Peace Campaign Readied By U. S.

Delegates At United Nations Meet In Paris Said Prepared To Lead Western Democracies Toward General Program To Reduce World Tensions

PARIS (UP)—The United States prepared today to lead the Western democracies in a double-barreled "Battle for Peace" at the sixth U. N. General Assembly which opens here tomorrow.

The Western Big Three foreign ministers were "in complete agreement" on an American-drafted peace proposal which may suggest U. N. collective security machinery be strengthened at the same time steps are taken toward world disarmament.

Such proposals have been studied by the U. N. before and now it is speculated U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson intends to take the initiative away from the Soviet Union by proposing the Russians take an active part in U. N. collective security.

Acheson, pinpointing the Western attack, will lay the key question on the line: "Is the Soviet Union ready to consider a real peace or does it want to continue the cold war?"

The Western strategy seems to line up as follows: 1. President Truman, in a major foreign policy address Wednesday night, will outline the Western proposals which may include: A final peace in Korea; a new offer for world control of atomic and conventional armaments as a step toward disarmament and U. N. supervised elections in East and West Germany.

2. Acheson, addressing the General Assembly Thursday on the day before an address by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, will put the American plan in concrete proposals.

3. The U. N. will be called upon to bolster Allied forces in Korea and possibly apply stiffer economic sanctions against Red China, according to predictions by two top U. S. State Department officials in Washington.

4. The U. S. will do everything it can to get Italy into the U. N., according to Assistant Secretary of State John D. Hickerson. He said in Washington that while the subjects of Anglo-Iranian oil dispute and the Suez Canal zone dispute between Egypt and Great Britain are not on the agenda, they undoubtedly will be discussed in open sessions.

5. The U. S. may give stronger backing to its French and British allies in their problems in Iran, Egypt and North Africa.

6. Sources in London said Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin may try to stall the Western thunder by speaking tomorrow at 34th anniversary celebrations of the Bolshevik revolution and making a bid on overall settlement of world problems.

The sources pointed out Moscow wants to start discussions with the West now when the Kremlin can negotiate "with strength" before West's power has been built up.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj may upset the strategy of both West and East by charging the Soviet Union with "political aggression" in his opening speech. He intends to present a careful, documented case of Soviet pressure in the past three years against his country.

Reject Demand That UN Seat Chinese Reds

PARIS (AP)—The fifth United Nations General Assembly rejected at its final session today a Russian demand that the question of giving China's seat to the Communists be given priority in the sixth assembly, opening tomorrow.

The vote was 11 for, 20 against and 11 abstentions.

Russia's Jacob A. Malik threw the explosive question of Chinese representation into what diplomats had hoped would be a non-controversial, ceremonial windup of the fifth session.

T. F. Tsing, Nationalist Chinese delegate, denounced the Russian proposal as calculated to "decrease peace." He said the regime Malik proposed to admit has been denounced by the assembly as an aggressor in Korea.

Achievement Day

Pitt County Achievement Day will be held tomorrow in the Training School Auditorium, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Early Cold Wave Across U. S. Has Taken 190 Lives

Forecasters See Little Relief In Sight; Crops In South Are Damaged

By UNITED PRESS The nation counted 190 deaths today from the worst early-season cold wave on record and forecasters warned that "practically no relief is in sight."

Since the stormy weather began Friday, 144 persons had been killed in weather-caused traffic accidents, 19 in fires, seven by drowning, and three by freezing or exposure. Two died as result of heart attacks while shoveling snow. Fifteen died in miscellaneous accidents caused by the weather.

The mercury sank to 12 below zero today at Lone Rock, Wis., the coldest spot in the nation. The cold air stabbed southward almost to the Gulf of Mexico. It was 31 degrees at Augusta, Ga. By comparison, Edmondton, Ala., had a low of only 30 degrees. Warming Pacific Ocean winds pushed temperatures upward in Alberta.

Crops suffered heavy damage in the South as temperatures hit lows of 38 at Jackson, Miss., and 35 at Montgomery, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga. The weather bureau warned that a "moderately heavy" snowstorm would hit Central and Southern Illinois and Indiana tonight.

A near-blizzard that whipped across the North Central states Saturday howled up into Canada and more snow was on the way, the weathermen said.

Snow was general along the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains and extended through Colorado, Kansas and Southern Missouri.

Ohio led the nation with 17 weather deaths, 13 of them on icy highways and four caused by fires. The early cold snap sent Houghton, Mich., off to a flying start toward another record winter. Houghton, where it snowed for 52 consecutive days last year for a total snowfall of 283 inches, already had 24 inches on the ground.

Oldtimers there said it was the most in 35 years.

The lowest temperatures in the nation were recorded in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Bismarck, N. D., registered five below, Grand Forks and Jamestown, N. D., each registered one below.

Cold weather records were shattered across the nation. The frigid weather stretched far to the South. Jacksonville, Fla., reported 41 at midnight. New Orleans had 42, Tampa 46 and Miami 64.

Iran Activates One Unit Of Big Oil Refinery

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran announced today that it has begun temporary operation of a major unit of the Abadan oil refinery, from which the British were expelled at the height of the British-Iranian oil quarrel.

The official government announcement said proudly that Iranian engineers and workers, without foreign help, started up "apparatus No. 70," one of the major refining units of the last installations.

The government said present plans call for operating the unit only a month, to refill storage tanks with oil for domestic consumption.

Combat Training Inside Hangars

DAYTON O. (UP)—Combat experience without the risk of enemy bullets will be available to Air Force F-86D Sabre pilots in a new electronic trainer revealed today by the Air Materiel Command. Called the "Sabre Flitecronic," this new trainer is the first to allow a pilot to "bag" an enemy plane without leaving the ground. Like other flight simulators, it enables a pilot to learn characteristics of his plane in the safety of a hangar.

Fifth Atomic Blast In Current Series Set Off

Mushrooming Cloud Seen 75 Miles Away; Rumble And Gust Of Wind Reaches Las Vegas After Detonation

LAS VEGAS (AP)—The fifth atomic blast in the current series exploded at 8:31 a. m. (PST) today.

Thirty seconds later the atomic cloud customary in the detonations could be seen from Las Vegas rising over the Yucca Flat test site, 75 miles away.

The brilliant flash of the burst was as bright, at least, as the big one last Thursday, the first detonation in which troops participated in atomic maneuvers.

The cloud rose on its stem, and the mushroom above quickly acquired formations that looked like two ice caps.

Then it settled and within a few minutes the stem began to wither and break up. The great white cloud took on a coral pink cast, while at the base an angry-looking purple cloud spread over the desert.

Presumably this would be to lessen effects of tremendous concussion expected.

Seven minutes after the detonation there was a perceptible rumble in Las Vegas, along with a sudden blast of wind.

The mushroom above quickly acquired formations that looked like two ice caps.

Then it settled and within a few minutes the stem began to wither and break up. The great white cloud took on a coral pink cast, while at the base an angry-looking purple cloud spread over the desert.

TB Seal And Bonds Goal Of $12,000 Set

A goal of at least $12,000 has been set for Pitt County this year in the annual sale of Christmas Seals and bonds by the Pitt Tuberculosis Association.

The announcement of the goal was made this morning by County Chairman Dr. W. E. Marshall together with the announcement of campaign chairmen in various communities of the county.

The Christmas Seal sales are expected to begin in full swing on November 19, but the advance sale of Christmas Seal bonds is slated to begin on Wednesday of this week.

"To put into operation plans for its 1952 tuberculosis control program, the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association must realize at least $12,000 from its 1951 Christmas Seal sale," Chairman Marshall declared.

"That sum has been set after careful study and represents a conservative estimate of the total needed to finance the projects necessary for the association to carry on an effective tuberculosis control and prevention program in 1952."

Christmas Seal sale chairmen appointed in the various townships of the county by Marshall are: Mrs. Stalon Ross, Ayden; Mrs. J. T. Dupree, Belvoir; Mrs. G. R. Gurganus, Bell Arthur; Mrs. Alton Whitehurst, Bethel; Mrs. Ursula Cox, Chicod; Mrs. M. Brown Hodges, Grifton; Miss Tabeth De Visconti, Farmville; Rev. R. L. West, Fountain; Mrs. Cecil Saftethwaite, Pacolus; Mrs. J. Congleton, Jr., Stokes and Mrs. Brantley Speight, Winterville.

Lawmakers Plan Trip Abroad In Varied Missions

About One-Fifth Of Lawmakers Schedule Junkets To Far-Off Places

WASHINGTON (UP)—About a fifth of the nation's congressmen plan to spend at least part of their vacations traveling abroad on "official business."

A United Press survey showed today that more than 60 House members plan to leave this week for trips to Europe or Latin America on "official" missions which permit them to call on the taxpayers for traveling expenses, including transportation, hotels and meals.

Some 30 other members of Congress already have taken off on trips abroad, including two House subcommittees on round-the-world tours.

Altogether, some 105 to 120 senators and representatives will have been abroad before Congress reconvenes in January.

Globe-trotting congressmen protest when their trips are termed "junkets." A junket, according to Webster, is "an outing at public expense." The members insist their trips are no picnic, involve hard work and frequently save taxpayers millions of dollars by digging up facts that Congress wouldn't get otherwise.

Whatever the merits of the individual trips, the 82nd Congress is not likely to lose its reputation for investigations during its vacation. Fifteen groups plan investigations abroad. Other congressmen will travel abroad as members of official delegations to international conferences. Congress already has dispatched seven senators and seven House members to a meeting with the Council of Europe at Strasbourg Nov. 19.

Advise Pentagon To Cut Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) said today he has cautioned Secretary of Defense Lovett and Pentagon officials to cut next year's military spending to fit the pattern of tax revenues.

O'Mahoney got immediate support in this move from Senator Flanders (R-Ut.), who told a reporter Congress must inform the Defense Department: "Here is how much money we are going to allow you to spend and you shape your budget accordingly."

President Truman will go to work on the over-all budget, including the military items, at his winter retreat in Key West, Fla., after his conferences this week with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

O'Mahoney said he has conferred with Lovett and Pentagon officials in an effort to head off any outsized military requests.

"From the Secretary on down, I told them they had better cut their requests to fit the pattern of revenue or Congress would be likely to do it for them," he added.

DiSalle Hopes Miss 1952 Fight

WASHINGTON (UP)—Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle hopes he won't be in his present job long enough to find out what Congress does with controls legislation after the 1952 election.

He made the statement during an interview on the National Broadcasting Co.'s American Youth Forum television program yesterday. He said he has not decided whether to seek the Ohio Democratic senatorial nomination next year.

UN Forces Smash Back At Reds After Tank-Led Raid

Farm Referendum Is Easily Carried

Returns From Pitt Show 1984 Votes 'For' And Only 43 'Against' Nickels For Know-How; State Count Incomplete

Pitt County farmers joined forces with farmers from all over North Carolina Saturday to give the highly publicized "Nickels For Know-How" farm proposal an overwhelmingly favorable vote.

Complete returns for the county revealed that of the 2,027 votes cast, 1984 favored the proposal, and 43 opposed it. The proposal will place an additional tax of five cents per ton on feed and fertilizer used in the state, the derived revenue to be used to finance further agricultural research.

Elsewhere in the state, as in Pitt County, farmers braved inclement weather to approve the measure. Reports from 78 counties, 10 of them incomplete, show a $310 to 4,635-vote endorsement of the proposal.

Reports indicated that snow in the west and chilling rain in the east, coupled with no organized opposition to the referendum, accounted for the light vote.

Township results in Pitt County were: Ayden, 188 for, two against; Beaver Dam, 113 for, none against; Belvoir, 78 for, one against; Bethel, 126 for, none against; Carolina, 104 for, two against; Chicod, (Boxes), Simpson, 124 for, one against; Grimesland, 40, five against; Black Jack, 35 for, 16 against; Venter's Store, 68 for, none against; Falkland, 84 for, none against; Farmville, 263 for, none against; Fountain, 60 for, six against; Greenville, 174 for, none against; Pacolus, 140 for, three against; Swift Creek, 165 for, one against; and Winterville, 222 for, two against.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Immanuel Baptist Church at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning by his pastor, the Rev. J. A. Neilson, and burial will be in Greenville Cemetery. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services. Until his recent illness he was an active partner with his four sons in the firm, Bilbro Wholesale Company. He was one of the oldest members of the Immanuel Baptist Church, had been a Deacon of the church for the past thirty years, and was made a Honorary Deacon for life. He was a trustee of the church. Planes Team With Big Guns In Pounding Enemy; Infantry Storms Positions; Negotiators Try New Tack In Seeking Truce-Talk Progress

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)—United Nations plan artillery and troops smashed at Communist forces on the western front today in retaliation for the strongest tank-led Red attack in recent months yesterday.

Allied F-50 Shooting Star jets and F-81 Mustangs teamed with massed artillery in pouring death and destruction on Communist troops entrenched on two hills west of Yonchon. Then U. N. infantry stormed the enemy positions.

Allied troops were "reported heavily engaged with the enemy" at mid-day. The communique said Allied units had withdrawn from two "key terrain features" west of Yonchon following the enemy attack, but front dispatches said U. N. units had recaptured all ground.

Three new light Communist probing attacks southwest of Yonchon were repulsed. On the eastern front, the 8th Army communique said, U. N. forces pushed their deepest spearhead in North Korea still farther up the coast. The Allies gained 2,900 to 3,000 yds. northwest of Kosong and seized a hill south of Kosong, 46 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

U. N. troops on the central front repulsed a light Communist attack southeast of the former enemy stronghold of Kumsong, 29 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations gave up its hunt for a compromise cease-fire line today and proposed instead that the opposing armies merely stop fighting wherever they may be when a Korean armistice is signed.

The surprise new U. N. proposal raised a question of the battle line at the time of the signing into a cease-fire line and permit each side to hold on to whatever territory it may capture in the meantime.

Permanent possession of the territory, however, would be left to the decision of a peace conference. The proposal also apparently meant that the U. N. is giving up for the time being its claim to Kaesong, northwest invasion gateway to Seoul, Kaesong, three miles south of the 38th Parallel, is site of the Communist truce delegation's base camp and the U. N. has agreed that it shall be free from attack.

However, there is nothing in the agreement to stop the U. N. if it so desired, from advancing north to cut off Kaesong and make it an isolated island in the middle of the U. N. lines.

U. S. Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodges made the sweeping U. N. proposal Monday at a meeting of a joint armistice subcommittee. The Communists presumably will reply at the next subcommittee meeting at 11 a. m. Tuesday (9 p. m. Monday EST).

Visit Made By Club To National Carbon Plant

Members of the Woman's Club made a tour of the National Carbon plant at their regular meeting on Friday afternoon.

The ladies met at the plant at 2:30, and guided tours of groups of eight women at the time were conducted by plant personnel.

Before inspecting the assembly line, A. W. Bryan, plant superintendent, gave a brief account of the activities of the National Carbon Company since it came to Greenville shortly after World War II.

Information is given about the plant from an office chart as follows: "The Greenville plant, one of the newest of all National Carbon factories, was constructed shortly after World War II to manufacture plastic film products. Recently it was converted and today is making tiny no. 915 'Eveready' batteries used in 'Eveready' penlights and a wide variety of battery operated devices."

At present the plant employs approximately 116 persons who manufacture all the batteries of that particular size that are produced by the "Eveready" people.

The tiny batteries are made by mixing portions of manganese, zinc chloride, ammonium chloride and carbon. The mixture is compressed into a small cylindrical bobbin to which is attached an electrode. This is wrapped in muslin before it is fitted into the zinc shell, which is then capped and stored a week before it is tested, wrapped and labeled.

According to Bryan, about one third of the present production is going to the armed services, and total production is limited to 80 percent on the use of zinc.

In going through the plant, the club members first visited the receiving room, where the raw materials are checked in and where the finished product is stored until shipment. This room was an addition which was completed last December.

They then went through the machine room where the tiny zinc shells are made by a machine which, in one complete operation, cuts the discs and squeezes them through eight processes into the final size and shape. They saw the huge vats where the chemicals are mixed and then followed the manufacturing process through the assembly lines where the wrapping, capping and final operations are completed before the batteries are stored for the week's "aging."

Another assembly line on the other side of the big plant room handles the batteries which are tested after having been set aside for the seven-day period. These are tested, inpected for imperfections of construction, labeled and packaged for shipment.

The plant has its own lunchroom, small dispensary, machine shop and small laboratory. Most of the plant employees are women, who work with split minute precision to produce about 118,000 batteries a day.

The National Carbon plant in Greenville is one of 19 in the United States. It is a division of the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation. The visit to the plant was another phase of the club's study of Greenville industries, which they are making this year.

Following the tour of the plant, the members went to the club house for the business and social hour. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president, presided. Among the announcements and reports which were given was one by Mrs. Joe Tabor in which she called attention to the play which the Little Theatre Guild is to present on November 13 and 14. The proceeds from the play, "Fish," will go to The King's Daughters organization.

Two new members were introduced by Mrs. W. H. Woolard. They were Mrs. W. W. Stone and Mrs. Linwood Worthington.

Mrs. J. Hicks Corey, chairman of the Conservation committee, reported on the Green Mill Park project, which is located on Fifth Street extension opposite Greenwood Cemetery, and on the action which the Board of Aldermen took in extending aid from the street and grounds department of the city.

During the social hour which followed, the hostesses served hot fruit punch, assorted tea sandwiches, pastries and mints and nuts.

The club house was unusually beautiful with massive profusions of dozens of varieties of chrysanthemums which had been grown by one of the hostesses, Mrs. R. V. Keel.

Other hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames H. A. Coleman, M. K. Blount, Irvin Bowles, J. L. Briley, J. R. Carrington, W. J. Carter, B. M. Clark, C. J. Goodman, K. T. Purville, F. J. Forbes, Guy Forrest, J. C. Clifford, Jr., K. W. Cobb, D. H. Conley, S. L. Daughttridge, Miss Marie Clark and Dr. Lucille Charles.

The American Home Department of the Woman's Club will meet at the club house Friday afternoon at 3:30. Judge Dink James will be the guest speaker. His subject will be "The Law Looks at the Family." All members are urged to be present at this meeting.

Book Review At Cosmos Club

Mrs. George Lautares was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club on Tuesday afternoon, October 30, at her lovely home on Sixth Street. Her house was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums and red berries.

After a delicious dessert course was served, Mrs. Dale Gidley, president, called the meeting to order and welcomed the two guests present, Mrs. Don Calloway and Mrs. Ralph Garrett, Jr., after which she introduced the speaker for the day, Mrs. George Lautares.

Mrs. Lautares gave a most interesting review of the book, "Oscar of the Waldorf," a biography of the life of Oscar Tschirky, written by Karl Schriftgiesser. This is the story of Oscar's long and colorful connection with the Waldorf-Astoria and of the famous people he has known intimately during the past fifty years.

At the end of the program books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Cullifer And Lee Are Speakers At Falkland Ruritan

FALKLAND — Ernest Cullifer of Pinetown, Ruritan lieutenant-governor for this Ruritan district, and Lowell Lee, National Ruritan treasurer, who helped to organize the Falkland Ruritan Club, were speakers at the club's "ladies and teachers' night" banquet last Friday night.

Lee discussed the nationwide work of Ruritan and emphasized the importance of some Ruritan's main object. He reviewed some of the history of the Falkland Ruritan Club and congratulated the members for their good work.

Lieut. Governor Cullifer outlined some of the plans for the District Ruritan convention to be held in Greenville December. He urged the Ruritan to cooperate to make the convention a success.

Next Friday night the Falkland Ruritan will have a turkey supper and harvest sale at the Falkland School lunchroom. The Falkland Home Demonstration Club is co-sponsoring the event. The public is invited.

TEEN TALK

Decorations need not be expensive. Pick up some trailing ground pine in the woods or buy similar vines at the florist and decorate your fireplace or hang a garland at the door. You'll find fresh greens are plentiful and less expensive than the crepe paper kind. A row of red, white and green candles across the fireplace or placed on the piano or radio cabinet will lend another touch of Yule to your home.

AP Newsfeatures

Christmas is a time when kids who've been separated from each other by school and studies can get together with their pals for holiday festivities. It is wonderful, of course, if you can be on the receiving end of an invitation. But it is fun also to give a party. It does take work—you can't expect your guests to entertain themselves. They must be made comfortable and happy every minute they are in your home.

If you do plan a party at Christmas, be sure the invitations are pretty, decorations are in the spirit of the day, food is satisfactory and the music is planned to keep the guests amused. You should have some new Christmas records for dancing, and some for singing carols.

If you can't insure having people accept your invitation, make sure it is pretty and really inviting. You can make a lovely star or small Christmas stocking or Yule tree ornament design out of red or white or gold mat paper. Then you can write your invitation on it in either white red or green ink.

While it is fun to sit down at a table, it is lots more fun and easier on the hostess to serve a buffet supper. But if you do sit down, cookie plate cards would surely make a hit. You'll need a large soft cookie, narrow ribbon, a paper doily, colored sugar and water frosting (tablespoons of sugar to 1 1/2 teaspoons of water).

Place cookie on doily. Thread darning needle with ribbon and sew the cookie to the doily. You can do this if you are careful to stick the needle through with ribbon all the way and then back again. Leave about five inches of ribbon ends on each side of the cookie which you will tie in a bow. Dip a toothpick in frosting to write the name on the cookie.

If you are working on a skinny budget, serve foods which have plenty of bulk and filling. You can cream hard-boiled eggs and serve them on rice, and this is always a nice inexpensive dish. Add some green pepper and pimento and the dish will take on a Yuletide flavor. You can cook the creamed eggs in advance, and have them all ready to serve just by heating with a little additional milk. Hot buns or rolls are good with this dish.

A Christmas quiz would be lots of fun and really keep the guests on their toes. Here are some suggested questions:

1. When was the public singing of Christmas carols introduced?
2. Did mothers read The Night Before Christmas to their children during the Revolutionary war?
3. What were the names of

Killing Frosts

Killing frosts occurred in the Greenville area Saturday and Sunday nights, Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, reported today.

ORIGIN OF NIGHTSTICK

KENT, O.—(UP)—The policeman's nightstick is really a modern edition of the ancient Indian war club. Martin L. Davey, Jr., tree expert, says today's noggin-buster is often made of Osage orange, too. The wood is hard, heavy, flexible and strong. Prehistoric man preferred a club of lighter and more elastic ash. It bounced off craniums much better.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. BOUGLAS
AT THE CENTER OF THE UNIVERSE
The great citizen of our village—and of course one of the greatest men of all times—is Dr. Albert Einstein. Many amusing stories are told about him. Recently I heard a minister say that Dr. Einstein occasionally attends the Princeton University chapel services, and one day he was present when the preacher was speaking of the evils of selfishness. After listening for a few minutes, Dr. Einstein leaned over and with a grin on his face whispered to a friend, "Oh, I just love selfishness."

So do we all. The great Einstein came out and said frankly what every one of us knows to be true in his or her individual case. We all of us just love selfishness. We may denounce it in others, we may brand it a most hateful vice, but we all practice it and, what is worse, we all like it.

Human life is by its very nature self-centered in many ways. But the trouble with the truly selfish person is not that he makes himself the center of his life but that he tries to make himself the center of the universe. Everybody must revolve around him in well-defined orbits.

Think about this for a while. I am talking about myself, and my weaknesses, but I am pretty certain that I am talking about you and your weaknesses also.

Research Is Not A One-Year Crop

North Carolina farmers bought themselves a large quantity of research Saturday by approving by a landslide margin the "nickels for know-how" tax on feed and fertilizer.

The expanded research in agriculture which North Carolina will be able to carry on with the new funds will prove to be one of the most progressive steps in North Carolina agriculture since the formation of the North Carolina Farm Bureau back in the 1930's. Farming, whether most of the people realize it or not, has become a highly technical process which requires continued research and improvement if those engaged in it are to keep pace with advances in other businesses and industry.

Advances which seem like miracles will come from the expanded research in agriculture, but farmers must not expect them over night. Research in any field is a slow and tedious process which can not be judged in a matter of months.

Farmers of North Carolina have taken another great stride in providing themselves with a greater research program, and in the years to come it will bear lucrative fruits.

It Is High Time The Government Stepped In

Concrete steps are being taken by the State Board of Conservation and Development which may settle the dispute between the shrimpers and the other commercial fishermen along North Carolina's coast. The venture should answer the question of what is happening to the gradually decreasing numbers of food fish in the state's coastal waters.

It is going to cost a considerable sum of money to carry out the technical studies to find out whether the shrimpers are ruining other commercial fishing in the waters along the Tar Heel coast, but the answers from the studies will go a long way toward preserving one of the state's most promising industries. It will afford the Board of Conservation and Development sound grounds on which to make future regulations concerning commercial fishing along the coast.

North Carolina should not take unwarranted steps to curtail the shrimping industry, one of the rapidly growing enterprises of the state; but on the other hand, the shrimping industry should not be allowed to destroy the fish which form the basis for the other commercial fishing in North Carolina's coastal waters.

The Reflector does not advocate the idea of government, state or federal placing any more regulations than necessary on business of any kind, but in a case such as this where one industry may be destroying the basic ingredient of another industry, some state regulations are a necessity.

Prudent Pruning Is Necessary

A howl is already going up from a number of property owners of Greenville since the Police Department has released a list of 87 intersections in the city at which shrubs are obstructing the view of motorists.

From the safety standpoint The Reflector agrees with the Police Department that some shrubbery trimming is necessary at the blind intersections in the city.

According to the Police Department survey, the shrubbery which is obstructing the views at intersections is in the park strips. If the city carries out its program of clearing these intersections of the bushes which block the drivers' view—and The Reflector thinks it should—it will not mean that bushes at 87 intersections will be removed. For the most part a little trimming would remove the obstacles cited, and at the same time probably help to beautify the city rather than mar its beauty.

The looks of Greenville are important, but at the same time it is not good judgment to keep the large shaggy bushes at intersections when doing so will jeopardize the safety of the people of Greenville.

The very fact that the survey of the Police Department shows the city has 87 intersections at which drivers' view is obstructed or at least partially obstructed shows safety planning has been given little consideration in the planting of shrubbery in park strips. On at least two previous occasions The Reflector has suggested the city adopt regulations prohibiting the planting of trees in the park strips of Greenville, and now it seems that a provision regulating the size of shrubbery in park strips would be a wise step.

In our opinion the safety of the citizens of Greenville should not be subordinate to the physical beauty of the city.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON—President Truman's preference for a Roosevelt banker and industrialist as Democratic National Chairman for the 1952 campaign was virtually marks the liquidation of the Roosevelt-Truman reform wave as a force in American politics. It represents a definite return from the ideological left toward the middle that irks the liberal faction.

Frank E. McKinney, the new chairman, and his political pals back home in Indiana, have never had any use for the Rooseveltian brand of "liberalism," or Mr. Truman's politically useful limitation. They are especially hostile to such proposals as national health insurance and the Brannan two-price farm plan, which have proved extremely unpopular in their state.

These issues have almost wrecked the Democratic party in Indiana. Although they have the governorship, they have only two Democrats in the House delegation, both coming from city districts—Gary and Evansville. Both Senators are Republicans, and of the most conservative kind. Indiana has again become a Republican stronghold.

PROMISES—President Truman will still appeal to leftist elements, especially the various metropolitan groups, by vocal advocacy of his "Fair Deal." He will call for Taft-Hartley repeal, enactment of Civil Rights legislation and more generous subsidies for the farmers.

But, as his behaviour during the recent session demonstrated, he will not lift a finger to place any of these laws on the statute books. He will make no real attempt to match his promises with performances.

In selecting Mr. McKinney, the President also seeks to ward off charges that, like Harding, he has sold out to nest-feathering politicians of the Pendergast stripe.

The Indianapolis banker and corporation executive is the first man of that type since Alfred E. Smith named John J. Raskob to the post. All the rest—Messrs. Farley, Hannegan, McGrath and Boyle—were back-room boys, although it is unfair to "Big Jim" to compare him with the Truman type of political boss.

APPEAL—The choice of the non-political and relatively conservative Mr. McKinney also indicates that President Truman expects Senator Robert A. Taft to be the Republican presidential nominee. The shift in strategy represented by the personality and political philosophy of the new chairman is designed to appeal to Republican opponents of the Ohio Senator.

Mr. Truman knows that influential financial interests normally associated with the G.O.P. are antagonistic to Mr. Taft's ideas on foreign policy. Many eastern bankers, business men and manufacturers have said that, if it is a choice between Truman and Taft, they will vote for the President, or stay away from the polls. His favorite is General "Ike" Eisenhower, as revealed by the activities of Governor Thomas E. Dewey and Senator James H. Duff.

MEANWHILE—In Mr. McKinney, President Truman tosses a peace offering to this influential faction. While promising to continue the foreign program which they approve, he also notifies them that they have nothing to fear from his purely political support of social and economic changes which they despise. They hardly need this notice, for it has been demonstrated on Capitol Hill that the vote-getting Truman reform program has no chance of passage.

The White House, obviously, will be extremely disappointed if all this maneuvering is nullified by the nomination of General Eisenhower. But, as a practical politician, Mr. Truman does not believe that the G.O.P. will nominate a man who will not say whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. Moreover, the President may find a way to make it impossible for "Ike" to take off his uniform.

Thus the McKinney entry into practical politics, in view of these considerations, is a development of major importance with respect to next year's presidential contest.

CANNY—While strengthening his defenses against a possible Taft nomination, the canny and resourceful Mr. Truman—politically, that is—does not neglect the prospect that a last-minute drive may give the nomination to Eisenhower after the Wilkie pattern of 1940. But the White House is said to have a plan for this contingency.

Recent visitors at the White House come away with the impression that Mr. Truman will seek another term if the Republicans name Senator Taft. That would be a challenge which the Missourian might not feel he could duck. He has frequently said that he would like a showdown between his principles and those of "Mister Republican." Moreover, he thinks he could defeat the Ohioan easily.

Pleasure Trip?

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NIBBET

LOCHINVAR?—Will some candidate come out of the west like the fictional Lochinvar, and carry away for his bride the Democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina? That is currently the 664 question in state political circles. It is possible that some young man with the romantic and emotional appeal of Lochinvar might ever come out of the east and capture the prize. Being from the west would help, but place of residence is not generally regarded now so important as the type of campaign he will wage.

TRADITION—There is evidence of increasing disregard for the east-west rotation of governors, but no one can travel over the state and talk with people in all kinds of business and on all levels of economic and political activity, without recognizing that there is strong sentiment for retaining the practice. Some highly intelligent and patriotic citizens in the mountains are devoted to the idea as a basic principle and would seek to maintain it almost regardless of the cost. On the other hand there are a great many people who are willing to forget the tradition in order to obtain the best man possible, wherever he lives. Then there is another element, which probably holds right now the balance of power, less concerned about place of residence or qualifications for the office than about chances of victory. Band-wagon riding has become almost as much a tradition in this state as the rotation plan based on geography.

CONTRAST—It is generally conceded that William Umstead of Durham, who is the only formally avowed candidate, is presently far in the lead in popular sentiment. A few enthusiastic supporters insist he has gained such commanding lead as to be practically unbeatable. That opinion is not shared by the majority of the people with whom your reporter has discussed the issue. Those who do not concede his nomination, however, agree that the man who can win over him must offer a definite contrast both in ideology and campaign methods, especially in campaign activity.

COMPARISON—One man expressed the thought very well when he compared campaign methods to mannerism of preachers. He illustrated his point by using the names of Bishop Edwin A. Penick of the Episcopal diocese of North Carolina, and Rev. Billy Graham, now conducting a revival in a specially built tabernacle at Greensboro. Conceding identical high purpose and complete sincerity to both, the fact is that Bishop Penick would be as much out of place at the end of a saw-dust trail as Billy Graham would be before the altar in an Episcopal cathedral. Continuing the analogy, the man said William Umstead is a master at the art of campaigning in the style of the Episcopal bishop's preaching. But more folks go to hear Billy Graham than to hear Bishop Penick in three months. So, the man said, if you can do the Billy Sunday-Billy Graham kind of thing, he might run rings around Umstead. No such candidate has appeared to date, and none of the men most often mentioned so far as probable candidates can do that kind of job. Capus Waynick, Hubert Oliver Henry Jordan, Brandon Hodgas, Sam Ervin—all very fine men, any one of whom would make a good governor—could not conduct a campaign on other than very dignified lines. Almost every voter will tell you that is the kind of campaign he wants. There is an even chance a lot of 'em are not telling the truth. They would like to have a rabble-rousing, knock-down-drag-out affair. And, if some candidate with otherwise acceptable qualifications of ability and integrity can also put on a good show, even at the expense sometimes of complete accuracy in statements, he will get a whale of a vote next May.

HISTORY—Ralph McDonald almost got away with that kind of campaign in 1936. Kerr Scott did get away with it in 1948. Without changing ideas or policies between 1936 and 1944 McDonald had become too dignified to make as much impression upon the voters. Gregg Cherry did more clowning than Mac in that campaign. In 1948 Wayne Albright had ideas similar to—some respects more "liberal"—than Scott, but Albright could not act other than as a well-dressed, well-behaved lawyer; Scott was unpredictable and put on a different kind of show at nearly every appearance. North Carolinians have never fallen for simple clowning, but they have proven they like a little of it mixed with sound common sense. They also have proven they can spot a phony at long range view, and they want the bishops to stay behind the chancel and the saw-dust trail evangelists to stay in their natural element. So far no potential candidate for the 1952 nomination has appeared with evidence of natural affinity for the emotional appeal.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

DELAY, DELAY, DELAY (Roanoke Rapids Herald)
Oscar Chapman has done it again! He has been able to throw another legal stumbling block in the path of construction of the Roanoke Rapids Dam.

Instead of going ahead and appealing the case he recently lost to the Supreme Court he has asked the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals to hear his case again. Since the decision of the court was so unanimous in the first place, it is a matter of wonder why he would want the same court to hear him again.

The only motive he can figure out is the same motive he has apparently had for the past three years. If he can't win, he will block construction for several years by one simple method—delay.

Chapman is a lawyer. He knows how to maneuver a matter back and forth before commissions and courts. It costs him nothing to keep the matter in court. His powered lawyer's fee at his command. Free if charge is his staff. The cost him nothing personally. You, dear taxpayers, foot the bills.

Secretary Chapman told the first Roanoke Rapids delegation visiting him that he was asking his staff to speed up the case, and get a decision as quickly as possible. Does it look now as if he wants a decision?

It certainly does not. He seems to want to punish Veppo now. He now brings into the case the Buggs Island-Langley Field parallel with existing dam. He is still crying in his milk because Congress turned him down on this matter, another public power project dear to his heart.

He has told the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals that Veppo tried to sway Congress on this matter. We wonder if the innocent Department of Interior has ever tried to sway Congress on any matter. We wonder.

We just can't understand his position. The good people of this area can't understand his position. They told him "no" twice. Examiner Hampton couldn't understand his position. He told him "no." The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals couldn't understand his position. They told him "no" in strong language.

But he persists. If he can't win, he will delay. He'll make Veppo pay dearly by making the firm wait.

It is tragic that a government department gets so enamored with ideas of power and with the idea that they and they alone know what is best for the people. We repeat. It is tragic.

SOUNDS LIKE AN ALIBI

(Henderson Dispatch)
Like most other laws Congress places on the statute books, the modified system of controls aimed at limiting inflation threats is far from perfect. The President attacks this newest act by describing it as the "tools Congress has given us to curb inflation," but "which are not good enough to do the job as it should be done." But his administration will "do its best" with what is at hand.

The administration, on its part, has not been as aggressive as it might have been in seeking to control prices. Excessive spending is a tremendous stimulant to inflation but it goes on just the same. And the price stabilization agency permits both price and wage increases under

Business Today

By FLUMER ROESSNER
The practice among men of going without hats, though less serious at this time of the year, continues to cut into potential sales by men's furnishing stores, reduces volume of manufacturers and lessens employment in the hat industry.

The industry has tried many tactics to reverse the trend. It has tried to sell the idea that it is smart to wear a hat and it has gone to the other extreme of trying to shame them for going bareheaded—not always a psychologically sound approach. But still more men, weather permitting, go around showing off their haircuts.

A survey by Men's Wear showed that sales of men's and boys' hats dropped from 4.4 per cent of the average stores' total in 1949 to 3.6 per cent in 1950.

There are a number of psychological reasons for this. It was the young men who start this hatlessness and the older men, clinging desperately to any shadow symbol of youth, imitate them. Up to the point baldness sets in, of course. The camera has contributed to the trend. Because hats cast shadows on faces, news, newsreel, movie, television and advertising photographers insist U.S. men take their hats off. # Let Love Alone

By KATHLEEN HARRIS

Chapter I
She stood watching the ship until it became a small dot on the far horizon and then could not be seen at all.

That emptiness was a weight threatening to bear her down. She felt more alone than ever before in all her twenty years.

Ray had to come back, and of course he would. He was a wonderful pilot, one of the best. She told herself angrily, as she drove back from the field, that she was behaving, and feeling, like a silly sentimental idiot. You would think she cared in the way a sweetheart would care. You would think she was taking this engagement business to heart.

Well, she was not and she would not pretend to that extent. Nevertheless the day dragged longer and emptier than most. She was glad when evening came and with it an evening newspaper.

She scanned the headlines anxiously. There had not been any crack-up nor any report of any plane accident. She gave a big sigh of heartfelt relief and then her attention was caught by another item, the first to head the society column. In it she saw her own name!

Jan read it swiftly, then again more slowly. She got up from the couch where she had been sprawled, and literally flew up the long curving flight stairs to her mother's room.

Eve, who had returned from whatever errands had kept her occupied most of the day, was sitting serenely before her dressing table with its bewildering display of jars and bottles.

She saw Jan's reflecting in the triple mirror, but she did not turn until her daughter thrust a sheet of the paper in front of her.

"Mother, did you see this?" There was fire in Jan's eyes; her young face was flushed a deep crimson.

"Just a minute, darling." Eve continued to make a perfect cupid's bow of her mouth. Her eyes were bright as she saw the paper in Jan's hand. There was a gleam of gratification in their depths. "Now let me see." She turned around, stretching out a lovely rounded arm, taking the paper in her jeweled hand.

"The announcement," she read aloud, her voice filled with gratification too, "of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Jan-Lawrence, the lovely young daughter of Mrs. Eve Lawrence, to Mr. Ray Richmond will come as a pleasant surprise to many of the young couple's friends. Mr. Richmond is now employed..."

"Did you know that that was going to be in tonight's paper?" Jan interrupted. She snatched the paper away before her mother could read it.

"I wasn't sure they could get it in tonight's edition," Eve said in that serene manner, wearing a satisfied smile on her beautiful lips. "The man assured me he would try, however, so..."

"You mean you put it in the paper?"

"But of course, darling. Now who else would have?"

"Mother, how could you do such a thing?"

"Who else except your mother, mother of the bride to be, should give such an important announcement at breakfast and the morning after?" Eve looked like a cat that had swallowed a canary.

"I didn't tell you that you could," her daughter looked like a small forlorn and ruffled bird captured in a cage. "You should have asked me, Mother. We should have asked Ray..."

"I don't see why, darling." Eve looked as though she thought Jan was making a fuss over nothing.

"You and Ray are engaged, aren't you? You told me so this morning at breakfast and then you had to dash off to see him before he went away so that really there was no chance for all of us to talk it over. Besides, as I said before, it is up to me as the mother of the bride."

Eve held up both hands, flashing with the many rings she wore.

"After I gave the announcement to the papers I sent off a wire to your father. After all, he still is your father, darling. The least he can do is send you an engagement present.

"I don't want any presents," Jan said. Her face no longer was crimson; it was white. Was this what Ray's big idea was going to lead to? Heaven forbid! She had warned Ray that he did not know Eve. But even Jan had not foreseen that her mother would plunge wholeheartedly, up to her neck, into all this.

"Of course you'll get presents, simply loads of them." Her mother would not stop. She had more to say. "There will be showers and all that sort of thing. When I stopped in to tell the Parkers, dear Laura said she wanted to give the very first party for you, and when I phoned long distance to tell your Aunt Amanda, she said that we could have the wedding in her town house should we decide to..."

"Nothing is decided. Nothing, I tell you!" Jan said this loud and clear and firmly enough to put a stop to anything, even Eve.

"Why, darling, whatever is wrong with you?" Eve got up and placed a hand on one of her daughter's arms. "I suppose you are upset, darling, because your young man had to go away so soon, right after your engagement. That is enough to upset any girl. But meanwhile we can go on with everything; there will be so much shopping and fittings for your clothes. With that small waist of yours, darling, you always have to have everything taken in..."

Appalachian Edges East Carolina 24-20 In Thriller

Second Half Comeback Falls Short For Bucs

Mountaineers Capitalize On First Half Breaks To Win North State Conference Battle; Groce's Kicking Wins For Apps

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Some 3,000 fans braved biting cold weather Saturday night in East Carolina's College Stadium to watch a hum-dinger of a football game between the Appalachian Mountaineers and the host East Carolina Pirates. The Mountaineers came out on top in the thrilling struggle by a slim 24-20 margin.

The game was destined to be a thriller from the opening moment. Appalachian dominated everything in the first half to run up a 24-0 lead over the Pirates and then did an abrupt about-face in the second half as the Pirates rammed three touchdowns down their throats.

The real break in the North State Conference battle came on two punts which the Apps blocked. The first was immediately turned in six points while the second one started an Appalachian drive halted by a pass interception. Pass interceptions also had a big hand in the outcome of the contest with both clubs grabbing off four of the other team's series.

It might well be said that it was shifty Jack Groce who gave the visitors their winning margin of four points—but not with his running. In addition to running over a touchdown, Groce also kicked the three extremely vital extra points and added a nine yard field goal late in the second quarter.

The Apps tallied the first time after about eight minutes had elapsed in the opening quarter. A stout Appalachian line, led by Rocky Mount's Bobby Joe Baker, had pushed the Pirates down their own ten yard line and then Baker burst through the East Carolina defense to block an attempted quick kick by Claude King.

The loose ball bounded off Baker's arms straight up into the air and came down into the waiting arms of end Tom Neal on the 13 yard line. Four plays later, the Mountaineers were leading 7-0.

On the first play from the 13, Steve Gabriel squirmed for one yard over tackle and then the visitors took to the air lanes. Alvin Hooks, another Rocky Mount native, misread on two pitches to Dave Edmiston but on the third try—and fourth down—he found Edmiston on the goal line and passed the ball to him. Edmiston was hit almost immediately by two Pirate defenders but his momentum carried over into pay dirt. Groce added the extra point.

The Mountaineers kicked off to the Pirates and after a short march by the home club, Hooks, playing safety man, intercepted one of Paul Gay's passes and ran it back to the Appalachian 31 yard line. It took the Mountaineers just six plays to negotiate the 69 yards. The key run in this drive was a 38 yard beauty reeled off by Steve Gabriel running at quarterback in the split "T" formation run by the Mountaineers.

It was Gabriel who went over from five yards out on an optional play which ran the Appalachian margin to 13-0. Groce again kicked the point.

After 10 minutes had elapsed in the second quarter, Groce gave the Mountaineers their third touchdown. It came from three yards out and was the culmination of a drive that had started on the Appalachian 22. Groce kicked the point to run the margin to 21-0.

The Apps kicked off to East Carolina which took to the air ways in an attempt to close the gap in the scoring column. On the second play run from scrimmage, the resourceful Baker again intercepted one of Groce's passes—his third interception of the night—and returned the ball 44 yards to the East Carolina 11.

Two line plays netted but two yards and after another of Hooks' passes had fallen incomplete, Groce calmly place-kicked the ball through the uprights for another three points.

After that show by Groce, the Mountaineers had had it. All they could do for the rest of the ball game was sit back and watch ECC's attack roll by them until the fourth quarter when Coach Preston Mull's split "T" magic warmed up again to dominate the final few minutes.

East Carolina scored the first time it got the ball in the second half. They held the Mountaineers after the kick-off and forced them to punt and the ECC show was on.

Paul Gay picked up four yards and Siler found Dwight Shoe and Larry Rhodes open on two passes and gained 35 yards via that manner. Another pitch out to Gay moved the ball to the Appalachian 31. The visitors, over-anxious on the next play, jumped the gun and the Pirates were rewarded with five more yards. Jack Britt, who had just entered the ball game, smashed over left tackle for 18 yards and Jack Benzie hit for five more at the same spot. Benzie could not gain on the next play but Siler found Shoe alone in the end zone and passed to him. Hawk Grissom added the point.

A nice bit of kicking by Benzie gave the Pirates their next touchdown. The Mountaineers were backed up right up against the goal line when Benzie's 40 yard punt bounded around and finally rolled dead almost on the final chalk line. The Apps went into a punt formation but tried to run the ball instead and Steve Gabriel was jarred loose from the ball by Jesse Aldridge and Tubby Thomas.

Paul Gay scored from the one yard line on the first play. Grissom again added the point.

An eight yard pass from Siler to Benzie on the first play of the fourth quarter gave the Pirates their final touchdown. That score came as the culmination to a 57 yard march. Grissom's attempted kick was rushed and the try for extra point fell short to close the scoring at 24-20.

Surf Caster Saves Drowning Man

NEW YORK (UP)—Elbert Sprecher, 37, was surf casting for striped bass off Far Rockaway Beach yesterday when he saw a swimmer in trouble about 50 yards off shore.

"He was being carried out by the undertow and I knew the only way to save him would be to send my line out to him," Sprecher said. "There wasn't even time to take the hook off the end. I cast it out three times and the third time it

JACK GROCE, the 160 pound scaback of Appalachian College, was able to get only a few yards on this play before he was stopped by two East Carolina men. Both the East Carolina men in the photo are unidentified. Appalachian won the North State Conference game by a shaky 24-20 margin.

Showdown Battle Set For North State Title

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North State Conference 1951 football title chase reached the blue chip stage Saturday night.

Elon clashes with Lenoir Rhyne at Hickory in game that—barring a few "ifs"—should settle the North State leadership for the season.

The rivals each own 4-0 conference records. Should Elon win, only a game with seventh-place Guilford remains on the "Christians" loop schedule. A victory for Lenoir Rhyne would mean that the Bears will take on a formidable obstacle in playing third-place Catawba on "Thanksgiving Day." A tie between Elon and Lenoir Rhyne would enhance Catawba's chances of moving into the top spot.

Guilford will play at Catawba in the only other all-conference clash this week end. In non-conference games, Cherry Point plays East Carolina, Emory and Henry is at Western Carolina, and Erskine at Appalachian.

Lenoir Rhyne had little trouble disposing of Guilford 33-0 last Saturday. The running of fullback Steve Trudnak and the passing of Bill Robinette brought the Bears their seventh win in eight starts.

Elon had a hard time in edging Newberry, 13-12 in a Thursday night non-conference affair. Appalachian ended its conference campaign with a 24-20 win over East Carolina. The victory gave the defending champions a 3-3 conference record. The Pirates also ended their North State season and the loss gave them a 1-4 record.

Western Carolina, idle last week, also has completed conference play.

wrapped around his body and I pulled him in."

Witnesses said Sprecher drew his strange catch in so carefully that the sharp hook at the end of the line never touched the swimmer, Robert Stuls, 59, who was barely conscious when brought out of the water. Stuls said he swam in the ocean year-around as a health measure.

"He was lucky I was using a heavy line," Sprecher said. "He was my only catch of the day."

The 48-inch photo-telescope at the California Institute of Technology, now making a "sky survey", will have done in 4 years what it would take a large reflecting telescope 5,000 years to accomplish.

Pinetops - Devils Meet Tonight In Coastal Battle

FARMVILLE — Farmville and South Edgecombe will square off tonight in the last Coastal Conference game of the year. The game was originally scheduled to have been played last week but postponed because of bad weather conditions.

Farmville will be favored to take a decision over the boys from Pinetops, who have been able to win but one game all year. The game will be played in Farmville.

Probable starting line up for the Red Devils on offense has Roy Vick and Marvin Tugwell at ends, Billy Shackelford and James Fountain at tackles, William Allen and Carroll Wooten at the guards, and Paschall Barrett at center. Charlie Fitzgerald will handle the quarterbacking chores, while the halfbacks, Jo Smith and Jesse Joyner, and fullback Sigbee Dilda round out the backfield.

Jesse Spencer, Jimmy Allen, Bruce Tugwell, and Teddy Allen move into the lineup on defense.

Game time is slated for 8 p.m.

MONKS START FARM

ELMIRA, N. Y. — (UP) — With two cows, 50 chickens, three farm buildings, 500 acres and a red jeep, four Benedictine monks have begun a monastery near here which they intend to make self-supporting through commercial dairy returns.

Bowl Fever For Undefeated Terps

By LARRY DALE
United Press Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—The victory tom toms of William and Mary's Indians and the chest beating of Duke's Blue Devils provided the rhythm to go with the wails and groans of Wake Forest and North Carolina in a Southern Conference voodoo chant today.

But Maryland's snug Terrapins retreated unhearing into their solid shell of six victories and visions of sugar bowls danced in their heads.

The loop's only undefeated and untied team crushed Missouri 35 to 0 Saturday on a soupy home field at College Park Md., somewhat overdoing what forecasters expected of them.

William and Mary scored an overwhelming upset over Pennsylvania at Philadelphia with a 20 to 12 victory back by even more impressive statistics showing a rushing total of 289 yards to 73. Duke's 14 to 14 tie came as almost as much of a shock to the experts as it did to Tech which went into the game with six straight victories to its credit and confidence further bolstered by Virginia's startling 30 to 7 win over the Blue Devils only a week before.

Clemson scored the other upset of the weekend at the expense of another member of the conference family. Tailback Billy Hair led the Tigers in the 21 to 6 victory over the Wake Forest team that led the conference in four of seven classifications.

George Washington also did the unexpected with a 20 to 14 win over South Carolina.

The University of North Carolina suffered about as expected in losing to Tennessee 27 to 0.

At the opposite end of the scale Virginia Tech outdid itself in losing to Washington and Lee 60 to 0, and Lee at Tennessee. Friday night's only game sends Newberry to Furman.

In other games Virginia walloped The Citadel 39 to 0, VMI trounced Davidson 35 to 13, Wofford nipped Furman 14 to 12, and West Virginia defeated Western Reserve 35 to 7.

Maryland will play Navy at Baltimore and Duke will take on Wake Forest in the top games this weekend.

Other games: The Citadel vs. Army at New York, Clemson at Boston College, North Carolina State vs. Davidson at Charlotte, George Washington at Kentucky, University of North Carolina at Virginia, Richmond vs. Stetson at DeLand, Fla., University of South Carolina at West Virginia, VMI at Georgia Tech, Virginia Tech at William and Mary, and Washington

Wynn Saves Six In Drifting Craft

SARASOTA, Fla. (UP)—Pitcher Early Wynn, often a lifesaver for the Cleveland Indians, saved six crewmen of the yacht Elsador after the schooner was severely damaged in a Gulf storm.

Wynn and his brother-in-law, Ben Dunn, answered a Coast Guard distress message Saturday and towed the Elsador and its wet and hungry crew to Venice, Fla., with their 47-foot cabin cruiser Low-Jo.

The Elsador had set its two masts in high winds and seas Friday night and was drifting helplessly.

Churchmen Charge Law Officers In Klan Raid

CONWAY, S. C. (AP)—Warrants have been issued for six officers charged with unlawful arrest in the case of 14 men detained for parading through the Kane Baptist Church in Klu Klux Klan regalia.

The officers, deputies of Horry County Sheriff C. E. Sasser, are also accused of using obscene or profane language and breaking up a religious service.

One of the deputies has posted bond and another was scheduled to go to today. Horry County magistrate W. F. Eimmons of Myrtle Beach, who issued the warrants on complaint of A. L. Tyler, one of the church deacons, said he had heard nothing from the four others.

Named in the warrants were Chief Deputy Herbert M. Allen, who has posted bond, W. M. Lewis, J. E. Jordan, R. Lee Johnson, Watson B. McCaskill and R. De-Von Bell.

The 14 robbed men, who were arrested last Wednesday, were jailed overnight and released on $1,000 bond. No trial date has been set.

The Rev. N. E. Tyler, moderator of the church, and Arthur W. Tyler, the clerk of the church reported that the membership had passed a resolution commending and approving the men's conduct at the church.

Three of the robbed men said later in a statement that the church had given them permission to attend services in Klan regalia.

The Tylers also said they hoped the law officers "will not again conduct themselves in such a disorderly manner as to break up our 'revival meeting' and invited the 14 to "worship with us at any time."

Witnesses Will Hear F. Eldridge

A public discourse, "With All Thy Getting Get Understanding" Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock will climax a series of activities for Jehovah's Witnesses in this area. The discourse, which is free to the public, will be delivered by Francis R. Eldridge, of Hagerstown, Maryland, the servant of this circuit.

The speaker will give a discourse on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock on the subject, "The Fears of Man." This talk will trace man's fears from childhood to death and will emphasize the difference between worldly fear and the fear of Jehovah God. The Sunday talk will answer two vital questions: "How can we get proper understanding and why is it most important?"

Eldridge will be making his semi-annual visit to the local congregation and the scores are part of a world-wide free Bible educational campaign with over 400,000 ministers volunteering their time, energy and resources to serve persons of good-will toward God and His Kingdom in more than 115 countries of the earth.

Eldridge will also give another talk Saturday night at 8 o'clock on the subject "The Final Witness" to which all are invited.

All of these sessions will be held at the Kingdom Hall on the Falkland Highway.

Driver Arrested After Collision Saturday Night

Greenville police arrested Richard Junior Moore, Negro, Route 1, Greenville, Saturday night after the car he was driving was in collision with a car driven by F. W. Dowdy of Kinston at Dickinson and Boyd Avenues.

The investigating officer charged Moore with making a left turn on incoming traffic. He was scheduled to be tried in Police Court today.

Both vehicles were considerably damaged. Police estimated damage to Dowdy's car at $400, Moore's about $100. None of the occupants was hurt.

Woman Held In Icepick Slaying

WILLIAMSTON — Magistrate Charles R. Mobley at a preliminary hearing Friday night ordered Cassiana Sutton, Negro, common law wife of Alton Lee Sheppard, Negro, held for Martin County Superior Court in connection with his death.

Testimony was that the woman stabbed Sheppard with an icpick during a drunken brawl at her home near Parmele October 25.

Gus Andrews, Negro, a witness, testified that he dropped in the Sutton woman's house and that while there Sheppard assaulted his wife and attacked him for interfering. He further testified that the woman went to her room, Sheppard following her there. Andrews testified that he heard the woman call for help but could not get to her because the door was locked.

Another witness, Justus Andrews, Negro, said he saw Sheppard slap the woman. Other witnesses at the preliminary hearing said they did not know much about what was happening.

Margie Andrews, Negro, said she heard Cassiana Sutton say she had stabbed Sheppard and asked Gus Andrews to throw the icpick away. She testified that Sheppard breathed several times after she got to him and then died.

Rev. Ross will make his home in Greenville and at the present is residing at the home of J. W. Joyner.

Lots Of Eggs In Her Front Yard

FOUNTAIN AIRY — (AP)—Mrs. Robey Culler had eggs for breakfast today but in her yard were enough scrambled eggs to feed a multitude.

For the third time in the past few months, a truck turned over in the Culler yard yesterday. For the second time, the errand truck was loaded with eggs.

Sunday's scrambled eggs were furnished by a truck bound for the Veterans Hospital at Norfolk, Va. The truck missed a sharp curve, tore into the Culler yard and dropped one third of its cargo of 200 cases of eggs over the landscape.

Fleeing Gunman...

and told the man to halt, and the man turned on the officer and fired once at him. Byrd stated that he could "feel the breeze" from the shot, and that he fired at the running man, hitting him with one of the two shots he fired.

The man staggered along for a short distance, fell to the ground and attempted to rise, when he was told to "hold-it." He then threw the pistol across a yard.

After investigating, the officers discovered that Terry and some other men had been arguing at the time the officers arrived and that Terry had attempted to shoot one Frank Stretter but hit a Samuel Atkinson in the foot instead.

It was after the shooting that Terry attempted to run as the officers came on the scene.

Four charges will be filed against the man when he is released from the hospital and able to stand trial.

He will be charged with carrying a concealed weapon, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, discharging a fire arm in the city and assault on an officer.

A report from Pitt Memorial Hospital this afternoon revealed that the man was in good condition.

Doctors at the hospital stated that the bullet did not strike any bones in the leg.

Restaurant Was Damaged By Fire

Fire discovered shortly after midnight this morning in Kares Restaurant, did moderate damage to the kitchen of the building.

Two patrolling policemen smelled smoke as they started out on their beat in the uptown business section and sounded the alarm, firemen reported.

The fire alarm summoned three pieces of fire equipment and a host of volunteer firemen to the scene in a matter of minutes.

The backdoor of the building had to be forced open to gain entrance into the building but these firemen were hampered by clouds of fumes coming from the burning refrigerator in the rear of the building.

Firemen crawled into the building along the floor and brought the blaze under control.

It was understood that the electrical unit had been giving trouble for some time.

Kares resumed its regular schedule this morning, even as plans were being made to repair the damage caused to the kitchen.

No estimate as to the exact damage was known at the time.

It was the first fire alarm for the local fire department in the month of November.

Colored News

The Pastor's Aid Club of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Henrietta Bryant Monday night, Nov. 5. All members are asked to be present.

The Bachelor Benedict Club held its weekly meeting at the home of Mr. Arozow Hopkins, 613 Tyson St., on Sunday, Oct. 28. In the absence of the president, Mr. H. W. Payton called the meeting to order and conducted a brief period of devotion, after which Mr. R. L. Vines acted as secretary in the absence of Mr. Hopkins. Committee reports were heard. After a timely business discussion, the meeting adjourned.

The club was the special guest of the Youth Fellowship of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, for which the entire program was dedicated. At the outset of the program, the pastor gave a few remarks. Too much praise can't be said about the special music that was dedicated to them, especially the solo by Miss Kelsie M. Smith.

Mrs. Nannie Dupree, advisor of the group, gave some very timely remarks. She thanked the group for the wonderful work they were rendering the city, especially for the widows and orphans.

Mrs. Sarah Epps, wife of Richard F. Epps, died Sunday morning in Pitt Memorial Hospital after a brief illness. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.
