Truce Talks Fail To Reach Accord

UN Negotiators Reject Offer Of Two Swampy Peninsulas For Mountain Area Captured By Allies At High Cost; Offer 'Unrealistic'

By ARNOLD DIBBLE United Press Staff Correspondent PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—United Nations truce negotiators rejected today a Communist offer to trade two swampy peninsulas in western Korea for central and eastern mountains captured by the U.N. at high cost.

The rejection came during a "completely inconclusive" meeting of a subcommittee set up by the U.N. and Red armistice teams to find a mutually agreeable cease-fire line across Korea.

The U.N. has proposed a 2 1/2-mile-wide buffer zone across Korea generally following the present battle line, but of red to trade the Reds about 200 square miles of territory on the east coast for a similar bank of Communist-held land in the west including Kaesong, site of the present Communist truce camp.

Brig. Gen. William Nickols, U.N. spokesman, said the subcommittee would resume its discussions at 11 a.m. Tuesday (9 p.m. Monday EST).

The Communists offered to turn over to the U.N. the Ongjin and Yonan peninsulas, two completely indefensible peninsulas which jut down from the 38th Parallel into the Yellow Sea northwest of Seoul.

In return, the Reds said, the 8th Army should withdraw up to 15 miles along 95 per cent of the battle line on the central and eastern sectors. This would mean the abandonment of such hard-won terrain as Biory Ridge, Heartbreak Ridge, and Punchbowl Valley.

U.S. Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodges replied that the U.N. does not want the two peninsulas and never had tried to take them. They are still held by the Communists only by default, he said.

Hodges called the Communist proposal "militarily unrealistic."

Claims Indonesia Plot Uncovered; 15,000 Arrested

JAKARTA, Indonesia. —(AP)—Indonesian Premier Soekarno told Parliament today that discovery of a gigantic plot against the lives of Indonesia's top officials, from President Soekarno down, had resulted in the arrest of 15,000 persons.

The plot, he said, was discovered last August. Its targets, in addition to the president, included Vice President Mohammad Hatta and all cabinet ministers.

Sixteen members of Parliament and about a dozen officials of the Ministry of Labor, all leftists, were nationwide security sweeps and arrests have been frequent since then.

The Premier said his government also had evidence of a "left wing" movement in Jakarta financed by a "foreign country."

Egypt Going On War Footing As Tensions Persist

Prepare Mobilization As Violence Flares Anew; Sudan Asks UN Help

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Egypt sent Britain a new note on the Suez Canal zone crisis today and prepared for mobilization of all men between 18 and 50.

Contents of the note were not disclosed immediately. Egypt got ready for a mobilization draft, setting up a Supreme War Council, as violence flared anew. T. Sudanese government asked the United Nations to stop Egypt from annexing the Sudan and give the Sudanese the right to choose their own form of government.

British and Egyptian authorities reported a woman was killed and a man wounded by British troops last night at a road block at Tel el-Kebr, 30 miles west of Ismailia, in the canal zone.

British military authorities blamed the incident on failure of Egyptian police to control a mob in maintaining road blocks in the area, now controlled by British troops.

In Port Said a crowd attacked and nearly wrecked a truck carrying meat and butter to British camp. Police prevented the crowd from setting the vehicle afire.

British supplies of fresh meat, vegetables and fruit were reported diminishing daily as more Egyptian food contractors joined the boycott movement.

The Egyptian state council approved a general mobilization bill outlining measures to be followed in case of war. The bill must be approved by the cabinet and the Egyptian Parliament before becoming law.

The Sudan constitutional commission, in a cable yesterday to the U.N., said the Sudan now has reached the stage at which self-government could be granted. It said it represented all Sudanese with the exception of the Ashinga Party.

VFW Plans Drive To Build Up Its Shrinking Ranks

NEW YORK (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) is launching a campaign to enroll 3,000 new members by next June 30.

The recruiting drive was announced yesterday as a group of 230 eastern leaders was told that the organization had lost more than 1,000,000 members since 1946.

Merion B. Tice, lawyer from Mitchell, B. D., and national judge Advocate of the VFW, said membership now is 1,200,000.

If it drops below 1,000,000, he added, the VFW "will lose everything—revenue, prestige, and the results of 52 years of hard work."

Reshuffle

LONDON —(UP)— Britain's entire diplomatic service today was reported in for a reshuffle with Winston Churchill installing in the various foreign posts men who hold his confidence.

The British ambassador to Iran, Sir Francis Shepherd, was recalled today by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden for "consultation." Reliable sources said Shepherd would not return to Tehran.

It also was learned on good authority that Britain may shortly replace her ambassador to the United States, Sir Oliver Franks.

Franks is expected to be recalled for "consultations" and then return to Washington for a short time before being replaced.

A new ambassador in Washington would have to implement Churchill's projects for the closest possible cooperation with the United States in all major issues—military and political.

It was indicated that Churchill felt the time was ripe for a major move which would call for a new personality in Washington, although Franks is regarded highly by both Labor and Conservatives.

Collins Predicts Ultimate Truce

Gen. J. Lawton Collins predicted today that the United Nations and the Communists will agree on a Korean truce, but not in the near future.

"I do know that an agreement will be reached, but how long it will take I do not know," the U.S. Army chief of staff said. "I don't believe it will be in the near future."

Collins made the prediction to newsmen after completing an inspection tour of U.N. military posts in Korea with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme U.N. commander, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the 8th Army.

Collins said the U.N. would have to keep its forces in Korea for some time because the South Korean army "needs help."

"But when we get out," he said, "we will get out as quickly as possible."

He said the South Korean army had made great strides since he last was in it in action.

"Very frankly," he said, "the ROK army was not satisfactory when I saw it the last time. This time I found it greatly improved and the ROK soldiers gallant fighters."

Eden Calls Home Envoy To Iran

LONDON —(AP)— Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden directed Britain's ambassador in Tehran today to return to London immediately for consultations on the Anglo-Iranian oil row.

Pitt Farmers Go To Polls Nov. 3 For Referendum

Feed And Fertilizer Tax At Issue; Goal Is Additional Research Fund

Pitt County farmers and their families along with farm families all over the state, will go to the polls next Saturday to vote on an increased tax on feed and fertilizer consumed annually in North Carolina.

The referendum, which was authorized by the 1951 Legislature, was designed to determine whether farmers favored an additional tax of five cents per ton on feed and fertilizer, the money to be used for agricultural research.

The campaign, entitled "Nickels for Know-How," is being conducted under the auspices of the N.C. and American Farm Bureau, and if passed, it will bring in an estimated $100,000 each year to be used for farm research throughout the state.

County Agent Sam Winchester said today that the average cost to Pitt County farmers would be from 30 to 40 cents a year. "That seems a very small amount to pay for such an increased knowledge of important crop varieties," Winchester stated.

Winchester strongly emphasized that any person who purchases feed or fertilizer, including farmers and their wives and 4-H Club and FFA members, is eligible to vote in the referendum. "We urge farmers to bring their families and come to the polls on Saturday," he said.

In Pitt County, approximately 7,700 farm families or persons owning farms will be affected by the referendum. This category will embrace a total of from 16,000 to 20,000 eligible voters throughout the county.

To go into effect, the bill must be passed by favorable two-thirds vote. The polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and will remain open until 6:30 p.m.

The Poll-Box Committee is headed by J. Branley Speight, chairman, and Arch J. Flanagan, co-chairman.

The committee is composed of Dr. M. T. Frizzelle of Ayden, P.S. Rasberry of Farmville, Carl Scott of Tabor, Judson Whitehurst of Stokes, W. A. House of Bethel, and W. E. Little of Grimesland.

W. W. Wooten of Falkland, Jack Lewis of Farmville, J. Alton Moore of Fountain, and Alton Barrett of Greenville.

J. Paul Davenport of Patachius, W. C. Chauncey of Grifton, B. Alton Gardner of Ayden, and Vernon Cox of Winterville.

Polling places are: Ayden, Town Hall; Beaver Dam, K. M. Craw-Store; Bethel, Town Hall; and Carolina, Stokes School Building.

Chilood, H. H. Porter's Store, Grimesland Town Hall, Black Jack Barber Shop, and L. C. Venters.

Fresh Chinese Division Thrown Into Battle As Kumsong Lines Begin Sag

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea, Tues. (UP)—Chinese Communists rushed a fresh division into the Kumsong area Monday as United Nations troops won a series of sharp Korean front.

A new Chinese division was shifted from eastern Korea to bolster badly-morale Red troops around Kumsong. The location of the front lines in the Kumsong area is one of the points at issue in the cease-fire talks at Panmunjom.

U.N. troops gained from half a mile to nearly a mile at the western and eastern ends of the front Monday, and in the central sector beat off three Chinese attempts to re-take a strategic hill mass southeast of rubbled Kumsong, 20 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

U.N. planes again found North Korean roads clogged with enemy convoys ferrying reinforcements and supplies from Manchuria to the Red front. They attacked at least 2,100 trucks Sunday night and early Monday and destroyed at least 235 of them.

A string of 20 railway boxcars also was set on fire.

Communist jets apparently saw where up at least temporarily their attempts to break Allied air superiority over North Korea. No air battles had been reported up to mid-day. The Reds lost 81 MiG jets destroyed or damaged in four fights the previous eight days.

An 8th Army communique said that U.N. forces on the hilly western front northwest of Yonchon made the day's biggest advance—800 to 1,200 yards. The Allies were unopposed in some sectors, but ran into moderate resistance elsewhere.

On the eastern front, U.N. elements west of Punchbowl Valley seized a hill in advances of up to 1,000 yards, the communique said. The Allies jumped off after turning back three separate night attacks by up to 800 Red troops.

U.N. tanks again rattled Kumsong itself despite a rain of mortar fire. Four Allied tanks were damaged by Communist artillery and mortar fire in a similar hit-and-run raid Sunday, but returned safely to Allied lines.

Big Farm Crops Are Still Needed

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said today the nation will need big crops again next year, but that shortages of some materials and the problem of "attractive incentives" pose possible barriers.

The farm job in 1952, he said, is to produce enough to supply civilians and the armed services, to share with friendly people abroad and to build and maintain "a safe margin of strategic reserves."

In a talk at the opening session of the Department's annual economic outlook conference, Brannan said the Department is preparing production goals for various commodities for next year. He said they will emphasize livestock feed grains and cotton. Reserves of both, he said, are not large enough.

The secretary said the fertilizer situation for next year is one of our "greatest concerns."

He said also that "the present sharp downward trend in the production of farm machinery spells danger for the future."

"You all realize," he said, "that farm returns must be reasonably attractive if farmers are to be asked to assume the risks and costs involved in full production schedules."

Pranksters Gate Doctor No Rest

NAHANT, Mass. (UP)— Dr. Albert H. Covner, whose body was found in a lonely woods Saturday, was "driven to distraction" by pranksters calling at all hours and asking if he wanted to hire a baby-sitter, police said today.

Relatives and police also said Covner was "tired and disgusted" by the publicity he had received when his 15-year-old baby-sitter, Roberta McCauley, and two friends took $18,000 from his home to finance a New York spree.

Harvard medical school pathologists studied Covner's vital organs to learn whether he died of a heart attack or killed himself because he was "stunned" by jokers who called him day and night.

A medical examiner ruled out foul play in Covner's death.

Covner's body was found four miles from the cemetery where his parents were buried. There was a vial of nitroglycerin nearby and his pockets contained pills and tablets.

Though medical examiner Thomas P. Devin said there was no evidence of external violence, he would not say whether any of the medicines contributed to Covner's death. He said he would make no statement on the death until he received the pathological report from the Harvard School of Legal Medicine sometime this week.

"Oberta and her friends, Marilyn Curry, 16, and Eileen Jeffrey, 17, are being held in New York to testify against two men they picked up and who are accused of statutory rape and impairing the morals of a minor."

The men came into their lives after they spent $3,000 for gaudy clothing and jewelry in swank Fifth Avenue shops. The $15,000 balance, the girls said, was taken by three other boys.

Robert's mother, Mrs. Edward McCauley, was shocked by Covner's death and said she hoped the girls would "not try to take the responsibility for it."

The theft of the money was bad enough, she said, "but to have a death result, to follow and haunt the child for the rest of her life is too much."

British Liberals Conditionally To Vote As Tories

LONDON —(AP)— The Liberals conditionally promised their six House of Commons votes last night to bolster the narrow Conservative majority, but Liberal leader Clement Davies said "no" to a cabinet bid from Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The Liberals said their six members would swell the Tories' 18-seat majority on "measures clearly conceived in the interest of the country as a whole."

Davies, however, after a second weekend conference with Churchill, announced he "felt unable to accept" the Conservative leader's offer of a post in the cabinet the new Prime Minister still was forming.

Opposition Heard Over Quick Action On UMT

Depression Seen Following Korea

ROME (UP)—A widespread depression, first in the United States and then in other industrialized countries, may follow the end of the Korean war, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization said today.

The FAO in its yearly "Review and Outlook" said the total output of food in 1950-51 was higher than last year, but appeared pessimistic about the future. It said figures for Russia show food output in the USSR was "higher than in any post-war year."

"The economic effects of the Korean situation seem likely to continue in 1951-1952 and 1952-1953, probably with a continued general expansionary situation and with a high and increasing demand for agricultural products."

"If the fighting ends in Korea and international tension lessens, some reductions of inventories, of finished goods might occur and prices of agricultural products and other raw materials decline for a time, accompanied by a general downward movement in price levels," the FAO reported.

"Ordinarily, this might cause a retrenchment in investments with resulting widespread depression, first in the USA and then in other industrialized countries."

Only 23 Pounds From Meeting Sudden Death

HOLLYWOOD —(AP) Le Roy Prinz, a movie director who collects firearms as a hobby, is glad he watched his die.

Prinz carried a land mine—a Korean War souvenir—into the police station Saturday for a check-up. He was afraid it was still live.

Before he became suspicious of the land mine, however, Prinz used it for various purposes around the house. For a time, it was a step stool.

Police told Prinz he didn't know how lucky he was. The land mine was designed to explode under 200 pounds of pressure.

Prinz weighs 173.

Extensive Debate Appears Certain As House And Senate Leaders Make Room For Hurry-Up Legislative Effort

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Early rumblings of opposition today greeted demands for quick congressional action on universal military training for 18-year-olds.

Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee called for final action on the plan early in the next session of Congress, which reconvenes Jan. 8.

Senate and House leaders, already pledged to give the program immediate consideration in committees, were expected to make room for floor action on their crowded calendars.

Debate on the controversial UMT program — in a pre-election Congress — promised to be extensive, however, even though UMT has been approved in principle by both House and Senate.

The National Security Training Commission cleared the way last night for congressional action by laying out a six-month compulsory "intensive" and "realistic" training program for 18-year-olds. The five-man group recommended approval of the plan "without delay" to meet "the Kremlin's challenge."

The commission noted that Americans of the frontier era "calmly accepted" military training as necessary protection against warring Indians. It said the nation again faces the threat of an enemy which can strike "swiftly and unexpectedly," and added:

"This return to frontier conditions demands a realistic response." The commission's plan includes a code of conduct and measures designed to protect trainees' health, safety and welfare. It recommends that only physically and mentally handicapped youths be deferred from the program which is designed to train 800,000 men a year — the usual crop of 18-year olds.

The cost of the new program was one item which appeared certain to draw criticism. The commission said it hoped for a cost less than the $4,000,000,000 estimated by the armed services. Military leaders expect costs to drop to about $2,000,000,000 in later years.

Congress approved the general UMT concept when it passed the draft law during the recently concluded session. That approval pledged Senate and House committees to act on the commission's they are submitted.

Sen. Edwa. C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said he would oppose the program because trainees would have to "mortgage" an additional 7-1/2 years of their lives in the form of reserve service.

However, three members of the Senate committee endorsed the plan.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.)

Fifty-Fifty Chance

Observers On And Off The Battlefield See Even Odds For Cease-Fire In Korea This Time; Communists Must Still Save Face; UN Won't Be Pushed Around

By HARRY FERGUSON

The belief is growing — on and off the battlefield — that this time there is at least a fifty-fifty chance for a cease-fire in Korea. An incident that nobody can foresee could change the whole picture overnight, but it's reasonably certain neither side is going to try to create such an incident. In other words, the mental climate is right for an armistice.

That attitude is reflected in Tokyo, Washington and Peiping. Statements from all sources have taken on a more moderate, reasonable tone as though all persons were holding their breath for fear of rocking the boat. And this week-end U.P. war correspondent Arnold Dibble cabled from the mid-hut truce village of Panmunjom: "Standing on the mud bank before the truce tent here you can look to the east across a golden grain field and see wisps of smoke rising on the ridgeline where American Long Toms are plastering Communist positions. It can't be more than three miles away. Yet sources on both sides here seem to feel we are closer together than we have ever been before. There is a feeling that a compromise can be worked out. Nobody knows exactly how that can be done but almost everybody feels it can be done."

Nothing has happened to change the rock-bottom demands of both sides: For the United Nations: There never can be a withdrawal to the 38th Parallel, as the Communists have been demanding. The simple reason for that is that the terrain along the 38th Parallel is not a good defensive position. For the Communists: Any truce formula must allow them to save face. They never want to be put in the position of being forced to admit they were defeated on the battlefield. The Communists already have won these two propaganda victories: 1. They made the U.N. negotiators come to the town of Kaesong under a white flag. Kaesong is inside the Red lines. 2. Gen. Matthew Ridgway publicly admitted that U.N. fliers had ac-

Dock Tie-Up Showdown Fails To Develop Today

NEW YORK —(AP)— A threatened showdown in New York's waterfront strike failed to develop today and miles of docks remained closed tight after morning work whistles blew.

Reinforced lines of pickets marched in front of many piers. Announced plans of AFL longshore boss Joseph Ryan to send men "through or over" pickets didn't materialize.

Police, anticipating a possible violent climax to the 15-day dock strike, increased waterfront patrols to about 400 men along the Manhattan docks alone.

Husband Held In Shotgun Slaying Of Wife Sunday

FARMVILLE — Jim Jerden, 34, Negro farmer of the Lewis's Store community near Farmville, was arrested by Pitt County authorities late yesterday afternoon and charged with the shotgun murder of his wife.

Geneva Jerden, 35-year-old wife of the Pitt County farmer, was shot through the head following an argument with her husband who, according to officers, had been drinking.

The shooting took place between 6:00 and 6:30, officers said, and immediately after the crime Jerden turned himself in to the Farmville Police Department.

Bomber's Crew Report 35 Red Trucks Blasted

U.S. Fifth Air Force headquarters, Korea (AP)—Lt. George W. Cap, Colton, Calif., 26 pilot, reported destruction of 35 communist vehicles last night in a strike eight miles south of Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

Cap's navigator, Second Lt. Ervin O. Stewart, Greensboro, N.C., said "each time a truck exploded a geyser of fire leaped into the air and in turn set up a chain reaction of explosions that eventually demolished the convoy."

Master Sgt. Harvey L. Treace, Lexington, Ky., said the attack was carried out against heavy 30 mm anti-aircraft fire. Treace, gunner on the light bomber, added "when we came home there were several four-inch holes in my compartment. Luckily no one was hurt."

Sweet-smelling helicopter was introduced into Europe from Peru almost 200 years ago, immediately becoming popular.

Progress Of Dacron Plant In Kinston Discussed By Dupont Official At Woman's Club Meeting

"The Du Pont plant may well be the forerunner of other similar plants attracted to this section of the country," stated Mr. Donald R. Statter, one of the company officials who spoke before members of the Woman's club at a special meeting held at the clubhouse on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Statter brought to club members an idea of the construction work which has already been completed at the Dacron plant located near Kinston, and outlined the completed plans of the physical structure and told a little something of the type of work which will be carried on.

At its peak construction period, there will be more than 1800 people employed and the finished plant will cost in the neighborhood of $33,000,000. More than two miles of rail tracks will lie within the boundaries of the plant and two miles of fencing will enclose the grounds, Mr. Statter said. At the present time all temporary construction of offices, garages, warehouses and storage plants has been finished.

Mr. Statter further stated that a complete medical unit is attached to the project, with a full time nurse and full time doctor employed. There is also a full time safety engineer on the job, who is assisted by two other men. There are a fire brigade and a patrol group to handle routine security measures.

"When the plant is completed," elaborated the speaker, "there will be 815 tons of reinforcing rods to brace the concrete, 253,000 feet of pipe, laid, 4,029 tons of structural steel, 45 tons of nails, and 15 tons of bolts in its construction. These figures give you some idea of the size of the job," he added.

The footings and foundations for the main building have been completed, according to Mr. Statter, and work has been started on the steel beams. The unit will have its own power plant which will have two 7500-watt generators. The boilers of this plant will use 173 tons of coal each day, and the company will keep on hand 3100 tons of coal, enough for a 30-day supply.

The main building will be 300 by 900 feet long, and the office building will be a separate two story structure. The plant, actually two-in-one, will make both Dacron yarn and Dacron fiber.

These were some of the astronomical figures which Mr. Statter quoted.

In comparing Du Pont with other large businesses of the country he proved by comparisons that it does not have a monopoly over the many products which it produces. "Du Pont has only 8 percent of all the chemical and allied products business in the United States," he said.

"The bigness of a plant should be determined by its function. If big things are expected of it, things must be done on a big scale," he concluded.

Following his talk, J. O. Derrick,

Enjoying a social hour around the tea table are (l. to r.) Mrs. Dan Keliher, Mrs. Charles Paine, D. R. Statter, Mrs. Warren Twiddy and Mrs. Kenneth Scherer. The ladies are wives of Du Pont employees, who were honored at a tea which concluded a program presented by Statter on the Dacron plant near Kinston. J. O. Derrick of East Carolina College, was also a speaker but was not present for the picture. (Photo by Roy Hardee).

member of the Science Department of East Carolina College, spoke briefly to explain what Dacron and other synthetic fibers are.

"In the language of the chemist," Derrick said, "a synthetic product is one that is identical with the natural material in properties, but it is man-made instead of made by nature."

He discussed the rise in popularity and the improvements in the synthetic fiber field and traced the expansion of the rayon, nylon and similar industries. He said that in chemical terms, Dacron is made basically from ethyl glycol and an acid which are ingredients used in the making of anti-freeze. It has an excellent appearance and resembles nylon in its physical characteristics. This new product is patented by the Du Pont Company and is expected to prove exceedingly popular in the textile field, he said.

As a conclusion to this informative program, which is one in a series of studies on local industries, Derrick showed a film, "This Is Nylon," which was highly diverting and interesting.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, club president, introduced the speakers and welcomed the special guests, Mrs. Kenneth L. Scherer, Mrs. Warren Twiddy, Mrs. Charles Paine and Mrs. Dan Keliher, wives of Du Pont officials who are residing in Greenville.

Mr. W. H. Woolard greeted the members at the door and they were asked to register by Mrs. W. E. Dole. They were greeted inside the Rachel Maxwell Moore room by Mrs. Moore, the special guest, Mrs. Bill Sermons, club vice president, and Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., club treasurer.

Mrs. Robert Fountain, Jr. provided music as the members assembled, and special music was presented by Misses Jackie Waldron of Statesville and Betty Whitfield of Roxboro, students at East Carolina College.

Following the meeting, members of the Executive Board of the club were hostesses at a tea hour in honor of the wives of the Du Pont employees and the two speakers, Mrs. J. L. Fleming poured tea from a silver service at one end of the table, which was laid with a white cut work cloth and centered with an arrangement of fall pastel flowers flanked by white tapers, Ham biscuits, cheese pastries, nuts, cakes, ribbon sandwiches and mints were served.

Present Awards In Safety Event

Awards totaling $17.50 were given in the Greenville High School this morning when the Travelers Protective Association safety contest was sponsored by the National Forensic League at a special assembly.

High school students used any stunt, skit, or speech that stressed accident prevention of tended to make students more safety-minded. Prizes of $10.00, $5.00, and $2.50 were awarded to the following groups.

"Permanent", a skit acted out by Barbara Dail, Johnnie Fay Long, Deannie Rouse, Frances Cahoon, and Elizabeth Roebuck of the homemaking department won top honors. Another group used an old-fashioned school scene for its safety skit and those taking part were Crary, Billy Bost, Edwards Dowd, Virginia Smith, Margaret Mcand Rachael Lang.

Third place prize was awarded to a group of junior high school students who presented "A Risk is Costly." John Brooks prepared the skit and he was assisted in the presentation by Sue Tucker, Lula Mayo, Jerre Lassister, Wayne Bishop, Rachel Stienbeck, Tommy Saieed, and Glenn Briley.

Polly Brady and Joy Jordan received honorable mention for "accident" which was designed to stress the importance of first aid.

Douglas Mitcennell, president of the Greenville High School chapter of the NFL, discussed Child Accident Prevention Week and presided over the safety contest.

The reason there is not much enthusiasm about horses in the sub-deb set these days is that horseback riding has become a pretty expensive proposition, says Nancy Imboden, 15, of Bronxville, N. Y., who will ride in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. Says she:

"It costs so much to rent a horse that sometimes girls who would normally be interested in riding must forego the desire. So there are fewer young equestriennes each year."

Nancy, who owns her own horse, doesn't think it would be very practical for a group to own a horse (which would be one solution to the problem of expenses).

She thinks that if four or five girls shared the ownership of a horse, they would be likely to get into squabbles about expense and sharing the work—and of course riding the horse. However, she does think that two good friends might own a horse and share it. Says she:

"If two girls had a horse it should work out fine. It would certainly be a big help and cut down on expenses. But even then you'd have to know the girl pretty well."

Nancy, who started riding at the age of eight, has seven horse show championships to her credit this season and has her eye on two juvenile classes at the show—an eight-jump course and an equitation championship—concerned with general competence on horseback, seat, hands and control of the mount. About 50 riders from all sections of the United States will compete in each of these title events.

Youngsters in the jumps must ride "hunter seat," which is supposed to mirror the perfect form for the hunting field or in taking the horse over any obstacle. Nancy has mastered both the "hunter seat" and the "saddle seat" style required in the other event. She has won championship ribbons in each division and has been named champion in school too, and is president of her sophomore class at Knox School.

If you have a yen to go horseback riding and can't afford it, why not put your proposition up to the stable man? Many girls work around the stables, caring for horses in their spare time in exchange for rides. There is such a shortage of stable boys that most owners are glad to find girls who can fill the bill. You probably won't be asked to feed the horse at dawn, but try to be a willing worker.

A girl who really likes horses shouldn't object to whatever chores are meted out to her. After all, if you get some fun out of riding the animal, it is only fair to do your share in caring for him. And whether you live in a city and must ride in a park or live in the country and have lots of natural riding paths, the horse still needs the same loving care.

If you owned a horse you would see that the creature demands lots of time. One young 12-year-old, Judy Lewis, of Poundridge, N. Y., wakes up at dawn to feed her "meybun" and clean the stable. Judy doesn't disturb the family—she sets the alarm and gets up and does the job. When bad weather comes, Honeybun must be exercised even if she can't be ridden. And, of course, the horse must be exercised daily by Judy and her friends.

People who own dogs or cats and who get annoyed that they must open a can of food for the poor animal, would be overwhelmed if they saw Judy hosting a bale of hay up to the stable loft for her horse's dinner.

The Weather

Greenville's highest temperature yesterday was 76 degrees. Lowest last night, 46, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 54. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 69 degrees. Lowest that night, 48, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 52 degrees. No rain that day, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local weather observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. BOUGLIAS
"CHEER UP, YOUTH!"
"But who now envies youth? Not I. And that this should be so is the most terrible indictment of the human race, and of the one 'civilized world.'" The writer of these words is Edna Ferber. She feels that youth has such a terrific prospect to confront that we of middle age should thank God that the prospect is not ours.

But there is another side to the picture. Life is only as hopeless as we make it. It is true that war hangs as a terrible shadow over the life of this generation, but even this dark cloud will pass. Civilization is not going to be wiped out; people have grown too wise to allow that. The insane fools who are trying to lead the world to destruction are going to be stopped before they achieve their dastardly ends.

Cheer up, youth; there is just as much to live for now as there has ever been. "The good old days" never really existed. Opportunity still beckons youth, and the moral challenge to high endeavor is as great as it has ever been.

Let us not envy youth, because such envy is futile. We cannot turn back the rolling years, but we can glory in the fact that the future opens up for youth today with as much promise as ever.

A Helping Hand For Witches And Goblins

Hallowe'en is just a couple of nights away, and that means youngsters of Greenville and surrounding communities will be out on that one night a year when pranks are accepted, and property damage does not carry the stigma it carries through the other 364 nights of the year.

The Greenville recreation program, however, in cooperation with various civic and business organizations of the city has made elaborate plans for providing Hallowe'en entertainment for youngsters of the community to keep them off the streets and off other people's property. For many years Greenville has needed the kind of Hallowe'en program which has been planned for Wednesday night at Guy Smith stadium. The city has had various Hallowe'en programs in the past, and while they helped a great deal in cutting down property damage on that night, they did not fill the bill adequately.

At the program Wednesday night there will be all sorts of games and all sorts of entertainment for youngsters of practically all ages. The facilities for a gala Hallowe'en party have been provided, but if the people of the community do not cooperate with the program by seeing that the youngsters attend the party rather than roaming the streets, the party preparations will be wasted.

The success of the event will depend upon the enthusiasm of the people of the community and their willingness to cooperate with the Recreation Commission and civic and business organizations in staging the Hallowe'en party.

The Wildcats Are Back To Their Old Tricks

There can be little doubt that the Communists have had a hand in the longshoremen's wildcat strike which has tied up shipping in New York, Boston and Philadelphia. The Reds may not have started the strike, but they will do their best to keep it going and make it as violent as possible.

The intra-union revolt came after the officials of the International Longshoremen AFL signed a new contract with the Atlantic shippers granting dock workers a 10 cents an hour wage increase. A rebel faction headed by John Sampson bolted the union and went wildcatting for a 25 cents an hour wage hike. The union officials have asserted the docks will be reopened for work by loyal union members, and the rebel dock workers have asserted they will meet force with force if the loyal union members try to return to work.

The nation can not afford to have its shipping tied up in this strike which already has gone 15 days. It is tying up shipments to Korea, and other shipments vital to the nation's defense and the nation's economy.

The government should renew its efforts to stop the strike. Mediation between the factions has failed. Now the federal government should see if the provisions of the Taft-Hartley act are applicable in an intra-union controversy.

Bring In Some 'Ringers' To Nab The Bootleggers

Liquor prices in North Carolina are going up within the next few days, and with the rise in prices, officials may reasonably expect an increase in the already booming illegal liquor traffic in the state.

Hardly a week goes by in Pitt County in which local officers do not arrest several people for violation of state liquor laws. At the same time, there is not a week which goes by that the officers are unable to get sufficient evidence to arrest people who they are sure in their own minds are participating in the illegal liquor trade. As prices in Pitt ABC stores go up, the "moonshine" traffic in the county probably will go up.

Perhaps local officers already are laying plans to cope with the increase in the illicit business; but if it gets out of hand, they may find it advisable to request the State Bureau of Alcohol Control for undercover men to help nab the hard-to-catch bootleggers.

In Johnston County recently two undercover men were assigned to work at the request of the sheriff, and they came up with true bills by the grand jury charging 24 persons with 50 counts of violation of the state liquor laws. By comparison, Johnston is a much more notorious bootlegging county than Pitt, but in both counties there are many of the bootleggers who have all the law enforcement officers well spotted, and keep up with their movements almost hour by hour. The result is the known officers find it difficult to get the evidence they need against these shrewd operators. Unknown outside officers, on the other hand, may be able to move in and secure the evidence local officers can not get.

Johnston County has shown a way to make a dent in the bootlegging industry, and other counties may profit by taking similar action if the illegal liquor traffic increases as it is expected to do.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—It is an extremely rare and noteworthy event in American history when a single Senator can exercise as profound an influence on major foreign policy as 74-year-old Tom Connally of Texas has done in the recent session of Congress. He blocked decision on several grave matters for fear that any positive Senate action would jeopardize his chances for renomination next year.

The only individual in recent years to play such a dominant role was the late William Edgar Borah of Idaho. For many years after World War I, he had more voice in the making of Republican foreign policy than Presidents or Secretaries of State. An arch-foe of internationalism, he was largely responsible for our withdrawal from the world stage from 1919 to 1939.

The Hamlet-like Borah, however, did his stuff on the Senate floor with a flaming oration, or with emotional speeches that stirred the American people. He frequently shattered a Harding-Hughes proposal of world import with his gifted tongue. Against powerful White House opposition, he forced Harding and Hughes to convene the 1922 disarmament conference with a single address at New Haven.

VETERAN—Senator Connally's influence, although entirely negative, has not been manifest in debate or in floor controversies. He has operated behind the scenes of his committee door—he is chairman of the Foreign Affairs group—and in senatorial politics.

As a likable and skilled veteran, he has pleaded with his colleagues not to place him on the spot by bringing certain matters to a vote. He succeeded in every instance.

The Connally manipulations have national significance. They suggest that foreign problems will be one of 1952's principal issues in the presidential election.

They also reveal that both Democrats and Republicans up for reelection are as shaky over their prospects as is the cigar-chewing, long-haired, frock-coated "Tawm," whose likeness to picture-book statesmen makes him the delight of the cartoonists.

SENTIMENT—The normally good-natured and philosophical "Tawm" is a frightened and frowning man these days because he seems to have gotten out of step with Texas on foreign and political problems generally. Pro-McCarthy and anti-Truman sentiment is strong, according to almost all Texas newspaper polls. Some believe that "Ike" Eisenhower, as the G.O.P.'s nominee, might carry Texas.

Young and aggressive Governor Allan Shivers, who said many unkind things about President Truman at the recent Governors' Conference at Gatlinburg, Tenn., may oppose Mr. Connally in the primary. There are indications that he might be able to defeat "the old man," who has served in House and Senate for forty years.

Originally a Truman-Acheson supporter, the Senator suddenly switched. He has urged the President to fire his Secretary of State. He has questioned whether the United States "keeps Europe on the dole forever." But the questions which worried him most arose, luckily for him, in the closing hours of the recent session.

EFFECTS—The first was the nomination of Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup as a delegate to next month's meeting of the United Nations General Assembly. After prolonged hearings, a Connally subcommittee voted three-to-two against confirmation on the ground that he symbolized the failure of our foreign policy in China.

There was plenty of time for Chairman Connally to place the adverse report before the full committee, and thus dispose of the matter. But he did not want to vote for Jessup, in view of the subcommittee's condemnation. Nor did he want to alienate those who might take a contrary view. So, he pigeon-holed the report.

His action has had two possibly unfortunate effects. The irritated Mr. Truman gave Mr. Jessup an interim appointment, which has been construed as "contempt" of the Senate. Relations between the White House and Capitol Hill, already strained, will become worse as a result. And Mr. Jessup will attend the Paris meeting in an unhappy light.

The Housecoming

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

PLEASED—Lawyers, including a dozen or so judges and many recognized leaders in the profession, attending the session of the N. C. State Bar, Inc., here Friday were almost unanimous in voicing gratification at outcome of the British election. Some of the men remained up past their usual bed time to get returns, and confessed next morning they slept better for knowing that the "Churchill conservatives" were leading. Judge Hunt Parker expressed the general attitude when he said he felt the conservative victory would be a stabilizing influence in world affairs and would strengthen the forces working to prevent worldwide war.

EFFECT HERE—There was considerable discussion about probable influence upon next year's election in the United States. Majority opinion among the lawyers was that the British result would enhance chances for a more conservative congress, and that most of the welfare laws are on the books to stay. Therefore, it would be merely a question of who administered the laws—and the ins will contend they can do it better, by reason of long experience. This group represents a very small minority, nearly all of the lawyers apparently feeling that even though few American votes will be switched, the British result will serve to slow down the leftward trend which has prevailed in this country for some years past.

PROCEDURE—The council of the N. C. State Bar, Inc., was in closed session nearly all day Thursday, considering disciplinary measures for two lawyers charged with unethical conduct. After six o'clock a brief statement was released exonerating Herman L. Taylor, Raleigh lawyer of any blame. No other names were mentioned, but it was well known the other case involved alleged wrongful activities on part of R. E. Weaver of Whiteville in connection with paroles. The statement relative to that case was that certain matters had come to attention of the council, having been previously published in newspapers from sources other than the council, and that they would follow regular channels as fixed by council rules. There was implied criticism of the press for "breaking" the story before the council acted upon the charges. (It will be recalled that this column first published the basic facts in this case.)

TWO SIDES—The bar officials were little bit peeved at persistence and insistence of reporter, trying to get further details of council action Thursday afternoon and night. The reporter fully understand that the organized bar has established rules of procedure and must respect them. One of these rules is to give out no information while a disciplinary action is pending. The newspapers also have rules and a code of ethics, cardinal point of which is to get and publish the salient facts of everything pertaining to public policy, government agencies and matters of common welfare. In this instance it is lawyers and reporters are both adhering to their rules. There is no reason for either to be peeved at the other.

RECURRING—This is a constantly recurring situation. Numerous public officials and board members have reasons, satisfactory to themselves, for wanting to hold back information. Most time these reasons are not satisfactory to the newsmen, who also have an obligation to the public, and who exert every possible effort to get the story.

SIGNS—Several "signs" at the tuberculosis hospital groundbreaking ceremonies at Chapel Hill attracted attention. First were "direction" signs on trees and poles showing visitors how to get to the building site. These little signs had a pointing arrow beneath the word: "Gravel Sanitarium Groundbreaking." There is a word "sanitarium" and a word "sanatorium," meaning almost but not quite the same thing. There is no such word as "sanitorium," and some visitors from Duke and other rival institutions were delighted to point out that Chapel Hill's can't spell, despite location of the great state university there.

SIGNIFICANT—A different and more significant kind of sign was discovered in Governor Scott's comments. He was highly complimentary of past general assemblies for making appropriations for tuberculosis hospitals. So far as several folks, who have heard him many times in caustic criticism of the legislature, this was the first time he said something nice about the lawmakers without putting a stinger at the end. The governor was also very earnest in his comment that both national and state governments do have a feeling for the needs of humanity, and are trying to meet those needs. Pointing out that this hospital could not have been obtained at this time without federal aid, he said there ought to be less criticism of the national administration and more appreciation for its services to the people. One state official in the audience pointed out that the milder attitude toward the legislature and the pronouncement in behalf of the national administration was a sure sign that an election is approaching. There wasn't anything unusual in the governor's boost for U. S. national administration. He has consistently supported President Truman's policies. His praise of the legislature was a swing.

GOOD DEMOCRATS IN HALIFAX (Henderson Dispatch) Associated Press accounts from Washington the other day had it that Halifax and Northampton county Democrats told Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman that they might not be "good Democrats" in 1952 if he prevented them from getting the hydro-electric plant at Roanoke Rapids which they very much desire. As if even that would cause the ultra-liberal cabinet officials to lose any sleep nights worrying, when the pastures are so green elsewhere!

Inference was that by not being "good Democrats" the folks in Halifax and Northampton might vote for the opposition, or at least stay away from the polls on election day. They might register their feeling by going fishing the first Tuesday in November, 1952, but as to voting Republican—never.

There isn't a more nearly unanimous Democratic electorate in North Carolina than in those two counties, unless it could be Vance, where only a tiny fraction of the total vote turns Republican despite loud talking between elections, and where there hasn't been a Republican county ticket in more than a score of years. Halifax especially is noted for its party regularity and its fidelity to the political faith of the fathers. Nor will the loss of a dam jar them from their moorings. Maybe Chapman had heard all about that, to the extent that casual remarks did not disturb him in the least. Anyhow he told these "good Democrats" that he believes he should recommend an appeal to the Supreme Court from the award of the permit for the power project which Virginia Electric & Power Company had been given by the Federal Power Commission, and whose action has already been upheld by lower Federal courts.

Chapman may carry his case to the highest tribunal, but even he expressed scant hope of winning there. But if he did, Halifax and Northampton would still go Democratic, as will North Carolina as a whole, regardless of the Democratic nominee next year. The recording of statements by the delegation may have been good for the headlines, but no more than that. Those boys are as safe for Democracy as any area in the land—dam or no dam.

GABRIELSON'S PLAINT (Wilson Daily Times) Guy George Gabrielson, the chairman of the Republican national committee, was plaintive when he appeared before a Senate subcommittee looking into his connections with the R.F.C. Although he frequently jangled with the top man, he still contends he didn't influence him. And that may be true. But it was said of Caesar's wife that she not only had to avoid evil, but even the associations with evil persons. Certainly, Gabrielson didn't carry out that injunction.

It happens that Gabrielson is the head of a gas refining company which owes the R.F.C. $18,500,000. What prompted the award of the permit for the power project which Virginia Electric & Power Company had been given by the Federal Power Commission, and whose action has already been upheld by lower Federal courts.

Chapman may carry his case to the highest tribunal, but even he expressed scant hope of winning there. But if he did, Halifax and Northampton would still go Democratic, as will North Carolina as a whole, regardless of the Democratic nominee next year. Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
There need not be much concern that the higher income and excise taxes will drastically affect consumer and industry spending power.

As one astute business observer points out to this department, the new tax rates will skim more than $5 billion off the market for goods and services. But the recent rises in personal income balanced the increased taxes even as Congress was debating the new tax law.

U. S. Commerce Dept. figures show that national income in the second quarter of the year achieved a rate of $74,000,000,000, as compared with $69,400,000,000 in the first quarter, and about $200,000,000,000 in the last quarter of 1950. So the rise in income so far this year already approximates the tax hike, and the rise of $14 billion since 1950 far surpasses it. (But any further tax boost when Congress reconvenes may prove deflationary; the figures show the rise in income is slowing down.)

Of course this is the overall picture, and undoubtedly many of your customers living on static incomes which have not kept up with the nationwide rise will have to curtail purchases, as pointed out here last week.

Too, the increased excises may well affect some merchandise lines more than others. A fifth of liquor typically will become $6.30 instead of $6.00, which may be noticeable, while the hike in a gallon of table wine from $3.75 to $3.77 won't stop anyone from buying. The higher prices of several appliances just brought under excises system will also be noticeable. A typical electric ironer goes up to $160 from $150; an electric dishwasher ascends $30 to $320; a clothes drier becomes $212 instead of $200.

NEW ECA TOUR TEACHES PRODUCTION TEAMWORK
A group of 16 French government, industry and labor leaders has begun a new kind of tour of key industrial plants under sponsorship of the Economic Cooperation Administration. Unlike other foreign teams, this group is not studying production techniques but is the start of a special new project aimed at overcoming one of the biggest snags in the European recovery and rearmament program: fear that technological advances and increased productivity cause unemployment and a deterioration of working conditions. The tour was launched at the recently built modern plant of Eagle Clothes, Inc., in Brooklyn, N. Y., especially selected because it features the first application of assembly-line techniques to hand operations in the clothing industry. As Ben Goldman, Eagle president, explained to the visitors, the workers' piece rates remained the same as before so increases in productivity are reflected in increased take-home pay, as well as enabling lower costs to the consumer—the American way of stimulating sales maintaining full employment.

Come to think of it there are still a few industries where ECA might teach Americans the concept that technological advances create more jobs.

CLAIM TV COLOR RECEIVER READY
Although further experimentation in color television has just been barred by government edict, one firm has announced it is in production on color tubes which can receive present color telecasts or any other "presently proposed color systems" without the use of a disc or drum. The firm is Chromatic Television Laboratories Inc., Stamford, Conn., the Paramount Pictures Corp. affiliate which sponsored development of the color tube invented by Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence, California scientist. The company claims the tube can be used in any "good-quality" existing set with the addition of an adapter plus "minor circuit changes."

ADDING MACHINE: A new adapter with all controls on the right side, close to the keyboard, can automatically compute credit balances, according to the Monroe Calculating Machine Co., 11 Park Pl., New York.

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT (For HAL BOYLE)
RIVER EDGE, N. J. —(AP)—It isn't easy for a man to expose his own daughter but I must, before she starts another great depression all by herself.

How many big corporations have been misled by Amy Pett, aged eight?

I have nightmares about promotion managers reporting increased consumer interest. I see boards of directors ordering new factories built to supply a demand that doesn't exist. I see staggering bond issues being floated for tremendous expansion programs. And finally, I shudder about acres of new, gleaming factories going dark, prices collapsing overnight, thousands of workers shuffling toward soup kitchens.

Before it's too late, let this be a warning to General Electric, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Pillsbury Mills and the other big corporations all over the land which have recently been contacted by Amy Pett.

Gentlemen, relax. She does not actually plan to buy a new car or install a remote-control wiring system, or buy an 11-cubic-foot refrigerator or equip a stainless steel kitchen or even buy a box of cake flour.

She just likes to get free catalogues.

Anything free excites her. The mere word "free" will make her pause in mid-air during a rope jumping session, will send her leaping out of her "jet-propelled swivel chair," will make her late for a rendezvous with Hopalong Cassidy, will make her cancel plans for a rocket trip to the moon. Just hearing the word will even break up an extraordinary session of the "Witches' Society" just when a certain witch was about to be "dis-booded." (A "dis-booded" witch is a witch who loses her booding privileges.)

I remember that the Sabbath peace in our house was recently exploded by an almost hysterical scream from Amy's room. "Hey, Frances," she yelled, "it says, 'without obligation.' That means FREE! FREE!"

Probably no single word in the language was ever pounded on Amy Pett's cute coupons and ads from the magazines and newspapers and sends for free catalogues, free pamphlets, free literature, free information, free brochures, free booklets, free anything.

She is not content to send only for free information on dolls, toys, practical joke gadgets, recipes or gardening. Her tastes are as broad and varied as the ads in any big magazine. Her room is overflowing with printed matter. Here is a partial list of the titles:

"Home Insulation," "The Etiquette of the Engagement and Wedding," "Canada, Vacations Unlimited," "A Buyer's Guide: There's A Big Difference in Oil Burners," "Fashion Tints for Homes," "Your Loved Ones' Stake in Life Insurance," "Better Hearing Aids Styled For Men," "The Magic of the Radiant Fire," "Practical New Bathroom Ideas," "How To Buy A Wedding Ring," "How To Care For And Feed Your Boy" (Amy has a cat), "Planning For The Future," "The Maternity Style Book," "Dishwashing—The Easy Way" (Momma still does it the hard way); "New Low-cost Home Theft Insurance," "75 Ways To Make Small Space Useful and Attractive," "Room Air Conditions," "Style Book For Stout Women," "New Ways With Windows," "Book Of 10 Magic Recipes," "The Warm Air Heating Book," "263 Food Ideas," "Plan For Fashion, 1951," "Traffic and Asphalt Tile," "BPS Color Vision Chart," "Color Dynamics For The Home," "The Rug Catalogues," "New Fall Catalogue of Roses and Perennials," "Tension Screens," "Traditional American Furniture," "39 Hollywood Secrets of Skin and Hair Care," "How Shall I Tell My Daughter?"

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—A attractive, on-her-toes Sally Muchmore, for 26 years with the Washington Better Business Bureau (BBB) wonders when housewives are going to stop being suckers. She doubts they ever will.

"Too many people are still looking for something for nothing and they never get it," says Mrs. Muchmore, now assistant manager of the Capital's BBB. "Women are more glib than men. Housewives, especially, are real sucker-bait for the phony deals which involve everything from tulip bulbs to cemetery lots."

Although the Better Business Bureau recognizes that by far the greater number of the nation's merchants are honest, Mrs. Muchmore said, more than a million complaints and inquiries were handled by Better Business Bureaus throughout the country last year.

Well over 50 per cent of these need never have been made, she said, if the public had received better education in economic facts while in school—or had received, or been subjected to, a larger volume of consumer educational material.

Mrs. Muchmore warns against a new flare-up in phony prize or gift certificate contests which apparently is a nation-wide racket. A retailer advertises a contest with some first prize of value and says that there are many other prizes of "considerable" cash value for the runners-up. These runner-up prizes generally consist of gift certificates which must be used in connection with a purchase in order to have any value whatsoever—and, says Mrs. Muchmore, there may be some doubt if there's any value.

"The gift certificate racket is one of the oldest and most obnoxious, used with fur coats, furniture, silver and photographs, to name a few," Mrs. Muchmore points out.

Watch out too, for "bait advertising" by certain unbelasting concerns. They offer, for instance, to do "two chairs for $22, a sofa for $34." When they call at your house they are "all out" of the fabric advertised. They can get a better fabric—and soon—but it will be much more expensive.

"I still get angry with women who fall for these deals," Mrs. Muchmore says. "They ought to do some checking before they do business—not after. They can always check with Better Business Bureaus in their communities or they can write to the national headquarters, Chrysler Building, New York City."

Bookies Bemoan Taxes Effective November 1

By UNITED PRESS

Bookies across the nation moaned today that the new 10 per cent federal tax on handbook bets means "The end of the line, boys—we gotta jump off."

"This looks like a shakedown to me," wailed one New York odds maker.

"If you honestly pay the tax they can use your return for evidence in things like the Kefauver hearing. If you don't, they can give you 20 years for taking a two dollar bet."

A Boston gambler put in a different way.

"You pay the tax, you get on a list; you get on a list, protection goes up."

The new tax law, effective Nov. 1, slaps a flat 10 per cent tax on all bets made with professional gamblers. In addition, all gamblers must obtain a $50 yearly license for themselves and each of their employees.

For all this, they get a little tax stamp which they must post in their place of business.

"That's like filing an application for a hole in the head," a Boston bookmaker said.

Nevada is the only state in the nation which permits gambling other than at state-licensed race tracks, although a few states permit communities to choose for themselves on a local option basis.

Most of the bookies agreed the new tax meant curtains for them.

One Los Angeles operator said, "I'm looking for a new business so I can go legit."

"Just find me a joint that can stand a cut like that," an Omaha gambler wailed. "It just seems that some one don't want us in business."

Without exception the bookies agreed there would be very little if any undercover betting.

"There's no percentage in trying to get away with anything with Mr. Whiskers," a St. Louis operator said grimly. "That's odds-on."

Many said flatly that they planned to close as of Thursday when the tax goes into effect.

But there were some who said they would try to make a go of it—tax or no tax.

"We got to pass it on to the consumer," a Cleveland bookmaker said.

He said he planned to nick his customers for the 10 per cent. Starting Nov. 1, he said, his $2 bet would cost $2.20.

"It's the only way we can stay in business," he said. "We can't absorb the tax ourselves."

Joe Hornstein, owner of the Nevada Turf Club at Reno, said the legalized bookies in Nevada were in the same boat as their undercover brethren in the rest of the nation.

"We don't make 10 per cent profit on each dollar bet," Hornstein said. "The average is seven or eight per cent yearly."

If eye-level were 10 feet high, the ocean's horizon would be more than 4 miles distant.

RIDICULOUS, HUN'T IT?

By the way, the bookies across the nation moaned today that the new 10 per cent federal tax on handbook bets means "The end of the line, boys—we gotta jump off."

Lenoir Rhyne College's powerful single wing, led by Steve Trudnak and Jerry Robinson, rolled roughshod over the East Carolina Pirates Saturday night in College Stadium as the Bears won 41-14 and continued to roll unchecked toward the championship of the North State Conference.

The scoring honors for the game go to Robinson, the 77-pound wing-back who was as elusive as a March wind. He crossed the final stripe into pay dirt on three different occasions but it was the powerful Trudnak who quickly caught the fancy of the 4,000 fans.

First of all, he scored one of the six Lenoir Rhyne touchdowns and kicked five extra points to run his scoring total for the year to 70 points—tops in the North State Conference. But more than that, it was Trudnak who ate up the East Carolina defensive line and powered them to their third straight conference win. In 23 rushes, the 195 pounder netted 185 yards from the scrimmage line for a solid eight yards per carry average.

It should be understood, though, that neither Trudnak nor Jerry Robinson was the whole show. Coach Clarence Stavich made clever use of his club throughout the entire ball game and the Bruins were quick to pounce on even the slightest of breaks. Their blocking was excellent and Trudnak, Robinson and the rest of the backs had little trouble in getting past the line of scrimmage.

The Bears lost little time in racking up the first of their six touchdowns against the Pirates who have now dropped three games to conference opponents.

The visitors returned a bad outside kick-off back to the 50 yard line and in seven plays had run the score to 7-0. Trudnak started the show with a two yard plunge over left guard. Jerry Robinson hit for another yard on a reverse and then Trudnak jumped a short pass to James Humm which was good for a first down on the Pirate 36. Bill Robinette, Jim Garrett and Jerry Robinson moved the ball to the 30 from where Garrett took it over on a bit of razzle-dazzle ball-handling involving Trudnak, Robinette and, finally, Garrett. Trudnak kicked the point with 9:45 left in the period.

The Bears kicked off to the Pirates who punted after moving the ball into Bruin territory. Lenoir Rhyne took possession of the ball on their own ten yard marker and started the long haul back to the promised land at the other end of the field. They got there in eight plays with Trudnak personally accounting for 35 of the yards. Jerry Robinson took the ball over on the first of his three cracks at the end zone.

Robinson scored from 41 yards out from what amounted to a naked reverse around the weak side of the Lenoir Rhyne line which had been shifted to left in the single wing. Not a hand was laid on Robinson as he took his own sweet time in going down the side lines. Trudnak again added the point.

East Carolina put on a show of its own after the kick-off with Paul Gay providing the fireworks. The 165 pound freshman from Wilson took Bob Mauser's kick on his own 20 and headed up the middle. He hit clear sailing about his own 40 yard line and scampered to the Bruin 15 where James Hummell finally caught him from behind.

Jack Benzie took a pitch out around right end for two yards and then Claude King bulled his way to the seven on another of the wide end runs. Gay hit left tackle for three yards and a first down. The Pirates were momentarily stalled when Sandy Siler led Dwight Shoe just a little too much with a pass but the ever-willing Gay banged over left guard for the six points. Lyn Grissom booted the point to make it 14-7—the half time score.

Lenoir Rhyne scored once in the third quarter after defensive guard Jimmy Newsome had run an intercepted pass back to the 14. From that point, Jerry Robinson went into his act again and scored on a reverse. Trudnak added the point.

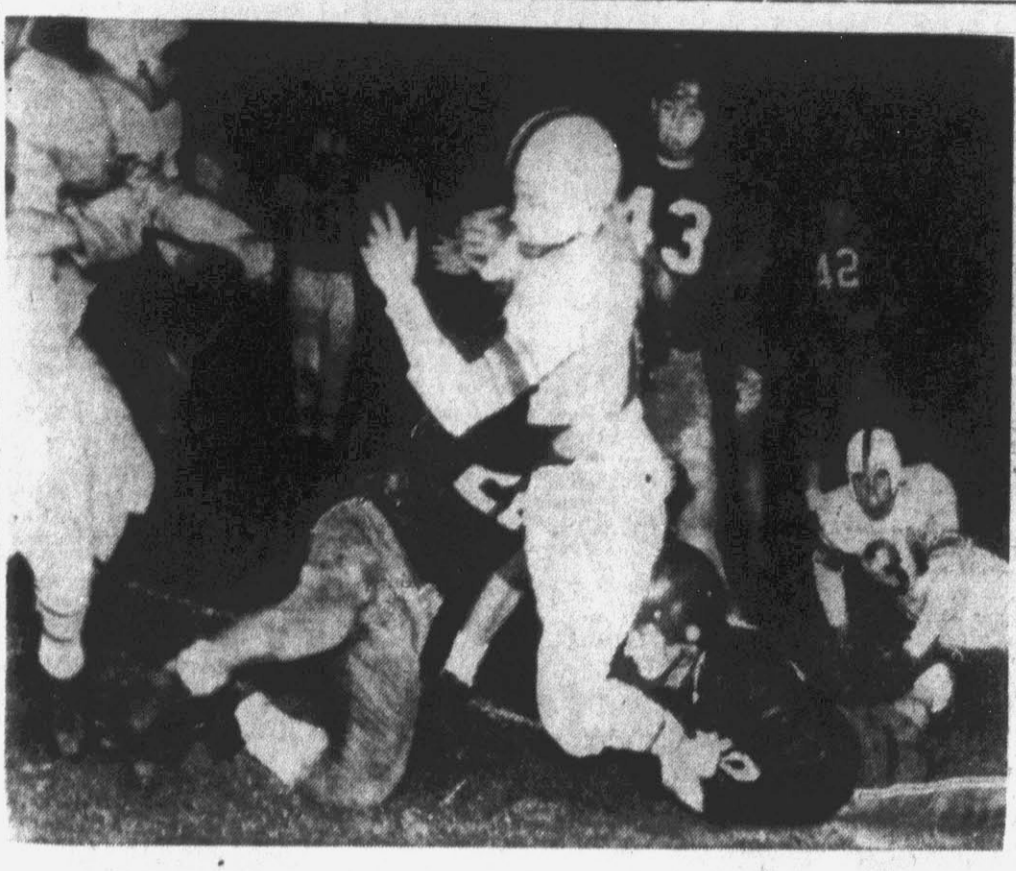

The roof fell in on the Pirates in the fourth period as the Bears got hot and romped across with 20 of their points.

Gene Robinson, Jerry's twin brother, got into the act early in the period with a nine yard reverse to culminate a 74 yard march, but Jerry took the spotlight again after the kick-off when he intercepted another of Siler's passes and rambled for 30 yards and six more points.

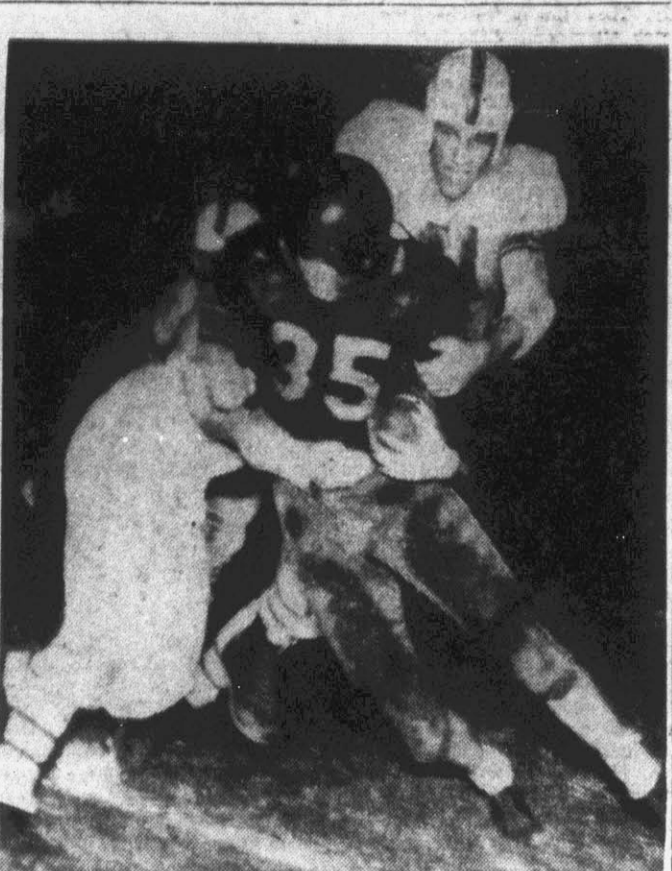

Trudnak closed the Lenoir Rhyne scoring with seven minutes remaining when he went over left guard for 20 yards and the sixth Bear touchdown. Incidentally, the only extra point attempt that Trudnak missed was the one which followed his own scoring play.

East Carolina got its final touchdown on the last play of the ball game. They scored after receiving the kick-off from the Bears and an 86 yard drive.

After Boyd Webb had returned the kick-off to the 42 yard line, Paul Gay found Shoe open in the middle of the Lenoir Rhyne secondary and hit him with a pass that gained 18 yards. Lenoir Rhyne added its bit to the drive by jumping the gun on the next play and the ball was moved to the 35 by the penalty. Benzie and King moved the ball to the 29 where Siler cranked up his pitching arm. He missed an aerial to King but found Benzie open on the next play for eight more yards. Benzie drove over right tackle for seven yards and Gay found two more waiting around right end. Another Siler-to-shoe aerial went to

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Saturday, Nov. 10, will be a red-letter day in the North State Football Conference.

On that day, Elon and Lenoir Rhyne will meet at Hickory in a game that will probably decide the 1951 conference title.

Lenoir Rhyne and Elon are both unbeaten in the league. The Bears have a date this Saturday with the lightly-regarded Guilford Quakers, while the Christians meet non-conference Newberry at Burlington. So, barring an upset by Guilford, the two league powerhouses will bring unsullied records into their Hickory meeting.

Western Carolina has an open date coming up this week and Catawba visits Presbyterian at Clinton, S.C., in a non-conference game.

Last Saturday's activity saw Elon overpower Western Carolina 23-0 as tailback Lou Rochell turned in another fine night's work. Rochell scored two touchdowns on runs of 25 and 13 yards and passed to Fred Biangardi to set up another score.

Terps Still Unbeaten With 27-0 Victory

By REECE DANIEL
United Press Sports Writer

RALEIGH (UP)—Mighty Maryland remained the only unbeaten team in the Southern Conference today and looked like a good bet to last out the season that way. The powerful Terrapins clobbered LSU 27 to 0 Saturday and wouldn't even let the Tigers inside the 20-yard line until the closing minutes when Maryland mentor Jim Tatum sent in his last reserves.

One of the week's surprises was Wake Forest's Rude 39 to 7 dumping of North Carolina. Tar Heel Coach Carl Snavely's only comment was that "We were outfought, outthought, outplayed and outlasted."

Virginia pulled an upset with a 30 to 7 win over Duke in a last period scoring flurry. The Cavaliers were trailing until a second-half safety gave them confidence.

The three upset was the "Big Thursday" game at Columbia, S. C., where favored Clemson stumbled and bumped into the short pylon. The game was tied at the six yard marker. A pass to Larry Rhodes was too long but Siler found Gay open on the left side and gave him the ball as Empire Lou Bello signaled the game's end. Grissom added the extra point after the clock had run out.

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Southern California television audiences last night discovered that Leo (Lippy) Durocher can be as convincing with a soft shoe routine as he isn't with National League umpires.

Durocher also sang a solo in sweet tones, the like of which never were heard along the Polo Grounds third base line.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Rogart

Chapter 36
The woman flung herself at the short, gray-haired man. "Sam! Do not! Please!" She blocked his way. Johnny could have moved now and reached for his own gun. He did nothing. He stood still, looking at Sam Clark.

And the doctor's gun hand slowly lowered. His other arm went around the woman's shoulders. She was sobbing, pressing against him. He patted her head and looked across the room at Johnny.

"No," he said with a sigh, "I couldn't shoot Saxon. I could only kill a man whom I hated—as I hated Ralph Cronk." He put the gun down on the desk beside him. "You needn't worry about me. I'll turn myself over to the State Police when they get here."

He met Nancy as he entered the main house. She stared at his bleak face. His eyes were almost sultry. "What I need, pet," he told her, "is a drink."

Johnny told Nancy what had just taken place. He answered all her excited questions, finally asked, "How much did your sister Beth know about Doris Wells and the past?"

"Everything!" said Nancy quickly. "It was really more for Doris' sake than her own that she needed you here. But Beth was involved too! It was Tolman they both feared. They thought he was the blackmailer. She and Doris both knew Tolman years ago. In fact, he proposed to Beth first. She was right on the verge of marrying him. She was only a girl, you know..."

"That guy must have been a killer-diller with women—"
"Johnny, please!"

He was serious again. "Well, getting back to Tolman's escape—"
Nancy said, "You're thinking the same thing I am, aren't you? That he still hasn't been found! He's dangerous—"

"Yes," Johnny agreed. "I think we'd better try to reach Moe Martin."

He put through a call to the hotel, was informed that Moe was not in. Then he tried the office in the Carew Tower. There was no answer.

Johnny said to Nancy, "Well, there's nothing we can do tonight. Even the State Police can't get here."

Doctor Sam Clark came in to confirm Johnny's remark. He told them, "I called the police barracks from my house. I gave them a full report and told them I poisoned Ralph Cronk. I told them they could pick me up here in the morning. There's no way they can get here tonight. All roads north on the main road are blocked. Besides, there have been several accidents and they have their hands full."

Johnny nodded. "We can leave Cronk in the bar. It's cold out there. He'll keep—like in a morgue."

Nancy shuddered.

Doctor Clark said, "I've sent the others off to bed. Why don't you folks get some rest too?" She looked steadily at Johnny Saxon.

"You needn't worry about me. I'll be here in the morning."

Sam Clark went out, and quiet settled down in the house.

Johnny looked at Nancy and said, "Dammit, let's get drunk." They were alone, and he was keyed up. He poured himself another substantial drink of whiskey. Nancy merely sipped at her own glass. She, too, was still on edge, and talking to Johnny seemed to quiet her.

Once she asked, "Johnny, Bea Cronk told us just before we left the night club that everyone was going home. Why did she plan to remain behind if we were all leaving? How did she expect to get back here? She even told me you had left."

"You're too naive, kitten," Johnny grinned. "Bea knew damn well I hadn't left. She suspected I was getting close to something, so she followed me back to Irma's dressing room. She simply told you I had left in order to get you out of the way. Remind me to tell you sometime, baby, that you are tough competition for any girl."

He kept drinking.

Finally his eyes closed heavily for a moment. Nancy said solicitously, "Johnny, please go to bed. You're exhausted!"

"I'm a wonderful detective," he muttered. "I do everything, except make money." He stared at her bleakly.

"Johnny," Nancy said, "you're worn out. What you need is some sleep." She managed to get his arm over her shoulder. Then, half supporting him, she led the way toward the hall stairway.

"Bea's little wife in the world," Johnny mumbled thickly. "Always worried 'bout her husband."

"Shshh!" Nancy whispered.

He leaned heavily against her as she helped him up the stairs. He stumbled, but she held to him firmly. They finally reached the top step after some difficulty.

It was nice being in her arms like this, he thought. She was about the loveliest girl in the world. He really wasn't drunk at all, but Nancy thought so, and in a way he was getting even with her for having had to pretend he was her husband. He wished it wasn't pretending at all. He thought it would be nice to kiss his wife.

He kissed her anyway, and that was nice too.

Nancy broke away suddenly, looking at him sharply. He eyes flamed. "I thought you were drunk?"

He was grinning.

She pushed him. Johnny stumbled on the topmost step. The next thing he knew he was tumbling down the stairs. He flung out his arms and ended up in a sprawl at the bottom. He sat there looking up the stairs.

For the moment, Nancy had vanished. Then he heard her returning. She held a big, fluffy comforter in her hands. She bundled up the blanket and threw it down the stairs at him.

"I hope," she called softly, "you sleep well—on the divan!"

She disappeared.

Reds Accused Of Firing On Stretcher Bearers

EAST-CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (UP)—U.S. soldiers charged today that Chinese Communist troops deliberately fired on United Nations stretcher parties and Korean civilian refugees.

The snipers let combat troops pass unscathed to concentrate on medics carrying wounded, walking wounded and North Korean refugees during recent fighting south of Kumsong, the soldiers said.

"I've seen dirt in this war," said Sgt. James Cannon of San Francisco, "but this is stooping to a new low."

Medical aidmen Pfc. Charles Seszo of Elmhurst, Penn., and Pvt. Benjamin Wimpole of Fontana, Calif., said they tried for four hours to cross one 100-foot wide area.

"We were pinned to the ground by a machine gun that allowed armed infantry to pass and fired only when we would raise up to move the stretcher along," Seszo said.

"We were unarmed and the reds see on our arms seemed to be a target instead of a safety factor," Wimpole added. "After about four hours, we got safely across the spot, only to run into another sniper."

The sniper, cleverly concealed, had been by-passed by the U.N. infantry in their rush toward Kumsong itself, formerly the main Communist stronghold on the central front. They zeroed in their fire on river crossings and narrow gullies through which the wounded had to be brought.

First Lieut. Wattie S. Ligon of Columbia, S.C., a tank commander, said his tanks were forced to leave firing positions to shield litter parties and refugees.

One of the Communist snipers was wounded and captured. He sat impassively at a first aid station while medics treated his wounds.

Only 10 feet away were U.N. litter casualties at whom he had fired. But the Red didn't even glance their way.

Results Of Atom Blasts Indicate Growing Might

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Results of the second atomic explosion in the current series of tests on the Nevada desert indicated today that scientists have developed a compact aerial bomb that can be used to support troops in the battlefield.

The Atomic Energy Commission set off the seventh nuclear blast at the Frenchman's Flat Proving Ground yesterday, apparently by dropping a bomb from a B-29 Superfortress, and the detonation sent a purple cloud mushrooming 30,000 feet in the air.

The detonation was neither as great as those held at Bikini Atoll in the South Pacific nor as tiny as the "baby A-bomb" blast set off here last Monday, indicating it was a medium-size atomic weapon that could be used on the battlefield.

Troops did not participate in the test, but it was indicated that the world's first atomic combat maneuvers involving foot soldiers were not far away.

No test was scheduled for today, but it was believed the AEC would test another atomic weapon tomorrow.

Speculation that the next test might involve the 1,200 paratroopers standing by for their first close meeting with the atom was strengthened by the arrival here of congressional and military observers.

The atomic weapon to be used in the troop maneuvers probably will be one ready for tactical use on the battlefield, such as a compact aerial bomb or an artillery shell with an atomic warhead.

Max Miller, editor of the Las Vegas Review Journal, was at a vantage point only about 30 miles from the point of the detonation and felt nothing.

He said the flash of the bomb was so brief he would not have seen it had he blinked his eyes at the wrong second.

The smoke rose to form a towering purple toadstool, and Miller said he heard a roar like thunder two minutes and 10 seconds after seeing the greenish flash of the bomb.

About an hour before the atomic detonation, a huge cloud of black smoke was seen rising from the firing area and it was assumed the AEC had followed its usual practice of setting off a non-nuclear charge before the atom explosion.

The first U. S. electric train was built by Prof. Charles Grafton Page of the Smithsonian Institution in 1851.

HINTS ABOUT ENRICHED BREAD TO HELP YOU WIN!

This year is the 10th Anniversary of Enriched Bread. Enriched Bread is the name given white bread that has added amounts of 3 important B-vitamins (thiamin, riboflavin, niacin) and iron. Thiamin helps you resist certain diseases. Niacin for steadier nerves, better digestion. Riboflavin for sounder teeth and bones. And iron for rich, red blood.

Enriched Bread means more buoyant health for the whole family—increased physical and mental vigor for adults and children alike. American diets are often low in these nutrients, so you can see how Enriched Bread should be a "must" every day for everyone. Truly, Enriched Bread is one of your best food and health bargains today!

4. Place your entry in Sunbeam entry box at your grocery store on or before midnight, November 3, 1951.
5. Entries judged for originality, appropriate thought and clarity. Official contest judges' decisions final. Prizes are listed elsewhere on this entry blank. Bus Accident Is Fatal To Seven OAKLAND, Calif. —(AP)— A crowded Greyhound bus hit a loose block of concrete on a bridge approach early Sunday and plunged down 40 feet, killing seven and injuring the other 23 aboard.

The slab of concrete was torn from an abutment on the San Francisco Bay Bridge approach by another automobile accident three minutes earlier.

When it hit, the bus blew a tire, careened across the roadway and smashed through a concrete and steel safety railing with a flash of sparks. It teetered a moment, then toppled down to railway tracks 40 feet below.

Charles B. Taylor, who lives nearby, said: "People were screaming 'Get me out. For God's sake get me out.'"

"One woman kept shouting: 'Turn off the ignition before we all blow up.'"

The crumpled bus lay upside down, flattened so badly some of its moaning injured were trapped for nearly two hours.

Advises Care In Marketing Yams

BETHEL — Sales on the Bethel sweet potato market Saturday totaled 2,500 bushels and the price ranged from $2.50 a bushel for ordinary grades and up to $3.60 for "A" potatoes.

J. L. Brown is the auctioneer. J. F. Harris, founder of the sweet potato market here, today warned growers about the importance of carefully packing their potatoes. Neatness of pack, uniformity of size of potatoes and full net weight is an important factor in fixing prices growers will receive, he said.

Sweet potato sales are held daily except Monday. Sales on Tuesday through Saturday run from 9 to 10 a.m. and from 2 to 5 p.m. Farmers from several counties sell on the Bethel market.

Market requirements are that a basket contain 50 pounds of sweet potatoes and that the net weight of potatoes and basket shall be 86 pounds.

Fire Menacing Dynamite Supply Is Finally Curbed

SANFORD —(AP)— Heroic firemen battled a raging fire here yesterday that threatened to touch off a load of dynamite stored in the burning building.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was brought under control after a three-hour struggle.

Police evacuated families living in the building and roped off the surrounding area.

The explosives were located in the Sanford Hardware Company's store occupying the first floor of the two-story building owned by the Sanford Sash and Blind Co.

The roof of the structure caved in and the upper floor was completely burned. Damage to the street floor was mainly from water.

The investigating officer said Cherry's car was involved in a collision with a car driven by Warren Woolard of Washington, N. C. Damage to Cherry's car was estimated at $75; Woolard's car, $30. None of the occupants was injured.

Greenville Man On News Desk Of Washington Post

Bernice Jenkins, formerly of Greenville, now managing editor of the Wilmington News, was in Greenville with his wife for the weekend and renewing old acquaintances and friendships. While in Greenville High School,

Jenkins was editor of Green Lights, the school paper. While at East Carolina College he was editor of Teo Echo two terms. He went to Durham as reporter on the Durham Sun and later served as sports editor and telegraph editor until 1945.

Jenkins then was editor of the Jacksonville (N. C.) Record, a weekly paper.

He then went to Wilmington and was reporter on the Wilmington News three months and managing editor three years, a position he now holds.

The former Greenville newspaperman has resigned his position with the Wilmington News and will leave there November 12 to go to Washington, D. C., to accept a position on the world news desk of the Washington Post, morning daily newspaper.

Jenkins graduated from East Carolina College in 1948. He was vice-president of the ECO Student Body and was an outstanding graduate in the mathematics department. He and Miss Georgia King

Mystery Car Carrying Dead Boy's Body Seen

AUGUSTA, Wis. (UP)—A mystery car, carrying the sheet-draped body of a teenage boy with a bullet hole in his forehead, was hunted by police of three states today.

A garage mechanic here said he spotted the body of a boy, about 14, propped up against the back seat cushion of a late-model car driven by one of five well-dressed men who stopped to have repairs made on their car.

Jerry Holman, 27, said one of the men hurriedly replaced the sheet after it slipped, revealing the blood-covered face of the boy.

Holman said another kept a gun trained on him all the time he was at work.

Police Chief Roger Hahn, 27, asked FBI special agents to investigate the possibility the boy had been kidnapped in another state and murdered.

"The kidnaping and murder theory appears to be the only one that makes sense," Hahn said. "The FBI said they'd help check it."

dentally violated the neutrality of Kaesong.

Having gained those advantages, the Reds made a concession by agreeing to move the truce talks to Panmunjom and place the town under joint military control.

The pill that's too bitter for the Communists to swallow right now is that for the last three months they have been forced to give ground before a series of limited offensives by the U.N. army. Red fighters are being defeated almost every day.

But in the last few days the Communists seem to have hit upon a means of rationalizing their military defeats. When the Red reporters chat with the U.N. war correspondents at Panmunjom, they give out with this propaganda line: Several weeks ago the United Nations field commanders launched an all-out offensive the objective of which was to sweep the Communist troops all the way back to the Manchurian border. That offensive failed. So now the U.N. commanders, realizing they can't win, are ready to talk truce.

That sort of talk will increase. It is the price the Allies are going to have to pay if they win any more concessions across the negotiating table.

Strawbridge To Address C-Of-C

D. C. Strawbridge (above), National Affairs Advisor for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C. will be in Greenville Thursday night to speak to members of the Chamber and other interested persons at 8 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce office.

An outline of the Strawbridge's discussion is scheduled to cover three main ideas: "What Congress Has Done," "What is in Prospect for the New Congress," and "What Action Should We Citizens Take in the Future?"

The meeting is being sponsored by the Legislation and National Affairs Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. "No business organization has as close contacts with our government as the U. S. Chamber," said W. S. Bost, chairman of the Legislation and National Affairs committee. "It's trained staff is in the position to give an intimate 'close-up' on the important business matters." Bost said.

Letters have been sent out to committee members announcing the speaker but the meeting is open to anyone in the community who is interested in national legislation.

Women In The Church

Two American army nurses, stationed in Kyoto, Japan, are reported by Missionary Newton Thurber to be using a tune of their monthly wages as follows: to buy books and pamphlets on Christian topics which a Japanese pastor distributes to patients in ten tuberculosis hospitals in the Kyoto area; to help two young Japanese women complete their studies at Doshisha Seminary; and for the partial support of the family of a Japanese minister who works in a slum area.

Miss Helen Disney R.N. of Jellico, Tenn. and Madras, Maine, who calls herself a "displaced missionary" of the Congregational Christian Churches, is now en route to Southern Rhodesia, Africa, where she will train African girls as nurses in Mt. Silinda Hospital, the only medical center for 150,000 of the Ndu people of that area. Miss Disney served as a missionary in China for 25 years, training Chinese girls and women for the nursing profession. During World War II she was for some time a prisoner of the Japanese, then was repatriated to America.

Methodist women of the south-central states, meeting recently as a "clinic on social relations" at Mount Sequoyah, Arkansas, declared that there is pressing need for more stringent federal and state laws to protect children from the use of narcotics. In a resolution to be presented to various legislatures they asked for: "life imprisonment or a penalty comparable to the crime for any person selling or distributing narcotics to any minor, as well as any person giving narcotics to any minor without a prescription from a licensed doctor of medicine."

The Woman's Division of Christian Service, Methodist Church, has named as its first missionary to Chile Miss Sermeramis Kutz, a home economist from Warsaw, Ind., who will sail in January for the Methodist farm and rural community project at El Vergel, the "Garden of Paradise," near Angol. Miss Kutz will be director of the girls' vocational school and will assist in the medical program. The institution also has two primary schools, an agricultural school, and two churches. The farm covers 3,750 acres in the central agricultural valley of Chile.

communist attack.

Even worse, if the Arab countries actively oppose the command—as now seems possible—the West may wind up worse off defensively than when it started.

This bleak outlook is causing Western military strategists to re-examine the proposal to see how they might make it more tempting to the Arabs.

One factor is clear, however: the U. S. is not in a position at present to extend a firm promise to fight in the Middle East in the event any Arab country is attacked.

For the present, the American government has all the direct military alliances it can handle. All together, 38 anti-communist nations now have formal written promises this country will come to their aid if they are attacked.

said the commission obviously had given careful consideration to UMT, and urged that the plan be made "the first thing on the agenda" for Congress.

Sen. Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.) commented that the issue is "about as important a problem as is on the congressional horizon." Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) agreed that UMT should have "the urgent attention and consideration of the congress."

Failed To Comply Order Of Court

In Police Court today Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Robert Williams, a clerk at Carolina Grill, guilty of failure to comply with a court order about non-support of his family.

Williams' wife testified that her husband did not regularly provide support for her and their five children and that they are in destitute circumstance.

The court ordered that Williams pay into the Pitt County Welfare office $20 each week for support of his wife and five children.

He was placed on probation for a year and ordered to be of good behavior for a year.

The court further ordered that in case Williams' wife and children need medical or other attention he is to do his best to help to provide it.

Dixie Demos' Plans Progress

SELMA, Ala. (UP)—Alabama State Rep. Walter C. Givhan, spokesman for the anti-Truman meeting of Southern Democrats to be held here Nov. 1, said that leaders are well pleased with the way the strategy meeting is shaping up.

Givhan said some Democratic leaders in the South have announced they would be unable to attend, but the meeting will be carried out as scheduled.

He also expressed optimism for success of the meeting, repeatedly called a "strategic" meeting in a Southwide anti-Truman campaign.

The Dallas County representative refused to divulge the plan of action to be taken, saying, "We must withhold our plan until the meeting."

The assembly of Southern political figures in this Central Alabama city on Thursday could take a "Draft 'd'" turn to throw rebellious Southern Democrats into a group supporting Virginia Sen. Harry F. Byrd as a candidate for President.

Givhan announced last week that Byrd would make his scheduled address but might have to leave Selma before the anti-Truman meeting because of the illness of his wife.

Byrd is to address a meeting of the Dallas County Farm Bureau which will be followed by the strategy meeting.

Gov. James Byrnes and Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.) are two other anti-Truman Democrats who have declined invitations to the meeting.

Givhan says if President Truman receives the Democratic nomination, a solid organization of at least 10 Southern states will conduct a unified fight against him.
