Phenomenal Jump In Output Of Pitt Cotton Gins; Twenty-Two Times Activity Of Last Harvest

Through October 1 this fall, Pitt County cotton gins had ginned 22 times more cotton than they did during the same period of the 1950 harvest season. The phenomenal increase in the amount of cotton being ginned in the county was announced today in a report from the Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce. The report showed that 2,041 bales of cotton had been ginned in Pitt County prior to October 1 this year compared with 92 bales of cotton ginned during the same period last year.

Government requested farmers to increase their cotton production to meet the demands of the defense program, the theme for Pitt County was 14,000 acres of cotton at a bale an acre. Winchester said this morning he believes the county had under cultivation slightly more than the 14,000 acres of cotton requested, and he estimated the average yield in the county will reach 480 pounds per acre—just 20 pounds under the goal of "a bale an acre" set for the county.

In 1950 Pitt County had 7,800 acres of cotton under cultivation but the average yield was only 120 pounds per acre and the county produced 1,872 bales of cotton. This year, Winchester said, the county should produce approximately 13,440 bales of cotton. "We have lots of cotton fields in the county that will not make a bale an acre this year," the county agent commented, "but I haven't talked to a single farmer who isn't getting at least a bale an acre. Most of them are getting one and one-quarter bales of cotton an acre." The highest yield he has heard about in the county so far this season, Winchester said, was two and one-quarter bales an acre reported by S. L. Dilda of the Fountain community. Winchester said Dilda has an eight acre plot of cotton which he irrigated three times during the growing season and also adequately treated the cotton plants for weevil control.

Fast Cotton Picker With Just 1 Hand

Combat Airplane Losses Outstrip U. S. Production

Writer Reports Shortages, Accidents and Ground Fire Responsibility

By CHARLES CORDDRY United Press Aviation Writer WASHINGTON—(UP)—The United States is losing combat airplanes faster than it can replace them. That is the plain fact behind curtailed flying in Europe, reduced bomber operations in Korea and planned transfer of jet fighters from the Air National Guard units to the Air Force Air Training Command. Losses have been suffered in combat in Korea and from all other causes in normal worldwide operations. There also have been temporary losses of planes grounded or reduced flying status because of engine and parts shortages. The extent of aircraft destruction and damage in Korea never has been revealed fully, and won't be while the fighting is going on. It is known, however, that more than 350 planes under Far East Air Forces (FEAF) control have been lost to enemy action. About 75 per cent of these were fighters knocked down by enemy ground fire, mainly while supporting ground troops. What is not generally known is that another 350 planes of all types operating under FEAF probably have been lost or damaged during the war for reasons not directly related to enemy action. These figures do not include Navy losses.

Ground Rules Agreed Upon For Resuming Truce Talks

Parleys Expected To Begin This Week; Will Take Up Where Former Sessions Left Off, With Debate Over Location Of Cease-Fire Line And Buffer Zone

MUNSAN, Korea (UP)—The United Nations today speedily ratified "ground rules" for resumption of Korean armistice negotiations and said it was ready to begin the talks tomorrow (tonight EST). The "ground rules" were incorporated in an eight-point agreement signed Monday by U.N. and Communist liaison officers at Panmunjom, where the truce talks are to be resumed. Vice Adm. G. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. armistice team, said the ratification of the agreement by the Communists by helicopter to Panmunjom. He suggested that the conference be resumed at 11 a. m. on the day following Communist ratification. The Communists already have tentatively suggested resumption of the truce conference Tuesday. The Communists broke off the armistice conference just two months ago Tuesday on grounds that a U.N. plane had bombed the then conference city, Kaesong. When the truce talks sit down again under the conference table, they will return to the problem that had deadlocked their sessions for nearly a month before the suspension—the location of a cease-fire line and buffer zones across Korea. The Communists have demanded that U.N. forces pull back to the 38th Parallel for a cease-fire. The U.N. has held out for an armistice along the present battleline, now as much as 40 miles above the parallel. Early Sunday the Communists backed down on their demand for an arbitrary ban on all U.N. flights over the conference security zones after the U.N. agreed to limit such flights "in so far as is practicable." As a result, the liaison teams of both sides turned out for the Monday meeting with the signing of the agreed "ground rules" for the truce conference the only business on the agenda. The agreement provided: 1. The truce conference will be resumed in Panmunjom, five miles southeast of the former conference site, Kaesong. 2. The conference site area shall extend for a radius of 1,000 yards. 3. No hostile acts shall be carried out by the armed forces of either side against the conference site area. 4. The conference site area shall be policed during meetings by a detachment of two officers and 15 men from each side. When the truce talks are not meeting, one officer and five men from each side shall be stationed in the area. 5. Both delegations shall have free access to and free movement within the conference area. 6. All armed forces of both sides shall refrain from hostile acts of any kind against a circular security zone extending for a radius of three miles around the Communist truce camp at Kaesong, a similar zone around the U.N. truce camp at Munsan, and a corridor extending 200 yards on either side of the Kaesong-Panmunjom-Munsan road. 7. The date and time for resumption of the truce conference shall be determined by agreement among liaison officers of both sides following ratification of this agreement. The U.N. command voluntarily moved artillery out of the three-mile security zone around Munsan in the "spirit of the agreement," although not required to do so.

British Troops Prepare To Seize City Of Suez

By UNITED PRESS British troops moved to seize the city of Suez itself today as demands from Moslems for Egypt to proclaim a "holy war" against Britain swelled throughout the country. Tank supported British troops seized four railway stations outside Suez and moved on to the city, gateway to the Suez Canal. Late reports said British infantry, tanks and armored cars had reached the outskirts of Suez. The British said constant jet fighter patrols had been ordered to keep a 24 hour watch on Egyptian troop movements. An Egyptian armored column was turned back from the zone last Thursday. The British already have cut off the Suez Canal zone in the rest of Egypt and reduced traffic in and out of the zone to a mere trickle. Troops man trenches around the perimeter. Suez is at the southern tip of the zone. Egyptian university professors joined Moslem religious leaders in urging the Egyptian government to proclaim the "holy war."

Crowded Docket Awaits Congress

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The second session of the 82nd Congress convening Jan. 3 will face a crowded work docket, topped by two continuing major problems—national defense and how to pay the huge cost of it. The first session which ended Saturday night dealt for nine and a half months with those key issues plus a variety of others, and the lawmakers chalked up a spending record for what technically is called peacetime. Congress went home after appropriating $91,600,000,000. That was the figure most members used, although Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said $90,000,000,000 should be added to it to cover so-called permanent appropriations—mostly interest on the national debt. In any event, only during World War II was the total for a single year greater. In 1943 Congress voted $147,000,000,000, the record. As Congress was closing up shop, Mr. Truman signed the $8,891,000,000 tax-increase bill which the lawmakers sent to him Friday. The President had asked for at least $10,000,000,000, and he said in a statement that half loaf he got was not enough.

Fugitive Caught By Raiding Party One Of Three Who Escaped City Jail, Re-Captured

By ROY HARDEE Reflector Staff Writer An early morning raiding party Sunday nabbed one of three county prisoners who broke out of the Greenville city jail two weeks ago last Friday. John R. Green of Greenville was taken into custody by a five-man raiding party of the Greenville Police Department around 3:30 Sunday morning at his home, 400 Allen's Alley. It was understood that Green had just returned home at the time the raid was staged. Officers stated that Green did not resist them, only pretended to be asleep at the time the officers arrived. Officers said that Green did not comment on his escape from the city jail along with other prisoners. In city court this morning, Judge Charles H. Whedbee sentenced the man to 12 months on the roads for breaking out of jail. He is now awaiting trial in Superior Court on a charge of midnight burglary. Still at large are James J. Cooper, 45, 5' 9", weighing 160 pounds, who was arrested for failure to comply with a court order. He has a long scar running from the corner of his left eye to his neck. John Weldon, 51, 5' 2", weighing 120 pounds, Weldon was charged with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. Officers making the raid were: H. B. Lilly, Caesar Corbett, N. H. Byrd, M. E. Corbett and W. B. Cole.

Bored Sailors In Thick Of Battle

WITH U. S. FIRST MARINE DIVISION, Korea (AP)—Two sailors looking for action jumped ship at Inchon and spent 34 days at the front with the U. S. Marines. They reluctantly gave themselves up today to marine officers on advice of a marine corporal they did not name. The two are Seaman Donald F. Kirk, 22, of Chillicothe, Ore., and Fireman Robert C. Rice, 21, of Grass Valley, Calif. Both are from the U. S. S. Estes, Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy's communications ship. "Life was too dull aboard ship," said Kirk, "so we decided a sure cure for monotony was to join the marines." They left the Estes in September. Army engineers gave them battle dress and food for the 125-mile hitch-hike to the marines' sector. They told the marines they were replacements. "They let it go at that," the youths said. The sailors wandered from one spot where the fighting seemed most interesting. They were armed with M-1 rifles they received from wounded marines.

Nine Killed When Hit By Bulldozer

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UP)—Nine Indians died when a bulldozer blade sliced through the truck on which they were riding like a giant scythe. Eight women and one man were killed Saturday night when they were riding to a tribal celebration. Two trucks were passing in opposite directions on a narrow bridge when the 3,600-pound tractor blade caught on the bed of a two-ton stake truck carrying 23 Indians to a celebration on the Papago reservation. The blade sliced through the truck, cutting one woman in half and hurling the bodies of the other victims from their truck. Nine other Indians were injured, including a small boy who suffered a possible concussion. Highway patrolmen said the women were sitting apart on the side of the truck struck by the blade. Tribal custom requires them to sit away from their menfolk. Officers said the combined speeds of the trucks gave the blade a force of 60 miles an hour. Trooper Jack Woods said there was room on the 20-foot-wide bridge for the two trucks to pass. The tractor blade was 11 feet long and extended a foot and a half over the side of one truck.

At Least Nine Die As Roof Of Church Falls In

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—At least nine children and adults were killed and 25 seriously injured yesterday in the collapse of a church roof during a communion instruction class for children. Some 400 persons had jammed San Juan Evangelista Church, one of the oldest in the city's port area. The victims were crushed to death by stone and timbers. Church officials expressed belief that vibrations from heavy pneumatic drills used in making recent street repairs may have contributed to the accident.

New Air Cadet School Opened

KINSTON (AP)—The New Air Force cadet training school at Sialing Field here began operations today. However, the first cadets will month. Classes will start Nov. 19. The school will handle between 500 to 600 cadets when it begins full operations. It is one of nine being established in the nation. The school will be operated by Serv-Air, Inc. at the present there are 28 officers and 50 enlisted men assigned to the base.

First Atomic Explosion In Maneuvers Is Set Off

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—The initial explosion in the nation's first atomic combat maneuvers was set off shortly after dawn today. The blast of the seventh atomic explosion within the continental United States rocked the Frenchman Flat atomic proving grounds at 9 a. m. EST, the Atomic Energy Commission announced. Until the announcement, watchers in Las Vegas, 65 miles south of the firing site, were not aware that the explosion had gone off as scheduled this morning. There was no blinding flash in the sky, perhaps because the sun had already lighted the sky to a light grey. Neither was there any rumbling, rolling waves of sound nor any shock waves such as had accompanied previous detonations in the first series of A-bomb tests. A 100-mile-an-hour wind at 35,000 feet was not considered by the AEC to be dangerous as a carrier of atomic dust, even though it was blowing south-southwest, in the direction of the Los Angeles area. The five blasts during January and February of this year all were visible for hundreds of miles—lighting up the skies northwest of Los Angeles, nearly 300 miles away, like a giant flashbulb. The short statement released by the AEC said: "One of the nuclear detonations announced by the AEC on Aug. 28 was held this morning at the Nevada test site." Reporters asked an AEC spokesman why the bomb blast was not visible in Las Vegas. "It apparently was too small," he replied. The AEC said it will not announce whether today's test was a success. This led to speculation that it might have been a fizzle.

Took Over Home In His Absence

Formosa Rocked By 29 Quakes In Sixteen Hours

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP)—The island of Formosa was rocked by 29 violent earthquakes in 16 hours today. Transport and communications were paralyzed along a 200-mile stretch of the east coast. First reports said "several hundred" persons were killed in towns near Taipei. Government officials feared the final toll may exceed 1,000. The quakes began before dawn. The Taipei observatory said a total of 151 tremors had been registered but only 29 were strong enough to be felt. Violence of the quakes ranged from sixth to first class on the observatory's scale. Taipei itself suffered no material damage but landslides cut roads and communications outside the capital and broke several mountain dams.

Protests Rise Up Over Ambassador To Vatican

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A wave of protest against President Truman's decision to enter regular diplomatic relations with the Vatican promised today to touch off a heated battle when congress convenes. There was little if any criticism of the President's selection of Gen. Mark Clark as ambassador to the Roman Catholic church state. The protests, some of them from the pulpit, were from Protestants who argued that establishment of diplomatic relations violates the constitutional injunction that church and state shall be separate. The U. S. has never had a full ambassador to the Vatican, although Myron C. Taylor served there as personal representative of presidents Roosevelt and Truman from 1940 until last Jan. 18, when he resigned. Late Saturday Mr. Truman announced that he had selected Clark, an Episcopalian who now is Commander of Army Field Forces, to be ambassador. A White House statement said the President felt "the purposes of diplomacy and humanitarianism will be served" and added that direct relations with the Vatican will help coordinate a common fight against communism. The White House statement noted that 37 other nations maintain diplomatic representatives at the Vatican.

Prison Farm Is Over-Crowded

CHICAGO (UP)—Drunks picked up along Chicago's notorious Skid Row today will have to sober up in the lockup and forego a pleasant 100 days on a prison farm. Authorities reported that the farm was over-crowded with drunks and there seemed to be an increase in the number of drunks picked up in the few days since Police Commissioner Timothy J. Conroy proposed the farm plan as a means to clean up the derelict hangout.

Raft Sighted

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass.—(AP)—A plane life raft, empty and partly awash, was sighted yesterday in the Atlantic near the Azores by one of the planes which have searched for a week for a crew of 11 airman and a downed Stratofortress. The big C-97 plane vanished last Monday after taking off from Lages Field in the Azores. Since then Airforce, Navy and Coast Guard planes and others from the Royal Canadian Air Force have swept an Atlantic area from Bermuda to Nova Scotia in day and night search. A Westover spokesman said the raft was spotted by a Navy flier, Lt. Com. Charles House, and a vessel immediately headed for the area.

A.B. Whitley Speaks To Junior Club

On Wednesday night, October 17, the Junior Woman's Club met at the club house with Mrs. Kenneth Mercer, Mrs. Stephen Sudor and Mrs. James Davenport as hostesses.

The president, Mrs. Tom B. Brown, presided over a brief business session at which time the project chairman outlined future club projects, especially a Bake Sale to be held on October 27. Mrs. A. B. Whitley Jr. was named chairman of a committee composed of Mrs. Howard Grady, Mrs. James Meredith, Miss Kathleen Whitchard, Mrs. E. C. Harris and Mrs. Frank Dall.

Miss Marion Perry, one of the nine Junior delegates attending the District Meeting in Colerain on Oct. 9, reported on the meeting.

It was announced by the president that Miss Marion Perry was elected vice president of District 15 for the next term.

In the absence of the treasurer, it was unofficially reported that on Tag Day $390 was collected, and that Troop 4 of the Girl Scouts was awarded the prize for their outstanding help.

At the conclusion of the business session Mrs. Kenneth Hite, chairman of the Fine Arts Department, presented A. B. Whitley Jr. who spoke on "Color Distributions Throughout the Home." Mr. Whitley's talk proved most interesting and informative. During the discussion which followed he answered questions and gave ideas on individual problems.

Mrs. A. M. Moseley left this morning for Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Sugg have gone to housekeeping in one of the O'Hagan houses on Fifth Street.

It has passed the average time of year for the first frost.

Owing to the large attendance of Winterville high school it is necessary for them to increase their number of teachers and they have secured the services of Prof. Olive, a graduate of Wake Forest College.

Tar Heel Named 'Man Of South'

ATLANTA (UP)—David Owens, Charlotte businessman and civic leader, has been named Man of the South for 1951, by the magazine Disse Business.

Owens, in 1950 elected Charlotte's Man of the Year, is vice-president of the Ivey Companies and is a former president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Editor Hubert Lee said Owens was selected because of his "outstanding contribution to the community" in the fields of education, charity, civic leadership, government and business.

Owens has twice received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan award, given annually by the Southern Society of New York.

In recent months Owens has donated some $500,000 to educational, child care and medical institutions in the Charlotte area.

He is a trustee of Queens College and Presbyterian Hospital and has served as president of several state and local merchant associations. Owens headed Charlotte's first Community Chest campaign and organized the Goodfellows Club there.

Cruise Of Four On Raft Is Ended

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The four crewmembers of the raft "Lethargia" enjoyed the luxury of hot food and modern plumbing today after 99 days of roughing it down three rivers.

The rafters, two men and two women, all single, ended their 1,800-mile trip at 3:30 p.m. (CST) yesterday after floating down the Allegheny, Ohio and Mississippi rivers from New Kensington, Pa.

The girls, Mary Ella McCrady, 24-year-old sociology graduate from Ann Arbor, Mich., and Geraldine Garcia, 24, a Boston commercial artist, were met by their mothers when the raft pulled up at the foot of Canal Street.

The foursome, suntanned and frayed, were met by the press and about 200 onlookers but were overlooked by New Orleans officials.

On shore the mothers met for the first time Don Brown, 24, of Detroit and Milton Borden, 30, of New Bedford, Mass., the men on the crew.

Mrs. James Domingos, widowed mother of Mary Ella who works in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, said she had not objected to the unchaperoned junk.

"Mary Ella is a very open and frank person," she said. "I've never worried a minute about that, just their safety. I was so relieved when I heard two men were going. At first she wanted to make the trip with just girls."

Mrs. James Harney, Geraldine's mother, said she objected to the trip at first because of the danger but not because it was unchaperoned.

"Honey, I'm so proud of you," Mrs. Domingos told her daughter when she stepped ashore.

Surprize Shower Given Member At Canasta Party

The Canasta Caper Club at one of its regular weekly meetings on Thursday of last week, gave a surprise birthday shower to one of its members.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Martha O'Mara, with Mrs. Harry Roberts as hostess.

After several games of canasta, a large gaily decorated birthday cake was brought in and placed on the card table at which Mrs. Lyman Briley was sitting. The cake was lighted with the appropriate number of candles, and the players all gathered around Mrs. Briley and sang "Happy Birthday."

Her "Sunshine Pal," another club member, presented her with a small shoulder corsage of pompons and the club as a group gave her a table bouquet of dahlias and fern. A number of birthday gifts were showered upon her, much to her surprise and delight.

Refreshments of fruit jello topped with whipped cream and slices of the homemade birthday cake were served by the hostess.

At this meeting a new member was also welcomed into the club, bringing the total membership to eight.

Judge Continues Buyers Injunction

KENANSVILLE (AP)—Superior court Judge Henry L. Stevens has continued a mandatory injunction against five tobacco companies to compel them to add a fifth set of buyers on the Kinston tobacco market.

The decision came at the conclusion of a hearing here Saturday. The companies gave notice of appeal.

At the same time, Judge Stevens dismissed contempt citations issued by him against the five companies after they failed to abide by the injunction.

Judge Stevens ruled at a hearing Oct. 13 that the tobacco issue affected the public interest. The Kinston Tobacco Board of Trade sought the injunction against the companies.

The five firms named in the injunction were Liggett and Myers, American Suppliers, the Imperial Tobacco Company, the Export Leaf Tobacco Company, and the Kinston Tobacco Company.

There are ten species of skunk in the Americas.

October Bride

Mrs. James Bascom Allen, who before her marriage October 14 in the Farnville Christian Church was Miss Hilda Rebecca Craft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Craft of Winterville. Mr. Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Allen of Farnville.

Wheeler-Nobles Vows Pledged In Saturday Rites At Methodist Church

In an afternoon ceremony marked with dignity and beauty, Miss Mary Elizabeth Nobles and Robert LaThrop Wheeler pledged their vows on Saturday at half after four o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Leonidas Nobles of this city and the granddaughter of Mrs. Camilla Daniel Moore. The groom is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Druid Emmet Wheeler of Rockford, Illinois, and Sarasota, Florida.

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Paul Toll, organist, presented a half hour program of music prior to the entrance of the wedding party. Harper Darden of Richmond and Greenville sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" from the Oratorio "Ruth" by Gounod. As the couple knelt for the benediction, the vested choir sang Lutkin's arrangement of "Benedictus."

The church was decorated with floor baskets of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, pompons and Oregon, huckleberry and plumosa fern. One basket of the flowers was on either side of the chancel and the other was banked against the pulpit background of fern and cathedral candles. Streamers of the greenery were entwined in the altar rail, and the whole effect was lighted by cathedral candles in seven branched candelabra. The couple knelt upon a white satin prayer cushion for the benediction. Pews for the families were designated by white satin bows and sprays of white gladioli.

The bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Kittrell as maid of honor. She wore an ankle length gown of dove grey embroidered net over shell pink taffeta. The shirred bodice had an off-the-shoulder neckline and the bouffant skirt was designed with a demi-pleum and a gathered front panel. She wore a Queen of Scots bonnet of grey velvet and maline. Her flowers were Briarcliff roses.

The bride's maids, Miss Margaret Lee Duke and Miss Pe...y Mitchell, wore dresses designed like that of the maid of honor. They also wore of grey embroidered net over pink taffeta, and they wore bouquets of Briarcliff roses also.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Lon Nobles, Jr. Her wedding gown was of ivory satin and Chamilly lace designed with a yoke of nylon illusion outlined with an applique of lace. The front of the dress was fashioned with a straight panel of the lace which fell from the neckline to the hem. The skirt was gathered over the hips, and in the back, a double inverted pleat fell into a long court train. The long sleeves ended in calla lily points over the hands and were fastened with self-covered buttons. From her specially designed Juliet cap of Chamilly lace a gathered veil of bridal illusion fell in soft folds to the floor. She carried a cascade bouquet of white purple throated orchids showered with satin streamers and valley lilies. Her only ornament was a heirloom pearl pendant that belonged to her mother.

The groom was accompanied by his father, Druid Emmet Wheeler, as best man. Ushers were John Camlin of Rockford, Illinois, Thad Moore Nobles, brother of the bride, from Red Springs and Greenville, David J. Whitchard III and Francis Jordan of Washington, North Carolina, and Greenville.

The ushers were dressed in formal daytime attire with black cutaway coats, pleated striped trousers, grey waistcoats, Ascot ties, and grey suede gloves. Their boutonnières were white carnations.

Mrs. Moore, grandmother of the bride, wore a street-length dress of black crepe with black accessories and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Wheeler, mother of the groom, was in a dress of silver grey taffeta with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony Thad and Lon Nobles, brothers of the bride, entertained at a reception at the Woman's Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Moyer II were at the door to the club house to extend greetings to the guests. In the front hall were Rev. and Mrs. Leon Russell and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell. Garlands of smilax festooned the stair rails and a massive arrangement of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and snapdragons was placed on the landing rail. In the front parlors, the mantels were banked with magnolia leaves and lighted tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther D. Moore introduced the guests to the receiving line, which was formed just inside the doorway to the reception hall. In the receiving line were the bride and groom, Col. and Mrs. Wheeler and the members of the wedding party. At the punch table to one side of the hall were Mr. and Mrs. David S. Moore of Washington, D.C., Miss Eliza Moore of Richmond and William O. Moore, who poured lemon sherbet punch. The large crystal bowl was on a hostess platter which was encircled with smilax and a garland of valley lilies and pompon chrysanthemums. The table was lighted with candles in a pair of two-branched candelabra which were tied with tulle and flowers.

The long refreshment table was placed in front of the large stone fireplace. It was laid with a white cutwork banquet cloth and garlanded with tapers of smilax. The centerpiece was a lavish arrangement of white Garza chrysanthemums and snapdragons flanked by triple candelabra with white tapers ruffled with maline and pompons. Platters of French pastries, canapés, salted nuts, bridal mints, diamond-shaped wedding cakes and cheese pastries adorned the table. All the appointments at this refreshment table were of crystal. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Moore and Mr. Hugh Moore presided at this table.

The bride's table was beautiful in its simplicity of arrangement. A five tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom was in the center, and the silver-rimmed toast cups were at one side of it, while the nuptial cup was on a raised dais on the other side. Ribbon streamers from the cake and garlands of smilax were the only decorations.

Assorted ices in shapes of fruit in tiny bite-size pieces were wheeled around on a tea cart and served from an iced bowl encircled with clusters of grapes and greenery.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pierce presided at the register table, where the guests signed their names in a white satin bride's book. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson bade the guests goodbye at the side door.

For her traveling costume, Mrs. Wheeler chose a suit of milk brown wool with accessories of lizard skin and a close fitting hat of dark brown velour with a nose veil. Her corsage was the orchids lifted from her bridal bouquet. Following a wedding trip the couple will be at home at Hill House, Safford Road, Rockford, Illinois.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville High School and Brenau College in Gainesville, Georgia, where she was a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, serving as its president in her senior year. The groom attended Kemper Military Institute and served for three years in the Army Air Force during the second world war. Upon his discharge from the army, he attended Georgia Military College in Milledgeville, where he graduated. He is associated with a chemical and dye plant in Rockford, Illinois.

Among the out of town guests present for the wedding were the following: Col. and Mrs. Druid Emmet Wheeler and John Camlin of Rockford, Illinois; Mrs. Everett Spikes and Miss Camilla Spikes of Burlington; Miss Sidney Davenport and Mrs. J. Paul Davenport of Pactivus; Miss Rose Messick of Raleigh; Mrs. James Groome of Fayetteville; Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Moyer of Tarboro; Mrs. Iverson Skinner of Williamston; Mr. and Mrs. F. Raymond Moore and Francis Jordan of Washington, N. C.; Miss Eliza Moore, H. Rivers Goodall and Miss Alice Goodall of Richmond; Mrs. Thomas of Florence, South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. David S. Moore and Hugh Moore of Washington, D.C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Meredith Moore and John Meredith Moore, Jr. of Greensboro; Miss Peggy Mitchell of Winston-Salem; Miss Margaret Lee Duke of Rowland; Lon Nobles of Beaufort, Texas; and Thad Nobles of Red Springs.

Pre-nuptial Parties

On Friday and Saturday preceding the wedding, Mr. Wheeler and Miss Nobles were entertained at a luncheon, a wedding supper and a wedding breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore of Washington, N.C. were host and hostess at a luncheon at the Washington Country Club on Friday at high noon. Guests were members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests. The hall of the club was decorated with magnolia leaves and pastel chrysanthemums, while the long luncheon table bore a centerpiece of yellow chrysanthemums which were arranged in a long low bowl. Yellow tapers were spaced at intervals down the middle of the table and bridal tulle marked the seating arrangement of the guests. A three course luncheon was served.

Immediately following the rehearsal on Friday night, the wedding party was invited to the Greenville Country Club as supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Moyer II. The club house was lovely with greenery and white flowers, with illumination provided by candlelight. A delicious fresh fruit punch was served and an antique silver Lazy Susan tray held an assortment of delectable hors d'oeuvres. From a long center table Mrs. Luther Moore served sliced turkey and accompaniments buffet style. The guests were seated at another long table placed on the glass-enclosed side porch. The serving table bore an arrangement of white flowers and fern flanked by tapers, and at the table on the porch, a large bouquet centered the table, with smaller arrangements placed at intervals down the center. The guests dined by candlelight.

Preceding the wedding on Saturday, Col. and Mrs. Wheeler, parents of the groom, entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Hotel Proctor. The bridal party was seated at a long table decorated with white flower and fern, while other guests were placed at auxiliary tables. All the tables bore burning candles which were tied with tulle, fern and flowers. A two course breakfast of grapefruit, broiled country ham, creamed eggs on toast and coffee was served.

Future Of UN Is Brandis' Subject

"The Future of the United Nations" will be the topic of Dean Henry L. Brandis' speech at the United Nations Day celebration here Wednesday at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

United Nations Day commemorates the signing of the Charter six years ago, October 24, 1945, in San Francisco. Since that time the 50 charter nations have increased to 60. The UN has been instrumental in bringing to the status of a member nation such countries as Israel, India, Pakistan, and Indonesia. It has aided in development of the Republic of Korea, and under the Trusteeship Council Libya will become independent in 1952 and Samoiland in 1960.

The Economic and Social Council has worked for the culture, education, economic and social good of countries that need assistance, spending millions of dollars for food, clothing, and serums for the needy.

Brandis will discuss the question of what the UN is, what it has done, and what its future is.

The United Nations Day celebration will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Strength for the Day

By FARI I. DOUGLAS
AN OLD MATTER RE-EXAMINED
What is liberty?
Some people say that liberty is the right to do whatever we want to do whenever we want to do it. But this is not liberty; this is license. In government it leads to anarchy. On the highway, it leads to the furious arousal of tempers and to automobile accidents. In family life, it leads to tears and suicide. In the field of morals, it leads to grossness a thousand times worse than the free, impulsive life of animals.

Liberty is not the right to do whatever we want to do whenever we want to do it. Ultimately, the word "liberty" goes back to a Sanscrit word meaning "to grow up." The free person is the person who has grown up—especially the person who has grown up emotionally. The worst tyrant before whom we can ever bow is ourselves. The only person truly free is the man who has acquired self-control to such a degree that he is easily the master of his own impulses. The anarchist and libertine are not free; they are prisoners of their own worst selves. The free man is the man who has grown up—matured. He has learned how to live life with ease and grace because he has learned how to control himself. He is free.

How Much Money Is A Billion Dollars?

With the adjournment, Saturday of the 82nd Congress, the American people watched the curtain rung down on the most liberal spending "peace time" legislature in the history of this nation.

Including the fixed appropriations for interest on the national debt, the 82nd Congress authorized the spending of more than $97,000,000,000. The greatest chunk of the money went into the country's defense program either here at home or abroad.

Just how much money 97 billion dollars is, it is difficult to say. The American people have so long been talking government dollars in terms of millions and billions that it has become difficult for us to really evaluate the amount of money the government is spending.

One of the best ways we have heard recently to explain what a billion dollars is, goes something like this:

If a man had gone into business at the time of Christ 1,951 years ago with a capital of one billion dollars, and since going into business had suffered a net loss of $1,000 every day, his losses through the end of this year would amount to only $712,115,000—over $287 million short of the billion capital he had to begin with. Yet for one year alone the Congress has made appropriations amounting to more than 97 billion dollars.

Don't Get Caught In The Mire

Greenville officials should make sure the present clean-up campaign against the insanitary conditions in some of the residential sections of the city does not bog down as it has on occasions in the past.

This time it has gotten a good start, and if the officials keep their whole weight behind the movement practically all the insanitary conditions can be removed within a reasonable time. If they let the program slide as they have at least twice in the past, however, very little will have been accomplished.

The first major threat to the clean-up program has come with the threat to contest the sanitation ordinance as it appears in section three of chapter 20 of the city code. The attorney general of the state has written an opinion, saying the law, because of its wording, is invalid. Some property owners have threatened to take the ordinance to court in a test case. Be that as it may, the city officials have instructed the sanitation inspectors to continue their checks and to idict those individuals who fail to comply with the sanitation code of the city.

In the opinion of The Reflector, the officials are standing on firm legal footing in issuing such orders regardless of whether the particular ordinance cited is contested or not. The city aldermen in article five of section seven of the city charter are given power to see to the installation of sanitary plumbing facilities in all residences of the city and connection to city sewerage lines where they are available. The article says in part, "The board of aldermen . . . may require property owners owning property abutting any street upon which there is a sewerage line to make proper connections with said sewerage line and keep the same in repair in such manner as the said board may direct; and should any owner of such property refuse or fail to so construct or repair such . . . sewerage connections or repairs thereto, after twenty days notice, the board may have the same constructed or repaired or connected and the cost thereof shall be added to the taxes paid on said property on the tax list of the next succeeding year and collected as taxes are collected upon property listed for taxation."

The aldermen, in accordance with the provision of the city charter have directed that Vogal type toilets are not suitable for proper sanitary facilities within the city limits. From the information available, the question of Vogal toilets already in use on property in the city was one of the underlying factors which brought about the protest of the sanitary law.

For the most part the landlords are cooperating with the sanitation clean-up of the residential sections of the city, but as in all cases, there are a few who apparently seem eager to leave no stone unturned to thwart the movement and save themselves $100 or so dollars while their tenants continue to live in filth because of the lack of proper sanitary facilities. These few landlords should not be allowed by the city officials to wreck the program which is designed for the betterment of Greenville as a whole, and a program which already has been delayed too many years.

WASHINGTON—The Senate Judiciary Committee and the Senate itself dealt crime-chasing Senator Estes Kefauver a severe body blow in his battle with Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, oldest man on Capitol Hill, for control of politics in the Volunteer State. As previously suggested here, it shows that a prophet is without honor in his own backyard.

Senator McKellar recently introduced a bill for creation of a new judicial district in Middle Tennessee, where he needs to build political strength, since he comes from Memphis in the western end of the state. "Mac" is looking toward a hard primary fight with Representative "Al" Gore, who will have the backing of Senator Kefauver and Governor Gordon Browning.

CHOICE—When McKellar's measure reached the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Mr. Kefauver is a member, the latter amended it so as to include Western Tennessee in the new judicial district. The Kefauver amendment is believed to be politically inspired, for the conference of United States federal judges had urged the McKellar plan.

Senator Kefauver and his sidekick, Mr. Gore, come from the central section of Tennessee—Chattanooga and Carthage—and they need to make friends in the Memphis area. If Mr. Gore expects to have any chance of defeating the McKellar-Crum machine next year.

When confronted with the McKellar-Kefauver choice, the Senate Judiciary Committee sided with the "old man" without the formality of a vote. And their recommendation was endorsed by the Senate with a three-to-one vote.

The Truman leadership led the fight against the man whose expose of the connection between criminals and politicians helped to defeat several Truman Democrats in the 1950 Congressional elections.

MIDDLE—However, there are signs that President Truman is playing it straight down the middle in the anti-McKellar movement headed by Senator Kefauver, Governor Browning and Representative Gore.

Although leaning toward the octogenarian legislator, who is also President pro tem of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Mr. Truman is keeping contact with both camps.

He withdrew the nomination of Frank Waring as a Tennessee Valley Authority Commissioner because of McKellar objections, although Mr. Kefauver approved the selection. The Barkley-McFarland leadership lined up with the McKellar faction in the judgeship fight.

But in the allocation of new war factories, including a $25,000,000 plant for construction of guided missiles at Bristol, Tenn., as well as with the plan for new TVA steam generating units, the White House is giving aid and comfort to the Gore-Kefauver-Browning faction.

The new factories, which herald new population, purchasing power and an economic upsurge, are going to the young rebels' central and eastern sections of the state, with Mr. Truman's blessing.

LEADER—President Truman faces a difficult problem in picking a prominent politician to succeed William Boyle as chairman of the Democratic National Committee. The man he selects, unlike Mr. Boyle, must be above reproach, for he will presumably be the party's political leader in the 1952 presidential campaign, assuming that Mr. Truman is the candidate.

Almost every name on the White House desk as a possible Boyle replacement is engaged in the public or private practice of law and politics. New York State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick, frequently mentioned as the new chairman, is deep in real estate in New York and Florida.

He would demand at least $100,000 a year as chairman, whereas Mr. Boyle dragged down only $25,000 annually. These boys are not in politics for their health.

GATE—Ex-Senator Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania, like all "lame ducks," has built up a lucrative law practice at Washington, appearing before agencies whose personnel he helped to appoint.

Moreover, if he wants to try to regain his Senate seat next year, a political apprenticeship as a Boyle successor may not help him. If Mr. Myers does not run again, Representative Dan Flood of Wilkes-Barre is angling for the Senate nomination.

Incidentally, President Truman fired Boyle as coldly and summarily as he gave a wide-open gate to Louis A. Johnson, former Defense Secretary. As I noted recently, Harry S. Truman can "roll with the punch" along with such artists as Joe Louis, Joe DiMaggio and Sugar Ray Robinson.

OIL—About the only progress made in Friday's meeting of the gasoline price investigating committee was that the job facing the group is too big for one state to handle. The committee was named sometime ago by Governor Scott, at the instance of Attorney General Harry McMullan, upon complaint of independent oil jobbers that the big companies were running them out of business. Immediate concern was the price war raging in the piedmont. Back of that was the question of secret rebates, and alleged domination of the price scale by Standard Oil.

FACTS—Admittedly facts are hard to get. The reason is simple. The only people who know the facts are the big oil companies which control production, refining transportation and distribution of petroleum products. Since the facts would be used to the detriment of the big companies' profits structure, it is understandable that they are not made easily available to the public. Statements were made at the committee session that 70 percent of production is controlled by 30 big companies; that all the big pipe lines are owned by the same companies; and that tanker ships cannot be had except by lease from the producing outfits.

NATIONAL—The problem is not confined to North Carolina, although further statement was made that this state has larger portion of the retail business conducted by independent jobbers than any other. Twenty-six states have associates of independent jobbers and have representation in a national council which will meet next month in Chicago. President Taylor of the independent group said that he did not think the state wanted to destroy a large number of its own business men just to give temporary advantage to a part of the citizenship. Unintentionally, perhaps, that comment stated the real problem. This whole investigation started because of a gasoline price war, another way of saying because motorists were buying gasoline cheaper than its probable real worth. It is hard to get enthusiasm for a crusade against lower prices, whatever basic principles may be involved. James Powell, SBI director, reported that in recent conversation with justice department folks in Washington, they told him they were not interested where the price trend was down. Only when it is up, as it is now in Arkansas, do they move in.

INFLUENCE—Governor Scott pretty well summed up the situation in very few words. He said he was convinced it would take the combined thinking of every member of this committee and others interested to solve the problem. He further said he thought the chief accomplishment having responsibility in such matters to quicker action, and might have considerable influence upon the congress and the general assembly to face the matter squarely.

CANDIDATE—Most folks have concluded that Henry W. Jordan, chairman of the highway commission, will not be a candidate for governor next year. However, W. Henry Jordan of Efland has indicated his name will be on the ballot. A return-address envelope accompanying a letter to the governor's office, carries on its face the statement that the addressee is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1952. The Orange county Jordan has figured in pre-primary speculation for state office several times. He may decide, as did Olla Ray Boyd of Pinetown, to bypass the governorship and go out for presidency of the United States in 1956.

APPROACH—There seemed to be some indication that Governor Scott and Attorney General McMullan were disposed to "go after" the big companies. Mr. Brooks insisted the purpose of the committee was to protect the people of North Carolina. That drew comment from President Taylor of the independent group that he did not think the state wanted to destroy a large number of its own business men just to give temporary advantage to a part of the citizenship. Unintentionally, perhaps, that

What Other Papers Are Thinking

BYRNES LEADS STERN REVOLT
(The Tulsa World)

Governors of 45 States, all political leaders, some of them giants, naturally could not be confined to the Gatlinburg program of attention to mutual problems of government or regional interests. Some political features showed up in the sessions, and the sideroom meetings and press conferences and interviews were wholly political. Each governor is assumed to have decisive influence in shaping up of delegations to the national conventions. Doubtless a great deal of medicine was made, not necessarily in smoke-filled rooms but under the shadow of the Great Smokies.

There were two particularly acute political situations in view at all times—the struggle over the Republican nomination for President and the revolt of Southern States against President Truman. An anomaly marked the stage of pre-campaign developments. The Republicans have too many candidates and the Democrats only one. Out of this peculiar condition one very potent figure emerges. James F. Byrnes has been unofficially confirmed as the Democratic rebellion against the Truman administration. At Gatlinburg he appeared as chief quizzier in a fast and heated tussle with Oscar Ewing, one of the chief men of the administration, over the question of publicity for the relief rolls in States. The Federal rule is against exposure of the names; the governors generally want the rolls revealed so they can fight off the great abuses from chiselers. It was made plain by Byrnes, Allan Shivers of Texas and others that there is going to be stern opposition to the nomination of Truman. This is a deliberate movement, not a hurried and angry affair like the Dixie revolt in 1948. That uprising was serious, however, and it indicated what a more reasoned and better organized movement might accomplish. Mr. Byrnes has an impressive background—long-time member of Congress, high-class and smooth operator in the Senate, Economic Stabilization director in war time, justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Secretary of State. He will certainly contribute dignity as well as celerity and steam to the Southern revolt. The prospect of a Republican and Southern Democratic coalition next year is rather poor; but it has been indicated that the States' rights forces could easily be put in behind Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. In Gatlinburg, Governors Dewey and Byrnes sat side by side. Dewey is spearheading for the general.

It may be that the Federal office-holders can swing some Southern delegations for Truman, but they can't guarantee that the States themselves will continue their long allegiance to the party. Their claim is Truman et al have kidnapped the Democratic Party. Spending, State's rights and scandals in government will be available texts. The lines of a strenuous season of politics in the South next year are already defined

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
The growing development of multiple-risk insurance policies will be a great help to business men who have always complained about the red tape and extra expense involved in buying fire insurance from one firm, casualty from another, burglary usually from another, burglary of success in selling experimental all-risk insurance to private home-owners, several major companies are now planning to make this type of coverage available to business operators.

The cost-cutting, buyer attracting possibilities of multiple-risk insurance was really proved to the insurance companies by the popularity with home-owners of the now-familiar extended-coverage feature of fire insurance policies, combining wind-storm and other home damage for a small extra fee. Now home-owners in some areas are able to buy insurance protecting against vandalism, theft, personal liability, fire, windstorm and other hazards to the home, all in one policy.

The saving in premium costs of such a multiple-risk package is said by insurance companies to be about 20 per cent, and is made possible by the obvious reduction in selling and administrative expenses by writing one policy instead of several.

Here's an example of how such all-risk policies are being worked out for business firms too. One major insurer, Aetna Insurance Co., now has a policy tailored for auto manufacturers which covers almost all property against most hazards which may be encountered outside their premises (except war, theft, explosion).

Why has this obviously efficient and economical idea taken so long to develop? For one thing, some insurers in the fire and inland marine field are concerned that all-risk policies invade their traditional preserves. For another, various rates for such insurance, have opposed policies which cut across such boundaries. 'Till until several years ago most state insurance laws didn't permit a company to write policies in several fields. As the result of recent revision in statutes, most states now do permit multiple-peril policies, and many of the companies which previously opposed them are enthusiastically climbing on the bandwagon.

CONSUMERS MAKING MORE BUT SPENDING LESS
The Bureau of Agricultural Economics has confirmed the reason for the unexpected business slack. Incomes are rising, it is true—but people are just spending less. According to BAE, weaker demand and generally ample supplies have been responsible for the downward trend in farm and wholesale prices, currently averaging four per cent below the mid-March peak. Prices to farmers have dropped even more sharply: down seven per cent.

HOW TO SIZE UP PEOPLE
A LA LAIRD
Eleanor and Donald Laird, writers on business psychology and authors of a new book, Sizing Up People, offer these interesting suggestions for evaluating job applicants. Ask for a pencil: If the applicant can't produce one immediately without fumbling, he is unsystematic. Drop a pencil: If the interviewee picks it up he is the helpful type. Tell him to hang up his hat and sit down when there is no place to do either: This is supposed to test his self-reliance. Ask him what he had for dinner last Sunday. If he answers without hesitation, according to the Lairds, he has a good memory.

This reporter undoubtedly would not be a good man to hire. We have no idea what to do if someone suggests sitting down when there is no place to sit, except sit on the floor, nor can we remember what we had for dinner last Sunday. But the Old Promoter who visits this office occasionally would be a good applicant. If you drop a pencil, he'll reach for it unhesitatingly and put it right in his pocket. No doubt there are less easy but more searching ways to size up applicants.

HOW TO GET BACK USABLE CONTAINERS
Does your business require shipping goods in costly containers which you'd like to get back? Then note the technique being used by a large chemical company, Shell Chemical Corp. This firm's metal drums now carry self-addressed return markings. The customer simply has his delivery agent pick up the drum when empty and return it to the address on the label freight collect.

NEW PRODUCTS
PRESERVATIVE: A new non-irritating preservative has been developed especially for canvas and duck for outdoor use by Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich.

PACKAGED ROPE: Pre-measured coils of rope in 80-foot units for counter display are being marketed by E. T. Rugg Co., 52 Miller St., Newark, Ohio.

SNOW MACHINE: The recently introduced electrical snow removal machine tosses snow up to 20 feet on either side. It's sold by Sensation Mower, Inc., Ralston, Neb.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Some colleges have courses that teach the best way to catch a fish, or instruct a lady in how to get along with one after she marries him.

You can also go to college and learn how to play an old Roman band instrument, figure your income tax, cook without garlic, or run for public office.

But so far no university has started a class in how to judge a beauty contest. It's about time for a few to do so.

Judging beauty contests is one of America's most rapid-growing industries. If you haven't been asked to be a judge in a beauty contest yet, don't snub. You will be. There are too many for you to escape.

In judging beauty every man wants to do his duty. He is as wholly honest then as he ever will be in his life. He wants to be fast to the fair.

But the trouble is he doesn't have any standards to go by except his own.

Judging a heifer is a different matter entirely. The stock experts look the critter over for certain fine points everybody agrees are prime requirements of the breed. Then they slap it on the flank to be sure it is round and firm and fully packed. And they are then ready to score it.

You can operate in a beauty contest in this scientific manner. When it comes to judging ladies, every man comes to the tournament with a different idea.

There is no advance agreement among them as to what they are looking for. And the contests are altogether too formal. The beauties parade back and forth in a stilted walk.

Research on the part of the judges is discouraged. They are no longer allowed to bring their own tape measures to check on the figures given. If they have a suspicion that some of the statistics are false or padded, they can do nothing about it. The girls are anything they say they are—and that's that.

Nor can the judges make them bare their teeth to prove their age or gallop up and down hill to see how they will do in the long run.

One judge prefers a girl with a high forehead, another goes for a gal with a horizontal brow. One is lifted to poetic heights by a girl with freckled knees, but his companion judge is unmoved by any female unless she is red-haired and has a strawberry mark on her left shoulder blade.

Some judges won't vote for a girl unless she looks like she has just finished taking a deep breath. There are also at least five different kinds of leg-man judges whose decision stems from the gals' stems. And just to complicate contests, occasionally you run into a romantic type judge who takes the contestants' faces into consideration, although this is pretty rare.

Well, make up a mixed jury of leg-men, face-men, and deep-breath-men. Then give them the problem of picking "Miss Pumpkin of Lower Nebraska" or "Miss Candlestick of 1951" and what do you have? Chaos.

WASHINGTON — Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the assistant to President Truman, who whips up sensational hats overnight, now picks orchid corsages in her own living room. Someone sent her an orchid plant. In addition to hat-making and orchid culture, Mrs. Steelman has a reputation as a top-flight cook. She told friends recently she enjoys getting dinner ready for her busy husband, even though sometimes he phones from the White House he won't be home for dinner at all.

"Sometimes he works through a straight 24-hour stretch," she said. "I just put the food away in the refrigerator and wait."

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, widow of President Wilson's attorney general, hasn't missed a Supreme Court opening since 1922.

The feather in Mrs. Henry F. Grady's hat was paradise, one of the most extraordinary you've ever seen. Shooting up from the center, it sprayed magnificently almost to her shoulder. Since they arrived here from Iran, the ambassador and his wife have been on a breathless round of parties in their honor.

They say Vice President Barkley can't get off so easily now for the camps he likes to catch now and then. An air-conditioning engineer stopped the vibration in his office. He claims he misses the tinkling music that one of the chandeliers, bought by Thomas Jefferson, used to make.

Mrs. John Horton, the former Drucis Snyder, glamorous daughter of the secretary of the treasury, and mother of a small son, is one of the Capital's most active young socialites, what with radio programs, charity work and party-giving.

Now she's taken on another activity this season. She will be co-producer, with Mrs. Gladstone Williams, of a weekly fashion show luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Williams' husband is a newspaper correspondent.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., who will be co-producer of "Washington Party," which attracts Capital celebrities and socialites, will take part only occasionally. As "Auntie," pretty Mrs. Hearst is a well-known society columnist.

Giant Rio Grande Dam Is One-Fourth Complete

FALCON, Tex. —(UP)— Work on the $47,000,000 International Falcon Dam across the Rio Grande is 25 per cent complete.

In another year the dam will start backing up the mighty, unpredictable river that has brought heartbreak, happiness and hope to the fertile lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas and Mexico.

Rep. Lloyd M. Bentsen, Jr., of the 15th Texas congressional district, calls the construction of the dam "one of the most revolutionary programs south Texas has ever known." He said:

"Those of us born and reared near its banks have seen the Rio Grande overflow our crops, ravage homes and destroy our resources with its strength. A few months later, like a quick change artist, the river has dwindled to a muddy trickle braiding its way through flats of fertile top soil washed from farms now lining its meandering course."

Falcon will be a dam of many purposes. It will provide flood control, irrigation water, domestic water, industrial water and electrical power. A by-product will be recreational facilities.

Located 75 miles downstream from Laredo, it is the first and lowest of the major international storage dams to be built on the Rio Grande under the U. S.-Mexico water treaty of 1944. Work is under the direction of the International Boundary and Water Commission, which has a commission from each nation.

The dam will be of rolled-earth construction with a total length of five miles, of which two miles are on the U. S. side, three south of the border.

The height of the dam will be about 150 feet.

One of Biggest Dams
The lake created by the dam will have a top capacity of 4,085,000 acre feet and a surface area of 114,000 acres. That means, at top capacity, it will hold half as much water as Grand Coulee Dam, a third more than Shasta Dam in California, and four times the amount in the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri.

With a shoreline of 417 miles, it offers a potential tourist attraction for recreation purposes.

"It is contemplated that when the project is finished and the lake is formed, public recreational areas will be established both on the lake and on adjacent lands acquired by the respective governments," U. S. Commissioner L. M. Lawson said. "Suitable facilities for swimming, boating, fishing, picnicking and other outdoor activities will be provided."

With the construction came the inevitable inundation of many homes, farms and communities.

Guerrero, a Mexican town which was founded in 1750, will go under the water but a New Guerrero is being built near the south end of the long dam.

The new town will be neat, carefully laid out, and to it will be hauled a few sentimental landmarks from the old town such as the statue of Benito Juarez, an intricate clock atop the city hall and the facade of an old church.

On the U. S. side seven communities will go under water. Chief among these will be the town of Zapata, with a population of 3,000. Ygnacio, Lopeno and Falcon. All are moving to higher grounds and better locations, at government expense.

Extra Time For Tobacco Sales

By UNITED PRESS
Flue-cured tobacco markets in the Eastern, Middle and Old belts increased their selling time by half an hour today in order to finish sales before the burley markets open in Western North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Fred S. Royster, president of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association, announced the extension to five and one-half hours of auction time per day.

Meanwhile, reports from the federal and state departments of agriculture showed averages fairly steady on all flue-cured belts last week, with gains noticeable on the Middle markets.

The Middle Belt sold 17,837,320 pounds for an average of $57.22 per hundred pounds, 13 cents above the previous week's high mark of the season.

On the Eastern Belt, 11 of the 17 markets have sold more tobacco than during the entire 1950 season. Last week's sales of 49,323,484 pounds brought an average of $59.92, a drop of $1.43 below the all-time high of the week before.

South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets moved 9,270,654 pounds and reported the average of $53.62 down 17 cents from the high of the previous week. Old Belt markets averaged $53.28 for 32,261,441 pounds. The average climbed 55 cents.

New Taxes Take Effect On Nov. 1

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Higher taxes on income and many things people buy will go into effect Nov. 1. They are included in the new tax act expected to increase the federal revenue by $5,601,000,000 a year.

In signing the tax bill Saturday, President Truman said this is not enough and he will call on congress in January to improve the tax laws.

Mr. Truman had asked for $16,000,000,000 in new revenue. He signed the measure calling for a less amount, he said, not because it is a good bill but because "we badly need these revenues to help pay for the strong defenses we are building."

The new law provides for individual income tax boosts ranging from 11 to 12 per cent for most taxpayers; excise (sales) tax increases on a long list of items including liquor, gasoline and household appliances, and bigger taxes for corporations.

Mr. Truman criticized provisions in the law which he said give wealthy people new chances for escaping their share of the tax load "through such devices as excessive depletion allowances on oil and gas and certain mineral properties."

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

"Never as long as I have been coaching have I seen so many injuries hit one ball club as have hit East Carolina this year."

That was Bill Dole's comment about the season in general as he sat back Sunday and reviewed the game which his team had won Saturday night. Most of his reviewing concerned the six players who went out of the game Saturday night with an injury of some kind or other.

"Not since our third game—with Norfolk Navy—have we been at top strength. It's been constant shifting and that's been difficult because we aren't deep by any means."

"The X-rays of the injuries Saturday night will determine what we do this week in practice in our preparations for Lenoir Rhyne."

Some of the six injuries Saturday night won't be classed in the "serious" department but they were all to key personnel. Larry Rhodes, Dwight Shoe, Cecil Winslow, Claude King, Sandy Siler, and Jack Britt were all removed from the game at one time or another for some kind of ailment and the loss of either of the six could be mighty painful to the already banged-up Pirates.

"Considering the fact that there were only two seniors on each of the two units—offense and defense—I'm exceedingly pleased with the play of the team," Dole said. "It took great spirit for them to come out of the hole like they did and win that game against a club playing as Guilford was playing."

Anyone who saw the game the other night knows well what Dole is talking about. Guilford's whole team—all 26 of them—really played themselves a ball game and, in the process, earned themselves a lot of respect.

Especially note-worthy was the play of the Guilford line. Sam Lynch and Ab Alexander, the tackles, were just about the most outstanding linemen on the field for the whole game but the ends, Bill Topping and Chuck Whitcomb, were close behind them. Jim Robinson and Bobby Spenser were the other two linemen who put in great performances for Stuart Maynard and Guilford.

In the Quaker backfield, Sam Venuto was easily the whole show. He carried the ball 21 times and netted 90 yards. When you consider that the Quakers as a team netted only 106 yards, it is not difficult to see where Mr. Venuto's value really is. Maybe it isn't fair to mention it, but Venuto looked sick only once in the entire ball game. That was on Boyd Webb's 85 yard punt return. Venuto was the only one left between Webb and the goal when the Pirate safetyman came down the field. Each was determined to stop the other. Webb came down the side-lines shaking and shimmying his hips—looking like a hold-over from the County Fair—with Venuto closing in on him. Webb faked once toward the side-lines and for all the good he was doing. Slamming Sammy might have been washing windows in the Court House. Webb cut to his right and waltzed the rest of the way to the goal. The waltz ended in a stumble, and an ultimate fall, but Webb had the six points and Venuto was in position for the kick-off.

For all that's been said about Guilford, ECC wasn't without its standout performers. Dole was quick to point one of them out—end Bobby Hodges.

"I know that Hodges threw at least four good blocks that shook loose runners—I remember that many—but the one I remember most is one he threw in front of our bench. He wiped out everything in his way. The pictures will show just how good a job he did, but I remember that much about him," Dole said.

The case about Hodges is an unusual one. He was placed on the defensive team last week because he had been having trouble with his blocking.

Whether or not Hodges is back in the offensive line-up this week against Lenoir Rhyne will depend on the course of Larry Rhodes' injury.

Quoting Dole again, the injuries are again sounded out. "Those injuries will have to respond to treatment and we'll have to be at full strength for Lenoir Rhyne. Even then, we'll have to play over our heads to keep up with them."

Switching from football to music to close today's column:

The people who missed the half-time entertainment Saturday night surely missed a dandy of a show. The Williamston High School band took most of the honors but East Carolina's group also came in for its share of the applause.

The high school musicians built their central theme around the square dance song, "Skip To My Lou." (I think that's the name of it.) From there, they played the song in varying times—jazzy, Highland Flingish (!), rumba-ish, and a couple of others. What made it so interesting was that the majorettes furnished a chorus

Webb, Gay, And King Score For Pirates

East Carolina Gets First Conference Win With Fourth Quarter Rally Which Produces Two Touchdowns

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

After fighting an uphill battle for three quarters, the East Carolina College Pirates found their scoring punch in the fourth period to defeat Guilford College 19-14 Saturday night in ECC's College Stadium. The game was a North State Conference contest.

The visiting Quakers, definite underdogs before the game started, showed surprising strength to have lost three previous games and, for a while, were definite bosses in the contest. After the game began, it was evident to the 3,000 spectators that it was going to take a great deal of spirit on the part of the Pirates to take the game away from the re-vitalized Quakers.

For the most part, this spirit was generated by a trio of freshmen—Paul Gay, Boyd Webb, and Claude King. Webb made the night's most outstanding run, an 85 yard punt return in the first quarter while Gay and King scored the other two touchdowns.

It was King who furnished the Pirates with their winning margin. He took a nine yard pass from Sandy Siler with four and a half minutes remaining in the game and stumbled into the end zone to run the score to its final mark of 19-14.

The Quakers had jumped to a quick lead in the game, scoring the second time they got the ball. They had taken the kick-off and banged into East Carolina territory before they were forced to punt. They, in turn, held the Pirates and regained the ball when Claude King fumbled in the ECC backfield. Jim Robinson, a cracker-jack guard for the Quakers, recovered King's fumble on the East Carolina 47 and the Guilford team was on the way to its first six points.

Big Sam Venuto, almost the entire Guilford backfield rolled up into one man, started the march by gobbling up five yards over left guard. Ed Jones moved the ball to the 35 for a first down and Venuto found nine more yards, this time at right tackle. Carl Jones sneaked over center for four yards and another first down on the 22, from where Venuto carried over around left end. Bob Watson added the point with seven minutes remaining in the quarter.

It was Webb's turn to jump into the spotlight next with his sparking return of a punt on a play that covered 85 yards. The Quakers had been backed up to their own 20 yard line when Carl Jones went back to kick. Jones got off his kick, a 48 yard punt which Jack Benzie took on the East Carolina 15.

Benzie and Webb were playing a double-safety for the Pirates and Benzie started out to his right with the ball. Webb came around to the left and took a lateral from Benzie. He was almost trapped on the 15 but a great block by Bobby Hodges erased the would-be tacklers and line and some high-stepping while the band came in with a little foot work of its own.

The East Carolina band came through with its lights again. The little pen-lights are mounted on the tops of the caps and are out on when the Stadium lights were extinguished. They formed a quarter moon with blue lights burning when the song "Blue Moon" was played and then moved into a big, full moon for "Carolina Moon."

It was a good show all the way around Saturday night.

Webb had no trouble until he hit the 50 yard stripe.

Gather Cline came to his rescue there with a terrific block that took out two men and only Sam Venuto remained between Webb and the goal line. Webb shook his hips a couple of times and cut to his right and Venuto was left winding his watch and wondering what happened. Webb stumbled across with the touchdown and Lyn Grissom tied the score with his place kick with six minutes having elapsed in the second quarter.

The fans hardly had a chance to get into their seats again before Guilford had its other touchdown. Hodges kicked to Venuto who returned the ball 19 yards to the 34. Ed Jones picked up three yards over left tackle but on the next play, Don MacKenzie smacked Carl Jones so hard he bobbed the ball which Dwight Shoe pounced upon on the Guilford 29.

On the first play, Sandy Siler's pass in the left flat was almost intercepted but was just a little too high. John Daughtry got nothing at guard but on the third play of the series, Siler's pass, intended for Benzie, was tipped by the halfback into the waiting hands of Chuck Whitcomb. Whitcomb was all by himself on the 24 yard line and gathered the ball in for the Quakers and legged his way for the 76 yards and the touchdown. Watson again added the point and the Quakers had their 14 points.

The Pirates finally got to rolling late in the third period with Gay and King leading the way. The Pirates had taken the ball on their own 40 after holding Guilford. In three plays, Gay and King moved the ball to the Guilford 39. Siler moved the ball to the 29 by completing his first pass of the night, to Dwight Shoe.

Gay lost 11 yards but the Siler-Shoe combination picked up ten on the next play. Gay moved the ball to the 18 as the third period ended.

On the first play of the new quarter, Siler's pass failed to find its mark but Gay, banged over left guard for four yards. Jack Benzie picked up five more and then King moved the ball to the eight. Gray carried over from the point. Grissom's kick was no good when the pass from center was bad.

The next time the Pirates got the ball, they drove to the three yard line but Guilford held for the second time within the three yard line, and East Carolina was left looking at the stars while Carl Jones kicked out to the ECC 37 yard line—a 61 yard kick figured from the line of scrimmage. It took the Pirates just seven plays to come back the 63 yards.

Two passes by Siler, to Shoe and King, covered 45 yards and Gay and King ran the ball to the 15. Another Siler pass was taken in by Shoe on the 9 to set the stage for the winning aerial from Siler to King.

The victory was the first in North State Conference play for the Pirates who have lost two straight games. It was Guilford's second straight loss in the Conference.

Terps Hold Lead In Conference

RALEIGH (UP)—Southern Conference football hit the season's halfway mark today with Maryland plunging unchecked down the victory trail.

Jim Tatum's terrific Terrapins beat North Carolina 14 to 7 Saturday in Maryland's first win over the Tar Heels since 1926. The Terps put up a masterful goal line defense to stop five last-half drives by a quail.

It was North Carolina's first conference loss and left Maryland, Duke, VMI and Clemson the only teams still unbeaten in conference play.

Duke grabbed its third league victory with a 55 to 6 scoring binge over winless Virginia Tech. Clemson rested, and VMI lost to non-conference Virginia without hurting the Keydets' chances of sneaking into the championship via an easy schedule.

Clemson gets its big test Thursday when the Tigers renew their running feud with the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina at the South Carolina State Fair.

North Carolina State took a two-touchdown lead over William and Mary in the first half and then wilted before the Indians' surging comeback Saturday. The 35 to 28 score wrote up State's fifth-straight defeat.

Two Share Lead In North State Loop

By the Associated Press

Elon and Lenoir Rhyne rule the roost in North State Conference football today. Elon has three conference wins to Lenoir Rhyne's two. Both are unbeaten in loop play. The front-runners have games slated Saturday with second-division clubs in the conference—Elon meeting Western Carolina at Reidsville and Lenoir Rhyne playing East Carolina.

Each passing week points to a deciding clash between Elon and Lenoir Rhyne Nov. 10, when the conference championship will likely be decided.

Elon had to struggle to down Catawba, 21-14, last week. The passing of Lou Rochell and the catching of Jack Christy and Bill Blackstone rovided the Christians with their Victory. Lenoir Rhyne had an easier time, beating Western Carolina 33-7. The running of Gene and Jerry Robinson and two touchdowns by Bill Robinette sparked Lenoir Rhyne's victory march.

In the third conference clash, winless Guilford threw a scare into East Carolina before losing, 19-14.

Other games involving conference teams Saturday will send Appalachian to Tampa, while Catawba is host to V.M.I. Appalachian was idle last week.

Catawba holds down third place in the conference standings this week with a 2-1 record, trailed in order by Appalachian (2-3), East Carolina (1-3), Western Carolina (1-3), and Guilford (0-2).

Strategic Turkey Is Bridge Between Europe And Turbulent Middle East

By GLADYS M. WRIGLEY
American Geographical Society

Is Turkey a European state? This question, voiced in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, highlights the country's strategic significance. For centuries the Ottoman Empire with Turkey its core was a symbol of Oriental despotism and backwardness. Today Turkey is a bulwark of south-eastern Europe — "Eisenhower's right flank."

The land is a solid block 800 miles long and 300 broad—area larger than Texas—thrust between the Black Sea with Russia beyond and the eastern Mediterranean and the adjacent oil-rich lands of the Middle East. Throughout history this block, Anatolia, the eastward land of the Greeks, has been a bridge between east and west. A high, dry plateau, it is in fact an outpost of the central Asiatic steppes whence came the invaders who gave the land their name, language, and religion. Conversely it can be considered an outpost of uninterrupted settlement bordering the great dry belt of the Old World and as such a part of Europe.

European Toehold
The plateau declines westward to the island-sprinkled Aegean; and the Straits, conventional boundary between Europe and Asia, are no bar to eastward movement. The break-up of the Empire left Turkey with only a toehold in Europe, Turkish Thrace—about the size of Vermont—and the magnificently sited Istanbul (Constantinople). But the long occupation of the Balkans affected conquerors as well as conquered and much earlier Hellenic and Roman civilizations had set a permanent seal on western and southern Anatolia. Turkey more than any other Asiatic land has affinities with the west.

Since the creation nearly 30 years ago of the Republic by Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, that "fair-skinned, blue-eyed, red-hatted Turk from Macedonia", Turkey has swung definitely into the western orbit. Separation of church and state and the abolition of the Caliphate mark the profundity of the Islam is not implied. On the change, though severance with ary, and especially since the Russian threat to Iran, efforts have Arab relations. However, Turkey has participated in the Council of Europe at Strasbourg; and despite internal needs, contributed a brigade with a record of outstanding service with the U. N. forces in Korea. Turkey's population of some 21 million supports the largest standing army in Europe next to the U. S. S. R. and about half the national budget is devoted to defense expenditure. She promptly subscribed to the European Recovery Program, and received help therefrom.

Mineral Wealth
Turkey is well endowed in other things beside strategic location. Mineral wealth, still incompletely explored includes coal, iron, chromium (one of the world's largest sources for the U. S.) and oil. But agriculture is the life of the land, and agriculture is generally backward. The chief revenue from exports comes from tobacco, nuts, and dried fruit—typical Mediterranean crops. Exports of grain, grown on large state farms, fluctuate widely, depending on drought and other circumstances; in 1946 thousands of tons of grain were left rotting on the plateau because of lack of transport, the output of oil-been made to bolster Turkish seeds and industrial fibers could be greatly increased. Equipment and technical know-how, water control, and above all road improvements are prime needs, the last named ties in too with defense. The importance of the 550 mile road from Iskenderun (Alexandretta) and Mersin on the Mediterranean to the fortress city of Erzurum in the northeast may also be stressed.

Paris Prepares To Be Host City To UN Assembly

PARIS (UP)—Every day hundreds of workers are scurrying up and down a huge steel and concrete structure which will be the United Nations General Assembly's residence for more than three months.

Construction of the Assembly's temporary lodgings started two months ago but the French are confident everything will be ready well in time when the session opens here on Nov. 6.

For the delay, the French architects and contractors blame the government and the parliament. Months of haggling over funds and several visits to Paris of U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie were needed to get the work started.

The U-shaped, three-story building is being erected in the sloping gardens in front of the Palais de Chaillot, on the right bank of the River Seine, facing the Eiffel Tower.

In record time, Jacques Carlu, chief architect of the Palais de Chaillot, drew up plans and started carrying out the project, which will cost the French treasury more than $3,000,000.

The plans provide for one main building of 800 rooms, housing the 4,000-odd delegates who will attend the sessions.

There will be four large conference rooms for the various U. N. commissions, two post offices and one main switchboard servicing more than 3,000 individual telephone posts.

Carlu, who had carried out transformations of the Palais for the General Assembly session in 1948, expects this year an even heavier output of memoranda, hand-outs, circular letters and white books. He incorporated into his plans enough room for a fair-sized printing shop which will be able to turn out two tons of printed matter per day.

"The question of prestige apart, on the continent only Paris possesses halls capable of seating the United Nations plenary session," Carlu said. "When the U. N. decided to hold the General Assembly in Europe, the British were ready to act as a host but they would have needed a year to put up something like the Palais de Chaillot."

Carlu said the building will be provided with all modern comforts and the latest heating and sound-absorbing technique.

The rooms will be heated by hot water running through pipes over the ceilings, a recent Norwegian invention being used in France for the first time. Only the plenary session hall will be heated by hot air.

"Sure, the construction itself is expensive," Carlu said, "But considering the influx of foreign visitors plus the 4,000 delegates who will stay for over three months, it's quite a profitable business."

"In 1948, for the plenary session, the treasury spent $2,000,000 on the various arrangements but in turn took in over $8,500,000 in hard currency, not to speak of the money spent by the delegates. The year the government will net double that sum."

About 3,000 shriners from the western half of the state were here for the colorful parade, initiation, and ball.

State Fair Has Biggest Crowds

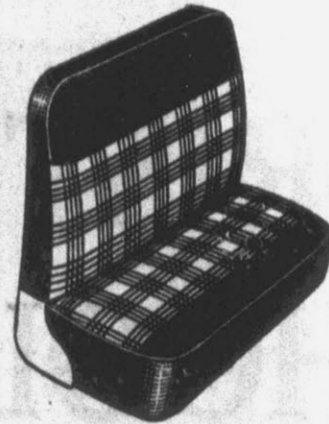

RALEIGH (AP)—A record-breaking attendance of 475,000 was set at the North Carolina State Fair which ended a five-day run Saturday night.

Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair manager, described the fair as "the greatest from standpoint in history." He added, "the gate receipts, exhibits and displays have never been better."

Debaters Chosen By Forensic Club

Debaters chosen by the Jarvis Forensic Club at East Carolina College to represent the group in a series of intercollegiate debates during 1951-1952 include Ray Sears and Mitchell Saleed of Greenville, Donald Gaylor of Magnolia, and Royce C. Jordan of Washington, N. C. Carolyn D. Everhart of New Bern will be first alternate and Virginia Wilkes of Lumberton, second alternate.

Club members selected debaters in tryouts held Thursday evening, October 18. A group of faculty members at the college served as judges.

Sears and Saleed represented the Jarvis Forensic Club for the fall 1951 in three intercollegiate debates. With Charles Self of Greensboro, Saleed debated on an East Carolina team which won a place among the "Big Ten" honored at the Dixie Championship Forensic Tournament in Charlotte last December as most outstanding at the meet. Sears is president of the Jarvis Forensic Club for the fall quarter 1951.

The debate teams for the present school year plan to participate in the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Hickory, the Dixie meet at Charlotte, and the Grand National Forensic Tournament at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va.

The topic chosen for intercollegiate contests during 1951-1952 is resolved, that the Federal Government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price control.

Campus Radio Of East Carolina Begins Season

The Campus Radio at East Carolina College, under the direction of Mrs. George E. Perry of the faculty, started its season of broadcasting Sunday evening.

Arrangements are now being made for a group of regularly scheduled programs to be given each week on the campus. Hartwell Campbell, manager of WGTC, is cooperating with Mrs. Perry and her staff in planning and scheduling the series.

Plans are in progress for a weekly program by the music department during the season when broadcasting facilities are available in the Austin auditorium.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 21

Martin sat on the edge of an uncomfortable, straight chair, his shirt collar opened and his necktie removed. Perspiration streamed down his face. His usually half-sad, round eyes were bloodshot and almost closed—shut against the terrific glare of the "att electric bulb."

They started in again.

"Why did Johnny Saxon kill her?"

This was the detective lieutenant, the one called Haley. He was a tall solid man with a voice as expressionless as a train announcer. He spoke in the same flat key, his tone always on the same level, never rising or falling. He stood just beyond the glare of the lamp, and Moe could barely see him.

"I told you—" Moe started.

"Shuddup!"

Then the other voice: "Why did Johnny Saxon kill her?"

That was the one called Lutz.

But he'd had a chance to study him. You'd never pick Lutz for a let-tive. Moe thought. He wore plain clothes, was a small thin man with no distinguishing features. It wasn't until you looked into his eyes that you realized Lutz was as hard and unyielding as flint. His voice was harsh and penetrating. It cut right into Moe Martin's nerves.

"He didn't kill her, I tell you!" said Moe wearily.

"Where is he? Where's he hiding out?"

"I don't know... He's not hiding any place..."

"Why'd he leave town?"

"I told you, he didn't leave town. That is, he's not hiding. I don't know where he is."

It had lasted for two hours now, right there in a plain-walled room in the basement of the City Hall at Ninth and Central. They had picked up Moe two and a half hours ago in a restaurant near the Hotel Gibson. How they had zle. It just went to show you could know him would remain a pusher-tell about cops.

Lutz said: "We can keep this up all night."

"I'm trying to tell you—"

"The hell you are!" said Haley.

"Talk, damn you!"

On and on. Moe ran the palm of his hand across his face and sweat dropped in big globules from his hand to the plain wooden floor. He closed his eyes and still the light bored through his eyelids. His eyes seemed to pop out of his head.

One thing kept going through his brain. They had no positive evidence of anything against him. There was no charge on which they could hold him indefinitely. That's why he held out. Sooner or later, perhaps...

An hour passed. Moe thought he would collapse before the end of the night. It was Haley who finally said with disgust, "Maybe he does not know anything."

They decided to release him.

They gave him back his suit coat, overcoat and hat. They spoke, right at the last, as though they were bosom pals. "Don't think we were trying to be tough," said Haley, the lieutenant. "You know how these things are. We have to ask questions. We want to find out who murdered that girl."

"Oh, sure," murmured Moe. "We didn't really plan to detain you. Just routine, you know." That was hard little Lutz again.

"Of course," said Moe.

"But look," Haley smiled as Moe glanced up at the tall detective lieutenant. "Don't leave town just yet, will you? If we do run on to anything perhaps you can be of great help to us. See?"

"I'd be glad to," lied Moe Martin.

"So long, old man."

Moe merely nodded as they let him out an exit that led to Central Avenue.

It was a district of pawn shops, second-hand clothing stores and bars. The night air was cold, and there were still flurries of snow. He felt good against Moe Martin's hot face.

He saw an all-night lunchroom open on the next corner, went inside, walked straight to the back and located the self-service water fountain. He drank two full glasses of water and went out again. He walked toward his hotel.

Down to Fifth Street, east to Race. Not a soul was on the streets. This part of the city was always deserted at this hour of the night.

He climbed the broad staircase of the Netherland-Plaza to the lobby. He went directly to the desk to see if the room key was still in the rack.

It was.

"There any mail?" he asked, giving the room number.

The clerk shook his head.

"Messages... telephone calls?"

"No, sir... nothing at all."

Moe went out again, down the block to the office building entrance. Never once did he look around, yet he had the feeling that he was being followed.

He rode an elevator up to their friends' office. Just as he was fitting the key into the lock, footsteps suddenly sounded in the corridor. He saw a young man coming toward him. Apparently the fellow had been waiting there, sitting on the window sill at the end of the corridor.

"I said quickly, 'Aren't you Mr. Saxon's associate?'"

Moe looked at him. He saw the bruised right eye and the strip of adhesive across one side of the jaw.

"I'm the clerk from the auction rooms," said the young man, breathlessly. "I've been waiting to see you. I've been to the hotel too, going back and forth. It's terribly urgent." He nodded toward the office door which Moe now held.

"May I—?"

"Come in," said Moe.

They were hardly inside the office before the young man burst in with "He came to the auction rooms tonight. I was alone, inventorying some stuff that goes on sale next week. He knocked on the door and naturally I let him in."

"This man!"

He pulled a newspaper clipping from his coat pocket, unfolded it, held it out to Moe. "His picture was in today's newspaper. He killed a guard at the Ohio State penitentiary. He escaped a few nights ago. That's him!"

MOTORIST! DRIVE CAREFULLY! SCHOOL IS NOW OPEN!

Don't Hurt Them!

This is "Child Accident Prevention Week"

THE FIRST "BACK-TO-SCHOOL" LESSON

Every driver can help children continue without a care in the world... without worry at intersections or community boulevards. Their only cares should be those after school hours of recreation and reading, writing and arithmetic. It's up to those who drive to be extra careful during school time.

You don't watch your own driving alone... you look for the unexpected. You watch for a neighbor's child dashing from between cars... you're constantly on the alert at school intersections. You've got to watch out for the other fellow when you drive... not just yourself.

We know that our schools will absolutely do their best in teaching and promoting safety, but we also should know that the most effective safety classroom is the home where the parents must be the teachers. Make doubly sure that your child learns and practices the "Important Lessons" listed above. You can't make too sure because only one slip may end his life.

Parents Instruct Your Children To:

- Look all directions before crossing a street.
- Cross a street only at the corner.
- Understand and obey all traffic signals.
- Always walk facing the traffic on a highway—in a single file!
- Play away from streets and highways.

Will Help Ease Water Shortage

GRAHAM (AP)—Graham has agreed to help relieve Burlington's water shortage by furnishing 250,000 gallons daily. Graham completed a new water plant last July. Before then, it got its water from deep wells supplemented by purchases from Burlington. The pipes from Graham to Burlington are still in place, and now are carrying in the other direction—from Graham to Burlington.

Passing Of School Buses On Increase

Violations of the state law against the passing of school buses is showing a sharp increase over Pitt County, according to the State Highway Patrol.

School bus drivers are reporting more and more drivers daily for this dangerous violation, the patrol office here reports.

Local patrolmen have warned motorists about the practice of passing the school buses while they are loading or unloading, pointing out the dangers involved.

A North Carolina state law provides that all motor vehicles shall come to a complete halt when meeting or approaching a school bus from behind, when its red lights are on and a stop sign out from the side of the bus. No bus is to be passed either while passengers are being taken on or discharged, the patrolmen warned.

Warrants are being sworn out for the violators and they will be tried in court for the violations, the patrolmen state.

British Election Campaigns Move Into Final Hours

LONDON — (AP) — British election campaigning moved into the closing stages today, and political forecasts were almost unanimous in predicting victory for the Conservative Party led by Winston Churchill.

Latest reports today from political soundings all over the United Kingdom, as reported by London newspapers, told the same story with varying details—a forecast the Conservatives will defeat the Labor Party.

Estimates of the expected Tory majority in the House of Commons ranged from 3 to 100 seats.

The single dissenting opinion came—as was expected—from the Daily Herald, a Labor Party journal.

It quoted Morgan Phillips secretary of the Labor Party, as saying in a speech, "I believe we can win." But even the Herald noted that Phillips, unlike the forecasts of the Conservative and Independent observers, did not mention an estimated figure in the next House of Commons.

Not every political observer in London, by any means, is convinced of the accuracy of the polls. Since the great majority of British newspapers are Conservative, the feeling exists that these uniform results, reported day after day, may be part of a "bandwagon" technique. They report findings, by geographical areas, by age-group and sex, and percentages of answers on various issues. Virtually every newspaper is conducting some type of poll.

Their results, as reported, are coming back uniformly Conservative.

Two Greenville students were among 202 Duke University women who accepted sorority pledge bids at the close of the rushing period, the Pan-Hellenic Council announced.

Coe's and their sororities are: Catherine B. Clark, Alpha Delta Pi; and Mary Ann Waldrop, Alpha Delta Pi. They are the daughters of Mrs. D. M. Clark of 77 Holly Street, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Waldrop of 950 East 10th Street.

Funeral Tuesday For Mrs. W. J. Cochrane

Mrs. Margaret Moore Cochrane, 32, wife of William J. Cochrane, died in Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, Mass. at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night following a month's illness. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Gorton Funeral Home in West Warwick, Rhode Island, and burial will be in West Warwick Cemetery.

Mrs. Cochrane, daughter of C. J. Moore of Greenville and the late Mrs. Lila Irwin Moore, was born in Avery, Arkansas, and reared near Greenville. She attended Stokes High School and was graduated in 1936. She attended East Carolina College and was employed by the Carolina Telephone Company for several years. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church of Warwick and was married to Mr. Cochrane in 1947.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Peggy Sue Cochrane; her father; and two brothers, Joe Moore of Jacksonville, Fla. and Bernard Moore of El Dorado, Arkansas.

Last Rites Tuesday For Willie Jarman

Willie Jarman died in a Kinston hospital Sunday after several months of declining health and one week of serious illness.

Son of the late Lewis and Clara Jarman of Jones County, in 1907 he was married to Bettie Philyaw of Jones County, who survives; also one daughter, Mrs. Roland Manning, four grandchildren and four great grandchildren of Kinston, and one son, W. E. Jarman, of Comfort, N. C.

Funeral services will be from the home, 506 W. Blount St., Tuesday at 3 p. m. Rev. L. H. Deal, pastor of the Church of God, will officiate. Interment will follow in the Philyaw cemetery near Comfort.

WILL HEAR APPEAL WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Supreme Court today reversed itself and agreed to hear an appeal by six attorneys who got contempt sentences for their conduct during the New York trial of the eleven top Communist Party leaders.

Grifton News

W.S.C.S. Meets On Monday night the W.S.C.S. met in regular session at the church at 7:30 with Mrs. John Oglesby presiding. There was routine business and reports of committees including one on the Central Zone Meeting held on the 10th at Bethlehem Church in Arthur; also an account of the "Briefing Council" held recently at the First Baptist Church in Kinston in which the Council of United Church Women met for an all-day session.

Mr. F. L. Cox of the local board of stewards met with the ladies and told of the proposed plan for a new heating system and roof for the church building asking their co-operation for a drive for funds.

After the business meeting a program was presented under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. H. L. Wethington.

Hostesses for the evening were Mesdames Maggie Hart, Claude Hart and Milton Hart. Members were invited into the recreation rooms where the refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth and held a center arrangement of dahlias and argeratum, sandwiches, cookies and Coca-Colas were enjoyed.

Entertains at Supper Party Mrs. David Parker entertained on Wednesday night at a supper party at her home on McRae Street for members of her bridge club. A delicious fried chicken supper was served as guests arrived at 7 o'clock. The home throughout was decorated with dahlias, roses and marigolds, which lent a festive note to the occasion. Guests played bridge at the two tables following supper with Mrs. Tom Gower scoring high. Mrs. Heber Wade scored second high and the consolation went to Mrs. Paul Bradley. Other players were Mesdames Clifton Jackson, Cecil Cobb, Wiley Gaskins, George Suggs, Edward Hart, Walter Patrick, Elmo Smith, Ben G. Tucker, Roger Johnson, Mrs. Clay Burney and Mrs. Milton Hart.

Mrs. Newborn Entertains Club One of the prettiest parties of the fall was that given on Thursday night when Mrs. L. L. Newborn entertained members of her bridge club and invited players for five tables at her home here. Guests were invited for 7:30 and received by the hostess in rooms pleasantly decorated for the occasion with roses, dahlias and chrysanthemums. In the dining room the table was especially attractive with tall candles in crystal candelabra flanking a bowl of cream colored gladioli and small yellow mums. A delectable buffet supper was had prior to the bridge game.

The highest score prize for club members went to Mrs. W. I. Bissette, the second high to Mrs. Richard Nelson and the visitor's prize to Mrs. S. E. Coffman. Other guests were Mesdames H. P. Quinley, Thurman Williams, Jack Chapman, Dewey Wall, Jack Tucker, J. L. Quinley, L. D. McCotter, Robert Mewborn, Tom Gower, Joe House, David Wassum, Billy Phillips, A. C. Fletcher, Dale Smith, Miss Marie Chapman, Miss Hazel Patrick and Miss Louise Mewborn.

Personals Mrs. J. W. Scarborough is spending several days in Raleigh with her daughter, Mrs. Emmett Sherron. Mr. Sherron is undergoing treatment while there.

Among those who were at Vanceboro for the funeral services of Mrs. Sara Elizabeth McLawhorn Thursday afternoon were Mrs. R. E. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Nel-

Youths Arrested In Series Of Car Thefts Last Week

GRIMESLAND—Grimesland Police Chief H. E. Wright said today that two Negro boys who are alleged to have stolen several motor vehicles are being held in jail at Washington under $1,000 bond each.

Wright said Edward Earl Warren, 17, of Grimesland, and David Lee Brown, 15, of Washington, were arrested in Grimesland early Saturday while trying to hitchhike to Greenville.

Washington Police Chief L. P. Wheeler, Deputy Sheriff Jack Harris of Beaufort County and Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews of Pitt County assisted in making the arrest. They had tips that the youths were heading for Grimesland. Chief Wright said the boys admitted taking the three vehicles.

They were charged with the larceny of a 1941 Buick, a 1½-ton Ford truck and a 1937 Plymouth.

The three vehicles ran out of gas near Grimesland and were abandoned.

The officers said Warren had several automobile keys and registration cards in his possession when arrested. He has a police record, they stated.

Four Collisions During Weekend

Four motor vehicle collisions occurred in Greenville during the weekends. None of the occupants was injured. Property damage was considerable, police reports show.

Cars driven by Roy Smith, 404 West 12th Street, Greenville, and Lonnie C. Alligood, Route 1, Greenville, collided at 11th and Greene Streets about noon Saturday. Damage to Smith's car was $30; Alligood's, $75. No arrest.

Police arrested David Boyd, Negro, Route 3, Greenville, on the charge of driving with defective brakes after his car collided with one driven by Luther H. Vall Jr., 412 East Ninth Street, Greenville. Estimated damage to Boyd's car was $200; Vall's, $200.

Cars driven by Millard L. Berman, ECC student, and James L. Parker, Negro, Route 2, Greenville, collided at Dickinson Avenue and 10th St. about 7 o'clock Saturday night. Police arrested Parker for having defective brakes. Both cars were damaged.
