Allied Warplanes Are Unchallenged

Sweeps Over North Korea Fail To Draw Out MIGs; Communist Rail System Absorbs New Punishment; Ground Fighting Light On Wide Front

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea — (AP) — Allied warplanes today swept North Korean skies without challenge and dealt new blows to the crippled communist rail system.

Far East Air Forces (FEAF) said B-26 light bombers destroyed eight locomotives in pre-dawn raids. Ten others were reported destroyed in the 24 hours ended at midnight Tuesday.

As Air Force spokesman said he hesitated to claim a total of 18 since there might be some overlapping. But he said he felt certain at least some of the eight were in addition to the previous 10.

Allied fighter sweeps through MIG Alley in northwest Korea before noon Wednesday failed to turn up any communist jets. It was the fourth straight day the Reds refused to tangle with U.N. planes.

U.N. ground forces Wednesday threw back two company-sized Red probing attacks on the western front and scattered a communist platoon on the eastern front.

An Eighth Army Wednesday evening communique said there was no other significant action along the front.

Allied troops Tuesday beat back two vicious Red attacks at opposite ends of the line.

Late Tuesday night the Reds used about 10 tanks in a moonlight assault on U. N. forward positions west of Chornwon on the western front. Red infantrymen followed under cover of mortar and tank fire.

The Chinese communists were driven off after a 25-minute battle. At least two of their tanks were claimed destroyed by U. N. armor.

The allied tanks were used primarily to mobile artillery. The fight ended shortly after midnight. By dawn Wednesday the communists had withdrawn from the battlefield.

On the eastern front allied troops counted 618 North Korean bodies on the battlefield after hurling back a coordinated attack by five Red battalions. The attack began Monday night.

An allied tank force pushed about 6,000 yards of U. N. lines above Jumhwa on the central front. Four allied tanks were damaged by Red fire, and only one was recovered. FEAF warplanes mounted 895 sorties as skies cleared over Korea Tuesday. Primary targets were Red rail facilities.

Confer In Study To Identify Head

RICHMOND, Va. (UP) — Virginia's chief medical examiner planned to confer with a Williamson, N. C. dentist today in an attempt to identify a severed head discovered in a honeysuckle patch near Norfolk.

Police expressed belief that the head was that of Walter E. Barr, who was sought in connection with the slaying of a Raleigh, N. C. widow. The badly-beaten and strangled body of Mrs. Mamie Smithwick was found floating in a lake near Norfolk.

Mass Murder Of 2,513 Americans Charged To Reds

Untold Thousands Of Other Prisoners Reported Slain In North Korea

PUSAN, Korea (UP) — An 8th Army spokesman said today that the Chinese Communists have murdered 2,513 American war prisoners in cold blood, including 299 Marines slaughtered in a single mass execution.

In addition, 8th Army and other figures show, the North Koreans have murdered more than 3,000 American prisoners since the war began in addition to untold thousands of Koreans, the spokesman added.

Col. James Hanley, judge advocate of the 8th Army, made the report. His charge coincided with an increasingly angry atmosphere in the Panmunjom truce talks and the denunciation of the Chinese Reds by Secretary of State Dean Acheson at the Paris United Nations meeting as far beneath barbarians.

The Chinese have murdered their victims since they entered the war last November. In that period, Hanley said, the North Koreans are known to have murdered 147 American prisoners of war. But before that time, it was estimated, they killed about 3,000.

Figures given by Hanley showed a total of 2,643 United Nations prisoners killed; 2,513 Americans, 40 Turks, 10 Britons, five Belgians and 75 of other nationalities.

The figures were eloquent testimony of the reason why the U.N. negotiators at Panmunjom refuse to call off the fighting until the Reds agree to release the American and other war prisoners they now hold.

Figures given in Washington last week showed the total of American fighting personnel missing in action since the war started as 10,864. Of course, many of these were probably killed in action.

Hanley said the North Koreans had murdered 7,000 South Korean war prisoners since last November. Untold thousands of civilians have been murdered also.

Citing the figures of the Chinese Red atrocities, Hanley said: "This is in sharp conflict with the Geneva convention in the treatment of war prisoners."

Find No Trace Of Plane, 36 Aboard

LYON, France (UP) — U. S. and French planes battled mist, icy rain and the danger of jagged mountain peaks today in a zig-zagging search across central France for an Air Force plane with 36 American servicemen aboard.

The C-82 Flying Boxcar vanished in foggy weather yesterday while transferring 30 troops from Germany to Bordeaux, supply base for the Atlantic Pact army. Six crewmen were aboard.

Weather was so menacing that it forced many search planes from the treacherous Mont D'Or mountain.

A picked team of American paratroopers, chutes strapped to their backs at the ready, rode one bucking search plane into the mountains. Another team of paratroopers, rushed here by plane, traveled by automobile and on foot to the 4,000-foot high Mont D'Or.

A special Air Force rescue unit was established at Lyon close to where the plane is feared to have crashed. Much of the flying had to be done on instruments because of the weather.

Urges Step-By-Step Solution

Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden addresses the United Nations sixth general assembly at Paris, calling on the Russians to put aside major world issues temporarily and seek a step-by-step solution to the cold war.

It was Eden's first speech in the UN since the founding conference at San Francisco in 1945, and was notable for its mild tone and lack of attacks on the Russians. (AP Wirephoto by radio from Paris).

Indict Scientist As Onetime Red

Worked 12 Years At Army's Secret Testing Ground

BALTIMORE — (AP) — A scientist who worked for 12 years at the Army's secret testing ground for all his weapons is charged today with trying to hide his onetime membership in the communist party.

A federal grand jury late yesterday indicted 40-year-old Franklin Victor Reno of Englewood, Colo., on a charge of concealing his party membership in a loyalty questionnaire he signed on Nov. 15, 1948, while working at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

He first was pointed out back in 1948 by Whittaker Chambers, former Soviet spy courier who was the central figure in the revealing Un-American Activities Committee hearings and again in the Alger Hiss perjury trials.

Chambers identified Reno as the person who supplied him with bombsting secrets for Russia. Reno has not been arrested although he contacted the U. S. Marshal's office at Denver and offered to report when wanted.

Reno's indictment was held up until nearly the last minute. After tomorrow — three years from the date he signed the loyalty statement — he could not have been charged, for he would have become legally immune under the statute of limitations.

U. S. District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn said he received the file on Reno only two weeks ago. He said he knew no reason for the delay after Reno's alleged affiliation was brought up by Chamber in 1948 other than to permit as much investigation as possible.

Truman Asked To Open Files In Tax Fraud Cases

House Probers Say Promised Access Has Run Into Repeated Delays

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman has been called upon to decide whether House investigators shall have access, and when, to tax fraud prosecution files in the Department of Justice.

The department assured the House subcommittee inquiring into Internal Revenue Bureau irregularities nearly a month ago that access to its tax fraud files would be worked out on a "case by case" basis.

But the subcommittee counsel, Adrian Dewind, said yesterday the group has run into "repeated delays" and decided to appeal to the President "right away."

Dewind said the decision was made by Chairman King (D-Calif.), who was not available for comment. Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Bureau said a preliminary estimate has been made that the nation's racketeers and gamblers owe the government about $25,000,000 in taxes.

This official said the estimate was made on the basis of a check by special racket squad agents who have been combing through a large number of names on a master list of 30,000, assembled from a variety of sources — Senate crime hearings, police lists, FBI reports and so on.

The House investigating group, a Ways and Means subcommittee, has been arguing for weeks with the Justice Department over the issue of access to tax fraud files. It had anticipated a final policy decision yesterday.

But the letter which arrived, Dewind told newsmen, dealt only with certain files and "did not in any way indicate that the Department of Justice would turn these or any other files over to us."

"We haven't got the files," he added, "and no decision has been reached to that end in the Justice Department that I know of."

Dewind said King has "considered the delays from every aspect and he feels the only thing he can do is discuss it with the President," now vacationing at Key West, Fla. King has said the subcommittee is interested in the Justice Department files because it wants to learn why, as he put it, "so many" cases of alleged tax fraud were dropped "at higher levels" without prosecution.

Lion Pursued In Nebraska Hunt

CERESCO, Neb. (UP) — A "genuine African lion" which scampered through corn fields and across creeks to elude a search party of farmers was believed holed up in a small cave near here today.

The animal, identified as a "real lion" by searchers, attracted a safari of about 30 farmers, headed by Saunders County Sheriff Jeff Davis. By moonlight, dogs and hunters trailed the lion "which has a large head, a mane and a tufted, three foot tail," to a small den a short distance from the Joe Patocka farm near here, Davis said.

FAMILY THREATENED CHARLOTTE — (AP) — Special Agent Howard J. Fridde, a key figure in current congressional income tax investigations, said today that his family had been threatened by an anonymous telephone caller.

UN Negotiators Challenged To Set Truce Line Or Quit

Smaller Countries Renew Peace Plea

UN Spokesmen Urge Great Powers To Compose Their Differences, Avoid Dread Destruction Of New Global War

PARIS — (AP) — Spokesmen from the smaller countries at the United Nations General Assembly today urged the great powers to compose their differences and avoid the dread destruction of a third world war.

The most fervent and most direct appeal was made by Denmark's Foreign Minister Ole Bjorn Kraft, who asked the leaders of the Soviet Union to grasp "the hand extended by the West."

Speakers from Columbia, Uruguay, and Paraguay pointed out that small nations had to pay the price of world war, although only the big powers had the means to start one.

Kraft told the assembly: "Perhaps it is of no importance what a small country says and thinks, but the small states more than any other feel the anxiety and disquiet of the present day."

Therefore, he said, he "dared to appeal" to the Kremlin to accept the disarmament proposals submitted by the United States, Britain and France as "an adequate basis for peace."

The diplomatic leaders of the Atlantic Pact — U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman — were not in the red and gold hall of the Palais de Chaillot as Kraft spoke.

It was understood that they were in their separate embassies working on Atlantic Pact problems for the North Atlantic Treaty conference in Rome next week.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky was also absent. He plans to answer all western speakers in a wind-up address Friday.

Before Kraft made his appeal, Gonzalo Restrepo Jaramillo of Colombia urged U. N. membership for Italy, Spain and "all other countries which uphold the principles of the United Nations charter."

Pakistan's Foreign Minister Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan delivered a slashing attack on what he called "the assumed superiority of those who choose to describe themselves as the white races, over those whom they regard as the non-white races."

This assumed superiority, he said, found its most familiar expression in colonialism, which Sir Zafrullah called "the biggest political problem of the day."

Egyptians Parade In New Silent Protest

CAIRO — (AP) — An estimated 500,000 Egyptians joined in a giant "silent" anti-British demonstration here today, then folded their banners and began to disperse peacefully.

As 100,000 watched, the 400,000 marchers paraded through Cairo to King Farouk's Abdin Palace, making a day of mourning for 20 Egyptians killed during the past month of violence over Britain's refusal to quit the Suez Canal zone.

As the parade through heavy police lines entered the palace square, the crowd obeyed police instructions and began to drift slowly away in small groups.

The marchers, like the 100,000 who paraded peacefully at Alexandria yesterday, were under government orders to keep silent and refrain from shouting. The government hoped this decree and a heavy police guard would prevent violent outbreaks.

Nuckols Says Dare Ignored In Welter Of Words Marking Long Armistice Session; Reasons For Allied And Communist Stands Discussed

MUNSAN, Korea — (AP) — Communist negotiators challenged the allies today to agree to a cease-fire line in Korea now or break off the truce talks.

Brig. Gen. William F. Nuckols, official U. N. spokesman, said the challenge was ignored in a today's five hour and five minute armistice session.

He said the challenge was made by Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang, member of the Red's two-man subcommittee.

Hsieh's challenge came during a wrangle over whether a military demarcation line and buffer zone shall be established now, as the Reds insist, or whether the question shall be postponed until other armistice questions are settled.

The allies refuse to agree formally to a line now, because they say that would establish an immediate cease-fire. This, in turn, they say, would take military pressure off the Reds and enable them to stall on other armistice terms.

Hsieh called this "fantastic talk." "If that is the course you choose to follow," he said, "then why not stay away."

Nuckols released other quotations from the Red delegates to show: 1. They want to end the fighting now, in the air and on the sea as well as on the ground. A U.N. communique said this became "unmistakably clear."

2. The Reds say there will be no armistice unless the allies agree to setting up a military demarcation line and buffer zone now.

3. The allies agree that establishing a buffer zone now would "mean cease-fire in fact."

4. The Reds conceded that once a demarcation line should not be changed later.

Nuckols said the language of negotiators at today's meeting — the longest unbroken session they've yet held — was sharper than it has ever been. Another meeting was scheduled for tomorrow.

All of the discussion revolved around item two of the agenda, involving the military demarcation line and buffer zone.

General Hsieh was quoted: "What does item two require? It requires that we make a clear indication now, reach a clear agreement as to where to stop the fighting."

"If this is not solved then item three, four and five cannot be proceeded with; no armistice will be achieved."

Brig. Gen. Nuckols said the Reds conceded they contemplate no changes once a cease-fire line is established. Their proposal calls for alterations at the time an armistice is reached if there have been substantial changes in the battle line. Nuckols said the communist negotiators conceded this was meaningless.

This is precisely what the U.N. command said it feared. It has said repeatedly that fixing a buffer zone now, as the communists propose, would mean an immediate cease-fire and an end to all shooting, relieving the Reds of pressure to agree on other armistice terms.

The allies say acceptance of the Red demand would mean an end to hopes for a truce settlement.

Southern Governors Head For Home As Rift Grows

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — (AP) — Southern governors returned to their homes today with deep and bitter political differences still clouding the future course of the Democratic Party in the South.

The three-day southern governors conference was non-political in its purposes. But it spotlighted the rift between leaders of the States' Rights Democrats and those who support President Truman and his administration.

One thing appeared certain in the aftermath of the conference: Political peace in the South can be achieved only by a compromise, either on the Democratic Party platform or the party's presidential candidate.

Ready To Divide Beer, Wine Tax

RALEIGH — (AP) — North Carolina cities and towns which sell beer or wine will slice up a $2,500,000 revenue melon.

The state plans to distribute that much as the cities and counties' share of beer and wine revenues for the past year. The state Department of Revenue will mail the checks next week.

One-half of the state tax on beer and unfortified wine is divided annually among the cities and counties which permit legal beer or wine sales.

Skipped Prison 2 Days Too Early

RALEIGH (UP) — Impatient David Boyd is a fugitive today instead of a legally free man because he skipped out of Orange County prison camp two days before his parole was ordered.

The parole for the 30-year-old Forsyth County man bounced yesterday when it reached prison headquarters. Boyd fled Sunday after serving a little more than two years of a 5 to 10-year term for false pretense.

Economic Aid Topic For Discussion At Chatham Club

Dr. Kathleen Stokes, member of the Social Science department of East Carolina College, was the guest speaker yesterday when the Chatham Book Club met with Mrs. G. A. Bowen.

Before the meeting convened, the guests were served a refreshment plate of frozen fruit salad, sandwiches and coffee. The hostesses had used tasteful arrangements of yellow and white chrysanthemums and pink roses to lend attractiveness to the room.

During the brief business meeting which preceded the program for the afternoon, the president read a letter from Charles A. White concerning the opera which the local Music Club is bringing to Greenville in the near future. A letter from Dr. W. E. Marshall with reference to the T. B. Seal Sale drive was also read.

Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, program chairman for the year, introduced Dr. Stokes, who discussed with members the economic aid which the United States is extending to foreign countries. This talk is a continuation of the study for the year, which deals with the subject of United States aid to other countries throughout the world.

Dr. Stokes recalled that 12 billion dollars had been expended last year alone in helping the European and Asiatic countries economically. She mentioned the ways in which the money was spent and allocated and the visible and intangible results which were evident as a result of this aid.

She brought to the attention of the listeners that as far back as 1846 Russia had designs on Iran and Turkey and reviewed the events which proved her statement. It was her opinion that the peoples of the countries under the influence and domination of the Communists were primarily interested in a higher standard of living and not in political philosophies.

"The money we are spending is well worth all it costs us if we can sell the peoples of the Iron Curtain countries and those on the borderline of Communism on the idea that our way of life offers a better standard of living than does the way of Communism," she concluded.

She suggested that additional ways to supplement this economic aid is by films, broadcasts and special lectures which will teach them to produce for the masses instead of the classes.

After the books were distributed, the meeting was adjourned.

Fidelis Class
The Fidelis Class of Memorial Baptist meets Thursday at 8 o'clock in the church parlor.

Three old maids arrived in Greenville last night and opened up the current season of productions for Greenville's Little Theatre Guild.

The first performance of "Tish," an hilarious comedy based on the adventures of a young girl originally created by Mary Roberts Rinehart, was given at the Greenville Recreation Center last night. The second and last performance will be given tonight at the same place at 8:15 p.m.

The play is directed by Joanne Bloom, a local girl who studied at a dramatics school in Boston last year. She was assisted in some of the technicalities of the production by Sam Fleming, who is also a former student of the dramatics school in Boston. Members of the cast and the Theatre Guild did all of the work on scenery, costumes, lighting and stage settings.

The action of the play takes place in a combination lunch room and lobby of a hotel located in a remote section of the Southwest near the Mexican border. The time is the present and the events occur within the space of three days.

It is the story of three unattached and inexperienced middle-aged females who get stranded by a car wreck. Wherever they are, amusing and confusing things happen. Tish, the beloved character of fiction and drama, attempts to capture the villain of the play single-handedly and only adds to the chaos and general mix-up.

Love interest in the play centers around the young girl who runs the hotel and the nephew of Tish who comes to extricate his aunt from the impossible situation in which she gets herself and her friends.

Those taking parts in the play are Donna Tabor, Elizabeth Savage, Anne Askew, Bettie Mobley, Patsy Baker, Joe Trotman, Frank Toothman, Geraldine Weathers, Sam Fleming Jr., Helen Jackson, Claude Taylor, Douglas Mitchell and Joanne Bloom.

The stage settings were designed by Donna Tabor and Claude Taylor, while the members of the cast created the costumes.

The play is sponsored by The King's Daughters.

The third play, "His Butler's Wife," is a hilarious comedy about a young bachelor who pays $10,000 to "borrow" another man's wife.

Whatever your theater tastes are, the Junior Class promises a varied program to entertain you. There will be a small admission fee.

Little Miss Trillia Dail House was the guest of honor when her mother gave a party to celebrate her sixth birthday.

The party, which was held at her home on Jarvis Street, took place last Thursday night, and guests were young friends of Trillia. After a series of games and other entertainment, the mother of the honoree served iced drinks, sandwiches, salted nuts and cakes.

Trillia was the recipient of many attractive presents, which she opened and displayed for the enjoyment of the young guests.

Annual Supper
Good fellowship and good food prevailed at the annual supper put on by the ladies of St. Mark's and St. John's Episcopal churches on Friday night at the St. John's Home Demonstration club house.

Greetings were said to members of the congregations and friends of the churches who were present by Mr. E. W. Fleming and the rector, the Rev. Jack Rountree and Mrs. Rountree was also said by Rev. Rountree.

A beautiful supper was enjoyed picnic style. In the club house pretty arrangements of yellow and white chrysanthemums were used as decorations. After the repeat Rev. Rountree made a few remarks on the church obligations.

Entertainers Club
Mrs. Robert Mewborn was a gracious hostess on Thursday night at her home here at a regular session of her contract club with invited players for an extra table.

In the living room and elsewhere in the home beautiful bowls of white chrysanthemums and tall lighted white candles made a pretty setting for the party. Five tables were placed for the games. As guests arrived they found their places by attractive tables and a delicious two course supper was served.

During the games which followed the supper Mrs. Marie Chapman scored high among the club members. Second high was held by Mrs. E. F. Quinley. The guest award went to Mrs. Billy Phillips. Other players were Mrs. John Griffin, Mrs. David Wassum, Mrs. Clifton Jackson, Mrs. Tom Gower, Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mrs. Eleanor Gower, Mrs. J. L. Quinley, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Mrs. Jack Tucker, Mrs. Thurman J. Williams, Mrs. Richard A. Nelson, Mrs. A. D. Wall, Mrs. J. W. Short, Miss Hazel Patrick, Miss Louise Mewborn and Miss Bert Johnson.

W.C.S. Meets
Monday afternoon the W.C.S. met for their November meeting at the parsonage. The hostesses for the day were Mesdames E. W. Downum, F. L. Cox, Roy Jackson and Courtney Patrick.

Mrs. John Oglesby presided at the business session. Plans were laid for an "Old Fashioned Box Party" on December 12th at 7:30 in the Masonic Hall. With the auction of the boxes will be articles of fancy work and other things of interest on sale, proceeds to go to the church improvement fund.

Mrs. Sam McLawhorn Sr. led the devotional. She read passages of Scripture from Samuel, Proverbs and John. The meditation was "Fruits of the Spirit-Friendship". Prayer and the singing of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" were used. Reports of the treasurer, Visitation group, and Missionary Education committee were heard.

Mrs. H. L. Wethington had charge of the program of the afternoon, keeping with the approaching Thanksgiving season. Her altar arrangement was inspirational. Mrs.

Literature Dept. To Collect Care Parcels For Korea

As its part of the CARE-POR-KOREA CAMPAIGN (November 12-24) of the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Executive Board of the North Carolina Federation of Women's clubs voted to assume the responsibility of getting together 2,000 CARE packages for Koreans.

The Literature Department of the Greenville Woman's Club is in charge of contributions from Greenville and is hoping that Greenville people will open their hearts to the suffering of these bewildered devastated people, caught up in a war through no fault of their own. A contribution (no matter how small) for a CARE package should be a part of everyone's Christmas giving this year.

These CARE packages, food or clothing, are bought at wholesale prices or less. They are being assembled in three sizes costing seven, ten, and thirteen dollars. All world-minded Americans are urged to help get these needed gifts to Korea in time to save lives, before the bitter cold winter sets in. Last winter uncounted numbers of old people, women, and children died from both cold and starvation.

Clubs, groups, or individuals may give their contributions to any of the following committee members:

Mrs. Dan E. Vornholt, Chairman, East Carolina College.

Mrs. Walter Krausnick, East Carolina College.

Mrs. W. H. Woolard, 863 Cotanche Street.

Checks should be made out to Mrs. Dan E. Vornholt and marked for CARE-POR-KOREA.

Earning Honors In Anthropology

Louis B. Dupree, Harvard graduate and native of Greenville, appears in a picture with Dr. Carleton Coon, anthropologist, on the cover of the "Pennsylvania Gazette," published by the General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania.

In the picture, Dupree and Coon point out the location of the Hotu Cave in Iran where last spring the archaeological expedition of Coon discovered human remains believed to be at least 15,000 and possibly 75,000 years old.

At the present time, Dupree is studying flints found with the men in the hope that they may provide a clue to their age, and another study is being made of soil samples.

At the request of the editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica, a short biographical sketch of Dupree has been sent to the encyclopedia and another one has been requested from Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia. Dupree is scheduled to speak at the annual convention of the American Philosophical Society in the near future and he will also speak to the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, December 26.

If a recommendation is made for the correction of a defect, the nurse visits the home to help the family arrange for necessary hospital and medical care. If school-health funds are to be used, special forms are made out so that a record of expenditure can be kept.

The Kiwanis and Lions Clubs have assisted in the health program by furnishing money to help provide medical corrections.

Cases Heard In Recorder's Court

In Pitt County Recorder's Court yesterday, Judge Dink James found Walter R. Briley guilty of careless and reckless driving and fined him $25 and costs. The court ordered that his driver's license be suspended for eight months.

In the case against Cornwallace Godley (alias Willie James Gardner), Negro, charging abandonment and non-support, the court gave him six months on the roads, suspended on payment of doctor's bill and $3 a week.

The case of Clyde Whitfield, charged with assault, drunk and disorderly and non-support, was continued.

Funds Allocated To School Health Program Carefully Used By Joint Planning

Funds allocated for the School Health Program are used jointly by the local health department and the local school system. Through joint planning of these groups, ways and means of using the fund are decided upon and allocations are made on the basis of pupil enrollment in the schools. The money is used primarily for the correction of any chronic remediable physical defect for which there is no other existing facility. The money is reserved for those families who are not financially able to take care of corrections themselves.

The funds also may be used for the purpose of providing additional workers for the staff of the health department. In the Pitt County Health Department part of the salary and travel of one nurse is paid out of the Greenville City School-Health Fund. Having more nurses cuts down the work load of all and enables each one to do a more thorough job.

The money which was allocated for use in the Greenville City Schools was used as follows, from July, 1950 to June 30, 1951: Corrections of defects, tonsils, 45 children; and teeth 25, bringing the total to 70 for the two defects. Total costs for removal of tonsils cost $879.50 and correction of dental defects cost $330.00.

Medical examinations paid for by school health funds came to $20 and the total cost for the examinations cost $70.00. Twenty-two free medical examinations were given and 192 children were examined in two pre-school examinations.

Other defects found in children in the city schools included eye trouble. Over 250 children were referred for eye examination and of this number 94 had to have glasses. Funds for this were provided by the Lions Club.

Selection of the children to receive assistance from the school health fund depends on several people. The teacher in each classroom through observation and inspection, refers to the nurse those children whom she thinks show evidence of a physical defect.

The nurse, in turn, makes a detailed inspection on the basis of what the teacher has told her. If she feels the defect is one which warrants further examination she suggests that the parents see their family physician about the child. If the parents are unable to do this the child is seen by the doctor in

Steel Shortage Puts Crimp In State Building Projects

RALEIGH — (AP) — The steel shortage has put a crimp in the building program at state institutions.

Assistant Budget Director D.S. Coltrane reported yesterday that prospects of obtaining steel for building projects at educational institutions are dim. He said he had been advised of this by Washington officials.

The picture is slightly better for projects at state hospitals, Coltrane stated. He said that because of the steel situation, the Budget Bureau will not approve the awarding of contracts for any state building projects unless priorities for the steel are obtained.

Coltrane reported that contractors find it difficult to get steel even with priorities.

He said contracts may not be awarded for a new library building at East Carolina College at Greenville and a dormitory project at Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone.

Steel priorities have been obtained and contracts awarded for two big projects at North Carolina State College, but Coltrane is apprehensive about the possibility of getting steel. The projects are a new library and a student union building.

Most of the state's $128,000,000 building program at institutions is under construction, the budget officials said. Up to Oct. 17, approximately $106,000,000 was under contracts.

Too Clear Glass Is Church Hazard

OXFORD, O. — (AP) — The window cleaner looked proudly at a glass panel in the church vestibule. It sparkled.

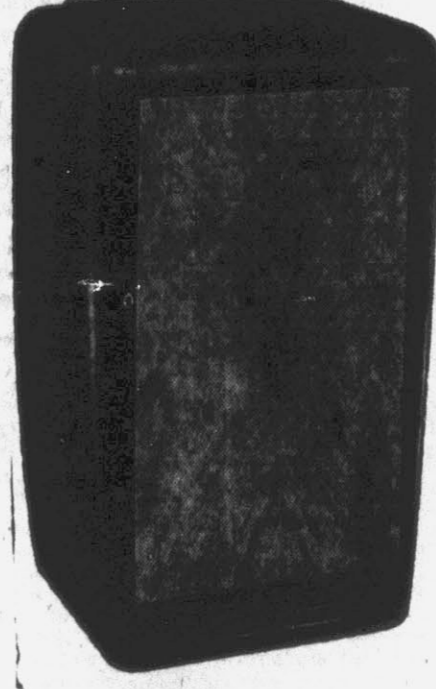

He turned—and walked through a floor-length panel he's just cleaned.

Next day, another workman rained his elbow through a glass. Neither man was cut, said the Rev. A. L. Kershaw, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church. "But," said he, "we're going to have to sand blast some designs into the glass to keep parishioners from doing the same thing."

Low-Down on a high-powered Performer

Let us tell you this:

The Buick pictured here packs more power than you find in any other car of its size and room and price.

That's the power of Buick's newest high-compression valve-in-head eight—the F-263 Fireball Engine, that really gets miles from a gallon of gas.

Add to this the fact that it tips the scales at 3817 pounds curb-side—and you begin to see why this big-powered beauty is such a nimble-footed number out on the road.

But that's only Chapter I of the performance story.

There's a big-car feel to the way this trim traveler covers the ground—hugs the curves—holds its course on the straightaway—smothers the bumps with its big soft coil springs on all four wheels.

There's big-car room inside—six-passenger room—headroom, hiproom, shoulderroom, kneeroom, front and back.

Come in, look it over, and we think you'll agree—it's big in everything but price.

And that's where it really shines. If you've shopped around you'll know what we mean when you read the price tags, and what they include in the way of standard equipment that shows up as "extras" on so many others. Such things as an oil filter, air cleaner, vacuum booster, built-in summer ventilation are all yours at no extra charge.

It's hard to believe but it's true. If you can afford a new car, you can afford this Buick at the prices we're quoting today.

Better come in and look this smart buy over.

Standard equipment, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other series.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. DOUGLAS

FOLLOW YOUR CALLING

Some people have the false idea that because Christianity encourages humility and meekness it is therefore a faith only for the unsuccessful, the failures, those who cannot make anything of themselves and seek in religion a consolation for their own ineptitude.

Of course one need only glance at the lives of such great figures as St. Paul, Charlemagne, Washington, Lincoln—men whose lives have changed the course of history—to see how false such an idea is. Christianity not only encourages but demands that men make something of themselves.

Everyone knows Jesus' parable of the wealthy man who left home, giving each of his servants a sum of money. When he returned, he richly rewarded the two servants who had used what they were given to make more. But the servant who buried his talent and did nothing with it was cast into the outer darkness.

Everyone has been given some strength or ability to be used. George Borrow, the English novelist, once wrote: "Follow your calling—for, however various your talents may be, you can have but one calling capable of leading you to eminence and renown. Follow resolutely in the one straight path before you. It is that of your good angel; let neither obstacles nor temptation induce you to leave it. Bound along it if you can; if not, on hands and knees follow it."

Don't Purchase A Pig In A Poke

The general public has an obligation to see that an individual citizen is not unjustly punished through the courts for any crime which is committed. But on the other hand the general public is just as obligated to see that just punishment is meted out to those citizens who are convicted of crimes by the courts.

Where the facts in the individual cases justify some question about the punishment, petitions for commuting a sentence are reasonable; but in the case of Thad Braxton, Jr., and Herman Newell, Jr., of Pitt County, The Reflector does not believe the facts justified the mass effort to bring pressure on the State Paroles Commission to have the men placed on parole rather than serving their respective sentences of six years and four years imposed by Pitt Superior Court last April.

Some 140 Pitt County people sought to intervene in behalf of the two men. It is obvious from the number of people who allowed their names to be used in behalf of these two men convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, that there was a highly organized movement engineered to keep these men from serving their sentences. Some of the petitioners may have known all the facts in the case and the backgrounds of the men. It is the opinion of The Reflector, however, that the majority of the petitioners were betrayed by their own ignorance of the facts in the case which brought forth the sentence in question, the background of the men for whom they intervened, and the gravity of their request that the men be paroled rather than required to serve their sentences. In other words, they were probably "taken in" by some fast-talking acquaintance without giving careful consideration to their action.

In the case of Newell, information available in Pitt County indicates he had no previous court record. A petition in his behalf may have been justified although we doubt it in the light of the crime for which he was convicted. In the case of Braxton, his court record locally goes back for a number of years, and involves numerous cases including trespassing, assault, assault on female and indecent exposure.

The Reflector supports the Paroles Commission in declining to commute the sentences of the two men. If these men escape punishment for their crime, it would only encourage other men to try other crimes and escape punishment by bringing pressure upon the courts and upon the Paroles Commission.

People who allow the use of their names in seeking paroles for men convicted of crimes, should make sure they know the facts involved, and that an injustice is being done if the persons convicted of the crimes serve the sentences invoked by the courts. The people must not overlook their obligation to see that just punishment is received by persons who commit crimes any more than their obligation to see that injustices are not carried out.

Different Products Often Carry The Same Label

A good many "party first, government second" die-hards are up in arms over the recent statement of Senator Willis Smith of North Carolina demanding an end to "stubborn support for stupid or dishonest officials" in government.

Throughout the United States there are millions of people who stand firmly on the conviction that Democrats can do no wrong and Republicans can do no right . . . and there are other millions who think just the other way around. These, to a great extent, are the people who return poor government officials, Democrats and Republicans alike, to office year after year not only on a national level, but on the state and local government levels also.

These are the people to whom the party name means everything, and the reputation of the individual candidate or the party platform means nothing as long as the candidate wears the right party label.

The time has long since passed when individual voters should realize there are good and bad candidates running on both party tickets. The only way to have good, efficient government is to choose the most capable, honest men for public office.

Senator Smith is correct in his assertion that "no incompetent individual, no matter how loyal should be allowed to remain in public position." In these pressing times we need the best possible in government, but until the voters learn to look at the candidates instead of the party labels, both Democrats and Republicans will continue to return incompetent, dishonest men to public office year after year.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Winston Churchill's program for rebuilding British economy after six years of the Labor Party's rule, as well as his obvious plan to play a more dominant role in world affairs, holds a distinct threat to Democratic success in next year's elections. That is the opinion of practical politicians and high members of the Truman Administration.

The danger does not lie so much in his return to power, although G.O.P. spokesmen insist that the conservative trend sweeping the Anglo-Saxon countries (Canada, Australia, New Zealand), will be duplicated here next year. This expectation, however, is negated by the fact that the Laborites had a popular majority, and that Churchill's control of Commons is extremely slim.

PLIGHT—It is the difficult experience which the Prime Minister faces in unscrambling the Attlee-Bevan nationalization of key industries that may affect American voters.

In addition, although England's current shaky condition cannot be blamed entirely on Labor rule, there is Churchill's official notice that Britain will head toward "national bankruptcy," unless she shifts sharply in the other direction.

In short, the spectacle of Britain's plight after six years of "socialistic experimentation" may incline the "independent" and what Senator Taft calls the "uninterested" voters, to support a more moderate type of candidate than the Democrats will present. Or it may lead the Democrats, in their platform at least, to forget the more controversial and experimental portions of the "Fair Deal."

STEEL—Just as a Republican "President" may learn if a member of that party should succeed Mr. Truman, Churchill has discovered that eliminating Labor's governmental and industrial reforms is easier said than done. He has announced that the only industry he will try to denationalize is steel, leaving coal, electricity, the railroads, the Bank of England under London ownership and control.

Now, he is not sure that he can remove steel from the federalized system. The original owners were bonded $100,000,000 in return for turning over their $300,000,000 property to the government. Except for a few large companies like Vickers, there is no assurance that the original or new investors would want to take back their property under any terms.

SOLUTION—For one thing, the steel industry was so badly managed that the United States must provide $600,000,000 during the current year for re-arrangement. Then there is no certainty that some future Labor victory will not lead to another nationalization and possible demoralization of steel.

The American solution for a similar problem will be emphasized by the G.O.P. next year. They will contend that, had it not been for Congressional opposition and Jesse H. Jones' businesslike management of the R.F.C. in the war years, our government would be more deeply involved in the ownership and operation of business and industry than it is now. Mr. Jones' recent book will prove that.

REDUCTION—Mr. Churchill's drastic proposals for restoring England's economic position, although necessary, will hurt us in a bread-and-butter way. He intends to cut Britain's foreign purchases by a billion dollars a year, and that reduction will apply largely to exports from here and Canada.

It may not be felt here for some time, in view of rearmament expenditures. But it will mean that the U.S. will lose one of its best foreign markets, if continued.

Finally, as the Eisenhower-Truman-Fleischmann conferences and surveys indicate, despite lack of official publicity, Churchill will need a large and immediate advance from the U.S. treasury for ordinary expenses.

PEACE-MAKER—Unlike Clement Attlee, Churchill has already demonstrated that he will not "play second fiddle" to President Truman in the world orchestra. That was one of the most damaging indictments of the Labor Ministry in the recent campaign.

Since Mr. Truman has cast himself in the part of generalissimo of the western nations in the "cold war," the Prime Minister indicates that he will assay the role of peace-maker between the dictatorships and the democracies. Although he will not do an appeasing act, he will try to prove himself as adroit as the diplomatic table as he was as a warrior.

What form his move will assume, and what success he will achieve, is still a question. But, despite Washington's cynicism and distaste for another four-power parley, Churchill has urged such a man-to-man meeting. It is significant that Mr. Truman carefully refrained from mentioning this suggestion in his recent disarmament address.

FORCE—Incidentally, if Mr. Churchill should improve relations between the two hostile blocs, it might affect General Eisenhower's presidential availability. It might make it easier for him to quit his European assignment in time to make a pre-convention fight for delegates. But it would also lessen the importance of his task as architect of Western European defense forces.

There is one thing sure. Churchill's reentrance into the world theater will affect the fortunes of all the other major prima donnas. He is an explosive force.

Those Rebel Flags

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The most observant person I know is my mother. Back during my courting days I used the family car one night and the next day Mother confronted me with the comment, "Went out of town last night, didn't you?" It wasn't that she minded my going out of town, but she just wanted me to know she noticed it.

"Yes m'am," I answered, "but how did you know?"
"Bugs on the windshield."
"That settles it," I told Mother, you are wasting your time being a housewife. Edgar Hoover should know about you. You could make a killing in the FBI. They could release two men if you went in."

That conversation had slipped my mind until the other day when I saw an article written by H. G. Felsen that agreed with the statement about Mother, except he stated that the FBI should be all female. J. Edgar is hiring boys to do a woman's job.

If Mr. Hoover really wants to know what's going on in this country I can introduce him to several women who can pick up more confidential information in two hours under a hair drier than FBI men can pick up in two weeks.

The greatest asset the woman has is her daily telephone calls. What man would call up another just to chat on the telephone? Men just don't do that. And what man has time during a day of conducting business to simply chat on the telephone. Before you women attack me, let me confess that your day is longer than your husband's if you have small children. But 99 of 100 women manage to squeeze a few phone calls into a busy day.

Since bridge is the most popular card game, let's take a table of bridge of men, and compare it to women. In three hours around a table, men will play three times as many hands as women. To women bridge players, the game is secondary to the conversation, whereas it's visa versa with men.

The average man's interest in athletics keeps him from knowing more about other people. While women are talking about other women, men are talking about the football games coming up on the weekend.

While sticking up for men, I have to confess that occasionally there slips into our tribe a traitor, who loves to gossip and keep up with other people's business even more than women do. And the funny thing is, the boys usually listen to every word of news from this traitor, instead of completely eliminating him from our tribe. And I thank you.

GOVERNORS—Looks like Governor James F. Byrnes of North Carolina put several of his colleagues on a spot at the Southern Governors' Conference in Hot Springs. Host Governor Sid McMath of Arkansas and Governor Kerr Scott of North Carolina let it be known they were backing President Truman all the way. Governor Fielding Wright of Mississippi and several others just as eagerly proclaimed their desire to block Truman, and obviously hoped to have Governor Byrnes lead the movement for them. Governor Byrnes, however, brushed the whole business off with the cryptic comment he had come to attend a business conference of state executives, not a political strategy meeting. As a matter of fact, the several states were paying the expenses of their governors for the purpose of discussing problems of state government, not political strategy separatory to the Chicago conventions next year.

STACKED—State Senator Thomas B. Sawyer of Durham, speaking at an Amvet organization meeting in Wilson the other night, charged that stacked committees were responsible for failure of his multi-million dollar veterans' bonus handout in the last legislative term. He further said the state's political machine had already earmarked John D. Larkin, Jr., for lieutenant governor next time and had also picked the speaker of the house. That will undoubtedly be interesting news to members of the "machine" and to the men alleged to be recipients of its blessings.

There has been a great deal said about the "political machine" in North Carolina, but it has always been hard to find. It has been a sort of nebulous ghost; but there has been rather general acceptance of the incumbent Democratic party and state government organizations as the "machine." If that is to be accepted now, the surprise element is enhanced—in charges that it has ear-marked the men named by Senator Sawyer.

MACHINERY—For many years the outs have accused the incumbent administration of controlling elections through appointment of party organization officials, members of the state board of elections, and by per- curricular political activities on part of high-, commissioner, revenue department personnel, and others in strategic positions, all of whom held their jobs by appointment of the governor. That machinery is now more completely in the hands of Governor Scott than has been the case of any of his predecessors, for the reason that Governor Scott made a cleaner sweep among appointive officers than any governor in many years. And, although technically elected by the executive committee of the top ranking Democratic party officials were picked by the governor. If there is any political machine in North Carolina now, it is a Scott-named machine and Senator Sawyer has been closely identified with it.

MODEL MILE—Prize winners in the 1951 "Model Mile" contest were distributed pretty pretty well over the state. The contest was sponsored by the Roadside Development Council and was conducted through home demonstration clubs. Prize money was contributed by the Carolina Motor Club. First prize of $25 went to the Southwood club in Lenoir county; second prize of $15 to Allen's Crossroads club in Union county, and third place with $10 to Newfound Community club in Buncombe county. The wide distribution of prize winners indicates a real statewide interest in the project. Main idea is to make roadways in North Carolina more attractive. It has full support of the highway commission, the state advertising division, motor clubs, tourist associations and other agencies. The plan involves clearing up roadside premises, standardizing of mail boxes and pasture fences, and numerous other items tending to please the eye of travelers along the highways of the state.

His goal: to discover a way to make governmental acts and proposals intelligible to the voters.

"People want to know more about their government—what it is doing and what it plans to do," he said. "They have never been more eager for information. But they have to be told in a language they can understand."

Gaspari has been searching for a common language that people in government and those who are governed can understand. He figures the best bet is old-fashioned plain English.

But the trouble with that is that only the voters remember it any more. Legislators write their bills in a cloudy legal terminology that even the high courts find difficulty in interpreting. And administrative officials are lost behind a misty verbal curtain of gobbledygook. To an outsider, an exchange of letters between them is as mysterious as the scratchings of two turkeys in barnyard snow.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK—(AP)—Some people complain they don't know what the government is up to. This could be because of two reasons:

1. Governments themselves—local, state and national—do not know what they actually are doing.
2. If they do know, they have lost the art of letting the people know what they are doing.

Enzo Gaspari believes the latter is the case. He is a young and energetic New York state senator from the Bronx who has embarked on perhaps the most hopeless quest of our day.

His goal: to discover a way to make governmental acts and proposals intelligible to the voters.

"People want to know more about their government—what it is doing and what it plans to do," he said. "They have never been more eager for information. But they have to be told in a language they can understand."

And administrative officials are lost behind a misty verbal curtain of gobbledygook. To an outsider, an exchange of letters between them is as mysterious as the scratchings of two turkeys in barnyard snow.

"When I got ready to introduce my first bill, I wrote it out and submitted it to the legislative bill drafting committee," he recalled. "I got the redrafted version back the next day. It took me two days to figure out what it said—and I'm a lawyer."

There were more than 8,000 bills submitted at the last session of the New York state legislature, he said, all filled with technical legal terminology. This works a hardship on the legislators themselves as well as the voters.

"When you pick up a sheaf of 30 bills and don't know what they are about—30 bills that may come up in a single day—it is hard to act on them intelligently," he said.

Gaspari pointed out that most amendment proposals to be submitted to voters are now re-phrased into English by the newspapers, and praised the press for this service.

"But the people responsible for drafting bills should preface each of them with a short, simple statement of what the bill is

Business Today

What makes America great? Some say it is our great material resources—the vast amounts of metals, oil and coal underground; the productivity of the soil, and the huge total of sources of electric power. That is a factor, of course. But Russia has almost as much in discovered resources and may actually have more than we undiscovered.

Others say it is our admixture of races and cultures, which have produced a beneficial ferment. That may have something to do with it. The great nations of the past, the Roman Empire and the former Spanish, French and British empires were built nearly on cultural amalgamates. But Russia is a country of even more diverse racial stocks.

Perhaps climate has much to do with it. But the people who basked in this same climate for thousands of years before we came here never approached greatness.

Our encouragement to inventors? A factor, perhaps. But in recent years we have been forcing inventors to license others to use their discoveries and we seem to be going ahead at the same pace.

Our conception of democracy? That is certainly an important factor. There have been great democracies before, some even more nearly perfect than ours. But Greece and Rome became greater after democracy waned.

There is something that has grown out of our kind of democracy that may be more important than all of these factors.

That is the ceaseless drive for higher standards of living. Autos, planes, refrigerators, radio and television, plastics, synthetics and the production line were known in other countries almost as soon as they were known here. In fact, if any credence could be placed on communist propaganda, they were all invented in Russia hundreds of years before they were dreamed of in the United States.

But here in America there is a tremendous drive to possess the material benefits of this progress. Probably because of the democracy here, every man believes that, if he works hard enough, he is entitled to a car that goes as fast as any millionaire's and every woman believes she is entitled to wear as fashionable clothes and as alluring perfume as any pampered society pet. Because they know they can get the things, people work, fight, strike and struggle for them. They produce more goods for others so that they can get the goods they want. This tremendous—and tremendously successful—drive was born in democracy. And don't forget, it was nurtured by advertising.

SEPTEMBER RETAIL SALES DOWN 9 PER CENT

The Department of Commerce's figures on business in September, just released, show wide variations in the patterns of retail sales. Stationery stores, for instance, reported sales 16 per cent above a year ago while household appliance stores showed a decline of 29 per cent.

Among the categories showing gains over a year ago and the percentages thereof were: Milk dealers, 15; dairy product stores, 12; feed, farm and garden supply stores, 11; and fruit and vegetable stores, 8.

Those showing the largest declines included radio stores, down 23 per cent; auto dealers, 16; furniture stores, 15; building material dealers, 15; furriers, 13; and men and boys' furnishing stores, 12.

Total for all retailers was a decline of 9 per cent.

CHLOROPHYLL BATTLE IS GETTING HOTTER

At least two more chlorophyll breath sweeteners are entering the market, both with extensive advertising campaigns.

Meanwhile, the maker of a non-chlorophyll breath sweetener has been advertising, "Did you ever smell a goat? Or a camel?" They, living on grass, are constantly munching chlorophyll. APPEALS TO WORKERS FOR MORE EFFICIENCY

The rug and carpet business isn't as good as it has been. Both manufacturers' and retailers' inventories are high and sales have been cut by restrictions on new housing. In addition, some manufacturers have been squeezed because they bought carpeting in bulk at the peak and prices have since declined.

When workers at a Yonkers, N. Y., factory of Alexander Smith Co. became restless, William F. C. Ewing arranged to address a union meeting. He told the workers about market conditions and said the way to preserve jobs was for employees' cooperation in improving quality, eliminating waste and cutting costs. His talk brought cheers.

Washington Letter

By JANE KADES

WASHINGTON—One of the Capital's oldest showplaces, the Belasco, for many years just a shell and used by the Treasury Department as storage space, is coming to life again as a USO clubhouse.

Owning the government, it has been turned over to USO, which is spending some $35,000 to redecorate and renovate it into a lounge, game rooms and a canteen. It will be called USO-Lafayette Square and is expected to open late in November.

Volunteer workers from each of four USO units—two Armed Services YMCA's (one for Negroes), the National Catholic Community Services and the Jewish Welfare Board—will form the nucleus of the non-sectarian, non-racial unit which will operate it.

Arnold Hodgson, who during World War II was loaned by Armed Services YMCA to develop service clubs for the British military forces in Europe, will be director of the new club. Funds for remodeling and Community Chest contributions.

The basement of the old Belasco is being remodeled into a luggage check room, showers, toilet and valet facilities and a television and meeting room. The front part of the main floor will serve as a lobby, the orchestra section as a lounge and the stage as a big canteen and game room.

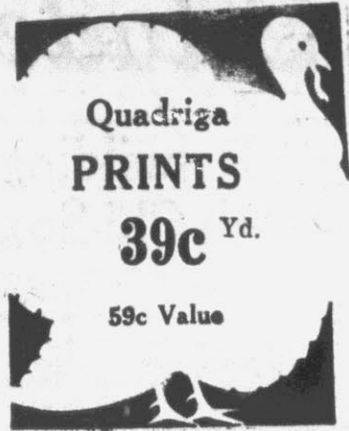

The first balcony will provide a chairing for "bitisings" in front, overlooking the orchestra.

The Belasco threw open its doors "under very favorable auspices" on Monday, Sept. 30, 1951. Everyone turned out in full dress—diplomats, cabinet members, officialdom and local society lights. Lillian Russell presented "La Traviata," written especially for her by De Koven and Smith and based on a Russian theme.

Later De Wolf Hopper appeared in a Sousa opera, "El Capitán," with Edna Waller, Hopper and Nella Bergen. Trixi Frigusa and Eva Tangway, recalled as a "whirlwind dancer of marvelous endurance," also played there. Another presentation, "Rosemary," featured John Drew and Maude Adams. Also in this cast were Anne Adams, Maude's mother, and Ethel Barrymore. That was in 1906. The following year Maurice Barrymore, Ethel's father, was presented.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

The basketball schedule for Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina College Pirates was released yesterday and it includes a pretty good line-up of games to be played on the Pirates' home court. In addition to the usual North State Conference foes, one Southern Conference school (The Citadel) and several semi-pro and service clubs have been booked.

The Pirates will have eight lettermen back for action this year with possibly a ninth, Bobby Hodges would be the ninth letterman but he'll miss the first game—Saturday in Norfolk against the Norfolk Naval Air Station—because of football work.

The Pirates, in addition to being an experienced club, will also be able to claim some pretty tall boys. John Postas at 6-5 and Hodges at 6-6 will be the really big boys on the club while freshman Jack Carr tags along at 6-4. There are several on the team at 5-3 and according to the latest measurements, there will be only three men on the traveling squad of 12 that fall to reach six feet.

One refreshing thing about the ECC club this year is that the club is a home-grown bunch of players with but one exception, Postas, a native of Red Bank, New Jersey, is the long "furriner" on the club. All the rest of them are from North Carolina high schools. As usual, Sonny Russell, the talented basketballer from New Bern, is expected to lead the Pirates. Sonny has made All-Conference two years and last year added the All-State team to his list of accomplishments. He was among the first five on the All-State squad, a team that included Sam Ransino, Dick Groat, Paul Hornath, and Vic Bubas, among others.

Russell shouldn't be by himself in the talent division this year even though he should be the leader of the Pirates. There are some good basketball players out there this year and Porter might have come up with the understatement of the year when he said a while back that his team would "play some interesting basketball."

The home schedule for the Pirates will open December 1 when North State Conference foe Guilford comes to the Wright Gymnasium. As it now stands, all the home contests will be played in the Wright building until the new physical education plant is completed. Right now, the college officials don't seem to have too much of an idea when that will be.

The North State Conference was given a pretty severe tongue-lashing by Lloyd Whitfield in last week's issue of the "Teco Echo," the weekly paper at East Carolina. Whitfield, from Kinston, is sports editor.

In his column, Whitfield charged responsible Conference officials and press representatives from at least one paper with "covering up" the investigation of Catawba charges of ineligibility against Elton and Bob Lewis. So far as we know now, Lewis is definitely ineligible and has not appeared in a ball game since Catawba's Chubby Kirkland first made the charges.

Whitfield also leveled a blast at the Conference ruling which states that a school does not have to forfeit any games in which the player appeared if it (the school) is not aware of his ineligibility. As Whitfield said, that's a loop-hole deluxe in the rules and as a result, Elton stands a good chance of keeping the games it won against Appalachian and East Carolina.

Whitfield may be all met in his charges, but if he is, so am I. I happen to agree with him.

The way I look at it, if Lewis was ineligible, there's no two ways about it. If his days of collegiate eligibility were used in a year of "B" squad ball and a year of "A" varsity ball, he's had it so far as I am concerned. His case should not be an exceptional one in which Elton is allowed to retain illegally-gained victories.

Surely, if Kirkland, who is a coach at Catawba, can recall the presence of Lewis in a "B" squad two years ago, then Elton officials should be able to know what he's done at Elton. If, as Whitfield says, Lewis has been proved ineligible, I hardly see how Elton can plead innocence in the matter.

Other schools in the past have suffered because of the use of ineligible players. Elton should be no exception even though the forfeiture of the two games involved will have no bearing (it seems) on the conference championship.

So far as the publicity cover-up was concerned, there has been very little space given in any of the state morning papers—particularly the Greensboro paper which usually gives top coverage to North State sports. I would hesitate to severely criticize that as Whitfield did however; at least until some one was able to give a good enough reason for criticism. There's always the remote possibility that the Greensboro writer

Yarborough To Play Against The Citadel

Back In Top Shape Says Doctors At Duke

Pirates Return To Drills Today After Tuesday Holiday; Working On Formations For Citadel Game

The East Carolina Pirates today returned to the football practice field with a piece of good news still ringing in their ears.

The news was that Irlard Yarborough, out since the third game of the season, has been pronounced in top shape and will be able to play in the November 24 meeting with The Citadel. Yarborough was the team's leading ground gainer and the top halfback on the club before he was put on the shelf with a bad knee in the game with the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Yarborough's return is expected to give some welcome strength to the injury-ridden Pirates who had the afternoon off yesterday. Since his injury, Coach Bill Dole has been playing two freshmen in the starting backfield.

Yarborough was given the okay by a physician at Duke Hospital yesterday. Dole had taken several of the injured players to Duke for examinations for possible corrective treatments. Dole said that after the specialist had examined Yarborough, he pronounced him in top shape and ready for any football game.

Several other East Carolina players were examined at the hospital but comment was not made about their condition.

The Pirates returned to the drill field today after having yesterday off and wasted little time in getting down to their heavy work for the Bulldogs. They heard scouting reports from previous Citadel games and then had a look at formations and plays that have been designed especially for the final game.

The Pirates will have another heavy workout tomorrow before taking off Friday afternoon for a long weekend. They will return to the rough work Monday.

YOUNG RED WINGS
DETROIT—(AP)—The Detroit Red Wings boast the youngest team in the National Hockey League this season. The average age of the members is 24.3 years. Only four players on the 17-man roster are over 27 years of age.

Sid Abel at 33 is the oldest of the Wings. He is the only player who has reached 30. Twelve players have not yet reached their 25th birthday. The youngest on the squad is Glen Skov, rookie forward, who is 20.

In question was not aware of the situation. I highly doubt such ignorance, though.

Phantoms Travel For Game At Roanoke Rapids

It will be a battle between the Yellow Jackets and the Green Phantoms Friday night as Greenville High invades Roanoke Rapids for its final game of the season. The match will be the last Northeastern Conference contest for both schools.

Roanoke warmed up to the game by the one-sided score of 45-6. The Jackets are led by the offensive play of Quarterback Bo Batton, Tailback Millard Walker, and Fullback Bubba "Bean" Matthews.

Batton has been an outstanding performer all year, and was the outstanding player in the Tarboro game. Each of the three boys scored at least one touchdown in the game.

The Jax, who upset the Kinston Red Devils earlier in the season, will be installed as favorite in the contest. Greenville has been able to take only two victories out of eight contests so far this year.

South Edgecombe To Close Season

PINETOPS—South Edgecombe will wind up the 1951 football season Friday night when it invades the home domain of Tarboro High School for a non-conference match.

Coach Wiley Parker's eleven has taken but one victory this year and will be out to take this last game in an upset, according to reports coming out of the South Edgecombe camp. South Edgecombe dropped its last outing to Mt. Olive, as its star halfback, Brooks Webb, was forced to sit on the sidelines for most of the game.

On the other hand, Tarboro also dropped its last game, a 45-6 affair at the hands of the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets.

Michigan State's cross-country team has a novel warm-up session presiding daily workouts. The Spartan harriers limber up by playing touch football.

IRLARD YARBOROUGH, East Carolina's star halfback who has been out of action since the third game of the season, will be back in the line-up November 24 when the Pirates close their season against The Citadel in Charleston, S. Richmond Editor Says Snavelly Out At Chapel Hill

RICHMOND, Va.—(AP)—Football Coach Carl Snavelly will be released by the University of North Carolina after the current season is over—regardless of how the Tar Heels fare against Notre Dame this Saturday and Duke the following Saturday.

Those are the words of Chauncey Durden, sports editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch. Durden predicted last night that Virginia's 34-14 football win last Saturday over North Carolina "finished" Carl Snavelly as coach of the Tar Heels.

Durden said his information "was not dreamed up" but was supplied "by a North Carolina man who is privy to North Carolina's highest athletic circles." He did not name the man.

The editor mentioned Jim Tatum, present coach at the University of Maryland; George Barclay, coach at Washington and Lee, and Art Guepe, Virginia coach, as possibilities to succeed Snavelly.

FATHER AND SON
PONCA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—Two golf tournaments were played here recently and father and son won them.

Charley Stohland, Oklahoma amateur golf champion, was victor in a country club tournament and 16 year-old Jarold Stohland won a municipal course tourney.

The father, in winning 4 and 3, got an eagle 2 on the 435-yard sixth hole. After a long drive he took a 7-iron and put the ball in the cup from 140 yards out.

Red Sox Begin Rebuilding With Trade With Chi-Sox

Reserve Clause Called Obnoxious By Rep. Celler

NEW YORK—(AP)—If Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.), chairman of the House sub-committee investigating baseball has his way, baseball's controversial reserve clause will be thoroughly revised.

Celler branded the reserve clause "obnoxious" last night while appearing on ABC-TV's program, "On Trial."

The Congressman added, however, that the clause "is so imbedded in the fabric of baseball it would be necessary to keep it, but it must be amended. There are certain abuses which must be obliterated."

"It would be ludicrous for Congress to write a code," he said, "but we are not going to give baseball a blank check. We are trying to find a middle ground."

The reserve clause, challenged as a possible violation of anti-trust laws, binds a player to a club for life unless he is sold or traded.

Baseball, in order to be subject to the anti-trust laws, must first be found to be inter-state commerce. Celler said he was "quite certain" that the Supreme Court would so declare.

BOSTON—(AP)—Now that the Boston Red Sox have made their first 1952 move—a four player straight swap with the Chicago White Sox—General Manager Joe Cronin and Lou Boudreau, the new pilot, indicate they will do much more player dicker during next month's baseball meetings.

They did not need owner Tom Yawkey's fabulous bankroll, obtaining outfielder—first baseman Don Lenhardt and veteran pitcher Randy Gumpert in exchange for young southpaw Chuck Stobbs and rookie infielder Mel Hoderlein.

But they indicate they have their multi-millionaire boss primed to top all rivals for much needed catching strength and a competent second base replacement for the retired Bobby Doerr.

Boudreau paved the way for the deal in a conference with White Sox General Manager Frank Lane yesterday in Chicago.

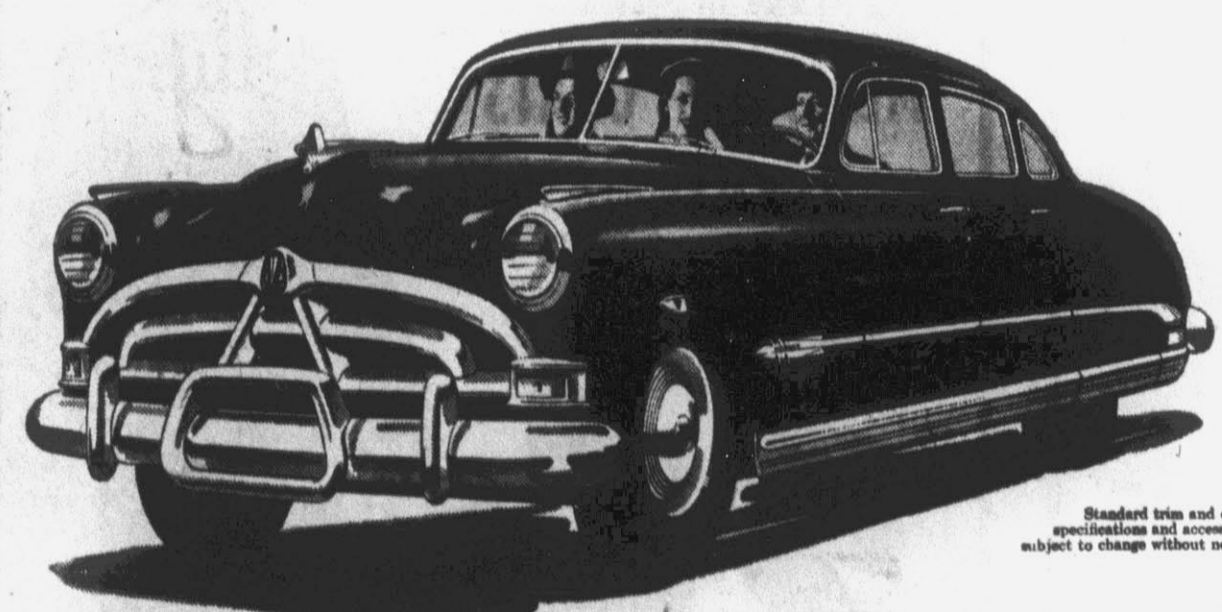

"Lenhardt should do us a lot of good," Boudreau said. "He's a long righthanded hitter and should be able to add 30 points to his 265 average playing 77 games in Fenway Park."

"And Gumpert will be a great help in relief. Now we will be able to save Ellis Kinder for the late innings."

Both Boudreau and Cronin regretted giving up Stobbs, who drew a $35,000 bonus when the Red Sox signed him as a Norfolk, Va. school-boy sensation in 1947. Last season he had a 10-8 record while being plagued by asthma.

Let Families Take Youngster In Stride

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Yuletide is a season of much visiting among friends and families. It can be, also, a period of great strain on children.

The National Kindergarten Association cites the case of little David Penman who was taken to his mother's hometown for the holidays.

"Here you are, David!" "How are you, Sonny?" "Isn't he a darling?" "Well, David, you're quite a boy!"

All these exclamations greeted little, bewildered David as he stood in the middle of the big hall in his mother's girlhood home surrounded by a crowd of admiring relatives. Loving arms were outstretched to embrace him and hearty voices boomed out in a chorus of "welcome. Much to their surprise and disappointment the little fellow answered his relatives' greetings with a frightened cry and ran sobbing into his mother's arms.

Suddenly a quiet voice hushed the clamor. "Let's give David a little time to become acquainted with us," the boy's grandmother was saying. "Come Jean, bring David up to your room. Your father brought your own baby-bed down from the attic for him."

"I'm sorry David was so contrary," Jean apologized, as she led the little fellow up the stairs. Jean's mother looked tenderly at her grandson. "I'm sorry we were so thoughtless. Even an adult would be overwhelmed by so many boisterous greetings. David is so accustomed to being with just two people—you and his daddy. It will take him a little time to adjust to the new situation of having so many strange people around him."

Without pressing the boy's acquaintance further, his grandmother left the room.

In a moment, Jean's brother Tom appeared carrying in one hand a suitcase and in the other a very small red chair. "Here you are, fellow!" he exclaimed, placing the chair beside his young nephew. "We gave it a fresh coat of paint for you."

David's eyes brightened at the sight of the tiny chair, and in a few moments he appropriated it as his special piece of furniture.

Tom gazed longingly at his nephew but he wisely refrained from attempting to lift the little fellow up. "We'll have some fun before you leave, David," he promised, and he found his patience rewarded when the boy responded with a fleeting smile.

One by one each member of Jean's family became personally accepted by the young visitor, for after their first mistake, all gave the boy time to find out that they belonged in the charmed circle that had hitherto held only his mother, his daddy, and his own small self.

It was not long before David was as happy as he could be with his newly-acquired family, enjoying all the excitement of Christmas as they were to have him with them.

Negligence Rule Has Wider Scope

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—If you are a passenger in an automobile involved in a railroad crossing accident, you can be equally guilty of negligence as the driver if you fail to look both ways—in West Virginia, anyway.

The West Virginia Supreme Court so ruled yesterday in reversing a $10,000 Wayne County circuit court judgment against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and two of its employees.

brought by James Leon Darling Sr., as administrator of the estate of his son, James Leon Darling Jr., who was fatally injured Feb. 23, 1947, in a train-auto accident at a Huntington crossing.

He was a passenger in the back seat of an automobile driven by William H. (Tom) Ward.

In the appellate court's opinion, Darling had a chance to observe the crossing watchman's warning signal while the automobile still was 400 feet from the tracks.

Judge James B. Riley wrote that Darling's "failure to protect his own safety by looking effectively and thereafter warning ward of the impending danger constitutes contributory negligence."

Convict Offers Work For Bank If Salary Right

Pittsburgh (AP)—A convict in Western Penitentiary is having a momentary wave that has swept over the Pittsburgh district in the last year.

The Womer City (Pa.) State Bank recently advertised for a cashier.

Among 35 who applied was an inmate of Western Penitentiary, who wrote:

"I don't mind working with honest men. If the salary is right, I'll see what I can do with the pardon bond."

The writer did not say why he is in prison. The job is still unfilled.

Catching Up On Twenty Years

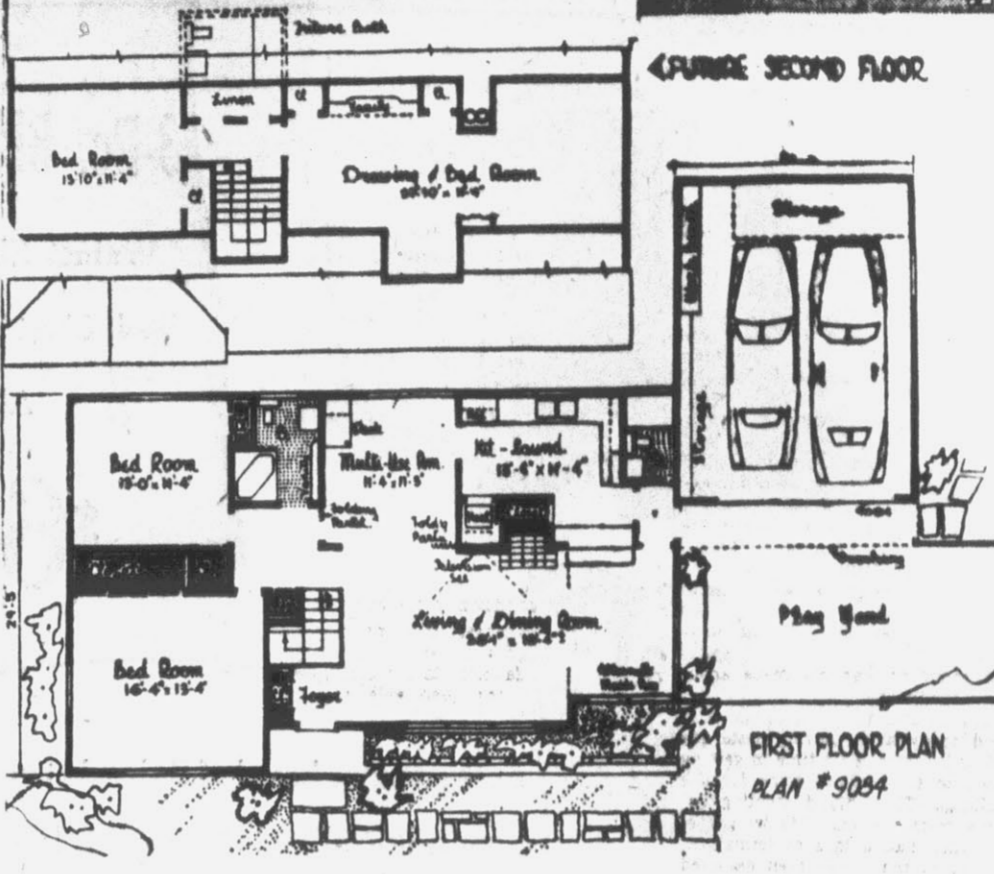

NEW YORK (AP)—The Hotel Seymour hadn't had a robbery in 20 years until Saturday.

Then a couple of gunmen appeared and made off with $1,906.

Last night two men forced five hotel employees into an elevator and fled with $994.

Apparently the same bandits, police said.

MacArthur Claims U.S. Led On Policy Of Ruin

SEATTLE (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur last night told Seattle and the nation that the Truman administration is following a policy which, if continued, can lead to the ruination of the country.

The General devoted only 3 minutes of a 45 minute address to the Seattle Centennial which he was invited here to open and to which labor groups had urged him to confine his remarks. But he referred frequently to the pioneer spirit and attitude in his blistering attack on the federal government.

He never mentioned Mr. Truman or the Democratic Party by name—but he left no doubt that he felt the "ruinous processes" of which he spoke could be halted only "by a change of administration."

"The people have it in their hands," he declared in his speech, which was nationally broadcast, extravagance upon extravagance have so burdened our people with taxation and fed the forces of inflation, that our traditionally high standard of life has become largely fictitious and illusory," he said.

STUCK EITHER WAY
PENDLETON, Ind. (UP)—State police ordered a truck driver, Omar Onau, into a weighing station in the belief his truck was overloaded with sand. Onau stopped and dumped part of the sand. Police then arrested him on a charge of hauling a leaky load.

Indecision May Be Valuable, Says Educator

DORHAM, N. H. (AP)—"Students who enter college undecided upon their future may actually have an advantage over those with preconceived notions," says a psychologist-educator.

Paul H. McIntire, Jr., director of counseling and a member of the Psychology Department of the University of New Hampshire, explains:

"Too many students come to college without sound counseling and with plans laid on false generalizations. It is by no means true that because a student is good in math he should take engineering, or because he likes animals he should study agriculture."

On the other hand, students coming to college with no definite course in mind may be better off, he adds. "They are more prone to be guided by aptitude tests, and to take advantage of the professional counseling colleges now offer."

Taking College Course By TV

YOUNGSTOWN, O. (AP)—Doraid R. Terry is in a cast from shoulders to toes, but that doesn't stop him from continuing with his college studies.

He's taking a college correspondence course by television—the first student in Western Reserve University's "Television College." The courses are televised over WEWS, Cleveland.

Terry was injured in an automobile accident. His present courses are introduction to psychology and European literature since 1914.

more, pulled herself to gether and sailed off. She returned in a few moments with Ray in tow.

During this brief interval Jan had had an idea.

She would really pretend. She would make believe so well from here on in that not only the whole wide world and her mother and all the guests, including Bernice Darrow, but also Ray himself would believe that it was real.

She was not Eve's daughter for nothing.

At the signal from the orchestra began to play the wedding march. The candles were lighted on the long table. In its center was a huge wedding cake, and from it were strung long narrow ribbons which were given to each guest. When these were pulled, the favors tumbled out—the two hearts entwined with Jan's and Ray's names.

Everyone broke into thunderous applause and hearty cheers and there was much talk and laughter and confusion. Then someone shouted, "Aren't you two love birds going to kiss each other, or take a bow?"

Ray started to make an awkward little bow, his handsome face a bit flushed. But before he could do anything, Jan flung both arms tightly around his neck and gave him a kiss that must have nearly knocked him off his feet.

Everyone applauded and cheered again.

"Hey!" Ray said under cover of all the noise. "Just what did you mean by that?"

"I'll tell you later," Jan said. People were crowding toward them now to offer congratulations and good wishes and to ask innumerable questions, such as when would the wedding be, how long had the two young people known each other, where would they live after they were married and so on.

Then Bernice Darrow came to make her farewell. Instead of extending that lovely slim hand, the older girl leaned over the gave Jan's cheek a light brush with her lips.

"I just had to do that," she explained, her big violet eyes smiling into Jan's. "It was so nice of you to invite me. It's been such a lovely party."

"I am glad you enjoyed it," Jan returned.

"I suppose," the other girl was saying, "Ray has told you that we hope to take off for the coast next Monday. We should be ready by then."

Monday was only a few days away. That heavy weight seemed to settle down on Jan's chest once more. But she smiled brightly and, glancing sidewise at Ray, tucked a hand through the crook of his arm and said in a dulcet sweet tone, "Then that settles it. We will plan to be married the minute Ray gets back. Does that answer the question you asked me, Ray? The one I said I would explain to you later."

"Why, I hope so," Ray gave her a grin, but his blue eyes looked puzzled. It was evident that he did not know how to take this sudden announcement that a wedding date was definite. He looked down on Jan as though wondering why she was clinging to him.

"I didn't know you two had decided when you would be married," Bernice said. There was an odd expression in the large violet eyes.

"We hadn't, not until this minute," Jan confessed. Now let Ray try to get out of the mess he had got her in!

Ray appeared to be speechless. He still wore a puzzled look, and his nice smooth brow was furrowed, but his blue eyes, meeting hers, were very serious and there was a light in them that she had never seen before.

"I hope," Bernice said in what Jan considered a queer tone as it sounded tight and tense, "that nothing will happen to change those wonderful plans."

Now just what did she mean by that? Jan wondered.

Now Bernice was smiling at Ray, that smile which Jan considered so

Fountain's 4-H Club Wins Award

It was announced today that Fountain 4-H Club has won the State Health Improvement Award. The Fountain club won the award in competition with clubs from all the state's 100 counties.

In announcing the award, Miss Helen Hicks, assistant home demonstration agent for Pitt County, revealed that the club also won the North eastern District health award in competition with 18 counties in Northeast North Carolina.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Herman Baker, principal of the school last year, the Fountain club made and distributed health booklets showing the basic seven foods, and all requirements for good health, and each child in school had a physical and dental examination. Club members also conducted a choral sing at the county 4-H Health Coronation Exercises last year.

Miss Hicks said the records submitted for the State and National Awards Programs from this district, numbered and were superior to those submitted last year. "Each county submitted records, these numbering as few as four and as many as 24 per county," she stated.

Fountain 4-H Club was one of 10 clubs in the state to win this award.

and so on.

Then Bernice Darrow came to make her farewell. Instead of extending that lovely slim hand, the older girl leaned over the gave Jan's cheek a light brush with her lips.

"I just had to do that," she explained, her big violet eyes smiling into Jan's. "It was so nice of you to invite me. It's been such a lovely party."

"I am glad you enjoyed it," Jan returned.

"I suppose," the other girl was saying, "Ray has told you that we hope to take off for the coast next Monday. We should be ready by then."

Monday was only a few days away. That heavy weight seemed to settle down on Jan's chest once more. But she smiled brightly and, glancing sidewise at Ray, tucked a hand through the crook of his arm and said in a dulcet sweet tone, "Then that settles it. We will plan to be married the minute Ray gets back. Does that answer the question you asked me, Ray? The one I said I would explain to you later."

"Why, I hope so," Ray gave her a grin, but his blue eyes looked puzzled. It was evident that he did not know how to take this sudden announcement that a wedding date was definite. He looked down on Jan as though wondering why she was clinging to him.

"I didn't know you two had decided when you would be married," Bernice said. There was an odd expression in the large violet eyes.

"We hadn't, not until this minute," Jan confessed. Now let Ray try to get out of the mess he had got her in!

Ray appeared to be speechless. He still wore a puzzled look, and his nice smooth brow was furrowed, but his blue eyes, meeting hers, were very serious and there was a light in them that she had never seen before.

"I hope," Bernice said in what Jan considered a queer tone as it sounded tight and tense, "that nothing will happen to change those wonderful plans."

Now just what did she mean by that? Jan wondered.

Now Bernice was smiling at Ray, that smile which Jan considered so possessive. She said, "I just hate to have to ask you to take me back to my hotel, Ray. I could call a cab."

"Ray will be delighted to see you safely home," Jan broke in hastily. "After all, he brought you. And since it's not too late, she added, "he can come back. I'll wait for you, Ray." She had not meant to say this last. She did not know why she had. But since she had, she gave him another coy look from under long lashes and another sickly sweet smile.

She despised such play acting. Yet she was getting good at it. And this was only a beginning.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The first snowflake of the season usually hits the householder with a jolt all out of proportion to a snowflake's size—reminding him that little or nothing has been done about getting his house ready for winter.

For instance, right now I have to interrupt this, go down to the basement and shut off the water supply to the outdoor garden hose taps, then go out and open the taps for drainage and leave them open for the winter. We're due for a freeze.

Now that little job's done, but some more important ones probably won't be done, because we all get started too late on these change-of-season chores.

No season puts as much strain on a house as winter. As soon as the leaves are gone, much of the wind-breaking quality of the trees is gone, too, and unless you live in the shelter of tall pines, your house is exposed to buffeting and shakings in every gale.

Start with the roof. Modern asphalt shingles have been an economic godsend in most sections of the country. But if they haven't been applied properly, you can often see them fluttering in exposed locations.

Of course, a windstorm clause in your fire insurance policy will cover actual damage, but who wants to chance a wet ceiling while waiting for repairs after shingles have blown off? A dab of asphalt cement about as big as a half-dollar, under the tab of each shingle of this type, will give you a real wind-tight roof.

A late fall inspection is a good idea in connection with any roof. Curled or split wooden shingles ought to be flattened or replaced before another winter's ordeal. Rains and thaws can let water get into joints and crevices in any structure. A freeze follows and the power-expansion force of ice can leave serious cracks.

Two Charged In Highway Wreck

BETHEL — Two cars collided near here yesterday afternoon when the driver of one attempted to make a left turn in the path of a second car which was following behind it.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry, of Bethel, investigating officer, listed the drivers of the cars as Jimmie Gus Scott, Route 3, Bethel, age 36, and Bobby Gene Manning, 17, of Route 3, Bethel.

According to Perry, the car driven by Scott began a left turn at the same time that the Manning car started to pass, resulting in the collision.

Damage to both cars was only moderate but charges were brought against both drivers.

Scott was charged with making a left turn without giving a hand signal while Manning was charged with passing at intersection.

Lie Detector Turned Up 'Fib' On Old Problem

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. — (AP) — A lie detector caught a girl employe of St. Anthony Hospital in a fib about her age.

She was being questioned about the disappearance of a baby from the hospital. She answered all questions satisfactorily until asked her age. She gave it as 18 years. The questioning officer looked at the instrument and said: "Are you sure?" The girl blushed. "I'm a year younger," she admitted.

Baling Machine Picked Up Kitty

EFFINGHAM, Ill. — (AP) — They opened carefully a tightly wired bale of straw to see why it was mewing. Out jumped a scared kitten.

Kitty had been frolicking around baling operations on Lowell Lee's farm near Beecher City. Unnoticed by the men, the baling machine had scooped up kitty.

Deaf Child Now In Dancing Class

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 9-year-old girl, who can't hear music because she's deaf, has become a proficient tap dancer nonetheless. Her mother says she feels the music through her toes.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Don Rodgers, said little Elaine made the discovery by accident. "A record player was on and she suddenly felt the vibrations through a wooden floor. She let out an exclamation, pointed to the machine, then to her ears and feet." Elaine joined a dancing class and is one of the star pupils.

Police Told To Try Diplomacy

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — (AP) — Casey, the cop, will have to turn diplomat to carry out an assignment recently handed the Chattanooga Police Department.

Officers are instructed to strike up a conversation with any school age child they see on the streets during class hours.

Chief Ed Ricketts says officers must not intimidate the children by "try to talk them, in a nice manner, into going back to their class rooms."

If Skinny will talk, the cop is to get his name and school, then telephone his principal. It's a co-operative project thought up by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to combat delinquency.

Mayor Marvels At Marine War Games

Mayor L. D. Page said this morning if the maneuvers he viewed yesterday at Camp Lejeune are any indication of the country's whole preparedness program, North Carolina need not fear an invasion for some time.

The mayor attended a simulated beach landing conducted by navy fleet units and marine air and amphibious assault forces. He was invited to view the spectacle by Brig.

Gen. W. S. Fetters, commandant of Camp Lejeune, and attended in company with newspapermen, government officials and military "high brass" from all over the United States.

"It was indeed a curiosity to see an operation of such magnitude carried out with such precision," the mayor said. "We were allowed to roam at will along the beach, and inspected several different types of new equipment."

It was the largest single amphibious practice assault since World War II, officials said. Taking part in the operation were 250 ships, 900 planes and more than 100,000 sailors and marines, together with countless small craft. "The water was literally boiling with all types of amphibious craft carrying troops and equipment," the mayor said.

According to Mayor Page, the operation got underway at 9 a. m., with a simulated bombardment by destroyers, cruisers and battleships, followed by wave after wave of small troop carriers. A navy officer announced the progress of the operation over a loudspeaker, and explained the various phases of landing techniques.

All the visiting dignitaries were served hot meals, the mayor stated, and seemed to be highly impressed with the way the maneuvers were carried out.

MaJ. Gen. Roy A. Roberson, USMC, commanded the operation.

The dance is sponsored by the Greenville Lions Club.

Gradual Marketing Of Corn, Soybeans Urged

"If Pitt County farmers expect to realize the highest prices for their corn and soybean crops this year, they must refrain from over-loading the market at harvest time," James Meredith, secretary of the Pitt Production and Marketing Administration said this morning.

According to Meredith, farmers themselves can do a lot to protect the market for their commodities by distributing their sales over the entire marketing year.

"No farmer has to lose money on his corn or soy beans," Meredith said. "He can get ready cash over the usual low-price period instead of dumping it on the market. Or if he doesn't want to store his crop under loan, he can still get price protection by covering his crop with a purchasing agreement."

"There is a definite connection between heavy marketings and low prices during and immediately after harvesting, and the purpose of price supports is to help farmers stabilize prices by marketing their crops in an orderly manner. That helps consumers too, by preventing short supplies and high prices later in the year."

The corn loan rate in North Carolina for the 1951 crop has been announced at $1.75 a bushel. Loans and purchasing agreements will be available to farmers from harvest time through March 1, 1952, and will mature July 31. The county loan rate for soy beans is $2.39, and loans are available from harvest time through January 1, 1952, maturing July 31.

Students Join In Events Marking Education Week

The students of Greenville High School held a flag-raising ceremony Monday morning on the front lawn of the high school as the beginning activity of American Education Week.

Douglas Mitchell read the "American Creed" and Bobby Nichols read "Beyond the Horizon." The color guard was composed of the following Boy Scouts: Billy Simmons, Dickie Mitchell, and Lloyd Bray. The entire student body gave the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag and the National Anthem was sung by the students. Mrs. Howard Mims was director of the program.

Tuesday morning the students at West Greenville School held an assembly program in the auditorium of the activity building. The program opened with a color ceremony and was followed by a choral speech choir composed of the sixth grade under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Franklin who also gave "The Child Speaks."

This afternoon the Training School P.T.A. met in the auditorium of the school and Miss Eunice McGee's third grade gave a Thanksgiving program.

June H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, spoke this afternoon at the Third Street P.T.A. and Carolyn Flewelin, nutritionist with the State Board of Health, spoke at the West Greenville P.T.A.

Reservists Hold Supper Meeting

The Naval Reserve Unit of this area had its annual supper meeting last night at the Olive Inn at which time an address by Lt. Commander Foley Schaar, of Raleigh on Universal Military Training was given.

Schaar is the Naval Inspector Instructor for the Eastern North Carolina Naval Reserve District, with offices in the State College Armory in Raleigh.

Schaar discussed the Universal Military Training Bill as well as will affect the Naval Reserve training program.

"This bill," Schaar said "if passed will provide for a far-reaching program that will mean training of a large number of Naval personnel as well as the other branches of the services, both officers and enlisted men. By this means will be assured of an active navy operating force in the event of a national emergency. It will eliminate much of the uncertainty of the reserve status as far as being recalled to active duty is concerned," Schaar stated.

"Young men starting out in the business world after leaving school will know when they will perform the required military service and the date they will be released and thus will be able to make their plans accordingly."

Schaar was introduced by J.B. Smith. Lt. Commander Reynolds, commanding officer of the local unit, recognized Alton Buck, who has received orders to report for active Naval service on December 1 at a Naval base in Florida.

Reynolds stated that Buck had been a very active and hard working member of the unit and all regretted his leaving.

At the regular weekly meeting to be held next Tuesday night at the college, Bob Ross of Farmville will be the main speaker.

Marine Invasion Is 'Near Routine'

ONSLow BEACH (AP)—Tired Marines, taking part in America's biggest amphibious war games since World War II, pushed their inland today in a mock invasion of the coast.

The big maneuvers became more routine today after yesterday's colorful landings involving nearly 20,000 leathernecks. Hundreds of planes and about 200 ships were in the invasion armada.

To the marines of the Second Division, coming home to nearby Camp Lejeune, the operation had much of the realism of actual combat. The muddy beach bogged down vehicles, the "enemy" dropped an imaginary atom bomb, and the jungle-like growth of underbrush slowed the inland advance.

After establishing the beachhead, the Marines had to push their way across the 100-yard-wide intercoastal waterway, which cuts this beach off from the mainland. Initial crossings were made yesterday.

The invasion force was spearheaded by the Second Division's Eighth and Second Regiments. The Sixth Regiment, held in reserve, is expected to go into action within the next day or so.

The land maneuvers, climaxing the two-month war games in the Caribbean, are expected to continue until early next week.

Case Of Stolen Drugs Recovered By City Police

Police recovered a case of drugs consigned to Hollowell's Drug Store, Dickinson Avenue, and stolen from in front of the store early Monday.

The investigating officer said the case of drugs, shipped here by W. H. King Drug Company, Raleigh, was intact. Evidently, it had been thrown under the house in a hurry by the person who stole it from in front of the drug store. Police are continuing their investigation.
