Egyptian Press Organ Says U. S. Has Offered To Mediate Dispute

No Confirmation By State Department, Though Egypt Prepares For Talks

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—The influential newspaper Al Ahram said today the United States has offered to mediate the Anglo-Egyptian dispute.

It said that Foreign Minister Salah el-Din received the news in a telephone call from his envoy in Washington and called a meeting today to decide upon Egypt's position.

(A State Department spokesman in Washington said he had no immediate knowledge of the mediation report.)

The newspaper, one of the largest in the nation, said the U.S. government had instructed Ambassador Jefferson Caffery to inform Egyptian officials of the mediation offer.

As a first step, it said, Caffery will contact the British embassy immediately and seek restoration of the situation before last week's bloody riots in the Suez Canal Zone.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report in government quarters or at the American embassy. El Ahram is classed as an independent newspaper.

Abd-el Rahim, Egyptian ambassador in Washington, asked in his telephone call for instructions to relay to the State Department, according to El Ahram. The newspaper said he was told the foreign minister would contact him after securing the reaction of other government ministers.

Caffery was received in Alexandria yesterday by King Farouk. The subject of their discussions was not disclosed then.

At about the same time, Salah el-Din met in Cairo for an hour with Soviet Minister Semyon Kozlerev at the latter's request.

Salah el-Din told newsmen later that the Russian minister sought Egypt's support for the nomination of a Soviet judge to the World Court but they had discussed other general matters including "the Egyptian question."

Interior Minister Fuad Serag el-Din told a press conference last night that the day had been free of all anti-British demonstrations in accord with a government ban on them.

Miss Taylor won first place honors in Williamston's fourth annual Harvest Festival beauty contest which came to a successful climax last night over a field of 15 contestants. A crowd of over 20,000 jammed the streets of the Martin County town yesterday afternoon to witness a two and one-half mile long parade which included eleven bands and 20 floats. U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea—(AP)—Allied warplanes pounded the crippled North Korean rail system today in one of the war's most concentrated attacks.

Wave after wave of fighter bombers roared down on Red rolling stock caught out in the open. U.S. Fifth Air Force officers said the Reds were completely surprised and had no time to get their trains into the shelter of tunnels.

Harvest Festival Marked By Long Parade, Dancing And Beauty Contest; Turnout Well Exceeds Last Year

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON—A crowd in excess of 20,000 journeyed to this Martin County town yesterday afternoon, to watch a two and one-half mile long parade led by eleven high stepping bands, which opened the second day of the Fourth Annual Williamston Harvest Festival.

The record breaking crowd started filling the streets of the city shortly after noon and by one o'clock nearly all the space was taken.

An hour long show, "Clown's Alley" featuring more than 25 local clowns, displaying their talent, brought laughs from both young and old alike before the parade started.

Then the hour long parade appeared before the record gathering. Leading the parade were the city officials and the 15 beauty contestants from eastern North Carolina which competed for the title of Miss Harvest Festival last night at the Planters Warehouse.

A total of 20 large floats intermingled with eleven high school bands added color and smartness to the procession.

The parade began on the east side of Williamston and came to a halt at the warehouse district around three o'clock.

A banquet in honor of the 15 young beauty contestants was held at the new recreational room of the Williamston Methodist Church at seven o'clock with the judges of the contest.

On Tuesday night a crowd of over 5,000 attended a large outdoor street dance which was staged on Main Street. Both round and square dancing were featured.

Music for the round dance was furnished by Dick Levin and his band from the campus of State College and Othor Willard and his string band of Williamston provided the sets for square dancers.

Al Sweatt, managing director of the Williamston Boosters, commenting on the turnout for the street dance, said, "The crowd was larger than last year and there were really too many people trying to dance at one time. However, I think that everybody had a fine time and clearly shows the growth which the annual project is making."

A warehouse dance was the set-

Street Program For City Begins To Get Started

Street Committee Awards Contracts Totaling $33,700 For Improvements

Official wheels began turning yesterday for Greenville's street improvement program to be paid for partially out of city Powell bill funds and partially by the property owners of the city.

The street committee, acting under authority from the board of aldermen, late yesterday awarded contracts totaling approximately $33,700 for paving and repair work on approximately one and one-half miles of city streets. The contract bids for the work were opened by the aldermen at a meeting held at 12:30 yesterday, but the matter was referred to the street committee with power to act. The bids were analyzed and contracts awarded at a meeting of the committee shortly after 5 o'clock.

Clark Construction company of Greenville was awarded the contract for two phases of the current projects, and White Construction company was awarded the contract for the third phase of the work. The bids were taken on the basis of the unit price for work designated by the city at the present time with the provision that more of the same types work could be added by the city if they see fit in the near future.

Contract one, which calls for repairs to East Fourth Street near the high school, the laying of pipe, the installation of a metal manhole, rebuilding the street and installing new curb and gutter was awarded to Clark Construction company which submitted a low bid of $5,288 for the estimated amount of work. The same company was awarded contract two at a bid of $10,064.50 for grading and drainage work in Tucker Circle and on other miscellaneous streets in other parts of the city.

Contract three for the paving in Tucker Circle, on Fourth Street and other miscellaneous streets in Greenville, was awarded to White Construction company at a bid of $18,347.50.

Barnhill and Long Construction company which also bid on the projects were low bidders on none of the work called for by the city.

Under a resolution passed by the Greenville board of aldermen recently, the city will pay from its Powell bill funds one-third the cost of surfacing strategic streets given priority ratings by the board provided the property owners along the streets so designated agree to bear the other two-thirds of the cost. The Powell bill funds will likewise be used for repair work such as is being undertaken on East Fourth Street. The cost of the Tucker Circle project, which was not given a "priority" rating by the board of aldermen, will be paid entirely by the property owners.

Superior Court Civil Term Ends

Adjourned After Prolonged Trial Settled Out Of Court

Pitt Superior Court adjourned late yesterday after an out-of-court settlement brought an end to a case which had consumed two days of the court's time and apparently would have taken another half day before it went to the jury.

Plaintiff in the case was F. A. Edmundson of Greenville, who was suing J. Earnest Johnson for the recovery of $1,000 for a note. Hearings in the case began Tuesday morning, and the case was still before the court late yesterday when the attorneys for the plaintiff and the defense announced a settlement had been reached.

Judgments were signed in the cases of W. I. Bissette vs. Hattie Brock; George Hardee Jr. vs. Elmer Jackson; Henry Clay Strong vs. Corey Garris; Major Smith vs. Willie B. Wilson; and Robert L. Elks vs. H. L. Roberts. A court order making new parties was signed in the case of J. B. James Tr. vs. J. Archie Lee.

Cases set for this week's civil term of Superior Court, but continued

Government Expected To Quickly Use Court Orders If Union Continues Plans For Paralyzing Tie-Up Of Railroads

WASHINGTON (UP)— The government undoubtedly will hit the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen with a court injunction if the union continues plans for a strike which could paralyze the nation's railroads.

Although the government has controlled the railroads since the army technically took them over in August, 1950, to head off a nationwide strike, the brotherhood claims a strike would be legal.

The union argues that while the government controls the roads "on paper," it has done nothing to bring about a settlement of a two-year contract dispute with the carriers.

In a drastic move to snap the long deadlock, the brotherhood has alerted its 75,000 members to prepare for a walkout but did not set a date.

The government got a court injunction immediately after the last walkout staged by a railroad union—the Brotherhood of Trainmen last December. The trainmen were fined $101,000 for ignoring the injunction.

The firemen said plans have been made for a "progressive" strike. This could mean that the walkout would come simultaneously on every railroad or only on certain picked roads—or that it might progressively spread across the country.

Union officials saw the possibility of a country-wide rail tie-up if a strike is called, because other brotherhoods were expected to observe picket lines.

Two other brotherhoods also still involved in the wage dispute with the carriers were not expected to join in the walkout.

Roy O. Hughes, chief of the conductors, said his members were prevented from striking because the army seized the roads after they had taken a strike vote. President J.P. Shields said his locomotive engineers were authorized to take a strike vote but had not done so and planned no action at this time.

The firemen demand a wage increase which, with a cost-of-living escalator clause, would give yardmen a 34-cent hourly hike and the roadmen a 19 1-2 cent increase. They also demand a 40-hour week for yardmen, plus other benefits.

Pledge Support Of Farm Bureau

Large Group Attends 'Kickoff Meeting' Of Annual Drive

Nearly half a hundred bankers, business and professional men and farmers of Pitt County, at a meeting here last night, pledged a renewal of their support of the Farm Bureau program.

W. H. Woolard, president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company and chairman of the Associate Membership Committee of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, presided. He said this was the "kickoff meeting" of his group to obtain members for the Farm Bureau.

"It is our purpose to pledge the support of the business interests to the Farm Bureau," the banker said. "The men who are here tonight are those who do things for the community and I know that we can count on them," he added.

Woolard said everything depends on the success of the Farm Bureau program. Not only the farmers, but

UN Negotiators Offer 200 Square Miles In Eastern Korea For Equal Terrain On Western Front; Offer Made In Discussing Of Buffer Zone

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—United Nations truce negotiators offered today to give up 200 square eastern Korea if the Reds yield an equal amount of terrain in the west to bring a quick cease-fire.

U.N. officers made the offer in proposing a 2 1-2-mile-wide armistice buffer zone across Korea at a subcommittee meeting following the reopening of cease-fire talks with the Communists in Panmunjom.

The Communists were expected to give their answer at another subcommittee meeting at 11 a.m. Friday (9 p.m. Thursday EST).

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, U.N. spokesman, said the Reds appeared very anxious to start the new series of truce talks with a "clean slate" and to let "by-gones be by-gones."

"There is hope progress will be made," he said.

This led to speculation that the Communists may drop their previous adamant demand that the buffer zone be along the 38th Parallel, pre-war frontier between North and South Korea.

The U.N.-proposed buffer zone would start about eight miles south of the 38th Parallel on the west coast, cross the parallel to the northeast and run four miles above Kaesong, four miles south of Pyonggang at the apex of the old Communist Iron Triangle, 6 1-2 miles south of Kumsong, 15 miles north of the Hwachon Reservoir, and reach the east coast about 35 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

For the U. N., it would mean sacrifice of most of the gains made in the "persuader offensive" on the east-central front earlier this month and in the bitter fighting south of Kumsong on the central front last week.

It also would mean a withdrawal of up to 10 miles by the South Korean Capitol Division on the east coast.

In exchange, the 8th Army would get 200 square miles of territory in western Korea it abandoned to the Communists virtually without a fight around the Kaesong, Han and Imjin river estuaries last January.

Herald Tribune For Eisenhower

With a 550-word editorial "The Time and The Man" splashed across three frontpage columns in both its New York and Paris editions, the newspaper said it would work for the nomination of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on the Republican ticket and for his election as President.

Broadening Of United Nations Powers Advocated By Speaker

Broadening the powers of the United Nations and the surrender of a portion of national sovereignty to the international organization by the nations of the world was advocated last night by Dean Henry L. Brandis of the University of North Carolina Law School.

Brandis was the principal speaker on the United Nations day program sponsored by the Greenville Women's club and the Pitt Ministerial Association. Approximately 200 people attended the program held at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

"If we are going to strengthen the United Nations to the point which seems to be necessary, we must realize there will be some fundamental changes which must be made and these should be discussed by the American people," the speaker asserted. The surrender of sovereignty to the United Nations, he said, would not include only the United States, but every other nation, and on that basis "the United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose".

If the nations would agree to a surrender of sovereignty to the international organization, the speaker advocated a reduction of national armed forces, and a corrolary power given to the United Nations to deal with its own armed forces in case of aggression. The step would give a genuine chance of permanent peace, he declared, and afford individual nations "relief from the back-breaking burden of keeping a sufficient armed force to deter any nation from starting a third world war." If such a proposal were offered officially by the United States now, Brandis said, it is almost certain that Russia would have nothing to do with it. "The step is not likely to be realized in the immediate future." In the meantime, he said, the United States has no choice but to strengthen its armed might.

During the six years since its birthday, Brandis asserted, the United Nations has not failed in its purpose, but has done remarkably well in view of the limitations set forth in its charter. "Practically since its organization the United Nations has faced the pressure of unprecedented problems," Brandis said, the most important of which were international atomic control, the abuse of the veto power by Russia, armed conflicts between nations, and the international disputes which have not erupted into armed conflicts.

The large scale fighting in Korea does not mean the United Nations has failed, he said. "It is too early to judge what the outcome in

Civil Defense Study Concluded By Leaders At Statesville Meet

Junius H. Rose, Director of Civil Defense for Pitt County, has returned from Statesville where he attended a meeting of the Directors of Civil Defense of the larger cities and those on a county-wide basis, E. Z. Jones, State Director of Civil Defense and his staff and the representative of the National Civil Defense Office in Washington.

As a part of the two days' study the city of Statesville staged a mock A-bomb raid. An area of the town was marked off and no one was allowed to enter. All the air raid wardens were on the job. Two field hospitals were set up, one outdoors under tents and one in a school cafeteria. Three emergency hospitals were opened and completely staffed. The auxiliary police and auxiliary firemen were on the job and assisted the regular units. The doctors and nurses' units functioned perfectly.

The Civil Air Patrol and the Naval Reserve Unit took care of all communications from the Control Center in the Basement of the City Hall. Most all communications were by a short wave radio.

The striking thing about the demonstration was that there were about six hundred trained personnel and most of them were on the job.

All the school bus drivers of the entire county were there because they are part of the organization in case there had to be a movement of a large group of people.

There was a demonstration at the meeting of Geiger Counters and other machines to be used in detecting radiation.

At the two days' study, however, the emphasis was not on A-bomb attacks on most areas of North Carolina but rather on mutual aid for areas like Norfolk, Wilmington, Richmond, Cherry Point, and Camp Lejeune. That is, how to take care of evacuees from these areas, how to feed them and sleep them. There was also great emphasis placed upon the fact that in case of an attack on critical target areas near us we would be ordered to send large numbers of doctors and nurses, leaving our communities to take care of themselves as best they could and that is why home nursing and first aid classes are so important.

Director Rose stated today that that is where the Pitt County Chapter is placing the emphasis now, on a county-wide organization to take care of Pitt County in case neighboring areas are attacked. He plans to have several classes in first aid and home nursing started shortly, he said.

If He Had His Way

Being A Variety Of Opinions You Would Hold If Stalin Could Hypnotize Everybody In America Today; History As We Know It Would Be Drastically Changed

By HARRY FERGUSON

If Stalin could hypnotize everybody in America at noon today, here are some opinions you would hold on various subjects:

THE ATOMIC BOMB

Russia knows how to make it, but she never intends to use it in a war. She wants to use atomic energy for such civilian purposes as blasting canals and levelling mountains. The United States is building atomic bombs as fast as she can because she wants to drop them on Russia.

It would be easy to arrange for a limitation and inspection of atomic weapons except for the fact that America is stubborn.

THE UNITED NATIONS

It ceased long ago to function as a world organization representative of all the member nations. It now is dominated by the Anglo-American bloc which is using it as a vehicle for world conquest.

Russia remains a member only because she is sincerely striving for peace and hopes some day to show the Americans and British the error of their ways.

Sometimes it is necessary for Russia to veto a U. N. proposal to protect small nations which are helpless.

THE KOREAN WAR

It was started by the Americans who incited the South Koreans to attack the North Koreans. That was proved by the fact that Ambassador John Foster Dulles had his picture taken in the trenches in Korea.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway is trying to use Korea as a beachhead from which to conquer all of Asia, but the North Koreans and Chinese Reds have given him a terrific licking.

The only way Russia is involved is that she wants to have peace all over the world and that is, why Jacob Malik suggested that maybe a cease-fire could be arranged.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

Russia has bigger and better factories than anybody. Research over a period of the past 10 years has proved that Russians invented almost all modern machines and implements. It came out just the other day that a Russian invented the bicycle, for instance.

Rebel Stevedores Of AFL Hasten To Spread Strike

NEW YORK (UP)—Rebel AFL stevedores hooted down a proposal today to end their 11-day $250,000,000 wildcat strike here and hurried pickets to Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., in a move to paralyze shipping at those ports, orders while spokesmen for the

The pickets got their travel 20,000 longshoremen wrangled at an early morning session with Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Assn.

The strike has tied up 144 ships at 138 piers in New York, New Jersey, Boston and Albany, N.Y.

Clyde Mills, No. 1 trouble buster for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who had brought Ryan and leaders of the rebel faction together, said the conference broke up shortly after midnight without any progress being made.

The strikers turned down a proposal by Ryan that they return to work while a federal board studied their grievances and demands for a renegotiated contract.

The picket mission to Philadelphia, Chester and Baltimore was designed to persuade longshoremen from handling "hot" ships originally scheduled to dock here.

Mills said he would meet with Ryan and John (Gene) Sampson, leader of the insurgents, again at 3 p.m., an hour before the luxury liner America is scheduled to sail for France with United Nations delegates to the Paris conference.

Educational Television

Number Of Channels To Be Allotted To Educational Purposes Still Undetermined; Commercial TV Argues Against Over Ten Per Cent Of Open Channels

By JACK ADAMS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— One of the hurdles that has to be cleared before television is unfrozen is educational TV.

This matter is tied up tightly with the national channel allocation plan on which the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is now working preparatory to lifting the freeze early in 1952.

Thus, when the channels are definitely assigned, by cities, FCC must say finally what education is to get, and on what terms.

The commission tentatively ruled last March that about 10 per cent of all televising space should be specifically reserved for schools desiring to build and operate strictly education, non-commercial stations.

This plan would give educational institutions 209 of the approximately 2,000 local outlets envisioned for the nation.

Of the total school stations proposed, 82 could get channels in the Very High Frequency (VHF) band now in use and 127 would have channels in the proposed new Ultra High Frequency (UHF) range, still to be opened up.

The school world generally protested this wasn't nearly enough, and especially not enough VHF. FCC commissioner Frieda B. Hennock said education should have 25 per cent of all channel space.

On the other hand, commercial television generally thinks it is more than ample. Everyone in this group thinks educational television is a fine thing but—

Some say there should be no set-aside at all, that the schools should compete on even terms with industry for the available channels.

Some say the schools should project education to the public through established commercial outlets.

Some say the educators will never get around to using all the channels proposed for them and that any perpetual set-aside of these channels exclusively for school applicants would waste precious radio spectrum space.

Just how long the proposed reservation will run the commission has yet to decide.

The school say it should be per-

Whichard - Carroll Wedding

RALEIGH — Celebrated at the Church of the Good Shepherd at half after five o'clock yesterday afternoon, there took place in the presence of a very large number of invited guests the wedding of Miss Pattie Lawrence Carroll, one of Raleigh's most charming young women, and Mr. Henry Walter Whichard, one of the leading young business men of Norfolk, both prominent in the social life of North Carolina and Virginia.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Dr. Norwood G. Carroll, of Raleigh, who gave her away, and was met at the chancel by the bridegroom, Mr. Henry Walter Whichard, who was accompanied by his best man, his brother, Mr. Claude L. Whichard of Norfolk. The bride was most attractively gowned in white crepe charmeuse elaborately embroidered, with bodice and tunic of rose point lace and the conventional wedding veil with orange blossoms. Her only ornament was the gift of the bridegroom, a diamond horseshoe. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. L. A. Carr, of Durham.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Whichard left for the Homestead Hotel at Hot Springs, Va. where they will spend their honeymoon and will later be at home in Norfolk, where the bridegroom is a prominent young man in the wholesale dry goods business, held in high esteem in business circles and a favorite in social life. The bride is a cultured and charming young woman of a most attractive personality, the youngest daughter of the late Mr. O. Judson Carroll and the last of his five daughters to wed, and has a large circle of friends in North Carolina and in Virginia. The lovely wedding gifts attesting the high regard in which both bride and groom are held.

Permanent Art Collection Arranged At Local Gallery

The etchings of North Carolina scenes and places, which were executed by Louis Orr and purchased by private contributions for the local Art Gallery, have now been framed and are hanging on the mezzanine of the Sheppard Memorial Library.

There are 51 etchings in the collection. They have been framed in identical narrow black molding with a gold edge. The pictures were framed by L. O. Gross of this city and were hung recently by a committee from the Art Gallery Board composed of James Walker, Mrs. Closs Hearne and Mrs. L. T. Shotwell.

In addition to the etchings, there are three oil paintings which have been presented to the Art Gallery in recent years. These 54 works of art compose a permanent collection for the local gallery.

One of the oils, "Pigeon Cove" by W. Frith Winslow of Plymouth, was a gift from the artist to the Greenville Art Center "in honor of Rachel Moore's devoted service,' as is stated on a brass plate which the artist attached to the picture.

Another of the paintings, "Bali," was given by the artist, Celine Baekeland, to the gallery some time ago when she held a one-man show there, which was sponsored by the Art Center.

The third oil in the group is named "Coxscomb" and is a work of the artist Mabel Pugh, head of the Art Department at Peace College. This was bought by contributions of friends of the Gallery.

The above mentioned works of art are now permanently hung on the mezzanine of the library and the public is cordially invited to view them.

Announce Plans For Festival At Grade School

The P.T.A. of the Training School has made interesting plans for its second annual Hallowe'en Festival which will be held tomorrow night at the school.

Supper will be served in the cafeteria from 5:30-7:00 p.m. Last year many people were unable to get their supper due to the inadequate facilities for meeting the demands of the crowd. But this year, with the cafeteria available, everyone will be able to have his order filled.

There will be games in each of the rooms of grades 1 through 5. Square dancing will be enjoyed in the gymnasium sponsored by grades 6 through 8. A grand march with prizes given for the most attractive costumes for both boys and girls will conclude the festivities in the gym.

Pony rides, fortune telling booths and similar outdoor activities will be provided in the court.

Beginning at 7:30, there will be a talent show in the auditorium in which all the grades will participate. A prize will be awarded to the room displaying the most talent.

Admission prices to all games, sports and events and the price of all food will be five and ten cents.

NURSE GIVES LIFE TO SAVE CHILD:—Mrs. Mary Strock, 68, is lifted onto a stretcher by ambulance attendants at Santa Monica, Calif., after she had saved the three-year-old son of Actress Cass Daley. Vast Range Of Prices Unfrozen

SYDNEY, Australia — (AP)—The New South Wales State Government has removed the price freeze order on thousands of goods and services it made July 24.

The order had pegged the price of virtually everything at July 18 levels. It had been made to cushion the effect of the August basic wage rise of $1.44 a week.

Prices that were controlled before July 18—such as for bread, butter, eggs, rent —remain under control.

Little Theatre Guild Holds Meeting Wednesday Night

Little Theatre Guild members met Wednesday night at the Sheppard Memorial Library for the first time since becoming a part of the Greenville Recreation Commission. Several of the members say that "their adoption" by the Recreation Commission is something that they are extremely proud and happy about.

"For the past two years," said Mrs. Donna Tabor, guild vice-president, "the group has had their back to the wall, so to speak. We are sure that the affiliation is just the 'shot in the arm' needed." She also said it was the earnest desire of the guild to give active support to the recreation program and one of the future goals is the organizing of a Children's Little Theatre for boys and girls of all ages, including teen-agers.

At the present time, the group is rehearsing on "Tish", a three-act play to be given November 13 and 14 in the guild's "new home", the Greenville Recretion Center. The play is being sponsored by The King's Daughters and 50 percent of the proceeds will go to the charitable organization.

Mrs. Tabor said the group is hoping for good attendence at the play because future accomplishments depend on the support given the guild. "No organization can operate," she said, "for long without a treasury out of which to pay expenses. It has been impossible in the past to build up any reserve, since it was necessary to donate proceeds to charity, a thing which we were most willing to do, but did keep us operating without funds."

Mrs. Tabor said the Little Theatre Guild would like to publicly thank the city aldermen for their grand support during the past two years. "Without their help we would not have had a place to rehearse or meet and we sincerely appreciate their cooperation, in giving their permission to use the City Courtroom for rehearsals," Mrs. Tabor said.

"Further, we wish to thank the Greenville High School students who so willingly and generously helped us carry on," she stated, "and it is their fine spirit and interest in dramatics that gives us the incentive to carry on."

Mrs. Tabor said any adult is eligible to join the Little Theatre group and it is not necessary to be a "Sarah Bernhardt." Meetings are held on the second and fourth Tuesday evenings of each month and will continue in the Sheppard Memorial Library until they move to the Armory.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

ASK THE RIGHT QUESTIONS

Much of our modern thinking is superficial because our intellectual leaders are addressing themselves to the wrong problems. The philosopher Kant once made the amusing observation that if we want to think straight, we must ask the right questions; otherwise we try to milk a billy goat into a sieve.

People are asking today, what is the matter with capitalism? The truth of the matter is that economic systems make very little difference but the impulses in men's hearts are indeed decisive. Cruel, self-seeking men will spoil the best economic system, and well intentioned men will make the most outmoded economic system work to the benefit of mankind.

How can we cure alcoholism? That's another question so easy to answer that it should not even have been asked. Nobody ever became an alcoholic without imbibing beverage alcohol. Oh yes, we know all about frustration, maladjusted personalities, and all the rest of the psychological reasons for intemperance, but this applies to only about 40 per cent of all alcoholics. Twenty per cent more became alcoholics because they were defective, and 40 per cent more because they started to drink in high school and were encouraged by business practices and the cocktail party to continue. The question to ask is, "How can we reduce drinking?"

In heaven's name let us ask the right questions if we expect to get the right answers.

A Lot Of Baths And A Lot Of Car Washes

Raleigh citizens who have been skimping on the use of water for many weeks probably are hopping mad to learn that something like 267,000 gallons of their precious water supply was used by the State Fair during its five-day run.

We don't blame them. We would be mad too if a similar trick were played here.

While the city officials of Raleigh and the officials of the fair are arguing about whose fault it was that the city water supply was tapped for use by the fair, the citizens probably are kicking themselves around the city for not washing their automobiles for many weeks, limiting shaves to every other day, and limiting their baths to the "when necessary" category to help conserve the city's low water supply. At the same time they probably would like to place a few well aimed kicks in the seat of the pants of the city officials and fair officials who are responsible for the outrage.

If the city was justified in hauling into court the individuals who were caught using water to wash their cars and other wasteful purposes, some stringent action should be taken against the officials who allowed the fair to steal away 267,000 gallons of water from Raleigh's almost dry reservoirs.

Horror And Hope In Assaying The Future

It is possible that the course of history was altered last Friday when the Crowell-Collier Publishing Company released its October 27 issue of Collier's magazine.

That is, admittedly, a far-fetched possibility; but in our eyes, this monumental compendium of assaying the future (1952-60) cannot fail but provide food for thought, and influence past thinking among those who perused its pages. It may well influence their future thinking, too.

The entire October 7 issue of Collier's is devoted to a "Preview Of The War We Do Not Want"; and the finished product represents a readable documentary prepared by a great number of historians, writers and specialists in a dozen fields.

Three eye-opening concepts dominate the thinking of the panel which looked into the future. They are:

(1) The ascension and dominant role of the United Nations during the conflict and in the postwar years;

(2) The grand strategy of the military campaign (1952-55) and its "unorthodox" ending;

(3) The overwhelming atmosphere of hope and faith in a bright future for all members of the human family following collapse of the Communist tyranny.

The editors emphasized this last aspect over the actual "story" of World War III by devoting more space and analysis to the problems of reconstruction and rehabilitation of the world than to the imaginative cataclysm which engulfed it.

The Reflector is not in the business of selling magazines, but we do unqualifiedly commend this work to all who have doubts or fears or uncertainties as to the future. There is a silver lining, no matter how dark the clouds.

America's Pencil Line Of Civil Defense

The announcement that the United States' vast radar system—the first line of defense against enemy air attacks——is nearly completed brings to mind an important and yet somewhat depressing question.

When, if ever, will civil defense—our first line of defense against hysteria and confusion—be ready?

The government has nearly completed the $295,000,000 radar network designed to give warning in case enemy planes approach the borders of the United States from any direction. The intercepter planes which will compose the second line of defense of the nation's home front are being rushed to completion, but it will take many months for the force to be built to its desired strength.

The civil defense program which is just as vital as the other two is lagging far behind, and appears destined to lag behind until enemy bombs have struck American cities; then in some places it will be too late. Most of the people of the United States are aware that if a third World War comes the American mainland will be subject to bombing attacks. Yet even with this realization, the possibility seems so remote to most citizens that they can not take the civil defense program seriously.

If communist bombers ever strike American cities, pandemonium will break like a gigantic tidal wave upon the scene. The confusion and disorder probably will result in as much damage as the actual bombing. The fact that the people of the United States had not adequately prepared themselves to cope with a situation which was expected to come will cause the loss of unnumbered lives and inestimable property damage after the bombs have ceased to fall.

The civil defense program in the individual cities and communities is a vital part of the nation's preparedness program; but is a part which is being sadly neglected because of the indifference of the individual citizens.

The Old Military Maneuver

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The coming Christmas selling season may give merchants and jobbers an opportunity to finally cure the inventory problem that has been stubbornly sticking around the past few month.

Actual accumulation of inventory on a nationwide scale came to a halt last Summer, but the outward movement of this huge stock of goods has been becalmed in the doldrums of consumer apathy. Too many consumers themselves piled up home stocks of sheets and clothes and appliances during 1950's buying panics.

But practically no one has Christmas gifts stored away, and with employment and incomes both at record levels, there's an undoubted opportunity this holiday season to whittle down stocks and restore normal trade buying and production in consumer goods industries.

Interestingly, the increase in inventories over a year ago seems to be in those lines that Government and manufacturing officials keep warning are going to be scarcest next year, namely: autos, home furnishings, building materials and hardware. Auto dealers have on hand about 50 per cent more cars than a year ago, stocks of building materials are up 30 per cent, and home furnishings store have 30 per cent more goods. On the other hand, apparel shops have only 17 per cent more goods, drug store inventories are only a little heavier than a year ago, and retail food inventories are actually less.

But that by no means indicates the hard goods dealers are in worse shape than soft-goods merchants. It merely means stocks of autos and building supplies were on the low side a year ago while there was plenty of clothing in the stores. The soft goods men have a job to do this Dhristmas too.

NEW LITTLE BOOM IN HOME BUIDING

Private homebuilding surprisingly has taken an upward turn this Fall. In fact, it has been running seven per cent ahead of last Summer. For the first nine months of the year homebuilding totalled 852,000 new dwellings, well above the $48 and $49 levels, but 23 per cent under 50's record boom. The relative new strength of homebuilding activity is attributed by the U. S. Labor Dept. to the easing of credit limitations this fall and the desire of builders to get projects under way before further materials controls are imposed.

MANY PROJECTS GOT FAST TAX WRITEOFF

Despite the recent 60-day freeze on tax benefits to corporations, the Defense Production Administration has already approved 456 applications for writing off costs of new plants over five instead of the usual 20 years. Among the biggest were approvals for a $22-million-dollar plant to be built by the Newport Steel Corp. at Wilder, Ky., and a $16-million-dollar production facility for aviation gasoline to be built by Sunray Oil Corp. at Corpus Christi, Texas. The freeze on the rapid writeoff is now over and is not expected to be renewed, but a tougher policy on such applications has been laid down by Defense Mobilizer Wilson.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If there ever was a comedian who is down-to-earth, it's Jimmy Durante. Yesterday I saw a list of Jimmy's cracks that illustrate his ability to draw a smile:

There must be a woman in the moon. No man would stay up there that long alone and be out every night.

I could make the list of the Ten Best-dressed Men, but I don't want to spend $3,000 a year on moth balls!

My reputation as Jimmy the Well-dressed Man is in jeopardy. I got a pair of Sears Roebuck slacks for Christmas. First time I bent over, Sears and Roebuck dissolved partnership!

Politics is developing more comedians than radio or TV ever did.

A poll was taken to find out how many people see television in bars. The results were staggering.

A pedestrian is a man with a wife, a daughter, two sons, and one car!

This morning I saw something I hadn't seen in years: a bus driver smiling. It was 10 in the morning and he had already caught three noses in the door.

I know a movie star who will follow anyone that whistles at her. Her name is Lassie!

The acoustics at the opera must be horrible. I couldn't understand a wold they said.

When it comes to noses, Bob Hope is a retailer. I'm a wholesaler.

My horse is so polite that when he comes to a fence he stops and lets me go over first.

It used to be the television set that got poor reception, but now it's the guy who comes around for the payments.

I've watched new cars made on the assembly line. They start out with little pieces, then they roll down the line and thousands of men and a million dollars' worth of machinery slowly put everything together. Then a woman buys it and, five minutes later, back to the little pieces.

Another of my favorites, Groucho Marx, was interviewing a hula dancer who appeared on his NBC program, "You Bet Your Life." Groucho asked the girl, "Just what is a hula?"

"It tells a story by dancing," said the lady.

"And all this time," Groucho pondered, "I've been wasting my time reading books!"

And I thank you.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — Cupid must be laughting fit to split his sides at the United States government.

It has set out to solve the timeless mysteries of love and marriage—on an appropriation of $12,000.

The first session of the 82nd Congress appropriated some $95,000,000,000. It conducted more than 100 separate inquiries into matters ranging from how mink coats get into the White House to the unemployment problems of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

But when Washington had a chance to make a real investigation of benefit to all —how people fall in love, and what happens then?—It pulled the purse strings tight.

It alloted a miserly $12,000 to Prof. Robert F. Winch, a Northwestern University sociologist, to finance an 18-month study into what love is, and to tabulate "the gratifications and frustrations" of marriage today.

It strikes me that such a sum is a colossal insult to the common man, and certainly a misguided gesture toward economy in government.

Why Tommy Manville and many another millionaire have probably spent more than $12,000 on a love problem in a single weekend—and never come up with a satisfactory answer. Hollywood has budgeted movie kisses that cost more than $12,000 to screen.

Prof. Winch's study is being conducted under the auspices of the National Institute of Mental Health. But I will wager that for $12,000 he will be unable to give a complete picture of the hearts fractured by puppy love in any one kindergarten classroom, let alone explore the intricacies of adult married love.

This is no criticism of the professor, who is 40, has a wife, and has probably spent more than $12,000 charting his own marital voyage. But such a small sum! —It is like giving a child a penny and telling him to erect another Empire State Building.

To define and understand love, to achieve happy wedlock—these are tremendous tasks. They have challenged poets and warriors, cobblers and kings, husbands and wives, for centuries.

If the government now is going to probe into such affairs, it ought not to turn the job over to one lone scholar, working on a grant that wouldn't keep Gypsy Rose Lee mothproofed.

No, this investigation demands the massed talent of the mightiest minds in America. It is clearly a problem for congress.

Isn't love the biggest gamble in life? Isn't the way some married people treat each other and their children a national crime? How about that, Senator Kefauver? A real target for your old committee.

Love is so widespread and habit-forming, however, that I think the whole congress might well turn its entire attention to the matter for several years. It could start by adopting a budget of $50,000,000,000 and distributing it among the people, by lot, to see how money really affects their love life. (If you draw a small straw, you get $1,000. If you draw the longest straw, you get $1,000,000)

I have in mind making love the most romantic circus in history, featuring daily television programs on which our good gray statemen could query selected witnesses on their love dreams and marital adventures.

A few possible programs:

"The Suburban Husband Who Missed The Last Train Home," "How To Heal A Broken Heart In High School," "Love Problems Of A Philosophic Bartender," "Married Life In The Lower Bronx," "How Marriage Came To Hollywood And What Became Of It," and "Two Can Live As Cheap As One, But Why Do They Always Have To?"

The taxpayers would be glad to vote fifty billion bucks for a project that would get them real life entertainment and education like that.

Personally, I doubt if congress will find out anything more than any grandmother already knows —that love is a feeling that draws two people together, and marriage provides them a way, if they work at it, to remain together in general loving-kindness and keep the human race running. But if every American just learned that fact, it would still be the best-spent $50,000,000,000 any legislature ever voted.

And if, in addition, congress by some miracle should come up with a way of making the path of true love always run smooth —well, now, wouldn't that be the greatest highway paving project ever?

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Advocates of government versus private development of power are locked in a desperate struggle behind the scenes of the rearmament emergency. Although utility interests have recently won several major victories in courts and Congress, they realize that they face a showdown fight against Administration "liberals," headed by Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman. The presidential year of 1952 may be a time of final and fatal decision in their 20-year battle for bare survival.

The gravity of this infighting lies in the fact that Chapman proposals for federal development at Roanoke Rapids in North Carolina, Kings River in California, Bonneville in Oregon and elsewhere throughout the country, mark a revolutionary advance in the government's invasion of this field. It is a far more serious attack than even Franklin D. Roosevelt ever contemplated, although it was inherent in his broad power program.

F.D.R. merely proposed that Washington produce and sell power only when it resulted from construction of great dams needed for irrigation, flood control or other conservation purposes, as at TVA, Grand Coulee and Bonneville. Private industry was supposed to continue to provide power from existing water facilities and steam-generating plants. That was supposed to be a more or less permanent division of the field.

INVASION—Mr. Chapman would violate this formula, according to Congress, the courts and industry opponents. In connection with the three projects listed above, as well as in other sections, he wants to build plants which have no or a remote connection with irrigation, flood control or conservation.

As several eminent jurists, Congressional committees and lawyers for the Federal Power Commission point out, if Uncle Sam can take over this vast private industry on this say-so basis, there is no reason why the invasion of other industries might not be accomplished under the general welfare or interstate clauses of the Constitution. He can make steel, shoes, shirts, automobiles, dig coal and oil, run the railroads, or manufacture and sell any other durable or consumer commodity under the Truman-Chapman theory.

SETBACK—In a blistering decision, the U. S. Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va. blasted the Chapman thesis. In a case which saw two federal agencies opposed to each other in an open legal battle, the court ruled unanimously that the Federal Power Commission, not Secretary Chapman, had jurisdiction over granting water power licenses where there were no irrigation, flood control or conservation aspects involved.

It marked Mr. Chapman's third defeat in his persistent effort to supplant the FPC, a Congressional agency, in this field. Had he won, the FPC might as well have gone out of business, and jurisdiction in this province would have fallen to the faction of public power bureaucrats in Interior.

The Richmond court's decision, which was unusually lengthy and detailed in destroying the Chapman position, is the most severe setback suffered by advocates of public power in many years. Judge John J. Parker, who delivered it, said that Secretary Chapman had no more business in this field than the Postmaster General. He also noted that badly needed hydroelectric capacity had been wasted for three years because of Interior's long legal fight to become the dominant power agency at Washington.

THREAT—In view of these Chapman defeats, it would be unusual for Solicitor General Perlman to take the case to the Supreme Court. However, President Truman favors Interior's position, and the Democrats plan to highlight the public power issue in order to capture western states in the 1952 election. Interior lawyers also believe they may obtain more favorable treatment from the high tribunal, which is supposed to have a public power majority as a result of Roosevelt-Truman reorganization.

Mr. Chapman also figures in a Congressional controversy on this same question, involving Bonneville. Utility spokesmen say the outcome means life or death for their industry, as well as a threat to every other private enterprise.

EXPLOSIVES — One of the acute problems inherent in an all-out defense program such as the United States is now engaged in, whether it be a hot or a cold war, is the transportation of explosives by common carriers on water, highways, railroads and airplanes. The commonly recognized hazards of hauling gasoline and other highly flammable materials are greatly enhanced when heavy tonnage of explosive ammunition must be transported across the country. Military needs for fast movement of such materials often conflict with ordinary safety rules adopted for protection of the people living along and using the transportation routes.

COMPETITION — Also involved is the long time competition among the different transportation systems for business. Water, rail and highway systems have actively sought all the business they could get. This competition has resulted in improved service and lower rates upon the whole, but there have zeal for business might have ignored some factors of public safety. That is the big question now before the interstate commerce commission in considering applications of some sixty motor truck companies for authorization to haul explosives over public highways. The railroads are vigorously opposing the idea, because it means loss of business which heretofore has been exclusively theirs. First decisions of ICC were against the trucking companies. In this connection it might be noted that the railroads have a record of 29 consecutive years without injury or death resulting from the handling of high explosives. More recently the American Automobile Association intervened in the interest of highway safety. The highways, unfortunately, do not have as good record as the railroads in that respect. People in this section of the state remember the tragedy at "Catch-Me-Eye" in Johnston county a few years ago.

LONG RANGE — This is one episode in the long range war between rail and highway transportation companies for the handling of both passenger and freight traffic. The odds in this instance seem to favor the rails because of the safety element. In many other contests the odds favor the highways because of greater convenience to the public. Each case must be considered on its individual merits. Factors include not only safety of the service to the public, but also the element of protecting investments, both public, but also the element of protecting investments, both public and private. In the main, railroads were built by private capital, highways were built out of public tax money. There are confusing and overlapping conditions in both.

OWNERSHIP — North Carolina, for example, owns majority stock in about four hundred miles of railroad track, and completely owns about 62,000 miles of highways. Meantime, federal appropriation has been made to build a railroad for a privately financed toll highway across the state. The general rule applies that railroads are owned by citizens and pay heavy taxes for upkeep of government, while highways are owned by government which plows back into them additional taxes collected from the people. There is continuing controversy over whether railroads pay too much taxes and commercial users of highways get too much free service. The real problem facing government officials is where to draw the line to make sure that all commercial operators pay their just share of costs and still maintain adequate service for all the people.

ACHIEVEMENT — In face of these conditions the southeastern corner reports the most progress of any section of the state during the past few years. Multi-million dollar installations by DuPont near Kinston, by J. P. Stevens company at Wallace, by Riegal Paper company near Acme, and other big jobs, plus a lot of smaller — but not little —ones, puts that area in the forefront of North Carolina industrial progress. A recent report of the Wilmington chamber of commerce, which modestly claims only a fifteen mile radius from the city which is the logical economic center of the whole southeast, embracing eight or nine counties, presents some interesting facts. In 1940 some 3,000 industrial workers earned about $2,700,000 a year in wages. By 1950 that had changed to 8,500 workers earning $14,000,000. Logical projection of these figures for the new plants under construction in that 15-mile radius from the City of Wilmington shows employment of between eleven and twelve thousand people with annual payroll in exlars. Add to that the industrial cess of twenty million dolland military installation pay roll just beyond the 15-mile radius and you can get a pretty good idea of how much has been achieved by refusal of the folks in that section to recognize the rule book which said it couldn't be done.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(New Bern Sun-Journal)

Back in 1945 there were many tales of President Truman's unpracticed behavior in press conferences. But he was new to the White House then, and sympathy for him was general, says Bruce Biossat, editorial writer of the Newspaper Enterprise Association. In 1951 it is difficult to find excuse for the kind of performance he put on recently when the government's news-security ruling was under renewed discussion.

He cited to newsmen a survey which declared that newspapers and magazines have published 95 per cent of the government's secret information. This the President felt was adequate justification for the security order. But it was quickly established that the "secret" stories of which Mr. Truman complained had all been authorized for publication by government officials themselves. In other words, he appeared to be blaming the press for not exercising judgment that ought to have been used in the first instance by Federal officials.

Later, urged to give an example of the sort of information leak he was trying to prevent, the President referred to Fortune Magazine's use of maps showing location of America's atomic energy plants. This particular information was cleared for publication by no less an agency than the Atomic Energy Commission itself, generally reputed to be the tightest security outfit in Washington. The Atomic Energy Commission is under strict statutory control on security and all other matters, and hence represents a special case. Being a defense agency, it undoubtedly would long since have been placed under careful secu- other safeguards in force.

So on two different counts, the Atomic Energy Commission was the poorest possible illustration the President could have chosen. The new order has no bearing on it whatsoever. And on top of that, the Commission had approved the maps in question.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton of Red Oaks, Ia., believes in "good old-fashioned Fourth of July partiotism" and always finds coming home the best part of any of her journeys to far-away lands.

Nevertheless, she thinks clubwomen are this country's best ambassadors of good will. As president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) she has led two "World Co-operation Tours". She has just returned from the second tour, which included visits to Greece, Egypt, Spain and Portugal.

She is already planning a good neighbor trip of clubwomen to South America in a few months. In the fall of 1950 she led a party of 40 on a tour of nine European countries.

"The purpose of these trips is to carry to affiliated clubs and clubwomen abroad the greetings of the American members of the federation and to discuss with them matters of common interest, especially in view of the serious world situation," she said.

Mrs. Houghton saluted Greece's 3,000 clubwomen, who are "on their toes", actively engaged in welfare, education and citizenship projects. She returned with a plea from the mothers of Greece to American women to help them get back the 28,000 Greek children held behind the Iron Curtain by Russia's satellite bountries.

"Only 300 of the missing Greek children have been returned to date, despite United Nations pressure," Mrs. Houghton said. As president of the GFWC she expects to pass along the Greek women's plea to her organization's 7,500,000 members.

Mrs. Houghton said a highlight of her trip was an audience she and the 19 other clubwomen had with Queen Frederika of Greece. The American women spent considerable time the night before practicing how to curtsy, but "imagine our surprise to have the queen dash up with an American handshake. We curtsied anyhow."

The Queen wore a Greek peasant costume, and orange juice and cookies were served while she talked about the world's need for "moral regeneration" and the role women must play in bringing peace to the world.

Mrs. Houghton also spoke highly of the efforts Egyptian clubwomen have made to improve conditions in their land. She was impressed with the health, recreation and educational services at their 56 village centers to backward rural communties.

Fifteen Contestants For Title

Crowds Throng Williamston Event

Williamston's fourth annual Harvest Festival last night came to an end with a beauty contest which included 15 lovely young ladies from among whom a queen was selected. Shown above is part of the large crowd which attended the dance. A record breaking crowd of over 20,000 persons jammed the city's streets yesterday afternoon to watch a two and a half mile long parade which included eleven bands and 20 floats. 'Freak' Housing Not A Good Buy

CHICAGO —(AP) The prospective home buyer should beware of houses built at high cost with "freak" features! H. L. Cunliffe writes in the current issue of The Review of the Society of Residential Appraisers.

There are two main reasons the house with very unusual and expensive features is not a good buy, he says: —

1. Mortgage values are based on the "typical" buyer.

2. The resale value of a house may be extremely low if its unusual features are designed for the tastes of only one or a few persons.

Soviet Flag Torn By Angry Citizen

DENVER (UP)— A patched-up Soviet flag held together with pins and stitches after an anti-Communist demonstrator slashed it, fluttered alongside the Stars and Stripes today at the United Nations exhibit here.

The flag was being hoisted yesterday along with 114 other U.N. member flags in observance of United Nations Week.

Spectators said a man raced up to the Soviet emblem and slashed it several times with a sharp instrument, presumably a knife. Then he ran to a waiting automobile and sped away.

A similar incident occurred last year when the Soviet flag was torn and trampled in the mud.

To guard against a repetition of the incident, special police squads had been assigned with orders to keep a close watch on the flag of the USSR.

The National Geographic Society says many of the Portuguese who settled in New England fishing citie came from the Azores.

Dealer Advises Care In Purching Of A House

TEANECK, N. J. — (UP) — It could be, says a veteran real estate dealer, that in looking for a dream house you could buy the wrong house easily.

"House fever is a vicious thing," said B. J. Bergton, a placid man who has been in on the land boom in New Jersey's Bergen County from the start.

The area is one of the fastest growing in the United States and Bergton himself has sold tens of millions of dollars worth of land and home in the last few years.

"I like to make a buck as well as the next guy," he said, "but I'd rather sell the right house to the right family than peddle a house simply because the house hunters have their hearts and souls on buying a home, any home."

Calls It "House Fever"

Many times, Bergton said, such a determination takes the form of a mania and the first house that's seen is the one which many times the average home-buyer wants right off the bat. That's what Bergeton calls "house fever."

Many things could be wrong with any house, Bergton pointed out, and the shortcomings do not necessarily manifest themselves in basic construction.

"You can change your hose but you can't change the location," Bergton said. "Therefore, never buy the best house in the neighborhood. Don't buy or build a ranch house in an established two story neighborhood.

"Both are hard to sell and since the house is probably the largest single investment of your life, you want to be sure that if you ever have to sell, you can."

Buyer Beware

Certainly, this agent said, dream houses are wonderful...the house on the mountain top, away from turmoil and dust, serenely looking out over the beautiful countryside.

"But it's rough if you ever have to sell," Bergton advised. "Selling a house requires that it be accessible to schools, shopping facilities and transportation."

A word of advice from Bergton is not to take anybody's guess on what the taxes will be. Find out from the tax assessor, or get an estimate by sh: ing him the location nd plans of the house.

Also the new house buyer should look into the builder's reputation . . .find out where he's built before and ask the people who live there how well they were taken care of on minor adjustments. Like a ship.

The Hebrews in Slavery

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 1-2.

The Hebrews grew so numerous and powerful in Egypt that the Pharaoh was alarmed, feeling that in case of war, they might side with the enemy. He set them to work building cities for him, setting over them brutal taskmasters.

The Hebrews continued to multiply, so the Pharaoh commanded that all male babies should die. One Hebrew mother put her infant in a basket made of rushes and set it at the river edge, where the Pharaoh's daughter found it.

The boy Moses grew up in the Egyptian court, but he mourned for the plight of his countrymen. One day he saw an Egyptian overseer strike a Hebrew worker, so, infuriated, he killed the Egyptian and buried his body in the sand.

Discovering that his crime was known, Moses fled from Egypt to Midian. At a well he helped the priest's daughters water their flocks when surly shepherds prevented them.

The Hebrews in Slavery

THEY WERE SORE AFFLICTED, BUT JEHOVAH HEARD THEIR CRIES

Scripture—Exodus 1-2.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE ARE beginning a new book in the Bible with this lesson. It is named Exodus, which means "a going out." It tells of the Jews' sufferings under the Pharaohs who "knew not Joseph," and their final return to Canaan.

Seventy souls of Jacob's family accompanied him to Egypt, and many more must have been with them, counting their servants, etc.

The generation of Joseph had died. The reigning monarchs had forgotten him, but they were troubled by the fact that from those who had come to Egypt, there had risen a great and mighty people, who might, the reigning Pharaoh thought, take sides with an enemy in case of an attack on the country.

The Pharaoh's first thought was that if he made them work hard enough many might die of exhaustion, so he made them build him two cities, Pithom and Raamses. He set brutal taskmasters over the workers, who kept driving them to their labors.

The Hebrews still multiplied under this cruel treatment, so the Pharaoh next told the Israelitish midwives to kill every male child born to a Hebrew mother. The midwives refused, however, because they feared God, and they gave the king the excuse that the Hebrew mothers' babies were born before the midwives arrived.

The next plan to rid the country of Hebrews was a command to all the people, that whenever a male child was born to a Jewish mother, they were to throw it into the Nile. How many helpless infants were sacrificed in that dreadful manner we do not know, but one mother hid her newly-born son, until he was too old to be concealed.

Then she fashioned an ark or basket of bulrushes, made it waterproof with pitch, and, after putting the baby into it, she set it among the tall grasses at the side of the river. She posted the child's sister near the spot, to watch and see what became of him.

The Pharaoh's daughter came to the river that morning to bathe, accompanied by her handmaidens. She saw the ark among the flags and sent a maid to fetch it to her. The baby began to cry, and the princess' heart was touched, so that she decided to adopt it, although she knew it was a Jewish child.

The baby's sister came to the princess then and asked if she should get a Hebrew woman to nurse the child for her. She assented and so the mother nursed the boy and then brought him to the princess, who named him Moses, saying, "Because I drew him out of the water." She adopted the child as her son.

Moses was brought up in the Egyptian court and educated well. He, apparently, never lost touch with his countrymen, however, and as he grew to manhood he fiercely resented the way the Jews were treated.

One day he watched the burdens imposed upon them, and when he saw an Egyptian overseer strike one of his brethren, he became so infuriated that, looking about him and seeing (as he thought) no one looking, he killed the Egyptian and hid his body in the sand.

Someone had seen him, however, and taunted him with the murder next day. Thinking that the thing was known to many, Moses fled from Egypt before the Pharoah could revenge the deed. He went to Midian.

Now, the priest of Midian had seven daughters whose duty it was to water their father's flock, but some surly and selfish shepherds drove the girls away from the watering troughs.

Moses took their part, and helped them with the watering, proving again his sense of justice, his compassion and willingness to help the oppressed.

When the daughters went home, their father asked them why they came so soon. They told him of the young man who had aided them, and the father demanded to know why they had not brought him with them. "Call him," the father said, "that he may eat bread."

Moses was content to dwell with Reuel, the priest, who gave him one of his daughters, Zipporah, for his wife, and two sons were born of the marriage.

During the time Moses dwelt in Midian, the Pharaoh died. This was the calm period of Moses' life, when undoubtedly Jehovah was maturing and training him for the work He had in store for him.

Meanwhile, the Hebrews, slaves in Egypt, called upon God to release them from their unbearable bondage.

"And God heard their groanings, and God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac and with Jacob. And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them."

This most persecuted race still possesses its amazing vitality. After 18 centuries of persecution, culminating in the greatest of all in which six million were slain in 10 years, the race still has the strength and ability to set up its own government in the face of great odds, in its own land of Israel.

Buyers Advised 'Hoard Dollars'

PITTSBURGH, Pa. —(AP)— The American consumer is advised to take up the hoarding of dollars instead of consumer goods to combat inflation in the coming year.

This was the recommendation of Walter J. [illegible] Ray, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, in a speech before the Pennsylvania Savings and Loan League.

"Whether we will have more or less inflation in the next year is squarely up to 150 million American consumers," he said. Price inflation since Korea has been caused chiefly by panicky consumer buying "spurred on by the cries of shortages and higher prices."

Aussies Bringing Navy Up To Date

SYDNEY, Australia —(AP)— Australia plans to modify her two aircraft carriers so that jet planes and new anti-submarine planes can operate from them.

Plans were disclosed at a news conference by Rear-Adm. J. W.M. Eaton, new flag officer commanding the Australian Fleet.

Rear-Adm. Eaton said the flattops would be modified to follow the modern trend of naval warfare—to make the carrier the hard core of the fleet.

Find Graves Of Pinhead Cavemen

ROME —(AP)— The 5,000 year-old graveyard of a whole village men has been found near Verona in the foothills of the Italian Alps.

Prof. Francesco Zorzi of the Natural History Museum of Verona says these neolithic men must have lived in an age when elephants, roamed Europe at least 3,000 years before Christ.

The burial ground was found in a clay deposit within a few miles of Verona, in fields where for several years farmrs hae been digging up bits of archaic stone work and fragments of elephant bones.

Crusade Of Prayer

By REV. CHARLES GABLE

Prayer is a natural source of comfort and hope whenever trouble or fear weigh heavily. The ghastly possibilities that grow more menacing every day are enough to cast a heavy shadow on the most sanguine heart. Not only are the lives of the flower of our youth at stake as well as our large cities with their teaming populations, but more precious than all this is the danger of losing our freedom which has been won through heroic and persevering struggle throughout the centuries.

Though we are facing a foe that has arrogantly disregarded every right of the individual and of other nations; though this enemy has been extending his conquests and enslaving new nations every day, yet we cannot resign ourselves to a hopeless fate and say that war is inevitable.

Christianity has been at the cross roads more than once in the past. Dark days held out victory to our foes, but in the final struggle the power of God was manifest. Christianity chastened, perhaps, but victorious, gave proof to its character by the fruits of its victory. But victory was always brought with the price of fervent and persevering prayer.

The faith in God that we profess has come down through the centuries. It was born and nurtured in an obscure nomadic tribe. It was perfected by the Son of God sent into the world as its Saviour. Ruthless tyrants of old with mighty armies sought to erase its memory from the minds of men. But faith in God and in the teachings of Jesus Christ continue to control the thinking and lives of the flowar of humanity.

As our forefathers asserted their faith in a time of trial; as the men and women who lived in the various ages defeated the enemies of God through prayer so we, the chosen people of God, must relight the fire of our faith and turn to God for guidance, courage and perseverance. But we cannot hope to obtain that victory by the prayer of a day, a week or a month. Only a life of prayer that begins in the family will close up the ranks of the people of God and give them the power to crush the forces of evil. Ours is the responsibility of passing on to coming generations the message of truth and the means of salvation. Our failure to have recourse to prayer is not only a betrayal of trust but an inglorious surrender of our heritage to our enemy and the enemy of God.

Red Satellites Are Given MIGs

BERLIN —(AP)— The Russians are equipping their satellite states with MIG 15's, the speedy jet fighter planes that were unveiled in North Korea, foreign diplomats report.

Trusted young Communists are being trained in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania to fly the jets.

An American who visited Warsaw recently said he saw considerable air activitiy over the city by streaking jets. Polish officials said the pilots were Poles who are regarded in aviation circles as good fliers, if a little reckless.

Assure Increase In Meat Supply

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Agriculture Department promises more meat next year. And best of all, more beef. But it doesn't hold much hope for lower prices.

In an "outlook" report on livestock and meat, the department said a "reasonable expectation" would be an increase in combined beef and veal output next year of about 10 per cent.

It said the increase might ease prices downward at times of heavy marketings, but for the year as a whole prices seem likely to remain near 1951 levels.

The increase, the department said, may be large enough to provide 144 pounds of meat per person next year — equal to the 1948-50 average.

The report pointed out that cattle slaughter for 1951 is at a 10-year low and calf slaughter may be the lowest in 18 years.

But, it said, the numbers of cattle and calves on farms are being increased by up to 7,000,000 head and a new high of around 91,000,000 head is expected at the end of the year.

Americans are hitting a nine-year low in meat consumption this year, according to the department.

Department economists figured that each American will eat 141 pounds of meat during 1951 — lowest consumption since 1942's per capita rate of 139.5 pounds. Last year each American ate 144 pounds of meat, compared with a high of 155 pounds in 1947.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 34

"We saw your lights," said Doctor Clark. "What a night!"

Nancy gave Johnny a skeptical look. "I looked all over for you. What happened?"

"Plenty," said Johnny. He glanced at the glass in Nancy's hand. "Got any more of the same, darling?"

She nodded. "Doctor Clark prepared nightcaps for everyone. There's some left."

"Where's everyone?" Bea asked.

"Somewhere," said the doctor. "I think Doris has gone to bed. Beth is out in the kitchen making sandwiches."

Johnny noted empty glasses on the coffee table. Doctor Clark picked up a cocktail shaker, shook it, smiled and filled two fresh glasses for Bea Cronk and the private investigator. "What a party tonight," he smiled. "Well, at least we're all home safe, and bygones are bygones. Drink hearty!"

Johnny took his drink. But Bea shook her head. Her eyes met Johnny's, and then she asked the doctor, "Where's my brother?"

It was Dave Sherman who answered her. "Raph decided to spend the night in his cottage," he said. "He left right after we had a nightcap."

No one else said anything for a moment. But Johnny knew what they were thinking. He guessed almost everyone in this house hated Ralph Cronk. No wonder the man was staying by himself tonight.

Johnny then caught a glance that Nancy gave him. She wandered out toward the adjoining study, and shortly he followed. Her eyes were no longer scolding as he came up to her. Instead, they were serious.

She said, "Ive just searched Ralph Cronk's room upstairs. No one was around, and I took advantage of it."

Johnny smiled. "Fine girl! What did you find?"

" thing!"

"You're sure—"

She nodded. "I practically tore the place apart."

Johnny frowned. "Then, if he does have anything from Jeannette's apartment, he's taken the stuff with him to the bungalow. I'm gon over there."

Nancy instantly gripped his arm. "Be careful, Johnny!"

He grinned, "I'm glad my wife worries about me once in a while."

Against her protests, he got his coat and went out into the stormy night. He remembered to shift the .38 from his left to the rightside coat pocket.

Moving across the yard, he heard the great Danes barking. They were still outside in the storm. Odd, that!

He also recalled that there had been no light in Ralph Cronk's cottage, and yet they had said Cronk left the main house just a little while ago. Certainly the man must still be up. But why no lights?

Johnny's steps swerved toward the barking dogs. The sound, somewhat muffled by the storm, came from out beyond the barn.

He stopped off at the barn, obtained the flashlight that was in the glove compartment of Nancy's car. He had seen it yesterday when he had placed the gun and cigarettes there. The light in his hand he continued his way through the snowstorm. The dogs were still barking.

Finally he saw them. They appeared to have found something on the ground out there,and this explained their constant barking. Johnny directed the flashlight beam toward them.

A human form, motionless, lay in the snow!

The figure lay on one side. Johnny rolled it over. His eyes narrowed, even as amazement took hold of him. It was big, dark-haired Ralph Cronk. Johnny swiftly loosened the man's coat. Cronk's features were pasty and set. The investigator bent close. He thought he detected a peculiar odor, but he forgot that as he made his next discovery.

Ralph Cronk was dead.

He was dead—and there was not a mark of violence on him!

In the night, almost beside Johnny Saxon, a woman's taut voice said, "Good heavens!"

He straightened. Johnny had caught her sharp intake of breath just before she spoke. It was Doris Wells, a fur coat covering her rather small figure, her gray eyes staring past him at the still form in the snow.

He said "I'd heard you were in bed." He wondered what she was doing out here at this hour, in the storm.

"No," she explained rather quickly, her gaze still on the figure of Cronk, "I hadn't retired. I didn't feel well, so I stepped out to the front porch to get a little air.'

"You'd better get Doctor Sam Clark," he suggested.

For the next half hour there was assorted confusion. They had moved the dead man into the barn. Attempting to reach the State Police barricks, they learned that no one could be sent up here for several hours yet. The road leading north to the barracks was blocked by the slowede trailer-truck; moreover the state cops had their hands full with other traffic difficulties.

"It doesn't matter," Sam Clark told Johnny. "I'm county coroner out this way, you know. The State Police would have to call me any way. I have enough authority to go right ahead with an examination."

"Shoot," directed Johnny

Doctor Sam Clark worked with trained efficiency. Finally, covering the corpse, he turned away from the makeshift autopsy table that had been improvised in the barn.

"You think it's murder, don't you, Saxon?"

HARVEST FOR LORD

GATTMAN, Miss. —(UP)— Members of the Depriest Freewill Baptist church near here say they have gone into "partnership with the Lord." They harvested two bales of cotton from land they planted next to the church. The pastor, Hansell Hollie, said money from the sale of "the Lord's cotton" will go into the church treasury.

BAREHAND CATCH

Vancouver, B. C. —(AP)— Robert McBay, 67, caught a 10-pound salmon with his bare hands at Kitsilano Beach here. He waded into the water with his clothing on and scooped the fish up, taking 10 minutes to subdue the flipping salmon.

Five persons, including the driver, were injured. Damage to the pole resulted in current being cut off in some parts of the city.

Little Rain For Parched Places

The Weather Bureau offered only scant hope today for parched North Carolina cities.

Light showers were predicted for the mountains, but there was no indication they would amount to more than yesterday's scattered falls of less than a tenth of an inch.

Asheville reported that its water situation was critical and rushed to rig emergency pumps which would pick up water now spilling through reservoir outlets.

City Manager Bill Timberlake urged citizens at Roxboro to conserve water. The Roxboro reservoir, a 68-acre lake, was 37 inches below normal.

A squabble over water appeared developing in Raleigh, where th drought has been critical for a month. The city has just discovered that the State Fair used 267,378 gallons of scarce city water, despite wells and a pumping system on the fairgrounds which were supposed to supply all its needs. Much of the water flowed through a pipe which by-passed the city's meter.

Burlington was even considering calling in a "rain-maker." City Manager E. C. Brandon said he planned a talk with Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Harvard professor who he understood handled New York's rain-making program last year.

Industrial plants in Burlington face a shutdown if the water level drops to a 10-day supply, which may be any day.

Confident Red Threats Are Intended As Bluff

BERLIN (UP)— Top American officials here are convinced that Russia will not strike westward with'n the foreseeable future, if ever.

This was the main impression gained by 14 touring American newspapermen after conferring with high Allied officers in Berlin.

The assertion was heard constantly that Soviet threats were "mainly bluff." But the Allied officials stressed that their confidence did not cause them to relax a 24-hour alert that has been in effect for many months.

To an outside American observer the high degree of morale in the beleaguered Westrn zon of Berlin — surrounded entirely by Russian-controlled territory — is almost unbelievable.

Both Americans and Germans express the opinion that the United States and its Western Allies are winning the cold war of nerves against the Kremlin.

Nowhere in Western Eruope is there such confidence in the ultimate triumph of the anti-Communist forces as in Western Berlin, which is occupied by the U. Britain and France.

One high official said he was convinced Russia lacked much of th war potential with which it had been credited. He particularly belittled the size and effectiveness of the Soviet bomber forc.

However, other American officials in Germany say they believe Russian air superiority is one of the greatest menaces they have to face.

American and other Allied officials here readily admit the Reds could easily overrun West Berlin in a matter of hours if they wished. But, the officials ask, what would be the use if the Kremlin knew the Soviets eventually would lose a war?

Sobriety Reigns In Liquor Scare

ATLANTA (UP)—Atlanta police, who usually arrest from 50 to 100 persons a night for drunkeness, jailed only one inebriated imbiber last night.

"Bad, bad whisky," they explained. Instead of drinking, officers said, loiterers about beer halls read the latest developments of the city's poison liquor disaster and listened to radio and television broadcasts.

Says Eisenhower Hands Are Tied

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy says Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's hands appear to be tied just "as MacArthur's were in Asia."

The Wisconsin Republican told a Wisconsin insurance agents meeting yesterday that there is "tremendous support" for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ideas in the country.

Third Expedition To Antarctic Is Leaving France

By GEORGE SIBERA
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS —(UP)— Members of the third French Antarctic expedition have left Rouen aboard the Norwegian whaling ship Tottan, which will carry them to months of adventure in the forbidding southland of Terre Adelie and Pointe Beologie, off the south polar circle.

The expedition, commanded by the noted French explorer, Mario Marret, will spend months—probably a year—on the treacherous pole studying geology, weather conditions and wild life.

For days while the Tottan was tied up in Rouen, dozens of trucks lent by the French armed services spilled into the ship's hold tons of supplies ranging from parkas and steel creepers to intricate weather recording devices.

To Protect Films

A specially-built refrigerator of four cubic meters was lowered into the hold. It will protect miles of film shot by the explorers from salt water and wet climate during the ships home run through tropical seas next year.

On the Tottan's deck, off the commander's post, a shining weatherproof metal cabin was erected to protect the gyro compasses which will lead the whaler safely through the dangerous waters around the South Pole.

The expedition expects to reach Terre Adelie early in Janurary and take over the camps already established there by the two earlier French expeditions.

Others to Follow

Some members of the mission will leave France later this winter and join the rest of the party in an Australian port.

From Australia the Tottan will set its course on Port Martin on Terre Adelie, the chief French base in the polar seas.

From Australia the Tottan will set its Pointe Geologie, an ice-covered stretch of land 60 miles off Terre Adelie, whre the French will set up a new base.

To Tackle Glacier

"We have already approached the hardly accessible glacier last year and we hope to hoist there the tricolor this year," the expedition leader said.

"What matters is correct timing of the landing, since crackling ice in the thaw period with storms howling over your head make landing extremely dangerous.

"Next you have to find a suitable place for the huts on a solid rocky cliff where the rotting ice does not cave under your feet and an unsuspected crevice does not engulf you."

Found Stranger Using His Home

DENVER (UP)— George W. Harrington came home last night and found a stranger sleeping under a blanket in Harrington's living room.

He had never seen the man before. Harrington called police who took the sleepy man off to jail where he identified himself as Jack R. Sander, 21.

He said he just got tired.

All It Took Was A New Approach

ANDERSON, Ind. (UP)— An Anderson housewife had no luck advertising for a home until she inserted the following ad in the newspaper:

President Signs Legislative Bills

WASHINGTON (UP)— Some 1,500,000 postal workers and "white collar" government employes will get cost-of-living wage boosts under legislation signed by President Truman.

The increases are retroactive to July 1. Most of the 500,000 postal workers will get a minimum $400 annual hike, while the rest will get an 8.8 per cent increase, up to a maximum of $800 a year.

The white collar federal employes will get 10 per cent increases ranging from $300 to $800 a year.

The postal raises will add $252,000,000 a year to the federal payroll, while the other boosts will cost the government $421,000,000 a year.

Mr. Truman also signed legislation late yesterday:

1. Providing $113,000,000 for flood relief, most of which will be used to aid victims of last summer's devastating floods in Kansas and Missouri. The President, who had requested $400,000,000, said he was "particularly disappointed that this bill includes no provision for making a start toward a satisfactory system of flood insurance."

2. Providing $597,262,713 for flood control, rivers and harbors and other "civil functions." The measure gives the Army Engineers $16,544,100 for flood control projects and $192,657,613 for navigation improvements.

3. Reducing from 100 to 72 inches the maximum for length and girth combined for parcel post packages. The legislation also cuts from 70 to 40 pounds the maximum weight for parcel post packages in the first and second-class mailing zones from any post office, and from 70 to 20 pounds shipments into the third through eighth zones.

Driver Changed Safety Habits

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)— Lloyd Reisner was convicted of drunken driving in municipal court yesterday. He was fined $10 and costs and his driver's license was suspended 90 days.

Back in 1949, the Indiana Motor Truck Assn. and the American Trucking Assn. gave Reisner their "Driver of the Year" award for the skill and safety with which he drove.

Cotton Growers Advised To Handle Crop Carefully In Preparing For Market

County farm officials today urged Pitt cotton growers to take special care in preparing their 1951 crop for market if they expect to get the highest possible prices.

This year Pitt County farmers have increased cotton acreage by nearly 100 per cent over last year. They have more than 14,000 acres in cotton cultivation as compared to a 1950 total of 7,800.

County Agent Sam C. Winchester estimated that this year's yield per acre will be 400 per cent over last year. Winchester expressed fear that the unusually large harvest may cause farmers to become careless in handling and in so doing, lower the price of their cotton.

The county agent recommended that in picking and ginning their crops farmers should "pick cotton dry and free of trash and not mix good cotton with bad, not over dry seed cotton, and not subject cotton to more machining than is necessary."

"Unless these recommendations are carried out, cotton may be lowered by at least one grade," Winchester said. "That would constitute the total loss in value of every thirteenth bale," he added. The farm agent explained that the value of one 500 pound bale of middling one, one-thirty-second cotton at government support prices is $167.40, while the value of the same amount of cotton at a "strict middling" grade (one grade lower than middling) would bring only $154.15 at government support prices.

If cotton is being reduced in grade due to any phase of preparation, Winchester said, farmers should check with their ginners to see if the cause is wet or green cotton or improper ginning. "Although some loss may be attributed to inadequate pre-ginning conditioning and mechanical processing, bad harvesting practices are the major contributing factors to the lowering of grade and consequently the reduction in market price."

A report from the North Carolina extension service on cotton ginning from October 1 through October 14 showed a total of 1,415 bales of cotton was ginned in Pitt County during that period. Added to the 2,041 bales of cotton reported ginned in the county before October 1, it brings the total amount of cotton ginned in the county since the first of the harvesting season to 3,456 bales.

The majority of the cotton ginned in the county during the past two weeks and reported by the extension service fell in the strict low middling grade. There were 1,151 bales of Pitt cotton in the SLM grade during the two-week period while 140 bales fell in the low middling grade, 118 bales in the middling grade, three bales in the strict middling grade, two bales in the strict good ordinary grade and one bale in the good ordinary grade.

Noted Immigrant Artist Reluctant To Sell Work

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)— When Maxmilian Nogida was 17 and decided to run away to America from his native land, Latvia, his older brother advised him:

"Go into the boxing business in the land of the free. You will make a fortune—with your perfect body, you cannot miss."

Max Nogida, now 86, still has the fine body and he didn't miss, although he never pulled on a pair of fighting gloves in his life. Instead, he followed his own bent and became an artist.

Old Max is associated with the National Museum and the Smithsonian Institution. For 60 years he has been connected with the Metropolitan Museum in New York. An exhibition of his work is on display right now at the antiques show and sale at the nearby Silver Spring, Md., armory.

He likes to create, but he hates the idea of parting with his work, even for big money.

"You create something," he said, "and it seems to be part of you."

That point of view is manifested in the Nogida home here. The wall space is populated by Max's paintings.

Max taught his son, known as Bernard Godwin in portrait art circles.

"Paint," he told the lad, "for the soul's sake. Keep your work for your own satisfaction."

Bernard followed that advice until he learned that his father had sold his first painting for $10 shortly after he arrived in America. The old man has sold few since. But Bernard Godwin now is in the chips.

The old gentleman had great ambitions for his boy. He started Bernard out at the age of five While he was painting on a canvas, Bernard was allowed to squeeze paint from a tube and on to the palette. And to clean the palette and scrub the brushes. At six Bernard began making kid drawings on the back of the canvas while his dad worked on the front side.

Financially, Bernard's work has been much more successful than his father's. His painting of Colin Kelly, the Pacific war ace, hangs at West Point. His portraits of the 20 ranking U.S. generals and admirals of World War II now hang in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Museum at Hyde Park, N.Y.

More recently, Bernard has painted in this country and abroad a series of portraits of the discoverers of the basic anti-biotics, including Sir Alexander Fleming, the discoverer of penicillin.

Despite his advanced years, the elder Nogida spends hours each day before his easel. He has a steady hand.

The old man's painting of Christ bearing the cross is his best, if I am any judge, and is hung in the present exhibit.

Bernard describes his father as an "artist's artist," which is supposed to be about the highest compliment one genius can pay to another.

Maxmilian Nogida is proud and excited about being in the Silver Spring show. But he's a little worried, too.

"What if somebody wants to buy one of my paintings?" he said.

Hunt Ex-Convict In Distribution Of Lethal Booze

ATLANTA (UP)— Authorities stepped up a Southwide manhunt today for a paunchy, balding ex-convict, believed to have distributed a lethal batch of "death market" whisky that has killed 30—28 Negroes and two Whites—and hospitalized 210 others.

They believed the man, 51-year-old John R. (Fat) Hardy, could name the actual maker of the poisonous mixture of water and an alcohol used to "soup up" racing cars. "That's the man we'll charge with murder," said Fulton County Sol. Gen. Paul Webb.

The death toll, released by Grady hospital and police, do not include two Winder, Ga., white men, who died last night from drinking cocktails concocted from paint remover and water. Winder police said the men did not obtain any of the moonshine distributed here.

"Bad, bad whisky," wailed sound trucks touring Atlanta's Negro section last night to broadcast a warning against drinking the potent popskull that flooded Grady with a stream of blinded, writhing patients.

Police feared another wave of poisonings from some 35 gallons of the solution of methyl alcohol and water still unaccounted for after a Negro bootlegger reported he returned that amount to Hardy because "it smelled bad and didn't taste right."

Police and FBI files show Hardy, sought on a manslaughter warrant, has served time in both state and federal prisons on various liquor convictions and also has served a term in a Georgia prison for manslaughter.

Marciano Sure Of Victory

By JACK HAND

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. — (AP)—Quiet optimism oozes from this training camp of Rocky Marciano, unbeaten Brockton, Mass., heavyweight with 37 straight victories.

The way the 27-year-old Army veteran acts, you'd think he was ready for another humpty dumpty in Providence rather than the chance of a lifetime against old Joe Louis.

Other fighters "died" in the dressing room from fear of the Brown Bomber's fists. This won't happen to Marciano.

Louis—even if he is 37 and showing signs of wear and tear — is enough to inspire deep respect especially in a youngster who was only nine years old when Joe fought his first pro fight.

The respect is here—Marciano refuses to make brash statements about a knockout—but Rocky does not stand in awe of the Bomber.

"I've never predicted I'll knock anybody out," he told reporters yesterday after his final boxing drill. "I'm confident, very confident."

About plans of action. What did you expect Louis to try?

"We've given no thought to Louis," he said. "I'll just go out and fight him. I don't know what he'll do. I'll meet whatever he does."

It's no secret that Marciano is far from a skilled boxer, and Louis is a top flight craftsman. Wasn't Rocky worried about that?

"I've met lots of people who could box better than I. One for example—Phil Muscato. But I got him, too."

Marciano boxed only two rounds with Jimmy De Lange yesterday, instead of three, because Trainer Charlie Goldman wants to "keep him hungry for more."

Goldman a bespectacled little fellow with a knack for training fighters who bedevil Louis, is one of Marciano's chief assets. Goldman and that looping right hand punch that knocked out Rex Layne.

Years ago it was Goldman who taught Arturo Godoy his crouch and weave that flustered and annoyed Louis.

On Goldman's advice, Marciano went into a bob and weave against Layne, last July.

Most observers expect Marciano to follow a similar style Friday night in the 10-rounder against Louis, ducking under his holting jab and crowding in to rake his body.

This plan will work only if Louis, always a vicious counter puncher, can't find the range with his right uppercuts.

The Japanese introduced the giant African land snail to their island outposts during World War II so their soldiers could have snail stew.

Witness MacPhail Proposes Six Major Leagues

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Congressional subcommittee which conducted four weeks of public hearings on the legality of baseball will make known its finding sometime after Congress reconvenes in January, Rep. Emanuel Celler said today.

The New York Democrat, chairman of the committee which heard testimony from baseball men of all rank, said his group would not attempt to reach a "hurried solution" of the "complicated problem."

"It is expected that early in the next session of Congress we will be able to make public the result of our deliberations," said Celler.

In the meantime, he will hold private meetings with baseball lawyers on possible legislation to give the sport some exemption from the anti-trust laws.

In no case, Celler said, will Congress legislate control of baseball.

The committee, investigating whether baseball is a monopoly subject to anti-trust laws, heard testimony on many subjects, including the "reserve clause" in player contracts which binds a player for life to the first team for which he signs, the farm system, baseball broadcasting, and the possibility of making the Pacific Coast League another major league.

The final witness heard yesterday, former major league executive Larry MacPhail, proposed six major leagues instead of the present two.

Even three major leagues, with the Pacific Coast League granted that status, would be an "improvement," said the former head of the Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers, and New York Yankees.

"But I don't know that Los Angeles is any better baseball town than Montreal, Baltimore, Minneapolis, or Kansas City," said MacPhail. He did not explain where the four new major leagues could be located.

Previous witnesses insisted there were not enough good players or umpires for more than two major leagues.

Big Four Briefs

CHAPEL HILL (UP)— North Carolina looked over Wake Forest plays, offensive and defensive, today and then tried to crack them.

In a heavy workout yesterday Bob Gantt was the star with a 95-yard touchdown through a strongly resisting defense. Bud Wallace, Bud Carson, Larry Parker, Dick Wiess, John Gaylord, and Connie Gravitte also looked good.

Coach Carl Snavely said he is still not satisfied with his team's attack and planned to step up the pace of practice before the Wake Forest game.

DURHAM (UP)—Coach Bill Murray said today that, barring injuries in scrimmage, Duke will be in the best shape of the season to meet Virginia Saturday.

Jack Kistler was the standout in offensive practice yesterday. Murray had the No. 2 offensive team running Virginia plays as he concentrated on defense.

Murray said reserve guard Bill Blaylock will be back in the lineup Saturday. But two seniors, quarterback Joe Self and guard Gene Brooks, are out for the season.

WAKE FOREST (UP)— Wake Forest practice pointed at the North Carolina game was satisfactory today, Coach Tom Rogers said.

The team held a long workout yesterday against North Carolina plays and came through the rough scrimmage without injuries. Rogers worked on the running attack with honors going to Guido Scarton, Larry Spencer and Luke Pollaci.

Guard Leonard Paletta who has been out several weeks was back in the lineup again today and probably will play Saturday. Ed Listopad, tackle, may see limited action.

RALEIGH (UP)— N.C. State's Wolfpack went through a last hard scrimmage today before boarding a plane tomorrow for Blacksburg to meet Virginia Tech.

Workhorse tailback Alex Webster was back in heavy equipment and looked up to his usual form. He alternated ball-carrying with Ted Potts.

Injuries still plague the squad. Jim Hillman, tackle, is in the college infirmary with severe dizzy spells caused by a head injury in last week's game. Tackle Elmer Costa, mainstay of the line, has an injured hand.

British Boxer Improves Chances

King, though showing flashes of good boxing, was frequently tagged with righthanded "sucker" punches to the head and also had his right cheek cut during the ninth round.

Carolina-Deacons Even If Odds-Makers Believed

NEW YORK (UP)—Odds-makers refused today to name a favorite in the Ivy League clash of unbeaten teams which headlines this weekend's college football program — Cornell vs. Princeton.

The national odds-making syndicate called the game absolutely even money, pointing out that Princeton is riding a 17-game winning streak and Cornell has been impressive in rolling over its first four foes this season.

This battle, on which probably hinges the Ivy League title, will be televised in some parts of the East. In the game to be televised elsewhere in the East, Dartmouth is a 14-point favorite over Harvard. On the Western TV network, Wisconsin . a seven-point choice over Northwestern.

In Saturday's big intersectional games, Georgia was picked by 21 points over Boston College; Southern California by 14 over Texas Christian; Arkansas 14 over Santa Clara; and Michigan State 21 over Pittsburgh.

In addition to the Cornell-Princeton clash, three other games were rated even: Nebraska vs. Missouri in the Big Seven; Baylor vs. Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference; and North Carolina vs. Wake Forest in the Southern conference.

Other odds listed were:

EAST: Yale six over Colgate; Syracuse six over Fordham; Holy Cross 19 over Brown; Columbia 14 over army; Pennsylvania seven over Navy.

MIDWEST: Michigan 14 over Minnesota; Ohio State 13 over Iowa; Illinois 13 over Indiana; Notre Dame 14 over Purdue; Kansas 20 over Kansas State; Oklahoma 13 over Colorado.

SOUTH: Georgia Tech 14 over Vanderbilt; Miami three over Mississippi (Friday night); Mississippi State six over Alabam.., Tulane 14 over Auburn; Duke 13 over Virginia; Kentucky 13 over Florida; Maryland 13 over Louisiana State.

SOUTHWEST: Texas 12 over Rice.

PACIFIC COAST: Washington six over Stanford; California 14 over Oregon State; Washington State 26 over Oregon.

By JIMMY ELLIS

These coaches really have their troubles.

It's almost common knowledge by this time that Bill Dole was out of action all day Tuesday after going to the team banquet Monday. His food poisoning, though, is much improved now, thank you, and he's quite able to get around and do his job.

Bill Kittrell has a little more trouble getting around.

Kittrell, brave soul that he is, wanted to know just how strong his team's defense was. He wanted to be sure he had the best men in the defensive line for the game with New Bern Friday night. Kittrell rightly figured that the best way to find out who was good was to join the offensive team. He did just that Tuesday afternoon.

Running the team's plays from the offensive backfield was an easy job for Kittrell on the first few plays. The way he was breaking through the line made bystanders think that the Phantoms had another Red Grange on the way. Kittrell was making the defensive team look prety sick.

One of the defensive men—it's rumored that it was Bobby Conway—personally decided that Kittrell had gone far enough. Conway figured that the coach would be coming to him next play and he meant to stop him.

Sure enough, on the next play, Conway looked up and there's Kittrell headed for him — feet churning the ground, knees up high, head low — the utmost in form for a running back.

To make a long story short, Conway hit Kittrell, Kittrell hit the ground, and Kittrell came up on the short end of the deal. He got up limping, muttering and shaking his head, but still in the game.

A couple of plays later, Kittrell found that he had a difficult time shaking off the effects of the tackle by Conway. He quit for the day and found his foot swollen and getting stiff. He took off for a doctor's office.

Diagnosis: broken bones in the foot.

Kittrell will be back in front of the bench Friday night — with pretty near a half-ton of plaster on his foot. He'll have a couple of new weapons, too: crutches.

To go along with their Little All - America candidate, Steve Trudnak, the Lenoir Rhyne Bears have a full house of good players who will be in College Stadium Saturday night for the game with East Carolina.

There are 24 lettermen on the Bruin club and, thus far, the Lenoir Rhyne club has been exceedingly fortunate in not being shackled with injuries.

Perhaps the player on the Lenoir Rhyne squad who would be best known to Eastern North Carolina is Jimmy (Bull) Newsom, co-captain and tackle.

The Bull did his high school playing at Wilson. He was on just about every athletic squad the Cyclones ever thought of having while he was in high school and did well in all of them. At Lenoir Rhyne, he plays basketball as well as football.

Newsome is 6'3" and weighs 230 pounds. He's the top tackle on the club — no small accomplishment since there are three lettermen besides himself as well as a couple of good newcomers.

In the summer months, Newsome works as an umpire in the Western Carolina League, a Class D pro circuit. He's had some interesting experiences in the job but perhaps the most interesting of them all will not have its culmination on the baseball diamond.

That experience will be settled November 10 when Elon and Lenoir Rhyne meet each other. Fred Biangardi, the powerhouse full back in the Elon single wing, played third base for one of the league's clubs and was in several games in which Newsome umpired.

Both Newsome and Biangardi jestingly say they're "out for each other."

The Bull, incidentally, will be up against one of his fellow townsmen Saturday night. Paul Gay, the spark-plug of the Wilson high school teams in 1949 and 1950, is now well on his way toward being the spark plug of the Pirates.

In twins Gene and Jerry Robinson, the Bears have a couple of backs that always promise a lot of fireworks for each game they play.

Gene was the rage of almost the entire state with his play last season as a sophomore. He was All-Conference and was second in the loop in scoring—with most of the points coming on kick-offs, punt returns, and pass interceptions.

Brother Jerry is rated almost as good but was banged up most of last season. Both got rolling against Western Carolina Teachers College last week, though, and took up the slack left when Trudnak was unable to run at full speed against the Cats.

It would be difficult to say that these boys—the Robinsons, Trudnak, and Newsome — were THE Lenoir Rhyne ball club, but it's fairly easy to say that without them, Coach Clarence Stasavich wouldn't be where he is today.

Follow up on the East Carolina squad:

The Pirates got back into action yesterday after missing Tuesday's work out because of food poisoning. They hit the practice field yesterday afternoon and last night in an effort to catch up with their new signals and plays but they were still having to take it easy.

Dole's first team will have to be changed again this week because of the big number of injuries to the squad. His biggest problem will be at the ends where two of the first line performers were lost last week.

Right now, Dole is grooming Don Burton, a freshman guard from Roanoke Rapids, for Cecil Winslow's defensive end position while Bobby Hodges is preparing to get back into the offensive line-up at left end.

Bruton has played mostly on the kicking team this year, going down under kick-offs. He's a big boy — 190 pounds — and should be able to do a good job if he can adapt himself quickly to the change in positions.

The Pirates are continuing to work on pass defense as well as perfection of their own offensive game.

Phantoms Confident Of Friday Win

Visiting Bears Have Record Of One Win

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

While leaning against his crutches as a result of a broken foot, suffered while playing with his team in a scrimmage Tuesday afternoon, Greenville head coach Bill Kittrell appeared to be confident yesterday of a Phantom victory in their Homecoming game Friday night. The Phants meet New Bern's Bears in a Northeastern Conference game at 8 p.m. in East Carolina Stadium.

Kittrell, slightly embarrassed over his injury, stated that the Greenville boys were up for the game and were ready to win a contest against Class AA competition. The Phantoms have lost four contests this year, all to conference teams, while taking a pair of decisions over Morehead City and Camp Lejeune, both Class A teams.

On the other hand, New Bern is also expecting to win. Kittrell said this morning that "We have received word from the New Bern players that they mean to win the game." New Bern Coach Joe Caruso has made no comment on the game, other than "I'm expecting it to be a close game and a good game. I think that we have a good chance of winning."

New Bern will enter the game with a record of one win, one tie, and four losses. The losses have been to Washington, Oxford, Roanoke Rapids, and Rocky Mount, while the tie came in a game with Edenton. The Bears defeated Camp Lejeune.

New Bern has had the best of the scores in games played with mutual opponents of the two clubs. Washington blasted Greenville 28-6, while they won over the Bears by one touchdown, 13-7. Greenville lost to Edenton, 20-6, while the Aces were tied by New Bern, 13-13. Greenville and New Bern both ground out decisions over Lejeune, with the Phantoms winning out by a 13-7 margin and New Bern taking a 21-0 measure.

Greenville will be in better physical condition for the contest than at any time since the opening contest with Edenton. Wayne Smiley and Bobby Langston, who have been out for two weeks with broken noses, have returned to practice and are expected to see a lot of action against the Bears. The only boy who is definitely out of the game is guard Tommy Evans, who will probably miss the remainder of the season. Evans is recuperating from a slight case of pneumonia and is under his doctor's orders not to start back playing yet.

Starting defensive tackle Bob Tindal has missed practice every day this week as the result of an upset stomach. He is expected to see a limited amount of action in Friday's game.

Quarterback Glenn Scott returned last week in time to play in the Elizabeth City contest, which Greenville lost, 14-6. He played nearly the entire game then and is counted on by the Greenville coaches to see plenty of action with New Bern, playing at the right halfback position.

Rounding out the backfield with Scott will be Bobby Perry at the other halfback, Sid Briley at quarterback, and Doug Morgan at fullback. Team captain Joe Rowland and Wallace Conway will be the offensive ends, with Bobby Conway teaming up with Rowland on defense. Bobby was tried out at one of the halfbacks last week, when it looked as if nearly all of the starting backfield would not be out with injuries for the Elizabeth City game, but will confine his action Friday to playing at defensive end.

Dixie Hobgood and Fletcher Murray will start at offensive tackle, while Bobby Nunn and Sam Hux are the starting guards. Tindal and Wilton (Blimp) McLawhorn are expected to see action at the defensive tackles.

New Bern will probably counter with linemen Joe Diffee, Al Laughinghouse, Joe Hughes, Joe Maveretic, John Epperson, Bill Koonce, and Joe Pearson. The backfield will be composed of Dick Wade, Ken Atkinson, Billy Boyd, and Ken Vernelson.

Probable offensive lineups include:

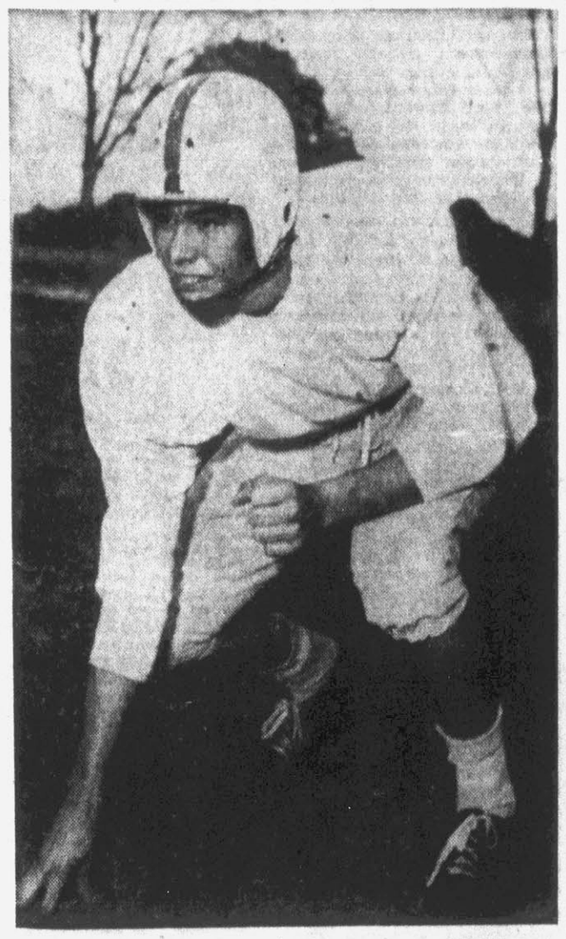
New Bern	Pos.	Greenville
Koonce	LE	W. Conway
Laughinghouse	LT	Hobgood
Hughes	LG	Nunn
Maveretic	C	Huffstetler
Epperson	RG	Hux
Koonce	RT	Murray
Pearson	RE	Rowland
Wade	QB	Briley
Atkinson	HB	Perry
Boyd	HB	Scott
Vernelson	FB	Morgan

He Does It Too

Injuries have played havoc with Greenville High School's football team this year, with an average of nearly three players missing from each game that the Phantoms have played. But the team received probably its biggest injury of the year Tuesday afternoon.

Believe it or not, Head Coach Bill Kittrell broke his right foot while showing his boys how to play. Kittrell scored several touchdowns against his first string defensive eleven, and then End Bobby Conway decided that the coach had been a star long enough, and consequently, when he tackled Kittrell, a broken foot was the result.

The embarrassed coach was seen on the practice field yesterday with a cast on his foot and a pair of crutches under his arms. Here's hoping he will be able to return to action before the season's over.



DOUG MORGAN, a reserve fullback for the Greenville Phantoms, is expected to see plenty of action Friday night in College Stadium against the New Bern Bears. organ has played some good ball for the Phatoms but has had to substitute Sid Briley most of the year. Three Robersonville Boys Forced To Drop Off Team

ROBERSONVILLE — A broken arm and academic reasons have forced three of Robersonville's gridders to drop off the squad for the remainder of the year, Coach Bob Lee announced this morning.

Mac Cherry, a reserve end, suffered the arm injury in a practice session early in the week, while starting right tackle and sub guard Curtis Roberson and Billy Bailey were forced off the team for scholastic reasons. Lee stated that a definite replacement has not been found for Roberson yet.

Lee has sent the Rams through rigid fundamental practice all the week in preparation for the game with South Edgecombe Friday afternoon, to be played here. The game is slated to get underway at 2:45 p.m.

The passing of Tailback Dan Clark and the pass receiving of End Morris Everett has led the team in the practice sessions, as well as the offensive attack all season. Lee also singled out center and linebacker Julius Budecz and co-captain and guard William Taylor for their good work on defense.

The Rams currently have a seasonal record of two victories, three defeats, and one tie. This will be their third Coastal Conference contest, having previously played and defeated Vanceboro (18-0), lost to Ayden (26-7), and were edged by Farmville (7-6). Ayden has gone on to win the conference title, while Farmville is presently in second place, with a one-one record within the league. This Vanceboro team that Robersonville defeated upset South Edgecombe last week, 24-6.

Bulldogs Name Arvis Davis As Queen For Day

On Friday night, a gala homecoming game will be played in Guy Smith Stadium between the Bulldogs of Eppes High and the Pirates of P. W. Moore High of Elizabeth City at 8:00.

The homecoming celebration will begin with a bonfire Thursday night on the Eppes football field. On Friday afternoon, a mile-long parade will begin at 3 o'clock featuring Miss Arvis Davis as Miss Homecoming.

Coaches Daniels, Hill, Eaton and Foster have the team at full strength this week and expect the Bulldogs to upset the Pirates—a team which has been rated one of the best in eastern North Carolina.

Here is the tentative starting line-up for Eppes:

Green and Dyer, ends; Hemby and Wynn, tackles; Jenkins and Price, guards; Outerbridge at center. The backfield will consist of Tom White, quarterback; Johnson and Dupree, halfbacks; and Clarence Williams at fullback.

Trainmen Told To Prepare For Possible Strike

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen today instructed its 75,000 members to prepare for a possible nationwide strike.

The negotiating committee, announcing that a recent strike vote had authorized a walkout by a ten-to-one majority, set no date for an actual strike.

The membership was instructed to prepare for a "progressive strike" which could mean a hit-and-run strategy or a nationwide walkout progressing from one time zone to another on the same day.

Technically the railroads have been under Army operation since Aug. 27, 1950 when they were seized by the government to avert a threatened nationwide walkout by two other unions the Trainmen and Conductors.

Under and by virtue of the power and authority vested in the undersigned Commissioners in that certain judgment entered in the case of Eunice Elizabeth Young Strickland vs. Richard T. Strickland in the Superior Court of Pitt County, the undersigned Commissioners will, on Monday, the 5th day of November, 1951, at twelve o'clock noon, at the courthouse door in Greenville, N.C., offer for rent for the year 1952, to the highest bidder for cash, the following described lands lying and being in Beaver Dam Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

Tract No. 1: All the farm land of R. T. Strickland lying and being in or near the village of Arthur, adjoining the lands of R. E. Willoughby and Mack G. Smith on the East, J. B. Nichols on the North, Mrs. Fannie Nichols on the West and Heber Strickland on the South, containing 23 acres, more or less, and being exclusive of the dwelling house and outbuildings described as Tract No. 3 hereafter.

Tract No. 2: Lying and being on the East side of the Nichols road, adjoining the lands of P. S. Rasberry on the North, J. B. Nichols on the East, and Mack G. Smith on the South and containing 13 acres, more or less.

Tract No. 3: The dwelling house, recently occupied by Richard T. Strickland and wife, including the yard, smokehouse and chicken house, all enclosed by a fence and plainly set apart from the lands described in Tract No. 1.

The three above-described tracts of land will be first offered for rent separately and then Tracts 1 and 2 together will be offered for rent and then Tracts 1, 2 and 3 together will be offered for rent and the property will be rented to the highest bidder for cash, either separately or in combinations, as above described.

The said lands for the calendar year 1951 had a combined tobacco acreage allotment of 6.8 acres and on a separate basis Tract No. 1 above would have had 5.8 acres and Tract No. 2 above would have had one acre. Accordingly, if the tracts above are rented separately for the year 1952, Tract No. 1 will have 85.3 per cent of the total acreage allotment and Tract No. 2 will have 14.7 per cent of the total acreage allotment.

County Schools' Testing Reported

Preliminary results of the readiness tests program in the first grades of the county schools were reported on Tuesday to the Pitt County school principals.

Miss Annie Lee Jones, elementary supervisor, reported on the tests by saying the results show that the readiness program now in use has been very successful in helping newcomers adapt themselves for more mature learning.

Mrs. Edna Earl Baker distributed materials relative to the purchase of library books and made suggestions to the group regarding the matter. She also reminded the principals that October 24 is United Nations Day and urged the principals to commemorate the day with an appropriate program.

It was announced at the meeting that the staff of the Pit Memorial Hospital has extended an invitation to all seniors in the county schools to come and look over the hospital facilities and the work which is being carried on. The principals unanimously agreed to accept the invitation and the visits are to be arranged and conducted by the individual schools sometime prior to dismissal for the Christmas holidays.

A short period of time was given to the arranging and completing of basketball schedules for the coming season.

all of the business interests of North Carolina are dependent on the program. He reminded that "we are in the midst of one of our best tobacco seasons."

He said the banks had collected over 98 per cent of the farm loans made during the year. Woolard reminded that without crop control this part of the country would not fare so well.

L. E. Walston, Farmville banker, pointed out the value of crop control, especially as to tobacco. He said the farmers could never have gotten the ear of Congress for crop control without the aid of the Farm Bureau Federation.

J. B. Bunting of Bethel, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, was enthusiastic in his praise of the work being done by the Associate Membership Committee of the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

B. B. Sugg, president of the State Bank and Trust Company, said the Farm Bureau is largely responsible for the section's prosperity and that farmers as well as all business interests have benefitted from the crop control program.

Alonza Edwards of Snow Hill, militant leader of the Farm Bureau program in North Carolina, extended the regrets of Flake Shaw, executive secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, for not being present. He paid tribute to such men as W. H. Woolard, B. B. Sugg, J. E. Winslow, Haywood Dail, W. Z. Morton and many others for their work in support of the Farm Bureau.

W. Z. Morton, Greenville tobacco warehouseman, gave special recognition to the leaders in the Farm Bureau movement and encouraged those present to continue to support the farm program.

Haywood Dail, pioneer leader in crop control, in his introduction of J. E. Winslow, former president of the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation, elicited much applause. Winslow warned that "it is up to the farmers to carry on the work of maintaining crop control and the farm program." He traced the history of tobacco prices back into the 1930s and pointed out the increase in prices for farm products. He declared it is all to be the result of the farmers organizing the Farm Bureau.

Chairman Woolard called on numerous business and farm leaders and gave them special recognition. Much of the supper meeting at Respess-James Barbecue House was devoted to informal round table discussion of the Farm Bureau and farming problems. The chairman thanked Arch Flanagan of Farmville, W. A. Allen of Farmville, Sam Winchester, county farm agent, Alton Barrett and others for good work in the Farm Bureau.

The National Farm Bureau Federation has 425,000 members.

ting for the selection of the 1951 Harvest Festival Queen from a field of 15 contestants last night.

Music by Dick Levin and his band preceded the judging which began at 10:30.

Contestants from Bear Grass, Ahoskie, Bethel, Farm Life, Jamesville, Oak City, Perquimans, Robersonville, Plymouth, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Washington and Williamston competed for the coveted honor.

Reigning over the events leading up to the selection of the queen was the 1950 winner, Jean Carol Griffin, 19, of Woman's College, Greensboro who took first place honors last year over 12 entries.

The contestants were presented to the large crowd gathered and the three judges singly and then in groups.

First round eliminations brought the total down to five and then to three from which the final selection was made.

When the judges' ballots were all in, "Miss Williamston," 17-year-old senior Patricia Taylor, was picked as the 1951 Harvest Festival Queen.

There were no runner-up selections made. Each of the 15 girls were given trophies inscribed with Williamston Harvest Festival Beauty Contest on them.

To the new queen went a diamond ring, presented by Peele's Jeweler's of Williamston and a kiss from the master of ceremonies, Al Sweatt.

From then until 1:30 this morning, dancing was enjoyed by all.

Judges for the contest were: Thompson Greenwood, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants Association, Raleigh; Tom Harris, immediate past president of the Rocky Mount Junior Chamber of Commerce and Reece Bailey, current director of the Rocky Mount Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Contestants in the beauty contest were: Martha Pearson, Ahoskie; Betty Lou Rogerson, Bear Grass; Jean Cullifer, Bethel; Lynette Coltrain, Farm Life; Jean Ellis, Jamesville; Cherry Edmondson, Oak City; May Beth Perry, Perquimans; Sarah Lee Smith, Robersonville; Ann Byrd, Windsor; Dorothy Henninger, Edenton; Mary Lou Vocrol, Plymouth; Nannette Upchurch, Scotland Neck; Dorothy O'Neal, Tarboro; Pat Mayne, Washington; and Patricia Taylor of Williamston.

Korea will be. It may turn out to be the most historic step ever taken in international affairs. The intervention against aggression by the United Nations is something the old League of Nations would never do.

"The most explosive force loose in the world today is education," Brandis said. "The poverty stricken people of the world have been given the concept of what life in this world can be like if technical knowledge is applied to resources. The United Nations is faced with the problems of drying colonialism and growing new communist imperialism."

If war with Russia should come on a world-wide basis, the strengthening of the United Nations should remain in purpose, the speaker said. "Surely if we have to fight a third World War we would not go back to the old system of international anarchy. This is not a time to put our faith at half mast. Our problem is to apply on the international level the bitter lessons we have learned on the national level. We must have an organization to enforce world law."

Brandis was introduced by Robert Lee Humber of Greenville. The opening prayer was given by the Rev. R. E. Hardaway of the Memorial Baptist church, and the closing prayer by the Rev. W. A. Cade of the Ayden Methodist church. The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, presided, and special music was presented by the College Singers of East Carolina College.
