Communists Abandon Old Demands For Parallel 38

U. N. Negotiators Promptly Reject Offer Of Truce Line Ten Miles North Of Parallel; Red Offer Marks Sharp Departure From Former Position

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Horsetrading Communist negotiators today abandoned their long-standing demand for a truce line on the 38th Parallel and proposed an almost straight line about 10 miles north of it.

The plan, promptly rejected by Allied officers, would force United Nations troops to yield the "Iron Triangle," "Heartbreak Ridge," and other hard-won positions. In return, Communists offered withdrawal from lightly-contested territory below the 38th at the western end of the battlefield.

Both sides, however, would maintain "administrative control" of territory they give up under the Communist plan. Although this term was not explained, it was taken to mean the vacated areas would become buffer zones.

U. N. negotiators informed the Communists immediately their proposal was "completely unacceptable" because the suggested line failed to provide military protection for Allied forces.

They said later, however, that the proposal marked a sharp swing from the former Communist position and thus brightened the outlook of a settlement. A period of intensive horsetrading was forecast.

The Red proposal, unveiled before a truce subcommittee, countered a line proposed by the U. N. yesterday along the present battlefield except for a trade of 200 square miles of territory at each end of it. This would force a Communist withdrawal on the western end and an Allied withdrawal on the eastern end.

The Communist plan calls for a U. N. withdrawal up to a maximum depth of 15 miles. A bitterly contested "iron triangle" area of the central front. It would also force Allied troops to abandon Heartbreak and Bloody ridges, the Punchbowl area and other militarily important positions.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, chief U. N. spokesman pointed out, however, that the new Red plan marked a sharp departure from the enemy's rigid demands since truce negotiations started July 10 that the cease-fire line fall along the 38th Parallel.

"The 38th Parallel was only mentioned once," he said. "Allied troops on the extreme eastern end of the front are more than 45 miles above the 38th Parallel. Kumsong, center of current fighting on the central front, is 29 miles above the parallel."

The original U. N. proposal last July demanded a chunk of Red territory as compensation for Allied air superiority over all enemy-held land in North Korea.

Asked to compare the July offer with the present one, Nuckols said: "We have now won by force of arms the line that we then asked for."

Good And Bad News

Once Again, Western Hopes For Some Solutions In Iran, Korea And Middle East Are Outweighed By Actual Happenings On Darker Side Of Week's Report

By HARRY FERGUSON

Balance sheet for the week between good news and bad in the hot and cold wars:

BAD NEWS:

1. The Russians exploded another atomic bomb, the second one this month. Scientists speculated that the Russian stockpile now had reached the point where it was possible to conduct frequent experiments. That probably means Moscow has sufficient bombs to attack any nation at widely-separated places... any time she chooses.

2. The crisis in Egypt was in a deadlock and bloodshed occurred almost daily. Cairo was in no mood to back down from its position that it wanted to end the treaty with Britain that makes it possible to keep British troops along the Suez Canal. There was no immediate alternative for the British but to stick where they are and hope for the best.

3. The Red Air Force again stepped up its activity in Korea and United Nations officers estimated the enemy now has 1,200 planes, including 600 jet fighters, available. The Communists are willing to

Closer Ties

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. officials predicted today that the Conservative victory will result in closer American-British ties, highlighted by an early White House meeting between President Truman and Winston Churchill.

The White House itself had no immediate comment on Churchill's return to power.

Informed sources said, however, that an invitation is expected to go out to Churchill soon and that a meeting may be held in a matter of months. But President Truman is expected to wait for Churchill to make the first move on the Tory leader's campaign proposal for a Big Three meeting with Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin.

Mr. Truman has warm personal regard for Churchill. But the President is on record with repeated statements that he does not plan to go abroad again to meet Stalin; that Stalin could come here.

Chairman Named For Community Chest Campaign

Directors Announce Drive For Increased Quota To Begin On Nov. 12

Louis S. Ficklen, president of the Board of Directors of the Community Chest, announced today that Alton R. Johnston has been named as general chairman of the 1951 Community Chest Campaign.

Ficklen said that the Board of Directors felt fortunate in having Johnston conduct the campaign. He succeeds Howard Hodges, Jr., who was general chairman last year.

The 1951 Community Chest Campaign will begin here November 12 and run through November 16. Ficklen said the quota has been increased over that of last year since new agencies had been added to those which the Community Chest helps.

Benefiting agencies of the Community Chest are the Girl and Boy Scouts (white and colored), Service League Thrift Shop, Teen-Age club, Emergency Charity Fund, and the United Defense Fund. The United Defense Fund has been added this year for the first time since World War II and it takes in the re-opening of USO centers.

The Board of Directors and the new campaign chairman are now making plans for the Community Chest Drive which will get underway November 12.

Board members of the Community Chest are: J. S. Ficklen, president; Ed E. Rawl, vice-president; Thomas E. Wilson, secretary; John W. Overton, treasurer; and Mrs. J. S. Ficklen, E. Graham Flanagan, Joe S. Moya, Dr. K. B. Pace, J. H. Waldrop, Reynolds May, John G. Clark, Mrs. W. S. Bost, Badger Johnson, Mrs. H. L. Ormond, Sam B. Underwood, Jr., D. J. Whitehead, III, and H. L. Soviet-Egyptian Trade Agreement Draft Revealed

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Russia has moved in with a proposed trade agreement that would swing the bulk of Egypt's import-export trade away from Great Britain to the Communist countries, informed sources said today.

Under the agreement Czechoslovakia would ship arms to Egypt. Disclosure of a Soviet-Egyptian trade agreement draft came after the Egyptian government announced that British troops had killed one Egyptian and wounded another near Port Said Wednesday night in a new outbreak of violence in the tense Suez Canal zone.

Under the trade agreement draft Russia would receive preferential treatment and a priority in the purchase of Egyptian cotton. Russia would supply Egypt with barley, wheat and newsprint. Czechoslovakia would ship arms and machinery while Romania would sell Egypt oil.

He was the son of Mrs. Lena Banks, 517 Vance Street, and son of the late Oscar Banks.

U. S. Jets In 6th Day Of Battle

Again Gain Victory Over Reluctant Enemy; Claim 34 MIGs This Week

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—American jets won another smashing victory over enemy fighters today in the sixth day of violent air battle over northern Korea while Communist resistance stiffened around Kumsong.

American jets shot down two Russian-built MIG-15 jets and damaged three others to raise the bag of enemy planes this week to 34 planes destroyed, probably destroyed or damaged.

All told, the enemy Friday threw 156 MIGs into combat which, added to another 90 too reluctant to fight, brought their day's aerial strength to 246. The U. N. had 68 planes in combat, plus 31 in two non-contact brushes for a total of 99 in the air.

The first of the three separate air battles occurred Friday afternoon when 80 MIGs swept out of their Manchurian sanctuary to challenge 28 U. S. Sabrejets.

All Allied jet fighters returned safely to base from the fierce air combat which ranged as far south as Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

In another brush without actual combat, 15 Sabrejets escorting the photo aircraft ran into 20 MIGs and a flight of 16 Australian Air Force Meteors saw 70 more. But the reluctant enemy, loser in every air scrap thus far, stayed out of range.

The day's second air battle came over Sinanju when 24 F-84 Thunderjets took on 50 enemy jets.

The third battle was over Pyongyang between 16 Sabrejets and 25 MIGs, a 30-minute running fight in which no hits were scored by either side.

On the ground, bayonet-wielding United Nations troops carved out gains of up to 800 yards and tanks again bonanaded the ruins of Kumsong despite stubborn Communist resistance at the gates of the bomb-blackened city.

The U. N. infantrymen outside Kumsong, Red bastion 29 miles above the 38th Parallel, had tough going to establish positions on a hill southeast of the town.

Communist resistance also stiffened on other parts of the Korean front as Communist troops sought to hold their positions as bargaining points in the Korean truce talks.

U. N. tanks, trying to soften up the enemy resistance, rolled to the outskirts of Kumsong on a hit-and-run raid. They withdrew after shelling Red forces there.

It was one of almost daily tank raids in the past week to pierce through Red positions rimming the battered city.

To the southwest, Allied forces backed over minor gains against heavy grenade and machinegun fire from entrenched Communists on a hill northwest of Yonchon.

Allied artillery aimed at the hill positions claimed 200 to 300 enemy casualties in a thundering bombardment of nearly three hours Thursday. North of the Hwachon Reservoir, the U. N. big guns, caught another group in the open and claimed 50 dead from the barrage.

Dr. Carelton Smith, world traveler, economist, music critic, and director of the National Arts Foundation, delighted the members of the Pitt County grand jury next week. Webb said, "I believe our military preparedness program will prevent a war possibility. The Russians today are scared to death we are going to bomb them. They are not ready for war. They want us to go on for 30 years like we are and go bankrupt."

He told of the police conditions in Russia even several years ago. Webb said Russian officials exercised strict censorship of every broadcast, and had guards with machine guns at the stairways and between the rooms in the nation's radio stations.

"The Russian people running the Soviet Union have been living in jail most of their lives," Smith declared. "The 20 men running the Soviet Union are victims of their own system." In Eastern Germany, he added, "90 per cent or more of the people want to get rid of the Russians."

Smith reviewed a series of events which have taken place in Russia since Stalin came to power, and asserted creative art had been killed, because the artists are afraid to create because they must first decide what will please the Kremlin. "There is no end to the stupidity in censorship when it starts in the arts. The people know the art is propaganda"

Churchill's Tories Capture General Election In Britain

Winnie, 76, Is Back On Scene

LONDON (AP)—Winston Churchill returned to power in Britain today. He led his Conservative Party to victory over the Labor government in a desperately-fought election that raged down the curtain on six years of Socialist rule but left the Tories far short of the House of Commons strength they hoped for.

Churchill, just turning 77, was assured of a majority, or more than 313 seats, in the House of Commons. The exact size of the Conservative majority will not be known until a few outlying districts report next week. But it will be a slender margin—leaving possibly 300 seats to Clement R. Attlee's Labor Party. This is not much better than the thin margin previously held by Attlee.

The result brought to a climax six years of grim, unremitting struggle by political warrior Churchill against the Socialist doctrines of the Labor Party, which imposed government control over much of Britain's industry and private enterprises.

With returns from 610 of the nation's 625 districts, the Conservatives held 313 seats in the House. Labor had 290 seats, the waning Liberal Party, five, and others, two.

In percentages, the Conservatives had won 48.5 of the total known popular vote, the Socialist 49.1 and the Liberals 2.4.

Churchill was jubilant—and grateful. Speaking to his constituents at Woodford where he was re-elected to Parliament, he said: "You have given me wonderful support. It never reached a higher pinnacle than it did today."

With the Conservatives back in control, it was certain that Churchill would be chosen by them to resume the post of prime minister. This is the office he held throughout World War II and lost in August, 1945, when a Socialist tidal wave swept his government out of office.

He told British voters, during the campaign, that putting an end to the cold war with the Communist world is "the last prize I seek to win." This effort, and the modification of Socialist restrictions on business and industry, undoubtedly will engage his attentions immediately.

He may then step out of office in favor of his closest associate, Anthony Eden, who is reported slated for his former post of foreign secretary. Rumors to that effect were current in London even before the electioneering began.

Attlee now becomes the leader of "His Majesty's loyal opposition," a position held by Churchill for the past six years.

Attlee is expected to offer his resignation soon—perhaps tonight.

Abandon Efforts To End Walkout

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal mediators have abandoned efforts to end New York's crippling wildcat dock strike amid claims by insurgent union leaders that the walkout will spread to still more east coast ports.

The four-man mediation panel returned to Washington last night after a day of peace talks, saying: "We're not getting anywhere. We're leaving."

Strike leader John (Gene) Sampson told newsmen: "That means Philly and Baltimore will be tied up, too."

In Philadelphia last night, 13 I. L. A. longshoremen's locals voted not to "work" any ship cargoes diverted to their New York, effective today.

AT TAX PINNACLE COCOA, Fla. (UP)—Sen. George Smathers said yesterday he foresees no new federal taxes next year, barring an all-out war, because Congress has "reached the pinnacle as far as taxation is concerned."

Bank Deposits In City Show Gain

Greenville banks reported deposit increases of $2,721,475.83 as farmers took large quantities of tobacco to market and the tobacco prices continued to rise.

During the week, from October 13 to October 20, the Guaranty Bank and Trust company of Greenville reported its three offices in Greenville and 11 offices in other towns of Eastern North Carolina had an increase in deposits of $2,721,475.83 by bringing total deposits to $423,210,444—over four million dollars above the peak deposits in the bank's 50 year history.

Bank officials attributed the sharp increase in deposits during the week to the high prices of tobacco sold by farmers in this area, and to the quantity of tobacco sold. J. H. Waldrop, vice president and comptroller of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company, said the bank hopes a portion of the increase in deposits is "attributable to the fact that people are laying aside part of their money for a rainy day, as they should do."

Conservative Party Assured Of Majority Though Final Returns Not Available Until Next Week; Margin Of Victory Not Great; Will Have Something Over 313 Seats In Commons

Paul Hoffman Is Eisenhower Man

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—The Minneapolis Morning Tribune said in a signed story today that Paul Hoffman, former president of Studebaker Corp., and now head of the Ford Foundation, favors Gen. Dwight Eisenhower for the presidency in 1952.

Hoffman, former Marshall Plan administrator, said the Eisenhower for President movement was a "genuine draft," according to the newspaper.

The Tribune said Hoffman commented: "I cannot think of any event which would move us toward peace more certainly than the nomination and election of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower."

Building Bids Let By Board Of Education

Bids were let to a number of companies yesterday at a meeting of the Pitt County Board of Education for new rooms to be added to two county schools and the construction of a new school.

Bids were let for a two-room addition at Chicout School which calls for heating and wiring, for a two-room addition at the Griffon Colored School including heating, wiring and plumbing for the new and old rooms, and for the construction of a new four-room school for Negroes at Winterville which will include wiring, heating and plumbing.

The general combined bid was made by East Carolina Construction Company of Dunn for $84,000 and the O'Neal Electrical Company of Washington made the low for wiring of the combined units for $4,265. The D. R. Suez Heating Company of Tarboro made a low bid of $14,218.57 for the heating in all three units.

The C. E. Williams Heating and Plumbing Company made a low bid of $4,975 for the plumbing for the Griffon School and the Ideal Plumbing and Heating Company made the low bid of $4,517 on plumbing for Winterville.

J. W. Griffith Jr., architect, will submit the bids to the State Board of Education for confirmation.

Breaks For Television

Shelving Of Color TV And Higher Priority On Materials For TV Stations Bring Television Era Closer To Realization; How These Steps May Affect You

By JACK ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hundreds of U. S. cities and towns without any television service, or only limited service, got two big breaks yesterday:

1. Color television was officially folded up and put away for the duration of the defense emergency at the government's request.

2. The National Production Authority (NPA), all-powerful in the materials field, gave both radio and television operations in general a much higher priority on access to the scarce metals needed to build new stations or expand existing ones.

If there appears to be a contradiction in these two actions, it can be explained by a composite of government thinking, which goes like this:

Color TV is a luxury, and a new one, and so can be dispensed with during the current anxious period of preparation for whatever may come.

On the other hand, radio and basic television are rated as important, even vital, means of immediate mass communication, even more essential in an emergency era than in normal peacetime.

The break for TV-less areas in the layaway of color comes about this way:

Until a few days ago, everyone in the broadcasting industry and around the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), was all set for a new knock-down, drag-out fight over color rights.

It was pretty well accepted that either Radio Corporation of America or the joint TV-manufacturer group known as the National Television System Committee, or both, would go before the FCC early in 1952 to demand new hearings on color.

Their admitted object was to get approval for a "compatible" system, which could be tuned in by present sets in black-and-white on contrast to the approved Columbia Broadcasting System color, available to receivers now in use only by substantial addition of equipment.

The tentative schedule called for the filing of the color applications

Kyzer Presents Effects Of Industries Of Community In Speech At Woman's Club

At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Club in October, Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the group on "The Effects of Industry on a Community."

Kyzer's talk was an introduction to the series of studies on Greenville industries, which the club has voted to pursue for the first half of the club year.

In his talk Kyzer gave figures showing the increase of persons employed in Greenville industries in the years 1938 and 1947 to show the effects which it has had on the economy of the community. "In 1938," he said, "there were 19 plants with 404 people employed and a payroll of $244,263. In 1947 there were 27 plants with 1310 employees and a payroll amounting to well over two million dollars."

He stated that industry falls into three classes in the city: processing plants, such as the tobacco factories and the Art Loom Carpet Company; assembly plants; and plants which produce finished products, such as the National Carbon Company.

He listed the basic factors affecting industry and having an influence in drawing industrial plants to a section. They were proximity to markets, accessibility of raw materials, transportation facilities, supply of labor and water, availability of labor, freight rates, banking facilities, educational opportunities, churches, cultural atmosphere, community attitude towards industrial taxes, mail, telephone and telegraph system, and availability of housing facilities.

Kyzer asserted that there are five main types of industry that are attracted to the section around this community. They are agricultural, lumber, cotton and its associated industries, needle work, and synthetic fiber industries.

The latter type of industry is represented in the construction of the DuPont plant in Oriton.

"Increased industry brings a community its problems as well as its benefits," cited the speaker. "But the benefits far outweigh the problems of housing, utility expansion, school, expansion and labor competition, and as a result the community flourishes greatly," he concluded.

His talk served as a fine introduction to the programs for the next three months. Today a study of the DuPont plant and the fiber Dacron was made at the club. In November the National Carbon Company will be presented in a study, while in December the work in the woolen mills will be discussed.

Following the talk by Kyzer, the hostesses served hot spiced tea, cakes, cookies and nuts from the tea table.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. George Clapp, chairman, Mesdames R. M. Garrett, A. M. Moseley, J. Key Brown, R. G. Bland, J. H. Blount, I. J. Edwards, Guy Evans, J. L. Evans, J. C. Galloway Sr., L. B. Garris, Norman Garrison, Claude Gaskins, V. C. Fleming, J. W. Foley and Miss Lilah Gant.

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The fading forms of matter, the mortal body and material earth, are the fleeting concepts of the human mind. Mortals must look beyond fading finite forms, if they would gain the true sense of things." (p. 263)

Gospel Study Of Matthew Given At Club

The Lector Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Harold Forbes on the Falkland Highway on Tuesday of this week.

Pursuing a study of the New Testament, which is the theme for the first half of the year, the hostess introduced Mrs. Ralph Tucker, guest speaker, who concluded a discussion of the book of Matthew, which was begun at the last meeting.

Mrs. Tucker, with her fine background of Bible study and her experience as a director of religious education and as teacher in local church school classes, presented an absorbing and interesting survey of the last twelve chapters in the first gospel.

The speaker introduced her remarks by giving a brief background of the way the New Testament was written and compiled. Then in a story-telling manner, Mrs. Tucker related the life and experiences of Jesus as recorded by Matthew. She told the story clearly and simply in a revealing manner, which opened up new avenues of thought to the listeners.

At the conclusion of the brief business meeting, which followed, Mrs. Forbes served a salad course with spiced tea.

4-H Club Foundation Has $50,000 Goal Over State

The people of North Carolina are being offered an opportunity to invest in the future of the State's Negro rural youth, in the financial drive now being conducted by the Negro 4-H Clubs Foundation of North Carolina, Inc.

W. C. Cowper, 4-H Club specialist at A. and T. Negro College, Greensboro, said the goal is $50,000, and if this sum can be obtained, the Foundation will be able to expand educational work among rural Negro boys and girls of North Carolina.

Mrs. Amelia D. Capehart, Pitt county Negro home demonstration agent, is continuing her efforts to arouse interest in the project.

Building, maintaining and operating a state 4-H Club Camp is one of the top objectives of the Foundation program, Mrs. Capehart said. Another objective is providing of scholarships for advanced training of rural young people.

John H. Wheeler, vice-president of a cashier of the Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank, Durham, is president of the Negro 4-H Clubs Foundation. The organization maintains headquarters at A. and T. College, Greensboro.

In order to reach the state goal of $50,000, Pitt County's quota is $1,800. Every effort will be made to secure the goal, Mrs. Capehart said. She also requests Negro rural families and white friends to invest in the rural youth by making generous contributions. "The youth of Pitt county and the state of North Carolina will not be any better than we make them through the educational facilities provided by the adults. Our boys and girls of today will be our men of tomorrow," the home demonstration agent declared.

Persons desiring to make contributions may send checks made payable to "The 4-H Club Foundation of North Carolina, Inc.," to Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro home agent, Greenville, N. C.

Local A.C.E. Chapter Meets On Wednesday

"What are the things that make one glad to be a teacher?" With this question in mind, Greenville city teachers who are members of the association for childhood education, met for the opening meeting of the year on Wednesday afternoon, October 24.

In the eighth grade classroom of Miss Elizabeth Hyman in the Training School, each teacher became a part of the afternoon's program by sharing outstanding teaching experiences with other members of the group.

During the planning session, it was decided that the next meeting should be held in the classroom of Miss Christine Johnston, also in the Training School, on December 5. At that time, the local A.C.E. group will make favors to be used on hospital trays during the Christmas season.

Airman Composes Hymn While Home On Leave

FARMVILLE — Bob Morgan, of Brooks Air Force Base in Texas, composed a hymn while he was home on leave here and it was sung by a quartet at the Methodist Church.

He said the melody came to his mind while he was visiting in the home of R. H. Knott. He was sitting at the piano and he said the impact of the inspiration made him complete the hymn in less than three hours. Morgan found the suitable words to his music by looking in the metrical index of a hymnal.

The selection was entitled "Lead Us, O Father" and Mrs. Haywood Smith, organist and choir director at the church, assisted him in arranging the music for bass, tenor, and soprano voices. The quartet which sang the hymn was composed of Bob Morgan, Willis Ray Harper, Carolyn Robuck, and Jackie Willford.

Morgan has had no previous piano training but plays by ear. His knowledge of musical notation and theory has come from voice training and reading opera scores. He has studied voice for four years under Mrs. W. A. Pollard, Jr., and Mrs. Bernice Turnage of Farmville, and Bishop J. Foster Fries, Duke University director of choral music.

Morgan was a member of the Duke Glee Club and Chapel Choir. He has been a member of the Farmville Methodist Choir for several years and was singing director at the Methodist Sunday School.

Huge Fortune Is For 'Humanity'

schmann left his huge fortune to humanity when he took his life at Santa Barbara, Calif., last week. The fortune — estimated by friends at more than $50,000,000 will go almost entirely into the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation of Nevada, the state in which he lived most of the past years.

Established last March, the foundation will be administered by his widow, Sarah, and five other trustees. All of the money, he stipulated, must be used within 20 years after Mrs. Fleischmann's death for furthering "the public welfare xxx or well-being of mankind."

Tex Beneke To Play Here In November

When Tex Beneke's orchestra plays here on Nov 15 in New Carolina Warehouse, saxophone sleuths in the crowds will notice that Beneke's saxophone is older and more battered than any other instrument in his orchestra.

The Beneke saxophone is a legend. Tex bought it ten years ago when he was working with Ben Yonng's orchestra. When he went off to join Glenn Miller's great band, that same saxophone was slung over his shoulder. Today it is Tex's only saxophone.

"A good sax is just like a good pipe," Tex explains. "It gets mellow with age. At least this one has. I just can't feel at home with another instrument."

The saxophone originally cost $200 and Tex has spent over $750 in repairs and refinishing in ten years of tooting.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. OGDEN
A VITALIZING REALITY

An English wit has described the Church in three words: Attitude, Latitude, and Platitude.

Those of us who are Christian believers would deny that this is an adequate description of the Church, but we would confess that it reflects certain weaknesses in the Church.

In the first place, there are too many people who hold that Christianity is an attitude. It is not an attitude; it is a revelation of God's purpose for man as revealed in the Bible and consummated in Jesus Christ. Attitude religion is a weak, diluted variety of the real thing.

There are others whose religion can best be described by the word "latitude." They twist their religion around until it sanctions everything they want to do. They believe they can find in the Bible justification for all their weaknesses. They want to gain heaven without giving up anything particularly desirable to them here on earth.

For still others, religion is a "platitude." Whether they stand in the pulpit or sit in the pew, their religious belief is something which tires everyone who comes in contact with it and with them. This is a great misfortune, for religion pure and undefiled is the most thrilling and vitalizing reality in the whole world.

Britain's Long Trip Back From Socialism

American hearts swelled along with the hearts of British people today as they witnessed the ousting of the Labor government which dragged once mighty Britain down to the shambles of Socialism.

As the day wore on it seemed apparent that the Conservatives would be returned to power with Winston Churchill, now 76, once more at the head of the British government. Whether or not Churchill would have in the House of Commons a secure working majority is still in question.

Most American citizens hailed the election of the Conservatives because they believe it will mean an over-night swing from the left to the right in British domestic affairs. They are of the opinion that under Conservative rule Britain will shed its loose skin of Socialism, and American dollars by the billions will no longer be required to prime the British economic pump.

The American people, however, are in for a disappointment if they expect the Conservatives to pare off all the socialistic blubber heaped upon the government since the close of World War II. The American people are walking in a dream world if they expect money to stop flowing to Britain. Churchill, bolstered by his personal friendship with the American people, probably will be able to borrow more American dollars than Attlee ever could get from the administration.

The only hope is that Churchill will put the funds to better use than the leader of the Labor party.

Aside from the removal of the steel industry from the nationalization program, the Conservatives have made few specific promises. The national health insurance program which is so popular among the British is sure to remain along with many other phases of the socialistic program.

But in spite of all these things, and in spite of the fact that the British government and the British people will not be back on their feet economically for some time, the fact that they have begun to swim against the tide of Socialism is indeed encouraging. Now, at least, there is hope for Britain's recovery.

The recovery will take much time, for it has taken time to drag Britain down the dark alleys of Socialism. It may take Britain years to grope its way out of the dark alleys. But with the election of Churchill the British government has turned its face from the darkness and has begun traveling the long path back toward the dim speck of light shining in the distance.

The World Is Waiting For It

This week when the United Nations celebrated its sixth birthday there were a good many people who were ready to junk the whole organization because they feel it has gone the way of the old League of Nations. There were others who share the opinion of The Reflector that the UN has done a magnificent job of preserving international peace and unity despite its natural handicaps and those imposed by its member nations.

There are too many other people who did not give a thought to the United Nations, or what it means to the American people or the other peoples of the world.

When the fiery American colonists 176 years ago burst forth with the revolutionary idea of a national government based on a federation of independent states operated under the democratic system, they shook the very foundations of government the world had known for centuries. They realized the decadent systems of government which ruled the old world had lived beyond their time of applicability. The colonists made a bold attempt at a new system of government shaped to the needs of their time and the future as they saw it.

Today that democratic system still exists, although it has undergone many evolutionary changes during the 17 decades.

With the world bound together into one small community of nations by the technological developments of today, many people throughout the world realize that the federation of independent states must now push beyond national boundaries and include the whole world if peace is to be maintained and international strife kept to a minimum.

The United Nations offers the foundation upon which such an international federation can be imposed but it will of necessity require a delegation of a portion of sovereignty to the international federation by the sovereign nations which make up its component parts. It will take the people of the United States a number of years to realize that the delegation of any portion of their jealousy guarded sovereignty to an international federation can be beneficial. There are millions of Americans who stand in awe of the anticipated results of an international organization which becomes as highly centralized even under the democratic principles as the federal government in the United States today.

The time has arrived when individual citizens as well as national leaders must give serious consideration to an international organization of nations endowed with sufficient authority and sufficient support from the peoples of the world to maintain peace and security.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—President Truman's recent policies seem designed to implement the then Democratic National Chairman Boyle's warning that they would reorganize the party in such a way that it could win next year's presidential election without the electoral vote of a single Southern state. Conversely, these White House moves may mean that they may lose many Dixie commonwealths.

Although the major decisions underlying Mr. Boyle's confidence are not ordinarily discussed in polite political society, they constitute the main topic of conversation when politicians of both parties discuss 1952 strategy. In their opinion, Mr. Truman has definitely and liberally decided to stake everything on the big city vote which usually determines the outcome in the electorally influential states from New England to the Pacific Coast.

The Truman action which confirms this belief is, of course, his nomination of General Mark Clark as the first official ambassador to the Vatican (the United States has had since 1868, when Congress refused to appropriate funds for continued diplomatic relationship. Although it is difficult and distasteful to mix religion and politics, critics of the appointment have been prompt to do so.

STRATEGY—The other important development in this strategy was the immediate, midnight recognition of Israel, despite protests from certain Cabinet members and 10 Downing Street. They opposed it on the ground that it would antagonize the Arab world against the western powers, and their prophecies appear to be borne out in Iran, Iraq, Egypt and other Middle East countries.

The late Secretary Forrestal, in his diaries, reveals that recognition was used by the late Robert E. Hannegan, then Democratic National Chairman, on the ground that it would mean not only votes in the great centers of population but also heavy contributions from supporters of a free Palestine.

The Administration's non-segregation program which may reach the Supreme Court for a final decision early next year, as well as the Truman Civil Rights demand, is expected to assure a Democratic majority among the colored voters. The wage-raising policies of the defense agencies are expected to retain the labor element as a further guarantee of metropolitan victories.

REBELLION—The famous Boyle threat of party reorganization was delivered shortly after the 1948 presidential election, when he was asked for comment on the desertion of four Southern states to the Thurmond-Wright Dixiecrat ticket, and the large vote rolled up by Governor Thomas E. Dewey in certain Southern states.

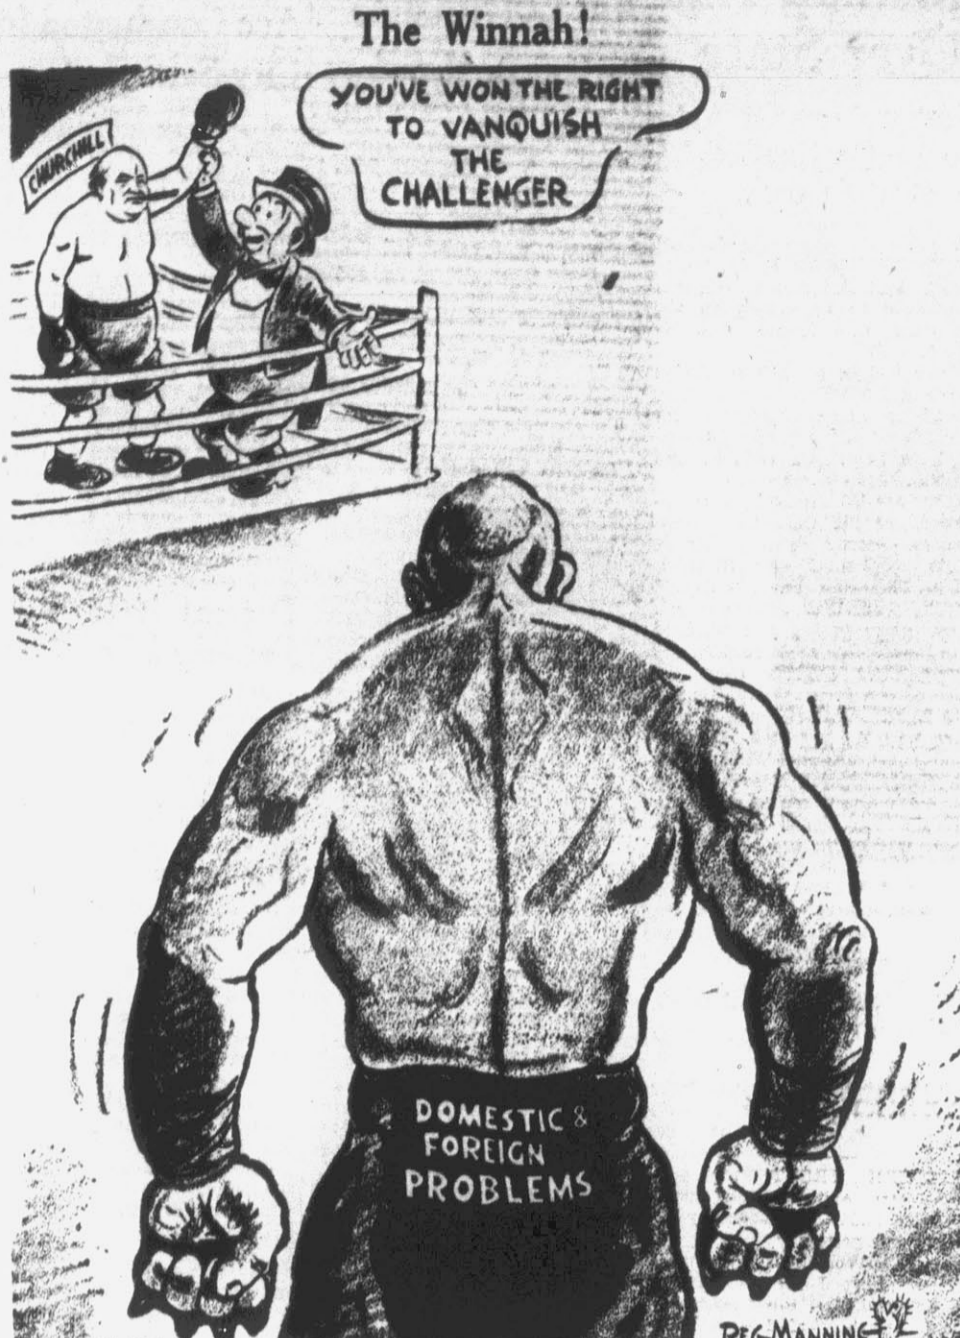

The resigning chairman's forecast becomes even more meaningful today, in view of indications that the Truman rebellion below the Mason and Dixon Line may assume even more dangerous proportions next year.

The nature and extent of the threat was revealed by several Governors—Byrnes of South Carolina, Talmadge of Georgia, Shivers of Texas—at the recent Governors' Conference at Gatlinburg, Tenn. This trio declared for an outright bolt against a renominated and unreformed Truman.

ORGANIZATION—The revolt may gain further momentum when the Byrnes-Byrd-George forces gather at Hot Springs, Ark. on November 1 for a regional conference of Southern Governors. Anti-Truman leaders from numerous states, including four which refused to support Alfred E. Smith in 1928, have been invited to discuss definite plans for organization.

It is probable that religious and racial problems will be soft-pedaled at these gatherings for practical political considerations. If events should make it necessary for the Southern bloc to support General Eisenhower or even Senator Taft next year on some sort of "independent" ticket, overemphasis of these issues would alienate many Northern urban voters who might otherwise join the anti-Truman movement.

SCHEMES—President Truman and National Chairman Boyle, who has been succeeded by John L. Sullivan of New Hampshire, Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania or Paul E. Fitzpatrick of New York, have figured out electoral possibilities to a nicety on the basis of the strategy outlined here. If their calculations are correct, a huge city turnout would give them the necessary number of 266 electoral votes without any Southern support.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, Jr.

Somebody asked me, "What's the latest news on Greenville's effort to get a TV station?" The answer is that Hartwell Campbell, the man who is behind the movement, went to New York this week to confer with the networks again. Soon after Hartwell returns he plans to have a town meeting, extending a cordial invitation to everyone in Greenville or surrounding territory who is interested in TV.

At this meeting all of the details of the plan will be discussed, and any questions that arise from the floor will be answered. From all indications, stock in the station will sell at $10 a share, and there will be no minimum set on the amount of stock an individual can buy! With this plan, I think the necessary $300,000 can be raised.

Yesterday I saw an interesting article about TV entitled "Why Not Television Congress?" Most members are against it, but it seems that it's only a matter of time before it will happen.

Bringing matters of national and international concern to the TV screen would create a better understanding of government affairs than can come from any other means. Last year, when the debate in the United Nations over Communist aggression in Korea was taking place, the TV viewers saw the face of the enemy, Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb became the hero of millions of Americans because he snapped back at Russia.

One Congressman, Pennsylvania's James G. Fulton, who is for telecasting, explains it this way: "There are three kinds of Congressional districts: the very controlled district, the independent district, and the sleeper district. The Congressman from a sleeper district gets only one or two letters a week from his constituents and takes little or no part in the debate in Congress. That kind of Congressman is against television; he wants his district to remain a sleeper district."

"The very controlled Congressman is against telecasting because it will make people in his district think independently. Congressmen from the independent districts, however, would welcome it. As it is now, the Congressman who do the work and carry the load get too little credit."

This argument puts each Congressman on his own political spot. Few of them are as frank about it as the late Senator Bilbo of Mississippi, who when asked in 1947 what he thought of putting Congress on the air, said, "If people back home heard everything we said in the Senate, I wouldn't get re-elected, and neither would some of my highfalutin' colleagues." And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

PARTY — The party given at Tarboro Tuesday for the directors of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company by Selby Anderson, W. G. Clark and William Clark, Jr., was a delightful affair. The senior Clark, familiarly known to thousands of friends in his various capacities of legislator, farmer, farm supply merchant and business mogul as "Cousin Willie," was the principal host of record. Actually he was the honoree, because the whole party revolved about his personality. The guests who crowded the Hillma Country Club hours included multi-millionaires, big time politicians, working folks. Each of them was a personal friend of "Cousin Willie," who held court with his usual modest dignity.

BARBECUE — Main body of the buffet luncheon was barbecued pig, of such excellence as can be found nowhere else except in that area. Edgewood county is the ancestral home of barbecue in Eastern America. Space here does not permit telling the story of how an officer in the Mexican war more than a hundred years ago brought back the recipe and method for preparing barbecue. In eastern North Carolina hospitality is twin brother of barbecue. It is almost as much a breach of social etiquette to eat barbecue alone as it is to take a lonesome drink. So the occasion was marked with good fellowship and friendly intercourse.

CONVERSATION — Most of the guests were interested in big business—business which had grown big by paying attention to little things. A load of bird shot fired at random into the crowd would have hit a dozen million dollar corporation and bank executives. Most of the conversation had a business flavor. It was about operating costs and taxes and how to have anything left for dividends. Because pyramiding taxes and government regulations are the most vital factors in business there was, of course, some political talk around the edges.

POLITICS — There were present a dozen or more members of the North Carolina legislature, all of whom are also business or professional men of importance. The past governor of Virginia, W. M. Tuck, was there as a Jefferson Standard director. The man whom many people think will be the next governor of North Carolina, William B. Umstead, was there in his capacity as attorney rather than as a candidate. The group included some strong pro-Truman and pro-Scott folks, but in the main those present represented what is commonly called the "conservative element" in the major parties—because there were some recognized Republican leaders on hand. They had been invited not because of political party or factional affiliation, but because they were personal friends of the hosts.

BUILDERS — As one looked over this group, ranging in age from the early thirties to the middle eighties the impression was inevitable that here are the builders of North Carolina and the rest of the free world. There were few laborers with their hands, using farm or industrial machinery. There were no idle coupon clippers living on the earnings of somebody else and contributing nothing to the common pot. These were the men and women who use brain power to organize and correlate the working of hands and dollars in a unified effort to make a better civilization. Not many of those present now follow a plow, or pound a typewriter or operate a lathe; but nearly all the men there had at some time done these things and realize their importance in the overall scheme. Brain-power rather than manpower or mechanic gadgets was in evidence. The men of this caliber seem to realize that they cannot survive without cooperation of human and machine labor more fully than some other groups realize they cannot survive without the contribution made by the brains of men like these.

DIVERSITY — There was, for example, the conversation between two textile moguls. They weren't talking about the price of cotton or yarn, or about wartime shortages or labor problems. They were talking about the importance of a sound educational system. Another overheard conversation between two big bankers did not deal with potential immediate profits, but with necessity for revising some traditional thinking about long range credit to foster agricultural development in the state. Insurance men were concerned about validity of contracts with policy holders and efforts to make sure that the dollar paid to a beneficiary would have the same value as the dollar bought with the premiums paid on the policy.

LONG RANGE — All of this involves long range planning based on the concept that commitments made should be honored and not changed to suit the exigencies of political advantage. Such fear as was expressed had to do with encroachments upon the field of private enterprise by governmental agencies, which assume the right to change the rules as occasion indicates. It might be immediately advantageous to the political group currently in power. That was the point upon which nearly all the political talk hinged. It didn't touch on personalities, except as certain names have become symbols of governmental philosophy. There were casual references to Trumanism as contrasted with traditional democracy—and the people at the Clark party made no bones of their dislike of many Truman ideas.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TOO MUCH WRITING (Williamston Enterprise) Research has reportedly revealed that 8,000 different instruments have been written to insure peace in this old world. The peace treaties date back to early civilization, and do not include those prepared after Versailles. It would appear that there has been too much writing about peace and not enough attention given the basic ideals that would support a foundation for peace. Those who have written the peace pacts apparently have overlooked the fact that as long as nations experience starvation and exploitation, there can be no lasting world peace. In this country we'll appropriate seventy billion for instruments of destruction and gripe about a seven billion dollar appropriation for relieving the cause of war. In our well-off state we can't understand why the hungry and depressed millions can't be satisfied. We have written and talked about peace without sufficient tangible acts to support the written and spoken word.

Business Today

Are you betting there will be further inflation in the year ahead or that prices and business volume will further level off?

Actually there are strong influences in both directions. Here are the opposing factors:

For inflation:

1. Demands are enormous for materials for both rearmament and other goods and services for the Government, and for new private production facilities. In the first half of 1951, bankers report, the Federal Government took 17 per cent of the gross national product, and investment in private capital goods, another 19, a total of 36 per cent. This huge ratio will continue in the year ahead, and may be exceeded. The 1953 Federal budget is expected to total $80-85 billion, compared to 1952: $70 billion.

2. National income is running at a record rate, as reported here last week. Savings and employment are high and people will be back in the market for goods in a big way again as the household inventories accumulated in the 1950 buying rushes are depleted. As a matter of fact, the present quietness of retail trade (but quiet only as compared to 1950) itself is an indication last year's pants and tires are being worn out.

Now here are the influences for deflation:

1. The country's productive capacity is enormous as shown by its ability to produce so far not only for the rearmament program and new production facilities, but more than enough consumer goods that can be moved at present prices. It must be remembered that capacity to produce is now greater than during World War II. Another $100 billion of industrial capacity has been built since 1945, without even counting the new plants and expansions that have gone up this year.

2. Consumers will be paying higher taxes beginning Nov. 1, not only directly out of income, but in the form of increased excises. With basic living costs of food and shelter already at record levels, there is no doubt many families will have to sacrifice other purchasing.

All this is based upon the present state of international affairs. If the international situation worsens, of course all bets are off.

If it remains as is, there is a third possibility that some economists are beginning to favor: that we're entering on a period of price and production stability.

RETAILERS JOIN TO KEEP DOWN 'RETURNS'

Fourteen Dallas stores, members of the local Retail Merchants Association, have joined in a campaign to keep down merchandise returns, that should be of interest to all retailers. Excessive merchandise returns based on consumer whimper or indecision, are a modern business disease that add to the merchant's costs and ultimately to the consumer's bill. For competitive reasons it's hard for a lone retailer to clamp down. But a cooperative educational campaign by a group of stores over an association's signature can do much good. The newspaper ad published by the Dallas group was headlined, "Ready, your shopping manners are showing..." and featured a "shopping code of ethics" listing non-returnable articles, including bedding, piece goods cut to the customer's order and special-order merchandise.

FIND EMPLOYERS LIKE LABOR COMPANY CONFERENCES

Ninety-three per cent of the manufacturers canvassed in a survey by Mill & Factory, industrial publication, are "firmly convinced" that periodic labor-management meetings improve labor relations, and 77 per cent attributed improvements in operating efficiency directly to such conferences. The magazine reports 44 per cent of the companies replying to its questionnaire had provisions for such meetings; about three out of five of those holding meetings, do so on a regular monthly basis.

NEW PRODUCTS SLATELIKE SURFACE

A paint said to give a slate-like writing surface to wallboard, plywood or metal walls, which can be erased with an ordinary chalk eraser, has been introduced by Sapolin Paints, Inc., 229 E. 42nd St., New York.

Hal Boyle's Column

ROCHESTER, N. Y. —(AP)—America is a wonderful adventure—seen from a lower berth. You can roll up the country you love and see it speed by in the night. Maybe it is darkness, or magic, or middle-age, but it always gives me a thrill.

The excitement I felt at traveling in a train at the age of twelve, I still feel at forty. You would think that moving around so much, seeing guys sell imported needles in Baltimore or trying to peddle the United Nations goal of a free world in Dubuque—well, you would think a man would either stay juvenile or become cynical.

The truth is that neither happens. The United States still is a bedrock base of optimism. And the choice isn't therefore so simple. You stay as young and eager as life first taught you.

People are spying in rear places and dying in far places to preserve the basic American goals.

What they achieve nobody can truly measure. Buy lying at night in a lower berth in a railway car rolling across the fertile fields of our land, one cannot escape how far they stretch, how much they mean, how empty they must be right now for those who used to be there and now are someplace else, holding the American line afloat.

It humbles you quite a bit. The broad acres of harvested grain surge around you, washing away like rain through smog.

This is the heartland of our time, the cultivated acres you see from a lower berth as you speed across the growing places, lit by the fires of the spaced but unsleeping muscled haunts of steel.

In summer you can bookkeep the thousands of fireflies as you wheel on. Other times you can read the music of the wheels—that's where George M. Cohan got the idea theme for "Over There."

A train gives a feeling of movement. That is why riding a lower berth makes you love your country more. You roll up the curtain in the night. You look out at the landscape that other people own, but somehow it belongs to you and you belong to it.

It flashes by in the night, a darkened barren farm, a neon sign selling beer, white bulbs welcoming the high school crowd to hamburgers under the basketball game, a silent movie with white flaring signs saying, "Buy Color Television Now."

You lie stretched out at east, you in your lower berth, and gaze at the troubles and victories of your time as the communities and people whiz by. It is all part of you, and all so far away.

You are part of it all and yet away from it all. Lying in that lower berth you are as separate as if you were in a jet plane flying toward the Yalu River.

There is a fat man puffing himself to sleep in the upper berth above you. There are two stern lady salesmen wheezing in sleep beside you.

You are all knit together as the train wheels on through the night and yet kept apart in puritan privacy by the tradition of a green cloth curtain.

Looking out at night from the soft white meadows of a lower berth, you gaze at America, the lovely land too wide for any eye to hold or any heart to cup. Wide and wasteful it streams, by too much for you to appear in the dark, too wide for daylight understanding, just America, seeking a world focus, its many empty acres crying for employment in a crowded world.

Or so it seems from a lower berth.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — When Dr. Peter Marshall, popular Washington pastor and chaplain of the U.S. Senate, died in 1949, his widow sought bravely but without avail to "understand why it had to be him."

"He was a man through whom God was working in this modern world," says Mrs. Catherine Wood Marshall in her biography of her husband, "A Man Called Peter," which has just been published.

"He was only 46 and had a tremendous potential. I tried and tried, and when I couldn't figure it out I decided, as the Biblical verse tells us, that all things work together for good."

She says she first found this to be true when "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master," a collection of her husband's prayers and excerpts from sermons he delivered at the Presbyterian Church which Abraham Lincoln had attended, which she and immediate successor, Mrs. Marshall edited, the book, a best seller.

"That book of prayers and sermons has helped far more people than Peter would have been able to preach to in a full lifetime. I have had doors opened to me that people struggle a lifetime to have opened," she said, referring to being put under contract to write her book.

Her only previous writing experience had been when she helped her husband prepare his sermons.

"A Man Called Peter," she explains, is the story behind the sermons. It begins with their courtship. Mrs. Marshall, born in Johnson, Tenn., met the young Scottish-born clergyman while she was a student at Agnes Scott College in Georgia and he was pastor of the Westminster Church in Atlanta.

About six dates, four chaperones and a dozen months later, she was engaged," she writes. The wedding was performed at Keyser, W. Va., by Mrs. Marshall's father, the Rev. John A. Wood, now pastor of the Holmes Presbyterian Church, Seaview, Va.

The couple came to Washington on their wedding night and in the morning met with the pastoral committee of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, which invited Dr. Marshall to be their new pastor. "Looking back," Mrs. Marshall says, "I know that it was altogether typical that our married life began with a church committee meeting."

Dr. Marshall, who came to the church in 1897, was named chaplain of the Senate in 1947. Born in Goatsbridge, Scotland, he ran away to sea at 14. He worked in steel mills and a foundry and dug ditches before he began studying for the ministry after coming to this country in 1927.

Mrs. Marshall started her book just a little over a year ago while vacationing with her son Peter, 12, at their Cape Cod cottage. She had 45,000 advance orders for it before it was off the press.

Says Eisenhower Must Decide Course Quickly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Murray (D-Mont) said today Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had better make up his mind fast if he wants the Republican presidential nomination.

Otherwise, Murray predicted to a reporter, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio will walk away with the GOP prize.

Murray's comment came after President Truman told a White House news conference yesterday he thinks the New York Herald Tribune certainly picked a fine man in editorially supporting Eisenhower as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

In other political developments: 1. Taft backers arranged to open national headquarters here today in charge of Victor A. Johnston, once a supporter of Harold E. Stassen and sometime Republican "shadow" of the President in the 1950 whistle stop tour.

2. Mr. Truman divulged he has not yet picked a man from a list of about 30 being considered to succeed William M. Boyle, Sr., resigning Democratic national chairman.

3. The President spoke out against a reported plan of Wisconsin Democrats to invade the Republican primary in that state in an effort to defeat Senator Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis). He believes in the two party system and the Democrats should vote in their own primary, Mr. Truman said.

4. Tom Coleman, a member of Taft's campaign strategy board, told reporters he doubts Eisenhower can be represented in the April 1 Wisconsin primary unless the General consents publicly to become a candidate.

Murray said he hopes Eisenhower won't be lured into the political arena.

"I don't believe it's a good idea for a military man to be president," the Montana senator said. "I would hate to see Eisenhower leave his very important job in Europe, even to become president, because his presence on the spot is needed to stimulate those countries."

Honest Man Asks To Be Arrested

BUFFALO, N. Y. —(UP)—Diogenes' search for an honest man would have ended if he could have visited the office of George Cofran, deputy city court clerk.

A man entered the office, said he was 24 years old, and asked for a warrant against himself.

"I went through a boulevard stop sign," he explained. "I should be arrested and fined and my license should be marked."

Cofran told him: "You did your part in good faith. Now go ahead."

Fish 'Smothered' And Natives Eat

Sanborn, N. H. —(UP)—Using pails, nets and baskets, some 500 persons gathered early fish dinners at a fish "smothering" on Hunkins Pond.

Residents of the area were on hand when conservation officials reclaimed the pond for rainbow trout by spraying the 14-acre surface with rotenone, a derivative of an Indian root.

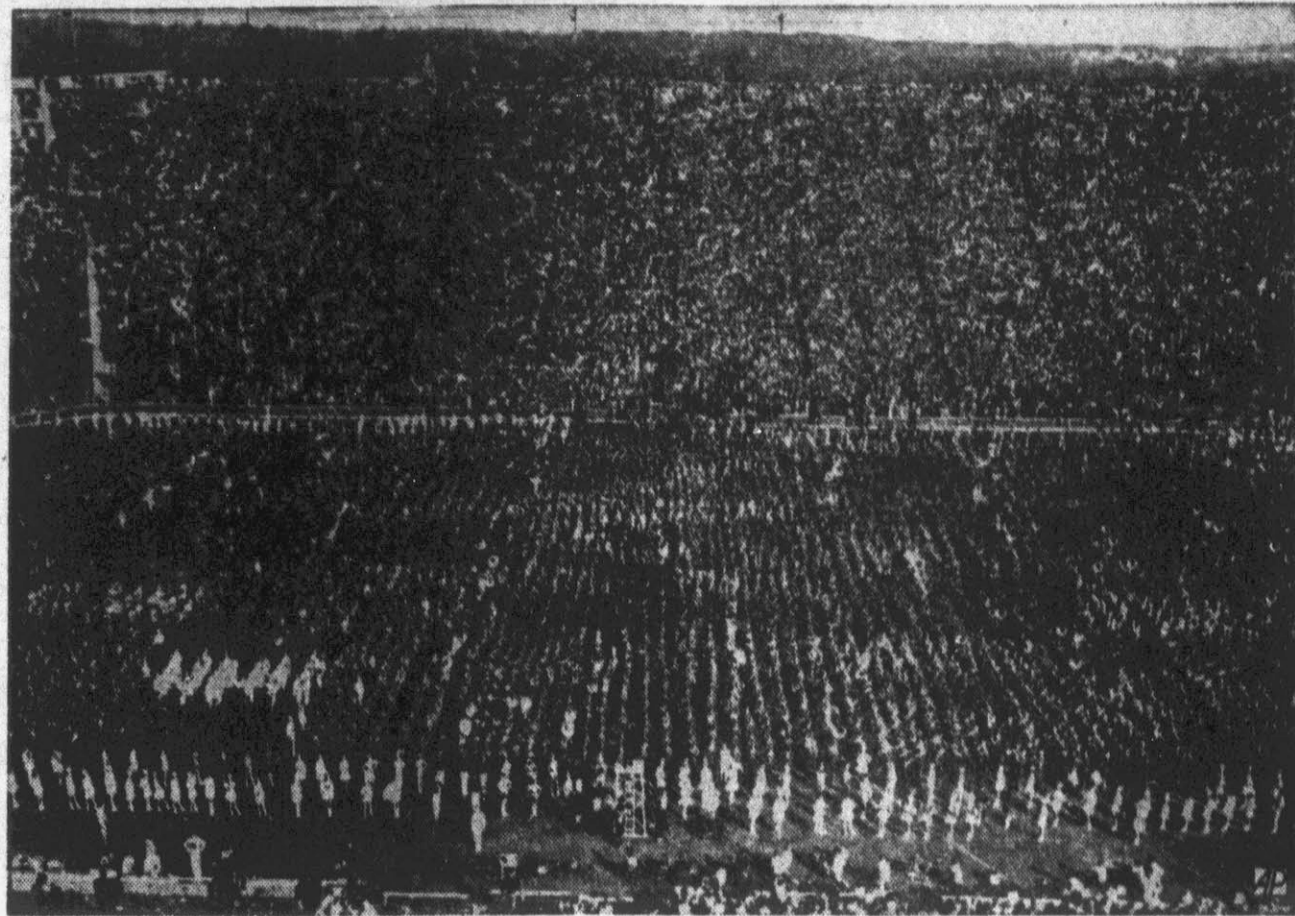

Permeating the water, the rotenone removed all the oxygen, causing the fish to suffocate and float to the surface.

Housewives Put Hubbies On Job

PORT ORANGE, Fla. —(UP)—A group of 30 housewives banded together here to form a "mosquito brigade." Womanlike, they'll hold the offices and furnish the ideas but their husbands will do the work.

The women, living around a mosquito-infested drainage ditch, chartered a plan, then "volunteered" the services of their spouses to do the labor.

The men will gather crank case oil and spread it over the stagnant water, after they've burned off the weeds and underbrush.

No Complaints By Combat Soldiers

EASTERN FRONT, Korea —(AP)—Mrs. Anna Rosenberg sat on a rice paddy dike near Heartbreak Ridge yesterday and got the GI word on conditions in Korea.

"Never have I seen anything like it," said Mrs. Rosenberg, assistant Secretary of Defense. "I talked to each of these (20) men and did not receive one single gripe from any of them about the combat condition over here.

"Without exception, each man in the division to whom I talked said the food is good, mail service is good and they are getting plenty of winter clothing."

Accompanied by James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army Commander, Mrs. Rosenberg arrived at a forward airstrip in a light plane. She wore WAC slacks and an Eisenhower jacket.

Within a few minutes she had cornered 20 battle-hardened enlisted men, led them away from the officers and invited: "Let's squat and talk it over, fellows." The rumble of artillery fire punctuated their conversation.

A rousing cheer greeted Mrs. Rosenberg when she said the Department of Defense was seeking more front line stage shows and "there will be more girls."

Inspecting GI quarters, Mrs. Rosenberg got down on her hands and knees and crawled in and out of several tents.

Warrants Issued In Escape Case

Warrants have been issued by Greenville police for the arrest of Mrs. Clara Moore, Negro, 1118 Clark street, charging her with aiding and abetting Augustus Moore, an escapee from Morrison Negro Reformatory, at Hoffman.

Police also issued warrants for Walter Dupree and Mrs. Goldie Dupree, 1209-A Pitt street, charging them with aiding and abetting their son, an escapee from Morrison Reformatory at Hoffman.

The boys, sent up for robbery, escaped from the reformatory several weeks ago, Detective N. H. Byrd said. Since returning here, Dupree was arrested for breaking, entering and robbery at the Army Surplus Store, on Dickinson Avenue.

The manager of the store did not know the place had been robbed until police arrested Shelton Brooks Dupree as an escapee at the home of an aunt, next door to his mother's home. Detective Byrd said the officers found the stolen loot there.

Police said the pants, T-shirts, socks, etc., Dupree is charged with stealing, were of the sizes that fit him exactly. The officers also found several blankets, believed to have been stolen from J. C. Penny & Company's store.

Moore was sent to the reformatory some time ago for robbing Thomas Whitehurst's car, December 22, 1950, of clothing while it was parked in front of Mrs. Lydia M. Corbett's home, 800 Albemarle Avenue.

Film Stars Hats Sell U. S. Bonds

SALT LAKE CITY —(UP)—The hats of Hollywood movie stars will be given away to Utah women in a "bonnets for bonds" campaign cooked up by Mrs. J. Bracken Lee, w. e. of Utah's governor.

More than 100 hats have been contributed by filmland residents for the drive to stimulate interest in bond sales. They will be awarded in bond sales contests throughout the state.

The idea started when the governor's wife told a defense bond volunteer worker, Mrs. Clell Pety, sister of the movie star Lorraine Day, that she receives requests for all sorts of items which have been used by occupants of the governor's mansion.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

Predictions again today . . . and I greatly fear that my .87 batting average (based on 18 correct guesses in 21 attempts) is going to take a terrific beating. There are some good games on tap, so here goes nothing:

First of all, as usual, let's get the Greenville and East Carolina games.

New Bern versus Greenville (7:30 tonight in College Stadium): The Phantoms, celebrating Homecoming, are really fired up for this one. They played a good game against Elizabeth City last Friday but came up on the short end of the score and they're really ready to get back into the victory column.

Bill Kittrell has done a good job of getting his boys "up" for the contest and confidence in their ability to win is the by-word of the Greenville players.

New Bern, coached by the very able Joe Caruso, is also reportedly "up" for this game. The Bears have had little more than bad luck this year and will have a rough road to travel to make Caruso feel as much at home as he did in Rocky Mount and Henderson.

I've seen this Greenville club play several times this year. They can play good football when they want to do so. If they want to play good football tonight, they ought to take the Bears for a nice little ride.

Lenoir Rhyme at East Carolina (tomorrow night at 7:30 in College Stadium): This is the "big one" for both the visiting Bears and the host Pirates. Each club has a special use for the game.

With a victory, Lenoir Rhyme can practically assure itself of the Conference title now that Eion has gotten into all the eligibility squabble over Bob Lewis. Another win by Clarence Stasavich's club would almost put them out of the reach of everyone in the circuit and do everything but put the championship trophy in the Bruin showcase.

The Pirates, on the other hand, know this game can mean the difference between a winning and losing season in Conference play. As the record now stands, there are two losses against last week's lone victory over Guilford and another win tomorrow would square up the record before the last loop game is played next week against Appalachian.

By all rights, the nod from this corner should go to Lenoir Rhyme. They are much the deeper ball club, they have the better record against common opponents, and they've got one of the best backfields in the entire North State Conference.

East Carolina, on the other hand, has not been a deep club at any one point in the entire season. The comparatively small number of boys available has been steadily diminished with each ball game. Their backfield play has been erratic at times because of the large number of switches that have been made out of necessity.

However, in spite of the numerous advantages possessed by the Lenoir Rhyme club, I can't help but think that ECC is about due for their upset win. It'll be a tremendous uphill battle if they can beat the Bears—but I think they can do it.

East Carolina wants this 'one . . . they'll give all they've got . . . and possibly a little more—to get it.

In the Big Four, the number one attraction this week won't be Duke's Homecoming, but the Wake Forest-Carolina game at Groves Stadium in Wake Forest. That game promises to be a real humdinger.

Right now, I think I would give the nod—however slight it may be—to Mister Tom's boys in Baptist Hollow. The reason is obvious: passing.

Wake Forest has generated 12 touchdowns this year through the air. They've done well against every team they've played, both in the air and on the ground but particularly with the passing. They've lost only to William and Mary in a distinct upset while enjoying fairly comfortable margins in the other games.

Carolina, on the other hand, has shown a glaring weakness in the art of knocking down enemy passes. Georgia had a field day against the Tar Heels when Johnny Bratkowski started throwing. So has just about everyone else—except Texas. The Longhorns didn't throw but four passes in the entire game.

Carolina's great defensive line has been made to look like a sieve more than once. And Wake Forest has a good running attack to go along with buck-toothed Dickie Davis' passing.

Wake Forest should win, gentlemen, and while it may not be by any substantial margin, one point has always been more than sufficient.

The Duke-Virginia game in Durham tomorrow afternoon could steal the thunder from Wake Forest-Carolina but I seriously doubt that it will. Neither of the two clubs are yet colorful enough to make folks want to pass up an opportunity to see a game that promises as much as does the game in Wake Forest.

The Durham contest, however, should be a red-hot battle between the Blue Devils and the Cavalier gentlemen from almighty North. Bill Murray will be back in The Stadium to direct his squad before the Duke alumni and I don't think they'll go away disappointed.

Duke's running game has been terrific this year and I hardly believe that Virginia can stop the fancy stepping of Charlie Smith, Piney Field, and Jack Kistler. Even if they do, there's the big foot of Red Smith to punt the Cavaliers back within the proverbial shadow of their own goal posts.

The final game on the agenda will mark a change of pace for this column . . . I'm picking State to win over VPI tomorrow in Blacksburg, Virginia.

This game will be the battle of a couple of hard-luck teams. The Gobblers are yet to win a game while State has been knocked hard for five straight Saturdays after beating Catawba.

The Virginians have been having more than just point-scoring troubles. They're having a tough time keeping football players in school. Just the other day, the school reported that three top-flight men on the squad had dropped out of school and were not intending to return. That made 45 men who had quit either football or school or both since practice first started this year.

Mr. Feathers, would you have Mr. Webster and the boys add the dressing to the roast Gobbler which Mr. Duke's boys prepared last week? I know that's it rough to lose five straight. Brother Feathers, but pity poor VPI: they haven't been on the long end in fifteen straight now.

Six Bowls Okayed By NCAA Officials

CHICAGO (UP)—Six football bowl games have been approved by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. it was announced today.

Homecoming Tonight In ECC Stadium

Phants Meet New Bern's Bears In Even Encounter

BOBBY CONWAY, Greenville's hard-hitting end will be in the thick of the scrap tonight as the Greenville Phantoms take on the New Bern Bears in the last home contest for the local club. Conway has drawn the praise of coaches, officials and players as well for his fine showing made in previous games this year. (Reflector Sports Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Tonight is the night for Greenville High's Homecoming tussle with New Bern. The two clubs meet at 8 p.m. in East Carolina Stadium.

Pre-game dopesters rate the contest as a toss-up. Greenville has the best record (2-4) although New Bern (1-4-1) has played a rougher schedule. As the old saying goes, "The one that gets the breaks will win the game."

The Phantoms will be in better shape for this contest than at any time this year. All of the boys who have missed the last two games, with the exception of Guard Tommy Eynans, are back in fold now and will see action. Bob Tindal, big tackle for Bill Kittrell on defense, has been bothered all the week with an upset stomach and will see only limited action tonight.

New Bern is also in good physical condition. They are expected to field a strong team, led by all-conference candidate Bill Koonce, a right tackle. The backfield is led by Quarterback Dick Wade, who does the majority of the passing for Coach Joe Caruso's eleven. Backing him up in the backfield will be Halfbacks Ken Atkinson and Billy Boyd and Fullback Ken Vernelson.

Greenville's backfield will be composed of Sid Briley at the under-center spot, Glenn Scott and Bobby Perry at the halfbacks, and Doug Morgan running from the fullback position. Briley had four passes intercepted in last week's game, three of them within the 20-yard line. He has been working all the week in order to correct his accuracy with the ball.

Both teams will have a strong defensive line. For New Bern, Joe Diffe and Joe Pearson handle the ends on both offense and defense, with the tackles held by Al Laughlinhouse and Koonce. Joe Maveretic is the center and defensive line backer.

Greenville is expected to have Joe Rowland and Bobby Conway on defense at the ends, with Wallace Conway replacing his brother on offense. Fletcher Murray and Dixie Hobgood are the offensive tackles, while Wilton McLawhorn and Bob Tindal take over on defense. Bobby Nunn and Sam Hux will handle the guards, with Charlie Huffstetler and Jimmy Cheatham at the line backers. Huffstetler is the starting center.

Wake-Forest And UNC Get Top Billing In Southern

By REESE DANIEL, United Press Sports Writer, Raleigh, N.C. (UP)—Mighty Maryland leaves the Southern Conference family circle this weekend as a 13-point favorite to make LSU yell "uncle."

So far the Terrapins have lived up to pre-season predictions of power-packed playing. A combination of a fast and beefy line and Ed Modzelewski's scoring punch have kept the Terps with the lead in the loop.

In the family match of the week, Wake Forest and UNC Deacons walloped North Carolina 13 to 7 in the homecoming game last year and have most of the same stars back again.

Wake Forest quarterback Dickie Davis, who fired the winning pass in the last 10 seconds last year, will be in the lineup Saturday. Only his receiver, big Ed Butler, is missing. The contest may turn into a passing duel between Davis and the Tar Heels' Frank Wissman.

Duke's homecoming game is up against non-conference Virginia, a sort of first cousin removed to the Southern loop. The Cavaliers bring a squad which has been beaten only by Washington and Lee. But Bill Murray's Blue Devils are at peak strength and he isn't worrying—much.

N.C. State will be fighting to stay out of the cellar when the Wolfpack meets Virginia Tech at Blacksburg. VPI has lost all four loop games and N.C. State has failed to scratch in five stars. The loser will show up in 17th place in Monday morning's standings.

Birds Take 20-0 Win Over Clemson Tigers

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UP)—South Carolina credited the efforts of a rugged line coupled with a running attack powered by All-America hopeful Steve (Cadillac) Wadiak today for a 20 to 0 upset victory over Clemson.

Yesterday's "Big Thursday" victory was the Gamecocks' fourth in six years of the fierce rivalry. In each case, Clemson's Tigers had been favored.

Wadiak gained 69 yards in 30 carries, but the Gamecocks' defensive platoon won the game as it held Clemson to 166 yards and thoroughly handcuffed Bill Hair, main cog of the Tiger Orange Bowl champions.

Quarterback Billy Stephens started off the rout with a 74-yard punt return in the closing minutes of the first period.

A few plays later, Leon Cunningham covered a Clemson fumble on the Tiger 26 and the Gamecocks marched on down with Wadiak hauling the freight. Quarterback Dick Balke sneaked over from the two for the TD.

Hair dropped back to pass as the Tigers made a fourth-period stab for a touchdown, but Gamecock linebacker Harry Jabbusch snatched the ball out of the air and went 13 yards for the final six points.

Joe Louis Risks Chance For Title Against Marciano

NEW YORK—(AP)—Agging Joe Louis, who wants another shot at the heavyweight crown more than anything else in the world, risks that chance tonight when he faces young, undefeated, hard-hitting Rocky Marciano in a Madison Square Garden ten rounder.

That is the big test of his comeback for the 37-year-old Brown Bomber and he knows it. A loss to the hard-hitting, 27-year-old Brockton, Mass. belter means the end of the trail for one of the ring's all-time greats.

The betting professionals believe Louis is approaching the end. They have established him as a slim 6 to 5 favorite—the shortest odds in all of jarring Joe's career.

By fight time (10 p.m., EST) the odds may go up to 8 to 5. The lowest price ever on Louis was the 9 to 5 odds for his second fight with Max Schmeling. And you know what happened—Max was knocked out in 2:04 of the first round.

But 13 years have gone by since then and apparently so has most of the old dynamite in the Bomber's right fist. His reflexes have dulled and there isn't much resemblance between the young tiger of 13 years ago and the balding campaigner of today.

Louis, however, feels he has enough left to whip the crude, rough ex-GI who has come up like a rocket.

Coach Being Investigated In Growing Basketball Scandal

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—A coach was under investigation for the first time today in the cancerous college basketball scandal and authorities hinted that charges would be made soon against players from two more schools for dumping games.

With 22 players already charged for accepting $75,000 to throw 29 games, the tenacles now pointed toward a Western coach and player.

Wasn't Kidding In Proposal For More Leagues

WASHINGTON (AP)—Larry MacPhail, onetime boss of the New York Yankees, wasn't kidding—or anyway not much—when he said that this country needs six major baseball leagues.

MacPhail said today he thinks four major leagues could be formed right now. A rapidly growing population, he said, soon would support two more.

The idea of six major leagues was advanced by MacPhail Wednesday when he appeared before a House Judiciary subcommittee studying whether baseball violates anti-trust laws.

Today he amplified his views in a telephone interview from his Bel Air, Md., home.

"I may have exaggerated a little," he confessed, "in order to get my point across."

"But I really believe the major leagues should expand."

ers from one school in the South and one in the East.

These pending developments were disclosed as a spokesman for the New York district attorney's office admitted "We know many games were thrown but can't do anything about them because they weren't in our jurisdiction."

There was a checkmate, it was inferred, because in some instances outside authorities had shown absolutely no interest in attempting to prosecute the "dumpers."

Meanwhile, coaches whose teams were being scanned by investigators were strangely quiet. When the inquiry first developed, most coaches heatedly and vehemently denied that their boys could be involved in such machinations.

Interviewed at the very beginning, Clair Bee of long Island University, was outraged.

"If they ever catch one guy of mine," he raged, "I'll quit basketball."

Subsequent revelations involved eight of his players who allegedly tossed 10 games over a period of three years. Yet Bee, who had mentioned returning to the coal mine country in such an event, hadn't at last reports applied for a miner's lamp.

But the New York Basketball Writers' Assn. had a ready reply for Adolph Rupp. The baron from the bluegrass snorted, when the investigations were gathering momentum, that:

"I've talked to my boys and nobody could touch them with a 10 foot pole."

Saturday three of his boys were involved.

The basketball writers sent him an 11-foot pole

Big Four Briefs

RALEIGH (UP)—The N.C. State Wolfpack boarded a bus today for Blacksburg, Va., to meet Virginia Tech tomorrow.

Coach Beattie Feathers wound up the week's drills yesterday with long workouts on offense and defense. Tailback Alex Webster and fullback Jim O'Rourke looked good and apparently have recovered completely from injuries received last weekend.

Tackle Jim Hillman had a bruised cheekbone and had to be left. Otherwise, the squad was at peak strength.

WAKE FOREST (UP)—Wake Forest tapered off drills today and prepared for the contest with North Carolina tomorrow at Homecoming.

Coach Tom Rogers said the squad was in good shape except for halfback Billy Churm, who had a fractured shoulder.

Yesterday the team worked at pass defense, downfield punt protection, goal line defense and tried stopping North Carolina plays.

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—Coach Carl Snavely pronounced his team in good shape today for the Wake Forest game tomorrow.

Snavely said that North Carolina wingbacks Bob Gant and Bud Wallace probably will play the full 90 minutes against the Demon Deacons. Gant will fill in for linebacker Doug Brouton, out for the season, and Wallace will be in the wingback spot.

The squad worked yesterday at stopping Wake Forest pass plays. Snavely remembers how the deadly passing of Dickie Davis beat the Tr-Heels last year.

DURHAM (UP)—The Duke team was in its best physical shape of several weeks today, Coach Bill Murray said.

Murray said the only players who might not see service against Virginia are linebacker John Carey and guard Bill Blalock.

Car Damaged In Truck Collision

A car driven by Miss Joyce Branch collided with the rear of a pickup truck that had stopped for a red light at Dickinson and Boyd avenues yesterday about 1:30.

Miss Branch was painfully injured about the head and face. Joseph B. Keel, driver of the Globe Hardware Store truck, was slightly injured. The investigating officer estimated damage to the Branch car at about $200, and about $25 damage to the truck. No arrest was made.

Miss Branch is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Branch and lives in Hillsdale.

Homecomings To Keep Patrol Busy

RALEIGH (AP)—Homecoming day football games will keep 80 state highway patrolmen busy tomorrow.

A homecoming crowd of better than 25,000 is expected at Wake Forest where the deacons play host to North Carolina. Forty patrolmen will be on hand to direct traffic.

At Durham, another 40 troopers will be on hand for Duke's homecoming game with Virginia. The patrol expects 25,000 fans to attend that game, too.

Sgt. R. S. Harris, the patrol's veteran football traffic director, said there will be no one-way traffic for the Durham game.

For the Wake Forest game, he has ordered one-way traffic around the campus from 11:30 a.m. until the crowd is cleared after the game. Two lanes will be moved and traffic along highways No. 1 and 264 will be diverted in favor of the football motorists.

Sgt. Harris had two tips for motorists attending either game: start for the game early, and stay away from the bottle.

Rachi To Undergo Knee Operation

NEW YORK (UP)—New York Yankee pitcher Vic Raschi will undergo an operation for the removal of a cartilage in his right knee at Johns Hopkins Hospital next week.

The three-time 20-game winner has been ailing since July 1950 when he injured the knee sliding into a base. The pain became so intense during the sixth and final game of the 1951 World Series that the big righthander was near collapse on the bench.

Red Oak News

The folks at Red Oak Christian Church held their fourth annual Harvest Supper and Auction in the Red Oak Community Club house last Friday night. People from far and near came, ate supper with friends or in family groups and stayed for the auction sale which followed.

Mr. Reginald Austin, genial auctioneer from Scotland Neck, chanted the bids and eggs, ham, pork, collards, turnip greens, poultry, canned preserves, pickles, fruits, pepper hash, pepper vinegar, a live pig, guineas, aprons, brooms good homemade candy and other things were sold to the highest bidder. Due to the generosity of our friends from Greenville, Winterville and other communities and the splendid cooperation of our own members a sum of $550.00 was added to our "Church Furniture Fund." This with the $337.00 cleared at our food booth at the fair, with what we already had gives us approximately $1000.00 on our fund. To any one, who helped in any way to make these two projects a success, may we say "Thanks from the bottom of our hearts."

Twenty-six members of the Young Married Couples Sunday School class of Red Oak held their October meeting at the new and attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy James in Greenville last Wednesday night. The president, Willie Pate, presided and Mrs. Amos Evans read the minutes of the last meeting which was a report on the fish stew held at the Evans camp on the Pamlico. She also gave a treasurer's report.

For a long time, this class has wanted to do something that was worthwhile and outstanding for the church. After much enthusiastic discussion it was unanimously agreed that this class purchase a Hammond organ for the church.

Mr. Sam Winchester was made treasurer of this fund and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, who had been doing some work in advance, turned in a neat sum of money which, when added to what we already had amounted to $362.50. We shall try to add to this fund from time to time. It is planned to purchase the organ some time in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. James served a party plate with an iced cold drink.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen were hosts to the October meeting of Circle No. 1 of Red Oak. Much enthusiasm and spirit were shown by the twenty-seven members and visitors who were present.

New officers were elected for the ensuing year. Mrs. F. L. Allen is president, with Mrs. Jarvis Tripp as vice president; Mrs. B. L. Tyson is secretary and treasurer.

Thirty-three sick visits were reported. It was voted to give $50.00 on the shrubbery which will soon be planted around the church. Mrs. Ethel Crawford will be hostess to the November meeting. Mrs. George Entwistle will entertain the ministers next third Sunday. Mrs. Lizzy Vandiford will be responsible for the communion set for the next three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen served chicken salad sandwiches, cookies, mints, nuts and a cold drink.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Joyner were hosts to Reverend Harold Tyer and family and Mr. Thomas Inabinette last Sunday. They also had their children as dinner guests.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Tyson, Mrs. James Allen and Mrs. Fenner Allen attended the Recreation School at the Armory Monday night.

Members of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church are having a supper and auction sale at Winterville Wednesday night. We hope them much success.

Seek Knowledge Of Star Closest To Solar System

MT. HAMILTON, Calif. —(UP)— Observations that will bring new knowledge of the star closest to the solar system have been reported by a University of California astronomer now visiting in Australia.

The report was made by Dr. Gerald E. Kron, associate astronomer at the University's Lick Observatory. Kron, on a year's leave for study in Australia, made the observations at the Commonwealth Observatory at Mt. Stromlo, near Canberra, in collaboration with S. C. B. Gascoigne, of that observatory.

The observations were made of the star, Proxima Centauri, by means of photoelectric devices. Proxima is one of the smallest and faintest stars known. It can be seen only with a fairly large telescope, and then only because it is so nearby.

Relatively Close
Proxima Centauri is very close in terms of stellar distance—four light years (24,000,000,000,000 miles). It is about one-tenth the diameter of the sun, roughly the size of the planet Jupiter. Its low surface temperature in ordinary light also contributes to its dimness.

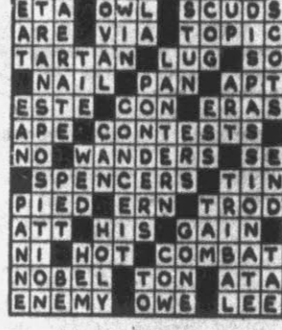

Kron said the brightness of Proxima is so great in infrared light, that if one had vision in the infrared equivalent to our actual vision, a keen-eyed observer would be able to see the star without a telescope.

Astronomers here said Kron's results will give the first reliable values for the apparent brightness and temperature. Earlier values, they said, were very crude. The results also will make possible better calculations of the distance of the star.

Proxima is in the far southern

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 33
Johnny's eyes were thoughtful. He looked over at Dave Sherman. Who was also out there in the barn with them. Sherman looked puzzled.

"Well," said Johnny, centering his attention on the doctor, "I'm not sure."

"You've seen for yourself. There isn't any kind of mark on the body. No wounds—nothing. His eyes flickered. "No blunt instrument, as you fellows like to say. And he wasn't hurt, and he didn't fall, nor did he have a stroke."

"So?" Johnny frowned.

"Heart attack, is my guess." Johnny made a wry face. "A big husky guy like him? Look, doc, there are a lot of people around this place who would have liked to see him dead—and not from a heart attack."

Sam Clark shrugged. "Maybe I'll say it's his heart."

"Well, you're the doctor," said Johnny. "But it sure beats me."

A moment or two later he was talking to Nancy. She had been with P. a Cronk, who had gone to pieces completely, and for whom Sam Clark had ordered a sedative that would put her to sleep until morning. Nancy herself had helped the woman to bed. She told Johnny, "Sam says we've had enough excitement for one night. She'll sleep."

Johnny sighed. "Well, we get the solution to one murder and right away we have another on our hands." He shook his head. "It's crazy."

"But Sam says Cronk's death couldn't be murder!" Nancy protested.

"The hell it couldn't!" rapped Johnny.

Nancy looked at him narrowly. "All right, master mind, how was he killed? I think you've got murder on the brain. Maybe Ralph Cronk drank himself to death. Maybe he—"

"Wait!" said Johnny. Nancy looked at him curiously. "Now, what?"

"Just a minute..." Then Johnny grabbed up his hat and coat again. "I've got an idea, pet. Be right back!"

"But..."

The door closed behind him. Through the falling snow Johnny saw a light turned on in one of the bungalows. He met Dave Sherman coming from the direction of the barn.

"Whose light is that?" asked Johnny, pointing across the wide yard.

"Doc Clark's. He went to get something out of his medical case," Johnny asked. "Why would he be starting a fire at this hour, especially when he's spending the night over here at the main house?" He was looking upward.

"Huh?" Dave Sherman turned, looking up at the cottage. He removed his glasses. "That's odd," he remarked.

Johnny suggested, "You might phone the State Police again and find out when they'll be out."

Quietly Johnny pushed open the door. Immediately he was aware of voices talking quietly.

From the hallway, he could see into the living room and partially beyond. He saw stocky, alert little Doctor Clark bent over a fireplace burning something.

Then a woman's voice spoke. "Sam, tell me the truth... how did you get hold of these things? Ralph Cronk had them, didn't he? That's why he was demanding all that money to keep quiet."

"Of course he had them, dear," said Sam Clark. "Your old marriage license, photographs—everything. I found them in his room tonight..." He was stepping to the fireplace again, something in his hand.

Johnny went into the study "Just a minute!" he snapped.

Doris Wells, standing nearby, gave a little cry as her hand came up to her mouth. Though Johnny gave her only a momentary glance, he was aware of movement from the doctor. He saw a stiff piece of paper fall on the fire.

Johnny went across the room in three strides, seized the paper with his fingertips and quickly knocked off the section that had started to burn. He saw that it was an old marriage license. Without attempting to read it, he swung and looked at Doris Wells.

"Yours, isn't it?"

She nodded her head slowly. She had been crying.

Doctor Sam Clark was standing very still, looking levelly at Johnny. The investigator said to him, "Doctor, tell me, is Doris your daughter?"

He was somewhat surprised at the direct answer which followed. "I've raised this girl as I would my own daughter," said Clark. "Let me tell you something, Saxon. As a girl, Doris knew nothing but sorrow. Her mother died while Doris was quite young. So she was left alone. I took over, loving her as I would my own child. Now, she's married again and happy. I'd kill anyone who tried to ruin that happiness!"

Silence, for a moment, was heavy in the small room. Johnny said abruptly, "I think I understand. He stepped back to the fireplace and tossed the certificate on the flames. Some old photographs were just curling to ashes in the flames, and he knew now, that these were the things Ralph Cronk had found in Jeannette's apartment, in the old desk, and for which the murder had been committed.

Turning his attention to the doctor, again, he continued, "Yes, you would have gladly killed Ralph Cronk. They don't come much rarer than his kind. I guess anyone would have felt the same urge"—he glanced at Doris Wells—"especially you, in your position."

"Naturally," said the doctor.

"Let's say," mused Johnny, "that you did kill him. Then, as coroner of this district, all you need do in your death report, is to say that the man died of heart failure. Who could question a doctor's word?"

"Yes," agreed Sam Clark.

"I could," said Johnny.

Doris Wells gave a choked cry. She grabbed the doctor's arm. "Sam! You didn't, really..."

Johnny said, "The odor of almonds told me that it was a deadly poison, doctor. And I noticed there were faint burns within his mouth. You served the nightcaps after returning from the city. A simple thing to add the poison to Cronk's drink." Johnny had seen the open medical bag on the table. He started moving toward it. "I imagine the vial can be found right here."

"Stand where you are," snapped Doctor Clark.

Doris Wells gave a little cry. Johnny whirled around.

"The doctor held a gun and was pointing it at him."

Too Many Bites Fatal To Spider

IVERSIDE, Calif. (UP)—A black widow spider that bit fireman W. H. McAllen got what was coming to her.

The poisonous spider bit McAllen four times while he was sleeping yesterday, but he suffered no ill effects.

The spider, however, was found dead nearby, apparently from over-work.

WASHINGTON —(AP) A United Nations team of 48 Korean War veterans, representing 19 nations, leave today in two units to start a nationwide tour.

One unit, traveling exclusively by plane, will traverse the northern states, with one stop in Canada. The other unit, moving by plane and bus, will take a southern route to the West Coast.

The 48 fighting men were assembled in Tokyo only a week ago and flown to Washington to participate in ceremonies marking the sixth anniversary of the United Nations.

They wore the uniforms of the United States, United Kingdom, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, France, Greece, India, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, New Zealand, Philippines, Korea, South Africa, Thailand and Turkey.

The first unit, including 21 non-Americans and four Americans, will go by bus to Baltimore, then in New York Saturday for three days, then go their separate ways for four weeks until the tour ends in San Francisco Nov. 22.

The southern group will fly to Atlanta, Oct. 30 and Winston Salem, N. C., Oct. 31.

REV. PERRY E. GRESHAM

PAUL G. PRESTON

Perry E. Gresham, pastor of the Central-Woodward Christian Church of Detroit, Michigan, will deliver the keynote address at annual convention of the Disciples of Christ November 5, 6, and 7 in Kinston.

Dr. Gresham will speak in the Gordon Christian Church, which is host to the convention, Monday night, November 5, and again Tuesday morning, November 6.

Other than the pastor of the Central-Woodward Christian Church, Gresham is the regular summer preacher for the Church of Scotland in Old Renfield Street Church in Glasgow. He is a part of the staff of the National Council of Churches for their city preaching mission at Washington, Boston, and other urban cities and he is also a participant in the Campus Christian Mission program of the National Council in which capacity he lectures at America's leading universities.

In 1950 Gresham toured the Middle East covering the political, economic, and social conditions in a series of articles for the Detroit Free Press. He also serves as a representative of the Commission on Faith and Order for the World Council of Churches in which capacity he attended the Conference in Thun, Switzerland, in 1950 and in Clarens, Switzerland in 1951.

Other main speakers at the convention will be Margaret Lawrence, field representative for the United Christian Missionary Society; Paul G. Preston, executive secretary of the Pension Fund of Disciples of Christ; Velva Dreese, assistant executive secretary in the department of missionary organizations of the United Christian Missionary Society.

Miss Lawrence's work is visiting churches and giving special

Pro-Eisenhower Group Is Forming

NEW YORK —(AP) The New York Times reported today that an open drive will be started within two weeks to get the Republican presidential nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In a dispatch to the Times from Washington, Anthony Leviero said that leaders of an Eisenhower-for-President movement will hold a caucus and announce a national campaign committee.

Leviero quoted the General's chief proponents, who have been working intensively behind the scenes to develop a mood and a portions that the Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers in Europe will not ignore it.

The Times' dispatch added: "Disclosure of the imminent plan to announce the committee was made by one of the General's principal advocates on condition that his name be withheld for the time being."

Breaks For . . .

But now, at the request of defense officials, there will be no color television for the general public for a long time to come. And certainly no new fight over the color rights in 1952.

That means that FCC has been freed for much faster action on the nearly 500 new television station applications now stacked up in its files and awaiting processing. New station grants for many communities may thus have been advanced by many months, because FCC will not have to divide its time between new stations and a revived color controversy.

The last such color quarrel kept television frozen for nearly two years.

The NPA action on scarce metals for broadcasting facilities involved a "reclassification" of radio and TV outlets. Until now, they have been "commercial projects," entitled to order only two tons of steel, 200 pounds of copper and no aluminum in any three months period without elaborate red tape.

Now they are classed as "industrial plants." As such, they can get up to 25 tons of steel, 2,000 pounds of copper and 1,000 pounds of aluminum per quarter without going through NPA.

First Frost

The Greenville area had its first frost last night. Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported light frost, the first of this season.

Incidentally, she said, the area experienced frost on September 25 and 26 last year.

Highest temperature here yesterday was 76 degrees. Lowest last night, 46, (and that's getting down into the frosty area) and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 47 degrees. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 65 degrees. Lowest that night, 51, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 55. No rain that day.

Only Four Cases In Light Docket Of Police Court

Judge Charles H. Whedbee today disposed of the lightest Friday dockets of the past year, when only four defendants appeared for trial. The court meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The most important case up for trial was that of Ernest Wells, Negro, 1303 Factory Street, who was charged with forcible trespass by his sister, Mrs. Catherine Redmond, 613 Allen's Avenue.

The court found Wells guilty in a nominal degree and fined him only $5.

Testimony was that Wells had formerly lived there and that his going to the house was not unusual.

Solicitor Eli Bloom, who had been to New York City on a business trip, has returned and prosecuted the cases today. Attorney M. E. Cavendish, who was with the FBI a long time, and who now is practicing in Greenville, substituted as solicitor for Bloom for several days.

Carelton Smith . . .

In Russia, Smith said he traveled 42,000 miles gathering folk songs of the people, and to these songs, propaganda works were substituted portraying the praises of Stalin and the communist cause.

Turning to art among the American people, Smith declared, "We spend too much of our lives in the kitchen work of life—business. Everything in America seems to be turned over to commerce. Life in America will be quite different in the next 15 years . . . as soon as we can get the inventions of the last 15 years into Sears and Roebuck and Montgomery Ward catalogues so everyone can enjoy them." The trend, he said, will mean more leisure time for the American people, and more time in which they should cultivate their appreciation of the arts. "The great thing about the arts is that every person can fully express himself without hurting anyone else. The only things that will be known about the United States 1,000 years from now will be what is put into art."

Smith discussed for the audience his personal contacts with outstanding artists of the world, and related several humorous incidents about the various artists.

President Sam D. Bundy of Farmville presided at the meeting of the Pitt County Executives club, and Smith was introduced by Dr. Kenneth Outhbert, head of the department of music at East Carolina College.

Miss Willa Rae Harper, senior at Farmville High School, entertained the members of the club with several songs. She was accompanied at the piano by Gerald Davis, junior at Farmville.

Over 100 Attend Fumigation Study

A group of Pitt County tobacco growers gathered at the farm of Bob Tucker just outside Greenville yesterday to witness a demonstration of soil fumigation.

Sam Weeks, county tobacco specialist, said today that an estimated 110 farmers attended the experiment, which was designed to acquaint them with fumigation processes, methods of application, and types of equipment necessary for distribution.

Immediately after the demonstration, Howard R. Garris, plant pathologist specialist of the State College Extension Service, discussed the control of root knot, and other plant diseases. Garris stressed the damage wrought by tobacco plant diseases each year, and gave the results of experiment station tests with soil fumigation, which he described as "satisfactory."

Tobacco specialist Weeks stated that fumigation trials all over the state have proven successful, with the treated areas averaging $15 per acre more than the untreated areas.

"Fumigation controls nematodes, wire worms, and other soil insects," Weeks said, "and Pitt County growers are expected to have at least 1,000 fumigated acres in tobacco cultivation next year."

"The approximate cost of the fumigation treatment is around $40 per acre," Weeks added.

Solves Riddle Of Study And TV

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UP)—Rev. Brother Boniface Joseph, of Brooklyn, N.Y., thinks one of his students has solved the riddle of studying and watching television at the same time.

Brother Joseph told a parochial school teachers conference yesterday that one of his students admitted watching TV at least four hours a night.

When asked how he found time to study, the boy replied: "Oh, I do that during the commercials."
