Truman Is Set For Conflict

Prepares To Fight For 'Fair Deal' Without Party And Without

KEY WEST, Fla. (UP)—President Truman prepared today for another battle with conservative elements within his party who want to tone down the Fair Deal in 1952.

What seemed more politically interesting, however, was the President's firm statement that he could guarantee that the Fair Deal program would be included in the 1952 Democratic platform.

A strong stand on civil rights will have about the same effect as gasoline on a bonfire in many parts of the South.

The President won in 1948 without the Solid South and he said since that it was a great source of pride to be able to do so.

While Mr. Truman has been secretive about his plans for next year, he has been seeing numerous minority delegations representing groups that have relatively small, but tightly-knit members scattered across the nation.

The President did not help the political seers yesterday when he said the Fair Deal would be the Democratic 1952 platform regardless of who runs for President.

Sweet Potato Market To Close Saturday Noon

BETHEL—The Bethel auction sales sweet potato market will close for the season at noon tomorrow—November 17.

Sales for the season up to Thursday, totaled about 60,000 bushels and the market had paid farmers of a dozen or more counties about $160,000 for their tubers, a market official stated.

He said between 20,000 and 25,000 bushels of sweet potatoes had been shipped from Bethel to northern markets this season. This brings the total up to about 85,000 bushels.

In addition, there is now in storage in Bethel approximately 75,000 bushels of potatoes, being held for future sales.

More than 10,000 visitors are expected by the town's American Legion post, which will sponsor the sixth annual celebration.

Asks Outlawing A-Bomb By Feb. 1

Vishinsky Proposes Great Powers Agree To Pact; Again Rejects Three-Power Disarmament Plan Offered By West

PARIS (UP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky proposed today that the great powers agree by Feb. 1 on a treaty to outlaw the atomic bomb.

Speaking by special permission for the second time in the United Nations General Assembly's opening debate, Vishinsky again rejected the sweeping world disarmament proposals offered Nov. 7 by the United States, Great Britain and France.

Russia will accept no disarmament plan that permits continued production of atomic weapons, Vishinsky said.

"The three-power proposals do not fill the bill," he said. "The Soviet Union can not now and never could in the past accept a plan such as proposed by the three powers which allows continued production of atomic weapons."

After a tirade denouncing the Western plan for disarmament, which proposes a census of weapons including atomic ones and the limitation and control of world armaments, Vishinsky offered a new resolution of his own.

Vishinsky proposed: 1. That the U.N. committees on conventional armaments and on atomic energy submit to the Security Council by Feb. 1 a convention calling for prohibition of the atomic weapon, seizure of existing atomic energy production facilities and the use of existing stockpiles thereof strictly for peaceful needs.

2. That as soon as Russia's proposal is approved by the General Assembly, the assembly recommend to all big powers reduction by one-third of their arms and armed forces.

3. That all countries submit within one month after approval of the Russian resolution complete figures on their armaments, including data on atomic weapons and on war bases they maintain in foreign territory.

4. That a special international control organ be created under the auspices of the U.N. Security Council to carry out the provisions on atomic prohibition, arms reduction and verification of arms cessation.

F. L. Little Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Greenville Production Credit Association, said, "The clinic was most helpful in that it made plain the great change now in progress in the south, and the need for specific adjustments on many North Carolina farms."

The Greenville Production Credit Association serves the counties of Pitt and Greene. In 1951, 936 farmer-members were assisted with their financing in the amount of $2,335,000.

New Hours Set For Curb Market

Beginning tomorrow, the curb market will open at 8:30 a. m. instead of the usual hour of 8:00 o'clock.

Sue Brickhouse, home demonstration agent for Pitt County, said the new opening hour will be in effect for, as yet, an undetermined time.

Review Problems Of Road Traffic

Carolina Motor Club Branch Managers In Refresher Course

Branch managers of the Carolina Motor Club from Eastern North Carolina met in Greenville yesterday for a day-long refresher course on licenses and changes made affecting their use during the past months.

The course is one of four to be held in the next few weeks by officials of the Motor Club and the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles to prepare its office workers for the forthcoming rush when new licenses go on sale at the first of the year.

Other district meetings will be held in Raleigh, Charlotte and Asheville in the near future.

It was the fourth year that the Eastern Division has held its meeting in Greenville.

Principal items taken up during the discussion yesterday were those dealing with licenses for trucks, overloading and penalties for violation of laws by truck operators and owners.

Heading the speakers who handled the discussion and question-and-answer session were Shelton Morris of the Department of Motor Vehicles from Raleigh; Mrs. Lenora Carawan, superintendent of the Branch Checking Division, and Mrs. Foy Ingram, district representative for the Raleigh office. Frank D. Miller, vice-president and secretary of the Carolina Motor Club, also was on hand.

Throughout the day an estimated 70 branch managers, their assistants and members of the Highway Inspector staff in the Eastern section of the State were on hand for the meeting.

Mid-Air Rescue Of Paratrooper Before Mayors

FORT BENNING, Ga. (UP)—A 20-year-old paratrooper, plunging earthward to sure death after his parachute collapsed, was jerked to safety by an alert buddy here before a gaping audience of 80 Mayors.

90-man paratrooper drop was underway before the mayors' orientation conference here yesterday when the chute of Pfc. James R. Fernandez, 20, of Providence, R.I., "spilled" at 500 feet.

As Fernandez plummeted head first toward the earth, Pfc. Frank Elliott, 21, of Coates, N.C., grabbed the deflated parachute's suspension lines, and the pair floated safely to the ground.

Fernandez had pulled the ripcord of his auxiliary "chute, but it did not open until he was about 40 feet from the ground.

Valentine Joins Court Post Race

RALEIGH (AP)—Associate Justice Itimous T. Valentine today brought to five the number of announced candidates who will seek the seat he now holds on the State Supreme Court bench in next spring's Democratic primary.

"I've been a candidate ever since I was appointed to the court last September 16," the jurist declared.

A Nashville lawyer, Valentine was appointed to the Supreme Court by Governor Scott when Associate Justice W. A. Devin was leaving the death of Chief Justice W. P. Stacy.

Front Line GI's Informed Today Of Red Murders

Details Broadcast That Soldiers May Know 'What They're Up Against'

TOKYO (AP)—American front line troops in Korea were told today the Reds have slaughtered 5,500 of their captured buddies.

The armed forces radio broadcast for the first time the figures Col. James M. Hanley announced Wednesday—"so the GIs will know what they are up against."

Hanley is the center of an Army investigation because he announced the totals. The colonel said he released them so front line troops would not be fooled by Red propaganda.

The armed forces radio earlier was silent on the subject while the rest of the world heard—and was shocked. The radio began beaming the story to the front this afternoon, and repeated it at intervals of several hours.

Maj. Edgar L. Tidwell, chief of the Far East network, explained the delay: "There were too many unknown quantities. When we could finally pin things down, we let it go."

Don Dickinson, news officer for Armed Forces Radio, added: "We held the story until today because there was so much conflict in the figures between various agencies. We wanted to be right."

Both said there was no censorship. The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes carried the story in its Korean edition both Thursday and Friday, the supervising officer reported.

Hanley said the reason he compiled and released the figures was for the information of American front line troops.

Rail Wreck Kills Two; 23 Injured

HORTENSE, Ga. (UP)—A New York-to-Miami express ripped into a slow freight here last night in a blinding rainstorm, injuring 23 persons and killing two, one of them a youthful stationmaster who was trying to flag down the speeding train.

The Atlantic Coast Line's southbound Havana Special smashed into the last six cars of the northbound freight as the freight crawled into a siding. The impact scattered cars over the right-of-way like so many jackstraws, and demolished the 30-by-50 foot depot.

The Georgia Highway Patrol said Havana Special's crew were injured shortly after 8 p. m. at this whistle stop some 31 miles east of Waycross, Ga. None of the freight's crew was hurt.

Station master James Strickland, 24, was crushed beneath the debris that crashed down upon him as he frantically waved a signal lantern beside the tracks.

The engineer of the express, A. H. Byington of Savannah, Ga., also was killed. ACL officials began an immediate investigation to learn the cause of the crash, but General Manager L. T. Andrews said in Wilmington, N.C., that it would be "late Saturday" before any announcement is made.

Community Left Blood Donations To Servicemen

SOUTHERN PINES (UP)—Red blooded Moore County citizens winced today at the words of John Buchholz, Purple Heart Marine veteran of World War II and chairman of the county blood drive.

Buchholz publicly thanked personnel of the Air-Ground Operations Center commanded by Brig. Gen. William M. Gross for "saving the day" by donating 88 of the 187 pints of blood received during the campaign in this county of 32,000 citizens.

"We are grateful to them," Buchholz said. "They saved the day, or what could be saved of it, but they did not save our shame. The people of Southern Pines felt flat on their faces this time."

Car Overturns, Driver Is Unhurt

BETHEL—Property damage ran high yesterday afternoon when an automobile overturned about two miles north of here on N. C. 11, the only accident to be reported in the county.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry, who investigated, stated that car operated by James William Fleming, 51, of Greenville overturned when it slipped off the highway on the wet highway.

Fleming was not injured but damage to the car was placed at over $500 by the Patrol officer.

SPURNS APPEAL

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky today spurned the plea of small nations to reconsider his rejection of the Western disarmament plan. "It does not fill the bill," he said.

Truce Negotiator Asserts Korean Fighting Will Go On

Atrocity Toll Is Raised To 6,270

Eighth Army War Crimes Investigator Says Information Increased Disputed Figure; 13,400 Allied POWs Slain

By GEORGE SUH United Press Staff Correspondent

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—Col. J.M. Hanley, chief 8th Army war crimes investigator, today raised the total number of American war prisoners murdered by the Communists in Korea to 6,270.

Altogether, he said in an exclusive interview, the Chinese and North Korean Reds have slaughtered 13,400 Allied war prisoners since the outbreak of war on June 25, 1950. Of the total, he said, 7,000 were South Koreans.

Far from retracting his disputed earlier statement that the Chinese alone had killed 2,513 American prisoners, he repeated it and enlarged his report to include 3,757 Americans slain by North Korean troops.

Hanley said information gathered by 8th Army investigators, survivors of executions, South Korean police and other sources showed a "maximum" of 6,279 Americans to have been murdered. The breakdown:

By the Chinese since they entered the war in November 1950—2,513. By the North Koreans since Nov. 1950—3,757.

He also said Chinese Communists have slain 130 U.N. war prisoners of other nations.

Hanley gave the interview while en route by air to Pusan to confer with him over his unexpected release of the original atrocity report at a press conference Wednesday.

Ridgway postponed a promised "clarifying" statement on the atrocities pending further investigation. Both Tokyo and Washington were reported fearful of the repercussions of Hanley's release on the truce talks at Panmunjom and on parents of American soldiers missing in action in Korea.

Asked whether he was aware of the furor resulting from his disclosure, Hanley said: "I had, of course, authorization from superior officers to publish the records."

However, there appeared to be some question whether the clearance Hanley says he received from the 8th Army's Public Information Office was for release of the report to the press or for use in a speech before Army officers.

(In Tokyo, a spokesman at Ridgway had not been reprimanded. No action would be taken until all the facts had been received, he said.) Hanley said he had no exact figures on the number of South Korean troops executed by the Chinese and Korean Reds during the war, but he put the total at around 7,000.

He said the atrocities occurred in both North and South Korea behind Communist lines. He said he had no information whether any Allied prisoners had been taken over the Yalu River frontier into Manchuria and slain there.

Burley Auctions To Begin Nov. 27

SALES TIMES AND CONDITIONS SET IN LEXINGTON MEETING

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Auction sales in the eight states of the burley tobacco area will open Tuesday, Nov. 27.

Each day the sales will be held three and one-half hours. Markets will suspend sales for the Christmas holidays after winding up sales on Dec. 21. They will reopen on Thursday, Jan. 3, provided re-dryers by that time are able to handle incoming offerings.

These sales times and conditions were decided upon here yesterday at a meeting of the sales committee of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association. This association represents about 95 per cent of auction centers in the Burley Belt.

The Nov. 27 opening will be one of the earliest in recent years. Chairman Albert Clay of the sales committee estimated that sales for the belt would average 5,500,000 pounds an hour between the opening and the Christmas recess. This would give a belt-wide total of 365,250,000 pounds for the 66 1/2 selling hours before Christmas.

The committee also authorized markets to operate on a basket basis but ruled that such markets should sell no more than 1,200 baskets a day for each set of buyers.

BRINGING WIVES HOME

TOKYO (AP)—Nearly 6,000 American enlisted men have announced their intention of taking Japanese wives to the United States.

New High School Described As Most Urgent Education Need

Greenville and increasing birth rate Rose said there is also need at the present time for the following units: A new elementary building in the southeastern section of the city. At present the Training School is completely full. The Training School serves the entire school district east of Evans Street and the most rapid growth in the City of Greenville has been and is in the eastern section of the City. That is why another elementary building in that out-of-the-way part of the City is a necessity at this time.

Need for an elementary unit for the negroes in south Greenville. The use of tractors and other machinery on farms in Pitt County is driving a large number of laborers off the farms and into towns. In spite of the fact that the school board has just completed a new building in south Greenville for Negroes this building is already full. Last year for the first time in the history of the Greenville Schools there were more negro children in the elementary grades than there were white children. In addition to classroom space in school authorities always have a vexing problem as to how to meet the growing needs.

Pay Demand Set By Steelworkers

CIO Action Threatens To Rock U.S. Stabilization Plans

PITTSBURGH (UP)—CIO steelworkers and leaders of the industry reached battle lines today for a wage fight that may topple the government's program to keep inflation down.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the United Steelworkers of America, and the union's wage policy committee put through demands at Atlantic City, N.J., yesterday for a "substantial" wage increase, annual wage and fringe benefits.

Benjamin Fairless, president of U.S. Steel, said at a meeting of the Society of Industrial Realtors at Cincinnati yesterday that a wage increase would compel higher steel prices and in turn step up the cost of living.

Murray planned to hold a preliminary session next Monday with John S. Stephens, top negotiator for U.S. Steel, third largest producer in the nation. They were expected to schedule full-dress bargaining sessions to start Nov. 27.

Other steelworker officials arranged to conduct separate conferences with spokesmen for Bethlehem Steel, Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and other industry leaders the same day.

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)—United Nations planes stepped up their aerial offensive against Communist North Korea under clearing skies today, but ground forces remained mired in mud.

B-29 Superfortresses flew through rain and snow before dawn to his nearly-completed enemy airfields in northwest Korea for the second straight day.

Bombing by radar, the B-29s reached the airstrip at Techon twice and that at Namst once. The Reds are trying to complete the airstrips as bases for Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters now flying from Manchurian airfields.

Rain and snow ceased during the morning, and Allied planes swarmed north in force for the first time in 36 hours. They sighted MIGs over northwest Korea for the first time in five days, but did not engage them.

Fighters and fighter-bombers cut Communist rail lines in at least 22 places, destroyed one locomotive and damaged another, destroyed two anti-aircraft guns, and wrecked 11 freight cars.

An 8th Army communique reported "no significant activity" Friday morning along the mudbound ground fronts. Two enemy probing attacks, each by a Communist platoon, were repulsed southwest of Kumsong on the central front.

The latest meeting lasted five hours and 15 minutes in a new conference tent erected by the Communists to replace the leaky former meeting place.

The Reds took up the morning session with the argument that Hodes was trying to evade compliance with the second term of the agenda — settlement of a cease-fire line and buffer zone across Korea.

Hodes replied that the earlier Allied proposals were now outdated. The meeting ended "without attaining any tangible results," the communique said. However, the subcommittee will meet again in Pusan Saturday 10 p. m. today (EST).

The devotion was given by Mrs. Anne Evans who used the one hundredth Psalm as the basis of the Thanksgiving message.

Mrs. Helen Wolfe spoke briefly on American Education Week and introduced Mrs. Franklin's sixth grade, who gave a most inspiring choral reading, "The Child Speaks." Solo parts were read by Carl Nobles, Martha Jane Pierce and Patsy Walton.

This beautiful reading highlighted the needs of boys and girls growing up today. Both the sixth grade and Mrs. Franklin are to be congratulated on such an excellent performance.

Miss Pullilove emphasized the radio programs which are being broadcast each evening as a contribution to American Education Week and invited all parents and friends of the school to visit the school to see the future citizens in action.

Miss Carolyn Flewellen, nutritionist, who is affiliated with the State Board of Health, presented a most informative program on "How to Get the Most Food Value for Five Dollars."

She contrasted and compared the groceries purchased by two housewives. Those present were amazed at the difference which a knowledge of nutrition can make, both in stretching the food dollar, and in keeping one's family well fed.

During the business meeting which followed Mr. Parks reported that the Halloween Festival was a great success and thanked every one who took part in it. Reports were given by the heads of all standing committees.

The Christmas program will be under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose, instructor in speech in the city, and Miss Beatrice Chauncey, music supervisor of the city schools. Mrs. Franklin's grade won the attendance prize.

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The mortal mind through which Truth appears most vividly is that one which has lost much materiality—much error—in order to become a better transparency for Truth." (p. 295)

Seventh Grade At Grimesland Gives Program

When the Parents-Teachers Association of the Grimesland school met at the school on Tuesday, November 13, a Thanksgiving program was presented by the pupils of the seventh grade, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. B. M. Brickhouse.

The program was opened by the singing of two songs, "Come Ye Thankful People" and "Thanksgiving Day." A devotional was given by Martha Anderson and the prayer was offered by David Sutton. This was followed by a solo by Gay Hudson, who sang "Thanks Be To God." Irene Cayton, who acted as announcer for the play, introduced the short drama which was presented in two parts. The first part was entitled "The First Thanksgiving" and the second part was called "Colonial Days." Both of these sketches depicted the early observance and customs prevailing among the people of colonial times.

The program was concluded by the singing of two more songs. In addition to those students already mentioned, the following took part in the program: Thomas Dixon, Kenneth Willoughby, Richard Davenport, Dottie Elks, Hazel May, Barbara Mills.

Marvin Harrison, Will Faucette, Vance Boyd, Jimmie Harde, Bobbie Dixon, Stoney Evans, Charles Scott, Peggy Taylor, Joyce Ross, Joyce Beddard, Phyllis Riggs, Marie Caloway, Becky Reel, J. B. Cox, Bruce McLawhorn, Frankie Singleton, Frances Elks, Lou Ellen Allgood, Agnes Smith, Peggy Taylor and Mae Barron.

Mr. B. W. Oakes, president, expressed appreciation for the program and announced that Mrs. Anne Ruth Cozart's, Mrs. Erickhouse and Mrs. T. R. Ainsley's room had won the attendance prize.

The secretary, Mrs. Lloyd Whitchard, read a list of committees for the year and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was

Jane Austen Club Has Supper For Members' Guests

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, at 7:30, the members of the Jane Austen Book Club of Stokes entertained their husbands and escorts at a Thanksgiving dinner, at the American Legion Home.

The south dining-room was a scene of loveliness, the mantel and tables carrying out the Thanksgiving motif in decorations of autumn fruits and leaves, trailing ivy, and place cards of attractive turkey favors. Yellow tapers lighted the scene.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Whitchard, welcomed the husbands and guests and Mr. Whitchard gave the response. Dr. T. G. Zinsight also expressed his happiness at being able to be present.

Following the supper, there was a program of entertainment given by Mesdames G. H. Roebuck and W. F. Stokes, which was climaxed by a contest in which the men made crepe paper hats for the ladies. Mr. Harold Watson won the prize as best hat designer. The happy occasion was ended by all singing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Visitors for the occasion were two students from E.C.C., Messrs. Charles Cherry and Donald Roebuck.

Review Of Play Delight Members Of Clio Club

Miss Jane Hadley was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home on November 13. The home was lovely throughout with beautiful arrangements of chrysanthemums and other fall flowers.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Carter Studdert, Mrs. Alton Barrett, Mrs. Georgia Franklin and Mrs. Rose Fambrough.

Following a business meeting presided over by Mrs. James Moye, president, Miss Hadley presented Mrs. Agnes Barrett as speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. Barrett delightfully reviewed "The Royal Family," a play by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman, which she had seen during her summer vacation at a summer theatre in the Pocono mountains in Pennsylvania.

The play dealt with four generations of the Cavendish family, a few of whom were actors and who had dedicated their lives to the theatre. The situation and characters reminded the audience of the famous Barrymore family. It was most entertaining and the club thoroughly enjoyed the experiences of each member of the family as they struggled to live their personal lives in with their stage lives.

At the conclusion of the program, Miss Hadley invited the members into the dining room where a delicious salad course with coffee and other accompaniments was served from a beautifully appointed table. The table was centered with an attractive arrangement of deep red and white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Rose Fambrough, Mrs. Helen Hawes and Mrs. Clara Shackel assisted the hostess in serving.

Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Paper On Mark Continues Study At Lector Club

On Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 6, Mrs. Herbert Hadley entertained members of the Lector Club at her home in Hillsdale. Bouquets of small yellow chrysanthemums were used to decorate the rooms.

Mrs. Louis Gaylord, Jr., the vice-president, presided over a short business session.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Hadley who gave a program on the Gospel of St. Mark. She gave a short history of how this Gospel came to be written and its purpose, and told several incidents in the life of John Mark, the author. The Gospel was then outlined briefly by chapters.

The hostess served a sweet course with coffee after which books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

The best time to rid your tobacco land of nematodes is RIGHT NOW!

NO PROFIT IN THIS ROOT!

When nematodes eat into tobacco roots, they also eat large chunks out of your profits. The simple fact is: nematode-damaged roots reduce both yield and quality of your tobacco leaf. Yet, nematodes can be controlled... easily... if you treat your soil in time with the tested, proved and approved fumigant, D-D.

D-D PREVENTS THIS DAMAGE!

Avoid the spring work rush... take advantage of ideal fall weather

Don't wait until spring. Now... before you plant your cover crop... the soil is relatively free of vegetation, and D-D gets in its maximum effectiveness. Also, you can pick a day when conditions of temperature and moisture are ideal... when you're free from the press of work that always piles up in early spring.

D-D is famous for nematode KILL!

D-D kills both the root knot and the meadow nematode... allowing roots to grow strong and healthy with maximum nourishment to the young plants. D-D is recommended by your state tobacco authorities... and is endorsed by growers in every tobacco county in the state. Ask your county agent!

IMPORTANT—D-D does not control black shank. It does control nematodes and allows the tobacco plant to develop a healthy root system which helps resist ant varieties to fight the disease. Fight black shank with every weapon you have. Use resistant varieties... practice crop rotation... fumigate your soil.

Strength for the Day

By H. L. DOUGLAS

THE CHARACTER OF GOD DEFEAT OFTEN LEADS TO VICTORY
Many a defeat in history has, in the light of later events, turned out to be a victory. I have just been reading about General MacArthur's flight from Corregidor. This looked like retreat, but it was really a great victory.

We celebrate the Battle of Bunker Hill, yet Bunker Hill was a defeat for the colonial troops. On the other hand, the Battle of New Orleans was fought after the peace treaty with Great Britain had been signed, terminating the War of 1812, and so the Battle of New Orleans was a wasted victory. On both sides during the war between the states, great victories were preceded by many shocking and disheartening defeats.

It is hard for us to realize that defeats have their place in bringing about final victory. The greatest defeat in human history, of course, was the crucifixion of Christ, the cruel murder of the best man who had ever lived. But it was followed by the resurrection, which was all victory.

Every businessman knows that certain violent setbacks have been the beginning of his success. You may be mourning today what appears a tragic defeat. Don't be too sure about that. It may be the necessary prelude to a victory greater than you ever dreamed could happen.

It Should Come As No Surprise

Well, it has finally happened, and it really should not come as a surprise. The Communist state long ago threw religion out the window and accepted Joe Stalin and the Kremlin as the almighty.

Now Communist Hungary is going a step further. The Communists there are going to do away with the celebration of Christmas on December 25 and declare a holiday in its place in celebration of the birth of Stalin on December 21.

The Communist leaders are determined that the people will have no spiritual ties except to the state. The churches have been ruled out, and even the days of the week numbered and shifted around so the people will lose track of the Sabbath. Now in Hungary, at least, Stalin is to replace Christ in the celebration of a holiday which has been handed down from generation to generation.

The loot of hate, greed, oppression and slaughter carried by the Communist leader has proved a poor substitute for the gifts of love, brotherhood and mercy borne by Christ.

The Creeping Paralysis Must Be Stopped

A creeping paralysis is slowly shutting the American people off from information about their government on various levels which must be kept open if the people are to remain free and the government money is not to be swept away by graft and fraud.

The latest of these "none of your business" attitudes is in the efforts of a House Ways and Means subcommittee to gain access to files on tax frauds from the Justice Department. For weeks the Congressional group has been arguing with the Justice Department for a look at the files, but the department has clung to the position that the committee has no right to see the files of the department.

The recent Presidential order giving department heads in the federal government authority to withhold from the public any information they saw fit can be considered as an open attempt to keep the people of the nation from knowing what is being done within the government. It would give officials an iron curtain behind which to commit any underhanded acts without risking being exposed to the public.

Unfortunately the trend to keep from the public government business—which is clearly the business of all the people in the country—is not confined to federal governments as well.

To many people it may be an eye-opener to realize just what measures are being taken by officials to keep even local matters from the people.

In Elkton Maryland, the town council prevented newspapermen from attending their closed-door sessions because they refused to abide by demands from the mayor that certain items of business be omitted from reports of the meetings. In Pampa, Texas it took legal action to force a justice of the peace to open his records to public scrutiny; while in Amarillo, Texas, reporters have been denied access to the police blotter. In New Bedford, Mass., a newspaper fought for 18 months to obtain the right to report school board meetings. A school board in Susquehanna, Pa., adopted a $500,000 budget behind closed doors, and the taxpayers who supplied the money have not been able to find out what happened.

There are numerous other examples of suppression of news on the local level of government across the country which could be enumerated.

On the state level, the legislatures of Illinois, Alabama and Washington keep no verbatim record of any kind of the business they transact. Missouri legislatures are so careful about keeping the public from checking on its activities that spectators are not even allowed to take notes in the galleries. Records of the New York legislature are made in shorthand, but are never transcribed. If an individual wishes to know what has happened in the legislature he practically has to get a court order to inspect the shorthand notes.

Examples of efforts by government officials on all levels to keep legitimate news from the people are a dime a dozen. It boils down to the fact that too many officials on all levels to keep legitimate news government does is none of the people's business.

Nothing could be farther from the truth.

If good government and free government is to continue, the people must be constantly informed on what is going on in all the agencies of federal, state and local governments. If the day comes when the people do not have this knowledge of government activities, the government literally will have been moved from the hands of the people to the hands of the bureaucrats.

News Behind The News
By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The most practical and promising portion of the Truman Administration's broad foreign program—Point Four—has finally blown up under the destructive pressures of world events.

Ironically, this was the only proposal in this field devised by President Truman himself, for the economic and military bulwarking of our allies was hatched in the State and Defense Departments by Dean Acheson and General George C. Marshall.

It is interesting to note, in view of this historical autopsy, that Mr. Truman took a peculiar personal interest in this humanitarian plan for "the development of backward peoples" under American auspices, public and private. Aside from a sincere desire for improvement of their lot and to quarantine them against communicable contagion, he cherished an understandable ambition.

He had hoped that eventual achievement of his purpose, even though long-deferred, might stand as a permanent monument to "Truman statesmanship," as the Monroe Doctrine, the Emancipation Proclamation and the Open Door in China (ironic chapter now) enshrine his more distinguished predecessors. Strangely, the man in the White House has a deep historical sense.

BACKFIRED—Unfortunately, and through no direct fault of his own, his grandiose idea has backfired in the very lands he sought to transform from unproductive and poverty-stricken deserts into progressive and modern states.

The "backward peoples" in China, India, Egypt, Morocco, Iran, Iraq and elsewhere are killing the American goose that might have laid golden eggs for them and their children. They prefer to hatch their own economic chickens, in view of past experiences with wise men from the west, especially England and France.

The fact is that, because of revolts, expropriation of foreign properties, assassinations, general instability, the infiltration of communistic elements and a growing prejudice toward the western powers, private capital has flatly rejected many Administration requests to undertake the program. Great corporations and foundations reply that they dare not invest money in such turbulent regions.

PROVOKED—The eviction of British oil interests from Iran has provoked demands in nearby territory for driving out American firms, even though the latter have dealt more generously with local rulers and natives than London. Many U.S. companies projected Point Four programs of their own years ago, if only for selfish economic reasons. They had to have healthy eyes.

But Teheran's apparent victory over "the foreigners" has stirred feelings of mingled pride and animosity that threaten to engulf us as well as the badly behaved British. Even Israel, which has had the Administration's blessing since first it strove for freedom, now demands control of British potash concessions along the Dead Sea.

TOKEN—Congress has never been too sympathetic toward Point Four with the result that appropriations for a bare beginning have been only token amounts. Mr. Truman himself recognizes that private firms must shoulder the main job, in view of the vast sums we are now spending overseas. The taxpayers cannot stand another tap.

Because of worsening world conditions, the men on Capitol Hill say they will be in no mood to ship good money after bad at the next session. Since private capital has backed out, it can now be announced unofficially that Point Four is on the shelf, perhaps permanently.

TRAGIC—It is another tragic consequence of the "cold war," like our enforced delay in developing atomic energy for peacetime use. Whereas disarmament proposals simply strike at the surface symptoms of war, elimination of world-wide misery through a sensible Point Four program, even though it might never achieve Utopia, would minimize the causes of war and relieve international tensions.

Whatever recording angel there may be, should chalk up that sin against civilization to Josef Stalin's account. And give an "X" for effort to Harry S. Truman.

LESSON—The collapse of the Point Four plan may teach a hard lesson to President Truman and Secretary Acheson. It will not be lost on the legislators when and if they are asked again to appropriate vast sums to shoulder what Kipling called "the white man's burden." Capitol Hill now knows what happened to Britain after its century of acting on the poet laureate's advice—also Churchill's.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

One of the most interesting business organizations in America is the Willmark Service system, organized to help managers insure good service from employees. A typical function is this:

Recently a well dressed woman checked in at a well-known hotel in New York. She walked slowly into the elevator as the bell boy struggled with two heavy suitcases. After they reached her room on the twelfth floor, she sent him back to the lobby for a newspaper. When he returned she handed him a dress to be cleaned. Next, he made a trip to the hotel drug store for her, and after all that she dropped a 50-cent piece into his hand.

The bell boy practically turned purple. "Lady," he said, "I think you need this more than I do." He threw the half-dollar down on the dresser and rushed out of the room, slamming the door behind him.

The Willmark Service System was founded in 1917 by two brothers, William and Mark Bernstein. They now have 33 branches of their organization. Their shoppers must be born actors. One day they buy hamburgers in a run-down neighborhood. The next day a shopper might be looking at mink coats. One shopped named Jean was pushing a cart through a super-market one day. At the check-out counter, as the clerk finished ringing up her purchases, she remembered that she needed spaghetti. "Eighteen cents more," the clerk said. She paid and watched. The clerk failed to ring up the 18 cents!

This organization also introduced for manufacturers a service that reports what clerks tell shoppers about their products. It works like this:

A shopper walked into a grocery store and asked the clerk whether a certain brand of soap powder would get her windows clean. The clerk gave the perfect answer. The mystery shopper said, "In your sales talk, you have stressed the points the manufacturer wishes you to stress. Because of that, you have just won $25."

And I thank you.

PORTRAITS—Attorney General Harry McMillan is making progress toward his goal of a complete gallery of photographic portraits of all attorneys general who have served North Carolina. Three were added to the Spler Whitakers, who was attorney general from 1942 to 1946; of Edward Stanley, who filled the office from 1846 to 1848, and Francis I. Osborne, who served from 1890 to 1896. There are some gaps on the wall of the department of justice conference room, reserved for pictures of attorneys general who served the state a hundred years and more ago.

ELECTION—A unique election will be held next Tuesday in the community of Pinehurst, famed winter resort in Moore county. The question to be voted upon is legal sale of beer and wine within the area prescribed by a special act of the 1949 general assembly, which authorized a election under peculiar circumstances. The general statutes provide for county wide votes on sale of beer and wine, and then for municipal votes in incorporated towns of more than 1,000 population in event the county votes against legal sale. Under terms of the general statutes Moore county recently voted against legal beer and wine, and on Tuesday the town of Southern Pines voted to legalize sales by preponderant majorities. An election is contemplated in the town of Aberdeen in the near future under the same statutes.

UNIQUE—Pinehurst is not incorporated and the resort center could not qualify for voting on the issue under general laws; but Pinehurst wanted beer and wine available for tourist guests. So, a special act was sponsored by Rep. Clifton Blue of Moore county, recognized as a "dry" leader in the assembly, to permit residents of the rural community surrounding the village of Pinehurst and the general offices of Pinehurst, Inc., a private corporation engaged in real estate, hotel operation and other business activities. So far as can be ascertained from checking records and information obtained from state officials, this is the only instance of a non-incorporated rural community being permitted to vote on such an issue.

EXCEPTED—This is not, however, the only specific exceptional advantage accorded to Pinehurst, Inc., by special legislative act. The community has an ABC store for the sale of hard liquors under control of the Moore county and North Carolina state ABC boards, said to be the only such store in the state outside of an incorporated municipality. Furthermore, a special act of the 1949 legislature provides that the state shall pay to Pinehurst, Inc., a share of state collected taxes on beer, wine and intangibles in the same manner payments are made to incorporated towns and cities. Many students of legislation and authorities on law, say this is the only instance of the state's admitting special benefit of a private business corporation. (There is suspicion that other laws confer special benefits upon certain private concerns but they are handled with less obvious application.)

FORESTRY—The meeting of the North Carolina Forestry Association at the Sir Walter Hotel this week developed some interesting facts. Because of recent upheaval in the forestry division of the department of conservation and development, resulting in cross-charges of political and personal prejudice, and resolution of the C & D board at the Winston-Salem meeting requesting C & D Director George Ross to consult the forestry association before naming a successor to W. K. Betchler, whom Ross had fired as state forester, the Tuesday meeting had potentialities for a good political story. That story did not develop, because it was apparent that those attending the forestry meeting were more concerned about a long range program than about current personal-political conflicts. There was no word of criticism of former State Forester Bill Betchler, nor of Director George Ross. There was recognition of the obvious fact that North Carolina has fallen behind other states, even in the southeast, in setting up and supporting an adequate over-all program for long range development of forestry-which means trees for pulp wood and lumber, soil and water conservation, and multiple allied factors.

SUPPORT—One thing of significance came out of the meeting. There is a spirit of united support for conserving and promoting the growth of trees in North Carolina. This sentiment finds expression through the forestry association, which is non-governmental; through the forestry council, which is governmental; and through the forestry foundation which includes both public and private participation as to control, but wholly private as to source of funds. Resolutions adopted were couched in careful words, but there was left no doubt as to real meaning. The forestry folks are ready to back a long range program with both sentimental and financial support.

Business Today

While their customers do not believe it when they read it here, retailers are selling a large portion of their goods at an actual loss.

Merchants are not, except in rare instances, selling goods below the prices they pay for them, but they are selling them below the wholesale price plus costs of doing business. Costs of doing business have risen greatly and are still trending upward.

The average net profit on sales of 228 stores surveyed by the Office of Price Stabilization to raise ceiling on a variety of foods, swore that it is losing money on many items. Since Safeway's size (1,948 stores) permits great economies in buying and operating, it would appear that smaller organizations, forced by competition to meet Safeway prices, are losing money on even more items.

Because competition is keen and because prices are frozen anyway, the average merchant cannot reduce losses by charging more. He has two lines of recourse left. He can try to lower the costs of doing business, thereby jimmying a little more space between the total costs of goods and the selling price, and he can be more selective in his buying, avoiding those lines on which he suffers losses because of small margins, slow turn-over or heavy mark-downs.

BANKERS DON'T SEE BIFOCAL TO BIFOCAL
The opening sentence of the November bulletin of the Northern Trust of Chicago is: "The past month has brought no notable change in the business situation."

The opening sentence of the New England Letter of First National of Boston, dated October 31, is: "Business is better."

Each letter then proceeds to prove its point with figures. RISE IN DEMAND HITS CHLOROPHYLL
Rapid rises in the use of chlorophyll in toothpaste, candy, gum and tablet breath-sweeteners has created a shortage of the green plant extract. Some oil and chemical dealers in the New York market have withdrawn quotations. LUSH WORLD AHEAD. ECONOMIST FORECASTS

"Total production of goods so great that all past records would fall," was forecast for America by Arthur M. Welmer, dean of Indiana University's School of Business, addressing the United States Savings and Loan League convention in Miami Beach. For the world of tomorrow he also forecast:

Use of atomic energy for transportation, expanding and decentralizing the modern city; revival of the two-parlor home, with one for television; further rises in home ownership and a decline in tenancy; and wider stock ownership of American industry. CALLS FOR EASING CONTROLS ON CREDIT
What may result in a new drive for relaxing consumer credit controls was kicked off this week by Elmer E. Schmus, Chicago banker and credit authority, speaking before the American Finance Conference convention.

Mr. Schmus told the Chicago meeting that rising prices of durables would price more and more lower-income families out of themarket. He said that the increase in outstanding consumer credit, which was so "viewed with alarm" by government authorities, was the natural result of higher prices, higher income and greater production. He pointed out that while installment credit is controlled, nearly a third of consumer debt in single payment loans, charge accounts and service credits "move merrily along unregulated."

Hal Boyle's Column
NEW YORK (AP)—There is no parallel in American history to the cold-blooded massacre of some 5,500 U. S. prisoners of war by the communists in Korea.

Assuming that the current official investigation bears out the report of Col. James M. Haney, chief of the advocate section of the Eighth Army, then:

It is by far the greatest atrocity committed against our nation since its founding. It negates the principles upon which our republic is built—the value of the individual and human rights.

In the seven-year struggle to achieve American independence the U. S. Army estimates "at least 4,044 American soldiers were killed" in battle.

Yet in less than a year-and-a-half of the "police action" in Korea the enemy has murdered in cold blood more than 5,500 captured and defenseless American troops. They have murdered more Americans than died to make us a free people.

The figure is almost too shocking to comprehend. For these outright murders of our men are only a small fraction of our total Korean casualties—now at the 100,000 mark.

And the murders of our men are only a small fraction of the murders committed by the Reds among captured South Korean troops and the South Korean civilian population.

But the number of disarmed Americans they have brutally shot down or clubbed to death makes the Custer Massacre of the Indian wars or the Malmedy Massacre of the last world war look like misdeeds.

These endless, fruitless and useless slayings by the Chinese and North Korean Reds must put before civilized mankind again its oldest question—does human life hold any dignity, or must peoples feed upon each other as animals?

The 20th century mind, brought up in a time of atrocity, is dulled to the very word atrocity. It tends to regard atrocity and propaganda as the same word.

There are people today who already are willing to believe that Hitler's human death factories were only legends.

Gen. George S. Patton was aware of people's tendency to shrug away distasteful facts. When his Third Army captured a Nazi concentration camp, he forced the civilian population of the nearest town to walk through the camp and gaze at the inmates—the piled dead, the starving living. He wanted them to remember forever what their government did to helpless men.

These massacres in Korea are no more legendary than the massacres of Hitler, and no more to be condoned.

In the prison at Taejon in Sept. 1950, I saw the corpses of 400 civilians shot by the retreating Reds. What crimes had these dead folk committed? The crime of many consisted in the fact that they owned a rice paddy, were landlords or merely had remained indifferent to the communist cause.

In the courtyard of the Taejon city jail I watched as they dug out the bodies of a line of American soldiers. They had been tied together at the wrists, forced to kneel in a quickly dug ditch, then shot down. Two of the American boys died holding each other in a final handclasp.

There have been scores of massacres like this in Korea, some smaller, some larger.

How can these dead soldiers ever rest easy in their graves until America does something about it?

Washington Letter
WASHINGTON — Miss Augusta Mandosso of Rome, Italy, wanted to "breathe the United States, moving around among the people, listening to them, seeing how they live, what their problems are and how they try to solve them."

An Italian employe of the U.S. Information Service (USIS) in Rome, she was a member of one of the groups of USIS foreign workers who are being brought to this country periodically to see America for themselves.

"America is not Eldorado; heaven on earth, but all those who want to work can hope for a decent life and can educate their children, and there are opportunities for all," she wrote in a report to her USIS colleagues.

The good taste of American women in making their homes pleasant, she said, "is an indication of the family life which many people in Europe hesitate to believe exists." It is very frequent, she added, "that the woman buys an up-to-date freezer rather than a fur coat."

Miss Mandosso noted the deference of American men toward women. She said they are chivalrous and considerate and "wondered whether the American women realize this."

She was impressed with the supermarkets; the open mailboxes dotting the rural landscape, the "multitude of windows, even on the ground floor, without shutters"; the suitcase that you can ship and find untouched; the "incredible" number of cars parked in front of the universities; the cowboys living in small houses with a radio and a television set "which almost everybody can afford"; the salad with cottage cheese, and the wild rabbits "so certain they won't end in stew that they build their home in bushes under the window."

"That the living standard is one of the highest in the world is a fact that jumps to your eyes," Miss Mandosso said. "Even in the slums, which I visited by myself, I could not see rags hanging among the simple underwear."

Some of her impressions she got from taxi drivers. (Don't we all?) One told her he planned to go by plane to Europe for a vacation. "Is $100 a week enough to live on in a hotel in Italy?" he asked her. After this you will not be surprised I remained speechless. It is true, that he will not make such a trip every year, but how many of our drivers could make such a trip once in a lifetime?

What Other Papers Are Thinking

WE CAN DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT (Winston-Salem Journal)
One reason why high prices flourish is that the public has adopted a more or less defeatist attitude toward inflationary trends. In general the people seem to feel that there is little that an individual or specific group can do about it—that here is something akin to a natural disaster or so-called "act of God," over which the average person has no influence or control whatever.

Is this true? The members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Club do not think so. They recently adopted the following brief resolution:

"Resolved that we, the members of the Federation, do everything in our power to curb inflation by—
"1. Using what we have.
"2. Paying cash when possible and saving credit carefully.
"3. Saving all we can in bank accounts, savings certificates, and United States Bonds"

"4. Doing all we can through our legislators to cut unnecessary Government spending."
These are telling blows which all of us can strike against inflation and high prices. What appears essential is a cooperative movement in each community over the country which can be directed and coordinated in such a way as to achieve tangible results. Isn't this a direct challenge to some of our civic clubs to start the ball rolling in Winston-Salem?

Student City Grows Into Major Project

AP Newsfeatures
CARBONDALE, Ill. — If you're looking for tips on how a town should be governed a group of student veterans at Southern Illinois University have the answers. Not only will they tell you about it, but they can show you a working example.

They call their community "Southern Acres." It is populated by young men—all veterans, their wives, and lots of children. Located near Crab Orchard lake in part of the World War II munitions plant it is not a boom town exactly, but it came into being almost overnight when several hundred married veterans enrolled at SIU after the war.

Plant leased
 The University obtained a lease on a group of the vacant ordnance plant buildings. At first it was just a group of run-down buildings, furnishing nothing more than a place to live. Many of the wives were reluctant to move several miles out of town. Now the wives are the most enthusiastic residents.

The project resulted from an experiment in selfgovernment set up by a sociology professor at the university. The former administration building of the munitions plant was turned into the main set of apartments. Roofs leaked and overburdened heating plant worked spasmodically.

Government Organized
 Town meetings are held once a month, presided over by the mayor and councilmen. Usually the whole family turns out. If a resident is dissatisfied, he can say so. A weekly mimeographed newspaper, the "Southern Acres Journal," is staffed entirely by the ladies. A report from each wing of the unit turns in the news each week. The editor usually writes an editorial.

Since Southern Acres is located 10 miles out of Carbondale, transportation was necessary. The university bought a war surplus bus which makes eight runs daily in the evening a special "shopping run" is made.

On Sundays church is held in the recreation hall. Ministers from nearby towns take turns in delivering sermons. In the summer afternoons are spent fishing boating, and swimming in the lake near the housing project.

The distinguished service award will be presented to the man of the year at a meeting during the third week in January. Smith said plans are being made to have the presentation of the award at a meeting to which the Jaycees will invite their bosses.

N. C. Spud Crop Shows Big Drop

RALEIGH — (AP) North Carolina's Irish potato production this year was set at 7,293,000 bushels by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

This is a drop of 30 per cent from last year and 21 per cent from the 10-year average.

Sweet potato yield, the service said in a report yesterday, now is estimated at 3,800,000 bushels. This is 44 per cent under the 1950 crop and 47 per cent under the 10-year 1940-49 average. The estimated sweet potato yield of 95 bushels per acre represents a 20-bushel decline from last year.

The crop reporting service reported pecan and sorghum crops are bigger than last year.

The pecan harvest is placed at 3,360,000 pounds compared with a crop of slightly more than 2,000,000 pounds last year and a 10-year average of 2,625,000 pounds.

Arrest Four On Larceny Charges

County Sheriff R. W. Tyson reported this morning that four Negroes of Fictolus community were arrested early this week and jailed on charges of larceny.

The four, William Henry Latham, Claude Howard Odom, "Dock" Murchison and James Highsmith, are charged with stealing several sheets of cotton and six bags of peanuts.

The sheriff said the cotton was stolen at various intervals during the past week or so. The peanuts were taken Wednesday night. Latham and Odom were arrested by the Robersonville Police Department when the pair attempted to sell approximately 900 pounds of cotton to which they could not prove ownership. The cotton was recovered.

Murchison and Highsmith were arrested by Pitt County deputies Andrews and Manning. "All four men waived preliminary hearings, and their cases will go before the Grand Jury Monday," Sheriff Tyson said.

Will Not Reopen Butner Inquiry

RALEIGH — (AP) — Dr. David Young says he does not plan to reopen an investigation into charges a patient was mistreated at Butler State Hospital.

Dr. Young, who is superintendent of the state's mental hospitals, had asked for an investigation into claims brought by Duncan Brackin, a former graduate student at the University of North Carolina.

Brackin, who was an attendant at Butner for three days and then discharged, made the charges.

He said he saw a supervisor of attendants throw a patient to the floor and, helped by another attendant, beat the patient. When he attempted to intervene, Brackin said, the supervisor attempted to beat him.

Dr. Young had Dr. James W. Murdoch, superintendent at Butner, investigate the allegations. Murdoch in effect dismissed them.

A PRETTY FACE STARTS AT YOUR FEET

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELIAS

Predictions again today. Most of the games this week in the local and Big Four areas seem to be "set-up" affairs with the favorites clearly defined. However, that's the kind of slate that always managers to trip up prognosticators such as myself.

First of all, in the daily local game of the week, let's take a whack at the Greenville-Roanoke Rapids game which is being played this afternoon in Roanoke Rapids.

Bill Kittrell, clearly aiming for the future, has already signified his intentions to use a lot of new boys in this game. With most of his first team ready to depart from the Phantom football scene, Kittrell is playing it smart in trying to give his future ball players a part in outside competition.

However... even Kittrell's first team would have a difficult time with this powerful (at times) Roanoke-Rapids club. This boy, Matthews, who plays fullback for the Yellow Jackets, can play football with the best of them and he's reportedly got a flock of college talent seekers after him.

Matthews will make a big difference in the game which could be over by the time this is read. With his help, Roanoke Rapids should win handily in the wrap-up game of the 1951 season for the Greenville club.

East Carolina has already taken off for its long weekend. The Pirates were excused from workouts this afternoon by Coach Bill Dole and will not be donning football gear again until Monday when they buckle down to the task of the game with The Citadel.

Moving into the Big Four, the top game is probably the one up at Chapel Hill tomorrow in which Carolina is playing host to Notre Dame.

Carolina could very easily be fired up for this ball game now that Carl Snavely has been put under direct pressure from late alumni who don't like to see their club lose. Those unpredictable Tar Heels might have selected tomorrow as their day to get rough with somebody.

However... they're gonna have to get mighty rough to effectively stop Notre Dame which was effectively (35-0) stopped last week by Michigan State. Brother Frank Leahy doesn't seem to like those 35-0 jobs any more than Snavely likes a 2-6 record but Leahy seems to have just a little bit more to get results.

The Fighting Irish should win handily over the hapless Tar Heels. But, as Smith Barrier says, don't bet the house rent on it. Anything can happen these days.

N. C. State versus Maryland at College Park could be the next most important game although Maryland is being figured as a shoo-in over the Wolfpack.

If memory serves me correctly—as it is doing a lot of people right now—Maryland was figured as a "shoo-in" last year when the red clad gentlemen from West Raleigh journeyed to College Park. When the smoke cleared in a 1-1 tie, Elmer Costa had led State to a 16-13 win over sunny Jim Tatum's Terrapins.

State will have Costa again tomorrow as well as another gentleman named Alex Webster but I fear that Beattie Feathers will need just a wee bit more than these two griders.

Tatum and the Terps have their eyes set on the Sugar Bowl or possibly the Cotton Bowl and I hardly see how their gazes can be averted tomorrow by a middling State College ball club. I would place my meager amount of cash on the Terrapins were I a gambling man.

Down in Waco, Texas, tomorrow, there should be a humdinger of a game played between the Deacons of Wake Forest and the Bears of Baylor University. Both clubs love to throw that ball and each has a passer of more than just average abilities.

Wake Forest has looked good this year. They've looked much better than anyone dared hope before the season started. Ed Kissell and Dickie Davis have done a great job of quarterbacking and the Deacons' starting line-up is as good as anyone in the entire South as far as I am concerned.

But that lack of reserve power is going to hurt the Deacs tomorrow when they get to looking at the passing of Larry Isbell. Duke showed last week that Wake Forest could be worn down by a club with superior reserve strength and that's what Baylor will probably do tomorrow. The Bears will win in a squeaker.

The final game on tap is a little affair between the Indians of William and Mary and the Blue Devils of Duke. Duke should win.

The Blue Devils have been the up-and-down club of the Southern Conference this year. They've looked great at times and pretty darned lousy other times but they should have a good afternoon tomorrow.

Their opposition is the surprise club of the year. Under big Moose Bass, called in when scandal forced the resignation of Rube McCray, William and Mary has done very well this year. They've won six of eight games and are looking around for more victims.

I hardly think they'll find any fresh blood tomorrow when Bill Murray takes his boys to Williamsburg.

AYDEN — An inter-conference clash between two Class A powers tonight in Ayden will mark the conclusion of a day of homecoming for friends and alumni of Ayden High School. Opponent the Coastal Conference champion Tornadoes will be the powerful Perquimans Indians of Hertford High School. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Led by All-Conference back Hal Edwards, a junior, the Tornadoes will be seeking their sixth victory in nine games. They have tied once. Last week they lost to Beaufort High School and had previously lost to Williamston in their march toward the Coastal Conference championship. They were undefeated in conference play.

The Tornado line will be led tonight by end Mac Whitehurst who was recently named to the All-Conference team for the third year in a row. Two other All-Conference selections will be around to help Whitehurst in his efforts to stem the attack of the visiting Indians. These two, Curtis Dennis and Randall Harrington, are listed by Coach Stuart Tripp as center and tackle, respectively, and will be in those positions tonight.

Other offensive leaders for the Tornadoes include John Cheek, Delano Cox, Harry Ross, Wesley Cannon, Willis Manning, Elley Tripp, Bill Holland, Todd Kittrell, Norm Skinner, and Gordon Hart.

The defensive line-up will be led by Dennis, Edwards, Whitehurst, Tripp, Holland, and Hart.

The visitors for tonight's Homecoming clash are the champions in the strong Albemarle Conference. They have a strong line-up on both offense and defense.

Alex Webster Is Threat To Terps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Maryland's Terps have a common battery tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon when they collide with North Carolina State's rather unpredictable Wolfpack at College Park, Md.

"Stop Alex Webster!" That was something the Terps couldn't do a year ago. And the 210-pound State tailback ground out yardage that produced one of the biggest upsets in the Southern Conference. State won over the Terps, 16-13.

Webster was the Pack's most consistent ground gainer in the game. Twice, big Alex returned Maryland kicks for more than 50 yards and hauled one of them all the way to Maryland's 15-yard line.

Alex does everything with a pigskin. He can run, having stacked up 1,122 yards in 243 carries to average 4.5 yards a try. He's the league's No. 3 kicker with a 39.6-yard average. He can pass, too.

Yesterday, Maryland Coach Jim Tatum had the Terps working out after dark for the second successive night. The passing attack which crushed Navy last week got considerable attention.

William and Mary Coach Marvin Bass said yesterday he figured Duke should have "an edge on us in manpower" for tomorrow's battle at Williamsburg, Va. "If all our boys were in shape, I'd say we were almost as good as Duke—man for man."

W & M will have some of its line stars—Sam Lupo, Joe Megale, Larry Jones—and John Flanagan, a halfback, slowed down due to bruises and sprains.

Two Duke players, senior linebacker Dud Hager and defensive guard Bob Berger, will miss the game. Walter Smith, reserve defensive end, also may not see action.

Virginia Military Institute's Keydets, tied with Maryland for the top No. 1 position, expect a tough time at the Citadel. VMI came out of its bad kicking at Georgia Tech with several key injuries although their all-around star, George Chumbley, will play. The Citadel has won only one conference game, while VMI has three victories.

Clemson put on a passing parade yesterday as the Tigers tuned up for their visit to Furman tomorrow. Billy Hair and Bob Paredes did the tossing as the Bengals began tapering off for the Purple Hurricane test.

In the other conference game, the University of Richmond goes to

Ahoskie Wins

SCOTLAND NECK — Ahoskie won the right to represent the Albemarle Conference in the Northeast District playoff for the state Class A championship Wednesday night by coming up with the right ticket in a three-way drawing involving Williamston and Hertford besides Ahoskie.

The three teams finished the regular season in the conference in a tie for first play, and the conference officials decided to have drawing from a hat meeting here to choose the winner. Ahoskie will now play Rich Square tonight and the winner of that game will meet Massey Hill for the eastern championship.

Western Colleges Are Top Gainers

NEW YORK—(AP)—When it comes to piling up the yardage look to the Southwest and especially New Mexico Western College.

The Mustangs from Silver City have just finished a nine-game football season in which they rolled up yardage as if they were riding broncos.

Fullback Bob White was the pacesetter for the hard-running club. White set two collegiate records. He piled up 1,643 yards rushing and averaged 182.4 yards per game. His seasonal total topped the major college mark of 1,570 set by Fred West of Texas Mines (now Texas Western) and the small college record of 1,399 established by Odie Pusey of Southern U.

White completed one pass for 12 yards and that gave him 1,655 yards for total offense. That figure and his 1,643 for rushing puts him in front of all other backs in both departments. According to the small college statistics released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

White's rushing mark is a cinch to stand for the year. He's 408 yards ahead of Bowling Green's Fred Durig, who is second with 1,238 and has one game to go.

Virginia Tech, showing improvement last week in holding William and Mary to a 28-7 triumph, will be after its first victory in 19 years.

Inter-sectional interest as far as Southern Conference teams are concerned will be centered on Chapel Hill, N. C., where Notre Dame invades North Carolina. A crowd of 44,500 spectators will swarm into Kenan Stadium to witness the game.

MacDougald, Willie Mays Gets "Rookie Of The Year"

NEW YORK —(AP)—Handy Gil McDougald of the world champion New York Yankees and Willie Mays of the New York Giants share Rookies-of-the-Year honors for 1951.

Selection of McDougald and Mays was made by the same 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America (three from each league city) that picked the most valuable players.

McDougald barely edged out Orestes (Minnie) Minoso of the Chicago White Sox by a surprising 13-11 vote. Surprising, that is, for Minoso outranked McDougald by a wide margin in the recent most valuable player balloting. Mays was an easy winner.

Voting for Most Valuable Player in the American League—won by Yankee Yogi Berra with 184 points—the writers named Minoso fourth with 120 points and McDougald ninth with 63 points.

McDougald shuttled between third base and second base as Manager Casey Stengel benched either Bobby Brown or Gerry Coleman depending on the opposition pitcher. Minoso played third, left field, right field and even did a turn at first.

Apparently the fact that McDougald was the only 300 hitter on the pennant-winning Yanks, his 14 homers and was a real steady performer all season was more convincing to the writers than Minoso's 328 average. Gil was a most important clutch hitter in the important stretch series when Berra was slumping.

McDougald came up to the Yanks from the Beaumont farm of the Texas League, highly touted by Rogers Hornsby, his minor league boss. His unorthodox batting stance drew grins the first time around the league. On May 3 he drove in six runs in the ninth inning with a triple and grand slam homer. He also hit a bases-loaded homer in the series.

The National League vote was a landslide for Mays with 18 of the 24 ballots. Chet Nichols, Boston Braves left-handed pitcher, had four and Clem Labine, Brooklyn Dodgers righthander, had two.

neapolis in the American Association where he was hitting .477 when recalled by the Giants, in May. Ousting Bobby Thomson from his centerfield job, Mays played fine ball, showed a strong arm and great speed and finished with a .374 average. Caught in the grip of a late season slump, Mays was of little help to the Giants in the playoff or World Series.

Business competition is getting keener and that's fine with us. When a man has to do his best, he is more likely to want to look his best. And that leads straight to the fitting room mirror and a new suit from Hill's.

Let Love Alone

By KATHLEEN HARRIS

Chapter 16

There was that danger again. Jan wished he would not keep harping on it. It made her feel so strange.

She saw that with his free hand Ray was fumbling with the small aviation pin he always wore on the lapel of his flying jacket. He had had it pinned on his white dinner coat this evening. Now, having taken it off, he held it in the palm of his hand.

"I want you to wear this, Jan." Once more his blue eyes looking into hers were serious. His tone grave. "It's not much, but it's all I have right now to give you."

"Oh, but I couldn't take that, your pin! I couldn't wear it!" she protested.

"Because...well, it's your lucky charm. It's always brought you luck. You told me so yourself."

"It will bring me even more luck if you wear it, Janie," Ray told her. He leaned closer, started to pin it on her silver and blue dress, over her heart.

"Please," Her protest this time was rather faint. However, that feeling of strong superstition remained with her, or could it have been premonition?

"It's all I have to give you," Ray repeated. "Something to remember me by, just in case."

"Don't say that!"

"I won't wear it," Ray said solemnly. "So you must, I'm not selling out my luck, Jan. I'm trusting it with you."

"All right," she said in that low faint voice. "I'll wear it, Ray."

It seemed a breathless, almost a sacred moment as he fastened the little pin securely. Then, when it was over, Ray gathered Jan against his heart. His blue eyes looking down into hers said all of the things he had not put into words. His lips found hers.

Jan had never dreamed that any kiss could be like this one. This was a kiss between a man and a woman, not a boy and girl. It slat out everything in the world. It transported her to unknown dizzy heights, robbed her of thought and reason; it stirred all her senses into a tumult so that her pulses pounded and her heart stopped beating.

And then it was over.

Jan was the captured bird, if she did not yet clearly realize it. She had indeed chafed during that swift powerful interlude. She would never be as young again, for such a kiss as that made a girl into a woman.

She did not realize any of this, not even after Ray had left and she found that she could not sleep. She told herself that it was no wonder some people fell for this thing called love. It was no wonder it lured them into sentimental paths and led them to their ruin.

But she still would have nothing to do with it, nothing, she resolved more fiercely than ever before.

Yet she could not forget that kiss. It was as though it not only remained on her lips, but was planted deep within her heart.

Ray and Bernice did not get to take off on Monday for the west coast. They were obliged to "hang around," as Ray disgustedly expressed it, until weather conditions were more favorable.

"These darn spring storms," Ray said to Jan over a coke as they waited for Bernice to join them. "Sometimes they're tricky. And I don't want anything to go wrong on this flight, before I get to make the one that counts. If it did, I'd feel I had let Bernice down, after all she's done for me."

"If aviation achieves its ultimate goal," Ray was saying in his earnest manner, "it will be because of people like Bernice: people willing not only willing to give thousands of dollars but their time, their very hearts and souls."

Jan got fed up hearing him sing the other girl's praises all the time.

Almost as though he had read her thoughts, Ray said now, "I wish, Jan, you liked Bernice. I am sure you would if you knew her better, knew more about her."

"I like her well enough," Jan returned briefly. "I never said I didn't like her."

"Sometime, when I have more time," Ray told her, "I'd like to tell you about Bernice. Maybe she will tell you herself some day."

"I have great news!" Bernice said, as she slipped into the seat opposite them. "The weather has cleared. The reports just came in from the coast. No more postponement. Ray! We can take off whenever you're ready."

"I'm ready whenever you are," Ray returned instantly. His face had lightened up too as though a strong purpose had been set, like a lantern, behind it.

"There's no time like the moment," Bernice said. "The ship's been ready now for days. I guess we've both been ready, too."

"You don't mean you're going now?" This protest broke from Jan without her willing it.

"Why not?" the other girl returned. Then she smiled at Jan. "I forgot. You wanted more time in which to say goodbye."

"I didn't mean that!" Jan flashed. She did not know what she had meant. She only knew that all of a sudden she felt terrible. It was more than that heavy weight. It was worse than that empty feeling.

"I never like goodbyes," Ray said briefly.

Jan knew what he meant by that. Goodbyes were awful. They usually got sticky and sentimental.

"You're right, Bernice," Ray continued. "The sooner the better." He got to his feet as though ready, even eager, to get started immediately if possible.

Mayor Page Calls For Support In TB Fight

Praising the "invaluable work" of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association in fighting tuberculosis in Greenville, Mayor Lester Page made public today a formal proclamation calling for "100 percent generous support" of the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale. The campaign will be conducted by the tuberculosis association from November 19 to Christmas.

In issuing his proclamation, the Mayor spoke of all "the excellent tuberculosis-fighting projects of the Association," but singled out the association's health education and case-finding program for special commendation.

"Working on a far-round basis, the association makes every effort to get across to the people facts about tuberculosis which will help them protect themselves against the disease," the Mayor pointed out. "Another all-important aid has been the work of the Association in helping to find unknown cases of tuberculosis, a measure of the utmost importance in preventing the further spread of this communicable disease in the community.

"These are only two of the major projects of the association, but they are examples of how the association is helping to bring the disease under control in this area," said the Mayor. "I appeal to every resident of this community to take an active part in supporting the invaluable work of the tuberculosis association by buying and using Christmas Seals."

The text of the Mayor's proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, tuberculosis, a communicable disease, is a threat to the health, lives, and happiness of the people of Greenville, and WHEREAS, the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association is doing invaluable work in bringing tuberculosis under control in Greenville, and

WHEREAS, the support of the tuberculosis association is derived from the sale of Christmas Seals. THEREFORE, I, as Mayor of Greenville, urge all residents of Greenville to express their wholehearted support of the tuberculosis control work of the association by the generous purchase of Christmas Seals during the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale and by the use of Christmas Seals throughout the holidays."

Laws for the New Nation ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 18-23.

Jethro, hearing of Moses' success in delivering the Israelites out of Egypt, brought Moses' wife, Zipporah, and their two sons where the people were camped, to reunite the family.

Jethro, seeing how overworked Moses was in trying to settle disputes of the people, advised him to appoint his wisest men to assist him as judges, which he did.

Coming down from Mt. Sinai, Moses told the people of Jehovah's promises if they would be true to Him. They cried with one voice, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do."

On the third day, fire and smoke covered Mt. Sinai, and the people fell on their knees in fear as Jehovah proclaimed His laws.

Says Wide Support Helped To Gain Goal

By CHESTER WALSH

"We made our county goal of $1,300 for the North Carolina Negro 4-H Club Foundation, as a result of cooperation between Pitt County 4-H and Home Demonstration clubs," Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro home demonstration agent, said today.

She gave credit to T. T. Mitchell, assistant Pitt County Negro farm agent, in charge of 4-H Club work in the county, for much of the success of the "Achievement Day" program and the raising of Pitt County's quota.

Mitchell worked with the Negro 4-H Club boys and girls who picked cotton and prepared other farm duties to raise funds to permit each 4-H Club member to donate $1 to the Foundation.

Mrs. Capehart also expressed appreciation for the good work of friends of home demonstration and 4-H clubs, and to Mrs. Margaret H. Wade, assistant home demonstration agent.

The home demonstration agent, after reviewing recent activities, pointed out that officers and members of the Pitt County Negro Home Demonstration and 4-H clubs did valiant work in recent months in support of the Negro 4-H Club Foundation. John H. Wheeler, Durham Negro banker, is president. The Foundation's main office is at the Negro Agricultural and Technical College, Greensboro.

Objectives of the fund-raising drive in the state are:

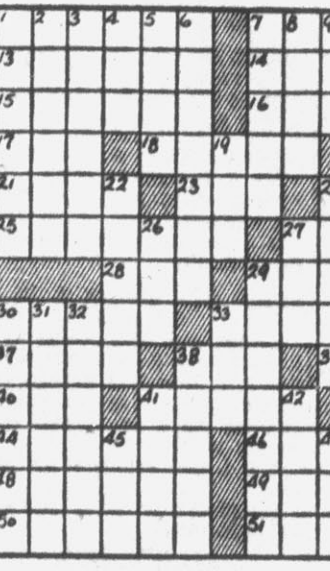

- "To establish and maintain a 4-H Club camp in North Carolina for Negro youth.
- "To provide educational trips and tours for 4-H Club members based on leadership and project accomplishments.
- "To provide scholarships for deserving club members based on record of leadership and project accomplishments.
- "To provide educational material, such as, appreciation plaques to be given to friends and supporters of 4-H club work, radio transcriptions, 4-H Club pins, exhibit materials, 4-H caps and "T" shirts.
- "To supplement the 4-H Club program among Negro youth in North Carolina; to further develop the needed skills and techniques of rural youth in the art of farming and home-making, and to appeal to the citizens of North Carolina for support of such worthwhile activities among Negro 4-H youth."

The whooping crane, believed to be the tallest bird in the United States, is six feet long.

Old Roman Wells Will Help Libya Stand On Its Feet

AP Newfeatures

TRIPOLI, Libya — A big Mediterranean gambling casino and repair of ancient Roman wells are parts of a scheme to make this ancient African country stand on its own feet.

Libya, under auspices of the United Nations, is to become independent by next Jan. 1.

By that time, a provisional all-Libyan government will take over full authority from the present British-French administration.

The British have been running since the Italians were kicked out of their one-time colony during the last war. The French run the other district.

The British have been running two of Libya's three districts since the Italians were kicked out of their one-time colony during the last war. The French run the other district.

U. N. economic experts, who have been studying the situation on the ground for months, say that though Libya can easily become politically independent, economic independence is another matter.

The country is poor, mostly desert. Libya has run down over the centuries since it was a rich province of the Roman Empire.

The gambling casino is not part of the U. N. plan. But it fits into the scheme of trying to bring more money into a country which has a big trade deficit.

The casino is expected to draw tourist dollars—or pounds, or lire or francs.

An agreement for the casino was signed recently, with the municipality of Tripoli, which will get 60 per cent of the take.

The old Roman wells are another matter.

Some 2,000 years ago the Romans dug wells all over the territory wherever underground water was to be found.

These wells fell into disrepair. Finally only a few sunk close to the coastal belt remained in useable condition.

Nomadic herdsmen—and most of the population is still nomadic at least part of the year—were forced to move in closer to the coast.

Now some 200 old Roman wells have been uncovered and repaired.

Each well has been lined with concrete and fitted with pulleys and stanchions, with concrete troughs leading off.

Four herdsmen can now water their flocks simultaneously at each of these wells.

This project, carried out by the British administration, has opened up great areas of land once again for grazing, since water is now assured.

Educator From Heidelberg Will Speak On Radio

Josef Schwarz, teacher from Heidelberg, Germany, who is now nearing the completion of a two-month visit on the East Carolina campus, will appear next Sunday evening on the "World Affairs" program presented by the Campus Radio Studio at 9:45 o'clock.

Dr. George Paoli, faculty member of the department of social studies at East Carolina, will interview Mr. Schwarz. The program will be broadcast over WOTC of Greenville and will be given as one of a series of weekly commentaries on current events and problems of national and international importance sponsored by the college department of social studies.

Schwarz is in America for a study of American schools and American education, especially on the secondary level, and will spend a total of six months in this country under the auspices of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

Convicted Driver Will Appeal Case

Edward H. Reed, 21-year-old Cherry Point Marine, who was found guilty in Police Court Wednesday of careless and reckless driving and causing personal injuries and damage to public premises on the roads, gave notice of appeal.

Sentence is to be suspended on payment of $25 and court costs. Judge Charles H. Wheebes fixed Reed's bond at $500 for appearance in Superior Court. Reed was held until about 8 p.m. Wednesday until he arranged for bond by the Atlantic Bonding Company.

Testimony at the trial was that Reed's car on the night of October 23 collided with an electric power line pole at 10th and Clark streets and damaged a neon sign at Carolina Grill and that four occupants of the car were injured.

Collision with the powerline pole resulted in electric power service being interrupted in many places in the city, it was testified.

The car Reed was driving was wrecked. It is now being held in a local garage on court order.

The four occupants injured or shaken up in the crash are Michael Dueth, Agnes Mills, Martha Barfield and Thelma Landen.

The court in sentencing Reed, ordered that he is not to operate a motor vehicle for two years, or, until he makes restitution for property damage and hospital bills, and that he remain of good behavior for a year.

Greenville Utilities Commission submitted a bill for $173.33 for damage to transmission lines. Carolina Grill put in a bill against the defendant for $325 for damage to a neon sign. Reed's fine and the court costs will up the sum he has to pay at considerably more than $500.

Thanksgiving Services To Be Held At College

The Inter-religious Council of East Carolina College has announced a Thanksgiving service to be held Sunday evening, November 18, at 7:30 in the Austin auditorium.

Dr. Robert Holt, director of religious activities at the college, will speak on a topic appropriate to the observance of Thanksgiving. Members of the Council extend a welcome to all who wish to attend.

The program will be one of three services sponsored during the school year by the organization, which includes representatives of religious groups on the campus. Other services are scheduled for Religious Emphasis Week in January and for Easter.

Special music for the Thanksgiving service will be provided.

Another Typhoid Case In County

The county health office today announced the sixth case of typhoid to develop in Pitt County since July.

C. C. Ayden, had been ill three weeks and in the hospital about five days, but his case was diagnosed as typhoid only yesterday.

Sanitarian Dean Futrelle inspected the sanitary conditions around the Thigpen home yesterday morning. He said the family has an approved privy but is not making use of it. They have an unimproved water system (pitcher pump), and the sanitarian reported that the house had no screens and flies were numerous about the premises for this time of year.

"A water sample will be taken and analysis made to determine the extent, if any, of water contamination," Futrelle asserted. "A safe water supply and proper sewage disposal system are two fundamentals governing public health. Practically every known disease can be traced directly or indirectly to a bad water supply or improper sewage disposal."

Survey Shows Average Postal Carrier Has 725 Stops On Route

An inspection survey of Greenville letter carriers shows that each of the seven city postmen makes an average of 725 stops every normal work day.

This fact was revealed in a survey made by Joe C. Dudley, superintendent of mails. The annual survey was begun the second week in October, and completed this week. "We find that the average weight of mail distributed by each carrier in Greenville is 86 pounds per day," Dudley stated. "The carriers are required to take out a minimum of 35 pounds, and the remainder is relayed to them on their respective routes."

"Sometimes more than one family may live in the same building, and that arrangement ups the average daily deliveries to 768 per carrier," Dudley estimated that each postman walks from 10 to 12 miles each day in covering his assigned route.

Each carrier daily handles an average of 1,161 individual pieces of mail, including letters, magazines, newspapers, circulars and parcel post, Dudley reported. "The Greenville office is now handling approximately 16,000 letters a day, but during the Christmas season that figure may jump to 80,000."

The mail superintendent reported that strangely enough, letter carriers suffer more casualties from vicious dogs than from any other hazard on their routes. He revealed that, though most citizens are unaware of the fact, the post office department is authorized to discontinue service in cases where necessary precautions are not taken to protect carriers against attacks from dogs.

"The most important factor in speedy mail delivery is correct addressing of envelopes. It is imperative that people get correct house numbers and street names on letters to facilitate deliveries," Dudley emphasized.

Beneke's Music Draws Big Crowd

A crowd in excess of 1500 persons flocked to the New Carolina Warehouse last night to attend the annual Lions Club Dance, this year featuring the music of Tex Beneke and his well-known band.

Fiscal tabulations on the exact number of persons in attendance were not available at noon today, club officials stated.

Music by Beneke and Company was enjoyed by the dancing population from nine o'clock until one o'clock while a host of people took in the dance as spectators.

Lions Club officials expressed complete satisfaction at the crowd which turned out for the event and pointed out that an even larger crowd would have been on hand, had not threatening weather for several hours preceding the dance prevailed.

In past years, the local civic club has brought the music of Gene Krupa and his band, as well as Beneke to Greenville for the enjoyment of the local citizens.

For Beneke it was his second appearance here sponsored by the Lions Club.

More than 200 special tables for patrons were used, and proved to be one of the main attractions of the event.

Seven Initiated Into Fraternity

Six students and a faculty member in the business education department at East Carolina college became members of the Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorar, business education fraternity, at a formal initiation ceremony conducted this week at the college.

Student members were chosen on the basis of high scholastic standing in the department. Shirley Pilkinton of Smithfield, president of the local chapter, presided at the initiation.

New student members of the group are Ivey D. Piner, New Bern; Herma Phelps, Greenville; Kenneth Kennedy, Greenville; Irene Lee, Four Oaks; Rachael Modlin, Ahoskie; and Paul Weeks, Whitakers.

Betsy Gilliam, faculty member of the department, was initiated as an honorary member. She is a graduate of the Woman's College, Greensboro, and of Teachers College, Columbia University. Before joining the East Carolina faculty this fall, she taught at Sullins College, Bristol, Va.

Vance Lockamy of Rocky Mount, vice-president of the chapter, was in charge of the initiation. A social meeting held in honor of new members was planned by a committee, including as members Maggie Galin and Ann Baysden, Ernul; Alford Wetherington, Silverdale; Mark Moore, Bath; and Mrs. J. W. Wilkerson of the faculty.

Puts Red Shirt On His Pet Deer

RENNVILLE, Minn. (UP)—A Renville farmer said today he will put a red shirt on his pet fawn when the deer hunting season opens on Saturday "and I hope hunters will see it and hold their fire."

Gene Schmidt found the fawn last spring. He said his wife fed her warm milk from a baby bottle to keep her alive. They named her Sally and have grown very fond of her.

Mrs. Elsie Jones Died This Morning

Mrs. Elsie Pringle Jones, 75, widow of J. J. Jones, died at the home of her step-daughter, Mrs. S. P. Langley, near Greenville, at 10:30 a.m. today.

She had been in failing health for four years and critically ill for two weeks.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Saturday by Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Greenville, assisted by Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist minister of Bethel. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

The body will remain at the home of Mrs. Langley and be carried to the Wilkerson chapel one hour prior to the time of service.

Railroads Given New Increase In Mail Pay Rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the railroads a further increase of about 32 per cent in mail pay rates.

The increase was estimated to give the carriers about $74,889,000 more a year for hauling the mails.

Today's award boosts the government's railway mail pay about 80 per cent higher than the rates in effect in 1947, when the railroads started proceedings for larger compensation.

At that time, the carriers contended that mail pay rates had not been adjusted since 1928 and were far out of line with present-day operating costs.

Over vigorous protests by the Post Office Department, the ICC then granted an immediate emergency 25 per cent increase while it considered what the future rate should be.

King George Has Picture Taken

LONDON (UP)—King George VI has recovered sufficiently from his lung operation seven weeks ago to pose smilingly for photographers.

figures. Vishinsky's proposal came after Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo had appealed to the U.N. to adopt the Western Big Three disarmament proposal.

In earlier debate today, Egyptian Foreign Minister Salah El-Din charged British actions in the Suez Canal zone represented an actual breach of world peace.

In explosive terms that astonished the assembled diplomats, he accused Britain of waging a "real war" against the Nile country, but offered a plebiscite in the Sudan to settle at least one phase of the dispute.

(In London today, authoritative sources said Britain will consider the suggestion of a plebiscite.)

Salah El-Din told the Assembly Egypt will withdraw its armed forces and officials from the jointly-administered Sudan for the plebiscite if Britain will do the same. He issued his dramatic charges immediately after Syria had denounced the West for trying to "impose" a Middle East defense pact against communism on Arab nations. (Pickup 3rd pgh: THE PACT)
