Easy Reelection For Juan Peron

Argentine Strong Man Has Ample Majority In Both Houses Of Congress And Friendly Governments In Provinces

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Argentine President Juan D. Peron was reelected today to a six-year term, with an ample majority in both houses of Congress and friendly governments in the provinces.

Official returns gave President Peron a 2 to 1 lead over Radical deputy Ricardo Balbin, who was the President's principal opposition in yesterday's voting.

Heavy rains delayed compilation of final results and were blamed for a light vote. The Ministry of Interior estimated 70 per cent—or about 6,000,000 of the nation's 8,764,348 eligible voters went to the polls, guarded by squads of armed soldiers.

With an estimated 40 per cent of the vote reported, Peron had 1,649,871 and Balbin, who was arrested twice during the campaign on charge of disrespect to Peron, 757,220.

The Peronista candidates were winning elections for governors, deputies, senators and mayors in all provinces. However, the Radicals claimed to have won three districts in Buenos Aires province.

Women voted for the first time in Argentine history.

The voting was without serious incident—except the Radicals complained government vehicles were being used to promote Peronista candidates.

The government-organized General Federation of Labor (CGT) said shortly after the polls closed:

"The forces of reaction suffered the most overwhelming and shameful defeat. (Former U.S. Secretary of State Spruille Braden and his benchmen have been definitely swept from the Argentine republic.)"

At midnight the "state of internal war," which was declared following an abortive five-hour revolt against Peron Sept. 28, was reimposed. It had been suspended 24 hours for the elections.

Pro-government newspapers announced Peron's victory. Under a two-inch headline, La Epoca said: "Peron Was Reelected." Noticias Gracias said he "won by an ample margin in all the country."

For the first time in Argentina, all the nation's elective offices were at stake on one day. Approximately 20,000 candidates contested for 6,000 offices, ranging from President to city councilman.

Peron, who took office June 14, 1946, was supported by three strong organizations—the Peronista Party, the Peronista Women's Party, headed by his wife, Eva, and the CGT.

Balbin's radical party was the strongest group opposing Peron. The Radicals held 19 of the 158 seats in the old Chamber of Deputies.

The Democratic (conservative) Party held one parliamentary seat. All 30 Senate seats also were decided in yesterday's voting.

Loan And Policy Voice Seen As Winnie's Goal

Washington Visit Seen As First Move To Gain Greater Foreign Policy Voice For Churchill Government

WASHINGTON (UP)—Observers predicted today that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill will ask for new U. S. dollars, aid and a greater voice in Allied policy-making when he visits President Truman here in January.

White House press secretary Joseph P. Kamp announced the meeting yesterday at Key West, Fla., where Mr. Truman is vacationing.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will accompany Churchill, it was learned in London. Eden not only will take part in the talks with Mr. Truman, but have side conferences with Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

It was recalled that Britain abandoned Marshall Plan aid a year ahead of schedule before the Korean outbreak. But British recovery got bogged down by the current rearmament drive and Churchill's new government already has started drastic austerity measures.

The 76-year-old British leader already has served notice that he will demand a greater role for his country in forming Western diplomatic policies as an active partner of America.

Churchill said in a speech last week that Britain deserves such consideration because it put itself "in the forefront of Soviet vengeance" by providing bases for American atomic bombers.

In Paris, a French government spokesman said that Premier Rene Pleven had received no invitation to meet with Mr. Truman and Churchill. Short said he knew nothing of a suggestion that Pleven might come to Washington.

Churchill also is expected to try to persuade Mr. Truman to hold another Big Four conference with Josef Stalin. He will have a tough time doing this President Vincent Auriol of France also has suggested another Big Four meeting.

Mr. Truman has said repeatedly that a Big Four conference now is not the surest road to peace. He is convinced that the Russians have no respect for their pledges, and that they will keep international agreements only when the Allies are powerful enough to make violation of treaties impractical.

UN Agency Head Asserts Tide Of Hunger Is Rising

ROME (AP)—Director General Norris E. Dodd of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) declared today that steadily increasing hunger was driving the world toward revolution and war.

In a grimly worded report to today's opening session of FAO's 18-nation guiding council, he said:

1. World food production has increased only 9 per cent since World War Two; the world's population has climbed 12 per cent. Before the war there was enough food to give every man, woman and child 2,389 calories; now there is enough for only 2,260.

2. "Foods are not evenly distributed; those who were well fed still have as much as they had before or more. But most of those

Would Abandon Bases In England

Solon Sees No Excuse For Making Britons Attack Target

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said today the United States ought to abandon any atomic bases it has in England.

The Coloradoan, a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, declared there is "no excuse for making the British people a target" for an enemy attack. He suggested American bases in the British Isles might provoke an attack.

Johnson told a reporter that any event no consideration should be given to such bases in any study of whether this country should expend additional financial help to Great Britain.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill suggested last Friday that the U. S. give the "fullest consideration" to Britain's need for further dollar aid for her rearmament program and her limping economy. A London source said a request for about $500,000,000 in new aid would be made. Churchill presumably will press his request when he comes to Washington sometime in January to confer with President Truman.

Churchill said his nation has "every need and right to seek and receive" American help because "we took peculiar risks in providing the principal atomic base for the United States" in East England. The Prime Minister added that as a result Britain had placed itself "in the very forefront of Soviet antagonism."

Smith Asks End To Incompetents

NEW BERN (AP)—U. S. Senator Willis Smith (D-NC) today demanded an end to "stubborn support for stupid or dishonest officials" in national government.

In an Armistice Day address prepared for delivery here, Smith asserted that "no incompetent individual, no matter how loyal should be allowed to remain in a public position x x x."

No Gray Gloves

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force has decided it can get along without 1,500,000 pairs of gray cotton dress gloves on which it had received manufacturers' bids ranging from $1.10 to $1.30 a pair.

The decision to cancel procurement of the gloves was disclosed today by Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee.

Johnson made public a letter from Secretary of the Air Force Finletter answering a subcommittee request for an explanation of the need for dress gloves.

Finletter said a "re-evaluation" of the situation failed to establish "to my satisfaction a military requirement for the cotton dress glove as a mandatory item for all personnel," and, as a result, all procurement action had been cancelled.

Finletter added that "inexpensive army-type" cotton gloves would be worn by Air Force men "actually performing escort, military police and similar duties."

Quiz Gardener On Photography

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation and Army Intelligence agents planned to question today an inoffensive looking gardener about photographs of defense installations and notes on the atom bomb found in his shed.

Otto F. Maynard, 42, was arrested yesterday on the complaints of neighbors who had grown suspicious of his taking pictures with costly photographic equipment. He was booked for vagrancy.

The flimsy cardboard shack in which he had lived for four years is located under the eastern approach to the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, a vital defense artery.

"What's all the fuss about?" Maynard asked irritably when arrested.

In searching the shack, police discovered Maynard had a $110 camera, a long-range lens and 33 other pieces of photographic equipment, including filters and a magnifying glass.

Also in the shack were photographs of the huge Standard Oil Refinery in Richmond, Calif., the bay bridge and the University of California's atom-smashing cyclotron.

On scraps of paper, officers found copious notes on the atom bomb. But Maynard pointed out that the notes all dealt with the effects, not the construction of the bomb.

He said he took his material from civilian defense pamphlets available to the public.

"I just wanted to be ready when the thing drops," he explained.

As for his pictures, he said he "just likes to take them." He said he spent most of the money he makes as a gardener for the photographic equipment. Furthermore, he said the bay bridge and the refinery were good subjects for pictures.

Laborites Begin First Attempt To Oust Tories

LONDON (UP)—The Labor Party launched its first attempt to unseat Prime Minister Winston Churchill today by attacking the Conservative plan to turn the nationalized steel industry back to private enterprise.

G. R. Strauss, supply minister in the late Labor government, presented in the House of Commons an amendment expressing regret at Churchill's plan to denationalize the steel industry.

Both Conservatives and Laborites at once started to round up every member they could for a vote late tonight.

Churchill has a majority of 14 seats in Commons. Two of his men are in Paris for the United Nations meeting. But it was expected that the six Liberal members would support the government, and insure it an easy victory.

Talmadge Plans Promote Russell As Demo Choice

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UP)—Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia announced today that he will attempt to stir support for Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) as Democratic presidential nominee next year.

Talmadge announced that he will boost Russell for the Democratic bid after "talking politics" with Southern governors gathered here for the Southern Governors' Conference opening today.

"If Sen. Russell will permit his name to be offered to the national Democratic convention next year," Talmadge said, "I have no doubt that he will sweep the South and pick up several other states."

"I've found only three Southern governors favorable to Truman," Talmadge declared.

Eden Asks Fresh Start In Solving World Problems

Would Sidetrack Major Issues, Seek Step-By-Step Peace Solution

PARIS (AP)—Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called today on the Russians today to put aside major world issues temporarily and seek a step-by-step solution to the cold war.

"Let us grasp the definite and limited problems, and work for their practical solution," Eden said in a conciliatory speech before the United Nations General Assembly.

"That is the real road to peace. That is the way to make a fresh start," he declared.

Eden's speech, his first in the U. N. since the founding conference at San Francisco in 1945, was notable for its mild tone and lack of attacks on the Russians.

He urged all U. N. members—including the Soviet Union—to work from the small issues to the great "with real good will."

Backing up U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson's policy statement last week on every point, Eden cited the British-French, American disarmament proposals as one example of how the East-West disputants could work from the small issues to the large.

"We suggest," he declared, that disarmament "should begin with the less important categories of armed forces and armaments, then move on to those that are more important and secret, and therefore more difficult to handle."

"The sooner we can agree on the simpler categories, the sooner we shall have confidence to tackle more complex tasks."

Eden appealed to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to reconsider his scornful rejection of the western proposals. The Russian had submitted, instead, his own disarmament plan calling for a world arms conference.

Eden also urged, as Acheson had before him, that agreement be reached to:

1. End the war in Korea; 2. Reunite Germany through free democratic elections; 3. Give Austria a treaty ending the occupation by France, Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States; 4. Admit Italy to the United Nations.

Eden implied that the time was not yet ripe for a conference of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill, Marshal Stalin and as French President Vincent Auriol suggested last week.

Slots, Whiskey, Lottery Books Seized In Raid

BURLINGTON (AP)—Four slot machines, fifteen and a half gallons of whiskey, and 208 lottery books were seized in a police raid on the Elks Lodge building here during a weekend crackdown.

Police department records show that 13 places were raided, but no large amounts of whiskey or gambling equipment were found except at the Elks Lodge. Raymond Puckett, lodge manager, was placed under bonds totaling $1,200 on charges of illegal possession of whiskey and possession of slot machines.

Seven policemen, five of whom were working on their off-duty time, planned and carried out the raids.

Calmly Reports Murdering Wife

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia. (AP)—A man walked into the police station this morning, calmly announced he had slain his wife, and told officers her body was in the trunk of his car parked outside. It was Police Captain Edgar L. Stearns identified the man as Everett Leroy Moir, 29-year-old Waterloo, Ia. factory worker. He said Moir blamed domestic troubles for the slaying.

Moslem World Is Alerted For War

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—The Moslem world was alerted today by its highest religious authority for a "holy war" against Britain for refusing to get out of the Suez Canal zone and the Sudan.

The Council of Uleamas of Al-Azhar University urged Moslems throughout the world "to spare life or property" in supporting Egypt's efforts to expel the British.

Swarms Of Chinese Fall Before Scotland's Finest

SOMEWHERE IN Korea (UP)—The soldiers said the close-in fighting lasted for four hours "in the gloaming and the darkness," until they were ordered off their positions.

The shelling began at 9 a.m. and hit its climax at noon. At 4 p.m. the enemy drove up the hill through its own bursting shells.

"We were lying on the back slope of the hill amid bursting shells and wouldn't have known they were coming if we hadn't heard a Bren gun firing," Pvt. John Thompson said.

"We went up to the crest and looked down on them. They were coming up in swarms, stumbling and falling and getting up and coming on again, bumping into each other but coming on like dope fiends."

The Chinese never reached the Scots positions. But the dead Chinese, if they had fallen forward instead of backward, would have landed with their heads in the laps of the Scots.

UN Truce Negotiator Declares Reds Trying Avoid Full Korea Armistice

Taft-Eisenhower Issue Splitting GOP Group

Several State Republican Organizations Divided On Nominating Candidate For 1952's Presidential Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—The prospect of a battle between Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the GOP presidential nomination appeared today to have split several state Republican organizations wide open.

Although Eisenhower has made no public announcement that he is available, he already has developed strong support among Republican national committee members, state chairmen and governors in every section of the country.

Taft, an announced candidate, led the General 42 to 26 among party officials willing to express their preference for a nominee in a week-end Associated Press poll. Significantly, perhaps, 80 officials said they either hadn't made up their minds or wouldn't disclose their choice.

In the same group of GOP workers, totaling 147, 54 believe Eisenhower will become a candidate and 24 do not. Sixty-nine didn't want to guess one way or the other.

Greenville Girl Is Wreck Victim

Alice Lee Shiry, 19, Died Sunday; Another Girl Injured

WASHINGTON, N. C.—A young Greenville girl is dead and another hospitalized with serious injuries as the result of a wreck which happened three miles outside Washington about 8 p.m. Saturday.

Alice Lee Shiry, 19, of Route 2, Greenville, was taken to the hospital with her right leg broken, right knee injured, teeth knocked out, and suffering from internal injuries and severe head injuries. She never regained consciousness and died at 2:50 yesterday afternoon. Ruth Hazel Rowell, 20, also of Greenville, suffered a severe concussion and numerous cuts and bruises, but regained consciousness at 4 p.m. yesterday.

Other occupants of the car, a 1946 Chevrolet, were James H. Mills Jr., 20, of Greenville and Fort Bragg, and Grover Harris Jr., 21, of near Greenville. Officers stated that the car was traveling toward Washington on highway 33, when the front tire blew out. Mills lost control of the car, which ran off the road into the right side ditch and struck a bridge.

Mills received lacerations about the head, while Harris suffered an injured knee and cuts and bruises. Both have been released from the hospital but Mills is being held in jail in Washington on charges of reckless driving and manslaughter.

The wreck was investigated by state highway patrolmen Wesley Boykin, George Medlin and William Clagton. They said the wheels of the car were knocked clear of the chassis and the front end was demolished. Some partly filled beer bottles and a small quantity of whiskey were found in the car, they said.

At least seven wrecks were reported in Beaufort County over the weekend, with one being killed and eight hospitalized.

U. S. Envoy To Austria Raised To Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today promoted its envoy to Austria from the rank of Minister to Ambassador in a new gesture of support for the anti-Communist Austrian regime.

At the same time Under Secretary of State James E. Webb called on Soviet Russia, to live up to its wartime 1943 pledge and agree with the western powers to withdraw all occupation troops and restore full freedom and independence to Austria.

The boost in the rank of the envoy to Austria was announced by making public an exchange of notes between Webb and Dr. Ludwig Kellinwaechter, Austrian ambassador.

Career diplomat Walter J. Donnelly, now at Vienna, becomes Ambassador and Hig's Commissioner.

No Progress In Latest Sessions; Blunt Tone To Communists Indicates Allies Have Made Their 'Last Compromise'

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
PANNUNJOM, Korea (UP)—U. S. Maj. Gen. Henry H. Hodes accused Communist truce negotiators to their faces today of trying to avoid a full armistice settlement.

Hodes, chief U.N. representative on the armistice subcommittee seeking to fix a cease-fire line and buffer zone across Korea, bluntly told the Reds:

"You intend to establish a presumptive demarcation line and demilitarized zone which will relieve you of any necessity to settle the remaining items on the agenda with speed and equity."

"You want to establish a spurious line and zone which will provide you with leisure and freedom to continue delaying the conference."

Hodes told newsmen that no progress was made during the subcommittee meeting, which lasted four hours and 15 minutes. However, the subcommittee will meet again at 11 a. m. Tuesday (9 p.m. Monday EST).

Eighth Army Gains Yardage In Skirmish

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—United Nations forces advanced closer to the former enemy stronghold of Kumson today with capture of two major hills, while air action was extremely quiet.

Heavy clouds and fog held the 8th Air Force to only six sorties—lowest since it went into action in Korea.

The U.N. troops jumped off in their surprise assaults southwest of Kumson at dawn. They overwhelmed light to moderate resistance. Captures of the two hills put the Allies 1,000 yards closer to Kumson, which the Reds have abandoned but the enemy still holds dominating positions on the east, west and north.

U.N. troops repulsed two Communist company-size attacks during the night northwest of Puchon Valley on the east-central front.

Patrol skirmishes have occurred in the hills just outside the neutralized Pannunjom perimeter during the past three nights.

At sea, the U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo duelled three hours Sunday with Communist shore batteries at Pannunjom.

Should the head turn out to be as police believe it will—that of Walter Barr, 34-year-old carpenter missing since Oct. 3, officers are sure they have a double-barreled puzzle on their hands.

The severed head was found Saturday by a small Negro boy in a patch of honeysuckle in adjacent Princess Anne County. An all-day search yesterday failed to turn up any body or parts of a human torso.

It was only about a mile away that fishermen on Oct. 6 discovered the beater and strangled body of Mrs. Mamie Smithwick, 57-year-old widow to Worley Smithwick, for many years superintendent of a Methodist Orphanage in Raleigh, N.C.

When Mrs. Smithwick's body was found floating in a lake, police immediately launched a hunt for Barr, just seen three days earlier. He and the widow were headed for a drive-in movie at the time.

Police learned Barr and Mrs. Smithwick had lived at the same moving house here and went to the movies together frequently. They had been planning a trip to a church function Oct. 6 in Washington, N.C. where Barr's wife works in a laundry.

On Oct. 10, police found Barr's car parked in Norfolk. Blood was smeared on both seats, a bullet hole was found in the roof and there were fragments of human teeth on the floor.

But nothing was heard of Barr until the boy made his grisly discovery on Saturday.

Police still are not certain the head is that of Barr.

All Agencies Represented In Chest Drive Marchers

A parade carrying the theme, "Join the Parade for a Better Community" and serving as the kickoff for the 1951 Community Chest Campaign, moved down main street this morning with all the agencies of the Community Chest represented.

Heading the parade were the directors of the Community Chest and they were followed by the Eppes High School Band and Colors, the Negro Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, and teen-agers followed, representing an agency of the Chest.

Following the Greenville High School Band and Colors were the Boy and Girl Scouts and a teen-ager group. Several members of the Service League marched in the parade representing the Service League Thrift Shop, an agency devoted to the welfare of the unfortunate.

The Drum and Bugle Corps of the AROTC of East Carolina College, followed by the AROTC wound up the parade. These units represented the United Defense Fund which includes war relief and the welfare of service men and women.

Each of the agencies which benefit from the Community Chest were represented and the groups carried banners asking for aid.

The parade ended at the courthouse where a short program was held. J. H. Rose acted as master of ceremonies and introduced Alton Johnston, chairman of the 1951 Community Chest Campaign.

All members were urged to get up a table for play.

The speaker discussed the law from two points of view: law with respect to liquor and law with respect to the traffic rules and regulations. He ended his remarks by saying, "Our attitudes must be changed toward laws and they must have our moral support to make them effective."

At the conclusion of the program, delicious refreshments of dainty sandwiches, cakes and hot chocolate were served by the following hostesses: Mesdames H. A. Coleman, chairman, A. C. Tadlock, D. H. Conley, Mabel Glenn Hamric, C. W. Murray and D. W. Swope.

Women In The Church

Women in the Church

By MARY FOWLER

The Isabella Thoburn College of the Methodist Church, on its campus in Lucknow, India, proves that at least "all sisters of whatsoever language or religion" (and even of several races) can live together in peace under one roof. For, says
Miss Sarah Chakko, the principal, the girls enrolled in the College are representatives of these communities: Christian, Hindu, Muslim, Sikh, Parsee, Jain, and Anglo-Indian. And... they should recite "each in her own native tongues" the languages would include: Urdu, Hindi, English, Bengal, Gujarati, Telugu, Santali, Ma-jhar, Sindhi, Tamil, Kanarese, Konkani, Burmese.

During World War II, Miss Alice
Grube, missionary of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, and a teacher in its Girls High School, Osaka, Japan was imprisoned for four months; she was in solitary confinement in that city. It was during this period, contemplating the life of the prisoners, that she determined "if I am ever free again" to do something for prisoners in Osaka's jail. Now Miss Grube is back again as a missionary in Osaka, and some of her time is given to visiting in the jail where she was a prisoner. Some of the officials and some of the prisoners remember her—and are impressed by her concern for those behind stone walls.

It looks as if the Negro women of the rural South, like their white sisters in the North, are more active in the churches than are the men. A recent survey of 570 Negro churches in 17 southern counties—made by Prof. Ralph A. Felton of the rural department of Drew Theological Seminary I shows that twice as many Negro women as men teach Sunday school classes; that the women have nine times as many church societies as have the men; and that there are fifteen times as many women as men in church societies. One amazing discovery was that Negro women of these churches to the number of 12,961 carry on relief work among the local needy.

The Rev. Margaret K. Henrichsen, of North Sullivan, Me., carries on a full-time ministry to three Methodist churches. She actually rides a circuit of 90 miles and preaches six times every Sunday.

Princess Duke Begin Voyage To Homeland Today

Council meeting of the year will see Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh said farewell today to North America, taking home what Britain's future queen described as "new strength and inspiration."

Winding up their five-week tour which crossed 15,000 miles in Canada and the United States, Elizabeth in her nationwide radio good-bye last night said Canada "has become a second home in every sense."

Her husband, in an earlier farewell address at Halifax, had said he was returning to Britain with the message that "Canada is a good investment."

A fleet of little fishing boats was readied to escort the couple from this off port to the Empress of Scotland, on which they sail early this afternoon for home.

Elizabeth and Philip arrived here yesterday from Nova Scotia aboard the epic and span cruiser Ontario, Canada's second largest warship. Despite clear weather, fog horns along the rugged Newfoundland coast mingled their welcome moans with the guns of the royal salute as the vessel moved into her berth.

Aboard the ship, the couple had visited the galley, attended a formal mess dinner and hobnobbed with junior officers in their gun room.

Acquitted

RANGOON—(AP)—A special Burmese court acquitted "Burma surgeon" Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave today of aiding a rebel leader, thereby setting aside his conviction by a high court.

An earlier appeal court already had freed him from jail by commuting his sentence to the seven months he served while awaiting trial. Seagrave sought reversal of the treason conviction so that he could return to his hospital work among the tribesmen of North Burma.

Klan Rally Turns Out To Be 'Dud'

LORIS, S. C.—(AP)—Ku Klux ST. JOHN'S, N.D.—(AP)—Prin-

Thomas L. Hamilton of Leesville, Grand Dragon of the Carolina Klans, told a Florence crowd earlier last week that the lid would be "blown off."

At the Loris rally, however, a crowd of about 3,000 heard only the familiar attacks upon Jews, Negroes, newspaper editors and Horry County Sheriff C. E. Sasser.

Plan No Inquest In Prince Death

CHAPEL HILL — (AP) — Ill health apparently caused William Meade Prince, 58, famed author and illustrator, to kill himself here Saturday.

This was the ruling yesterday by Coroner A. H. Walker of Hillsboro following an investigation. He said no inquest would be held.

Prince, who made Chapel Hill famous as the scene of "The Southern Part of Heaven," was found Saturday morning in the studio of his home. There was a bullet wound in his right temple and a .32 caliber automatic pistol clutched in his hand.

A physician discovered Prince's body. He said that minutes before Prince had telephoned and exclaimed, "Come right away, it's an emergency."

Hold Dedication Of New Hospital

SMITHFIELD — (AP) Johnston County dedicated its new, 100-bed hospital as several thousand persons attended ceremonies yesterday.

The new hospital, which cost nearly $1,000,000, will be opened for patients at a date to be set later.

Schools Begin Activities In Observing Education Week

This is American Education Week. Activities have already been scheduled in the city schools of Greenville for the observance of the week, which is being observed in all types of educational and vocational institutions all over the nation.

The purpose of the week is to devote attention to the schools. It is not a holiday—just seven days dedicated to schools and the 26 million boys and girls who go to school.

Throughout the week here, radio programs will be given every day on the designated theme for the day. The programs will be schools and under the direction of seven teachers in the city school.

There will be an art exhibit of masterpieces in the gym of the Training School and at Eppes High School. The exhibit is being put on to raise money to buy reproductions of the pictures to go into the schools.

American Education Week began this morning at a flag raising ceremony at Greenville High School under the direction of the student council and Boy Scouts. An assembly of the student body of West Greenville School will be held in the morning at 9:30 with the sixth grade taking part and under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Franklin. There will also be PTA meetings at West Greenville and Third Street Schools.

The theme of American Education Week is "Unite For Freedom" and mementos for each day during the week are as follows: "Our Faith in God," Sunday; "Schools and Defense," Monday.

Metropolitan To Open Tomorrow

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera opens its 67th season tomorrow with its 1951-52 fund goal of $750,000 attained.

George A. Sloan, chairman of the Opear Association, said over the weekend that 76,523 persons contributed to the fund. Their individual gifts ranged from pennies to $10,000.

Part of the money, Sloan said, already has been used to meet last season's deficit, and for sets and costumes of several new productions.

Verdi's "Aida" will be the Met's opening opera.

Yellow Dress Is 'Pepper-Upper'

ITHACA, N. Y. — (AP) — Feeling blue, lady? Try slipping into a yellow dress.

A survey of Cornell University's 1,072 co-eds shows that 60 per cent are convinced their moods are affected by the color and style of the clothes they wear.

The survey indicated that a woman might shrug off the doldrums if she wore a yellow dress. Bright red also was listed as a pepper-upper.

Oil Distributors To Hold Meet Tomorrow

The Greenville Oil Distributors Association will meet tomorrow at 12:15 at Respass Brothers Barbecue on the Bethel Highway.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

A DIFFICULT ART
"Yes," said a country carpenter with whom I talked one day, "stairs are hard to build. In fact there's nothing harder in all the carpenter's trade than that. Stair building is an art in itself."

Stair building is always an art, whether we are building stairs to get us from the first floor to the second or trying to contrive something that will lift us from low levels of life to high. Some people believe they can take the elevator and go from the clerkship to the presidency of their company. Others believe that influential friends will put them on their backs and carry them up stairs. The truth of the matter is, however, that if we want to get to the top in anything, we have to build our own stairs, and stair building is always difficult.

We go from poor, halting effort to skillful achievement not on elevators but on stairs of our own making. If we are to be better men and women this year than we were last, it will not be so much because some one has helped us as because we have helped ourselves. We may long for the elevator, or wish for some good friend who will bear us aloft on his influence, but we reach achievements in any line by the stair route only, and by stairs we build ourselves.

Stair building is an art, a most difficult one, but it is an art which gives great satisfaction to anyone who with patience masters it.

Take Stock Of Pitt County's Public Schools

Public school education for the youngsters of North Carolina—and especially Pitt County—is something people these days take for granted, and too often give too little thought to the progress or the problems of the schools.

Even more than that, the majority of the people are prone to lose sight of what the educational system provided for the youths of today means to the community, state and nation.

Since this is National Education week, it is fitting to take stock of the public school program in Pitt County.

In Pitt County alone during the school year of 1951-52, the county school system and the Greenville City Schools will spend approximately $1,686,000 in the process of providing educational instruction for the thousands of children who attend public schools. The operating expenses of the county school system for the year will amount to some $1,280,000 while the operating expenses of the Greenville schools will reach $436,000.

In addition to the operating expenses of the school systems from year to year, the people of Pitt County have school buildings and equipment which are valued at more than $5,300,000, and the physical facilities of the school systems are constantly being expanded and improved. There are 391 teachers in the county school system and 120 teachers in the Greenville school system who devote nine full months to the education of the youths of Pitt County, and there are other administrative officers who are at their jobs 12 months a year seeking better education for the children of the county.

What the school systems mean to the people of the county can not be measured in terms of money or man-hours. It must be measured in terms of better citizens, better communities, and better county generally.

During this National Education Week the people of Pitt County should take stock of their school systems by visiting their schools, giving more consideration to the work of the teachers, school officials and the Parent-Teacher organizations which are a vital part of the operation of the school systems. The schools need fuller co-operation of the adults of the county to carry out the tremendous task which have been assigned to them. The fuller cooperation the schools get from the people of the county, the better education facilities will be forthcoming for the future adult citizens of Pitt County.

A Token Tax Will Not Do This Job

The new ten per cent federal tax on bookies is hitting gamblers across the nation where it hurts most . . . in the pocket-book. It is not that the bookies can not afford "paying off" the federal government with ten per cent of their take, but they just hate to give up any part of the fleece they take from the gullible bettors.

Right now, with the reports of bookie joints closing down, lottery tickets becoming relatively scarce, it appears that the action by the revenue bureau may be able to accomplish what the token taps by local law enforcement officers, and tough body blows by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee failed to accomplish. The wave of optimism that the federal tax may appreciably cut down the gambling rackets, in our opinion is premature and short sighted. A check into the past gambling operations across the nation seems to bear out this point.

Back when the federal government set up its license tax on slot machines, there was widespread disappearance of the one-armed bandits in areas where they were operated illegally. As time passed, however, the gamblers regained their nerve and risked the purchase of a federal stamp to operate their illegal devices. It was not long before the slot machines were operating about as freely as they did before the federal tax was imposed. It should not be surprising to see the same trend followed in the case of bookie operations. A ten per cent cut by the federal government is not likely to make the gamblers give up their lucrative business and turn to some other field.

The matter, thoroughly considered, brings forth the same conclusion that has been reached in coping with illegal gambling in other forms. Unless the local and state law enforcement officers crack down on the gambling which is illegal under the state and local laws, it is unlikely that gambling operations will be curtailed appreciably for any length of time. The new federal tax may reduce the scope of operations for a short period of time, but it will not put many gamblers out of business. They will soon come around to paying off the federal government and continue their operations reasonably content that the local and state officers will interfere no more in the future than they have in the past.

The people can not expect the internal revenue bureau to put the gamblers out of business. Until state and local law enforcement agencies really put the bite on illegal gambling, it will continue pretty much as it has been in the past.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The tolerant, easy-going and cynical spirit which represents Washington politics at its worst is illustrated dramatically by a Senate Committee's investigation of the oil-speculation ventures of Theron Caudle Lamar, who heads the Tax Division of the Department of Justice. It also involves a former Attorney General and present Supreme Court Justice—Tom Clark of Texas.

While serving in the D of J in his present post, Mr. Lamar got a chance to take a gamble in a wild-cattling oil enterprise in Texas. Although it is charged that several partners were "shady" customers, he invested his money in the hope of getting rich quick. He didn't, according to his testimony.

REFUSED—Mr. Clark, then Attorney General, was invited to participate in the wildcat strike. According to the evidence, he refused because of the questionable reputation and background of the men sponsoring the scheme.

But, although Mr. Lamar presided over a division which handles such problems as tax allowances for oil depletions and other matters affecting the petroleum industry, the former Attorney General and present Supreme Court Justice apparently did not think it necessary to warn his aide against the wild-cattling involvement.

Nor has Attorney General J. Howard McGrath developed any indignation over Assistant Attorney General Lamar's oil investments. Incidentally, it is believed that prospective revelations of the D of J's handling of certain tax cases will kill whatever chance Mr. McGrath had of a Truman appointment to a forthcoming Supreme Court vacancy.

OPTIMISTIC—General "Ike" Eisenhower gave President Truman a most optimistic report on the possibility of actual war with Russia within the next few years. Assuming that the United States and European members or auxiliaries of NATO meet his demand for accelerated rearmament, he doubts if Stalin will dare to provoke a war during the dictator's lifetime.

"Ike" wants a West European army of at least thirty divisions by the end of 1952, but preferably by midsummer. He wants us to send our latest and most modern weapons to that force, including tactical A-bombs.

Such a force so armed, consisting of about 500,000 hardened fighters, he believes, could stop the Russians on the Rhine, and further east if the Bonn regime will rearm the Germans under our program.

It is considered significant that Russia's deep concern over the western world's rearming was voiced during Eisenhower's conference with President Truman.

Moscow notified Turkey in an extremely sharp note that she regarded Ankara's agreement to enter a military alliance with us as an "unfriendly act." Historically, such a warning presages war.

FIGHTERS—In his talks with Mr. Truman, "Ike" emphasized the importance of Turkish, Greek and Yugoslavian reinforcement of the North Atlantic Pact. He pointed out that Turkey and Tito can mobilize at least 1,000,000 fine fighters, and that Greece can provide at least 100,000.

They are poorly trained and equipped now, but, given American arms and military instruction, they would be a tremendous threat to the flank of any Russian army marching on Western Europe.

Although acceptance of the Eisenhower program may make him more available as a presidential candidate next year, it is understood that President Truman agreed to it. He would rather defeat Stalin than Eisenhower!

TOP MAN—Long about this time of year some newspapers and magazines begin looking for a "Man of the Year." Somebody whose accomplishments have been outstanding enough to entitle him to special commendation. It is difficult to find one person who can be designated as "him," because so many people have done so many fine things, and so much of their activity neither began nor ended during the year, it being a continuous process.

NOMINATION—This corner has a nomination for the orchid this year. He is presented as worthy of all the accolades that can be bestowed upon him. Unfortunately, he doesn't have a name or an address; he doesn't even have a personality. He is a composite guy, who can be called Joe Doakes or John Doe; and he lives all over the state. He doesn't have a job, because he works at every kind of job the ingenuity of man has devised as an occupation.

COMPOSITE—He is an employee of that big manufacturing plant on the edge of town, and keeps books at the department store on main street. He grows cabbages and calves, and fixes gadgets on automobiles and washing machines. He takes his kids to Sunday school, pays his preacher, and cusses the kind of sermons he listens to almost every Sunday. He is proud of his wife, brags on her when talking to other folks and quarrels with her about burning the bread for breakfast. He pays his taxes, not always without mental protest but without necessity of legal action on part of the tax collector. He is doing twice as much work right now as he expected to have to do, because his son or his brother is off yonder somewhere fighting for freedom. He is too young to have the responsibility of a family, and has passed the age when he hoped to turn over some of his job to the boys—but he is still doing the job simply because it wouldn't get done if he didn't do it. Do you recognize him? If you don't see him when you look in the mirror, just look at the neighbors around you and you'll see him several times every day.

MODEST—He thinks he can't make a speech, and so he doesn't have much to say at PTA meetings, church conferences and other community gatherings; but he does a lot of thinking and can make his meaning very clear when occasion requires. He would laugh if you pointed him out as a leader, yet he and his kind do the real job for which the designated "leader" gets credit. Sometimes, maybe, he waits a too long before stepping in when "they" get things muddled up—but he's the guy that does step in and straighten them out.

SPONSORSHIP—Your reporter is happy and proud to sponsor this chap for title as "Man of the Year," but he cannot claim credit for originating the nomination. That came out of an old fashioned visit in the home of a friend the other night. Five or six folks were sitting around the living room engaged in the almost lost art of "just talking" when the subject of a man of the year contest came up. Some well known names were mentioned, names that have been in headlines and news stories for months. In other surroundings they would have been accepted as appropriate candidates for top honors. Somehow they seemed just a bit foreign to that domestic atmosphere, where genuine hospitality based in warm friendship, brought up thoughts about such old fashioned things as personal integrity, individual and corporate honesty, faith in one's fellows, recognition of obligations in the community, and such like. One could not help recalling the lines in Robert Burns' description of the Cotter's Saturday Night: "From scenes like these Old Scotia's grandeur springs, that makes her loved at home, revered abroad; princes and knights are but the breath of kings—an honest man's the noblest work of God." The little group had to break up, because the man had a civic club meeting, the woman a church meeting to attend. But before separating, there was unanimous vote to place in nomination a man of the year. Joe Doakes Anonymous, Citizen of North Carolina. He doesn't know he is being nominated and will be surprised when elected, but he has earned the honor and will wear it well.

RULES—Word comes from the inner circle of Governor Scott's political group that the governor is not so enthusiastic as he seemed to be a few weeks back about running for lieutenant governor. His zest declined when it was pointed out to him that the jobs do not necessarily carry the prestige it has attained. Constitutionally, the lieutenant governor is president of the senate. Traditionally, the president of the senate has been accorded the right to appoint committees. But, the governor has discovered that the right to name committees is based in rules adopted by the senate each session, not from any constitutional or statutory authority. The constitution has just two things to say about the lieutenant governor's relationship to the senate. He does preside, and he cannot vote except in case of a tie. All of the other prerogatives heretofore enjoyed by the presiding officer were conferred by senate rules, subject to adoption at beginning of the session by majority vote, and to change at any time by two-thirds vote of senators present. That means 26 senators can make the original rules, and 34 can change them at any time. It is even possible that 14 senators can make the rules and 18 can change them.

STRIPPED—From time beyond the memory of living persons presiding officers in both branches of the North Carolina general assembly have had the right to name committees. There is ever present the possibility that the state legislature might follow example set by the national congress and transfer that authority to some other designated person or committee. Admittedly, it is a remote probability, but the fact that it is possible does give a somewhat from the glamorous possibility that one man can automatically override the wishes of an entire legislative body. So the reports from the inner circle indicate that Governor Scott has lost interest in the position of lieutenant governor for himself. These same reports, however, emphasize that he has not lost interest in getting out acceptable candidate for both the No. 1 and No. 2 positions.

The Voice Of The People

A CHALLENGE

I take it that you are a Christian, if not in practice, at least in principle. In that case you naturally have the inner conviction that we have the highest type of living here in the United States that has ever prevailed throughout the world. And I am sure that you would lend your efforts to bring the rest of the world to our manner of living.

You cannot but know that a strong government has arisen that challenges our way of living. It denies the freedom which has been the source of our greatness and happiness. If it can overpower us, it will take away our liberties and impose upon us the Yoke of slavery for the State. These are facts that every American knows.

But what is not generally known in this the Southland is the extent to which their agents in this country are organizing in our midst. In every big city, in every thickly populated section, there are cells of these men and women who are working under the direction of this tyrannical government. They are formulating plans for the overthrow of our government and the demoralization of our national life. If the American newspapers published tomorrow the plans and the names of the men and women who are doing all this, this whole country of ours would be in a turmoil in a few hours. I have no hesitation in saying that there would be bloodshed in more than one place. The world has yet to learn the strength and power of the character of the American people. We have never yet had a real challenge that represented a serious danger. However, we are confronted with a force that will one day throw down the gauntlet. Either we will go down in defeat or we will wipe this evil power off the face of the earth. Though we are not alone, yet the brunt of the battle is ours.

Are we going to wait until our enemy comes out in the open? Are we going to prepare after it is too late? Can we afford to rely on our past glories to carry us through in the present struggle? Or are we going to organize our spiritual forces as our forefathers did in by-gone ages?

It is of utmost importance to remember that the lines of the God-chosen people of today. Though there are differences that separate us as far as faith is concerned, yet on the whole we are the ones to defend God's truth in the world.

How can we meet the nefarious designs of God's enemy and ours? How can we prepare ourselves individually for the trying ordeal ahead of us?

There is one preparedness that is all important, and that is prayer. Each one of us can make that preparation, with that we can organize a cell of our own where we can renew our faith and gather our physical as well as our spiritual forces. Family prayer will become the training camp for our shock troops. Prayer in the home will bring family life back to its lofty state. Here our young people will find the inspiration to oppose any force that would dare attempt to take our freedom from us.

The history of the world has proven repeatedly that wrong doing, whether in individuals or in nation, invariably is defeated by the forces of righteousness. History will repeat itself in our own day. It may not be without a heroic effort on our part, but with the power that will be given us from on high, we will bring justice and peace back to an uneasy world.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
It will pay business companies, especially smaller firms, to continue to plan ahead for filling manpower requirements, despite the fact that predicted shortages of brains and brawn have not yet developed.

Both government and private predictions of the peak in defense production, and hence the peak demand for manpower, have been constantly revised, with dates being set further into the future. Shortly after the outbreak of the Korean war, both government statements and actions suggested that production would get into full gear by early this year. Then the forecast was advanced to late this year. Now talk is of early next year, with the probability that it will occur in the second, rather than the first quarter.

The expected shortage of labor has been delayed not by the slowness in getting the defense plant into full operation and by declines in the soft goods industries. Cutbacks in the production of textiles and shoes have disemployed tens of thousands of workers and, in fact, many thousands have migrated to defense centers.

However, higher demands for manpower are a certainty. In some industries and some areas, signs of shortages are becoming unmistakable. In the construction of the Savannah River atomic plant, insistence has been strong on experienced workers. The project is getting thousands of "experienced" carpenters, electrical workers and others, but the experience of a high percentage goes back to World War II. In the interim they have been employed in industries that are now cutting back.

As demand for manpower increases, it will be the smaller enterprises who will be hit hardest. The larger defense plants will offer maximum wage rates and many benefits and, often, an air of excitement that a small operator in civilian fields cannot.

It will be costly and unpatriotic for either small or large companies to hoard manpower. But it will be neither expensive nor harmful to the defense effort to make studies now to determine which employees may be lost when defense demands rise further, and to study about where replacements may be found.

THWARTS TAX-AVOIDERS
The East Coast longshoremen's strike has been costing importers hundreds of thousands of dollars a day in lost orders for imports and lack of sales. In some importing firms those members of the staff that cannot be furloughed are drawing pay for sitting idle at desks.

Some importers got a kick in the pants from another direction. They tried to rush in shipments of Scotch ahead of the new taxes effective November 1. They did not make it and now they face the necessity of paying for higher duties themselves.

WORLD SPUD CROP FORECAST DOWN 10 PER CENT
The world's crop of potatoes in the 1951-52 season is estimated at 10 cent below the 1950-51 crop by the Bureau of Foreign Agricultural relations. The largest decline is in the United States, mostly because of the change in the price-support policy. Ireland, contrary to a popular misconception, does not rank high in spud growing. The United States, Czechoslovakia, France, East and West Germany, Italy, Holland, Poland, Spain and Britain all produce more, though not in that order. Even Austria is expected to out-produce Ireland this year.

$1 BUYS LESS THAN AT ANY TIME IN 150 YEARS

The dollar buys less today than at any time in the last 150 years, the National Industrial Conference Board calculates. With 1938 as the base year, the dollar bought about $2.75 worth of consumer goods in 1950 and less than around 54 cents worth today. Looking at it another way, if the dollar was worth 100 cents in 1850, it is worth about 20 cents today.

GOGGLE: A newly-designed welder's goggle with removable and adjustable leather side shields has been announced by American Optical Co., Southbridge, Mass. Adjustment is made by turning end-piece screws.

NEW PRODUCTS

COLORS: An automatic pencil that writes in any of six colors is being introduced nationally by Sparkes Co., 11 Commerce St., Newark, N. J. It also boasts a built-in shock absorber which reduces lead breakage.

ENGINE: An aluminum engine that weighs only 15 pounds and develops 1.6 horsepower at 4,000 rpm has been developed by West Bend Aluminum Co., West Bend, Wis., and is being offered as a power plant for tools and industrial uses.

BLANKET: A liquid chemical which seals off oxygen from molten zinc in galvanizing wire has been announced by Dewey & Almy Chemical Co., 62 Whittemore Ave., Cambridge, Mass. It is claimed to save from 20 to 50 per cent of the zinc from oxidation.

Hal Boyle's Column

Washington Letter

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—There is only one way to spoil a wife. Present her "What she wishes." Give her your youth. What is that? You can always save your second childhood for yourself.

Give her your money. What is money? You can always borrow money from the fellows at the office—and worry about paying them back.

There is another thing. Promise to show her an evening out on the town—a gay, mad evening of fun.

Naturally, what with an evening out costing what it does, you don't offer this lure lightly. It takes only half the earnings of a lifetime.

She (the heroine) may give you the impression she would like to have a quiet evening at home with you.

But if you give in to her whim and spend the evening "home" you will not only spoil her—you will ruin your future married life. She may subconsciously get the idea that you ought to come home to her every night after work.

This will create two problems: 1—What the devil will you do with her? 2—What the devil will she do to you?

To those two problems civilization-like savagery before it is struggling for a civilized answer. There is none.

But to get back to the main problem—how are you going to guarantee your wife a night out, and spoil her?

One way is to be romantic—give her something to live for. Under the present theory you plant an apple core in the ground and tell your gal that when the tree that springs from it is as tall as she is—well, the drinks and the night out are on you.

Of course, the only fair thing a man with a wild idea of justice like that can do is to marry a tall girl, and second, to go out every spring and fall and trim the tree so that it is spread wide and doesn't grow higher.

But the best way to spoil a woman is to give her your best years of your life, your money, and still lure her on with the false and eternal promise that some night you will take her out into the society of the people she wants to meet.

And if you really yearn to spoil her forever—dance with her once.

No wife can resist a husband as reckless as that.

Moral: Any man who thinks he can give a woman an even break is already half an hour late.

WASHINGTON—It is used to be babies and children, now it's the old folks whose health and welfare are a major concern of women's clubs of the nation.

"Eighteen years have been added to the life span within the past century, and what to do with those added years is a problem affecting everybody," says Mrs. John D. Robinson of Wallace, N. C., national chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs gerontology committee.

"The average working American today is supporting more old people than ever before, partly because so many industries have compulsory retirement and the elderly people have no way of earning a living."

Methods for working out some solution all into two parts, research and education, Mrs. Robinson said. "Research is being left to specialized fields, but education is up to group such as ours. The whole thing, however, boils down to the fact that the current problem is one for the community, the neighborhood and the whole town to solve on a local level."

She said, "No government or big organization can come in and do for the old folks like the family and their friends and neighbors can, because they mostly need love and affection."

Federation club members are now assisting in recreation, hobby and study programs, or are forming new programs. "The adage that you can't teach an old dog new tricks is not true," Mrs. Robinson said. "It has been proven that a person of 80 can learn as readily as he could at the age of 12." The peak learning ability is at 22, she said, but retention of learning ability is more noticeable in people who have made a practice of learning. She thinks people ought to learn something new every day even if it's only a telephone number.

Mrs. Robinson, vivacious and attractive wife of a physician and mother of two grown children, runs an eight-bedroom mansion and collects antiques. She has invented a money purse which a woman can attach to a lingerie strap. It's called "Your Bosom Friend" and its sale has been so successful she's had to hire seven women to help turn out the gadgets.

Let Love Alone

Chapter 11
Eve did not do anything to make Jan feel any better. She kept asking innumerable questions. Had Jan heard from her young man, when was he coming out to the house again, why didn't Jan tell him to come again for dinner, or if she liked Jan could tell Ray to bring Miss Darrow along with him, as of course Jan ought to meet that young woman since she was going to do so much for Jan and Ray.

Jan answered, or avoided answering all these questions as best she could. And finally, in order to put a stop to them, and as it began to look on the third day as though Ray were not going to phone, Jan agreed to phone him.

"I'm sorry to have to bother you," she said in a tight, stiff voice when she got Ray on the other end of the line. "It was Mother's idea. She said I should phone and ask if you would like to bring Miss Darrow out for dinner or tea or something. Only you don't have to bring her if you don't want to, Ray."

"Oh, I want to," Ray returned. His voice sounded exceptionally cheerful. It also sounded enthusiastic, as though he were delighted at the suggestion he bring his benefactress along with him. There was a shade of reluctance, however, when he continued. "I'll have to talk it over with Bernice."

So it was Bernice, not Miss Darrow. Those two must know each other even better than Jan had surmised.

"By all means, talk it over first," Jan said.

"You see, we're awfully busy," Ray said. "Making all the arrangements, I mean."

"You mean it's all settled?" That was a fine way to tell her, over the phone, as casual as though she were some disinterested person, not a make-believe fiancée.

"Well, not altogether," Ray admitted. "At least I don't suppose I should tell anyone, even you, Jan, quite this soon."

Evidently Miss Darrow needed some more persuasion, or was holding out so that Ray would have to "work" on her. Or he may have meant that all of the plans were not so specific as yet. Jan felt terribly left out.

"I'll forget you told me so much," she said. Then because she was hurt, she added. "Though you seem to be forgetting your promise. I'm having a terrible time with Eve again. She doesn't think you are acting one bit as though we were engaged. And she had a talk with Mr. Peters, and she says if you could wait a while she's sure she could persuade him to back your invention and flight."

"That's mighty swell of Eve," Ray said. "But I don't believe it will be necessary. Just give me a few more days with Bernice. Then I..."

"Take all the time you want!" Jan flashed. "Take a few more weeks. Or a few more years."

"I didn't mean that exactly," Ray said. His voice, if possible, sounded more cheerful than before. In fact, Jan thought he gave a pleased, satisfied little chuckle.

This made her so much more angry, or hurt, that she said, a curt goodbye and hung up.

"You don't look as though your talk with Ray came off too well," her mother said a while later when she found her daughter curled up in a corner with a book which Jan did not appear to be reading. "When is he bringing Miss Darrow out, darling?"

"He has to talk it over with her," Jan said.

Eve raised her lovely eyebrows. "Is it all settled?" she asked.

"The business between them, I mean. I hope you mentioned Jim and the possibility that he..."

"It's too late for that," Jan interrupted. She let the book fall to the floor. "Ray says all he needs is a few more days with his present benefactress."

"Oh, so Miss Darrow will definitely be around for a few more days then?" Eve considered this, her beautiful smooth brow creased slightly as she gave this her attention. "I tell you what, darling. She sat down next to her daughter, smiling fondly down on her pretty face, which looked flushed and rather sullen. "I can simply put it a few days ahead. For of course Ray's benefactress, as you call her, should be present."

"Be present at what and what can you put ahead?"

Jan never knew what to expect next from Eve. She had a premonition, as often, that this would be something she would rebel against.

"Your formal announcement party," Eve said.

"Now, Mother, see here, I'm not going to let you go ahead with anything like that too."

"Of course we must have a party to make the newspaper announcement authentic. You cannot put that off, as you can a wedding. Unless you do have it, no one, not even Miss Darrow, will believe that you and Ray are engaged."

This was something to consider. For once Jan saw that her mother could be right.

"And of course it will have to be while 'las Darrow is still here and can be invited," Eve was continuing, her eyes alight as they always were when she was managing matters, "and it must be before your young man goes away again."

This made some sense too. Either it had to be before Ray left or never. And it did seem a good idea to let Bernice Darrow know that Ray was engaged to another girl, even though it was not true.

"I believe Friday would be the best time," Eve went on. "I am sure I can manage everything by then. So, darling, it's up to you to see that Ray and Miss Darrow are here."

Chapter 12

She decided the next day that she would have to go out to the field. She could not tell Ray about the shindig Eve was planning over the phone. It would be better to tell him in person.

It was a relief to get away from the house. She has been sticking so close lately. And all the arrangements for the announcement party, a perfect delight to Eve, were beginning to get on Jan's nerves.

The climax that had driven Jan out of the house was the box of favors which Eve had had designed. They consisted of two hearts entwined with forget-me-nots and the names Janice and Ray in gold lettering.

The first person Jan saw, as she braked to a stop, was Ray. He was not alone. The beautiful redhead was with him. They were standing beside a plane.

It took all of Jan's courage to walk over to them. For all of a sudden her knees had become liquid. They had not even noticed her arrival. At least neither one of them so much as glanced up until Jan was practically beside them. Then Ray tossed her a pre-occupied grin, nodded absent-mindedly and let her stand there, feeling all feet and hands while he finished what he had been saying to the other girl.

It made Jan so furious that she started to turn away. But then Ray called to her. "Jan, don't run off. I want you to meet Miss Darrow. Jan, Bernice, Jan is one of my students," he facked on by way of explanation as to Jan's identity.

One of his students, indeed! Had he forgotten that she also was his fiancée? In public, that is.

Bernice Darrow held out a slender lovely hand. The smile she gave Jan was warm and friendly.

"How do you do?" she murmured. She had a lovely calm voice. She had so much poise that Jan felt younger and more gauche than ever. "I'm delighted to meet one of Ray's students," she added. Another sweet smile accompanied this, but Jan felt it was slightly patronizing.

There was absolutely no reason she should take a sudden intense dislike to Miss Darrow. But she did.

"We were looking over the ship," Ray said. "Isn't she a wonder?" There was reverence in his voice. He turned from Jan to gaze rapidly at the beautiful airplane again.

Before Jan could answer he went on.

"This is it," he said. "I'm going to fly it, try out my gadget, make the tests."

Then it was all settled. Jan felt she ought to say something. But the words would not come. Perhaps because she was filled with so many mixed emotions.

"That's swell," Jan said. It was all she could manage. It sounded terribly inadequate and school-girlish and wrong. Yet for the life of her, she could not say anything more.

"I'm to make a few experimental tests here first," Ray continued. "For altitude, speed. She'll do over seven hundred per hour and around fifty thousand feet altitude."

It was plain to see that Ray could talk and think of nothing else. Not that Jan blamed him.

"Then when everything is ready," he was going on, his whole face alight with his enthusiasm. "Bernice and I will go to Washington. We'll probably fly out to the west coast and back first and then, if all goes well, we'll turn the ship and my gadget over to the government."

"It sounds swell," Jan said again.

"You see," Ray said, turning toward the two girls once more. "Bernice has broken a few records herself. She has bettered all previous records for class II aircraft in a recent altitude test for light planes. As a pilot she's the envy of all us men."

His voice was full of admiration, as were his blue eyes, smilingly regarding the two young women.

Admiration, of course, as Jan knew, for Bernice Darrow. And no wonder. Imagine having achieved the sort of thing that Jan could only dream about. Imagine being all that—a record-breaking flyer as well as much too beautiful in a breathtaking way and so enormously wealthy it was nothing at all to buy airplanes and give them away.

It just was not fair.

"By the way," Jan said, gathering all her forces. "I came out to tell you that it's all arranged—about us, I mean. Our announcement party."

"Oh," Ray said. He seemed to plop down to earth. Apparently it took some effort on his part, too. "It's to be this coming Friday evening," Jan was the one to continue this time, and she found herself speaking more easily. This would be her inning. "At eight o'clock. And I also came out especially," she addressed the other young woman now, "in hopes I would meet you, Miss Darrow. For of course my mother and I want you to come. I suppose you read about our engagement in the papers. The party is to make the authentic formal announcement."

"I would like very much to come," Bernice Darrow said in that low warm voice. She smiled directly at Jan now. It seemed to be a friendly smile, but Jan did not respond to it. "May I be the first to wish you both happiness?" Bernice added. This time her large violet eyes looked into Ray's blue ones.

"Thank you," Jan said coolly. "Don't forget the time," Jan said. "Eight sharp." It would be a fine state of affairs if Ray forgot. "And you bring Miss Darrow with you," Jan added. She did not imagine the other girl would forget.

"We'll be there with bells on," Ray said, with an embarrassed grin. He looked exceptionally ill. His eyes were bluer than ever, matching the cloudless sky, his skin was tanned a deep coppery color. In his casual flying jacket he still had an air about him. Although Jan had never thought about it before, Ray was an exceptionally nice person to look at.

Or maybe, she thought as she drove away from the field again. It was because the two of them left standing there, still together, made such an uncommonly handsome couple.

This thought did not make her feel especially elated. In fact, Jan had that horrible empty feeling again. You would have thought she was jealous or lovesick or something equally as silly.

Come to think of it, she had not had any lunch, with the house so torn apart, and only a cup of lukewarm coffee for breakfast.

That must be what was wrong with her, she decided. She was hungry. It was vitamins, not love, she needed.

CHERRY POINT—The East Carolina College Pirates turned on an almost-awful offensive display on Varsity Field Saturday afternoon to defeat the Cherry Point Flyers 45-0. The victory was the fourth of the year for the Pirates.

Saturday afternoon was one of those days in which nothing could be done wrong—by the Pirates. They let themselves get into the hole after the opening kick-off but once they gained possession of the ball again, there was no stopping the flock of football talent that Coach Bill Dole turned loose on the hapless Marines.

Of the seven touchdowns scored by the collegians, three came on passes from quarterback Sandy Siler. Siler threw only seven passes in the entire game but he managed to come up with six completions and a yards-gained total of 151 yards. He also had a hand in another of the touchdowns, handing the ball off to Claude King on the ancient "Statue of Liberty" play—a play that was good for ten yards and the second of the East Carolina touchdowns.

In the limelight along with Siler went a host of East Carolina players. Two "second string" backfield men, Jack Benzie and Jack Britt, led the scoring with a pair of touchdowns apiece but they were by no means the whole show.

Sophomore Tom Allbrook, who gained a first string job only last week, also scored one of the touchdowns and turned in a terrific job of running and blocking from his right halfback position. End Dwight Shoe, a long-time standout for the Pirates, scored the first six-pointer and did an outstanding job for Dole's crew.

On the defense, the entire Pirates line turned in an excellent job of holding down the Marines. Tackles Willie Holland and Don MacKenzie came in for a lion's share of the credit but guard Jesse Aldridge was also head-and-shoulders above the best the Marines had to offer.

The Pirates took the game's opening kickoff and promptly put themselves into the hole with a poor display of blocking and running. They had to punt out of danger that time but only once more during the entire game were the servicemen able to hold them back when they set their sights on pay dirt.

After that first punt, the Pirates in turn held the Marines. Then they were off to the races in the scoring parade.

East Carolina regained possession of the ball when Bobby Hodges broke through the kicking defense put up by the Marines and blocked Tony Kapelewski's attempted punt.

The ball came down into the arms of Marine Tom Stanley on the ECC 30 yard line where East Carolina took over. It took very little time to get the ball across the goal line.

After a penalty and Paul Gay had moved the ball to the 48, Claude King and Tom Allbrook carried on four plays and got the ball to the Cherry Point 24. John Daughtry found two yards in the middle and King took a pitchout to the eight.

Allbrook cracked for a yard at right end and then Siler found Dwight Shoe at by himself in the end zone and passed to him for the first touchdown. Claude King's attempted conversion was blocked by tackle Bob Buresh.

The Pirates kicked off to the Marines, held them, forced Kapelewski to kick and promptly started another drive toward the end zone.

Regaining the ball on their own 40, the Pirates scored in nine plays despite a 15 yard penalty. Claude King started the march with two drives that carried to the 38 and Benzie picked up seven more. King gained six more and Siler again passed to Shoe who drove to the two before he was stopped.

The Pirates then lost 15 yards on a penalty but Benzie moved to the 10 on a pass from Siler. That's when Siler gave King the ball on the "Statue of Liberty" play for the second touchdown. King's kick was wide but the Pirates led 13-0 as the quarter ended.

Two scores in the second quarter gave the Pirates a 25-0 lead at half.

The first touchdown came after a blocked kick by Willie Holland which Bobby Hodges recovered on the 20. Benzie bulled over from about a foot out five plays later. King's attempted conversion was blocked by Al Pacifico.

The Pirates kicked off to the Marines who could go no where and Kapelewski kicked out of bounds on the East Carolina 41. On the first play from that point, Siler passed to Benzie who high-stepped the distance for his second touchdown. Hawk Grissom came into the game to kick the point that moved the Pirates ahead 25-0.

The Pirates had a touchdown scored by Bobby Hodges on a 25 yard pass interception, called back because of a penalty shortly before the half ended.

The third quarter scoring came about quickly, after which the Pirates took things easy for a while. The touchdown came only three plays after Don MacKenzie had covered a Marine fumble on the ECC 48.

On the first play, Gay was held to no gain on a pitchout but then King went over left tackle for five yards. Siler then uncorked his third scoring pass, this time to Tom Allbrook who took the pass on the CP 30 and outran everyone else to the goal. Grissom's attempted placement was blocked by Hank Bauer.

Two fourth quarter touchdowns by halfback Jack Britt closed out the scoring. The first came on a 76 yard drive early in the period with Britt doing much of the carrying and capping it with a fine 43 yard run through almost the entire Marine team. Grissom's kick was good to move the score to 37-0.

Britt's—and the Pirates'—final touchdown came in the closing moments of the game after a 51 yard march sparked by the quarterbacking of Grissom and the alert line play of John Swart. Swart recovered a fumble by Britt that could have halted the drive had the ball been lost and Grissom did some nice ball handling on every play.

Mike Kovack also did some nice running in the particular drive, gaining 31 of the necessary 51 yards. Britt gained 18 in three tries and capped the drive by going over from the eight. Grissom's almost unnecessary kick moved the score to 45-0.

Tommy Bolt Wins North-South At Pinehurst

Tommy Bolt is a calm and level-headed golfer. But he probably was finding it difficult to maintain his composure today after winning the North and South Open championship.

The 33-year-old Oklahoman, who now plays out of Durham, N. C., captured first-place money in the annual 72-hole tournament yesterday by firing a three-under-par 69 in the final round. He wound up with a total of 283 and $1,500 in prize money.

It was Bolt's first important victory and stamped him as a threat for the forthcoming winter tour.

John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., also emerged as a golfer to be reckoned with in future tournaments as he gained second place with a closing-round 70 that gave him a 286 total.

Veteran Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N. Y., finished third with a 287. Harmon and a fellow New Yorker, Shelley Mayfield of Mamaroneck, Long Island, each turned in 67's for the hottest closing rounds.

Mayfield finished with 288 strokes to tie Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and James Adams, a member of the British Ryder Cup team.

Middlecoff, who trailed Bolt by only one stroke at the start of the final round, couldn't do anything right. He never quite recovered after hooking his first tee shot into the woods and wound up with a one-over-par 73. Adams had a closing 72.

Julius Boros of Southern Pines, N. C., the first-round leader, had a 289 total to tie two other players — Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass., and Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y.

Two other British Ryder Cuppers finished in the money. Dai Rees had a 290 and Max Faulkner turned in a 296.

Francis (Bo) Winger of Pleasantville, N. J., captured low amateur honors with a 292. British amateur Pinehurst and U.S. Walker Cupper Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va. each had 294's.

No one knows what the most distant star is. With the new telescope at Mt. Palomar Observatory, clusters can be seen that are a billion light years away.

JOHN SMART, a junior from Wilmington, was one of the leaders in the East Carolina College offensive line which led the way to a 45-0 victory for the Pirates Saturday on the Cherry Point Marines' Varsity Field. Bears Have Invites To Two Bowl Games

By the Associated Press

The Lenoir Rhyne Bears were in the enjoyable position of being able to consider two Bowl bids over the weekend.

Thanks to their convincing 49-14 trouncing of Elon Saturday night, the Bears found themselves with invitations to Salisbury's Pythian Bowl Dec. 8 and Burley Bowl had representatives on hand to invite Coach Clarence Stasovich's squad to a Thanksgiving Day meeting with Morris Harvey College in Johnson City, Tenn.

The Bears turned down the Burley Bowl invite due to their scheduled engagement with Catawba Thanksgiving Day. The Pythian Bowl bid was referred to the Lenoir Rhyne faculty committee for action.

The long-awaited clash between the Christians and the Bears saw Lenoir Rhyne Quarterback Jim Garrett score three times in the first period on buck laterals. Then Full-back Steve Trudnak scored 12 more points for the Bears, giving him a total of 103 points for the season—only two short of the all-time state collegiate scoring record set by Catawba's Lee Spears in 1948.

The Bears are idle until Thanksgiving Day. Appalachian and Western Carolina end their seasons Saturday at Boone.

The only other game involving a conference team this coming week-end finds West Carolina playing host to Carson-Newman.

Other games Saturday saw Catawba edging a stubborn Guilford eleven, 20-14, East Carolina romping over Cherry Point, 45-0, Appalachian defeating Erskine, 20-0, and West Carolina losing to Emory and Henry, 13-7.

Lenoir Rhyne now leads the conference standings with a 5-0 mark, followed by Elon (4-1) and Catawba (3-1).

State Priming For Upset Over Maryland Saturday

By REESE DANIEL

United Press Sports Writer

RALEIGH (UP)—Coach Beat-Feathers said today that his N. C. State Wolfpack was capable of doing what no one else has been able to do this year—beat Maryland.

Feathers pegged his statement on the easy 31 to 0 win State took over Davidson Saturday.

While Sunny Jim Tatum's terrible Terrapins had to fight for a 40 to 21 victory over Navy, Feathers' only regret was that his Wolfpack couldn't sneak up and bite 'em like it did last year.

After last year's 16 to 13 upset, he said, "they'll be expecting a tough game from us."

Carl Snively wasn't looking forward too happily to North Carolina's meeting with Notre Dame, in spite of the Irish loss Saturday. The Tar Heels also took quite a walloping 34 to 14, from Virginia.

"Notre Dame undoubtedly will be the favorite," Snively said, "but anything is possible."

Wake Forest wore the state "big Four" crown today after its 19 to 13 upset of favored Duke. Washington and Lee received pats on the back for holding Tennessee to only 60 points while racking up 14 of their own.

Virginia Tech still has its perfect score—no wins since 1949—after a 28 to 7 beating at the hands of William and Mary. In another loop game South Carolina took an expected 34 to 13 win over West Virginia.

In a rash of non-conference games, little Furman rared up and pasted Newberry 33 to 13 while the Clemson Tigers rolled over Boston College 21 to 2.

The Citadel, "West Point of the South," met the Yankee army at West Point on the Hudson and the South lost again, 27 to 6.

Richmond, which has won only one game all season, went all the way to Deland, Fla., to take another whipping, 19 to 14, from Stetson.

Unbeaten and once-tied Georgia Tech crushed Virginia Military 34 to 7.

Pearls occur in oysters when a foreign object—perhaps a tiny grain of sand—gets between the shell and the body. Successive layers of a material called nacre, which consists of calcium carbonate, is secreted around the object.

Cigar Bowl Picks Lejeune

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—The Cigar Bowl committee was expected to name a military service team today as a rival for the Camp Lejeune Marines in the annual post-season football game here Dec. 29.

The Camp Lejeune squad, coached by Maj. Joe Donahoe, now leads all Marine Corps teams. If it beats Parris Island, S. C., Marines Thanksgiving Day, it will win the Cigar Bowl.

The Lejeune team, which has won five games, lost two, and tied one with two more games to play, was named yesterday and committee chairman C. A. Brown said the other team for the Shrine-sponsored game would also be a service outfit.

DOCTORS' TESTS PROVE How S.S.S. Tonic Helps Folks Who Are Ailing

The S.S.S. Tonic Company wanted to prove just how good this medicine is. So doctors were asked in college, laboratory and hospital to try the tonic on people who needed help with their blood, stomach digestion or appetite. After trying out S.S.S. Tonic, the doctors agreed that S.S.S. was a valuable and useful medicine. This is what they said: "Laboratory studies show that for increasing red blood cells and for making the cells rich in coloring matter, S.S.S. Tonic was definitely greater than liver and iron. After the continuous administration of S.S.S. Tonic, improvement was manifested in many ways: improved appetite, stimulation of stomach secretions, improved digestion, restoration of the blood to a normal state, a notable increase in strength, vitality, energy, and a sense of well-being." Further tests showed stomach gastric discomfort relieved, and food better digested—thereby giving steady relief from acid indigestion.

Untouchables Of India Aligned In West's Orbit

By V.M. VASAGAR
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW DELHI (UP)—Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, leader of India's 44,000,000 underprivileged (formerly untouchables) has thrown the weight of his Scheduled Castes Federation on the side of the Anglo-American bloc.

Ambedkar made public the election manifesto of his faction and asserted that India's wooing of Communist China was detrimental to her interests.

"The championing of China's cause by India has been responsible for the prevailing antagonism between India and America, with the result that it has become impossible for India to obtain financial and technical aid from America," the manifesto said.

The 59-year-old statesman, educated at Columbia University in New York, recently resigned as law minister in the Indian cabinet. He belongs to the depressed classes and was author of the controversial Hindu code bill which seeks to bring about revolutionary changes in custom-steeped Hindu society.

During his term as law member of the cabinet, Ambedkar piloted the historic constitution of the Indian Republic, which did away with untouchability. Today, in the eyes of the law, an "untouchable" (low caste Hindu) is entitled to the rights and privileges of any other Indian citizen.

The federation's manifesto implied a pro-American policy for India and thus became the first specific challenge to Premier Jawahar Nehru's policy.

Nehru's reply was quick and equally forthright. In his address to the special session of the Indian National Congress, he defended his foreign policy vigorously. He said India should not give up or suspend her independent attitude for the sake of some indefinite help which might or might not be forthcoming.

Nehru said: "Some people say that India has no foreign policy. Others say by our foreign policy we have only succeeded in making some powerful countries angry and antagonistic to us."

"It is, indeed, very strange how these critics have come to the conclusion they have because India has refused to bow down before threats from any power or out of fear of threats."

The Scheduled Castes' importance in the Indian political scene is negligible but they will lend powerful weight to any one or other of the major political parties. Indications are they will go along with the Indian Socialist Party headed by another Columbia-educated Indian, Jaiprakash Narain.

The manifesto makes these additional points:

Firstly, agrees with the Socialists that insurance should be nationalized.

Secondly, disagrees with the Congress Party on prohibition, which it calls "sheer madness," although prohibition is generally believed to most benefit the underprivileged classes.

Thirdly, proposes partitioning of Kashmir between India and Pakistan on the basis of Muslim and non-Muslim areas subject to the wishes of the people living in the valley.

Fourthly, birth control as a solution to India's age-long poverty.

Fifthly, cut down defense expenditures and rapidly mechanize agriculture.

Sixthly, reimpose the salt tax, the issue on which Mahatma Gandhi started his dramatic and historic fight against the British Raj.

Flown Home To Raise Spirits Of Dying Mother

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A sailor who was on Atlantic maneuvers last Friday was back home with his gravely ill mother today, thanks to the Navy's use of emergency sea, air and land transportation.

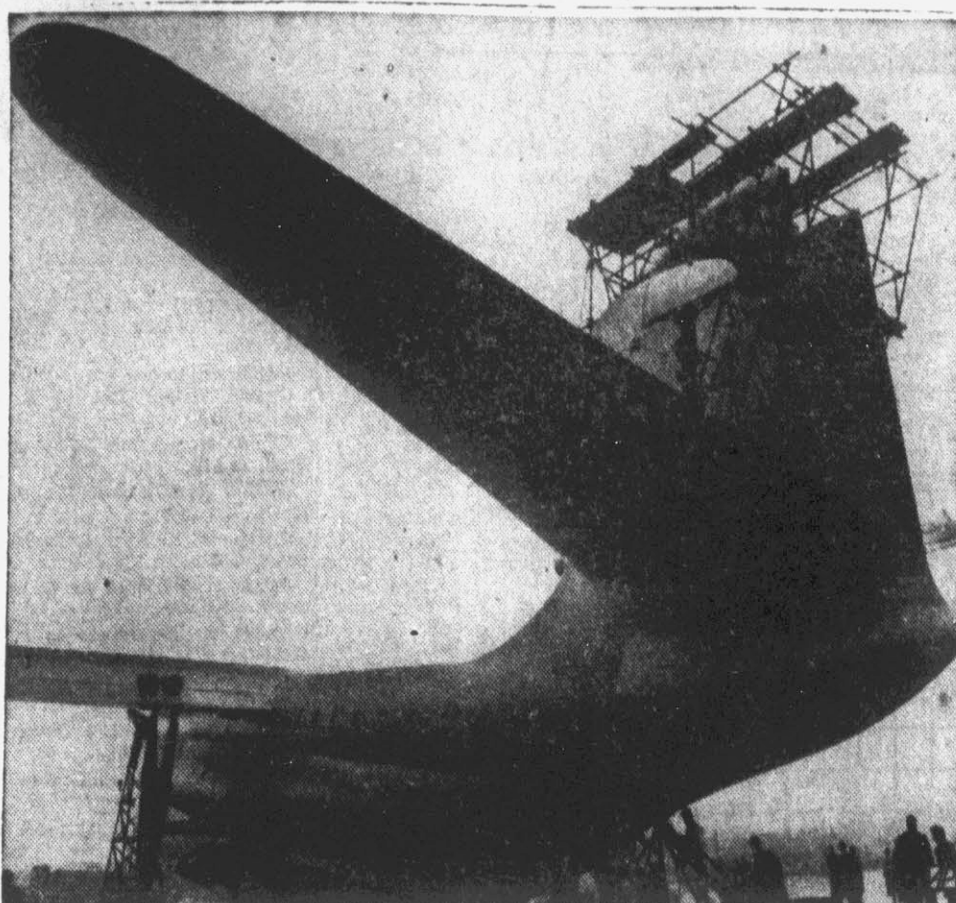

The condition of Mrs. Charles Giglio, 52-year-old tuberculosis patient, became critical last week. Relatives said the only thing keeping her alive was the hope of once more seeing her 19-year-old son, William Giglio.

The Red Cross told his commanding officer that Mrs. Giglio was dying and calling for her son. Then Giglio, an apprentice seaman, was given a 15-day furlough and ordered to leave his vessel. He boarded a destroyer by breeches buoy and a helicopter picked him up and transferred him to a carrier.

Noted Carolina Editor Is Dead

NORTH WILKESBORO (AP)—R. Don Laws, editor of the Republican news paper, the Yellow Jacket, died yesterday at his Moravian Falls home.

The hard-hitting editor established the Yellow Jacket in 1895. As a monthly newspaper it once had a circulation of more than a quarter of a million and made the town of Moravian Falls known throughout the country. At its peak, the paper was distributed in every state and several foreign countries.

Cites Serious Drop In Farm Population

"There has been a serious decrease in the country's farm population during the last 40 years," says W. A. Minor, assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Minor reported in a Production and Marketing Administration release that though the total population has increased by nearly 60 million since 1910, the farm population has declined from 32 million in 1910, to 24 million in 1950. "People on farms made up 35 per cent of the nation's total population in 1910 but they make up only 16 per cent at present," he said.

The report revealed that the farm populace has been affected more directly by wars and business conditions. From a peak of 32.5 million in 1910, the number of people on farms decreased rapidly during World War I and fairly steadily during the 1920's, to 29.5 million by 1930. The great depression cut down on migration from farms, but after 1933 the decline resumed — at first gradually. Movement from the farms speeded up during World War II, and most of these people did not return after the war. In 1950 the number of persons on farms was about five million smaller than in 1910.

In 1950, a farm population a fourth smaller than in 1910, produced the food and fiber for a population that was nearly two-thirds greater than in the earlier year. The report indicated that this was possible only because of the great increases in output per farm worker that have taken place in the last 40 years.

Farm mechanization, release of land formerly used for feed crops for livestock, use of fertilizer, improved seed and breeds of animals, and many other improved practices brought about by increased research, resulted in these gigantic gains in labor and productivity.

Father Asks If Criticism Of Truman Kept His Dead Son From Receiving Honor

(AP)—A retired World War One Army Captain today awaited word from President Truman in answer to the question: "Has my criticism of the administration kept my dead son from getting the Congressional Medal of Honor?"

Eugene R. Guild, now a Glenwood Springs rancher, wrote the President Nov. 1. He says he has received no word from the White House or Defense Department as yet.

"No comment," presidential press secretary Joseph Short said last night in Key West, Fla., where the President is vacationing.

In his letter to Mr. Truman, Guild said his son, 26-year-old marine Lt. John Guild, and another officer, Lt. Henry Alfred Commiskey, fought side by side during a battle for Hill 85 near Inchon in Korea. Commiskey survived and was awarded the Medal of Honor award. Guild died Sept. 20, 1950, and a Navy Cross was posthumously awarded.

Guild, in releasing his letter to reporters late Saturday, emphasized that he is not challenging Lt. Commiskey's right to the medal. The letter said, in part:

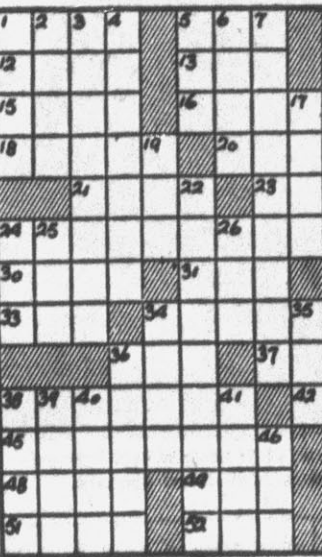

"This is to ask you about evidences of political tampering with awards for the heroism of our fighting men in Korea.

"In the now famous capture of Hill 85 near Inchon, two young marines led their attacking platoons through a barrage of fire xxx. One boy killed seven of the enemy and remained unscathed. The other boy, well out in front of his men, killed two of the enemy and was fatally wounded.

"Marine Corps eyewitnesses, deciding that each of the boys had exhibited the same degree of hero-

Santa Claus Has Feature Role On Christmas Seals

One of the world's most familiar symbols of unselfish giving, Santa Claus, is featured on the 1951 Christmas Seals, which will reach homes of Pitt County residents through the mails November 19, Dr. W. E. Marshall, Pitt County Christmas Seal chairman, reported today.

Dr. Marshall discussed the Christmas Seal at headquarters of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, where volunteer workers were preparing the seals for mailing. The 1951 sale will be conducted by the tuberculosis association from November 19 through December 25, to raise funds for the control of tuberculosis.

The red, chubby face of Santa Claus is portrayed on the seal against a green-blue background, and the designer is Robert Stephens of Newark, New Jersey. "In my opinion, the artist could not have selected a more appropriate figure for the Christmas Seal," said Dr. Marshall. "To adults and children alike, Santa Claus represents unselfish giving, and the gift purchases of Christmas Seals over the last 45 years have helped immeasurably in the nation's fight against tuberculosis."

Marshall stated that the Christmas Seal Sale Advisory Committee of the National Tuberculosis Association selected the design from 44 submitted by artists throughout the country.

Strict Traffic Law Enforcement Goes On

Greenville police are continuing strict enforcement of traffic laws, especially those concerning driving without a driver's license, failure to stop at "stop" signs and crashing red lights.

Police arrested six motorists at different times Saturday night on charges of crashing red lights in the city.

Weekend Sees . . .

(Continued from Page One) thington of Winterville and Carrie P. Bell, Negro, of Grimesland, collided Saturday afternoon at Bancroft avenue and the Farmville highway. Mrs. M. M. Payton of Grimesland received painful but not serious bruises. Damage to Worthington's car, $250; the Bell car, $250. No arrest.

A car driven by James T. Ham, Route 3, Greenville, got out of control at Charles and 14th streets Saturday night and collided with an electric light pole. Police said Ham was considerably shaken up but not injured. Damage to his car was estimated at $250.

Several minor collisions, in which the only damage was scratching of a little paint or denting a fender, occurred during the weekend. None of the occupants was injured, police reports state.

Navy's Airpower To Be Stronger If Plans Succeed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The substantial increase in naval air strength recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff will include not only more but bigger, harder-hitting planes flying off the decks of new or modernized carriers.

This picture emerged today out of a discussion with naval airmen about the Navy's project to build an ultra-modern, flush-deck carrier and the planes that will be ready for her when she is finished in late 1953 or 1954.

Meanwhile, the continued program of rebuilding flight decks, elevators, hangar facilities and other topside equipment of existing carriers will make them ready for using heavier attack aircraft and the longer-range jet fighters even before new carriers are in the fleet.

Naval air strength was expanded sharply since the start of the Korean war when there were only nine air groups and 20 patrol squadrons, most of them well below authorized strength in aircraft.

A recent tally showed 14 air groups and 34 patrol squadrons. (A group averages about 105 planes now; a squadron about nine aircraft.) In addition, there are an unspecified number of composite squadrons and photographic and utility plane units.

The contract for the new carrier, the U.S.S. Forrestal, was awarded to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company last July. For an estimated outlay of $218,000,000 the Navy expects to get a prototype carrier which probably will become the pattern for an entirely new family of flattops.

GOOD TRY, ANYWAY

VALPARAISO, Ind. (UP)—When the city water department received a telephoned request to turn the water off at Santa school, a clerk asked the caller who was authorizing the action. "Us kids," a small voice replied, "so we won't have to go to school."

New Addition To 10 'Most Wanted'

WASHINGTON (UP)—The FBI today put a gentlemanly-looking bandit, sought since 1948 for shooting a Los Angeles policeman, on its list of the "10 most-wanted fugitives."

He is Raymond Edward Young, 39, who has spent much of his life behind bars. When not in prison, he has worked on various construction jobs as a carpenter and bricklayer.

Young was put on the list to succeed Morley Vernon King, who murdered his wife in San Luis Obispo, Cal., in 1947. King was captured by FBI agents Oct. 31 in a Philadelphia restaurant where he was a chef.

Young was last in custody in 1948, when he was serving a term of five years to life for burglary. He escaped on Sept. 2, 1948 when taken with a group of inmates to fight a forest fire near San Luis Obispo.

On Oct. 26, 1948, a Los Angeles policeman halted a car for a routine check. The driver, later identified as Young, suddenly struck the officer in the face and shot him in the leg.

In asking for information on Young's whereabouts, the FBI warned that the fugitive may be armed and is considered dangerous.

Young's most distinguishing mark is a tattoo of a Gypsy woman's head on the inside of his lower left arm. He has a one-inch scar on the point of his chin and small pitted scars on both forefingers.

The five-foot, nine-inch, 165-pound Young appears to be a "quiet, well-mannered and gentlemanly individual," the FBI said. He is of medium muscular build, has brown curly hair, and blue eyes. He sometimes wears rimless glasses.

Dixie Governors Open Convention

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UP)—Southern governors opened their annual convention today with a debate on the explosive civil rights issue which highlights the Dixie split with President Truman.

While the off-stage maneuvering over a "beat Truman" movement for 1952 marked the conference, the question of Negro education with or without segregation.

Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, who was the States Rights vice presidential candidate in the Dixie bolt of 1948, opened the issue with the declaration:

"Regardless of what others may say, we in Mississippi are determined that the segregated educational system shall be maintained."

Harry S. Ashmore, fiery young executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette, told the governors in a luncheon speech that:

"The high cost of segregation has held back the overall development of our educational institutions."

Despite their dispute on segregation in schools, both agreed that "outside" efforts are retarding the Southland's own solution of the entire Negro rights question.

Wright bluntly declared that such delicate affairs as human relationships "cannot be equalized and balanced by legislation" without destroying human freedoms.

Governors attending the conference were equally split on the "Dixie Truman" question.

The pro-Truman forces showed evidence of a willingness to fight any attempt to stage another Dixie revolt against the President in 1952.

Govs. Sidney S. McMath of Arkansas and W. Kerr Scott of North Carolina spoke out forcefully on behalf of the President in press conferences on the eve of the opening business session.

The anti-Truman forces indicated they did not feel the conference was the time and the place to start

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Judy Garland, on a successful comeback trail, collapsed backstage at the Palace Theater last night after disregarding her doctor's orders not to perform.

"The show must go on," the 29-year-old singer insisted, according to her physician, Dr. Udall J. Salmon.

Dr. Salmon had her taken from the theater in an ambulance to a private sanitarium for "a few days." The doctor said she was suffering from "nervous exhaustion."
