Offer Battleline For Truce Basis

UN Negotiators Give Up Kaesong Demands, Offer Reds Right To Veto Allied Adjustment Proposals, If Final Battleline Accepted At Truce Line

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations offered the Communists today the right to veto any U.N.-sought adjustments if they will accept the final Korean battleline as a cease-fire line.

The Allies in effect dropped their demand that the Communists hand over disputed Kaesong on the northwest approaches to Seoul as the price of an armistice.

This raised hopes on both sides that an agreement on the truce line might be near. The Chinese Communist radio at Peiping had just broadcast a Panmunjom dispatch from Alan Winnington, correspondent for the London Daily Worker, saying:

"If the Americans give up their demand for Kaesong, a settlement can be reached in a matter of hours."

At the same time, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of U.N. ground forces in Korea, said in a World War I Armistice Day message to his troops:

"We trust that a new armistice date signalling an honorable and lasting peace will soon be forthcoming."

U.N. spokesman Brig. Gen. William Nuckols said the initial Communist reaction to the revised U.N. truce line proposal was "generally negative, but they did not close the door."

It was assumed the Reds would reply more fully at a meeting of the truce line subcommittee at 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. Saturday EST).

Maj. Gen. Harry I. Hodges, chief U.N. representative on the subcommittee, offered the modified U.N. plan for a way out of the truce line deadlock after tentatively turning down a new Communist proposal.

A U.N. communique said the Communist proposal "on first scrutiny appears to vary from their suggestion of Nov. 7 in phraseology only."

The new U.N. plan reiterated the Allied proposal of Nov. 5 that the truce line be based in general on the battleline existing at the time an armistice is ready to be signed, but said it would be subject "to such minor adjustments as may be mutually considered desirable."

This in effect gave each side the right to veto such "minor adjustments" in the final battleline as might be proposed by the other.

PARIS (UP)—The Churchill government will follow the Socialist policy on recognition of Communist China—at least for the time being, a British spokesman said today.

He said there will be no change in Britain's recognition of the Red regime even though Winston Churchill, when out of office, had criticized the Labor government for such action.

The spokesman said Britain will therefore abstain from a vote when Russia proposes that the United Nations seat the Peiping regime instead of the Chinese Nationalists.

U. S. delegates said they will vote against seating the Chinese Reds.

Alleged Marriage Mill Undergoes SBI Probing At Elizabeth City

RALEIGH (AP)—An alleged marriage mill is being investigated at Elizabeth City, SBI Director James W. Powell has revealed.

Powell, in answer to questions, said yesterday he has ordered an investigation into a report that Elizabeth City has become a haven for couples from the Norfolk, Va., area seeking quick marriages.

He declined to state who had requested the SBI probe. However, the Pasquotank Board of Commissioners considered the situation at a meeting earlier this week.

The SBI investigation has shown that Norfolk couples, including many military personnel, have obtained licenses at times outside the normal office hours of the Pasquotank Register of Deeds.

J. C. Spence, the Register of Deeds, meanwhile said over the telephone, "I don't know of any law that would bar the issuance of licenses outside of the courthouse, just so the parties were properly identified and qualified."

He said he had been issuing between 150 and 175 licenses per month since the Korean War began. There are about 28 persons in the Elizabeth City area qualified to perform the marriage ceremony, he added. He said he has recommended clergymen to perform the ceremony when asked by those getting licenses. Spence may issue the licenses, but may not perform the marriage ceremony.

Screaming Horde Of Chinese Take 2 UN Outposts

Other Attacks Repulsed; Red Resistance Against Raiders Is Stronger

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)—Nearly 1,000 screaming Red troops drove United Nations forces from two outposts southwest of Kumsong on the central front in a pre-dawn attack today.

Southeast of the rubbled former enemy stronghold, however, elements of another Communist battalion failed to dent the Allied line in a similar attack. The Reds finally withdrew after a six-hour battle.

U.N. raiding parties ran into increasing enemy resistance on the western front. The Communists engaged the Allied attackers with small arms, automatic weapons, mortars and even hand grenades.

On the east-central front, U.S. Marines celebrated their 176th birthday by routing Communist troops from a key hill mass with the heaviest bombardment of the Korean war on a single target.

Minutes later, nearly 100 fighter-bombers roared in through the smoke and dust enshrouding the target hill and sprayed the fleeing survivors with delayed action and flaming gasoline bombs.

Every weapon under the Marine command on the east-central front took part in the birthday "shoot" promptly at noon Saturday (10 p. m. Friday EST).

The Marines made no attempt to follow up the bombardment with an infantry attack, however. They spent the rest of the day relaxing and holding impromptu celebrations of the anniversary of the founding of the corps in 1777.

The British 1st Commonwealth Division made a small-scale probing attack on the western front. The Tommies said they found enemy trenches on the Yoncheon sector "so deep they were hard to get out of."

The Marines invited the Communists to attend their birthday party. A week ago they dropped pamphlets on the hill they had marked for the anniversary bombardment.

"Wait for an important announcement," it said.

Another barrage of pamphlets followed a few days later. These said "We will have an important announcement for you. Wait for it."

The final leaflet Friday was an invitation to the Chinese to surrender and enjoy hot rice at the birthday celebration. Many of those who failed to surrender died in the bombardment.

Prison Guard Is Granted Parole

RALEIGH (AP)—A Central Prison guard who was sentenced to 12 months on the roads for furnishing liquor to inmates has been paroled.

Paroles Commissioner T. C. Johnson announced yesterday that James Caprell was one of 12 prisoners who has been released on parole recently.

Caprell served a little more than half his term. The parole was approved by trial officials, Johnson said. He added that Caprell will live and work on a farm in Wake County.

Air Transport Service Is Crowded With Junketeers

WASHINGTON (AP)—So many congressmen are going abroad that the Military Air Transport Service is said to be hard pressed to provide them suitable planes.

In addition, the State Department is reported running short of escort officers.

Approximately 90 House members and 19 Senators now are overseas or are planning official excursions during the current adjournment of Congress. Others completed tours earlier in the year.

Although a few groups chose to travel by ship, most of the lawmakers preferred to go by air, covering a greater amount of territory. Several of the journeys extend around the world.

The Defense Department is finding it a headache to rustle up enough planes of the type usually assigned to VIPs—Very Important Persons—officials say. Practically all insist upon four-engine ships. An exception is one small group planning to leave soon for South America, where many airfields will accommodate only the smaller two-engine jobs.

'That For You'

Musical Prodigy Dies In New York

Cerebral Hemorrhage Fatal For Composer Sigmund Romberg

NEW YORK (AP)—Composer Sigmund Romberg, 64, whose operettas and songs are loved by millions, died last night of a cerebral hemorrhage at his (Ritz Tower) hotel suite here.

Romberg wrote such "all-time" musical play favorites as "The Student Prince," "Desert Song," "Maytime," "Blossomtime" and "New Moon." During the past 40 years he turned out 78 operettas and more than 2,000 songs.

Apparently in good health, Romberg arrived in New York Nov. 3 from his home in Beverly Hills, Calif. He usually spent his winters in the East before embarking on concert tours in the spring.

His body was found on the bathroom floor by his wife, Lillian Harris Romberg, whom he married in 1925. Before he collapsed, she said, her husband had not complained of feeling ill.

Romberg always called his music "middle brow—music too low-brow for a symphony conductor and too highbrow for a jazz conductor."

His music has a mass appeal, being replete with melodic love songs and romantic themes.

Oilmen Endorse Cavern-Storage Of Fuel Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Oil experts have assured the government that it's entirely possible and may be wise to store large quantities of petroleum products, including liquefied petroleum gases, in giant underground caverns.

Such storage, the National Petroleum Council says in a report prepared for the Department of Interior, would protect petroleum supplies from possible enemy attack, and afford considerable savings in manpower and steel normally used in preparing tanks above ground.

OPEN ON MONDAY

The Pitt County ABC office and ABC stores will be open Monday while other county offices are generally observing the holiday.

Greenville Leaf Market To Close Season Nov. 19

No Holiday On Monday; Season Sales Now Total Over $40,990,000

The Greenville tobacco market will remain open through next week and close for the season after the sales on Monday, November 19.

The announcement was made this morning by Sales Supervisor W. L. Whebee. He said the market will not take an Armistice Day holiday on Monday, November 12.

Sales for the season on the Greenville market through yesterday totaled 73,859,280 pounds of tobacco and the gross sales have amounted to $40,990,812.33 for an official average of $55.50 for the season.

The amount of tobacco sold on the market this year is the highest in the history of the market with the exception of the 1939 season when the market sold slightly over 79,000,000 pounds of tobacco.

That was the year tobacco acreage control was abandoned for a one-year period, and the Greenville market paid out $12,921,814 for an average price of $16.35.

Money paid out on the Greenville market this season tops the amount paid out in the previous high season by more than $5,000,000, and the market already has paid out $5,500,000 more than it did during the 1950 season when 62,700,247 pounds of tobacco was sold for $35,325,935.

"Prices were just as strong yesterday on the Greenville market as they were in the peak of the season," Whebee stated. "It has never happened before in the recent history of the market." Usually the tobacco prices take a downward trend toward the end of the season.

Success In Farm Bureau's Drive

Pitt Membership Drive Exceeds Quota By More Than 500

Reports from the Pitt County Farm Agent's office today revealed that the Farm Bureau Membership Drive quota has been exceeded by more than 500.

The quota set for Pitt County by the state organization was 3,500, and the county itself set a quota of 4,000. Both figures have been topped in the last week.

A series of dinners will be held this month as a climax to the successful drive. A program has been planned for each dinner and invitation cards have already been sent out. Officials said that any member who wished to attend and had not returned his acceptance card could come anyway and be seated by displaying his membership card.

Dinners will be held at the high schools in the following places on the indicated dates: Bell Arthur, November 13; Winterville, November 13; Ayden, November 15; Farmville, November 15; Bethel, November 16; Grifton, November 16; Belvoir, November 20; Fountain, November 21; Grimesland, November 23; Chocow, November 27; Falkland, November 27; and Pockets, November 28. The dinner in Greenville will be held November 28, at Guy Smith Stadium.

Coast-To-Coast Dialing System

ENGLEWOOD, N. J.—(AP)—Direct coast to coast dialing by telephone companies customers got off to an official start here today.

It was a mayor-to-mayor hookup with M. Leslie Denning of Englewood dialing Frank P. Osborn, mayor of Alameda, Calif.

The call inaugurated long distance dialing by 10,000 telephone users. The call is made in the same manner as when dialing a local call except that three digits used as a code to designate the geographical area must be dialed first. Then the telephone number being called is dialed in the usual manner.

Few Traitors In Loyalty Checkup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman says that 99.5 per cent of the 3,883,000 government employees checked by the FBI under the loyalty program have been found loyal.

During the four years since the program started, Perlman added in a television interview (CBS) last night, "343 persons have been dismissed as a result of the loyalty checks."

Didn't Live Up To Family Name

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(AP)—John R. Wellbeloved doesn't think he is. He said yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Margaret M. Wellbeloved, "fussed, nagged and argued continually," which made life pretty miserable.

It all came out in a divorce petition he filed in superior court.

B-29 Crash Kills Three

Rescue crews examine the smoldering wreckage of a Randolph AFB based B-29 which crashed near Kelly Field at San Antonio, Texas, during the night. Three are known to have been killed, one is unaccounted for and 11 others of the 16-man crew parachuted to safety. The plane was on a routine flight and the crew included four instructors. Churchill Suggests U.S. Consider British Needs

Steelworkers To Set Pay Demands

Union Has CIO Blessing To Go After New Wage Increases

NEW YORK (AP)—Philip Murray said his steelworkers, armed with a declaration from the CIO convention to go after wage increases regardless of the stabilization program, will meet in Atlantic City next week to shape their contract demands.

The meeting, beginning Wednesday, will be of significance to the government, to industry, and to thousands of wage earners in and out of the steel industry, because of the possible impact of those demands on the nation's wage controls.

Largely through the influence of Murray, who heads both the CIO and the steelworkers, the CIO convention adopted a resolution which, in effect, poses a torpedo at the stabilization program.

Before the convention adjourned yesterday, the delegates declared that prices and profits were soaring and that wage earners were being asked to shoulder the only controls which were working.

Murray blamed Congress and that, however, he said that regardless of who was at fault, the Wage Stabilization Board should not interfere with negotiated agreements.

Road Violators Face Crackdown

A crackdown on motorists violating traffic laws in the city hit with full swing last night as the Traffic Division of the Greenville Police Department arrested seven persons on Dickinson Avenue.

Police officers stated that the number of persons crashing red lights and failing to observe other traffic regulations has been steadily on the increase and that steps are being taken to eliminate the hazards.

More troublesome spots which were "Dickinson Avenue is one of the areas working in addition to other sections of the town," Chief Guy C. Langston stated this morning.

Several months ago a crackdown on speeders was started with the result that the number of traffic accidents in the city took a sharp decline.

The same policy is being followed with traffic light crashers and other violators of the traffic laws. Langston pointed out.

"We hope to make the town a safer place by cutting down on the number of persons now violating the traffic laws, making it dangerous for the citizens of the city," Langston stated.

Nationally Known Pianist Is Dead

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Mrs. Crosby Adams, 93, nationally known pianist and music teacher, died at her home here yesterday.

She had been in declining health for months. There are no survivors. Mrs. Adams was a life member of the National Federation of Music Clubs and had received the honorary degree of Doctor of Music from Converse College.

Russian Demand Again Defeated

Turkey And Big Three Announce Defense Set-Up

Will Establish Four-Power Middle East Defense Command; Seek Allies

PARIS (UP)—The United States, Great Britain, France and Turkey announced today a plan to establish a four-power Middle East Defense Command and promised military aid to any other country which joins it.

The new plan will extend the southern flank of the democracies' defense area to Turkey's borders with the Soviet Union.

A decision which greatly strengthens Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's North Atlantic Treaty Organization was announced by the four powers in a joint statement of principles roughly outlining their plans and their reasons for proceeding with it despite the absence of the Arab countries and Israel.

"Defense of the Middle East is vital to the free world and its defense against outside aggression can be secured only by co-operation of all interested states," the Allied statement said.

The text of the announcement was circulated to the Arab countries and to Israel. It emphasized that the Middle East command set-up will in no way interfere with the affairs and sovereignty of such non-signatory countries.

Points in the four-power statement were:

1. All forces in the Middle East command will be put under the command of a supreme Allied commander for that area.

2. Movement of troops put at the disposal of the commander will be made only with agreement of the countries concerned.

3. The major task of the Middle East command is the immediate future will be "primarily one of planning and providing the Middle Eastern states on their request with assistance in the form of advice and training."

4. Requests for arms and equipment made by the states in the area willing to join in its defense will be filled by the four powers "to the extent possible following co-ordination of such requests through the Middle East command."

Egypt, tangled with Great Britain in a dispute over the Suez Canal zone, bitterly opposes the pact, and refused to join it.

Iraq may emerge as a mediator in an attempt to provide a basis for settlement of the British-Egyptian dispute and thus prepare the way for Egyptian adherence, Cairo dispatches indicated.

Monday Will Be Legal Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tomorrow is Armistice Day—the 33rd anniversary of the end of World War One.

Since the day falls on Sunday, the legal holiday this year will be Monday, 28. But some observances begin tomorrow, particularly in church prayers for peace.

Effort To Get Red China Into UN Is Beaten Down And Steering Committee Rules Out Further Debate On Issue During Present Assembly

PARIS (UP)—Russia suffered a setback in the United Nations General Assembly today when its steering committee defeated by eleven votes to two a Soviet demand that Communist China be admitted to membership.

Russia sought to get on the Assembly's program its demand that the Chinese Nationalists be thrown out of the U.N. and that the Reds be put in their place.

But the general steering committee approved by 11 to 2 a Thailand resolution which ruled out debate on Red China's admission during the current Assembly meeting. Only Russia and its satellite Poland voted to put the question on the program.

Meanwhile, the major Western powers have virtually abandoned hope of overall peace settlement with Russia and are hastening plans to strengthen critical cold war areas.

Argentina Nears Actual Voting In General Election

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's 8,000,000 eligible voters heard final opposing campaign pleas last night to re-elect President Juan D. Peron and save the country from "foreign imperialists" or to vote against him and save the country from economic bankruptcy.

With these last-minute salvos, the campaigning ended, 24 hours before tomorrow's national elections. The 24-hour deadline is set by law.

Peron brought in one of his biggest political guns by broadcasting a recorded appeal from his ailing blonde wife, Eva, now recuperating from an operation, to her "beloved shirtless ones"—Peron supporting laborers—to put her husband back in office for another six-year term.

Britain Flying Women, Children From Suez Area

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Britain began today to fly out servicemen's families from the troubled Suez Canal zone.

Three four-engine Hastings aircraft took off from the Royal Air Force airport at Fayid with 58 RAF families of 107 women and children.

Three four-engine Hastings aircraft took off from the Royal Air Force airport at Fayid with 58 RAF families of 107 women and children. Ten of the children were infants under two years.

The Egyptian government claimed last night that 10 imprisoned Egyptian workers have begun a hunger strike in the canal zone to protest "ill treatment" by their British captors.

Aging Population Slated To Be Greater Problem For Economy

formidable political pressure group. They have made California a pensioner's paradise. Political proposals on behalf of older citizens are often foolishly supported by members of the younger generation. They welcome the opportunity to shift to the State (Labor) the burden of supporting aged parents. What will happen when the oldest, teamed up with their friends, account for a greater percentage of the national electorate? Will they vote themselves preposterously generous incomes from the Federal treasury? This would be highly inflationary because it would put the nation completely out of line with the nation's productivity.

Medical Progress Aggravates Old-Age Problem

The modern American trend toward birth control is a large factor in bringing about an alarmingly high percentage of oldsters in the population. Yet, turning the clock backward on this trend might cause our population to expand beyond the ability of the land to support it. Some have suggested that medical science will eventually solve the problem by discovering how to preserve full powers of body and mind until 85, thus deferring the average age of retirement by ten or twenty years. To me this seems to miss the point completely.

The problem is concerned not with the length of life after retirement. If science succeeds in stretching the period of adult vigor to 85 or more, it is quite likely that it will also succeed in stretching considerably the period of declining vigor and senility, bringing a problem right back where we started. From the humanitarian point of view, progress in medical science is desirable, but from the economic point of view it is dangerous.

Capitalism Needs No Gas Chambers

In spite of all the discouraging aspects of the problem of our retired citizens, American industry, operating a free capitalist enterprise, can produce plenty for the aged without lowering the standard of living of the productive workers and their families. Pensions and other benefits can be expanded slowly enough to prevent shock to the nation's economy. No lethal chambers for excess senile population need ever be necessary.

In a free capitalist society productivity per worker can be multiplied indefinitely. It is amazing how many labor-saving machines and labor-saving methods of distribution can be devised when needed. The solution lies with young workers using improved machines and method and producing not only an abundance of goods for themselves and their children, but also an abundance for the leisure class of retired oldsters. One thing more—ever more than economic security oldsters need the respect and sympathy of their descendants. Old people hunger for a share in the social and spiritual life of the young. 85 or more than for a share in the wealth.

Mrs. F. F. Willingham of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Tom Roth of Elkin will arrive Sunday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed W. Barnhill, Miss Peggy Barnhill left today to spend the weekend with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Barnhill Jr. of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Mrs. G. H. Pittman has returned to her home in Falkland after a week's visit in Washington, D. C. While there she saw her son, Lt. Col. G. H. Pittman, who flew in from Idaho on business.

Mrs. Arden Tucker has returned home from Pitt Memorial Hospital and is recuperating from a recent operation.

Cpl. Clarence Dupree Barnhill, who is stationed at Olmsted A.F.B., Middletown, Pa., is home on convalescent leave to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnhill, Greenville, N. C.

Miss Barbara Lou Laughlin, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Franklin Laughlin of Pactolus, N. C., became the bride of Sgt. Grant Rodke Murray, USAF, son of the late Grant K. Murray and Mrs. Weonah Murray, of Pauls Valley, Oklahoma, in a candlelight ceremony at the home of the bride's parents Saturday afternoon, November 3, at 4:00.

Rev. Charles F. Laughlin, the bride's father, conducted the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate family and close friends. Prior to the ceremony Mrs. J. Paul Davenport Sr. of Pactolus rendered a program of nuptial music.

Miss Charlene Laughlin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a dress of aqua taffeta. Her corsage was of white chrysanthemums. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white duchess satin, which featured a round neckline fashioned of tulle. She wore a fingertip veil of white tulle. She carried a white Bible upon which was placed a corsage of white pompons. Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party and guests were entertained at a reception given by the bride's parents.

After the reception Sgt. and Mrs. Murray left for a short wedding trip. Before entering the USAF, Sgt. Murray made his home with his parents in Pauls Valley. Mrs. Murray is employed by the G. B. Harrill Insurance Agency of Forest City, N. C.

The level of Tar River at the Bethel Highway bridge yesterday was 2.85 feet, nearly a foot lower than on Wednesday, following heavy rain.

Leland Mizell, observer here for the U. S. Department of Commerce, said the river level rose to 3.02 feet Wednesday after the rain. Thursday, the depth was 3.74 feet. Normal depth of Tar River here is from 3 1/2 to 5 feet. The stream at one time during the summer fell to the 2.80 foot level. Measurements of the river level are taken at the Bethel highway bridge.

40 Years Ago Today
THE DAILY REFLECTOR November 10, 1911
The members of the "P.F.S." social club held their first meeting Friday evening at the home of Miss Ernestine Forbes. This was, indeed, a most enjoyable and interesting occasion for those present.

After participating enthusiastically in the games and listening to delightful music, the plans for the club were talked over. It was decided that on each Friday night someone of the members should entertain the others. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Lillian Lanier, on Dickinson Ave. At a late hour delicious refreshments were served.

Those now on roll are Misses Annie Leonard Tyson, Maude Lee, Ernestine Forbes, Gertrude Cricheer, Annie King, Mildred Carr, Christine Tyson and Lillie Lanier.

City Schools In Finest Shape Of Their Entire History

Goals Are Always Kept In Forefront

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

"The Greenville City Schools have, in 1951, reached a degree of excellence unparalleled in the city's entire recorded history of education," says Junius H. Rose, superintendent of the Greenville City School system for 32 years.

And happily enough, Rose can present the figures and facts to prove his statement. Records show that during the past three years, $725,000 has been spent on expansion of educational facilities alone in the city schools of Greenville.

"However, the mere outlay of money itself is not a real indication of genuine progress," comments Rose, "and we are proud to say that the quality and ingenuity of our teaching staff is more than keeping pace with expenditures—even in this period of unusual expansion."

Nine schools are being operated in Greenville at the present time. They are, white: Greenville High School, Vocational School, Third Street School, West Greenville School, and Training School; and Negro: C. M. Eppes School (high school), Meadowbrook School, Fleming Street School, and South Greenville School.

These schools serve a total of 3,500 students enrolled in the city school system this year—1,860 white, and 1,649 Negro. Of this number, there are 478 white students in Senior High School, and 1,387 in the lower grades; while there are 278 Negro students in Senior High School, and 1,381 in the lower grades.

To instruct this some 3,500 of Greenville's youth, 120 teachers are employed—66 white and 54 Negro. The 21 other employees, which include administrative officials, secretaries, and janitors, swell the total number of people employed to 141. In order to pay these employees, and to meet maintenance expenses, a total operating cost of $436,000 has been set aside for the present year. Of this total, $41,322 came from local taxes, $30,000 from county funds, $20,000 from state and federal vocational educational fund, and $344,678 from the state nine months school fund.

New construction that has been added during the three-year $725,000 expansion program is, new building and equipment at Third Street School, new building and equipment at West Greenville School, new building and equipment at South Greenville School, additional space at C. M. Eppes School, and new building at Training School.

Major renovations and repairs completed during the past four years were made at a cost of $89,755. These repairs were made at Greenville High School, West Greenville School, Third Street School, C. M. Eppes School and Fleming Street School. This expenditure covers a variety of necessary projects such as new roofs, new lighting fixtures, new furniture, sanding floors and putting down asphalt tile and linoleum, new toilets, new acoustical ceilings, and continuing the program of painting the interiors and exteriors of buildings. Expenditures in this respect have been confined largely to maintenance and installation of additional conveniences.

Officials say the achievement of one goal seems only to make necessary the adoption of another more difficult one. "The constantly changing ideas of educators throughout the state and country regularly present some new and different problem with which to cope," they said.

Probably the most laudable single feature to be found in the city school system, is the wide range of constructive programs instituted by the teachers, and conducted under their supervision. "Young people are highly impressionable," says superintendent Rose, "and their exposure to correct attitudes at an early age may afford the community much cause for pride in the future."

One project, which has been in operation for many years and attracted state-wide attention, is the student council organization at Greenville High School. It is a representative body of 50 students and it really works.

The purpose of the Student Council is to acquaint students with the primary functions of government by constantly exposing them to the principles of the democratic idea. "The council develops civic responsibility in individual students and prepares them for assuming adult leadership in community affairs," says Rose. "Its workings immensely improve pupil-teacher relationships."

Each home room elects one representative to the council, with two representatives at large being elected from the entire student body. The six officers who guide the council's activities are required to meet high scholastic requirements to assume office. Some of the many duties of the council are, handling traffic problems around school, ruling on cases involving cheating and dishonesty, conducting pep rallies, and sponsoring school dances.

Student Council's Power
Superintendent Rose aptly described the power of the council by relating an incident that happened 20 years ago, when now prominent citizens of Greenville were students at the high school. The story goes that many students were daily putting their lunch money into slot machines located in a drug store across the street from the school building. A number of forward-thinking students called a meeting of Greenville citizens at the Pitt County Courthouse.

courtroom were Judge M. V. Barnhill, who was holding court in Greenville at the time, and Ed Flanagan, prominent Greenville citizen running for the State legislature. Flanagan told the gathering if he was elected to the legislature, he would introduce a bill outlawing slot machines in North Carolina—provided Judge Barnhill would write the bill. Judge Barnhill agreed, Flanagan was elected, and true to his word, he introduced a bill designed to outlaw slot machines in the state.

The bill was contested in court, and through a series of appeals found its way to the Supreme Court of North Carolina. However, during the time that had ensued, Judge Barnhill had been elevated to the Supreme Court bench, and he ruled on the legality of the bill. It became law, and according to Superintendent Rose, that's how slot machines came to be banned in North Carolina.

Experiment
About a year ago, an experiment in liberal education was launched at the old N. Y. A. site in Greenville. It was an experiment in that it did not follow the conventional pattern of instruction. With 35 boys now enrolled in the school, the class is termed by officials "the most progressive group in the system."

Working under James A. Vinci, former marine pilot who took his master's degree at East Carolina College, this group of boys follow a schedule which covers the entire school day. They have their own shop, laboratory, class rooms, athletic field, and garden. Work in the shop, garden, and laboratory is directly related to work in the fundamental subjects or reading, arithmetic, spelling, and English.

According to Vinci, the young participants in this new educational idea feel they have a responsible duty in a worthwhile program. "If more space and teachers were available for this type of work, it would be done in all the schools," says Superintendent Rose.

At C. M. Eppes School, there has also been extensive activity during the past two years. In the fall of 1950, with the aid and under the supervision of faculty members, several young Negro students began the construction of a work center to house the school's vocational program. The money for the project was made possible by the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools, and the students themselves provided the labor.

They have made phenomenal progress, and the building is expected to be completed by next June. It is a large, expansive building with much floor space, and faculty members there think it will provide adequate room for the vocational program for many years to come. Much equipment has already been installed and the remaining needs will be met when the project is completed. The vocational program provides instruction in brick laying, woodworking, and carpentry.

Study Programs
In addition to vocational courses, which are taught in both Greenville High School and C. M. Eppes School, the two schools have identical programs in other fields of study. Both schools provide courses of instruction leading to college or business—or marriage.

For those students planning to attend college, a special course designed to meet the requirements of colleges and universities may be followed. Superintendent Rose estimated that at least 70 per cent of the students at Greenville High school who annually graduate from the college course go on to college. He attributed this large percentage to the proximity of East Carolina College.

The business course furnishes training in merchandising, typing, and bookkeeping. Both schools avail their students of these courses, as they do instruction in Home Economics.

Greenville High School has been on the accredited list of the Southern Association of High Schools and Colleges since 1917, and C. M. Eppes School last year met the association's requirements, and was also placed on the accredited list.

One unique aspect of the city school system is its accelerated program. This program was instituted during World War II, and met with great success. Partially because of this fact, it has continued as an integral part of the system.

The main purpose of this speed-up program is to aid boys who are subject to military service, or to hasten the graduation of those students who plan to undertake a long professional course such as medicine, dentistry, or law. "I do not think a student should be required to spend a prescribed length of time in high school before going to college, if he is mentally equipped to go earlier," asserts Superintendent Rose.

He emphasizes that no person is allowed to take the accelerated program unless his health, emotional stability, and native capacity indicate his ability to satisfactorily carry it. "Parents are always consulted in regard to their wishes in the matter," Rose says.

Cooperative Effort
School officials describe the Student-Teacher Program as a fine example of cooperative effort on the part of the city school faculty, the college faculty, and the city school Board of Trustees. The program has been in existence since East Carolina College Training School was first established. Under the program, student teachers from the college learn to teach under normal conditions with an

The Greenville School Health Program in action. Two school nurses, Mrs. O. C. Noble and Miss Jacquelin Moore, are examining the children. Miss Agnes Fullilove, principal and teacher at West Greenville School, is assisting.

intendent Rose says. "The program has required careful planning to provide for the best interests of the children and the student teachers, but it has worked out admirably."

Diversified programs denoting progressive thinking have not been confined to high schools, but have been extensively projected into the lower grades. At the present time, more than 650 children are eating lunch each day in Greenville City School lunchrooms. "Only three schools have lunchrooms at present," says Superintendent Rose, "but construction of three more is planned in the near future." The three schools operating lunchrooms are West Greenville School, Third Street School, and Training School. The lunch program is conducted under the federal sponsored school lunch program, and the cost of lunch is 25 cents per child. The lunchrooms in operation are modern in every respect, and meet every requirement of the State Health Department. School children who cannot afford to buy lunch, are given free lunches.

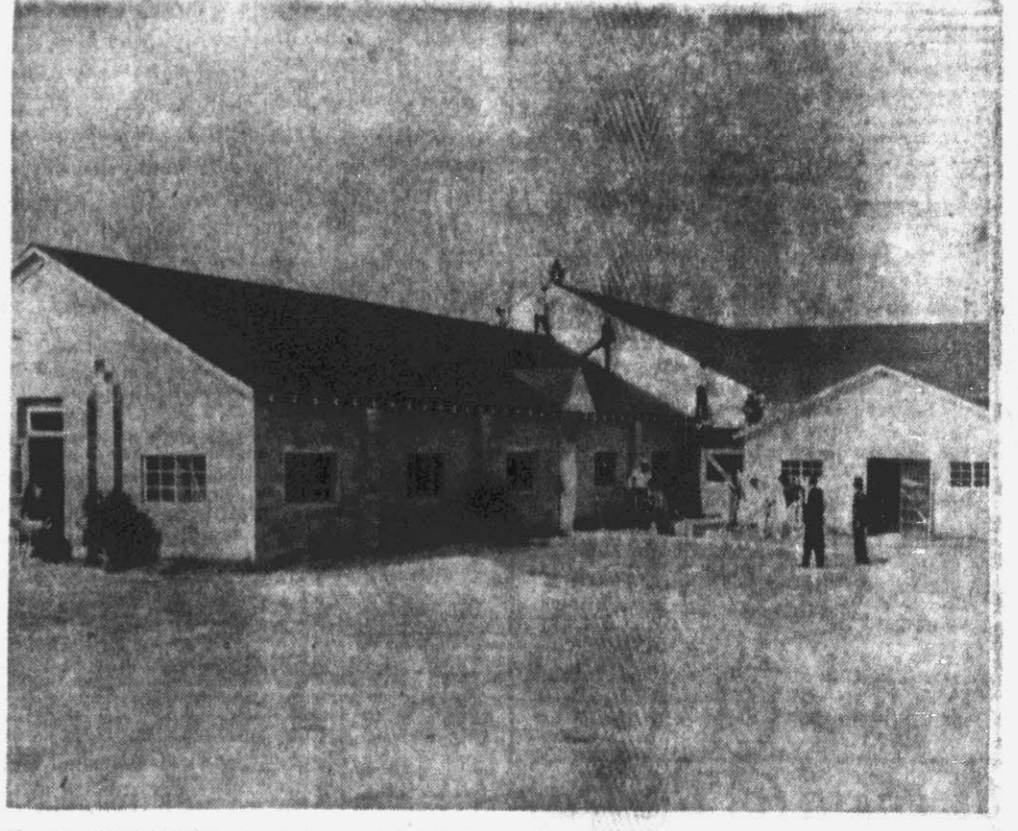

Safety And Health
Both high school and grammar grades participate in a daily safety campaign. Safety patrols are organized for each grade, and under the supervision of a faculty advisor, they deal with problems pertinent to the safety of the students. Teachers term this program a "fine grooming ground for responsible leadership in years to come."

Athletics
The sports program is paralleled in the two Greenville high schools by extensive band activity. Both high schools have bands, and a program of instruction in music is being carried into the lower grades. All young students may receive instruction on any instrument they please, but they must furnish their own instruments.

"We believe in adapting the individual program to the individual needs of the children insofar as possible," Superintendent Rose reports. "We feel that the progressive movement has done much good in that it has served to establish a better teacher-pupil relationship, introduced new ideas for buildings and equipment which are now widely used, and developed a better and more attractive type of textbook for use in American schools."

"On the other hand, we feel that children need direction and guidance, should be well grounded in the use of the English language, and know how to spell, handle figures, and write legibly."

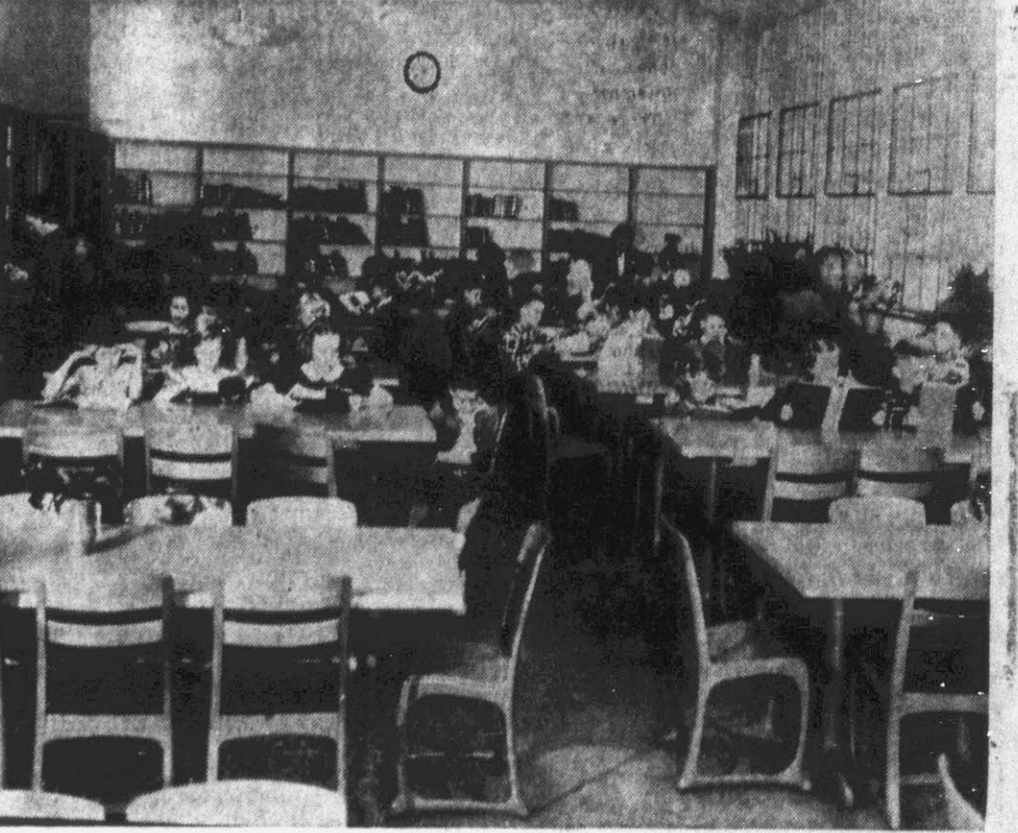

Fundamentals
Superintendent Rose emphasizes that regardless of the many advantages derived from progressive education, approximately four fifths of official school time in the Greenville City Schools is still dedicated to teaching the fundamentals of learning. "We strive to reach a common mean between the modern idea of uninhibited pursuit of learning, and the admittedly too austere methods of the pine deck, square slate, and birch rod days," he says.

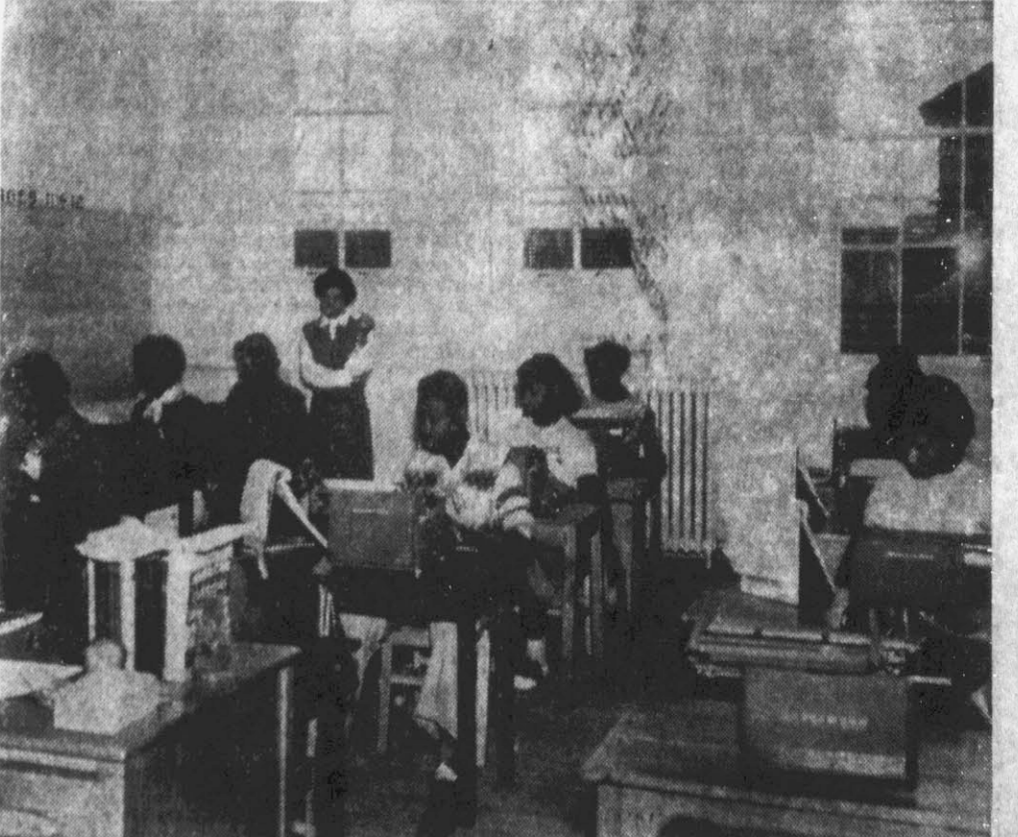

The vocational building now being erected at C. M. Eppes School. Students, under the direction of Prof. Frederick D. Sledge and Prof. Herman R. Foust, are doing the work as a class project. Also shown is Prof. W. H. Davenport, principal. The building contains an Auto Mechanics shop, Industrial Arts shop, Woodworking shop, power machinery room, band room, and brick masonry room. Construction of this building was begun about a year ago, and will be completed in June, 1952.

Strength for the Day

BY EARL L. DOUGLAS
WE CAN IF WE WILL

We have fought two wars to rid the world of war, and today the threat of war is greater than it has been in recent centuries. This simple fact is the most discouraging reality of modern life.

We expected great results from UN, but we have run into discouraging difficulties. And the UN is the successor of that League of Nations which started in hope and ended in catastrophe. Sometimes it seems as if the peace ideal is unattainable. But of course it seemed in the old days that chattel slavery could never be abolished. The pathway of moral progress is tortuous, both for the individual and for the race. But victories have been won in the past and they can be won today if we are willing to pay the price of victory. We shall have to take our rebuffs and not get discouraged. We shall have to believe in the ideal of peace and pursue it. Above all, we shall have to be patient, never allowing that patience to degenerate into apathy.

This all presupposes a wisdom which no one appears to be manifesting at the present time, and this in spite of the fact that the world is full of good minds and of well-disposed persons. World peace will not come overnight, but world peace is a possibility if we will but make it so.

Pitt's Secret To Agricultural Success

One of the reasons for Pitt County's ranking among the three top agricultural counties of North Carolina for more than a decade is evident in the report of the 1950 farm census. Last year in the county there was only one per cent of land suitable for cultivation which was not planted in crops of some sort.

The fact that Pitt is a large county and is rich in naturally good soil has a lot to do with the place it holds among the agricultural counties of the state. But the fact that the farmers of the county have learned to utilize the soil which they have is another important factor in making Pitt one of the leading agricultural counties of the state.

Diversification of field crops has given Pitt County a broader agricultural scope and lifted the farm income. The expansion of the livestock industry along with the conversion of literally thousands of acres of Pitt land into permanent pastures during the past few years has broadened the agricultural footing of the county and opened new fields of income for many farmers. The diversification, along with the adoption of better, more advanced farming methods and practices, has not only created new sources of income for Pitt farmers, but has boosted the income from the old staple crops which the county has grown for generations.

Pitt County already is a wealthy agricultural county, but farmers have just begun to tap the agricultural potential of the county. Continued adoption of better farming practices on a larger scale, continued diversification of crops and improved utilization of the farm land will build the county's farm income to even higher figures, and increase the agricultural wealth of Pitt County.

The Years Have Outmaded Armistice Day

Armistice day will go by almost unnoticed tomorrow, and on Monday there will be little to remind the people of the United States that Armistice day, which falls on Sunday this year, has been celebrated.

Some few cities and towns across the nation will have Armistice day parades and celebrations Monday, but for the most part the only reminder of the day will be that government offices are closed.

November 11 has been set aside for celebration because that was the date on which the firing ceased in the first great World War. The celebration of Armistice day memorialized the victory in one great world conflict and the lasting world peace which the end of that war was supposed to bring. Since that date the young men of the United States have fought and won another great World War, and now the nation's youth is gripped in still another life and death struggle on a foreign battle field.

The observance of the armistice and peace of 1918 is a travesty now. The celebration of Armistice day, as such should be abandoned. In its stead there should be adopted a nation-wide day of memorial to the men of the United States who served in the wars through which this nation has gone, and the men who give their lives in those wars. The Armistice day celebrations which are observed at the present time carry with them more of the memorial theme for the men who served in all the wars rather than a celebration of the peace of 1918. The celebrations could well be integrated into the Memorial day services which the nation observes May 30.

The Basic Question Remains Unanswered

General Ike Eisenhower is still the big question mark in the 1952 presidential scene. The rumor that Eisenhower has been offered the Democratic presidential nomination by Truman—alternately confirmed by "reliable sources" and denied by Democratic leaders including the President—has put new light on the national political scene.

It is no secret that leading Democrats and Republicans alike have been seeking the go-ahead sign from the General to seek his nomination as president by their respective parties. In spite of the new twist in the maneuvering which came this week, the fundamental question—for both Democrats and Republicans—remains unanswered, and can not be answered by anyone except the General. Is Eisenhower willing to seek the presidential nomination of either party?

From all evaluations, the General, who has remained aloof from politics during his brilliant military career, has everything to lose and very little to gain by seeking a presidential nomination or the office if he received the party nomination he would prefer.

Eisenhower, as a military man, is among the very top in the world today. His popularity among the American people is second to that of none of his contemporaries. Should he enter a political campaign he would be exposing himself to a rough-mud-slinging, name-calling campaign which 1952 will bring forth no matter which men receive the Democratic and Republican nominations. Eisenhower would like the presidency if it could be handed him on a platter; but in the light of the kind of campaign which would be necessary to secure the office, his desire for it apparently is cooled considerably.

The question of "which party" for Ike is in the forefront just now, but the real question still remains: Will he seek the nomination from either party?

In The Reflector's opinion right now there is little likelihood that Eisenhower will be in the political picture in 1952... but the seven months between now and convention time could change the picture considerably.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—Has General Eisenhower ever made any statements on public issues, political questions or affairs in general that represent a Republican viewpoint? asks R. F. Muncie, Ind. "Or do the Dewey-Duff crowd think he belongs to their party simply because he was born in Kansas?"

CRITICIZED—Answer: General Eisenhower has not discussed specific issues, at least not publicly, such as compulsory health insurance, the Brannan farm plan, the Taft-Hartley Act etc. But, privately and publicly, he has seemed to condemn many of the basic tenets of the New Deal and Fair Deal.

He has criticized regimentation, excessive federal regulations and controls, and the general tendency to vest too much authority at Washington. He has praised private enterprise and initiative, and indicated that he feared the Roosevelt-Truman administrations' policies were harmful to business and industry.

PRACTICAL—Perhaps the best answer to that is that such men as Winthrop Aldrich, Governor Dewey, Senator Duff, Senator Starnston, Senator Lodge and eastern figures generally, are backing him for the Republican presidential nomination. Those boys don't want a "radical" or even too thoroughgoing a "liberal" in the White House.

Anti-Eisenhower Republicans, in discussing his availability from the standpoint of practical politics, question whether he can lash out against the Roosevelt-Truman foreign policy, if nominated. Most G.O.P. leaders believe that, together with spending, political amorality and "socialism," handling of foreign problems will be a major 1952 issue.

INDICTMENT—Eisenhower's G.O.P. friends have discussed this problem at New York and Washington meetings, and do not think he will be vulnerable on this issue. They think he can and will absolve himself of the charge that, as our World War II commander in Europe and original negotiator with the Russians, he was too soft toward Moscow. That is the major indictment voiced by his enemies.

"Ike," they point out, was simply a soldier in the field. All major decisions with respect to Russia during and immediately after the war were made at a Roosevelt-Truman-Churchill level. He had to obey. Secondly, he shared the general expectation that Stalin would cooperate with the West after the conflict's end. If he was deluded, so were millions of others.

ARGUMENT—Moreover, General Eisenhower is now the organizer of an anti-Roosevelt force in Europe, which the Kremlin regards as a "hostile act." Thus, if nominated, he will campaign on his present attitude and behavior instead of on the 1941-1945 record. Finally, the Republicans will deliver their heaviest attack against the Truman-Acheson program in the Far East, with the charge that they virtually handed China to the Reds. Since "Ike" has not been associated with the Chinese and Korean questions in any way, he will have a clear field in that area.

These arguments for the defense, I must add, are not mine. They simply summarize the viewpoint of those Republicans who favor the General's nomination, despite his association with Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

Been Celebratin' Ever Since

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

"Rachel," I said last night to the wife, "you know that I never worry too much about national politics, but I certainly would like to know whether or not Ike Eisenhower is going to run for President."

"Well," W. R. said, "what are the latest predictions?"

"I'm glad you asked me that," I said, "because I certainly need a column for tomorrow."

Last week when Ike came home from his job of running Europe's defense program he was hit at all sides with questions about the Presidential nomination. He answered with statements that made him seem determined, yet on the other hand he always left the question in mind about what he will do. He said, "I have never had any political aspirations, period." Is he a Republican or a Democrat? His reply, "I will not indicate political leanings of any kind... I'm on a job in which the United States has invested worlds and worlds of treasure and time and thought, and for me to imply or indicate any particular political leanings of any kind would be a disservice to the country."

A reporter asked Ike if he could say in print that the general would not be a candidate for the Presidency. Ike shot back, "Of course you can't say that."

On his way to see Harry Truman, Ike stopped in the White House lobby to look at a painting called "The Peacemakers." In the picture are Abraham Lincoln, General Grant, the last professional soldier to become President of the United States, and General Sherman, a professional soldier who turned down Presidential nomination. Ike said he had been discussing the picture recently. He pointed out the fourth man in the picture, Admiral David Dixon Porter, and said with a poker face: "This is the one I couldn't remember."

Ike and Harry climbed into the presidential limousine and were off to Blair House and a private luncheon that lasted for more than an hour. On the way over, Harry showed Ike some pictures of the renovated White House.

Another question that enters in: Will Harry invite Ike to enter into the White House by offering him the Democratic nomination?

As Ike was leaving the White House, a reporter asked "Have you given anyone authority or a go-ahead to undertake any political activity in your behalf?"

Ike's emphatic answer was, "No!"

And I thank you.

JUDGES — Positive announcement by three candidates seeking the seat on the supreme court now held by Associate Justice Timous Valentine, and virtual certainty that there will be several other candidates, has again focused attention upon the judicial retirement act. Judicial retirement became a very live issue last year in connection with the status of Special Judge Luther Hamilton. Space does not permit full review of that case. For present purpose it suffices to say the entire judicial retirement section of the general statutes was rewritten by the 1951 general assembly, for the admitted purpose of restoring Judge Hamilton to the eligible roll for retirement compensation. Obvious desire on part of sponsoring legislators to "take care of" some other judges occasioned inclusion of a provision that has potentialities for legal raiding of the state treasury.

LIBERAL — Retirement provisions for judges of the superior court and justices of the supreme court have always been liberal. Under the present law any supreme court justice who has a service record of fifteen years on the branch, superior and superior on the supreme court, and retires at age 65 on two-thirds the annual salary for active judges. Under the provision Justice Maurice V. Barnhill and Wallace Winborne are eligible to retire at any time. There is further provision for retirement after eight years service regardless of age in event of physical disability. Unlike other state employees, the judges contribute nothing to their retirement fund. There has been some criticism of this liberal attitude toward judges, but in the main it has been approved by popular sentiment. Except for some quirks that bob up every once in awhile, like one that got into the general statutes during the confusion surrounding consideration of the revised act designed to take care of Judge Hamilton.

QUIRK—Buried down near the middle of the paragraph designated as GS 7-51 in the law books, after recitation of other qualifications for retirement at two-thirds pay is this: "... or who, while serving on the supreme court, has attained the age of eighty (80) years..." There is no requirement as to disability or tenure on the high court. It might reasonably be assumed the legislators who voted for that did not intend to go as far as they did. It is not likely that the people would elect a member of court who at time of the election was more than 79 years old, but they might. There is more probability that a governor might fill a vacancy by appointing someone of that age.

ILLUSTRATION — Shortest tenure on the supreme court in recent years was that of Associate Justice Murray James last year. He served about two months under appointment of Governor Scott after the death of Justice Seawell and was succeeded by election of Justice Jeff Johnson. James lacked a lot of being eighty years old, and the present law was not in effect then. If it had been in effect, and if Justice James had observed his eightieth birthday during that two months, he could have drawn for the rest of his natural life retirement pay of $9,000 a year, which is two thirds of the annual salary of $14,400. That didn't happen; anything like that is not apt to happen, but under the law it can happen here.

PERSONAL — Theoretically, there is nothing personal in the law. Boast of democracy has long been that it provides government by law, not by persons. Actually, almost every change in the judicial retirement act since its original enactment in 1921 has been made to fit the special case of some individual judge or justice. For that matter, most of the laws covering general retirement pay, divorce actions, adoption procedure, collection of taxes and other phases of governmental administration were inspired by the exigencies of particular cases within the knowledge of sponsoring legislators. And oftentimes the hook baited for one particular fish yields an unexpected catch.

BALANCED — Belated addition of Laurene Wright, manager of the N. C. division of Esso Standard Oil Company, to the committee investigating gasoline prices in this state, gives to that committee a balance which it had lacked before. It was pointed out in this quarter when the original committee was named that omission of a representative of any major company constituted a sort of ex parte grand jury proceedings, rather than complete investigation and study of the problem. In announcing Wright's appointment Governor Scott said the committee itself, headed by Aubrey L. Brooks of Greensboro, suggested representation of one of the big selling companies. That attitude of the committee indicates a wholesome attempt at honest investigation rather than indictment without full hearing.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

WINTER DRIVING
(New Bern Sun-Journal)

The coming of longer nights signal the approach of winter, but it is also a danger signal for motorists who will be doing more after-dark driving in the days ahead, warns L. C. Rosser, north Carolina motor vehicles commissioner. And reduced visibility at night is leading factor in the number of crippling and death-dealing traffic accidents occurring after nightfall.

This is especially true of pedestrians, since 200 persons were either killed or injured by nighttime traffic during the first six months of the year. Every motorist and every pedestrian who stops to think realizes the added danger; but there is the temptation to ignore it and to take a chance which is fatal entirely too often.

The commissioner has some urgent requests to make of every state motorist. He says: Check vehicle lighting equipment for burned out bulbs or faulty wiring. Check battery and generating equipment to head off a light failure at a crucial moment. Check headlight beams and have them properly aimed for the most effective non-glare visibility. Carefully observe the state law which requires dimming of headlights when approaching other vehicles. Dim your lights not less than 500 yards away from another car.

Reduce driving speed after dark and even further when adverse weather conditions prevail. Never overdrive the car's headlight range—that is, be prepared to stop within the distance clearly illuminated by the headlights. Do not stop an unlighted car or truck on a heavily-traveled roadway after dark.

Increase watchfulness for pedestrians—especially during rainy or foggy weather.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The first full week of business under the new income and excise tax rates will give a very blurry picture of their effects on trade. There have been few less normal weeks than that ending today.

The fact that many families bought beverages, appliances and other articles ahead of the excise tax increases was certain to diminish buying this week. (Last week's sales totals were way up.)

The occurrence this week of election day, a day of sales and heavy shopping in many areas, will tend to raise the national sales total.

On the other hand, the severe weather, including storms in the mid-West that gave St. Louis the worst snowfall in 30 years and beleaguered shoppers in hundreds of cities and towns and lashing gales, rain and snow in the east, definitely reduced potential sales. In addition, merchants in many areas were going slow in increasing prices to offset excise taxes until they saw what competitors were doing.

So any conclusions about the effects of the new excises must remain fragmentary. Most merchants believe that consumers will quickly adjust themselves to new prices. They usually have in the past, though not always. Sales of champagnes, for instance, are only a tiny fraction of that of still wines, almost entirely because of the high taxes on bubble water.

Merchants are more concerned about the increased income taxes and the larger withholding taxes that result. This bite has barely been felt. Those paid on a monthly or semi-monthly basis got their October checks trimmed at the old rate. Those paid weekly got last week's checks lessened or, in some cases, not lessened at all until accountants could ascertain new schedules. Those paid weekly get their first full samples of the new deductions this week; those semi-monthly next week, and those paid monthly not until around December 1, near the peak of the Christmas shopping season.

The effects of the higher income taxes are expected to be largely psychological. Sober economic forecasts indicate that higher employment, pay rises and more overtime will fully offset the total additional tax bite. But many individuals, reacting to smaller pay checks, will determine on regimens of economy. Fortunately for business, most of these determinations wear off quickly.

ACCOUNTANTS ENTER MARKET FOR ASPEN

The new tax law has many of the country's smartest accountants in an all-out dither. They complain that the provisions are far from clear.

The new tax proposals, written by the best tax authorities in Congress and the Treasury, started off as clear as they were painful. They were laced with amendments in both the Senate and the House, resulting in two different tax bills. A conference committee blended the two bills into one under great pressure of time, resulting in what some accountants call a jumble of technicalities. Regional Bureau of Internal Revenue men are scant help, pleading they must wait for interpretations from Washington.

"I have one corporation with two subsidiaries with a fiscal year beginning March 1," said one accountant. "I have to calculate normal surtax and excess profits taxes on new bases and effective back to April 1, adjust for the new EPT base, adjust for the fiscal year and adjust for the tax ceiling, all in accordance with a tax bill almost as long as the Old Testament and a lot more contradictory. I am thinking of giving up accounting and going into something only mildly crazy, like producing movies."

OFFERS OF T-SHIRTS 6 TIMES REQUIREMENTS

The Army called for bids this week on a total of 4,531,320 T-shirts. Thirty-eight companies offered a total of 30,000,000, an indication of the situation in the cotton goods industry. Lowest offers were just under 38 cents a shirt.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK —(AP)— The thing a woman wants least from any man in his advice on how she should treat her husband. Discovering this odd trail of feminine psychology has put me in dutch with a lot of lady readers.

A woman will go to a man today to design her a dress or a new hair-do. She will ask his advice about the best stocks and bonds to invest her cash in. She will welcome—or at least listen to—male views on any subject in the world from how pretty she is to what a graceful carriage she has.

But let a poor hapless outside man tell her how to treat the guy in her life—and she bares her fangs in a storm of vowels and consonants. On the subject of how to handle her own chunk of manly real estate she wants to remain sole authority.

This dismal conviction arises from a mistake I made recently. The mistake lay in writing an article on "How To Spoil A Husband." My thesis was that a lot of American wives wanted to spoil their husbands, but had forgotten how. I undertook to tell them—but never again.

In the course of my little essay I made the remark that a wife might greet her husband with his houseplants in her teeth when he came home after a hard day over his hot desk at the office.

That wagghish observation has landed me in the doghouse. For one thing, my own Ozark bride, Frances, happened to read the article.

"What you don't know about women, Rover, would fill an emptier head than yours," she began—and went on from there. It turned out to be a one-way conversation. Her way.

Then the letters begin to come in. The ladies across the land wanted to know whether I thought they ought to wear dog-collars, too.

(Editors note: Well, they're cheaper than mink scarfs.)

(Boyle's note: Look, you better stay out of this—or you're going to be in the soup also.)

Many a wife also took just as much umbrage about my innocent suggestion that she perform for her husband once in a while some of those courtesies he usually performs for her—such as lighting up his cigaret for him.

"My husband will crash through 30 people at a cocktail party to strike a match for a blonde across the room," one said. "But at home if I stood there with an unlighted cigaret in my mouth he wouldn't notice it if he were wearing a microscope."

"If I ever light his cigaret for him—well, it'll be with a blow-torch."

And another wife wrote: "We will gladly greet our husband with his slippers dangling from our mouths, if we are allowed to carry our dog manners a trifle further when he becomes slightly unreasonable."

"But what makes you think that Momma has been sipping tea out of a golden cup ever since he left?"

She said that what threatened to drive most young mothers to drink was this: to spend a herculean day mopping, dusting, washing, ironing, and cooking—and then to have friend husband greet her at eventide thusly: "Hello, dear wife, why do YOU look so tired?"

Her letter continued: "And you say that we ought to get our own coats out of the closets and put them on all by ourselves for a change, on the nights we go out? Well, Mr. Husband won't get a stiff arm from helping his wife scramble into her coat once every two months."

All right, ladies, I was wrong. It isn't the husbands who need to be spoiled. Someone ought to tell them how to spoil wives—their own, naturally.

Washington Letter

By JANE LEADS

WASHINGTON—Life has been a series of regenerations for Mrs. Albert C. Powell Graham, who started out as a collector of bugs and dolls as a little girl and is now, as a grandon pite it, a "bit wheel" writer of children's books.

The book-writing stage began in 1938, when Mrs. Graham, just widowed, came to Washington after years of teaching music in Iowa's public schools. Born in Delaware, reared in Ottumwa, Ia., she graduated from the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago where she studied piano, voice and public school music. During her teaching career she wrote music, pageants, plays and short stories.

"I am sort of a nut about American history, so when I got to Washington I got myself a room at the Congressional Library and began to study up on presidential history," she said. The result was a book, now in its sixth edition, "The Presidents and Their Families in the White House," which she published in 1948. When Harry S. Truman became President it was retitled "The Thirty-Two Roads to the White House."

Another book which is popular is "Strike up the Band," which deals with about 36 modern jazz band leaders beginning with Louis Armstrong and including Paul Whiteman, Fred Waring, Rudy Vallee and Benny Goodman.

"It was such fun writing about these bands that I got interested in all bands and wrote another book called 'The Great Bands of America,'" Mrs. Graham said. This volume, just off the press, deals first with national military service bands, beginning with the Marine Band, started in 1775.

From service bands the author goes on to describe concert bands from Sousa's to Edwin Franko Goldman's, municipal, industrial, circus, Salvation Army, high school and college bands. "I just love a band, especially the marching, uniformed bands," she said.

Mrs. Graham has turned out other history books, one on Columbus, another on Lafayette, and has written words for a series of public school music readers.

"I write operettas for relaxation, and I'm having a wonderful time," she said. In "old moments" she goes back to her collecting and is building up a group of Indian dolls.

LYNN, Mass. (UP)—It didn't take police long to solve the theft of $50 worth of yo-yos. Every child seen playing with a yo-yo was questioned. Soon police had captured two 12-year-olds who admitted stealing them from the American News Co. storeroom.

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONERS' SALE OF THE RICHARD L. (DICK) MAY FARM LAND IN GREENVILLE AND WINTERVILLE TOWNSHIPS

Under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned Commissioners by an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County duly signed and entered by Honorable D. T. House Jr., Clerk of said Court, on the 1st day of October, 1951, in that certain Special Proceeding pending in said Superior Court entitled, "William May and wife, Clarissa May et al. vs. Mary May and wife, Adell May et al." and being S.P. No. 5485 on the Special Proceeding Docket of said Court, proceeding having been instituted for the purpose of selling the lands of the late Richard L. (Dick) May, deceased, for debts among his heirs at law, the undersigned Commissioners will, on Tuesday, the 30th day of November, 1951, beginning at 11:00 o'clock a.m. and continuing thereafter until said land is sold, at the premises of the late Richard L. (Dick) May, deceased, about one mile north of the Town of Winterville, N.C. on N.C. Highway No. 11, offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash, in separate farm units, the following described real estate, to wit:

First tract. That certain tract or parcel of land situate, lying and being in Greenville and Winterville Townships, on N.C. Highway No. 11, and beginning at the intersection of the center line of N. and described in deed from A. W. Ange in Book X-15 at page 94 of the Pitt County Registry.

Tobacco allotment for the year 1951: 107 acres.

The farm land above described has been subdivided into a number of separate farm units, and each farm unit will carry with it tobacco allotment according to the crop land in each unit. The property, other than farm land, will be offered in separate units as shown on the map of survey.

The successful bidder or bidders at the sale will be required to deposit with the undersigned commissioners 10% of their bids at the time of the sale. The bids will not be closed for ten days and may be raised during said period by making the legal deposit with the Clerk of the Superior Court as provided by law. The sale is subject to confirmation by the Court, and when and if confirmed, the balance of the purchase money must be paid at the time the deed is delivered.

Maps of the above described land showing the various tracts of land as subdivided and numbered may be inspected at the offices of the undersigned Commissioners and at the office of J. M. Dresbach, Surveyor, in Greenville, N.C.

This is the 19th day of October, 1951.

THE WAY OUT OF THE DARK

There is a way out of the deep darkness that envelops the world; it is the way of the Bible, the way of light.

The sweet Singer of Israel found this way and exclaimed, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." The prophet Isaiah saw it when he stood by the Irradiated Light. The Lord said the same thing on a everlasting night, and thy God thy glory.

The Bible has been God's Pillar of Fire to lead men and nations out of darkness into light. The chaotic blackness of the Aeneas Age was shattered by the Light which came out of Israel in fulfillment of the Scriptures. In this light new faith and hope were born.

The darkness of the Middle Ages disappeared in the brightness of the Renaissance and the Reformation when the leaders of men searched the Scriptures and found the Light of God. Every great revival of spiritual religion has cleared the mists from human eyes and lighted man's way to peace.

The darkness that envelops the world today will roll away on the wings of the morning when men and nations turn back to the Bible and back to God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ARE FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a schoolhouse of spiritual values. It is a source of strength, courage, and inspiration. There are few sound ideas which are not found in the Bible. For his own sake, (1) For his children's sake, (2) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his love and unflinching support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY HILLIS

"Washington will beat Kinston by two touchdowns — at least. Kinston is not the ball club now that they were when we lost to them. Washington, if anything, has improved."

Those were prophetic words for one Northeastern Conference coach who was in Washington last night to watch the two clubs clash in the state's number one Class AA headliner. Washington won the game 34-13.

If any one person could be given credit for deciding the outcome of the game, it would have to be Washington's Dick Cherry. Running at quarterback in the T, tailback in a modified single wing, and safety man on defense, Cherry played the entire game and was easily the night's most outstanding performer.

He completely took the headlines away from Kinston's Bryant Aldridge with three touchdown performances that had the crowd on its feet throughout the contest. His first touchdown came on a 65 yard punt return that left the crowd—and the Kinston team—wondering how he did it. He was seemingly trapped in front of the Washington bench but he shook loose his would-be tacklers and outran practically everybody for the six points.

His other two touchdowns came from the quarterback position in Washington's "T" formation. One was a short thrust through the middle of the line and the other was a 30 yard jaunt around end. Cherry's team mate, Red Dixon, also turned in what might be termed "an All-State performance" again last night. Playing almost the entire game, Dixon was responsible time and again for throwing the Kinston backs for losses and it was he who broke through to tackle Aldridge in end zone for a Washington safety.

Aldridge was practically all that Kinston could claim last night as he scored both the touchdowns for the Red Devils and turned in a whole of a performance on defense. It was a typical performance for Aldridge.

There were three All-State players on that field last night in Washington—Cherry, Dixon, and Aldridge. If there are better ball players around in Class AA football, I'd surely like to see them. Incidentally, Chippy Wagner, the Washington head coach, has just been selected as the coach for the East team in next year's East-West All-Star game. The game will be played in Greensboro sometime in late August as a part of the coaching clinic annually held there.

Clarification of one point which has received considerable publicity since in order right now. Let's do it.

Quite a bit of comment has been made this year about supposed pre-season polls which put East Carolina in the driver's seat for the 1951 North State Conference football chase. The thing has been built up until some reports being published now have just about everybody in on the picking.

Actually, there was only two newspapers in North Carolina that sponsored pre-season polls to determine the opinion of coaches and writers. Neither of the polls put ECC in the lead even though a couple of the coaches thought the Pirates might be loaded with some sort of secret weapon to replace Roger Thrift.

One of the papers, the Greensboro Daily News, actually hit the North State Conference race right on the nose. In a September 17 story by Moses Crutchfield, the prediction was that the North State would end in this manner: (1) Lenoir Rhyne; (2) Elon; (3) Appalachian; (4) Catawba; (5) East Carolina; (6) Western Carolina; (7) Guilford.

As of this morning, almost two months later, the only difference is in the first place, where there is a tie between Elon and Lenoir Rhyne which will be broken tonight, and in third place where Catawba has the edge over Appalachian. East Carolina and Western Carolina are in a tie for fifth place. Guilford, as predicted, is yet to win a football game this year.

Crutchfield, in the September 17 article, stated that ECC had lost too much from a top-notch 1950 ball club to be any kind of a contender in 1951. As of today, he is expressing mild surprise that the Pirates have done as well as their record shows.

Frick Says Will Not Use Whiplash

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Ford Frick does not think he should "hold a whiplash" over owners of major league ball clubs. The new baseball commissioner, here for an off-the-cuff talk today before the City Club, declared, "There will be misunderstandings, of course, and there will be decision for me to make. That is my job—making decisions—and I'll do it the best way I know how."

He also voiced respect for the owners. "It has occurred to me that during the search for a new commissioner, baseball fans were given to believe that the owners of major league clubs were a bunch of disreputable skunks and someone had to keep an eye on them," he said.

Among other qualifications, women Marine recruits must be at least 18 and less than 31.

Beaufort Trounces Ayden By 19-6 Score

Johnny Lynch Big Gainer For Dogs

Sea Dogs Come From Behind In Second Quarter; Beaufort Dominates Second Half Offensive

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

AYDEN—Beaufort's Sea Dogs, led by a hard running fullback by the name of Johnny Lynch, turned a six-point first quarter deficit into a 19-6 victory here last night by running rough shod over Ayden's mild Tornados in a second half explosion.

Ayden started strong in the first period to march 91 yards for a touchdown the second time it received the ball, requiring but nine plays to go the distance. Hal Edwards and Harry Ross alternated to carry the ball to the 35, where John Edward Cheek took it over on a wide sweeping double reverse. Cheek was helped out by several good blocks by his team-mates, but he stumbled across the goal line with two Beaufort men on top of him. Edwards' attempt to run the extra point failed.

On 1-2 Yard Line
The Sea Dogs took the following kickoff and went to the Ayden 4 yard line, marching 70 yards. Beaufort was unable to get the ball over in four tries, and Ayden took over on its own 1-2 yard marker. Three running plays carried out to the 7 and Edwards kicked.

Beaufort scored its first touchdown soon after the second quarter opened. Jimmy Parkins took the ball on a 16 yard gallop to the Ayden 18, and in four running plays Lynch went down to the one yard line, where quarterback Wallace Connor went over for the TD. B. G. O'Neill kicked the extra point and Beaufort took the lead for the first time in the game.

Coach Johnny Evans' team went over for its second touchdown on the first play of the fourth period, catching a 50 yard drive. Lynch again did the majority of the running, but the payoff play was a 15 yard pass from Lewis Woodard to Billy Eudy for the touchdown. The pass from center went over O'Neill's head on the extra point attempt and he was smothered when he attempted to run with the ball.

The remainder of the final quarter was all in favor of Lynch and Company. Another Beaufort threat was stopped by the Tornado line on its own four yard line after a 55 yard march.

Ayden attempted to pass its way out of trouble, but on the second attempt, Center Pearson Willis intercepted an Edwards' pass on the Ayden 25 and carried to the two yard line before he was stopped.

On the second try, Lynch went off right tackle for the touchdown. The attempted conversion by Wallace Garner hit the goal post and bounced back onto the playing field, and Beaufort held the lead at 19-6. The Tornados marched out to the Beaufort 45 follow. The kickoff, but the Sea Dogs took over on downs as Delano Cox fumbled on fourth down. Gus Farloe went around right end for 30 yards on the last play of the game.

Fullback Lynch carried the ball 28 times during the night for a net total of 159 yards gained on the ground. The Beaufort team gained but 184 yards rushing, while Lynch averaged approximately 5.7 yards per try.

Ayden has but one more regular season game on its schedule, with Hertford's Indians in Homecoming for the Tornados next week. It has already accepted an invitation to play in the Goober Bowl on Thanksgiving Day against Weldon.

Tommy Bolt Tops Action In North South Golf Meet

PINEHURST, N. C. (UP)—Tommy Bolt was the leader in the North and South Open golf tournament today as play was halted for one day in deference to the heavy college football schedule.

Most of the players planned to attend football games in the area, while others hoped to catch up on their sleep before the start of tomorrow's fourth and final round. Bolt, a driving range instructor from Durham, N. C., stole the lead in yesterday's third round with a one-under-par 71 that gave him a total of 214 strokes for 54 holes.

Cary Middlecoff needed only a par-four on the 18th hole to tie Bolt for the lead. But the second-round leader three-putted for a bogey five and slipped into second place with a 73-215.

At least three members of Britain's Ryder Cup team were still in the running. They were Jimmy Adams, who had a 73 yesterday for an even-par 216, and Max Faulkner and Dai Rees, who were tied at 219. Faulkner had a 74 in the third round, Rees a 73.

Julius Boros of Southern Pines, N. C., the first-round leader, shot a two-under-par 70 yesterday. That gave him a 218 and dethroned him with Adams. Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass., for third place.

Despite a rather erratic 75 yesterday, Dick Chapman of Pinehurst remained the leading amateur with a 218.

Wife Says Ailing Thorpe Is 'Broke'

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The spirit which made Jim Thorpe one of the greatest athletes of all time kept him cheerful today following a hip cancer operation and an announcement from his wife that he is "destitute."

Thorpe, 63, had the tumor removed from his lower lip at the Lankenau Hospital yesterday. "A great surgeon did it. There was no fee. That's because Jim is destitute," Mrs. Thorpe said.

The hospital declined to identify the surgeon who performed the operation. However, hospital administrator Daniel E. Gay said that it was a "cheerful Thorpe" who looked ahead to recovery.

"He's doing very well, and he will be perfectly okay," Daniel said. "That big body of an athlete is doing him good now."

Thorpe's financial status was revealed by his wife, and the hospital said it understood he was without funds.

Mrs. Thorpe said Jim got nothing from a recent movie of his life because he signed away all rights 20 years ago for $1,500. She said Jim "spent most of his money on his people, or gave it away."

Top Teams Are Favorites In Football Clashes Today

By NORMAN MILLER United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Southern California was favored over Stanford in a battle for the Rose Bowl, and Michigan State sought to quash Notre Dame's bid for a place among the nation's top-ranked teams today in the headline games on the college football program.

Coach Jess Hill's Trojans were a one-touchdown choice to hand Stanford its first defeat of the season and all but clinch the berth as the Pacific Coast Conference's representative in the big bowl.

But the Trojans and Indians are unbeaten in four conference games. After Stanford, Southern Cal's only remaining game is against UCLA, which still has a bare chance for the Rose Bowl. Stanford's last two conference opponents are Oregon State and California.

Michigan State, the nation's third-ranked team, was favored by a touchdown over the Fighting Irish in a banner attraction to be viewed on the Eastern television network. The Spartans, who won a 36 to 33 thriller last year, are undefeated and untied in six games. An upset victory for Notre Dame, ranked 11th, will shoot the Irish back to the lofty heights they once held.

Five of the other perfect record teams — top-ranked Tennessee, Illinois, Maryland, Princeton and Cincinnati — were expected to win with little difficulty.

The Illini, leading contenders for the Big Ten berth in the Rose Bowl, were favored by three touchdowns to make Iowa their seventh straight victim. After the Hawkeyes, Illinois still must face a pair of Big Ten toughies in Ohio State and Northwestern before it can clinch the bid to the Tournament of Roses classic.

Tennessee was a 21-point choice over Washington and Lee for its 17th straight triumph over the past two seasons; Maryland was 14 over Navy; Princeton, seeking its 20th consecutive triumph since 1949, was 27 points over Harvard, and Cincinnati was a one-sided pick over Ohio University.

In major inter-sectional games, Michigan was favored over Cornell, Wisconsin over Pennsylvania, Holy Cross over Marquette, Army over The Citadel, Villanova over Detroit, Kansas over Loyola (Calif.), Clemson over Boston College, Ohio State over Pittsburgh, and Boston University over Oregon.

Aside from the key games in the Big Ten and PCC, there were few top-drawer conference battles elsewhere on the day's program. Most of the other conference leaders were idled, engaged in non-conference games, or faced weak opponents.

Here is how the remainder of the program shaped up:

EAST: Columbia over Dartmouth, Penn State over Syracuse, Bucknell over Colgate, Rutgers and Brown even.

MIDWEST: Indiana over Minnesota, Northwestern over Purdue, Oklahoma over Missouri, Iowa State over Nebraska, Colorado over Utah, Tulsa over Kansas State.

SOUTH: Georgia Tech over Virginia Military, Duke over Wake Forest, Mississippi over Auburn, Louisiana State over Vanderbilt, Florida over Georgia, Kentucky over Tulane, William and Mary over Virginia Tech, Virginia over North Carolina.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over Rice, Texas over Baylor, Texas A&M over Southern Methodist.

FAR WEST: Oregon State over UCLA, California over Washington, Washington State over Idaho.

In games played last night, the University of Miami trimmed Chattanooga 34 to 7 as Frank Smith and end Ed Lutes each scored two touchdowns; Hardin-Simmons walloped Texas Western 46 to 0 in a Border Conference game; Furman beat Newberry 33 to 13, and Morris Harvey trimmed Davis Elkins 23 to 0.

Progrid Eleven Worries Brown

CLEVELAND (UP)—If Coach Paul Brown of the champion Cleveland Browns was a fingernail-chewer, he would have his nails bitten off to his elbow over Sunday's game with the "pent-up" Philadelphia Eagles.

In short, Brown is "plenty worried" about the Eagles, who have been on the skids ever since the Browns defeated them in the opening game of last season, 35 to 10, a trouncing that paved the way for their ouster as defending National Football League champs.

Cleveland in that game, "was the best team I ever had," Brown said, pointing out that his boys had waited four years for a crack at the NFL after taking as many titles in the old All-America Conference.

Now Brown is afraid that the Eagles, "with everything to gain and nothing to lose," will exhibit the same sort of undamned feeling that his squad had.

The game with the Eagles and ones with the New York Giants and Chicago Bears the next two weekends will "make or break us," Brown added.

The "winningest" coach is hopeful, however, that Sunday's game will find everything right with the Browns. Last week, he cited, the defensive unit was lax, whereas in the two games before that, the offense was slipping. "If everything clicks, we'll be OK," he said.

Raschi Released

BALTIMORE—(AP)—New York Yankee Pitcher Vic Raschi is slated for discharge today from Johns Hopkins Hospital. A frayed cartilage was removed from the hurler's knee nine days ago.

Raschi will remain in a Baltimore hotel for several days after his release, he said. A cast has been removed from his knee, and he is now getting around on crutches.

A regular airlift for livestock is now in operation from Kangaroo Island to Adelaide, Australia, a run of 90 air miles.

Detroit Releases King Kong Keller

FREDERICK, Md.—(AP)—Outfielder Charlie (King Kong) Keller, who has been released unconditionally by the Detroit Tigers, says he has no immediate plans for the future but that he "can't retire."

The Tiger management announced yesterday the release of Keller and Pitcher Hank Borowy.

Keller, at his home here, said that in September he told Charlie Gehring, Detroit general manager, that he was "through playing and am practically 100 per cent sure I don't want a club manager's job."

Big Turnip

DRUMHELLER, Alta.—(AP)—Mrs. Eric Holmes cast a heavy vote in the competition for giant turnips in this region. She harvested a turnip weighing 19 1/2 pounds from her garden.

Pirates Vs Marines

The East Carolina Pirates will be shooting for their fourth victory this afternoon at Cherry Point in a game with the Marines that is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

After today's game, the Pirates will be idle a week before taking on the Citadel in Charleston, S. C., on November 24.

Virginia Favored To Beat Carolina

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UP)—Virginia, who tumbled doughty Duke last week in a national upset, was a strong favorite today to take North Carolina's tired Tar Heels.

Kickoff was scheduled for 2 p. m. in bright, brisk weather. More than 25,000 fans, a capacity crowd, was expected to turn out to watch the Cavaliers drop North Carolina, a feat they haven't accomplished in 25 years.

Jimmy Lesale, a native North Carolinian, led the Virginians in their assault on the Tar Heels. Sophomore tailback Billy Williams was counted out of the North Carolina lineup at the last minute with injuries, and definitely handicapped Tar Heel chances.

MARINE COURTESY
NEW YORK—(AP)—A Gentleman is the lieutenant colonel in charge of the U. S. Marine Corps Division of Public Information in New York City.

SAFETY LOCK—Tex Bjorklund, Los Angeles policeman, displays a revolver lock he invented which he claims prevents trigger movement, cocking or firing prematurely.

The first Marine Corps recruiting station was a smoke-filled waterfront rendezvous known as "Tun Tavern" on South Water Street in Philadelphia.

Mailing Sheets Of T B Seals Nearly Prepared

Volunteer workers for the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale have spent several days at Christmas Seal Sale Headquarters, Greenville Service League Thrift Shop, preparing for the mailing of sheets of the new Christmas Seals to Pitt County residents.

The 1951 Christmas Seal Sale begins on November 19 with the mail delivery of Christmas Seals to residents throughout the County. The sale will be used to finance the 1952 program of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, Dr. W. E. Marshall heads the Seal Committee.

"When County residents open their Christmas Seal letters November 19, they will find the jolly face of Santa Claus smiling at them," said, Marshall. "The Christmas Seal also bears the red Double-Barred Cross, which appears on the Christmas Seal every year, regardless of changes in design," he said.

The Double-Barred Cross, Marshall added, is the international symbol of the fight against tuberculosis and the registered insignia of the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliates, including the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association. Its appearance each year on the Christmas Seal, he stressed, assures the public that in purchasing Christmas Seals they are contributing to the support of an organization dedicated to fighting tuberculosis, a communicable disease.

Robert Stephens, artist, of Newark, New Jersey, is designer of the 1951 Seal, Marshall said. His design was selected by the National Tuberculosis Association's Christmas Seal Advisory Committee, composed of representatives of affiliated associations, which selects the Seal each year from designs submitted by artists throughout the country.

The Christmas Seals were produced by the National Tuberculosis Association and supplied to associations in the 48 states and District of Columbia, and to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Canal Zone.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 12 cases involving nine defendants. Three of them were found not guilty.

Charlie Smith, Negro, charged with receiving stolen goods, was found not guilty.

Sam J. Atkinson, Negro, was found not guilty of allowing a non-licensed operator to drive his motor vehicle.

No probable cause was found in the case in which Rufus Spain, Negro, who was charged with breaking entering and larceny.

Henry Terry, Negro, was found guilty of four charges. The court gave him 30 days on the roads for discharging firearms in the city; two years on the roads for assaulting Detective Nathan H. Byrd with a deadly weapon with intent to kill; two years for carrying a concealed weapon, and two years for assault with a deadly weapon.

Sylvester Wilson, Negro, proprietor of Paradise Cafe, Albemarle Avenue, was found guilty of selling wine on Sunday. The court gave him 30 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $50 and costs and recommended that Wilson's wine and beer licenses be revoked. The court further ordered the defendant not to sell any wine, beer or spirituous liquor for six months. Wilson gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Alice Mae Jones, Negro, was given 30 days in jail, for driving without an operator's license, suspended on payment of $25 and costs.

Drunk: Jack Warren, $10; John Jasper Langley, Negro, 30 days or $10.

Mandy Spencer, Negro, drunk and vulgar and profane language, was found guilty of disorderly conduct. The court gave her 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $30, costs deducted and on condition that she not go on the premises of Willie Spencer, Negro, and not harm him or his family.

Needed $1,000 Raised By 4-H Group For Foundation

Achievement Day for the Pitt County Negro 4-H Club and Home Demonstration Club members, held at the armory yesterday, was attended by more than 700 people.

John W. Mitchell of the United States Department of Agriculture was a special guest of the Home Demonstration and 4-H Clubs.

Highlight of the annual event was the announcement by Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro home demonstration agent, that Negro 4-H Club boys and girls of Pitt County had donated $1,000 to the North Carolina Negro 4-H Club Foundation, Inc. The members had been asked to each donate $1 to the fund. Many boys and girls worked in cotton fields and elsewhere to obtain the money for their donations. T. T. Mitchell, assistant Negro county farm agent said.

Special recognition was given the following women during the day's exercises for perfect attendance at the Home Demonstration Clubs:

Mrs. Maggie Strong, president; Mrs. M. T. Burney, secretary; Mrs. Ameta Alleme, assistant secretary, and Mrs. J. M. Reeves, treasurer.

Recognition also was given the following members for attendance: Mrs. Estella Edwards, Mrs. Eula Baker, Lewis; Mrs. Luvenia Level, Griffin, Mrs. Lillian White, Bruce, and Mrs. Sarah Smith, Haddock's.

Special awards were made to the following Negro Home Demonstration Club members:

Canned Food — Mrs. Bell Jefferson, Bynum; Mrs. Mabel White, Bruce; Mrs. Estella Edwards, Callco; Mrs. Polly Joyner, Lewis.

Frozen Foods — Mrs. Almada Jones, Mrs. Cora Wilson, Clemons; Mrs. Della Foreman, Lewis; Mrs. Carrie Hardy, Lewis.

Frustrated Man

KEY WEST, Fla. — (AP) — President Truman was a frustrated man today.

He kept a sharp lookout for an improvement in the weather.

He hasn't been able to swim or sunbathe since he flew to this naval submarine station Thursday.

It's been too cold, too wet or too cloudy since that time for even a man as hardy as the President to venture outdoors without a sweater.

Nobody in Key West talked about anything except the weather.

Bus Fare Boost Set For Kinston

RALEIGH — (AP) — Bus fares in Kinston are increasing from 10 to 13 cents a ride.

The State Utilities Commission approved the increase yesterday at the request of the Kinston Transit Company. The company said at a public hearing last week it was losing money.

New rates are 13 cents a ride, or two tokens for 25 cents. School fares remain unchanged, five rides for 25 cents.

Rural Electrical Program On Schedule, Say Utilities

A report from the Greenville Utilities office this morning showed that the commission's Rural Electrification Program is progressing just about on schedule.

The engineer's report for the week ending today revealed 13 miles of line staked off as to a scheduled 112, and 79 miles released for immediate construction as to a scheduled 95. More than 95 miles of right of way has been cleared as to a scheduled 55, and 17 poles set as to a planned 40.

This project will expand the current system by 240 miles of line, and homes.

The commission already will serve an additional 1,500 farm operates approximately 700 miles of rural lines. Superintendent of Utilities Martin Swartz said, "and it is in our area current."

Our plan to give all the farm homes a cooperative under the federal-sponsored Rural Electrification Administration.

Swartz stated that no additional viably deliberated purchase of the action has been taken on the preliminary system. Members of the Utilities Commission inspected the lines from an automobile Friday but action was deferred until the next meeting, as all the members were not present.

Tuesday night as regularly scheduled.

Drivers Credited With Rising Toll

Russell Rogerson, field representative of the Safety Division of the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles, guest speaker at the Exchange Club here last night, discussed "Safety On Highways."

Rogerson said his department places the blame for the increasing death and injury toll directly on the drivers of motor vehicles. He said engineering factors in road building of narrow roads and sharp curves cause a lot of wrecks.

"Lack of rigid enforcement of highway laws also may be credited with some of this increase," the speaker said. "Ninety per cent of the accidents on the highways occur because drivers are guilty of law violations," he added.

for a Pitt County safety committee Rogerson outlined a proposed plan to be composed of two members from each of the five local civic organizations. He suggested that this committee might work out a safety program that would contribute to elimination of injuries and deaths and personal property damage.

President Robert S. (Sweeney) Moyer presided. He announced that the Exchange Club plans to sponsor a Midget Bowl game for the Greenville to be played Thanksgiving Day, if village midget football championship possible. Warren Carroll outlined plans for the game.

Next Friday night will be "Ladies' Night" at the Exchange Club.
