5 a ton. But the industry claims that even this advance in prices failed to reflect other cost increases which amounted, at that time, to an estimated additional $4 a ton.

Now steel company executives are arguing that wages can't be increased again without another markup on prices, and have delivered a memo to Defense Mobilizer Wilson to the effect that the industry intends to seek higher prices regardless of the outcome of the forthcoming wage negotiations.

The union is expected to request a package including a cash hike of 15 cents an hour or more and possibly a guaranteed annual wage. Financial experts predict the industry will reject this bid and the result would presumably be the threat of a steel strike which would compel government intervention. If past experience is a guide, the result would be a compromise wage increase followed by a boost in steel prices early in 1952 when new inflationary forces are expected to be gathering momentum in any case.

LOW-PRICED FROZEN FOODS BEING INDUSTRY SQUAWK

The appearance, and growing popularity with the public, of 19-cent packages of frozen vegetables, has aroused a warning from industry leaders that this development may make the whole frozen food business an unprofitable affair. The 19-cent brands are grade B merchandise which were formerly sold largely to institutional purchasers. They have the same nourishment as the Grade A, but are less perfect in appearance and perhaps in flavor. The complaint of frozen food distributors, especially local wholesalers, is that the 19-cent price leaves insufficient markup to cover costs. The answer may be greater volume. One wholesaler estimates he must sell 40 per cent more of the 19-cent brands to fare as well as with the Grade A goods. So the public must buy the Grade B foods in increasingly large quantities to settle this new merchandising problem.

PREDICTS GOOD YEAR FOR HOME BUILDING

Another good year for the home-building industry in 1952 is forecast by Arthur M. Weimer, dean of Indiana University School of Business and economist of the United States Savings and Loan League. One reservation Dean Weimer makes is that the growing scarcity of metals may pinch home building, but lumber is plentiful, and he expects there will be no serious shortage of the other vital material that goes into the building of a modern home—mortgage money.

SURVEY WAYS TO STEP UP USE OF DAIRY BY-PRODUCTS

New ways to increase the use of by-products—skim milk, buttermilk and whey—are being suggested by the Office of Technical Services of the U. S. Commerce Department. Skim milk can be used in making a new type of "potato" paper. Casein, a derivative, which has been used in the manufacture of buttons, umbrella handles and other plastic products, can now be used in paper-coating, and in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, artificial fibers and bristles and water-emulsion paints. Fluid whey can be used to improve food value and flavor of juices and vegetables and in the manufacture of candies and canned puddings.

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT
(For HAL BOYLE)

NEW YORK (AP)—This was Top Secret, so Louis Feder was taking no chances.

He looked nervously from side to side. The door was closed and the corridor beyond was quiet. The window was open but, 11 floors above Fifth Avenue, we seemed safe enough from enemy ears.

"No one else has the process," Feder began in a cautious murmur. "Nobody but me. It's completely secret. I got four men working on it, but none of them knows what the other three are doing. No one of them could make the thing itself."

Feder glanced around again. "You see, the secret is in making the hair stand up. Sure, other people make crew-cut toupees, but none of them can make it so the hair stands up the way it does in a natural crew-cut. I do, by a secret crocheting process."

"Everybody likes them, bankers, brokers, actors, business men. They're selling hotter than anything else in the men's line. They're the biggest thing on the market now."

The wigmaker, a short man with a finely pointed mustache and thin, reinforced hair, exhibited his two latest models: a modified and an extreme crew cut. The first had hair standing about an inch. In the extreme model, the hair stood up about an inch and a quarter to an inch and a half.

Feder said his crew-cuts were water-proof, wind-proof, sleep-proof and proof. "You can yank and yank on it and you can't take it off," he said, "unless you know how."

They are not, however, fire-proof, because any fireproofing process would leave the hair too stiff.

But Feder's crew-cut wigs are versatile. The hair can stand straight up or lean forward or lean backward. It all depends on how you comb it. Comb it forward and it leans back. Comb it back and it tilts forward. This, too, he explained, is part of the secret crocheting process which took him "many months" to perfect.

Each hair has to be crocheted individually. The average toupee has about 20,000 hairs. Feder's crew-cut creation has between 30,000 and 35,000 hairs. Because the hairs are short, more are required to prevent the skull from showing.

Because of this and other differences too hush hush to mention, the crew-cut toupees sell for $150 as compared to $125 for the longer-haired ordinary models.

Feder's company gets its dark hair from women in the Latin countries and light hair from women in Scandinavia. The supply has been steadily falling off since World War II. Feder says, because widely scattered American Wacs and Waves introduced many foreign peasant women to short coiffures. Natural hair has to be grown long before it's of any use to a wigmaker.

Unusual as they are, Feder does not claim longevity for his crew cut models. Their life span is about two years. After that, because of perspiration, the hairs begin to fall out and the wig needs a wig.

Otherwise, he said, his toupees are completely realistic, except that, themselves. They sprinkle some of his clients take care of themselves. The sprinkle salt salt on their wigs.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — "Middle-age" children — between 8 and 12 — comprise one of the largest and most receptive reading audiences of the nation today. More than 1,000 new books are published for them every year. Not only in numbers, but in intellectual curiosity and capacity for understanding, they far exceed young readers of a generation ago and they have a grater yen for the factual, "true-story" type of book.

This is what Mrs. Barbara Nolen, who has been in the children's book world for 25 years, tells me. As literary editor of the national children's magazine, "Story Parade," Mrs. Nolen reviews about 300 new books a year. She also reads 100 to 200 manuscripts a month in pursuit of stories of real interest to children, well-written, well-illustrated and comparable to book material in quality. She tests her daughter, Debbie, 8, and her friends for reader interest.

"Today's kids just eat up books on science and biography, books that a generation ago they just wouldn't be interested in," she said. "Maybe it's because we live more completely in the whole world and our children are exposed to more and varied interests."

The publishing business, she said, is responding in a fine way to the interests of this reader group with "good, fascinating books, simply written so that children, 8 or 9, can read them."

"They are more realistic in their pictorial approach and popular treatment of factual material, yet they are perfectly sound," she said.

Mrs. Nolen, in private life Mrs. David Strong, lives in Washington and goes to New York once a month for conferences with the staff of "Story Parade," which has a circulation of 60,000 to 70,000. She does her editing at home and has huge bundles of manuscripts forwarded to her every couple of weeks from Manhattan.

In addition to Mr. Strong and Debbie, there's son Stephen, 17. The family lives in an old, antique-turned-eight-room house in American University Park. Mrs. Nolen also has a household to manage in Washington, 100 miles from Washington, in which the family journeys every weekend about six months of the year.

Color Television Issue Is Shelved

WASHINGTON —(AP)— You can forget all about the big color television controversy—there is no going to be any color TV for the duration of the emergency.
A defense order calling for an immediate halt in color TV production was disclosed yesterday. It had these effects:
1. Indefinite postponement of color television for the public. Industry estimates ran for two years up.
2. If you have been wondering whether your black-and-white set is going to be the mode for very much longer, or whether to buy black-and-white or wait for color, your problem is solved.
3. Before the ban is off, new Color TV sets may be invented, or those in development perfected, thus perhaps setting right back where it began the long controversy over what kind of color TV the government should approve.
4. Whatever kind or kinds of color television eventually reach the market will probably be better than anything offered today.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senate shelving of Ambassador Philip C. Jessup's nomination as a United Nations delegate left to President Truman today a decision on whether to give him a recess appointment.
The Senate voted last night to pigeonhole the disputed Jessup nomination "without prejudice," but it confirmed the nine other persons Mr. Truman had named to serve as delegates or alternates at the November meeting of the U. N. General Assembly in Paris.
The action was by voice vote with no objections audible—on either shelving of the Jessup appointment or confirmation of the others.
The nine approved are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Warren R. Austin, chief of the American mission to the U. N.; and Reps. Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Vorys (R-Ohio), all first string delegates.
The alternates confirmed are John Sherman Cooper, former Republican Senator from Kentucky; Ernest A. Gross, Deputy U. S. Representative in the U. N. Security Council; Benjamin V. Cohen, Mrs. Anna Lord Strauss, and Channing H. Tobias.

Wants Hearing Shifted To N. C.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Rep. Doughton (D-NC) wants a hearing on a power project application involving a Virginia river shifted from a Virginia location to North Carolina.
The hearing is now scheduled Oct. 25 for Roanoke, Va. It involves a hearing on an application for a power dam in North Carolina which would use water from New River in Virginia.
Doughton has asked the power commission to hold the hearing at West Jefferson, N. C. instead of Roanoke.

State Fair Ends Today; Record Crowds Attend

RALEIGH —(AP)— The 84th annual state fair came to an end today.
On top for the finale were the usual midway performances, grandstand shows, and AAA sanctioned auto races. A special grandstand auto and motorcycle thrill show will be held at 10 p.m.
Headless of overcast skies, an all-time attendance record was set yesterday as well over 100,000 persons swarmed through the fairgrounds. Much of the crowd was composed of school children, who were admitted free.

Light Docket In Police Court At Friday Session

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Waldo M. Buck of Blount's Creek guilty of temporary larceny of an automobile belonging to a construction foreman on the college grounds Thursday. The court gave him 60 days on the roads.

James I. Joyner, Negro, was found guilty of careless and reckless driving in connection with a collision with a car driven by Lawrence E. Lilley, a soldier. The court gave Joyner 30 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $25. The court found Lilley not guilty of careless and reckless driving.

Robert Harrington, Negro, was found guilty of being drunk and damaging a mattress in the city jail. The court fined him $10 and ordered him to pay $5 for the damage. He was given until Saturday to pay up.

Louis Adams, paid $10 for being drunk.

Creating AN IDEA

This famous statue represents an idea. Rodin's "The Thinker" is not particularly the portrait of a man immersed in thought. It is the creation of a sculptor's sense of design, his love and appreciation for rhythm and form.

The artist transfers thoughts and ideas into visual beauty.

In much the same manner, the Church is the sculptor of man. It strives for perfection through instilling an understanding and glorification of God. The Church works with the beauty of soul.

Through the Church we realize that the only lasting and real beauty comes from within. We are enabled to perceive the divine nature of God by seeing His Spirit reflected in the ideals and actions of His creation. In this way is the Church our greatest asset in building a world of peace, harmony, and joy.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Pirates-Quakers Meet At 7:30 In College Stadium

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

There's a rumor making the rounds that Jack Lewis, the Elton end who played havoc with East Carolina two weeks ago, might be ineligible. Thus far, no one has been able to prove anything so far as I know.

It has been charged that Lewis played some junior college ball in Wilmington, his home town, before going to Elton. Wilmington has a junior college, Wilmington Junior College, but the school doesn't have a football team. They have a basketball team (which once lost about 25 or 30 games in a row) but it is doubtful as to whether or not Lewis could have played there. The college opened in 1947.

Some investigation should be made of the charges by responsible conference officials—if an investigation has not already been made, Lewis is an integral part of that Elton grid machine and deserves to know something. So do North State Conference followers.

Oscar "Fearless" Fraley, a United Press sports correspondent, has some pretty interesting anecdotes that he quotes from time to time in the UP's "Sports Parade." One of them concerns the Maulsby boys from Chapel Hill.

It seems that one of the brothers, Jack, is on the Carolina football squad while Tom is still doing his playing for the high school in Chapel Hill. They look very much alike and are causing Carl Snively no small amount of concern—according to Fraley.

Several times now, Snively has seen Tom downtown after the college football curfew. He has sternly told him to go home—not knowing that Jack, to whom he thought he was talking, already was in the sack.

Fraley concludes with the statement, "What an alibi when Jack does decide to go on the town."

Fraley also reports that the fixer being questioned by police in New York City has implicated several Southern Colleges and basketball players. It is charged that this particular briber operated extensively in the South although nothing official has yet been released.

54 Second Come-Back Puts Baksi Back Into Big Time

NEW YORK (UP)—His 54-second come-back victory put Joe Baksi back on the big time today.

The hulking heavyweight from Kilmport, Pa., was offered a fight at Madison Square Garden next month and one at London in December because he stiffened Gino Buonavino of Italy in 54 seconds at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

Baksi, scaling 220 pounds to Buonavino's 208, established a new main-event kayo record for St. Nick's and equalled the garden record achieved by Lee Savold against the same Buonavino March 19, 1948.

Coincidentally, "Backout Baksi" had originally been slated to fight Chinky Buonavino that March night in '48; but he made one of his really been having their troubles lately. First of all, Head Coach Herman Ball got dropped by owner George Preston Marshall when his team had difficulty outscoring the other teams in the professional football league in which the Redskins operate. Then, after Ball got dropped by the 'skins, the club had trouble lining up a successor.

Marshall went after Hank Anderson, the former State coach who had since been with the Chicago Bears, and tried to get him to take the job. Anderson was selling steel in Detroit but he finally let himself be talked into the job. He went to Washington, held a press conference to let his plans be known, and then set back while the fireworks started.

The Redskins started dickering with the Bears for the contract of Anderson. Anderson had quit his job with the Bears but the contract was good until December 31. George Halas, the owner of the Chicago club, told Marshall he would be glad to give up Anderson's contract for the Redskins' top tackle, Paul Lipscomb. Marshall said no.

Yesterday, Pro Football Commissioner Bert Bell ruled that Anderson still belonged to the Bears and couldn't sign with any other club until he was released by Chicago. Washington gave the job to Dick Todd, who had been one of Ball's assistants, and Anderson went back to his job selling steel.

Anderson was quoted by the Associated Press as saying, "A most unusual situation. I don't think it's fair to trade a player for a coach. Also, I never heard of a team standing in the way of a coach who had a chance for advancement."

Back to Oscar Fraley for a moment:

Fraley says a South Carolina football player, while making out an eligibility blank, came to a section which demanded his "marital status."

"Heck," grieved the football player, "I ain't never had any sea duty."

Fraley wonders what they teach in school these days.

Edwards Passes For Trio Of Touchdowns

Wesley Cannon Romps Through Right Tackles For 72-Yard Touchdown Run As Tornadoes Come From Behind

By MELVIN LANG

Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE—Ayden's Tornadoes won their third consecutive Coastal Athletic Conference football championship last night by blasting Farmville, 28-6.

A converted fullback who threw three touchdowns in his first start at quarterback, and a little 120-pound tailback who ran 72 yards for a TD in his first start led the winners. The quarterback, Hal Edwards, tossed three perfect strikes for scores during the night, two in the second quarter and one more in the final period. His scoring heaves covered 19, 20, and 22 yards respectively, to Harry Ross, Mac Whitehurst, and Delano Cox, in that order. Wesley Cannon was the little scabbard who just didn't seem to be stopped by the Red Devils all night long.

Farmville Scores

Farmville threw a scare into the Ayden ranks early in the first quarter as Jimmy Allen and Jesse Joyner broke through the Ayden forward wall to block an attempted punt by Gordon Hart. Hart recovered the kick on his own 31, but the ball went over to the Red Devils.

Quarterback Charlie Fitzgerald, who completed 10 of 19 passes during the contest, threw to end Roy Vick for 18 yards and a first down on the 13. He tossed another aerial to Vick, this time for 11 yards and a first down on the 2 yard line.

Joyner attempted to go off right tackle, but gained only a yard. Two quarterbacks sneaks by Fitzgerald netted a half yard loss. Then, on fourth down, Fitzgerald went around right end for the touchdown. Farmville led 6-0 as Fitzgerald missed on a running attempt for the extra point.

Cannon Romps

After an exchange of punts early in the second quarter, Ayden took the ball on its own 28 yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Cannon went off right tackle, seemed to be momentarily stopped, then spun off and went 72 yards for the tying touchdown. Edwards then went over the center for the extra point, to give Ayden the lead for the first time, 7-6, with approximately two minutes gone in the period.

The Tornadoes got their second touchdown five plays later. Farmville's Jimmy Allen took the kickoff from Whitehurst and carried to the Farmville 37. After a running play had netted four yards, left end Willis Manning intercepted one of Fitzgerald's passes on the Farmville 40 and carried it back to the 24 before he tripped over a fallen player.

Halfback Harry Ross picked up four yards, and then Edwards tossed 20 yards to end Mac Whitehurst, who pulled in the pass over the outstretched hands of two defenders in the end zone for the touchdown. Edwards went off right tackle this time for the extra point, and Ayden led 14-6.

Tripp Recovers Fumble

Farmville took the ensuing kickoff on its own 10 and carried to the 26, with the injured Joe Smith doing the running. Fitzgerald passed 14 yards to Vick, carrying the ball to the 40 yard line. Two plays later, Smith fumbled and Riley Tripp, 230 pound guard for the Tornadoes, pounced on the ball on the 40.

Three running plays netted 28 yards as Ross picked up five, Cannon gained one, and Edwards went off right end for 22 yards to the 12. On the next play Ross lost 11 yards back to the 23. An Edwards to Whitehurst aerial picked up four yards, and then the Tornado quarterback passed again, this time to Ross for 19 yards and a touchdown. Edwards again ran the extra point. Ayden led at this point, 21-6.

The first half ended a few minutes later with Farmville on the 40 yard line after a 23 yard kick-off return by Joyner and a 9 yard jaunt by Fitzgerald and a pass to Vick from Didda netted 15 yards.

Scoreless Third

After the hectic action in the second quarter, the third period seemed lifeless as both teams were unable to do anything. The teams exchanged punts three times in the period, with neither team penetrating into the others territory.

Soon after the final period began, Farmville was forced to punt once again. Cannon took the ball on his own 20 and carried back to the 30. Edwards was penalized 15 yards for offensive holding back to the 15. Two passes to Cannon netted 12 yards, and an offside against Farmville brought the ball out to the 32, where Delano Cox kicked.

Fitzgerald took the ball on his own 30 and bobbled it around for several seconds before Halfback John Cheek recovered for Ayden on the 28.

Cannon ran the first two plays, picking up 11 on the first and losing 5 on the next play, putting the ball on the 22. It was Cox's turn this time to haul in one of Edwards' passes, taking the ball on the dead run on the 5 and going over for the score. Edwards made his fourth extra point of the night through center to end all scoring for the evening.

BOB BRADLEY, a senior from Rocky Mount, will start tonight at center for the East Carolina Pirates who are facing the Guilford College Quakers in a North State Conference game. Bradley was recently promoted to the number one center's job. (Reflector Sports Photo by Roy Hardee).

Six Men Indicted On Racing Fixes

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UP)—A Rhode Island horse race "fixing" scandal which has resulted in the indictment of six men, including three jockeys, threatened today to spread to tracks throughout the East.

Yesterday's indictments—charging 12 "fixes" or attempted "fixes" at Lincoln Downs and Narragansett Park—were returned against jockeys Carroll Haire, Richard Lawless and Richard Williams; and Paul Kanall, Bob Crocker and a man known only as "Al."

Yellow Jackets Take 14-6 Loop Decision Over Phants

By FRED HANEY

ELIZABETH CITY—Elizabeth City's Yellow Jackets downed Coach Bill Kittrell's Greenville Phantoms here last night by the score of 14-6 in a Northeastern Conference tilt.

The Yellow Jackets scored early in the first period as Don Bright recovered a fumble by Greenville's Sid Briley on the Phantoms' 3-yard line. Halfback Bobby Sawyer knocked on the Greenville goal line for 2½ yards and then went over for the touchdown after Van Cutrell had been stopped twice by the Phantom line. Lindsey Heitit kicked the extra point to give the home team a 7-0 lead.

Greenville threatened for the first time a few minutes later as Briley passed 43 yards to Bob Perry, to place the ball on the Jacket 24-yard marker. Four attempted passes were incomplete and the ball went over.

Elizabeth City quickly kicked on the first play and Greenville began another march that carried to the 15-yard line. It was stopped there by Dickey Darling who intercepted one of Briley's passes on his own 6 and carried out to the 44.

On two successive plays, Cutrell passed to Charles Allen for 11 and 15 yards respectively. A series of running plays carried the ball to the Greenville 21-yard line. The Jackets were then penalized 15 yards and they were forced to kick as the second quarter opened.

Greenville again threatened as the phantom running attack began to function. The drive was stopped again by Darling as he intercepted another of Briley's passes, this time on the 17. On the first play from scrimmage, Darling broke loose for 33 yards. Elizabeth City was unable to fathom Greenville's defense and they were forced to punt.

Briley took the ball on his own 18 and returned it to the 38, but a clipping penalty nullified the play, placing the ball on the 16. Briley attempted to pass and Elizabeth City intercepted for the third time as Dyson Thurecht took it on the 33 and returned to the 22 as the half ended.

Phantoms Score

Greenville flashed some brilliant offense as the third period began, moving from their own two to the Jacket five before being stopped. They moved to the 9-yard line in 12 plays and then four smashes at the line netted but four yards and the ball went over to Coach Honey Johnson's eleven.

Heitit punted on the first play and Perry took it on the Elizabeth City 44 and returned to the 20 before he was stopped, from where the Phantoms launched their successful touchdown march. On the first play, Perry went over right tackle, broke for the sidelines, and then was pulled down by safety man Roy Forbes. Briley picked up four yards each on two tries and went over for the TD. Leon Moore's attempted conversion was blocked, and the Yellow Jackets led by 7-6.

The Phantoms again made a determined bid for paydirt, moving from their own 24 to the Elizabeth City 20. Their drive was mainly stopped by a 15-yard penalty as Deuz Morgan went over left tackle for 12 yards and then was called back. Greenville failed to pick up yardage, and Briley kicked out of bounds.

Then came the prettiest run of the night. Wallace Brumley, breaking through right tackle and outdistancing the Greenville secondary, went 73 yards for a touchdown. Heitit kicked the extra point, giving the Jackets their margin of victory, 14-6.

The Yellow Jackets scored again a few minutes later as Darling went around right end for nine yards. A backfield in motion penalty nullified the touchdown. The game ended two plays later.

Greenville picked up 15 first downs, 10 of them in the first half, while the winners could garner but nine. The Phantoms completed 6 of 14 passes for 71 yards, with four aeriels intercepted by Elizabeth City. The Jackets tried 15 and made six for 96 yards. Greenville was penalized 65 yards to 60 for the victories.

Dick Todd Named To Coach 'Skins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dick Todd, onetime Texas A. and M. backfield great is today's coach of the Washington Redskins football team.

He took over last night—stepping up from backfield coach—on what looked like a caretaker basis, pending the time when heartily (Hunk) Anderson, one of Notre Dame's legendaries and successor to Knute Rockne as Notre Dame coach, works out contract difficulties.

Although he is working as a steel salesman in Detroit, Anderson is under contract to the Chicago Bears as a line coach. The contract does not run out until Dec. 31. Owner Coach George Halas refused to let Anderson off the leash unless the Redskins would trade Tackle Paul Lipscomb. This Redskins President George Marshall said he could not—because of league rules—and would not do.

Conches came and went to fast at the Redskins wigwam yesterday it looked like someone had traded the tent flap for a revolving door.

Herman Ball was still coach as the day opened, although he had been on public notice from Marshall for several days that he was allegedly the sixth Redskins coaching casualty in nine years. He hadn't won any games in three tries this year. He took over in mid-season, 1949 when Vice Admiral Billik Weichel's contract was "cancelled" by mutual agreement.

Kentucky's Groza, Beard Admit Bribes

CHICAGO (AP)—State's Attorney John S. Boyle said early today that two former All-America basketball players on Kentucky's great Olympic championship team of three years ago—Ralph Beard and Alex Groza—have admitted taking bribes totaling $5,000 apiece to shave points in important games.

The two players, who guided Kentucky to NCAA championship in 1948 and 1949, were picked up at Chicago Stadium last night along with two other former Kentucky players, Cliff Barker and Joe Holland. Holland, Barker and another member of the great Kentucky teams—Wah Wah Jones—were cleared of any taint by Groza and Beard, Boyle said.

All now are members and stockholders of the Indianapolis Olympians of the National Basketball Association, a club Groza and Beard helped to organize after graduation.

The players were attending the annual All-Star basketball game in which their old coach, Adolph Rupp, directed the College squad against the Rochester Royals. Rupp disappeared after the game and could not be reached at his Loop Hotel room.

The four players were taken to the Criminal Court Building and there confronted by two New York gamblers who allegedly were the payoff men. Boyle did not reveal the gamblers' names.

The players were grilled by Assistant District Attorney Vincent O'Connor of New York.

"Beard was willing to talk," said Boyle. "And he admitted taking part in fixes. The highest money involved was a $1,500 payoff. In another game three players received $300 each. There are quite a number of games involved."

Boyle said one of the games involved was the Loyola of Chicago-Kentucky game in the 1949 Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Boyle said he sat in on the questioning of Groza and Beard by O'Connor but took no active part. He said Beard told how certain Kentucky players took money ranging from $300 to $1,500 per game to shave points in various games.

In the Loyola game, heavily favored Kentucky was supposed to win but by a very small margin, Boyle said.

"However, the fix backfired when Loyola came from behind in the final seconds and won the game," Boyle quoted Beard as saying.

Taking part in the roundup were James Canavan, a New York City detective, and James White, a special investigator of the New York District Attorney's office.

Representing the Illinois State's Attorney's office in the pick up was Lieut. James Oakley.

Two days ago in New York, O'Connor announced that the college basketball scandal was expected to spread to more schools and players. He made his assertion after the arrest of Joseph Benintende, alleged king pin of a basketball "fix" ring.

The fix scandal so far has involved 31 players from six teams, Bradley, Toledo, CCNY, Manhattan, Long Island University and New York University.

Tarboro Takes Rams, 27-7 In Non-Conference Game

TARBORO—Ken Brewer scored three touchdowns and passed for another here last night to lead Tarboro to a 27-7 victory over Robersonville in a non-conference clash.

Halfback Leonard Lilly went 30 yards on the second play from scrimmage before being pulled down from behind by Robersonville's Sonny James. Brewer passed to End George Koonce for a first down on the 10 yard line, and then went over himself for the first TD. Ronald Butler ran the extra point.

A few minutes later, Robersonville intercepted a Brewer pass and started what seemed to be a touchdown drive, but it was stopped two plays later when one of their passes was intercepted by Co-Captain James Morris, who carried the ball back for 40 yards. Nelson Morris then carried to the five, where Brewer carried the mail over for his and Tarboro's second touchdown. He passed to Butler for the extra point. Brewer climaxed a 50 yard drive late in the first period by going over for the third touchdown from the 10. The extra point was no good.

Early in the second quarter, Morris Everett broke away for 30 yards before being stopped on the Tarboro 20. He then turned right end for the 20 yards and crossed the goal-line with the lone Robersonville score. Sonny James plunged over for the extra point.

Truck And Two Autos In Wrecks

FARMVILLE—A transport truck occupied by three persons overturned about four miles from here early this morning on Highway 121, around five o'clock.

Investigated the accident reported that the truck, belonging to the Imperial Tobacco Company of Wilson, wrecked when the driver, L. Moye, lost control as he rounded a curve and overturned three times.

Injured were the driver, who suffered bruises and facial cuts, and "Doc" Jackson, 29, of Washington and Eleanor Walters, 27, of Greenville, who were shaken up by the accident.

Charges of careless and reckless driving were placed against Moye whose home address was given as Box 518, Smithfield.

Damage to the truck which was hauling lumber at the time of the accident, was placed at $1,500.

Two other accidents resulted in the arrest of one person on a charge of driving drunk, the Patrol reported.

A car driven by James Phillips, 28, of 304 Tyson Street, Greenville, ran into a ditch on a rural road near Winterville around ten o'clock last night.

Investigating officers N. F. Casey, D. E. Perry and Bruce Jackson charged the man with drunken driving and having no operator's license. Damage to the car was estimated at $150.

Another single car accident near Falkland last night resulted in heavy property damage to a car driven by Luther Gorham, 37, of Falkland, who turned over in avoiding hitting a bus, Patrolman Casey reported today.

Gorham was headed north on NC 43 when he ran up on the bus and he cut out to avoid hitting it, turning over and damaging the right front and side to the extent of $200. No charges were made. No one was injured.

Stalin, that much of the world has long entertained a different impression," Howard said.

"This is the product of a misunderstanding," said Stalin.

Kremlin Accused Of Aggressions

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States has accused Russia of carrying aggression "to the threshold of World War III" through "one of the most blatantly aggressive policies in modern history."

The State Department, in a sharply worded 37-page booklet entitled "The Kremlin Speaks," accused the Soviets of using their United Nations membership to "obstruct and subvert the purposes" of the world organization.

"They have preached division and hatred," the department said. "They have exploited the hungry and the homeless. They have 'liberated' countries by turning them into Soviet-run police states."

"They have preyed on the loyalties of free men, inciting the citizens of friendly powers to treason. They have cut off their own people by an iron curtain. They have carried their aggressions to the threshold of World War III."

The booklet cited quotations by Lenin and Stalin on the inevitability of war between capitalism and communism. As a warning against taking other Soviet statements at face value, the department also recalled some of Stalin's "peace" statements and his famous 1936 assertion to Roy W. Howard, president of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, that the Soviets never had planned world revolution.

The department cited Lenin's 1919 statement that "a series of frightful collisions between the Soviet republic and the bourgeois states will be inevitable." In 1949, the department recalled, Stalin underwrote Lenin's views that "war with capitalist countries... is inevitable" although it should be delayed.

Regarding international cooperation, the department noted that Stalin once said that "sincere diplomacy is no more possible than dry water or iron wood." It cited the key questions and answers between Howard and Stalin on world revolution.

"Does this, your statement, mean that the Soviet Union has to any degree abandoned its plans and intentions for bringing about a world revolution?" Howard asked.

"We never had such plans and intentions," Stalin replied.

New Reactor Is 'Best' Yet

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressional authorities hailed as an atomic "landmark" today a new kind of nuclear furnace which experts said could multiply A-bomb raw materials 100-fold.

The furnace, or reactor, is the "most advanced" thus far designed and is now operating at the Atomic Energy Commission's vast testing range near Arco, Ida.

Intimations of what the Arco reactor may accomplish were disclosed in a report issued yesterday by the House-Senate atomic energy committee. It is a "breeder" — by which is meant a nuclear furnace which produces more atomic fuel than it consumes.

The Arco breeder "went critical" — started operating — a few weeks ago and is "a kind of landmark," the committee said, because it captures from the Canadian research reactor at Chalk River, Ont., the distinction of being the world's "most advanced."

Railroad Benefit Bill Is Approved

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress has passed and sent to the White House a bill boosting benefits under the $2,400,000,000 railroad retirement system.

The compromise measure increases pension and annuity benefits by 15 per cent and survivors' benefits by 33 1-3 per cent. The fund is financed by a six per cent tax paid by both the employee and employer on wages of up to $300 a month.

A joint conference committee adopted a Senate amendment to shift all railroad workers with less than 10 years' service over to the social security system. The measure guarantees that railroad employees will get benefits at least equal to those they otherwise would get under social security.

BERWICK, Pa. (UP)—Mrs. Mary O'Neill, believed to be the oldest woman in the United States, died at the age of 113 yesterday.

Runaway Trio . . .

Then they set off to have the time of their lives. They bought fancy dresses — Roberta was wearing a Christian Dior $235 suit when arrested. And they bought $75 watches, cosmetics, lingerie and every thing else that caught their eye.

Next they went to a beauty parlor and had a full treatment. Roberta turned from brunette to blonde. Marilyn became a redhead. Allene, the most conservative, left her hair alone.

Unwearied by the shopping tour, the three started out for an evening's fun on Broadway, lavishing their money on cab drivers, nightclub photographers and anyone else they liked.

"We had dinner at the Latin Quarter night club," Roberta said. "Then we started back to our hotel. But on a corner we met three boys, about 18 or 19. They called, 'hi, goodlookings' and stuff like that."

The six then went to the Silver Dollar, a Broadway bar.

At the bar, the girls told the boys about their wealth. The city boys seemed skeptical of the country girls. So Roberta showed them the key to the railroad station locker. When the girls went to the powder room for a few minutes, one of the boys switched keys in Roberta's purse (although the girls didn't learn this until much, much later).

"When we came back the three had walked out on us," Roberta said. "but we didn't care because we had met other fellows."

Yesterday morning detectives happened to spot Allene on the street. They trailed her to a hotel where they arrested her and Marilyn. Then they picked up Roberta, who was registered with a youth in another hotel as man-and-wife.

The three girls were held on fugitive warrants for return to Massachusetts. Detectives are trying to find the three Broadway wolves who took in the country girls as suckers and made off with the $15,000.

"I'm sorry I ever took the money," Roberta sighed.

"I don't like to think about what will happen when I get home," Marilyn said.

"I'm sorry I ever ran away," Allene said.
